THE BIGGEST STAR IS THE YOUNGEST

Super Bowl MVP delights pro-am crowd

By PAUL MILLER

THE SUN in the brilliant blue skies over Poppy Hills Thursday morning couldn't match the shine from Tom Brady's smile.

The 26 year old from San Mateo County, who vaulted to the top of the sports world Sunday with his second Super Bowl MVP trophy, is suddenly the biggest celebrity at this week's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. He was trailed by photographers and delighted crowds wherever he went and was the center of attention — even with people like Kevin Costner and Andy Garcia warming up their golf swings nearby.

"I used to think Andy was the handsomest, but now I'm just in love with Tommy," said Lisa Shortleff of Cambridge, Mass. She identified herself as a lifelong New England Patriots fan and was nearly in tears when Brady stopped to sign autographs — on the other side of the Poppy Hills putting green from where she waited with Sharpie and scorecard at the ready.

Brady quarterbacked the Patriots to a dramatic 32-29 win over the Carolina Panthers at the Super Bowl in Houston Sunday. Monday he was at Disney World in Orlando. Tuesday he was cheered by a million fans in a victory parade through downtown Boston.

Less than 48 hours later, he teed off in the first round of this year's Pebble

Council adds use fee to Sunset ticket prices

Bach worries about box office impact

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A UNANIMOUS Carmel City Council decision Tuesday to impose a facility use fee on Sunset Center theatergoers is not sitting well with one major presenter.

Concerned the fee might hurt its box office, the Carmel Bach Festival board issued a statement Thursday saying it "has only started to recover somewhat from the extraordinary costs and loss of audience associated with having to move the festival in 2001 and 2002 to accommodate the renovation of Sunset Center."

But no one from the festival or any other user group opposed the fee when it was considered by the council Feb. 3.

During the hearing, acting Sunset Center General Manager Tom Bacchetti said the fee would offset the costs of operating the newly renovated theater. Based on figures proposed by the nonprofit corporation, Sunset Cultural Center, Inc., which might take over management of the center, Bacchetti said the facility use fee would add $2 to tickets $20 and higher and $1 to tickets $19.99 and under. The fee would be waived for school events with tickets priced lower than $8.

"A facility use fee is not an uncommon device used by performing arts venues around the country," he told the

VAST P.B. EIR UNVEILED BY COUNTY PLANNERS

By PAUL MILLER

ALMOST FOUR years after Pebble Beach Co. officials announced dramatically scaled-back plans for development in Del Monte Forest — and more than three years after voters overwhelmingly Ok'd the broad outlines of their proposal — the county planning department has finally made public a vast study of the environmental impacts of building a new golf course, equestrian center, 33 homes, 170 hotel rooms and 60 units of employee housing.

The environmental impact report, 1,267 pages and prepared at a cost of more than $100,000, was released Wednesday. With the AT&T pro-am getting under way Thursday, officials with the P.B. Co. weren't available to comment on the EIR, which encompasses what they have said is their vision for "final build-out" in the highly scenic neighborhood around the Pebble Beach Golf Links. According to the EIR, besides the golf course, homes, equestrian center and hotel rooms, the new plan:

■ eliminates 856 homesites allowed by zoning approved by Monterey County and the California Coastal Commission in the 1980s;

■ increases dedicated open space by about 437 acres; and

■ designates four new acres for "visitor-serving uses."

But the EIR says the proposal also involves cutting almost 100 acres of Monterey pine forest and converting 28 acres of undeveloped forest to "suburban forest," — aspects which the staff of the coastal commission has already been campaigning to halt, long before the P.B. Co. project will be submitted to them.

In December, the commission decided to let Community Hospital cut a small plot of Monterey pine forest for a new

EASTWOOD RE-UPS WITH STATE PARKS BOARD

By PAUL MILLER

DESPITE WORLD-WIDE speculation that Clint Eastwood was about to be fired by a vengeful Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger, the former Carmel Mayor has been asked to serve another term on the State Park and Recreation Commission, Eastwood said last week. Schwarzenegger also asked him to serve on the state film commission, and he said he would accept both appointments.

The two Hollywood superstars, who have known each other for decades, discussed the appointments during the Christmas holidays when they and their families spent time together at an Idaho ski resort, according to Eastwood.

"He asked me to serve another term on the state parks board, and I told him I would," Eastwood told The Pine Cone. "We're going to take it up at the next board meeting."

His previous term ended Jan. 15. Eastwood was first appointed to the state parks board in 2001 by then-governor Gray Davis.

Partly because of their friendship, and also because recall candidate Peter Ueberroth is one of his partners in the Pebble Beach Co., Eastwood decided not to make an endorsement in the Oct. 7 recall election, despite his longstanding association with Schwarzenegger.

Last summer, in a Pine Cone story that was circulated around the world, Eastwood also warned Schwarzenegger

Make a match on Valentine's Day

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

TWO ANIMAL rescue agencies hope Valentine's Day will be full of love and successful matchmaking for the four-legged furry friends who will be up for adoption at two pet-friendly locations in Carmel throughout the day.

Buon Giorno Bakery & Café, located toward the back of a courtyard on the west side of Junipero between Fifth and Sixth avenues, will host a pet adoption party for several SPCA dogs from 9 a.m. to noon. The pups will be available to go home with loving new owners. Proceeds from two prize drawings will benefit the nonprofit organization as well: A local artist known for her talents as a pet portrait painter has donated a portrait sitting to the cause, and a pearl dog necklace will also be given away in the drawing.

With two outside patios available for dining in the company of pets, Buon Giorno is open daily from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m. and offers

Post office street work riles some

■ They loved their bump-out

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A DECISION to straighten out the sidewalk in front of the Fifth Avenue post office, reduce the size of a planter and realign a bench upset some Carmel residents, who appeared before the city council Tuesday afternoon to complain.

"I believe we've lost something important, and it saddens me," said Barbara Brooks, who lamented losing a safe place to tie up her dog, a community gathering spot and room to replace the previous towering pine which had died.

"It never was discussed," she said. "This is not the first time the public has been bypassed. Our government is disappearing behind a curtain." Brooks echoed what has become a main theme of city councilman Dick Ely's mayoral campaign.

Carmel Residents Association President Larry Rodocker condemned a decision he said "removes a little bit of Carmel's charm and uniqueness, all to obtain one parking space."

He also argued the community traffic safety commission and the forest and beach commission should have weighed in on the change.

"How could a development such as this take place without any justification or consideration?" he asked. He called for the city to rebuild the bumpout the way it was and then "take it through the process."

Because the Brown Act prohibits discussion of items not on the agenda, city administrator Rich Guillen said he wasn't able to respond at the city council meeting. Later, he told The Pine Cone he made the decision to remove the bump-out after talking with members of the public, former public works director Jim Cullem, city forester Mike Branson, police chief George Rawson and resident Clayton Anderson, whose group, Friends of Carmel Forest, had hoped to plant a cypress tree to replace the pine.

Public works employees prepared the Fifth Avenue sidewalk for straightening last month, prompting some to complain.

The former planter on Fifth once held this towering Monterey pine, which was removed in January 2003 after it died.

New face behind the window at Carmel P.D.'s front desk

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN CARMEL Police Chief George Rawson introduced the newest member of his force to the city council Tuesday, he mentioned her "great personality and enthusiasm."

He would have been hard pressed to find better words to describe Dawn Almario, who even at the end of an 8 p.m.-to-8 a.m. shift bubbles with energy.

"I love it," she told The Pine Cone Thursday morning. "I like the work and the people I work with, and it's very comfortable here."

Hired Jan. 16 to handle dispatch, 911 calls and myriad other tasks behind the front desk at Carmel Police Department, Almario has spent 13 years in law enforcement.

Born and raised in Salinas, she began her career as a records clerk with the Monterey County Sheriff's Office in 1991. She transferred to the San Jose Police Department five years later to work as a records technician, and in 2001 she joined Morgan Hill P.D. as a community services officer and dispatcher.

"Then I decided I wanted to come closer to home and work for a smaller police department," she said. Her Internet

After growing up in Salinas and serving police departments in San Jose and Morgan Hill, cheerful Dawn Almario found her Carmel police job on the Internet.

search of local law enforcement agencies with vacancies bore fruit, "and that's how I came to Carmel."

Almario said she enjoys the variety of her job and CPD's emphasis on serving the community.

"It's more customer-service oriented over here, as opposed to a bigger agency where they don't really have the personnel to do that," she said. "And there, everything is handled by specialized teams, while here you get to wear different hats."

Almario, who has been working the midnight shift while training with CSO Terry Williams, said she has had no trouble staying awake.

"I have had my experience working on midnight shifts, and my training has kept me very busy and alert," she said. Almario will switch to the day shift in the next month as her training continues.

After being introduced to the council and a packed city council chambers by Rawson Tuesday afternoon, Almario approached the podium, introduced her two sons and her parents in the audience, and thanked the police chief and the city for giving her the job.

"Thank you for the opportunity to work for such a wonderful organization," she said. "I've had wonderful interaction with people so far, and I look forward to a full career with the City of Carmel."

BY A unanimous vote, the Pacific Grove City Council members decided Feb. 4 to legalize bootleg apartments in their city. They are offering a two-year amnesty in which landlords can register their illegal units with the city and bring them up to modern health and safety standards, in exchange for renting them to "very low income" tenants from now on. The city hopes the amnesty will increase the number of affordable housing units in P.G.

"What a difference four years of work can make," said Larry Scholink, landlord, real estate broker and affordable housing advocate, who began a campaign for amnesty in 1998 to help tenants and landlords come out of the shadows of the underground housing market.

"Butterfly Lady" Ro Vaccaro, Scholink's tenant and a beloved figure in Pacific Grove for her work to preserve monarch butterflies, agreed to allow The Pine Cone to use her case as a typical example: She pays $471 per month for a tiny unit in what used to be the storage room of an apartment building. Now, instead of worrying that she'll be busted for living in an illegal apartment, Vaccaro can come and go without fear.

And Vaccaro's rent could actually be reduced, because she qualifies for federal Section 8 housing assistance and the P.G. Council also voted to include Section 8 tenants in the amnesty program. As Scholink explained, the HUD "market rate" for Vaccaro's one-bedroom apartment is $841 per month. Under Section 8, a tenant like Vaccaro whose Social Security income is $1,224 per month, would pay only one-third of that — $367 — with the remainder paid to the landlord by the housing authority of Monterey County from taxpayers' funds. So both landlord and tenant would have more money in their pockets. The extra dollars could help landlords pay the huge costs required to bring their units into compliance under the program.

According to Rosie Anderson, director of assistance for the housing authority, 3,770 people receive Section 8 assistance in the county — 51 in P.G. — and 5,000 more are on the waiting list. The Pacific Grove amnesty won't make much of a dent in that number, but it's a start.

"We believe there are 350 to 400 illegal units in Pacific Grove that could qualify for amnesty, but that is just an estimate. Nobody knows the real number yet," said Julie Uretsky of the Pacific Grove Community Development Dept.

To qualify for amnesty, the owners of illegal units must:

- have their units inspected and upgraded. Seriously damaged foundations must be repaired; stairs must have safe railings; hazardous wiring must be fixed; heaters must be vented; sewer lines must be flowing properly, and smoke detectors must be installed, among other upgrades.
- Units must have been rented since at least March 1985 — before the water management district took jurisdiction over who is permitted to add plumbing fixtures — or obtain a new water permit.
- Owners must get a sewer permit from the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency.
- Landlords have to rent to "very low income" tenants, as defined by Housing and Urban Development guidelines. A very low income tenant can make no more than $20,000, or $22,850 for a couple. The rent must be no higher than $500 per month for a single tenant, $571 for a couple, unless Section 8 housing rules allow a higher, subsidized rent. If current tenants do not qualify as low income, they must move within six months, according to the amnesty ordinance.

Landlords cannot legalize a converted garage apartment if it was required parking for another unit.

They may not enlarge nor sublet the legalized unit. Nor can the unit be rebuilt if more than 25 percent is damaged or destroyed.

Landlords must record a deed restriction promising to keep the apartment affordable as long as it is rented, and future owners must also comply.

They must allow the city to inspect the unit and monitor the rents charged and the income of the tenant, to make sure they continue to qualify as affordable.

The registration period begins May 1 and ends April 30, 2006. After that, any illegal units that are discovered must be removed by the landlord.

Board asks basic question: How much water do we need?

Well rules, water transfers also considered

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE MONTEREY Peninsula's water supply will have to be increased by at least 25 percent — on top of the amount needed to stop illegal pumping from the Carmel River — to accommodate the development anticipated over the next 15 years, the water board was told during a workshop Monday.

Future water supply needs were one of the hot topics the board fleetingly delved into during the two-hour workshop, which the board called to begin revamping some of its regulations and clarifying others.

In anticipation of getting a new water supply project online in the not-too-distant future, the board asked water manager Stephanie Pintar for recommendations on how the county, the airport district and the six cities within the water district should calculate their future water needs.

Pintar said a wide variety of factors could be used, including historical average water use, maximum potential densities, and existing lots of record as of January 1997. Or the district could provide enough water for potential development allowed in current general plans.

The jurisdictions last reported their estimated needs in 1999 to cover development through 2020. Carmel projected 405 acre-feet; Del Rey Oaks, 196.5; Monterey, 766.8; Pacific Grove, 531.1; Sand City, 300; Seaside, 409; Monterey County, 893; and the Monterey Peninsula Airport District, 74.3, for a total of 3,572.7 acre-feet in addition to water needed to make up the state-imposed deficit. [An acre foot is approximately 325,000 gallons.]

But director Judi Lehman wondered if the figures were too high. "I don't see any rationale and would like to see the rationale for how they arrived at these numbers," she said.

Director David Pendergrass, the mayoral representative on the board, told Lehman the numbers were derived by the jurisdictions based on the development allowed by approved general plans.

"These are not wish lists; these are estimates which need to be updated and if anything, there's probably more water needed," he said. "Goal number one is to augment the water supply. For the last four years, we've done nothing."

Lehman objected to that characterization and said the old water board, which lost its majority in the November election, had launched an effort to build a small desalination plant in Sand City.

But director Michelle Knight said the board needed to know "how much water we should be sizing a project to, and we can't get to step two until we get to step one."

She suggested the technical advisory committee get back to the board with recommendations on calculating future water needs within 90 days.

Wells and rates

In preparation for a possible streamlining and relaxation of permit requirements for wells, planner Henrietta Stern told directors the history of the district's increasing control over small, private water systems.

In 1988, the district began requiring all property owners with wells to report how much water they used. Parcels smaller than 2.5 acres could estimate their use, while larger parcels had to meter the output of their wells, or the amount of electricity used to operate them. There was no requirement to obtain a permit from the water district to drill a well.

That changed in 2001, when the district began requiring a permit — including proof that a property owner also owned the water beneath the land — for any well drilled within certain parts of the district. A year later, it expanded the permit requirement to wells drilled in most of the Carmel River watershed. In February 2003, the board dramatically increased fees for those permits.

"The current permit process takes a minimum of roughly 35 staff hours and two to four months between receipt of an application and final approval," Stern told the board — and that's on top of the permit required by the Monterey County Health Department.

At the request of chairman Alvin Edwards, she suggested changes that would "lessen impact on property owners and reduce staff effort while continuing the district's mandate to protect water sources and the environment."

Most owners of wells or other water systems permitted by the health department would file brief applications so staff could roughly determine water use, she suggested. Based on that screening, applications would be subjected to a level of scrutiny based on the "anticipated impact and sensitivity of the geographic area."

Level one would be a permit waiver for low-impact uses, such as a well on a small parcel in a non-sensitive area. Level two, the most common category, would require a permit granted by staff without public hearing. Level three would be "reserved for larger, potentially controversial projects, and/or well location within known sensitive areas such as the Carmel River alluvial aquifer" and would require a public hearing before the board or a hearing officer.

With a $2,450 application fee and additional staff time, if needed, billed at $70 per hour, current permit applications are also expensive. Stern proposed a sliding scale based on complexity, starting with an initial $50 screening. Level one would cost $300, level two would cost $1,500 plus $70 an hour if needed, and level three applications would cost $2,500 plus $70 an hour.

"I think we need to make it a lot less cumbersome and not charge them so much," director Larry Foy said. "I think that's where we need to go."

Acting general manager Fran Farina said it would take several months before staff could bring a detailed proposal on well permits to the board.

Water for adjacent lots

Most of Monday's discussion focused on if and when water on one lot can be moved to an adjacent lot owned by the same person in order to expand a home or build a new one. "Water credit reassignment" used to be a comparatively simple administrative task

The current well permit process takes a minimum of roughly 35 staff hours and two to four months between receipt of an application and final approval, and that's on top of the permit required by the Monterey County Health Department.

Firemen respond to smoldering bank snack

POPCORN LEFT unattended in a microwave filled a Bank of America break room with smoke Tuesday morning, triggering an alarm which summoned the Carmel Fire Department.

"There was quite a bit of smoke," said Carmel Fire Captain Mitch Kastros, whose engine was dispatched at 9:15 a.m. to the bank building at Mission and Seventh after an employee left the bag of popcorn in the microwave for five minutes, causing it to smolder and char.

"They had cajun popcorn," Kastros quipped.

Had a bank employee called the department immediately after the alarm activation and sworn everything was fine, the engine might not have rushed to the scene, according to Kastros.

"Sometimes people will call right away, and they're 1000 percent sure everything's OK," he said. "But we didn't hear anything, so we had to proceed."

Upon firefighters' arrival, most of the windows were already open, and Kastros opened the emergency door as well to aid in ventilating the room. They reset the alarm and left, completing the call in about 15 minutes.

Carmel Valley

Candidate/CPA Collins: 'I'll fix county budget'

By PAUL MILLER

A CERTIFIED public account from Salinas Valley highlighted his business expertise at a campaign forum in Carmel Wednesday night.

"We have no financial management in the leadership of the board of supervisors now," said Steve Collins, a CPA and college professor who is trying to unseat Dave Potter from his 5th District supervisory seat. He said budget planning should be done not just on a yearly basis, but with an eye on the inevitable ups and downs in the economy.

'This county needs to operate in a lean manner, not only when times are lean but when they're fat, because that's when you build up reserves,' he said. "When I am sitting up there [at the supervisors' dais], we will not have these problems because I will sound the warning bell early in the process."

Two weeks ago at a similar appearance in Carmel Valley, Collins focused on the impact of county budget cuts on law enforcement in the unincorporated areas of the county. He was joined that night by Sheriff Mike Kanalakis, who warned that the county budget situation was so desperate, "you might call for a sheriff's deputy and one won't be available."

Another forum Feb. 18 in Monterey will highlight the county's water supply problems, campaign officials said. This week's session focused on county budget cutbacks and healthcare, particularly at Natividad Medical Center.

"There is a real crisis in Monterey County," said tax collector Lou Solton. The state is taking an ever-bigger piece of local revenues — a trend that started after the passage of Prop. 13 in 1978 and which has accelerated ever since.

"The state has reneged on some of its commitments to fund county government," Solton said. The county didn't receive about $8 million in vehicle license fees it was supposed to get this year after Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger made good on a campaign pledge to repeal a tripling of the tax passed by the Democratic Legislature and former Governor Gray Davis last year. "And if the $15 billion bond measure doesn't pass March 2, the state will have no choice but to dramatically cut the size of government," he said.

The state's problems have added to the county's budget shortfall, which could reach $40 million next year.

"The county only has $120 million in discretionary spending, so $40 million is a big chunk of that," Collins said. Also, more than 75 percent of county general fund expenditures are for staff salaries in benefits, making job cuts inevitable. The county has been too generous with its union employees, Collins implied.

"The county has reopened negotiations on a contract signed just last year," he said. "Employees will have to be let go because we signed that contract."

He also called for "regional solutions" to the county's healthcare problems — something the two big, private hospitals will support because they don't want Natividad Medical Center to close.

"I've talked to Steve Packer [CEO of CHOMP] and Sam Downing [head of Salinas Valley Memorial] and they really want to help," Collins said.

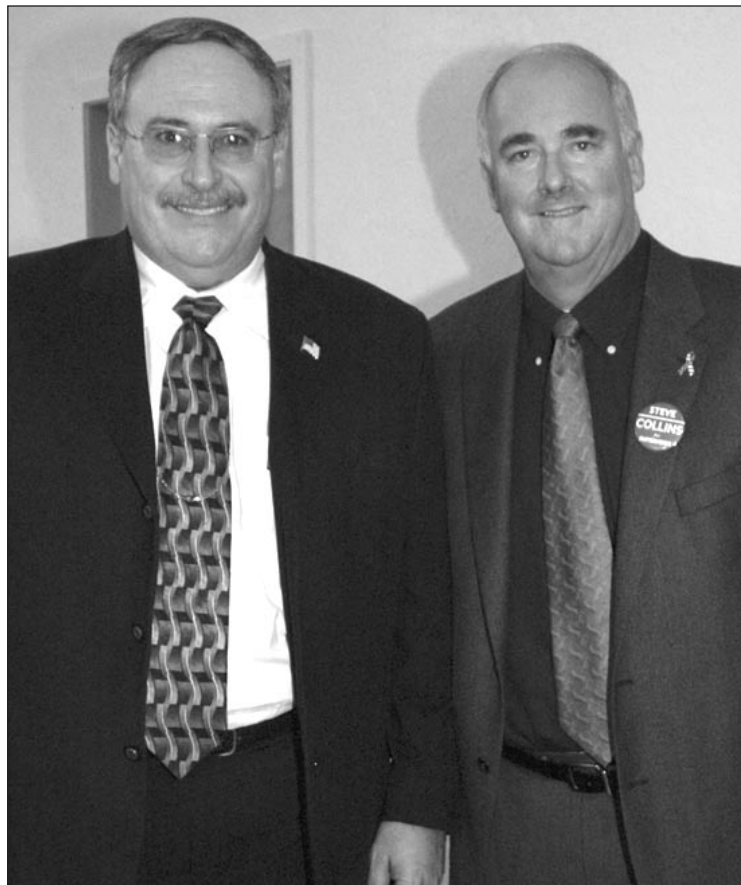

In response to a question from the audience, Collins said the people of Carmel Valley should decide on their own whether to incorporate. "If 51 percent of the people want to form their own city, my job as a supervisor will be to facilitate that — but we also have to look at what's sticking in their craw. Maybe we haven't provided them with the level of service that would encourage them to remain unincorporated. Basically, they feel ignored and they feel they have very little say what goes on in their valley."

Another questioner asked how Collins could represent the Peninsula when he lives in the Salinas Valley.

"It's a question of leadership, not geography," Collins said. "Leadership means bringing diverse groups together to solve common problems, and I have broad support within this district. I can bring people from the ag community, the tourism industry, government and the environmental community together to solve problems on a regional basis."

And he outlined his budget goals: "The priorities should be public safety and public health. We can reduce planning [costs] more than we can public health, and we can reduce parks, unfortunately, more than we can public safety."

Beach pro-am. Keeping a close eye on the young superstar was Pebble Beach Company CEO Bill Perocchi, who is largely responsible for getting Brady to participate.

"Tommy is just an outstanding young man, and it's been my pleasure over the last two years to become a close friend of him and his family," Perocchi said.

His relationship with Brady began after the 2002 Super Bowl, when the Patriots also won in a squeaker over the St. Louis Rams.

"I was introduced to Tom through a mutual friend," Perocchi said. "I found out he grew up just an hour-and-a-half from here and was a golf fanatic. He told me, 'I always wanted to play Pebble, but I never got a chance.'"

A few months later, Brady and his parents, Tom and Galynn, were invited by Perocchi for their first ever round at Pebble Beach — and they asked Perocchi to join them.

"You hear a lot about Tommy's personality and how humble he is — and I can tell you, he gets it all from his parents," Perocchi said. And the whole family has great athletic talent, he added.

According to Perocchi, who grew up in Boston and is a diehard fan of the Patriots, Red Sox and Celtics, the young Brady is not only the biggest sports figure in Boston today, with his two Super Bowl MVP awards at such a young age, he could be the biggest ever.

"He's already being compared to Ted Williams and Larry Byrd," Perocchi said. "He's still just a kid, he's rich and he's single, and there's no telling what he can do."

Wednesday night Brady paid a visit to the football team at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach.

As he prepared to tee off the next morning — unshaven, but nevertheless looking very glamorous, female golf fans seemed to agree — he cheerfully told interviewers from ESPN, CBS Sports, the Golf Channel and numerous other media outlets how great he felt about winning the NFL championship, how much he loves his teammates, how beautiful Pebble Beach is, and pretty much everything else they wanted to hear.

In the early morning chill Thursday, Kevin Costner warmed himself with a cup of coffee on the Poppy Hills putting green.

"One of the great things about him is how patient he is with the media and his fans," said Perocchi, who took his whole family to Houston last weekend to watch their friend, Tom Brady, win the Super Bowl.

"Tommy threw an interception in the fourth quarter, but he just put it out of his mind and put together two flawless drives — one for a touchdown and one for a field goal — to win the game. It was the most exciting thing I've ever seen," Perocchi said.

Tom Brady and most of the Hollywood stars in this year's tournament will play Friday at Spyglass and Saturday at Pebble Beach. Tee times are on page 16C of the special section.

AS EXPECTED, BUDGET HEADED FOR $1.2 MILLION SHORTFALL

By MARY BROWNFIELD

REVENUES ARE down, but expenditures are down more, putting the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea a bit ahead in its 2003/2004 budget, city administrator Rich Guillen told the city council Feb. 3. But his rosier half-year report does not mean the fiscal year will end in the black, since the budget included a $1,181,987 deficit to be covered by reserves.

Of the total $11,760,047 budget for this fiscal year, which began July 1, the council anticipated spending $5,878,618 by the end of December and taking in $5,856,351.

In fact, the city spent $5,697,024 and raised $5,800,601, finishing the first six months $125,844 higher than expected.

A busy housing market boosted property taxes. But sales taxes and transient occupancy taxes improved only slightly, city figures show.

"Sales taxes are still low, but better than we did a year ago, which indicates the economy is turning around," Guillen said. "People are coming to Carmel and spending their money and the innkeepers are filling rooms, but they are giving very good rates."

Permit fees and money from other government agencies were below expectations, including the state vehicle license fee of $260,000 which had been promised, then withdrawn by Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger, then partially delivered in the amount of $130,000.

Although the costs of workers compensation, property and liability insurance and the regional ambulance subsidy were a combined $178,109 over their budgeted $614,398 for the first half of the year, the budgeted $3,337,876 in salaries and wages dropped by $174,989, and the accompanying $311,753 in employee insurance program costs dropped by $66,921.

'People are coming to Carmel and spending their money and the innkeepers are filling rooms, but they are giving very good rates.'

— Rich Guillen

Guillen cautioned the council against being too optimistic after finishing the first half of the year slightly ahead of expectations, given the vast uncertainty at the state level.

"That situation has been changing on a daily basis," he said. "I get e-mails [from the state] every two or three days on what's happening in the state budget."

The city may not receive the remainder of its VLF, could lose $68,000 more in property taxes if they are shifted to the state's Education Relief Augmentation Fund, and might no longer receive the $100,000 grant which pays for one police officer position (though that loss would not mean firing anyone, since the department remains understaffed). Guillen said the city will not receive its $8,400 in public safety funds which would have been supplied through Proposition 172.

Storms or sunshine ahead?

Planning commissioner and council candidate Mike Cunningham applauded the city for keeping its expenses under control.

"It's hardly a disastrous situation in my opinion, and I urge you to keep the faucet tight," he said, adding that a conservative second half could see a balanced budget at year's end.

Carol Hilburn, a member of the cultural commission, said finishing the first half "slightly to the good" does not foretell a balanced budget, but rather a year ending with the anticipated $1.18 million deficit to be covered by reserves.

Who is Sunset Cultural Center, Inc.?

Tough questions for new group at town meeting

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SUNSET CULTURAL Center, Inc., the nonprofit which may soon take over management of the newly renovated performing arts venue for the city, has a nine-member board filled with a diverse group of accomplished volunteers, according to chairman Jim Price, who recruited them. After making a presentation to a town meeting attended by more than 250 people last week, Price and other members of the SCC board are awaiting a decision from the city council on whether they will be chosen to operate the center.

After serving as chairman of the city's ad hoc Sunset Center management committee, which reviewed options and ultimately recommended an independent nonprofit run the center, Price thought his work was done. But last August, Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud asked Price to convene a group which might grow into a nonprofit.

"She didn't name the group, just asked me to take the initiative and get it together," he said. "I thought about it and thought someone needs to do this, and it should be someone independent rather than on the council or in city government. So I agreed to do it."

He compiled a list of 25 candidates, and with input from city officials and various interested parties, narrowed the group to the nine members who eventually incorporated as the private nonprofit SCC. They have all since resigned from their positions on other boards "in order to have independent status," according to Price.

The group met weekly, then biweekly, to gather information and prepare the business plan it presented to the city council last month.

A graduate of Stanford University with a B.A. in American history, Price obtained a master's in divinity from the Pacific School of Religion and also studied at the UCLA School of Business. He is currently involved in commercial real estate investments and has worked as chairman and director of a bank. He is also former area director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, was assistant to the Mayor of Oakland, developed and operated low-income rental housing, and has served as treasurer/director of the Forest Theater Guild. Price and his wife, Jane, divide their time between Carmel and Alamo. She is a flutist and they are both classical music fans who subscribe to the Carmel Music Society and the Monterey Symphony.

Sarah Brown, treasurer

As treasurer of the SCC board, Brown, a certified public accountant, brings her financial know-how to the nonprofit. She holds a bachelor's degree in accounting from the University of Arkansas and has served as a corporate vice president.

"Jim was trying to put together a group that had different areas of expertise," said

Brown, who has divided her time between Carmel and San Francisco for the past seven years. "My background is in accounting and finance, and that was one of the pieces he wanted to plug into the group, so that's how this got started and how I got involved."

Brown has also worked for other nonprofits, namely the San Francisco Child Abuse Prevention Center and the Glaucoma Research Foundation.

"Although I do not have any specific business experience with a performing arts organization, I have been a director and served as treasurer of two other nonprofit organizations and do know something about nonprofit accounting, which is different from government and for-profit accounting," she said.

Desiring to be involved in a Carmel community project, Brown was delighted to accept a seat on the board when Price approached her.

Karen Kadushin, secretary

Kadushin, an attorney with a degree from the Golden Gate University School of Law, studied dance, music, art and theater arts at UCLA. A former dean at the Monterey College of Law, Kadushin also served as director of the Pacific Repertory Theatre and the Monterey Peninsula College Foundation. She has been a member of the Colleagues of the Arts and past president of the Bar Association of San Francisco and the Monterey County Women Lawyers Association.

Due to her moving out of her Pebble Beach home and problems with her telephone service, Kadushin was not available this week to talk to The Pine Cone about her membership in the SCC board.

Demi Briscoe

Briscoe, a Carmel Valley resident and vice president of First National Bank of Central California's Carmel branch, has served as president and treasurer of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, past president and director of Soroptomist International of Carmel Bay, and director of Meals on Wheels of the Monterey Peninsula and Friends of Moss Landing Marine Laboratories. She holds a B.A. in psychology from California State University Los Angeles.

A subscriber to the Monterey Symphony who also served on the Carmel Bach Festival board, Briscoe said she had not met Price before he solicited her participation on the SCC board and suspects it is her role in local business that made her a candidate.

"I think that's the reason he approached me — to be a contact with the business community," she said.

Having attended Sunset Center events for years, Briscoe said she and other board members care deeply about making the renovated center a success.

"We're not selling anything and none of us have any vested interest in this whole project," she said. "We're all really involved with Sunset Center, and we've all made big contributions to see it go and really want to contribute personally to making a wonderful thing out of the cultural heart of the city."

Gary Luce

A Carmel resident for 18 years, Luce is also a longtime member of the city's hospitality industry. As the president of Carmel Inns by the Sea, Luce has served as president and/or director of many business and travelcountered Cunningham's optimism with his own prediction that the state would indeed deprive Carmel of much needed funds, while council candidate Erik Bethel said the city should focus on wooing more high-dollar tourists for longer stays in town, since property tax increases will slow if the Fed increases interest rates and TOT accounts for a third of the city's budget.

Councilwoman Barbara Livingston asked if Guillen's numbers included the items listed in former assistant city administrator Greg D'Ambrosio mid-year budget memo, which she said outlined more unbudgeted costs.

In his memo, D'Ambrosio mentioned several costs related to Sunset Center's staffing, remodel work, utilities and grand opening celebrations; salary increases for some city staff, building maintenance, and several other issues. He estimated an additional $450,000 might have to be transferred from city reserves by the end of the fiscal year.

"Some are included and some aren't,"

Guillen responded. "He was trying to advise us about things looking at the entire year, but we did discuss it and everybody has taken a look at it."

In what has become a familiar refrain, councilman and mayoral candidate Dick Ely said he wanted more time to review and verify the mid-year numbers to determine whether they are real or simply "shells."

"This is the way it's always been done," Mayor Sue McCloud responded.

In closing his presentation, Guillen recommended the council give him the go-ahead to place a hiring freeze on all vacant non-public-safety positions — of which there are currently six — authorize travel only for mandatory training and meetings on core priority projects such as the Local Coastal Program, pursue agreements with neighboring public agencies to augment staffing, and prepare a citywide management reorganization plan as part of the 2004/2005 budget process.

Although the council took no formal action, Guillen received tacit agreement and said he would unveil his reorganization plan at the April 27 workshop, which will be followed by further budget meetings set for May 13, May 25 and June 3.

CALLING ALL SERIOUS SOCCER NUTS

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE CATALYST Soccer Club is coming to the Monterey Peninsula this month to scout motivated young soccer players for whom the traditional fall soccer season isn't nearly long enough.

Catalyst, based in Santa Cruz County, has run a year-round soccer program for boys and girls ages 6 through 12 for five years and is now reaching south. Paul Holoher, director of Catalyst, has built a reputation for teaching the finer skills and tactics of the world's most popular sport at all levels. In addition to coaching the very young players at Catalyst, he is the head coach of the nationally ranked University of California at Santa Cruz men's team (21 - 2 last season). He has impressive playing credentials, too, being recently named to the Athletic Hall of Fame at Santa Clara University for his career as captain and All-American with the university's NCAA-champion soccer team.

Although soccer is immensely popular here in the fall, there is a void in soccer offerings in Monterey County for much of the rest of the year. Holoher hopes to change that.

The skill level at Catalyst Soccer Club clinics is definitely a few notches above local recreational leagues. The club is inviting all motivated soccer-loving boys and girls ages 6 to 12 to free introductory playdays/clinics at York School in Monterey this month.

"Many sports get a lot of attention in Monterey County, including basketball, football and baseball, but there are probably more kids playing youth soccer than any of these big three," he said. "These kids playing soccer deserve a program that will help them grow in this sport; otherwise, they stop playing."

Holoher doesn't want to lose these potential soccer stars, so he is offering two free "playdays/clinics" Feb. 21 and 22 to draw motivated young male and female soccer players in Monterey County to the Catalyst Club. The venue is the brand new athletic fields at York School, 9501 York Road in Monterey. The schedule for both days is:

- Under 9 (ages 6-8) — 1 to 3 p.m.
- Under 11 (ages 9-10) — 4 to 6 p.m.
- Under 13 (ages 11-12) — 4 to 6 p.m.

Holoher said parents can expect something different from the Catalyst. It is not a league like the ones offered by the YMCA and city recreation departments, but a "sustained weekly mentoring program designed to develop players' technical skills, tactical understanding, and love of the game." The two-hour sessions teach individual moves, dribbling, passing and scoring techniques and possession games that emphasize problem solving. The players build on their skills during winter and spring, and return to their fall playing leagues as more confident players.

"Success in youth soccer is definitely more than just a matter of winning games," Holoher said. "True success takes time and energy cultivating players with skill, confidence and composure on the field. The game is one of vision, skill and teamwork and not just big kicks down the field. We hope that if we begin to give these young players these tools to be successful, they will stay in the game longer, well into high-school and beyond."

Interested players should pre-register for the soccer clinics at www.catalystsoccer.com or call Catalyst at 475-4015

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

CASEY LYON, 5 months, is exuberantly all boy and was recently almost busted for his joie de vivre while digging a hole to China alongside the walking path at Scenic and 13th Avenue above Carmel Beach.

This almost-busting was almost-perpetrated by a Carmel policeman who objected to the hole digging precisely while Casey was being interviewed for his Sandy Claws debut. This prestigious event seemed to hold no sway with the man in blue, and not wanting to be taken in as an accessory, we smoothed things over with him while Casey's Mom Karen refilled the hole and kicked bark chips over the offending area. So much for the archeological dig to China of an Australian Shepherd/St. Bernard mix.

Casey loves the beach and Mission Trail, where he would soon be heading with Mom and their neighbor as it was high tide again at the ocean which provided no sand for walking. Generally, Casey likes to play with other beach dogs, scale the dunes and rocky part of the cliffs, chase birds and fetch balls tossed far afield with Mom's Chuck-It ball flinger.

Casey has a thick, white coat with black markings that extend over his right eye, and a lot of freckles across his nose and on his legs. Could he be more winsome? At home, he plays with his many squeaky toys on his big play pillow, and loves to chew his restraints: He has gone through two nylon collars and two halters to date.

SHARE WITH US A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY TO EXPERIENCE THE CULINARY TALENTS OF CHEFS LIDIA BASTIANICH (FELIDIA/N.Y.), MICHEL RICHARD (CITRONELLE/D.C.), AND RICK TRAMONTO (TRU/CHICAGO), AMONG OTHERS, PAIRED WITH SOME OF THE MOST EXCEPTIONAL WINES FROM CHATEAU CHEVAL BLANC, TENUTTA DELL' ORNELLAI, ALVARO PALACIOS, S.L., DOMAINE DES COMFE LATON, DOMAINE ROULOT, AND MANY MORE FROM AROUND THE WORLD.

Sock hop at Tehama to mark River School's 50th

ONE OF the Monterey Peninsula's ritziest venues, the clubhouse at Tehama Golf Club, will be the setting for a Sock Hop to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the opening of Carmel River School. The event, a fundraiser for the school, is being sponsored by the River School PTA and by Clint and Dina Eastwood and will take place March 27 from 5:30 to 10 p.m. Tickets are $100 and will be available at the River School office. Only 200 will be sold. Alumni, parents of students and friends of the school are invited. For more information, call 624-4609.

York School fundraiser offers $10,000 prize

THE ANNUAL fundraising event for York School — a private Monterey high school which attracts some of the area's best and brightest students — will be held at the National Steinbeck Center Feb. 22 at 5:30 p.m.

Just 1 percent of Monterey County's high school seniors attend York, but in recent years about half the county's National Merit Scholars have been students there. The school, which has about 220 students in grade 8 through 12, wants to open its doors to more students from lower-income families, and the Feb. 22 event "will help bridge the gap between tuition fees and the actual cost to educate each student, specifically the financial aid program that allows York to enroll deserving students from many different backgrounds," said headmaster Chuck Harman.

The evening, called the 2004 York School World Event, will allow guests to tour the Steinbeck Hall and the Valley of the World Agricultural Wing at the Steinbeck Center, including works by artist Jo Mora. A dinner featuring international food and wine will be followed by a live auction, hosted by KSBW news anchor Dan Green, and a "reverse draw" with a $10,000 prize. Tickets for the reverse draw, each with a 350-to-1 chance of winning, cost $100. Tickets for the evening are $75.

Call 372-7338, ext. 0, to order tickets for the evening or for the reverse draw.

The York School website is www.york.org.

The Reality of Counter Offers

Someone presents you with an offer that is very close to what you want, but you really want to ask for a slightly higher price and, perhaps, a slightly shorter escrow. So you decide to write up a counter offer. Most people aren't truly aware of what a counter offer is. It is an offer to sell from a specific seller to a specific buyer. Once written, it cancels the buyer's offer to buy, leaving the buyer with absolutely no further obligation to the seller.

All obligation now rests with the seller, who has made a legal statement that s/he will sell her or his home to a specific potential buyer under the price and terms detailed in the counter offer. Remember, the buyer can simply walk from the deal at that point. Thus, it makes sense for the seller (1) to be certain it's worth throwing out an offer in order to try to obtain a slightly higher price and more favorable terms and (2) to be extremely careful in detailing exactly at what price and under what terms s/he will indeed sell (because a signed counter-offer means there can be no further negotiations). As in all real estate transactions, the guidance of a real estate professional can make and save you a lot of money and potential hassles.

related associations, including the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, Monterey County Visitor and Convention Bureau, and the Monterey County Hospitality Association. He has also filled those roles for Carmel-by-the-Sea Rotary and Leadership Monterey Peninsula.

As an innkeeper, Luce said he wants to see Sunset Center achieve its fullest potential and hopes the SCC will be given the task of helping the facility reach that goal.

"I think it has been underutilized, and from a business standpoint for the inns of Carmel, I'd like to see beyond the performing arts to see it utilized for conferences," he said.

When Luce received the call from Price, he said the importance of the venue prompted him to accept.

"I say no to a lot of stuff and am really stretched to the hilt, but I thought it was a really important step at the early stage to get someone on board who has been doing business in town," he said.

Michael McMahan

An attorney specializing in corporate and estate planning law, McMahan holds a bachelor's degree in economics from Stanford, an MBA in accounting from Columbia University and a J.D. from UC Berkeley's Boalt Hall. He has served as director of Friends of Moss Landing Marine Lab, has been a member of Chartwell School's campus development committee and is former director of Hopkins Marine Lab and the Central Coast YMCA.

A Carmel resident since 1974, McMahan and his wife, Nicki, regularly attended Sunset Center performances and contributed to the $21.65 million renovation. She also attended school there as a child.

McMahan suspects Price called upon him to serve because of his participation in the community as well as his legal skills.

"I've had a lot of experience in a lot of areas, certainly as an attorney, but also with nonprofits and philanthropy in general," he said. "I will do whatever I can to help, if we're called upon to do it."

Frederick O'Such

O'Such, who lives in Clint Eastwood's former house on San Antonio Avenue, holds a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Lehigh University and obtained his MBA from Harvard Business School. The former chairman and CEO of Xertex Corporation, O'Such was also program chair of a public education group called The Partners of 63. He had a significant role in developing the SCC business plan, which he presented to the Carmel City Council during a special meeting Jan. 20.

Jim Sanders

A Carmel Point resident with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from the University of Kansas who did post-graduate work in economics at Stanford, Sanders founded his own insurance company in San Jose and later sold it to an international firm. He headed the U.S. Small Business Administration under then-President Ronald Reagan and is past president of The Beer Institute in Washington, D.C. He has been a director of the Monterey Institute of International Studies, past chairman and director of the Church in the Forest and director of the Carmel Foundation.

As a member of the Saratoga City Council in the 1960s, "I know a little bit about what you face on the city council," he said. That experience also gave him insight into why a nonprofit should run Sunset Center.

"A city council can't move quickly enough," said Sanders, who also served on the ad hoc committee formed to study management options for the center. "It must have an operation that understands the challenges and can move quickly."

Sanders agreed to join the SCC board so long as Price would be its chairman.

"I did it because I had been asked, and I felt it was very important," he said. "I knew Sunset Center was very expensive, that the city owes money, and it needed a lot of management energy."

Perry Walker

An agribusiness executive with a bachelor's in communications from CSU Hayward and a master's in the same field from CSU Humboldt, Walker spent the past six years deeply involved in the Carmel Music Society. He served as president, vice president, chairman of development, chairman of marketing and chairman of bookings.

"I was on my last term and resigned when Jim asked me to sit on the committee that later became the SCC board," said Walker, who has also been a member of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Rotary, director of the All Saints Foundation Trust and served as court-appointed special advocate for children.

"I'm most impressed with the quality of the board membership and the level of participation," he said. "Each is willing and prepared to give to the effort, and there is a great diversity of talents and perspectives," which adds to the quality of the decision making.

As a principal in the Carmel Music Society, Walker is a board member who has been on the user-group side of the relationship at Sunset, he said. "So I bring that perspective into our discussions, particularly about being sensitive to the challenges the presenter groups have."

What next?

During a town meeting held last Thursday at the Carmel Foundation, Price and O'Such presented their initial plan for taking over operation of Sunset Center — the same plan they presented to the city council two weeks ago — and fielded some tough questions about why their group should run the center and how they plan to reduce the subsidy the city pays to operate it without hurting the quality of performances.

"I keep asking the same question," said Olof Dahlstrand, whose wife, Lucia, is chair of the city's cultural commission. "Why is the management of Sunset Center by a nonprofit corporation deemed to be better than by a city department under the guidance of the cultural commission?"

He questioned whether a once-a-year public meeting would be enough input from the citizens of Carmel about the operation of Sunset Center, in which they invested so much of their tax dollars.

"The cultural commission would be more responsive to gripes and concerns — they meet once a month and would be able to act quickly and decisively," Dahlstrand said.

Former director of Sunset Center Richard Tyler also said management by the cultural commission would be better because that group "has the ear of the mayor."

Linda Anderson complimented Price on his presentation but said the city could perform all the same functions proposed for the SCC, except raise funds. She said a group similar to the Public Library Foundation could do that for Sunset Center.

Mike Brown cited his own extensive survey of towns and small cities with performing arts centers, almost none of which rely on a nonprofit to run them.

"I encourage the Sunset Cultural Center people to contact these cities," Brown said. "I was shocked and scared."

Price said his group had surveyed many other cities, with completely different results. And some of the cities that didn't use a nonprofit to run their performing arts venue said, "We would love to do it as a nonprofit . . . separate from the city," Price said.

City administrator Rich Guillen told the audience that the question of who would manage Sunset Center would be decided by the city council. This week, the council decided to add a $1 to $2-per-ticket charge to most events at the center to help pay for operating costs (see story, front page). Further discussions have not been announced. that being governor might be harder than it looked.

"When all the excitement dies down, he may decide this is a horrible time to be Governor of California. Huge deficits, the Senate and the Assembly dominated by Democrats — it's a very tough time to take over," Eastwood said Aug. 7.

His words of caution to candidate Schwarzenegger and his well-known friendship with Davis led to a series of speculative, if not completely invented, stories in various newspapers that Schwarzenegger would retaliate against Eastwood for not supporting the recall.

Sensational work of British fiction

One particularly notorious example, published last November in the Times of London and reported by the newspaper's arts correspondent John Harlow, claimed Schwarzenegger was "drawing up a hit list of officials who may be removed from their posts, and Clint Eastwood's name is on it."

Citing an unnamed source, Harlow reported that Schwarzenegger would

"Terminate" Eastwood because he was "under pressure from right-wing donors and party activists to punish" him. Eastwood was "'Unforgiven' for offering to film a campaign commercial for Davis," according to "political pundits," Harlow said.

Another anonymous source quoted in the story, this one "close to Eastwood," said he had been warned he might be "out of work" — a development to be regretted, according to the London Times, because the former Carmel mayor had "galvanized the previously moribund parks service" during his two years on the board.

Yet another unnamed source in Harlow's story called the impending firing "petty score settling at its worst."

This week, an actual source close to Eastwood said the London story was "completely made up." Not only wasn't the story true, it could not be true, and anyone remotely familiar with California politics would know that, the source said. The fact that it relied entirely on unnamed sources made it evident that the reporter had intentionally penned a sensational work of fiction, the source concluded.

Eastwood agreed: "The British press is unbelievable," he said, using the word in its literal and figurative senses.

EIR

wing. But documents supporting that decision sternly argued against any more cutting of "native pine forest" in the Monterey Peninsula. Instead, nearly all remaining native Monterey pine trees should be protected under state law, the coastal commission staff has argued.

The biologist who helped prepare the EIR said the loss of the forest is offset by the dedication of hundreds of acres as forest preserves in Pebble Beach, and should also be mitigated by aggressive maintenance of the protected forest, reduction of "building envelopes" on new residential lots to one-half acre, and dedication of additional acres of pine forest owned by the company, possibly including 74 acres in the City of Monterey and 795 acres on the east side of Highway 1.

There are also extensive mitigation measures in the EIR to protect wetlands, rare plants and animals, possible archaeological sites and water and air quality, and to reduce traffic congestion and construction disruption.

Monterey County is soliciting public comments on the EIR, which will be presented along with the permits sought by the P.B. Co. to the county board of supervisors later this year. If supervisors approve it, the project will go to the coastal commission.

Copies of the EIR can be downloaded from the county website, www.co.monterey.ca.us/pbi, and can also be reviewed at many local libraries.

FEE

The fee would be included on tickets to events scheduled for June 30 and after. "That gives the performing arts organizations time to include it in the printing of their tickets, gives everyone time to adjust, and gives Sunset Center staff time to figure out how to administer and collect it on an ongoing basis."

Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud wondered if the city could begin collecting the fees sooner, but Bacchetti said ticket holders would be confused if they were charged the fee for some shows and not others, depending on when the performances were booked and the tickets printed.

"There would probably be little to gain and a lot of confusion to deal with," he warned.

Councilman and mayoral candidate Dick Ely wondered how SCC had arrived at the amount and whether it would be appropriate. He also asked if the cultural commission had discussed it.

SCC's research found the fees usually run between $1 and $3 per ticket, according to Bacchetti. "In discussions with user groups, almost uniformly none of them thought this would be a major issue for them," he said. The commission did not have the fee placed on its agenda because there wasn't time.

Carol Hilburn, a cultural commissioner, said she did not oppose the fee as a method of raising revenues, but wondered how the city council could support it when it did not want to increase transient occupancy taxes by 1 percent, which would be less of a blow to Carmel visitors than the use fee will be to people who buy theater tickets.

After resident Monte Miller said he'd already received his Bach Festival mailer and did not see a use fee indicated, Bacchetti told the council the festival would "fund that fee underneath the price, rather than as an add-on to the ticket price."

The festival's statement Thursday confirmed its cast and programs were established and contracted last fall, have been published and cannot be changed.

Without further discussion, the council voted unanimously to impose the facility use fee.

LIFE'S A PARTY AT TUTTO MONDO TRATTORIA

ENTERING TUTTO MONDO Trattoria Saturday night was like arriving at a party in full swing: Every table was taken or reserved, music played over the speaker system and diners engaged in animated conversations which grew louder as the music volume swelled.

While one could fire a cannon down the center aisle of some Monterey Peninsula restaurants without injuring a patron, Tutto Mondo was packed and swinging. To what do they owe this good fortune?

Michelle Mondo is co-owner with her mother Nadia and father John, and oversees all, serving as host. Mother Nadia cooks her Ligurian specialties in the kitchen and father John is everywhere. Olegario Valdez is the executive chef, and a beautifully trained and caring staff are all reasons why locals as well as visitors pack the restaurant to its 78 seat capacity, especially on weekends.

Tutto Mondo began its run here in Carmel-by-the-Sea 10 years ago as Mondo's, the family name, but was later changed to become more expansive: Tutto Mondo — All the World.

As for signature dishes, Michelle says anything coming out of the kitchen as a specialty qualifies as a signature dish:

antipasto misto ($8.95) which came to the table attractively arranged on a serving plate: red, sweet pimentos, grilled, thinly sliced eggplant, shrimp, julienned celery root salad, diced tomatoes, narrow calamari rings — all dressed with a good vinaigrette. Don't confuse this with the antipasto Mondo, which is also $8.95, but is made up of prosciutto, mortadella, sopressata, marinated artichoke and marinated mushroom.

Fresh and succulent seafood

Following this appetizer I couldn't resist the frutti di mare (a term I have always loved) consisting of fresh and succulent clams, mussels, prawns, bay scallops and white fish over linguine in a perfect thin, white sauce. We ordered home made ravioli verdi di carne ($14.95) in a Bolognese sauce to share that was absolute perfection. It was so good we had an extra order made up to take home.

My companion ordered a roast chicken, almost a light mahogany in color that looked very appetizing, and was so generous in its two portions that she took half home, being unable to eat it all in the restaurant.

The wine list is relatively large and comprised of both California and Italian wines. From Italy: Tuscany, the Veneto, Alto Adige, and Piemonte are represented, and Michelle is trying to get some Italian white imports from along the Ligurian Coast — Cinqueterre and La Spezia in particular, because that is near her family's home which she visits from time to time. From California, wines are listed from the Napa and Sonoma valleys, Santa Barbara, and of course, Monterey Country. Wines by the glass are first class and priced reasonably.

The ambiance at the restaurant is very much like a restaurant in the Italian Alps: lace curtains at the window, a lighted candle in a raffia-covered fiasca with a hurricane chimney on each butcher block-topped table, a great chandelier, wine bottles everywhere, padded banquettes along one wall and booths along the other, and tables in the window and down the center of the trattoria, leading back to a crackling fire in the fireplace.

Tempting dessert tray

I am particularly fond of dessert trays (although not a fan of desserts) because they look so festive and tempting. At the end of the meal our very excellent busser, Armando, brought the prodigious tray of beautifully presented desserts, and told us the names of all of them. Hesitating between panna cotta and house-made cannoli filled with chocolate ricotta and white ricotta, we finally opted for a shared panna cotta, a light and silky egg custard topped with a judicious amount of whipped cream. It went well with the excellent espresso which we had to properly finish the meal.

The restaurant's motto is "Come home to Italy," and it's right on.

All in all, Tutto Mondo is an excellent trattoria with a happy and happening ambiance. If the music is too loud for you, just ask your server or Michelle to have it turned down — they'll do so cheerfully.

FOLK LEGEND JUDY COLLINS PAYS A FEB. 12 CONCERT VISIT

CENTER ARTS, a production company connected with Humboldt State University, presents folk legend Judy Collins in concert Thursday, Feb. 12 at Carmel's Sunset Theater.

With a career that has spanned more than four decades, Collins has thrilled audiences worldwide with her blend of interpretive folksongs and contemporary themes. Her early musical background was classical piano. Her father, Chuck Collins, was a singer, composer and broadcaster during the golden age of radio. By age 10, she was studying with mentor Antonia Brico, who conducted major symphony orchestras in the United States and Europe.

Her 1966 album "In My Life" had her stepping into a broad mixture of songs. On her next album, "Wildflowers," she asked Joshua Rifkin to arrange the entire album for orchestra, breaking new ground in the contemporary song movement.

Thursday's concert starts at 8 p.m. For tickets (if still available) call 620-2040.

MONTEREY COUNTY FILM COMMISSION

COMMISSIONER RECRUITMENT

First 5 Monterey County is seeking applicants to fill an opening on the County Commission, which coordinates and promotes early childhood development programs in the County.

First 5 Monterey County, also known as Monterey County Children and Families Commission was established by the passing of Proposition 10 in 1998. It exists to create and manage a comprehensive system to prepare children to enter school in good health, emotionally well developed and ready and able to learn. It dispenses approximately $4 million in grant funds per year.

Applicants must have significant experience in early childhood development and be involved in one of the following areas: early childhood education, tobacco education, health and human services, children's advocacy or health care. Applicants reflecting the diversity of Monterey County are encouraged to apply.

Applications will be accepted until February 15, 2004, and are available through our website: www.mcprop10.org or by contacting Joanna Steinbruner at 444-8549. Please fax completed applications to 444-8637 or email to Joanna@mcprop10.org

DEVELOPER'S EPIPHANY PROMPTS HIM TO GO GREEN

GREED, IN this particular era in America, is rampant to the point of the rich becoming ever richer and the middle class is dwindling. The color of greed is muddy brown to those seriously concerned with sustaining our national and world resources, and green is perceived as the color of ecology, not money.

In conjunction with York School, The Thunderbird Bookshop is presenting David Gottfried, author of "Greed and Green: The Transformation of an Industry and a Life."

Gottfried was at one time a very successful real estate developer by his own admission without conscience, but then, in a remarkable stroke of enlightenment, he took on the building and construction industry in relation to sustainability.

"He founded and helped build the most important green trade organization in the world," according to Paul Hawken, author of "Ecology of Commerce and Growing a Business." Hawkins goes out further on the limb concerning Gottfried's standing in the green community, and declares, "There is virtually no second place."

Gottfried learned as a young man from one of his Stanford professors that we Americans like to waste; we consume about 20 percent of the world's energy but comprise 5 percent of the population. It occurred to him that "we harm our planet because we don't feel a connection between our actions and the environmental impact." But that personal epiphany came later for Gottfried.

A good deal of the book is devoted to his early years during which he became a successful developer — which makes not only fascinating reading but tells us of the driving force behind that business.

Then it was greed, for Gottfried the green came later and transformed him into a different person. He decided he could make a difference in the world "though sustainable buildings," and has since devoted his life to that ideal.

He is a founder of the green building movement and thus is trying to transform the building industry through environmentally responsible construction. It is as if Gottfried has done penance for his earlier cavalier response to our natural resources.

Gottfried will present a free lecture and book signing at The Thunderbird Bookshop. The Barnyard, Carmel at 7 p.m.

Thursday, Feb. 12. This is a topic that will interest many, but architects, builders and real estate people in particular.

"CONVERSATIONS WITH American Women Writers" is a collection of 17 interviews in one book by Sarah Anne Johnson.

These are not just any writers, but some of the foremost women writers of contemporary fiction in this country today: Aimee Bender, Elizabeth McCracken, Lois-Ann Yamanaka and Sue Mills.

Johnson will discuss her book and how she came by the interviews and what she learned from these penwomen at a talk and book-signing at 5 p.m. Friday Feb. 13 at the Thunderbird Bookshop, Carmel. For information, call 624-1803.

The Bookshelf

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

Several readers wrote in to say how much they enjoyed reading about fellow Carmelites featured in Scot and Ann Zimmerman's new book, "California Cottage Style," reviewed in last week's Bookshelf.

What we failed to mention in the column was the wonderful work the Carmel Cottage Society is doing. Their mission is to recognize the historical significance of Carmel cottages, and to encourage renovation of them with integrity.

If you have a Carmel cottage that needs renovation, or you know of someone who has recently purchased a Carmel cottage with the intent to make it more comfortable, the Carmel Cottage Society is here to help. They have books and resources for materials, and the members have personal experience which they are willing to share. Contact the society at P.O. Box V, Carmel-by-the-Sea 93921.

NEW WRITERS GROUP: Bookworks, 667 Lighthouse, Pacific Grove, invites writers and aspiring writers of the Monterey Peninsula to a free monthly meeting held the second Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. The first meeting will take place on Feb. 11. The group will do creative writing exercises and give positive feedback on an individual basis, and will share information about publishing and all facets of writing to both published and pre-published authors. For more information, call Diane Grindol at 624-0514.

LEN ANDERSON and Taelen Thomas will be presented by the National Writers Union No. 7 as its reading series continues at 7 p.m. Friday Feb. 13 at the Thunderbird Bookshop. There will be a $5 admission charge.

NANCY BAKER JACOBS, Pacific Grove mystery writer, has been nominated for the Mary Higgins Clark Award given by the Mystery Writers of America each year for her recent book "Ricochet" which received accolades in this review column several months ago. The winner will be selected from five nominees in April. The book is suspenseful and set in Carmel. It concerns a young mother who thought she knew her husband's character, but is wildly off the mark; he is found dead in their marital bed — with a kitchen knife in his chest. "Ricochet" is available at all local bookshop in soft-cover.

WE'LL HAVE more information on the 14th annual Left Coast Crime mystery writers conference in Monterey Feb. 19 - 22 at the DoubleTree Hotel (where all rooms are sold out). Sharan Newman and Walter Mosley are the guests of honor, and Gillian Roberts the toastmistress. As well as the regular programming with panels, book dealers, publishers, agents, and the like, they'll be mystery movies, and even a mystery wine tasting. Go to www.interbridge.com/lcc2004 for more about West Coast Crime Monterey 2004.

Old Republic Title Company

Mickey Davi, Monterey Branch Manager
Susan Clark, Carmel Branch Manager

Who needs title insurance? Sellers! Yes, sellers have the obligation, and normally the expense, of providing evidence of clear title acceptable to the buyer. The best interest to the seller and, of course, the buyer and lender is served when the exact status of the title is established by a reputable title insurance company in plenty of time to correct any defects.

Old Republic Title Company has provided protection from and assisted attorneys in correcting title defects for many years. They are backed by one of the largest title insurance underwriters in the country. Insist on an owner's title insurance policy issued through Old Republic Title Company. In addition, their staff has many years of experience, and they are thoroughly versed in real estate property law. Sellers should look to them for fast, accurate and low-cost title service. Their professional staff will be glad to answer any questions you may have and help your real estate transaction go as smooth as possible.

Old Republic Title Company is located in Monterey at 503 Abrego Street, phone 372-7378, and in Carmel at 3775 Via Nona Marie, Suite 100, phone 625-3880. When it comes to title insurance, these are the professionals you can trust.

Cherie's Perfect 10 Cherie Brisset, Owner/Operator

Serving The Community For Over 18 Years

Long, beautiful nails have been envied and considered glamorous since before the days of Cleopatra. Today, more and more people are becoming conscious of the importance of a well-manicured look in their busy lifestyles. Unfortunately, many of these individuals suffer from fingernails that easily chip and peel or simply refuse to grow.

At Cherie's Perfect 10, located in Monterey at 445 Cortez Street, inside of Joyce & Co., phone (831) 647-1066, she provides a safe, affordable alternative to short, damaged fingernails. Sculptured and acrylic nails are becoming increasingly popular with women today. They look natural and actually make your own nails stronger, preventing breakage, splitting and chipping. Cherie will attach tips to your fingernails and fill in with pink and white acrylic, gel or silk, allowing your own nails to grow naturally. While you're there, indulge yourself with an aromatherapy manicure and spa pedicure which includes an exfoliating sea salt scrub with lavender and tea tree oil. She also features a complete line of nail care products to enhance your natural or long, beautiful nails. Nail biters are always welcome at this established salon.

Add a touch of glamour to your life. Call Cherie today and make an appointment. Gift certificates are also available to give to that special someone who gives so much to others. You will be amazed at how easily you can achieve the attractive nails that you have always wanted. First time customers, clip this reader ad and take it in to receive $5.00 off your first service.

Kaze Studio Artist Jesse H. Fry

Sumi-e- Japanese Ink & Brush Painting

Whether you are a serious collector or just browsing, you are sure to find something of interest at Jesse's Studio. He is located in Carmel at the Gazebo in San Carlos Square, between 5th and 6th Streets, and he may be reached by calling (831) 625-1656. The collection of Sumi-e- Japanese art featured there includes the work of nationally and internationally renowned artist, Jesse H. Fry.

Jesse began his Sumi-e- art career at the Maui Senior Center, located in Maui, Hawaii, when he announced, "I'm retired, and I want to be creative. What have you got?" His subject matter follows traditional images, but his inspiration comes to him via Haiku and senryu, through poems of nature and human nature. By sensitive and truthful observation, one finds the sense of "WAKE,"—less is more, beauty in simplicity. All of his work is signed in Japanese using his Hawaiian name, Haoo on his Hanko (signature seal). The name refers to the breath of life and energy that flows and that you find in his work. He offers workshops and private instruction in schools and art societies.

Whether you are just beginning your collection or are seeking to enrich one, the Sumi-e- Japanese artwork of Jesse H. Fry at Jesse's Studio is the artwork you will want to add to your collection or start a collection with. His work can be found in private collections throughout 20 different countries. Stop by and check out his inspiring Sumi brushwork, ranging from postcard size items to impressive wall pieces. Jesse will demonstrate his artistry on site, giving the piece as the visitor's souvenir.

Jeremy D. Wilson 35 Years Of Experience

One profession, the importance of which we do not often recognize, is that of the architect. Applying their skills to the design and planning of our homes and our commercial buildings, Jeremy D. Wilson is devoted to providing basic structural soundness and practicality while preserving the beauty of our environment.

We are not often made aware of the important contributions of the architectural firm because they do not generally publicize their services. They are all members of a profession that devotes its energies to its product—building design—and they maintain a high ethical standard of serving the community. When a local business or corporation builds a store, office building or office complex, or when municipal planners initiate plans for a school, municipal building or institution, an architect will be involved. When you contract with a builder to construct a home for you, an architect should be consulted. In each case, they will design the building to be sound in structure, economical in cost and attractive in design.

Utilizing modern advances in this highly specialized field, Jeremy D. Wilson strives to complete each project with skill, accuracy and expertise. They are located in Monterey, phone (831) 647-1655, and invite you to contact them for a consultation.

Siamese Bay Restaurant

Sam Taissaeng, General Manager

Enter a culinary paradise by stepping into Siamese Bay Restaurant, located in Monterey at 131 Webster Street, phone 373-1550. Thai cuisine is becoming more popular through the creativity and talent of chefs that have come to this country to share their delicious dishes with us. The chef there is exceptional in combining years of experience into the preparation and presentation of exciting Thai dishes.

The staff at Siamese Bay Restaurant will gladly explain all of the exotic meals offered. Appetizers such as Satay and soups such as spicy Tom Yum are the best way to start your meal. Steamed mussels, Laibkai, Tod Mun, Pad Thai and Pla Rad Prik are specialties found there. Why not try shrimp, duck or beef all prepared in a unique way? Try the salmon, prawns with curry sauce or the artichoke seafood curry. Or try something on the vegetarian menu. Specialty drinks like Thai iced tea or iced coffee are a great accompaniment to those fiery dishes. Unusual desserts such as sticky rice and mango topped with a light coconut milk sauce and fried bananas topped with homemade coconut ice cream are the perfect end to a perfect evening.

Delightful entrées make a visit to Siamese Bay Restaurant a memorable experience for two or the entire family. Their simple yet elegant setting and royal service will make you want to return again.

Access I.V., Inc. I.V. Pharmacy & Nutrition Services

Rising costs of medical treatments and equipment continue to be a major concern to patients requiring those services as well as to healthcare providers. One company that has taken an active role in decreasing these costs is Access I.V. They provide an alternative to extended hospital care for medically stable patients requiring intravenous therapy or parenteral and enteral nutrition.

Upon your physician's referral, their professional staff consisting of pharmacists and a dietician certified in nutrition support will make recommendations on the necessary solutions, medications and equipment required. A local agency's home health nurse will fully instruct the patient and the family in proper procedures and remain available until they are comfortable with those procedures. The appropriate staff member at Access I.V. will provide ongoing monitoring and visits, update your physician with verbal and written progress reports and continue to provide the necessary medications and supplies to safely complete your therapy. Benefits to the patient include a large percentage of savings compared to hospitalization costs, the value of being at home with family and friends and the ability to take an active part in their own treatment plan. Many insurance plans will cover the majority of incurred fees.

Whether it's I.V. antibiotic therapy, parenteral and enteral nutrition or pain management, contact Access I.V., serving the Monterey County area, phone (831) 384-8080. You now have a choice! Access I.V. is accredited by JCAHO and is making a big difference in quality home health care.

Unprofessional

ONE OF the top pros in the PGA announced Tuesday that he wouldn't be participating in this week's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

We're not talking about Tiger Woods, who said in Hawaii Jan. 11 that he doesn't like playing Pebble Beach because its "bumpy greens" make him think he can't "sink a one-foot putt," damaging his confidence at other events. His comment was somewhat inexplicable because Pebble Beach is not only the nation's most beautiful and most famous golf course, it was also the scene of Woods' greatest comeback — the 2000 pro-am — and his most dominant performance — the 2000 U.S. Open. Did the Y2K bug somehow smooth the greens that year?

This week's no-show was the less famous but still impressive Paul Azinger, who won the AT&T event in 1991. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, a miffed Azinger is skipping the pro-am this year because tournament organizers wouldn't let him bring his own amateur partner. Azinger's attitude seems childish but, hey, it's a free country. If he and Woods don't want to participate, that's up to them. We thank them for showing up in the past — Azinger has reportedly played the Pebble Beach pro-am 16 times — and look forward to seeing them in the future.

But what was completely unprofessional and incomprehensible was the San Francisco Chronicle reporter's version of Azinger's complaints in Tuesday's paper.

According to reporter Brian Murphy, Azinger said he missed the old "bonhomie" of the Crosby which has now been replaced with a tournament "driven by the need to take care of corporate executives who pour money into the PGA Tour."

Pardon us, but doesn't most of that money go to prizes for the golf pros? In just the first month of 2004, Azinger has won $243,000 playing in PGA events. Shouldn't the Chronicle have asked him if he dislikes the "corporate executives" who ponied up a hefty portion of that money?

The story continued with more Azinger comments: "The previous tournament committee knew how to treat the players, but this recent group that has taken over — they're numbers crazy. It's who's spending the most money. They're looking at the sheet and rotating numbers."

And then a weak defense of the tournament attributed to (but not quoting) its director, Ollie Nutt who, Murphy wrote, "said he didn't want to get into a public debate with Azinger over the selection of amateurs" but "defended the need to conduct both a tournament and a business."

Hold it right there.

The AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am isn't a business. It's a charity.

Oh, some people are making money there, for sure, especially the golf pros. They share a $5.3 million purse. (Two examples: This year, first place is worth $954,000; 10th place, $143,000.) CBS also presumably makes a profit televising the event to a nationwide audience. But Nutt's job (he draws a respectable salary, although nowhere near what an average golf pro makes) is to put on a successful tournament that maximizes the fundraising for hundreds of local charities — literally putting food on tables for the homeless at the Salvation Army's Good Sam Center in Seaside, providing comfort to the terminally ill at the Monterey Hospice, and making the last wishes of dying children come true through the efforts of the Greater Bay Area Make-a-Wish Foundation. (A complete list of the 135 charities and nonprofits supported by the pro-am in one recent year is printed on page 10C.) Nutt also has a small staff of paid assistants. But the tournament runs on the backs of hundreds of volunteers who show up year after year for free; plus the ticket-buying public, generous corporate sponsors, and civic-minded celebrities who are conscious of their own good fortune. There may be number-crunching going on, but it's number-crunching for a good cause.

Shouldn't the Chronicle (a for-profit, hard-nosed business) have pointed this out, instead of leaving its readers with the impression that the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am is run by a bunch of money-grubbing, inconsiderate capitalists?

Azinger may be so rich he isn't impressed any more with the chance to win almost $1 million for playing four rounds of golf. He may not care about socializing with Kevin Costner or Tom Brady. It's up to him whether picking his own partner is more important than helping the poor of Monterey County. But the news media's obligation is clear: To tell the truth.

'Majestic equality'

Dear Editor,

Doubtless the malefactor who so cravenly stole the deli's baked goods as reported in The Pine Cone Jan. 30 will be caught, prosecuted, convicted, and suitably punished. Certainly this dastardly deed deserves a close patrol by Carmel's Finest.

As Anatole France wrote in "The Red Lily," 1894: "The law, in its majestic equality, forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread."

This kind of writing got France put on the Index.

But the bread thief will do time before Ken Lay, of Enron, will.

Bryce Graybill, Monterey

'Another bad Carmel decision'

Dear Editor,

Have Carmel residents noticed the travesty wrought at the Carmel-by-the-Sea Post Office — the straightening of the pleasantly rounded tree planter/sidewalk which protected pedestrians and motorists from vehicles exiting the alley at the east end of the post office?

The Carmel city administrator is taking full responsibility for this unconscionable decision. What is unfathomable is that this was done without due process. The city administrator allowed no input by the traffic or forest and beach commissions or the city council. These three bodies never discussed the removal of the safety planter, the straightening of the sidewalk, the positioning of the bench with its back to be jammed against the wall, or how an upper canopy Carmel tree could possibly grow in such a minuscule patch of earth without sunlight under the eaves of the post office.

Is Carmel's bottom line to be a parking

'Time to start shouting'

Dear Editor,

The recent Town Hall meeting regarding the proposed Sunset Cultural Center Inc. revealed the depth of anger of the attendees as well as the reason for that anger. What has most infuriated people is the lack of openness.

How did we arrive at the point that we suddenly have the SCC presenting a business plan for the management of Sunset? And why should we take Mr. McMahan's (SCC Trustee) suggestion that we not concern ourselves with how we got there but instead concentrate on the proposal in front of us and how it benefits Sunset? That's part of the problem. How did we get there? Where did these nine trustees come from and who gave them their authority? Who selected them? Who decided we needed an ad hoc management committee? Were there other alternatives, proposals, suggestions? And why would a group of people form a corporation before they knew they were going to be the designated choice of management? And how are these trustees to be compensated? Are they going to volunteer their time and effort for strictly altruistic reasons? And finally, why does the city need them?

Remember the movie "Network," where Peter Finch throws open his window and shouts, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it anymore"? Well folks, it's time to throw open your window and start shouting.

Nina L. Bayer, Carmel

5th District needs Collins

Dear Editor,

Our county budget deficit is well over $40 million. Our elected representative at the county (Dave Potter) has a long record of professional and personal financial mismanagement that spans decades! Additionally, he views himself (in his own words) as "only one vote in five on the board," instead of a unifying team member. What if we had the chance to elect someone to office with a long reputation of bringing opposing groups together, creating viable solutions and actually balancing budgets? Well, we do. It's time for a change in attitude and that comes with a change in guard. I'm voting for Steve Collins in March, and I encourage everyone who is not satisfied with being only "one in five" to do the same. Don't be fooled into thinking that this race is about anything other than leadership. Elect someone who can, and will, work with other board members for solutions to our problems here on the Peninsula as well as countywide. Let's not pass up this chance to put a tried-and-true leader on the board of supervisors. Vote for Steve Collins March 2.

Elizabeth Petrinovich, Monterey

'A fraction of the personnel'

Dear Editor,

I put in a few years with the City of Carmel-by-the Sea as the first assistant city administrator and also as finance director, worker safety coordinator, and deputy city clerk (we were able to accomplish many tasks with no computers, far fewer employees, same size city). The years were between 1969 and 1978 and, aside from marathon council meetings with Gunnar Norberg, et al., I can't remember being particularly overworked. The cities, during this period, received a wind-fall from the feds called Aid to Cities money. Most of the cities on the Peninsula hired additional personnel for various "critical" purposes. I argued against this stand, was backed by the council, and the monies bought a new hose tower and fire engine for the fire department, a Hi-Ranger truck for public works, and a monster of a computer for city hall. When the Aid to Cities money ran out, the other cities were stuck with personnel they could well do without, and Carmel had much needed equipment for which it was not necessary to pay salaries. I want to congratulate you (editorial, Jan. 30) for printing what has been on my mind for many of the "fat" years. The council and staff were able to operate, very well, an efficient and profitable city with a fraction of the present complement of personnel. As Bill Askew would have said "... hell, it's not like it used to be."

The Shops at The Lodge, Pebble Beach

Fourth quarter and year-end report

House Talk

 By Paul & Nellie
Brocchini

FOR THE first time in history, the annual dollar sales volume for Monterey Peninsula condominiums topped $100 million last year. The market almost reached that total in 2002 with $99,735,000 in sales, but fell just short. In 2003 dollar volume increased 10.6 percent to reach $110,339,000.

In view of the small size of our condominium market, that figure is impressive. The big dollar markets, Carmel, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and Monterey have held their own. Carmel rebounded nicely from a weak year in 2002 ringing up over $15 million in sales in 2003 as opposed to $7 million the year before. Carmel Valley was off a little bit, but both Pebble Beach and Monterey had nice gains.

The market achieved this record-breaking number with an increase of only two sales — 221 transactions in 2003 as opposed to 219 in 2002. Higher prices drove the increase in dollar sales. Six of the nine markets had increases in the median sales price. Monterey had the biggest gain at 17 percent.

CONDO REPORT

The strong barometer reading of 37 percent on January 1 assures us that the first quarter of 2004 will continue to be strong. A spot check on February 4th showed that the barometer had slipped a little bit. On that date there were 67 listings of which 19 were in escrow, or 28 percent. This is still a strong number demonstrating that there will be a significant number of closed transactions during the quarter.

A contradiction to these good numbers is the time that it took to get units sold in 2003. Look at the Days on Market chart, and you will find that the big money markets of Carmel, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach had long selling periods: 295 days in Carmel, 233 days in Carmel Valley and 374 days in Pebble Beach, more than a year. This is in contrast to Del Rey Oaks and Marina where the average days on market was seven and eight days respectively.

The market is not as tight as it was on Jan. 1, 2000, when there were only 31 listings, and 20 of those were in escrow. Imagine! At that time there were only 11 units available on the entire Peninsula. On Feb. 4, there were 48 units available, not a lot but a reasonable selection to choose from. Still, on balance it is a seller's market in which prices will remain firm or continue up.

typically involving the demolition of an old home straddling a lot line and then the distribution of its water credits to new homes built on each parcel.

"With less water available [for development], staff noticed an increase in the number and complexity of the requests to reassign water credits," Pintar told the board. For example, a large parcel might be divided so that a house is on one lot and a garage and sink are on the other. A third parcel owned by the same person contains another home. The owner would like to cut water use at both full-sized homes to provide water for a new home on the middle lot, which would otherwise be unbuildable.

Last September, then-board chairman Zan Henson, who lost his seat to Foy two months later, asked Farina to impose a moratorium on such transfers while the board studied an ordinance to regulate them.

On Monday Pintar asked the board to consider what that ordinance should look like as well as determine what to do with requests already in the pipeline when Henson imposed the freeze.

Director Kristi Markey said water credit reassignments should be allowed only on already developed parcels — for example, to remove a sink and install a shower. Using water credits to build a new home on a vacant lot next door should not be allowed, she said.

Lehman wants to make sure developers can't buy adjacent parcels, move water credits around, build more homes and then sell them.

"We need to make sure we're not giving away water we don't have," she said.

Pendergrass countered that the board should be looking for ways to reduce, not add, restrictions.

"We need to free up the district of the excessive rules and regulations that have happened in last four years and be more creative in meeting water supply needs," he said.

Mitzi Dallas commented that an application she filed Sept. 5 had been held up for months because of the water district's uncertainty about how to proceed with a practice she said staff has handled for years.

"I don't understand why this is being questioned," she said.

Several other members of the public worried about their plans as well.

At its Feb. 19 meeting, the board is set to decide what will happen to Dallas' project and others that were affected by the moratorium.

A subcommittee of the board will take up the question of how water credits should be reassigned and make recommendations to the full board at a future date.

BUMP-OUT

He said safety concerns dominated his decision and that he underestimated public reaction to it.

Since the bumped-out sidewalk did not have a curb, cars would often drive over it when parking or pulling into the street, and several people complained of near misses, according to Guillen. Cars pulling out of the narrow alley to the Eastwood Building parking lot were similarly jeopardized.

"We discussed it and it seemed like a good solution while still maintaining the bench and the tree," he said, adding that the city forester said the planter on the north side of the post office, where a large dead Monterey pine was removed in January 2003, would probably be too shady for a cypress. The city plants few Monterey pines because of pitch canker.

Guillen also said he and the city staff make many such routine decisions without first passing them through city committees, commissions or the council.

"Obviously I misjudged the reaction to the decision," he said. "I didn't realize it meant that much to people. I'll have to be a little more careful and learn from the experience."

Intersection to get facelift

To help stem the flow of wrong-way drivers on Scenic Road, the council voted 3-2 Feb. 3 to change the two-way stop at Scenic Road and Santa Lucia to a four-way stop and impose a no-parking zone along the 30-foot stretch of Santa Lucia approaching the intersection.

"The police department has received several complaints concerning wrong-way drivers traveling northbound on Scenic Road from Santa Lucia Avenue," Rawson told the council. Vehicles do not have to stop when traveling down Santa Lucia, and parked cars often block the no-right-turn sign at the intersection.

With the help of a traffic consultant and following lengthy discussion, the traffic safety commission voted Jan. 5 to recommend Rawson propose the changes to the city council.

"It's disappointing to me to see the solutions are only signage. There was no discussion of aesthetics," councilwoman Barbara Livingston said. She proposed a bump-out be added to increase the bottleneck on Scenic and dissuade drivers from turning right onto the one-way street. "It would be done in the Carmel tradition and add greenery rather than put up signs to solve traffic problems."

Council member Paula Hazdovac disagreed, saying she recently encountered a wrong-way driver on Fifth Avenue who paid no heed to the bump-out there.

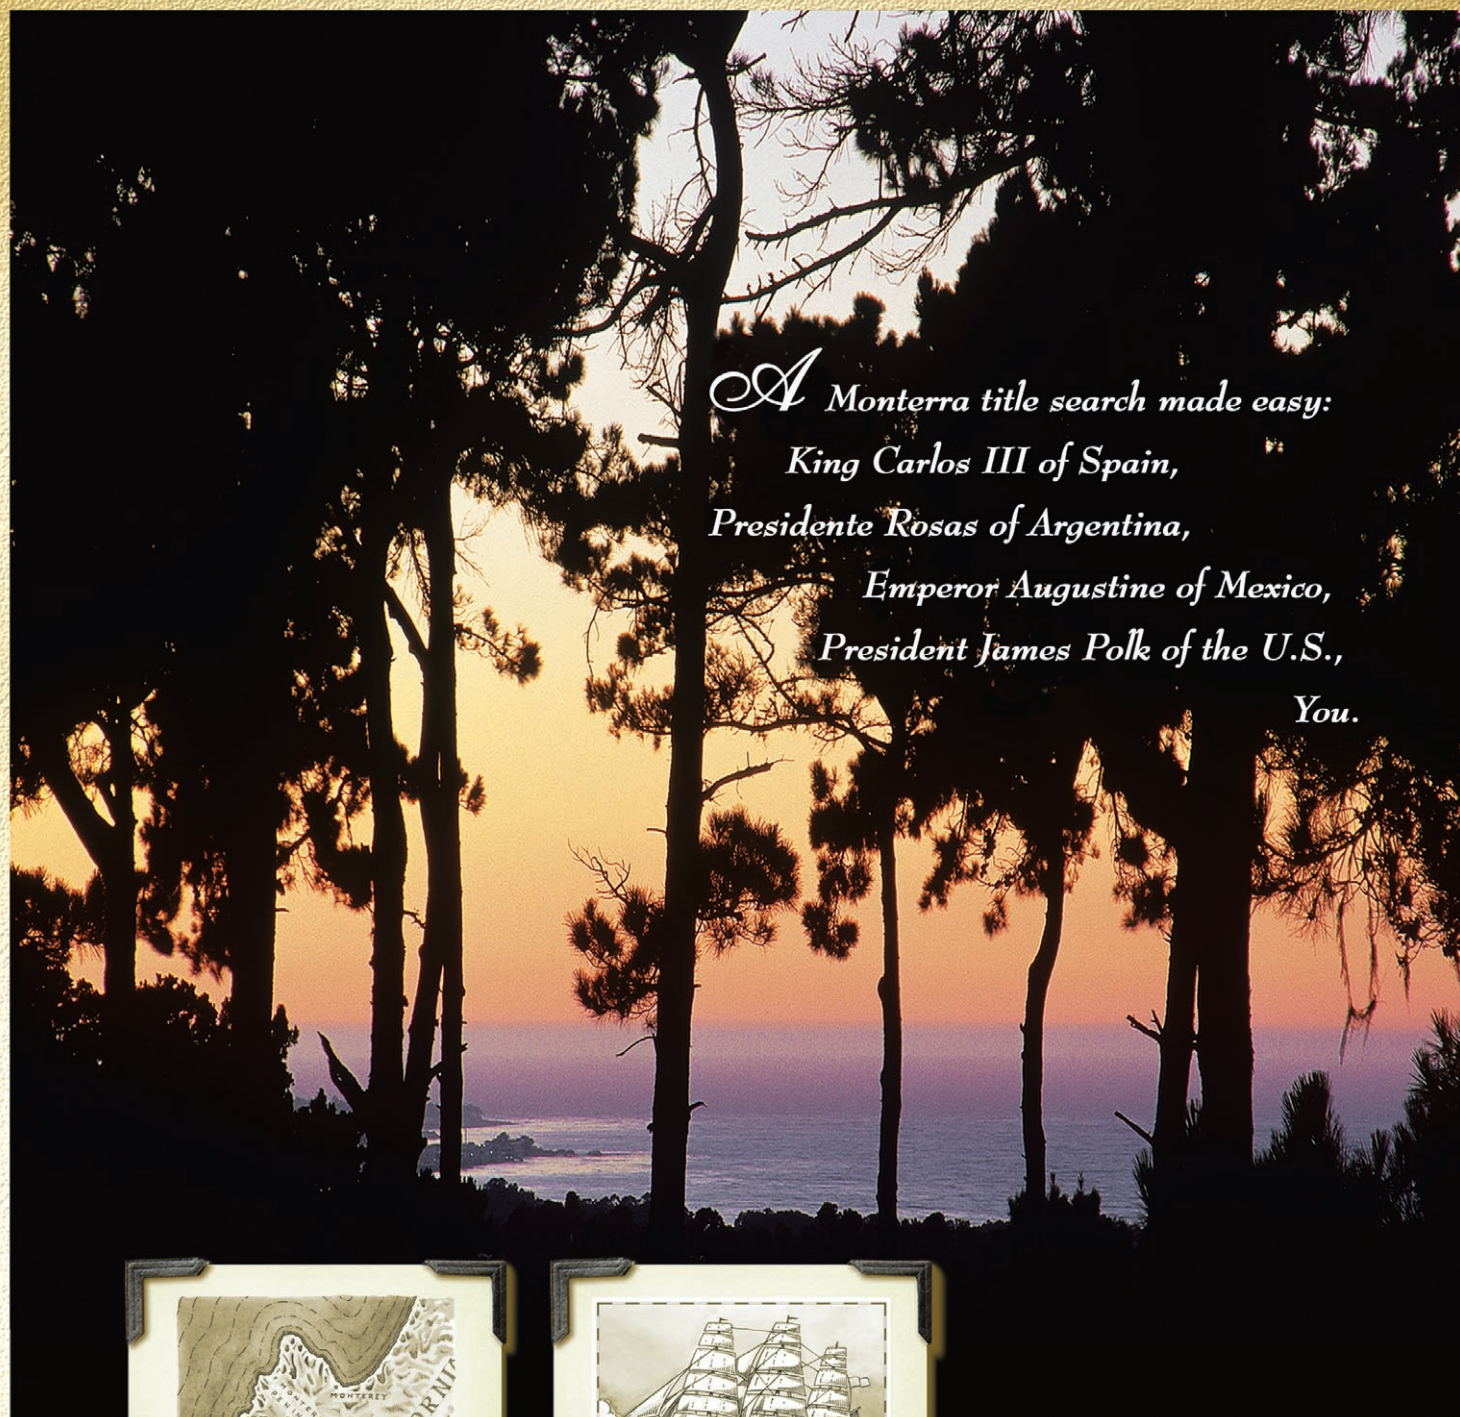

"They're not always effective, though they look nice," she said. "As for signage, in this case, I think that's the way we need to go."

Councilman Dick Ely sided with Livingston in asking that the project be sent back to the traffic commission for further review.

But Rawson reported the traffic commission had already looked closely at the signage issue. "They really cut back and are trying to be sensitive to this issue," he said.

The intersection currently includes stop signs on Bayview and Scenic where Carmel-by-the-Sea: Anonymous report of a 7-month-old white timber wolf that has been walked off leash on Carmel Beach. A tall slender male with sandy blond hair has been seen during the hours of 1000 and 1400 hours. Caller was advised to call the police department when he is sighted again. A warden from the fish and game department has been advised.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dolores resident reported receiving a telephone call from a male subject who only identified himself as Joe and claimed to be calling to verify personal information on file with the National Organization of Legal Services for Seniors. Believing the caller was from the local branch of Legal Services for Seniors, of which she is a client, she provided the verifying information requested. The caller told her she would be receiving a pamphlet in the male and a solicitor would contact her at her residence with no obligation to purchase anything. She contacted the Seaside branch of LSS and was advised the local office does not conduct telephone solicitations and the caller was not from the organization. She was advised that if she received a pamphlet as suggested by the unknown caller, she should contact CPD for further possible research into the validity of the organization. She also agreed to contact CPD if someone attempts to contact her at her residence.

business. The theft occurred sometime between last night at 1800 hours and today at 1200 hours. No report filed. Theft noted.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported to be trespassing at Casanova and 10th. Contacted the subject, who used to live at that location with his brother, who moved to San Jose. The property is in the process of being sold. Subject has not lived at the Carmel residence for a year and still has an unknown number of keys to the resident. Subject has been told he can no longer enter the residence and has failed to return the keys. He was found inside the residence at 1716 hours, was asked to leave and refused to do so. While the caller telephoned police, the subject fled in an unknown direction. Caller stated he would be willing to file criminal trespassing charges against the subject if he were to return to the property and enter the premises. He was advised the subject would first have to be verbally warned by CPD prior to an arrest being made. Search was conducted with negative results. Caller advised to have the locks changed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female called the police department to report that while she was doing her laundry at Junipero and Third, she was leaving her clothes in a washer. After a while, she returned to find her clothes had been removed from the washer. She confronted a male, who told her he had a job to finish and her clothes were left in the machine for over an hour. She was upset and felt he was mentally ill and needed to be evaluated. She then called back and said a few of her undergarments were stolen and felt he had taken them. Upon arrival, contacted the male, who stated she had left her laundry in the machine and failed to return, so he removed the items since he had to clean the machines before they closed. He stated she came in and confronted him regarding her undergarments being taken. He stated he did not take the items.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male transient, 44, arrested in a residence at Casanova and 10th for burglary and resisting public officers. Subject gained entry using a key/slip device and ate/drank on the premises while the residents were not at home.

Carmel Valley: Suspicious circumstances at a West Carmel Valley Road residence. Follow-up to prior check fraud investigation at the residence from which a suspect was evicted on 01/26/04 led to discovery of financial documents and correspondence in the trash that indicate further and ongoing check fraud by two suspects in Monterey and Riverside counties. Also found were a California driver license and a Bank of America ATM/VISA credit card not belonging to either subject. A credit card application was also found that was not issued to either and may be stolen mail. The owner of a Marina maid service was contacted and confirmed receiving two checks from the male suspect at the Carmel Valley Road address. The first check was returned NSF. The second was returned because the account was closed. Male suspect was previously arrested on 01/19/04 for an unrelated warrant. Initial investigation of check fraud is continuing pending receipt of the court-ordered documents from the involved bank. Further work is needed to identify victims and collect evidence.

Carmel area: Subject taken into custody at Highway 1 and Ocean Avenue for Health & Safety Code violation.

Carmel Valley: Juvenile problem at a Schulte Road address.

Carmel Valley: Civil problem at a Schulte Road address.

Carmel Valley: Past-tense theft of mail from an Esquiline Road residence.

Carmel Valley: Past-tense malicious mischief to a vehicle parked on Valley Greens Circle.

Carmel Valley: Transported a subject from Via los Tulares and East Carmel Valley Road on a 5150 Welfare & Institutions hold.

Carmel area: Assisted another agency with a call at Casanova and 10th.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 30

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported she had received several aggressive solicitation requests from a male caller claiming to be affiliated with the Monterey County Sheriff's Office. First call came in the evening of 01/29/04. After the caller identified himself, he demanded to know how much she would be giving since she had contributed the previous year. She told him her husband was the one who had donated but was not at home and ended the call. Today at approximately 1930 hours, the male called back and demanded personal information from her. He said his records showed she lived on Torres but didn't state which house. This made her uneasy and she terminated the call. She said her telephone number is publicly listed but her address is not. She was advised that if the caller contacted again, she should get a name, address or phone number so the information could be forwarded.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported a suspicious male subject loitering inside her carport at Mission and Fourth. She challenged his right to be there and the male adult told her he was just urinating and quickly left. The subject was described as dark skinned, early 30s, 5'7", brown hair, wearing dark clothing and white socks with sandals. Officer contacted a male subject at Mission and Fourth matching this description. He denied entering the carport and said he had just left work and was going home. Vehicles in the carport area were checked and none were found to have been visibly tampered with. Also could not locate any urination spot in the carport area. Female advised to contact police if she saw any other suspicious activity.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers arrived at a San Antonio residence, contacted a subject and advised him of the 911 hangup call from his residence. He was unaware that 911 was dialed and didn't know how it happened. The house was checked and appeared to be fine.

As we begin the New Year, we look forward to fresh starts & new beginnings.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject came into the department and reported possible cruelty to an animal. A male adult, 40-50 years old in a black leather jacket was trying to get rid of a 10-year-old, medium-sized, white and brown dog. A fresh injury was noticed on one of the dog's eyes, and the male appeared angry and was yelling. He was not seen striking the dog. The male was last seen walking eastbound on Fifth from Junipero with the dog, which was not on a leash. Area check met with negative results.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: The California Highway Patrol was assisted in contacting the owner of a disabled vehicle found blocking the northbound number one lane of Highway 1 just south of Carpenter. CPD made contact and stood by while a tow truck removed the vehicle from the roadway.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two young juveniles were observed driving by the Robert Louis Stevenson Lower School at Dolores and First in an older gray Volvo station wagon and yelling out toward the younger children as they got out of school. The two young juveniles were wearing black knit caps and the male passenger was holding an unknown object in his hand as they passed by the school and yelled at the children. Search was conducted for the vehicle and occupants with negative results.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported having a possible gun, which was later determined to be a non-lethal Air Soft pellet gun, pointed at her while she walked on a trail through Forest Hill Park on her way home. She observed a subject hiding behind a tree and pointing the pellet gun in her direction as she walked up the trail. She went home and reported the incident to her mother. CPD units contacted two subjects in the area of Forest Hill Park and found them to be displaying and shooting plastic pellets from a realistic replica Smith and Wesson semi-automatic handgun. Although the replica pellet gun was manufactured in clear plastic and was not painted to look like a chrome-plated or blue steel handgun, the non-lethal replica could have been easily mistaken as a lethal weapon in the eyes of a 10 year old. The subjects were counseled on the negative aspects of using non-lethal replica firearms in public and were provided with suggestions on using the pellet guns on private property.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suicide attempt at Mission and Fifth.

Carmel area: Suspicious circumstances at Outlook Drive and Pine Hills Drive.

Big Sur: Theft of gasoline just occurred at a station on Highway 1 49 miles north of the San Luis Obispo County line.

Carmel area: Traffic stop conducted at Carmel Rancho Boulevard and Clock Tower Place.

Carmel Valley: Lost/found/missing property at Carmel Valley Ranch.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suspicious person contacted at 0519 hours after being observed standing in the front yard of a residence at Ocean and Santa Fe. Transient advised he was walking from Monterey and the lights were hurting his eyes, so he stopped to rest in the yard. He was clear all around and was advised of the CMC regarding camping in the city limits. He was evaluated, interviewed and released.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CPD, CFD and CRFA responded to a Guadalupe residence after it was reported the resident might have suffered a broken hip. She advised that on 01/30/04 she tripped and fell while at Monterey Airport after returning from a flight.

At that time, she was able to get up with assistance and continued home on her own. Upon waking this morning, she found herself to be in pain and unable to get out of bed. She believes she may have sustained a broken hip from her fall. She was transported to CHOMP for further medical treatment.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle drove into the back end of another vehicle parked on Ocean Avenue near Del Mar.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Grand theft from a clothing store at Ocean and Dolores during business hours. Female subject, 5 feet tall, slim build with black hair, stole $1,407 worth of clothing from the shop. Owner reported the theft, which was witnessed by a sales clerk. Subject not found.

Carmel area: Traffic stop conducted at Escolle Way and Perry Newberry Way.

Big Sur: Past-tense battery of a victim in an area off Highway 1 47 miles north of the San Luis Obispo County line.

Pebble Beach: Suspicious person at a Bird Rock Road residence.

Carmel area: Suspicious circumstances at a High Meadow Drive residence.

Carmel area: Disturbance/fight at a Barnyard business. Restaurant manager reported a couple was in the bar, acting belligerent and rude. Male had been drinking and attempted to challenge the bartender to a fight. Manager requested they pay their tab and leave.

He has had prior contact with these subjects.

Carmel Valley: Lost/found/missing property at an East Carmel Valley Road residence.

Shuttles to Carmel, Pacific Grove

CHAMBERS OF Commerce in Pacific Grove and Carmel, with the help of Carmel innkeepers, will run shuttles between their cities and Pebble Beach during this year's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

The Carmel shuttles, which offer unlimited trips for $6 per day, run continuously between 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. during the tournament. Tickets can be purchased at the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth, or in front of Carmel Plaza.

The Carmel buses will follow two routes. The more frequent shuttles will run up and down Ocean Avenue and then into Pebble Beach, with pick-up and drop-off locations in front of Saks Fifth Avenue at Carmel Plaza, Grasing's Restaurant on Sixth Avenue across from the Carmel fire station, the Pine Inn at Lincoln and Ocean, and on Ocean between Camino Real and Carmelo.

The secondary route will circle Carmel, picking up and dropping off passengers across the street from the Colonial Terrace Inn on San Antonio Avenue, near the Carmel River Inn on Highway 1 and in front of the Carmel Resort Inn on Carpenter Street between First and Second avenues. It will not stop at the Saks Fifth Avenue location, and only runs at 8 and 10 a.m., and 2 and 4 p.m.

The Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce will offer an ongoing shuttle for visitors and residents as well running daily through Sunday. Buses will depart each day beginning at 7 a.m., leaving every 30 minutes until 5 p.m.

Shuttle passengers can embark at the Pacific Grove Natural History Museum, Forest and Central, and will be dropped off at the polo field in Pebble Beach. Parking is suggested along Ocean View Boulevard, a few blocks away from the museum.

Shuttle tickets can be purchased daily for $5 at the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, 584 Central Ave., or by calling 373-3304. ○

Record ticket sales promise big crowds — volunteers at the ready

■ Super Bowl MVP Tom Brady last-minute add to celebrity field

By MARY BROWNFIELD

EVEN BEFORE the New England Patriots' quarterback Tom Brady announced during the Super Bowl postgame show that he'd play in this year's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, ticket sales for the event were up 17 percent over 2003 — thanks in part to a user-friendly way to order tickets via the Internet. But a legion of volunteers is ready to accommodate the crowds, tournament officials say.

In fact, from the moment spectators park their cars at California State University Monterey Bay on the former Fort Ord, they will be offered the attention expected from a world-class golfing event.

"When they get out to CSUMB, we'll have free coffee for them," said pro-am marketing director Cathy Scherzer. With hot-off-the-press pairing sheets in hand, ticketholders will board chartered buses for the seven-mile ride into Pebble Beach. "There's a video that tells them all about the tournament, which they'll watch as they drive in."

Once inside the forest, spectators will disembark in front of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am grand entrance where they can buy souvenirs, pick up a program and get answers to all sorts of questions.

"We have an information booth run by the Junior League of Monterey County," Scherzer said. The "Pro-Am-bassadors" furnish extensive information on the tournament and the three courses on which its played, as well as visitor services and other help.

Tournament guests can even make a free cell-phone call to let loved ones left at home know just what they're missing on the golf courses in stunning Pebble Beach.

"AT&T Wireless will be offering free cell-

2004 AT&T PEBBLE BEACH NATIONAL PRO-AM

OBSERVING THE PROPER RULES OF PLAY

The AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am is unique on the PGA Tour in that amateurs continue playing until the last putt on the final round.

The competition begins with 18-hole rounds on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Each foursome (two pros and two amateurs) will play one day on each course: Pebble Beach, Poppy Hills and Spyglass. Play begins at 8 a.m. on these days at both the 1st and 10th tees, with foursomes teeing off every 10 minutes.

Each day's total strokes are added to the next for a 72-hole total. The pro-am team's scores are calculated on a better-ball basis, including amateur's handicap. The pro's score is his individual score.

To keep things moving, the amateur contestant is requested to pick up his ball when he is out of the hole — in other words, as soon as his pro partner's score is better than his on an individual hole. Professionals may not pick up and remain in the competition.

On Sunday, teams with the 25 lowest scores and the 60 lowest scoring professionals make the cut to the final round, which is played at the Pebble Beach Golf Links. In case of a tie after the final round, there will be a sudden-death playoff. Total purse for the pros is up to $5.3 million this year, with $954,000 for the winner (up from $900,000 in 2003). An additional $120,000 goes to the Pro-Am winner. ○ phone calls from their booth, because cell phones are not allowed on the course," she said.

High technology extends to all three courses in the form of touchscreen kiosks, provided by EHN, which allow spectators to follow the scoring and keep track of their favorite players.

Each kiosk will provide up-to-the-minute scores — as well as background information and stats of PGA Tour professionals — so that keeping tabs on Vijay Singh or Kevin Costner and will be no problem, no matter which course they're playing.

As the crowds have grown over the years, so has the need for volunteers who keep the tournament running smoothly and spectators happy. Last year, under crystal-clear skies, approximately 130,000 fans attended the pro-am, according to Scherzer. ○

VIJAY SINGH

2003 PGA TOUR winnings:
$7,573,907
Age: 40 Hometown: Ponte Cedra Beach, Florida

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

Last year Singh shattered personal records in virtually every category. A four-time winner on the PGA Tour during the year, Singh clinched his first career PGA Tour money title at the season-ending Tour Championship, where a finish in a tie for fifth place was worth $228,000 and brought his total money in 27 events to $7,573,907, topping Tiger Woods by $900,494. His 2003 season total was also second all-time to Woods' $9,188,321 in 2000. Singh's total of 18 top-10 finishes was the highest on the PGA Tour since Tim Kite posted 21 top-10s in 26 starts in 1981. Singh's total was even more remarkable, considering he did not play between the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am and the Bay Hill Invitational in March due to a rib injury. In June, Singh recorded his third top-10 finish at the Masters in the last four years with a tie for sixth place. He is one of 11 players to win on the PGA Tour over the age of 40 — which Singh achieved at the EDS Byron Nelson Championship in May, when he was also named PGA Tour Player of the Month. Later in the year, along with Jim Furyk, Singh set the U.S. Open record for best first 36 holes with a 7-under-par 133. His 7-under 63 during the second round tied Johnny Miller (1973), Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf (1980) for best 18-hole score in U.S. Open history. But he finished the event in 20th place. In October, he won his fourth PGA Tour event of the season by posting four rounds in the 60s at the Funai Classic at the Walt Disney World Resort, thus becoming only the third player (Tiger Woods-five, Davis Love III-four) in 2003 to win at least four times.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Singh has won in Malaysia, France, Nigeria, Ivory Coast, Morocco, Zimbabwe, Singapore, Spain, Germany, England, South Africa, Sweden, Taiwan and United States. He has a Lifetime Exemption on the European Tour, following Ernie Els (1999) and Greg Norman (2000). In 1998, he began the season by making his 48th consecutive cut at the Mercedes Championships. Later that year, he stretched the streak to 53 in a row before shooting 76-80 to miss the cut at the Masters. His previous missed cut had been at the 1995 PGA Championship. Singh also made 24 consecutive cuts in 1996 and 21 in a row in 1997. In 1993, Singh was named PGA Tour Rookie of the Year after winning the Buick Classic in a playoff over Mark Wiebe.

Singh is Fiji's only world-class golfer. He learned the game from his father, an airplane technician who also taught golf. The younger Singh admired Tom Weiskopf while growing up and used Weiskopf's swing as an early model for his own. Noted for his rigorous practice routine, Singh once held a club professional position in Borneo. Of Indian ancestry, his first name means "victory" in Hindi.

DAVIS LOVE III

2003 PGA TOUR winnings:
$6,081,896
Age: 39 Hometown: Sea Island, Georgia

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

Love won the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am in February for the second time, part of a season when he had four victories and surpassed the $6 million mark in single-season earnings for first time in his career. He led the Tour money list for 14 weeks during the year and finished third overall. Last year, Love also won his second Players Championship in 11 years, joining Jack Nicklaus, Fred Couples, Steve Elkington and Hal Sutton as multiple winners of the event. And he finished tied for fourth at the British Open in July, his best finish in a major since finishing second at the 1999 Masters. Three weeks later, Love became the second player of the year to go wire-to-wire with his victory at The International. During the year, he surpassed the $25-million mark in career earnings.

With a $5.3 million purse at stake, even short putts can't be taken for granted, as Mike Weir showed at Spyglass Hill last year.

2004 AT&T PEBBLE BEACH NATIONAL PRO-AM

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2002, at the Disney Golf Classic, Love recorded a final-round hole-in-one on the 169-yard 12th hole with a 7-iron.

In 2001, Love returned to the winner's circle after a two-year drought by winning the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. He entered the final round seven strokes down and completed play one stroke up on Vijay Singh after shooting a 63, including a record-tying performance on the front nine: birdie, eagle, five birdies on holes 1 through 7. His seven-stroke comeback matched the best in tournament history. After that win, he decided to play in the Buick Invitational at the last minute and fell just short of achieving back-to-back wins. Later, he withdrew from three events in May due to neck pain and a disk problem that caused numbness in his left arm and fingers. After being off for two months, Love returned to finish in a tie for seventh at the U.S. Open. In 2000, he briefly moved past Greg Norman and into first place on the PGA Tour career money list. Tiger Woods took over first place shortly thereafter. In 1997, Love earned his first major championship at the PGA Championship at Winged Foot Country Club. His rounds of 66-71-66-66 gave him a five-stroke victory over Justin Leonard. In 1996, he won the World Cup individual title at TPC at Mission Hills in Shenzhen, China, defeating former PGA Tour player Hisayuki Sasaki of Japan in a playoff.

Love's father was a highly regarded teacher who died in a plane crash in 1988. Davis Love III was born shortly after his father competed at the 1964 Masters and he later wrote a book, "Every Shot I Take," to honor his dad's lessons and teachings on golf and life. The book was the recipient of the 1997 USGA International Book Award. In 1997, he was inducted into the University of North Carolina Order of Merit, and he was inducted into the Georgia Golf Hall of Fame in Augusta in 2001. Love owns and raises horses, with a seven-stall barn at home. His daughter is a nationally ranked competitive rider in the adult division on Paso Fino horses.

MIKE WEIR

2003 PGA TOUR winnings:
$4,918,910

Age: 33 Hometown: Draper, Utah

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

Mike Weir had a breakthrough season on the PGA Tour in 2003 with three wins, including the Masters, matching his career win total before the season. He missed just one cut all year for the first time in his career. His fifth-place finish on the money list and total earnings topping $4.8 million were career bests. He claimed his fourth PGA Tour title at the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic at La Quinta in January with rounds of 67-64-65-67 (330). The victory was his first since the 2001 season when he won the Tour Championship — a span of 26 events between victories. The trophy was presented to Weir by former President Gerald Ford, a longtime Hope Pro-Am participant. Weir continued his strong play at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, finishing tied for third while paired with boyhood idol and hockey legend Wayne Gretzky in the pro-am portion of the event. After earning $843,890 in 2002, Weir cracked the $1 million mark in just the third event of 2003 with a $290,000 AT&T Pro-Am payday. He was also named PGA Tour Player of the Month for February. Yo Artie, Geez, I really miss ya, pal. But, I gotta tell ya, you should make your parents move to Carmel. I freakin' love it here — lots of squirrels to spook, water bowls everywhere, and the best part, golf balls . . . everywhere, dude.

Just get your folks to call Carol Crandall.

She hooked us up with our new house.

You ain't goin' to believe it — right on the golf course in Pebble. I sit in the yard, and bam — those balls drop out of sky. At first I was buryin' all of 'em, you know, for a rainy day. But, no need to, pal, they just keep comin'. I can get three in my mouth at the same time. Geez, can you beat that? I think not!

This will really get you: The AT&T tournament is played here. Do you need any more incentive? Hurry.

Your pal,
Stanley

the Masters included just the fourth bogey-free final round by a winner in the 67-year history of the event (and the first since Doug Ford in 1957). The victory jumped him from 10th on the Official World Golf Ranking to fifth, and his $1,080,000 Masters paycheck was the largest of his career and pushed him over the $3 million mark for the season. After finishing in a tie for third place at the U.S. Open in June, he leapfrogged Davis Love III for the top spot on the money list and passed the $4 million mark in season's earnings. He finished the year third in scoring average behind Tiger Woods and Vijay Singh.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2002, Weir's 63 was the lowest first-round score in the history of the Mercedes Championship in Kapalua, Hawaii. In 2001 he earned more than $2 million for the second consecutive season and picked up a victory for the third straight year. In 2000, he collected his second victory on the PGA Tour in the season-ending WGC-American Express Championship in Kilkenny, Ireland. A bogey-free 67 on Saturday and final-round 67 lifted him to his first WGC title and brought him a career-best $1 million first prize, making him the seventh player to surpass the $2.5 million mark in single-season earnings. His first PGA Tour title was the 1999 Air Canada Championship with a two-stroke victory over Fred Funk. The key to his victory was an eagle-2 from 147 yards on No. 14 during the final round, making him the first Canadian to win on native soil since Pat Fletcher won the 1954 Canadian Open. He also joined Phil Mickelson, Bob Charles, Ernie Gonzalez, Sam Adams and Russ Cochran as the only left-handers to win on the PGA Tour.

In 1998, as a rookie, Weir earned $218,967 to rank 131st on money list. At age 13, Weir wrote a letter to Jack Nicklaus, asking whether he should switch to playing right-handed. Nicklaus advised him to stick to his natural swing.

Vijay Singh had to shoot from a bunker at the Sony Open in Honolulu January. Last year, Singh earned more than $7.5 million on the PGA Tour and was the top money-winner, besting Tiger Woods by $900,000.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

PGA Rookie of the Year in 2001, when he earned $1,520,632, Howell had an even better sophomore season in 2002 when he won $2,702,747, including his first career victory at the Michelob Championship in September at Kingsmill Resort in Williamsburg, Va. Howell began the final round two strokes behind leader Brandt Jobe but a final-round 67 gave him the two-stroke victory. In 2002 he also made his first appearance in the Masters in his former hometown of Augusta, where he grew up near the Augusta National Golf Club. He was runner-up to Vijay Singh in the season-ending Tour Championship, which helped to earn Player of the Month honors for October/November 2002. He turned pro in June 2000, one week after turning in a second-place finish at the Greensboro Open, the highest amateur finish in Tour history. Howell started playing golf at age 7 and won five tournaments before he was 11.

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

DiMarco made 27 cuts in 29 starts during the year, including a season-best 25 consecutive, and made 78 of 91 cuts dating back to 2000. He captured his third career PGA Tour title in February at the Phoenix Open (now the FBR Open) with rounds of 68-64-66-69 (267), earning an exemption into the 2002 U.S. Open. His four-shot lead with eight to play evaporated with a double bogey and two bogeys (Nos. 11-13), but DiMarco recovered with a birdie on the par-3 16th hole that provided a one-shot margin of victory over Kaname Yokoo and Kenny Perry. His payday of $720,000 was the largest of his career and propelled him into the lead on the PGA Tour money list with $986,857. Playing in his hometown of Orlando, DiMarco finished second to Bob Burns at the Disney Golf Classic in October with rounds of 64-63-69-68 (264). He led by two strokes after 36 holes at 17 under par, thanks to only 44 putts. DiMarco's 127 total broke the 36-hole tournament record of 128 set by Tim Simpson in 1990.

DiMarco

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2002, DiMarco compiled career-high earnings of $2,615,363, including a win at the Phoenix Open with rounds of 68-64-66-69 (267). In 2001, he proved that his 2000 season was no fluke by winning once and having nine other top-10s to crack the single-season $2 million mark for the first time. In 2000, for the first time in his career, DiMarco finished in the top 30 on the PGA Tour money list on the strength of five top-10s and a victory. He made 25 cuts in 33 tournaments and earned more than $1 million in a single season for the first time in his career. In 1994, his rookie year on the PGA Tour was an impressive one as he finished eighth in rookie earnings. He was named an All-American and SEC Player of the Year in 1990.

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

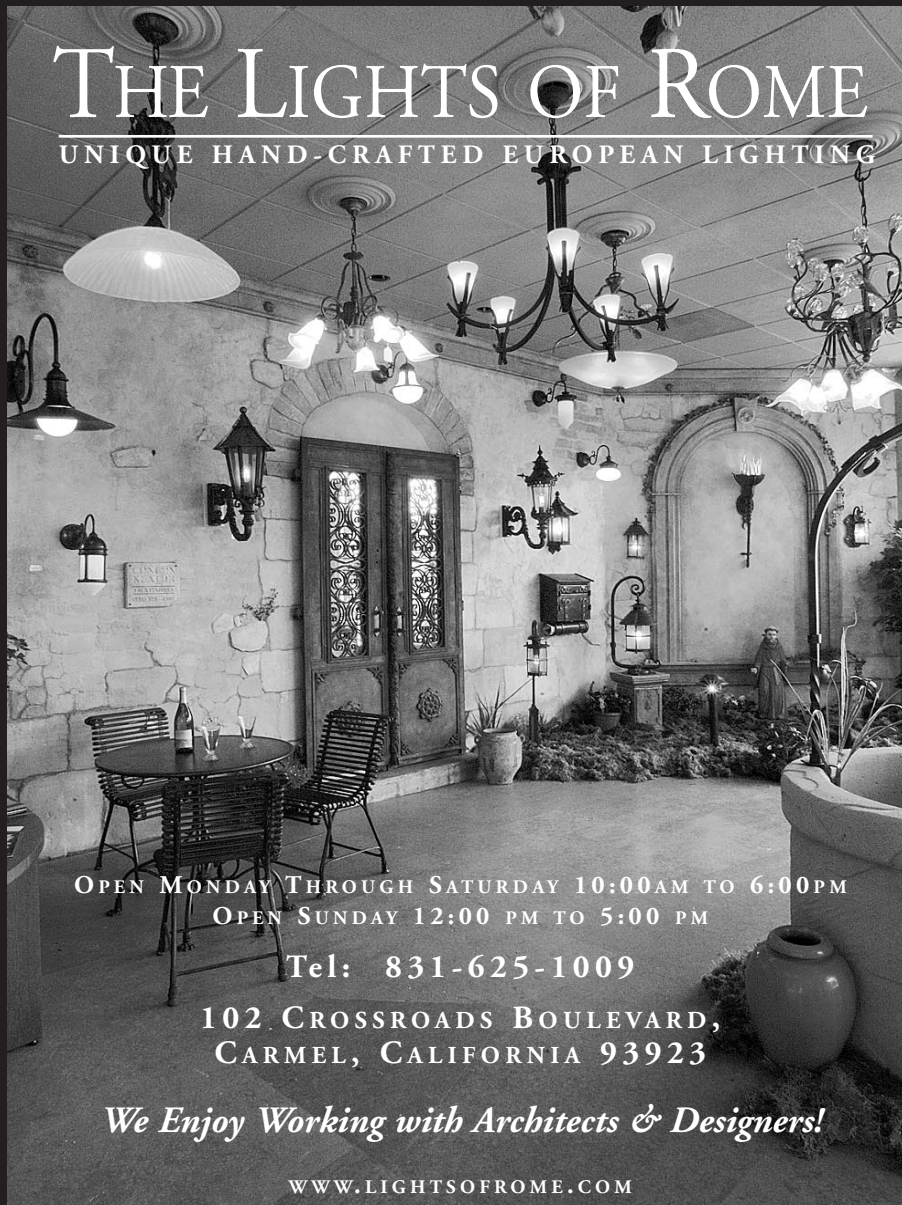

Briny Baird finished a career-best 22nd on the final money list in 2003 with a career-high seven top-10s. He posted a top-10 finish in his first start of the season at the Sony Open in Hawaii, when he tied for seventh. His second top-10 was a tie for fourth at the Buick Invitational, six strokes behind champion Tiger Woods. Baird posted back-to-back top-10s for the first time in his career at the HP Classic of New Orleans (tied for eighth) and the EDS Byron Nelson Championship (tied for ninth) and tied a PGA Tour birdie-eagle streak record during the second round of the Funai Classic at the Walt Disney World Resort. He began the streak with an eagle on the 15th hole and then birdied the next seven holes for a total of 9-under over eight holes.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2002 Baird had two top-10 finishes and had the best earnings season of his career to date with $817,514. Finished two strokes behind winner Phil Mickelson at the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic at 28-under-par 332. In 2001, his second-place check at the John Deere Classic was worth $302,400, or $27,306 less than father Butch Baird won in 20-plus years on PGA Tour. In 1999, he finished 186th on the money list as a PGA Tour rookie.

CHRIS RILEY

2003 PGA TOUR winnings:
$2,178,133

Age: 31 Hometown: Las Vegas

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

Last year Chris Riley finished in the top 30 for the second straight season and collected a career-high six top-10s, including three top-threes. He started the year with a tie for sixth place at the Mercedes Championship at Kapalua, Hawaii, making him one of four first-time participants to finish in the top 10 at the event. Later, he shared the 54-hole lead at the John Deere Classic and finished tied for second.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2002, Riley earned his first PGA Tour victory in his 109th career start at the Reno-Tahoe Open after defeating Jonathan Kaye in a one-hole playoff. He came from two strokes down on the back nine on the final day to tie Kaye in regulation. With a two-putt par to win on the first hole of the playoff, Riley earned $540,000, his largest career paycheck. He closed the year making 14 consecutive cuts. The year before, after a slow start, Riley eclipsed the $1 million mark in season earnings for the first time in his career thanks to four top-10s. His best effort of the year was a runner-up finish at The International. In 2000, he had four top-10 finishes including two in fourth-place. Riley was in the top-10 in his first start as a member of the PGA Tour in 1999 when he finished tied for seventh at the Sony Open in Hawaii. Ironically, his first shot was out of bounds, but he recovered to shoot 67.

He is married to LPGA golfer Michelle Louviere.

TIM HERRON

2003 PGA TOUR winnings:
$2,176,390

Age: 33 (he'll turn 34 Feb. 6)
Hometown: Scottsdale, Arizona

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

Tim Herron has placed in the top 75 in seven seasons on the Tour dating back to 1996. In 2003, with four rounds in the 60s, and seven straight on the season, Herron picked up his first top-10, a tie for second, at the Greater Milwaukee Open. After the Milwaukee event, Herron did not play again until August due to the birth of daughter Carson Magne July 24.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2001, Herron managed three top-10 finishes. In 2000, the first of four top-10 finishes was a tie for 10th at the Bay Hill Invitational. He tallied six birdies on the way to posting a 6-under-par 29 on the back nine at the Air Canada Championship, matching the PGA Tour season mark for a low nine. And he finished ninth in his final appearance of year at the Tampa Bay Classic. In 1999, Herron captured his third PGA Tour title in four years with a playoff victory over

Tom Lehman at Bay Hill Invitational. The victory was the highlight of a season in which Herron finished among the top 25 on the Tour money list for the first time in his career. In 1998, Herron finished solo sixth at the U.S. Open, marking best career finish in a major championship. As an amateur, he went undefeated in three matches as a member of the victorious 1993 U.S. Walker Cup Team. And he defeated 15-year-old Tiger Woods in the second round of the 1992 U.S. Amateur, one of only two defeats Woods suffered in 23 U.S. Amateur matches

JERRY KELLEY

2003 PGA TOUR winnings:
$2,158,342

Age: 37 Hometown: Madison, Wisconsin

2003 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS:

Last year, Jerry Kelley collected more than $2 million for the second straight season. In the first event of the season, he finished tied for 10th at the Mercedes Championships, one of four first-time participants to finish among the top 10. In an attempt to defend his title at the Sony Open in Hawaii, Kelley recorded four rounds in the 60s, including a final-round 65 to finish tied for fourth. He finished in a tie for eighth place at the Honda Classic, setting a course record at the Country Club at Mirasol Sunset Course with a second-round 10-under 62. His round of 62 also tied the 18-hole tournament record. Kelley was tied for third in his defense of the 100th Western Open title, placing seven shots behind champion Tiger Woods. And he tied the PGA Tour record for consecutive birdies with eight in the third round of the Las Vegas Invitational at the TPC at Summerlin, posting birdies on Nos. 7-14 on Friday. Bob Goalby set the record at the 1961 St.

Petersburg Open and was later tied by Fuzzy Zoeller (1976 Quad Cities Open), Dewey Arnette (1987 Buick Open), Edward Fryatt (2000 Doral-Ryder Open) and J.P. Hayes (2003 Bob Hope Chrysler Classic). After a par on 15, Kelley then eagled No. 16.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

In 2002, Kelley finished in the top 10 on the Tour money list for the first time in his career. He earned his first career victory in his 200th career start at the Sony Open in Hawaii, where he shared the first-round lead and held the third-round lead outright on his way to defeating John Cook by one stroke. Kelley's second Tour victory came just 18 events after the first at the Advil Western Open in Lemont, Illinois. Four rounds in the 60s, including a final-round 65, gave him the come-from-behind win. Kelly began the day three strokes back of third-round leader Robert Allenby and finished two strokes ahead of runner-up Davis Love III. In 2001, Kelley made more than $1 million in a season for the first time in his career, but for the sixth consecutive year, he played in 30-plus events. Kelley led the Players Championship through the second and third rounds, but a closing 73 dropped him to fourth, four strokes behind Tiger Woods. In 2000, Kelley finished 59th on the Tour money list with $784,754. Early in the year, at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, he had his season-best finish, a tie for fourth. In 1999, Kelley played in 34 events and made the cut in 22 of those. He recorded the first of five double eagles at the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic on the 14th hole at Indian Wells Country Club.○

Great golf is par for the course on the Monterey Peninsula

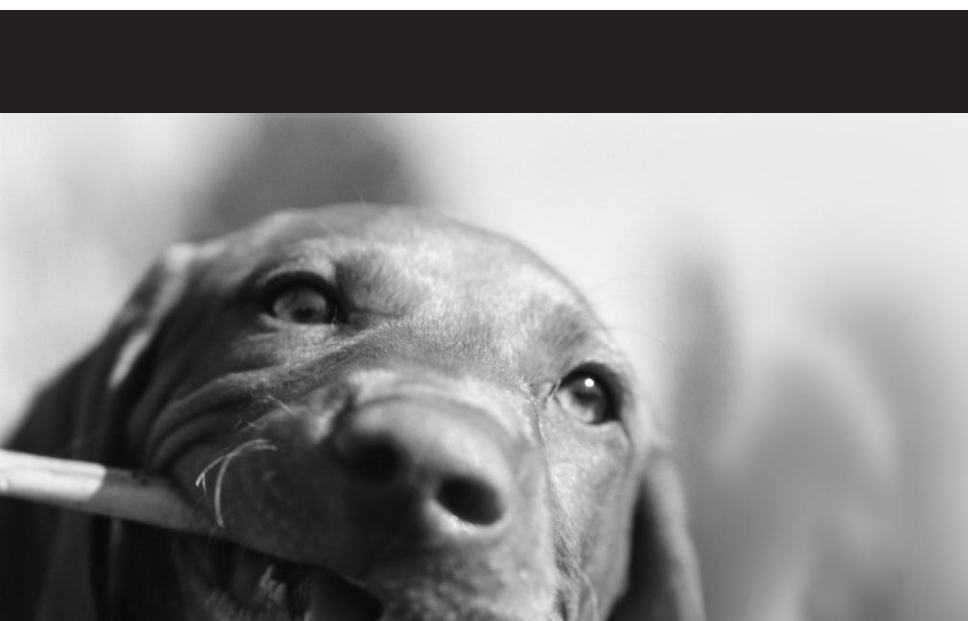

WHILE GOLF fans all over the world revere the Pebble Beach Golf Links as one of the finest courses ever created, they may not realize the Monterey Peninsula is home to dozens of golf courses suitable for all levels of play and all budgets. Whether you're a scratch golfer looking for a challenge or a hacker more interested in just having a good time, there's a golf course worth playing. All yardage figures are calculated from the back tees and cited by the Northern California Golf Association, which also provided rates and contact information.

Bayonet and Black Horse golf courses, Seaside — Created in Fort Ord's heyday for military use, these two courses now belong to the City of Seaside and have undergone extensive renovation in recent years. Gen. Robert McClure, designer of Bayonet in 1954, was known for his left-handed slice and designed the course accordingly, so that the only severe doglegs on the course run right to left. In celebration of its 50th anniversary, Bayonet will offer special promotions all year long, as will its sister course, Black Horse, which was designed by Gen. Edwin Carns in 1967. The 7,116-yard par 72 Bayonet and the 7,009-yard par 72 Black Horse — both of which have hosted the PGA's Qualifying School — are open to the public and will host a new Champions Tour pro-am, the First Tee Open, Aug. 30-Sept. 5. The qualifying round for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am was hosted by Bayonet this year. Course records include a 65 by Notah Begay on Bayonet and a 64 on Black Horse by Ted Oh. Green fees run $50-$97; cart fees, $26-$36. Call 899-7271 or visit www.bayonetblackhorse.com.

Carmel Valley Ranch, Carmel Valley — A resort/private club course designed by Pete Dye and built in 1981, Carmel Valley Ranch sits just east of mid valley along the Carmel River and up onto the base of hills nearby. Touted as one of the most modern courses around — its reservations are handled in Scottsdale, Ariz., by Troon Golf and tee times are regularly offered for bid on eBay — C.V. Ranch seeks to offer the quintessential private country club experience to players. Pro Bobby Clampett holds the course record of 63 with player Mark Brooks. The 6,201-yard par 70 course can be played by members and resort guests.

What a splendid lie it would be to convince you that these two outstanding Realtors know as much about the game that is golf as they do about real estate here on the Monterey Peninsula. So rather than stretch the truth about driving home a bogie, getting stuck in a trap, or hacking our way through the rough, suffice it to say that we know our way around the Monterey Peninsula real estate scene.

Corral de Tierra Country Club, Salinas — This 6,677-yard par 72 course, situated off the Monterey-Salinas Highway and graced with some of the best weather on the Peninsula, was designed by Bob Baldock in 1960. It was redesigned a few years ago by Michael Poellot and now offers the added challenge of quite a few bunkers. The course, which has seen its record of 63 achieved by several players, is open to members and guests. Reciprocal with other private clubs. Guest fees, $65-$105; cart fee, $32. For information, contact the golf shop at 484-1325 or visit www.corraldetierracc.com.

Cypress Point Club, Pebble Beach — Designed in 1928 by renowned course architect Alister MacKenzie, the 6,509-yard, par 72 Cypress Point course is known all over the world, in part for its breathtaking par-3 16th Hole over the ocean. Golfer Marion Hollins first conceived of the idea in 1924, and pursued the development of a first-class golf course and a clubhouse with a handful of sleeping rooms for a membership limited to 200 people who would pay about $2,500 each to subscribe. The club is open only to members and their guests. Golf pro Jim Langley holds the course record 63. For information, contact the pro shop at 624-2223.

Del Monte Golf Course — Nicknamed by the locals "Old Del Monte" (or "Old D" for short), the Del Monte Golf Course was built in 1897, making it the oldest course west of the Mississippi. Owned and operated by were jointly designed by Robert Trent Jones Jr., Tom Watson and former USGA president Sandy Tatum to meander among extensive sand dunes depleted by mining. The project also included extensive rehabilitation of the dunes and native plants in the area. Tom Watson holds the record 67 on the course he helped design. Guest fee: $215; cart fee, $25. For reservations, call (800) 654-9300 or visit www.pebble-beach.com, and remember to listen for the bagpiper who occasionally notifies golfers that the day's play is coming to an end.

Monterey Peninsula Country Club, Pebble Beach — The idea of Monterey Peninsula Country Club first arose in 1925 when S.F.B. Morse, James Habbord and Thorwell Mullally decided to combine a golf club with housing. Two courses comprise MPCC: The Dunes Course, designed by Seth Raynor in 1926 and redesigned by Rees Jones, and the Shore Course, designed by Bob Baldock in 1961. Open only to members and their guests, the Dunes Course runs a 6,762-yard par 72. The Shore Course is currently closed for reconstruction, with reopening anticipated this summer. Course records include a 67 by Mike Driscoll on the Dunes Course and a 64 by Rick Leibovich on the Shore Course. Guest fees, $70-$290; cart fees, $24-$30. For more information, call the pro shop at 372-8141.

Laguna Seca Golf Ranch, Monterey — Robert Trent Jones Sr. and Robert Trent Jones Jr. designed this public course off the Monterey-Salinas Highway together in 1970 — their first joint venture. Johnny Miller holds the record 7-under-par 64 on its 6,174-yards. Greens fees, $35-$65; cart fee: $34. For information, call 373-3701 or visit www.lagunasecagolf.com.

Peter Hay, Pebble Beach — The only executive-length course on the Peninsula — called so because it's made up entirely of par-3 holes and thus can be played during a business person's lunch hour — Peter Hay features a compact nine holes spanning from 58 yards to 104 yards in length. The course, open to the public for $20 a round, is named after one of Pebble Beach's favorite golf figures, Peter Hay, who was born in Aberdeen on Feb. 4, 1885, and first came to Del Monte Forest in 1916. For more information, call 622-8723.

Poppy Hills Golf Course, Pebble Beach — Commissioned by the Northern California Golf Association, the 6,833-yard par 72 Poppy Hills was designed by Robert Trent Jones, Jr. in 1986 and is open to the public. In 1991, Poppy Hills became one of the three courses hosting each year's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. Pro Matt Gogel holds the course record of 62. Greens fees, $50-$130; cart fee, $30. Rancho Cañada Golf Club, Carmel Valley — Situated along the Carmel River and on surrounding lands, Rancho Cañada features two 18-hole courses: the 6,349-yard par 71 West Course and the 6,109-yard par 71 East Course. Pro golfer Sam Snead once said the 15th Hole on Rancho Cañada's West Course was the narrowest hole he had ever played. Last fall, owner Nick Lombardo announced he wants to replace the West Course with a 280-unit housing development. Records include a 63 by Doug Sanders on the East Course and a 64 by John Kennaday on the West Course. Both designed by Robert Dean Putnam in 1970, these courses are open to the public.
