Appeals court upholds 'vexatious litigant' ruling

■ Plethora of new ADA suits will have to wait

By PAUL MILLER

A THREE-JUDGE panel of the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has declined to come to the rescue of serial ADA litigant Jarek Molski and his attorney, Thomas Frankovich.

Over the last two years, the pair has filed hundreds of lawsuits against small businesses in California, including more than 20 in Monterey County, alleging violations of the Americans with Disabilities Act, and they have a "plethora" of new suits waiting to be filed, according to the outspoken attorney representing them, Steve Yagman.

In December, U.S. District Court Judge Edward Rafeedie declared Molski a "vexatious litigant," and barred him from filing any more suits in the Los Angeles federal courthouse without the approval of a judge.

Rafeedie made a similar ruling against Frankovich last month.

Hotel tax fails with only majority vote

By CHRIS COUNTS

DESPITE THE support of a majority of voters in a special election April 5, a proposal to increase the city hotel tax by 20 percent failed to receive the two-thirds majority required for passage.

Results, announced Tuesday night at city hall, showed 798 in favor of Measure A, and 673 opposed.

The ballot initiative, which began with a petition drive last summer, would have increased the transient occupancy tax from 10 percent to 12 percent, adding about $700,000 annually to city coffers. Its defeat was welcomed by local innkeepers who believe the hotel industry already pays its fair share of Carmel's municipal expenses.

"It's gratifying to know that the citizens decided elected officials need to make key fiscal decisions," said Tom Glidden, general manager of La Playa Hotel.

According to Glidden, the hospitality industry already pays for 35 percent of the city's budget.

"We now have an opportunity to explore ways to develop revenue other than the tourist trade," he said.

For council member Mike Cunningham, the election results were a mixed blessing.

"The city council didn't think [the hotel tax] was a wise move and, speaking for myself, I'm glad voters agreed with us," said Cunningham. "But a significant number of voters did approve the measure, so the job before us is to understand their concerns about revenues and services. We need to move forward with a reasonable balance

JUSTICES NOT INCLINED TO UPSET COASTAL COMMISSION APPLE CART

By PAUL MILLER

IN A disjointed, rambling session that lasted almost an hour Wednesday, justices on California's Supreme Court seemed to agree with an attorney for the California Coastal Commission that a 2003 legislative fix is enough to keep the commission from violating the state constitution's separation of powers clause.

Two of the justices went so far as to offer their own reasons why it's fine to allow the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly to continue appointing eight of 12 coastal commissioners because that doesn't necessarily mean they control what the commission does. Lower courts have ruled the appointment scheme allowed the legislature to encroach on the political territory of the governor, who is supposed to enforce laws after the legislature passes them.

"Your argument loses impact in the face of term limits," Chief Justice Ronald George told Ron Zumbrun, attorney for the Marine Forests Society, which sued the coastal commission for ordering it to remove an experimental underwater reef off the Newport Beach pier. "Assembly speakers come and go after a year or two. They don't even have the longevity that coastal commissioners have."

"The likelihood of mischief is substantially reduced by term limits of the legislature," agreed Justice Ming W. Chin.

"Before the Coastal Act, there wasn't anything that showed land-use planning was overseen by the executive branch," observed Justice Joyce Kennard. "One could reasonably conclude that [letting the legislature appoint eight of 12 coastal commissioners] does not affect a core function of the executive branch."

Kennard also observed that numerous other states let their legislatures appoint officials to agencies that are nominally controlled by the governor.

She told Zumbrun he has a tough row to hoe.

"The hurdle you have to overcome is this," Kennard said. "The California Constitution imposes no prohibition against

P.G. puts warning labels on woods

By KIRSTIE WILDE

IT'S A pity Hansel and Gretel — not to mention Little Red Riding Hood — didn't have the benefit of Pacific Grove's new warning labels on the woods. If the 24 new signs installed at the entrances to several paths heading into Washington and Rip Van Winkle parks had only added warnings about the wicked witch and the big bad wolf, the fairy tales might have had happier endings.

As it is, the signs cover a lot of ground, literally and figuratively, warning visitors to "proceed with caution" because of a variety of natural hazards, including falling branches, exposed roots, uneven ground, slippery footing and loose rocks.

The warning signs came in response to the death of Anne Dickenson Thomas, the 81-year-old tourist who was killed in the butterfly sanctuary during a windy day last November when a 20-foot pine branch fell on her.

Locals know that old pine trees are to be avoided during wind storms because they have shallow roots and are notorious around these parts for crashing to the ground. But tourists may not realize the danger, according to Pacific Grove Mayor Jim Costello, and the signs should make them think.

"Do people who live in Kansas or Ohio know that trees can fall in the woods?" Costello asked. "I don't know the answer, but I think in this day and age, we have to

Pacific Grove police and residents say no to graffiti

By CHRIS COUNTS

IS GRAFFITI in Pacific Grove the handiwork of a few bored local teenagers or evidence that out-of-town gang members are marking the quaint seaside resort community as their territory? Nobody knows, but there is general agreement that "tagging" needs to be stopped in the city.

"We don't allow it stay in one place for long," said PGPD Lt. Tom Uretsky. "We remove it as soon as possible. It's like the 'broken window syndrome.' If you allow it to exist, the problem will perpetuate. Some of our patrol officers have even painted over graffiti on their own initiative."

Uretsky said the PGPD believes graffiti found in Pacific Grove is the handiwork of local juveniles he described as "skateboarders and rollerbladers" instead of out-of-town gang members.

But lifelong Pacific Grove resident David Palmer — not to be confused with a PG police officer with the same name — said Pacific Grove has been marked as gang territory. Specifically, he refers to an instance where a Roman numeral "14" adorns a telephone service box.

The number 14 is a popular tag for gang members affiliated with the Nortenos street gang. It refers to the 14th letter of the alphabet, N, which represents the gang's name or Nuestra Familia. While Nortenos exist throughout the U.S., the gang originated in Northern California and has its roots in California's prison system. The letter M in gang graffiti refers to the Mexican Mafia, which was the precursor to the Sureños, the major street gang in Southern California. Since the late 1960s, a conflict has existed between Nortenos and Sureños. The two gangs are aggressively territorial, and graffiti is how they establish boundaries.

Regardless of who is responsible for the graffiti in Pacific Grove, Palmer believes local authorities need to be more concerned about the problem.

"It's a gateway crime," Palmer said. "Even if it is [local kids] doing it, emulating gang members is like going around with a toy gun and pointing it at people."

Tish Sammon, a Pacific Grove resident and mother, doesn't believe graffiti is something people should be alarmed about, but something they should pay attention to.

"I came from L.A.," Sammon said. "I had my car tagged with a gang symbol 20 years ago. I just don't have the sense that gang members are coming in to take over our community. I don't foresee gang warfare on the streets of Carmel and Pacific Grove."

Sammon, like Uretsky, believes local graffiti most likely

Is it real or is it just an imitation? Gang-style graffiti defaces a garbage bin behind a shopping center in Pacific Grove.

is the work of young local vandals and not out-of-town gang members.

"Graffiti is not something we should be afraid of," she said. "It's something we should be educated about. We should jump in and seek a solution. We need to look at ways to use young people's energy in a more positive way."

Wes McBride, a retired police sergeant, is president of California Gang Investigators Association, a non profit organization composed of criminal justice and law enforcement professionals fighting gang violence.

Regardless who is doing the tagging, McBride believes graffiti is something people should be alarmed about.

"It could be [local kids], but it may very well be gangs," McBride said of reports of graffiti in Pacific Grove. "Regardless, the problem is that a real gang will see it [as evidence of another] real gang and they won't stand for it."

Even a seemingly innocent prank can indirectly compound the problem of gang violence, he said.

"Some people will say they're just wannabes," McBride said. "If you 'wanna,' you are."

Boon or a nuisance? Carmel delays decision on walking tours

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN RESPONSE to public comments at this week's council meeting about a proposed ordinance to regulate walking tours in Carmel, city council member Erik Bethel suggested tour guide Gale Wrausmann and her business Carmel Walks, rather than harming the city, might actually be saving the city money. "This is marketing," declared Bethel, who is clearly impressed by Wrausmann's efforts to promote Carmel as well as her business.

Gale Wrausmann

After hearing from Wrausmann and local residents supporting her, the Carmel City Council voted unanimously to delay making a decision on the ordinance. The issue will be revisited in two months. Bethel's comments provided a stark contrast to a staff report that portrayed walking tours as a liability, and even a nuisance.

According to the staff report, "walking tours have the potential to produce impacts in the area where they travel. On Carmel's narrow streets and sidewalks, a large group standing to hear an oral presentation can result in blocked sidewalks, impeded access to nearby businesses or interference with traffic and parking. Such groups also have the potential to diminish the sense of peace, quiet and privacy of residents occupying homes on the tour route."

The staff report recommended these "impacts can be addressed without interfering with free speech rights through the adoption of time, place and manner restrictions."

The proposed ordinance would prohibit commercial walking tours within residential districts. In commercial districts, walking tours would be prohibited during peak pedestrian and vehicular traffic periods, meaning Wrausmann would not be able to offer tours at all on weekend afternoons.

Group size and behavior would be controlled as well. The ordinance would limit groups to 12 people. Wrausmann said her tours have included as many as 20 in the past.

Wrausmann would also be required to purchase a business license. A nonprofit organization offering walking tours would not need a business license, but would otherwise be subject to the same conditions as Wrausmann.

The ordinance, she explained, "would severely undermine my business."

"I received no notification of this," Wrausmann said. "I found out about it on Sunday [two days earlier]. I had no chance to prepare."

Her business was described at the hearing by several local residents as a marketing boon to Carmel.

"Carmel Walk has attracted much media attention that has publicized Carmel as a travel destination," said Wrausmann, who added that a "major national magazine" is preparing to

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

'Human jawbone' merely missing denture

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log compiled by Laith Agha.

EASTER

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female Lopez Avenue resident reported several of her clay flower pots were damaged the previous evening. She heard "thumping" sounds at around 2100 hours and told her dinner guests it was probably raccoons on the front deck. While investigating the damage, officer noticed the Jane Powers Walkway post had been uprooted. It was found intact in the yard of another house and was replaced by the officer into its hole. Additionally, a real estate sign was found within the walkway and returned to its rightful residence. Close patrol will be done.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A vehicle parked on San Carlos Street that was known to have several outstanding parking citations was towed per the California Vehicle Code and stored at Carmel Chevron.

Carmel area: A 34-year-old male shoved another male, age 67, during a disagreement at a North Carmel Hills Drive residence. No prosecution desired.

Big Sur: A male subject reported additional information regarding a car that had gone over the side of Front Hill Road the previous night.

Big Sur: The 59-year-old packing manager at a Big Sur restaurant and inn reported a male subject was causing a disturbance in the restaurant. He was contacted and transported to another restaurant and lodging on Highway 1.

MONDAY, MARCH 28

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male reported losing his Motorola cell phone on 11th Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle was parked on Dolores Street displaying expired registration. The vehicle was towed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male reported losing his Canon SLR camera on 03-26 at Del Mar.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported a wild turkey in the yard. Units responded and the turkey was captured and taken to the department. SPCA wildlife was contacted to transport the turkey.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Received a report of a female down in the intersection of San Carlos and Fifth. Subject transported to CHOMP.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Engine and battalion chief responded to a fire alarm in the candle shop at Monte Verde and Ocean. Prior to arrival, the engine was canceled by the chief, who was at scene and confirmed it was an accidental activation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Engine and ambulance responded to an unknown medical emergency at San Carlos and Fifth. Found an elderly woman who fell near the sidewalk. She had obvious trauma to her nose with minor bleeding. Engine crew assisted ambulance crew with treating and bandaging the patient's nose as well as placing her into full cervical spine precautions. She stated she had no dizziness prior to the fall. No obvious obstructions were noted in the area.

Pebble Beach: A large sports bag full of street hockey equipment was found in the bushes near a Raccoon Trail residence.

Pebble Beach: A young male, approximately 10-12 years old, was seen removing mail from several mailboxes in the area of Mestres Drive. The subject was confronted by a 73-year-old female resident but not held for the sheriff's office.

TUESDAY, MARCH 29

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A female reported someone stole her son's cash from his room in their Ridgewood Drive residence.

Bailey beat cancer and now he's making a comeback

By LAITH AGHA

BAILEY PITRUZZELLO is an 8-year-old second grader at Monterey Bay Charter School. He's also a cancer survivor who had major surgery two weeks ago to reconstruct his embattled face.

More than two years ago, Bailey's mother, Nicole Erickson, noticed his nose was swelling. When she observed three days later that the bones in his nose were moving, she took him to the doctor. It was determined that a malignant tumor was growing in his sinus and nasal cavity.

The diagnosis was chondrosarcoma, and more tumors appeared over the next several months. The little boy from Pacific Grove endured three surgeries in 2003 to remove tumors from his sinus cavity, under his left eye and above his lip on the right side.

He has been cancer free ever since and thus doctors felt it was time to begin restoring his looks.

On March 31, Bailey underwent hours of reconstructive surgery on his face. The procedure was expected to take 12 to 14 hours, according to Delana Pierce, who is the owner of Sandcastles-by-the-Sea in the Barnyard and was Erickson's boss before she quit to care for her son.

Although the surgery occurred more than a week, Bailey is still in a drug-induced coma to keep him from damaging his the delicate healing area by moving. He is expected to be revived by this week-end.

He is being fed through a feeding tube, and on the third day after surgery his lungs began to collapse, prompting the doctors to immediately hook him up to a ventilator, Pierce said. He was taken off the ventilator on Wednesday.

As has been the case since Bailey was first diagnosed, his mother has not been able to work, due to the high demand of Bailey's care. Thus, paying household bills, let alone medical bills, has been very trying, to say the least.

In addition to Bailey, Erickson has two other children, ages 13 and 11, to raise as a single mother.

Dedicated friend

While Erickson is consumed with caring for Bailey, Delana Pierce is dedicated to raising money to help Erickson and her three children.

So far, more than $30,000 has been raised to assist with basic provisions like food and rent, buying a reliable car for the frequent trips to Stanford University Medical Center and other expenses. A laptop computer was anonymously donated to Erickson so she could research Baileys affliction on-line.

"Someone just walked in the store and handed me a hundred dollars a few minutes ago," Pierce said on Wednesday afternoon. Donors have been generous and fundraising efforts have been successful, but the need persists.

Pierce urgently wants to hold another fundraising event, but says she is unable to organize it and hopes someone will come forward to take on the task. She's hoping to set up a movie night, in which a children's film produced by a local filmmaker would be shown at a local venue. Ticket sales would be the primary means of raising funds.

Local resident Erika Lockridge was the executive producer of the MGM film, "The Dust Factory," which would be made available for free by Lockridge if a venue is found to show it. Pierce said she has yet to speak with any theater managers.

SETBACK FOR PAJARO-SUNNY MESA DESAL PLAN

■ Grant request turned down; county announces tentative deal

By PAUL MILLER

THE STATE Department of Water Resources released its list of proposed grant recipients for $50 million available under a 2002 ballot measure intended to facilitate the development of water projects along the coast, and the Pajaro-Sunny Mesa Community Services District was not on the list.

The grant list, drawn up by the DWR staff after evaluating dozens of proposals from around the state, will be finalized by the department's board in May.

"Our project is not dependent on receiving Prop. 50 funds," said Marc del Piero, general counsel for PSM. "We hope we will be able to reduce the cost to the general public by securing grant funds, but we're going ahead whether those grant funds are made available to us or not."

Pajaro-Sunny Mesa has leased land from Monterey businessman Nader Agha at the site of a former brick factory across the street from the Duke Energy power plant in Moss Landing. Having secured a site, the PSM board has claimed front-runner status in getting a desal plant online to supply water to the Monterey Peninsula and other parts of Monterey County.

"It is sad that the only project that has obtained a site in Monterey County is not being recommended for funding," del Piero said. His board may decide to contest the DWR staff's recommendation, he added.

While it does not have a firm site lined up for its proposed desal plant, Cal-Am Water has been holding a series of community workshops to demonstrate how much progress it has made on the technical hurdles to be overcome before a desal plant can go online to eliminate illegal pumping from the Carmel River and supply a modest amount of new water for development in the Cal-Am service area.

"We're moving forward on a realistic schedule," Cal-Am general manager Steve Leonard said at a workshop Tuesday night in Carmel Valley. "We have more than $4 million of our shareholders' money invested and there's no ambiguity where we're going."

Leonard said the company would release its environmental assessment of a desal plant in June, and it has already applied for a county permit to have a pilot plant running in the fall.

According to Larry Gallery, a consultant hired by Cal-Am to spearhead its desal plans, the company is looking closely at a site about one mile inland from the Duke Energy plant, which would simplify the environmental problems of taking water from Monterey Bay and discharging brine back into the bay.

"Duke has an approved permit for their intake and outfall, and they won't have to change operations at all to accommodate us," Gallery said.

In fact, Duke Energy is allowed to take up to 1.2 billion gallons a day from the bay to operate its power plant. The desal plant proposed by Cal-Am would only use 3 percent of that water.

"According to our brine studies, there will only be minor increases in salinity at the outfall because of the desal plant," Gallery said.

That's critical, because any impacts on the environment in the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary could cause a desal plant to be vetoed by the Coastal Commission.

Meanwhile, Curtis Weeks, general manager of the Monterey County Water Resources Agency, announced this week that an agreement has been reached with representatives of local cities and water districts, as well as Monterey County and the Fort Ord reuse authority, for a "governance concept" to finance and operate a regional desal plant and other regional water projects.

The concept will be presented to the board of supervisors later this month, according to the county water resources agency.

"This historic milestone is the culmination of meetings in the past four months, extending a process started by Monterey County Supervisors more than a year ago to develop leadership by public agencies to solve urban water supply challenges," said Weeks.

Larry Foy, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, said, "the community obviously benefits when the county, cities and water agencies are working together to solve urban water issues, rather than each going their separate way."

The "governance concept" announced this week would also meet the water board's goal of having Monterey County provide the resources for planning and permitting a major water supply project, "thus relieving the water district of a financial commitment which it currently would be unable to fund," Foy said.

A timeline released by Weeks reminded the community that it has been 10 years since the State Water Resources Control Board ordered Cal-Am and its customers to stop pumping more than 10,000 acre-feet per year from the Carmel River. In all that time, no new water project of any significance has been developed, and the pumping continues today.

County Health wants public input on mental health services

By LAITH AGHA

PROP 63, the initiative that hits up millionaires to fund expansion of mental health services, was passed by voters in November. Now the county has to figure out how to spend its newly allocated funds.

The behavioral health division of the Monterey County Health Department is holding a series of public meetings throughout the county to gather input on the state of service for mental health patients.

The department will use the gathered input to determine how to apply its newly allocated funds to its community planning program.

Also known as the Mental Health Services Act, Prop 63 was passed by voters last November. It is a one percent tax on personal income above $1 million to provide counties with funds for expansion of mental health service programs.

For more information, call (831) 755-4510 or email prop63mc@redshift.com

Spanish Bay Beaches are re-opened

THE BEACHES adjacent to The Inn at Spanish Bay in Pebble Beach are open again after a sewage spill last Friday forced their closure. The spill occurred when a contractor cutting trees punctured a sewage line, allowing for an estimated 39,000 gallons of sewage to spill into the ocean.

Environmental Health officials determined yesterday that toxin levels had dissipated enough to re-open the beaches to the public.

This beach closure was unusual for Monterey County, where routine testing sometimes results in an alert to the public because of high bacteria levels in a single sample; often, the source is unknown and by the time the water has been tested the bacteria levels have returned to normal.

Good old days in P.G. this weekend

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

ONE OF the Peninsula's most popular events, Pacific Grove's Good Old Days, returns this weekend, Apr. 9-10, for its 48th year, beginning Saturday with the traditional parade at 10 a.m. This year, the parade will include more than 120 entries, including marching bands, floats and the ever-popular bucket brigade.

Baby racing is just one of more than 30 events that will be happening during the weekend. The California Motorcycle Police Drill Team Competition is back, as are the Fireman's Muster, the old-time fashion show, carnival rides, the Boy Scouts' miniature golf course, and the Media Challenge Basketball Competition in which different Monterey County media outlets leave their radio booths, TV studios and newsrooms to duke it out on the court.

Lighthouse Ave. will be lined with 200 booths where arts and crafts, food, and other amenities will be sold.

And 70 bands and live performers also are expected to entertain the crowds. Among the featured performers are: the Peacemakers, Dubwise, Red Beans and Rice, John "Broadway" Tucker, and The Cachagua boys.

Council chooses firefighters over ADA compliance

BY CHRIS COUNTS

WHAT IS more important: Complying with the Americans with Disabilities Act or ensuring the safety of firefighters in the event of an earthquake?

Faced with this difficult question, the Carmel City Council voted 4-1 on April 5 to move forward with seismic retrofitting on the Carmel firehouse — a project that will cost an estimated $400,000. The retrofit aims to shore up the building by installing steel bracing in the walls and beefing up the doors and roof.

City council member Erik Bethel pleaded with other city council members to delay the retrofit until the city can determine the feasibility of installing an elevator required for ADA compliance. "Why do we have to pass this all of a sudden?" Bethel asked. "All I'm suggesting is a one-month delay to think through the issues. Can't we just spend one month considering an elevator? What if we get sued a year from now?"

Although logic dictates that the upstairs area of the firehouse — which is used only by presumably able-bodied firefighters — would have no need for an elevator to transport disabled people, City attorney Don Freeman confirmed an elevator is indeed required to meet ADA standards. The cost of installing an elevator is estimated at more

Firefighters who live and work in the Carmel-by-the-Sea fire station, built in 1936, are operating under "horrible conditions," according to the city administrator Rich Guillen. The city council voted this week to begin the seismic retrofit and remodel as soon as possible than $100,000.

Other council members were not deterred by Bethel's argument.

"Do we need to be ADA compliant?"

asked councilman Gerard Rose. "Probably yes. Is [the firehouse] ADA compliant? Probably no. But the safety of men and women trumps ADA compliance. If we were to take an additional month or two [to reach a decision], that would be irresponsible."

Councilman Mike Cunningham agreed. "This building is too important not to be seismically fit," he said. "From where I sit, seismic work trumps everything."

Mayor Sue McCloud also said the safety of firefighters comes first.

"Any delay puts our firefighters in jeopardy," she said. "We really need to move forward."

City Administrator Rich Guillen said the project "has been talked about since the Loma Prieta earthquake in 1989." He estimated work can now begin in about three months.

"We would like to get the project out to bid post haste," Guillen said. "Typically it takes about a month to put it out for bid and another month to award a bid. Also, there will be some logistics to be worked out, such as where the equipment will go and where the firefighters will be housed" during construction. With the price of building materials — especially steel — increasing rapidly, it makes sense to get the job going as soon as possible, the council decided.

Public Safety Director George Rawson will be glad to see the retrofit begin.

"We're certainly excited to move this project forward," he said. "It's a long time overdue. It will be a much safer building."

USED CAR SCAM CONS SELLERS OUT OF SHIPPING MONEY

By CHRIS COUNTS

JUST WHEN you thought you'd heard about every imaginable scam, here is another way con artists are attempting to separate honest folks from their money.

Michael Jones, a Carmel Valley caterer, reports scammers are using rubber checks to buy second-hand cars, and then try to bilk the sellers out of money allegedly allocated for shipping costs.

Jones learned about the scam firsthand after he placed an ad in Hemmings Auto News, a magazine and website dedicated solely to the buying and selling of used cars.

After placing ads for three cars — a 1948 Chevy, a 1967 Volvo, and a 1995 Honda — Jones received a flurry of full-priced offers (six to eight per car), one from as far away as Poland. He also eventually received a total of six "cashier's checks." According to Jones, the checks looked good, but they all turned out to be bogus.

According to a scam alert posted on the Hemmings' website, the scammer typically offers "to send a cashier's check for the full asking price of the vehicle plus an additional amount intended as a shipping fee. The person responding to the ad later asks to have any excess funds refunded to him or to a third party. The original check that is presented to the bank by the seller turns out to be non-negotiable."

The scam alert identifies three red flags to look for. First, is the buyer asking any questions about the vehicle, such as mileage or condition? If not, it's probably a scam. Second, are they making a full price offer? Real buyers tend to make a lower offer at the beginning of negotiations. And third, if the buyer conveys a sense of urgency to finalize the transaction as soon as possible, it's probably a scam.

If you do accept an offer, Hemmings suggests "taking the check to the bank to verify its authenticity before releasing cars, parts, or excess funds. Most financial institutions require 10-15 business days before the check will clear. It is important to wait the full 15 days. An honest buyer won't mind the slight delay and will understand your desire to be cautious."

The Auto Trader, like Hemmings, serves as a virtual swap meet for old cars, offers sellers the following advice on its website under the link, "Fraud Awareness Tips:" Do not transfer the title until you have the equivalent of the purchase price in cash.

Informing authorities about the scam doesn't appear to do much good, Jones said.

"We called the FBI and the Secret Service," he said. "They just laughed at us.

There are so many claims they don't even bother to investigate."

Jones said a Secret Service representative told him the scam seems to be based in Nigeria, the origin of a common e-mail scam seeking banking information in exchange for a "commission" on a large inheritance.

While Jones didn't take the scammers' bait, he said other local residents apparently have.

"A bank manager told me several of their older clients have been nailed [by the scam]."

Sardine Factory's Mancuso named chef of year

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

Robert Mancuso

THE EXECUTIVE Chef of the Sardine Factory Restaurant on Cannery Row, Robert Mancuso, was named Chef of the Year Sunday night by the American Culinary Federation's Monterey Bay Chapter.

"He's been a tremendous addition to our operation, and has brought lots of innovations to the Sardine Factory," said Bert Cutino, who is co-owner of the restaurant. Cutino won the same award in 1983 and was the ACF National Chef of the Year in 1988. He also praised Mancuso's dedication to local charity work and help for apprentices and young people interested in culinary careers.

A graduate of the Culinary Institute of America, Mancuso began his career as banquet chef at Salish Lodge in Seattle. He has also been executive chef at Timber Hearth Grille and the June Creek grill in Vail, Colorado, and Chef de Cuisine at the Normandy Restaurant in Denver.

Judges of this year's competition were chefs Don Serrano, Ole Blem, Gregg Denter, Raul Cervantes, Giacomo Stoltz and David Tyler, along with Jayne Speizer of the Monterey County Herald, Ray Napolitano of Monterey County Weekly and Paul Miller, publisher of The Carmel Pine Cone.

City clerk leaves post for Whidbey Island, Washington

By PAUL MILLER

HER FORMER home called her with its laid-back lifestyle and far lower home prices, so city clerk Karen Crouch is leaving her post to move with her husband, Bob, to Whidbey Island, Washington.

"I lived up there in the early 1980s with my ex-husband who was in the Navy, and I always liked it," Crouch said. "Bob and I 2000 after five years in the planning department.

"I've always liked to work with people, and it's been interesting to balance all the different personalities at city hall, and being smiling and happy with everybody," Crouch said.

Layoffs last year forced two of her best friends from their jobs at city hall, a time Crouch called "emotionally tough." But the added duties she had to take on weren't that hard.

"I had more phone contact with people and more contact with people at the counter, but I was used to that from planning," she said.

And when the TOT petition was presented to her in November, she found it "a little overwhelming" because she'd never handled an initiative petition before. But "I just studied and figured out what to do," she said. Also, there were plenty of resources available for her to get help when she needed it.

Crouch moved to Carmel in 1994 ago from Guam, where she worked for the public utilities commission.

"In my whole professional life, I have worked with people," said Crouch, whose background includes a stint as a legal assistant and jobs at a small airline in Adak, Alaska, and a junior high school secretary. She also worked as a nurse for four years. In 2003, she was named a Certified Municipal Clerk by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

"I'm planning to work part-time after we move to Whidbey Island, and my husband, who is a kitchen designer, already has a job at a new Home Depot in Oak Harbor," she said.

City administrator Rich Guillen and personnel manager Jane Miller are searching for her replacement, she said.

Her last day at city hall full-time will be April 8. She'll help out two days a week until the end of the month, helping the transition to a new clerk, who has not been named yet. Crouch took the post in October

Local ADA specialist takes on statewide role

A SAN Juan Bautista attorney who has represented several Peninsula businesses in ADA lawsuits has been named chair of a statewide task force to help attorneys defend such actions.

Dan de Vries has been named chair of an ADA litigation strategies committee of the Association of Defense Counsel of Northern California and Nevada.

"The committee will enable all of us who are working on these cases to share tactics and discuss strategies," de Vries said.

power to protect the judicial system and the public from [the firm's] abusive and predatory litigation practices," the judge wrote.

More than 400 suits filed by Frankovich on behalf of Molski and other plaintiffs amount to "extortionate shysterism," Rafeedie wrote.

Yagman responded with an emergency plea to the 9th Circuit, beseeching the court to remove the "fetid stain" Rafeedie had placed on his client, and accusing Rafeedie of being "blatantly anti-Semitic" because he used the word "shyster" which, according to Yagman is an epithet for "Jew." (He did not say whether either Molski or Frankovich is Jewish.)

Yagman also accused Judge Rafeedie of behaving "disjointedly and bizarrely" on the bench during a hearing Feb. 7, and he noted that Molski "has accumulated and wishes immediately to file" a large number of new ADA suits if the appeals court would free him to do so.

But in a terse order from three judges, who apparently reviewed the extensive paperwork the case has generated, said Frankovich and Molski "have not demonstrated that this case warrants the intervention of this court by means of the extraordinary remedy of mandamus" — a legal term describing an order to a lower court to change its action.

That means the ban on new lawsuits by Molski and Frankovich will stand for at least a year, according to Robert H. Appert, the attorney representing the immigrant owners of a Chinese restaurant in Solvang who stepped forward to put a stop to Molski's flood of lawsuits.

"I expect Judge Rafeedie to make a final order in the case in the next week or two, and at that point they [Molski and Frankovich] will appeal it to the 9th Circuit," Appert said. "The appeals court will then follow its normal procedures, which means it will take a year or two, and during that time Judge Rafeedie's ruling is going to stay in place."

He said his clients, Phil and Christie Leo, decided to challenge Molski rather than settle because Molski's strategy of filing multiple ADA suits against small businesses offended them.

"They work 365 days a year at their restaurant, and it was against their sensibilities that somebody was filing all these frivolous lawsuits," Appert said.

But the Leos' financial resources are being drained by the lengthy court proceedings, and they are also getting tired.

"They never thought it would come to this," Appert said. "They were shocked at the notoriety the case got."

He said he has asked Rafeedie to award attorneys fees in the case, but that additional help will be needed to see it through the 9th Circuit. He is hoping national business groups will get involved to help the Leos.

"The case has enormous implications for many other businesses," Appert said.

That may be even more true after Rafeedie's final ruling in the case is issued. At a Feb. 7 hearing in Los Angeles, the judge indicated he might decide that Molski and other serial ADA litigants lack "standing" to bring the cases in federal court.

"The only remedy provided by the ADA is injunctive relief," the judge explained from the bench, referring to an order that requires a business to stop violating the ADA. "But to obtain injunctive relief, a plaintiff has to show that he'll be harmed if the relief isn't granted" — something that would be difficult to show if a disabled person visited a business only once, and there was no evidence the person was likely to go back.

In Molski's case, the judge indicated that his pattern of suing businesses all over the state, including establishments hundreds of miles from his San Fernando Valley home, raised doubts about the propriety of the suits.

There is also the possibility that Rafeedie will decide Molski lacks standing because his allegations are phony, which would mean that he hadn't suffered any harm in the first place.

The U.S. Constitution permits federal lawsuits to be filed only in cases of "actual controversy."

Meanwhile, Judge Rafeedie also accused Frankovich of unethical behavior because he sent letters to the businesses he sued — including eight restaurants in the Carmel area — advising them to save money by not hiring their own attorney and agreeing to settle quickly. He even offered to represent them in suits against any insurance companies that balked at paying claims in the ADA cases.

The judge said he would refer the matter to the state bar and recommend Frankovich be disciplined.

Today's Real Estate

by MAUREEN MASON
Certified Residential Specialist

The Question of Demand

Financial analysts often write about real estate demand as if it rose and fell like the sea, as if sometimes Americans feel like buying homes and other times they don't. Or, worse, as if there are times when all the Americans who wanted to buy a home have done so, and demand will therefore remain extraordinarily low until we get a new crop of buyers.

The fact is, demand is relatively constant (and very high) in America these days. We have immigrants, retiring Baby Boomers, minority homebuyers, as well as the always growing group of young people coming of household-forming age and homesellers who need to buy their next home. The number of available and affordable homes, in fact, has trailed the level of demand for those homes for many years in the most desirable parts of the country.

So the issue — the problem, if there is one — isn't a lack of demand. It's a lack of homes that potential buyers can fit into and afford. This is why housing prices continue to rise at inflation-beating rates. It's why creative and flexible lending programs keep being developed. And it's why all the predictions that real estate values are about to fall through the floor are so far from credibility.

Demand? Got it! What we need is a sober and enthusiastic and well-reasoned approach to housing that will allow us to provide homes at all price levels for those who work in our area. Otherwise, demand will become a problem.....but only because there's so much more of it than we can handle wisely. ## Save those heirloom photos

WHAT'S THE best way to save those precious family photos? Or how about that original copy of the Constitution?

The Monterey County genealogy Society will explain how on Thursday, April 7 at 7 p.m. at the LDS Church's Family History Center, 1024 Noche Buena in Seaside.

Brother Larry, curator of the Archives of the Diocese of Monterey, will lead the discussion on how to properly catalogue and store photographs, slides, newspaper articles, and documents.

do a feature story about the Carmel walking tour guide.

The Los Angeles Times, USA Today and Sunset magazine have done feature stories on her business, according to her web site. She has also made appearances on several television shows.

Currently, walking tours are not specifically allowed within the city's boundaries.

"We're trying to come up with an ordinance that legalizes walking tours," City Attorney Don Freeman said. "We have had complaints that (tour groups) are walking in the street and are gathering on (private) property."

City Council Member Mike Cunningham said the intent of the ordinance is not to end walking tours.

"We need to find a balance," he said. "The interests of the community are more important than the interests of the tour operators."

Is a Reverse Mortgage Right for You?

A reverse mortgage turns a portion of your equity into tax-free money you can use right now. You make no monthly payments on a reverse mortgage and the loan is not due to be paid until you sell, move out of the house or pass away.

You can use this money for any purpose; living expenses, home improvements or a grandchild's college education.

Homeowners who are 62 or older may qualify and be eligible even if there is an existing first or second mortgage. The size of the reverse mortgage depends upon the borrower's age(s), the program selected, the home's value, and prevailing interest rates. There are no income qualifications and you continue to retain title to your home.

Call if you have questions or wish a free Reverse Mortgage Handbook.

COASTAL

legislative appointment of executive branch officers; this court has consistently upheld the exercise of that power, and on top of all this, this is in line with the practices in other states. How do you overcome these hurdles?"

Zumbrun responded by arguing that individual liberties are threatened when the powers of government are not divided, and that this principal is basic to our form of government.

"This court has been given the obligation to protect the public," Zumbrun said. "The coastal commission has been erratic and subjective."

"But you are relying on an inchoate separation of powers argument," the chief justice observed.

Can the legislature do it all?

Representing the commission, deputy attorney Joseph Barbieri argued that there was nothing in the California Constitution limiting the legislature's power to appoint government officials, and that any dispute over this principle had long been settled.

"More than 100 years ago, this court upheld the legislature's power to appoint executive officers, and twice rejected the separation of powers argument," he told the justices.

"But is that power without limitation?" Chief Justice George asked. "Could the legislature appoint each and every person in the executive branch?"

"We're not talking about [the legislature appointing] someone who is a close confidant of the governor," Barbieri said. But otherwise, the answer is yes, he said.

"And what about the power to remove them?" asked Justice Chin. "Are you saying they have that?"

"Yes I am," Barbieri replied.

Chief Justice George challenged Barbieri on this point: "What test should we use, then, to decide when there has been a violation of the separation of powers clause?"

Barbieri responded that the only thing the legislature could not do was "direct the decisions of coastal commissioners in any way," and he said it would be up to the voters — not the courts — to punish legislators who overstepped their bounds. "The check [on the legislature's power] is the political process," he said. Also, history shows there is no reason to worry, he said, because the legislature hasn't tried to grab the governor's power by appointing majorities of numerous executive branch agencies.

"But wouldn't we give them a road map to do that by ruling as you wish?" Justice Chin asked. "Don't we need something more than faith to provide checks and balances?"

"The checks and balances were struck at the beginning," Barbieri said. When the state constitution was adopted, "there was a philosophical decision made that the power of appointment was safer in the hands of the legislature, because it is closest to the people."

(This discussion is important because during almost all of the coastal commission's 29-year history, a Democratic majority has controlled the legislature, giving that party control of the coastal commission and frustrating a string of Republican governors who tried to reign in the coastal commission's power. If the California Supreme Court rules that the governor must control the coastal commission, it could mean a radical departure from the commission's history of strictly controlling what private property owners and local governments can do.)

'Could the legislature appoint each and every person in the executive branch?'

— Chief Justice Ronald George

How to fix past wrongs

Although Barbieri argued that the legislature has an unfettered power to appoint and fire coastal commissioners, there was no sentiment among the Supreme Court justices to restore the old at-will appointment scheme soundly rejected by the appeals court two years ago, and which the legislature almost immediately switched to a system of fixed terms.

The justices wanted to know what the impact would be on decades of coastal commission permit decisions if they agreed with lower courts that from 1976 to 2003 the commission was unconstitutionally structured.

"If we agree with you that the current scheme is constitutional, but not the prior one, what would the effect be?" Chief Justice George asked.

"In our view, it would not affect the validity of any of those decisions," Barbieri said. All the old decisions — including the order against the Marine Forests Society — should be granted validity under what Barbieri called the "de facto officer" doctrine.

"This court should say, 'those decisions were made under the color of law and we're not going to undo a scheme that everybody relied on,'" Barbieri argued.

During oral arguments, Zumbrun wasn't given the chance to respond to this point, but in earlier comments, he agreed that most permit decisions made by the commission over the decades would not be undone by a Supreme Court ruling in his favor. However his client, and about 20 others property owners who challenged the coastal commission's makeup recently, should be entitled to have the courts overrule the commission's decisions on their permits, he said.

And Zumbrun argued Wednesday that the coastal commission should be ordered by the supreme court to stick to policy making and leave permit decisions to local government agencies.

"What would they be able to do?" Chief Justice George asked. "Put out pretty brochures?"

"Not at all," Zumbrun argued. "The commission would still be able to set policy and do rule making [about development along the coast]."

There was no indication when a ruling will come from the high court, which waited more than two years to hold oral arguments after the case was submitted to them.

PAIR ANSWERS THAT CRAVING FOR ELEGANCE IN SONG

By K. K. ROBINSON

TWO ELEGANTLY attired gentlemen stroll onto the stage, entirely bare — the stage, not the men — save for a piano, a podium and a single light. Then they start to sing. Suddenly, you have no doubt that you are in for “An Evening of Songs from Broadway’s Golden Age,” as the subtitle of “Say It with Music” promises. The beautifully carved piano and the downstage podium can only hint at the wealth of delightful music and memories to come.

Tom Parks has woven more than two dozen songs into 90 minutes of musical comedy history stretching from Broadway at the turn of the 20th century to the movies of the mid 1950s. And John Harris lovingly caresses the piano with a rich and varied accompaniment to complement his warm, seductive voice.

The audience is the lucky beneficiary of the collaboration of these two highly talented performers as they take us, in song and story, on a soft shoe trip through the era of some of the finest composers and lyricists of songs heard in America. Their individual styles mesh beautifully, making it hard to believe that they are performing together for the first time. These guys have all the “chops” to send you to the time and place when these timeless melodies and meaningful lyrics were the order of the day in the music business.

Beginning with George M. Cohan’s “Give My Regards to Broadway,” the show is a salute to the most memorable makers of words and music with Mr. Harris at the piano and Mr. Parks at the podium. Jerome Kern (“the father of the American musical show”), Cole Porter, George (the music) and Ira (the lyrics) Gershwin, Richard Rodgers (who composed with both Lorenz Hart and Oscar Hammerstein), Betty Comden and Adolph Green, and Irving Berlin (who wrote more than 1,500 songs!) are all remembered in a panoply of ballads, “belters” and “patter songs.”

Together they bring us musical numbers from “Kiss Me Kate,” “Can-Can,” “Silk Stockings,” “Cabin in the Sky,” “Girl Crazy,” “An American in Paris,” “Pal Joey,” “The King and I,” “South Pacific,” “On the Town,” “Peter Pan,” “Top Hat” and more. Even the audience gets into the act. Few can resist singing along. For some, these are the songs they sang or heard growing up, and the rest have seen either the show or the movie and hum along.

Interspersed among the musical treats are some funny and revealing anecdotes relayed by these veterans of a world of entertainment that existed before MTV, when the studios were still a force in Hollywood, television was in the heyday of variety shows, and the “big names” toured night clubs around the country. They were there and we are the fortunate recipients of their knowledge, talent and humor. We loved the stories and hungered for more.

This is a terrific show, not to be missed! Get your tickets now because it’s a small house and, if opening night is any indication, it will sell out for this short run.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE

of MARGARET MARY SOTO

Case Number MP 17579

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of MARGARET MARY SOTO.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by CARMELA MCDOWELL in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that CARMELA MCDOWELL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on April 29, 2005 at 10:30 a.m., Dept.: Probate, in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for petitioner FRANK O'CONNELL, 462 Webster St., Suite 2, Monterey, CA 93940. (831) 373-8431. (s) Frank O'Connell, Attorney for Petitioner.

This statement was filed with the County Clerk of Monterey County on March 30, 2005.

Publication dates: April 8, 15, 22, 2005. (PC406)

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO: Interested Agencies, Organizations, and Individuals

FROM: The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea

SUBJECT: PUBLIC NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY OF A DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT FOR THE SALE OF FLANDERS MANSION PROPERTY

PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD: 1 APRIL 2005 to 16 MAY 2005

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, as lead agency, has prepared a Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) for the proposed sale of the Flanders Mansion Property. This property is a single-family residence located on a 1.25-acre parcel zoned P-2 (Improved Parkland). The Flanders Mansion is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and the parcel is part of a 35-acre park known as the Mission Trails Nature Preserve.

The EIR anticipates potentially significant impacts relating to aesthetics, biological and cultural resources, recreation, land use, and transportation/traffic. The EIR also discusses five alternatives and several mitigation measures that could eliminate or reduce environmental impacts. The purpose of this EIR is to inform the public and the City Council about potential effects of the project and to aid in making decisions about the project.

The Draft EIR may be reviewed in the reference room at Harrison Memorial Library, or at the City of Carmel City Hall. The document can also be accessed from the City's website at www.carmelcalifornia.com. Copies of the Draft EIR may be purchased at Copies-by-the-Sea located at the southwest corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

Written comments regarding the Draft EIR must be received no later than 4:00 pm on 16 May 2005 at The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Community Planning and Building Department, P.O. Drawer G, Carmel, CA 93921.

On 13 April 2005 the Planning Commission will hold a public hearing to receive oral comments on the draft EIR. This hearing will take place at 4:30 pm in the Council Chambers at City Hall in Carmel, located on the east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh Avenues. No action on the project will be taken at this meeting. A response to written and oral comments received from the public about the adequacy of the draft EIR will be provided in the final EIR. This document will be produced after the close of the public comment period on 16 May 2005.

GETTING RID OF WRINKLES ON YOUR LUNCH HOUR

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

WITH MILLIONS of baby boomers reaching their retirement years, medical science is increasingly focusing on new ways to help them grow old gracefully. Women and men have become so interested in maintaining a youthful appearance that last year more than 3.6 million Americans were treated with injectable dermal fillers. New products offered by Peninsula physicians are made from things as bizaare as streptococcus and rooster combs. (And you thought Botulin toxin was weird).

These innovative, outpatient skin care techniques are minimally or non-invasive, cause little pain and require almost no down time, meaning that you can get rid of your wrinkles during your lunch hour and be back to work and beautiful for your 1 p.m. staff meeting. Plus, these treatments are far less expensive than plastic surgery, and far more effective than topical over-the-counter products.

Late last December, the FDA approved Captique, yet another addition to the rapidly growing roster of injectable fillers. Captique's maker, Santa Barbara-based Inamed, is known for its variety of prescription anti-wrinkle products, as well as for being a market leader in silicone gel-filled breast implants for women. Although Captique is positioned in direct competition with Restylane, the 2003 FDA-approved, soft tissue, collagen-substitute filler, the two products are quite different.

Similar to Restylane, Captique fixes furrows between the eyes, adds volume to nasal folds and lips and smoothes out facial lines and wrinkles. But, but unlike Restylane which is derived from avian sources (rooster combs), Captique is a non-animal based, hyaluronic acid soft tissue filler. Hyaluronic acid is a naturally occurring substance (complex sugar) found in all living cells — especially in skin tissue, fluid surrounding the eye and some cartilage and joint fluids — therefore making allergic reactions nearly nonexistent. As people age, their skin loses hyaluronic acid, contributing to the formation of wrinkles. When injected (with superfine needles), the clear, colorless gel hydrates the skin by binding with water molecules and acts as a subcutaneous cushion.

Captique recently made its debut in Carmel at the Monterey Dermatology Laser Medical Center. Staff skin guru, Christopher Dannaker, M.D., an assistant professor at UCSF, sings the product's praises. According to Dannaker, not all fillers are created equal.

"The size of the molecules, how they're stacked and their viscosity play an important part in the product's effectiveness," says the board certified dermatologist. The hylauronic acid in Captique is highly purified and molecularly thinner than most fillers, making it mold easier into the skin and flow especially well for treating superficial lines. Also, the body naturally biodegrades and absorbs the hyaluronic acid over time.

Priced at $400 per syringe (.75 cc) — about the same as Restylane — and with less post-procedure soft tissue swelling and bruising than Restylane, Dannaker feels Captique is a highly desirable product for clients seeking decreased downtime and less risk of allergy. He also said many of his clients want lab-created products, instead of treatments made from animals.

Although Dannaker claims his clients who've tried Captique are pleased with the immediate results, the long-term results still remain to be seen since it's a brand new product. He estimates that Captique is as long-lasting as collagen, with likely half the longevity of Restylane. Either way, it's another weapon in the beauty-conscious Carmelite's arsenal to fight father time. And win.

Injectable dermal filler cheat sheet

MARY LOU NIELSEN HENDY, who wrote and produced television shows on home economics and dietetics, died March 16 at Carmel Valley Manor. She was 86.

Born in West Point, Indiana, she had been a Carmel resident since 1960. She graduated from Purdue University in 1940 with a B.S. degree in home economics. She also attended San Diego and Oregon state universities.

Mrs. Hendy was employed by the Arizona Public Service Co., was director of home economics for the Imperial Irrigation District, and the home service advisor for Monterey County for six years as a member of the staff of UC Berkeley. She was also a freelance writer and produced TV shows in her field for 12 years. Under the name Mary Lou Shively, she broadcast on KIVA, Yuma, Ariz.; KSBW, Salinas and KCET, Los Angeles.

In 1966, Mrs. Shively married Harold L. Nielsen, owner of Nielsen Bros. Market in downtown Carmel. Mr. Nielsen died in 1985. She married Frederick C. Hendy in 1987.

Mrs. Hendy served as president of the Community Hospital Auxiliary, past president of the Carmel Republican Women's Club and governor of the Monterey Bay Colony of Mayflower Descendants. She is also a member of Phi Mu Fraternity, The National Society of the Colonial Dames of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the P.E.O. Sisterhood.

She is survived by three children from her marriage to Richard F. Shively: Richard Shively of Texas, Jan Mumford of Carmel and Nancy Brown of Perrysburg, Ohio. She is also survived by two stepchildren, Gary Nielsen of Portola Valley and Sharon Nielsen of San Anselmo; seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the cancer fund of Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

WOODS

assume they don't, and put up warnings." The mayor likened the danger to that of high waves at the beach. A number of visitors to Pacific Grove have been swept away after climbing on rocks to admire the big waves kicked up during storms.

"Locals know never to turn their backs on the ocean, but visitors often don't. Now our police close the ocean drive when the waves are high to protect people," Costello said.

While the plethora of warning signs, which Pacific Grove public works employee Joe Vital made and installed in the sanctuary and in the parks, may offend those who want the city's wild, natural areas to remain . . . well . . . wild and natural, that aesthetic concern must be secondary, the mayor said.

"I don't like the signs either, but what else can we do?"

Lawsuit moves forward

Michael Kelly, the San Francisco attorney representing the family of the elderly woman killed by the falling branch, told The Pine Cone this week that his wrongful death lawsuit will be filed "within days." (His claim against the city — a required precursor to a lawsuit — has been denied and the family had six months from the date of denial to file a lawsuit.) Kelly is not impressed with the new warning signs, nor does he think they would have saved the life of Anne Thompson had they been installed in the butterfly sanctuary before she was killed.

"It's a litigation ploy, a halfhearted attempt to defend against our lawsuit," Kelly said, explaining that, in California, there is no liability if someone is harmed by hiking in a truly natural area. "But this wasn't 'natural', it was a tourist attraction set up by the city of Pacific Grove. They had signs; they had benches; they brought in tour groups of children."

Kelly said the new signs are "folly" because they merely warn of run-of-the-mill hazards like loose rocks and exposed roots. If the city is serious about protecting people in the butterfly sanctuary, he said, it should install signs that make sense, like:

WE HAVE EXAMINED THESE TREES. WE KNOW THEY SHOULD HAVE BEEN REMOVED. SOMEONE HAS BEEN KILLED HERE. WE RECOMMEND YOU NOT COME INTO THIS AREA.

Kelly claims the city forester, Frank Ono, had designated the trees as unsafe in a report done for the city five years ago. But Pacific Grove City Manager Ross Hubbard disputes that.

"I've gotten conflicting information on that," Hubbard said. "Frank said he did not mark them for removal. There are some white bands on the trees and no one knows who put it there."

Hubbard said there is great disagreement among P.G. residents about whether old trees, or even dead trees, should be removed from the butterfly sanctuary. "Some believe they provide a wind break that protects the roosting butterflies; others believe natural areas should remain exactly that — untouched by people — and trees should be allowed to fall because even dead trees are habitat for something."

But Hubbard said the consensus among the council members and city staff is that hazardous trees must be removed.

"You have to use some reason there. Perhaps we can drop the hazardous trees and leave them on the ground, or we can take them down to a height of only 10 feet." He said the process will begin in earnest within the next few weeks, now that the butterflies have all left the grove. (Butterflies are protected by law during their migration through Pacific Grove from November to March and there is a fine of $1,000 for anyone convicted of molesting butterflies in any way.) But no tree will be cut without first getting approval from the Pacific Grove Beautification and Natural Resources Committee, Hubbard said, adding that if the committee denies the request, it will be appealed to the city council.

The old railroad path in Pacific Grove is a popular spot for joggers and dog-walkers who take their lives in their hands if they venture down the lane during a heavy windstorm. Years of ignoring the ravages of pine pitch canker disease, which further weakened many pines that were already nearing the end of their lifespans, has left Pacific Grove with hazardous trees in nearly every forested area of town.

Twenty-four warning signs alert tourists in Pacific Grove about the hazards of walking in the woods. An attorney suing the city after an elderly woman was killed by a falling branch called the new signs "folly." The city said the signs will be necessary as long as there are lawyers.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

SADIE MANN, 6 in July, although a small yellow Lab retriever, is a voracious, secret eater.

When she came home as a puppy from a King City kennel with Mom Margery, the first thing she did in her new digs was to wolf down a whole loaf of French bread while Mom was hanging up her coat. Another time, she ate an entire chocolate cake left unattended on the kitchen counter. And bananas! Sadie peels and eats whole bananas with no trouble at all. As this unauthorized food theft is done surreptitiously while Mom's in another part of the house, she has no idea how Sadie peels a banana, but hopes to catch her in the act one day.

Some time ago, Mom had to have an ankle replacement, and while in the hospital, Sadie was taken care of by Auntie Jane Hardy and Sabu, a kitty who welcomed Sadie as a house guest. They have become close friends and Sadie now visits often.

On a grocery trip recently, Mom made a quick visit to Safeway, leaving the back window of her Jeep open for Sadie. On her return, Sadie was nowhere to be seen, and a search all over the parking lot and Crossroads Shopping Village proved fruitless. When Mom finally returned home, there was a telephone message from Auntie Jane: It seems Sadie had paid a visit to the Crossroads Petco by following the scent of all that tempting dog food. The nice folks there telephoned the 800 number on her dog tag which connected them with a national lost dog registry. The registry people first called Mom Margery, who was still out trying to find Sadie, so Auntie Jane — whose number was listed with the registry as a back-up — was contacted and instructed to pick up Sadie from Petco.

All this happened within an hour and a half, so needless to say Mom sings the praises of the lost dog registry. And so does Sadie.

BAILEY

Bailey hasn't seen his schoolmates since early March, which is when he left school because that was when the repair procedure was originally scheduled. He caught a cold, delaying the surgery until the end of the month. He was homeschooling in the interim and his return to school is dependent upon his recovery.

"I know everybody in the school was praying for him and lighting candles for him on the day of the surgery," Pierce said.

Meanwhile, donations can be made anytime, either by dropping them in the jars set up at Sandcastles and Jewel Boutique, both in the Barnyard, or by sending checks to the "Friends of Bailey" bank account at First National Bank.

Wi-Fi is the cat's pajamas

WE'RE NOT sure if the City of Carmel could bring in $300,000 in new revenue by installing a wireless Internet network in town, as was recommended to the city council at a budget workshop last week by information systems manager Steve McInchak. But here at The Pine Cone we have extensive experience using wireless Internet connections all over the world, and we can report one thing: They work really well and open up a whole new realm of inexpensive communication, once you invest about $1,000 in a laptop computer with a wireless card in it.

Attend any public event that's being covered by the local press and you can instantly recognize the Pine Cone reporter: He or she is the one typing away on a white Apple laptop. (We buy all of ours from Computerworks in Seaside.)

And if the reporter is at a venue with a Wi-Fi network, he can file his story and/or photos, check his email, or even do Internet research on the topic being discussed — all without leaving his seat. Or, if there's no Wi-Fi right in the building (for example, unfortunately, the board of supervisors chambers in Salinas) the reporter can usually locate an open wireless network somewhere in the vicinity. When he gets back to the office, he can carry his computer from room to room without ever losing his Internet connection. The convenience is amazing. And the cost is usually little or nothing. To us, it seems impossible for a reporter to do his job without a wireless-compatible laptop.

The extent of these wireless networks is getting to be impressive. They're available in practically every city in America, sometimes free, sometimes for a nominal charge. And they're turning up on every continent. (Yes, even Antarctica.)

Last week, a Pine Cone executive was on vacation in Europe. The hotel charged the usual sky-high rates for international faxes and phone calls, but the executive didn't spend a dime on these traditional forms of communication. Instead, he discovered by sampling the local Wi-Fi frequencies that the bookshop below his hotel room had an open Wi-Fi network. With just a few simple clicks, he was able to communicate freely with the office back home, e-mailing back and forth with the staff, filing and editing stories, and even updating the company website, all from the comfort of his Paris hotel room, and without paying anything.

The same thing is true at hotels, coffee shops, libraries and even public squares from Budapest to Buffalo.

And there's more: With a small amount of computer sophistication, the owner of a laptop who finds a wireless network anywhere can then share that wireless connection with other computers that aren't Wi-Fi capable. Your computer, and your network, can hit the road anytime you please.

We recommend the city join this information revolution. We recommend everyone in the city join it, too. And, with the TOT increase going down in defeat, if the result of adding Wi-Fi is that the city's budget crisis is eased, so much the better.

Lagoon's history

Dear Editor,

I have to respond to your editorial of March 18. Indeed, the Carmel River Lagoon and river mouth are dramatic and dynamic places. The wind, tides, river flow and wave action make for, at times, great interest and excitement.

During an earlier controversy concerning the river mouth and lagoon breaching, I consulted with Bill Askew, the very respected retired second generation public works director for Carmel. He, like his father before him, did a good job taking care of Carmel roads and drainages. Askew told me that before the houses were built in the lagoon and its flood plain, the river almost always breached itself running behind the sand bar way to the north at Stewart's Cove, as San Jose Creek does now. Sometimes the fishermen breached it differently and later Max Hodges, who had the topsoil business in now what is Rio Park, opened it.

Only recently has the county been breaching. Askew also said that Scenic Road is not going to erode away because it is protected by granite bedrock.

Now it is tragic that the most recent heavy erosion caused by very high tides, unusually big swells and heavy river flow exposed so many roots of the beautiful tree on Scenic.

In '92-'93 when the river, tides and waves did a very similar erosion sequence, the lagoon was breached by the county at its USUAL SPOT but the river mouth slowly migrated to the north as it did this year and exposed some very interesting bedrock Indian mortars as well as eroded the tree roots and stairs at Stewart's Cove.

Robinson Jeffers and his poem, "The Last Conservative," which I would urge all Carmelites to look up and read for a sense of their past, and for the sake of their future. The issue and poem inspired this:

Come, Baby Fish
"O heavy change."

Huge surf is sealing the river mouth, driving it south, into the bank beneath the sentinel cypress, filling the lagoon and undercutting the road that runs along the beach.

The wealthy are upset, their homes are threatened by baby fish, but Jeffers just sits on a rock,
a grim smile on his hawk-gaunt face and silently urges the river onward.

Come now, he calls it down from the hills, come now and reclaim what was always yours to begin with. Come rocks, trees, bits of barbed wire and fence, golf balls, tennis balls, bones of indians and slaughtered pigs. Come baby fish!
Come and reclaim what is yours by right!

And the great roiling of sea and river meet at his rock, roll over him, foaming madly at his refusal to move.
The roaring confluence masks a laugh, ringing, like monastery bells across the point,
the heavy hours of change.

Timothy Smith, Carmel

Counting your blessings

Dear Editor,

A little boy was on his first ride in an airplane and he asked his dad, "Are we held up by the law of gratitude?" His dad says, "Yes, because gratitude is a powerful force for good."

We can count our blessings one by one and they multiply as we do this. Lilio writes, "When thankfulness o'er flows the swelling heart and breathes in full and uncorrupted praise for benefits received, propitious heaven takes such acknowledgment as fragrant incense and doubles all the blessings."

Mary Baker Eddy, well know spiritual leader, tells us, "Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have and thus receive more."

What if we are in a doom and gloom mode? Then we are like the little boy who tells his dad, "I feel terrible." His dad answers, "Don't be so negative. Be positive." And the boy replies, "I'm positive I feel negative."

We can break the positive negativity by beginning to count our blessings. Some people keep a gratitude notebook. Here in this area we can count to blessings of radiant sunsets, exalting colors of wondrous skies, of inspiring ocean vistas. Stevenson wrote about this place, "It is the most beautiful place where heaven and earth meet."

And to close this with a smile: "We got cheaper gas for our car today, and we are sooo thankful."

between what we want to do and what we can afford to do."

No sunset clause vs increase revenue

Opponents also objected to Measure A's lack of a sunset clause or expiration date. If it had passed, the only way to repeal it would have been to hold another election.

Supporters wanted to increase the TOT to offset revenues lost during the economic downturn of the last five years that required the city to cut back services and lay off employees.

"This measure was such a win-win opportunity for businesses, residents and visitors," said a disappointed Roberta Miller, Committee for Measure A chair. "Now we call on the city council to come up with an alternative that serves the city as well or better and reflects the desires of a majority of residents."

Early Tuesday morning, election workers showed up at the poll only to find Sunset Center locked. They were worried that voting would not start on time at 7 a.m., but with the minutes ticking away, Monterey County Registrar of Voters Tony Anchundo phoned the Carmel Police Department, which sent over an officer with a key just in the nick of time.

There was a steady trickle of voters throughout the day. The poll closed at 8 p.m., and a team led by Anchundo began counting ballots within minutes. They didn't have much work to do — Out of 1,471 ballots cast, 1,003 were submitted by absentee ballot and had been counted before the poll closed.

Thirty minutes later, City Clerk Karen Crouch announced the results of the election to the cheers of Measure A opponents. The final tally was 54 percent in favor of the hotel tax hike, 46 percent opposed. Forty-nine percent of Carmel's registered voters cast ballots in the special election.

For Measure A supporters, the effort to boost Carmel city revenues isn't over.

"We will work with the city council to find a responsible plan that keeps our city solvent, our services intact and our infrastructure protected," Miller said

Breakfast forum on general plan and economic opportunity

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A COMMUNITY group called "Plan for the People" will host a breakfast panel discussion on the county's proposed general plan update on April 15 at 8 a.m. at Rancho Cañada Golf Club on Carmel Valley Road.

"We need to create a balance for our community between the residents, the environment, the agricultural industry and the hospitality industry," said Luann Meador of Ventana Vineyard. "We are trying to tell people that they need to get involved and hear for themselves what the county is going to look like in 20 years."

Panelists will include Brian Finegan, a Salinas attorney who is chair of the Refinement Group that has been lobbying the Board of Supervisors to make sure the new general plan provides economic and housing opportunities to citizens of the county; Kurt Gollnick of the Monterey County Vintners and Growers Shippers Association; Nancy Isakson of the Independent Growers Association; Jay Brown, from the Cattlemen/Cattlemens' Association and Alfred Diaz-Infante, head of the local affordable housing agency, CHISPA.

Topics of discussion will include individual property rights, providing housing for the younger generation, protecting the rights of farmers to farm their land, traffic congestion and economic growth for local businesses.

The cost of the breakfast is $10. Reservations can be made by calling (831) 455-9990, or by email to carroll@scheidvineyards.com

Rosie's to make a comeback, but neighbors worry about wine

By CHRIS COUNTS

TO REHABILITATE Rosie's Cracker Barrel, its owners will need to rid the Carmel Valley landmark of mold and dry rot and fix a seriously leaky roof. But the biggest challenge facing project coordinator Janet Cole is not repairing the building's structural deficiencies, but getting the OK to offer wine tasting on its premises.

The Carmel Valley Land Use Advisory Committee voted 3-0 on April 4 to recommend denial of a request by the applicant to add a restroom to one of Rosie's two buildings, a former gas station that Cole said will be converted into a small grocery store. Janet Brennan described the project's application as "incomplete and inconsistent with its use permit."

just a small part of the project.

"I am totally antipiecemeal," explained Virginia Rugg. The idea of rehabilitating the dilapidated historic building drew mostly favorable comments from several neighbors who attended the hearing, but it was clear the project will encounter considerable public opposition over any plan to serve alcohol. Rosie's owners hope to convert the older and larger of their two structures into a wine tasting room and art gallery.

"I live in the neighborhood," said Glenn Robinson, president of the Carmel Valley Association. "The grocery store as described sounds wonderful. Much of the project sounds good. But what bothers me is the wine tasting element, which has a lot of neighborhood resistance. It is not appropriate to have a wine tasting operation right in the middle of a residential neighborhood."

There is irony in the opposition to serving alcohol at Rosie's: For decades, Rosie's was one of Carmel Valley's most popular watering holes. Beer, wine and even hard liquor were served in its small but lively bar. In fact, if it weren't for a case of overindulgence, Rosie's might never have existed.

Designed by Carmel's famed builder Hugh Comstock, the original building was constructed at 1 Esquiline Rd. in 1927 as a real estate office for the Robles Del Rio subdivision. C.G. Church bought the building in 1936 and converted it into a general store. In 1938, Church added the second building, which became a gas station.

According to Cole, three Carmel Valley residents — Earl Graft, C.J. Silvey and Robert Spencer — were sitting around and having a few drinks on the evening of August 7, 1939. Their ability to reason dulled by drink, the three men made Church an offer for the place. He accepted, and it wasn't until the next day that the three drinking buddies realized what they had done.

The three now-sober friends agreed that none had the time or energy to devote to the business. So they convinced a friend with failing eyesight, William Irwin Henry, that the grocery store business would suit him just fine. Henry, who played baseball in the local Abalone League, earned the nickname "Rosie" due to the fact his face would turn several shades of red when he ran around the bases. Henry agreed to buy the business from his three friends, and Rosie's Cracker Barrel was born.

"It was a one-of-a-kind place," explained Michael Hemp, Carmel Valley resident and historian. "It was THE place in town. You would get your crackers out of a barrel and the legumes came in sacks.

Local kids would try to take advantage of the half-blind Rosie.

"The kids would try to give him a dollar and say it was five dollars," Cole said. "He would feel it and say, 'This isn't a five, it's a one.' They would also sneak comic books out through a knothole in the building."

From 1941 to 1949, Rosie's also served as Carmel Valley's post office.

"The mail delivery guy hated to go up to Robles Del Rio," Cole explained. "He would drop mail off at the bar. The post office didn't have a problem with this, but the State of California did, so Rosie filed to become a post office."

On October 8, 1982, the bridge next to Rosie's that crosses the Carmel River was dedicated and named Rosie's Bridge. Rosie passed away a month later. In 1993, Rosie's Cracker Barrel was added to the registry of Monterey County Historical Landmarks.

Over the past two decades, Rosie's has fallen into a state of disrepair.

"The one thing I really want the community to know is that these buildings have about another year before they fall down," said Cole, who estimated the owners are willing to spend "hundreds of thousands of dollars to bring everything up to code."

If you value local money, excellent service: Mission Hills Mortgage Bankers has it!

Our customer referrals speak for us!

Celeinne Ysunza, Buyer, Salinas: "I have worked with Markus since 1989 and have nothing but great things to tell you about him. Markus has helped clients clean up their credit and transform their doubts into reality. When it comes to home ownership, he is a gifted financial advisor."

Tony Tersol, Buyer, Pacific Grove: "Markus & Mission Hills Mortgage helped refinance our home a few years ago. Their attention to detail and helpful guidance greatly facilitated the process. I have recommended them to friends & they too have found them to be very easy to work with."

Steven & Vickie Norman, Buyers, Seaside: "With Markus it's all about satisfying the customer. He really listened to our concerns & expectations and matched each of them with confidence and a willingness to achieve our goal. He worked miracles! Call him!"

Mark & Nancy Williams, Seaside: "Markus and his team were great! They're efficient, professional and, most importantly, willing to educate. A definite value-added consultant group."

Nore Centeno, Realtor, Watsonville: "I have referred all my clients to Mission Hills Mortgage. They provide a level of trust, compassion and sincerity unequalled in any other lender."

Ken & Irene Edward, Buyers, Carmel: "It was a great experience to come to Mission Hills Mortgage. Markus, and all of his valuable experience and dependability, will go to work for you!"

Just a few on our list. We can help you, too!

POLICE LOG

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers responded to a report of a woman lying in the roadway on 10th. Upon arrival, it was determined that the woman had too much to drink at dinner at a restaurant and had fallen as she attempted to walk home. She was not injured. Subject was left in the care of her husband who was called to the scene.

Carmel area: Male reported that someone had left a bicycle at the gas station where he works at Carmel Center.

Carmel Valley: A 63-year-old female reported that she received two suspicious e-mails from an unknown person.

Pebble Beach: A Spruance Road resident reported that on the night of Friday, March 25, his daughter's car had been egged while parked in the driveway of his family's residence.

Carmel Valley: A 60-year-old male called to request medical assistance for his son.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30

Carmel-by-the-Sea: MCAS requested assistance with two dogs running loose in traffic. A black Labrador and a German shepherd were located on Mesa Drive. Officers only able to capture the German shepherd, which was transported to the station and held for MCAS. The dog was later picked up by MCAS. No further action needed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A Palm Pilot was found on the ground on Ocean Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A female requested assistance in investigating the circumstances of her father's medical emergency that occurred 3/7/05.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on Fourth on private property. Vehicle was drivable.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A male went to the police station to report that he had just fired an employee from his business. The employee has caused verbal disturbances with him before. He said that their employer/employee relationship has been volatile at times and added that their confrontations have always been verbal and never physical. He told the employee that he could not tolerate the verbal assaults anymore, so he fired him. He said that he will change the locks to the business on 3/31/05. He requested a close patrol in the area of his Lincoln Street business in the event that the employee returns.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: An AC power adapter was found leaning against a pole on Del Mar.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A male went to the police station to report that an unknown subject had stolen a bicycle belonging to his friend. The bicycle was last seen this morning at 9 a.m. in the underground garage on San Carlos. He said he will have his friend contact the police department if a report is required.

Carmel Valley: A 51 year-old male resident on Cachagua Road reported receiving two sexually explicit phone calls. He knew the caller, who apparently was upset about not receiving full payment for a job he had done for him.

Carmel area: A 38-year-old female reported that her ex-husband, while living in Washington, D.C., ran up credit card charges on a card on which he listed her as co-owner of the account.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers responded to an alleged fight in progress on Camino Real. Upon arrival, scuffling parties separated. No charges were filed, but one of the parties, an adult female, was found to be severely intoxicated. Fire department was called to the scene. She was transported to CHOMP.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Units responded to a report of a domestic dispute on Mission Street. The caller advised a male and female pair were yelling loudly and throwing things. Officers arrived and contacted a husband and wife who were involved in an argument. Both parties denied any physical violence and stated that they were only yelling. The business belonged to the wife so the husband was asked to leave in order to stop the argument and keep the peace. The husband agreed and left the area in his vehicle. The wife was advised to seek the aid of a counselor.

Perfect Pairing

The beauty of Monterra with the finest luxury homes

A perfect pairing is the coming together of two elements, each distinct and special on its own, to enrich the characteristics of both for the ultimate experience. Such is Paseo Vista.

Nestled within the sun-drenched hills of Monterra is the extra-ordinary neighborhood of Paseo Vista, consisting of 15 luxurious homes, each designed to harmonize with the beauty of its natural surroundings and spectacular views. Verandas and patios gracefully integrate interior living areas with the landscape, creating a feeling of openness without compromising privacy.

Just beyond your expansive property awaits a community of friends—people of like mind, like value, like interest and like you, will enjoy a private Tehama Golf Club Social Fitness Membership.

The centerpiece of your membership will be the Tehama Fitness Center—a relaxing, private, multi-level facility where you can join your neighbors for a friendly tennis match, invigorating workout or fine dining at the exclusive Callahan's Grill, available upon completion in 2006.

Come experience this exceptional limited opportunity. Visit Paseo Vista and view our newest home, Encanta, a remarkable 6,907 square foot 4-bedroom, 4.5-bath Tuscan-style home set in a sloping hillside on a secluded cul-de-sac. Available at $3.8 million.
