100 musicians arrive as Bach Fest rehearsals begin

By LAITH AGHA and PAUL MILLER

WITH OPENING night of this year's Carmel Bach Festival less than two weeks away, a bigger-than-usual contingent of musicians — including seven from other countries — arrived in Carmel Tuesday, ready to begin rehearsals at Sunset Center the very next day.

"Because we're performing Beethoven's 9th, we had to hire extra string players, extra horn players, a contra-bassoon, a flute player, and percussionist," said Elizabeth Pasquinelli, the Bach Fest's development director. "It's been a real challenge to find housing for everybody."

Unlike other years after the terrorist attacks of 9-11, none of the Bach Fest musicians coming from overseas, including conductor Bruno Weil, had any problems getting visas to enter

Employees' ad criticized by city manager

■ 'If they're angry, we're angry, too'

By MARY BROWNFIELD

POLICE OFFICERS and other city employees might have violated the rules of their contract talks by jointly running an ad in The Carmel Pine Cone June 17, city administrator Rich Guillen said at Tuesday's city council meeting. But the workers who paid for the ad, which alleged unequal benefits and poor use of tax dollars, hope it will raise public support.

"Basically, we're just hoping the city will take a look and try to be equitable with all employees in every association," Margi Perotti told The Pine Cone. She represents the general employees, who are affiliated with the Laborers' International Union of North America. "That's what we're aiming for. That was our intent."

The ad, entitled "City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Does Not Respect Its Employees," alleged unequal health benefits among city employees and said the mayor and city council get the best benefits of all.

"Basically, the overall feeling is dissatisfaction and lack of appreciation from the council toward the employees and managers," said building official Tim Meroney, who represents the managers, before the meeting. "That's because we have inequitable benefits."

He said negotiations continue to prove fruitless because offers are placed on the table and then revoked.

"There are a lot of frustrated, tired people who are upset with the way we're treated," Meroney said. "If it makes the council angry at us because we're venting, well, we're angry, too."

Their ad also focused on overtime costs for police and questioned spending on the Sunset Center roof-leak investigation, remodeling the public works building's foyer and then closing it, and using tax dollars to fight the transient occupancy tax ballot initiative.

Guillen said before the meeting that the ad contained factual errors, including the statement that he pays nothing for healthcare coverage.

"I pay $70 [per month] for health benefits. All the at-will

Woman sues city because a homeless man's dog bit her

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE CITY of Monterey is responsible for a dog attack that occurred on its property, a lawsuit claims.

The lawsuit, filed June 22 in Monterey County Superior Court, alleges the city should be held liable for injuries suffered by Rebecca Hinckley when a dog bit her nose Jan. 4. Hinckley's attorney, James F. Spiering, contends the city created a "dangerous condition" by "negligently" allowing an unleashed dog into a parking lot at Foam and Irving streets in Monterey.

"My client was invited by a city employee to go into the parking lot," Spiering explained. "When she got there, she was introduced to a parking lot attendant. At the same time, a homeless person with a Rottweiler mix came on to the premises."

Spiering claims dogs were "almost invited" into the city-owned parking lot.

"The attendant kept dog treats in her office, which she routinely fed to dogs that came on the property," he said. "When my client went to pet the dog, it leapt up and almost bit her nose off."

According to Spiering, the extent of Hinckley's injuries were so severe she "needed reconstructive surgery." He declined to provide an estimate of her medical expenses.

Spiering said the 24-year-old Hinckley, a resident of Marina, is seeking an unspecified

Tour groups confined to downtown

By MARY BROWNFIELD

NO MATTER how many people support Gale Wrausmann's Carmel Walks, such organized tours must stay within the commercial district, the Carmel City Council reiterated Tuesday when it unanimously voted for final approval of an ordinance to regulate them.

The new law, which takes effect next month, also restricts the guided tours to 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sundays. The maximum group size will be 20 plus the guide. The council made the law a priority so the city could license commercial walking tours and minimize their impacts on neighborhoods.

Supporters of Wrausmann, who has led Carmel Walks through the city for a decade, argued for amending the proposed restrictions or lifting them entirely.

"I don't see any reason to limit what can be viewed by a walking tour," commented innkeeper and former city councilman Marshall Hydorn. "What's the purpose of that? If there are things interesting to see that are historic, why are we trying to limit someone who's doing a good job and bringing money to our coffers?"

Pacific Repertory Theatre director Stephen Moorer asked the council to amend the map — which covers the commercial district but ends at the residential areas — to include the Golden Bough, affording it the same privilege as Sunset

Council loosens rules for live music in restaurants and bars

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER DECIDING to relax rules the planning commission spent hours tightening, the Carmel City Council postponed a vote on a proposed law to allow live music in downtown restaurants.

The new ordinance would allow businesses that sell and serve alcohol to feature live music if they:

- obtain a use permit from the planning commission;
- develop a noise management plan, and
- prepare an acoustical evaluation of the noise levels.

Over the course of three public hearings, the planning commission narrowed the hours and days live music could be played, lowered noise limits, sought annual renewal of the permits, called for an end to the ordinance after three years, invoked a three-strikes rule for violators and requested "noise impact mitigation fees" to pay for enforcement.

Councilman Gerard Rose described the modifications as "another attempt to Carmelize this ordinance, to make it so burdensome or oppressive that no one would have the temerity to apply for a permit."

But councilman Mike Cunningham said he could support the planning commission's draft — except a requirement that sound levels inside a restaurant that has a home next door couldn't be any louder than normal conversation.

Also, a momentary increase in noise level outside a restaurant when its door is opened should not constitute a violation, he said.

Councilmembers agreed to strike those requirements, calling for sound levels to be measured inside a neighboring home or other "noise sensitive use," rather than inside the restaurant.

The majority of the council also favored allowing music noon to 10 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday, rather than 5 to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and noon to 10 p.m. weekends.

"I would stay with the hours as proposed," countered Cunningham. "The planning commission did a lot of work."

In addition to overturning the planning commission's tighter hours, the council struck the three-strikes rule, saying the planning commission already has the right to amend or revoke a permit that is violated. And council members eliminated the proposed impact fees, opting for the routine permit fees that applicants pay.

'Stagnant, quiet and uninteresting'

Their decisions followed remarks from restaurateurs, business people and residents who favored making Carmel dining establishments more competitive with Highlands Inn, Mission Ranch, Los Laureles Lodge, Plaza Linda, Baja Cantina, Bernardus Lodge and the various Pebble Beach resort venues that offer live music alongside drinks and dinners.

In stark contrast to the June 16 planning commission meeting, which was dominated by critics who said allowing live music would wreck the city's character and quiet charm, only proponents commented at this week's council session.

Sarah Berling said she looks forward to walking up town for dinner and a little live music with her husband.

"I asked about 25 or 30 residents, and all of them were excited about the idea," she added.

Banker Michael Adamson, chairman of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce's economic development committee, said, "We've had nothing but complaints about how Carmel is so boring in the evening, and that's why we came up with this."

Resident Lillian Hazdovac said, "I've lived here a long, long time — all of my life — and I feel in recent years the town is becoming stagnant, quiet and uninteresting in the evenings, so I urge you to pass this."

Maria Murray, chamber board president, lives above a restaurant and said she hears diners' voices — including some she recognizes — as well as clanging pots and pans.

"Noise is noise, and I for one urge you to pass this, because I would rather hear a beautiful piano than pans banging," she said, adding that she made the conscious choice to live above a restaurant.

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac, who lives and works downtown, said she appreciated the commission's work but described its

City will put historic status on homes' permanent records

By MARY BROWNFIELD

OWNERS OF 300 homes the City of Carmel considers historic have received letters from the city notifying them that the designation — which carries strict limitations on demolitions and remodels — will soon be recorded with the county and made a permanent part of their homes' titles.

"The state requires a city to record all historic resource determinations," principal planner Brian Roseth said. "It's essentially a disclosure requirement and alerts the owner and any potential owner."

Compiled by historian Kent Seavey and reviewed by Kathryn Gualtieri, the city's inventory of historic properties was included in the Carmel Local Coastal Program certified by the California Coastal Commission last fall.

"The coastal commission would not certify our plan until we had developed a list of properties that was surveyed and consistent with the state standards," Roseth said. The 300 homes on the list represent about 10 percent of the city's housing stock.

Last month, homeowners began receiving letters signed by Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud advising them their properties are officially considered historic resources.

"These are an essential cultural link with our past that current and future generations can learn from and enjoy," wrote McCloud, who said she takes pride in her own home's historic designation.

Although the letter indicates the city will begin the process of recording the documents with the county July 1, Roseth said the state-imposed deadline is weeks away. The 90-day clock began ticking when the official determinations were made May 25.

The notice included a Q&A brochure on preservation and a copy of the notice to be filed with the Monterey County Recorder.

"Carmel has a fascinating history, filled with interesting people, events and cultural achievements," McCloud's letter concludes.

"Our historic resources help each resident and visitor understand this vibrant past and better appreciate this wonderful place."

That was little consolation to some who shared their opinions with the city council Tuesday.

"We figure we probably lost about 20 percent of our market value by having this designation," said cottage owner John Wagner, who also sent a letter to the editor of The Pine Cone this week. "Three hundred homes in Carmel with this same designation seems like an awful lot."

Roseth admitted individual properties with a lot of build-out potential could lose value, but he said most people can develop a design plan for an addition that meets federal standards for historic buildings.

"If its only value is as a tear down and you are placed on this list, you've lost a bundle of money," commented councilman Gerard Rose.

After the meeting, Roseth said historic designation may negatively affect individual properties, but it increases surrounding property values.

"It's individual harm vs. general good," he said, adding that the phenomenon frequently occurs when zoning changes. "That's an old debate that goes back a long time."

Planner Sean Conroy said he has received calls from about 30 homeowners since the

Businesses put on notice for mysterious grease flows

By MARY BROWNFIELD

GREASE FOULED up a Mission Street storm drain last week, and rivers of the gray stuff running down the gutter have sparked ongoing complaints from nearby businesses, according to Carmel building official Tim Meroney, who told the owners of two restaurants and a building complex it's their responsibility to make sure it stops.

"You may not do it deliberately, but somehow it's happening," Meroney said he told the owners of Bouchée, Tommy's Wok and Redwood Court. "Here's the goo, and it leads back to your buildings, so somebody has a goo problem. Find it, resolve it and stop it."

Meroney warned them not to wash grease and its accompanying food particles into any drain that leads to the stormwater system, because when it cools, grease sticks inside and clogs the storm drains. Restaurants are required to catch their grease for disposal. They are not allowed to let it run down the inside drains, which connect to sewers, or outdoor drains, which connect to the stormwater system. He issued his warning last Thursday morning after spying the grease flowing down the street just before 8 a.m. He called Carmel firefighters, who flushed the drain system with bleach and 500 gallons of water. The Carmel Area Wastewater District and the county health department arrived and took reports. Meroney said allowing such runoff violates a host of local, state and federal laws.

Plumbers soon began cleaning out the drain and investigating the pipes and were still doing so July 7, according to Meroney. The work turned up some collapsed and clogged lines.

"They're sucking more grease out of there than you could ever imagine," he said from the scene Thursday morning. "Apparently it's been backing up in that storm drain forever."

No one has taken responsibility for washing grease down the storm drain, but Meroney said everyone is helping. He said he's seen no more grease flows since last week's meeting.

"Everyone was put on notice that if it occurs again, there will be more serious consequences," he said. "So far we have full cooperation from everybody to find the problem, solve the problem and stop the problem."

Cal-Am sets town hall meetings on desal

NEXT WEEK, California American Water Company will release a massive study of the environmental impacts of building a desal plant in Moss Landing, a pipeline from the desal plant to the Monterey Peninsula, and facilities for aquifer storage in Seaside.

In conjunction with the release of that document, the water company has scheduled two town hall meetings to gather public input on the proposed improvements to the local water supply, which has been critically short since a 1995 state order curtailed pumping from the Carmel River.

The first meeting will be July 18, 6 to 8 p.m., at the Monterey Elks Lodge, 150 Mar Vista Drive. Another will be held July 20, 6 to 8 p.m., at the Moss Landing Chamber of Commerce, 8071 Moss Landing Road.

Officials with the water company hope to have a pilot desal plant in operation this fall to test the methods that would be used to turn ocean water from the Moss Landing harbor into fresh water for Peninsula residents. The resulting brine would be discharged offshore through the outfall for the Moss Landing power plant.

Firehouse earthquake retrofit going to bid soon

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CARMEL Fire Station should be seismically retrofitted, including steel bracing in the walls, receive the bare minimum in updated restrooms and have its roof repaired, the city council learned Tuesday from city administrator Rich Guillen and project architect John Thodos. Plans to install an elevator and remodel the interior living space were rejected by the council last spring due to costs.

To save more money, and "show goodwill in the community," Thodos said firefighters could help with some of the necessary interior surface work, such as patching walls.

The plans could be prepared and put out to bid by fall, according to Thodos, who said it would take about four months to complete the work. No exterior changes are planned, though some construction would be done on the upstairs deck.

Mayor Sue McCloud worried about repairing the roof during the rainy season, but according to Thodos, logistics such as preventing water damage and minimizing delays would be the contractor's concern.

Beware hidden costs

The architect also warned the council about hidden costs in bids from contractors, whom he said are extremely busy and not hungry for work.

"It seems that goodwill and doing the job for the price quoted are things of the past," he said. "Contractors are extremely good at finding all the change orders in the world. It makes all our jobs more difficult."

Councilman Erik Bethel reiterated his opinion that the time and money spent on the broader remodel plans should not be wasted. "We need to figure out what we're going to do with the fire station — to make the decision for the long term," he said.

While construction crews are already on site, and firefighters are relocated to a temporary headquarters, "it makes sense to also do some tenant improvements," he argued.

But when the council learned in April the retrofit alone would cost an estimated $380,000, it abandoned those remodel plans.

The council set aside $400,000 in the 2005/2006 budget for the retrofit, with some of the cash coming from capital reserves.

WHY OWN YOUR HOME?

"The primary goal for first-time buyers is to build wealth through property acquisition—not simply to own a home. In other words, this is all about attitude... For most Americans, property ownership is their primary opportunity to create wealth!"

Those words come from David Lereah, chief economist of the National Association of Realtors®, who has been observing our nation's real estate market for many years. Here's how he translates this insight into action: "If you are a young prospective household, I urge you to purchase your first home as soon as you are financially able. Each year you postpone purchasing a house, the greater the lost opportunity."

Mr. Lereah knows very well the anxieties that can beset first-time buyers when they first contemplate the amount of money they will owe each month, once they have bought their home. He knows how difficult it can be to cobble together a meaningful down payment. But he also knows that, after a few years, when the home is worth a great deal more than it is today, those monthly payments will seem far more benign to the homeowners.

Indeed, he suggests that, as time passes, they should look into doing it all over again—perhaps buying a second home and renting it out. This, as he has seen in his own life and in the life of others, is one of the surest ways to wealth our national economy has to offer. LAFCO moves ahead with C.V. Fire reorganization effort

PROponents AND opponents of dividing the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District need to provide more information on how the newly separated districts would financially survive, the Local Agency Formation Commission of Monterey County decided June 27.

Members voted to direct staff to request "an informal meet and confer process" between representatives of the district, which consolidated in 2000, and Carmel Valley Village firefighters who are pushing for separation, according to LAFCO Executive Officer Kate McKenna.

Since late 2003, firefighters at the village station have been seeking separation from the fire district, citing mistreatment by their new bosses. Opponents say the consolidated district is more cost effective and efficient.

"It's clear that we do not have enough information right now to indicate that both of the proposed new fire districts are financially viable," McKenna told The Pine Cone last week.

According to state law, "the proposed reorganization cannot diminish the service, financial and administrative capabilities of the two new districts to provide fire protection in Carmel Valley," McKenna wrote in her staff report. "The law requires documentation, for example, on the ability of a newly formed district to provide fire protection services, including the sufficiency of revenues for these services following the proposed reorganization.

"The proponents have not yet demonstrated that the two new districts would be viable, sustainable entities," she wrote. "These legal requirements must be satisfactorily addressed before LAFCO can prepare terms and conditions for the reorganization proposal."

Request for reconsideration

She cited that lack of information as one of the reasons she recommended the commission deny the reorganization application in May, but members voted 4-3 instead to continue with the process.

CVFPD attorney Bill Ross has asked LAFCO to reconsider that vote, McKenna said. At the June 27 meeting, she recommended the commission set aside the reorganization application while that request is considered later this month.

"The premise is that there is additional information that may not have been presented to the commission, and the current consolidated district wants the commission to hear all the information," she said.

Commissioners are set to discuss that request July 25. "They need to first consider, is it a proper matter for reconsideration, and does the request have any merit? What are the facts?" McKenna explained.

In addition to preparing a staff report and making recommendations on that matter, McKenna will call for informal meetings of the two sides in the reorganization effort.

She will also conduct a municipal services review, which provides a baseline assessment of the districts' operations and services, and will draft the necessary environmental documents.

"By the end of September, the commission should have the information that it needs to take final action," she said.

'Don Quixote' presented with a Big Sur twist

INSPIRED BY his imagination, would-be knight Don Quixote saw benign windmills as fierce giants and a benevolent flock of sheep as a menacing army.

MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

LUCY DRUM, 8 months old, is a Carmel Valley yellow Lab who marched in the Monterey Fourth of July parade with Mom Stephanie and a contingent of Monterey Republican Women.

Politics aside, Lucy spent an hour-and-a-half before the parade running on Carmel Beach with Dad John to get her natural exuberance under control for the festivities.

"She's like a kangaroo on a string," Dad said of Lucy's boundless energy. At the beach Lucy also chases tennis balls into the ocean, retrieving them neatly, and plays with friends Curly, a bulldog, and Sierra, a yellow Lab.

Eating a pine cone while we interviewed her on the walking path above the beach, Lucy crunched away and between bites told us she has a pet dwarf rabbit at home named Cosmos, with whom she gets along famously. She also has a favorite stuffed toy, a pig that squeaks most beguilingly.

Although they're not living at home now, Lucy has a brother and a sister: Brother John is director of operations with the Los Angeles Angels, and Sis Ashley is a fourth-year university student majoring in architecture at Cal Poly. This fall she'll be traveling to Copenhagen, Denmark, for a year of advanced architectural studies.

In the recent past, Lucy devoured a mooring from an architectural model of a marina Ashley had painstakingly created for a school project. It didn't compare with the savory nature of pine cones, however, and so the rest of the model was left untouched. Only minor repairs had to be made.

American Water

Don't let a Good Thing go to waste

Be Water Wise

Despite heavy rainfall this spring, our area is still under state-imposed water use limits.

By following these easy water-saving tips, we can maintain water levels in the Carmel River that enhance habitat and protect threatened species.

- Landscape your yard with California-friendly plants that need little or no water.
- Don't Set it and Forget it! Check you sprinkler settings and timing devices regularly and adjust for wetter weather
- Water during the coolest part of the day to reduce evaporation.
- Soak Don't Spray! A good soaking every 3 to 4 days encourages growth.
- Use a broom instead of a hose to remove sidewalk debris.
- Use a bucket instead of a hose when washing your car.

For additional Water Wise information or to receive a complimentary low-flow hose nozzle or showerhead, email us at monterey@amwater.com or call (888) 237-1333.

Laguna morphs into motorcycle mecca for MotoGP

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOR THE first time in its 49 years, Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca is sold out. More than 140,000 will watch this weekend's Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix, featuring motorcycle racing unseen anywhere else in the country.

And for the first time since Kentuckian Nicky Hayden took the 2002 national championship, he will be at Laguna with his older brother, Tommy, and his younger brother, Roger. With Nicky racing for Honda in the MotoGP world championship, and his brothers riding for Kawasaki in the American Motorcyclist Association national championship, the grand prix's return to the United States after more than a decade makes for an unusual family reunion.

They are not alone. Former grand prix world champion Suzuki rider Kenny Roberts Jr., and his brother Kurtis, who rides a Honda for Erion Racing in the AMA Superbike series, are sons of three-time world champion Kenny Roberts.

While AMA and MotoGP racers will not directly compete against each other, the weekend promises superlative racing on Laguna's 2.238 miles. More than $2 million worth of recently completed safety improvements made the track grand-prix worthy.

Nicky Hayden's home court advantage could give him the edge on reigning world champion Valentino Rossi, an Italian Yamaha racer of staggering talent, as the two battle on motorcycles capable of exceeding 220 mph.

Friday's 10 a.m. practice session will mark Rossi's first time on the track, which he knows only from PlayStation and videos.

"I think the track is difficult because it goes up and down a lot, and I think it has some very difficult points — the first left after the straight and the Corkscrew," Rossi said in an April teleconference from Jerez, Spain. "For sure, in MotoGP it [the Corkscrew] will be interesting. There is a change of direction, then it is very much downhill, so it is very technical and difficult."

Rossi said motorcycle racing, already huge in Europe and other parts of the globe, is growing more popular in the states because of the number of American contenders: Hayden, Roberts Jr., Suzuki racer John Hopkins and Rossi's teammate, Colin Edwards, who rode here for Honda in the SBK World Superbike series.

In the same teleconference, Edwards described Laguna as the Hollywood of motorcycling.

"It's in California first off, and it has really good people, good food, good atmosphere — the place is unbelievable," he said. "Racing belongs here, especially Moto Grand Prix racing. It's been missed for long enough."

The weekend will also feature the Superstars of SuperKarts, with former world champion motorcycle racers Eddie Lawson and Kevin Schwantz, and former national champion Doug Chandler competing in 250 cc karts that run as fast as motorcycles. Former world champion Wayne Rainey — credited with orchestrating MotoGP's return to the states — was also set to be part of the field but announced this week he would have to sit it out due to injuries.

Off the track, displays and activities will keep fans entertained as well, including numerous vendors, a Friday night fan party, a Saturday evening performance by Smash Mouth and mind-blowing stunts by Ducati rider Chris Pfeiffer.

With record crowds expected and tickets sold out, organizers have ramped up security, according to general manager Gill Campbell. The California Highway Patrol, Del Rey Oaks P.D., the Monterey County Sheriff's Office and track security will control the masses and patrol for scofflaws.

"Certainly everything has beefed up," she said. "It's our normal, regular system, but more of it."

And to nail ticket counterfeiterers, each admission pass has a bar code that will be scanned, she said.

The action begins July 8 at 8 a.m. and will end Sunday afternoon.

"We're very honored that the Monterey Peninsula has been chosen to be the host for this event, and we want everyone to welcome them so they'll come back next year," said Campbell, who began talking to Rainey about the return of grand prix even before she took the general manager's job. "It's a four-year dream come true for me."

PROUDLY ANNOUNCE

THE NEW MILLENNIUM SCHOLAR 2005

Eddie Wu, a senior at Monterey High, has been awarded our $4,000 New Millennium Scholarship for the year 2005. He was chosen for his willingness to overcome significant hardships to achieve his educational goals, and his constant striving for personal and academic excellence.

Though Wu has faced many difficult challenges in his young life, he has maintained an excellent GPA while holding down part-time jobs and working as a volunteer at such community events as the Thanksgiving Dinner at the Monterey Fairgrounds. Eddie is planning to major in Business when he enters UC Irvine this fall. He says, "I hope to be able to make something of myself and find a way to give help to people who need help most."

Obscure Olympic sport is a big deal in Pebble Beach

By CHRIS COUNTS

DRESSAGE has been in the Olympics since 1912, but only a small percentage of sports fans even know what it is.

This weekend, several thousand dressage competitors, supporters and fans will meet at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center for the 55th Pebble Beach Dressage Show.

Dressage, which has its roots in classic Greek horsemanship, represents the highest level of training a rider and a horse can achieve. The word "dressage," which rhymes with "massage," comes from the French word

Lynn Roberts-Johnson and "Pink Panther" demonstrate the beauty of 'equine ballet,' as the graceful and precise sport of dressage is often described.

"dresser," which means "to train." Perhaps the best definition of dressage is simply "the art of riding."

Dressage has been compared to pairs figure skating, not only because two athletes — in this case the rider and the horse — work together as a team, but because, like skating, it is a sport defined by graceful movement and pinpoint precision. Dressage has often been called the "equine ballet."

"People watch it and say, 'Look at that horse dance,'" said Lynn Roberts-Johnson, event co-chair and longtime dressage competitor. "To help achieve these movements is a great thrill. It's so much fun to be able to teach a horse to do something new."

Roberts-Johnson said dressage isn't for just any horse — they need focus, patience, persistence, athleticism and perhaps most important, desire.

"They have to want to do it," added Roberts-Johnson, a

Japan's greatest saxophonist comes to downtown jazz venue

JAPANESE SAXOPHONIST Saturo Oda was honored in 1996 with the Nanri Fumio Award, named in honor of Japan's first jazz luminary and given annually to a Japanese artist who has made significant contributions to the art form. A household name in Japan, Oda's biography, "Sake to Roses," is a best seller in his native country. With a lyrical style and a sound that is often compared of Lester Young's, Oda's impressive resume includes recording and performance credits with Hank Jones, Mundell Lowe and Bill Berry. Accompanied by San Francisco Bay area drummer Vince Lateano, the pair will perform at the Jazz & Blues Company July 9 at 7:30 pm. Lateano, a regular performer at the Carmel venue, honed his chops playing with Woody Herman and Cal Tjader and is today a major part of the San Francisco jazz scene.

The following Saturday, local Carmel musician Storm Nilson returns home to the Monterey Peninsula to perform a special concert at the KRML venue accompanied by pianist Adam Benjamin. Nilson, he will be a graduate of Carmel High School and a veteran of numerous Monterey Bay Blues Festivals before he even learned to drive, graduated from the California Institute of the Arts in December of 2004 where he studied with jazz greats Charlie Haden and Larry Koonse. After a three-month trip to New York City, where he immersed himself in the East Coast jazz scene, the young guitarist returned to California intent on pursuing a bi-coastal music career with a base out of Los Angeles. He appears in concert next Saturday, July 16, with Benjamin, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in New York and the California Institute of the Arts in Los Angeles. A member of the Los Angeles based jazz/rock quintet Kneebody, Benjamin recently recorded with jazz bassist Darek Oles, sharing the album's piano work with Brad Mehldau. For reservations call (831) 624-6431.

Promoters Vince La Rocca and Tom Miller continue to serve up a frantic pace of bookings at Monterey Live on Alvarado Street and will offer a potpourri of music this week, beginning with young guitarist Corby Yates July 8. A 24-year-old guitar phenom, Yates was the winner of the National Jimi Hendrix Electric Guitar Competition in Seattle when he was 17. His power trio's all-original live shows explore the deep and varied roots of heavy rock 'n' roll and blues. Other groups performing at the new Monterey venue this week include Cow Bop, featuring guitarist Bruce Foreman, July 9; the Nina Storey Band July 14; high energy Latin groove band Universal Language July 15; and Caravanserai, a tribute to Santana, July 16.

Nina Storey, a powerful blues vocalist from Boulder, Colo., is touring in support of her new live CD, 24 Off the Board, which showcases her raw, intimate and explosive voice. With five albums to her credit, the young blues singer's music has crossed over to mainstream, Triple A, independent and college radio stations. For info. and reservations, call (831) 646-1415.

The annual Seaside Sunday Blues and Art in the Park series kicks off July 10 with a concert featuring blues harmonica ace Paul deLay. Known throughout the West Coast for its hard-hitting blues and R&B, The Paul deLay Band is composed of deLay, Louis Pain on Hammond organ, Peter Dammann on guitar and Peter Fincher on tenor sax. The Broadway Band opens the show at 1 pm. The concert takes place at city hall in Seaside at Canyon Del Rey and Hartcourt Avenue. Other performances scheduled for this summer include Mitch Wood & the Rocket 88's July 17; Shana Morrison (daughter of Van) July 24; John Lee Hooker Jr. July 31; Long John Hunter Aug. 7; and It's a Beautiful Day Aug. 14.

Benefit screening of 'Jaws' at State Theatre

Plenty of offerings for film, music buffs

A MOVIE that was considered horribly scary when it was released in 1975 — but which seems a bit campy now — will be screened at the newly renovated Golden State Theatre in downtown Monterey July 9.

"Jaws," directed by Steve Spielberg and starring Roy Scheider, Richard Dreyfuss and Bruce the Great White Shark, will be shown at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tickets will be $15.

Both shows will be preceded by a presentation about the Monterey Bay Aquarium's white shark project. Attendees will be eligible to win shark-related door prizes, and there will be additional information about white shark research as well as shark-themed activities in the lobby before and between the screenings.

Proceeds will support the aquarium's work to help protect the sharks in the wild, as well as the Monterey County Film Commission's economic development and film educational outreach programs.

Between shows, a reception with white shark researchers will be open to the first 200 ticket buyers who are also members of the aquarium or the Reel Friends of the Monterey County Film Commission.

Bach Fest musicians don't bite

The State Theatre will also host a series of screenings in conjunction with the Carmel Bach Festival, which gets under way July 16. In the foyer of the restored theater, festival musicians will perform as theatergoers buy popcorn and make their way inside.

Films in this series include, "Amadeus" (July 21), "Barry Lyndon" (July 28), and "Thirty-two Short Films About Glenn Gould," Aug. 4. All films start at 8 p.m.

According to Matt Molloy, manager of the Golden State, renovation of the theater is nearly complete. The two mini-theaters, which had been crammed into the balcony, have been removed; there are new seats on the main floor and new carpeting throughout; a larger screen has been installed, and the projectors have been upgraded with twice as much light.

Other upcoming offerings at the Golden State Theatre include the original, uncut Japanese version of the 1950s horror film, "Godzilla" (July 8), "Lawrence of Arabia" (July 11-16), "Singin' in the Rain" (July 22-27), "Strangers on a Train" (Aug. 1-3), a sing-along showing of "The Wizard of Oz" (Aug. 6) and "North by Northwest" (Aug. 20-26).

PacRep honored by SF critics

CARMEL'S PACIFIC Repertory Theatre company has received three major awards from the prestigious Bay Area Theatre Critics. The awards — for Best Musical; Best Principal-Male, Travis Poelle as Buddy; and Best Ensemble — were for PacRep's "Buddy: The Tribute Concert" which ran at the Post Street Theatre in San Francisco in 2004.

The current PacRep production at the Golden Bough, "My Way: A Musical Tribute to Frank Sinatra," plays through July 24. At the Circle Theatre, "Retreat From Moscow" plays through Aug. 7. For ticket info, call (831) 622-0700 or go to www.pacrep.org.

DVD to the rescue at movie fundraiser for Bailey

By LAITH AGHA

A WRONG-size movie print almost ruined a charity event at the Forest Theater Tuesday night.

With more than 200 people in the audience, organizers of a fundraiser for 8-year-old cancer survivor Bailey Pitruzello had to improvise after receiving a 35mm print of the movie they were scheduled to show. The Forest Theatre's equipment can only handle 16mm.

The event was a joint project of Films in the Forest and SandCastles-by-the-Sea toy store, which teamed up, along with local film producer Ericka Lockridge, to present "The Dust Factory," a children's film produced by Lockridge and written and directed by her son, Eric Small. The July 5 event was to raise money to relieve the ever-present financial burden for Bailey's family. His mother, Nicole Erickson, is a single mom of three who can't work because she must tend to her afflicted son.

However, Tuesday afternoon, when Forest Theater managing director Holly Stock opened the package from MGM Studios carrying the film reel for that night's presentation, panic shot through her.

With a big audience expected to show up that night at $20 a ticket, Stock needed to find a solution. She immediately called everyone she knew who might be able to help. The consensus was that a DVD of the film could be shown with a video projector. But most readily available projectors had only 1,000-1,500 lumens, while an outdoor projection requires at least 2,700 lumens.

Luckily, someone knew someone who had access to a 3,000-lumen projector.

Reed Kavner, co-stage manager of the Forest Theater, called Betsy Longoria, the other stage manager, knowing that her husband, Jason, had exactly what the theater needed. (Jason Longoria is head of the audiovisual department at CSUMB.)

Before the video projector showed up (and while its arrival was uncertain), Small took the stage to thank everyone for coming out and to speak briefly about the film. He then invited Bailey, Bailey's mother and his brother and sister on stage for a round of applause from the crowd.

Meanwhile, the minutes kept ticking away, and the crowd started to get restless - at least the children did. Stock just about had a heart attack trying to corral unattended children who were "running around backstage and hanging from the lights like monkeys at the zoo," she said.

Besides being a playground monitor, Stock made a trip to the Golden State Theatre in Monterey to pick up backup films just in case the video projector never showed up.

"I have 'Mighty Joe Young' in the trunk of my car," Stock said about four minutes before the projector arrived. "And that's what we're showing if it isn't here in five minutes."

The projector was delivered just in time, and with the help of audio expert Karl Lindstrom and projectionist Ben Bruce, "The Dust Factory" was on the big screen within a few minutes.

From that point on, it was smooth sailing, but only after draining every ounce of energy from Stock.

"This was the toughest night I've ever had with the Forest Theater," she said. "But we made it. We enjoyed having Bailey here, and it was very heartwarming to see the outpouring of generosity from the local people."

"It was a labor of love," Delana Schneider, owner of SandCastles, said of the night. "Bailey had a wonderful time; his family feels supported, and the film was extraordinary."

Schneider declined to say how much money was raised, but ticket sales alone brought in more than $4,000. A silent auction was also held.

As for the film, it was well received by the crowd, which it took on a journey of discovery with the main character, a boy who faces and conquers his fears of the unknown.

The theme correlated well with Bailey's struggles over the past two-and-a-half years.

"Bailey has this wonderful spirit," said Small. "In spite of what we don't know and things that scare us, the spirit of hope in human beings resonates, and you see this when you look into this kid's eyes. He's gone through so much physically and emotionally, then you see him just sitting there with his buddies, eating brownies and enjoying himself."

Center. He said the historic theater's lobby, with a collection of playbills and posters, and restrooms are open daily.

"We can play a part in marketing the city's history and culture," he said. "We ask you to think about putting us back on the map."

Sunset Center Executive Director Jack Globenfelt and Carmel Chamber of Commerce Executive Director/CEO Monta Potter echoed Moorer's request, and Potter said the Forest Theater should be added, too.

Wrausmann and attorney Andrew Swartz outlined her requests in two letters to the council. She asked that the group size, which had been set at 20 including the guide, be changed to 20 plus one. She also pleaded with council members to let her take groups outside the business district.

"One of the joys of going into the residential neighborhoods is a lot of our wonderful historic buildings are there," she told the council. "Carmel has a worldwide reputation as a unique and desirable destination."

She wondered if confining tours to downtown "gives an accurate portrayal of the soul of this village," and held up a thick stack of letters in support of her tours.

Swartz said Wrausmann has received no complaints and argued the law is unnecessary. He alleged it would be unconstitutional and would violate the city's general plan, its Local Coastal Program and the California Coastal Act.

"Do we want police counting the number of people walking with Gale? To stop her as she walks toward La Playa and say, 'Is your tour over?'" her attorney asked the council.

Their pleas resonated only with councilman Gerard Rose.

"Carmel doesn't just include commercial buildings — it includes a lot of very interesting personal residences — and to automatically wipe them off the map or disallow walking tours through neighborhoods is doing them and us a disservice," he said.

"I don't really understand how we constantly say Carmel-by-the-Sea is a resident-serving community, and yet we would allow a commercial endeavor in our residential neighborhoods," councilwoman Paula Hazdovac countered. "That's what I have a problem with."

Councilman Mike Cunningham also said he wanted to keep tours out of neighborhoods but complimented Wrausmann on

L'Auberge named among top 10 restaurants worldwide

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

THE ROBB Report, a publication that covers the international luxury market, singled out David and Kathleen Fink's L'Auberge Carmel restaurant in its June 2005 issue — the 17th annual "Best of the Best" featuring editors' selections from the world's finest in eight categories. L'Auberge Carmel is one of 10 restaurants worldwide to be honored in the report.

Since opening its doors in August 2004 as an extension to the stylishly renovated 1920s inn at Monte Verde and Seventh, the restaurant has received acclaim for its innovative set menus described by one food editor as "petite full-flavored dishes sure to seduce the most jaded gastronome."

Each course is paired with fine wines from around the world.

Fink told The Pine Cone he is "proud and thrilled to receive recognition" in the august company of such restaurants as Per Se in New York and Le Meurice in Paris.

Executive Chef Walter Manzke, described by Fink as "an incredibly passionate chef," also opened the Finks' Bouchée restaurant on Mission near Ocean in 2002 and has received kudos from the haute cuisine press — none more lavish than those for his single tasting menu at L'Auberge Carmel, which spans, at one sitting, at least three hours of unique dining.

Bon Appetit magazine, in its January 2005 "Best of the Year" issue, said Manzke's skills take "dining in this central California town to a whole new level."

BACH

the United States, according to Jesse Read, who is in his first year as managing director. And that's just one of a million things he's had to worry about.

"Not until the concerts are completely over will I get a good night's sleep, but I'm very confident," Read said. "All the hard work is worth it when we look out at the audience and see all those wonderfully happy faces."

Along with the newcomers arriving this week, many of those unpacking valuable instruments were old-timers.

Cellist Doug McNames, for example, is playing in his 14th Bach Fest. And he goes to a lot of extra trouble to make sure his 1708 Norman cello — a walnut and maple piece — arrives in one piece from his home in Wilmington, Del.

The instrument shares a large, double case with McNames' modern cello. It also shares space with McNames' family's clothing, packed in to fill any gaps that would otherwise allow the cellos to bounce around. He ships through Federal Express, which takes the cellos on a circuitous route through Chicago or Atlanta to get them to their final destination. It's been a smooth process every year, with one exception.

"The very first year, when I traveled with a single-cello trunk, it got shipped to Sacramento instead of San Jose, so it ended up being a day-and-a-half late to the festival," explained McNames. "I had to borrow a local cello."

His wife, Kimberly Reighley, first flutist with the Bach Fest orchestra, has no such logistical problems. She carries her instrument with her.

Cross-country driving

For another family of Bach Fest musicians, toting a careful of instruments from Beacon, N.Y., to Carmel is part of their experience.

Rachel Evans, violinist, and Richard Kolb, lute player, and their 13-year-old daughter, Sylvia, traverse the nation by piling into their Volvo station wagon, along with Evans' two violins and viola, and Kolb's four lutes.

The longest of the lutes, a therobo, travels in a 7-foot case, which "barely fits and only fits one way, so it goes in first," according to Kolb. "I've gotten pretty good at fitting everything in." They ship most of their clothing.

While they have never had any damage or theft problems in five years of hauling around valuable instruments, they do take security precautions, and they're particularly concerned about temperature control.

"We keep the instruments covered with blankets so that it isn't obvious what we have, and we try to get hotel rooms right next to where we park the car," explained Evans. "And we have to think about the instruments in terms of hot and cold. When we do our sightseeing, we have to park in the shade, which can be challenging when driving through Nevada."

New things on tap

Read's first year as managing director, after more than 20 years as bassoonist, is also a year of numerous innovations for the festival, now in its 68th year.

"Ticket sales are going very well for the Thursday night performances of the Brandenburg Concertos, which we moved back to 5:30 p.m.," Read said. "That leaves time to go to dinner afterward, and we've worked out special deals with some of the local restaurants."

Another option on Thursday night after the main concert: A group of Bach Fest musicians will be playing at the renovated Golden State Theater in downtown Monterey, providing the prelude to movies such as "Amadeus" and "Barry Lyndon."

Also new this year is the Bach Fest Youth Chorus, directed by John Koza.

According to ticket manager Karma Simons, the only sell-out so far is the Aug. 6 "Best of the Fest" concert, but other concerts are selling fast, in particular the Friday night performances of Beethoven's 9th.

To place ticket orders, call (831) 624-2046, go online to www.bachfestival.org, or visit the Bach Festival office at the corner of 10th and Mission.

employees [department heads] agreed to pay that increase, because we were asking the others to do the same," he said. He also defended spending $22,000 on a study to find the leaks in Sunset Center's roof and legally determine whether the contractor or the architect should be held liable. At the meeting, Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud commented on the charge that the council spent money to fight the TOT hike. The city spent money only to hold the April special election, she said, because it had to. Using tax dollars to campaign would have been illegal. Resident Linda Anderson said the charge referred to the city-issued newsletter that circulated before the election.

Rules broken

Calling their ad "quite disappointing," Guillen said the employees violated the terms of negotiation. "We do the ground rules in advance. One is that negotiations will remain confidential, and the other is we say we won't go to the press unless we reach an impasse or both parties agree to do so," he said. The general employees and managers have worked without contracts since last summer and have not declared an impasse. But the Police Officers Association, comprising all

CPD staff except the chief, arrived at that stage last November after a meeting with a state mediator failed to bear fruit. Police have had no contract since December 2003. "The problem is we have no leverage," CPD Sgt. John Nyunt, POA president, told The Pine Cone. The group would like the city to hire more police officers. "Maybe it's economically not viable, but we're spending a lot of money on overtime that could pay for another officer or two," he said. "And I think anybody would forego a pay increase for health benefits." Past labor talks involved police officers suggesting possible revenue sources, Nyunt said, but while Guillen seemed receptive, the city council did not. Residents lined up to speak at the July 5 council meeting. "Carmel residents and businesses want you to treat employees better than that," said Vinz Koller, who supported the failed hotel tax increase. "They should get what you get." "I urge you to find some way that we can have a harmonious situation in town," said building designer Neal Kruse. Anderson asked the council for a statement explaining the situation. "When employees take the risk of retaliation by their supervisors by going public, I know there's a big problem," she said. Melanie Billig decried low morale and said she was saddened by the ad. At the hearing, Guillen repeated his take that employees violated the ground rules for contract talks and took umbrage at Anderson's comment. "I'm not a retaliatory type of person at all," he said. Before the meeting, council members and the mayor declined to comment on the ad, deferring to Guillen. "It gets one's blood boiling, but I have to control myself and not talk about why my blood pressure went up when I read it," councilman Mike Cunningham told The Pine Cone.

amount of compensation for her injuries. "We are taking the position that the city allowed a dangerous condition, an unleashed dog, on its premises," he said. "The dangerous condition injured my client." Interim city attorney Deborah Mall said she does not believe the City of Monterey is responsible for the attack. For the city to be liable for damages, the plaintiff would need to prove the city had prior knowledge of the dog's violent behavior, Mall said, which she claims was not the case. "The dog was known by the parking attendants to be gentle," she said. "Hinckley will have a difficult time in court showing that we knew otherwise." Mall disagreed with Spiering's account of the incident. "Hinckley put her face into the dog's face," she said, adding that it was Hinckley who was feeding treats to the dog while she waited for her friend to get off work. "Evidently, one of the dog's teeth caught the side of her nose." According to Mall, the dog belongs to a homeless man named Raymond Alexander. After the incident, the city declared the dog to be "vicious." Monterey City Code 628 requires that it be muzzled and on a leash at all times. She declined to say what would happen to the dog if it is seen without a muzzle or leash within the city limits. Mall also maintains the dog was on a leash at the time of the alleged attack. She said because the dog was on a leash, it was not violating any city ordinance. Two parking lot attendants on duty did not witness saw the incident, leaving only Hinckley and Alexander as witnesses. On June 7, the Monterey City Council agreed to deny a claim by Hinckley, an action that led to the filing of the lawsuit.

STAGE KIDS

Initiative. Each week, kids ranging from 7 to 18 will retrace Don Quixote's misadventures and toss in a few new ones to keep things lively and interesting.

"Our goal is to create a system where the kids can have as much creative control as possible over the outcome of the play," explained director Chi Birmingham. "One of unique aspects of the program is that the script isn't created until the night of each show. Throughout the week, new roles are being created. Each performance will be different."

It seems only fitting that in a place like Big Sur, where non-conforming artistic souls have thrived since the time of Henry Miller, a bunch of kids performing a play would take very creative liberties.

"[The loose structure] keeps things very fresh," said the 22-year-old Birmingham, who grew up in Big Sur. "It keeps the ball in the kids' court. They are constantly creating."

While Stage Kids gives youngsters a chance to stretch their creative boundaries, it also presents them with an opportunity to grow in other ways.

"Even for people who feel very secure, theater puts them in situations where they have to improvise," said Birmingham, who graduated in the spring from the California College of the Arts with a B.A. in fine arts. "You see really amazing things happening to kids up on the stage. They discover a very important part of themselves up there."

Birmingham was in the third grade when his mother took him to Carmel's Forest Theater to see his first play, a production by a group of elementary school children. "I thought it was incredible," he recalled. "It was so much fun to watch. I was hooked."

Birmingham, who primarily studied painting in college, started taking theater classes in high school.

"It was like being a part of a sports team," he said. "I discovered an incredible sense of community. Theater helped me through some really challenging times in high school."

Fresh out of college, Birmingham looks forward to passing some of the lessons he has learned on the stage to the next generation.

"It's a really amazing group of kids," he said. "They're very playful and inventive. They come up with some really surprising ideas, and they bring a lot of energy."

If you miss the first performance of "Don Quixote," the show will return to the Grange Hall July 22 and 29. All shows start at 7 p.m. and admission is $5. For more information, call (831) 667-1530.

HISTORIC

letters were mailed. Some provided information about their historic homes, and some sought more information about the benefits, such as tax breaks, fee waivers and building code variances.

"We've had some who wanted to be on the list, and we had to explain why they weren't," Roseth added.

But others wanted to know how to get off the inventory. "They've already been reviewed at least twice, so we're pretty confident these do meet the California Register criteria," Roseth said. "But if somebody thinks we still got it wrong, then we work with them to get another opinion."

The LCP outlines the process by which someone can petition to have a home removed from the list. At the owner's expense, another historian would review the building and the property file, and then a hearing would be held before the historic resources board. Only "substantial evidence" could overturn the designation.

"I think it would be appropriate to know how many people disagree," with their homes being listed, councilman Mike Cunningham said.

Conroy said no one who received the mailing has appealed yet, though at Tuesday's council meeting, realtor Carla Ramsey said two of her clients intend to fight the inclusion of their San Carlos Street home.

Other fights are sure to surface as the inventory grows. "Just because we have a list doesn't mean the effort stops," Roseth said. "Properties continue to get older."

The newest homes on the list were built in the 1960s, Conroy said.

end result as "too restrictive."

"I agree: There's a lot of noise in the city, and I would rather listen to nice music than a lot of the noise I hear," she said. "When you move to a downtown area, you have to expect there to be noise, and this ordinance is not going to suit everyone's needs."

Rather than adopt the modified ordinance, city attorney Don Freeman suggested the council vote on it next month. Members agreed.

If they adopt it in August, it would return for a second reading and final adoption in September, and the new ordinance would take effect 30 days later.

one-time member of the Canadian Olympic team.

Curiously, dressage is one of the few Olympic sports where women consistently outscore their male counterparts. In fact, female riders have claimed the last four Olympic individual gold medals. It is also the fastest-growing segment of equestrian sports.

A 20-by-60-meter arena serves as the "playing field" of competitive dressage. Twelve lettered and strategically placed markers serve as reference points as each horse and its rider negotiate a series of sometimes difficult movements.

A humbling sport

Like baseball and golf, dressage is a humbling sport. Riders are judged against a scale that is impossible to attain. Final scores are awarded as percentages, and the best riders in the world typically record scores in the 70-80 percent range.

The Pebble Beach show qualifies as a three-star dressage event. When dressage riders and horses participate in the 2008 Olympics in Hong Kong, they will compete in a four-star event.

"We offer international riders the chance to improve their international ranking," said Roberts-Johnson, who now works as a dressage trainer.

At the Pebble Beach event, participants will compete in five divisions:

open, adult amateur, young riders (16-21), junior (14-18) and children (under 14).

Finding the event is easier than it may seem, especially to people who've never visited the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center. If you reach the Lodge at Pebble Beach, you are close.

"Follow the signs to the equestrian center," Roberts-Johnson said. "When you see the big white tent, you're there."

The public is invited to attend the equestrian show and there is no charge. There is, however, an $8.50 day use charge to enter Pebble Beach.

Finish the fence

CALIFORNIANS OF Mexican ancestry are a great asset to this state. In their millions, they make a inestimable contribution to our economy and our culture.

But does that mean every resident of Mexico who would like to move to California should be able to? Of course not. No matter how bad things are in Mexico, and how wonderful things are in California, there is simply no way to accommodate all the people who would like to make this state their home.

One of the people who should especially understand this is Peter Douglas, executive director of the coastal commission and one of the most ardent no-growth activists in history. Surely he knows the greatest threat to California's environment is its booming population. It takes a lot of houses, schools, shopping centers, hospitals, office buildings and myriad other types of development to take care of each new million residents.

Yet there was Douglas last Sunday, in one of this country's largest newspapers, decrying the Bush administration's plans to complete a border fence between Tijuana and San Ysidro. Not only did he announce his opposition to the fence, he mocked the idea that it is necessary to protect the nation's security, much less to curtail illegal immigration.

"The so-called terrorist threat is just a backdoor way of achieving what couldn't be done legally," Douglas was quoted by the New York Times. The fence is a "monument to the politics of fear," he said.

He is wrong. For many very important reasons, the border must be secured. Immigrants should be welcomed by the United States, as they always have been. But only if they obey the law.

Negotiating fairly

IT WOULD be a shame if collective bargaining between the city and its employees turned into a name-calling duel. Both sides deserve the town's thanks for being conscientious and doing their jobs very ably. But if they let themselves have artificial expectations about what labor negotiations are supposed to be about, it could lead to hard feelings.

So we'd like to remind them what their basic objectives should be:

The employees should try to get the best deal they can, and they should not be criticized for using any reasonable bargaining tactic to do so.

Meanwhile, the city manager should do his best to retain good employees while unflinchingly protecting the taxpayers' wallets.

In other words, the employees should ask for anything they think they can get. But they should not be surprised if sometimes they are told No.

Guillen responds to employees' advertisement

Dear Editor,
An ad titled "The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Does Not Respect its Employees" appeared in the June 17 edition of The Pine Cone. This ad was apparently sponsored by two of the city's four unions: the Police Officers' Association and the General Employees (Local Unit 270). Taking this discussion to the press violated our labor negotiation ground rules by making public issues that are currently under discussion.

Many points in the ad are completely erroneous. In order to abide by our labor negotiations ground rules, I can only comment on the following facts:

■ "The city council passed the 2005-2006 budget before negotiations were complete with the General Employees and the Police Officer Association."

Adopting a budget prior to completing negotiations is common practice by many cities. An adopted budget is routinely amended after a labor contract is approved by the city council.

■ "The city council is spending $28,000 to study the roof leak at Sunset Center."

The city retained $75,980.39 from the contractor's fee to cover any uncompleted or contested costs. Once leaks appeared, neither the architect nor the contractor could find the source of the problems. To help resolve the items, an independent third party expert was hired to provide an analysis. From the retained funds, council authorized $21,995 to hire the firm of McGinnis Chen Associates who have in fact found the source of the leaks.

■ "None of the remodel at Sunset Center had final inspection by the building official. Is the council holding Sunset Center to a different standard?"

Prior to occupancy or use of the renovated Sunset Theater, both the building official and the fire chief conducted inspections to insure that the structure met all building and fire code requirements. In addition, both the project architect and the project manager inspected the theater to insure that all work was in conformance with the job specifications. All inspections were made and approved as is done on every project in the city. The building official approved the use and occupancy of the building.

■ "Why did the city council vote to spend $80,000 to remodel the public works department, only to close it?"

The former public works director requested this project be undertaken due to both the condition of the reception area (the roof leaked and the area lacked proper heating) as well as improving the work environment for department employees.

■ "The city council also spent approximately $27,000 of your money to fight the TOT."

To date, the city hasn't received an invoice from the Monterey County Elections Department for the cost of the TOT Initiative special election (typical cost for a city wide election is $8,000). No other city funds were

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL

Ordinance No. 2005-03

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ADDING CHAPTER 5.36 TO CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA MUNICIPAL CODE TITLE 5 - BUSINESS TAXES, LICENSES AND REGULATIONS, FOR THE PURPOSE OF ESTABLISHING REGULATIONS FOR WALKING TOURS

5.36.050 Permit Submittals and Approvals.
5.36.060 Definitions.

5.36.020 Permit Required--Applicability.
Walking tours are prohibited except as provided in this ordinance. All operators of commercial walking tours shall obtain a gross business license authorizing the conduct of business within City limits. Existing businesses operating without a license shall obtain one within 60 days of the effective date of this ordinance or shall cease operations within City limits. The City Administrator or his/her designee is authorized to issue such licenses when the applicant meets the qualifications established in this Chapter and agrees to comply with all standards for walking tours adopted by the City.

5.36.030 Time, Place and Manner Restrictions.
A. All walking tours shall be conducted only during the following hours:
1. Monday through Saturday 9:00 a.m. to 5 p.m.
2. Sunday 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.
B. No voice amplification systems (portable public address systems, bull horns, etc.) shall be used for any walking tour.
C. Walking tour guides/docents/tour operators shall at all times control the walking tour group so as to minimize interference with pedestrian and vehicular travel along the City's sidewalks and streets, respectively. At each point of interest where a group stops, the group shall be positioned to maintain a clear path of travel through the area for any one not associated with the walking tour group.
Walking tour groups shall not:
1. Stop or stand off the sidewalk (in the street) when a sidewalk exists. In no case shall a group stop or stand in an intersection.
2. Obstruct any driveway, marked parking space, street or roadway.
3. Obstruct the entrance to any residence, commercial establishment or public building.
4. Enter upon any private residential property in any land use district unless the tour operator has obtained the prior written permission of the property owner(s).
5. Cross any street except at intersections and using designated cross walks when available.

Walking Tour operators shall, by verbal or written means, inform tour participants of the City's regulations on tour group behavior, items #1 through #5 above, at the commencement of each tour.

D. No retail sales shall be conducted as a part of any walking tour except as allowed within any fixed place of business licensed for such use.

E. Except as provided in section 5.36.040, the maximum size of any walking tour group shall be limited to twenty-one (21) persons, including the tour leader/docent.

F. Except as provided in section 5.36.040, walking tours shall be limited to routes located on or with in the boundary identified in Figure-1.

5.36.040 Exemptions.
Any nonprofit organization or commercial walking tour operator, when conducting special-event walking tours not more often than four times per calendar year, are exempt from Standards E and F of Section 5.36.030. All other standards of that section shall apply equally to all walking tours.

5.36.050 Permit Submittals and Approvals.
Upon the filing of a complete application and fee the City Administrator or the Administrator's designee shall take action to approve or deny the application and inform the applicant. Appeals of decisions on business licenses shall be as established elsewhere in this Title.

5.36.060 Definitions.
A. Walking Tour. A "walking tour" is any assembly of two or more persons led on foot, by a guide, docent or tour operator who represents or works for a business, organization or other entity, the purpose and/or activity of which, in whole or in part, is to provide walking tour services to individuals or groups, as a means of transmitting information associated with sites visited. Common topics for walking tours include people, places, ideas, architecture, natural history, environments, culture or events.
B. Commercial Walking Tour. A walking tour for which a fee or other remuneration is charged. This definition excludes tours organized by nonprofit (501-C3) organizations registered with the State and for which donations only are requested from tour participants.
Publication dates: July 8, 2005. (PC718)

WHEREAS, The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has a business district that serves local residents and visitors alike with a wide range of high-quality businesses in an attractive pedestrian, retail shopping environment; and

WHEREAS, Carmel's sidewalks, footpaths and inter-block walkways tend to be narrow and uneven making it especially easy for any large group of persons to create congestion along these pathways; and

WHEREAS, walking tours offer services to residents and visitors allowing them to become more familiar with the architecture, history and lore of Carmel; and

WHEREAS, walking tours, if poorly managed, can create adverse impacts on the City's commercial districts by impeding the flow of vehicles along streets or by impeding pedestrians traveling to and fro along City sidewalks, blocking patron views into shop window, and/or by creating a barrier to the free movement of patrons into and out of shops; and

WHEREAS, walking tours also have the potential to undermine long-standing principles of the City as expressed in the General Plan regarding the need to keep commercial activities centralized within the present boundary of the Commercial and R-4 Districts and protecting the peace, quiet and residential character of the Single-Family Residential (R-1) neighborhoods; and

WHEREAS, the City Council finds that the regulation of commercial walking tours on public rights-of-way promotes the health, safety, welfare, comfort and convenience of the public; and

WHEREAS, the City Council finds that regulation of commercial walking tours is consistent with existing public policy that subordinates business and commerce to the City's residential character and unique village atmosphere; and

WHEREAS, the City Council finds that the regulation of walking tours is a proper use of the City's police power to designate where specific activities may occur within an overall land use plan for the City and to set reasonable time, place and manner restrictions to address public policy concerns; and

WHEREAS, the City Council finds that enactment of reasonable walking tour regulations can accomplish City objectives without infringing on fundamental freedoms of speech or of assembly.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does hereby ordain as follows:

Section One. Adoption of Regulations.
Chapter 5.36 is hereby added to the Carmel Municipal Code as shown in Exhibit-A.

Section Two. Severability.
If any provision of this Ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the Ordinance, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end, provisions of this Ordinance are severable.

The City Council declares that it would have passed each section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase thereof irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, subdivisions, paragraphs, sentences, clauses or phrases be held unconstitutional, invalid or unenforceable. If any part of this ordinance, even as small as a word or phrase, is found to be unenforceable such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

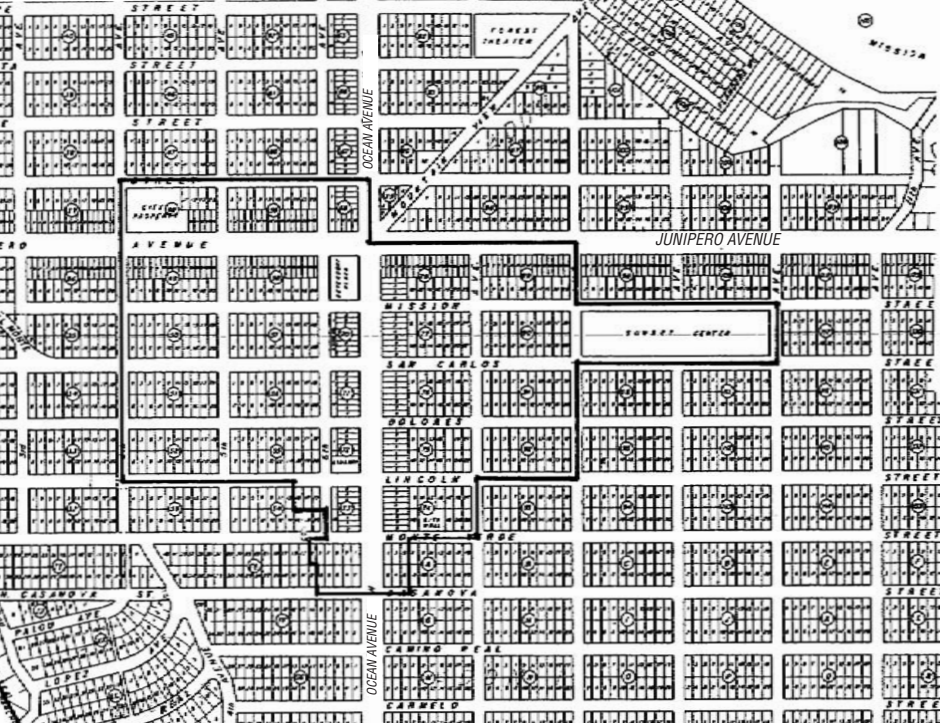

Section Three. Effective Date
This ordinance shall become effective 30 days after final adoption on second reading.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 5th day of July by the following roll call vote:
AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Unanimous
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None
ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None

spent on this election.

The city is committed to continuing "good faith" labor negotiation and always remaining respectful to City employees.

Rich Guillen,
City Administrator, Carmel-by-the-Sea

Why so many historic houses?

Dear Editor,

We received, in mid June along with approximately 300 other Carmel-by-the-Sea property owners, a letter from Mayor McCloud informing us that our small cottage has been designated as an historic resource, a designation which will be filed with the county recorder.

This determination was the result of a city-wide survey, with no one actually visiting our home and completely without any input from us. I feel this designation has reduced the market value of our property by at least 20 percent.

The supporting detail indicates our only recourse, if we don't agree with this finding, or the facts, is to hire our own "expert" (for $1,500) and appeal to the historic resources board. The timing of the notice to me is also suspect. The mayor's letter was dated June 8, the day after the June city council meeting, and mailed June 13.

The process with the county recorder was to commence July 1, just two weeks after receiving notice and five days before the scheduled July city council meeting. To me this schedule is intentionally designed to discourage inquiries and public comment. Is this legal? Are 300 property owners' rights and market values being trampled upon? Does the city really need 300 homes to show off its historic resources when probably most only marginally meet the criteria? Wouldn't about 50 with the most significant elements be enough?

The Northern California town from which we moved had a similar survey and proposed designation, but gave the property owners 30 days after notification to opt out if they wished, making it a voluntary program. I wonder why Carmel-by-the-Sea couldn't have adopted a similar program.

John Wagner, Carmel

'Anti-war groups hate the military'

Dear Editor,

In view of the increasing insurgency attacks in Iraq, it is essential that our troops receive support from the American public. The anti-war groups do not support our military — in fact, they hate it! These groups do everything they can to demoralize our troops, thus giving aid and comfort to the insurgents. This is not the time to back away from our troops, regardless how we feel about the war. American support for military personnel must not diminish.

Ted Lebedew, Monterey

Frenchman says 'non' to Carmel

Dear Editor,

My sojourn to Carmel is at an end, and I have a few observations.

First, the 22 "no parking" signs on Scenic and Del Mar are a visual assault on the senses. With no intersecting streets on Scenic between 8th and Santa Lucia, one sign at 8th and Scenic would be sufficient. As for Del Mar, ten signs are a visual blight and an insult to foreign visitors parking there. Second, trash on city streets mars the aesthetic beauty of Carmel's natural setting. Third, city streets abound with uneven surfaces, potholes, etc., making driving hazardous.

For my next extended visit to California, USA, I, with regret, will choose a more aesthetically-oriented community.

"Carmel Legends"

A curious character who keeps flitting in and out of Carmel history is MARY AUSTIN. Well, perhaps "flit" is not quite the right verb for her activities, because she is described as a "dumpy little woman" who walked the beaches and let her long brown hair dangle to her shoulders. Instinctively we don't like her much, but we admire her independence and her success in competing with the macho men fronted by George Sterling and Jack London. In a time (1900-1915) when women were supposed to be seen and not heard, she was a worthy successor to Eve, Cleopatra, Queen Victoria, Carrie Chapman Catt, Florence Nightingale and Carrie Nation. And possibly an inspiration to Gloria Steinem, Eleanor Roosevelt and Jane Fonda. She came to Carmel in 1905, already the author of a successful book, The Land of Little Rain. In Carmel, she finished her first novel, Isidro, polishing its phrases in a tree house behind her home, which she called a "wick-i-up." She battled Sterling and London on even terms, hit home runs in the Abalone league, and wrote 35 verses for "The Abalone Song." Late in 1907, after less than 2 intense years in Carmel, she became convinced that she was terminally ill and moved to Italy to die. That didn't come off. She recovered and drifted back to Carmel through England and New York, arriving in 1913. She was always a storm center and departed finally in 1924 to Santa Fe where she ended her days.

1903 cottage embodies Carmel's humble past

THE CARMEL Cottage Society is proud to share this pen and ink sketch of an early California cottage.

In this town of many historic cottages, few remaining examples are available to view and enjoy that reflect back to the first decade of Carmel's development. In fact, the earliest homes built in Devendorf's and Powers' "new" village, Carmel-by-the-Sea, were predated by this "Old Carmel" Cottage built for a Mr. J. W. Stoughin 1903!

The Carmel Cottage Society encourages cottage owners to avoid teardowns and renovate with integrity ... such as the owners of this cottage have done through these many years. All alterations and work were accomplished by fully respecting the character and the defining features of the original cottage.

In fact, the three alterations and clever craftsmanship through 102 years deserve a hardy "well done."

The current family includes Mel, Peggy and Margo the golden lab.

Those who live here and those that visit agree that the essence of this quaint village is in the image of their Cottage of the Month

Carmel cottage and the tradition which it evokes.

Drive by "Old Carmel," located on 11th Avenue two houses east of Monte Verde (mid block, north side of street) and, as you drive down 11th, let's all recognize the building's historical significance and give a 102-year-old smile — eh!?

This drawing and article are by Jack Prentice of the Carmel Cottage Society, Box V, Carmel, CA 93921 other tour operators to that same level of quality.

"And I don't think we want to set up rules to allow tour operators to go to any residential property they want," he said. "It seems a lot of people are impacted along the way, and we have to observe their interests too."

McCloud said she has fielded complaints from people in the neighborhoods where tours are led and said she voted against the ordinance last month because she feels the groups are too large and the tours allowed too frequently.

"There's a lot that's been given [in the ordinance] that I don't agree with, but I think we should have the tours," she said. "We value our history."

To accommodate walkers' excursions outside the business district, council members favored brochures of self-guided tours, such as that recently produced by the Carmel Heritage Society.

They unanimously adopted the ordinance, which also requires tour guides to control their groups "to minimize interference with pedestrians and vehicular travel." Participants are not allowed to block intersections, driveways or entrances to stores or homes, stand in the street or jaywalk. No amplification systems are permitted, and retail sales can not be conducted as part of the tour, except in downtown shops. Nonprofits will continue to be able to hold a limited number of special tours, such as those to historic homes and gardens. The new rules are set to take effect in August.
