Abalone poacher gets eight months in jail

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE MARINA man caught poaching abalone from the rocks off Carmel Point last month pleaded guilty July 15 and was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $5,000.

Because he was already on probation for poaching three years earlier, Monterey County Superior Court Judge José Angel Velasquez also sentenced Ty Van Lieu to pay an additional $11,000 fine or serve another 220 days. He remains in Monterey County Jail.

Ty Van Lieu

Lieu, age 46, had 25 of the small mollusks in a duffel bag when Carmel Police Officer Chris Johnson spied him peaking under rocks and seaweed June 9.

In court two weeks ago, Lieu admitted he was guilty of misdemeanor abalone poaching. At the time of his arrest, Lieu told Johnson he was taking the abalone to feed his family.

California Department of Fish and Game Lt. Paul Gaske said he was satisfied with the sentence, though the new fine was far lower than the minimum $15,000

Contract signed to build desal plant

By PAUL MILLER

THE TINY Pajaro/Sunny Mesa Community Services District, which serves just 400 customers in North Monterey County, this week came up with an emphatic response to criticism that it is too small to tackle a large desal project.

Wednesday night, the PSM board of directors approved a preliminary agreement with Poseidon Resources Corporation of Stamford, Conn., one of the nation's foremost desal experts, to build a large water purification plant on land owned by Nader Agha in Moss Landing.

"Poseidon will be responsible for conducting environmental studies, securing permits and working with our engineers to design, build and operate the plant," said PSM's attorney, Marc del Piero. "It will be a regional plant to address water needs in the Monterey Peninsula and North Monterey County."

"The district's board of directors will own the plant and will have the option to provide the financing for it, but if they decide not to, we will have that right and that responsibility," said Peter MacLaggan, a Poseidon vice president.

His company is backed by a Wall Street venture capital firm with $12 billion in assets, he said.

According to MacLaggan, a final contract to build the plant should be ready in less than six months, and it should take no more than two years to get permits, at which time construction will begin "if there are customers to buy the water, and we can deliver it to them at a price they are willing

The competition between Cal Am and Pajaro/Sunny Mesa to build a desal plant at Moss Landing heated up this week, when PSM signed a preliminary agreement with a desal expert to build a plant at the site of a former brick factory (upper right). to pay."

He said the plant could produce up to 25,000 acre-feet of water a year at a cost of $1,100 to $1,200 per acre-foot. (An acre-foot is about 325,000 gallons, or enough to supply three average homes for a year.) The price does not include delivering the water outside Moss Landing, del Piero said.

The Poseidon proposal is more than twice as big as a competing proposal from California American Water Co., which just last week released an study assessing the environmental impacts of an 11,730-acre-foot desal plant at the Duke Energy power generating station.

"Pajaro/Sunny Mesa's plan couldn't be more distinctive from ours, which is designed to eliminate overpumping from the Carmel River and accommodate minimal, planned

Reducing Hatton Canyon fire risk

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN A steep canyon that was turned from highway right of way into a state park three years ago, trail crews have been working for nearly two months clearing overgrown brush.

The Hatton Canyon project is a collaboration between the California Department of Parks and Recreation and the state department of forestry, explained Pam Armas, state parks superintendent for the Monterey sector. Work crews are augmented by inmates from the Soledad prison.

The steep, wooded canyon, which parallels Highway 1 and is located between Carpenter Street and Carmel Valley Road, presents a serious fire hazard for adjacent homeowners. Its densely covered slopes are home to a wide variety of fire-prone native plants, including vast swatches of coyote brush and poison oak. The canyon is also overrun with thick patches of invasive, prolific and combustible non-natives like poison hemlock and genista. In many cases, plants are 8 to 10 feet high.

To compound the clearing efforts, thickets of young alders and cottonwoods shade the canyon bottom.

Present fire clearance efforts are focused along a 1.5-mile fire road that winds its way

Record tax rolls to trickle down

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AN UNPRECEDENTED increase in Monterey County real estate values will net Carmel-by-the-Sea a big boost in property tax revenues this fiscal year. Monterey County Assessor Stephen Vagnini reported this week that assessed values of 145,000 properties in the county grew 11.1 percent over last year to $43.1 billion, while Carmel-by-the-Sea's property values increased 12 percent — twice the growth anticipated in the city's current budget.

"We keep reading both nationwide and somewhat statewide that this boom isn't going to continue. That's why we were initially conservative," Carmel City Administrator Rich Guillen said July 28. In fact, city staff initially anticipated an increase of 3 percent in property taxes but upped that figure to 6 percent as budget talks progressed and the financial picture developed in May.

That projected 6 percent increase allowed the city council to add items to the budget, including recruiting and hiring an economic development coordinator and appraising the city's art collection.

And as these even higher-than-anticipated tax dollars make their way to city coffers this year, the city council will decide how to spend them.

Guillen reports financial figures to the city council each quarter. He said the additional property taxes would likely arrive in January and June.

"The council would make the decision whether to put the money in reserves or somewhere else," he said, predicting members would vote to use the funds to offset the $263,813 they planned to take from capital reserves, mostly to fix the firehouse.

"That's typically what we have done," Guillen said. "Two years ago, we were anticipating borrowing $1 million from reserves, and we actually only borrowed about $700,000."

Fire, school district incumbents step up for reelection

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MONTEREY COUNTY voters will decide who should fill seats on dozens of district boards in November, including 13 districts in the Peninsula and Carmel Valley.

Since the filing period opened July 18, numerous incumbents but no newcomers have declared their plans to run. Candidates have until Aug. 12 to get on the ballot.

The Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, with five of its nine board seats up for election, promises to be a closely watched race as a volunteer-firefighter-led effort to split the district is considered by the Local Agency Formation Commission of Monterey County.

So far, incumbents Ron Builta and Anne McGowan have decided to run and filed their papers with the county. Pete Garneau reported this week he plans to as well.

Director Gene Erner told The Pine Cone he had hoped to retire after 20 years on the board but is now uncertain whether he will seek another term, given the reorganization campaign. "I'm a strong proponent of consolidation — always have been," he said. The fire districts in Carmel Valley and mid-valley combined in late 2000 and also took in the Santa Lucia Preserve.

Tim Heaston's term also ends this year, but he has not announced whether he will run again.

Two directors will be elected to the Cypress Fire Protection District, which covers parts of unincorporated Carmel, Pebble Beach and Monterey. Incumbent Donel Geisen filed his candidacy papers Monday, and David Bates said he plans to file.

The three-person Cachagua Fire Protection District Board will see seats held by Bob Eaton and Rod Lambert on the ballot. Cachagua Fire covers 110 square miles of rural Carmel Valley with the help of 29 active volunteers and a $186,000 annual budget. Eaton, a founding board member and volunteer firefighter, said he will definitely be on the ballot, while Lambert has yet to say.

"We have an amazing fire department," Eaton said. "It's full of people, and there's not one I wouldn't trust with anything."

Water, waste and otherwise

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board members Judi Lehman and Alvin Edwards have filed their candidacy papers, with no opposition so far.

Lehman and Edwards voted last week for a ballot initiative in the same November election to study a public takeover of California American Water Company's local facilities. Water company officials have vowed to fight any takeover effort.

Carmel residents Bob Kohn and Ken White (a former mayor of Carmel) announced they want to keep their seats on the Carmel Area Wastewater District board. White was appointed to his seat in November 2001, and the two men filed their papers with the county elections office Monday.

With a sewage treatment plant near the Carmel River mouth, CAWD processes much of the Peninsula's wastewater and pipes most of it to Pebble Beach for use on golf courses and open space. An elaborate plan to greatly boost that system's capacity and effectiveness is in the works.

Carmel, P.G. schools

Dan Hightower and Howard Given's four-year terms come to an end this year, and Hightower has already declared his desire to retain his seat on the Carmel Unified School District board of education. He filed his documents July 18. Given told The Pine Cone he also wants to serve another term.

The five-member board decided in June to put a $21.5 million bond to voters in November, hoping parents and other residents will support the district's efforts to upgrade its elementary, middle and high school campuses and other properties.

Three members of the five-person Pacific Grove Unified School District board are also up for reelection, and two — Jessie Bray and Beth Shammass — have already filed. Mark Cameron's term will also end this year.

Down the Big Sur coast, three seats will open on the Pacific Unified School District board, and so far only incumbent Mark Talbrook has said he will run again. Kathleen Woods Novoa and Kimberly Seefeldt, who was appointed in February 2004, may also file for reelection.

Finally, Peninsula incumbents on the Monterey County Board of Education and the Monterey Peninsula College board plan to campaign for reelection, including Carmel resident Harvey Kuffner for the county board and Pebble Beach resident Jim Tunney and Carmel Valley resident Robert Infelise for the MPC board.

Parks and services

Carmel Valley voters will be asked to elect three long-term and one short-term board members to the C.V. Recreation and Park District. Horace "Randy" Randazzo and Sherrie May filed their papers with the county Friday. Dave Lyon's term also expires this year, though he has not said whether he will run again.

Randazzo said the person elected to the short-term slot will replace Dorothy McEwen, who died in February. Her term was set to end in 2007, and the park district is installing Hayward Norton in her place. Randazzo said Norton should run in November and, if elected, will serve out the remainder of McEwen's term.

Two long-term and one short-term directors of the Pebble Beach Community Services District — which provides fire and emergency services, wastewater and garbage collection, and reclaimed water distribution in Del Monte Forest — will be elected by residents in November. Long-term members Jeffrey Froke, appointed in March, and Nancy Mc Cullough have terms expiring this year. Richard Verbanec occupies the short-term seat. No one has yet submitted papers to run in this race.

Neither has anyone entered the Santa Lucia Community Services District race, though Thomas Gray and Robert Ditmore, who was appointed in April 2004, could choose to run again.

According to Monterey County Elections, candidates have until 5 p.m. Aug. 12 to execute their declarations of candidacy, which they must do in person at 1370B S. Main St. in Salinas. Any candidate who remains unopposed after the filing period closes will not be listed on the ballot and will be elected by default. Voters must be registered by Oct. 24 in order to participate in the Nov. 8 election, which will also include statewide ballot measures called for in a special election by Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Bronze plaques to identify historic homes

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL'S HISTORIC buildings may soon be adorned with brass plaques telling of their pasts.

A subcommittee of the city's historic resources board was created last week to figure out how to implement a program called for in the city code:

"Historic resources listed on the Carmel Register shall be provided with a brass plaque suitable for mounting on or near the resource. The plaque shall include the name of the resource, the date of construction, the city seal and other information appropriate for the resource as determined by the board. In developing this program, the board shall establish criteria for uniform design, content and location."

"Do you want the building's historic name, the date, the owner's name or the original architect's name?" planner Sean Conroy asked after board chair Julie Wendt raised the topic of forming a subcommittee. "There are a few ways you can go."

Wendt recommended that two members of the committee solicit designs, ideas and prices for producing the plaques to be placed at the request of the owners of the city's historic homes. The homeowners won't have to pay for the plaques.

Some board members wondered whether Carmel's program should be similar to Pacific Grove's, in which painted wood signs are engraved with the name of the original owner and the year of construction. Conroy said volunteers with the Heritage Society of Pacific Grove make the signs that hang on that city's notable homes and residences.

Preservation activist Enid Sales commented, "I never did think wood was particularly appropriate here," though she did not say why.

Carmel's code calls for brass, Conroy reminded the board.

"The plaques should be simple, elegant, bronze or brass, with the historic name and the date," said Kay Holz, earlier referred to by Wendt as the board's "resident artist."

She said the plaques should avoid anything that could be construed as "cuteness."

"The most important thing to find out is pricing," Conroy said. "There is no budget for this." He suggested the city could receive a grant of state tax money.

"Funding options are another thing the subcommittee can look into," he said.

Wendt and Holz agreed to serve on the plaque subcommittee and report back to the full board with their findings.

Unlike Pacific Grove, where simple wooden signs (above) are placed on significant homes, Carmel's historic buildings are likely to get brass plaques with more details.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Neighbor cries arson when BBQ corn sparks fence fire

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log compiled by Mary Brownfield.

FRIDAY, JULY 15

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a fire alarm activation on the north side of Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores. Firefighters discovered construction workers on scene at 0652 hours, but no alarm sounding. The manager of the project stated the alarm sounded briefly (one or two seconds) and then stopped. A search of the premises showed a fine residual haze, possibly due to stone cutting the afternoon before. There was no fire problem and the haze was dissipating, most likely due to ventilation from the open doors.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Parents of a young girl brought her into the fire station stating she was having a seizure. Started her on blow-by oxygen and assisted the ambulance crew on their arrival. Patient, accompanied by her mother, was transported to Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine responded to a medical emergency at Ocean and Lincoln on reported person fallen at the intersection. Fire engine arrived on scene and found an older man in the restroom of a business at the intersection. Patient stated he felt lightheaded and kind of sat down in the street. Firefighters assisted ambulance crew with patient care. Patient refused transport and signed a release.

CHOMP

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical aid call at Monte Verde and Fifth on report of a person down on the ground. Firefighters assisted ambulance crew with medical care and spinal immobilization. Contained and neutralized biohazardous waste.

Carmel area: A male resident reported his 28-year-old daughter's ex-boyfriend, who is 29, came by his Pancho Way house looking for her. He was concerned because of past domestic violence the subject had done against the daughter. He requested a report.

Carmel area: A 41-year-old female North Carmel Hills resident reported she tried buying a house off eBay and sent $2,000 to a male suspect for the deposit. After receiving the contract, she discovered it was fraudulent and requested a report for eBay's investigation.

Carmel Valley: An 81-year-old male Carmel Valley Road resident reported being harassed by his neighbor for the past five years. He wanted the incident documented.

Carmel Valley: A 78-year-old female Laurel Drive resident wanted documentation for suspicious circumstances at her residence.

Carmel Valley: Subject reported a female, age 49, was acting strangely and requested a welfare check. The Country Club Road resident did not appear to be a danger to herself or others. Case closed.

Big Sur: A 21-year-old male reported unknown suspect(s) stole his wallet out of his car on 07-05 while he was visiting Andrew Molera State Park.

SATURDAY, JULY 16

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Units responded to a Santa Fe residence and contacted the dog's caretaker. He stated the owner was on vacation, and he would keep the dog inside to prevent her from barking.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Monte Verde Street resident reported a raccoon and her two babies were trying to break into her house via the roof. Arrived and noted one of the adolescent raccoons on the fence and the mother and other adolescent on the roof. They then climbed onto the top of the chimney and into a void area next to the metal flue. She was advised that since the raccoons were not causing an immediate threat, she would need to contact a private wildlife-trapping company. She was provided a list of local trappers. Animal control arrived, assessed the situation and provided information.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject requested assistance with testing a bottle of syrup that he suspected was possibly poisoned. He believed his children were trying to poison him since he doesn't have long to live. He bought a bottle of syrup from a grocery store about two weeks ago, and when he opened it today, the cardboard safety plug on the bottle was loose. He was advised that without a credible threat or other signs of poisoning, CPD would not be able to test it. He was advised that if he was worried, he should just throw the bottle away and buy a new bottle. He agreed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a damaged post at the Outdoor Forest Theater. The post was used to stop vehicle traffic into the theater area. It appears the post was broken either by a vehicle or by somebody kicking or pushing it. Information forwarded to public works to try to have the post repaired. No suspect information.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female stated she went to a friend's house for a yard sale and stayed approximately 20 minutes. When she came back to her vehicle, she noticed some property missing from the vehicle. She stated it was really nothing of value and decided not to file a report.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Multiple leather and fur jackets were taken from a business on Junipero.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female Lobos Street resident reported her landlord entered her residence without permission, even after being told not to enter when the resident was not home. The landlord told the resident that she was the landlord, and she could go into the residence whenever she wanted. When the resident returned from being out of town, she discovered the landlord had let herself in and allowed a subject to do some minor repairs. She wanted the information documented in case items turn up missing. Attempts to contact the landlord were met with negative results. Information relayed to the resident regarding her rights as a tenant.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Citizen found a small dog at the intersection of San Carlos and Eighth and brought it to the station. The owner was eventually contacted, and the dog was released to a friend. The dog owner was warned for allowing the dog loose in the business area.

Sheriff's motor squadron to catch town's traffic violators

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THEY CARRY guns, ride motorcycles, wear uniforms and write traffic tickets, but members of the Monterey County Sheriff's Motor Squadron work for free. The reserve officers will be in Carmel a few times a month patrolling hot spots in search of violators, according to Carmel Police Chief George Rawson.

Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana had four of the officers help him monitor two problematic intersections — San Antonio at Fourth, and Santa Lucia between Dolores and Carmelo — earlier this year as a test. He pronounced the experiment a success, though the drivers they nailed for running stop signs might not have described it as such.

"The end result was within a two-and-a-half-hour period, we wrote 19 citations between all of us," Rana said. "I would maybe write four or five on my own, so it worked out pretty well."

Being on two wheels rather than four gives the volunteer cops a distinct advantage when parked and watching for scofflaws.

"They are more effective working the narrow streets and tight intersections we have in Carmel," Rawson said.

Squadron members volunteer for sheriff's department events and undertake traffic enforcement if requested, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Capt. Chuck Monarque.

"Carmel has called for the motor squadron for enforcement action, and we'll do it," Monarque said. "Same goes for Pebble Beach and other areas."

The squadron comprises more than 10 retired and active peace officers, probation officers and civilians, including "people who work at a local Ford dealership," he said. "They're from across the board."

Volunteers are sworn officers, meaning they have undergone the required training to carry firearms and enforce the law, and they are subjected to extensive background checks before joining the squadron.

They pay for their motorcycles, equipment and upkeep, often buying the stripped-down machines from other law enforcement agencies and then equipping them to sheriff's department specifications, including insignia, flashing lights, radar and radio.

It's not an inexpensive endeavor, and the group raises funds by working at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca. The non-profit Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula, which runs the track, donates money to the charities whose members volunteer their time during the major events.

Officers will write more tickets, plan DUI check

DRIVERS WITH lead feet or who tend to California Roll through stop signs should keep an eye out for black-and-whites while driving through Carmel-by-the-Sea in August. According to Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana, officers will be particularly watchful for speeders in the areas of Dolores Street from Fourth Avenue to Vista, as well as on Carpenter Street between Second and Fifth. Cops will also be on the lookout for stop-sign runners at San Carlos and 13th, and at Junipero and Eighth.

The Monterey area California Highway Patrol announced Tuesday that officers will establish a DUI checkpoint somewhere "in the unincorporated area of Monterey County" Friday night. Stops will be conducted from 9 p.m. July 29 to 2 a.m. the next day. CHP officers specially trained to identify drug- and/or alcohol-impaired drivers will be on site. Drunken driving remains the single greatest cause of traffic fatalities, according to the CHP.

Carmel Art Association offers summer shows

FROM AUG. 4 through Sept. 6, the Carmel Art Association will present several new shows.

The first will feature recent paintings by watercolorists Alicia Meheen, Wilda Northrop, Margaret Roberts and Edward Norton Ward. Ward's works will also include oil and acrylic paintings. Three of the artists will be shown in the Beardsley Room, with Margaret Roberts' smaller watercolors exhibited in the Center Gallery.

The August Gallery Showcase in the Segal Room will feature Eleen Auvil's bronze sculptures and monotype prints. Heidi Hybl will join her with new oil paintings featuring abstract landscapes of the central coast.

An opening reception for the shows will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Aug. 6. The Carmel Art Association is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is located on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth. For more information call (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmel-art.org.

"That money goes back into equipment," Monarque said. "Uniform pants cost $200; boots are $400 and the radio is probably a couple thousand dollars."

Horses and airplanes, too

The motor squadron was started in 1941 by Larry Ketzal. During the war, its members patrolled the Monterey County coast to keep an eye out for invaders, according to Monarque. Afterward, the squadron continued to help the sheriff's department and now answers the call from other communities when needed.

"They will assist us as they are available to target certain hot spots where people in the community and/or officers have identified there are hazardous traffic violations occurring," Rawson said.

Rana is eager to put them to work writing citations or letting drivers off with warnings when appropriate. He said they will help with the department's efforts to educate drivers about common traffic violations.

"I'd like to give a positive plug to Sheriff Mike Kanalakis and his crew for allowing them to be over here," he said.

Kanalakis' agency also has several other volunteer groups, including the search and rescue team, the mounted unit that patrols and undertakes searches on horseback, the chaplains corps and the advisory council, which helps acquire equipment and training not covered by the budget.

The Sheriff's Emergency Assistance Team consists of 15 volunteers who staff outposts, control traffic and provide logistical help during rescues, evacuations and other major emergencies.

Ten pilots fly for the aerosquad reserves, donating their time and aircraft to take members of the department to training schools and conduct surveillance, according to Monarque.

C.V. incorporation probably won't need costly EIR

By CHRIS COUNTS

A PRELIMINARY study has determined the incorporation of Carmel Valley will have little or no impact on the environment, according to Kate McKenna, executive officer of the Local Agency Formation Commission.

The announcement is good news for proponents of creating a Town of Carmel Valley who would otherwise face the prospect of spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on an EIR before they could ask voters to approve the new city.

"This is a big milestone in the incorporation process," McKenna said.

For Carmel Valley Association president and incorporation proponent Glenn Robinson, the determination was not a surprise.

"It's the proper finding and it's consistent with what is happening all over California," he said. "It's a good decision and it should save the citizens money."

Robinson said he looks forward to seeing the incorporation proposal on the ballot.

"I would hope that people who are in opposition to incorporation will let the people decide," he said. "Let's not have any further delays."

In January, LAFCO commissioners required that incorporation proponents pay for an initial environmental study. When they balked at a $25,000 bid for the study, McKenna searched for a more affordable consultant, finally settling on Pacific

Municipal Consultants, a statewide firm with an office in Monterey. McKenna said PMC agreed to conduct a "bare minimum" study for $8,000. She added that revisions to the draft study, which will be released in early August, could drive the price higher.

"I'm monitoring the study closely," she said. "We're trying to keep costs down."

Once the draft of the preliminary study is released, the public will have a 30-day window to review the document. McKenna said commissioners could make a final environmental determination as early as their next meeting in late September.

Nature programs urge kids to unplug and step outside

By CHRIS COUNTS

IT'S NOT easy for nature to compete with the thrills and frills of the high tech age. But that isn't stopping the Ventana Wilderness Society from trying.

A local non-profit organization focusing on habitat restoration and environmental education, the VWS offers a series of week long natural science discovery camps for children 8-12.

Alena Porte, VWS education coordinator, concedes it can be a challenge convincing kids to put down their play stations and take a look at the natural world.

"These kids are used to something always moving in front of them," Porte said. "Our aim is to get them to stop, look around, listen and sit quietly in nature. Unfortunately, this is a unique experience for many kids. They don't go outside and play anymore."

VWS science camp programs are designed to take children as far from their computer screens as possible. Thankfully, Monterey County's diverse natural landscape presents VWS staff with a wide range of outdoor adventures to offer kids.

"We'll visit a riparian habitat at Andrew Molera State Park," explained Porte. "We'll go for a hike among the redwoods in Soberanes Canyon. At Elkhorn Slough, we'll take the kids kayaking in the morning and hiking in the afternoon so they can see the habitat from two different angles. They get a lot of exercise. We keep them busy."

Because the VWS operates an ornithology lab at Molera State Park, children have an opportunity to view researchers at work.

"The kids will listen to condor restoration team members talk about the challenges they face and what the VWS is doing to help the birds," Porte said. "They'll go out with researchers to the mist nets where birds are caught. They'll watch researchers disentangle the birds and weigh them. They'll get to see bird-banding up close."

The week long programs also feature an overnight camping trip.

"We'll take them camping to the Glen Devin Ranch (in Palo Colorado Canyon), which is owned by the Big Sur Land Trust and not used by the public," Porte said.

Ultimately, the program is designed to offer kids an opportunity to develop an appreciation for the natural world.

"A lot of the focus is on wilderness awareness," Porte said. "We try to get the kids to be curious about the environment."

From June through

August, the VWS offers five week long camps with themes like "Hooray for Habitats" and "Outrageous Ocean Odyssey." Space is limited to 25 children each week and fills up quickly, Porte said, so it's a good idea to make reservations as far ahead as possible. The cost is $210 for VWS members and $255 for non-members. The price includes dinner and breakfast on the overnight trip, and snacks each day.

When the summer ends, the VWS offers after school programs for kids, grades 5-8. Based on availability, children can sign up for outings on Mondays and Tuesdays.

"We bring the kids back to the same place each week," Porte explained. "We're trying to make them aware of seasonal changes and familiar with the plants, animals and patterns of a place."

The cost for the after school program is $100 for a semester. For more information about the natural science discovery camps or after school programs, call (831) 455-9514 or visit: www.ventanaws.org.

Rosie's survives hit and run, but can it survive the permit process?

By CHRIS COUNTS

HISTORIC ROSIE'S Cracker Barrel, a Carmel Valley landmark, sustained extensive damage July 23 when a driver ploughed into the nearly 80-year-old board and batten structure.

California Highway Patrol officer Richard Richards said his agency is recommending misdemeanor hit-and-run and unsafe turning charges be filed against Carmel Valley resident Jason Augustitus, who fled the scene of the accident that occurred shortly before 3 a.m. Richards added that there is no evidence alcohol was involved in the incident.

Before the mishap, a plan to renovate Rosie's — and convert the older and larger of its two structures into a wine-tasting room and art gallery — was mired in the planning process. Neighbors also expressed concerns about the proposed sale of alcohol on its premises.

In a curious twist, Rosie's owners now have to apply for another permit simply to secure the building and fix the damage resulting from last weekend's accident, explained Lory Sweiss, an accountant who works for Rosie's new owners, a partnership known as the Robles Del Rio LLC. The partnership, which also owns the nearby Robles Del Rio Lodge, finalized the purchase of Rosie's just a day before the incident.

"We have to get a permit just to safeguard the building," said Sweiss, a longtime Carmel Valley resident. "We didn't want things vandalized, so we boarded it up. What we did was necessary. It was just common sense."

For now, the renovation project is on hold. Sweiss said the cost of repairs that will need to be made is still unknown.

"The project will go on," Sweiss said. "But it will take time."

Designed by Carmel's famed builder Hugh Comstock, the original building was constructed at 1 Esquiline Road in 1927 as a real estate office for the Robles Del Rio subdivision.

Rosie's was named after William Irwin "Rosie" Henry, who purchased the building in 1939.

In addition to functioning as Carmel Valley's grocery store, bar and social hub, Rosie's served as the valley's post office from 1941 to 1949.

"It was a one-of-a-kind place," explained Michael Hemp, Carmel Valley resident and historian. "It was THE place in town."

On Oct. 8, 1982, the bridge that crosses the Carmel River next to Rosie's was dedicated and named Rosie's Bridge. Rosie passed away just a month later. In 1993, Rosie's Cracker Barrel was added to the registry of Monterey County Historical Landmarks.

TAXES

Vagnini cautioned against counting on the entire 12 percent increase to flow back to Carmel, given the state's propensity for siphoning off property tax dollars.

"The state has figured out ways of taking more and more money from the cities and counties and fire districts," he said. "They're not getting as big of a chunk of property taxes as they used to, but this will make a positive difference."

Vagnini said record sales between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31 of residential and commercial properties throughout the county, as well as new construction and remodels, contributed most to the unprecedented $4.3 billion increase in assessed valuation. New developments, mostly in Seaside, Salinas, Greenfield and Soledad, resulted in the creation of 931 new residential parcels. The updated tax figure also included a 1 percent increase in assessed values of unchanged properties, as allowed by Proposition 13.

The City of Seaside accounted for the greatest growth — a 28.1 percent increase over last year, or $368,819,337 — for a total of $1,679,427,969 in net value. The net value includes the $7,000-per-household homeowner's exemption reimbursed to the county by the state, but not other exemptions, such as those for hospitals and churches, that are not reimbursed.

Greenfield followed with a 17.7 percent increase, or $58,413,176; Soledad showed a 16.1 percent rise — $84,084,557 — and Salinas' was 12.9 percent, or $1,006,405,928. Carmel came in fifth. On the Peninsula, Monterey's assessed valuation increased 8.2 percent, by $277,514,872, and Pacific Grove's rose 10 percent, or $185,184,991.

Had Guillen and CPA Paul Wood projected a 12 percent increase in property taxes, the Carmel city administrator said, "We would have probably gotten some raised eyebrows."

Even bumping the number from 3 to 6 percent was cause for some debate, he said.

"Every year, we felt like we were going out on a limb projecting property taxes and felt it couldn't go on at this rate," Guillen said. "So this is surprising and good news."

CANYON

through the southern section of the canyon.

For nearly 50 years, the canyon was the focal point of an often contentious battle over the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway. The potential destruction of wetlands, the discovery of a rare plant (Hickman's onion), fierce local opposition and dwindling highway funds ultimately doomed the project.

State parks acquired the 130-acre property in 2002, paying the California Department of Transportation $962,000 for the land — money that came from a $2.1 billion park bond act authored by former Assemblyman Fred Keeley. In January 2006, the land will be transferred to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District.

called for in the state law.

Gaske also reiterated his gratitude to Johnson for catching the suspect and said several people called his agency's tip line after news of Lieu's arrest and his mug shot were published. "They were very helpful providing more information to assist with the case," he said. "It was awesome."

Help from the public and other police agencies is crucial, given fish and game's short staffing in a county where high living costs have kept vacancies unfilled. "We're no different than any other police department right now," he said. "We're going through some lean times."

He particularly asked for assistance in catching abalone poachers and salmon snaggers, who fish off the Monterey wharf and illegally catch salmon by yanking a line with a hook that snags the fish in the body. The law states a fish must voluntarily take a hook in its mouth in order to be caught, according to Gaske. "They get the line out in front of the fish and get the hook in front of its mouth and then jerk it back so the hook will set in its face," he said. "But come on — that's not fishing."

With salmon season open through the end of September, Gaske said it's more difficult to pursue cases against snaggers. But soon after the season closes, he will set out to catch them in the act and hopes others will keep an eye out for salmon snaggers and poachers cutting black abalone off the rocks around Carmel Point. He urged anyone with information to call (831) 649-2801 and press 5 to report a violation.

McKenna said another step in the incorporation process, a study of how the new city will provide services to its residents, will be released and available for public review in late August. Negotiations with Monterey County over how much money the new city would have to pay the county to incorporate are also continuing.

So when can Carmel Valley residents expect to see an incorporation proposal on the ballot?

"Sometime in 2006, if it gets that far," said McKenna.

Bay Sox travel to Kansas to play in semi-pro World Series

By LAITH AGHA

THE MONTEREY Bay Sox baseball club is headed to Wichita, Kan., to play in the National Baseball Congress World Series. The first-year club will be one of 42 teams from across the nation competing in the double-elimination tournament, which begins July 31 and runs through Aug. 14.

Although their first opponent has yet to be determined, the Bay Sox will play their first game Aug. 2. The players hope they won't be worn out by the 25-hour drive, which wouldn't be so bad if their regular season schedule didn't run through Sunday — two days before their first game in the Sunflower State.

If they had any different opponent for the season finale, the Sox would consider forfeiting the game to have more travel time. But since they will face California Collegiate League and cross-county rival the Salinas Valley Packers, they have to play. The Packers will also play in the NBCWS.

Consisting mostly of graduates of local high schools who are now playing collegiately around the country, the Sox have had a successful summer, as they compiled a 22-16-1 record through Wednesday and have assured a winning record in the inaugural season.

Among the prominent contributors are a pair of Carmel High grads, Kyle Kretchmer (class of '05) and Daniel Bifano (class of '04). As one of two players on the team who was in high school this past year, Kretchmer is proving he can play at the next level, demonstrating the same batting skills that earned him all-state honors in high school. He will be playing for UNLV next year.

Bifano is somewhat of a late-bloomer. He only pitched one inning in high school didn't fare too well pitching for Monterey Peninsula College. However, since taking the mound for the Bay Sox and facing a higher level of competition, "Bif" has excelled, registering as the winning pitcher in three games.

A couple of RLS grads have also shined as part of the Bay Sox pitching staff. Jack Britton, a Carmel Valley native who pitches for Middlebury College, has emerged as one of the staff's top starting pitchers, and Deke Dormer, who plays for Santa Clara University, has been a pleasant surprise since joining the team mid-season.

While the Bay Sox don't exactly know what to expect in Wichita, they will surely be drinking lots of water and wearing sunscreen, as temperatures on the artificial-turf field routinely reach 120 degrees. The format of the tournament will provide some relief from the blistering sun, however. Because of the number of teams competing, games will be played around the clock, meaning the Sox could have a game at 3 a.m., making for a unique playing experience.

Monterey split the six-game season series with Santa Barbara, which bodes well for the Sox since the Foresters have finished in the top four in the NBCWS each of the last three years.

The art, science and business of Monterey County wines

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

THIRTY-TWO years ago, a small group of local grape growers and wine producers created the Monterey Winegrowers Council, (later renamed Monterey County Vintners and Growers Association) to help establish Monterey County as a premier California wine grape-growing region.

Three decades later, MCVGA represents more than 75 vintners and growers in Monterey County, including a prestigious list of those who work to support our region's leadership in the art, science and business of wine.

On Aug. 13, the efforts of the group will be on full display as the MCVGA hosts the 13th Annual Winemakers' Celebration from noon to 4 p.m. at the Custom House Plaza in downtown Monterey.

The all-day festivities include an all-star lineup of more than 45 Monterey County wineries pouring new releases and special world-class wines, including: Bargetto Winery, Baywood Cellars, Bernardus Winery, Blackstone Winery, Boyer Wines, Carmel Road Winery, Carmichael Vintners, Chateau Christina, Chateau Julien Wine Estate, De Tierra Vineyards, Escafeld, Estancia Vineyard, Galante Vineyards, Hahn Estates/Smith & Hook Winery, Hames Valley Vineyards, Heller Estate, J. Buon Giorno cafe/bakery morphs into breakfast, lunch and dinner restaurant

STORY & PHOTOS By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

A CARMELITE wandered into Buon Giorno Bakery & Cafe eight months ago, enticed by the savory aromas of pot roast. He has been snacking and dining there on the patio ever since.

His name is Muffin and he's a cat who adopted Maria and Ron Murray, proprietors of Buon Giorno. Muffin is one sly puss.

The coffeehouse and bakery, on Junipero near Sixth, Carmel-by-the-Sea, now open from 6 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily, has blossomed into a breakfast and lunch restaurant that also serves very special dinners on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. Known as The Supper Club, this dining innovation translates into savory scraps for Muffin.

Maria, who is chef for the single-entrée dinners, said the interior of Buon Giorno will accommodate 20 diners; the atmosphere is so intimate it is not unusual to find the occupants of one table conversing with those at another table or even several tables. "Laughter and conversation happen at dinner," Maria said.

The enclosed back patio will seat 20 and the front patio another 10, but Carmel-by-the-Sea's summer fog generally precludes outdoor dining.

The Supper Club recipes are all from Maria's maternal grandmother, who was a Colloruso and who filled Maria's childhood home with the unforgettable fragrances of Italian sauces. Originally from Pennsylvania, Maria is a long time California resident.

Acting as sous chef is Jose Ayala of Argentina, who also prepares breakfast and luncheon dishes at Buon Giorno. Dan Higgins is the dinner sommelier. The wine list is currently being refurbished by Master Sommelier Catherine Fallis who is combining local wines with unusual out-of-area labels which will be available à la carte with Supper Club menus.

While it is Ron Murray who has a degree in restaurant and hotel management, with a minor in pastry, Chef Maria has a degree in business, but her great love is cooking. Both studied at Johnson and Wells in Providence, R.I., where they first met. They now combine their fields of expertise at Buon Giorno.

Menus for the August/September Supper Club are now being printed, but the plate of the evening for Friday, July 29, is cream of mushroom soup followed by Dungeness crab-encrusted halibut on an orange-ginger sauce, and summer squash pomodoro. The menu for Saturday is soup and an entrée of glazed pork chops with hard cider sauce, whipped scalion potatoes and seasonal vegetables. Sunday's dinner is soup and steak au poivre in a red wine sauce, whipped sweet potatoes and green beans.

Greeting patrons in the front patio of Buon Giorno is Stanley, the roller skating zebra in full tux.

day,” Chef Maria said. While their parents have espressos or lattes with baked goods, the dogs can have a free treat provided by Buon Giorno and the Diggidy Dog shop and slake their thirst from specially made Buon Giorno water bowls. They can even order off the menu. One dog always specifies crisp bacon — hold the fat.

Adding to this animal scene is Stanley, the roller-skating zebra mannequin who serves as a maitre d’ in front of the cafe, holding a welcoming “Open” sign. Stanley is as tall as a human standing on his hind legs. He wears a full tuxedo “which is dry cleaned twice a year,” according to Maria, who obviously appreciates the whimsical touch Stanley lends to her establishment, which is leased from property (and Stanley) owner, Carmel real estate wizard Judie Profeta.

What strikes most visitors immediately is the abundance of flowers and vines growing on garden walls, in planters and in a centerpiece fountain in the back court. Inside, large potted bamboo palms embellish the dining area, which has a yellow floor, white walls and framed black and white photographic prints.

Very Visual

Maria Murray is a very visual person: She will tell you the atmosphere created by attractive surroundings is the “unspoken sales person” in any retail establishment. And who should know better than Maria? She was a senior executive with Saks Fifth Avenue, formerly of Carmel Plaza, where she was a buyer of fine jewelry and couture. She was also a buyer for Williams Sonoma and Macy’s. “I left a secure job at Saks when Ron convinced me to take over Buon Giorno eight months after it opened, and live my passion. I love what I do,” she said.

She also makes time to fulfill her duties as president of the board of directors for the Carmel Chamber of Commerce and to be a caring mother to their 11-year-old aspiring veterinarian daughter, Francesca.

Audiences leap to their feet at Bach Fest concerts

By NANA FARIDANY

TWO CONCERTS at opposite ends of Bach Festival's repertoire this summer again illustrate how far the fest has come: The Friday and Wednesday night performances of Beethoven's Ninth and Monteverdi's Vespers of 1610. Neither could have been performed as they were this week any earlier in the festival's development. And in the case of the Beethoven, the new theater was a vital factor.

During an early rehearsal for the Beethoven symphony, I crept onto the stage and sat on an orchestra chair behind the second violins for 10 minutes or so. (My ears are so dim and undiscerning and my attention so wandering that I have to be right in the middle of something to focus on it properly.) As I sat on that chair and the music surged around me, the floor vibrated and sent the resonance through my feet into my whole body. It reminded me that when we were doing all we could to encourage the city to renovate Sunset, and Bruno was press-ganged into having breakfast with council members individually to plead his case, he described to them that the conductor's instrument was the hall itself and that without a great instrument, he could do no more with the festival. This was taken by some to mean he was going to take his toys and go away in a pout. What he was saying was simply the plain truth: He could not play the hall unless the hall was playable. Happily, that's clear now. Bruno can call forth a great deal more sound, as well as a real pianissimo, and create gaps in the sound to see through. If all music tends toward silence, now the silences seem to thrum in the air in musical remembrance and anticipation.

Letting the music shine

Beethoven's Ninth has sometimes seemed to me like a great impenetrable wall of music, albeit a glorious one. Just right for celebrating the Berlin Wall's destruction.

But I remember a TV broadcast of another performance of it in which the divine Sylvia McNair was singing the solo soprano part in the last movement. Sadly, I could not distinguish her voice, and it seemed to me that all the soloists were simply singing as loud as they could, which was certainly a waste in her case.

Last Friday, Bruno cut holes in that wall of sound for me and let in the light of freedom for the voices and indeed for the instruments. For example, cellists Doug McNames and Allen Whear played the theme of the last movement quietly and almost as one instrument — something that would leave them unheard in one of the usual grand and noisy performances of the piece. And when the soloists were singing, despite the fact they were in back of the orchestra and surrounded by the ensemble singers, you could hear their voices blending and yet distinct, the soprano line floating on top like a lark in the clear air.

Also, through the windows Bruno cut in symphony, you could see up in the midst of the chorale William Gray blissfully singing with his ensemble and, to the right, David Gordon singing with his choristers. Their presence on the stage was emblematic of everyone pulling together in the expression of joy in this festival.

I've always found it very dreary to watch a standing orchestra playing with expressionless faces, waiting for the gig to be over. Not so here. The only thing the audience couldn't see was Bruno's face, which evoked such exuberant joy from his company. I waited for him backstage after the concert and was rewarded with a Bruno bear hug and an exclamation: "This is Carmel!" Everyone pulling in the same direction in the same boat, and the boat is a great one. It took many years of struggle and work to build it, but it's here.

Showcase of the festival

The Mission Concert is, of course, the showcase of the Festival Choral and its conductor. Many years ago, Sandor Salgo talked the Monsignor of the Mission into letting him use the Mission for concerts that gradually became signature festival items. However, the performance on Wednesday night this year could not have been produced before this moment. The Monteverdi Vespers of 1610 was performed by Salgo many years ago before my time, as he was a proponent of early music and original instruments before the revolution in performance which made it fashionable and the subject of extensive research and scholarship. But the festival did not have the Feast of Lanterns in P.G. this weekend

A BUSY weekend of events commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Pacific Grove Feast of Lanterns will culminate Saturday with the traditional boat parade, pageant and fireworks show at Lovers Point from 8 p.m. until dark.

The centennial celebration will also feature a variety of other events, including:

- a children's pet parade at Caledonia Park on Friday at 2:30 p.m.;

- a street dance — with performances by the Other Right Foot Dancers, the Greek Village Dancers, the Hora Karmel Folk

Dancers and Monterey Swing — at the intersection of Congress and Lighthouse avenues on Friday from 6:30 to 9 p.m.;

- a day of children's activities, highlighted by a sandcastle building contest, at Lovers Point Park on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.;

- a BBQ at Lovers Point Park on Saturday from noon to 7 p.m., and

- and an ice cream social at Chautauqua Hall on Sunday at 2 p.m.

vocal or instrumental resources at that time that it has now and which took years of building to achieve. Wednesday night's performance totally vindicated the agonizing audition process William Gray demanded for the chorale last year. Friends were alienated and hearts were broken in some cases, but the focus simply had to be on the music. This year we have a chorale of soloists of astonishing beauty, shown off in multiple configurations to display them to best advantage and to reflect the character of each movement. And in front of them, William Gray, whose joy in the music positively radiated out of the ends of his hair. I gave him a hard time last year when he asked for instrumentalists for his concert, which had traditionally been the orchestra's night off, except for the brass. And I had a stringent budget to meet. I'm glad now the festival has a musician as managing director who can make it clear what must be included in the budget and make a good argument to the finance committee. So we have a Wednesday orchestra suitable to the period, with sackbuts, cornettos and recorders added, and they all played with the joie de vivre of loving to be there.

Now we have a festival ("This is Carmel!") which is capable of performances one could not see elsewhere. Our artistic team believes this is the whole point of a festival. Nowhere else would one have the time to rehearse and polish such programs. Nowhere else would one have the license to choose exactly the right musicians to bring the programs to life, and to have many artists contributing to the ideas and coherence of the whole program. The way the audiences leapt to their feet on Friday and Wednesday nights showed their recognition of the Carmel Bach Festival's achievement.

'Under Milk Wood' — prose like poetry at Carl Cherry Center

By DEBORAH SHARP

BEFORE GOING to a performance of "Under Milk Wood," a play originally written for radio by Welsh poet Dylan Thomas, it's important to know you won't be seeing a conventional play with fully developed characters or any sort of plot. Instead you'll be treated to a painting in words, a string of potent images that evoke a small Welsh seaside town, Llareggub Hill, and some of its inhabitants.

It's best not to worry about sorting out these characters. Just let the amusing, teasing vignettes of their lives emerge and wash over you like the sea Thomas describes as it "lolls, laps and idles in, with fishes sleeping in its lap." Thomas' prose, which at times is almost like poetry, has a presence like a character itself. The seven readers (including himself) director Carey Crockett has assembled to read the play at the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts manage to bring that presence to life with varying degrees of success. Each, with the exception of Robert Colter, reads several of the 63 characters.

Tongue-twisting narration

Colter has the bulk of the narration, setting the stage and moving the play through the 24-hour period it encompasses. It's admittedly a difficult job. The prose can be tongue-twisting, and Colter doesn't always give it the time and effort it deserves. He sometimes seems rushed and impatient with its complexities.

Second narrator Phil Clarkson seems to have a lot more fun with his smaller narrative part, and he is particularly good as the Rev. Eli Jenkins, who begins and ends each day with a poem to Llareggub Hill. His good-natured delivery also suits another character he reads, Willy Nilly, the postman who reads everyone's mail and reports on the contents.

Much of the play revolves around the remembered, wished-for or endured pairings of the town's residents (some of them already dead but heard from the grave). Crockett, with a nice, wry humor and lilting accent, reads the parts of Mog Edwards, a draper who loves dressmaker and sweet-shop-keeper Miss Price from afar, and Mr. Pugh, who meekly endures the harping of his wife while plotting to poison her. He also gives a wonderful, wistful voice to the town rascal, Nogood Boyo.

Also bringing a wistful note to some of her reading is Rosemary Luke. She is the disagreeable Mrs. Pugh, who drives her husband to buy a book on poison, but she is also Polly Garter, a delightful wench who will sleep with whomever wants her and has a brood of children to prove it. Despite all her lovers, Polly pines for her first love, Willy Wee, now drowned, and so the wistful air Luke brings to that reading is justified, but one wishes for a little more variety in her measured delivery.

Still harrasing dead husbands

Susan Keenan, with her rich, full voice, brings plenty of color to her various roles. She's a cheeky servant a fussy widow who still harangues her dead husbands Mrs. Willy Nilly — who gleefully steams open everyone's mail before it's delivered — and the gypsy wife of a now dead local. She brings much spirit to all these roles.

Neva Hahns has less meaty roles to read. Her delivery is sprightly but lacks variety. Peter Eberhardt rounds out the cast as, among others, Captain Cat, the retired blind sea captain, and Morgan Organ, who plays Bach continuously and revels in it. The character fits Eberhardt's genial but determined attitude. Fine examples of Bach fugues are played when he reads the part.

While some of the reading lacks inspiration, the cast, overall, pleasantly brings to life Thomas' astonishing prose. If you're not familiar with his work, you should take this opportunity to hear it.

The production, presented by Unicorn Theater, plays Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. through Aug. 14 in rotation with "A Warring Absence," a play about Thomas.

The Carl Cherry Center for the Arts is located at Fourth and Guadalupe. Call (831) 649-0259 for tickets.

Red Cross calls for volunteers as workers offer hurricane relief

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEREVER HURRICANES, floods, earthquakes, fires or terrorists strike, Corey Nygaard is likely to appear in their wake.

The director of emergency services for the Carmel Red Cross chapter is highly trained in national disaster response and has skills and experience possessed by only 20 or 30 people nationwide. He returned last Friday from a week-long deployment to Atlanta, Ga., to coordinate care for the hundreds who suffered the wrath of Hurricane Dennis.

Corey Nygaard, emergency services director of Carmel's Red Cross chapter, is one of a handful of people qualified to coordinate federal relief efforts in disaster zones, including a stint in Atlanta, Ga., following Hurricane Dennis.

Georgia the following day. He arrived late Saturday night and went straight to work, expecting to stay a few days but remaining through the week. At one point he thought he would have to head directly to Texas to deal with Hurricane Emily, but he was sent home July 15.

Forty-five and counting

Dennis represented only the latest in a long list of disaster sites Nygaard has worked in his decade with the Red Cross. The 45 relief efforts he's worked include three months in Puerto Rico following Hurricane George in 1998, the Northern California floods in January and March of 1995, two stints at Ground Zero in 2001, and the Missouri tornado

"It entails ensuring that feeding and sheltering operations have the resources they need," Nygaard said while working at the regional response coordination center to direct federal resources to relief workers in the field. "We provide support until the local field offices are up and running."

The American Red Cross is the only non-governmental agency that works directly with the Federal Emergency Management Agency in the national response system, according to Nygaard. The nonprofit staffs the regional centers.

The most frequently demanded items are cots and the highly nutritious "meals ready to eat" used by the military.

"MREs are typical in a hurricane, because the local infrastructure's damaged to the point where food service can't be managed internally," he explained.

Before Hurricane Dennis hit the East Coast, FEMA established staging areas for 900 truck loads of water, ice, MREs, tarps, sheeting, generators and other emergency supplies, according to Nygaard.

Much of those supplies were directed to the five hardest-hit coastal counties in Florida and Alabama.

Nygaard was notified July 8 he would be needed in

Saltwater intrusion in Seaside adds to local water woes

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE ATTENTION is focused on illegal pumping from the Carmel River, a recent study shows the other major source of drinking water for the Monterey Peninsula — the Seaside aquifer — is also overdrawn.

The study, commissioned by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, underscores the need for a new water project to supplement the Peninsula's already insufficient water supply, officials say.

"The potential for saltwater intrusion in Seaside is stunning," said California American Water's Monterey general manager, Steve Leonard. "The water supply is even less secure than people thought."

After it was sued in 2003 by Cal Am to determine who had the right to pump water from beneath Seaside and Fort Ord, the MPWMD commissioned a study of the Seaside aquifer to help determine water rights. But the findings revealed the water supply is much smaller than previously thought.

"Groundwater conditions in the Seaside basin have deteriorated in the past decade," reads the report, which was published in April. "It is recommended that the district consider measures to decrease groundwater pumping in the basin."

The Seaside aquifer supplies about 30 percent of the Peninsula's water needs.

In 1995, the California Water Resources Control Board ruled that Cal Am was overpumping the Carmel River. The board ordered the water company to reduce pumping from 14,106 to 3,376 acre-feet a year and maximize pumping in the Seaside aquifer while it developed a new water source — now likely to be a desal plant in Moss Landing.

Meanwhile, Leonard said the state's order put the Peninsula's already beleaguered water supply in further jeopardy.

"The state board told us to use the Seaside water," he said

"We've used it and the question is, when have we used it up? There's no evidence of saltwater intrusion today. But that's the only good news."

If the Pacific Ocean starts moving into the aquifer, its effects would be far-reaching.

"It's not just a Seaside issue," he said. "That water goes to Carmel, too."

Ultimately, the Peninsula needs a supplemental water supply, he argued.

Leonard doesn't hesitate when asked about the best possible long-term supplemental water supply. He believes a desal plant makes sense.

"Desal is certainly the most practical alternative," he said. "It has the fewest environmental problems and most likelihood of success."

outbreak in 2003.

Nygaard started as a volunteer in 1994 and then joined the paid staff in 1998 after a career in the fire service in Washington State.

He took the Carmel job in January, and he's on call every few months for the FEMA-Red Cross national work.

"There are only 20 or 30 of us who do this, so we're a pretty specialized group," he said.

But he'd like to reduce that exclusivity. "I'm hoping to do some training over the next couple of years to increase the team size," he said. "It's getting to the point where it's harder and harder to staff the positions."

Volunteers needed

In fact, a large part of Nygaard's job in Carmel as emergency services director involves recruiting and retaining volunteers to respond to emergencies locally and nationally. He also teaches disaster preparedness to the general public.

Hurricane season and recruitment season coincide, according to Donna Duvin, executive director of the Carmel chapter.

"We look at this as an opportunity to recruit and train local volunteers, not only for outside our jurisdiction, but locally," she said. Twenty-one trained Carmel chapter volunteers have flown east to aid in relief efforts due to the rapid succession of hurricanes there.

The training courses are free, and volunteer opportunities can be matched to anyone's skills, desires and availability, according to Duvin. Introductory disaster preparation and response training classes are set to be held at the chapter house Aug. 11 from 6 to 9 p.m. and Sept. 8 from 1 to 4 p.m.

"There's a place for everybody," Nygaard agreed.

One of those volunteer jobs involves another segment of the Red Cross' mission: blood drives. Duvin is looking for a blood services chair to coordinate the drives (the next is set for Sept. 7 from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.) and handle related tasks that would require about four to eight hours each month.

"That's a big need right now," she said.

And keeping with its goal of helping people save lives, the chapter will also offer CPR and first aid classes next month. Its most intensive training is set for evenings Aug. 1-3; the basic adult CPR and automated external defibrillator class will be Aug. 13, and the adult first aid and AED class is set for Aug. 27.

For more information, to volunteer or to register for the classes, call (831) 624-6921. The Carmel chapter house is located at Dolores and Eighth.

Be Water Wise

Simple cuts in household water use can help you save both water and money every day.

By following these easy indoor water-saving tips, we can maintain water levels in the Carmel River that enhance habitat and protect threatened species and stay within state-imposed water use limits.

- Install low-flow showerheads and faucets in your home.
- Take quick showers instead of baths. Reducing showers by one-minute can save 5-10 gallons of water per shower.
- Run washing machines and dishwashers only when full. Whenever possible, don't pre-rinse your dishes before loading.
- Check for and repair faucet leaks. A dripping faucet can waste as much as 140 gallons of water each month.
- Replace your old washing machine or toilet with a new high-efficiency washer or ultra low-flush toilet. They use 40-60 percent less water and as a California American Water customer you are eligible for rebates of $100 off the purchase price of each appliance.

For additional information about California American Water's rebate program or to receive a complimentary low-flow showerhead or hose nozzle, email us at monterey@amwater.com or call (888) 237-1333.

Sandy Claws By Margot Petit Nichols

NEW BUD-DIES Reed Kowalik, 5, and Moses Kantor, 4, only met during the past month but have since become inseparable Carmel Beach playmates, thanks to Moms Michele and Liz, who became acquainted through their sons and who now walk Reed and Moses together in the morning.

Reed, a handsome yellow Lab, moved here with his family a month ago from New Vernon, N.J.: Mom Michele, Dad John and brothers Ross, 16, and Grant, 12 and-a-half. The boys are students at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Reed will go down in Kowalik family lore as having possibly consumed an entire house one Christmas. It was a beautiful gingerbread house left unattended during the night in the middle of the kitchen table. In the morning, there wasn't a crumb left on the plate. To this day, it is not known for certain if Reed was the culprit. The crumbs and icing in his bed were purely circumstantial evidence.

Moses, a Portuguese water dog, joined the Kantor family (Mom Liz, Dad Scott and brothers Adam, 17, and Josh, 16) four years ago. He occasionally gets into trouble, too. Take for instance the recent happening on the beach: Moses spied some ladies sitting in beach chairs. He sniffed out a foot-long meat sandwich in their beach bag and ran off with it, consuming it quick as a flash, lest the ladies descend on him and reclaim it. Mom Liz, red of face and humbly apologetic, said the ladies were graciousness personified and wouldn't hear of restitution or penance from Moses. One has only to look at that innocent face to know he must certainly have been framed.

The two families met when Dr. Kantor operated on Ross Kowalik after a serious lacrosse accident. It was discovered all four of their boys attend RLS, and even more curiously, Dr. Kantor and Michele Reed had gone to school together in Phoenix, Ariz., from grades one through six.

Sheriff needs 10 deputies

THE MONTEREY County Sheriff's Office will be testing men and women July 29 and 30 at 9 a.m. to fill 10 vacant deputy sheriff positions with a salary range of $3,910 to $5,652 per month, depending on experience.

After candidates fill out their applications at the sheriff's office at 1414 Natividad Road in Salinas the day of the test, they will take a written examination and a physical agility test. A sample written exam is available on the State of California website at www.post.ca.gov/selection/, and the physical agility course will open at 8 a.m. on testing days.

Candidates who pass the initial phase are then required to fill out an extensive application. Upon receiving a conditional job offer, they must successfully pass the background/suitability process, which includes a voice stress analysis as well as psychological and medical examinations. If hired, recruits will be put through the police academy before being assigned to custody operations, and deputies who are already certified will be assigned to work their first year in the jail as well.

P.G. City Council to scoreboard advertisers: not in our ballpark

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE PACIFIC Grove City Council unanimously agreed July 20 to amend the P.G. Municipal Ballpark Master Plan to prohibit advertising on the field's new scoreboard, which is scheduled to be installed this summer.

Before approving the measure by a 7-0 vote, the city council listened to neighbors urge approval of the scoreboard advertising ban. In addition to expressing their opposition to scoreboard advertising, residents complained about what they said was the ballpark's aesthetically unappealing landscaping and high noise levels.

While P.G. Mayor Jim Costello supported the advertising ban, it was clear he had mixed feelings about the measure, because it would cut off a potentially important fundraising source for the teams using the field.

"I think it's really sad not to reward businesses supporting kids," he said. "But I respect the process this has gone through."

The practice of placing an advertiser's name on a scoreboard has long been a cherished baseball tradition observed at nearly every ballpark. Even at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field — two of our national pastime's most beloved and now-defunct ballparks — scoreboards sponsored by Chesterfield Cigarettes and Schaefer Beer achieved an exalted and almost mythical status. At literally thousands of Little League fields, scoreboards are adorned with names of local and national businesses.

Currently the P.G. ballpark is used by the P.G. Adult Softball League, the P.G. High School girls softball team, and the P.G. Mustang Baseball League of 9 and 10 year olds. Baseball is not allowed to be played on the field by kids older than 10 because of a short centerfield fence (too many home runs) and the concerns of neighbors (too many broken windows).

To honor longtime city employee David Kuwatani, his name will be added in 10-inch letters to the top of the scoreboard. Kuwatani, who worked for the city for 38 years, collapsed and died of a heart attack at age 57 after working on the field five years ago. A graduate of Pacific Grove High School in 1961, he was born in a Japanese-American Internment Camp during World War II.

The scoreboard will cost about $9,000. It will be funded primarily by donations made to the city in Kuwatani's name. The ballpark is located at 17 Mile Drive and Pico Avenue.

By the end of the summer, Pacific Grove ballplayers and fans will see a new scoreboard at P.G. Municipal Ballpark. But after a decision by the city council, advertising is something they won't see on the scoreboard.

Is a Reverse Mortgage Right for You?

A reverse mortgage turns a portion of your equity into tax-free money you can use right now. You make no monthly payments on a reverse mortgage and the loan is not due to be paid until you sell, move out of the house or pass away.

You can use this money for any purpose; living expenses, home improvements or a grandchild's college education.

Homeowners who are 62 or older may qualify and be eligible even if there is an existing first or second mortgage. The size of the reverse mortgage depends upon the borrowers age(s), the program selected, the home's value, and prevailing interest rates. There are no income qualifications and you continue to retain title to your home.

Call if you have questions or wish a free Reverse Mortgage Handbook.

DESAL

growth," said Cal Am's Monterey general manager Steve Leonard. "The size they are proposing begs the question, Who's going to get all that water?"

According to del Piero, about half the water from the Poseidon plant would go to the Monterey Peninsula to solve the area's perennial water shortage. The rest would go to other users in the PSM service area and the Pajaro Valley.

MacLaggan said the Moss Landing desal operation would only be half as large as a desal plant his company is developing in Carlsbad, where a pilot plant has been in operation for more than two years. A website, www.carlsbaddesal.com, contains numerous technical details of the plant's design to remove minerals, viruses and bacteria from ocean water, he said.

"If a water molecule were the size of a tennis ball, a salt molecule would be the size of a softball, a virus would be the size of a semi-trailer truck, and a bacterium would be an aircraft carrier," MacLaggan explained. In a process called reverse osmosis, very fine filters — with holes one-millionth the size of a human hair — only allow H₂O to pass through, he said.

During winter months, a lot of sediment washes into the Moss Landing Harbor, where the desal plant would draw its water to be processed. Keeping that sediment from clogging the plant's fine fillters is one of the challenges a pilot plant would be designed to assess.

How much is too much?

But Leonard, whose company also has considerable desal experience, said technical details aren't the main problem with PSM's proposal.

"I think some people will have real issues with the growth potential of a 25,000-acre-foot plant," Leonard said. "It's like they're hanging a sign that says, 'Come and get it!'"

After public rejection of an earlier plan to build a large, new dam on the Carmel River, Cal Am has limited its ambitions to eliminating illegal pumping from the Carmel River, while providing a very limited amount of water in response to demand from local cities.

TAKING TITLE TO PROPERTY

Unfortunately, the way buyers take title to their property is all too often decided in a few rushed moments as if the way you take title doesn't really matter all that much. Real estate author Peter G. Miller makes a strong point simply by relaying some of the considerations in taking title:

"You can have a tenancy by the entireties (for married couples), community property, a tenancy in common (where interests need not be equal), a joint tenancy (where all interests are equal), etc. Then, you can have right of survivorship built-in or not built-in, you can have a written agreement among the parties to organize the owners, you can have condo and co-op regimes to govern ownership, equity-sharing agreements can impact title issues, and then you can gain ownership more or less with a quitclaim deed — the owner transfers such interest as he has in the property (which may be no interest). Add in partnerships, corporations, non-profit entities, and title matters become unbelievably complex. And don't forget deed restrictions...."

You get the point. Spend plenty of time consulting with your tax advisor before deciding exactly how you want to take title to each real estate property you purchase over the course of your life. Remember, too, that laws surrounding ways of taking title often change, as do the circumstances affecting the best way for you to take title. Get the help you need! Horseshoes and steaks raise $$$ for Arroyo Seco Fire

SIX VOLUNTEER firefighters who respond to emergencies in rural Arroyo Seco should soon have a fire station, a volunteer said this week. According to David Morris, the firefighters will hold their Fifth Annual Horseshoe Tournament and Barbecue at Miller's Lodge Sunday, Aug. 7, to raise money to equip the new building.

The entry fee for the horseshoe tournament, tickets for the the barbecue and a raffle will all help pay for the costly gear that firefighters use on the job.

Mark Waniski, whose mother-in-law owns Miller's and whose father-in-law was heavily involved in Arroyo Seco Fire fundraising before he died last July, said locals have been generous, but it's been difficult to raise money for a fire station that's only on paper.

"I wish the the county would move their butt in putting the fire station up," he said, blaming bureaucratic red tape for the holdup. "It's hard to sell the tickets, because people already donated and there are no walls."

But Morris said the slowly grinding wheels of bureaucracy have at least produced the permits, which were recently signed and will allow work to get started on the Arroyo Seco Road firehouse.

"It will have a community center with a meeting room and two bays to park the trucks," said Morris, who also works at Miller's.

After scraping up 15 percent in matching funds, the department purchased a new wild-land fire engine with a $265,000 grant awarded in 2003 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, according to assistant chief Karen Parker of the South Monterey County Fire Protection District.

Without a station, the new engine has been parked at a nearby residence.

Waniski, who is not a firefighter, plans to barbecue a bounty of top sirloin for the Aug. 7 fundraiser and serve it with salad, beans and bread. Barbecue tickets for those not throwing horseshoes will cost $10.

stuff," he said.
Raffle tickets will enter the purchaser into a drawing for a $500 shopping spree at Nob Hill. The prize wasn't donated and Arroyo Seco Fire supporters hope to sell plenty of tickets, Waniski said.
Entry fee for the tournament is $20 and will include lunch. Tournament signups will run 9 to 10 a.m., with the throwing beginning at 11 a.m. and lunch served at noon.

Using those donated funds to equip the long-awaited firehouse will be a joyful task for the Arroyo Seco volunteers. For 22 years, their station was run from the chief's home, according to Parker. When Arroyo Seco took delivery of the new fire engine last year, it initially had to be stored at the SMCFPD's Pine Canyon Station because Arroyo Seco had none, but the fire district board had it moved to a board member's house, she said.
Miller's Lodge is located at 46325 Arroyo Seco Road, southwest of the intersection with Carmel Valley Road. For more information, call (831) 674-5795.

Michael Appleton

William Overstreet

MICHAEL APPLETON, grandson of The Pine Cone's founder and a longtime resident of the Carmel area, passed away July 14 at the age of 77.

Born in Monterey in 1928, Mr. Appleton graduated from Carmel High School in 1946 and served in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War. He worked for many years in construction before becoming a real estate appraiser.

His grandfather, William Overstreet, was Carmel's first postmaster and the founder of The Carmel Pine Cone in 1915.

Appleton, who was preceded in death by his brother, DeWitt Appleton Jr., is survived by his brother, Gary of Sausalito; his ex-wife, Sherry Allured; three children, and four grandchildren, all of Calaveras County.

A memorial service is being planned.

DOROTHY CONE MOORE, a resident of Carmel Valley Manor since 1985, died July 18. She was 97.

A 1928 graduate from Stanford University, she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority and a Block S recipient. She lived in the San Francisco Bay area until 1947, when she and her husband, Francis "Link" Moore, moved to Manila in the Philippines, where Mr. Moore opened a new Bank of America branch. They moved to Hawaii in 1952, and Mrs. Moore became active in the Garden Club of Honolulu, including a term as president, 1967-1968. She was also a docent at the Honolulu Academy of Art.

While living on the Monterey Peninsula, she was a member of the Casa Abrego Club. Her mother built the Bark House in Carmel in 1922, and the historically significant home is still owned by her family.

Preceded in death by her husband, Mrs. Moore is survived by her children, Peggy Lewis, Kathy Cusick and James Moore; 14 grandchildren, and 19 great-grandchildren.

FRANCES ANNE FELLOWS, a Carmel resident of more than 30 years, died July 21 at the age of 77.

Born in Dearborn, Mich., Mrs. Fellows earned her associate of arts degree in liberal arts before moving to California, where she met her husband of 56 years, Rowland Fellows, at University of California Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. Fellows lived in Japan from 1952 to 1956 while Mr. Fellows was working as an engineer for the U.S. Navy. They later lived in Germany and traveled throughout most of Europe. They moved to San Jose in 1968 and lived there until 1974, when the couple relocated to Carmel.

Mrs. Fellows joined the membership of the Church of the Wayfarer and was involved in Yes for Carmel, Friends of Sunset, Friends of the Monterey Peninsula, and she served as president of the Peninsula Club. She also volunteered at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula and the American Cancer Society Discovery Shop.

She enjoyed cooking, gardening, sewing, home decorating, designing jewelry, traveling, tennis and golf.

She is survived by her husband; a brother, Charles Solt of Stockton, N.J.; a son, Rowland Fellows Jr. of Folsom; a daughter, Ceanne Herndon of Japan; and three grandchildren.

Services will be private. The family requests that in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to the SPCA of Monterey County.

SHEROD SANTOS, known as "Rod," died at his home July 25 at the age of 86.

A native of Ukiah, Mr. Santos moved to Carmel in 1965. He worked as a realtor, owning Carmel Associates for nearly 40 years. He was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and the Monterey County Board of Realtors.

He served in World War II and the Korean War as a member of the Air Force, retiring as a Colonel after 22 years.

Mr. Santos is survived by his sons, Ralph of Dallas, Texas, and Rod of Columbia, Mo.; his daughter, Cheri Lynn Brandon of Nashville, Tenn.; five grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Services will be held at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove Friday, July 29, at 1 p.m. In lieu of flowers, contributions are suggested to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 811, 3131 Crescent Ave., Marina, CA 93933.

ANTONE "TONY" ARA BIA, a resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1948, passed away July 15 after 101 years of life.

Born in Dedham, Mass., in 1904, he attended Boston College, Boston University and Boston Normal Art before heading to California in 1932. He earned his degree and teaching credential from California State Teachers College in San Jose. He also studied at University of California Berkeley, where he was appointed a fellow in entomology.

He taught at Marin College and Laney Junior College in Oakland, and was a biology teacher at Monterey High School until he retired.

Mr. Bia was a first elder and charter member of Carmel Presbyterian Church, and his wife, Harriet, was also a charter member. A member of Carmel Masonic Lodge #680 and the Scottish Rite, he was also a chaplain of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Hi 12 Club. Mr. Bia became the second president of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club and was involved with the Carmel Foundation.

Since 2000, he produced two books, "Are You Living Right?" and "Doing Good to be Happy."

Preceded in death by his wife, he is survived by several nephews and nieces.

A memorial service will be held Aug. 20 at 1 p.m. at Carmel Presbyterian Church. Contributions are suggested to the Antone Ara Bia Scholarship Fund at Monterey High School, 101 Herrmann Dr., Monterey, CA 93940; Community Hospital - Garden North P.O. Box HH, Monterey, CA 93942; or Carmel Presbyterian Church Family School, P.O. Box 846, Carmel, CA 93921.

Making too much of the Boy Scouts

CONGRATULATIONS TO Rich Guillen for trying to prevent the Scout House from being declared an historic monument. This dilapidated, undistinguished building deserves to be demolished and replaced with a future-historic building designed by one of the outstanding architects alive right now. And with the threshold being down to 50 years (or even less), one of today's young designers could even create a building he might live to see added to the city's honor roll.

Instead, we are stuck with the Scout House, which deserves to be preserved, we are told, because the Carmel Boy Scout Troop met there! But surely almost every building in town was the setting for something at least that worthy of commemorating. Why, Clint Eastwood probably has had dinner at one time or another in nearly every restaurant in town. Do all of them, therefore, deserve to be perpetually guarded by city hall? What about all the places the city's numerous mayors, police chiefs and school principals have lived? Should they all be off-limits to demolition or substantial alteration?

If the Boy Scouts had a merit badge for historic preservation, surely it would be based on the principle that mandatory protection of historic buildings should be limited to exceptional examples of the works of previous generations. Even a Tenderfoot would have enough common sense to know that the place where he was awarded that merit badge wouldn't necessarily qualify.

Littering the beach

IT IS certainly true, as council member Erik Bethel pointed out, that smoking is not the only activity that is conducive to littering at the beach. Eating, applying sunscreen and even reading The Pine Cone can end with irresponsible people leaving garbage behind. Obviously, a few people's ignorant actions do not justify banning any activity that could create a public nuisance. Still, smokers seem to be an exception. A great many of them apparently believe there is nothing wrong with tossing their butts into any convenient outdoor space.

We would hate to see the Carmel Police Department spend a lot of its resources telling people to put out their cigarettes. A smoking ban on Carmel Beach may be a good idea. But let the enforcement be no more aggressive than the laws against littering that are already on the books.

'A very concerned citizen'

Dear Editor,
What is with the editorial staff of The Carmel Pine Cone? Sounds as though they don't appreciate the democratic process! (Editorial, July 15.)

I resent being called a "political busybody." I am a very concerned citizen and especially worried about corporate abuses. Why should a German-owned company profit from our water supply? Cal Am officials are so busy green-washing themselves, they don't appear to be listening to those of us in support of buying them out.

Darby Moss Worth,
Carmel

Who's a busybody?

Dear Editor,
It is a well-known technique for the right wing to discount those with whom they disagree. In this case I am referring to the political busybodies mentioned in your editorial (July 15). It takes one to know one.
Otto Schiff,
Carmel

Editor's note: The editorial in question simply pointed out that testimony from a few activists at a public hearing does not necessarily reflect the opinion of the public at large.

What about the accuser?

Dear Editor,
Schadenfreude, a term that means to take pleasure in the misfortune of others, is what came to mind when I read the "gun waving incident" article on page 5A (July 22). I understand The Pine Cone's policy of printing the police log but question why this one incident was selected for a fifth-of-a-page article. Admittedly, I'm a friend of Dave Roman. Regardless, what could possibly be the point of printing an item about a lifelong resident whose family has been well-respected in Carmel for more than 70 years? Perhaps a more responsible and balanced report would have included the many positive aspects of Roman, or perhaps The Pine Cone believes its readers prefer schadenfreude to a higher degree of reporting. Is it responsible to call attention to an unsubstantiated allegation while omitting the name of the person who lodged the complaint? Your reporter would do well to remember Shakespeare's line, "But he that filches from me my good name robs me of that which not enriches him and makes me poor indeed." I find this journalism little more than gossip and beneath a newspaper that proudly lists its CNPA awards. If the allegations prove unfounded, will that news rate a fifth of a page article?

Doesn't try to get in police log

Dear Editor,

I don't try to do things that enter the police blotter, but there have been several times that events have happened at Pacific Meadows that have gotten me in there. A few years ago I received a note from a tenant that threatened bodily harm. I turned it over to the police and, sure enough, it was in The Pine Cone. The woman who made the threat has done the same thing to another tenant but was more explicit. She was "going to kill her." The threatened individual had recorded it and played it for management, who did their usual nothing. They work overtime at this!

The harassing notes are common fare from the woman and are keeping the community off balance. It doesn't take much! I have been harassed by the woman for the past four-and-a-half years and had expensively framed pictures mutilated on two occasions, and this time I called the sheriff's department and even gave them a copy of the complaint that I have finally had to resort to at the fair housing department. The report was not in the police log. Apparently, it wasn't of the same public interest as a loose dog on the beach.

We need to be at least as concerned about elder abuse and the form it has taken at Pacific Meadows as we are about our four-leggeds.

S.O. Willmert
Carmel Valley

Editor's note: The police log is compiled from reports prepared by patrol officers and includes everything of public interest entered on those reports and made available to us. We never omit reports of serious crimes, including elder abuse.

Low interest rates help keep sales brisk at Monterra

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

BASIL AND Roger Mills are very pleased with how things are going.

The brothers, long known for their success as Salinas Valley farmers and their support of local institutions such as the National Steinbeck Center, have also been developing and selling lots in the upscale Monterra community off Highway 68 since 1999.

Despite several significant blows to the national economy since then, and stiff competition from other local high-end real estate developments such as Tehama and Rancho San Carlos, the Monterra project is right on track, according to Roger Mills.

“Sales were very good in the beginning,

Then 9/11 happened and things were slow through 2002,” he explained. “But sales really started to pick up in 2003. The economy is going strong and interest rates are reasonable, so this is a very good time.”

The 1,700-acre development consists of 168 home sites ranging from 2 to 20 acres. A gated community nestled in the hills between Carmel Valley and the Monterey Peninsula Airport, Monterra lots begin at $1.5 million and come with a requirement that homes must be at least 3,500 square feet. There is no specific maximum square footage, but potential homeowners contemplating designs greater than 10,000 square feet have to get the OK of the development’s design review representatives. Most homes are Buyers at Monterra have a choice of home sites ranging from 2 to 20 acres, or they can purchase one of the custom homes, such as this gracious Spanish-style residence, built at Paseo Vista.

Nestled on an exclusive cul-de-sac in a whisper quiet neighborhood above Carmel’s High Meadows, the location is only minutes from Carmel’s downtown restaurants, shops and beaches. This property is positioned high on a mostly level lot with a gently sloping ridge, offering exceptional privacy... Come experience the vistas and warmth of this extraordinary parcel of land. Also within Monterra is Paseo Vista, a neighborhood consisting of 15 luxurious homes built by an independent contractor. Each dwelling is designed to complement its surrounding natural environment and oriented to maximize views, according to Monterra representatives.

For the undeveloped portion of Monterra, architectural design guidelines exist, but the options allow for myriad opportunities for customizing homes with Monterey, Spanish, European or Western influences.

A design review process provides the tools and information needed to achieve the neighborhood's design goals:

- pre-design conference to inform potential Monterra homeowners of the architectural guidelines, review the process for design and plan submittals, and present key issues that need to be addressed;

- concept design for applicants to propose architectural and site concepts to a committee representative for review;

- preliminary design review, a two-part process to examine architectural and conceptual landscape designs, and

- final design review by two architects, a landscape architect and an interior designer.

Of the sold lots, 70 percent are for primary residences, meaning only 30 percent are second homes for out-of-towners, according to Marci Bracco, who is handling public relations and marketing for the development.

Correction

Due to a production error, a line was dropped from last week's real estate column by Paul & Nellie Brocchini and Mark Ryan. The paragraph should have read:

"Supply needs to begin to outstrip demand for prices to soften. Even if that happens it will take a while for a price correction to set in. Sellers are quick to understand value increases and take advantage of them. They are slower, on the other hand, to react to declining markets. It is not easy for owners to give up on perceived gains when reality changes. Given the nature of our market — little or no growth in housing, an attractive retirement and second-home community and the depth and wealth of the Baby Boomer generation — a significant downward price correction seems unlikely."

To whom it may concern:

It has been my pleasure to work with Michael Coleman. He is warm, caring, and very easy to communicate with. Michael listens well and has excellent follow-through.

As a long distance buyer, it was imperative to have an agent who was honest, thorough, unbiased, and looked out for my best interest. Michael handled everything for me - he was my eyes and ears. I would trust him to do it again without hesitation.

Michael is a rare find in the real estate world. He is truly the buyer's or seller's unequivocal advocate. He puts self-interest aside and truly works for his client. I highly recommend Michael to anyone looking for an agent.

Sincerely,
 Sue Cantor

Crews from engine and ambulance made their way to the third-story roof of the inn, as a guest of the hotel had reported looking out to the west from her hotel room and seeing smoke and flames on the east section of the third-floor roof. Battalion chief established Ocean Command and mutual aid response resources stood by at scene if needed for assistance. Investigation determined the cause of the smoke to be from the flue of the wood-burning oven and grill of the restaurant, which was reported by the chef as a normal occurrence when wood was added to the fire pit.

SBC would not be able to fix the problem until Monday. The subject was advised of the problem.
