Parents upset as big rat pickets Stevenson school

By KELLY NIX

PARENTS OF students from preschool through the eighth grade reacted angrily this week to union picketers who marched in front Stevenson Lower and Middle School in Carmel, waving signs and yelling slogans. Wednesday morning, they displayed a 15-foot inflatable rat at the school's entrance.

Carpenter's Local Union 605 staged the protest to complain that DMC Construction, the company hired to renovate the school's multipurpose building, uses some non-union labor.

"You are upsetting children," said one parent, who angrily confronted John Anzini, a union representative. "I don't care what the company does, I'm upset."

Although workers protested silently Wednesday, parents said earlier in the Commission: Put Flanders up for rent

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CITY of Carmel should lease historic Flanders Mansion rather than sell it, a split planning commission decided Wednesday during its third hearing on the environmental impact report studying the future of the historic mansion.

The city council will host a town hall meeting Friday and consider the commission's recommendations and eventual fate of the house at a special meeting Sept. 22.

Although the council wants to sell the mansion to raise money for capital projects, planning commission chair Bill Strid said renting it out would "meet most if not all the project goals, in that it would provide some income and relieve the city of maintenance costs." The EIR also lists preservation of the building, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places but has been left to deteriorate, as a goal.

Commissioner Julie Culver said retaining and maintaining the 81-year-old mansion would be "the wisest investment decision the city could make."

But commissioner Robin Wilson said selling it remains the best option, and commissioner Ken Talmage wondered if anyone would want to rent the old house while being subjected to an extensive list of city-imposed rules and pouring more than $1 million into fixing an asset owned by someone else. To offset the impacts of taking the mansion out of the public's hands, the EIR proposes prohibiting new buildings, fencing, landscaping or other changes that would affect the public's visual access to the house.

"It would be difficult to sell it with the plan that is called for," Talmage said. "A lease, from a practical perspective, may be damn near impossible."

The planning commission voted 3-2 to recommend leasing the mansion as the environmentally superior alternative among the options studied in the EIR, which the commission also deemed complete and adequate.

But the commission unanimously declared that if the mansion is sold, it should not include so much land, which

Third time may not be a charm for Cal Am takeover

By KELLY NIX

IF HISTORY repeats itself, turning Cal Am into a publicly owned water company for the Monterey Peninsula will be long, arduous, expensive — and a failure.

The issue has been contentious on the Peninsula for at least 70 years. As early as 1935, there were attempts to buy out the local water system. In 1958, voters were asked if they wanted to own the company that delivered their water. They said No by a very big margin.

This November, Monterey Peninsula voters will revisit the issue when they vote on Measure W, asking them if they want to pay for a $550,000 to investigate the feasibility of taking over California American Water's local system.

As in the past, this year's attempt to take over the privately owned local system comes on the heels of a water rate increase. Cal-Am raised its rates in January and wants to raise them substantially over the next three years.

Despite the rate hikes in the 1930s and 1950s, however, yellowed and tattered newspaper articles outline how voters in two previous cases shot down takeover proposals after millions of dollars were spent trying to exercise the power of eminent domain over the water company.

The sea is never too rough for 'rescue rockets'

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE RIPTIDES of Monterey Bay are notorious for grabbing inexperienced swimmers and exhausting them as they fight to get to land.

On the shores of the bay, rogue winter waves occasionally sweep unknowing tourists off rock outcroppings into the sea.

In both cases, help sometimes doesn't arrive quickly enough, and the hapless victims drown.

But a "rescue rocket," demonstrated last week for Carmel firefighters and paramedics, could save some of those lives.

The Cypress Fire Protection District showed how the rocket can deliver a flotation device to someone who's about to succumb to the cold waters of the Pacific.

Powered by compressed air, the rocket fires a projectile up to 800 feet from shore, according to Cypress Fire Captain Tuan Flower. Attached to rope, the canister carries a flashing beacon and an automatically inflating yellow plastic rescue belt, both of which activate upon contact with water.

Cypress acquired its new launcher this summer. Would-be rescuers practiced firing it from Carmel Beach last Tuesday morning.

The rig replaces a similar device

Cypress Fire bought more than a decade ago and can be used much more quickly because the air cylinders can be kept filled, according to Flower.

"Overall it cut down deployment time by 75 percent," he said, "and it's easy

THE FEUD between a Mission Street jewelry store and the new art gallery next door shifted last week from allegations of code violations to a protest over a painting displayed in a store window.

Soraya Cayen, who owns the Cayen Collection jewelry store with her husband, Michael, believes the artist across the walkway, who goes by the single name, Romanoos, is sending them an unmistakable message.

This painting is not directed at her neighbors, the artist who created it insists. But the jewelry store owners across the walkway say the artist displayed a painting of herself giving them the finger because they complained to the city that her gallery, Romanoos, was violating its business license by displaying too much jewelry.

"She's painting pornographic paintings. One is a big, huge painting of her giving the finger, and it's right in the front window," Soraya Cayen said. It was Michael Cayen's complaint in June that led the city to find Romanoos Gallery and its owner, Ryan Mattonen, were violating the gallery's business license by displaying too much jewelry.

"This is so unlike Carmel, it's mortifying," Cayen said of the piece, which was hung in the window a month ago.

But Romanoos, whose paintings fill the gallery bearing her name, said the the piece and the two tortured paintings flanking it contain an "energy and passion" different than the works found in the city's 100-plus other galleries. She argued their un-Carmel-ness is the very characteristic that makes them compelling and insisted the depiction "of a person flipping the birdie" is not directed at her neighbors. Romanoos said she created the painting a few years ago and named it "Welcome."

"It as not painted for them," she maintained. "They think everything revolves around them. But we have no animosity toward them as they do toward us, and our placing any painting back there should be of no concern to them."

Following Michael Cayen's complaint in June, the planning commission found that Romanoos Gallery was violating its business license and ordered the store closed until it complied. Its original permit allowed for ancillary sale of jewelry, limiting window and floor displays to 10 percent, but the commission decided to forbid jewelry in the windows and further limit the floor space available for display cases. Nonetheless, the gallery remained open as principal planner Brian Roseth worked with the owner and the artist, and the pair successfully convinced the commission last month to lift its ban on window displays. Soraya Cayen objected to the city's change of heart.

"The painting's directed at us," she said, adding that she sees in it "somebody who has a lot of rage in their heart or has gone through something awful. For us, it's not about anger, it's just about business. We have to obey the license laws, and it's not personal. If someone doesn't respect the rules, we're going to complain."

Romanoos said "Welcome" and the paintings flanking it attract people to the gallery and have been well received, except by her neighbors.

"It has nothing to do with them," she said. "I do not apologize for placing that back there."

Angel Flight jet races in Reno

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL VALLEY resident Warren Wood's sleek, fast Czechoslovakian jet returns to the National Championship Air Races at Reno this weekend with a new name — Angel Flight 7 — and a new mission: To help spread the word about the network of pilots who ferry needy, ill children and adults seeking hard-to-get medical treatments.

The new Angel Flight logo on the L-39's nose might be difficult to read as it's bombing around the race course a few hundred feet above Reno Stead airport at 400-plus mph, but passersby will surely spot it when the jet is parked on the tarmac.

As an Angel Flight board member, Wood

Asleep at wheel, empty beer can in hand

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 4

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Responded to an anonymous report of a barking dog in the area of Junipero and Vista. Upon arrival, saw a large German shepherd in the backyard of the residence. The dog was barking constantly. A neighbor said the owner of the dog worked at a restaurant in the Crossroads. Dispatch contacted the restaurant and talked with the owner. She advised she would go back to the house and stop the dog from barking.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female on Rio Road reported losing her rings.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Casanova Street resident reported her neighbor's dogs were barking. Unable to make contact, as no one was home. Two dogs were seen in the backyard. They barked when they saw the officer, then quit when she stepped off the property. They were not barking when she first arrived. A courtesy notice was left. Later, the dog owner called and said he would try to keep the dogs from barking in the future. No followup required.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: When a Dolores Street resident arrived at his home, he discovered the inside in disarray. It became apparent that a raccoon had possibly come in through the fireplace. It left paw prints in the bathroom, bedroom and living-room areas. The raccoon was gone upon arrival. Nothing was seriously damaged or missing. Resident requested followup with animal control for ways to keep the raccoons out in the future.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Anonymous person reported loud music coming from a Dolores Street neighbor's house. Upon arrival, officers heard stereo music coming from the residence. Subject was contacted and immediately turned the stereo down with apologies. Subject was given a warning.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a reported water leak at Mission and First. Upon arrival, Cal Am crews were on scene, so all units cleared and returned to the station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency at a theater on Casanova. Firefighters assisted ambulance personnel with patient assessment, diagnostics, oxygen administration, monitor hookup, packaging and gathering information on an elderly male who suffered a possible syncope episode. Patient transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel Valley: Anonymous person reported a domestic problem at a Lupin Lane residence. Contact made. Parent, a 49-year-old female, exercising control over a 15-year-old juvenile. No further action.

Carmel area: While conducting a business check at a Rio Road gas station at 2311 hours, deputy discovered a 54-year-old male suspect asleep inside his vehicle with the motor running. He also had an empty beer in his hand. CHP was contacted, and the male suspect was taken into custody.

Commission rejects removal of stop sign without an intersection

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AS THE city considers adding more stop signs downtown, Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana suggested one that should be yanked.

Fourth Avenue is steep and curving where it meets Lincoln, but it has no cross street there. A stop sign was installed in 1987 at the request of a nearby resident who said drivers were running onto his property, according to Rana.

He told the traffic safety commission Sept. 7 the sign could be removed "without detriment to the intersection." The commission refused to follow his recommendation but will consider it again next month.

"They were concerned about pedestrian safety," Carmel Police Chief George Rawson said.

The sharp left-hand turn has a walking path on the north side of Fourth Avenue that Rana said is "very rarely used," but commissioners thought a "pedestrian crossing" or other warning sign should be posted at the top of the hill before the stop sign is removed, according to Rawson. Traffic heading in the opposite direction is not required to stop.

According to Rana's report to the commission, engineers determined in 1986 that no stop sign was warranted but called for a double-yellow line and warning of the steep grade, which were added. The council, however, sided with the resident and adopted a Jan. 6, 1987, resolution calling for a 90-day trial for the stop sign. Four months later, then-Mayor Clint Eastwood and his council made it permanent.

In his report, Rana recalled being challenged in court late that year after citing a driver for running the stop sign. Then-Traffic Commissioner Terrance Duncan, now a Monterey County Superior Court judge, "remarked he saw no reason for the stop sign to exist," Rana reported. "He stated to me in open court, words to the effect, 'I don't know why this stop sign is there. If future citations for this intersection come across my desk, they will be dismissed.'"

Despite that, more than 17 years later, the sign remains.

Rawson said he plans to return to the commission next month with recommendations on what other warning signs might be installed near the intersection if the stop sign is pulled. He asked anyone interested in the matter to direct comments to the Carmel Police Department.

Two officers say the stop sign can go, but the traffic commission disagrees

No shortage of ways to help hurricane victims

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITH WORKERS occupying every available space in the American Red Cross' small Carmel chapter house — including the garage — the Hurricane Katrina disaster relief effort continued this week as the nonprofit prepared to ship out another group of volunteers and train dozens more.

Classes have frequently grown so large they had to relocate to the Carmel Foundation or the youth center, according to disaster services co-chair Sandy Monza. A list on the inside of an office door at the chapter house shows dozens of volunteers who have been trained and deployed or who are set to leave.

Sept. 20 and 21 mark the next scheduled evening classes in mass care and shelter operations. Potential volunteers can take the prerequisite introduction to disaster relief course online at www.arccarmel.org by clicking on "disaster services," according to Monza.

Executive director Donna Duvin said there are also opportunities to volunteer for people who don't want to leave town, from logging donation checks to assembling training packets. A masseuse recently brought her massage table to the office and went to work relieving the accumulated stress of the volunteers putting in hours there, according to Duvin. She and her staff remain impressed by the generosity of local residents and business people, many of whom have found unconventional means of raising much-needed money for the nonprofit's disaster relief efforts. Several Carmelites have held garage sales to benefit the Red Cross, including Pine Cone writer Margot Nichols. Carmel Valley resident Bob Zampatti began offering his hand-woven baskets to any admirer willing to write a check to the Red Cross.

To donate, visit www.redcross.org or call (800) HELP NOW. To register for a training class or find out how else to help, call the Carmel chapter, located at Dolores and Eighth, at (831) 624-6921.

Katrina/tsunami benefit Sept. 22

The Monterey Peninsula group that flew to Thailand in February to help victims of last December's tsunami will host a Sept. 22 fundraiser to benefit tsunami victims and survivors of Hurricane Katrina. The Carmel Youth Center at Fourth Avenue and Torres Street will host the 7 p.m. event, which will include a talk by Bodhi Garrett, the Carmel Valley man who founded the North Andaman Tsunami Relief group. The evening will include a silent auction, a bake sale, a calendar signing, live music and hors d'oeuvres. Tax-deductible donations of any size will be accepted. For more information, call (831) 659-2402.

Slow Food for Katrina Sept. 25

A fundraising dinner will be held Sunday, Sept. 25, at 6 p.m. in the Pacific Grove home of Gabriela Forte, local coordinator of Slow Food, the international association founded in 1986 by Italian Carlo Petrini to promote food and agricultural biodiversity worldwide. According to its mission, Slow Food "opposes the standardization of taste, defends the need for consumer information and protects cultural identities tied to food and gastronomic traditions." It seeks to safeguard traditional methods of cultivation and processing, as well as preserve plant and animal species.

The New Orleans-style dinner, to be prepared by Forte with food and wine donated by Southern Latitudes, Mariquita Farm, Happy Boy, Bill Pereira, Gelato Massimo and Whole Foods Market, will cost $30 per person. All proceeds will support the "small farmers, artisans and fishermen who were devastated in this incredible tragedy," via Slow Food USA's Terra Madre Fund. The evening will include belly dancing by Jamaica Sinclair and a solo performance by jazzman Dennis Murphy.

Reservations should be made by Sept. 20 and can be secured at www.gabrielasfeast.com/slow_food.htm. Vegetarians who notify Forte in advance will be accommodated. Checks should be made to Slow Food and mailed to P.O. Box 1713, Carmel, CA 93921. For more information, call (831) 655-0505.

Cameras may be used to view monarch butterflies at sanctuary

By KELLY NIX

BECAUSE A large portion of the Pacific Grove Butterfly Sanctuary will be cordoned off to the public when it reopens Oct. 1, the city is considering using remote cameras so monarch-butterfly viewers can get a closer view.

"That's one of the things we are considering," said Paul Finnegan, director of the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History.

The sanctuary, located at Lighthouse Avenue and Ridge Road, was closed in December after a Monterey pine limb snapped and fatally injured Anne Dickinson Thomas, 85, of New York.

Following the fatal accident, the city identified dead trees that could fall without warning. The city removed 16 of them, but there are still trees that have been deemed unsafe, said city manager Jim Colangelo.

"The unit I found on the Internet is a remote wireless camera that you just hook up to a laptop," Finnegan said.

It costs about $200 and could be mounted near one of the eucalyptus trees where the butterflies gather.

"One of the challenges for viewing the monarchs is when their wings are closed, they look like dead leaves, so people think they aren't there," he said, adding that the camera would allow people to distinguish the difference.

Every October, monarch butterflies arrive in Pacific Grove, part of a long journey they make annually to escape the cold winters from as far as southern Alaska and the Canadian Rockies.

Monarchs cluster on pine and eucalyptus trees in Pacific Grove. Thousands of visitors come to the city each year to view the butterflies.

Binoculars and spotting scopes will be used first at the butterfly sanctuary before the city decides whether to purchase the cameras, Finnegan said.

"We are going to let the sanctuary open up first and see what the docents have to say," he said.

The museum teams up with Friends of the Monarchs to arrange for docents at the sanctuary.

The opening of the sanctuary was in question after a delay in cutting down the dead trees, but Colangelo said a portion of it will be open on time.

"People are asking me all over town, 'Is the butterfly sanctuary going to be open?'" said Ro Vaccaro, past president of Friends of the Monarchs, and Pacific Grove's resident "Butterfly Lady."

"By mid-October we expect to get 1,000 or so butterflies," Vaccaro said. "Then it begins to speed up, and more and more come in."

Historic designation fight escalates as appeals are filed

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MORE CARMEL property owners who object to their buildings being identified as historic — a designation that will become part of each house's title — are fighting the label. The historic resources board is set to hear two appeals Monday as three more wait in the wings. And on Wednesday evening, the city will host a workshop to explain the historic designation process and take questions, but not objections.

David and Audrey Hall, who own a house on Carmelo at 11th, and Joseph and Julie Villarreal, whose house is on Second Avenue north of Santa Rita, will state their objections to the historic designation of their homes Sept. 19.

The Villarreal's July 14 appeal form stated no particular errors in historian Kent Seavey's review of their "one-story, wood-framed, pre-World War II modern vernacular hip-roofed cottage," built in 1941 by Carl Daniels, who also worked on Hearst Castle, Community Hospital and the Carmel Middle School and founded the construction firm of Daniels & House.

But the Halls argued in their July 12 letter to the city that their Tudor Revival home, designed in 1926 by Robert Stanton — "the first 'professional' architect to run a major practice in Carmel," according to Seavey — was not considered historic in 1998 when they received approval for remodel plans and should not be now, after several exterior and interior changes.

The Carmel Historic Resources Board meets at 4 p.m. Sept. 19 in council chambers at city hall.

Preservation a violation?

Commercial building owner Paul Laub detailed his objections to the designation of the former Bank of Carmel building at Ocean and Dolores in an Aug. 15 letter to the city. Historian Richard Janick said the building should be preserved because it's the only 1930s Art Deco-style structure in Carmel, it was designed by Sunset auditorium designer C.J. Ryland, and artist Paul Whitman's bas relief carvings depicting Junipero Serra are intact.

But Laub said the city is violating church-state separation by requiring him to preserve the sculptures, one of which "could now be readily interpreted as being supportive of pedophilia," he wrote, following revelations of such activity in the Catholic church. He speculated the artist might have been "damaged in childhood."

"These reasons alone should be sufficient

Getting More for Less

By using longer life expectancies, lower insurance costs, and guaranteed policy riders we doubled this family's benefit for the same premium.

CLIENT SITUATION: Mrs. I was the survivor in a second-to-die whole-life policy that was purchased over a decade ago. The death benefit was $3,000,000 with an on-going premium of $30,000 per year. There was cash surrender value in the policy and the policy was owned by an irrevocable trust with her adult children as beneficiaries. The original insurance carrier's ratings have declined and the client was concerned about the safety of the company. The client's net worth had substantially increased over the years.

THE SOLUTION: After considering the various insurance carriers and the many alternatives we presented, the client and her CPA (who had referred the client to us) opted for a $6,000,000 policy issued on a no-lapse guaranteed basis utilizing a 1035 exchange (a tax free exchange of one policy to another). We doubled the money that Mrs. I's children will receive free of income tax, free of capital gains tax and free of estate tax without increasing her cost.

In 1930, Del Monte Properties Co., which created the Peninsula's water system, sold it to Chester H. Loveland on the stipulation that Del Monte Properties — developers of the subdivision now known as Pebble Beach — would get preferred rates for 50 years.

In 1935, after Loveland raised the rates for everybody else, a local movement was born. Some residents, upset over the increased rates, organized a public takeover. But the proposal was defeated at the polls by a 2-to-1 margin on June 4, 1935. That same year, Loveland transferred ownership of the water company to California Water and Telephone Co., another company he controlled.

The minimum charge for water in 1935 was $1.10 per month, and the value of the water system was estimated to be $1,895,070.

For the next 20 years, there was no new movement to gain public control over the water system. During that time, however, significant events occurred:

■ 1939: With tourism becoming an increasingly important part of the local economy, CW&T began selling water to five golf courses.

■ In 1948, CW&T built Los Padres Dam, primarily to supply water to the sardine canneries. The company raised rates by 15 percent.

■ In 1950, CW&T asked the California Public Utilities Commission for permission to raise rates by 43 percent. The PUC granted a 25 percent increase in 1952 and a 26 percent increase in 1957.

Spurred by the increases, the Pacific Grove City Council, led by councilman Ed Coffin, proposed a renewed move towards public ownership. Rates went up from $4.51 to $6.30 per month, depending where people lived. The rates, even before the hike, were some of the highest in the country, the Monterey Peninsula Herald reported. CW&T was serving about 22,000 customers at the end of 1957.

As the battle lines were drawn, every Peninsula city opposed the rates, and so did the United States Government, which objected to the costs of water service to military installations, local newspapers reported. Supporters of a public takeover, including Pacific Grove Mayor, Frank Shropshire, believed a public water district could provide much lower rates.

In August 1957, with CW&T squarely in their sights, the Peninsula Water District Committee was formed with the intent to buy the water system. Coffin was named the committee's chairman. The five Peninsula cities — Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey, Seaside and Del Rey Oaks — agreed to pay a San Francisco consulting firm $5,000 for a study to determine the feasibility of forming their own water district.

In April 1958, the firm's preliminary report found that public ownership of the Peninsula's water supply was feasible. The consulting firm estimated the water system, owned by California Water and Telephone, could be purchased by the public for $12,200,000.

The firm also found the purchase price could be paid entirely from the sale of water at the then-current rates, and no additional taxes would be necessary.

"It will be my strong recommendation that we take immediate steps to allow the people the choice of forming a water district," the Herald quoted Coffin as saying.

In June of that year, the water district committee gathered the 1,700 signatures necessary to place a measure on the Nov. 4, 1958, ballot. However, formation of a district did not mean the public was obligated to purchase the water company.

Approaching the election, newspaper reports indicate long and often heated meetings between committee members, who sometimes walked out during debates. One newspaper story profiled two men, Arthur Metz, a realtor and former Monterey councilman, and Carmel Martin, former mayor of Monterey, who were fiercely divided on the water issue in 1935 and again in 1958. Both men said it was a "hot" and "bitter" campaign between them.

Although the majority of the Peninsula Water District Committee was in favor of public ownership, there were a few officials were skeptical of it, including Monterey County Supervisor Thomson J. Hudson and Monterey Mayor Dan Searle, who was quoted as saying, "I just can't see it."

Despite the dissenters' voices, steps were taken to place a takeover measure on the ballot, which Searle predicted would be beaten so badly, "it won't even be funny."

He formed a group called The Truth About Water Committee, which fought the proponents of a public system. He argued a public system would mean "millions of dollars of debt, greatly increased taxes, and higher water rates."

In October 1961 the California Public Utilities Commission presided over hearings in Monterey to determine the fair market value of CW&T's holdings — a process that, to the surprise the water board, would take years.

After 18 months of hearings to determine the value of CW&T's Monterey Peninsula holdings, two widely different values were given. The water district said it estimated the system to be worth $10.8 million, while CW&T said the company was worth $24 million, a figure the PUC called "extreme."

But in September 1964, five years after the water district board had asked the PUC to determine the fair market value of the system, it still had not completed its findings. PUC hearings began Oct. 25, 1961. A news article reported the decision was "still a long way off," and costs had exceeded $677,000.

"I simply had no idea then — it far exceeded our farthest estimates of time and money," Coffin was quoted in 1964.

Takeover soundly defeated

Finally, after years of discussion, studies and drama, in the spring of 1965, the PUC estimated CW&T's holdings at $12,720,000, about half of what the company said it was worth and about $2 million more than the water district contended the price should be for the company.

It was then full speed ahead toward a Sept. 28 election. But with no water rate increase since the late 1950s, voters evidently weren't as passionate about eminent domain in 1965 as they were in 1958. They crushed the proposal by a 3-to-1 margin on election day.

In 1966, CW&T sold the company for more than $40 million to American Water Works, of which Cal Am is a subsidiary.

GREATER EXPECTATIONS

At the beginning of the 20th century, U.S. citizens could expect to live to age 47, and almost no one lived to 100. Today, we can expect to live to age 76, and about 50,000 centenarians currently reside in the U.S. One out of every 26 baby boomers will reach age 100. In short, you are likely to live longer than you ever expected. Are you prepared in terms of finances, lifestyle considerations, attitude, and health decisions? In the columns that follow, these and other issues will be explored for the benefit of young and old alike. As you keep abreast of new research that dispels widely held myths, you will be better prepared to meet the challenges ahead.

Welcome to our new column! Victorian Home Care's mission and promise to our clients is simple — to provide the best care possible, as many hours a day and as many days a week as we are needed. Comfort and compassion are our guiding principles. Founded in 1979, Victorian raises the quality of in-home care to a higher level. We assist older adults in maintaining their independence at home or in easing the transition to a new setting if needed.

P.S. The term "life span" refers to the biological limit of life for a species. For humans, this is about 115 to 120 years.

Citing lawsuit worries, council OKs Scenic pathway redo

By MARY BROWNFIELD

PAVEX CONSTRUCTION of Watsonville will receive $157,475 — $50,000 in state tax dollars and the balance from Carmel's capital improvement project reserves — to resurface the Scenic Road pathway between Eighth Avenue and Martin Way.

The contractor will use GraniteCrete, which is supposed to be more durable than the decomposed granite that lines the path now, according to city administrator Rich Guillen. The Carmel City Council voted 3-2 Sept. 6 to OK the contract.

Council members allocated $50,000 last year to repair the potholed pathway, but city engineer Clayton Neill said the work should be delayed to allow the city to test a few samples of the new surface material, according to Guillen. GraniteCrete is a combination of aggregate, gypsum, fine clays and colorant, according to the manufacturer, and was added to beach access paths at Pacific Grove's Asilomar State Beach in 2000.

The first test of the material produced a path that was too hard and too much like concrete, but the second "was more like the decomposed granite we're accustomed to," Guillen said, adding that DG lasts three to five years, while GraniteCrete lasts five to eight.

Pavex was the least expensive among the three contractors that bid, with Don Chapin and Granite Construction coming in more than $100,000 higher.

"We have ample reserve funds for this," Guillen said.

Councilman Erik Bethel, who handled mergers and acquisitions for Granite Construction before starting his own investment company, asked if the contractor would guarantee GraniteCrete's longevity.

"And would the city engineer be willing to stake his professional reputation on this new material?" he asked.

"I'm quite sure he would not," responded councilman Gerard Rose, who said only the manufacturer could offer a warranty.

Councilman Mike Cunningham worried more about the price tag.

"We set aside $50,000 to do this job, and now we're considering quite a bit more," he said. "It's a beautiful pathway — let's make it safe and make sure people do not trip — but $157,000? It's softened by grant money, but let's not forget that grant money is funded by tax dollars."

He advocated studying other options, including resurfacing part of the path or only repairing tripping hazards, such as the ruts and uneven transitions from the curb.

Former councilwoman Barbara Livingston, the only member of the public to comment, said, "The taxpayers are ready and waiting for the resurfacing of the beach pathway. They are very supportive of this project."

Mayor Sue McCloud said she would rather not go through the bidding process again, as Cunningham's search for cheaper alternatives would require.

"With what's happened after Hurricane Katrina, I think the building industry's view is that prices will go through the roof," she said. "And we need to get it done before the rain. I myself have fallen on that pathway several times, and I really think our liability is something we need to address."

Is it worth $157,000 to keep the Scenic pathway in good repair for five to eight years?

The council voted 3-2 in favor of the Pavex contract after a motion by Bethel to use DG rather than GraniteCrete failed for lack of a second.

The resurfacing should get under way this month and take about three weeks, according to Neill.

Brinton's raffle, open house to benefit PacRep and Meals on Wheels

SUPPORTERS OF Meals on Wheels and Pacific Repertory Theatre are invited to try their luck at winning a 2006 Mercedes-Benz Compressor or $25,000 cash.

Only 1,000 raffle tickets are available at $100 each, and more than half have already sold, according to Brinton's general manager Richard Uccelli. The winner will be drawn Friday, Oct. 7, at Brinton's 6th Annual Holiday Spectacular Grand Opening.

If every raffle ticket sells, Meals on Wheels and PacRep could share $68,000 to $75,000, depending on whether the winner chooses the cash or the car, which is being offered for the raffle by Stahl Motors at a reduced rate.

"What better way to combine the social services with the arts than to have one big fundraiser?" Uccelli said.

The winner need not be present to win, but the open house will offer wine and hors d'oeuvres and a preview of the holiday tent's contents before it's opened to the general public. For a $15 donation at the door, guests can wine and dine while shopping with a 15 percent discount. The holiday grand opening will run 6:30 to 9 p.m. Oct. 7.

Tickets can be purchased at Brinton's, Meals on Wheels in Pacific Grove, or PacRep at the Golden Bough Playhouse.

Tuesday. With the help of a growing list of sponsors, service groups and individuals, their Outfit in a Bag drive will enable full sets of clothing, separated and bagged by gender and size, to be shipped to Houston, Texas. The Junior League there will receive and distribute the new and "gently used" clothing, shoes, purses, accessories, pajamas, hats, new undergarments and other items. Gift bags are also needed.

"We got some space donated by the Crossroads — almost 1,400 square feet — and that place is packed already," Judy Tollner said. Donors can deliver goods to 137 Crossroads Blvd. behind the Rio Grill between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through Saturday through Sept. 26. "People are just so generous — they really want to donate to the survivors."

Volunteers from the Junior League of Monterey County are sorting and bagging the donations, and Chartwell School, Robert Louis Stevenson and All Saints' Day School are also helping. Tanimura & Antle will ship the goods to Houston. For more information, e-mail hurricane_katrina@sbcglobal.net.

Coldwell Banker workers donate $31,000

The Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Community Foundation is contributing $31,030 in donations from sales associates and employees in Northern California to the American Red Cross, the agency announced this week.

Coldwell's parent company, NRT Inc., contributed $100,000 and reported its agents and employees in more than 1,000 real estate offices around the country have raised more than $500,000. Their contributions will be presented to the Red Cross's hurricane relief fund next week.

P.B. Co. ups donation

Responding to the growing need for aid in the wake of the devastating hurricane, the Pebble Beach Company announced Sept. 7 it would increase its matching donations from 2:1 to 4:1, up to $60,000. It had earlier committed to donating $2 for every employee gift of $1. So far, employees have contributed almost $15,000, according to company vice president Mark Stilwell, so the company will forward a total $75,000 to be used in the relief effort. In addition, he reported the company raised about $4,500 by donating half of the greens fees paid by golfers at Del Monte Golf Course Monday.

Exploding camp stove burns homeless man, starts grassfire

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A TRANSIENT'S propane stove exploded, leaving him with third-degree burns from his waist to his neck and causing a small grassfire near Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road Wednesday afternoon, according to Cypress Fire Captain Tuan Flower.

A loose connection between the propane canister and the single burner allowed the flame to surround and heat the canister, which "exploded on him and caught him on fire as well," said Flower, who was on the first engine to arrive and attack the fire from the Carmel Valley Road side.

The second engine entered via Highway 1. "They found the gentleman crawling out of the brush, naked because all his clothes were burned. He collapsed when they saw him," Flower said. "His skin was peeling when we were tending to him."

The blaze spread to about 120 feet by 80 feet but was doused in 30 minutes by crews on engines from Cypress, Carmel Valley and the California Department of Forestry. An inmate crew from the California Department of Corrections' Gabilan Camp also helped, putting the total number of personnel at 39.

"It was in heavy brush that has been growing for a while," Flower said, but the fire did not threaten the nearby Barnyard shopping center. The victim was taken to Community Hospital and then airlifted to a medical center for treatment of his burns and respiratory problems, according to Flower.

Firefighters finished mopping up at 8:30 p.m., four hours after the initial call.

The Sept. 14 fire mirrored an incident in the same area two years ago, when a homeless man's camp stove exploded. Crews on duty at Cypress' Rio Road Station rushed to the area after the victim appeared at their door at 2 a.m. Aug. 20, 2003, naked and suffering from serious burns. They managed to put out the flames before any major damage occurred and sped him to the hospital.

C.V. grass fires

One hundred U.S. Forest Service and CDF firefighters successfully battled two grassfires at the east end of Carmel Valley Wednesday morning, according to CDF Battalion Chief Greg Furey. The first, at 10:49 a.m., covered 25 acres and required an attack from the air as well as the ground. Crews also used a bulldozer to corral it and defended a home nearby from the flames. Less than an hour later, another fire started nearby but only grew to an acre before an aircraft used in the earlier fire quickly extinguished it. Furey said the causes are under investigation.

Man struck with golf ball seeks $$ for medical bills, damage to cars

By KELLY NIX

A MAN who was bonked in the head by a golf ball near the Pacific Grove Golf Links has filed three claims with the city for nearly $7,000 for hospital bills and property damage.

Peter Cowley, whose parents live across the street from the P.G. municipal course on Crest Avenue, says an errant golf ball struck him while he was visiting them Feb. 17. He wants the city council to pay him $3,305.67 for medical bills which, he says could have been much higher.

"My mother's also been hit in the head," Cowley said to Pacific Grove City Council members at the Aug. 7 council meeting.

"I'm not suing for pain and suffering, I'm not suing for lost wages, loss of earnings, future loss of earnings," he told council members. "I just want you to pay the hospital bill."

Cowley passed around a digital camera to council members to show them a photo of several five-gallon buckets and garbage cans filled to the rim with golf balls that had been hit into his parents' yard.

Cowley this week declined to speak further about the issue until after it's been resolved. Records show he filed his first claim with the city in August, said Pacific Grove City Manager James Colangelo.

Cowley has also filed two other claims. The most recent one, filed Friday Sept. 9, seeks $400 to repair the fender of a Mercedes C230 that was hit by a ball near the 8th Fairway. The other claim, filed April 10, for $3,179, is to repair 15 dents on a 1992 Lincoln Continental, Colangelo said.

Also at the Sept. 7 meeting, Cowley told council members about another time a ball made contact with him at his parents' house.

"The next door neighbor saw me get hit in the back of the leg," he said. "I ended up with a 6-inch bruise up and down the backside of the knee."

He said he also requested from former city manager Ross Hubbard that the city place netting in front of his parents' home to deflect any stray golf balls, but Hubbard didn't think it was "cost effective."

Out-of-control golf balls in Pacific Grove last year were responsible for 25 claims for broken house windows, 12 claims for damaged vehicles and one other personal injury claim by a woman walking on the recreational trail who was struck. The city did not pay that claim, Colangelo said.

City council members will discuss the matter in closed session at the Sept. 21 meeting. Colangelo said it's actually the responsibility of golfers to pay for any damages they might cause.

"Golf clubs have changed, golf balls have changed, and that is why the problem has been significantly worse in the last few years," Cowley said. "And that's why we are becoming the victims. It's not a pleasant situation."

week picketers yelled "Teach your kids about labor rights!" as parents dropped off their children.

The picketing began several months ago, about the same time construction started, said principal Gari Ann Truscott.

Anzini said the protest is not intended to scare or intimidate parents or children but to be informational.

"Some parents are upset," Anzini said. "But we're here to assure them that we are not here to harm them."

But parents dropping off their children Wednesday said the protest was out of line.

"I believe in free speech, but I think they are taking it a little too far," said another parent, who asked not to be named. "I think the screaming is too much."

One picketer told a passing driver who inquired about the protest that the inflatable rat was "all in good sport."

On Monday, Monterey County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the school and wrote a report but did not arrest anybody, Anzini said.

Since DMC doesn't affiliate itself with the union, it does not have to adhere to union wages on private projects. But it is required to pay prevailing wages on public works jobs.

"We pay good wages and provide good benefits," said DMC owner Dan McAweeney. "Otherwise we wouldn't be able to keep people."

On public construction jobs such as public schools, McAweeney said DMC pays laborers about $32 an hour and carpenters about $40 an hour, plus benefits. On projects such as Stevenson school, which is private, DMC pays about 20 percent less, based on experience and other factors, he said.

"This really has nothing to do with the school," Truscott said. "Our children are safe."

Anzini said he was restricted in what he could say about the dispute. A union spokesman in San Jose did not return three phone messages.

The construction of the new multipurpose facility will be finished within a few weeks, Truscott said. It will include a dance classroom and a gym.

$40 an hour for carpenters and $32 for laborers isn't enough, the union says. But DMC says it pays fair wages

MJF: Three days of non-stop jazz

WHEN I first moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1976, the Monterey Jazz Festival had already established itself as one of the premier music festivals in the world. Featured in Clint Eastwood's 1971 directorial debut, "Play Misty For Me," the festival was, in fact, one of the things that inspired me to move to the West Coast.

Twenty-nine years and countless memorable performances later, the Monterey Jazz Festival Presented by MCI, now 48 years young, continues to grow in stature annually, showcasing some of the top names in the world of jazz.

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

With more than 500 artists performing on seven stages for three nonstop nights and days, the festival takes place this weekend, Sept. 16-18, at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Among the artists scheduled to perform, several are from New Orleans, including The New Orleans Jazz Vipers and this year's artist-in-residence, saxophone great Branford Marsalis. To help raise funds and promote relief efforts for Hurricane Katrina, the MJF is utilizing its website to direct viewers to the MusiCares Hurricane Relief Fund, a program administered through the Recording Academy to support victims from the New Orleans music community.

This year's jazz festival by the bay kicks off Friday evening with the return of sax giant Sonny Rollins, performing on the same stage where he helped launch the festival back in 1958. In another salute to the festival's past, saxophonist John Handy will revisit his classic 1965 performance, with a 40th Anniversary Reunion featuring many of the original members of his '65 quintet. Friday night's popular New Grooves Jazz Party at Dizzy's Den will feature John Scofield's Uberjam Band and Banyan, featuring Stephen Perkins.

Saturday afternoon's popular blues party features guitarist Larry Carlton and Sapphire Blue appearing with special guest MJF debut of legendary vocalist Tony Bennett; the world premier of Carla Bley Big Band's MJF-commissioned piece, "The Black Orchid;" and a "Tribute to Ray Charles," performed by the John Scofield Band with special guest Mavis Staples.

In addition to the inaugural performance by the Next Generation Festival's High School All-Star Big Band, Sunday afternoon's concert will feature performances by Marsalis and Lee Ritenour & Friends, with special guest Dave Grusin. The Main Arena concerts culminate Sunday night with the Pat Metheny Trio, Christian McBride and Marsalis. As always, many arena artists will be performing on grounds stages, including Marsalis, Scofield, Staples, John Handy, Carlton, Christian McBride and Ledisi.

Although tickets to the Main Arena are sold out, general admission grounds tickets, which offer access to six stages throughout the Monterey Fairgrounds are still available. For more information and tickets, call (831) 373-3366 or check out the festival's website at www.montereyjazz.org.

THE PERSONAL RESIDENCE BOUGHT WITH AN EXCHANGE

This may seem an unusual circumstance, but the recent real estate boom has raised strategies that few people had considered before. Let's say that, rather than sell your highly-appreciated home, you rented it out after refinancing or taking out a large home equity loan to get at a substantial portion of your home equity. Let's say further that you eventually exchanged the first home into several rental properties, one of which you occupied as personal residence after a few years of renting it out—perhaps making it a vacation or retirement home.

This raises an important question. Should you decide to sell that home, will the sale qualify for the $500,000 exemption from gains taxation, assuming you're married ($250,000 if you're single)?

The answer is probably yes—but there's a special rule, fairly recently enacted, covering this circumstance. If you originally obtained a home through an exchange and it later become your personal residence, you must own the property for a minimum of five years before you sell it. (You only need to own homes purchased as personal residences for two years.)

The more ingenious among you will have already considered exchanging your highly-appreciated home, after renting it out, into several residential rentals, which you live in sequentially, selling each after having owned it for five years and lived in it for two. Talk with your tax advisor about this! For more information on real estate call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

repertoire of early accordion dancehall tunes, pre-century fiddle tunes and Cajun swing. The following Friday, the BluesBox Bayou Band will take listeners down the traditional Zydeco road playing high energy dance hall music. Other shows scheduled for Monterey Live include San Jose bluegrass band Sidesaddle & Co. performing Saturday, Sept. 17; Hawaiian slack-key guitarist Ledward Kaapana, Monday, Sept. 19; Chicago blues artist Otis Taylor, Tuesday, Sept. 20; and Laurie Lewis, a founding member of the pioneering West Coast bluegrass supergroup The Good Old Persons, Saturday, Sept. 24. All performances start at 9 p.m. For reservations, call (831) 646-1415.

Sponsored by Sunset Center in collaboration with the Monterey Bay Blues Festival, the Rockin Blues Revue brings together three major blues artists with very diverse styles Wednesday, Sept. 21. "The Godfather of British Blues," harmonica master John Mayall, will be joined by four-time Grammy nominee, jazz-blues guitarist Robben Ford and folk blues singer songwriter Eric Bibb. Mayall, the pioneer of the British Blues scene of the '60s, helped launch the careers of many of Britain's leading blues instrumentalists including Eric Clapton, Mick Taylor of the Rolling Stones and Fleetwood Mac founders John McVie, Mick Fleetwood and Peter Green. Ford, a native Californian, has, during an impressive career, covered a lot of musical territory. He founded the seminal jazz fusion group The Yellow Jackets and performed with Miles Davis, George Harrison and Little Feat. Bibb, a recipient of four W.C Handy nominations, plays a more intimate, warm style of acoustic blues. Music starts at 8 p.m. For tickets and more information, call (831) 394-2652.

for the city to rescind its determination of historical significance," he argued. "Let this letter also serve as notice that I may wish to change the monk to a Buddhist priest sometime in the future."

Barry and Karen Long, and James and Kathleen Smart also filed appeals last month.

"Most of them are basically saying, 'We dispute the historical significance,'" planner Sean Conroy said of the appeals received so far.

The Longs' two-story, square, stucco home at Torres and Second "is an excellent example of the Modern housing movement in Carmel and contributes to the distinct character of the community of Carmel," according to historian Sheila McElroy.

Janick decided the Smarts' one-story, U-plan, wood-framed, flat-roof house on Seventh south of Forest is significant because it was designed by architect Jon Konigshofer and "utilizes modern materials and prefabrication building techniques."

While the appeal forms lack detail, that information will come when the appellants hire other historic preservation consultants to research their properties.

Wednesday workshop

Principal planner Brian Roseth plans to outline the historic designation process, which is called for in the Local Coastal Program approved by the state and adopted by the city last fall, for landowners at Wednesday night's workshop in city hall.

"This will be a presentation by city staff explaining how the historic preservation program got started, what the state requirements are — both from the California Environmental Quality Act and the coastal commission — and how historic resources are identified," he said.

He will describe the benefits of owning an historic resource and outline the appeal process for contesting a designation.

The city was set to begin recording historic designations with the county at the end of August but delayed so that property owners would have time to learn about what it means and respond accordingly. "We'll probably give two or three weeks to let people file appeals if they want to," Roseth said. "We'll give everybody time to digest the information at the workshop."

In addition, a written summary will be sent to property owners who live out of town. He asked anyone desiring to attend to call (831) 620-2010 or write to city hall, because seating is limited to about 50 people in council chambers.

"We will take questions," he said. "But this is not intended to be a debate."

The workshop will begin at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 21, and will be broadcast on KMST channel 26 at 8 a.m. Oct. 2.

Mission Fiesta to benefit Serra School

THE CARMEL Mission Fiesta will be held Sunday, Sept. 25, from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. to honor the mission's patron saint, Carlos Borromeo.

The free celebration begins with a procession from the basilica to the courtyard. After that, marimba and mariachi music will be played, and craft booths will be on display. Food, drinks and a full-course chicken or tri-tip dinner will also be offered.

The proceeds will benefit the Junipero Serra School, which was founded in 1943. The Carmel Mission is the second oldest in California.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA

CITY COUNCIL

ORDINANCE NO. 2005-04

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA AMENDING MUNICIPAL CODE CHAPTER 9.16 TO ALLOW LIVE MUSIC WHERE ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES ARE SOLD OR SERVED

WHEREAS, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is a unique community that prides itself on its residential character; and

WHEREAS, the City has adopted a General Plan and Municipal Code that strive to protect the village character through clear policies and regulations that guide property owners in the protection of the residential character; and

WHEREAS, during a November 2004 Town Hall meeting, the suggestion was made that the City consider allowing live music in appropriate locations within the commercial district; and

WHEREAS, on 11 May 2005, 8 June 2005 and 16 June 2005 the Planning Commission reviewed, took public testimony and forwarded Draft Ordinance 2005-04 to the City Council with recommendations; and

WHEREAS, on 5 July 2005 the City Council reviewed the Planning Commissions recommendations, received public comment and deliberated at length on Draft Ordinance 2005-04; and

WHEREAS, after further revisions and a second public hearing on 2 August 2005, the proposed ordinance was found to be consistent with General Plan goals, objectives and policies; and

WHEREAS, the proposed ordinance is categorically exempt from CEQA under 15305 Minor Alterations in Land Use Limitations and because application of the noise standards of 17.14.5.G as well as the required special and standard Use Permit findings would not result in a significant impact to the environment.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does hereby ordain as follows:

SECTION ONE. DEFINITIONS

9.16.010 Definitions.

For the purposes of this chapter the term "musical instrument" means and includes any and all instruments commonly used in orchestras, but shall not include radio or television sets. (Ord. 79-21 Sec. 24, 1979; Ord. 23 N.S. Sec. 1, 1942; Ord. 216 Sec. 3, 1939; Code 1975 Sec. 1002).

Municipal Code Section 9.16.020 Definition shall be amended as follows:

9.16.020 Dances and Other Public Entertainment

Except as provided in CMC 9.16.030 and

CMC 9.16.050, it is unlawful for any person to conduct or maintain or permit to be conducted or maintained public dances or any form of entertainment in or on any premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and served to the public within a period of time starting four hours before the commencement of such dance or entertainment, and ending at 2:00 a.m. of the next calendar day following the commencement of such dance or entertainment. (Ord. 2003-06 §1, 2003; Ord. 74 C.S. § 1, 1963; Code 1975 § 1000).

SECTION TWO. AMENDMENTS ALLOWING LIVE MUSIC.

Municipal Code Section 9.16.030 Playing Musical Instruments and Other Live Entertainment shall be amended as follows:

9.16.030 Playing Musical Instruments

A. General Exemption for Private and/or Temporary Uses. The Director of Community Planning and Building may authorize the playing of musical instruments with or without vocal accompaniment in conjunction with the sale or serving of alcohol during private (non-public) events and during temporary uses/special events open to the public, located on private property. All such events shall comply with section 17.14.5(G)(2) "noise restrictions". The Director shall authorize no more than four public events per calendar year, per property. Proposals exceeding this amount shall require a Use Permit consistent with all requirements established in section 9.16.030.B.

B. Special Exemption for Establishments Serving Alcoholic Beverages. Except as provided in CMC 9.16.050, it is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of selling and/or serving alcoholic beverages to the public within the City to play, cause or permit to be played any musical instrument or instruments with or without vocal accompaniment in or on the premises where such alcoholic beverages are sold and/or served to the public, without first obtaining a use permit issued by the Planning Commission. In approving such permits the Commission shall consider all of the following:

1. Use permits authorizing live music within any businesses establishment selling or serving alcoholic beverages shall be approved only for properties located in the Central Commercial (CC) and Service Commercial (SC) Districts. Within the Residential and Limited Commercial (RC) and Multi-Family Residential (R-4) Districts such permits shall be approved only for existing restaurants and bars located within hotel/motel establishments.

2. A Noise Management Plan, submitted by the applicant, shall (a) identify all noise-sensitive uses located within 200 feet of the proposed location (e.g. residences, residential care facilities, libraries, medical facilities), (b) establish the method by which noise impacts, including but not limited to, music and patron noise from within the facility as well as patrons/pedestrians outside of the facility on the adjacent public sidewalk/street will be regulated to avoid disruption to the immediate neighborhood and (c) identify the method for compliance with Section 17.14.5(G)(1) "noise restrictions".

3. An acoustical evaluation shall be prepared to qualify the noise levels and to suggest appropriate attenuation measures specific to the site.

4. Music performances shall be limited to hours between Noon and 10:00 p.m. daily. The Planning Commission may establish fewer hours to address specific circumstances unique to each site and permit.

5. All Conditional Use Permits shall require renewal every three years from the date of issue to remain valid. The Commission shall review public testimony, police reports and other available information to evaluate the success of the renewal process. The Commission may require changes to the Plan and/or new permit conditions as part of the approval. No permit shall be renewed if the authority to issue the permit has been removed through repeal, invalidation or sunset of this ordinance. Live music shall cease at any location that does not have a valid, unexpired permit.

6. A summary sheet of basic Use Permit requirements (allowed days, allowed hours, special mitigations) shall be posted on the premises or shall be available immediately upon request by any enforcement officer of the City. Permittees shall be monitored for Use Permit compliance by the City. Permittees shall be informed of violations and immediate compliance shall be sought and attained. Failure to comply and/or repeated violations shall be cause for the City to schedule a revocation hearing with the Planning Commission. At such hearings the Commission may:

- a. require changes in the Noise Mitigation Plan
- b. establish new permit conditions on hours, days, or operational characteristics, or
- c. revoke the permit.

Any three violations within any twelve (12) month period shall require revocation of the Use Permit by the Planning Commission.

9.16.035 Monitoring and Enforcement

A. Noise limits related to live music. On properties authorized to hold live music events per this Chapter, the maximum noise levels allowed from live-music activities located on the property shall be as follows:

1. For venues in the RC District or located within 300 feet of any R-1 District property: 50 db-A as measured at the exterior of the building or yard in which the live music is performed and no more than 45 db-A as measured at the property line of any other site in the vicinity of the use.

2. For venues on any other CC or SC District property: 55 db-A as measured at the property line.

B. Sound measurements shall be made using a sound level meter calibrated for the A-weighted scale. Periods with intermittent, exterior, peak noises from the surrounding environment above the allowed decibel limits (e.g. passing automobiles, pedestrians in conversation) that occur while music is being played shall not be used for compliance measurements.

C. For live music venues where there is a contiguous noise-sensitive use, the maximum noise level allowed from live music activities located on the property shall not exceed 40 db-A as measured inside the building occupied by the noise-sensitive use.

9.16.040 Recorded Music.

It is unlawful for any person, firm, business, or corporation located in any CC, SC, RC or R-4 Land Use District to play or permit to be played recorded or reproduced music on private property at a volume that produces a sound level exceeding 55 db-A as measured at the property line or produces more than 40 db-A inside any building occupied by a noise-sensitive use as defined in section 9.16.030.B.2.

9.16.050 Exemption

The Sunset Community and Cultural Center Theater and the attached buildings and grounds are exempt from the provisions of CMC 9.16.020, and 9.16.030; provided, however, that any such public consumption of alcoholic beverages at Sunset Community and Cultural Center allowed by this exemption shall be permitted only if it is by persons attending events booked at Sunset Center and is provided by Sunset Center-approved concessionaires. (Ord. 2003-06, Sec. 1, 2003).

SECTION FOUR. SEVERABILITY

If any part of this ordinance, even as small as a word or phrase, is found to be unenforceable such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

SECTION SIX. EFFECTIVE TIME PERIOD

This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after final passage and adoption. The provisions of this ordinance that allow live music in eating and drinking establishments shall expire on 1 October 2008 and no permits shall be issued or renewed after that date unless a successor ordinance has been adopted by the City Council.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 6th day of September 2005 by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: BETHEL, CUNNINGHAM, HAZDOVAC, McCLOUD
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: ROSE

commissioners believe should remain part of the Mission Trail Nature Preserve.

The parcel of land leased or sold with the mansion should be reduced to match the .87-acre lot that originally held it. In 2000, the city council decided the mansion should have 1.25 acres, but tighter boundaries would interfere less with hiking and fire-road access, the planning commission said.

But the size of the lot carved from the nature preserve is irrelevant to the question of whether Flanders Mansion is a park, commissioners felt.

Strid said the city's general plan and zoning code refer to Flanders as open space, parkland, improved parkland or park. "Nowhere in the documents can I find it referred to as anything else," he said.

To sell parkland, the city must hold hearings and accept protests. The council could then overrule the protests with a two-thirds majority vote and proceed with the sale or voluntarily call for a special election. If the council does not overrule the protest, the matter would go on the ballot.

But maintaining the status quo is no option, either, they said, because the already deteriorating mansion would fall into further disrepair.

"It's unfortunate the city, as a steward of this property, has not paid attention to it, when they require those of us who are owners of historic homes to maintain them," Culver said.

Reduce lot size

Regardless of the mansion's fate, most of the 21 mitigation measures called for in the EIR should be followed, and commissioners also OK'd the monitoring and reporting program that would implement them.

Two measures were axed: one suggesting a hired consultant prepare "a historical narrative and large-format photographs" to document Flanders before any work is undertaken, and another requiring a private occupant to open the home to the public twice a year.

Wilson said the first would do little more than give another consultant a job, and the second would be "an unwarranted invasion of privacy."

And fearing that requiring the mansion to serve as a private home could cause legal trouble down the line, the commission did not specify how it should be used. Its "improved parkland" zoning permits use as a home, senior residence, family day care, club or lodge, community center, small conference facility, government offices, museum or gallery, hotel or motel, or movie or live theater.

Recording on the deed that it should only be used as a residence would constitute "tacitly rezoning it without getting the required approvals from the coastal commission," Culver said.

The California Coastal Commission is well known for favoring public access and visitor-serving uses.

The commission's recommendations now move to the city council.

The town hall meeting on Flanders will be held at city hall Friday, Sept. 16, at 4 p.m., and the council is set to vote on the EIR and fate of the mansion at a special meeting, also in city hall, at 5 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 22. That hearing will be televised on KMST channel 26 on Sept. 25 at 8 a.m.

Will anyone want to spend millions renovating a house where he's only a tenant?

...at the still point of the turning world.

All good things in moderation

By Steve Leonard

Monterey Peninsula residents are the leaders in wise water use over almost every major community in the United States.

Despite community efforts – and near-record rainfall early in the year – the need to conserve remains with us.

Why? Nearly 70 percent of local water comes from the Carmel River or wells that draw from the Carmel Valley Aquifer. These have been the principal sources of water on the Peninsula for over a century.

In 1995, the State of California issued an order mandating an immediate 20 percent reduction in water usage and requiring California American Water find a permanent replacement water supply for the Carmel Valley Aquifer. Failure to comply could result in steep fines to Peninsula water users.

To further complicate matters, the Carmel River is home to the Central Coast California Steelhead Trout and the California Red Legged Frog, both of which are listed as threatened under the Federal Endangered Species Act.

Every gallon of water that stays in the river reduces the need for water rationing and improves survival chances for these and other threatened species.

Using Water Wisely

California American Water has demonstrated its commitment in this area over the last several years by sponsoring a variety of water conservation programs that stress the importance of maximizing our water resources to protect the environment.

In addition, the California American Water team works with volunteer groups to rescue and relocate Steelhead Trout along the river.

California American Water has distributed more than 43,000 free water saving devices to help Peninsula residents reduce indoor and outdoor water consumption.

Working with our customers, we have seen a 30 percent reduction in the volume of water drawn from the Carmel River and a 37 percent decline in total per capita water usage since 2001.

That is an impressive track record, and we salute our customers for their hard work. However, the only way we can “guarantee” enough water for everyone and protect the Carmel River is by creating a new water supply.

That’s what California American Water is doing with the Coastal Water Project, a proposed desalination plant.

A Sustainable Water Supply

After years of research, careful analysis and input by an independent team of experts, California American Water has identified a cost-effective, sustainable and environmentally friendly solution to the water challenge on the Monterey Peninsula.

The Coastal Water Project is the right project at the right time and solves what Peninsula residents realize is a very serious problem. It is in its early stages, but progress happens every day.

Until we have solved Monterey’s water shortage, moderation remains the key to ensuring a stable water supply. The more we work together to stay within strict water limits, the greater the benefits to you, our wildlife and our environment. We thank you for your support.

If you would like additional water conservation information, free water saving devices or details, please email us at monterey@amwater.com or call (888) 237-1333.

Radio show, seminar for ‘goddesses’

THE TWO women who host the Goddess to Goddess Empower Hour on KCDU 101.7 FM — billed as “a fun and inspirational Sunday morning show that offers practical and inspirational information on how to empower yourself to improve the quality of your life personally, professionally, physically and spiritually” — will present a seminar at the Carl Cherry Center Sept. 24.

Carmel resident Lily Hills and Karen Hudson of Pacific Grove encourage women “to take care of ourselves like we would our best friend, being compassionate, loving and supportive,” Hills said. Their radio show airs Sundays from 9 to 10 a.m. The seminar, from 1 to 5 p.m., will cost $60 per person. To register, visit www.goddesstogoddess.com or call (831) 622-9864.

constantly seeks new angels who transport not only patients, but occasionally transplant organs, mother’s milk and even seeing-eye dogs, and the nonprofit will also have an information booth at the air races.

Although it claims about 1,500 members, only 600 actively volunteer, and soaring fuel prices are threatening their ranks. Last week, jet fuel was selling for $5.06 per gallon at Million Air, where Wood keeps the L-39 and his six-seat JetProp, the plane he uses for Angel Flight transports. He said jet fuel ran about $2.25 several months ago.

“And many of our pilots also rent planes, so they have the cost of the rental plus the cost of fuel,” Wood said. “That adds up to a big number.”

Member pilots volunteer for missions identified by social workers at hospitals and posted on the Angel Flight website.

“As the day of the potential mission approaches, the coordinators start sending out begging e-mails and telephone calls,” Wood said. “And then by the time they’re one day away and pretty desperate, they know they can call us.”

He was referring to himself and retired U.S. Navy Rear Admiral Skip Armstrong. The men have a combined 12,800 hours of flight time — Armstrong in almost every type of aircraft in the Navy’s fleet — and have flown more than 40 missions this year. (They are also included on the U.S. Department of Homeland Security’s list of available pilots, though neither has been called up for a mission. If needed, they must respond within six hours of a call.)

“We fly together if we can,” Wood said. “Unless we’re mad at each other,” Armstrong added.

Last Tuesday morning, they flew from Monterey Airport to Reno, not for the upcoming races, but to retrieve a man and his wife.

“She had a medical condition being treated at UCLA and has flown with Angel Flight several times before,” Wood said. “The reason we made arrangements to meet at Stead rather than at Reno-Tahoe airport was because gas was about a buck cheaper.”

With a tank capacity of 151 gallons, that difference is considerable.

In addition to watching his former Russian military training jet race and staffing the Angel Flight booth, Wood will represent the Classic Jet Aircraft Association and the Experimental Aircraft Association, where he serves on the board of directors and acts as liaison with the Federal Aviation Administration.

From fighter jet to race jet

Last Friday, Wood had the Angel Flight logo applied to his race jet, as well as his name, Armstrong’s name and the name of his race pilot, Lee Behel. Number 7’s years of racing at Reno, which introduced the Jet Class in 2002 and elevated it from an exhibition event to competition for money last year, are also listed.

A retired fighter-jet pilot who lives in San Jose, Behel has said he relishes the chance to fly Wood’s plane, which has 3,700 pounds of thrust, compared with the 23,000 pounds generated by a U.S. Air Force F/16. Long involved in the air races, Behel helped establish the highly competitive Sport Class of lightweight turbo and non-turbo prop airplanes in 1998.

Last year, Behel was running well in the Jet Class but cut a corner and was assessed a time penalty, so he finished toward the rear of a field that included L-39s weighing much less, and flying much faster, than Wood’s.

But Behel has years of flight experience and is adept at banking the L-39 at 80 degrees around the pylons that mark the course’s corners. His specialty in the Air National Guard was flying reconnaissance 100 feet off the ground at 500 or 600 mph, and he said the key to high-speed turns is to maintain a consistent 3 Gs — or three times the force of gravity — and anticipate them well enough ahead of time to take them smoothly.

But where his plane finishes actually matters little to Wood, who enjoys watching it race and hopes it will help spread the word about Angel Flight.

“We’re going up there for the fun and the competition — certainly not to make any money, because the purse is pretty minuscule and the price of gas is pretty extraordinary,” he said. “It’s a fun way to spend the week.”

The 42nd annual National Championship Air Races at Reno, running through Sept. 18, markets itself as “the only place in the world where you can see five days of real air racing by six classes of aircraft up close and personal.” Slower classes, such as biplanes, race around a shorter course, while faster aircraft, like the jets and those highly modified World War II planes that exceed 500 mph in the popular Unlimited Class, are flown on a longer course. Other classes include T-6, Sport and Formula One.

The races are accompanied by displays of historic aircraft, aerobatic acts and military flight demonstrations. For tickets and information, visit www.airrace.org. For more information on Angel Flight, visit www.angelflight.org.

Max's Grill showcases French-California cuisine with Japanese fusion

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

MAXIM'S OF Paris, for more than a century the touchstone for French cuisine at its grandest, was the demanding classic school of instruction for Hisayuki "Max" Muramatsu.

He was awarded first prize in an international culinary competition of Les Toques Blanches in 1984, and a mention of excellence in the 1985 Prix Premier Taittinger in Paris. He was honored as North American outstanding chef by the Chefs of America in 1993, '94 and again in '95.

This Japanese native with a passion for French cuisine and a talent for fusion, prevails as executive chef at Max's Grill on Forest Avenue in Pacific Grove six nights a week. Proprietor of the restaurant with his wife, Yuko, Chef Max gives full rein to his creativity in the kitchen while Yuko runs the front of the house, greeting and seating patrons with friendly ease.

So impressed with his culinary ability was the management of Maxim's that after several years it sent him to Tokyo, his home town, in the role of garde manger at Maxim's of Tokyo.

That was his jumping-off spot to the United States. Backed by a Tokyo entrepreneur, Chef Max opened The Golden Hawk Japanese restaurant in Carmel-by-the-Sea which he ran successfully from 1990 to 1993. But with a decline in the Japanese economy, Max's backer was forced to close The Golden Hawk and invited Max back to Tokyo for another restaurant position.

By this time, Max and Yuko had fallen in love with America and decided to stay here and put Max's knowledge of French cooking technique and culinary skills to the test in a restaurant they opened on Ocean Avenue, Brasserie Q-Point. After two years, Carmel restaurateur Anton Salameh bought the restaurant and changed its concept to California casual cuisine and its name to The Grill on Ocean Avenue, with Max continuing as chef.

Pleased with the quality and inventiveness of everything coming out of the kitchen, Salameh transferred Max to his elegant Anton & Michel restaurant on Mission in the Court of the Fountains, making him executive chef. Chef Max loved the autonomy in the kitchen combined with the closeness of the Salameh family with his. "They were so close, so supportive," Max said. In fact, when Max and Yuko decided it was time to open their own establishment, the Salamehs supported and encouraged Max to go out on his own. "I wanted to make my own food my own way from scratch. I love food, wine, service — the whole package," Chef Max said.

In 2003 they selected a good location at 209 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove which then housed the Asian restaurant, Chopsticks, retaining the entire staff of servers. Renaming the restaurant Max's Grill, Max went about creating a menu composed of French-California cuisine with Japanese fusion using French cooking techniques — all from scratch. He even makes his own ciabatta bread.

While he indulged his creativity in the kitchen, Yuko transformed the interior with paintings, some from their own home, white tablecloths and potted orchids. Bright pink impatiens mingle with purple lobelia in window boxes outside on Forest, and white jasmine is beginning to climb from a large sidewalk planter.

Glancing over the entrée menu, one finds originality bristling from the page. For example: Duck and Duck combines confit-style leg of duck and duck mousse ravioli, topped with orange sauce ($17.95); roasted rack of lamb is served with Dijon mustard, lavender honey mustard and mashed potatoes ($23.95); and chicken breast fricassee sautéed in garlic and topped with artichoke cream is served with potato gnocchi ($17.95).

The 12 entrées include service of a cup of housemade soup, a different recipe each day, or a house or Caesar salad. Seven appetizers are offered from $6.95 to $8.95. Salads and soups run $3.50 to $6.50, and desserts from $4.25 to $6.95.

But a great bargain awaits diners who don't mind a really early dinner — from 5 to 6 p.m. For $13.95, one may have a cup of soup, a salad and a choice from six entrées, including grilled calamari steak, Dungeness crab cakes, chicken piccata, braised lamb shanks, a bistro fillet steak and fresh fish of the day.

Yuko and Max Muramatsu drink a toast to their patrons at Max's Grill in Pacific Grove. Executive chef Max is fulfilling his dream of cooking in his own restaurant, creating all items on the innovative menu from scratch.

Every night, as well as the regular menu, a Tonight's Specials menu of appetizers and dinners is offered, enabling Chef Max to prepare fish, meat, poultry, vegetables and fruit in season or that have become available that day.

Asked to suggest a menu for first-time diners at Max's Grill that would best showcase his culinary style, Chef Max recommended either P.G. sushi rolls, "a rainbow of tuna, snapper and smoked salmon" ($8.95), or tempura ahi tuna rolls served with wasabi and sweet ginger ($7.95).

As an entrée, perhaps a roasted rack of lamb or, as on this week's Wednesday's Specials menu, a grilled New York steak or rib-eye steak (both 10 oz.) with a choice of blue cheese or green peppercorn butter ($23.95).

For dessert, Chef Max suggested a fresh Hawaiian mango mousse cake ($5.95) — a dessert he created when he was chef at The Grill on Ocean Avenue.

The restaurant is open nightly, except Monday, from 5 to 9 p.m.. For reservations, call (831) 375-7997.

At Forge and Cypress Inn: What a difference a dog can make

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

WHEN THE world's economy was primarily agrarian, dogs had to work for a living, were usually kept outside and didn't get much attention from their owners.

But in the 20th-century world of suburbia and big cities, dogs made their way indoors and became part of the family. Now more than ever, people craving companionship have discovered that a dog really can be man's or woman's best friend, and there is a growing demand to include pets in social activities, including dining out.

If you're a dog master or mistress, you know that rare is the dog that likes being left at home. In most parts of the country, equally rare are public establishments ready to roll out the red carpet for canine friends. Just mention the phrase "pet-friendly restaurant" and the response is typically, "Where?" Luckily, the answer is often, "Carmel."

In California, pets are not allowed inside restaurants because of health laws. However, many restaurants will allow furry guests to dine on the patio with their owners and some, such as Forge in the Forest, at the corner of Junipero and Fifth, offer a special menu just for Fido. Forge in the Forest's Dog Pound Menu features cleverly coined entrées, such as The Quarter Hounder, Hen House Chicken Strips and Plain Ol' Kibble.

Recently, all aglow in post-Bouchée bliss, my boyfriend and I stopped into the newly renovated Cypress Lounge at the dog-friendly Cypress Inn, for a nightcap. Owned by animal-lover Doris Day for more than 20 years, I figured, "Where else can a girl wear Prada heels and a party dress sip martinis with her pooch at her side?"

Plus, I'd heard good things about Chef Chris Romis' new small-plate menu. As we cozied up to bearded bartender extraordinaire Drago Cvetkovic's small bar, we immediately engaged in conversation with the owners of an enthusiastic Samoyed named Bodhi. Flanked by colorful Doris Day posters of "Calamity Jane," "Pillow Talk," and "Teacher's Pet," the low-level tables and pillowed seating area are quirky, yet intimate. Add dogs to the mix, and conversation amongst strangers is inevitable — a welcome change from the "mind-your-own-business" mentality at many bars. "Dogs are the great bond between strangers," said Cvetkovic. "What else encourages people to get up, cross a room and talk to someone they don't know?"

In a time when human camaraderie and compassion are critical, his words resonated with me, and I saw the lounge as more than just a sexy Casbah-esque drinking hole.

I decided to take my sweet brown beast, Gus, back for some "yappetizers" a few nights later. At 5:15 p.m. on a Saturday evening, the canine-to-customer ratio was nearly equal. The click of toenails on the tiled lobby floor harmonized with the clinking of collars and tags, as owners paraded their well-groomed pets to hotel rooms.

"Friday nights between 5 and 7 are the busiest with dogs," said Cvetkovic. "Everyone is checking in for the weekend, and the dogs sometimes outnumber the guests. Except when it's a wedding party, when they usually leave the dogs at home."

In a town where dogs wear the finest of canine couture and bow-wow bling, the dress code to sup with your Spaniel at most dog-friendly establishments is quite simple: Leashes and best behavior are required.

As the dogs lavished love on one another, the chatter and laughter among the two-legged guests clearly increased. People raised their glasses and freely shared small plates of sophisticated morsels (very reasonably priced and delicious, I might add). A chow mix named Sophie sat impatiently at her owner's feet, hopping to attention with each passing dog. A white ball of fluff wearing way too many pink bows matched her mistress's fashion ensemble to a tee. A gentle old Australian shepherd encouraged other dogs to meet and greet one another. Gus wagged his tail without abandon at each passing potential friend. Even if you aren't a natural-born dog lover, it's hard not to smile at the built-in entertainment provided by the four-legged interactions. A good time was had by all until Sophie let out a growl and her owner swiftly escorted her away for a time-out. Within moments, the spirited scene was back in full swing, and the dogs were center of attention once more.

Errol Garner day honors his Sunset Center album

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE CARMEL City Council has proclaimed Monday, Sept. 19, as "Erroll Garner at Sunset Day."

On that date in 1955, Erroll Garner, a jazz pianist and composer, came to the theater at Carmel's Sunset School and performed a memorable concert.

The concert, which also featured Eddie Calhoun (bass) and Denzil Best (drums), was recorded and released by Columbia Records under the title "Concert by the Sea."

This album is generally acknowledged to be the best recording Erroll Garner ever made. It is among the 100 or so albums most treasured by jazz enthusiasts around the world and is one of the ten top-selling live jazz concert recordings of all time. So, while the world is gathering to celebrate Jazz at the Monterey Jazz Festival this weekend, Carmel is getting ready to celebrate its own milestone jazz event.

"The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is proud to be a neighbor of the great Monterey Jazz Festival. By being the site of Erroll Garner's greatest recording 50 years ago, we helped pave the way for the Monterey Jazz Festival and contributed directly to the American jazz legacy in a pretty big way for a small town," said Mayor Sue McCloud.

Carmel's jazz radio station, KRML 1410 AM (of "Play Misty for Me" fame), is working with the city to produce an appropriate 50th anniversary event at the newly remodeled Sunset Theater in the coming months. The event will feature some Garner era musical nostalgia plus great live jazz tributes to Garner, and will benefit the Carmel Youth Center and its jazz instruction projects. On Erroll Garner at Sunset Day, KRML, which broadcasts from the Eastwood building at Fifth and San Carlos, will feature Erroll Garner recordings and compositions in all of its regular programs.

Flanders Mansion is not a park

TWO WEEKS ago, we pointed out that the “issue” of Cal Am’s foreign ownership is a red herring — that is, something irrelevant put forth by the company’s critics to distract attention from the paucity of their other arguments in favor of a public takeover.

Likewise, the debate over Flanders Mansion has its own large, red fish: The question of whether the old place is a “park.” Clearly, it is not. Not if the word “park” is to have the meaning it has had for centuries. A survey of dictionaries suffices to make this point:

Webster’s New World Dictionary, Third College Edition: 1. wooded land held as part of an estate or preserve. 2. an area of public land, with walks, playgrounds, etc., for recreation.

American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, New College Edition: 1. a tract of land set aside for public use, as: a. an expanse of enclosed grounds for recreational use within or adjoining a town. b. a landscaped city square. c. a tract of land kept in its natural state. 2. A stadium or enclosed playing field. 3. A country estate, especially including extensive gardens, woods, pastures and game preserves.

Encarta.com: 1. a publicly owned area of land, usually with grass, trees, paths, sports fields, playgrounds, picnic areas, and other features for recreation and relaxation. 2. an area of land reserved and managed so that it remains unspoiled, undeveloped, and as natural as possible.

Can a large, old house with a driveway and just enough grounds to give its (future) owners a sense of privacy, and which has never been used for any public purpose, possibly meet one of these definitions? Of course not.

If the city council, in its determination to raise money for capital improvements elsewhere in town, were to raise of the value of Flanders Mansion by attaching a substantial portion of the Mission Trail Nature Preserve, opponents of the sale would have justification for decrying the loss of public parkland. But with only a little more than one acre of its own land allocated to the mansion, there is simply no reason for them to constantly accuse Mayor McCloud and her colleagues on the council of supposedly wanting to sell a park. When critics of the sale raise the issue, it is with the hope their neighbors will be misled and become alarmed.

Flanders Mansion has little or no civic value. The fact that a small group of diehards love the place and dream of it being turned into a museum or other public facility is not sufficient reason for the entire city to be saddled with the cost of making that dream come true.

LandWatch’s endorsement

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the 900 members of the Carmel Valley Association, I would like to warmly thank LandWatch Monterey County for its “unanimous and enthusiastic” endorsement of the Town of Carmel Valley. As many Pine Cone readers already know, LandWatch is our county’s premier land use organization. It fights urban sprawl, tries to save agricultural lands for future generations of farmers, and supports grassroots democracy and accountable governance throughout the county.

Like LandWatch, CVA has led our community in trying to preserve Carmel Valley’s rural character and open spaces. We are leading the fight against subdivision sprawl and traffic gridlock in Carmel Valley, but it remains an uphill struggle. Huge proposed subdivisions in Carmel Valley like Rancho Cañada (281 houses), Agha (172 houses) and September Ranch (109 houses) threaten our way of life. Indeed, already approved projects and undeveloped parcels in the C.V. Master Plan area will put an additional 15,000 car trips daily on our roads at build out. That represents a doubling of traffic on Carmel Valley Road. For more details on these developments, please see our website www.carmelvalleyassociation.org.

LandWatch and CVA both recognize that incorporation represents Carmel Valley’s last, best option to preserve what we love about our community. Sticking with the county will only bring more unwanted development and clog our roads with even more traffic. Given that four out of the five county supervisors are not accountable to the people of Carmel Valley, we are effectively trapped in a situation of taxation without representation.

I encourage all Pine Cone readers to join with LandWatch and the Carmel Valley Association in supporting a Town of Carmel Valley.

Glenn E. Robinson, President
Carmel Valley Association

Econ 101

Dear Editor,

Another way to reduce gas consumption, other than rationing or closing down gas stations (Sept. 9), is to conserve! Yes, use less gasoline! And how to do that? Drive less, plan your trips carefully, carpool and buy more energy-efficient cars!

But why should the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea even care about promoting fuel conservation? The city doesn't provide free parking for vehicles that get better than 40 miles per gallon. The city does not have electric shuttle busses like many other cities. The city does not provide electric charging points for zero-emission vehicles. The city does not have a fleet of electric utility carts and golf carts for its maintenance and law enforcement personnel. The city does not have a fleet of electric carts that visitors could rent and use. The city does not encourage bicycle use (bike lanes and bike parking racks). The city does not provide for motorcycle and scooter parking (yes, these vehicles get better than 40 miles per gallon). In toto, Carmel just doesn't care about reducing gasoline use! Or America's dependency on Middle Eastern oil.

Maybe if the city took the lead and started providing some of these items, it could set the example for other cities to follow. Imagine: the city of Carmel being a leader in energy conservation! Instead of just following the market forces. And one could only imagine what the streets of Carmel would look like, other than one big, giant, parking lot!

Dale Karr, Carmel

Editor's note: The city uses two zero-emission vehicles and provided a third to Sunset Center. There is motorcycle parking in several places downtown.

Slow down city

Dear Editor,

What's the rush Why is the City of Carmel in such a hurry to sell parkland and cultural resources? As your paper has covered so well, the final environmental impact report is out and says that the most environmentally sensitive alternatives for our Mission Trail Nature Preserve are: alternative number one: "No project" (no sale of Flanders property); alternative number two: Leasing the Flanders property to a family (life estate) or to a nonprofit. Either of these two options, proposed by the city's own consultants, would retain parkland and Flanders in city ownership, while rehabilitation would no longer be a burden to the city. This seems completely sensible to me.

Rather than rush pell mell into a sale, I say, "Slow down, city," and let us residents have a chance to read and understand our alternatives because, "once assets are gone, they are lost forever."

Vi Fox, Carmel

Picking charities

Dear Editor,

I was interested to read that the Carmel City Council voted unanimously to spend $10,000 of taxpayers' money to assist in the hurricane disaster. Disaster relief is certainly a very worthwhile cause. However, I don't from shore as two people drowned in Pebble Beach.

"They fell off the rocks, and we couldn't do anything to get to them," said Flower. "We had to figure out how to make our rescue efforts more effective."

He said the new rocket already proved useful during a rescue this summer at Monastery Beach, which is nicknamed Mortuary Beach due to the frequency of scuba divers and others who have drowned there.

for everybody to use."

Nevertheless, training and routine practice are crucial. "If you're well trained, you'll get better distance," Flower said.

Cypress firefighters purchased their first launcher in the early 1990s, after rough seas and dangerous rocks left them watching

What would Mexico do?

Dear Editor,

Proponents of political correctness should try the following sometime: Take your family and friends and move to any town in Mexico. Despite the fact that you've violated their immigration law, the government generously offers you the chance to become a legal citizen by learning the laws, language, culture and history. You refuse. You then demand that all police, fire, medical and educational personnel learn English.

Further, you demand that you and your family receive free, taxpayer-funded medical and educational benefits. When the Mexican taxpayers get upset about this and start to complain, you mount a propaganda campaign to label them all as racists, and they quickly learn to keep their mouths shut. Starting sometime next year, Mexican citizens living in Mexico will be able to collect American Social Security benefits paid for by you, the American taxpayer, after working here two years. No country in human history has even survived what is being done to this one. Unless you want your children to inherit a broken-down, third-world cesspool, contact your representatives and demand that immigration laws already on the books be enforced now.

RICKY BOUINEAU, a Lhasa apso who will be celebrating his 16th birthday Sept. 20, lives in Carmel Woods with Mom Renée, Grandmama Eva and four feline siblings: Sisters Mitzi, Milly and Hella-Sue, and brother Giuseppe. Why the name Giuseppe for a cat? "Because he looks so Italian," Mom Renée explained. Mom and Grandmama have lived here since 1956, and all the others came along over the years. Ricky has been with them since 1989, when the Doris Day Animal Foundation led Renée to him when he was 10 months old.

Ricky gets along famously with all animals, and while he doesn't exactly play with his feline housemates, he'll sit with them companionably in a family group or share a bed with them.

Ricky, named after Little Ricky of "I Love Lucy" fame, has four beds sprinkled throughout the house, but his favorite is the heated one, which is soothing to his bothersome arthritis.

An inveterate and enthusiastic traveler, Ricky has crossed the country a number of times by plane and by car. Twice the entire family moved from the Monterey Peninsula, first to Virginia, and then to North Carolina. Ricky was as good as gold during the long drives, but the cats kept up a steady caterwauling for the first 30 miles on both trips in both directions before lapsing into a resigned, sullen silence.

Although they had intended to stay permanently in Virginia, they only lasted six months, then crammed into the car again and returned to the place they all love so much.

But as time went by, wanderlust struck again, and the family moved to North Carolina, this time necessitating two trips and two cars. Exhausted by the move, they rested for four years before once more being pulled by their heartstrings to Carmel.

They have been here now for two-and-a-half years and have no intention of budging from Paradise.

"Carmel Legends"

One of the problems afflicting the Carmel Post Office at this time of year is the presence in our community of one MR. S. CLAUS. Actually his name is SIMON, but many people (including some children) insist on misreading that. And therefore Mr. Claus gets scads of mail at this time of year, further clogging up the holiday laden traffic. The truth is, he occupies a substantial igloo at the Far North of Carmel, near the Father Serra statue. He employs a number of elves who work diligently throughout the season, mostly answering the mail and creating sugar plums. (They are licensed by Harry & David as exclusive manufacturers of these delicacies). Mr. Claus explains that he was drawn to Carmel some years ago by the temperature of the ocean water which, he says, is roughly equivalent to the offshore tides at Point Barrow, his former home. "I decided to retire," he says, "after a few lifetimes of making and delivering toys to good little girls and boys around the world. And I chose Carmel." Well, that makes sense to us. We have always believed in SANTA CLAUS, and his decision confirms our faith. "I intend to stay here," he adds, "though I would appreciate it if you don't noise this about."
