Coastal commission staff: Most P.B. land cannot be developed

By KELLY NIX

THE PINE forest of the Monterey Peninsula has dodged the threat of pitch canker but is still in "great peril," according to the staff of the California Coastal Commission, and should be off-limits to most development — including a golf course proposed by the Pebble Beach Company.

Speaking to a packed house at the Monterey Hyatt Thursday, senior coastal commission biologist John Dixon said the loss of native Monterey pine forest habitat is a "serious and unrelenting threat" to the survival of the tree and several other species.

"In my opinion," Dixon said. "The [area slated for the golf course] could be the poster child for the existence of environmentally sensitive habitat [ESHA] in the coastal zone."

But Pebble Beach Co. co-owner Peter Ueberroth told commissioners his company's plan should be approved because it includes unprecedented protection for the most vital parts of the pine forest. If it's turned down, he said, the forest would be susceptible to even greater development projects decades from now.

"I believe in my heart there will be more Monterey pines in the next 20-year period if this plan goes through than if it doesn't," Ueberroth said.

Commissioners, including Monterey County 5th District Supervisor Dave Potter, made no decision whether to let a P.B. Co.-sponsored ballot measure approved by Monterey County voters five years ago take effect. Instead, they spent most of the day fielding concerns about the proposal. A crowd of about 300 spilled out into the hallways outside the meeting.

The P.B. Co.'s proposed development, officially dubbed "The Del Monte Forest Plan: Forest Preservation and Development Limitations," includes an 18-hole golf course, driving range, equestrian center, 160 hotel rooms, underground parking at the Lodge and Spanish Bay, 60 new employee residences, 34 residential lots and road and infrastructure improvements.

The company has said the initiative encompasses all of its remaining undeveloped land in the Forest, limiting the amount of homes that can be built there. Existing zoning would allow up to 900 homes on the same land.

On Wednesday, commissioners took a bus tour through Del Monte Forest to see firsthand the roughly 600 acres in two dozen locations that would be affected by the proposed development. Several protesters also followed the tour, displaying signs at each of the stops.

What is ESHA?

During a lengthy presentation, Dixon and other coastal commission staff members argued that Monterey pines are "rare and seriously endangered," and that essentially all their native range must therefore be considered ESHA. The commission itself has never endorsed this idea.

And they have a good reason not to, according to Salinas attorney Anthony Lombardo, who represents the P.B. Co.

"Monterey pine is the most populous tree on the planet," he said. "The pine isn't in danger of going extinct in California or anywhere else. The Monterey pine is not rare and endangered and coexists quite well with Pebble Beach Co. co-owner Peter Ueberroth laughed when a coastal commissioner's cell phone rang during his remarks to the commission Thursday in Monterey. So did company CEO Bill Perocchi (left), architect Michael Waxer (behind Ueberroth) and (to the right of the lectern), developer Alan Williams, attorney Tony Lombardo, and P.B. Co. Vice President Mark Stilwell. But an extensive report by the commission's staff on the company's development and open space plan wasn't exactly good news for Ueberroth.

Speed limits could rise in a city famous for handing out tickets

By KELLY NIX

PACIFIC GROVE has a long-standing reputation for being tough on speeders. But next week, councilmembers will consider raising the speed limit on 10 streets from 25 to 30 mph.

A recent traffic survey determined limits on those streets must be increased if police want to continue to use radar to catch speeders.

"You have to set speed at the 85th percentile of the speeds people are driving," said Pacific Grove City Manager Jim Colangelo, citing a state law designed to protect motorists from speed traps.

P.G. residents, in a 2004 poll, identified speeding as the No. 1 concern in the city.

Still, even residents were driving faster on some streets than current limits allow, the surveyed showed.

"We have several streets in town where speed had slowly crept up," said Pacific Grove Police Chief Carl Miller. "It happened for a variety of reasons."

In the last five years, police issued far fewer tickets because of a shortage of sworn officers — a condition drivers took advantage of, Miller said.

If approved, the new ordinance would take effect in early May and would affect Central, David, Lighthouse and Forest avenues, 17 Mile Drive and several other streets.

Council members could opt not to raise the speed limit, but they would also have to do away with police radar or order a new speed survey.

"If we do raise the speed limits, we should make sure we have good enforcement," Colangelo said.

"We were living off our reputation for a long time," he said. "Then we had a decrease in traffic enforcement. At the same time, we saw an increase in people driving faster."

In 2005, Pacific Grove police officers handed out 1,751

moving violation citations, a sharp contrast to the 3,189 citations they gave in 2000.

Police nab dust-covered burglary suspects

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL POLICE officers arrested two Salinas men for burglary, conspiracy and possession of burglary tools early Saturday after they returned to retrieve the crowbar they'd left behind, according to Sgt. Mike Calhoun.

Officer Chris Johnson responded to an alarm activation at the home under construction at Santa Lucia and Dolores at 12:45 a.m. March 4 and was waiting for the victim to arrive at the scene when he saw Roberton Casarez Jr., 20, and Miguel Angel Solis Castaneda, 21, drive away in a silver Mitsubishi Eclipse, according to Calhoun.

"This car shows up and leaves, and it's driving in such a manner that officer Johnson thought something wasn't right," Calhoun said. Johnson followed it, and the driver sped away but eventually stopped on Rio Road.

"He pulled them over, and they had wall board plaster dust all over them," Calhoun said. The men initially said they were dirty from changing a tire on the car.

But the suspects eventually admitted to using a crowbar to break into the garage of the home, where David Kettle's

Agha's latest project: Carmel Inn condos, affordable housing

By MARY BROWNFIELD

PROLIFIC DEVELOPER Nader Agha — who is working on a Moss Landing desal plant, proposed to build a hotel in downtown Pacific Grove and even offered to buy Natividad Medical Center from the county — wants to tear down the old Carmel Inn for Seniors on San Carlos Street and replace it with condominiums and affordable apartments, his architect told the Carmel Planning Commission Wednesday. He would take advantage of a new state law to demand extra square footage in exchange for including the

The former Carmel Inn for Seniors may be torn down to make way for market-rate condos and low-income apartments, according to a plan submitted to the Carmel Planning Commission this week.

low-income units, according to principal planner Brian Roseth. The old Carmel Inn, owned by Dr. Ron Chaplin, has been vacant since summer 2004, and he has struggled to find a viable use for it.

“A new law went into effect Jan. 1 that allows applicants to request allowances when projects include affordable housing,” Roseth said. Regardless of the limits imposed by local zoning laws and general plans, the city is required to provide the variances if they are needed to offset the costs of developing low-income housing.

“In this case, the applicant is asking for a substantial amount of floor area [3,200 square feet],” he said. “In order for the planning commission to approve the concession, the applicant must prove it’s absolutely necessary to make the affordable housing work.”

Roseth said the new buildings, which would cover two 4,000-square-foot lots and share an underground garage, would likely have to include two low-income units, seven market-rate condos and 11 parking spaces in order to be eligible for the allowance. Moderate-income or senior housing could also qualify, but more units would be required.

Roseth recommended approving the plans in concept but requiring Agha to return with two studies proving the extra floor area is necessary to make the project economically feasible. The commission will also see final design details before approving the plans.

Commissioners recommended the buildings on each lot, which would share a firewall, be unified to appear as a single structure or be completely differentiated to lend the appearance of two separate buildings.

And while the Uniform Building Code stipulates an apartment can be as small as 280 square feet, commissioners suggested the Carmel Inn project include larger units, even for the low-income tenants. They also requested a better landscape plan.

“We have looked at this site several times, and I think this is a creative solution to a difficult problem,” commissioner Ken Talmage said before moving approval of the concept, which received unanimous support.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE PEBBLE BEACH PLAN.

PEBBLE BEACH

Dear Neighbors,

When Peter Ueberroth, Arnold Palmer, Dick Ferris, and I put together a group, including about 40 local homeowners, to purchase Pebble Beach Company in 1999, we had a vision to keep most of the undeveloped land in the "Del Monte Forest" as forest, permanently, by eliminating more than 95% of the potential residential development, dedicating hundreds of acres of forest as protected open space, and focusing instead on improvements to the resort and recreational facilities. To make sure we had community support for that vision, we asked the residents of Monterey County to decide the future of the Del Monte Forest by placing Measure A on the ballot in November 2000. We were grateful that almost two-thirds of you—over 70,000 voters—agreed with our vision by approving Measure A.

Since that election, we have done exactly what we promised the voters we would do. The project we proposed—The Del Monte Forest Preservation and Development Plan—is exactly what we said we would do if Measure A passed, with one notable exception: We have agreed to add hundreds of additional acres of protected open space to what we previously promised. And, just as we promised in 2000, Measure A and the Del Monte Forest Plan have undergone a complete and independent environmental review by the County of Monterey.

The independent experts who did this analysis, along with the California Department of Fish and Game and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, all reached the same conclusion—our plan doesn't endanger the Monterey pine forest. I agree with them—our plan is a good one. With overwhelming public and community support, the plan was unanimously recommended for approval by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors last March. With this plan, Pebble Beach Company will dedicate another 900 acres of permanent open space. When this is combined with prior land dedications, we will have dedicated more than 1,500 acres, as much as the Point Lobos State Park and Jack's Peak County Park combined.

An out-of-town, special-interest group, whose address is listed as 3435 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 660 in Los Angeles, has been sending direct mail hit pieces attacking me personally and the plan that our community endorsed.

I don't mind the attacks on me because I know we are doing what's right. What I mind are the misrepresentations used to try to deceive the public: glossy photos showing only a few acres of Monterey pines and claiming they are some of the last Monterey pines remaining in the Del Monte Forest; and copy claiming "their plan would destroy nearly all of the remaining intact coastal Monterey pine forest on their land." These are misrepresentations of the facts and they know it.

I enjoy a good story as much as the next person, but fiction belongs in the movies, not in the debate over the future of our community.

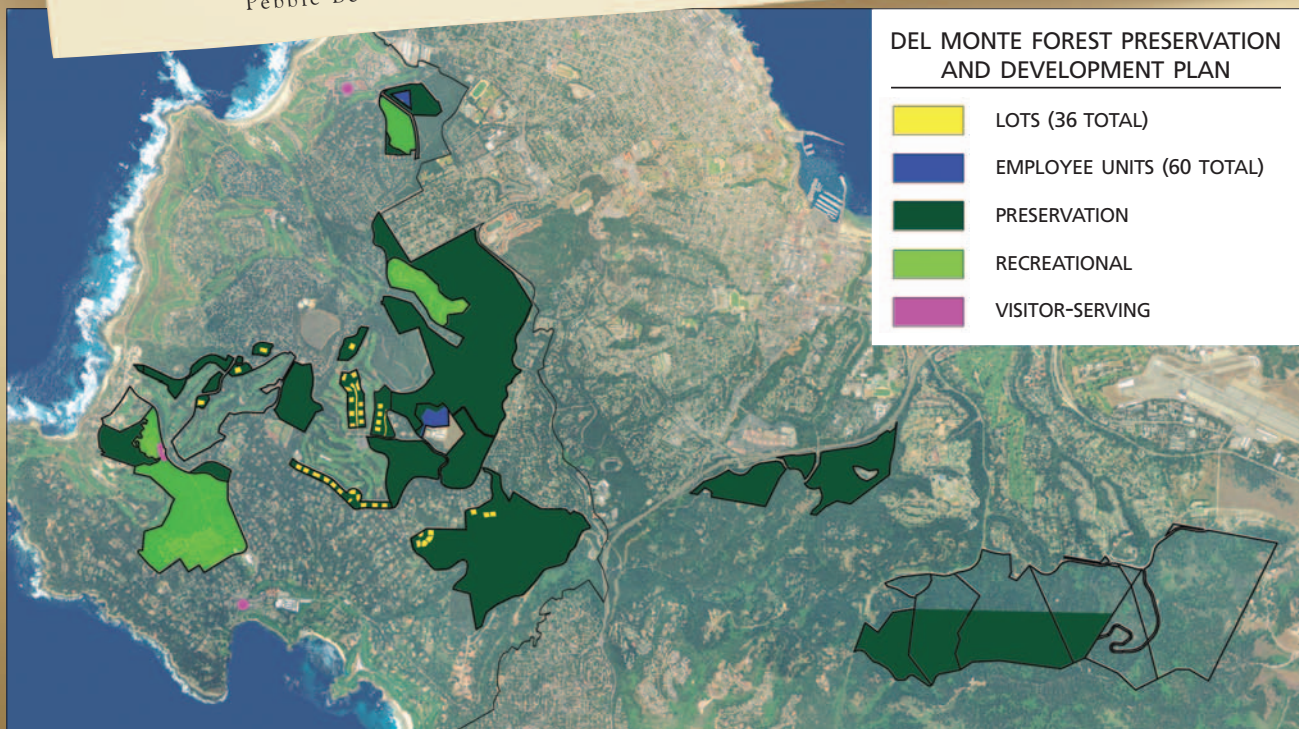

You overwhelmingly supported our plan to do limited recreational, visitor-serving, residential, and employee housing development, and to dedicate the balance of the Del Monte Forest as protected open space. Upon approval of our plan, the community will have a total of 1,500 acres of permanent open space, with a commitment to manage, protect, and preserve the Del Monte Forest forever.

We want you to know that we are doing everything we promised to you back in November 2000. It is now more than five years since you approved Measure A, and the Coastal Commission is just beginning the hearing process on our project. We continue to appreciate your support and look forward to the completion of the approval process as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

Clint Eastwood

As soon as the kids get their diplomas, the school work will begin

■ First step: Demolish the ancient CHS swimming pool

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A SLEW of capital projects will soon be under way at Carmel schools, with heavy construction commencing this summer, the school board was told Feb. 27.

To make sure $21.5 million approved by voters in 2005 is spent wisely, the board appointed six members of an oversight committee, including:

■ Rick Bulleri, member of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of the local business community;

■ Marilyn Bransford, president of the PTA at River School, to represent parent-teacher groups;

■ Jill Sheffield, chief executive officer of the senior organization, the Carmel Foundation;

■ Bob Fenton, president of the fundraising Friends of Carmel Unified Schools and a parent of a child in the district; and

■ at-large members Ed Dally and Steve Harper.

According to state law, the committee must also include a member of "a bona fide taxpayers organization." Ron Pasquinelli of the Monterey County Taxpayers Association will recommend someone to serve, according to district business director Judy Long.

The group will review audits and may visit the campuses to survey construction work, but members will not have any say in hiring, design or construction.

School out, workers in

The day after graduation ceremonies June 16, demolition of Carmel High School's old pools will begin, architect Henry Ruhnke told the board. This summer will mark a flurry of construction activity, though work — the bulk of it at CHS — will continue through next year. Renovation of the gym and the library, relocation of some utilities, and several other changes should be finished by late 2007.

Board president Howard Given worried that work on the library, which is at the center of campus, could disrupt classes, but Ruhnke said plywood barriers and other measures will help minimize the impacts.

"We want to make sure it's safe and we can keep the learning environment at an acceptable level," Ruhnke said, though

Given wanted a "higher than 'acceptable' level."

Other projects set for the coming year include converting the old boiler room to an information-technology center and getting rid of hazardous materials.

"There is asbestos in the duct work that runs between the boiler room and the current drama room," Ruhnke said. "We have some abatement we need to get done." Workers also removed hazardous materials from underneath the gym floor while students were on vacation last month.

Plans to remodel the cafeteria (estimated at $468,000) and replace the football field with artificial turf ($875,000) are on hold.

Elsewhere in the district, Captain Cooper School in Big Sur will receive the much-needed repaving of its access road, and River School's walkways will be replaced. Also at River, new classrooms will be built, and crews will resurface the parking lot. Carmelo school will also receive a newly paved parking area.

In total, the district plans to undertake $27,336,575 worth of work on CUSD campuses over the next three years, with more than $21.5 million generated by the bond voters approved last November. The remainder will come from donations and the general fund, according to Long.

Concert brings a bit of Ireland to Carmel Valley

FOR THE next month or so, the green hills of Carmel Valley will bear at least a passing resemblance to those of the Emerald Isle, creating an appropriate backdrop for a fundraising celebration of Celtic music, Saturday, March 11, at Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Headlining "An Evening in Ireland" will be Heartstrings, a Monterey Peninsula-based quintet. "It's a really wonderful event," said Paulette Lynch, who plays hammered dulcimer for Heartstrings. "There's so much going on. The event has a great spirit about it. It's big enough to be a party but small enough to be comfortable."

For Heartstrings — which was formed in Carmel Valley 14 years ago — the festive fundraiser is like a homecoming. "Hidden Valley is our favorite place to play," said Marj Ingram Viales, who plays guitar for Heartstrings. "It's like playing in a big barn."

In addition to Heartstrings, vocalists Shannon Miller and Jon Michael will perform at the event. Miller will be backed by harpist Amy Krupski, while Michael will be accompanied by pianist Bob Phillips.

An Irish step dancing group from the Allison Barnes Academy in Hollister will also add to the fun.

The concert begins at 6:30 p.m. All proceeds benefit the nonprofit Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Serra moves to Mission

A CREW from Winkleblack Construction donated their time and strength to carefully remove the cumbersome but precious mosaic of Junipero Serra that had graced the front wall of Carmel Plaza for decades, according to plaza marketing manager Ryan Williams. The men took the piece, which weighs between 500 and 600 pounds and was created by Carmel artist Geza St. Galy 46 years ago, to Junipero Serra School, where it was hung on a wall facing the playground. About 200 school kids attended a ceremony March 3, during which children shared the history of the Mission and Reverend John Griffin blessed the mosaic, Williams said. Local dignitaries, including Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud and city administrator Rich Guillen, also attended.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
 Meg Parker Connors, R.N.

SIGNS YOU NEED HOME HEALTH CARE

The biggest decision related to home health care is the decision that you or your loved one needs it. Because of the sensitive nature of bringing "strangers" into the home, it can be challenging to make this choice. But the right home health care professionals can tremendously ease the burden on family and friends. It may be time to consider home health care if you or your family members feel overwhelmed by the responsibilities of caring for an ill or elderly loved one. Simply hiring someone to help with bathing or to stay during the overnight hours can save time and energy. It may also be time to secure outside help if you foresee becoming unable to continue with caregiving.

Whether you live alone and want to maintain your independence, or you require assistance in providing for the needs of a loved one, contact us. HELP-AT-HOME, a referral agency, wants you to know that we are your local source for all the help you might need. This can range from simple companionship or housekeeping to bathing and meal preparation. For a consultation or more information, call (831) 655-1966 or (831) 655-5014.

P.S. Look for reliable, honest home health care workers, and stay involved throughout the process.

Meg Parker Connors is an RN and owner of Victorian Health Care Services, Victorian Residential Care Homes and Help-at-Home, a domestic referral service here in Monterey. For assistance, call 655-1935.

Monterey airport will relocate check-in, baggage claim, security

By KELLY NIX

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Airport District has broken ground on a $5.5 million modernization project which will put all the airlines' check-in facilities at one end of the airport, move the baggage claim to the other end and consolidate security and all gates in the middle.

Officials said the project will streamline operations and make the check-in process more comfortable for passengers.

"It will make the passenger experience much more functional and efficient," said airport general manager Tom Greer.

The airport has not seen many upgrades since it was constructed in two phases in 1949 and 1972.

It's hoped the renovation will encourage local travelers to use the airport, which recently added service to several cities but has not seen the passenger increases it hoped for.

"We looked at several inefficiencies," Greer said. "We had airlines on two sides of the building, and that created two separate security checkpoints. We also had two separate holding rooms."

America West/US Airways will be relocated to the east end of the terminal, joining American, Delta and United Airlines, while the Transportation Security Administration's security screening operations will be moved to the center of the terminal where the baggage claim is currently located.

"One thing in dire need of upgrading was our baggage claim," he said. "For all intents and purposes, it was outdoors. The new baggage claim will be a mechanical device, a moving carousel, like you find at other airports."

Baggage claim, which will be moved to the west end of the terminal, will prevent passengers from being exposed to weather and will offer greater airport security, Greer said.

"Also, the snack bar will be located on the secure side," he said. "Passengers will check in, be screened and will be able to get their coffee and snacks while waiting for their airplanes."

During construction, the airport's Golden Tee Restaurant will be shut down from April to July while crews perform seismic retrofits to the terminal.

Parking at the front of the airport may eventually be diverted for construction, but for now, parking will stay the same, he said.

"We have worked very hard to try to minimize customer inconvenience," Greer said.

Instead of waiting on a shelf, your bags will be brought to you on a carousel

Corner office celebrates a century of real estate sales

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOR A century, someone has sold real estate out of the small storefront at the corner of Ocean and Dolores — even while the space doubled as a market and Carmel City Hall was upstairs.

Burchell House Properties, which currently owns the building, finished renovating it in January and celebrated its centennial with a ribbon cutting and open house last week.

“What we’re really proud of is it’s been real estate in that corner office for 100 years,” said Julia Humason, who handles marketing for the firm.

The Wilson family ran its Phillip Wilson real estate office out of the building following its construction in 1906 — a few years after the city’s first residential lots were put up for sale — according to Humason.

After the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea incorporated a decade later, its small staff occupied the upstairs offices.

“Then they moved out, and it had many different tenants,” Humason said.

Burchell House managing partners David Kent and Gerry Hopkins bought the historic building from the Wilson family after remodeling the upstairs in 2000. A few years later, they hired architect Jim McCord, contractor Jerry Stepanek and interior designer Greg Cull to completely restore it.

Divided-light windows replaced large panes, brick wainscoting made way for sidewalk-level flower boxes of copper and redwood, and new woodwork graced the eaves. Inside, workers ripped out carpet and tile to uncover original redwood floors, which they refinished and stained.

And as frequently occurs during the remodeling of old buildings, secrets from the past revealed themselves. “They were taking out the clock above the front door and they found original storefront signs behind it,” Humason said of the antique wood showing the name of a jewelry store and remnants of Roman numerals from an old clock. “We had no idea that was there.”

And inside a wall were old bottle caps and a receipt from 1915 someone had stashed, leaving a time capsule of sorts.

“The corner office at one point also served as convenience store,” Humason said. “Along with your real estate, you could buy a copy of The Pine Cone.”

Little cash raised in council, mayoral races

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE SUBDUED state of this year's races for Carmel City Council and mayor extends to candidates' war chests, according to finance statements submitted to city hall last week. Mayoral challenger Dogman McBill and council hopeful Ryan Walbrun declared they will receive and spend less than $1,000 during their campaigns for the April 11 election, while the incumbents have raised several thousand dollars each.

Councilman Gerard Rose led the pack in fundraising and spending, bringing in $7,368 between Jan. 1 and Feb. 25 and shelling out $4,530, mostly to Comcast for television ads. Leading donors included himself ($1,275), Pebble Beach residents Ron and Jo Anne McNabb ($1,500) and Carmel resident Michael Carini ($800). Several other supporters, including Nielsen Bros. Market owner Merv Sutton, forest and beach commissioner Kathleen Coss, historic resources board member Paul Coss, Sunset Center board member Jim Price and longtime residents Glenn and Marian Leidig, contributed amounts ranging from $500 to $100. He took no loans.

Mayor Sue McCloud, seeking a fourth term, raised $5,741 and loaned herself another $1,271. Gifts ranged from $500 to $100 and included donations from Sutton and Price, Phyllis and Denny Gambill, Bill Doolittle, Jim Sanders, Shan Sayles and Brian Leidig. Most of her expenses, which totaled $1,265.43, were related to fundraising events.

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac reported receiving $2,944 in cash contributions and a $100 nonmonetary donation in the form of a room at the Cypress Inn. Gifts ranged from $500 to $100, and among her listed supporters were Price, Sayles, the elder Leidigs and her mother, Lillian Hazdovac. She also did not receive any loans and spent $657.49, including her $271 filing fee with Monterey County Elections and $193.39 for drinks from Nielsen's for a fundraiser.

Opting to stump for votes by speaking at city council meetings and handing out cards in front of Carmel City Hall, Walbrun is directing prospective supporters to his website, www.ryanwalbrun.org. McBill has remained quiet since announcing his candidacy in January.

IS THE SPARK MISSING?

Leaking spark plug wires can lead to engine misfires. To verify this cause, an auto technician will closely examine the wire jackets to see if they are damaged from the outside. If so, such damage may be due to abrasion caused by engine vibration (particularly at the plug-end boot), a hot engine compartment, spilled fluids or battery acid, multiple disconnections and reconnections for service, or even nesting rodents. If the outer jacket is damaged, the high-voltage electricity contained within may follow an easier path than the one that otherwise directs it to jump the gap between electrodes to produce the "spark" that ignites the fuel mixture. Replacing the spark plug wires will restore the spark to its proper place. Our mechanics are experts who can check your car's spark plugs for any problems. If you are experiencing difficulties with your car, it could be one of many issues. We're here to take care of you! We are located at 550 East Franklin Street, just west of Jack's Park in Downtown Monterey. We are the oldest independent repair facility in Monterey.

PS.: In addition to compromising the spark, leaking high-voltage electricity produces radio waves, which can cause interference with all types of on-car electronic devices, from sensors and computers to radios.

Plan to open Palo Corona Park hits traffic, parking hurdle

By CHRIS COUNTS

CITING SAFETY concerns over allowing visitors to park alongside Highway 1, the Monterey County Planning Commission decided last week to delay until at least April 12 approval of a plan to open trails at the new Palo Corona Regional Park.

The Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District hopes to open 680 acres of the 4,300-acre park to hikers on a permit-only basis as early as this spring.

At the March 8 planning commission hearing, park district general manager Joe Donofrio said his agency's plan was patterned after successful access strategies already in effect at two other park district holdings, the Kahn Ranch and the Blomquist Open Space Preserve, both located in Carmel Valley.

But planning commissioner Martha Diehl said heavy traffic on adjacent Highway 1 distinguishes Palo Corona from the other parks. Blomquist is located on a lightly traveled stretch of Carmel Valley Road about 10 miles east of Carmel Valley Village, while the Kahn Ranch in Hitchcock Canyon can only be reached by a network of residential roads.

"Four million people will drive by [the new park] each year," Diehl said.

Commissioners also expressed concern over how the district will monitor the number of people entering the park. Donofrio estimated about 20 permits a day would be issued when the plan goes into effect.

"It's not clear to me how they would manage the people," conceded Diehl. "We'd like them to know how many people are in there."

Donofrio told the planning commission the access plan underwent an extensive public review. But Diehl countered the review involved local residents, not visitors.

"It's not just about working with the neighbors," she said. "A large number of people will drive by and see cars parked there."

Despite its concerns, Diehl said the planning commission is anxious to see the park opened.

"We all agreed we wanted to find a solution," she said after the meeting. "They paid a lot of money for the park. We just couldn't find a way to get it done [at last week's meeting]."

The park district isn't the only group seeking public access to the new park. The coastal conservancy, a state agency that provided a $9 million grant and a $3.2 million loan to purchase a 680-acre Front Ranch section of the park, requested the property be made accessible to the public as soon as possible.

If the interim access plan goes into effect, it will expire in five years. At that time, the park district plans to submit a long-term access plan to the county.

The park district's acquisition was part of a larger deal that transferred most of the former 9,898-acre Fish Ranch into public ownership. The California Department of Fish and Game acquired 5,562 acres in the same transaction.

The purchase price of $37 million — most of which came from taxpayers — was put together by a variety of agencies, including the Wildlife Conservation Board, the coastal conservancy, California State Parks and the park district.

Broom bashers needed

The park district is seeking volunteers to help eradicate invasive French broom at the new park Thursday, March 16, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Bring sun gear and sturdy walking shoes. Snacks and refreshments will be provided. For more information, call park district naturalist Debbie Wyatt at (831) 372-3196, ext. 3, or Heather Brady of the Big Sur Land Trust at (831) 625-5523.

Road maintenance bill: Will it be $500,000 or $5 million?

By CHRIS COUNTS

CARMEL VALLEY incorporation opponent Bob Sinotte claims the new town would require $4 million to $5 million each year just to maintain and rehabilitate the valley's 144-mile road system. Incorporation proponent Glenn Robinson insists $500,000 will do the job. So who's right?

Ron Lundquist, Monterey County interim public works director, stopped short of taking a side in the debate. But he conceded Carmel Valley's roads are in serious need of repair. "Are the roads getting worse?" Lundquist asked. "Absolutely. As long as we don't do preventative maintenance, they are going to deteriorate. A stretch of pavement can only carry so many loads."

Lundquist said the county spent about $450,000 on Carmel Valley road maintenance in 2000. That figure was used in a 2001 report on the feasibility of incorporation, which also identified hundreds of millions of dollars in potential public works projects in the Carmel Valley area — projects Sinotte claims no newly incorporated town could possibly afford.

But the County of Monterey doesn't have the money it needs to spend on Carmel Valley's roads either.

"That's a lot more than the county can afford right now," Lundquist said. "Frankly, we just don't have the resources."

Best case scenario

Describing Sinotte's road budget as a "best case scenario," Lundquist said neither the county nor a new town is required to spend hundreds of millions of dollars on road work.

"It is important to note that while the work was identified, these are not projects that will be required for a new city under any state or federal mandate," he explained.

Everybody seems to agree the cost of maintaining Carmel Valley's roads will be high. But without the recommended repairs, will the roads be safe?

"If we had lots of money, we'd do the work," said Lundquist of Sinotte's road budget. "But I believe the county's road system is safe."

A cheaper alternative

Lundquist said a typical stretch of asphalt pavement is good for about 20 years before it needs repaving. But instead of repaving, public works often chip seals roads.

A common practice of cash-strapped local governments, chip sealing is the process of spreading oil over a paved road and then covering the oil with a thin layer of fine gravel. The chip sealing waterproofs the road's surface, helps protect the underlying pavement from wear, seals cracks and adds life to weathered pavement. At less than a quarter of the cost of repaving, chip sealing is effective and can add more than 10 years to the life of a stretch of pavement, explained Lundquist.

"We haven't had the resources in the past 20 years to do a lot of repaving," he said. "We're doing everything we can to maximize our budget, and we've really focused on chip sealing."

Keeping the road safe

Carmel Valley's primary transportation corridor — Carmel Valley Road — meanders past subdivisions, resorts and vineyards as it winds its way from Highway 1 to Carmel Valley Village, which is located about 12 miles to the east. The first two miles of the road have four lanes, while the final 10 miles have just two lanes. According to Lundquist, the four lane stretch of asphalt was repaved by public works less than 10 years ago.

The two-lane stretch of road was chip sealed by public works just three years ago, Lundquist said.

"I've looked at that stretch of road recently, and it's holding up well," he said. "We may get by with it for another 10 years."

Man rolls BMW on valley road in Tuesday rain

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WET SOIL was pressing against the forehead of 48-year-old Miles Taylor of Carmel when firefighters found him trapped upside down inside a crumpled, overturned BMW on Carmel Valley Road around 11 a.m. March 7. According to California Highway Patrol public information officer Larry Starkey, Taylor was probably driving too fast for the wet conditions and made an unsafe turning movement, which caused him to lose control of the car.

When the fire engine and ambulance arrived, the car was still running, according to Carmel Valley firefighter Steve Scarlett.

He said Taylor was fortunate to escape without major injuries. Crews were unable to force open the crumpled driver's side door but managed to free the man through the passenger door after clearing away the dirt and removing his seat belt.

Taylor recalled being eastbound on Carmel Valley Road when he hit a slippery patch, but everything after that was fuzzy, according to Scarlett.

"He was talking and had a strong pulse," he said. "He was pretty lucky."

The CHP reported Taylor complained of pain to the head, and a Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance took him to Community Hospital.

Eartha Kitt: From Catwoman to cabaret to Sunset Center

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE STORY of the irrepressible Eartha Kitt — who highlights a busy week at Sunset Center with a concert Thursday, March 16 — is one of the great rags-to-riches tales.

Abandoned by her parents at an early age and shunned because of her mixed-race heritage, the 79-year-old Kitt rose from poverty to become one of the entertainment industry's most versatile performers as well as an outspoken proponent of civil rights.

Born on a cotton plantation in South Carolina, Kitt was sent to Harlem at the age of 8 to live with a relative, but by her early teens, she was on her own. Her luck changed after she auditioned for the Katherine Dunham Dance School and received a scholarship. She traveled with the school's dance troupe, which toured the United States, Mexico, South America and Europe.

Kitt fell in love with Paris, where she left the dance troupe to sing in nightclubs. It was in a Paris nightclub where Orson Welles discovered her, reportedly calling her, "the most exciting woman in the world." Welles cast her as Helen of Troy in the 1950 production, "Time Runs," and her career as an entertainer was launched.

She reached her commercial peak in the early '50s, when she achieved stardom on Broadway, recorded a number of hit songs, launched a successful film career, penned an autobiography and achieved widespread fame as a cabaret singer and slinky sex kitten.

By the 1960s, Kitt shifted her focus to television. In 1967, she was cast in perhaps her most memorable role as the sinister Catwoman in the popular series, "Batman." Kitt was also nominated for an Emmy for her role in the series, "I Spy."

A longtime advocate of civil rights, Kitt was one of the first entertainers to refuse to play in front of segregated audiences. The outspoken performer was invited to the White House in 1968 by President Lyndon B. Johnson and reportedly gave the country's chief executive officer a tongue-lashing over the treatment of minorities and the Vietnam War.

Singing in 10 different languages, Kitt has performed in more than 100 countries and is honored by a star on The Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Her concert at Sunset Center starts at 7:30 p.m.

Piano prodigy takes the stage

Adam Neiman — who at 27 has been called one of the most promising pianists of his generation — will perform a concert at Sunset Center Friday, March 10. A 1999 Rubinstein Award-winning graduate of the Juilliard

At Sunset Center, Neiman will play Dvorak's "Sextet in A Major, Op. 48;" "Shostakovich's Piano Quintet in C Minor, Op. 57;" and R. Strauss' "String Sextet, "Capriccio," Op. 85." The performance begins at 8 p.m.

Crooner brings Old Blue Eyes to Carmel

Singer Steve Tyrell — who produced the chart-topping B.J. Thomas hit, "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head" in 1969 — will pay tribute to Frank Sinatra at Sunset Center Saturday, March 11.

Tyrell, who last year released the recording, "Quite Frank: The Songs of Sinatra," has enjoyed a late-blooming career as a crooner of standards. His concert starts at 8 p.m.

Guitar whiz takes on the Beatles

One time national finger-picking champion, guitarist Steven King, performs at Sunset Center, Sunday, March 12. From jazz standards to Beatles favorites, King has wowed audiences with virtuoso performances. The show begins at 3 p.m.

Tene Shake makes cooking seafood as easy as pie

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

THERE ARE two categories of TV chefs: Those who have done their time in the kitchen — such as Wendy Brodie ("Art of Food") and John Pisto ("Cookin' Pisto Style") — and the popular culture food personalities — such as Rachel Ray and Jamie Oliver — whose fame has come mostly via the media.

With the rise in popularity of the Food Network and other food-focused programs, some diners flock to restaurants hoping to catch a glimpse of the faces behind the dishes they adore. Television has transformed many once-unknown chefs into culinary stars with cult-like fans.

Some of our local culinary whizzes (and winemakers) have garnered similar devoted followings, but few have had the showmanship to make it on television. Tene Shake, with his new program, "Coastal Cuisine," is about to become one of those who has.

The owner and chef of Isabella's on Fisherman's Wharf and Lattitudes at Lovers Point has a wonderfully authentic shtick that makes cooking seafood so accessible you'll want to invite him into your kitchen to sit down, share a glass of

Padre cheer squad to compete at nationals in Orange County

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ELEVEN CARMEL High School cheerleaders will show off their skills at a national competition of more than 200 teams in Anaheim this week — a monumental first for the squad from a high school of only 745 students.

“All three levels of the arena will be full of people, and there will be big-screen monitors and vendors selling popcorn,” said team parent Pamela Hamilton, whose daughter Rose, a junior, started cheerleading with the Carmel Panthers youth football team while in fifth grade. “And they videotape it for ESPN. It’s very exciting.”

The squad qualified for the tournament at regional competitions in Fremont and Santa Cruz last year, and in another first, Carmel High hosted a regional competition in December that packed its gym with more than 400 athletes as well as their friends and families.

“Cheerleading has gone from being a club to being listed as an actual sport at Carmel High,” Hamilton continued. Girls and boys (if the squad succeeds in recruiting some) can letter in cheerleading. “We always knew it was a sport, but not everyone likes to acknowledge it.”

The squad practices every day and took gymnastics together last summer, according to Hamilton. In addition to cheering during football and basketball games, the girls continued competing in events after qualifying for the nationals just to stay in practice.

Off campus, they read to kids at the park branch of Harrison Memorial Library during the “Three Cheers for Reading” program.

“Cheerleaders are such role models, especially for little girls,” Hamilton said.

While in Southern California for the nationals March 19, the squad will spend three nights in Anaheim, visit Disneyland and be treated to a few other surprises. They raised all the money for the trip through auctions, sales and performing at events.

Hamilton praised the team’s camaraderie.

“The girls going to the nationals really do have each other’s backs,” she said. “It’s a situation where you’re throwing someone into the air and trusting someone to catch them.”

She hopes the passion for cheering will spread and invited Carmel High kids interested in joining to learn the dances and routines April 5-7 and April 10-12, from 5 to 7 p.m. each day, at Carmel High. Tryouts will be held Thursday, April 13, at 3:30 p.m. in the gym.

“We’re looking for boys. We really, really, really, want boys,” she added. “Where else can you put your hand up a girl’s skirt and get away with it?”

For more information on joining the squad, call (831) 626-1800.

wine and a meal.

“Coastal Cuisine” was screened on a Friday night in February at Lattitudes over wine and hors d’oeuvres for an enthusiastic crowd of 100-plus people “who care about food, wines and the hospitality industry,” said Shake.

The partial list of the Shake fan club included local luminaries Tamara Gunnerson of Monterey County Vintners and Growers Association (MCVGA); Michael Mastrocola of Millennium Travel; Sabrine Rodems, winemaker from San Saba Vineyards and Bocage; Dan Tudor of Tudor Wines, and Bob and Fabia Massaro of Terranova Fine Wines.

The premise behind Shake’s TV cooking show is simple: To demystify seafood buying and cooking techniques, and to encourage aspiring home chefs to give it a go with a wide range of recipes.

The youngest of the six Shake brothers, Tene grew up on Fisherman’s Wharf, where he “was very fortunate to work with my dad every day and grateful that he allowed me to work in the family business,” said Shake. “He taught me a lot about food and the hospitality business, and I wish my dad was here tonight to see this.”

Shake explained that a cooking show had been on his mind for several years. His primary motivation was to share all of the wonderful experiences he had on Fisherman’s Wharf in the fishing business — from the boat, to the fish market, to growing up in his family’s restaurants — and to bring it into people’s homes and teach them to cook seafood.

“I ask people why they don’t cook fish at home, and most people say they are intimidated, or ‘I don’t know what to do,’ or, ‘I don’t know how to buy fish,’ so I really want to help take away that fear and teach them some great recipes,” he said. He proceeded to wow the crowd with an aromatic demonstration of tequila shrimp. Peppered with clever witticisms (“Always save a little tequila for the chef.”) and hand motions reminiscent of a certain chef who likes to kick it up a notch, Shake’s television presence highlighted his confidence.

“Coastal Cuisine” did not disappoint, and the audience clapped, oohed and aahed as Shake whipped up cioppino and paella during the half-hour segment. After the credits had faded, Shake thanked a long list of people who helped make the show possible, including his award-winning director, Danny McGuire (he’s worked with Jacques Pepin). He thanked Pisto for paving the way for a new generation and dedicated the future success of the show in honor of his late father, Sabu, and his mother, Isabella.

“There’s nothing greater than enjoying a meal with family and friends around a table, where people sit down and enjoy each other’s company,” said Shake as the evening ended.

“Coastal Cuisine” with Tene Shake airs on Comcast cable channel 27 at 6:30 p.m. every day.

By Margot Petit Nichols

DANDY LION, 5 in July, is an energetic, happy yellow Lab from Mt. Madonna, Watsonville, who comes down to Carmel Beach for a swim, romp and ball retrieval every chance he gets. He lives with Mom Joan McKay and three sibling felines: Rupert, Sissy and Magic.

Sis Sissy likes to surreptitiously sneak food from Dandy's dish, Rupert is always up for some fun, but Magic steers clear of Dandy, who singles her out for chasing.

They aren't his only playmates. He has neighboring sheep, chickens and ducks with whom he gets along famously, as well as three neighbor dogs – Ben, an Australian shepherd, and pups named Gracie and Bella.

Mom Joan, who hails from Cleethorpes, Lincolnshire, England, has been in the United States since 1968. Dandy was named after Joan's Mum's dog.

Even more than swimming off Carmel Beach and eating, sturdy Dandy loves to chase coyotes from his Mt. Madonna property. Mom says he can detect the scent of a coyote a mile away, and when he does, he dashes into the woods near home to roust them from the neighborhood while enjoying a spirited run.

For being so full of energy, Dandy will sit quietly when asked to – thanks to his Santa Cruz SPCA early training – and will offer his great, big Labrador paw if asked to shake.

Mom said his hearty appetite was once the cause of his being lost. Some passersby were eating chicken sandwiches, and when Dandy caught a whiff of the irresistible aroma, he followed them home. Half an hour later, Mom had a call from the sandwich eaters who found her phone number on Dandy's collar tag.

He was returned home fit as a fiddle, but with a yen for chicken.

RECONSIDERING SELLER FINANCING

Two people make an offer on your investment home that includes taking out a sizable new first mortgage and also asks that you, the seller, carry back enough financing to help them eliminate the requirement for mortgage insurance. In return for the favor, the buyers are offering a very attractive purchase price. Why might you consider providing seller financing?

There are more potential benefits to the seller than there used to be, since property prices have generally appreciated by mighty leaps over the past several years. Specifically, a seller should be aware that she or he pays capital gains taxes only on the gains received in any year. If, for example, the buyer is making interest-only payments to the seller for a period of time, no capital gains taxes will be due on those payments.

A seller, therefore, can carefully negotiate the terms of the seller financing to both spread the gains tax liability over several years and, if need be, avoid taxable gains in certain years. Obviously, you will benefit greatly by creating a payment program with the help of your trusted tax advisor.

This strategy can also be used with a personal residence which you have converted to a rental property. Indeed, it may be time now to sit down with your tax advisor and real estate professional and formulate a long-term plan to defer and, in some cases avoid, heavy gains taxes. Please call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

human activity, and it can't be ESHA." Dixon, the Sierra Club and other environmentalists contend that besides the Monterey pine, numerous other animal and plant species, such as Yadon's piperia and the California red-legged frog will be in danger if the development goes through.

But Lombardo showed slides indicating Yadon's piperia actually thrives in seemingly harsh areas outside Del Monte Forest, including at the Monterey Peninsula Airport.

"This is a very hearty plant," he said.

ground at the time we have the project before us," Douglas said. "What is on the ground today is what has to be taken into account in terms of ESHA."

'Very biased' report?

In a brief statement, Clint Eastwood, who is also a co-owner of the P.B. Co., said people have commented to him that the "New York phone book"-sized coastal commission staff report was "very biased against the Del Monte Forest program."

But that was not a big problem, he said, as long as the company's proposal got a fair shake.

"We never wanted anything more from any of the various agencies we have been through, other than a fair hearing," Eastwood said. "We are quite confident we will get a fair hearing here."

"This is best for long term, the real long term," Ueberroth said.

Despite assurances, Mark Massara, director of the Sierra Club's California Coastal Program, told The Pine Cone his organization believes the Monterey pine forest will be harmed by the P.B. Co.'s plans. "Measure A will result in less Monterey pine forest and fewer trees, both upon construction and in future decades," he said.

Seated next to each other before the meeting began, Rolf Trautsch, a Pacific Grove investment advisor, and John Honeywell, a Carmel stockbroker, had a civil but firm debate about Pebble Beach Company's plans.

"I'm basically here so I can do what I can to preserve what's left of the Monterey forest," Honeywell said. "And try to protect the habitat from further encroachment by developers who have strictly their own financial benefit in mind instead of the interests of the citizens of Monterey County."

Trautsch, on the other hand, said critics of the project, like Honeywell, are losing sight of its overall benefit to local residents. "I'm concerned about the lack of understanding by so many people about the issue," he said. "I hope they approve it. Because this issue is not so much about trees, but about the continued future economic growth of the Monterey Peninsula."

About 120 members of the public signed up to address commissioners at Thursday's meeting about the development.

In June, the coastal commission will revisit the topic and could make a ruling on Measure A.

If it insists on changes, those changes will have to go back to the voters of Monterey County before they can take effect, Douglas said.

County's approval 'illegal'

Peter Douglas, the coastal commission's executive director, denounced the county for approving the P.B. Co. development plan last year without giving the commission the chance to weigh in on the ballot measure.

In fact, the county's approval of the project was illegal because "it was using a standard that had no legal effect."

Also, he said standards for ESHA in the existing Del Monte Forest Local Coastal Program are not relevant to approval of the P.B. Co.'s plan today.

Officers have had to perform a juggling act between enforcing traffic laws and responding to other more serious calls.

Whether the speed limits are raised or not, drivers shouldn't become too complacent, because police have plans to beef up traffic enforcement, Miller said.

"As much as staffing will allow, we have made it a priority," he said.

Pacific Grove police typically cite drivers "who are going 7 to 10 mph over the speed limit," Miller said. Officers also have the discretion of handing out warning citations, which are logged by police but don't adversely affect a motorist's driving record.

Traffic tickets are good business

Increasing enforcement will also generate more tickets, which means more money for the city.

According to Carlos Olvera, Pacific Grove's administrative services director, the city grossed $41,255 in vehicle code fines in 2005. In the current fiscal year, which began last July, the city budgeted for $50,000 in traffic fines, but so far has collected only $14,662, Olvera said.

Radar, which Pacific Grove police have used since the 1950s to enforce speed, is preferred by police because it's accurate and usually holds up in court if a driver contests a ticket.

It would cost the city about $3,600 in materials to replace the speed limit signs, but it's unknown how much labor would cost, Colangelo said.

If council members increase the speed, the city would have to remove 11 existing signs and 26 pavement markings that indicate 25 mph, and replace them with as many as 48 new 30 mph signs. The city would also have to paint as many as 30 paved areas to indicate the new speed and purchase about six school-related speed limit signs.

P.G. streets affected

The city council will consider increasing the the speed on the following streets:

Central Avenue, from Eardley Avenue to Fourth Street; David Avenue, between Divisadero Street and Congress Avenue; Del Monte Boulevard, between Lighthouse and Sea Palm avenues; Forest Avenue from Route 68 (Sunset Drive)

How to insult people who disagree with you

JOURNALISTS spend a lot of time hanging around public hearings. We get unvarnished letters to the editor. And when somebody has dirt to dish, they usually call us first. Hence, we know all the best ways to belittle, insult and intimidate anyone who has the audacity to see things differently than you do. Lately, some very effective methods have become common right here in Monterey County, and we thought our readers would appreciate knowing just how they work:

■ Imply that your opponents are racists

The people behind the LandWatch general plan prefer to keep Monterey County the way it is right now. Their opponents, spearheaded by a group called Common Ground, would like to keep the doors open to a little more economic development. The LandWatch plan would invariably make it harder for low-income groups to achieve economic equality in the county. So at a recent board of supervisors hearing, LandWatch opponents wasted no time accusing the group of being racist. Nevermind that the accusation was ridiculous. It made all the TV stations and daily newspapers, and thus was a big success.

■ Say they've been bought off

Not to be outdone, LandWatch circulated a "study" which showed that members of the board of supervisors get most of their campaign contributions from "development interests" which, according to LandWatch, explains why the board is always approving permits for development projects which, in LandWatch's view, are obviously against the public interest. In other words, certain members of the board of supervisors routinely cast votes they know are wrong, but they cast them anyway because they've been bribed! This allegation may be delusional and certainly has no place in Monterey County, but it spreads like wildfire anyway.

■ Accuse them of misleading the voters

This particular calumny has been widely circulated by environmentalists about the Pebble Beach Company's Measure A, which was approved five years ago by more than 60 percent of Monterey County voters. To hear the Sierra Club tell it, there's no way the people of Monterey County would have OK'd anything the P.B. Co. wanted unless they were bamboozled by crafty old Clint Eastwood and his high-rolling business partners. The accusation is a gross insult to the intelligence of the electorate. It also isn't deserved by Eastwood and his colleagues, whose longstanding and generous support of dozens of charitable causes is something the rest of us can't even hope to achieve. But if a lie sticks, why not tell it?

■ Impugn their personal integrity

Say a newspaper prints a story or an editorial you don't agree with. You could write a letter to the editor pointing out the errors in the story and making your substantive case why the truth lies in a different direction. Or you could call up another reporter and spread rumors about the first reporter, hoping the second reporter will print said rumors, thereby intimidating the first reporter from disagreeing with you ever again. Dirty? You bet. Effective? Probably not. But it's worth a try, so go for it!

Some people say Monterey County is a small community where everybody is separated from everybody else by only a degree or two, and that neighborliness and consideration are more appropriate than rumor mongering and mudslinging. But others just can't resist the urge to smear their opponents. This county may not be becoming urbanized as fast as no-growth activists claim. But it's becoming more and more like the Big City every day.

Not so neighborly?

Dear Editor,

I have never met Evelyn Westlye, but I certainly understand her frustrations about home mail delivery and the absence of house numbers in Carmel. As any new resident to Carmel knows, it's very difficult to get utility connections without a street address. Or, how about applying for a home loan? Ever tried getting a credit card online if your billing address is different than your shipping address? But, more importantly, our safety can be affected with no street addresses. A couple of years ago, two of Carmel's finest entered our house unannounced, one with his hand on the butt of his service revolver, while investigating a domestic complaint. It seems they did not count correctly the number of houses north of Seventh. Firemen have constantly complained the lack of house numbers makes answering emergency calls slower. So we all suffer some inconveniences in order to make Carmel quaint.

But poor Evelyn Westlye learned that there can be some serious repercussions when two of Carmel's friendlier residents let her have it for voicing her displeasure. Barbara Livingston was "disappointed" that Evelyn did not see the wisdom in collecting your mail at the central post office where you can meet your neighbors and "share a joke or story." Barbara, in great Carmel Post Office neighborly fashion, told her that if she doesn't "like it, well there are other places to live." And Wies Norberg really laid on the charm by suggesting Evelyn "consider renting outside the city limits." Apparently these post office groupies can get pretty nasty! It is entirely possible that Barbara and Wies are correct in regard to the mail thing, but I am hoping Evelyn keeps renting inside the city's

Why the opposition to downzoning?

Dear Editor,

I just read your editorial (Mar. 3) about the Pebble Beach project. We are wondering where the coastal commissioners will go with their vote on Measure A and can't figure out their opposition to the downzoning to open space of hundreds of acres. Clint Eastwood and company and their limited partners are wondering about their investment in the P.B. property if the zoning in the Del Monte Forest Land Use Plan can't be counted on. The coastal commission doesn't seem to honor any part of it. We hope Tony Lombardo can legally force some attention to the laws that are in place.

David Gauvreau, Pebble Beach

'Covertly written and fatally flawed'

Dear Editor,

It was prudent and appropriate that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors retained a respected, independent law firm to do a legal analysis of the proposed General Plan Initiative. In analyzing the initiative, the independent law firm found that it was fatally flawed in nine distinct areas.

Fatal flaw No. 1: Too rigid and inflexible. The central premise of the initiative was that all changes will be locked in for the next 25 years. Amendments could only be made through a vote of the residents of Monterey County.

Fatal flaw No. 2: Out of sync with LAFCO. The requirement that voters approve the expansion of the boundaries of growth areas would put voters in direct conflict with LAFCO.

Fatal flaw No. 3: Violates Subdivision Map Act.

Fatal flaw No. 4: Inconsistent with the existing general plan. For example, the general plan has policies that encourage economic development through the provision of commercial and industrial land, while the initiative would not allow the creation of any new commercial or industrial land for the next 25 years without a countywide vote.

Fatal flaw No. 5: The initiative doesn't make sense as a stand-alone document. It was written as an amendment to the existing general plan, but copies of the existing plan were not available to those who signed the petition.

Fatal flaw No. 6: Too many subjects. Article II of the California Constitution says that, "An Initiative measure embracing more than one subject may not be submitted to the voters or have any effect." The initiative, however, contained seven subjects.

Fatal flaw No. 7: Not fiscally responsible. For example, the initiative mandates up to 40 percent affordable housing but has no funding mechanism for this mandate.

Fatal flaw No. 8: Initiatives can't do it all. Initiatives are reserved for the adoption or rejection of statutes, or legislative acts. The General Plan Initiative, however, attempts to exert influence in more general, conceptual ways.

Fatal flaw No. 9: Unconstitutional. The initiative gave Monterey County residents a right of first refusal for housing, so that that people who live outside Monterey County would not be able to buy a home here. That's not Constitutional.

Next time, LandWatch should play by the same rules as everybody else and allow full public vetting of legislation before it goes to the ballot.

The men were taken to Monterey County Jail. Casarez was released March 8, and Castaneda was set to leave today.
