Humor, generosity and business sense marked gallery owner's life

By MARY BROWNFIELD

JENNIFER HILL, a longtime Carmel gallery owner who watched the artists in her New Masters Gallery become "old masters," and whose fans included actor Bill Murray, died early Saturday morning following a short battle with lung cancer. She was 58. A memorial mass is set for 2 p.m. on March 21 at the Carmel Mission.

"She was a very courageous individual," said Debby Alexander, who met Mrs. Hill in 1992 and came to work for her and her husband, Bill Hill, at their New Masters Gallery five years ago. "What she went through in this illness was just nasty, but she stayed strong and positive throughout, and a lot of that she did for those around her."

Born in Champaign, Ill., to Art and Jean Boresi on Oct. 8, 1947, she married her high school sweetheart in 1968 and taught math, English and eventually all subjects to fourth, fifth and sixth graders after obtaining a master's degree from the University of Illinois.

In 1973, the Hills moved to Carmel, where he had briefly lived as a teenager after being wooed west by a brother stationed at Fort Ord. Neither had a background in art, but they decided to open a downtown Carmel gallery to showcase six little-known local artists.

"We started out with a few painters who were new, so we called it the 'New Masters Gallery,'" Mrs. Hill told Art-Talk Magazine in 2004. "Some

Vandals strike again in Pebble Beach

By KELLY NIX

VANDALS STRUCK again in Pebble Beach this week, smashing windows of numerous automobiles parked on residential streets.

From March 4 to 14 vandals shattered seven rear windows and two side windows, causing at least $4,700 in damage.

"Somebody is punching the windows out or possibly shooting them with a pellet gun," said Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. John DiCarlo. "We are not sure what exactly was used."

The vandalism occurred at Stevenson Drive, Oak Knoll Lane, Marcheta Lane, Bird Rock Road, Trappers Trail, Hacienda Drive and Forest Way, DiCarlo said.

"It doesn't appear anything was taken from the vehicles," he said. "Some residents did hear loud noises and vehicles driving away in three of the cases, and one person heard a dog barking aggressively."

The recent vandalism in Del Monte Forest adds to a long list of more than 50 similar cases reported to the Monterey County Sheriff's Office from October to December

In those incidents, mailboxes were smashed, houses were spray-painted and car windows were shattered. The entire community was on heightened alert and a $6,500 reward was offered.

DiCarlo said investigators have no way of knowing if vandals in the other cases are responsible for the recent damage. But sheriff's officials have said they believe vandals are involved in a competitive game with one another to do the most damage.

Since the vandals left no apparent evidence at the scenes of their crimes, there is little for investigators to go on, DiCarlo said. He encouraged Pebble Beach residents to report the license plate numbers of suspicious vehicles to the sheriff's office.

Four teenagers were cited after they were caught pulling pranks Dec. 20 at a home on El Bosque Road. One of the teenagers also shot a paintball at a house.

"We constantly keep a patrol in that area," DiCarlo said. "It's a crime of opportunity and it's done quickly, so it's hard for anybody to catch them."

Bridge and shed to keep Highway 1 open

By CHRIS COUNTS

BIG SUR residents will have an opportunity at a public hearing this week to comment on a $35 million Caltrans plan that aims to prevent Highway 1 road closures.

The Big Sur Lodge — located at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, about 26 miles south of Carmel — will host the hearing in its conference room at 6 p.m. March 21.

At Rain Rock and adjacent Pitkins Curve, tons of rock and debris continually rain down on the coast highway, costing taxpayers more than $2 million annually in cleanup and road repairs and leading to countless delays for motorists, according to Caltrans public information officer Susanna Cruz.

Caltrans has proposed building a bridge across across the highway at Pitkins Curve, allowing small rocks and debris to cascade beneath it. At Rain Rock, where large rocks and even boulders frequently end up on the pavement, the state agency would construct a rock shed — similar to snow sheds that protect railroads in the Sierra Nevada — which would protect the road without interfering with sweeping coastal vistas the highway is famous for.

Cruz said Caltrans is open to scaling back its plans and simply constructing the bridge at Pitkins Curve. The bridge could cost as much as $19 million to finish. Without either project, she projected Caltrans will spend $112 million during the next 50 years in maintenance on Highway 1 near the slide. Based on her estimates, the state agency would save $100 in maintenance costs during that period if both projects were completed.

Construction of the project — if it is approved — is tentatively scheduled to begin at the end of 2008 and be completed in early 2012. Lengthy traffic delays are anticipated year-round while it is underway.

Pitkins Curve and Rain Rock are located just north of Limekiln State Park, 56 miles south of Carmel. The

One fisherman drowns, another lost in waves

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THREE KOREAN friends fishing along the rocky shore south of Garrapata State Beach met with tragedy March 12 when one drowned and another, who is still missing, is also suspected of succumbing to the chilly waters of the Pacific Ocean.

Hyun Choon Chung, 64, from Santa Clara, and 48-year-old Joon Pyo Lee of Palo Alto were fishing on one side of a large rock at tide's edge while their friend fished from the other side, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. Scott Ragan. A local family was also fishing in the same area, which is accessible by scrambling down a steep hillside from a large turnout on Highway 1

"One of the local people saw two bodies floating in the water, and our survivor, the third guy, looked and saw his two partners out there," Ragan said. The two men appeared drowned, as neither was moving or calling for help.

The third fisherman tried to snag one of the victims with his fishing pole to keep from losing the body, Ragan reported. He succeeded, but the line broke.

No cell phone service

Meanwhile, another bystander scrambled up the hillside and drove north to the gas station in Carmel Highlands to dial 911 from a pay phone. He was apparently unable to get a cell phone signal at the scene of the tragedy.

The sheriff's rescue team, state parks lifeguards, Pacific Grove Ocean Rescue, U. S. Coast Guard and Mid-Coast Volunteer Fire Brigade responded.

Council responds to grand jury, may tweak policies on public comments

By MARY BROWNFIELD

OFFICIALS AT Carmel City Hall do everything necessary to comply with laws on open government, according to a letter the city council voted last week to send to the Monterey County Civil Grand Jury. In its 2005 report, the grand jury concluded Carmel and other Peninsula cities should voluntarily take steps to increase accessibility, since their procedures "appear to be adequate but may be circumvented or arbitrarily executed in certain instances, resulting in lack of open debate, delayed or inadequate follow-up with no resolution."

In the nine-page letter that Carmel Residents Association President Sherry Shollenbarger condemned as "perfunctory" and "legalistic," city attorney Don Freeman cited the complicated Brown Act and concluded the city follows its rules regarding serving the public and placing items for discussion on council agendas.

"As referenced throughout this letter, not all items raised [during public comment] may require or necessitate the same level of importance and urgency when put in the context of individual interest and general public interest," Freeman wrote.

He also responded to the civil grand jury's five specific recommendations:

■ The city should allow people to submit topics and have them included for discussion on council agendas.

Freeman said the public comment period is adequate, and listing issues on the agenda might have "a chilling effect on persons wishing to comment and could become infeasible, overly cumbersome and time consuming for both the public and staff."

■ The city clerk should summarize public comments in the meeting's minutes.

Though the minutes document only specific council actions, Freeman pointed out recordings of all council meetings are kept for 10 years — far longer than the 30 days required by the Brown Act.

But city councilman Mike Cunningham liked the idea and said it would help him remember community members' concerns.

"In any process, there's always room for improvement," he said. "We ought to be focusing on changes that would move us from where we are today, to better than where we are today."

■ Topics raised by the public should be assigned to council members for followup.

Freeman said city administrator Rich Guillen and his staff handle such tasks, when warranted, on behalf of the council.

■ The city should produce a "written public record of unresolved items, the status of the discussion topic and responsible city council person."

Freeman balked at this suggestion, stating in the letter it "will not be implemented because it is not warranted and reasonable."

Councilman Rose envisions a greater Peninsula role for Carmel

By MARY BROWNFIELD

‘I HAVE a sincere and abiding belief we can make this place better and do it in a way that’s environmentally friendly and yet doesn’t trample on the rights of our business and property owners,’ said attorney Gerard Rose, who hopes to be elected to another term on the Carmel City Council April 11. ‘We need to do a better job of reaching out to the entire Monterey Peninsula and the surrounding cities.’

Being a greater team player to benefit the coast and rectifying several outstanding issues within the city’s one square mile should be the council’s priorities, according to Rose.

Historic preservation, $$$

The councilman wants to see property owners’ concerns over historic designation resolved. When hundreds of them received notice last summer their homes would be officially declared historic, with the designation added to their deeds, Rose said he was ‘surprised and even shocked that 300 structures had been initially characterized as historic.’

A third of the landowners appealed, and the historic resources board is in the process of considering those challenges.

Rose said some of the reports used to declare the structures significant ‘were so vague and bewilderingly un-descriptive I found it hard to believe that if the designations were challenged, any court would sustain them.’

And on the topic of a certain historic home, Rose looks forward to a speedy end to the legal battle over the intended sale of Flanders Mansion. He said he was disappointed the Flanders Foundation resorted to suing the city last November, but he expects the judge will find the council did its homework before it voted to sell the house in Mission Trail park.

‘It needs to become a single-family residence again,’ he said. ‘It’s sad it’s sitting there, drawing dust.’

Rose also has ideas for making money but said a tax hike might not be the most logical step.

‘We need to take a look at who’s paying the business tax. Are all the people who do business in Carmel paying that tax?’ he asked. Rose suspects some who rent out their homes, practice law, handle real estate or otherwise do short- and long-term business in town might not be.

‘It’s better to enforce the laws we have on the books rather than impose new taxes,’ he said.

If elected, Rose said he would like to spend some of the next four years taking on the more ‘fun’ aspects of city business that were set aside while the council grappled

Deputies search for shotgun-wielding burglary suspect

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A 73-YEAR-OLD Los Laureles Grade resident was shaving Wednesday morning when he heard a noise, walked out of the bathroom and ran into an armed burglar.

"He heard someone walking in his house, walked out into the hallway and came face to face with the intruder," Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. Scott Ragan said March 15. "He said, 'What in the hell are you doing in my house?'"

The suspected home invader, Jonathan Ferrald, used to live on the man's property but was evicted about six months ago. He blamed the victim, whose name was withheld, for ruining his life, according to Ragan.

When the two men went outside, the burglar brandished a shotgun.

"He pumped it a couple of times like he was racking a shell into the chamber, but no shells came out of the gun, which they would have if it were loaded," Ragan said.

"Then the bad guy put the gun up under his chin, like he was going to blow his own head off."

The victim told the man he was calling the cops, and by the time deputies arrived after the 7:30 a.m. call, the suspect was gone.

Deputies initially believed Ferrald had simply rifled through the victim's possessions. But numerous items from the victim's house were found outside in a wheelbarrow as if the suspect had planned to wheel the load away. The victim soon discovered a Skil chain saw and a car battery charger were missing, and Ragan said a more thorough search could reveal more items were stolen.

Deputies began searching for Ferrald, who is also wanted on warrants issued by Salinas and Seaside police departments for narcotics charges.

He is described as a 33-year-old white male, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 170 pounds, with blond hair and brown eyes, and he may be driving a green Volvo of unknown year and model.

"People should call 911 if they see him," Ragan said. "And stay away. He might be strung out on narcotics, and he does have access to a gun."

RLS 8th grader wins countywide spelling bee

By KELLY NIX

NOT FAMILIAR with the words “dysphemism,” “mesocracy,” “suerte” and “rocaille?” Just ask Stevenson Middle School eighth grader Jeff LaRocque, who will not only give you their definitions, but can spell them.

It was that last word — “rocaille,” a French term for rock-work — which LaRocque spelled correctly to win the Monterey County Office of Education’s 2006 Spelling Bee last week.

“Just before the whole thing I didn’t think I would win,” he said. “I thought it would be a lot harder than it was.”

LaRocque, 13, out-spelled 42 county middle school students at the March 12 competition in Salinas and will travel to Washington, D.C., in May for the Scripps National Spelling Bee to compete with the country’s top spellers.

“The fact that Jeffrey has been taking French was helpful because the last word he had to spell was French,” said Ginny Brown, coordinator for the county spelling bee.

LaRocque went eight rounds against Anna Chua, 14, of Gavilan View Middle School in Salinas but was victorious after spelling the French word.

“I was just completely blown away,” he said of the win. “I was surprised more than anything else and was really happy afterward.”

In the Scripps spelling bee, participants are given a booklet beforehand containing 4,000 words they may be asked. During the competition, they are entitled to request a word’s definition, origin and to hear it in a sentence before trying to spell it.

Besides being given the opportunity to represent Monterey County in Washington, LaRocque won a $100 gift certificate, Merriam-Webster Collegiate Dictionary and tickets to several local attractions.

But the stakes will be higher at the national competition, the Superbowl of spelling, which is in its 78th year. LaRocque said it’s a challenge he’ll prepare for.

“I definitely think I need to study more,” he said. “I think I need to study the words more than the rules.”

LaRocque’s mother, Cindy, a cryptologist for the Navy, said she believes her son’s spelling talents can also be attributed to TV prohibition in their home.

“I think I made more time for reading,” he said.

LaRocque’s brother, Tim, 20, a Stevenson High School graduate, and Maggie, 18, currently enrolled at Stevenson, helped him study for the bee.

“They were so excited when I won,” LaRocque said.

LaRocque, who has also studied Spanish, Latin and Greek mythology, spent much of his time looking over the list of possible words, which also has a companion audio program he used.

“My American Heritage dictionary didn’t have most of the words in there,” he said. “I honestly memorized about half of them.”

Brown said the county’s spelling bee, in its 11th year, provides children with much more than good spelling skills.

“It’s an opportunity for students to get recognition for academic achievement,” she said. “A lot of time the kids in spelling bees are a little bit nerdy and don’t get the recognition that athletes get. But when you are studying words and roots, you are learning skills that are not only important now but for the rest of your life.”

Spelling bees also force students to speak before an audience.

INCREASED RISK OF HIP OSTEOARTHRITIS

People with shallow hip sockets have a strong risk factor for osteoarthritis, which is the leading cause of disability among the elderly. This is the finding uncovered by Dutch researchers, who used hip radiographs to examine over 800 men and women, ages 55 and older, for signs of a condition called acetabular dysplasia. This condition is characterized by a shallow hip socket that can render the hip unstable and, in severe cases, prone to dislocation. The researchers found that hip osteoarthritis was more than four times greater in those with mild to moderate acetabular dysplasia than those without the condition. Thus, acetabular dysplasia of any measurable depth is a strong independent risk factor for hip osteoarthritis.

Many families try their best to provide home care for a loved one who has lost the ability to function independently. Yet sometimes, even their best efforts will not be enough. That's why so many families in our community have turned to VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES. We raise the quality of in-home care to a higher level. We assist older adults in maintaining their independence at home or in easing the transition to a new setting if needed. ## CRA forum for council, mayoral candidates ABSENTEE BALLOTS began arriving in post office boxes this week, but the Carmel Residents Association hopes voters will wait until after its candidates forum Thursday, March 23, to mail them back. The election of the mayor and two city council members is set for April 11.

Three-term Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud and her challenger, Dogman McBill, as well as city council incumbents Paula Hazdovac and Gerard Rose, and their challenger, Ryan Walbrun, have confirmed they will attend the forum, according to CRA member Linda Anderson. McCloud said she will have to leave early because she is hosting a previously planned campaign event that same evening.

With only five contenders in the race, the forum will be less formal than in years past, according to Anderson. The 90-minute session will begin with each candidate making a short statement, followed by members of the public asking questions orally at a microphone rather than submitting them in writing in advance. "We hope people won't be shy," Anderson said. "It will be more like a nice conversation."

And while the group would typically find an outside moderator to run the forum, CRA President Sherry Shollenbarger will emcee, and no specific time limits for comments and responses will be imposed. "She will keep it informal and impartial," Anderson said.

The CRA town-hall meeting will run 4:30 to 6 p.m. Thursday, March 23, in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center, Mission Street south of Eighth Avenue.

Condor on its way to P.G. nature museum

By KELLY NIX

THE CALIFORNIA Condor specimen the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History will use for its first ever display of the rare bird is scheduled to arrive March 19 — much sooner than expected.

After the museum receives the female specimen, it will undergo a three-month freeze drying to preserve it before it's seen by museum visitors.

"We will have a major celebration when the bird goes on display," said Paul Finnegan, director of the P.G. museum.

The condor, designated bird No. 200 by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, will be displayed alongside hundreds of other birds at the museum.

According to records kept by the San Diego Zoo and the Ventana Wildlife Society, the P.G. museum's condor had a brief and sickly life, living a little more than four years before dying of heart failure in August 2003.

The bird was hatched at the San Diego Zoo Wild Animal Park in 1999, said Yadira Galindo, spokeswoman for the zoo.

The bird was then released with five other condors in 2000 but was captured and taken back to the wild animal park a few months later, said Kelly Sorenson, Ventana Wildlife Society's executive director.

"Some birds aren't meant to make it in the wild," said Sorenson, and bird No. 200 was smaller than normal for its age.

The wild animal park has a breeding center and works closely with the Ventana Wildlife Society and the fish and wildlife service to monitor the birds as part of a recovery program to save them. Since the program's inception, birds have been released in California, Arizona and Baja, Mexico.

The museum has been trying to get a condor for display for more than five years — a process which is difficult since condor specimens are regulated by the federal government.

Richard Gurnee of Freze-Dri Taxidermy will use a method he helped pioneer to preserve the animal. The process involves removing the water from the specimen while it's frozen. The water passes directly from a frozen to a gaseous state.

The condor, a vulture, is on the endangered species list, and by 1983 its population dwindled to about 30. By 1987, every known bird had been taken into captivity to prevent the species from becoming extinct. Since then, breeding and release programs have boosted its numbers to 127 in the wild and 146 in captivity.

HANDLING AN INHERITED PROPERTY

Question: My grandmother recently died and her home passed to my mother, a single woman. My mother was advised to simply pass it on to me, her daughter (also single), in order to avoid capital gains taxes. Is there a problem here?

Answer: Watch out! Let's take this step-by-step.

Your mother receives a property whose "basis" is stepped up to its fair market value either at the time of your grandmother's death or six months thereafter. In plain English, this means that if you mother were to sell the home immediately, the taxes would be figured on the difference between the value at the time of death or six months afterward. In short, she would most likely face no gains taxation.

If she passes the house to you, the daughter, however, there is the simple likelihood of gift taxes, since our tax code allows a parent to pass no more than $11,000 in assets to a child in any single tax year. She could, however, create an agreement that passes an $11,000 interest in the home every year until you own it outright.

As always, the best advice is to seek the guidance of a savvy tax advisor. For all your real estate needs, just call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.mauureenmason.com.

IN THE CLEAR

First popularized in the early 1990s, clear coats are the non-pigmented topcoats of paint that are applied over the colored base coat. The clear coat increases the paint's durability, gloss, and resistance to the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. While it provides depth and gloss to the finish, a clear coat requires special consideration. Because it is clear, it scratches, and swirls tend to be more obvious. With this in mind, pay particular attention to using detailing products that are clear-coat safe, which generally means that they are non-abrasive or minimally so. While a clear coat will not prevent the finish of your vehicle from oxidation, which turns it dull, it will provide a definite advantage.

Clear coats of paint are great if you maintain them. We stress preventative maintenance for all aspects of your car's health. We are proud of our reputation and state-of-the-art equipment to properly service your vehicle. Please don't wait until it needs to be towed to us. Let us perform preventative maintenance on a regular basis before that happens.

P.S.: Regular polishing and waxing will help preserve the clear coat, as well as maintain the value of your vehicle.

FEMA could help CFD breathe better

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL FIRE Department needs a compressor to fill the air tanks firefighters use to breathe while battling blazes and investigating smoke sources, police chief George Rawson told the city council March 7. He proposed applying to the Federal Emergency Management Agency for a $24,868.99 grant and taking $2,763.22 from the fire department's equipment acquisition fund to buy one.

Councilman Mike Cunningham, a champion of scrutinizing expenses, removed the item from the consent agenda and asked the council to discuss it.

"Considering we're spending taxpayer money — $28,000 — it's our fiscal responsibility and we ought to at least talk about alternatives and why this is good use of taxpayer money before we go ahead and do it," he said.

When Rawson and fire chief Andrew Miller recently assessed department operations, they "became concerned our firefighters are carrying SCBAs [self-contained breathing apparatus] when going into fires that are not fully charged," Rawson said. "It's like not having your tires fully inflated."

The city currently pays $500 a year to be a member of an association that shares a mobile compressor managed by Salinas Rural Fire Protection District, but the machine cannot fill the air tanks to their ideal pressure, according to Rawson.

"Firefighters could go into a situation and deplete these tanks and then go to another call," without being able to refill them, he said.

Considering the city already shares services with Pacific Grove Fire Department, Rawson said he wondered if it had better equipment that could be used by Carmel firefighters, but he discovered it does not.

"For the life of me I can't think of a higher priority than protecting the life and health of our firefighters," commented councilman Gerard Rose, who represents the city on the Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance board.

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac backed Rose's motion to approve the grant application, and the council voted 4-0 in favor. Councilman Erik Bethel was absent.

Council rejects solo bid for Sunset landscaping

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE ONLY contractor interested in relandscaping Sunset Center wanted three times what the city expected to spend, so the Carmel City Council rejected Granite Construction's bid without discussion March 7.

City forester Mike Branson said the city, which planned to pay for the second phase of landscaping at Sunset Center with $231,048 in taxpayer-funded state grants, twice solicited bids for the work. An initial request last fall failed to attract any contractors, and while 10 firms requested bid packets following a second solicitation that was heavily advertised this winter, only Granite Construction responded.

The plan calls for planting, installing irrigation and undertaking maintenance of the Hamilton Brown Terrace at the front of the center, as well as demolishing and replacing hardscape, grading, repairing bricks, replacing stairs and installing lighting. Similar work would be done at the entry from San Carlos Street, the ramp at the south end of the property, along Mission Street and at the entrance to Carpenter Hall.

The contractor estimated that work would cost $669,779, including $137,523 for demolition throughout the grounds, $23,077 for irrigation systems and $60,980 for planting. Miscellaneous expenses would include $2,000 for construction of a lighted kiosk, $708 for a sign, $617 for installation of a trash receptacle and $1,364 for 22 linear feet of stepping stones.

To figure out how to align the work with the available money, the city's staff, along with the landscape architect, will "reassess the plans and specifications to evaluate the project scope of work," Branson wrote in his report. In the meantime, he recommended the council adopt a resolution to reject Granite's bid, which it did.

Steelhead rescue project reaches survival-rate benchmark

By CHRIS COUNTS

A QUICK survey of local news headlines during the past year — highlighted by emotionally charged public debates over when, where and how to breach the Carmel River Lagoon sandbar — suggests the Carmel River steelhead population is in more peril than ever before.

But a report issued this week by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District indicates the threatened fish are thriving, at least with the aid of human intervention.

According to the report, an estimated 24,450 fish were rescued from the Carmel River between July and September 2005. The lower stretch of the river typically dries up during the summer, stranding thousands of fish.

The captured steelhead were relocated to the district's state-of-the-art Sleepy Hollow steelhead rearing facility, located just downstream from the San Clemente Dam. This winter, about 13,400 young steelhead survived the forced migration and were released back into the river once the stream flow was deemed adequate to enable the fish to return safely to the ocean.

The survival rate of rescued steelhead last year was a record 55 percent, an impressive figure according to Dave Dettman, a senior fisheries biologist who works for the water management district.

"Our goal has been a 50 percent survival rate," Dettman said. "Survival rates in the wild are only about 10 percent to 40 percent."

The released fish were mostly under a year old and ranged from 3 to 16 inches long.

Late winter rains have been a boon for the project, Dettman said.

"We are really pleased that the winter rains finally came through so we could safely release the remaining fish," he said.

The rearing project began in 1996 as a mitigation measure in response to the overpumping of the Carmel River by California American Water Co. Over the past decade, the water management district has spent $1.6 million on the project, money that comes directly from the agency's surcharge on Cal Am water bills, Dettman said.

A series of missteps

"We originally envisioned the facility would operate for no more than five or six years," he recalled. "But that was back when the water district was going to build a new Los Padres Dam."

Along the way, the water management district encountered unexpected challenges.

"In 1999, the fish suffered a high mortality rate due to warm water, bacterial infections and bird predation," Dettman said.

That year, Common Merganser ducks repeatedly snuck into the tanks at night and ate most of the fish waiting to be released. A power failure in September 1999 killed another 2,000 steelhead.

Also, temperatures as high as 75 degrees were recorded in the tanks, 10 degrees to 20 degrees above what steelhead are accustomed to. In response, the facility was closed in 2000, and a cooling system was installed. In 2002, the facility was shut down for a year to address silting issues at the San Clemente Dam.

Since 2003, the water management district has made steady progress, finally reaching its goal of a 50 percent survival rate this year.

Dettman, while encouraged by his agency's success, is setting his sights higher. "I'd like to see the river run all year-round, like the Big Sur and Little Sur rivers," he said. "That would be a best-case scenario."

Tax officials will cooperate to track down deadbeat businesses

By KELLY NIX

THE PACIFIC Grove City Council voted Wednesday to obtain social security numbers and other personal information in an effort to track down business owners who have not purchased a business license and are not paying their taxes.

The data will come from income tax returns filed with the California Franchise Tax Board. "This is just a matter of finding who is playing by the rules," Pacific Grove City Manager Jim Colangelo told The Pine Cone.

The agreement, dubbed the "local government sharing program," will arm city officials with crucial information to find home-based business owners.

About 1,600 business owners in Pacific Grove purchase business licenses and pay local tax, which amounts to about $300,000 a year to the city.

Although it's impossible to determine the number of business owners not paying taxes, the revenue loss to the city each year could be in the 10s of thousands of dollars, Colangelo said.

"I have heard anecdotally there are a lot of businesses out there that haven't paid up," he said. "I would be shocked if we found everybody was in compliance."

Anybody who owns a business in Pacific Grove must purchase a business license and pay local tax. That includes someone, for instance, who makes a living selling on the Internet auction site, eBay.

Those determined to be in violation will be mailed a letter from the city "asking them to comply," Colangelo said.

Confidential information

In an age of identity theft, there is concern by the state that the sensitive information could be used unscrupulously.

The agreement with Pacific Grove and the tax board includes a confidentiality statement, which certain city employees will be required to sign, prohibiting them from disclosing the data. Colangelo said the information will be secure. "Only people who need to know about it will have access to it," he said.

The tax board will provide the city with names, addresses, social security numbers or taxpayer identification number and principal business activity codes.

The agreement states the data will only be used to find those who haven't paid business tax and not for any other purposes. It also says the information is to be destroyed after three years.

In June, the franchise tax board will send Pacific Grove the most recent information of business owners, based on the board's current filings. More information will be sent in December which will contain the complete 2005 filings.

The program cost the city a $500 fees to the tax board for providing the data. "Even if we found a very small number of people who weren't in compliance, it would more than pay for itself," Colangelo said.

SPCA needs foster families for 'Katrina dogs'

By KELLY NIX

THE SOCIETY for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of Monterey County is seeking families to foster 10 dogs separated from their owners after Hurricane Katrina last August.

The SPCA took in 31 dogs that were lost after the hurricane and has reunited 17 of them with their families. But 10 dogs are still unaccounted for.

"Our goal is to give all the dogs back to their owners," said Beth Brookhouser, SPCA director of community outreach. "That's why we have held on to the dogs for so long. People in the Gulf Coast are just starting to get back on their feet."

Tens of thousands of pets were displaced after the devastating hurricane.

Although the SPCA was initially going to make the dogs available to foster families in December, the date was pushed back, because the agency kept getting phone calls from families looking for their lost pets.

"In January and February, we made a lot of matches, and that made us decide to hold off as long as we could," Brookhouser said.

The dogs are 1 to 5 years old and come in all sizes.

"They range from a chihuahua mix to a purebred black Lab, a couple of young puppies, a couple of pitbulls, a shar-pei mix and a lhasa apso, she said. "You name it, we have a wide variety."

Foster families will be asked to keep the dogs for three months.

"After that point," Brookhouser said, "if we haven't found their owners, they will be available for adoption."

All of the pooches have been "temperament tested" to ensure they are good-natured and safe around people, she said.

But three of the hounds will need special attention, since they've been diagnosed with heartworm disease, a condition caused by parasitic worms. The disease can be cured with the proper care but is fatal if untreated. It is not directly contagious.

The good news is the SPCA will take care of the treatment and only requires the foster family bring in the dog for scheduled appointments.

"We take care of everything," Brookhouser said.

There is no fee to foster a dog, but love and respect for animals are a must.

Everybody Needs a Break Now and Then

Even the most dedicated of family caregivers periodically need some "time off" in order to replenish their energy and renew their spirits. But their commitment is so great that they have difficulty giving themselves permission to take a break.

Besides, the logistics — and the worry — involved in finding a qualified substitute or in taking their loved one to a care facility can be overwhelming.

We can help.

Our Home Care Coordinator will visit you to discuss your needs and wishes. Then, when the time comes, we will carefully select a Personal Attendant to be at home with your loved one while you are away, and to follow the routine that you have established. We'll do everything possible to make this temporary absence comfortable for your loved one and for you. It's worth a try, isn't it? Because you can't take good care of anyone else unless you take care of yourself.

Last living Temptation brings the Motown sound to Sunset

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH ITS trademark thumping bass lines, signature tambourines and slick but soulful harmonies, the music of Motown Records in the 1960s and early 1970s — featuring artists such as Diana Ross and the Supremes, Marvin Gaye, Stevie Wonder, Smokey Robinson and the Miracles, and the Four Tops — provided the soundtrack for a generation of Baby Boomers coming of age. And perhaps no act better defined the Motown sound than the Temptations.

Thanks to the indomitable spirit of the group's last original member, Otis Williams, the Temptations — who will play at Sunset Center Wednesday, March 22 — are still together after 44 years of triumph and tragedy.

Williams, 64, has now played with 22 different Temptations. He was there at the beginning, when the members of two struggling Detroit R&B groups joined forces in 1961 and adopted a name suggested by Motown Records founder Berry Gordy.

Hitsville, U.S.A.

Williams was also present when the group struck gold on a series of classics ranging from sweet and sentimental ballads (“My Girl,” “Just My Imagination”), irresistible pop hits (“Get Ready,” “Ain’t Too Proud to Beg”) to biting social commentary (“Cloud Nine,” “Papa Was a Rolling Stone”).

“It was such a special time,” Williams recalled in an interview last week. “It was a truly great era. It’s become etched into Americana.”

Surrounded by a remarkable array of musical talent, Williams considers himself fortunate to be part of the Motown Records legacy.

“It was simply divine intervention,” he said. “I look back on it all, and it had to be God’s infinite wisdom that brought so many talented people together in a small two-story building in Detroit to create such strong and meaningful music.”

Highs and lows

Finally, Williams was still there when the string of hits ended by the mid-’70s. Drug abuse took a huge toll on the band. Changing musical trends — from disco, to new wave, to grunge — didn’t help either, and could have easily consigned the Temptations to the dust bin of rock ’n’ roll history.

Yet over the past three decades, the group has persevered.

“It has been a real challenge to keep the Temptations together,” conceded Williams. “We went through some real rough times. But change is a constant in life, and we all have to deal with it. I look back on it all with a lot of fond memories.”

And he’s having more fun now than ever before. With a new record of ’60s Motown covers (“Reflections”) and a well-received tour, he considers himself a very lucky man.

“I’m still enjoying what I’m doing, and I’m doing what I love,” he beamed. “We’re bringing people enjoyment, happiness and fond memories. How many people can say that?” The show starts at 8 p.m.

Ain’t Misbehavin’ in Carmel

For one evening at least, Sunset Center will magically transform into Harlem’s Cotton Club, circa 1929. Complete with snazzy period costumes and a sizzling jazz trio, the fast-paced Broadway musical comes to Carmel Friday, March 17, at 8 p.m.

Monterey Symphony presents Mozart

The music of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, including the “Overture to Idomeneo” and “Symphony No. 29 in A Major,” will be featured at Sunset Center when the Monterey Symphony returns to Carmel Sunday and Monday, March 19 and 20. The Sunday matinee performance begins at 3 p.m., while the Monday concert starts at 8 p.m.

The Temptations — Motown legends who were elected to the Rock ‘n’ roll Hall of Fame in 1989 — perform Wednesday at Sunset Center.

‘Fully Committed’ puts new twist on the one-man show

By CHRIS COUNTS

AS A reservationist at an exclusive New York eatery, out-of-work actor Sam Peliczowski is the object of attention for a cast of callers desperate to land a table at the swank restaurant where he works.

While the Big Apple’s elite and wannabe elite pester, schmooze and cajole Peliczowski, and his maniacal co-workers tease and torment him, he takes a look at his own life.

Peliczowski’s sometimes biting and often hilarious observations about the pretensions of fine dining are at the heart of Becky Mode’s “Fully Committed,” a new PacRep Theatre production opening Tuesday, March 21, at the Circle Theatre.

According to director and designer John Rousseau, the one-man play is filled with hysterical moments.

“It’s full of wild and crazy characters,” said Rousseau, who has worked at PacRep Theatre for 22 years. “It’s like an ‘I Love Lucy’ episode. There are so many things going on at once.”

But it’s not all laughs, explained Rousseau.

“The play has a real message about entitlement and taking responsibility for yourself,” he said. “It’s about a man’s journey to self-respect. You really start to root for him.”

Rousseau said the play is the perfect vehicle for showing off the many skills of John Farmanesh-Bocca, who grew up on the Monterey Peninsula before moving to Southern California to pursue an acting career.

“When you do a show like this, you’d better have someone in mind,” he said. “John is a talented guy.”

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

PERFORMING TUESDAY and Wednesday, March 21 and 22, at Monterey Live, storyteller musician Paul Thorn is the son of a Church of God minister. A professional boxer, factory worker, skydiver and finally a songwriter, Thorn has had an interesting life. Born in Tupelo, Miss. he was reared on gospel music and, while playing his original compositions in a Tupelo pizza joint, was discovered by the legendary manager Miles Copeland. Thorn recorded his first album, “Hammer and Nail,” in 1997 for A & M, and then recorded “Ain’t Love Strange” for Copeland’s boutique Ark 21 label three years later. He hit the road as an opening slot for Sting and has subsequently toured with Mark Knopfler, Jeff Beck, John Hiatt, Robert Cray and John Prine. The quirky singer/songwriter’s latest CD, “Are You With Me,” is filled with clever songs about love (lost and found). It’s a slick R&B recording filled “with the sweet sounds of chicks and horns.”

HILL

Michael, were practically raised in the gallery — prompting the latter to share his memories in a college application essay. Mrs. Hill also taught at Junipero Serra School, worked for publisher CTB/McGraw Hill and wrote five math books before going to work full time in the gallery in 1986.

The business continued to grow and attract fine artists, eventually moving to its current space on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh and featuring the works of 80 painters and sculptors. New Masters received the Carmel Chamber of Commerce Green Ribbon of Excellence award for best art gallery in 1998, 2002 and 2005, and was named Business of the Year in 1998.

“She loved the art gallery business, and she was a great salesperson, even though she didn’t feel like she was,” Alexander said.

“The response from all of the artists here in the gallery has been overwhelming,” she continued. “They say she will continue to be in their thoughts and in their art, which would please her to no end.”

‘Diplomatic and tactful’

Active in the business community, Mrs. Hill was long involved with the Carmel chamber, and while president of its board worked with the Carmel Gallery Alliance to stage the Carmel Art Festival, now in its 13th year.

She remained a board member and also served on the chamber’s economic development committee.

“I really respected her a lot, and she was really well respected in the arts community,” said chamber CEO/executive director Monta Potter, who also traveled with Mrs. Hill on a chamber-led trip to the Sonoma wine country to learn how communities there were attracting business. “She was a really good person, very solid, community involved and willing to give of her time.”

Mrs. Hill was also known for her philanthropy and served on the boards of Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula and the Carmel-by-the-Sea Rotary Club. For 18 years, the Hills have held annual holiday toy drives to support the Kinship Center, Salvation Army and the YWCA.

“We would have mounds and mounds and mounds of toys,” Alexander said. After the Hills helped artist Will Bullas open his store, she donated funds from sales of his books to the Carmel Youth Center. And following a snowmobile accident in which her 80-year-old father, who lives in Laramie, Wyo., broke his neck, she spent a year helping to care for him and then raised money to benefit the hospital in Colorado that had treated him.

“She was always thinking about the community and people who had less than what she had,” Alexander said.

Earlier this year, she found herself on the receiving end. Actor Bill Murray, whom she had met at a previous AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, visited Mrs. Hill while she was in hospice care in Monterey.

“He spent a couple of hours with her, and she told him how much she and her husband enjoyed going to the AT&T,” Alexander recounted. “And he said, ‘I’m going to get you a ticket.’”

He came through, and the Hills made sure they were near the green when Murray played Pebble Beach this year.

The actor walked right past them, chin in the air.

“Everyone thought, ‘Oh no! How terrible!’” Alexander said. “And then he turned and said, ‘I knew you were there.’ He was just fooling with her. It cracked her up.”

Mrs. Hill is survived by her husband, Bill; a daughter, Melissa; and a son, Michael, all of Carmel; sisters Annette Pueshel of Peoria, Ill., and Nancy Broderick of Carmel; parents Art and Jean Boresi of Laramie, Wyo.; mother-in-law Verna of Castroville, and brother-in-law Jack of San Francisco, “along with extended family and friends worldwide.”

A Mass of the Resurrection will be held Tuesday, March 21, at 2 p.m. at the Carmel Mission, with a celebration of her life immediately following at New Masters Gallery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Carmel-by-the-Sea Rotary Club’s recently established Jennifer Hill Memorial Scholarship Fund to benefit students from Carmel High School and York School, from which her children graduated, at P.O. Box 774, Carmel, CA 93921.

“Our deputy went down there, and the survivor flagged him down,” Ragan said. “One of the two victims was still in the cove, but the other had gone out, or under, and was no longer visible.”

State parks lifeguards brought Chung’s body to shore, and workers employed a rope system to carry it up the cliff to the highway, where the coroner took custody.

Rescuers conducted an extensive search from land, air and sea for Lee, but they were unable to find him.

Ragan said deputies do not suspect foul play in the drowning. Chung had a cut on his forehead, suggesting he had fallen, and Ragan suspected “one fell into the water, the other tried to help him and both got swept out.”

Deputies contacted the families of the drowned man and his missing friend and are attempting to acquire dental records from Lee’s physician in Korea in order to identify his body should it be recovered, according to Ragan.

No decision yet on P.B. ballot measure

NO DECISION was made at the March 9 coastal commission meeting in Monterey about Measure A, the Pebble Beach Company's ballot measure which would set aside large areas of Monterey pine forest while clearing the way for a new golf course, hotel rooms and equestrian center.

Instead, the coastal commission will decide whether to approve the measure at a June meeting in Santa Rosa.

Monterey County voters resoundingly approved Measure A in 2000. Because it amends the Del Monte Forest Local Coastal Program, it cannot go into effect without the coastal commission's approval.

If the commission makes changes in the measure, those changes will have to go back to county voters, a coastal commission official said.

For details about the coastal commission meeting in Santa Rosa, visit www.coastal.ca.gov or call (415) 904-5200.

River School readers earn bald principal

TO THE delight of his students, Carmel River School Principal Jay Marden got his head shaved Monday afternoon after learning the kids had spent 1,425 hours plowing through books during the annual Read-a-thon. In celebration of this year's theme — "Go Where the Wild Things Are" — the event also included a drawing contest, a story-writing contest and classroom reading competitions.

"While Wild Things T-shirts and ice cream parties were excellent rewards for the students, they were dead set on reaching the school's reading goal" after learning they'd have a chance to make him go nearly bald, Marden said.

"Our students are excellent readers, but during the Read-a-thon they all become voracious readers," he said.

When the students exceeded their goal, the hair went, and considering it was a chilly day, Marden immediately felt the loss. But it was well worth it.

COMMITTED

Farmanesh-Bocca — who is also featured in PacRep's production of "The Full Monty" — proved to be a natural for the role.

"He's a clown at heart," Rousseau said. "And he plays a lot of characters just in his normal conversation. He's well known around here and people really like him."

Rousseau said "Fully Committed" puts a new twist on the concept of a one-man show.

"It's different than a typical one-man show where an actor tells a story or impersonates all the characters," he explained. "The characters are always on the phone and never in the room. It's a new way of looking at a one-man show. I've never seen another one-man show like this."

"Fully Committed," which was named one of the top 10 plays of 2000 by Time Magazine, continues through April 23. "The Full Monty," which opened March 9, continues through April 15.

Hosting a wine & cheese tasting party

By CHARYN PFEUFFER and MORGAN PHILLIPS

So YOU want to throw a wine party? Well, in your quest to serve the perfect petite syrah, don't forget to serve up something tasty to go with it. Wine and cheese go well together (both are products of fermentation) and there's a cheese that will bring out the best in just about every wine. Indeed, the creamy and salty characteristics of cheese tend to work magic with the natural acidity and sweetness of wine.

Given the variety of wines available for the choosing, it may seem overwhelming to pair them with food. Not to worry. Kent Torrey of The Cheese Shop in Carmel Plaza eschews any so-called rules, especially the old "red with red, white with white" one.

"The key thought is balance — elegant, light flavors with same, and stronger or robust flavors with same," he says. Cheese and wine always work together, he adds, as you are dealing with basic science: bases and acids.

"Certain marriages are classic — French Roquefort with dessert wine, for example — but we never like to say one marriage is better than the other, as individual palates will dictate preference," he says.

Here are some simple guidelines to make the process of hosting a wine party easy and delicious. A good start is to choose three or four different cheeses, preferably of different milks (cow, sheep, goat) and different consistencies (hard, soft, semi-hard). According to cheese expert Max McCalman, author of "Cheese: A Connoisseur's Guide to the World's Best" (Clarkson Potter, $32.50), "A variety of flavors and provenances offer more possibilities of finding pleasurable cheese and wine experiences."

Pairing regional wines with regional cheeses is also worth trying, even if not always a sure thing.

As a side note, always remember to let cheeses warm to room temperature (about an hour). When cold, cheese tends to be rubbery and tasteless. Add a selection of nuts and fruits (dried figs, sliced apples or pears, and marmalades work well) and perhaps some fresh honeycomb, and your guests will have an epicurean experience to remember.

If you want to go one step further, here are some general ideas to follow when trying to pair particular wines and cheeses:

"The saltier the cheese, the sweeter the wine should be," McCalman advises. Particularly salty cheeses such as Parmigiano-Reggiano or Spanish Manchego tend to greatly enhance the fruity characteristics of wines. Also, pay attention to the relative "sizes" of the wine and cheese. McCalman notes, "A cheese with a big and persistent flavor generally requires a wine of depth; otherwise the cheese will likely overwhelm the wine." Also, the more acidic the wine, the more likely it is to resonate with highly acidic cheeses; for instance, the perfect match of sauvignon blanc and fresh goat's cheese.

If you really want to challenge your guests, McCalman suggests this: First, try a wine by itself; then try it with each of the cheeses offered, starting with the mildest. Between each pairing, cleanse the palate with some mild crackers or crusty bread and a little water. Torrey takes a more playful approach to the wine and cheese experience. "We have always told customers that to throw a great party, pick a theme — say Cabernets under $25," Torrey says. Everyone brings a brown-bagged bottle, which is opened and placed on one table. On another table, eight cheeses are featured alongside a platter of breads and crackers and a platter of fruits and veggies. "Voilà, instant party!" says Torrey.

If you believe expensive wines and cheeses are necessary for great wine and cheese parties, think again. Torrey says cheese and wine can cost as little or much as one desires. "Since cheese and wine is one of the oldest, (if not the oldest) food and drink pairings on the planet, one can always count on having a great party by serving these two together," he says. And keep in mind cheese is filling and rich, so people tend to eat less.

Kent Torrey of The Cheese Shop at Carmel Plaza can help you plan a gourmet feast.

ROSE

with serious undertakings such as the Local Coastal Program.

"The general plan — some elements of that need work — and it's the kind of thing that will need input from a lot of citizens rather than the usual suspects," he said. "There are some provisions that frankly are just plain ludicrous, though I don't want to itemize them because the planning commission has to get them first."

Lack of parking dissuades people from eating, sleeping and shopping in Carmel, a situation that could be rectified with a parking garage funded by bonds or business partners, according to Rose.

"Anybody who says we don't need a parking garage is being shortsighted and unrealistic," he said.

And as the local economy recovers, Rose said the council should undertake deferred maintenance and capital projects.

"It will be fun to prioritize that and start doing things that will have an immediate and positive reaction from most businesses and residents," such as redoing medians, parks and the Scenic Road pathway. "Because we've had several years now of drastically reduced income, we have had to put capital improvements on the back burner and in fact have turned off the oven."

He complimented city staff for keeping the town clean, streets repaired and trees trimmed despite having fewer resources.

"But now that we're beginning to find our way back to fiscal stability, we need to spend the money it takes to make Carmel look and feel like a world-class city," he said.

Meanwhile, the council should continue to expect having to spend on the unexpected, such as the Flanders lawsuit and stormwater runoff issues.

Born in Australia but with a lengthy family presence on the Central Coast, Rose has worked as a lawyer for 30 years. He was appointed to fill the council seat Sue McCloud vacated to become mayor in 2000 and was reelected to a full term two years later.

"We've done a good job working as a team, albeit with very different personalities, to better our priorities so we're no longer just insular Carmel but part of the larger environment," Rose said. "If given another four-year stint, I will work very hard to make sure the progress the current team has set in motion continues."

"I'm very optimistic we can do more to make Carmel a city that works, and given the chance, four years from now I'm hoping the people who elected me will say, 'He did exactly what he said he would do.'"

After snafu, new Pacific Grove senior housing lottery set

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A NEW drawing will be held for seniors interested in living in the Pacific Grove Senior Apartments after the first drawing was declared invalid because of an error in the lottery process.

The new drawing, which will only be for 13 "local-plus" apartments, will be held March 23 at 4 p.m. at the Pacific Grove Community Center at 515 Junipero.

Representatives from South County Housing, the project's nonprofit developer, will be available from 3 p.m. to answer questions about the selection process.

The new drawing will only be offered to those who took part in the Feb. 23 drawing. No new applicants will be accepted.

For 35 apartments in the complex which is nearing completion adjacent to Lovers Point, local applicants were allotted two tickets to be entered into the drawing, while only one ticket was allowed for non-residents. For the local-plus units, local applicants were allowed up to four slips to be entered.

But South County Housing made an error in the selection process by not clearly stating in the pre-application that all applicants were eligible for the local plus units.

The error resulted in some applicants being disadvantaged and other receiving an unintended advantage.

"Many eligible local and almost all non-local applicants were left out of the local-plus random drawing," said a press release issued March 10 by the City of Pacific Grove.

The apartments, expected to open in May, will offer 48 units for seniors at a cost of $452 to $791 per month.

The March 24 drawing will include all 273 applicants already on file.

Questions about the drawing may be directed to the city's community development director, Jon Biggs, at (831) 648-3190, or to city manager Jim Colangelo at (831) 648-3106.

The corporations come and go, but the need stays the same

TWENTY YEARS ago, the Monterey County Herald was owned by the Block family of Toledo, Ohio. In the early 1990s, they sold it to the E.W. Scripps Co. of Cincinnati, which, after just a few years of ownership, turned the paper over to Knight Ridder, a company headquartered at the time in Miami, Florida.

Monday, an announcement that Knight Ridder would sell the Herald to the McClatchy Company of Sacramento was immediately followed by the surprising news that McClatchy would unload the paper as soon as it could — presumably to the MediaNews Group of Denver.

All these are fine companies with, of course, a primary goal of making money, but also with admirable track records of journalistic integrity and civic-mindedness. Every one of them has expressed allegiance to stellar principles of corporate responsibility and, for the most part, has lived up to them.

Still, through all these eras of out-of-town ownership, there has been something missing at the Herald. Employee morale has ranged from poor to terrible. Managers have arrived from God-knows-where on the corporate ladder, stayed awhile and then departed without leaving much of a mark. Flashes of journalistic brilliance have been offset by occasional lapses of judgment that surprised everyone with their appalling amateurishness.

Through it all, the community has stayed loyal to the paper. Even now, with the Internet supposedly on brink of eliminating “dead tree” media once and for all, a surprisingly large number of people still read the Herald every day. We certainly do. The darn thing is too vital to the community to be ignored.

And that’s why we wish the people at the Herald the best, no matter who their new owner turns out to be. The 160 employees of the paper are going through an emotional tug-of-war right now, wondering whether their jobs will be there in six months, much less whether they can expect a raise anytime soon. But we hope they’ll take courage from the fact that they are truly important people in Monterey County — with the power to right wrongs and reward good deeds, to shine a light on corporate and political corruption and to herald civic virtue, to thrill their readers with stories of heroism and talent and to warn them of dangers lurking for their town, their state, their country or the world.

From the most junior employees in the mailroom to the bigshots in the executive suite, they are all part of a great enterprise. And while it may be hard for them to think about that right now, the readers of the Herald have never lost sight of how important an institution it can be.

Letters to the Editor

The Pine Cone encourages submission of letters which address issues of public importance. The Pine Cone reserves the right to determine which letters are suitable for publication. Letters should not exceed 350 words, and must include the author’s name, telephone number and street address. Please do not send us letters which have been submitted to other newspapers.

The Pine Cone is no longer able to accept letters to the editor by fax. Please submit your letters by U.S. mail, e-mail, or in person (addresses are provided below).

Our motive is pure Dear Editor,

Your March 10 editorial (‘How to insult people who disagree with you’) surprised and disappointed me. It would appear you are focusing solely on negative journalism, and in the process, helping those who only want “a little more economic development.” Who is kidding who? There are a lot of us, who live here and think differently than you do. It is not just outsiders! Our motive, to protect this heavenly environment that surrounds us. When is enough, enough? We are all far more knowledgeable now of the negative impact of the human experience on the environment. I believe Measure A would not pass today. There is an opportunity, NOW, for a lucky few to be an extraordinary positive influence by donating to open space and showing the world how to protect a precious resource we all call home.

Susan L. Grau,
Carmel

‘Distressing and sexist’ To the editor,

I’ve just read a brief news item from March 10 about the Carmel High School cheerleading team competing in nationals at Orange County. I realize that this letter may be too late for the print deadline, but I felt compelled to write. First, many congratulations to the team for such a weighty accomplishment. Despite preconceived notions perpetuated by half-century old stereotypes, cheerleading is an intense sport that deserves the respect of the athletic community.

That being said, I was totally appalled at the final quote in the article. Is “putting your hand up a girl’s skirt and getting away with it” truly the only plausible bait to recruit boys to join a cheerleading team, or any female-dominated arena, for that matter?

What a distressing and sexist sign of the times, and such a monumental step backward for cheerleaders who are trying to make what they do appear athletically legiti-mate and socially relevant.

Even worse, this quote actually followed up the assertion that "cheerleaders are such role models, especially for little girls." I can only imagine the final quote was an ill attempt at self-deprecating humor, but it completely negated the rest of the article, portraying cheerleaders as worth little more than their ready-to-be-explored skirts. I seriously hope that such comments do not spawn a surge in male cheerleading. If it is an authentic sport as Ms. Hamilton insists, there simply must be a better lure for the male population.

Cheerleaders work as hard and harder as participants in more widely accepted sports, for less recognition and less personal gain. Again, they deserve to be respected for the athletes that they are. Let's not take away from that by advertising our girls like ladies at the Moulin Rouge.

COUNCIL

Cunningham, however, also favored this recommendation and suggested Guillen spend a few minutes of each meeting on issues previously raised by the public.

"Report back with a laundry list of topics that were voiced and short comments as to their disposition," he said. "That decision would largely be done by the city administrator and the mayor, but we've closed the loop with the person who brought the topic up."

"How do I determine what's a major issue?" Guillen asked. "The system works already."

Councilman Gerard Rose backed Cunningham.

The procedures and forms used by the public to place items on agendas should be available at council meetings.

Freeman said that is already done, but CRA member Roberta Miller said those forms and procedures don't exist. Her husband, Monte, said he wrote letters to the city asking for public discussion of topics, only to receive no responses.

"We urge that rather than use the minimal requirements, rather than use the 'wiggling' room offered by the Brown Act, the council needs to honor the residents with substantive, defined and well-researched answers to the concerns brought before this council," Shollenbarger concluded in her comments to the council.

Rose and other members spoke of the progress toward transparency the city has made.

"Ten years ago we didn't have the kind of dialog with the public that we do today; we've done all sorts of things to encourage participation," Rose said. "We've made Herculean efforts to try to engage people and are continuing to do so."

Mayor Sue McCloud listed some of those efforts, including televising council meetings, posting agendas in the post office, updating the city website and providing a report of projects and their statuses.

Rose made the motion to send Freeman's letter which received unanimous support. The council decided Cunningham's suggestions should be researched to see if they require any formal changes in policy.

"Let's put the item on the agenda next month to discuss it," Rose said.

SPCA

"We are looking for families that are committed to these dogs and understand the significance and responsibility of what they're doing," Brookhouser said.

The SPCA will provide free canine behavioral classes to families who foster or adopt the Katrina dogs.

"It takes a special family," Brookhouser said. "We will not give you the dog and abandon you. We are here to offer support every step of the way."

WHAT IS BEING PLANNED?

The California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) is proposing long-term improvements to the reliability and safety of Highway 1 at the Pitkins Curve/ Rain Rocks location, which has a history of slope instability and costly road closures. The project is located near Lucia and Limekiln Creek on the Big Sur coast highway between postmiles 21.3 and 21.6. Significant impacts to the project area's visual qualities are anticipated as a result of the project. The project will not adversely affect the activities, features or attributes of State Parks property (a 49 USC 303 Section 4(f) property) and a finding of de minimis impact is anticipated.

WHY THIS PUBLIC NOTICE?

Caltrans has completed an analysis of the effects this project may have on the environment and has prepared a Draft Environmental Impact Report detailing these studies. This ad provides notification of the availability of the draft environmental document and the date and location of the public hearing. "Carmel Legends"

What is so great about "South of Ocean"?
 - Part 1 -

This descriptive euphemism is usually presented as though it were in the neighborhood of the Holy Grail. Beginning readers of Carmel real estate advertising are often swept away by the promise, and are motivated to immediate and precipitous action.

There is some virtue in the description "South of Ocean", but it is scarcely grounds for hysterical jubilation. Ocean Avenue is, of course, the key street of Carmel. It's the main drag, the seat of commerce, the subject of a filler in that February 3, 1915 maiden issue of The Pine Cone, which said "Pave Ocean Avenue". It has long since been paved, boasts a boulevard parkway down its center, has stop signs at every intersection but San Carlos, and acts as home base for all directions given about the city. It extends in a quite straight line from Highway 1 (Carmel's umbilical cord) to the Pacific Ocean, and everything goes north or south from it.

The premium quality associated with "South of Ocean" is probably attributable to Frank Devendorf who, in 1903, laid out the first subdivision. It was substantial, approximating the entire present area of the City of Carmel, an undoubted plum in the history of subdivisions. Because the land to the south of Ocean Avenue sloped gently and regularly away, he was able to establish a perfect grid of straight streets with Spanish names, bisected by straight streets with number. Thus it was possible, from the beginning, to reach such a point as Dolores at 12th without detouring around surprising canyons, arroyos and unexpected hills. "South of Ocean" became at once an area where you knew where you were.

Written in 1987 & 1988, and
