After 22 years, state parks finally gets its lighthouse

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH LITTLE fanfare, the Point Sur Lighthouse was added to the inventory of the California Department of Parks and Recreation July 12, concluding a lengthy process that began 22 years ago.

"We are very pleased that the transfer of this historic lighthouse has been finalized," said state parks spokesperson Dave Schaechtele. "On behalf of California State Parks, we're honored to be the stewards of this magnificent historical lighthouse and to continue the state's rich tradition of protecting these resources for generations to come."

Located on Highway 1 about 19 miles south of Carmel, the lighthouse sits 362 feet above the surf on a large volcanic rock. The only complete turn-of-the-century light station open to the public in California, the facility has been in operation since 1889. Lighthouse

Failed gun, tough manager halt bank robbery

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A MEMBER of the Aryan Brotherhood attempted to rob a Crossroads bank at gunpoint Monday but was foiled when the clip fell out of his weapon and the manager pinned him to the ground, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. Scott Ragan.

Carmel Valley resident Tyrone Foisy, 45, reportedly walked into Wells Fargo Bank just before 11 a.m. July 31 and, pointing a handgun, demanded money from a teller. The manager, who approached the suspect from behind, did not know he was attempting to rob the bank, according to Ragan.

"He thought he was an angry customer, and the robber turned around, and as he turned around, the magazine fell out," Ragan said. A few bullets escaped and rolled along the floor, and the manager grabbed for the gun.

The pair fell to the ground, where the suspect used a can of pepper spray to temporarily blind the manager. But he was not deterred. And another bank employee helped pin the robber to the ground.

When bank customer John Honeywell walked in to make a deposit, he "noticed a guy with a wet shirt sitting on top of someone," and another bank employee holding on to the suspect's leg, Honeywell told The Pine Cone moments later. "An employee said, 'Get out, there's a bank robbery in progress!'" Someone called 911.

Honeywell reported hearing the suspect and the manager exchange words as they struggled on the floor. "The robber said, 'Hey, I'm through,' and the guy on top said, 'I'm not, you son of a bitch!' and hit him in the face." Ragan could not corroborate Honeywell's observation.

Foisy then let go of the gun, which the manager shoved away and another employee retrieved, according to Honeywell, who said he went outside to see if he could spot a getaway

UNDERGROUND INTAKES COULD BE IN DESAL'S FUTURE

By KELLY NIX

AS ENVIRONMENTALISTS across the state tighten their grip on desalination plants using open ocean intakes, subsurface drilling technology could be the only alternative to providing a new water supply for the Monterey Peninsula. And if the method is used for a new desal plant, it could be in Marina instead of Moss Landing, a consultant to Cal Am told The Pine Cone.

The subsurface drilling technology, long used in the petroleum industry but not yet for any large-scale desal plants, uses intakes below the ocean floor.

"It appears to be supported by environmental groups and the coastal commission's staff," said Sarah Hardgrave, associate planning services for RBF Consulting, a firm working with California American Water Co. "And it's highly likely Cal Am will be pushed in that direction."

Subsurface intakes are being touted as ecologically superior alternatives to desal plants that co-locate with power plants, where intakes and once-through cooling systems kill marine organisms.

"With subsurface intakes," said Joe Geever, Surfrider Foundation's Southern California regional manager, "you completely eliminate marine life mortality, which is a huge hurdle for ocean desalination."

But the technology is not a magic bullet. It's unproven in the water industry, costs more to build and draws less water than systems that use open ocean intakes. It also uses more

Retiring P.G. police chief sees airport politics in his future

■ Carmel P.D.'s boss will not replace him

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN PACIFIC Grove Police Chief Carl Miller hangs up his gun and badge Oct. 26, completing three decades of working for PGPD to the day, he hopes the following month will mark the start of a new career — in politics.

Regardless of the outcome of the Nov. 7 election to fill two open seats on the Monterey Peninsula Airport District board, Miller's employer will have to replace him, and it won't be by borrowing Carmel Police Chief George Rawson part-time, according to Miller. Carmel already contracts with Pacific Grove for the part-time use of P.G.'s fire chief, and city manager Jim Colangelo raised the idea of sharing a police chief during a meeting with Carmel City Administrator Rich Guillen regarding the fire agreement.

"The thought of taking their police chief away for 50 percent of the time — they really couldn't spare him," Miller said. "There's a lot to do. I put in, on average, 60 hours a week."

Guillen said the city never officially weighed in on the idea but would have considered it at P.G.'s request.

"I never even broached it with our council. We were always going to take Pacific Grove's lead," Guillen said. "We're not really interested in any change, because we're happy with things the way they are."

Guillen also said he's not aware of any other cities sharing a police chief.

Miller said law enforcement carries certain costs. "We're more than a cup of coffee; we're Starbucks. You pay a little more, but for a reason," he said. Miller favors finding innovative ways to operate, but not simply to cut costs.

However, agencies can reduce redundancy by creatively working together.

"I see greater cooperation as a way to deliver more service and have it better placed, which ultimately leads to cost savings," he said. "But the motivation should never be saving money. It should be, 'Let's provide the best service possible.'"

Upscale clothier opens in former Saks space

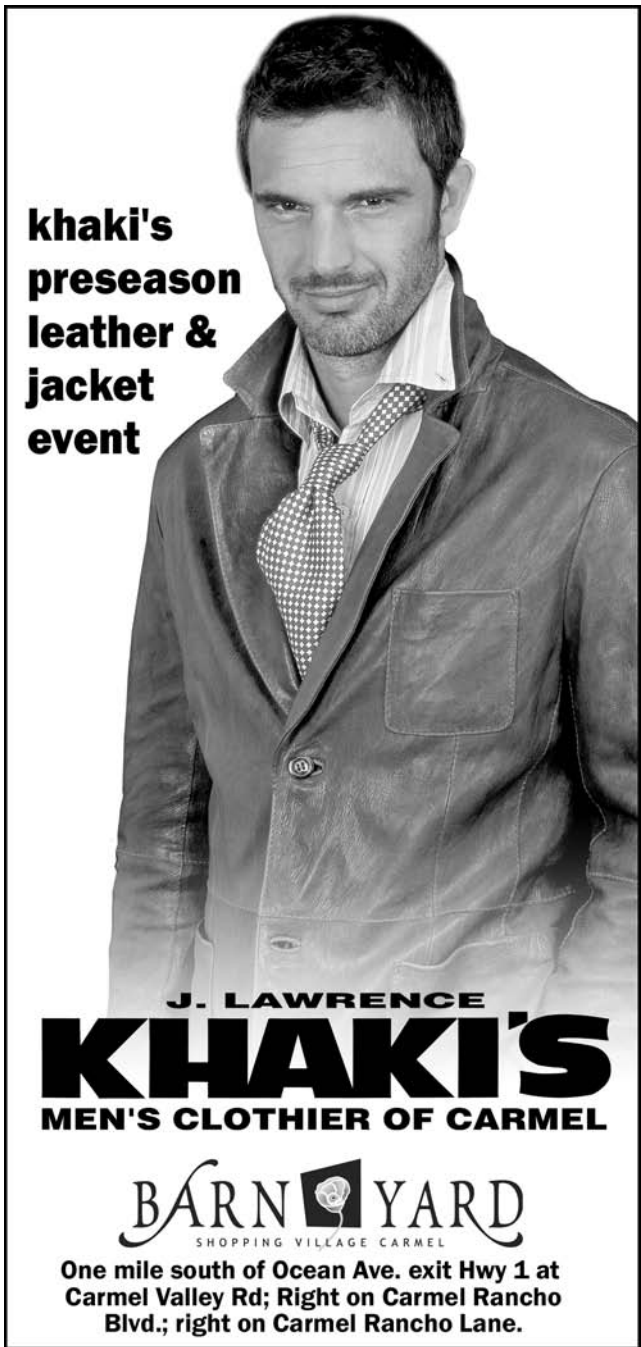

THE MAJOR Carmel Plaza storefront vacant since Saks Fifth Avenue moved out in January 2005 finally has a new tenant — and a new look. Upscale San Francisco Bay Area clothier Wilkes Bashford opened his third store Thursday following a lengthy remodel of the retail space at Ocean Avenue and Junipero Street.

With the actual Mr. Bashford in attendance, the store swung wide its doors Aug. 3 to "show fashion and luxury at its finest," according to Carmel Plaza marketing manager Ryan Williams. The retailer brings iconic brands such as Brioni, Kiton, Loro Piana, Luciano Barbera, Helmut Lang, Oscar dela Renta, Narciso Rodriguez, Alessandro Dell'Acqua and Jean Paul Gaultier to one of the Plaza's anchor locations. Tiffany & Co. moved in at the other end of the block last summer.

Bashford opened his first store four decades ago, and Carmel joins the other locations in downtown San Francisco and Stanford Shopping Center. According to the Wilkes Bashford website, the stores hire sales associates who not only know the merchandise, but "create an entire look" and serve as wardrobe consultants for their clients.

"Appreciating that people return for a reason, we remain committed to providing you with uncompromising style, utmost quality and sophistication, and the finest and most comprehensive service," the website reads.

Williams, who invited "serious shoppers" to witness the unveiling and peruse the wares at the store opening, called Bashford, "the man who is behind the fashion-forward style and couture."

FUEL MILEAGE IN THE REAL WORLD

Consumers who take notice of the environmental Protection Agency's fuel economy numbers on the sticker of new vehicles are likely to find that the fuel-mileage estimates seldom measure up. That is because the EPA fails to consider factors such as hilly terrain, the use of air-conditioning, and starting and stopping in its testing. All that is about to change, however. In its first revision of its system of fuel economy rating in 20 years, the EPA will take the aforementioned factors into consideration. As a result, miles-per-gallon figures are likely to decrease 10%-20% for city driving and up to 15% for highway driving. The new, more realistic figures should provide consumers with better information to make car-buying decisions.

Getting the optimal fuel mileage from your car depends on a number of factors. Our specialists have the automotive knowledge to get every mile possible out of every gallon you put into your tank. We guarantee your satisfaction with any work done by us. Questions regarding fuel mileage? Call us today. We are located at the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in Downtown Monterey. All of our work is done by ASE Certified technicians, and we are also AAA Approved.

P. S.: The EPA's revised fuel mileage estimates are scheduled to begin with the 2008 models.

Agents destroy extensive Arroyo Seco marijuana farms

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

TWO LARGE pot gardens containing 9,712 marijuana plants fell victim to the County of Monterey Marijuana Eradication Team last Wednesday, when law enforcement officers descended from helicopters into the remote area four miles west of the Arroyo Seco Campgrounds near Greenfield.

The Monterey County Sheriff's Office reported narcotics detectives, California Department of Justice Campaign Against Marijuana Planting special agents and members of the U.S. Forest Service located and seized the plants from gardens in Los Padres National Forest. They also found a camp likely used by the suspects, who apparently fled in advance of the officers' arrival but left trash and other evidence behind. The marijuana, which the sheriff's office estimated would have sold for a total $48.5 million had it reached the street, was flown out of the forest and later destroyed by deputies.

COMMET comprises two Monterey County Sheriff's deputies and one deputy district attorney, and receives tax dollars via the federal drug enforcement agency for salaries, equipment and training.

who gathered signatures on petitions, Congressman Sam Farr and other fans of Pine Cone cartoonist Bill Bates gathered in the Fifth Avenue post office Monday to celebrate the rehanging of several Bates classics on a wall that had been destined for USPS advertising posters and products.

After a "retail standardization team" inspected the office and decreed only postal products could be hung on the walls, Bates cartoons that entertained patrons and workers for two decades came down.

But following an outcry in the media, by citizens and by politicians, the USPS announced it would relent.

Local officials obtained permission to replace the Bates cartoons and held a party to celebrate it in the post office July 31. Residents, business people and others packed the small office for short speeches and refreshments, while a few befuddled customers who had no idea what was occurring made their way to the counter.

McCloud thanked the community and said the effort to return Bates to the post office was "wonderful to see," and made the almost homogenized office uniquely Carmel.

When it was his turn to speak, the cartoonist cried, "Thank you, Carmelites!"

Board decides dismembered house isn't historic

■ Should a stone wall be protected?

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CARMEL Historic Resources Board continued plowing through appeals of historic designations July 17, deciding two houses aren't worthy of protection under city ordinances, keeping three others on the historic list and delaying two appeals — one in order to determine whether a stone wall, but not the house, could be targeted for mandatory preservation, and the other in hopes the appellants will try to save their old garage.

Following adoption of the city's Local Coastal Program in fall 2004, which included an inventory of more than 300 buildings to be preserved, Carmel officials announced last summer they would begin recording historic designation on property deeds but would first allow their owners to appeal.

Almost one-third did, though senior planner Sean Conroy said last month about 40 failed to provide any further information regarding why their homes or commercial buildings should not be on the list. On July 17, he proposed closing the files on three such appeals after repeated requests for evidence went unheeded. Unlike permit applications that expire after a year of inactivity, appeals have no cutoff date in the municipal code.

"This would not preclude the property owners from filing again at any point," he said. "They could tomorrow, if they wanted to." They would not have to pay another appeal fee.

"Denial" sounds like we deliberated on something," chair Julie Wendt countered, suggesting the board "dismiss" them instead. Conroy said city attorney Don Freeman recommended denial to end staff's duty to continue trying to work on the appeals. Board member Paul Coss agreed with Conroy's recommendation for denial.

But Wendt also worried the owners could appeal the denials to the city council, which might vote to grant the appeals although the HRB had not considered the facts of the cases.

She believed dismissal could not be challenged at the council level, but Conroy responded, "Basically any decision the HRB makes is appealable."

Wendt moved to dismiss appeals filed by Mary Ives, Carolyn Martin and Emily Leonardi, and the board agreed 4-1, with Coss dissenting.

Vanishing evidence

According to historian Kent Seavey, noted designer Percy Parkes drew plans for the 1926 hipped-roof cottage with Craftsman-style accents now owned by Clyde Sturgis of Mission Street Properties, but the file in Carmel City Hall contains none of that information. The farthest the records go back, Conroy said, is 1978, when some of the cottage's exterior was replaced following a fire.

That work did not compromise the cottage's integrity, according to Conroy, but without the original building plans it's impossible to know whether it still contains original building materials.

"The biggest issue as far as significance goes is the lack of evidence due to the loss of the records," he told the board. "It certainly wouldn't be the first time."

Sturgis' lawyer and an historian also argued the house does not reflect a distinctive type, period or method of construction; it has lost its integrity, is not unique and pales in comparison to other, better examples of Craftsman-style buildings.

Wendt said Seavey's report "represents documented facts," in the absence of the original drawings and permits, since he reportedly used them for his evaluation, but board member Kay Holz said they could not be verified.

Member Erling Lagerholm agreed, and member Erik Dyar said the lack of records simply cemented his opinion.

"There is some question in my mind whether this meets the threshold of excellence to be placed on the inventory," he said. "And lack of evidence makes me decide not to include it."

The board voted 4-1, Wendt dissenting, to remove Sturgis' cottage from the list.

Too many changes

Part of an M.J. Murphy home once occupied by important Carmel artists Ida Johnson and Josephine Culbertson is historic, according to Enid Sales' Carmel Preservation Foundation.

CPF appealed the city's June 16 "Preliminary Determination of Ineligibility" that states the Santa Rita Street residence, now owned by Tony and Jane Diamond, should not be on the inventory.

The city based its determination on a June 15 evaluation by Seavey that concluded "the property lacks both adequate historic documentation and the physical integrity to meet the necessary criteria for listing."

Specifically, its relocation and division into three separate houses, numerous alterations, and lack of original plans and permits caused Seavey, assistant planner Nathan Schmidt and a unanimous HRB to dis-

Memorial funds to aid relatives grieving CHS teens

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TO HELP the families of two Carmel High School students killed in a horrible Big Sur car accident July 25, friends and family established memorial funds last week, according to consultant Denise Duffy.

Alexander Robbins, 16, and Ryan Field, 17, were killed when Robbins lost control of a Ford F350 pickup truck on Pitkins Curve south of Lucia around 7:30 p.m. while driving north on Highway 1 after a day of surfing. The truck landed upside-down on a beach more than 400 feet below. The three rear passengers, 17-year-old Collin Cowsill, 17-year-old Dane Anderson and 15-year-old Kenny Schneider, were hospitalized after Anderson and Schneider climbed to the roadway to summon help.

According to Duffy, the Robbins and Field Memorial Fund at Comerica Bank will serve as a scholarship and support fund. Donors can write checks in the name of the fund to Comerica Bank Account No. 1891394676 and mail them to the bank at P.O. Box 6268, Carmel, CA 93921. For more information, call (831) 624-3367.

In addition, friends of Field's family founded the Ryan Field Memorial Fund to provide financial support as his parents mourn the loss of their son, the sole passenger killed in the accident. Checks to account No. 0100334358 can be sent to First National Bank of Central California, 26380 Carmel Rancho Lane, Carmel, CA 93922 or dropped off at any First National Bank branch. For more information on this fund, call (831) 626-2900.

Beach gathering planned

Two local surf shops, On the Beach and Sunshine Freestyle, plan to host a memorial gathering at Carmel Beach Sunday, Aug. 6, at 4 p.m. in honor of Robbins and Field, according to Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana. He said the shops contacted the city while planning the memorial, which will include a barbecue and loaner surf boards for people who don't have their own but want to participate off shore.

"They came to us and said, 'Would you mind?' And we said, 'Absolutely not — go right ahead,'" Rana said.

The city will provide porta-potties and dumpsters, but no organized police presence, at the beach that afternoon.

"We understand it's a memorial," he said.

Harrison Memorial book sale set

WHERE ELSE can you get a treasure for a quarter? The Friends of the Library will host its major fundraiser, a massive sale of more than 9,000 books, CDs, videos, records and tapes, Aug. 17-19 in the hall and patio of All Saints Church at Ninth and Lincoln.

All year, with the exception of a few weeks around Christmas, a small group of volunteers headed by nonagenarian Harriet Harrell sorts, boxes and prices donated books in anticipation of the August sale.

"We call her 'the heart of the book sale,'" said Joyce Frasca, publicity chair for the Friends of Harrison Memorial Library.

Proceeds of the sale, celebrating its 34th year, will help pay for library books and programs, as the city only covers operational costs. Paperbacks cost 25 cents, and most hardcover fiction sells for $2 to $5.

The Thursday members-only preview is popular, as attendees get a jump on the offerings from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. "Many people will sign up for a membership," she said. "You can buy it at the door for only $10."

Flanders Foundation nature walk, lunch

'LUNCH ON the Lawn: Discover the Beautiful Flanders Mansion' nature walk and brown-bag picnic will be held Saturday, Aug. 5, from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Hosted by the Flanders Foundation — the nonprofit seeking to preserve the historic mansion the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has pledged to sell — the event will include a guided walk through Mission Trail Nature Preserve followed by lunch on the lawn beside Flanders.

Melanie Billig, president of the Flanders Foundation, plans to discuss the history and biology of the preserve, the 82-year-old mansion (which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places) and the adjacent Lester Rowntree Native Plant Garden. Naturalist and environmentalist Joyce Stevens will join her.

The walk will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Mission Trail entrance on Rio Road across from the Carmel Mission, and participants should wear comfortable shoes and bring a lunch. The foundation will provide cold drinks.

For more information about the Aug. 5 event or the foundation, call (831) 626-3826 or (831) 620-0532, or visit www.flandersfoundation.org.

Forest friends get grant

CALIFORNIA RELEAF granted the Friends of Carmel Forest $2,310 to plant Monterey pines and cypress trees along the south side of Ocean Avenue between Camino Real and San Antonio, and in the north beach area at the foot of Ocean, according to member Clayton Anderson. Wood stakes already in the ground identify which trees will be planted where.

Board member Peter Quintanilla, who is also a certified arborist, will direct the planting, which is set to take place in October upon approval by city forester Mike Branson. The group also needs volunteers to help water the trees once a week after they are planted. For more information, call (831) 624-3208.

Chamber offers members an amazingly cheap trip to China

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TO OFFER its members a chance to explore business opportunities in a populous nation halfway across the globe, the Carmel Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a trip to China next spring.

Organized by Citslinc International, which specializes in sending California chambers to China, the $1,399 per person journey is set for March 25 through April 2. The chamber and a Citslinc representative will hold an informational meeting in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center Aug. 23 from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

"Their goals are to get Californians to China, to see it and do business there," said Carmel chamber CEO Monta Potter. "The chambers have had a great experience, so we decided to put out our feelers."

Potter said she learned of Citslinc and the "business leaders trips" from the Salinas Chamber of Commerce, which had 100 members take a successful journey last October and is planning another for the spring to meet further demand.

Carmel chamber members expressed interest, Potter said, and their friends and family may also participate. If spots remain come Sept. 1, the chamber will make them available to the public.

Stops on the visit include Beijing, Shanghai, Suzhou and Hangzhou, and the price covers transportation to San Francisco from Carmel, China Air flights, deluxe tour bus and guide, seven nights in four- or five-star hotels, three meals per day and attraction fees. Cultural sites will include the Great Wall, palaces, temples and gardens, while shopping will feature a jade factory, pearl farm and the National Embroidery Institute, among other destinations.

"It's a great opportunity to see another part of the world, and China is such a giant economic power," said Potter, who will make the journey and meet tourism officials there.

But it won't be all work and no play, and for some, it might be all play and no work.

"Anybody who goes can go as a tourist, or they can set up business meetings," Potter said.

Organizers will help schedule conferences with Chinese contacts in various industries as requested.

While the group could be as large as 80 people, Potter said the buses will accommodate 25 or 30. "All the Carmel group will stay in the same hotel each night, and have breakfast together and some dinners together," she said.

Each day will be packed with activities, but anyone wanting to venture out separately will be free to do so.

Potter encouraged chamber members as well as the public to attend the Aug. 23 meeting to learn more about the China trip and Citslinc International.

"People who don't know if they want to go should come, and people who are definately going should come," Potter said.

Information and registration forms sheets are available at the chamber office, located upstairs on the west side of San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

A nonrefundable $100 deposit will secure a trip reservation.

Council approves contracts for Ocean Avenue makeover

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITH $100,000 worth of donations in the bank and Ocean Avenue not getting any prettier on its own, the Carmel City Council awarded contracts to a landscaper and an electrician to remodel the street's medians. The council voted June 22 to pay Aurum Consulting Engineers Monterey Bay $6,300 for landscape lighting design, and on July 20 it approved an $83,658 agreement with George DiPeso Landscaping for the hardscape, demolition and planting in the center islands between Junipero and Monte Verde streets. Work could begin as early as next week, though Aurum still has to submit the lighting plans for council approval.

According to city forester Mike Branson's July 20 report to the council, five landscape contractors submitted proposals, with DiPeso coming in the lowest at $76,053. The highest was New Image Landscape's $135,000 estimate. With a 10 percent contingency bringing the total to $83,658, Branson recommended the council accept DiPeso's bid.

Council members worried the contract might eat up too much of the $100,000 donated for the entire project, city administrator Rich Guillen told The Pine Cone last week.

"Staff feels we will have enough money, but it may be somewhat close," he said. At the worst, the city would have to scale back the design a little or seek more donations, "but I don't think that will happen."

With overgrown shrubs, and sick and dead trees, the Ocean Avenue medians are ripe for a redo, and the city began soliciting contributions to cover the work last year. The council accepted designs drafted for free by Michelle Comeau last November, and in February, the forest and beach commission approved the removal of more than a dozen trees and plants to make way for the new, attractive, drought-tolerant species. In June, the council voted to accept $100,000 from several service groups, individuals and businesses to pay for the project.

At that June 22 meeting, Mayor Sue McCloud said Aurum had worked on the electrical systems already in place in the medians, making it the ideal choice for the redo.

Resident Monte Miller anticipated the landscape lighting would spark controversy.

"Here you're going out and spending $6,300, and the public really hasn't weighed in and been able to tell you we don't want night lighting at all," he said.

But the council and the public will be able to comment on the lighting design after Aurum submits a design, McCloud responded, and the council unanimously approved the agreement.

During the July 20 hearing on the main landscaping contract, some council members worried the work would hurt downtown traffic during one of the busiest months of the year. People from all over the world descend on the Monterey Peninsula for the wealth of historic car events surrounding the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance and the Monterey Historic Automobile Races at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca, and Carmel hosts the Pebble Beach Concours Tour the Thursday of historic car week. On Aug. 17, no construction will occur, and the contractor must have the medians looking neat and tidy, according to Guillen. The city and the contractor will discuss work hours for the rest of the project during a pre-construction meeting.

"There's a chance the work hours could be altered to have him start earlier or go later so as to not interfere with prime-time business in the city," Guillen said.

With last week's approval of DiPeso's contract, the only remaining piece is the lighting design, which McCloud said the council could consider in August. If approved, the lighting work would be added to DiPeso's contract as a change order.

The contractor will have 40 days to complete the project, unless foul weather or construction complications demand more time, according to Guillen. With a mid-September finish date, the street should be in fine shape for the Carmel Plaza's grand reopening in October.

Lighting controversy?

Later that month, the council approved the $6,300 contract with Aurum. Because the city wanted the work under way as soon as possible, Guillen recommended not sending the lighting design proposal out to bid.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
Meg Parker Connors, R.N.

LATE ONSET SUBSTANCE ABUSE

There is growing concern over the finding of a recent government survey that estimates that substance abuse problems among people over the age of 50 will double to 5 million in 2020. Up from 2.5 million in 1999, this so-called late onset substance abuse stems from maturing generations' acceptance of taking medications to treat problems that range from pain and insomnia to anxiety and depression. The most commonly abused substance is alcohol, followed by prescription pain medications and anti-anxiety drugs. Such illegal drugs as cocaine and heroin are also in the equation. Such abuse is no more acceptable at 65 than it is at 16. Friends and family members should take steps to intervene when substance abuse occurs.

Substance abuse among the elderly is a growing problem for the healthcare industry. Substance abuse-related cases cost more to treat because they require almost 26 percent more hospital staff and other resources than discharges that are unrelated to substance abuse, according to one study. This column was brought to you by VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES. Founded in 1979, we provide the best home care, geriatric care management for seniors or adults with physical and/or mental challenges in and around Monterey and Santa Cruz counties.

P.S. According to a national government survey, of the 495,859 visits to U.S. emergency rooms in 2004 for the nonmedical use of pharmaceuticals, 32,556 were by people aged 55 to 64 years old and 31,203 were by people older than 65.

‘Skipper Saver’ course offered in Moss Landing

“WIVES, SWEETHEARTS, ‘occasional crew’ members or folks who lack any boating skills whatsoever” should sign up for the free Skipper Saver course offered Saturday, Aug. 19, by the Monterey Bay chapter of the U.S. Sail & Power Squadron and Elkhorn Yacht Club of Moss Landing. The basic, learn-from-scratch course, which will be held in Moss Landing, is designed for “those who have little or no boating knowledge and haven’t had the time to learn,” according to Bob Aurner III, public affairs officer for the Monterey Bay squadron.

Students will learn how to react when the skipper becomes disabled or falls overboard, or some other disaster strikes to leave a passenger suddenly in command of the boat. Included are first aid, how to rescue someone in the water and call for help, how to operate a boat, and how to obtain assistance from other boaters and marine agencies.

The free class will begin at 10 a.m. Aug. 19 in the dining room of the Elkhorn Yacht Club, located on the west side of Highway 1 just north of the power plant, near Little Baja. For additional information and to register, contact the yacht club at (831) 724-3875 or Aurner at (831) 624-333 or (831) 236-7695. Registration will also be accepted at the door, and families are welcome.

‘Flabbergasted!’ debuts at Monarch Theatre

THE MONARCH Theatre in Monterey is now playing “Flabbergasted!” — the theater’s debut production — through the summer and into fall.

“An original play of wit,” as it’s being dubbed, the story is about a girl with something missing. Muses surround her, hoping to inspire her. Twists and turns beset the comedy, which has left audience members feeling lighthearted and happy, according to its producers. The playwright, Carolyn Hylton, wrote the play three years ago. Now that she and her daughter, Carrie Glenn, have bought the upstairs theater on Hoffman and Lighthouse, they plan to continue running the play through the fall season, if not longer.

“Flabbergasted!” plays Friday and Saturdays at 8 p.m. Monarch Theatre is located at 320 Hoffman in Monterey. For tickets and information, call (831) 375-7774 or go to www.ticketguys.com.

Sandy and Dan Koffman leaving Pacific Grove for greener pastures

By KELLY NIX

SANDY KOFFMAN, who served four terms as mayor of Pacific Grove, is moving to Washington with her artist husband, Dan Koffman, who is closing his Monterey gallery.

Koffman, mayor from 1994 to 2002, said they are moving to Camano Island by late autumn. They've put their Pacific Grove home up for sale.

"It's really a bittersweet decision," she said. "We were up in Washington State kind of poking around and seeing what was there, and we came across an area we really liked, a property we really liked and a house we really liked. And we looked at each other and said, 'Are we ready for a new adventure?' And we said, 'Yes.'"

Moe Ammar, president of the Pacific Grove's chamber of commerce, credited Koffman with helping revitalize the city's downtown business district, and getting the senior housing project on Jewell Avenue and city's youth center built. Koffman also founded EcoCorps, an environmental group that planted and cared for trees in Pacific Grove.

"I think it's a big loss for the city and the community as a whole," Ammar said. "She is truly a cheerleader and a consensus builder."

Koffman said she also plans a new professional adventure working with her husband, who also has an advertising agency. Dan Koffman is well known for his artwork, which includes The Twisted Olive and Klub Golf collections, along with a noteworthy series of ads for Monterey County Bank featuring the bank's president, Charles Chritzberg, in various humorous guises.

"They will be closing Koffman Gallery, but his art will be represented at several locations in Monterey," she said. "And we will open a display gallery on our new property."

Camano Island, which has fewer than 14,000 residents, is located in Puget Sound about one hour north of Seattle.

The Koffmans moved to Pacific Grove from West Los Angeles in 1990, quickly becoming active in the community. They also bought just before a huge runup in home values on the Monterey Peninsula. So — as it has for many Californians — the Pacific Northwest became attractive. The Koffmans' home on Crocker Avenue is listed by Sotheby's International Realty at $1,498,000.

"We really thought we would live here the rest of our lives," said the former mayor. "It's gotten a bit busier here and a little less green, a little less forested."

Koffman's mother and their three dogs will also move into the Camano Island house.

"We love Pacific Grove so much, and to think of leaving here is really difficult," she said. "But we found a place we loved as much as when we moved here."

The island where the Koffmans are moving is conducive to hiking, biking and running, which Koffman said she enjoys. Around the Peninsula, she and Dan have often been seen on their bicycles.

"I'm going to leave Pacific Grove not only with a tear in my eye but probably tears streaming down my face," Koffman said. "Not to be in day-to-day touch with the people and the environment is going to be sad for us. But we are excited about our new adventure."

Learning to fly

Miller, who filed his papers to run for the airport district July 17, said the new role would provide him means for continued public service and be the perfect foray into politics. The airport district, which was formed in 1936 and is independent of the county, includes most of the Peninsula and part of Carmel Valley. Miller's opponents are incumbent Robert De Voe, Pacific Grove resident William M. Sullivan Jr., William Sabo of Monterey, and Carmel travel agency owner Dan Presser.

Miller said primary issues facing the airport district include the extensive terminal modernization project, the budget, and use of the 598-acre property and services.

"We're fortunate to have an airport right in our own backyard, and it's sad it's not being utilized more by locals," he said. Miller favors adding flights, but not to the extent the airport becomes busy at all hours.

In addition, land at its north end slated for light commercial use should be developed, he said. The airport could accommodate more RV parking, one of the district's greatest revenue generators, and perhaps additional hangars.

The airport operates as a business and does not take any tax dollars — most of its money comes from landing fees, concessionaire rentals and surcharges added to airplane tickets — but Miller said the district, with a budget of $4.7 million, has recently run in the red.

"Some people really shy away from development, but there's real potential for the district to become more self-sufficient," he said.

A Peninsula resident for 36 years, Miller was a reserve police officer in Gonzales, where his brother still works, before he joined PGPD Oct. 26, 1976. He started on patrol and rose through the ranks to become chief in 2003. He is married and has two sons.

"I see my background and experience dovetailing nicely," with the airport board, he said, "not only from the safety and traffic management standpoints, but from the constituents' standpoint. I'm sensitive to the concerns of the neighbors."

He's not a pilot and feels he would bring balance to the agency.

"And who knows? Maybe I'll take up flying — that's always been a secret passion of mine," he added.

After 50 years and 77 shows, local artist steps out of box

By CHRIS COUNTS

NOBODY CAN accuse Dick Crispo of playing it safe with his latest show at the Carmel Art Association.

"About every 20 years I do an abstract show," explained Crispo, who typically focuses his work on landscapes and seascapes. "It sharpens my eyes and clarifies things for me. I get a change of view. It's important that I break up what I do every so often and not repeat myself."

The art association will host a reception Saturday, August 5, from 6 to 8 p.m. for new exhibits by Crispo, Gerard Martin and Jan Wagstaff.

The work of Crispo, who first exhibited his work in a Carmel art gallery 50 years ago at the age of 11, is a familiar sight in local galleries.

"This is my 78th one-person show," said Crispo, a member of the art association since 1969 and a Monterey resident.

Martin, a painter and longtime Salinas resident, turned to the tiny hamlet of Spreckels as an inspiration for his latest oil paintings.

"I'm trying something different," Martin explained. "I'm calling my new show, 'Spreckels, California.' I drive by there a lot and I have a few friends who live there. I tried to capture the old historic houses and factories. There's a beautiful boulevard that heads west from town. It's lined with tall trees and is very symbolic of Spreckels."

A recent high-profile land use battle over its future development convinced Martin to focus his energy on capturing the Spreckel's small town ambiance before it was too late.

"It's a charming and quaint town from another era," Martin said. "It's definitely worth preserving."

Wagstaff, a Carmel resident, has long been fascinated with plants. More recently, she has focused her work on grasses. For her latest show at the art association, Wagstaff has made a study of flax, a fibrous plant best known as the source of flaxseed oil.

"This is a continuation of my show on grasses," explained Wagstaff. "We take these plants for granted and think of them as a nuisance, but if you look at them closely, they are really quite beautiful and remarkable."

The art center is located on the west side of Dolores, between 5th and 6th avenues. The venue is open from 10 a.m.

to 5 p.m. daily. For more information call (831) 624-6176 or visit carmelart.org.

Activist faces trespassing charge after giving water to a thirsty dog

By CHRIS COUNTS

A RIPPLING River resident and local activist — who claimed she was only trying to provide water for a dog she believed was neglected — faces misdemeanor charges for trespassing. “The district attorney is not willing to dismiss the charges,” explained attorney Juliet Peck, who is representing Clark pro bono, last week.

Helaine Clark was charged with illegally entering private property after a neighbor witnessed her giving water to Montana, a golden retriever, at 19 Calle De Los Helechos in Carmel Valley on May 28. According to the Monterey County Sheriff’s Office, the charges were requested by Michael Cappitti, who lives at that address. According to MCSO, Cappitti previously warned Clark to stay off his property.

Clark said she routinely passes Cappitti’s property on walks through the neighborhood and adjacent Garland Ranch Regional Park.

Peck was disappointed the case will be prosecuted. “She’s a 65-year-old woman with no criminal record,” Peck said. “When someone is concerned about the welfare of a dog that appears to have been left without water, we shouldn’t criminalize that behavior.”

According to Peck, the district attorney wants Clark to plead guilty to the misdemeanor charge of trespassing. A court order would also restrict Clark from visiting the house.

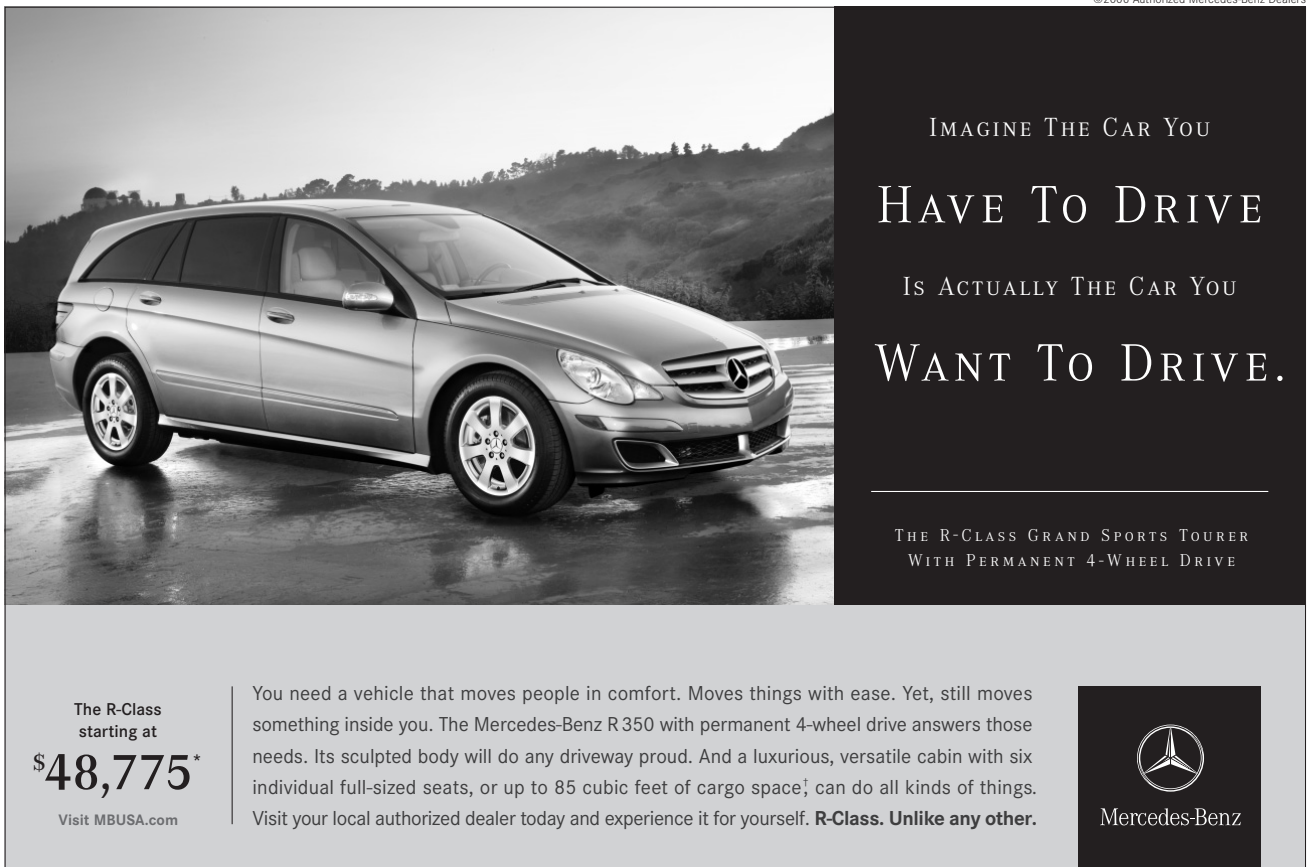

“I asked the district attorney to take another look at this case and please dismiss this,” Peck said. “Clark didn’t mean to cause [Cappitti] any distress. She has no intention of going back to the house.”

Clark said she noticed four empty bowls lined up in Montana’s yard the day she gave the dog water.

“It was day two of a three-day weekend, and there were no signs that anyone was home,” Clark recalled. “I said to myself, ‘They might not be back for one more day.’ It was just my motherly instinct to give her food and water.”

Clark said the incident wasn’t the first time she became concerned for Montana’s welfare. Several months earlier, while passing the property, she found a gate open and closed it. She said a resident admonished her for shutting the gate. Later, Clark found Montana roaming the neighborhood, and she returned her to her yard.

Peck said Clark is scheduled to return to court Aug. 24.

WHY CLIENTS SHOULD BE EDUCATED

Why do these columns exist? Why try to help you become as well-educated about real estate matters as possible?

There’s a philosophical decision behind this, and it’s important. An outmoded idea regarding sales was that the best client was an uneducated client, one who might be more pliable in the hands of a skilled persuader. This was, and is, utter nonsense...and today’s sophisticated client drives that point home every day.

Indeed, the role of the real estate professional has gradually changed over the years. She and he are educators first and salespeople second. And the reason is simple. Once you, the client, have all the information and background material you need, you are ready and able to make your own informed decision. And if we do the best job possible, the decision you make will both save you money and increase your profits, as well as creating hassle-free transactions.

And the bottom line is this: An uneducated client doesn’t really know if his or her real estate professional has provided good service, saved him or her money, helped him or her to greater profits. The educated client does — and that’s the client who readily sends us referrals. So your education is our investment! If you would like more education, call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

Former weightlifter now tosses stones and wears a kilt

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHEN HE began competing in Scottish Highland games, one time powerlifter Carlos Borges was already well acquainted with lifting ridiculously heavy things over his head. But what he wasn't prepared for was wearing a traditional plaid kilt.

"I thought wearing a kilt would be cool and comfortable," said Borges, a Pacific Grove resident who will serve as athletic director of the 39th annual Monterey Highland Games at Toro County Park this weekend. "But I realized a kilt isn't all it is cracked up to be. When it's 117° out there, it's not fun to wear a wool skirt."

Despite the inconvenience, Borges was drawn to a sport that places great emphasis on brute strength.

"I was a powerlifter," said Borges, who began participating in Highland games about eight years ago. "But I didn't like all the equipment and I like to do things outside."

At 5 feet 11 inches and weighing about 240 pounds, the 45-year-old Borges often competes against bigger and younger athletes.

"There are no weight classes," said Borges, who works as a language professor at the Naval Postgraduate School. "You either can do it or you can't."

What Borges "can do" is compete in the nine events that make up the Highlands games, each of which requires a participant to lift and propel a heavy object through the air. The most familiar event is the caber toss. The caber, which resembles a telephone pole, is cupped in the hands of a participant, who attempts to keep it balanced upright as he runs forward. After he gains enough momentum, he tosses the caber as high as he can, with the goal of hurling the pole end-over-end. The distance or height of the throw is irrelevant. The goal is to have the caber fall directly away from the thrower after it lands. The caber, by the way, is 16 to 20 feet in length and weighs between 80 and 130 pounds.

The other eight Highland games ("heavy object tossing competitions" might be a more apt description) are not much easier.

■ The open stone, which resembles a shot put and weighs about 16 pounds.

■ The Braemar stone, which is named after a city in Scotland where the Queen of England traditionally goes to watch guys in kilts lift heavy things. This stone weighs between 22 and 30 pounds.

■ The light weight, a cast iron ball, chain and handle weighing 28 pounds. "Anything they call light isn't very light," Borges observed.

■ The heavy weight looks like the light version, but it weighs 56 pounds.

■ The light Scottish hammer is a cast iron ball that weighs only 16 pounds, but without a chain or a handle, it's harder to throw than the weight.

■ The heavy Scottish hammer, which weighs 22 pounds.

■ The weight-over-the-bar, which, as it sounds, involves tossing something very heavy over something really high up. By the way, you can only use one hand on this one.

■ Finally, there is the sheaf toss. Using a pitchfork, participants throw a 20-pound bag filled with twine over a bar.

According to Borges, Scottish lords began hosting the games as athletic trials for aspiring bodyguards. At some point, the Scots became more interested in the games than in Life after Bach: Southern rock, jazz and blues offerings galore

WITH THE Carmel Bach Festival staging its final concerts of the year Aug. 4 and 5 at Sunset Center, the music scene on the Monterey Peninsula is ready to get back in the groove.

After nearly three decades, The Marshall Tucker Band continues to be played on classic rock and country radio, and they have never stopped touring. The Southern rock icons perform Aug. 11 at Sunset Center in the middle of their national tour. "We never play less than 150 shows a year, and sometimes we play as many as 200 shows. We feel we owe it to the fans who have supported us through the years to deliver the music in person," said lead singer Doug Gray.

With hit singles like "Heard It In A Love Song," "Fire On The Mountain," "Can't You See," and "Take The Highway," The Marshall Tucker Band earned seven gold and three platinum albums while they were on the Capricorn Records label. During the 90s, the MTB scored four hit singles on Billboard's country charts and one on Billboard's gospel chart. Their music has also been featured on the soundtracks of movies such as "Smoke and the Bandit," "The Pursuit of D.B. Cooper," and "Shipwrecked." The concert starts at 8 p.m. Other Sunset Center Concerts in August include Poco plus Pure Prairie League on Saturday, Aug. 19; the Dave Mason Band on Aug. 26; and Sam Bush, Aug. 31. For tickets, call (831) 620-2048.

The 17th annual Carmel Valley Fiesta kicks off Friday night, Aug. 4, with the Kiwanis Club's traditional extravaganza. Opening festivities begin at 6 p.m. at the Trail and Saddle Club with a barbecue plus the lively music of a German oompha band. The fiesta continues throughout the weekend at the Carmel Valley Community Park and features Coco Beat and Bluesberry Jam on Saturday and Kinchloe Atkins and the Cachagua Playboys on Sunday. Saturday and Sunday also features arts & crafts, food and games from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. For more information call (831) 659-7170.

Local guitarist Storm Nilson, a graduate of Carmel High School and the Cal Arts Institute in Los Angeles, is back on the Monterey Peninsula for the summer and has been playing at various Carmel venues. In addition to performing regularly at Monterey Live, the Forge in the Forest and Bixby Bistro, Storm has been a regular at the Bistro 211 located in the Crossroads Shopping Village. Having first performed at the Monterey Bay Blues Festival while only 16, Storm's musical tastes have evolved and most performances these days find him playing jazz or classical. He can be heard Friday at 6 p.m. at the Forge in the Forest at the corner of Junipero and 5th or Monday, Aug. 7, at Monterey Live, where he will be accompanied by drummer Mike Shannon and bassist Dan Robbins. At the end of the summer Storm is moving to New York City where he will further pursue his career along with another Monterey high school classmate and guitarist, Ryan Scott. Stay tuned.

The live music scene continues to heat up with Bixby Bistro in the Barnyard shopping center leading the way. Last weekend's encore performance of divas Holli Moon, Erin Gray and Jacqui Hope was more than advertised and kept the popular restaurant packed throughout the night.

Performing at Bixby's this week: pianist Sony G with vocalist Dino Vera on Friday, Aug. 4; the lovely pianist and vocalist Alison Sharino on Saturday, Aug. 5; and Johnny Fabulous on vocals and piano on Aug. 6. The music starts at 8 p.m. Call (831) 626-1814 for reservations

Sunday, August 13, Sly McFly's on Cannery Row presents the second installment of their new music concert series featuring Earwig Music blues artist Louisiana Red. Strongly influenced by Muddy Waters, Lightnin' Hopkins and Arthur Crudup, Louisiana Red nevertheless possesses a unique style of his own.

In a career spanning more than half a century, some of Louisiana Red's most memorable encounters are his jams with B.B. King and Muddy Waters. His albums earned rave reviews from critics and in 1983 he won a W.C. Handy Award as best traditional blues artist. The concert starts at 8 pm. Call (831) 649-8050 for reservations.

At the Seaside Blues in the Park this Sunday, August 6, Annie Sampson performs with openers Lorelei & the Road Kings, and on August 13 Red Beans & Rice opens for Sugar Pie DeSanto. The lead singer for the 70s rock group Stoneground, Annie Sampson played a principal part in the hit musical Hair and has also recorded with Elvin Bishop, Taj Mahal, Buddy Miles, Maria Muldaur, Eddie Money and Country Joe MacDonald. The music starts at 1 p.m. at Laguna Grande Park on Canyon Del Rey Boulevard.

The Marshall Tucker Band, which will perform at Sunset Center August 11, can still be heard on the radio thanks to hits like "Can't You See."

Sandy Claws By Margot Petit Nichols

FRASIER THOMPSON, 6-and-a-half, is a Welsh terrier who has lived with his Dad Dane since he was 9 weeks old.

They share their Monterey Peninsula home with a 20-year-old cockatiel named Motley and four colorful discus fish, none of whom take up much room but are a lot of fun to watch.

Generally with Dad 24 hours a day, Frasier gets mad on the rare occasion he isn't taken along in the car. Usually he rides with Dad everywhere, even to the movies, staying behind to guard the car, which he considers his property. Every day they take a two-hour walk, either around El Estero lake in Monterey, or along the walking path on Scenic Road above Carmel Beach. When they near 13th and Scenic, the beach squirrels bark at Frasier from their dune bushes, which sets him quivering all over and straining at his leash.

As for toys, Frasier loves his tennis ball, which he can retrieve until the cows come home, but his favorite toy is a realistic plush squirrel – Dad named it Road Kill – which has multiple squeakers for added enjoyment. Although he has no toy chest per se, Frasier keeps his playthings tidily on the bottom shelf of a large kitchen shelving unit. He is seldom without the squirrel at home during the day, but evening finds Frasier switching allegiance to a teddy bear and a very large plush dog which Dad has to throw four or five times for retrieval. Only after this nocturnal tradition is observed is Frasier ready for bed.

Dad is a photographer who has judged photos entered in the county fair for the past seven or eight years. He originally specialized in weddings and portraits but now does mostly real estate shoots with Frasier going along as assistant.

Frasier looks forward to visits from his Aptos cousins, Callie, a golden retriever, and Hank, a black Lab. Although they are considerably larger than Frasier, they get along beautifully, as is the custom of first cousins.

APPEALS

agree with Sales. They also said the original occupants would not recognize their former home if they saw it today — a common rule of thumb when requiring protection of a structure because important people once lived there.

Neither Sales nor anyone else from the CPF testified at the hearing, but the Diamonds' architect, Richard Rhodes, listed several exterior changes that cost the building its historic integrity.

"It's painted pink, which I doubt very much was the color of choice at the time," he said before concluding, "It ain't what it used to be."

"I don't understand how you could make the argument it's historic," Dyar commented.

Wendt lamented the inventory contains no other buildings tied to the two artists, and the board unanimously voted to deny Sales' appeal.

The wall question

For the second time, the board put off deciding whether Donald and Elizabeth Mathews' 84-year-old Santa Rita Street home is historic. In June, it deadlocked 2-2 on the house, which Seavey described as having no particular style but concluded is important for its stone wall and chimney built by Portuguese stone mason Ben Figueroa, who lived in a part of town once known as Tortilla Flats.

But that neighborhood and Figueroa make no appearance in documents defining what constitutes historical significance in Carmel, according to Schmidt, who recommended granting the appeal.

Wendt asked if the board could save the wall without preserving the house. While he also wanted to see the wall protected, Dyar described arguments for denying the appeal as being "on very thin ice."

To designate just the wall historic, the board should have certain criteria in mind, especially since Figueroa has not been identified as important, Conroy said.

"It's a nice stone wall, but is there anything else about it that makes it unique?" he asked. "If the board wants to do just the wall, we should have findings that establish the bar pretty high."

No one from the public spoke on the matter, and the board decided to delay voting so staff could research the possibility of designating the wall, but not the house, historic.

Saving a Comstock garage

In order to provide property owner Dorothy Price time to research options for saving her dilapidated garage, which along with her home was built by Hugh Comstock in 1926, the board also delayed a vote on her appeal.

Price's objections to historic listing pertained only to the garage, which she described as dirt floored, full of dry rot and unstable. She worried historic designation would interfere with replacing the old garage. The rest of her house, she said, is historic and has even been included in tours.

Wendt suggested Price look into a Mills Act contract, a provision adopted as part of the LCP that would provide tax breaks to owners of certain historic properties if they pledged in writing to maintain them according to an approved schedule. Though it adopted the allowance as part of the LCP and the historic resources board has recommended approval of some contracts, the city council delayed implementing them in order to research its ramifications and become more familiar with it.

Wendt also suggested rebuilding the garage using whatever materials could be salvaged from the original. When a building is beyond repair, the city can approve a salvage-and-reuse plan that meets guidelines for renovating historic properties. Price said she would look into those options, and the board opted not to vote on her appeal.

"If I were voting on your appeal," Wendt said, "I would vote to deny, because it is significant."

PARTY

Bay. The formal agenda at the invitation-only business meetings included remarks by Blair on Sunday, John McCain Monday, Al Gore Tuesday, Shimon Peres Wednesday and Clinton on Thursday.

But Pebble Beach venues weren't the only ones where celebrities could be spotted. And the trip wasn't all business for the 250 News Corp employees from around the world who were also able to play golf, scuba dive, race cars and visit local wineries during the week, all on their boss's tab. They had the run of the Inn at Spanish Bay, where all the restaurant and bar tabs were taken care of. And Wednesday night, they were treated to a private concert by Kidman's husband, Keith Urban, at the Monterey Jet Center.

Monday night, the entire convention enjoyed a catered dinner at the Carmel Mission. And Tuesday night, they dispersed to restaurants all over the Monterey Peninsula, including Bernardus and The Covey in Carmel Valley and L'Escargot and The French Poodle in downtown Carmel.

Also on the VIP dining list that night was Anton & Michel, where Murdoch and Kidman (both wildly successful Australians) were seen arriving for dinner together.

The restaurants were probably personally selected by Murdoch, who has a home in Carmel Valley.

His conference ended Thursday. Many of the participants were headed home to places such as England and China.

But the biggest group was expected to take a return charter from Jet Blue airline to New York, where News Corp has its headquarters. A stifling heat wave will undoubtedly make them wish they had stayed in Pebble Beach.

Plums — and their tart sweetness — are in peak season

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

PLUMS HAVE been a favorite for centuries in Europe and China, and today — with more than 2,000 varieties grown around the world in a panorama of colors from green, to red, to deep purple, to almost black — these juicy round beauties are still something special.

Thanks to California's rich valley soil, a long, warm growing season and an abundant supply of irrigation water, the San Joaquin Valley boasts ideal growing conditions for these tart yet sweet treats. From mid-June through September (right now is peak season), plums take center stage at farmers' markets, roadside stands and local grocers.

Plums are relatives of the peach, nectarine and almond, and the second most cultivated fruit in the world, next to apples. They are high in carbohydrates, low in fat and calories, and a good source of vitamin C.

There are a few things to look for when choosing the perfect plum. The color should be impressive: Red plums should be deep red, white varieties should be very pale, and black plums, while never truly black, should be very dark.

Especially for cooking, firmness is an important factor. Firm plums don't become mushy in cobblers or crisps. Also, if there is fluid leaking out, especially in the summer, the fruit won't store as well.

It's always good if the person who's selling the fruit knows where it came from; quality goes hand in hand with accountability. Some especially tasty varieties grown in California can be purchased at Cornucopia on Carmel Rancho Boulevard and Whole Foods Market at Del Monte Center.

Plum Cobbler

What you need:

4 cups fresh, unpeeled plums
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour

1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 beaten egg
1/2 cup melted butter

How to make: Cut plums into slices and toss with brown sugar. Arrange the slices on the bottom of a 10-inch-by-10-inch casserole.

Mix remaining dry ingredients and add beaten egg until the mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle over plums and drizzle with melted butter. Bake at 375° for 45 minutes.

Serve almost hot with a dollop of whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

For more plum recipes, go to www.eatcaliforniafruit.com

A treat for the eye as well as the palate, plums are an essential part of any fresh fruit bowl and can also be used to make some unforgettable desserts, such as plum cobbler.

Merlot Cabernet Sauvignon Champagne Dinner

Where to get the best sparkling wine and what to pour it in

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

IN AUDREY Hepburn movies, a champagne glass was invariably something broad and shallow. But a 21st-century wine connoisseur wouldn't think of using anything but a flute. Or would she? Does the glass you drink your sparkling wine from really make a difference? See for yourself as Helena Ross, a representative for world renowned Riedel Crystal, leads the Sparkling Wine Seminar at the Monterey County Vintners and Growers Association's 14th Annual Winemakers' Celebration.

The quality of California sparkling wine has been getting better and better as growers identify the soils and sites that yield wines of the highest quality. Although the Anderson Valley, Green Valley, Russian River Valley and Carneros appellations lead the way in producing sparkling wines, Monterey County is slowly getting props for its efforts. Grapes grown in local valleys benefit from the combination of cool ocean breezes and hot afternoon sunshine, producing grapes that mature with low sugars and high acid — just what sparkling wine calls for.

Creative winemakers have a hand in the success as well, as they experiment and fine-tune techniques in the vineyard that improve the fruit and enhance the winemaking process.

Two locally grown sparklers will be poured at the Riedel seminar — Francis Coppola's Sofia Blanc de Blancs and McIntyre l'homme qui ris. Pinot Blanc grapes for Sofia Blanc de Blancs sparkling wine are harvested in Monterey County. Vibrant with pear, honey and fruity aromas, the popular Sofia comes in a standard size bottle or in cute, single-serving cans, each complete with its own straw!

McIntyre l'homme qui ris is an easy-going sparkling wine perfect for everyday fun or Friday night kicks. (No need to wait for New Year's Eve or a special occasion for either of these bubblys.) Sofia is widely available.

MCVGA's 14th Annual Winemakers' Celebration will be held Saturday, Aug. 12, from noon to 4 p.m. at the Custom House Plaza in downtown Monterey. Tickets are $35 per person in advance or $40 per person at the event.

Tickets for the Riedel Sparkling Wine Seminar are an additional $10 and can be bought online at www.montereywines.org or by calling (831) 375-9400. The seminar will begin at 12:15 p.m.

Francis Coppola produces a sparkling wine made from Monterey County grapes. It is available in individual aluminum cans that come with a cool straw.

car.

He found none, and within moments, sheriff's deputy Eric Wilson arrived to arrest Foisy.

Spray victims treated

Responding to what was initially reported as a domestic dispute but was quickly upgraded to an incident involving pepper spray inside a bank, Cypress Fire Captain Twan Flower said, "When we got there, he [Foisy] was on the ground with the sheriff's officer on top of him in the process of handcuffing him."

Flower and the firefighters on his engine first treated the bank manager, "who came out gasping for air and complained he got sprayed by pepper spray."

They rinsed his eyes with a sterile saline solution to flush away the spray, which also intensely irritates the nose and throat. It also emits in a mist, so when Foisy allegedly sprayed the manager, it spread throughout the bank and caused many others to cough and complain of discomfort.

"I was standing at the door and was irritated," Flower said. All the bank doors were opened to ventilate the building, and witnesses and employees milled around inside and out while awaiting questioning by deputies.

A Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance crew helped treat those who came in contact with the spray and monitored their recovery. None of the victims required transport to the hospital, according to paramedic Trish Hastings.

Meanwhile, deputies marked the crime scene with yellow police tape to ensure no one would go near the pile of money and bag left on the floor where it had been dropped during the altercation.

The bank remain closed until late afternoon, and Ragan took Foisy to Monterey County Jail via Natividad Medical Center, where the suspect was examined for a preexisting neck injury.

While interviewing the suspect for booking, Ragan learned he is a member of the Aryan Brotherhood and has tattoos on his arms, legs and torso, front and back.

He didn't say much else. "When I Mirandized him, he didn't want to talk to me," Ragan said. But after he read the suspect his rights, the sheriff's office learned he served prison time for multiple convictions.

"He had a bunch of priors for robbery, burglary, narcotics, possession of stolen property and a slew of others," Ragan said, particularly in the Los Angeles area. "He's been an upstanding citizen all his life."

Foisy now faces charges of armed robbery and making terrorist threats. The sheriff's office and the Federal Bureau of Investigations are working to determine whether he is responsible for other bank robberies in the area.

GAMES

finding new bodyguards. The games also became a peacetime diversion for Highland Scots, who seemed to have a natural inclination toward fighting each other. By the 19th century, the games were an institution in Scotland, where they remain popular to this day.

"They are really big in Scotland during the summer," he said. "The top athletes go there for four to six weeks and compete almost every day."

Surprisingly, the games have been embraced by countries with little or no connection to Scotland. In addition to the United States and Australia, which have large populations descended from Scots, the games have attracted a devoted following in places like Indonesia and Brazil. Borges, by the way, is of Portuguese descent.

Keeping fit and lifting stones

To keep pace with his opponents, Borges is required to maintain an exhausting — and sometimes unorthodox — training regimen.

"I sit in my backyard and pick up a 200-pound stone," he said. "My neighbors think I'm insane."

Despite the endless routine of backbreaking lifting, Borges has developed a genuine affection for the games, much of it for social reasons. Whenever he attends a competitive event, he's sure to run into somebody he knows, most likely an opponent.

"Everybody knows everybody," he said. "It's like having another family."

And despite the competitive nature of the games, Borges said athletes are remarkably supportive of each other.

"There's great sportsmanship," he explained. "Everybody cheers for each other. I once dropped a place in a match when I told my opponent to drop his hip a bit. Now that's camaraderie. You don't see that in many other sports."

The Scottish Highlands Games will take place Aug. 5-6 at Toro County Park on Highway 68, about 20 minutes east of the Monterey Peninsula. For more information, call (831) 647-6311 or visit www.montereyscotgames.com.

SUNSET CENTER released its 2006-2007 season brochure this week, offering an ambitious and impressive series of performances.

Kicking off the fun will be rock 'n' roll legend Bo Diddley, who will be accompanied by a variety of musically gifted friends, including bluesman Alvin "Youngblood" Hart and vocalist Ruthie Foster, on Wednesday, Sept. 27, at 8 p.m.

Other highlights include a show by Momix, an acrobatic company of dancer-illusionists (Oct. 31); a performance of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" by the Salzburg Marionettes (Nov. 2); a black-light puppet show by the Famous People Players (Nov. 22); "Christmas from Dublin," a concert by the Three Irish Tenors (Dec. 2); a performance by the Hungarian State Folk Ensemble (Jan. 16); a show by the Russian-American Kids Circus (March 1); a concert by the late singer-songwriter Harry Chapin's family (March 4); an evening of cutting-edge magic by the Theater of Illusion (April 7); and "100 Years of Broadway," starring Rita Moreno (April 18).

Subscriptions are now available, and single tickets go on sale Aug. 23. For more information on the 2006-2007 season, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

WHAT WE DO BEFORE PLACING EMPLOYEES IN YOUR HOME

Our employees work in our clients' homes, so we are very careful about screening for any past offenses. We also check driving records and test for substance abuse. In addition, we bond our employees for your protection.

We handle all the payroll-related details such as withholding of taxes, payment of workers compensation and compliance with all government regulations, which grow more complex each year. We train them upon employment and pay them to attend continuing education classes. And we reward them with the best benefit package of any local home care agency.

All this takes place behind the scenes. What you see is a friendly, professional Personal Attendant backed up by a supervising Home Care Coordinator and by every procedure we have established for your protection.

City hall's historic neighbor to get two hotel rooms, but no parking

By MARY BROWNFIELD

DESIGNER JOHN Mandurrigo's former Monte Verde Street office, which includes an upstairs apartment and is owned by Dennis LeVett, can be converted to two motel rooms transferred from the Forest Lodge, the planning commission decided July 12. Because LeVett, who also owns the Casa de Carmel hotel next door, voluntarily placed the small building on the city's register of historic resources, the city waived a requirement for two additional parking spaces. The plans call for minor exterior changes, including a new door, enclosure of a staircase and construction of new stairs on the north side. Two French doors will be relocated, with new windows and a chimney added to the east elevation. A new elevator would be installed. When it reviewed the plans June 26, the historic resources board found the changes consistent with federal standards for altering historic buildings. The HRB, which voted to accept LeVett's offer of including the building on the city's register of historic places in order to preserve it, said he did not need to construct two more parking spaces.

"Because of the size and location of the existing building on the site, providing onsite parking is not feasible without substantially altering the building," senior planner Sean Conroy said in his staff report to the planning commission.

The city's general plan established incentives to get property owners to voluntarily protect historic buildings, but "very few have made that step," principal planner Brian Roseth said. One of those incentives is waiving parking requirements.

Some commissioners didn't think that was a good idea. Alan Hower asked where people using the new hotel rooms would park, and builder Chris Tescher, representing LeVett, suggested they would leave their cars wherever they could. Hower said Tescher considered downtown parking congestion someone else's problem.

"I think Carmel has officially declared it doesn't have a parking problem. Otherwise, they would build a parking garage, and they haven't done that," Tescher responded.

Office workers probably used more parking spaces than guests will

Children's theater wants help in replacing stolen costumes

By KELLY NIX

THE DIRECTOR of the Children's Experimental Theatre is asking for the public's help in recovering and replacing more than $20,000 in costumes stolen from a storage unit at CSUMB.

The items, which include rare costumes and antiques, were stolen sometime in late July.

"To go after a nonprofit that benefits children and barely holds it together year after year is pretty low," said Gwyneth Hovick, CET's managing director.

Among the items taken were one-of-a-kind masks, Chinese silk period robes and skirts, two antique sewing machines, two green marble-top tables, hoop skirts, furs, wedding dresses, fur-trimmed robes, 17th and 18th century costumes, and body suits for bear, wolf, raven and frog, Hovick said.

The theater, which usually stages its productions at the Indoor Forest Theatre, has made calls to pawnshops, and flea markets, and is checking eBay to find the stolen goods. In the meantime, however, the theater needs to replace the items and is looking for donations.

"It's devastating," she said. "We are going to have to work around it. We don't have any other choice. When they say, 'nonprofit,' it's our picture in the dictionary."

The costumes were part of a collection CET has gathered over its 47-year existence.

The thieves, who targeted the storage unit during a break from the CET, seemed to have planned the crime in advance, Hovick said.

"The thieves unscrewed tons of screws that were in both sides of the door," she said. "Then they kicked out the window. You couldn't open it unless you had a key without unscrewing the panels.

Hovick said it's possible the thieves had prior connections to the theater.

"It may have been someone who was affiliated with us at some point," she said.

University police at CSUMB are investigating the crime. Anyone with information is asked to call the police at (831) 655-0268 or call the children's theater at (831) 624-1531.

To donate money to the Children's Experimental Theatre, call (831) 624-1531 or send a check to CET/SPRC, P.O. Box 3381, Carmel, CA 93921.

Kenneth Kelleher will direct this parable about the dangers of materialism and the vulnerability of wealth, as the incredibly affluent Timon lives way beyond his means. "Timon of Athens" begins with a discount preview Friday, Aug. 11, at 7:30 p.m., opens Saturday, Aug. 12, at 7:30 p.m., and continues Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. through Sept. 3. Cal Am to pay feds more than $10M to protect steelhead

By KELLY NIX

CALIFORNIA AMERICAN Water Co. will pay more than $10 million over seven years to protect the endangered steelhead trout in the Carmel River as part of a settlement reached with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The fees, which could eventually show up on customers' water bills, is part of a mitigation effort to offset the environmental impact of Cal Am's pumping from the Carmel River. "It's a great deal of money," said Steve Leonard, Cal Am's local general manager. "But what it does is give us some surety of our relationship with NOAA." Without the settlement, the agency could have levied heavy fines.

Under the agreement, Cal Am will pay $3.8 million within 60 days, to be followed by six annual payments of $1.1 million. NOAA will decide how the money will be spent.

Cal Am draws most of its water from the Carmel River. But in Order 95-10, the water company was mandated by the State Water Resources Control Board to find another source besides the Carmel River or face steep fines.

Cal Am is developing its Coastal Water Project, a desalination plant and aquifer storage and recovery system that would provide an alternative to the 10,730 acre-feet of water it is not allowed to pump from the river each year. Cal Am hopes to have the project completed by 2010.

Cal Am will seek recovery of the $10.4 million in its next rate application, which will be decided by the California Public Utilities Commission in early 2009, the company said.

The agreement expands on one Cal Am and NOAA entered into in 2001 which required Cal Am to reduce the impact of its operations in the Carmel River on steelhead and their habitat.

While Cal Am has fulfilled much of the terms of original agreement, it still must work with NOAA to resolve other issues, Leonard said.

"This gives clarity to our pumping of the Carmel River and is the precursor to work on issues like the San Clemente Dam and Los Padres Dam, which are of concern to NOAA," Leonard said.

Order 95-10 placed also additional limitations on Cal Am's diversions at the dam and upstream wells during low-flow periods. The California Division of Safety of Dams mandated that Cal Am implement safety measures at the San Clemente Dam, including lowering the water levels in the reservoir behind the dam during the dry season.

"We have agreed to negotiate with them during the next couple of months on issues other than pumping of the river," Leonard said.

In addition to the $10.4 million to be paid to NOAA, Cal Am and its customers have contributed $28 million to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District over the years for annual steelhead rescues, construction of a rearing facility to hold rescued fish, and improvements to the Carmel River Lagoon and riparian habitat. With a replacement water project estimated to cost almost $200 million, the tab for Order 95-10 is beginning to become clear. And with environmentalists launching a statewide campaign against desalination plants, that price will probably go even higher.

Will your life insurance policy die before you do?

Keeping your insurance healthy as long as you live.

CLIENT SITUATION: Margaret and her husband planned for a secure retirement primarily funded through income from commercial real estate. Margaret, age 78, and her husband, who passed away two years ago, had purchased a multi-million-dollar Second-to-Die insurance policy. Due to higher vacancy factors in commercial real estate, Margaret no longer had the ability to continue paying insurance premiums. She had not paid a premium in close to two years, and the policy was scheduled to lapse.

THE SOLUTION: The policy was sold in a life settlement arrangement for quite a bit more than the cash surrender value. A portion of the funds were used to enhance Margaret's retirement income. The remainder of the life settlement proceeds was used to purchase a reduced paid-up policy to cover Margaret's relatively illiquid estate.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Margaret will spend the rest of her retirement with a comfortable income while protecting her assets for her family.

New exhibition series at Monterey Museum of Art

THE MONTEREY Museum of Art has announced the launch of a new exhibition series called Monterey NOW.

Focusing on contemporary artists residing in Monterey County, each installment of the biannual series will include the most recent body of work by a single living artist.

Each artist chosen to participate in the Monterey NOW series will receive a monetary award and will participate in a series of public programs in conjunction with the exhibition.

Modeled after nationally-acclaimed series such as the Whitney Museum of Art's Bucksbaum Award, the mission of Monterey NOW is to identify and commend local artists who have made a significant contribution to the visual arts, regionally as well as nationally.

An announcement of the series' inaugural exhibition, scheduled to open August 17, is forthcoming.

Cal Am has been ordered by the state to drastically reduce pumping from the Carmel River or face steep fines. While it's moving forward with its proposed Coastal Water Project, a co-located project with Moss Landing power plant to fulfill that order, the project is being met with increasing resistance.

Drilling for salty water

At a desalination conference in May focusing on alternatives to co-locating with power plants, RBF outlined seven different types of subsurface drilling, including HDD (horizontal directional drilling) well fields, seabed filtration systems and vertical saltwater wells, or beachwells, which have been approved for a small desalination plant in Sand City.

But Hardgrave said the likely method of subsurface technology to be used by Cal Am would be slant wells.

With slant wells, an 18-inch collector is sunk vertically into the ground. Protruding from the collectors are two or three 16- to 24-inch screened wells about 3,000 feet in length drilled into the seafloor at an angle or slant.

The perforated wells collect seawater from below the sand, which acts as a natural filter. The water is pumped to the collector and then to the desal plant via a buried pipeline.

RBF is studying the possibility of putting slant wells in two areas — north Marina and Moss Landing.

"Putting the subsurface intake wells in the area of Moss Landing would be more challenging," Hardgrave said. Elkhorn Slough is an "endangered species habitat, and state parks may be more resistant to any sort of new well development."

North Marina would be easier because the water source pipeline could be installed within an existing Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency easement. The desal facility would also be located next to the MRWPCA.

Slant wells can be drilled from behind the beach to avoid environmentally sensitive areas and coastal erosion. They are also invisible to beachgoers.

"We are entirely open to the possibility of using subsurface intake technology," said Catherine Bowie, Cal Am's community relations manager. "We studied it as an alternative precisely because it may be the method preferred by the commission and the community."

Although more pumping is necessary in slant-well systems, Makrom Shatila, an assistant engineer with RBF Consulting, said the water would need less treatment.

"The recovery using a slant well system is assumed to be anywhere in the range of 45 percent to 60 percent, depending on the characteristics of the water," Shatila said.

Desal plants using open ocean intakes are significantly less efficient, RBF said.

A slant well system would need to pump only about 17 million gallons of water per day to produce 10 mgd of drinking water.

"With slant wells you increase your power usage due to the power needed to pump the water from each well," Shatila said. "But with that taken into consideration, and the cost savings associated with subsurface intakes, it may still be cheaper in the long run."

Subsurface studies optimistic

Although the subsurface technology has yet to be used for water desalination, initial studies are promising.

The Municipal Water District of Orange County has reported good quality water and better-than-expected yields in subsurface tests at four sites along Doheny Beach near Dana Point.

And RBF is studying slant-well technology at the Montara Water District near Half Moon Bay.

"Slant wells are being tested and HDD is not," Hardgrave said. "There is a higher level of confidence in the near term in slant wells."

Citing cost and feasibility issues, however, Cal Am is cautious about the technology.

"I think the real question is, how likely are our regulators and permitting agencies, for example, the California Public Utilities Commission and the coastal commission, to recommend subsurface intakes?" Bowie said.

Coastal commission analyst Tom Luster said it's a good bet.

"In areas where the geologic conditions would allow it, it offers a lot of benefits," Luster said. "It doesn't raise some of the problems the open water intakes raise."

And although initial costs of subsurface desal technology could be higher than co-locating with a power plant, there would likely be a long-term economic plus.

"You may, over the operating life of the desal facility, [finding] it's cheaper because you have fewer pretreatment requirements," Luster said.

Since the water is naturally filtered through the sand, the need for expensive chemical treatment and residual solid equipment, required for reverse osmosis desalination, is greatly reduced or eliminated.

Environmental groups support studies

Mark Massara, director of the Sierra Club's California Coastal Program, said while the organization does not endorse subsurface drilling, it supports the study of any technology to replace open ocean intakes and once-through cooling methods. And the group isn't sure new water supplies are a good idea.

"I think what you would find from the Sierra Club is a more cautious approach, because we still have concerns about growth-inducing impacts," Massara said. "Subsurface drilling certainly appears to reduce some of the more troubling adverse environmental impacts associated with all existing desal proposals."

While the Sierra Club has long advocated water conservation over anything, Monterey Peninsula tops the list of water savers in the state, something Massara said should be taken into consideration.

"It can't be used for real estate speculation," he said. "It should be used for conservation purposes mainly to protect the Carmel River."

Geever said Surfrider insists all desal projects be subsurface.

Still, both groups prefer aggressive water conservation and reclamation over desal.

"Monterey deserves a lot of credit for all the conservation they have done," Geever said. "But I don't think they can still make a claim they have done everything possible."

How not to pay for a desal plant

AN EDITORIAL last week on one of the local TV stations looked at the water shortage on the Monterey Peninsula and Cal Am's application to raise rates to pay for a new water project. Those costs are astronomical, to be sure, and nobody is looking forward to paying them.

But the TV station's suggestion for a way to get the new water project built without hitting the pocketbooks of most local ratepayers was just ridiculous. "Make visitors pay," the station's general manager suggested. He wanted a new hotel tax to generate most or all of the estimated $200 million cost of getting the people of the Monterey Peninsula out from under a state order, now 11 years old, that they quit taking so much water from the Carmel River.

First of all, if water rates are raised the way Cal Am wants, tourists and the hotel owners who host them will already pay more than their fair share. That's because our water rates are tiered — bigger users pay more. Since tourists don't have any choice but to share water meters with other tourists, they end up paying quite a bit more per gallon than people who live here.

Furthermore, in case the people at the TV station haven't noticed, every time one of the local cities considers raising its hotel tax, the idea is hotly contested by chambers of commerce and hotel owners, who fear higher room rates will result in lower occupancy rates. And when fewer tourists come to town, thousands of local employees see their wages and tips fall. We're not sure we buy the argument that a small increase in hotel taxes causes significant numbers of tourists to alter their vacation plans. But if the tax were raised high enough to pay for the water project we apparently need, you could fire a cannon down Ocean Avenue without hitting anybody from out of town.

If the cost of a new water project is too high for this community to stomach, the only avenue for contesting it is to go back to the State Water Resources Control Board and ask it to rescind Order 95-10. The federal wildlife police aren't going to allow a dam on the Carmel River. There is absolutely no way we can eliminate 60 percent of our water supply by further conservation efforts. Whether Cal Am gets its project approved, or the Pajaro/Sunny Mesa Community Services District succeeds in building its desal plant, or they end up working together, the price is going to be sky high.

But wait! Instead of taxing hotel rooms, there might be another way to raise the money needed for a water project. How about a special tax on television advertisements?

Bates is right ... most of the time

Dear Editor,
I prayed for the return of Bill Bates cartoon posters to the Carmel-by-the Sea Post office, which had lost all its uniqueness without them. The new coat of paint and the askew framed stamps just didn't cut it. I am a great fan of Bates' weekly cartoons but feel he missed the boat with his cartoon in the July 21 issue portraying the typical old Carmel cottage behind ordinary "boundary" fencing with the sign, "Danger, Carmel under construction." More to the point would have been, "Danger, Carmel under destruction."

Joan Hendrickson,
Carmel

He deserves recognition

Dear Editor,
How refreshing it is to see at least part of the Bates cartoons back in their honored place in the Carmel Post Office. I want to congratulate Sam Farr for his efforts in making this happen and the postal authorities for changing their mind.

It is interesting to note that since the 1930's and early 1940's, the Postal Service had a tradition of displaying art and murals all over the nation which were created by well known American artists of the time. Juried competitions were held nationwide under the sponsorship of the WPA art program for artists to earn the privilege of having their work hung.

My uncle, a Wisconsin painter, was one of those artists whose murals graced four post offices in the midwest. Certainly Bill Bates work qualifies for inclusion in this recognition of the depiction of American life.

Lucia Dahlstrand,
Carmel

Missed

Dear Editor,
My wife and I live just a block away from the Ryan Field home. Both Ryan and Alex Robbins and other friends would walk by our home and always wave to us with their surf boards and wet suits in hand, on their way to the beach. To say that these young men would be missed is an understatement, these young men are already missed.

Joseph and Betty Chaffers,

LIGHTHOUSE

keepers and their families lived at the site until 1974, when the station was automated. The light station was entered into the National Register of Historic Places in 1991.

The July 12 transaction transferred two parcels — totaling 11.98 acres — from the U.S. Coast Guard to state parks. The largest parcel, 10.81 acres, is located on the north end of the rock and contains the lighthouse tower, a fog signal room, an oil lamp room and a small oil house. The second parcel, 1.17 acres, is located on the south end of the rock and features a pre-1940 mess hall which has been converted into a visitors center.

The Coast Guard will continue to maintain the lighthouse, retaining the right of unrestricted access, Schaechtele said.

“Anything that has anything to do with aid to navigation falls under the realm of the Coast Guard,” he explained.

The federal agency specifically will oversee the operation of the facility’s light, lens, antenna, sound, camera, sensor, navigation equipment and power source.

The acquisition of the light station began Aug. 16, 1984, when the U.S. Department of Agriculture transferred 34 acres to state parks. An additional 38.54 acres, which included a former naval facility, was added in 2000.

The Coast Guard’s right to access the facility is just one of many deed restrictions — many pertaining to the light station’s historical preservation — state parks is subject to. Perhaps the most interesting is the following provision:

“Upon reasonable advance written request to the grantee [state parks], all right, title, and interest in and to the property, including any historic artifacts conveyed to the grantee, shall, at the option of the grantor [the coast guard], revert to the United States of America, if the property is needed for national security purposes ...”

A big deal with little fanfare

Perhaps the reason the transfer was attended by so little publicity is the fact that the facility hosted a ceremony celebrating the deal more than two years ago. On April 23, 2004, then-Secretary of the Interior Gale Norton signed documents authorizing the transfer.

“Point Sur Light Station has been in continuous operation for 115 years,” Norton said at the ceremony. “It stands as a witness to the journeys of seafarers a hundred years ago and to the migrations of whales today.”

About 300 lighthouses in the United States are considered candidates for transfer under the National Historic Lighthouse Preservation Act of 2000. The law gives the Secretary of the Interior the power to decide which applicant can best protect a particular lighthouse. “In this case, California State Parks and its nonprofit partner [Central Coast Lighthouse Keepers] certainly have proved to be the best possible stewards of Point Sur,” Norton said. “The partnership between the private and public sectors that is protecting Point Sur Light Station is a model for the nation ...”

The act authorizes the transfer of historic lighthouses and stations at no cost to federal agencies, state and local governments, nonprofit corporations and community development organizations.

The light station is open to the public only through docent-led tours. For more information, call (831) 625-4419 or visit www.pointsur.org.

The Coast Guard gives the Big Sur lighthouse to state parks but can take it back in case of national emergency Community Services District to develop a desalination plant in Moss Landing, said subsurface technology is something the company will explore.

“Both the coastal commission and the environmental interests, locally and external to the Monterey Bay area, have expressed a strong interest in having that option,” MacLaggan said. “And we intend to do so as part of the Pajaro/Sunny Mesa environmental impact report.”

The pressure from environmentalists to come up with an alternative to desal systems that use once-through cooling is only growing. Cal Am announced this week that SurfRider and a coalition called the Desal Response Group filed an appeal of its pilot plant permit, citing the destruction of marine life, among other things.

Cal Am, meanwhile, said it will go with the flow, offering whatever the regulatory agencies and its customers decide is best.

“The ratepayers should keep in mind that subsurface wells will be more expensive and are an unproven technology,” Bowie said. “Having said that, we will of course comply with whatever version of our project is selected through the public process.”

How to find places in Carmel

- Part 2 -

Another north-south arterial is San Antonio. It roughly parallels the beach one block inland and extends from Inspiration on the South to the Carmel Gate on the north, all under the same name. Hardly anyone believes this, but it is true.

The southern boundary of Carmel Village is Santa Lucia Avenue. Everything south of it is Carmel Point, everything north is Carmel. It runs from the beach for 10 blocks (if you count on the north side) or 6 (if you count on the south) to Rio Road. A right turn here will bring you to the Mission and soon after back to Highway 1.

All the numbered avenues run east and west, and so long as you are within their confines, streets and blocks are reasonably square. We'd like to tell you that all the named streets run north and south, but they don't. Nor do the roads, ways, lanes, drives and places. Carmel people are friendly, so ask somebody—anybody.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pebble Beach Community Services District

The Board of Directors of the Pebble Beach Community Services District adopted the following Ordinance No. 24 to implement limited law enforcement and security services on Friday, July 28, 2006. The ordinance will be effective August 27, 2006, per State law.

ORDINANCE NO. 24 PEBBLE BEACH COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT

ORDINANCE OF THE PEBBLE BEACH COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT IMPLEMENTING CERTAIN ELEMENTS OF ITS NEWLY AUTHORIZED POWERS TO PROVIDE LAW ENFORCEMENT AND SECURITY SERVICES

WHEREAS, by Resolution No. 06-06, passed and adopted on April 26, 2006, the District has initiated a proposal and application with the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission ("LAFCo"), pursuant to the Cortese-Knox-Hertzberg Local Government Reorganization Act of 2000, commencing with Section 56000 of the California Government Code and pertinent Sections 56653, 56700, and 56824.10, for a change of organization to allow the District to activate latent powers to provide law enforcement and security services within the District; and

WHEREAS, having made all required postings and notices, and having held all required hearings, on June 26, 2006, LAFCo approved without amendment, wholly and unconditionally, District's application to authorize implementation of those law enforcement and security services powers set out at Sections 61100(i) and 61100(j) of the California Government Code; and

WHEREAS, recognizing that the noted LAFCo authorization is plenary as to the powers authorized, District nonetheless desires at this time to implement those powers on a limited basis, as more particularly described below and as allowed by law, and to reserve District's right to implement on a broader basis should circumstances so dictate;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE PEBBLE BEACH COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. The District hereby implements and activates those two powers, also known as functions or classes of services, approved by LAFCo as described hereinabove. Provided, however, that District's exercise of the two powers pursuant to this Ordinance shall be limited as follows:

To the extent reasonably practical, the new services shall be implemented on an incremental basis to augment services provided by existing law enforcement agencies sharing jurisdiction within the District.

The services shall be financed from District's available discretionary funds, and not from special assessments or taxes unless legally required approvals are obtained, including an election or elections where appropriate.

The services will be provided by contract, with traffic enforcement a priority, including use of radar and other technology. The contractor(s) will also provide general law enforcement and prevention of vandalism and crimes against property. Additional security services may be supplemented by use of a private security firm.

Section 2. As allowed by law, the District reserves the right at any time to implement and activate the two powers beyond the limited exercise set out in Section 1 hereof by modifying, deleting, or adding to that limited exercise. Such additional implementation and activation shall be taken only by ordinance following public notice and hearing, and subject to referendum.

Section 3. As provided in Section 61046(b) of the California Government Code, this ordinance is subject to referendum, as are all ordinances of the District dealing with legislative matters.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the Board of Directors of the Pebble Beach Community Services District at a regular meeting duly held on July 28, 2006, by the following vote:
AYES: DIRECTORS: Jeffrey B. Froke, Gary D. Hornbuckle, Leo M. Laska, Richard D. Verbanec, Gerald F. Verhasselt

HISTORIC

"They certainly have space to build parking garages. I don't think individual businesses are going to solve the parking problem; I think it's a municipal problem."

Minor changes to the exterior of this historic building next to Carmel City Hall will accommodate two new hotel rooms in place of offices.

Commissioner Robin Wilson said it would be "irresponsible" to intensify the need for parking so close to city hall.

But commissioner Ken Talmage doubted replacing office space with hotel rooms would further crowd parking in the area, since more people probably worked in the office than will stay in the rooms.

"Ken has convinced me," Wilson responded. "I withdraw my objections."

The commission unanimously approved LeVett's application. The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District will have to approve the transfer of .134 acre-feet of water from the Cypress Inn to the new property before remodeling can begin. (An additional .021 acre-feet, or 15 percent of the total, will go to the MPWMD if it approves the transfer.)
