Cars, drivers, spectators recall days when racing through P.B. was legal

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A LONG time ago in a land not very far away, sports cars raced on 17 Mile Drive and a small car show was held near The Lodge.

Today, that small car show is the world famous Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance that draws hordes of classic-car buffs and has a ticket price of $175. But the Pebble Beach Sports Car Road Races of 1950 through 1956 are merely memories.

This beautiful "Frankenstein" of a car belonging to Carmel gallery owner Bill Karges took almost three years to restore and was completed just in time for Sunday's Concours d'Elegance, which will honor cars driven in road races through Pebble Beach (below) more than a half-century ago.

"My brother, John Morse, was president of Del Monte Properties Company, and I believe it was Sterling Edwards of San Francisco who came to him with the idea for the race," said Pebble Beach resident Mary Shaw, the youngest daughter of company founder Sam Morse. "He loved cars and racing, and he had a lot of friends who had similar interests"

The course on partially paved roads through the Forest included a straightaway near the equestrian center, hills and curves along Forest Lake Road, a stretch on what is now 17 Mile Drive, and a few others that no longer exist, according to Shaw.

"The first Concours was just a side attraction to the races," she added. "It wasn't very high powered."

Shaw remembered parties in a cabin on the front straight, which was "the best place to watch." A few years into the races, Bay Area institution Trader Vic's began hosting picnics on the course. One year, Shaw starred in a Shell Oil commercial, driving a Jaguar XKE around Pebble Beach. "It was fun. I remember I couldn't let the engine idle, or it would overheat." Later, she saw herself on screen at the State Theatre.

Scaled-back September Ranch clears another hurdle

By CHRIS COUNTS

EIGHT YEARS after it approved the September Ranch project, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors will soon take another look at it.

The county planning commission voted 6-2 to approve a scaled-back version of the project this week, setting up a showdown with the board of supervisors. Before reaching a decision, the commission listened to more than 10 hours of often contentious testimony spread out over three public hearings.

Juan Sanchez, Don Rochester, Cosme Padilla, Miguel Errea, Jay Brown and Nancy Isakson voted for the project, while the two planning commissioners from Carmel Valley's district, Martha Diehl and Keith Vandevere, voted against it. Aurelio Salazar Jr. and John Wilmot were absent.

The planning commission OK'd a modified plan which would allow 73 residential lots and 22 inclusionary units on the 891-acre property and dedicate 810 acres as open space. Ranch co-owner Jim Morgens had hoped to subdivide his land into 94 residential lots, 15 units of affordable housing and 783 acres of open space.

For Morgens, the planning commission's endorsement of his project was worth waiting for.

"Obviously, we were pleased to get a positive vote," Morgens said. "It's nice to go to the supervisors with a recommendation from the planning commission."

While Diehl defended Morgens' right to build on his property, she said his ambitious plan required more water than she thought was reasonable.

CHP officer evicted by state parks

■ Big Sur housing too decrepit to be lived in, agency says

By CHRIS COUNTS

You can add California Highway Patrolman Jim Covello to the growing list of Big Sur residents seeking affordable housing.

Covello, who lives in a building near Point Sur that once housed Naval personnel, has been given six months to find a new place to live for himself and his family.

His landlord is the California Department of Parks and Recreation, which took title to the last pieces of the Point Sur Light Station just five weeks ago.

According to Matt Fuzie, district supervisor for state parks, the eviction has nothing to do with Covello. The structure he is living in is simply falling apart.

"The electrical system is old, the sewage system is inadequate and there is no potable water," Fuzie said. "It's just not cost effective [to rehabilitate the structure]. And if we're operating systems that aren't cost effective, we're required by law not to operate them."

While Fuzie's comments might seem reasonable, that is little consolation for Big Sur residents who have not only embraced Covello and his family, but have grown accustomed to having a law enforcement officer living in the neighborhood.

Lisa Kleissner, whose house is near Garrapata Beach, said crime in Big Sur is on the rise and it is essential to have a

Gargoyle gets permit

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SHE DIDN'T realize she needed a permit for her gargovle.

But a neighbor's complaint about the decorative chimney cap atop Sylvia Breiholz' new home at Monte Verde Street and 10th Avenue landed her in front of the Carmel Planning Commission last week, where a pointed debate about the virtues of rooftop dragons ensued.

"We thought it was an adornment," like a painting or a wallhanging, which wouldn't require city approval, explained contractor Mark Holman on behalf of the homeowners. "We think the gargoyle creates variety and is a very minor thing

See GARGOYLE page 31A

One planning commissioner called it "ostentatious adornment." But the majority called it "whimsy," allowing this gargoyle to keep its perch atop a Carmel chimney.

Cal Am slams pilot plant appeal by So. Cal. environmentalist

By KELLY NIX

AN APPEAL by a Southern California environmentalist over California American Water Co.'s county-issued pilot desalination plant permit is flawed and should be rejected by county supervisors, a consultant to the water company con-

Conner Everts, co-chair of the Santa Monica-based Desal Response Group, filed the appeal in July claiming the pilot plant will harm marine life.

But RBF Consulting, on behalf of Cal Am, contends the appeal should be thrown out because Everts misrepresented his title, filed the paperwork too late and didn't participate in a July 13 public hearing required by the county to file such an appeal.

"I think they are trying to nit-pick some of this," Everts countered.

In an Aug. 9 letter to the Monterey County Planning and Building Inspection Department, RBF cited a county code stating that persons who "fail to participate in the hearing either orally or in writing shall not have the right to appeal.'

RBF also said Everts attempted to "piggyback" a letter Surfrider Foundation submitted to the county a day before the July hearing, outlining reasons the permit should not be granted. The Surfrider letter was not a appeal.

"Conner Everts did not to participate in the hearing; he was not a co-signer on the Surfrider letter and did not testify separately," RBF wrote. "Therefore he does not have the right to appeal."

But Everts told The Pine Cone he submitted the appeal on behalf of the Desal Response Group, a coalition of which he said Surfrider is a member.

"We are all part of the effort to come up with a better desal plant, both statewide and locally in the Monterey Bay," he

But because the appeal does not make clear that Everts represents the Desal Response Group or that Surfrider is part of the group, RBF contends Everts misrepresented his identity on the appeal form.

"Everts did not identify his interest in the decision," RBF noted. "Therefore, the board of supervisors should not accept his appeal."

The board of supervisors at its Aug. 29 meeting in Salinas is set to decide whether or not to accept Everts' appeal.

RBF and Cal Am also contend the Surfrider letter didn't address specifically what impacts Cal-Am's pilot plant would have.

The letter "was general in regards to the once-through cooling process used by most coastal power plants and did not make specific identification of how these concerns apply to [Cal Am's] proposed temporary pilot desalination facility," RBF said.

Cal Am will use information from the pilot test plant for its proposed full-scale Coastal Water Project, a desal plant in Moss Landing that would provide a drought-free supply to the Monterey Peninsula while eliminating illegal pumping from the Carmel River.

"The pilot facility is very small and will only operate at 0.02 to 0.01 percent of the capacity of the full-scale facility," said Catherine Bowie, Cal Am's community relations manager.

Everts also denied an accusation by RBF that he didn't turn in the appeal on time. "We were tight on the deadline, but we got it in," he

The county requires an appeal be complete and comply with all requirements in order for supervisors to accept it. The board of supervisors at its Aug. 29 meeting in Salinas is set to decide whether or not to accept Everts' appeal.

Excess water to be pumped back where it came from

By KELLY NIX

THE PENINSULA will be closer to getting a legal water supply when environmental papers are signed off for the Seaside Groundwater Basin Aquifer Storage and Recovery Project.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District on Monday is expected to certify the final environmental impact report for the project, which will pump excess Carmel River water in winter to wells in Seaside. The water will be extracted in the summer when the demand is at its peak.

"This will be taking some of that excess flow, pumping it over the hill via California American Water's existing pipelines and injecting it into a well," said Henrietta Stern, project manager for the MPWMD. "We hope to construct the well this fall."

The aquifer storage and recovery project is a collaboration between the MPWMD and Cal Am. Certification of the recovery project's final EIR is necessary to formally approve it.

The system will, in a small way, help satisfy the 1995 state order that Cal Am drastically reduce pumping from the Carmel River

"It doesn't replace all of the water that needs to be replaced in the Carmel River, but it is a good first step," she said. "In some years it would be more and in some years it might be zero."

Pumping from the Carmel River has an adverse affect on the red-legged frog and the steelhead trout population, species that are considered threatened.

"It's really a win-win for everybody involved," Stern said.

But the project is expected to provide, on average, about 900 acre-feet of water per year, Stern said. In contrast, the state has ordered Cal Am to reduce pumping of the Carmel River annually by about 10,000 acre-feet.

And water customers and taxpayers are footing the bill for the $3.25 million project. In addition to state tax grants, the MPWMD board earlier this year approved a rate increase that appears on customers' bills.

Still, the project is seen as a good shortterm solution to providing an alternative water supply to the Peninsula, since any drought-free water solution is years away.

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Woman catches fire in church

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 6

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Missing person reported from Mission Street.

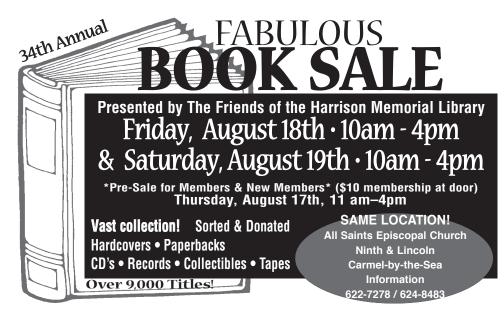

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Found property on Dolores Street. Person found a wallet belonging to a subject.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Lost wallet on Scenic Road. Subject reported loss of a wallet on Carmel Beach while attending a family reunion party at the 13th Avenue cove.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Non-injury accident on Dolores Street. Reporting party came into the station to report an accident involving her parked car. Witness left suspect information for victim.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a reported structure fire at the inn at San Carlos and Fourth at 0150 hours. Engine and ambulance arrived on scene. Guest in one room stated that he heard a pop in the kitchen and then saw a red glow in the kitchen hood around the fan. He used a dry chemical extinguisher on the hood. Investigation showed that the wire to the hood fan shorted out and tripped the circuit breaker for the kitchen and set some pine needles that had accumulated in the fan grill and filter on fire. Removed the fan grill, filter and fan, then checked for any fire extension in the flue and surrounding area and found none. Took some photographs and advised the guests to air out the kitchen. The guests telephoned a motel contact person prior

New law would encourage low-cost housing downtown

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A FLEDGLING ordinance to provide flexibility in Carmel's zoning standards for 100 percent affordable housing projects downtown will likely receive the blessing of the planning commission next month before it's forwarded to the city council for adoption. The idea arose after the Carmel Foundation proposed rebuilding and expanding its senior apartments at Trevvett Court on Dolores Street.

"The intent is to provide more design flexibility for projects exclusively devoted to affordable housing," principal planner Brian Roseth told the commission Aug. 9. "Those projects don't come up very often, and when they do, we want to be as accommodating as possible."

According to the draft, the planning commission could make exceptions for zoning standards on setbacks, height (not to exceed 30 feet or two stories), floor area ratio (up to 150 percent), building coverage, density (not to exceed 88 units per acre) and parking for developments serving low- and very-lowincome tenants.

It would only apply to the commercial district bordered by Junipero and Monte Verde streets, and Third and Eighth avenues. Candidate projects would have to comprise at least three units, and those with more than five must provide onsite laundry facilities and a community room at least 250 square

The Carmel Foundation's Trevvett Court provides low-cost homes for nine seniors, but the nonprofit hopes to tear down the old buildings and replace them with a 14-unit complex designed by architect Eric Miller. A law under consideration by the city would help make it happen.

Pacific Grove council approves campaign finance limits

By KELLY NIX

THE PACIFIC Grove City Council Wednesday night voted 5-2 to approve a contentious campaign finance and conflicts of interest ordinance.

The ordinance prohibits candidates from taking campaign contributions from nonindividuals such as corporations or political action committees but allows businesses to

The limit only applies to municipal elec-

"We included language that businesses can contribute as long as a human being signs it," said Mayor Dan Cort following the Council members Susan Goldbeck and Ron Schenk were the dissenters.

The ordinance sets $500 as the limit for individual contributions per election cam-

The ordinance also says, "Each elected official shall recuse him [self] or herself from a governmental decision which provides a material financial effect to a contributor whose campaign contributions to the official's candidate committee relating to the official's current term of office accumulate to $250 or more.'

The P.G. ordinance is based on the California Political Reform Act of 1974 which set rules for state officeholders, whether elected or appointed, requiring them to perform their duties in an impartial manner, free from bias caused by their own financial interests or the financial interests of their supporters.

This line of credit plan allows the borrower to obtain both variable rate advances and fixed rate loans. All Annual Percentage Rates (APRs) quoted in this offer are for our most creditworthy borrowers who enroll in Auto Pay from a Washington Mutual deposit account, and have a combined loan to value up to and including 80%. The special introductory Annual Percentage Rate (APR) for variable rate advances is as low as Prime -1.51% (6.74% APR as of 6/29/06) for new junior lien credit line accounts of $100,000 or greater. The introductory APR is fixed for six months, after which standard pricing will apply as summarized below. Introductory APR offer expires September 30, 2006, and is only available in CA, FL and WA. The standard APR for variable rate advances is as low as Prime -0.25% (8.00% APR as of 6/29/06) on junior lien credit line accounts of $100,000 or greater. The APR as of the same date for standard term fully amortizing fixed rate loans with similar requirements and with terms of up to five years is as low as 7.549%. The maximum APR for the credit line account is 18%. There is a transaction fee of 4% for each variable rate advance of less than $100 (unless the advance is made by use of the Visa® credit card). There is a cash advance fee of 2% of the amount of each Visa® credit card cash advance, or $2.00, whichever is greater. Visa® credit card is not available in CT or TX. There is a $50 fee to obtain each fixed rate loan (other than the first fixed rate loan). Typically, for line amounts less than $250,000, costs to open an account could range from $0 to $1,500. DISCLOSURE

Yes, you should. If you're selling a home and its roof has started to leak...if the lot isnt quite as large as you first reported it was (and thought it was)...if there are any facts about your home that are of material importance to a potential buyer, disclose them in writing. Otherwise, you are entering a very poor gamble and, if you lose, you could

A simple example: A man bought a house in a marina because it had a dock behind it where he believed he could keep his prized sailboat. When he moved in, however, he was greeted by a man who was painting his own boat - on what the buver thought was his own new dock. The man waved in a friendly way and, when asked what he was doing there, explained that the prior owner had never used the dock and had granted him the right to use it for the past ten years.

Needless to say, if the new owner had known that someone else had a legal right to use the dock, he would never have bought the house in the first place. So a furious court battle ensued.

It could have been avoided very easily by following two simple rules: First, communicate. Second, disclose all material facts that could affect the transaction. The sellers should tell their real estate professional all they know about their home, good and bad. The buyers should tell their real estate professional everything they want in a home very clearly, and should also make clear any potential problems they could have in completing the purchase. THE MIND-BODY LINK

Dementia may be an impairment of the mind, but it is likely to first show physical signs. According to a recent study, poor physical function may be an early indication of Alzheimer's disease and other dementias. This illustrates the inextricable link between body and mind. In fact, researchers found that even the mildest degree of physical disability is a predictor for Alzheimer's disease. The earliest physical signs for dementia are problems with walking and balance. At a later stage, a weak handgrip may be evident. On the other side of the coin, researchers suggest that exercise may help forestall Alzheimer;s and dementia. The first signs of physical impairment, therefore, should be met with aggressive therapy.

Benefits of regular exercises in people with Alzheimer's disease include maintenance of motor skills, decreased falls, and reduced rate of disease associated mental decline. Improved behavior, improved memory, and better communication skills are a few other benefits associated with routine exercise programs in Alzheimer's disease. At VIC-TORIAN HOME CARE/RES-IDENTIAL CARE HOMES our mission and promise to our clients is simple - to provide the best care possible, as many hours a day and as many days a week as we are needed.

P.S. The mind-body link is particularly evident in older people.

Stormwater ban will cost too much, cities say

m A}$ N INFORMAL scoping meeting held by the State Water Resources Control Board in Monterey Wednesday quickly turned into an outpouring of frustration from local cities confused by the board's sudden decision to prohibit stormwater runoff into the sea.

The SWRCB has designated some waters off Carmel, Pacific Grove, Pebble Beach and Monterey "Areas of Special Biological Significance," or ASBS, which makes them offlimits to wastewater discharges. For decades, that meant things such as sewage treatment plant outfalls and industrial waste pipes. Two years ago, the board decided it includes runoff from streets, driveways and lawns.

The meeting, held at the Monterey Conference Center, was intended to gather feedback from local jurisdictions before the state water board adopts a "special protections" proposal regulating stormwater and "non-point source" discharges into ASBS.

Pollutants present in stormwater, the board contends, can have damaging effects on human health and aquatic ecosystems. It has ordered that all waste discharges into ASBS come to an end by 2008. Complying would cost tens of millions, according to local officials.

At the meeting, City of Monterey engineer Tom Reeves used a facetious example to point out what many see as an absurd state plan to prevent any and all "waste" from entering an ASBS.

"Someone on the rec trail could spit on the trail and it could wash into the ocean," Reeves said, drawing snickers from the audience. "There is no way to prevent [some waste] from going into an ASBS." He also used bird feces as an example of pollutants that enter ASBS.

Although the deadline was extended until September, cities were supposed to have had special protection proposals submitted this week.

In 2005, the state water board notified Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Pebble Beach to cease stormwater and non-point source water discharges into ASBS or request an exception from the rules.

Environmentalists who spoke out at the meeting said the state water board should stay the course.

D'Anne Albers, executive director of Friends of the Sea Otter, said about 40 percent of sea otter deaths can be attributed to land-based runoff.

And Jim Curland, the Defenders of Wildlife's marine program associate, called the sea otter a "sentinel species" that's 'an indicator of what's going on in the ocean."

"I still come back to this idea that there are no discharges allowed," Curland said. "We feel very strongly that the policy you are presenting to the board needs to be strong, needs to be clear.'

Reeves suggested the board consider a "tiered system," allowing cities to try different methods to solve the discharge dilemma. "You start on a level of establishing BMP's [best management practices]," he said. "And if it's still a problem, then maybe we have to take another look at things.

Paul Singarella, attorney for the Pebble Beach Co., said the 12-page staff proposal introduced in June outlining special protections is different than what is in the Ocean Plan adopted by the state water board in 1972. "It doesn't say that waste shouldn't be discharged into ASBS if you have special protections," he said. "You got 12 pages of new stuff."

Dominic Gregorio with the state water board's ocean unit said it's not. "This is not an effort to create a new program," Gregorio said. "We are operating under ... the Ocean Plan."

Deborah Mall, attorney for the City of Monterey, said the state has yet to define large and small dischargers, which could mean the difference in how much a city like Monterey, for instance, would have to spend to comply with the state's

"Has there been any analysis on how much this project will cost?" Mall said.

between December and May will be diverted using existing Cal Am water wells in the lower stretches of the Carmel

Water will be treated to potable standards and pumped about six miles through Cal Am's distribution system to the Seaside Basin, where it will be injected into ASR wells for later extraction during dry periods.

The water will be transported to the existing Santa Margarita well site, east of General Jim Moore Boulevard and approximately 300 feet south of Eucalyptus Road, for

A second well will be constructed adjacent to the Santa Margarita well, allowing for injection and extraction of water at approximately 800 feet below the ground surface.

'Water use on the Peninsula goes up in the summertime when there's no rain for people's gardens," said Catherine Bowie, Cal Am's community relations manager. "Unfortunately, that's also the time of year when the fish lack adequate flows. The concept behind ASR is that you can take water off the river in the winter when it's plentiful — store it - then extract it in the summertime."

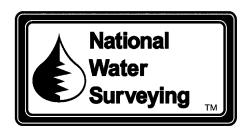

The project will require relatively little construction because it uses existing water collection, delivery and injection and extraction facilities owned by Cal Am and MPWMD, Stern said.

"We started our very first concept of this project in 1996," Stern said. "It was a small pilot project at the Seaside Mission Memorial area in Seaside. That was a more shallow aquifer and the results were promising.

The district still needs a use permit from the City of Seaside and a long-term easement permit from the U.S. Army, both expected to be issued in September. It's also awaiting a water-right permit from the State Water Resources Control Board, Stern said.

"Every acre-foot of water we can leave in the river during the summer is cause for celebration," Bowie said.

Battle of the bands, Gregg Rolie highlight county fair's musical offerings

THE MONTEREY County Fair wraps up its 70th year this weekend with performances on the Garden Stage by vocalist Gregg Rolie Friday evening, a Battle of the Bands Saturday evening and a slate of fiesta acts performing throughout the day Sunday.

Inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame in 1998, Gregg Rolie was the lead singer for Santana and Journey in the 1970s. He will appear Aug. 18 at 7:30 p.m. with a sevenpiece band playing a mix of feel-good rock 'n' roll and Latin rhythms.

Saturday evening's Battle of the Bands will include competitions in three different divisions: reggae, hip hop and rock 'n' roll. Closing out the evening, this year's MTV University Video Award winners Say No More will perform.

Sunday, Aug. 20, will be Fiesta Day, with several Latin bands taking to the stage from noon until 6 p.m., including the Chicano All Stars, Los Implicados and La International Sonora Show. For more information

Promoters at the Sunset Center dig deep into the vault of Poco — founded by Richie Furray and Jim Messina in 1968 — was a pioneer of country rock and, despite numerous personnel changes, has persisted for more than three decades and released a string of critically acclaimed albums. Original member Rusty Young, longtime members Paul Cotton and Jack Sundrud, and newcomer veteran drummer George Lawrence are the current line-up. Poco's recent releases include "Running Horse" (2003), "Keeping the Legend Alive" (2004) and "Bareback at Big Sky" (2005).

Pure Prairie League, named after the women's temperance union in the Errol Flynn movie "Dodge City," was signed by RCA Records in 1970 and became synonymous with the out the '70s and '80s, releasing the top ten hit "Amie" from their "Bustin' Out" album.

Mason, a founding member of the legendary British rock 'n' roll group, Traffic, penned the classic rock anthem "Feelin' Allright" and was inducted into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in 2004. In addition to pursuing a successful solo career that spawned the platinum album, "Alone Together," Mason is featured on albums by the Rolling Stones and the Beatles. A true rock classic. For tickets to Sunset Center concerts, call (831) 620-2048.

Saturday, Aug. 18, from noon until 6 p.m., Sand City will be the venue for the fifth annual West End Celebration, an extravagant blend of arts and industry in a transformed area recently dubbed, "SoHo West." More than a dozen artists will welcome the public into their private art studios, musicians and dancers will perform in the streets, while local restaurateurs will offer their fare. The Monterey County Vintners and Growers Association will host a tasting of outstanding regional wine at the Vintner's Pavilion. Bands performing on the Main Stage at the corner or Catalina and Ortiz include Latin Rockers, the Chicano All Stars; post bebop group Along Came Betty, and San Francisco art rock band, the Gun and Doll Show.

Saturday, Aug. 26, KRML and the Jazz and Blues Company on San Carlos Street present a CD release party from 2 to 5 p.m. for "The Very Best of Monterey," a collaboration of some of the Monterey Peninsula's outstanding jazz musicians, and a concert with pianist Weber Iago at 7:30 p.m. The Very Best, produced by local drummer Kim Edmundson, features an all-star cast of musicians including guitarist Michael Lent, bassist Stan Robbins, saxophonists Gary Regina and George Young, jazz group Along Came Betty plus others. The album features an original song composed by George Young, dedicated to the memory of deceased drummer Chas Newhart. Artists will be on hand to sign CDs, and refreshments will be served.

Iago, an accomplished pianist, composer and arranger, performed a new composition, "Jazz Concertino for Piano and String Orchestra," at this summer's Carmel Bach Festival. A native of Brazil who moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1990, Iago is a regular at jazz festivals and venues throughout the world. Iago, born Weber Ribeiro Drummond, has spent all of his musical life researching different types of sounds, ultimately dedicating most of his endeavors to uniting elements of classical, jazz and Brazilian music. Cachagua horse carries owner on 100-mile Tevis Cup trail

■ Yahoo does it again

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE SCARIEST part was riding a narrow ridge in the pitch-black night above a 1,500-foot drop.

Although she's afraid of heights, Cachagua resident Peggy

Owner Dodie Williams

hed 1980 ♦ Member of BBB and Self Storage Association ♦

Eaton trusted her Arabian, Yahoo, to carry her through that harrowing stretch, just as he did for every step of the 100-mile Western States Trail Ride in the Sierra Nevada.

She finished 56th of the 87 who completed the endurance ride, also known as the Tevis Cup. About 200 horse-rider teams started the 24-hour race Aug. 5.

Even more impressive was the fact that Yahoo finished the same race a year ago with Peggy's husband, Bob, in the saddle.

"It's just getting over the finish line before 5:15 in the morning that matters," said Eaton, who last year worked on her husband's crew with three other women to ensure horse and rider had everything they needed.

"I saw how well the horse did, and Bob just looked like he had so much fun, and it was such an adventure for him," she said. "It wasn't a ride I had ever planned to do, because I thought it was way over my head."

So, with her husband and the same three women helping her and Yahoo at the start, the finish and a bit in between, the duo set out.

They left Robie Park, about 10 miles from Squaw Valley, at 5:15 a.m. to tackle a trail that includes intimidatingly named landmarks like Last Chance, Devil's Thumb and Swinging Bridge. Elevations range from 700 feet to 8,700 feet, with riders climbing and descending many times as they navigated canyons, river crossings and ridge tops.

Called "the oldest modern day endurance ride," the Tevis first ran in 1955 and gives competitors just one day to finish. Stringent veterinary checks and rest stops along the route ensure horses are fit to continue and complete the ride, which accounts for the sub-50 percent finish rate.

A little L.A.

"The start was very crowded, with close to 200 horses, so it was kind of like being on an L.A. freeway: stop, start, stop, start," Eaton recalled. But soon the riders found their rhythm and spread out to climb Squaw Valley's ski runs and traverse the Granite Chief Wilderness to reach 8,700 feet in elevation.

"The views were breathtaking — we could see Lake Tahoe," she said. They encountered rocks, boulders and even snow drifts left over from a cold and stormy spring.

The middle segment took riders down tight switchbacks and up tremendous climbs through three steep canyons. At the bottom of the first canyon, a 60-foot-long swinging bridge crosses the American River

"And it does swing," Eaton said, especially toward the end of the crossing. "The horse was calm, but it got our attention."

The climbs highlighted Yahoo's strength and stamina.

"This was where I knew I had an incredible horse, because he didn't need to stop," she said. The pair conquered the canyon stretch 45 minutes quicker than last year, but she admitted weighing less than her husband and contending with mid-afternoon temperatures in the 90s rather than last year's 110s helped.

Approaching the town of Michigan Bluff about 62 miles into the ride, where one of the several vet checks along the route was located, townsfolk gathered along the trail to welcome Eaton and the other riders. They offered watermelon, iced tea, lemonade and even horse care.

Eaton gratefully took advantage of their hospitality, "but the big thing on this ride is you have to keep moving forward," she said.

Riding in the dark

At Foresthill, her crew outfitted the duo for nighttime riding by duct-taping a headlamp to her helmet and fluorescent green glow sticks to Yahoo's breast plate. They also gave her a pink and green "bling light," as she called it, so they would recognize her at the finish line in Auburn.

"At 8:40, we took off into the dark, into the part I had been most concerned about but which turned out to be a wonderful experience," she said. The few times she used the headlamp, it lit the dust cloud as much as the trail, so Eaton left it off most the time and trusted Yahoo to find his way. The glow sticks provided a small wash of light and helped Eaton avoid vertigo in pitch-black conditions.

Yahoo and Eaton joined a group of riders for some of the most challenging terrain, including those intimidating ridge tops. "Sometimes it's a 1,500-foot drop to your death," she said. "But you trust in your animal. I was never afraid. I sat on the horse very centered and looked forward and just let him go."

She felt she could tell what Yahoo was thinking.

"His attitude the whole time was, 'C'mon, I'll get you through this — I know what I'm doing," she said.

Eaton savored the camaraderie among Tevis Cup riders, particularly along a tough, 17-mile section, when riders waited for each other at water stops and helped each other along.

Again crossing the American River — this time in the dark and without a bridge — glow sticks submerged in the water marked the way. "It looked like a runway at the airport," she said.

Eaton kept awake, alert and hydrated by sipping energy drink and taking electrolyte tabs. She only really felt tired once, about 14 miles from the finish line.

"So I drank a [canned] Starbucks DoubleShot while I was trotting behind someone," she said. "It dribbled down my chin, but I didn't really care."

Strolling toward the finish

About seven miles from the finish, the floodlit Lower Quarry vet check loomed out of the darkness.

"It's comforting, eerie and mysterious, the way the rocks are lit way up the canyon wall," she said.

After the checkup, she helped out a rider from Michigan during the final miles. "She was very much afraid of the dark, and she latched on to me thinking I was brave," she said.

Since they had made such good time, Eaton felt no pressure to rush toward the finish line. As they approached, she heard yells, and she flipped the switch on her bling light so her crew would see her and cheer.

"That was an incredible feeling," she said. Eaton and Yahoo crossed the line at 4:33 a.m., 13 minutes earlier than her husband and the same horse did last year. "But it wasn't about beating the time, just enjoying the ride, getting through it and having the horse be happy."

That Yahoo finished the Tevis two years in a row is a considerable feat, especially considering he sprained his ankle eight weeks before this year's ride.

Eaton said the setback didn't have her worried. "If it wasn't going to happen, it was not meant to be," she said.

But Yahoo's vets at Steinbeck Equine in Salinas predicted he would be good to go in a month, "and they were spot-on correct," she said.

After the race, everyone gathered for the awards ceremony, where Eaton obtained her first Tevis Cup finisher's belt buckle and immediately put it on. The couple also had a special plate made for Yahoo's bridle. "He's our Tevis horse," she said. "Now he'll have something to wear."

And now they have to fight over which of them gets to ride in next year's Tevis.

Meanwhile, the Eatons are focusing on getting their "dream business" — a fully equipped boarding stable for 150 horses on 204 acres in Cachagua — up and running.

"Our love and our passion is horses," she said. "And that's the life we want to live together."

By KELLY NIX

FACING A predicted $300,000 shortfall at the city's municipal golf course, the Pacific Grove City Council voted unanimously Wednesday to extend tee-time reservations for tourists, which the city contends will help bring in more revenue.

Visitors to P.G. will now be able to reserve tee times 60 days in advance if they purchase a golf package through a city hotel and pay a $10 reservation fee. Currently, individual golfers, locals and tourists, can only book tee times seven days in advance.

"We are focused on balancing the budget," said Mayor Dan Cort after the meeting. "And this will help boost our TOT [transient occupancy tax]. And helping our businesses is what it's all about."

The new ordinance will allow golf reservations to be made from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., typically a time slot not as busy.

"By allowing and inviting people and guaranteeing tee times, we will be able to attract a huge amount of overnight visitors," said Moe Ammar, president of the city's chamber of commerce, which proposed changing the ordinance.

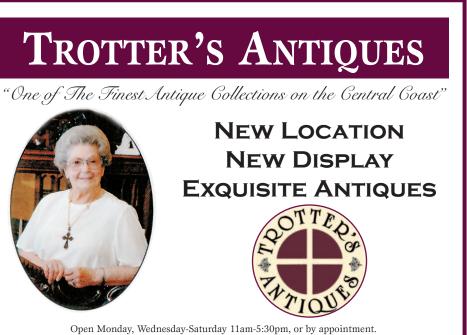

Ammar and city manager Jim Colangelo said tourists are often sent to other golf courses such as Bayonet and Black Horse on the former Fort Ord because they allow reservations to be made farther in advance than Pacific Grove's links.

"When they spend the night, they are going to eat, they are going to shop in Pacific Grove," Ammar said. "We will get more people to stay here midweek, Sunday through Thursday, when we need business the most."

But offering extended reservations to tourists could rile local golfers.

"Change is difficult in Pacific Grove," he said. "And anytime you want to make changes, there will be opposition. But in light of the $300,000 deficit and the fact we aren't going to take anybody's tee time, common sense says it's a good move."

And Ammar said tourists

Colangelo said it's difficult for the city to estimate how much it might make by offering extended reservations for tourists since it's never before been done.

But the city does expect to bring in more money when it takes over the golf pro shop's operations in December.

For more than three decades, it's been run by a private operator.

"We anticipate making about $200,000 a year over what we make now," Cort said.

Upping the price of golf

Another revenue-generating idea is to raise the city's green fees, considered a bargain on the peninsula.

"Basically we need to get more money out of the course," Colangelo said. "And that means raising the rates at some point. Or, we cut back on expenses, but then you won't have a well maintained course." The city could raise prices for tourists, residents or a combination of both, he said.

The city is also mulling over the possibility of changing the golf course's use permit to allow a full bar and extended hours, which the city maintains would increase revenue.

By allowing later hours, the city could rent out the space for wedding receptions and other events, and offer dinner.

Most of the concerns raised at a recent golf advisory committee meeting two weeks ago involved the possibility of late night events where alcohol would be consumed, Colangelo said.

The city council will weigh in on the matter at a September meeting.

The expenditures are going to exceed the revenues by $300,000," Colangelo said. "It's a situation we can't continue. We will have to address the revenue structure at the golf course."

$100 car drawing to fight ALS

STEVE WHITFILL of Jack London's, raising money to fight ALS (the fatal Lou Gehrig's Disease), purchased a Toyota Prius for a drawing. To make up the $25,000 cost and donate another $25,000 to help ALS sufferers, he needs to sell 500 $100 raffle tickets pronto. "I'm getting a little nervous," he said. "I have sold 80 to 100 so far, and I only have three weeks to go." The winner will be announced Sept. 9 during the Walk to D-Feat ALS at Lake El Estero in Monterey. On Aug. 31, Whitfill will also host The Bruceski, named for longtime caddie Bruce Edwards, who died of ALS. For a $50 (or more) donation, guests can mingle from 5 to 9 p.m. with pro players and caddies in town for The First Tee Open. For more information and to buy a ticket for the car drawing, call (831) 624-2336 or stop by Jack London's.

Singing and strumming their way for 620 coastal miles

By MARY BROWNFIELD

Passersby were unexpectedly serenaded Monday afternoon on downtown sidewalks as a group of musicians played and sang for cash.

But the quintet wasn't busking and did not raise the ire of the Carmel-by-the-Sea constabulary. Cow Bop, a "Western jazz swing band" headed by Carmel Valley educator and guitarist Bruce Forman, stopped in town during its On the Edge Challenge tour to raise money and awareness for the nonprofit JazzMasters Workshop.

The Edge tour is Forman's fourth "road challenge" fundraiser for the JMW, which he founded six years ago.

"It's lovely to be home, but I'm afraid they'll jump ship," Forman said of his Peninsula-native bandmates as they played for diners at La Dolce Vita and shoppers at Wittpenn's Antiques on San Carlos Street.

For the tour, Cow Bop includes regular members Forman, percussionist Mike McKinley (playing a cardboard box with a wire brush) and vocalist PintoPammy, augmented by 21-year-old USC senior and professional bassist Gabe Noel and 16-year-old JazzMasters student and Carmel High junior Noah Freedman on the fiddle.

They kicked off their fundraising tour along the rugged California Coast in San Clemente Aug. 7 with a full tank of gas and $100 cash. Forman is a veteran of such fundraising adventures, having taken a group along Route 66 twice and toured through Gold Country once, but his current effort is the first to include a JMW student.

They live off cash from Cow Bop CD sales and depend on the hospitality of friends, family and strangers when finding places to rest their heads at night. All donations during impromptu performances and proceeds from a few prearranged gigs go to JazzMasters. Rules of the road include "no belly-achin" and staying within 15 miles of Highway 1.

Forman founded JMW to put "the power of music performance directly in the hands of children and young adults," and since 2000, the nonprofit has hosted more than 1,500 free workshops for children of all ages, abilities and backgrounds. Now national, JMW prides itself on providing players with "unprecedented access to world-class musicians," who educate and inspire students on a weekly basis.

Go-karts and the dollar menu

On the road, Cow Bop members reported experiencing incredible generosity and many challenges. The group has yet to have to sleep in a hotel, but Forman suspects some night soon nobody will offer them free hospitality and they'll have to cram themselves inside the two-person travel trailer they've been towing behind their truck, "Hank."

He also hopes the weather holds.

Ironically, it was in Los Angeles, a city where entertainment is the No. 1 industry, they had the least success.

"It was hot, and we were running out of money," Forman said. "We felt practically invisible."

He speculated people might have noticed them more had they been on a large television screen.

But in Santa Barbara, a man building an expansive house in the hills invited them to shelter there for the night.

Noel, who has played standup bass since the age of 13, said the lowlight of the trip so far was "scrounging to purchase something from the $1 menu at McDonalds," while the highlight was, "driving a go-kart around some crazy guy's farm in Cayucos."

As for venues, one of his favorites was the 1st Hole at the Aliso Creek Golf Course in Laguna Beach. "It sounded great, and people were very responsive," he said.

Halfway through the challenge, the Carmel stop included playing for their lunch at the Rio Grill, crashing the JazzMasters Workshop at the Carmel Youth Center and jam-

Forman hopes they will reach their final destination of Leggett in Mendocino County in time to get Freedman home to start his junior year at Carmel High Aug. 21. Otherwise, the fiddler's parents might be a bit peeved.

Swim laps for cash

THE BIG Swim III — the 24-hour relay to raise funds for the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center — is set for Aug. 18 and 19 at the center's pool on Ford Road in the valley. Family Fun Night Friday will include dinner, a champagne and chocolate bar, and a silent auction, from 5 to 8 p.m., with swimmers hitting the water at 6 p.m. And that night, the CVCYC board will deliver $18,000 to First National Bank to retire its debt, bringing the 12-month total to more than $65,000. "This is truly 'The Carmel Valley Miracle," reported Paul Ingram.

Swimmers paddling all night will surely be hungry for the 8 a.m. pancake breakfast Saturday. The pool will open for free recreational swimming from noon to 5 p.m. and a kids' contest. The relay will end with a birthday dinner for pool director Di Whitesides and awards for young swimmers. To donate, swim, partake of the festivities or learn more about the youth center, visit www.cvcyc.org or call (831) 659-2606.

Pure Prairie League, Poco join forces on Sunset Center stage

By CHRIS COUNTS

IMAGINE SINGING a pop hit and not sticking around to celebrate its success. That what Craig Fuller did, although he certainly didn't plan it that way.

League is best remembered for the hit single "Amie."

Three decades after the country rock gem, "Amie," made its unlikely run up the Billboard charts in 1975, Fuller and his group, Pure Prairie League, will perform at Sunset Center Saturday, Aug. 19. They'll share the stage with Poco.

When they recorded "Amie" in 1972, there was little reason to believe Pure Prairie League would stay together until 1976, much less 2006. Lead singer Fuller, who helped start the band in Columbus, Ohio, in 1969, had bigger things on > his mind than scoring a pop hit. He was trying to avoid being shipped to Vietnam.

After he was drafted, Fuller declared himself a conscientious objector. Ultimately, he cut a deal with the draft board — if he agreed to work in a hospital, he could stay out of the military. Fuller didn't Unfortunately for Fuller, by the time his troubles with the local draft board were resolved, Pure Prairie League had a new lead singer. In fact, before Fuller rejoined the group in 1997, Pure Prairie League went through four lead singers, including country star Vince Gill.

Fuller, meanwhile, kept singing during his 25-year absence from the band. From 1988 to 1994, for instance, he replaced the late Lowell George as lead singer of Little Feat. George, a certified rock 'n' roll cult hero, was no easy act to follow.

"I was never afraid of singing next to anybody," Fuller explained. "I could never match Lowell's guitar playing, but we had similar voices and a lot of common ground."

Ultimately, though, Fuller was destined to return to the band that launched his career.

"In 1997, there was an opportunity for Pure Prairie League to do some shows," he said. "We did a bratwurst festival, a corn festival and a few other things. Last summer, we decided to see how much work was out there and we did about 50 shows. That was enough of an impetus for us to record a new CD. If nothing else, we can sell it off our tailgate at shows."

Country rock road map

Pure Prairie League shares the stage with Poco at Sunset Center Saturday. As much as any other band, Poco serves a virtual road map for a study of the evolution of country rock. The original lineup of Poco featured singer Richie Furay, bassist Jim Messina and drummer George Grantham, all former members of Buffalo Springfield, a group often credited with inventing country rock.

Meanwhile, bass players Timothy B. Schmit and Randy Meisner also did stints in Poco before graduating to the Eagles, arguably the most successful of all country rock bands. Presently, Poco is led by singer-songwriter and guitarist Rusty Young, the last original member.

Saturday's concert starts at 8 p.m. For information and tickets, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

Poco, left, and Pure Prairie League share the stage at Sunset Center Aug. 19. Paco, founded by three renegade members from Buffalo Springfield, became a launching pad for two future Eagles. Pure Prairie hesitate accepting the offer.

"I made about $300 a week," Fuller recalled. "But it beat going into the Army."

Pure Prairie League was signed to RCA Records at the time. Sales from the group's first two albums were mediocre at best, and when the record company discovered Fuller was leaving, it dropped the band.

Seemingly well on their way to nowhere, Pure Prairie League caught a break two years years later when "Amie" turned up on a few radio station play lists. Refusing to go away, the catchy song slowly but surely climbed the charts before morphing into a bonafide hit in 1975.

"The song has absolutely been a blessing for us," Fuller said. "It's taken on a life of its own."

Kurt Grasing saw a need for a Carmel chop house and filled it

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

 $E_{\text{XECUTIVE CHEF}} \text{ and owner Kurt} \\ \text{Grasing has never had a run-in with the ghosts at Simpson's} — the restaurant that occupied the building at San Carlos and Fifth before he transformed it into Kurt's Carmel Chop House five years ago.$

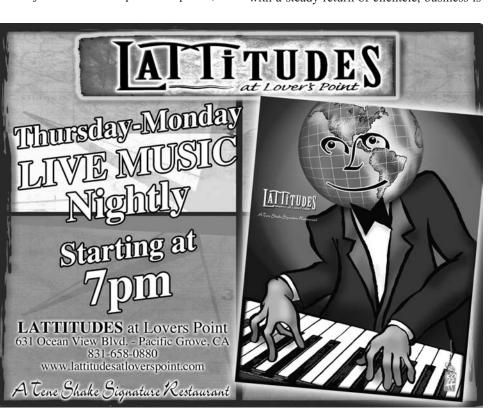

It's just as well the specters departed, as

Chef Grasing has enough to contend with, dividing his time as he does between the chop house and his other restaurant two blocks away, Grasing's Coastal Cuisine.

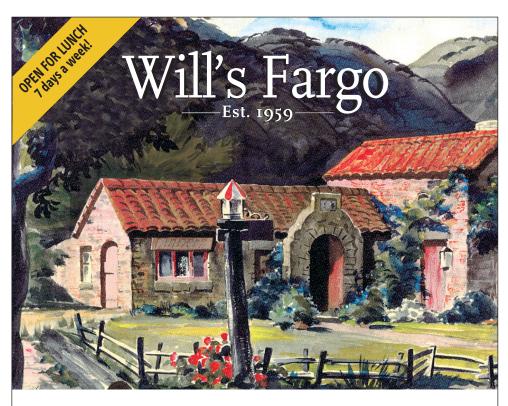

Opening just three months before 9/11, things were dicey at the chop house as they were at many businesses across the United States But Grasing managed to hang on and, with a steady return of clientele, business is back to normal. In fact, with summer's influx of visitors and the many events that bring them here, such as the Carmel Bach Festival and the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance,

PacRep's "Beauty and the Beast" returns to the Forest Theatre

THE DISNEY musical "Beauty and the Beast" returns to the Forest Theatre this week. Adapted by Linda Woolverton and directed by Walt deFaria, "Beauty" features a company of more than 100 actors, singers, musicians and stage crew members. One of the most famous of all fairy tales, "Beauty" tells of the romance story between a striking but impoverished young woman and an aristocratic "beast." The play continues through Sept. 24. For showtimes, tickets and more information, call (831) 622-0700 or visit www.pacrep.org.

Theatre Guild presents 'Fiddler' at Golden State

August 18, 2006

THE GOLDEN State Theatre in downtown Monterey hosts performances of "Fiddler on the Roof" by the Forest Theater Guild Friday, Aug. 18 (8 p.m.), Saturday, Aug. 19 (8 p.m.) and Sunday, Aug. 20 (2 p.m.). The popular musical tells the story of a poor Russian dairyman, Tevye (Reg Huston), who tries to instill in his five daughters a love and affection for their Jewish heritage in the face of growing antisemitism. Huston, pictured at right along with Velvali Huston in the role of Golde, also directs the production. Tickets are $30 for adults and $20 for students. both restaurants currently enjoy a pleasing

Not only does Grasing oversee both restaurant kitchens, he writes the menus, does all the ordering and planning, and cooks at no particular station but where he's most needed.

Partners in the enterprises are Larry Chazen and legendary restaurateur Narsai David, who at one time owned and chefed at highly successful restaurants in Berkeley and Kensington and is considered the San Francisco Bay Area's authority on all things culinary and vinous.

But it's Grasing's show in Carmel. He saw a need for a chop house here and with Chazen's and David's backing, filled it. "We have great steaks, martinis and an excellent wine list," Grasing said.

Wine Spectator magazine has seen fit to grant the chop house awards for its outstanding cellar five years in a row.

'What most people don't know is that besides the chops and steaks, we have excellent fish which is delivered fresh daily," he said. "Our grilled dover sole is very popular served with a lemon caper sauce, seasonal vegetables and the restaurant's signature potato dish - potato gallette," which Grasing devised himself. All entrées are served with the gallettes and vegetables, unlike most San Francisco steak houses where meat entrées are served alone, with side dishes ordered separately.

Grasing comes by his skills not through formal training at a culinary academy, but through apprenticing at San Francisco's Clift Hotel, an acknowledged bastion of quality, tradition and elegance. During his four years in the kitchen at the Clift, he absorbed kitchen knowledge and facility before being taken on by Narsai David at his Kensington establishment, the "in" place to dine during that era.

It was while he worked alongside David that a friendship was established. After two years there, Grasing received David's blessing when he went off to New York City to work at the Hotel Pierre for the next three years. Following this, he traveled abroad to London where he cooked at the three-star Le Gavroche in Mayfair.

In the mid '80s, with this dozen or so years' cooking experience in top dining places here and abroad, Grasing knew it was time to open his own restaurant and chose San Mateo as the location. For five years he was chef/owner of Restaurant 231 Ellsworth with a partner who managed the dining room.

Following this stint of entrepreneurship, Grasing moved to Big Sur where he was executive chef at Ventana Inn's restaurant for a full year before feeling the need for city life again. He moved to Monterey where he worked at John Pisto's Paradiso and Whaling Station for several years before once again being compelled to have his own restaurant.

"We also have veal, lamb and pork chops. And as for seafood, we have scallops, sole, ahi tuna and salmon, as well as cioppino."

And not to be omitted are regular chop house desserts: root beer floats, ice cream sundaes and French bread pudding.

Home-cooked meals without the shopping, prep or cleanup

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

'Put on an apron and wash your hands," instructed Diane Dobronte, co-owner of Pacific Grove's Dinners Ready, as I walked into the spacious working kitchen. Dinners Ready is a communal kitchen where recipes and ingredients are ready for customers to prepare made-from-scratch, healthy meals and leave the mess behind.

Co-owners Dobronte and Malina Anderson met when their daughters were 6 years old and taking ballet lessons in Carmel. Both busy moms and Pisces (they even named their partnership "Dancing Waters"), the two women clicked. After hearing from Dian'es mom about a similar do-it-yourself food franchise near Pleasanton from Diane's mom, researched comparable companies. They liked the food, recipes and philosophy of Seattle-based Dinners Ready, and embarked on sharing their passion for cooking in a new business.

I'm no Julia Child, but I claim aboveaverage kitchen skills, so I was a wee bit wary of an assembly-line-like meal-making destination — in a shopping center, no less. I'd never throw take-out or — quelle horreur! — Stouffers on the table and claim it to be my own home-cooked creation. And although the allure of already-shopped-for, pre-prepped ingredients and streamlined assembly piqued my curiosity, I still felt I was on the verge of committing culinary adultery. I subscribe to the school of thought that for a meal to really rock my socks, it's got to be somewhat labor and time intensive, and it usually doesn't come cheap.

I was shocked at how simple Dinners Ready is, and my volunteer guinea pig palate was pleased with the taste, freshness of ingredients and seasonings.

First things first. You need to give Dinners Ready a heads up in advance as to what meals you want to make so they can shop accordingly and get everything ready for your session. You can either pick up a menu at the kitchen or go online and see what they are serving. The website also has nutritional information for the dishes.

The 16-item menu changes every month, although Diane tells me the Build Your Own Calzone/Stromboli will remain a staple since it's so popular. I studied the menu neurotically, like I tend to do before ever stepping into a new restaurant experience and chose to make huckleberry BBQ rubbed chicken and baked beans. Other tempting offerings included sautéed sole and pesto risotto, Thai red curry beef and Jasmine rice and Roquefort-crusted flank steak and Provence potatoes.

Since I was on a tight schedule, I was permitted to make one lone dish, versus the usual eight-meal minimum (each meal generously serves four to six people). After you wash up and put on a pair of rubber gloves, you cozy up to one of two four-sided, fully stocked preparation stations. I admit the whole setup reeks of a gloried, grownup home economics class, but it's way cleaner and organized. And Diane and Malina are way nicer than any home ec teacher I ever had. A Lucite framed recipe outlines the ingredients and the method step-by-step, so even the most culinary-challenged of folks should have no problem pulling together a delicious masterpiece. Ingredients and utensils are color coded and perfectly portioned, so all it takes is a scoop of this, a quick perfectly measured pour of that and within eight to 10 minutes, you've got yourself a meal.

"When you put the meal together yourself, you can take into consideration your own likes and needs. If you like onions, add extra. It's up to you," Diane said. Once your meal is in a freezer bag stickered with detailed cooking instructions and thrown in the fridge, you move on to your next menu selection. The night I went, a group of new mommies from Stroller Strides were stocking up on meals. One woman who liked to cook, but not every night, commented that meal-making success was in being able to follow directions. Another woman didn't like to cook, period, and was giddy at her newfound excuse to get out of kitchen duties. Everyone seemed to be having fun.

Dinners Ready is not only perfect for new mommies, but newlyweds, elderly folks, military folks, college students and singles. It's a smart solution to cooking every night, saves money (the cost is about $3 per serving) and time, plus the final product tastes great. "This is a new concept for people. It's economical, healthy and quick. You can eat at home and have more time," said Diane. Swing by the Wine Market next door on your way out where owner George Edwards has created several suggested pairings for each of the menu offerings. My advice? Go with a couple of friends and make it a funfilled night out.

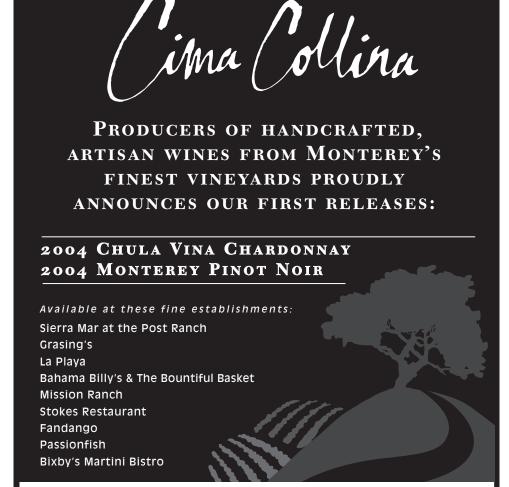

Dinners Ready, 193 Country Club Gate Center, Pacific Grove; (831) 645-9100 or www.dinnersready.com. Sessions are held Wednesday through Saturday.

feet in size. Even if the relaxed rules are approved, the city could not approve any application or zoning exceptions "detrimental to adjacent properties or injurious to health, safety or welfare," according to Roseth.

The planning commission discussed the first draft of the ordinance in July and again briefly this month. The proposal elicited no complaints or concerns from the public. "I think it's an excellent piece of short work," commissioner Robin Wilson said July 12. "There's a lot of virtue in that."

An environmental study concluding the new law will have no negative effects is available for public review and comment until Sept. 8. Commissioners decided to vote on the proposed law Sept. 13.

Foundation proposal

To accommodate more homes for low-income seniors, the Carmel Foundation plans to tear down two buildings containing nine units on Dolores Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues and replace them with a U-shaped structure containing 14 units situated around a courtyard. The apartments would range from 487 square feet to 510 square feet, and the complex, designed by architect Eric Miller, would include laundry and community rooms, as well as a subterranean garage with six parking spaces.

At the July 12 hearing, Miller characterized the block as "transitional" and hoped his design would strike a balance between the businesses, hotels, apartment buildings and single-family homes in the area. "It's important the building be a good neighbor to the houses that are there," he said.

He also said he designed the project so the people living there won't "have the feeling of being in an institution."

Commissioners debated height, window materials and other aspects of the design but generally approved. Senior planner Sean Conroy said commissioners could OK the project, when it comes back to them, contingent upon adoption of the new ordinance, which will likely take longer to navigate the approval process than the housing project will.

RACING

84, recalled racing in Pebble Beach in 1955 and 1956, when he owned a car dealership in San Jose.

"I loved the freedom — it was drifting and having control at the same time," he said of the sensation of driving at top

The Pebble Beach course was difficult, and "crowd control was lacking," Fawcett said. Mere bales of hay separated the crowds of sometimes 40,000 fans from the barreling automobiles.

"A couple times, people were right up to the road," said Fawcett's wife, Marge. "I remember one time thinking, 'There's a car coming — better get out of the way!' and the car hit the hay bales.'

"There were picnics on the course, people wandering across, and nobody thought of any danger except my father, who realized there was a potential for disaster," Shaw said. "I remember he was saying, 'Think what will happen if someone goes off the track."

That disaster struck in 1956, when Ernie McAfee crashed his Ferrari into a tree. Fortunately, no spectators were injured, but McAfee was killed. The fatality brought road racing in Pebble Beach to an end, making its only winners Phil Hill (1950, 1953 and 1955), Bill Pollack (1951 and 1952), Edwards (1954) and Carroll Shelby (1956).

But it wasn't the end of racing on the Peninsula. McAfee's accident led to the construction of what is now Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca.

Fawcett, who had driven in the California's first road races at Buchanan Field in Concord with the likes of Hill and Sir Stirling Moss, was also among the first to compete during Laguna Seca's inaugural season in 1957.

The next year, Fawcett sold his imported-car dealership to Don Lucas and moved to Maui, where he opened a gallery. Ten years later, he and his wife moved to Carmel. Now, their lives are all about art. But they still remember the days of high speed and hot oil fondly.

"It was so exciting," Marge Fawcett said of her husband's brief racing career. "Ed is very low-key and never really bragged about whatever he was doing, but he was a fine race driver.'

Frankenstein

In honor of the competition that brought about the creation of an internationally known automotive event, the 56th annual Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will feature a special class of Pebble Beach race cars.

Among them will be "a real Frankenstein" found four years ago in a freight container in Fullerton. The custombuilt car competed all seven years, as well as in Golden Gate Park, at Torrey Pines and elsewhere.

"My partner, Rick Knoop, went up and looked and said, 'Yeah, that's it, but boy is it ugly," recalled auto restorer Jim Busby, who raced professionally for 35 years, taking wins at Daytona, LeMans and Laguna Seca. He and another business partner and longtime friend, Carmel art gallery owner Bill Karges, decided to buy the car and fix it up.

"It's very unusual, because the cars that raced through the Forest are few and far between," Busby said.

It took more than two-and-a-half years of full-time work with a crew of three, five, and sometimes 10 in his Laguna Beach shop to restore the car. "Someone had made a mess of it," Busby said. And considering it was a complex, nowherenear-stock vehicle to begin with, he had to find bits on the car's past wherever he could.

He located a nonagenarian living in Oregon who supplied copies of old photos and some facts about the original race car. He learned David Addison, nicknamed Beezy, built it by himself in his Santa Monica garage after leaving the U.S. Air Force in 1945. Addison used a 1933 Ford roadster's body and chassis, running boards and fenders from a 1934 Auburn and a 1929 Cord grill shell. The transmission and differential came from a 1937 Ford, and a highly modified Ford 4,000cc V-8 provided the power. The air brakes were made by Lincoln.

Also, its creator's background in the aircraft industry manifested itself in the riveted bodywork.

"The car was quite advanced for its day. The guy was really clever," Busby said, marveling at Addison's ability "to take a bunch of junk Ford parts and turn it into this thing.'

Addison raced his sports car in Pebble Beach from 1950 to 1952, when it was known as the Beezymobile. Then wellknown racer Tony Parravano (father of Carmel Valley resident Ron Parravano) hired Addison as his chief mechanic, and Addison sold the car to Dr. Robert Louis of San

Before he painted for a living, Ed Fawcett sold imported cars in San Jose and drove race cars through Pebble Beach and at Laguna Seca. He and his wife, Marge, now own an art gallery in Carmel.

Busby said the Beezymobile/Louis Special may be the only remaining car that competed in all seven P.B Sports Car Road Races.

But whoever owned it between then and now altered much on the car, including headlamps, wheels, wind screen and the grille, as well as many of its internal parts.

Busby did his homework. He found a 1937 Ford engine for his son to overhaul. They "stripped the car to absolutely nothing," then rebuilt the body, transmission, rear end and brakes. They fabricated parts they couldn't find, using materials available when the time the car was built.

"Pebble Beach is the biggest of the big, so we feel a responsibility to do this car as best we can as it absolutely was at that time, even to the point where we use cloth wiring in it sewed together with aircraft thread," Busby said.

He even located a brand new 1947 California license plate still in its envelope signed by then-Governor Earl Warren — and a 1950 registration tab.

The car arrived on the Monterey Peninsula Tuesday, when a very excited Karges saw it for the first time. He trusted Busby's instincts so much, he had bought the car sight

And fortunate attendees of the Aug. 20 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will finally see it, too.

"We have a car that raced at Pebble Beach the whole time, and nobody ever went out of their way to say the races are the reason we're here today," Busby said he told a friend on the Concours board. Hence, the special class of P.B. road racers.

"It's going to be fun to see how many of them will come out of the woodwork," Busby said.

KILIMANJARO LAGUNA Seca Safford, 1 year old Aug. 3, had just come from a refreshing swim in the surf off Carmel Beach and from pulling struggling Mom Christine up the sand dunes to Scenic Road. Such energy!

As Mom caught her breath on the walking path, Kilimanjaro, not too pleased at having to leave the water, posed for a few begrudging photographs.

With Mom still grasping his leash and gasping for air, Kili looked longingly back at the ocean, and for one terrible moment we thought he was going to pull Mom precipitously back down the dunes to water's edge.

Kili weighs in at a svelte 86 pounds – down now from his recent 95 pounds – and his strength and energy are such that Mom can scarcely hang on to him. He starts obedience training next week at the fairgrounds.

Kili is from a litter of 12 produced by his mother, Belle. Good homes were found for all the other pups so now only Kili and Mother Belle live at home with Mom Christine and Dad Lee, but they get together with one or two of the siblings at Sunset Center for a good romp at least once a week.

When he doesn't get what he wants, Kili "accepts defeat, sits down with resignation" and lets out a big sigh, according to Mom.

At bedtime, Kili and Belle retire to their own big pillows in the living room, and occasionally — only occasionally — they can join Mom and Dad in the bedroom.

Mom said Kili is very loving and doesn't like to be left alone. When he's in need of affection, he pushes gently but surely against Mom or Dad for a caress or a pat, and when he's successful, which is always, he smiles.

DANCERCISEI Back by popular demand, Mary Jane is resuming her dance classes in Carmel with 40 years' dance instruction experience. A fun, eclectic dance-style exercise to work the body gently! All ages welcome. Daily morning and Thursday evening classes at the American Legion Post 512, 8th & Dolores in Carmel. To register, call Mary Jane Taylor at (831) 625-1697. You will be 'toning' . . . not moaning and groaning!

Free 4-Hour "SKIPPER SAVER" BOATING COURSE offered on August 19 at 10 a.m. at the Elkhorn Yacht Club in the Dining Room. Learn the basics of first aid, how to operate the Radiotelephone to call for help, identify the operating elements of a boat, how to find help quickly from the Coast Guard or other boaters and to how to take over until help arrives. Families are welcome. RSVP at (831) 724-3875.

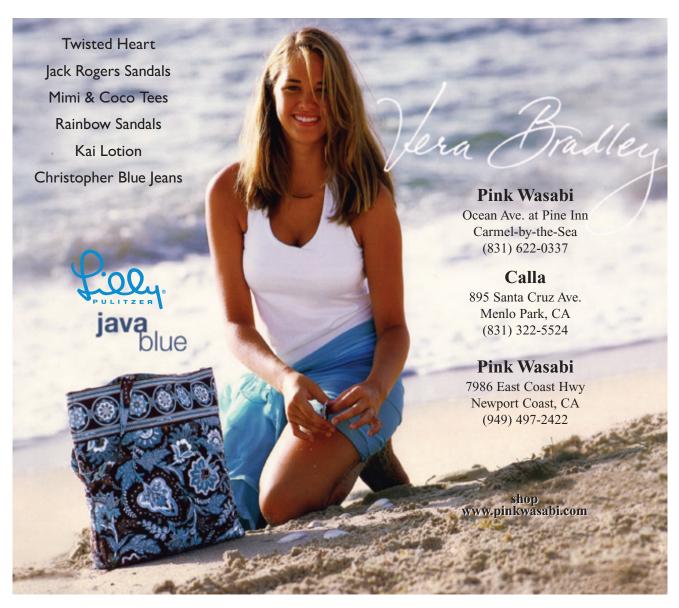

MONTEREY SYMPHONY'S SUMMER CLASSICS SERIES with Max Bragado-Darman conducting lush, romantic music in the intimacy of Sunset Center, 8/24 at 7 p.m., 8/27 at 1 p.m. and 8/28 at 7 p.m. Ticket price includes two orchestra performances conducted by Mr. Bragado and a solo piano recital by Horacio Gutierrez. Tickets for the entire 3-performance package on sale now. (831) 624-8511, ext. 200. For further information visit www.montereysymphony.org.

Rummage sale, walk for CFF

A RUMMAGE sale of clothes, household items, toys, games, books and baked goods at Tularcitos School Saturday, Aug. 19, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. will help raise money and support for Great Strides, a new program in Monterey County aiming to fight cystic fibrosis. Parent Elizabeth Robinson, whose daughter nearly died of CFF at 3 months old but is now a feisty, energetic 8 year old, began raising money for the group by hosting walks at the school. This year, she decided to branch out to the community, and the CFF gladly helped her open a Great Strides chapter on the Peninsula.

In addition, the group will host a reception and auction Sept. 19. Organizer Tricia Dally is looking for donated auction items and can provide information about the party at (831) 622-0103 or tsdally@yahoo.com.

Finally, teams and individuals raising money for Great Strides will gather for a celebration and 10K walk/run in Monterey Sept. 30, according to Robinson, who said she is looking forward to "great things from Great Strides." For more information, visit www.cff.org/great_strides.

police officer in the area fulltime.

"Two months ago, our neighbor lost the entire contents of her house," said Kleissner, who serves on the board of directors for the Big Sur Health Center. "Our house was broken into just two weeks ago. We called the sheriff in the morning and he showed up in the late afternoon. He told us his department was overburdened with calls."

Kleissner said Covello's housing crisis is linked to a much bigger issue. "This is the tip of an iceberg, and that iceberg is the lack of workforce housing in Big Sur," she said. "Housing is the lifeblood of a community."

While some Big Sur workers have adequate housing, many either live in vehicles or substandard structures, or they commute long distances on narrow and winding Highway 1.

"Why has workforce housing never been addressed in the planning process?" asked Kleissner, who is also a member of the Coast Property Owners Association. "It's really expensive to build a caretaker's unit. We've been trying for three years. You can't even dig a hole or paint your front door without talking to the planning department. We're preserving Big Sur to the point of extinction."

While Kleissner encouraged state and county agencies to find a solution to Big Sur's housing dilemma, she urged locals not to blame state parks for Covello's plight.

"Pointing a finger at state parks is not fair," she said. "It's not state parks' job to provide Covello with housing. The CHP needs to step up and be part of the solution."

For Capt. Pat Camara, CHP area commander, the eviction notice was a surprise. "It came out of nowhere," he said. "It's a real hardship for both Jim and us. We're looking at a lot of alternatives. Hopefully, in a couple of months we'll have something for him. Our goal is to get something done quick."

One thing is for sure — Big Sur locals are not ready to let Covello leave. The outcry over the highway patrolman's plight shows how important he is to the community, according to Camara.

"I've already had a couple calls from residents offering housing," he said.

"The September Ranch has three acre feet of water in its baseline usage and they're proposing to use 54-acre feet for this project," Diehl said. "There are people in Carmel Valley who can't even put in a bathroom [because of water constraints]. That's not fair." She also expressed concern about the traffic impacts of the project.

Despite such objections, Morgens wished the planning commission had okayed his original plan that called for 94 lots. "This doesn't kill the project," he said. "It's just not what we would have preferred, especially with the costs we incurred. We spent more than several lots worth of revenue getting to where we are now. But we're happy to get what we got. Compromise goes with the territory."

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors approved the September Ranch project in 1998, but a lawsuit derailed it on the grounds that traffic and water issues had not been adequately addressed. Morgens spent more than $500,000 on a revised EIR that was constantly called into question during the three planning commission hearings. Opponents also repeatedly bashed studies supporting the contention that the September Ranch has its own aquifer. The project has been portrayed by local environmental activists as the poster child for development they claim is threatening Carmel Valley's rural character. Supervisors are scheduled to consider September Ranch Oct. 3.

Things have changed for the better

THE GARGOYLE can stay.

It's a decision that certainly should be welcome news to anyone who treasures individuality and creativity in this town.

For decades, that was what Carmel was all about. Then came the era of hyperregulation, when the key to maintaining the town's charm and fostering a spirit of artistic innovation was seen as making sure everybody followed a strict set of rules. The people who embraced this self-contradictory version of municipal government even bragged about it.

"The zoning code is the most requested document at city hall," a former mayor often said.

Other towns, he would opine, wanted to be more like Carmel. And to get that way, he believed, all they needed was the rulebook. So they supposedly asked for it in droves.

But the era of ever-increasing regulation of home design and landscaping didn't produce a better Carmel. It produced a cookie-cutter Carmel. Insisting on conformity is the way to kill a town, not save it.

Since Sue McCloud was elected Mayor, however, there has been a very welcome return to the days when an architect or homeowner could design a home to suit their personal vision — not just the vision of the planning commission or city council. As long as they follow a broad set of guidelines for lot coverage, height and so forth, property owners in this town actually feel encouraged to let their personal tastes infuse how their home is designed and what is planted in their garden. Not long ago, all those decisions were made with one goal in mind: Get the permit approved without arousing the ire of bureaucrats or the neighbors.

The new spirit of respect for individuality explains why last week the city council decided Bill Doolittle's house wasn't historic (it certainly isn't), that a homeowner on San Antonio could have a stone wall, and that a double lot on Santa Fe could accommodate two modest houses, even though some of the other people on the street don't like the idea.

In 1960, John Steinbeck complained that Carmel had been taken over by rich people. That is even more true now, of course. But while Steinbeck valued and respected the working class, he certainly would have hated the idea that somebody at city hall could tell you what color your shutters should be or whether your chimney could be stucco or stone. We think he'd like things better now than they were ten years ago. And so should everybody else who loves Carmel-bythe-Sea.

A family's gratitude Dear Editor,

To all of those in the community who have provided us with such tremendous support and love following the aftermath of the tragic accident near Lucia on July 25, we want to provide some updated information on the condition of our son, Dane Anderson. We are extremely grateful that Dane is recovering from his injuries and would like to thank everyone involved in his recovery. He was released from CHOMP on July 30 after six days of treatment. The care he received at CHOMP was excellent — this included all of the physicians, the nurses and the physical therapists. Even the food was good. He had multiple lacerations on his right hand and a deep right-knee laceration that combined took approximately four hours to stitch up in the emergency room. We are grateful to Dr. David Dansky, who stayed way beyond the end of his long shift to finish stitching up Dane. Doctors David Whitlock and John Ellison, as well as multiple nurses and technicians provided excellent emergency-room care. Doctors Dragan Dimitrov, Christopher Meckel and Sohrab Gollogly provided excellent neurosurgical and orthopedic care while in the hospital and in followup care. Dr. Theodore Kaczmar provided expert neurosurgical consultation.

Despite the multiple lacerations, Dane's main injury was to his spine. He had two compression fractures, a minor one at T11 and a significant one at T12. These two vertebrae are at the lower end of the mid-back. Both vertebrae collapsed on their front side from flexion (forward bending of the spine) and compression forces suffered in the accident. This is a painful injury, but there was no associated neurological damage. He was released with a rigid three-point Jewett hyperextension brace to be worn for six to eight weeks. The brace keeps the spine from bending forward so the fractured vertebrae do not collapse any further while they are healing.

In addition, sitting should be limited because this also puts more pressure through the vertebrae and discs than standing or lying. When he returns to school in one week, he will need to take frequent breaks from sitting and spend significant time standing while in class. Walking is good for him — it stimulates stronger healing in the bone and is good overall conditioning for his body. Exercises where his spine is in a relatively extended (extension is backward bending) position are also good for him. With this in mind, it turns out that paddling a surfboard is actually a very advantageous rehabilitation activity. It puts him in a position of spinal extension and allows him to get a good upper body workout. If you frequent Carmel Beach you may see Dane paddling a surfboard with his brace on and walking for exercise.

Although paddling is good exercise for Dane, a return to high-level surfing and other athletic activities must wait until his healing is much further along. Surfing requires quick transitions from spinal extension to spinal flexion when popping up to a standing position — this is to be avoided until the bone, the intervertebral discs, the adjacent joint structures (supporting ligaments and the cartilage of the facet joints in the spine) and the supporting muscles have gone through a period of reconditioning. It will be important for Dane to work on progressively restoring spinal flexibility, strength, endurance, dynamic control and agility in preparation to return to surfing and other athletic activities. Most of you probably know I am a physical therapist, so Dane has easy access to the care he needs.

To those who stopped and assisted initially, to all of the dedicated rescue workers who responded, to the medical professionals who treated Dane in the hospital and afterward, and to everyone in the community who has supported Dane and our family, we are very grateful. The love and support are tremendously appreciated.

Pooches welcome

Dear Editor:

In all of the uproar over the Bill Bates cartoons, something was missed. Our Toy Poodle, Harry, noticed that in the interest of Post Office standardization, the "No Pets" signs have been removed from the doors of the Carmel Post Office. Now that he is legal, Harry looks forward to greeting his many friends during his evening jaunts to the P.O.

differentiate this home from other people's homes." The homeowners like it, he said, and so do 49 people who signed an impromptu petition.

Accompanying the planning staff's report were drawings and photos of gargoyles, a brief history of the creatures, a Pine Cone clipping containing cartoonist Bill Bates' comments about Carmelites being "individualistic," and a handwritten note defending the chimney cap as reflecting "the European and bohemian charm that is Carmel's character and diversity."

Senior planner Sean Conroy said neither the municipal code nor the city's design guidelines weigh in on chimney caps, but they do support "creativity and diversity of design."

Conroy supported amending construction plans approved in December 2003 to include the chimney cap because it adds diversity to the neighborhood but is not so large as to draw undue attention, and meets size and height requirements.

Chairman Bill Strid said the debate came down to "whimsy" versus "ostentatious adornment."

"Something that is 'whimsy' should be carried throughout the structure, not something at a later time placed on it or hung on it," he said.

He decided the gargoyle was more ostentatious adornment than whimsy and voted against allowing it, but the three remaining commissioners favored approval. Commissioner Julie Culver was absent and therefore missed the chance to opine on the rooftop beastie.

to firefighters' arrival, and fire department will follow up later this morning. Engine and ambulance returned to quarters.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance responded to a request for mutual aid from Westmed to a medical emergency in Pebble Beach. Ambulance transported a middle-aged female with possible broken wrist to CHOMP at 1504 hours, arriving at 1523 hours, available at 1538 hours and relocated to a beach standby at Carmel Beach at 1550 hours.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine responded to a medical emergency at the Carmel Mission on Rio Road. Ambulance responded from mid-valley. Firefighters provided first aid to an elderly female who had ignited her clothing (right sweater sleeve) on fire while lighting a candle in church. The burning clothing was extinguished by a bystander who slapped the flame out, injuring a vein in the right arm of the patient. There was no burn, but superficial swelling due to a possible rupture of the vein. Ice was applied over a pressure bandage to the affected area in an attempt to reduce swelling. The patient refused further treatment and did not want to go to the hospital, but she was advised to see a doctor to have her arm examined. She signed a medical release and the engine closed the call and relocated to Scenic and Eighth for a standby at the beach.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on San Carlos Street at an inn. Firefighters assisted ambulance personnel with patient assessment, diagnostics, monitor hookup and gathering information on a female who was experiencing an altered level of consciousness, possibly due to a diabetic event. The patient did not want further treatment, nor did she wish to be transported to the hospital, so she signed a medical release against the advice of the paramedic. Her blood sugar level while on scene ranged from 28-64, and she was advised to see a doctor or go to the emergency room via personally owned vehicle driven by her husband. At this point the call was completed and all units returned to the station.

Pebble Beach: Reporting party at Holman Highway and the SFB Morse gate reported a male vandalized the signs along Holman Highway with an aerosol can of spray paint. Case suspended.

Carmel area: Carmel resident on Highway 1 requested documentation about a former employee that had been fired now attempting to make contact with him.

MONDAY, AUGUST 7

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Lost passports/tickets on San Carlos Street. Male reported loss of his family's passports and airline tickets while in the business district on Sunday, Aug. 6. Reporting party's wife later called and stated the property had been located in their hotel room.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on public property on Eighth Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dogs in vehicle on Ocean Avenue. Officers responded to a report of two dogs in a parked vehicle. The doors were unlocked and engine was running. The dogs were transported to the holding kennels for safekeeping. The vehicle was secured and a note was left for the owner(s). The person responsible for the dogs came to the department and retrieved the dogs. The fees were collected and a warning was given.

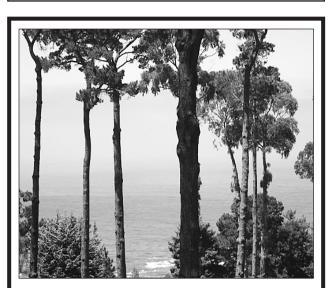

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Animal control question on Carmelo Street. A citizen reported finding dry kibble on the pavement of his street. Concerns were expressed in regards to possible poison on the food. Further followup pending this report on hold.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Warrants service on Junipero Street. Suspect, a 56-year-old male, was arrested for an outstanding misdemeanor warrant.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to reported medical emergency on Dolores Street for a female who passed out while exercising. Both units at scene. Assisted the medic with assessment and transport to CHOMP. Engine

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance responded to a medical emergency for a female with a chief complaint of vomiting secondary to possible pregnancy. Patient transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on Lincoln Street. Firefighters initiated care on an elderly female who had fallen and lacerated her left elbow and left knee. Care included bleeding control and gathering information. The patient refused c-spine precautions and other treatment, and initially did not want to be transported to the hospital. However, she changed her mind and decided to go to CHOMP. She was transported. Police also responded to take a report of a fall on city property.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine responded to a reported structure fire on the east side of Carmelo north of Seventh. Light smoke was showing from the second story of a single-family residence. Chief from Pacific Grove established Carmelo IC. Second engine from Cypress Fire and ambulance were also responding. Upon entering the premises, fire personnel were met by a male adult who had one hand wrapped up in a towel after sustaining a burn. He was sent to the engine for treatment. The owner of the property said the fire was out. Interior crew members entered the building with a thermal imaging camera while another stood by at the engine in case a hose line was needed. No fire located. Salvage operations included removing burned plaster from the floor and vacuuming standing water from the residence. Male with burn and homeowner, who began experiencing shortness of breath possibly due to smoke inhalation, transported to CHOMP via ambulances. Cause of fire determined based on patients' statements. Lacquer thinner was being used as a cleaning agent and then rubbed with a high-speed, electric, standup floor buffer. Firefighters agreed. Damage to structure and contents estimated at $3,000 to $5,000. Units returned to their respective agencies.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Trespassing on Monte Verde Street. Person reported a group of young subjects staying at a neighbor's residence that the reporting people thought was unoccupied. The RP observed approximately six subjects playing loud music, drinking and smoking at the residence for the past two nights. Today, the RP found a road sign in front of the house as well as flyers strewn about the roadway. Attempted contact, but no one came to the door. Finally, a female came to the door who stated she lived there. Officer was aware who the owner was, and this female was not the owner. It was discovered the female was the daughter of an employee who worked for the owner. Contacted the owner who confirmed she was trespassing and wanted her removed but not arrested at this time. The female was warned and advised if she returned, she would be arrested.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Barking dogs on Camino Real. Contacted the resident at the above location regarding a barking dog complaint. The owner apologized and said she was in town visiting her sister. No further action.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suspicious activity on Ocean Avenue. Room guests observed a person being carried from one room to another in a blanket. They thought this was unusual because the person was completely covered. The other guests were contacted, and officers discovered it was a disabled child who was being kept warm after a bath. He was at the nurse's room and then returned to his room with his mother. No unusual activity noted.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a fire alarm activation on Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh at a hotel. Firefighters discovered an ongoing problem with guests in one of the rooms on the second floor using the bath tub and spilling water onto the floor which, in turn, leaks through the smoke detector underneath the room. There was no fire problem. Management on scene did not need any assistance from emergency responders, so all units returned to the sta-

CONCOURS WEEK

Car with 'magic chassis' rediscovered 68 years after European triumph

■ Record-setting prewar car to be unveiled at Concours d'Elegance

ORE THAN six decades after it faded from view after World War II, an icon of French racing has been rediscovered and will be unveiled at the 2006 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance during the Aug. 20 salute to Delahaye as a featured marque.

"The Pebble Beach Concours serves as an automotive time capsule," said Sandra Kasky Button, chairman of the Pebble Beach Concours. "Having this very special, historic Delahaye displayed on the lawn at Pebble Beach will be one of the highlights of the day."

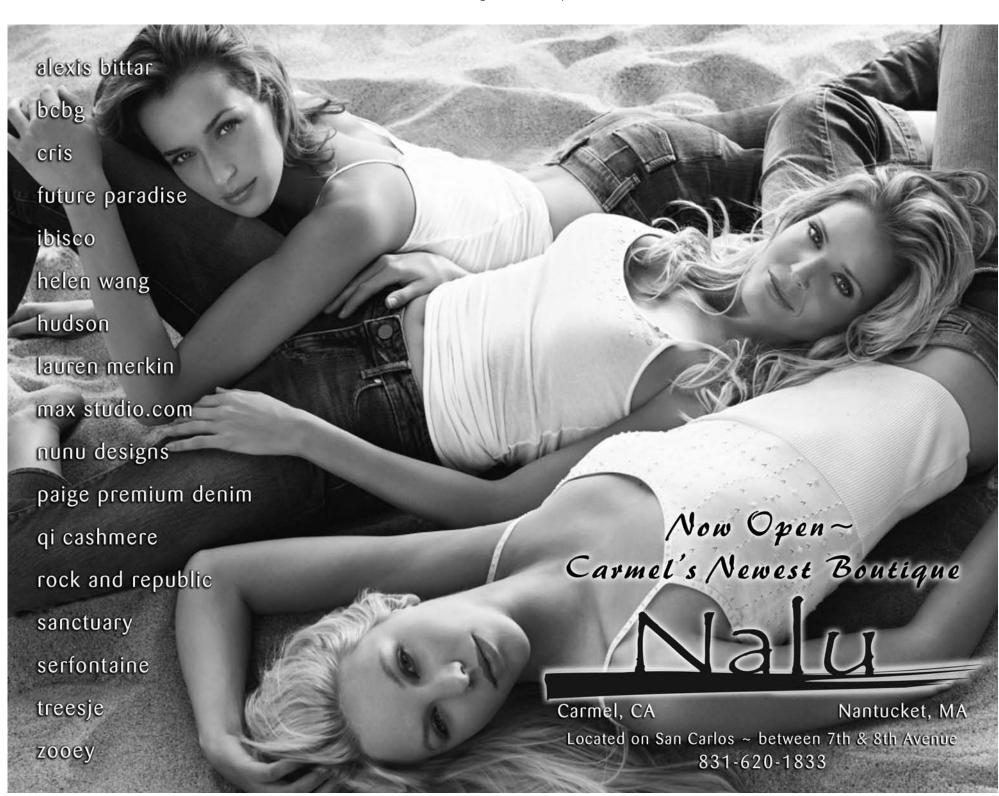

In 1937, with the Germans dominating grand prix racing, the French government and the French Automobile Club offered one million francs (the equivalent of $959,264 U.S. dollars today) to any French-made car that could break the record set in 1934 by Alfa Romeo — an average speed of 146.508 km/hr over 200 km.

It was a Delahaye Type 145 V-12 driven by René Dreyfus that ultimately set the new mark, averaging 146.654 km/hr (91.13 mph). Delahaye's triumph was celebrated throughout France, and was capped soon afterwards when Dreyfus, at the wheel of the same car, won the 1938 race at Pau, France, over the German Mercedes-Benz Type W 154 (one of the Silver Arrows) and then beat the Italian Maserati at the Cork track in Ireland. Until recently though, the famous car was thought to be lost forever.

See REDISCOVERED page 5Cd'E

It took a lot of detective work to unearth the pieces of the Delahaye Type 145 V-12 driven by René Dreyfus (above) to a new speed record of 91.13 mph in 1937. The recovered car will displayed at the Pebble Beach Concours d'Élegance Sunday.

During the research for their new book Delahaye Styling and Design, authors Richard S. Adatto and Diana E. Meredith became intrigued by this mystery.

"For years, the Million Franc car had been written about extensively, but no one knew which chassis it was or where it could be found," says Adatto, a Delahaye expert and member of the Pebble Beach Selection Committee. "We traveled to France and during a visit to the French National Archives were able to confirm that the chassis of the Million Franc car was number 48771.

With copies of the official documents in hand, the authors returned to the United States. "Clues were provided by René Dreyfus himself," says Meredith. "He was very clear that every effort had been made to lighten the winning chassis, resulting in unique physical characteristics."

Four of the Type 145 V-12 chassis had been built. Of those four possible candidates, only one Delahaye 145 fit the bill, but that car had been known for many years (wrongly as it turned out) by the number on its firewall plate, number 48775.

As this automobile was being restored for the forthcoming Pebble Beach Concours, Adatto was able to examine the disassembled pieces, and he found the number 48771 engraved on the top surface of the left frame rail. The restored and authenticated car, now owned by Peter Mullin, who lives in Los Angeles, will be unveiled on Aug. 20 on the field at the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance.

Like so many of France's automotive treasures, the Million Franc Prize-winning Delahaye was disassembled and carefully stored to prevent its destruction during World War II. After the war, it was retrieved and raced again in 1946, but it could no longer compete. The car was later sold and shipped to the United States well after its history had been forgotten.

"They made four 145 chassis, but only one performed exceptionally well," says Adatto. "Peter's car is the one with the magic chassis."

As for René Dreyfus, the Jewish racer who had humiliated the Germans, he was sent to the United States to represent France in the 1940 Indianapolis 500 race, where he finished tenth. Because of Germany's treatment of the Jews, he was warned by the French authorities not to return to Europe. When the U.S. entered the war in 1941, he enlisted in the U.S. Army and served in Europe. After the war Dreyfus became a U.S. citizen and then a New York restaurateur, opening the world-famous Le Chanteclair. With racing trophies and automobilia of all kinds on the walls, the restaurant became the unofficial meeting spot in New York for the racing community.

■ When Enzo Ferrari sells you a car, you keep it!

Ferrari collector Bob Lee will show his one-of-a-kind 1956 Ferrari 250 GT Boano Convertible at the Aug. 20 P.B. Concours d'Elegance to celebrate his 50th anniversary of purchasing the vehicle.

Lee, who lives in Reno, Nev., and is founder of Hunting World, which designs and sells functional safari gear, fine luggage and leather goods, and outdoor sporting accessories, has been the only owner of the Boano Convertible.

In 1955, Lee, a New Yorker at the time, was going on his first African safari. He decided to first stop in Italy for a week, where he visited Enzo Ferrari's office in Modena and managed to meet "Commendatore." Ferrari said that if Lee actually ever wanted to buy a Ferrari, he should purchase it directly from the factory in Italy, not in New York.

"I'd be afraid to buy one," Lee told Ferrari. "I don't think it would run in the New York jungle.

Ferrari replied, "If you buy a car from Ferrari, I guarantee it will run in New York City."

One year later, at the 1956 New York Auto Show, Lee saw the 250 GT Boano Convertible at the Ferrari display, a car that had made its debut a few months earlier at the Geneva Auto Show. The legendary Luigi Chinetti, a Grand Prix driver and Ferrari's dealer and representative in the United States, said the car was not for sale and was being returned to the factory after the New York show.

Lee sent a telegram to Enzo Ferrari reminding him of their visit the previous year. "I offered $9,500," says Lee.

"That's all I could afford." A couple of days later, under orders from Enzo Ferrari, Chinetti called Lee and said, "Bring me a cashier's check for $9,500 and the Boano Convertible is yours ... even though it cost the factory more than $20,000 to build.".

It was the beginning of a lifelong love affair for Lee with the Ferrari.

Lee has been showing his collector cars at Pebble Beach since 1986, winning numerous Concours awards over the years.

"It's the best car show in the world," said Lee. "When we show at Pebble Beach, we're showing under the best possible conditions."

The Boano Convertible's second restoration was timed for completion so that Lee will be able to drive his favorite car onto the ramp at the Concours.

"This car's my pride and joy," said Lee. "Going back 50 years, it was the beginning of my relationship with Ferrari. It's such an amazing machine that, even today, when people see me driving the car, they ask if it's the new Ferrari."

The car was designed and built by Carrozzeria Boano. According to factory records, only 74 Boano bodies were put onto the 2.6-meter Ferrari chassis, with the 3-liter V12 estimated to produce between 220 and 240 bhp at 7,000 rpm.

Lee's Boano Convertible is the only one of its kind. All the other Boano bodies are coupes.

■ Engineless racing machines will compete

More than one dozen engineless gravity racers will be displayed and sold at the 2006 Pebble Beach RetroAuto to benefit Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance charities.

RetroAuto, a showcase for automotive collectibles and auto-related luxury goods, is conducted annually in conjunction with the Concours.

The gravity-propelled vehicles are constructed for downhill races reminiscent of soapbox derbies. However, they are driven by professionals and designed and built by the likes of Bentley, General Motors, Nissan, Chrysler, Volkswagen, Audi, Mazda, Porsche and Pininfarina.

Gravity racers compete in the Extreme Gravity Racing Series, a sequence of downhill contests organized by Gravity Series, Inc. The vehicles are constructed so the combined weight of the driver and the car does not exceed 350 pounds. Coupled with challenging courses, the 9-feet-long, 4-feet-wide gravity

"We wanted to be part of RetroAuto because it's a unique opportunity to showcase our gravity racers in a world-class venue," said Gravity Series, Inc. Founder and President Don MacAllister. "It's a great opportunity to expose more people to the racing series, especially people who already have an appreciation for cars."

The gravity racers from RetroAuto will be auctioned on eBay during Concours Week to raise charity dollars, including a vehicle designed by Maurizio Corbi, a Ferrari designer with Pininfarina, that has been customized with Pebble Beach Concours colors and logo.

"We try to include items from all stages of automotive evolution at RetroAuto and the gravity racers are a fantastic addition," said Katee Leach, Director of RetroAuto. "Automotive enthusiasts appreciate the old and new, so it'll be fun to see how people react to these futuristiclooking cars."

■ Exclusive show field will allow guests to enjoy rare classic automobiles at a more leisurely pace

After big increases in attendance in recent years, spectators and participants attending this weekend's Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will have more space to inspect automobiles.

The Concours has reduced its field to an elite group of 175 cars — down from 225 last year — creating room for spectators to appraise each eyecatching vehicle in an unhurried fashion.

The decision to limit the show field is the result of observations and requests from past Concours attendees.

"We take comments from our loyal supporters very seriously," said Button. "The entrants, judges and spectators all agreed that the larger number of cars was diluting the overall Concours experience."

No cutting corners in the shop where classic cars get ready

McCall Motorsports men make magic happen for collector cars

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE DEVIL may be in the details, but so are the blue ribbons and the seven-figure prices.

It takes a very unusual type of person to prepare a classic car for the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance or the historic races at Laguna Seca one so passionate about vehicles he'll spend days ensuring every hose clamp, bolt, seal, nook and cranny is perfect.

Ti Titus and Mike Antoncich, who bought

McCall Motorsports from founder Gordon McCall in July 2004, are that type. Longtime locals and natural-born car buffs who have worked in the industry for years, the men found their perfect careers at McCall's.

"I always had such a passion for cars and even back when I was a detailer, I kept coming up to the shop where Gordon was, because he always had the coolest cars," Titus said, recalling the time before McCall hired him.

After he came on board, and as the workload grew, Titus proposed hiring Antoncich, whom he had known for years as a mechanic.

"I'm not greasy anymore," Antoncich laughed about his career change. "And everyone who leaves this shop leaves happy — as opposed to when they leave a mechanic's shop."

Summer means umpteen-hour days working on rare, exquisite, complicated vehicles for the auctions, historic races, tours and judged competitions that have worldwide implications in the elite world of car collecting. Their Concours Week customers book appointments up to a year in advance.

"Attention to detail is the most important thing we strive for at the shop. Each car is so different that we have to be flexible enough to accommodate the needs of each car and customer, and live up to their expectations," Antoncich said. "The quality of the work is definitely better because we're so much more passionate about it. We're two of the few people who wake up excited to go to work."

McCall Motorsports has been around for about 25 years and occupies a space on Airport Way surrounded by like-minded specialists, including metal workers and welders, mechanics, upholsterchassis, the undercarriage, the bits and pieces, to see what's going to be required to bring them up to our standards," Antoncich said. "We get to the dirty work first, such as degreasing the wheels."

Prewar cars typically require extra time at every step. "They have a lot more intricate detail, and lot more mechanical parts that are constantly greasy or spewing oil," Antoncich said.

Everything gets cleaned and touched up with paint, but do judges really care what the underside of a Rolls Royce or a Lamborghini looks like?

"Absolutely — it's white glove and they really get into it," Titus said.

"But in some cases, you spend hundreds of hours underneath, and the judge never even looks," Antoncich added. It's tempting to beseech one to at least take a peek.

Next, they closely scrutinize the vehicle, be it a Ferrari F40, an antique Duesenberg or a brandnew Mercedes Benz SLR McLaren.

"A lot of the cars have zip ties on them, but those didn't exist when the cars were built," Titus pointed out. So they have to do research to find out what kind of fasteners would be authentic.

In preparing a vintage BMW motorcycle and sidecar for show, they replaced every single one of the modern plastic fasteners — and there were quite a few — with a custom-made leather version.

The skin

Evaluating the paint comes next. Pebble Beach Concours judges deduct for any defects, such as swirls, drips or towel marks. Wet sending and other less-intensive techniques work wonders, the men said. Every car has a different paint and finish, it seems, requiring the crew to troubleshoot and treat each individually. Prewar cars' coatings often contain lacquer, which is so soft Titus said he can rub out blemishes by hand.

"Once the flaws in the paint have been corrected, we give it a good polish," Antoncich said. "And depending on the finish, we use a variety of different products. Sometimes we'll mix several together to achieve a product that's ideal for a certain type of car or certain type of paint."

A final glaze highlights deep luster and an almost liquid shine.

Inside, they deep-clean and condition the leather, and if it's faded or discolored, one of the nearby artisans will re-dye it. If windows need replacing, a glass worker mere steps away can handle it.

Finally, they detail any "bright work" on the car — the chrome, nickel or brass accents that are particularly prevalent on prewar cars — which is an often painstakingly delicate process.

"You have to be careful of making a piece too shiny or not shiny enough," Antoncich said. Research is definitely part of the job.

They also have to know what each metal requires. "On chrome, you can use a steel wool that will not scratch it," Titus said. "But if it's nickel, steel wool would scratch it immediately. You don't want to learn the hard way."

Titus once spent 40 hours cleaning and detailing the engine compartment of a Rolls Royce, much of the work requiring maneuvering hands and tools into tight places. "Cars were never built with detailers in mind," Antoncich observed.

Playing judge

Finally, with everything apparently perfect, the men will judge their handiwork.

"We'll go around the car and pick out anything we notice, and often we'll invite other friends or customers who are knowledgeable about the car to pick out any flaws they notice," Antoncich said.

Sometimes they'll have the advantage of a judge's score sheet from a previous show, allowing them to rectify flaws that cost valuable points.

In preparing two Ferraris owned by Carmel Valley residents competing in the same class at Concorso Italiano Aug. 18, Titus and Antoncich knew one of the cars lost 12 points last year for various cosmetic and mechanical flaws. (The other missed the perfect 100 by only a half-point — for incorrect valve stems on the tires.)

They also brought in an identical, but perfect, Ferrari for the sake of comparison. "We had a complete original up here side by side and were going off that," Titus said.

"We've been doing it enough, we usually know what's correct and what's incorrect," Antoncich

The owners of the competing Ferraris know they are both receiving the same level of attention.

"They keep saying they want to sabotage each other," Titus said.

The satisfaction

Even beyond making their clients happy, Titus, Antoncich and Matt Agusta, whom they hired this summer, get a lot out of their hard work. "We have passion for all the cars that come through, but occasionally there's one that gets your motor running," Titus said. "And you want to work on it all night long."

This year, that car might be Tom Minnich's Beverly Porsche Audi RSR, which Antoncich remembered watching race at Laguna Seca decades ago. It will return to the track this year for a run in the historic races.

After all, it's their level of interest that keeps them coming to work every day — even when it's for 15 hours at a time.

Technical knowledge is a must in the detail business if you're going to do it right, and Mike Antoncich has no problem taking vehicles apart and putting them back together again.

That Concours ticket may seem expensive, but don't forget the charities!

HE PEBBLE Beach Concours d'Elegance has contributed $8.5 million to charitable organizations throughout the years. As the event has grown, the contributions have grown, and so has the number of charities supported. This year, six local nonprofits and one international organization will benefit from tickets sales, sponsorships and entry fees.

■ United Way of Monterey County

The United Way of Monterey County, which has been supported by the Concours since 1974, is a locally-governed nonprofit organization providing partnership and funding to more than 40 human service agencies. United Way serves the people of the community, identifying and addressing the most critical human service needs in an extremely diverse area. United Way certified agencies provide assistance to more than 40 percent of the residents in the county.

■ P.B. Co. Foundation

The Pebble Beach Company Foundation has been a partner of the Concours since 1985. Since its inception the Foundation has given more than $2 million to support community needs, with a particular emphasis on scholarships and grants to educationally oriented institutions in Monterey County. The Foundation also funds a scholarship program for the benefit of children of Pebble Beach Company employees.

Natividad Medical Foundation

2006 is the ninth year that the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance has contributed funding to the Natividad Medical Foundation. Incorporated in 1988, the Natividad Medical Foundation is a nonprofit, non-governmental organization. Donations to this organization may be designated to the following funds: The Children's Fund, The Women's Fund, The Specialty Care Fund, The Special Projects Fund, or the Greatest Need Fund.

■ Boys and Girls Clubs of Monterey County

2006 is the eighth year that the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance has contributed directly to the Boys and Girls Clubs of Monterey County. Since 1968, the Boys and Girls Clubs of Monterey County have touched the lives of thousands of children. Its mission is to inspire and empower the youth of Monterey County to realize their full potential and become responsible, healthy, productive and successful citizens. It helps local youth develop self-esteem, positive values and skills through a variety of educational, cultural, social, health and recreational programs.

■ The Wheelchair Foundation

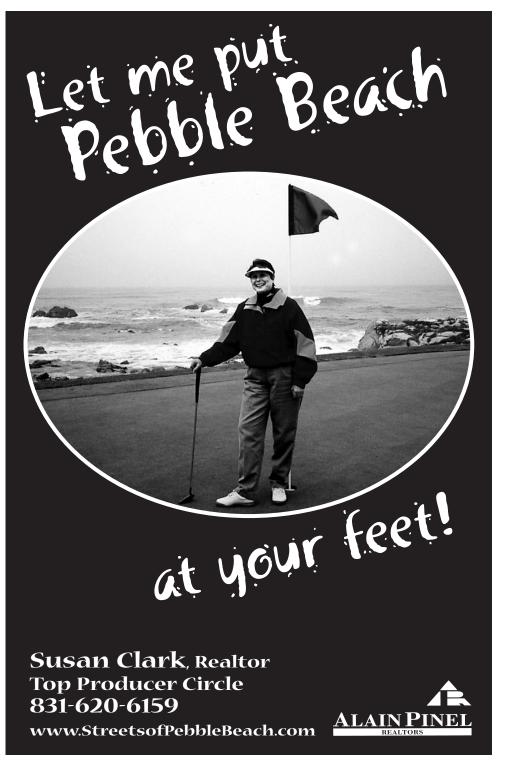

2006 is the fifth year the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance has contributed funding to the Wheelchair Foundation, which is a nonprofit organization striving to deliver a wheelchair to every man, woman and child who needs one but cannot afford one.

The Wheelchair Foundation offers freedom, self-reliance, mobility and hope. In the last year, The Wheelchair Foundation had the privilege of distributing more than 100,000 wheelchairs to those in need.

■ The Kinship Center

2006 is the fourth year the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance has directed funds to the Kinship Center. Kinship Center is dedicated to supporting the creation and preservation of foster, adoptive, and related families for children who need them. Since 1984, Kinship Center has helped create and support families for thousands of children who could no longer remain safely with their birth parents.

Like the artists who paint or shape it, not all automotive art is created equal

By CHRIS COUNTS

F ALL artists were created equal, it stands to reason that all art would look the same. Thankfully, when two artists paint the same subject, differences quickly emerge and diversity ultimately triumphs. For example, consider an exhibit by the Automotive Fine Arts Society in Pebble Beach Sunday, Aug. 20. For 21 years, a remarkable collection of fine artists have gathered at the Concours d'Elegance to celebration a common affection — vintage automobiles. But a love of cars is where the similarities between the artists end.

In fact, artists participating in the AFAS exhibition are as varied as the mediums they employ. Working in oils, watercolors, acrylics, wood, gouache, pen & ink, clay and metal, each manages to view the automobile with fresh eyes and a distinctive creative vision.

For artist Bill Neale, a painting called "Monsterati" offers him an opportunity to comment on one of his favorite topics — the ingenuity of Americans. In "Monsterati," Neale depicts a 1957 race car designed by Bill Janowski.

"As an American, I've always been drawn to underdogs," Neale said. "Bill Janowski was snubbed by many racers in their European blue blood race cars from Maserati, Ferrari and Aston because his car was a 'home built special' powered by a Chevy V8. Their disdain turned to shock when he proceeded to kick their tails at tracks across the country that season."

Janowski's vintage race car is alive and well, and is scheduled to make an appearance at this year's Concours.

"I particularly love to hear that big V8 as it passes by the million dollar European classics," he said. "It symbolizes that hard work, tenacity and a dedication to winning, instead of birthright, are the keys to success in the United States."

For painter Ken Eberts, though, the show allows him a chance to immerse himself in a simpler time. Curiously, like Neale, his creative journey took him back to 1957. As a setting for "57 Memories," Eberts chose Tiny Naylor's, a famous Hollywood drivein. It makes a perfect backdrop for a gathering of classic cars on a busy summer night.

"Tiny Naylor's was located one block from Hollywood Boulevard, so teenagers would cruise the strip and use the drive-in as a turn around point, then do it all over again," Eberts said. "I didn't paint an image that I saw in the movies or heard about from friends. I remember the time and culture, and the way things looked and felt during my time at art school in Los

When sculptor Richard Pietruska views an automobile, he sees something very different than either Neale or Eberts. Pietruska has long been fascinated by the female form, and a lifesized sculpture, "Veronique GT," melds that focus with a sleek GT.

"Automobile hood ornaments over the past century have, in a very large way, celebrated the female form," Pietruska explained. "It was these early hood ornament designs that served as my inspiration for this piece. From the early Rolls Royce's 'Spirit of Ecstasy' or 'Flying Lady,' designed by Charles Sykes, the female form was stylized in various ways. Each of these emphasized movement and speed, which included flowing hair and graceful arching of the body. This same concept was continued in the design of some of the early French cars like the Talbot Lago, Bugatti and Delahaye."

Artists scheduled to exhibit their work this year include Neale, Eberts, Pietruska, Larry Braun, Dennis Brown, Harold Cleworth, Ken Dallison, James Dietz, Art Fitzpatrick, Tom Fritz, Tom Hale, Peter Hearsey, Dennis Hoyt, Jack Juratovic, Jay Koka, Phillis Krim, Charles Maher, John Francis Marsh, William Motta, Niles Nakoaka, Stanely Rose, Barry Rowe, Toni Sikorski, Craig Warwick, Bruce Wheeler and Nicola Wood.

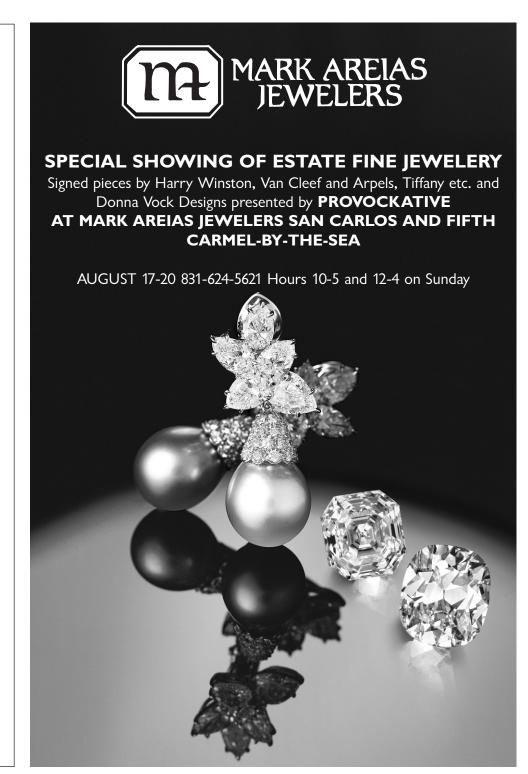

A makeshift tent "gallery" located next to the 18th Hole at the Pebble Beach Golf Links provides a spectacular setting for the exhibit. The show opens at 10:30 a.m. and continues until 5 p.m. Aug. 20.

Charles Maher's "Bugatti Type 51," a 26-inch-by-44-inch acrylic on canvas, draws the viewer's eye to the sweeping, sensual curves of the car against an indistinct background. Cleverly rendered on the car's fender are reflected details of an admiring crowd.

2006 Pebble Beach Concours facts

- Fewer than 30 cars were on display 56 years ago at the inaugural Pebble Beach concours.
- 175 cars will line the 18th hole of Pebble Beach Golf Links for the Aug. 20 Concours. There are 25 judged classes. The Best of Show will be selected from among the class winners.
- Participants will bring their cars to Pebble Beach from 27 states and 12 foreign countries.
- 24 of the 175 cars in the field come from outside the U.S, representing Italy, England, France, Switzerland, Australia, Hong Kong, Argentina, Germany, Czech Republic, the Netherlands, Philippines and Mexico.
- The total estimated value of the vehicles spread across the 18th fairway is well over $200 million dollars.
- The featured marques for the 2006 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will be early 20th century French manufacturers Voisin and Delahaye, and Cars that Raced in the Forest (in the Pebble Beach Sports Car Road Races, 1950-56).
- 14 Voisin and 18 Delahaye cars will participate, including 10 that traveled to Pebble Beach from outside the U.S.
- The oldest car displayed at the 2006 Concours will be a 1903 Clement Rear Entry Tonneau, owned by Barry G. Hon of Dana Point, California.
- Ferrari collector Bob Lee will show his one-of-a-kind 1956 Ferrari 250 GT Boano Convertible at 2006 Concours d'Elegance to celebrate his 50th anniversary of purchasing the vehicle.
- Concept cars this year include Bentley Continental GTC, Chrysler Imperial Concept, Dodge 2006 Challenger Concept, Dodge Hornet, Ford Reflex, Lexus SC 430 Pebble Beach Edition, Lexus LS 600h, Lincoln MKS, Maybach Exelero Vision, Pininfarina-Ferrari P4/5, Pininfarina-Ferrari Kappa, Saab Aero X, Saturn Sky Red Line, Spyker D12 Peking-to-Paris, Rolls-Royce 101EX Coupé and Volkswagen Eos Highway 1.
- The Concours hopes to raise more than $1 Million in 2006 for local, national and international charities. The Concours has given more than $8.5 million to charities through the years.
- Tonight Show host Jay Leno, who was a 2004 Pebble Beach Concours class winner with his 1916 Crane-Simplex Model 5 Holbrook Skiff, will provide color commentary during Sunday's Concours and will award raffle prizes. Leno says: "The Concours is the time of your life if you like cars. It's like going to a 'Star Trek' convention where you can spend hours debating what Worf said in Episode 6."

■ United Nations Childrens Fund

2006 is the third year the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance has included the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) to its list of charities. UNICEF is a global organization created in the aftermath of World War II to help children overcome poverty, violence, disease, and discrimination. It strives to build a world where the rights of every child are realized. It believes that nurturing and caring for children are the cornerstones of human progress, and it strives to influence decision-makers and a variety of partners at a grassroots level to turn innovative ideas into reality.

Chrysler Crossfire, Australian cruise are prizes in charity raffle

CASA of Monterey County and the Animal Friends Rescue Project are two of the local charities that will benefit from this year's Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance Raffle. First prize is a Chrysler Crossfire SRT6 Roadster (MSRP - $49,470) donated by Chrysler. Second prize is almost as good — a Silversea Cruise 15-day Australian Cruise for two, departure date January 7, 2007 (Value: $16,650), donated by the cruise line.

Tickets for the raffle are $100 each and are available from the charities. (See www.animalfriendsrescue.org or www.casamonterey.org.)

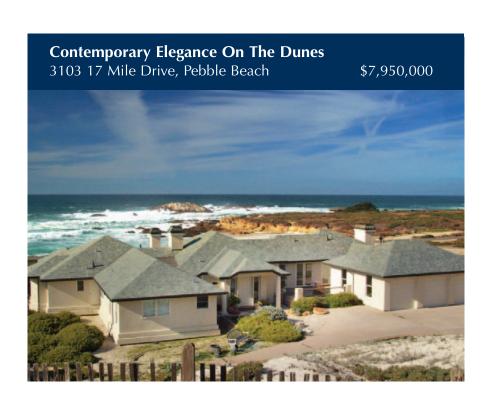

Tonight Show host Jay Leno will announce the winner at 4 p.m. Sunday from the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance stage.

Barclay Cotter.

1955: For the first time, Best of Show was a classic: Phil Hill's 1931 Pierce-Arrow 41 LeBaron Convertible Town Cabriolet.

1956: The Road Races and the Concours were held together at in Del Monte Forest for the last time. Ernie McAfee lost control of a 1955 Ferrari 121LM Scaglietti Spyder during the races, hit a tree, and died. Dr. Milton R. Roth won Best of Show for his 1930 Bugatti Type 37 Grand Prix.

1957: The races moved to Laguna Seca. On its own, the Concours still attracted 10,000 spectators. Best of Show was Frank B. Cox's 1937 Rolls-Royce Phantom III Mulliner Sedanca de Ville.

1958: The first poster to advertise the Concours appeared, an awards ramp was built, and class categories distinguished classics from antique and vintage cars for the first time. Rolls-Royce also became the first marque to get its own ongoing class. J. B. Nethercutt's 1930 duPont Model G Merrimac Town Car won Best of Show, setting a new standard for excellence in automotive restorations.

1959: J. B. Nethercutt's 1939 Bugatti Type 57C Atalante was Best of Show.

1960: The Concours was canceled due to inclement weather.

1961: For the first time, the Concours requested a one-dollar donation from those in attendance to benefit the Monterey Peninsula Hospital Auxiliary. Scott Newhall's 1930 Packard 740 Roadster was Best in Show.

1962: Best in Show: Alton H. Walker's 1913 Rolls-Royce Silver Ghost Tourer.

1963: Bad weather forced the Concours to be held near the stables. A special class of Aston Martins were exhibited. Best in Show went to William Harrah 1931 Pierce-

Arrow 41 LeBaron Sport Sedan.

1964: Bentley gained ongoing recognition. For much of the remainder of the decade, three classes were devoted to Rolls-Royce and two to Bentley. William Harrah again won Best in Show, this time with a 1935 Bugatti Type 50 Coupé Profilé.

1965: Bad weather again forced the Concours to be held near the stables. The winner of Best in Show was Christopher F. Coburn with his 1927 Bentley 4-1/2 Litre Vanden Plas Tourer.

1966: Judge Lucius Beebe died prior to the Concours and a new trophy established in his name was first awarded to Robert A. Davies' 1934 Rolls-Royce Phantom II. Eldon Dedini created two posters for the Concours. His original art was offered as a gate prize, while posters were sold to the public for charity. William Harrah won his third Best in Show

Over the years, the Concours has featured many special classes of automobiles. In 2002, that included cars without a body. One even participated in the tour and visited Carmel (above).

What is driving the popularity of Automotive Fine Art?

Automotive fine art is considered to be one of the most definitive genres of our time, revealing an important aspect of our lives and passions.

Critics agree that members of the Automotive Fine Arts Society represent the best in this field. That's why TimePiece Public Relations is proud to represent this prestigious organization and the art they create.

We invite you to visit the exhibit at the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance this weekend and see why trendsetters are snapping up automotive fine art by:

1967: Bob Hope took to the stage for a full 45 minutes to entertain the Concours crowd. A 1937 Rolls-Royce Phantom III H. J. Mulliner Sports Saloon, owned by Ralph C. Shermund, was Best in Show.

1968: Gwenn Graham, who oversaw the Concours throughout its early years, died, and Carol Rissel took over. For the ensuing three years, the Concours bears Graham's name. Best in Show was Stanley W. Good's 1964 Maserati Mistral Coupé.

1970: A class devoted to MGs and became a regular offering. Best in Show: J. B. Nethercutt's 1931 Daimler Royal Double 6 Limousine.

1971: A 1927 Mercedes-Benz S Three Door Tourer, owned by Owen Ownes, was Best in Show.

1972: Lorin Tryon and Jules "J." Heumann (who also won Best in Show with his 1922 Hispano-Suiza H6B Labourdette Skiff/Torpedo) agreed to serve as Co-Chairmen of the Concours. Separate groups of Class and Honorary Judges were established, with Strother MacMinn named Chief Honorary Judge. The first "Elegance" award was established in Gwenn Graham's name, and it was initially awarded to Ken Vaughn's 1934 Packard Twelve Derham Sedan. Donations go to Guide Dogs for the 1973: For the first time, there were special classes for Duesenbergs and postwar Ferraris. Both became fairly regular offerings. Best in Show was won by Mrs. Marilyn Chandler, whose family owned the Los Angeles Times, with her 1939 Mercedes-Benz 540K Special Cabriolet.

1974: The first Monterey Historic Automobile Races were held at Laguna Seca in tandem with the Concours, and the Concours honored some cars from the races. The Pebble Beach Cup was first presented to Robert Ames' 1951 HRG. The first Hans Tanner Trophy for best Ferrari went to Stephen Griswold's 1952 Ferrari 212 Touring Roadster. United Way of Monterey County becomes the principal recipient of Concours proceeds. Best in Show was M. L. Post's 1929 Rolls-Royce Phantom I Brewster Regent. After the Concours concluded, a mishap occurred: a fire engine filled with water pulled onto the Concours ramp, and it collapsed.

1975: The Concours celebrated its 25th anniversary. Merv Griffin auctioned off the year's poster. Best in Show was Robert Milhous' 1934 Packard 1101 Convertible Victoria.

1976: Bugatti was featured. Appropriately, Best in Show was a 1937 Bugatti Type 57SC Atalante owned by William Harrah.

1978: Mercedes-Benz was featured. Mr. & Mrs. Phil Hill won Best in Show with their 1927 Packard 343 Murphy Convertible Sedan

1979: Rolls-Royce and Bentley were featured, and Mrs. W. O. (Margaret) Bentley was on hand to present special awards to those cars. The first Briggs Cunningham Trophy for most exciting car was awarded to Mr. & Mrs. C. Gooding's 1932 Packard 903 Dual Cowl Phaeton, and the first Charles A. Chayne Trophy for most significant engineering was awarded to Kent Wakeford's 1925 Lancia Lambda Casaro Roadster. Best in Show went to Mr. & Mrs. Phil Hill for their 1927 Packard 343 Murphy Convertible Sedan.

1980: The first class of 16-cylinder cars was offered. Two Gwenn Graham awards were presented: Matt Browning's 1931 Pierce-Arrow 41 LeBaron Sport Sedan was named Most Elegant Closed Car, and Bill Hinds' 1937 Delahaye 135M Figoni et Falaschi Cabriolet was named Most Elegant Convertible. J. B. Nethercutt won another Best in Show with his 1933 Duesenberg SJ Rollston Arlington Torpedo Sedan.

1981: Briggs Cunningham and his creations were honored. Hispano-Suiza was featured, with J12s taking to the field in numbers. Best in Show was Terry Radey's 1929 Duesenberg J Murphy Convertible Coupé.

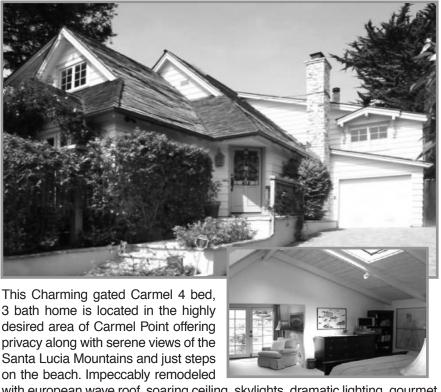

1982: Delahaye and Delage were featured. There was also a class for Porsche. The first Montagu of Beaulieu Trophy was presented to Neil Breton's 1939 Alvis Speed 25 Charlesworth Tourer. Best in Show: Tom & Gerd Perkins' 1935 Mercedes-Benz 500K Special Roadster.

1983: Isotta Fraschini was featured, with early Fords also filling a special class, while a class for Packard became a regular offering. The Co-

1985: All six Bugatti Royales were united for the first time at Pebble Beach — an amazing feat that underscored the Concours' status as the top event of its kind. There were also classes for Lincoln and Alfa Romeo. Jack Becronis' 1939 Bugatti Type 57 Saoutchik Cabriolet won Best in Show.

1986: The centennial of Mercedes-Benz was honored. The American Underslung was also featured and Duesenbergs were on the field in substantial numbers. The first Alec Ulmann Trophy for most significant Hispano-Suiza was awarded to the Collection's Blackhawk 1924 Hispano-Suiza H6C Nieuport Boattail Skiff. The Concours hosted the first annual AFAS exhibition, and an automobile auction also took place in nearby Monterey. During the Concours, when Juan Manuel Fangio and Stirling Moss drove up the ramp in a replica of Carl Benz's Patent Motor Wagon, they very nearly tipped over. Arturo Keller's 1936 Mercedes-Benz 500K Special Roadster won Best in Show.

1987: Bentley 8 Litres and Cord L-29s were featured. The first Mercedes-Benz Trophy was awarded to Frank Cherry's 1935 Mercedes-Benz 500K Roadster. Carol Rissel retired after overseeing the Concours for nearly two decades. Thomas Lester's 1928 Minerva AF Ostruk Berline Transformable was Best in Show.

1988: Hispano-Suiza J12s were on special display, and the first Automobile Quarterly Historian's Trophy went to the Blackhawk Collection's 1932 Hispano-Suiza J12 Binder Torpedo. Waterhouse coacha class of Maseratis. Karen Hunter temporarily oversaw the Concours on behalf of Pebble Beach Company. Mr. & Mrs. John Mozart's 1937 Alfa Romeo 8C 2900B Touring Spyder was Best in Show.

1989: Nuccio Bertone was reunited with three of his Alfa Romeo B.A.T.s (Berlina Aerodynamica Tecnica) when Italian custom coachwork took center stage at the Concours. The first Road & Track Trophy was awarded to Brenda Butler's 1931 Alfa Romeo 6C 1750 Gran Sport Zagato Spyder. Aston Martins took to the field in numbers, there was a class for Lagonda12 cylinders. American Dream cars were also on display. Sandra Kasky, who had worked with the Concours since joining Pebble Beach Company in 1985, was named Director of Special Events for Pebble Beach Company. Best in Show went to a 1922 Hispano-Suiza H6B Labourdette Skiff owned by Robert L. Meyer.

1990: Giotto Bizzarrini was honored, veterans of the Brighton Run were on display, and more dream cars were exhibited. The Christie's auction and the Blackhawk Exposition joined the roster of Pebble Beach Weekend events. The Strother MacMinn Student Endowment Fund was also established. Fashion guru Ralph Lauren won Best in Show for his 1938 Bugatti Type 57SC Atlantic.

1991: Rolls-Royce, Pierce-Arrow, and Siata were featured. Sam & Emily Mann of Englewood, New Jersey, who would also take top honors at the 1996, 2002 and 2005 Concours, won Best in Show in 1991 with their 1932 Chrysler CH LeBaron Speedster.

1992: Sandra Kasky agreed to serve as the Concours' first full-time Executive Director. Delahave and Talbot-Lago were featured, and there were special classes for Facel Vega and Jaguar. J. B. Nethercutt earned a record sixth Best of Show award, this time with a 1929 Rolls-Royce Phantom II Brewster Town Brougham. (Nethercutt's outstanding collection, including several Pebble Beach Concours Best of Show winners, is now housed in a museum in Sylmar.)

1993: Pininfarina coachwork was honored, Lamborghini was featured, and there was a class for early Station Wagons. The first Tony Hulman Trophy for most significant open wheel race car went to Vic Yerardi's 1959 Ewing-Watson Dean Van Lines Special. Jam-packed weekend offers automobile events for everyone

HE MONTEREY Peninsula plays host every August to the finest automotive exhibits, races, auctions, tours, parties and rallies in the world. The 2006 Concours Week, kicked off by the largest automobilia sale in the country and concluded with the world-famous Pebble Beach Concours and the classy Gooding & Co. auction, promises to offer something for everyone.

Festivities began Aug. 15 and conclude Aug. 20, the intervening days featuring an indulgent gathering to celebrate Italian genius, eclectic sales, tours through the Peninsula and an indulgent day of food, wine and notable racing and collector cars.

■ Blackhawk Collection Exposition and Sale

Peter Hay Golf Course in Pebble Beach Friday and Saturday, Aug. 18 and 19 — 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20 — 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

THE RENOWN Blackhawk Collection of Danville brings more than 85 of the best specimens of antique, classic and custom coachwork automobiles available for sale to complement the Concours d'Elegance. Spectators wander through the collection in the Blackhawk tent and out on the golf course on their way to and from the spectacular Concours.

To continue the celebration after Concours Week ends on the Peninsula — and, yes, despite the plethora of offerings during the week there are people who are still up for more — participants and the public are invited to visit the renown Blackhawk Museum in Danville for its 18th Annual Post-Pebble Beach Open House, Aug. 21 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Docents will take visitors on tours through the 90-plus car collection and the special exhibit of Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance poster art.

The free event will also include live music, snacks, refreshments and plenty of parking at the museum, located at 3700 Blackhawk Plaza Circle. For more information, call (925)736-2280 or visit www.blackhawkmuseum.org.

Enjoy great refreshments and light snacks provided by Scott's Seafood Grill & Bar of Walnut Creek, and toe-tapping jazz from the Bay Area's legendary Earl Watkins.

Blackhawk docents will lead tours of the Museum's 90-plus car exhibition – and the exhibition The Art of the Poster: A Tribute to the Artwork of the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance throughout the day starting at 11:00 and ending at 3:00.

There's plenty of free off-street parking for RVs, trailers, and big rigs!

Blackhawk is less than 2 hours north of the Monterey Peninsula: Take Highway 101 to I-680 in San Jose, and north from San Jose on I-680 to San Ramon. Take the Crow Canvon Road exit and go 4.2 miles east to Blackhawk (green information signs take you right to the Museum.) Go to www.BlackhawkMuseum.org>Information>Map to download a map with directions.

Please stop by the Museum's Information Station in the huge Blackhawk Expo Tent on Peter Hay Golf Course August 16 – 20.

For more information, please contact Jon Hart at Blackhawk, 925.736.2277 ext 248.

HELD IN conjunction with the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance, Pebble Beach RetroAuto is an enthusiast shopper's paradise in an outdoor pavilion that features rare collectibles and memorabilia, as well as the latest luxury goods and technological tools, all with an automotive bent. RetroAuto attracts a wide array of exhibitors from a variety of retail and manufacturing categories, including historic automobilia, auto parts, original poster art, books and literature, fine art, and photography and posters, as well as "luxury items to complement the motoring lifestyle." This year's RetroAuto will include a special display of gravity racers used in downhill competitions reminiscent of soapbox derbies but driven by professionals, and designed and built by major manufacturers. Combined weight of the driver and the car may not exceed 350 pounds, and the racers can break 70 mph. Immediately prior to appearing at RetroAuto, the gravity racers competed in a race down the steep and twisting roads of Jacks Peak park in Monterey Thursday, Aug. 17. And they will be auctioned on eBay during Concours Week to raise charity dollars. And the 2006 special event schedule promises to be enticing, with presentations by automotive legends, artists and authors.

■ The 33rd Annual Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races Presented by Toyota Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca Friday through Sunday, Aug. 18-20

LIKENED TO a "rolling museum," the historics prove vintage vehicles, no matter how rare, are meant to be driven. Enthusiast Steve Earle started this quintessential gentlemen's racing event more than three decades ago with five dozen cars and a handful of spectators.

This year's Historics will celebrate the automotive legacy of the Cooper Car Company and honor the achievements of racing great Sir Jack Brabham, the first driver in history to be knighted for his service to motorsports.

The races will showcase the largest field ever, with more than 400 cars, ranging from a 1916 National to a 1980 Porsches 935 IMSA.

Entries are divided into 14 classes — seven groups competing on Saturday and seven on Sunday (both practice on Friday). Among the classes this year are IMSA (1973-1980), Formula 1 (1966-1977, including two rare Yardley McLaren M23s), Trans Am (1966-1972), Sport Racing Cars over 2000cc (1947-1955) and Pre-1935 Sports & Touring Cars. With well matched vehicles piloted by enthusiastic drivers, the competition is always stiff but respectful, considering the value and rareness of their automobiles. Spectators are invited to wander through the paddock and check out the many displays, while vendors will happily satisfy any needs for retail therapy. For detailed event information, visit www.montereyhistoric.com. Tickets for the historics are available for one, two or three days at (800) 327-SECA (7322) or www.laguna-seca.com. Children 12 and under admitted free.

Concorso Italiano

Bayonet/Black Horse Golf Course, Seaside Friday, Aug. 18 — 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

CELEBRATING ITS 21st anniversary, Concorso Italiano will satiate every Italy-inspired craving, be it for cars, motorcycles, food — even fashion. Staged on the beautiful fairways of the Seaside golf course that provide an exquisite backdrop of sweeping ocean views, Concorso Italiano will celebrate all Italian marques, with a special emphasis on 100 years of Lancia and the beautiful automobiles designed by or influenced by Zagato, a modern design consultancy and engineering services company situated just outside the worldfamous fashion hub of Milan. This year's Concorso will also feature vehicles that competed in one of the oldest races in the world, the Targa Florio, which was established in Sicily a century ago and, after more than 70 decades as a road race, was converted to a rally due to safety concerns. Once plagued with parking and traffic troubles, the extensive show last year featured updated traffic flow plans, parking areas and clear signs to accommodate the crowds and minimize delays. General admission, $100, with children 12 years old and under free. Proceeds benefit charity. After Aug. 11. tickets will only be available at the event site in Seaside. For more information, visit www.concorso.com; e-mail ci@concorso.com, or call (425) 742-0632.

■ Kruse Auction

Bayonet/Black Horse Golf Course, Seaside Friday, Aug. 18 — 2 p.m.

HELD IN conjunction with Concorso Italiano, the third annual Kruse Auction will be open to Concorso ticket holders to offer a wide variety of highly polished gems, including the creations of Citroen, Ferrari, Porsche, Mercedes, Chevrolet and Rolls-Royce, to name just a few.

Practically every era and genre are represented in this eclectic group. Among the more mysterious is the 1937 Alfa Romeo 2300mm two-door owned by Benito Mussolini and raced in that year's Mille Miglia by Mussolini's private chauffeur, Ercole Boratto, Il Duce's cousin.

For contrast, consider the 1957 Pontiac Bonneville Convertible, fuel injected and one of only four factory air- conditioned cars of the 630 convertibles built.

Pacific Grove Concours Auto Rally Lighthouse Avenue and throughout the Peninsula Friday, Aug. 18

ALL WHO own and drive their own vintage vehicles and sports cars are invited to participate in the colorful annual P.G. Concours Auto Rally, now in its 12th year, which will honor the marque of Austin-Healey. Thousands of spectators line the tour route from Lighthouse Avenue through Pebble Beach, Carmel and Monterey as the 275 cars cruise past. Staging and registration on Lighthouse Avenue begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 5:30, when the cars and drivers begin the tour at 6 p.m. An awards barbecue dinner will follow at Pacific Grove's historic Chautauqua Hall at 7 p.m. Registration runs $75 to drive only; $85 includes driver's dinner. A limited number of additional dinner tickets are available for $20 per person; $10 for children 12 and under. Proceeds benefit youth organizations in Pacific Grove and Carmel, and members of Pacific Grove Rotary help organize and run the event. Call (831) 647-6355 or visit www.pgautorally.org for more information.

■ Russo & Steele's sixth annual Monterey Sports and Muscle Marriott, Monterey,

Friday and Saturday, Aug. 18-19 — 5 p.m. Previews Aug. 17 — 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Aug. 18-19 — 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

ENTERING ITS fifth year of Peninsula automobile auctions, Russo & Steele expanded its uniquely casual and lively sale to two nights for 2006. Organizers boast, "Good food, great friends and the best selection of collector automobiles have become the unique draw that guides fellow enthusiasts to The Russo and Steele Collector Car Auction. Our singular objective is to provide the best service while offering the very best selection of European Sports, American Muscle Cars, Hot Rods and Customs!"

Russo and Steele will also feature the very first Ford Factory Trans Am Car, a 1967 Shelby factory Mustang driven by late, great Jerry Titus, and the 1989 LSR Walkey Streamliner land-speed record racer that hit top speed of 316.294 mph at Bonneville.

Previews in the Calle Principal garage, with the sales beginning promptly at 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. For more information and to download a registration form, visit www.russoandsteele.com or call (602) 252-2697.

■ Monterey Sports & Classic Car Auction

Portola Plaza Hotel, Monterey

Friday and Saturday, Aug. 18-19 — 6 to midnight.
Preview Friday and Saturday — 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

THE 21st Annual Monterey Sports & Classic Car Auction, presented by RM Auctions, will offer 200 of "the world's finest vintage motor cars." Among them will be "the most valuable car ever offered at a North American auction," the famed 1958 Ferrari 412 S racecar driven by motorsports legends Phil Hill and Richie Ginther, among others. One of the few Ferraris specifically built to challenge North American road racers, the 412 S makes 440 horsepower from its 12-cylinder engine designed by Vittorio Bellantani.

Its storied past includes racer and Monterey Historic Automobile Races founder Steve Earle, who raced the 412 S and also used it to promote his inaugural event at Laguna Seca Raceway in 1973.

With its sale, RM predicts records will fall, as the 412 S is expected to fetch more than $8 million. That would smash RM's own record of $6.5 million, set in Monterey in 2002 with the sale of another Ferrari, the Le Mans-winning 1962 Testa Rossa 330 TRI/LM.

Admission is $30; children 12 and under free. For more information, call (800) 211-4371 or visit www.rmauctions.com.

■ Khaki's Annual Ferrari, Maserati and Lamborghini Event

The Barnyard Shopping Village parking lot, Saturday, Aug. 19 — 4:30 to 7 p.m.

SPORTS CAR enthusiasts with a passion for Italian automobiles will park their rearing-horseadorned Ferraris alongside bull-sporting Lamborghinis and the trident-decorated Maseratis in the parking lot outside J. Lawrence Khaki's Men's Clothier of Carmel Saturday afternoon for a free public showing. Live music, along with tastings offered by 11 Monterey County vintners and food from six Barnyard restaurants, top off the festivities. A fee will be charged for the tasting, with 100 percent of the proceeds benefiting the Carmel Youth Center and the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation. For more information, call (831) 625-8106.

■ Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance,

18th Fairway of the Pebble Beach Golf Links Sunday, Aug. 20 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

FOR THE ultimate in car ogling, nothing can compare with the famous Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance, celebrating its 56th year. Stunning oceanside scenery, Champagne, fine food, celebrities, occasional period costumes and an unparalleled, exclusive display and competition of rare, sometimes one-of-a-kind automobiles combine to make the Concours the top event of its kind anywhere in the world. Featuring a wide array of automobiles polished to perfection and lovingly restored or meticulously maintained, the 2006 Concours will honor Voisin and Delahaye, the French manufacturers who led style and technology in the early 20th century, and cars that raced in the Pebble Beach Sports Car Road Races from 1950 to 1956. Concours classes include Antique through 1915; American Classic Open, Open Custom and Closed; Duesenberg; Rolls-Royce Prewar; Mercedes-Benz Prewar; Ferrari Grand Touring and Competition, and Postwar Custom Coachwork. The $150 advanced ticket ($175 the day of the event) includes a program, parking and a shuttle ride to the show.

The Concours, which has distributed $8.5 million to local charities since its inception, last year benefited the United Way of Monterey County, Boys and Girls Clubs of Monterey County, Kinship Center, Natividad Medical Foundation, United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the Wheelchair Foundation, Animal Friends Rescue Project, Court Appointed Special Advocates and Pebble Beach Company Foundation.

Call the United Way at (877) 693-0009 or visit www.concours-store.com/concours for ticket purchase. For information, visit www.pebblebeach-concours.net.

■ Gooding & Company collectible automobile auction P.B. Equestrian Center

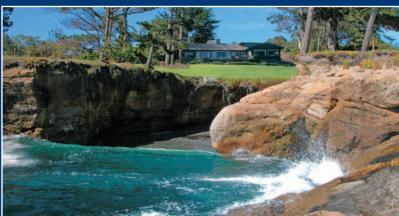

Sunday, Aug. 20 — 6 p.m.
Preview Friday
through Sunday —
9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
(Except Friday, when the preview ends at 5 p.m.), Aug. 17-20

Established by David Gooding in 2003, Gooding & Company will conduct the collectible automobile auction that has concluded Concours Week since 1990. While working with Christie's International Motor Cars Ltd., and later with RM Auctions, Gooding achieved several record-setting prices, including the sale of a 1938 Alfa Romeo 8C 2900 B for $4.07 million for Christie's and a 1962 LeMans-winning Ferrari 330 TRI LM for $6.49 million for RM.

Among this year's offerings of rare automobiles will be "superb examples of the Bugatti, Duesenberg and Ferrari marques," including two cars to be sold without reserve to benefit charity. A rare 1927 Bugatti Type 35C and a 1958 Ferrari Tour de France will be on the block, as well as the extensive collection of automotive artwork and automobilia from the estate of James A. Conant. Admission is $30 for one, $65 per couple. For more information, call (310) 899-1960 or visit www.goodingco.com.
