'Irondogs' ready for Monterey County rescues

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE HOPES of an injured victim buried under piles of rubble could rest on a highly trained, acute canine nose. Ellie and Fritzie, two search dogs trained for Carmel Valley firefighters, aren't quite ready for deployment to disaster zones, but they and four other teams from Monterey County practiced their skills at the Irondog Competition — a contest for rescue dogs and their humans — in Southern California this month.

The journey was particularly satisfying for Ellie's handler, Carmel Valley Fire engineer Eric Hanzelka, who became interested in the dogs more than two years ago when he spied a badge-carrying pooch in Santa Barbara County.

The dog's owner, a fire engineer, told him the Ojai-based National Disaster Search Dog Foundation trains canines and their handlers to find live humans buried under mudslides or trapped in collapsed buildings.

"These are live-scent dogs," Hanzelka said, "so you need to be alive for them to find you."

The nonprofit prepares dog-handler teams to meet Federal Emergency Management Agency standards and has trained 25 of the 67 certified teams in the country. It costs the group $10,000 to train the canines, but the dogs come from rescue groups, and the NDSDF provides them to fire departments for free.

Once certified, they can be called to disaster areas by FEMA, the California Office of Emergency Services, other state agencies and the National Urban Rescue Response system. SDF-trained dogs helped save lives after the 9/11 terrorist attacks and last year's hurricanes.

It takes a group

Hanzelka said the foundation likes to train firefighters, because when they walk through the door they already know something about working at disasters.

But the school requires students to attend as a group from the same part of the country, so Hanzelka recruited other Monterey County firefighters to go with him.

He briefly had second thoughts when he found out how much work it would be to train and keep a rescue dog. "Apparently I was the last to make up my mind," he said. "I was the one to put it forward, and the last one to say, 'I do.'"

Hanzelka — along with Kevin Skinner, Michele Vaughn and Jonathan Barnes from the Salinas Fire Department, C.V. Fire Captain Mike Vout and Seaside firefighter Johnny Subia — attended the SDF's week-long handlers' school in Ventura with the dogs, which had already undergone six months' training.

Hanzelka ended up with Ellie, a yellow Lab, and Vout received Fritzie, a German shepherd. The four other firefighters also got their dogs.

"They try to match the personalities of the people with the dogs, because each and every dog is different, and it

Through months of special training, German shepherd Fritzie can adeptly climb ladders if it means finding trapped victims, as she demonstrated at the Irondog Competition in Southern California this month. Council: Historic preservation isn't working

WHAT WAS intended to be a discussion of a little-used law to offer tax breaks to owners of historic homes became a general consensus that Carmel's entire historic preservation program needs to be rethought.

At a Tuesday workshop on the Mills Act, which allows homeowners who meet very strict criteria to pay lower property taxes if they commit to maintaining and preserving their properties, city council members expressed frustration with the difficulty of determining what warrants mandatory preservation.

"The last few months have proved very troubling for me as relates to our historic inventory," councilman Gerard Rose said. "Again and again we've seen homes described as historic on [preservation consultants' survey] forms that were sometimes slightly inaccurate but more often grossly inaccurate."

As a result, the council has granted appeals of several people who objected to the historic designation of their homes.

"We don't have a very clear picture of what is actually historic," councilwoman Paula Hazdovac said.

The answer, Rose said, is updating city documents defining what people, events and architectural styles were important in Carmel's history up to the 1950s, and making the laws more clear.

Then the council would know how to apply the Mills Act, a state law enacted in 1972 to allow cities to offer incentives for preserving historic homes.

While the state standards for properties eligible for the tax breaks are minimal, the Carmel Local Coastal Program that became law in 2004 is far more restrictive. According to the LCP, an historic home would have to be virtually unchanged since its construction.

"The bar is so high for Mills Act requirements, nothing [in Carmel] would qualify," councilman Mike Cunningham commented. So far, just two property owners have applied for Mills Act contracts.

Housecleaning

Despite the city's restrictive standards, Rose said making Mills Act contracts available to more people by loosening them would be premature, "until we straighten up our own house."

Cunningham suggested the council revamp the city's historic preservation ordinance, but not immediately worry about the larger "historic context statement," which specifically defines the people, events and architecture important in Carmel's past.

Both would need to be reworked, since the ordinance describes the process and the historic context statement outlines the standards, according to principal planner Brian Roseth. "The policy says, 'an important person,' but who are the important people?" he asked.

Ghoulish b-day parade Saturday

THE CITY of Carmel-by-the-Sea will celebrate its 90th birthday in unique style Saturday with its traditional Halloween-inspired parade down Ocean Avenue and barbecue lunch at Sunset Center.

Spectators will gather along the parade route, which starts at Sunset Center (San Carlos and Ninth) and meanders through the business district as costumed kids, dogs, adults, public officials and city workers cruise by, many tossing goodies to onlookers. The parade is open to anyone who wants to don a costume and walk, according to the city, and

New book chronicles Pebble Beach's glitzy history

By KELLY NIX

The Pebble Beach honeymoon of Elizabeth Taylor and Conrad Hilton is part of local lore celebrated in a new book.

FROM WINSTON Churchill leaning on a Cypress tree along 17 Mile Drive to Liz Taylor enjoying her honeymoon with Conrad Hilton near the 18th Green, a new photographic book chronicling Pebble Beach's extraordinary history will hit the shelves in a few weeks.

The 234-page "Pebble Beach Heritage Collection," to be released Nov. 14, captures, through black and white archival photos, moments and events that have made the resort legendary.

Pebble Beach's official historian, Neal Hotelling, and journalist Matthew Vree spent hundreds of hours gathering information and compiling vintage photographs from

High school to get new gym, lockers as work on pool accelerates

By MARY BROWNFIELD

EVEN THOUGH it hasn't approved a final design, the Carmel Unified School District Board decided Monday to solicit bids for a new gymnasium at Carmel High School. The board also decided to replace hundreds of lockers at the school and increase work hours for the crew constructing the new pool.

Plans for the gym remodel originally included a tower over the foyer and other amenities but may have to be scaled down to save money, architect Henry Ruhnke told the board Oct. 23.

His office sent drawings for 12 variations, some more complex than others, to the California state architect, which must approve designs for school buildings. Typically, the state architect signs off on plans at the counter, Ruhnke said, but officials decided to take a longer look at those for the CHS gym.

He hoped to have them in hand in mid-October, but still without them this week, he advised the board move ahead and send the project out to bid. The plans might have to be amended later if the state architect demands changes, he said, but seeking bids now would minimize delays.

Superintendent Marvin Biasotti wondered if that would motivate contractors to hike their prices. "Does it communicate to construction companies that this is a more complicated project or a moving target?" he asked, but Dan Paul, the district's supervisor of maintenance, operations and transportation, doubted it would.

Ruhnke also said the alternatives would be individually bid, which will make decisions easier when the board crunches the numbers, and no contract can be signed until the state approves the plans. Members voted unanimously to solicit bids for the work.

Stashing stuff

The high school's existing lockers are dented and broken, and students frequently complain they're too small to accommodate books, clothes and other possessions. On Monday, Paul recommended the board OK their replacement.

He suggested installing 846 new 12-inch-wide-by-24-inch-tall lockers, but Kasie Clark, student body president and student representative at the meeting, said they should be wider.

But 15-inch-wide lockers would mean having fewer available to students until an additional 79 feet of wall space, likely on a building yet to be constructed, can be found to hold the rest. Paul said there's currently room for 674.

"Do we really need 800 lockers?" asked board member Marcy Rustad, who agreed they should be larger than the current lockers, considering students' complaints and Clark's input.

"Not today, but someday," Biasotti said. "Enrollment is 750, and it's going to go down before it goes up. I think you have to provide lockers for every student."

But not every student uses them, Clark said, since seniors with cars parked on campus stash their stuff there.

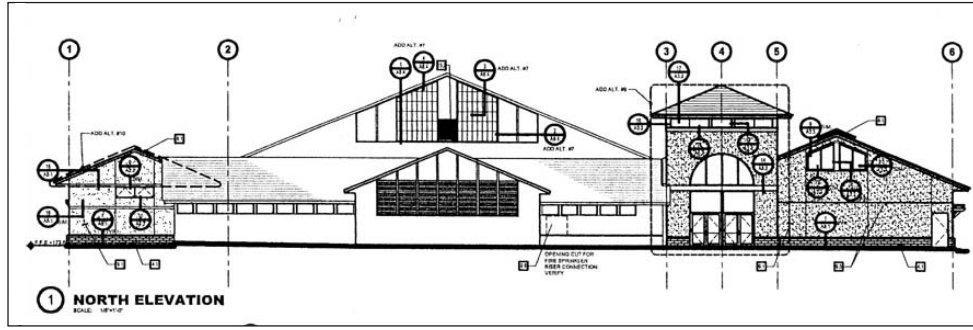

With the board's consensus, president Howard Given suggested Paul install the wider lockers in the existing space and then find room for the others.

Sunday work

The overhaul of the CHS pool appears to be behind schedule, according to Ruhnke, and the general contractor proposed keeping workers at it seven days a week.

"We have yet to get a comprehensive, up-to-date, accurate schedule," he said, but crews still have to begin installing the new building that will alone take three or four months to finish — well

An extensive remodel of the gym at Carmel High may include a tower at the entrance and other amenities if the school district can find money to pay for them.

P.G. police arrest suspects in bloody carjacking, fiery crash

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A SOUTHERN California resident was arrested soon after beating up a taxi driver with a flashlight and then stealing the cab, according to Pacific Grove police. Daniel Dumas, 45, allegedly vandalized the cab, ditched it and returned to the scene to fight with another person before being taken into custody.

At around 11:30 p.m. Oct. 14, Dumas took a cab ride from a Monterey bar to an address on Grove Acre Avenue in Pacific Grove, and when the driver asked for his $10 fare, Dumas grabbed an 18-inch metal flashlight from between the car's seats and beat the driver on the head and shoulders, according to police chief Carl Miller.

The driver escaped from his attacker and got out of the cab, but Dumas then jumped into the driver's seat and drove away in the 1994 Ford Crown Victoria, according to Miller.

Responding to the reported carjacking and battery, police soon found the cab two blocks away on Crocker Avenue, where it had been vandalized and abandoned. All the windows were broken, the cables and wires to the radio were cut, the dash was damaged and the fare meter was ripped out and taken.

Meanwhile, Dumas returned to Grove Acre and fought with a resident who was trying to keep him from entering the duplex where his former girlfriend lives, according to Miller. "She moved to this area primarily to get away from him."

An officer who heard the fighting called for backup, and police entered the home to find the second victim bleeding from a large laceration on his head, Miller said.

"This other victim didn't really know the suspect. He was just living in an adjacent residence and intervened," he said. Officers also found the stolen fare meter at the scene.

Both victims declined medical help and said they would seek treatment on their own, according to Miller. Police charged Dumas with carjacking, two counts of assault with a deadly weapon, felony vandalism and possession of stolen property, and took him to Monterey County Jail, where he was held on $160,000 bail.

Car chase ends in crash

Later that week, Pacific Grove police arrested an allegedly intoxicated Marina teenager after rescuing him from the stolen car that caught fire when he attempted to flee but lost control and crashed on the rocky shore below Ocean View Boulevard.

An officer on patrol first spotted the 16-year-old male driving recklessly on Lighthouse Avenue at 1:45 a.m. Oct. 18, according to Miller. The cop noticed the car's squealing tires and erratic motion and attempted to stop the driver, but the teenager fled.

Another officer joined the chase, and they followed the 2003 Subaru Forester, which had been stolen from Pacific Grove earlier, down Fountain Avenue toward the water.

"At Ocean View Boulevard, at approximately 40 mph, he lost control as he was trying to negotiate a turn," Miller said. "He crossed over the north curb, through the wooden rail fence and crashed approximately 12 feet down onto the recreation trail, then over the rock edge and approximately 25 feet down onto the Monterey Bay coastline."

The car landed upside-down and was smoking when police reached it.

According to Pacific Grove Fire Captain Jeff Field, officers tried to douse the fire with their extinguishers and then pulled the teen from the car.

Fire crews arrived and used a hose to put out the fire, which was burning in a small area of the car.

"It was originally reported that three people were trapped," Field said of the accident. "As we arrived, [the suspect] was out of the car and being escorted up to the roadway by police officers."

Field said medics treated the teen's injuries and took him away in the ambulance, but police later booked the suspect into Monterey County Juvenile Hall on charges of auto theft, evading a peace officer, driving under the influence of alcohol and being an unlicensed driver.

Meanwhile, firefighters helped the tow company retrieve the crashed car, cleaned up the debris and fluids, and notified Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary officials of the accident.

"There were minor fluids spilled in the area," Field said.

Facing three-year EIR delay, incorporation backers plot strategy

By CHRIS COUNTS

A WEEK after the Local Agency Formation Commission voted 5-2 to require that proponents of Carmel Valley's incorporation finance a costly environmental impact report, a question as big as an elephant is begging for an answer: Is the incorporation drive dead?

So far, proponents aren't saying what they'll do next. It is possible they're still mapping out a strategy to counter the requirement of a study that could cost them more than $100,000. But it's just as likely they are simply too mad in the moment to worry about what tomorrow will bring.

"I'd like to report a crime," announced proponent Mike McMillan at a Local Agency Formation Commission meeting Oct. 23. "Incorporation proponents were robbed. Our election was stolen."

McMillan dug deep into the archives of pop culture to come up with an analogy to express his feelings about the local agency that governs incorporations.

"I'm remind of a 'Peanuts,'" McMillan told the LAFCO commissioners. "Lucy tees up the football for Charlie Brown. The football is yanked out from under him. We are Charlie Brown and you are Lucy."

Proponent John Dalessio urged commissioners to reconsider their EIR decision.

"The right to petition our government is supposed to be one of our most fundamental rights," Dalessio said. "Most people view what happened last week as an attempt to keep incorporation off the ballot. You're seeing an outcry. Stop standing in the way. Let us vote."

But LAFCO commissioner and 2nd District Supervisor Lou Calcagno defended the decision.

"My vote wasn't against incorporation," explained Calcagno, "My vote was for an EIR."

Commissioners respond to EIR vote

While proponents bashed LAFCO over last week's decision to require an EIR, commissioners traded barbs over the vote.

"Why this commission looks so bad is the timing of our decision," commissioner Vince DiMaggio said. "I'm not aware of any new information that would lead us to rescind our decision from December of 2005."

Commissioners unanimously voted in December to issue a "negative declaration," essentially determining the incorporation proposal would have no significant effect on the environment and would not require the preparation of an EIR.

If LAFCO didn't require an EIR, the agency likely would have been sued by incorporation opponents, Calcagno said.

"If there is a lawsuit, there would be no election anyway," Calcagno responded.

Carmel Valley resident Dr. Mel Spehn chastised commissioners for basing last week's vote on a fear of litigation.

"That is discouraging," Spehn said. "If you are bound [by that fear], I feel sorry for you."

Meanwhile, commissioner and Seaside Mayor Ralph Rubio responded to charges he and his colleagues are against incorporation because they want to see more development in Carmel Valley. The Monterey County Herald, in an Oct. 21 editorial, called last week's vote "another gift to development interests led by lawyer Tony Lombardo."

"It bothers me when someone says I'm 'in the pocket,'" countered Rubio. "It is our job to assess the proposal and not emotions. I have a big problem with the fiscal analysis. I believe in my heart the incorporation proposal is flawed."

Rubio also warned commissioners against placing too much emphasis on consultants who produced studies insisting incorporation is viable.

"Experts are not always right," Rubio insisted. "Experts can be bought for any issue."

How much will an EIR cost?

Because they are costly, environmental impact reports can kill projects. In a report dated Oct. 23, McKenna estimates the incorporation EIR would cost $100,000. But one commissioner said the figure could go much higher.

"I'd love to see some of my projects have an EIR that inexpensive," DiMaggio commented. "I haven't seen a price like that in years."

The City of Carmel spent more than $100,000 on an EIR for the sale of Flanders Mansion.

McKenna's report estimates proponents would actually need to come up with $365,000 to keep the incorporation drive alive. In addition to the EIR, an update of the fiscal analysis would cost $70,000 and a service plan update would cost $10,000. Proponents would also have to pick up the tab for $100,000 of LAFCO staff costs, $70,000 in legal fees and $15,000 of "miscellaneous" costs.

The report also provides a new timeline for the incorporation process. If all goes according to plan, the public could have an opportunity to vote on incorporation in two to three-and-a-half years.

After encountering numerous unexpected delays in a process that has lasted six years, opponents are understandably cynical.

"We're still trying to figure out what to do next," conceded Max Chaplin, a leading incorporation proponent.

Commissioners tried to encourage proponents.

"We want to move this forward as fast as we can," said Calcagno of the incorporation proposal. "I don't think we need two-and-a-half years. I think we can get it on the ballot a lot sooner. I'm asking staff to put this on some kind of fast track."

If proponents decide to move forward with the incorporation drive, one thing is sure — they'll need to raise a sizable amount of cash. Opponents predict wellheeled local environmental activists will eventually come up with the money, even speculating the David and Lucille Packard Foundation is planning to bail out proponents. But Chris DeCardy, communications director for the Packard Foundation, dispelled such a notion.

"We have not, and are not, funding the EIR," insisted DeCardy.

Columnist to release 'StarWords'

FORMER PINE Cone social writer Susan Cantrell, who in later years was known for the "Quotable Notables" in the Monterey County Herald, will release her new book, "StarWords," at a party Saturday, Nov. 4, in Secombe Hall at All Saints Church.

The book includes 62 of the roughly 350 Q&A sessions published during her career. Featured stars include Hollywood types, athletes, artists, writers, pilots, cartoonists and comics, spiritualists, corporate heads, politicians and others. About 20 are Carmelites, and former Mayor Clint Eastwood penned the forward for Cantrell's book, in which he is also featured.

"My journey to the stars started 22 years ago when I wrote the social scene for The Carmel Pine Cone," said Cantrell, who had come to the weekly paper intending to write a poetry column but was assigned the see-and-be-seen beat instead. "This led to more jobs with other magazines and newspapers, and connections with these 62 people who all live or have lived on the Peninsula. All have led inspirational lives and are known nationally and/or internationally."

Cantrell's release party, "A Stardust Evening," will run 4 to 7 p.m., Nov. 4 at All Saints Church, located on Dolores and Lincoln streets between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and will include live music from Something Cool, caricatures by Pine Cone cartoonist Bill Bates, and drinks and hors d'oeuvres. Cantrell and many of her subjects will be there to celebrate the book's release.

The $50 ticket to the event will also include a copy of "StarWords." After the party, it will be for sale online at www.susan-cantrell.com, at Pilgrim's Way on Dolores Street, KRML on San Carlos Street and The Works on Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove.

Reservations for "A Stardust Evening," which is being sponsored by the Cannery Row Co., Mann Packing Co., Monterey County Bank and All Saints Church, must be made by Nov. 1. For more information, call (831) 372-2231.

Carmel travel agent seeks seat on Monterey Airport board

By KELLY NIX

A CARMEL travel agent vying for a seat on the Monterey Peninsula Airport District board is full of ideas he said will make travel to and from the Peninsula less expensive and more convenient.

Dan Presser, 63, who owns Four Winds Travel, is one of six candidates on the Nov. 7 ballot.

"I'm running for the district for purely altruistic reasons," Presser said. "I'm in the [travel] business and I know when something needs help."

For one, Presser thinks air traffic is intruding on surrounding neighborhoods.

"The airport is guilty of noise pollution," said Presser, who has heard complaints about planes taking off at night. "No question about it."

Although only 3 percent of Monterey's flights arrive and depart from Monterey at night or early morning, Presser said they contribute to the overall nuisance level of the the airport for nearby residents. He's proposed a sliding scale that would charge airlines more money the later they fly into Monterey.

"The only way you are going to affect an airline," Presser said, "is to hit them in the pocketbook."

The extra fees from airlines would help bolster the district's coffers, he said.

Fewer airplanes arriving and departing at night and early morning would also lower the risk of accidents, he said.

"The Monterey Airport tower closes from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m.," Presser said. "Absolutely no one is in the tower.

Dan Presser

Passengers who arrive and depart from Monterey should be informed the tower is closed during those hours. There is lots of fog in Monterey during those hours."

Presser also wants to make it less expensive to fly in and out of the airport. He cited a recent example where a friend of his flying from Los Angeles to Monterey was quoted a price of $350. When the friend checked the price to San Jose, it was only $61.

"I want to try to get Monterey Airport 'common rated,'" Presser said. For example, when you fly to New York, you can fly for the same price to Newark, JFK, or LaGuardia.

This is called being common rated."

The status would mean the fares would be the same to fly in and out of San Jose or San Francisco as they would Monterey, he said.

"How are you going to bring prices down in addition to that?" he said. "One way is to get an airline in there that is not a legacy airline. I would love to get Southwest Airlines."

Presser said he didn't want to disclose possible solutions to draw Southwest into the airport but said "there are a lot of

AMORTIZATION AND ARMS

If you make an additional payment toward reducing the principal balance on your loan, you hasten the loan's full payoff and avoid paying some interest as well. Most of us know how this works for a fixed-rate mortgage, but what about an adjustable rate mortgage (ARM)?

The main difference is that paying an additional amount toward your principal balance each month doesn't reduce the number of payments you'll make to completely pay off your ARM, as it will your fixed-rate mortgage. Instead, it will make the monthly payment smaller each time the loan's interest and payment rate adjust than it otherwise would have been.

The reason is simple. When an ARM adjusts, the new payment amount is based on the current loan balance, the new interest rate, and the remaining number of payments to be made on the loan. If you've been making additional payments toward your principal balance, it will be lower than it otherwise would have been, and your adjusted payment will therefore be lower.

It's worth a conversation with your real estate and mortgage advisors. Additional principal payments may save you a substantial amount of money and help to reduce your future monthly payments as well. So call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

Need a fire truck? Look no farther than 6th & San Carlos

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ANYONE IN the market for a 1975 Crown Telesquirt can bid on the Carmel Fire Department's ladder truck, which the city council recently declared as surplus property. The city is accepting sealed bids for the truck and will reveal the winner Nov. 6 at 5 p.m.

The 31-year-old truck, which has a 50-foot ladder and a 1,500 gallon-per-minute pump, was reconditioned in 1997. During its career with CFD, it saw 2,218 hours on the road for a total of 17,527 miles.

The bells and whistles include an Allison automatic transmission, a diesel engine, two ground ladders, siren and air horn, water and dry chemical extinguishers, four self-contained breathing apparatus, ladder belts, a Milwaukee sawzall, electric smoke ejector, utility bar, bottle jack, Motorola radio, intercom system with four headsets, hose nozzles, straight pry bar, hose clamp and canvas hose-bed covers. The truck underwent routine maintenance and annual testing, and its service records are available.

With a minimum acceptable bid of $3,000, the engine will be sold "as is." The winner will have 10 days to make full payment and pick up the truck. Proof of insurance and driver's license will be also required.

Bids are being accepted by mail to Carmel-by-the-Sea City Hall, Attn. City Clerk, ladder truck bid, P.O. Box CC, Carmel, CA 93921. To view the truck or request additional information, contact engineer Bill Scott at (831) 620-2030.

When a fire started at a restaurant six years ago, Carmel Fire Department's ladder truck helped firefighters get to the roof to put out the flames. The city council declared the truck surplus in September and is accepting bids from potential buyers.

STEP ON IT!

Anti-lock braking systems (ABS) may be one of the most important safety devices for vehicles in recent years, but they must be utilized correctly. Otherwise, drivers risk getting into the very spins and slides that the system is designed to avoid. ABS uses sensors to keep a vehicle's wheels from locking up and causing a skid. To do this, it applies individual brakes, for drivers used to try to prevent lockup by intermittently pumping their brakes. However, if drivers try to exert this old habit with ABS, the system will be ineffective. ABS requires simply that drivers stomp on the brakes, without letting up. ABS does the rest.

September 24, 1915 ~ October 16, 2006

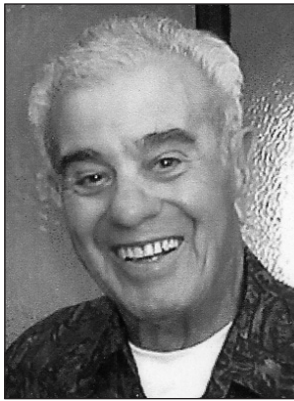

CARMEL — Leo Tanous, age 91, passed on peacefully at the home of his brother Joseph, surrounded by his loving family. Leo was born in Hettinger, North Dakota, son of Joseph and Sara Tanous, brother to five brothers and five sisters. He attended school in Hettinger and college in Grand Forks, North Dakota. He joined the army in 1940 and, with the 45th division, saw combat in the North African and Italian campaigns. After his discharge in 1946 he joined a real estate firm in Los Angeles and in 1947 moved to Carmel Valley.

In 1952 he founded Ocean Avenue Realty in Carmel which he owned and operated until 1992. He was active in many community organizations and served several terms as President of the Board of Realtors.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Margaret and his stepson Kenneth Kiley, and six siblings. He and Margaret bought the second house built in Carmel Meadows and he lived there until May of this year. Leo was proud of his cooking, gardening, and the diamond willow canes he carved at the Carmel Foundation. He enjoyed his many happy times with friends and neighbors, and those wonderful conversations with his late cousin Walter, and friends Munir, Fred, Emil, Skip and Andy, and dinners with Steve. Leo was a kind, funny, and generous man who was loved by all who knew him.

He is survived by his sisters, Florence, Rosemary and Marion, and brother Joseph (Louise) and many nieces and nephews and three step grandchildren. At Leo's request the Neptune society has taken care of final arrangements. A gathering of family and friends will be held Saturday, October 28th. Leo gave new meaning to "A good meal, a good laugh and good friends."

Memorials in his memory may be made to Hospice of the Central Coast or the Carmel Foundation.

Antique and collectibles day seeks to educate senior citizens

By KELLY NIX

AN ELDERLY woman agreed to sell her antique furniture for a pittance to an unscrupulous liquidator. A collectibles dealer told a senior her gold-leaf mirror was plastic when it was actually carved wood.

A seminar Saturday, Oct. 28, at the Sally Griffin Senior Center is intended to educate seniors and others about the value of their belongings.

understand what their possessions might be worth," said Carmel-based appraiser Georganne Thurston, one of four speakers at the event. "Sometimes it can be difficult to appreciate the value of things we have lived with all of our lives or seen in our parents' homes growing up."

The seminar, from 1 to 4 p.m., will feature how-to presentations by local experts on throwing a successful garage sale, selling on eBay, and furniture repair and refinishing.

"We are looking for people who have something interesting," said Claudia McCord, manager of the Cannery Row Antique Mall, which is cosponsoring the event with the senior center and the Heritage Society of Pacific Grove. "If they have an inkling it's worth something and want to find out from people who have more expertise, we will tell them."

The event is open to all ages, not just seniors. The entrance fee includes two appraisals and attendance to the clinics.

"I think the audience will be people who are downsizing," Thurston said. "The second group are people who will be providing care for their relatives and want to learn how they can avoid falling victim to these schemes."

While most antiques dealers are professional and ethical, Thurston has heard unfortunate stories of scam artists who have taken advantage of seniors and others who didn't have any idea what their possessions were worth.

"I'm really trying to tell people, 'Here are some of the pitfalls to avoid,' without scaring them," she said.

Having a certified appraisal of one's personal possessions should be done in cases of probate, divorce, insurance, or when items are donated to a charitable organization such as Goodwill or The Salvation Army.

Although it's considered ethical for appraisers to buy objects from people they're working for, Thurston said an appraiser must disclose that intention to a client at the onset of the assignment.

"The second thing is dealers aren't always appraisers," she said. "They have a lifelong interest in what they want to collect, which doesn't mean they are professional appraisers."

Thurston, who doesn't sell or deal in antiques, said those interested in selling their items or having them appraised should first consult a professional.

"Be sure that the appraiser has professional training and ethics and is associated with a bona fide appraisal organization," said Thurston, who operates Thurston Estate Appraisal and is a member of the American Society of Appraisers.

Thurston will also provide information on preparing for an estate sale, including taking inventory and labeling items to be sold.

The event will be at the Sally Griffin Senior Center, 700 Jewell Ave., in Pacific Grove. It will be free for members of the Heritage Society of Pacific Grove and the Sally Griffin Active Living Center, and $10 for nonmembers.

P.G. spent $100,000 to fight pine branch lawsuit

THE FAMILY of an elderly woman killed by a falling pine branch in Pacific Grove's Monarch Sanctuary got $1 million. And settling the family's lawsuit also cost taxpayers loads in legal fees during the past two years.

The city decided Oct. 13 to settle with the family of Anne Dickinson Thomas, 85, instead of going to trial. Thomas was killed in November 2004.

Pacific Grove paid $80,000 in legal fees to fight the lawsuit and will pay about $20,000 more to attorney Jon Giffen for representing the city in the case.

"Most of that money went to attorneys for the last couple of years," said city manager Jim Colangelo. "Most of it comes from our city attorney budget."

The $1 million settlement will be paid by a group P.G. is part of called the Public Agency Risk Sharing Authority.

"It's a pool of local jurisdictions that pay premiums," Colangelo said, "and pay out when there is a lawsuit against any of us."

In 2005/2006, Pacific Grove spent about $150,000 fighting lawsuits against the city, Colangelo said.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
Meg Parker Conners, R.N.

THE FACTS OF LIFE

The latest statistics reveal that life expectancy in the U.S. is 77.6 years, up from 75.4 in 1990. Another fact of life is that, as you get older, your chances of beating the current life expectancy at birth improve. This is based on the idea that, if you managed to avoid the mortal dangers that plague younger people (infant mortality, car crashes, violence, etc.), you are likely to make it to age. In addition, there is the healthy survivor effect, in which people with advantages derived from heredity or life circumstances are over-represented in any older population. Thanks to these factors and others, a man who celebrates his 65th birthday today can expect to live to be 85.

Settling into VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES can be a positive step towards greater freedom. It's an opportunity to simplify life and to obtain the support you value. We provide care in all types of settings - at home, in residential care, or a skilled nursing environment. Our in-home care program assists older adults in maintaining their independence at home, or can ease the transition to a new setting if needed. We handpick and hire only the most dedicated and qualified caregivers.

P.S. Studies also show that rates of disability and years of functional decline among the American elderly are decreasing.

Meg Parker Conners is an RN and owner of Victorian Health Care Services and Victorian Residential Care Homes. For assistance, call 655-1935.

Sand City dunes transferred to state parks

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Regional Park District sold 100 parcels of Sand City dunes to the State Department of Parks and Recreation for $2.5 million, a deal that will allow the land to become part of Monterey State Beach.

The lots, which total about five acres, are located between Bay Street and Tioga Avenue in Sand City and were sold "to preserve the shoreline in keeping with the Monterey Bay State Seashore legislation signed by Gov. Pete Wilson in 1994," according to the park district.

State parks and the park district purchased parcels from various sellers with the intention of adding the properties to Monterey State Beach. In April 1996, Sand City and the two park agencies signed an agreement to allow the parcels to become public parkland.

The deal was finalized this week, the park district said.

Heritage society names spirit award winners

THE PEOPLE responsible for a renovating a home originally constructed by Hugh Comstock and the former Carmel City Hall where real estate has been sold for a century, as well as the woman who maintains a memorial bench and flower garden downtown, will celebrate receiving the Carmel Heritage Society's Spirit of Carmel awards Nov. 16.

The awards, now in their fifth year, "recognize outstanding examples of recently completed restorations, renovations, new construction or other projects that enhance the ambiance of Carmel-by-the-Sea and honor its traditions," according to the nonprofit group. "The society's emphasis is to provide public recognition for projects that stand out as significant contributions to Carmel's character — whether residential, commercial buildings, gardens, gates, walls, public artwork or other similar objects."

Each year, the heritage society solicits nominations for the Spirit of Carmel awards. Following the June 30 deadline, members considered the entries and selected those they felt best fulfill the awards' mission.

This year's winners are:

- the renovation of Dean & Cindy James' Comstock house on the southeast corner of Sixth and Torres;
- the remodel of the historic Wilson Building (presently occupied by Alain Pinel realtors, but once the site of a corner market and Carmel City Hall) on the northwest corner of Dolores and Ocean owned by managing partner David Kent; and

■ the memorial bench and flower garden on the northeast corner of Carmelo and Ocean maintained by Sue Lind.

The honorable mention goes to Jed Brusseau's renovated home on Guadalupe Street, four lots northwest of First Avenue.

The Spirit of Carmel reception and awards ceremony will be held at the First Murphy House, Lincoln and Sixth, Thursday, Nov. 16, from 5 to 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and the public is invited. For more information, call (831) 624-4447 or e-mail info@carmelheritage.org.

Big Sur Half Marathon on Monterey Bay

By MARY BROWNFIELD

RUNNERS IN the Big Sur Half Marathon on Monterey Bay should enjoy crisp fall weather, great entertainment and perfect conditions on the relatively flat and fast course along the Monterey and Pacific Grove coastline Sunday morning. Presented by organizers of the Big Sur International Marathon held each April, the Oct. 29 event has sold out at 4,500 participants. In addition to the fourth running of the 13.1-mile race, Sunday will include a 10-mile walk and the Run Forrest Run 5K.

A revamped prize purse for the 2006 race prompted world-class runners across the nation to enter, according to race officials, with the women's field headlined by Olympians Jen Rhines and Kate O'Neill. The men's race will feature Fernando Cabada, who holds the U.S. 20K record, and past Big Sur Marathon winner Ibrahim Limo.

Using a combination of city streets and the recreation trail, the out-and-back course will begin in downtown Monterey at Del Monte and Tyler, head north to Lake El Estero and then south through the tunnel to Cannery Row. Runners will continue along the coast through Pacific Grove and around downtown, and return to Monterey to cross the finish line at Custom House Plaza.

Along the way, live musicians will help keep people moving, just as they do at the Big Sur Marathon and the Big Sur River Run, both founded by retired Monterey County Superior Court Judge Bill Burleigh and known for their musical flair. A cadre of volunteers will ensure they are hydrated, fed and well cared for overall.

In addition to the races, a Health & Fitness Expo will be held Friday and Saturday at the Monterey Conference Center. The expo is open to the public and will include health screening checks and demonstrations, sports medicine and fitness programs, the latest in athletic clothing and shoes, training aids and a variety of other related products and services.

creative ways to get them in there."

Presser said his sales and marketing experience, coupled with the commercial pilot's license he holds, give him an advantage over the other candidates.

"I understand the airport from the travel industry point of view and the left-seat-side-of-an-aircraft point of view," he said.

Voters will pick two board members next month. Presser faces competition from software engineer R. Jay Roland, recently retired Pacific Grove Police Chief Carl Miller, commercial aviator Bill Sabo, peace officer Bill Sullivan and current board member Bob DeVoe, who was appointed in 2005 when Nancy Foy resigned. Current board member Ron Phoebus is not seeking re-election.

Presser has created controversy and helped built his campaign around a report the airport district commissioned in 2005.

Dubbed the Mayne report, after consultant Renee Mayne who was hired to draw it up, Presser has accused the airport board of concealing its results. The more than $10,000 report, a purported employee survey, is said to reflect on airport general manager Tom Greer's performance.

"When the report was completed, it was presented to the airport board," Presser said. "After seeing the report, the board elected to destroy all copies of the written report and to keep silent on the contents. I want to get to the bottom of it."

The Monterey County District Attorney's Office is investigating the district's actions to determine if any laws were violated.

Greer said he believes the airport is functioning well.

But some have criticized airport management for low employee morale. And the Monterey Airport Fire Department has been in negotiations with the district since 2004 for a contract.

"There are a lot of things we need to do," he said. "You can certainly do better. As far as things needing to be fixed, there is nothing broken."

The airport is undergoing a $8.4 million terminal modernization project, which includes adding a baggage carousel and consolidating security checkpoints. The project is scheduled to be completed in August 2007.

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT IF INFLATION HEATS UP?

Inflation may be heating up. Will it hurt your investments?

Inflation might hurt some stocks in the short term. Since inflation is usually accompanied by higher short-term interest rates, it might become more expensive for companies to borrow to finance their operations. As a result, their profit margins may be squeezed and their stock prices might fall. Yet, in the long run, inflation allows companies to raise prices, leading to a higher dollar value of sales and earnings.

On the other hand, higher interest rates will almost always hurt bond prices. But if you hold your bonds until maturity, you will still receive interest payments along the way and get your initial investment back when the bonds mature.

Ultimately, inflationary fears may be overblown – but it's a good idea to know what to expect.

“WHAT’S GOOD FOR CARMEL BUSINESS IS GOOD FOR CARMEL!”

The Chamber Works Hard and Plays Hard!

The Courtyard of the Carmel Mission was the setting for one of the nicest Chamber events of the year as the hundreds who enjoyed the Taste of Carmel would surely agree. Thankfully the weatherman was wrong and the gloomy and damp forecast proved to be unfounded. First sunny skies and then a perfect harvest moon rising over hundreds of happy “tasters” set the stage for a perfectly scrumptious event. Many of Carmel’s exciting restaurants and the area’s outstanding wineries offered generous tastings of their delicious dishes and lovely libations. Event organizers Tom Nash and John Haveles, supported by an outstanding committee, did a world class job and put together a world class event.

Once a year the Chamber recognizes excellence in business and publicly acknowledges outstanding members at the Annual Green Ribbon of Excellence Awards Dinner. This event is truly the Chamber’s “party of the year”. Always a sold out event, this year it will be held on December 7 at Stonepine Estate. Nestled amid 330 pristine acres in the heart of Carmel Valley, Stonepine was named for the ancient Italian Stone Pines which stand sentry over this private estate built in 1929 by the Crocker banking family of San Francisco.

Chaired by Thompson Lange of Homescapes and Jennifer Kriste of KION, the Green Ribbon Dinner is really a hands on event. Members sponsor the shuttle, the band, decorations etc. and provide fabulous silent auction items. While the nomination process is open to the general public, the winners are chosen by the membership. The winners of the 2005 awards will also be acknowledged and will be asked to present the awards to this year’s recipients. The nomination process is now complete and nominees will be announced shortly.

The Green Ribbon dinner is the culmination of the Chamber’s busy and productive year, don’t miss it!

Laguna announces 2007 season; motorcycle race tickets on sale

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TICKETS TO Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca's Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix — by far the track's most well attended weekend, with sellout crowds — will go on sale Nov. 1, just days after the world championship is decided in Spain. For the first time in more than five years, an American, "Kentucky Kid" Nicky Hayden, has a chance at the title.

Hayden won the USGP at Laguna in its inaugural year in 2005 and again in July, and was leading the fight for the world championship this year until the Oct. 15 race in Estoril, Portugal, where his teammate, Spaniard Dani Pedrosa, crashed into him on the fifth lap. Five-time world champion Valentino Rossi now leads by eight points going into the final race of the season in Valencia, Spain.

The July 20-22, 2007, races promise to be just as thrilling. The Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix will feature not only the MotoGP world championship, but the hugely popular American Motorcyclist Association national championship. But it's just one event in the track's 2007 schedule, which was announced in September and will mark a half century of racing there since Laguna Seca opened after a fatal crash ended the Pebble Beach Road Races in 1956.

First up will be the May 18-20 U.S. Sports Car Invitational, headlined by the cutting-edge Daytona prototypes and souped-up GT (gran turismo) cars of the Grand American Road Racing Association's Rolex Sports Car Series. Their 250-mile race, capped at two hours and 45 minutes, will be accompanied by the Grand-Am Cup of high-performance sports cars and other yet-to-be-revealed races.

The world-class vintage races Steve Earle first held at Laguna Seca 34 years ago are set for Aug. 17-19. The Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races presented by Toyota will bring Indy tradition back to the track by honoring the cars and drivers who made the Indy 500 one of motorsports' most spectacular events.

The race season will again close with the Monterey Sports Car Championships Oct. 19-21, when the world's most exotic and high-tech cars of the American Le Mans Series battle for four hours in an afternoon-into-evening race. Many average more than 100 mph on Laguna's 2.238 miles during the race, which features prototype and GT machines.

But the county-owned track, which is run by the nonprofit Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula and raises money for charities every year, has permission to hold five large-scale events, and the series that will compete there in September remains a mystery.

For more information on the 2007 season, or to buy tickets to the Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix after they go on sale Nov. 1, visit www.laguna-seca.com or call (800) 327-SECA.

BOOK

the company's Lagorio Archives for the book.

"Capturing the essence of the heritage of Pebble Beach is what we were trying to do with this book," Hotelling said.

Besides plenty of photographs of golfers and golf courses, the book features shots of the numerous celebrities and dignitaries who visited Pebble Beach.

"We had thousands of images to choose from, which was kind of fun," Hotelling said. "It was tough to choose."

Most of the black and white photographs were taken by Julian P. Graham, who was Pebble Beach's staff photographer from 1924 to 1963, and William C. Brooks, who assisted Graham until 1986.

"The earliest image was taken about 1883," Hotelling said.

Golf aficionados won't be disappointed in the book, which offers stunning eye-level and aerial photos of Pebble Beach, its golf courses and players.

Some of the more notable photos include "golfer of the year" Ben Hogan mid-swing at the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Championship in 1947 and amateur golf champion and Pebble Beach Golf Links designer H. Chandler Egan on the 7th Hole.

"The book is really important because it captures [Pebble Beach] life over the years," Hotelling said.

One of the less glamorous but equally compelling photographs shows more than 20 young working class caddies at Del Monte Golf Course in 1917.

"That one was actually taken with a box camera; it was not a professional shot," Hotelling said.

The shot features adolescents Henry Puget, who went on to be head professional at Cypress Point from 1931 to 1971, and his brother, Cam, who became head professional at the Pebble Beach Golf Links and Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Clint Eastwood penned the book's foreword.

"The Pebble Beach Heritage Collection provides all of us a unique insight into a different time," Eastwood wrote, "while also showing us why Pebble Beach remains such a special place for all who are drawn to the Del Monte Forest today."

Photos of Dean Martin playing the straight man to Jerry Lewis' shenanigans at the 1952 Pro-Am, "Cynthia the sea lion" stealing a flagstick, and a promotional newsreel shot of a "doggie dining" event highlight Pebble Beach's more humorous history.

A chapter in the book entitled "Honored Guests" portrays Pebble Beach's most famous visitors and sometime residents, including President Teddy Roosevelt on horseback, Charles Lindbergh in an experimental glider, Clark Gable on the Del Monte Golf Course, Beatles drummer Ringo Starr, and Salvador Dali with sugar heiress Dorothy Spreckels Munn, whom Dali painted in 1942.

"I think one of the classics is Winston Churchill with a weathered cypress," Hotelling said. "Winston only made one trip to California and he made a stop here."

An image of a younger Clint Eastwood is displayed, as well as crooner Bing Crosby, who appears in several photographs.

The book also shows the non-golf endeavors Pebble Beach hosted over the years, including the Pebble Beach Road Races, the Concours d'Elegance, sailboat races in Stillwater Cove, the Pebble Beach Cross Country Equestrian Event, the Pebble Beach Tennis Invitational and the Del Monte Kennel Club Dog Show. "They've all got a story to them, and that's what makes it fun," Hotelling said of the photographs.

"Pebble Beach Heritage Collection" is offered in three versions; a "standard edition" for $95, a "gallery edition" with a slipcover and the buyer's choice of one of five chapter prints for $225, and a "limited edition" of 995 copies that is leatherbound with clamshell casing and portfolio of all five chapter iconic prints, available for $950.

"We've actually had advanced sales," Hotelling said. "We ran an excerpt in the current in the "Pebble Beach Magazine" and the phone started running off the hook."

On Oct. 26, from 3 to 5 p.m. at The Lodge at Pebble Beach, Hotelling, who also wrote "Pebble Beach Golf Links: The Official History," will offer a program titled the "Heritage of Pebble Beach," which will include historical materials, film and photography from the Lagorio archives and a peek into the book. Advance orders for the book will be taken at the event. For more information or to make reservations, call Images at Pebble Beach at (831) 622-6538 or visit www.pebblebeach.com.

Cynthia the Sea Lion, advertised as "the world's smartest sea lion," was brought to the golf course at Pebble Beach in 1938 to demonstrate the relative ease with which one could knock the ball into the cup, according to the "Pebble Beach Heritage Collection."

beyond the whole project's January 2007 target.

"It will be a real challenge to get it done," Ruhnke said. "My feeling is the contractor is not being realistic about when they're getting the pool done, but I could be proved wrong and hope I am."

Paul said the contractor, who is paying to house his workers during the project, requested seven-day work weeks, but proximity to the neighbors might prevent that. He said crews could work 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday through Saturday.

Biasotti asked if they could do "quiet" work on Sundays, and Given commented the Carmel Panthers youth football league uses the adjacent field Sundays and is "blasting radios much louder than anything going on" at the pool.

Biasotti advised finding ways to accommodate the contractor's wish "if it helps bring this project in on time."

(The new pool is partially funded by the $21.5 million bond voters approved last November, but the nonprofit Friends of Carmel Aquatics must raise $500,000 and is seeking donations, particularly for a matching grant offer that expires Nov. 30. For more information, visit www.carmelpool.org.)

By CHRIS COUNTS

FINDING BEAUTY in the day-to-day world is a challenge for many artists. Finding something beautiful amidst the heartbreak and misery of one of the world's most horrific places is an endeavor few of them would even attempt.

Seeking a challenging subject, photographer Heather McClintock traveled to Uganda to capture images of people whose world is wracked by famine, disease and war. For her efforts, the Carmel Center for the Photographic Arts awarded McClintock the top prize in its 16th annual international juried competition. A resident of Boone, N.C., McClintock received a check for $12,000 at a Quail Lodge ceremony Oct. 20.

"Heather is really amazing," said Dennis High, executive director and curator of the nonprofit photography group. "Her images just take your breath away. Heather does more than just document the horrific. There is a sensitive, a spiritual and an almost angelic aspect to her work."

The center's gallery — which is located at Sunset Center — will host an opening reception Friday, Oct. 27, from 6 to 8 p.m., for an exhibit featuring the works of McClintock and 56 other artists from around the world who entered the annual photographic competition. The show continues through Dec. 1.

McClintock isn't the only artist who cashed in at the competition. Gregori Maiofis of St. Petersburg, Russia, captured the center's $10,000 Betty and Jim Kasson Award.

"His work has a very antiquated presentation," High explained. "It has a real old-world feel to it."

Regis Martin of Australia took home the competition's third prize, a check for $1,000.

"He's a Frenchman who moved into the Australian out-back," High said. "He did an amazing series of people in baths."

The competition annually attracts a wide variety of participants, including some of the world's most acclaimed photographers.

"Just a few years ago, Arthur Tress won the $10,000 award," High recalled. "He's one of the great artists in the world."

The competition was juried by Sarah Greenough, curator of photographs for the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. The show provides a remarkable glimpse of the state of modern photography, High explained.

"There's a little bit of everything here," he said. "You get to put your hand on the pulse of what's happening in the photographic medium today."

Sunset adds second k.d. lang date, Leo Kottke also on tap

TWO GEMS have been booked for the month of November at Sunset Center: acoustic guitar master Leo Kottke on Friday, Nov. 3, and multi-Grammy-Award-winning vocalist k.d. lang on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 8 and 9. Kottke, one of the most important and influential acoustic steel-string fingerstyle guitarists of the 20th century, has been composing, arranging and playing guitar music for more 36 years. Since the release of his first album, "6- and 12-String Guitar" in 1969, Kottke has developed a reputation for his unique and identifiable style and for concerts delivered with an endearing grace and wit. During his lengthy career, he has released 22 studio albums and four live recordings. Music starts at 8 p.m.

Having sold out her Wednesday concert, Sunset Center added Thursday, Nov. 9, in order to accommodate the demand for Canadian songstress k.d. lang. The recipient of the 1985 Canadian Juno Award for Most Promising Vocalist, lang released her first album in 1986, "Angel With a Lariat," the beginning of a long and distinguished career. In 1989 she won the first of many Grammy Awards (Best Country Vocal Performance) for her album "Absolute Torch and Twang," which also contained her first hit single "Full Moon of Love." With the release of her fourth album, "Ingénue," lang made the crossover from country music to mainstream pop, and in 2003 she won her fourth Grammy Award, this time for Best Traditional Pop Vocal Album for her collaboration with Tony Bennett "A Wonderful World." She performs at Sunset Center in support of her latest album, "Reintarnation" — a throwback to her country music days and a "reminder of how cool country music should be."

Castroville's artichokes will provide a big boost to her career, just as they did nearly 60 years ago for a then-unknown model and aspiring actress with an unforgettable smile.

"A local merchant wanted to use Marilyn Monroe's face to promote his store," explained Sullivan, who last month won a $5,000 prize for designing poster art for next year's Artichoke Festival. "He said, 'Let's make you the Artichoke Queen.'"

A few years later, Castroville hosted its first artichoke festival. And now, just as Castroville used Monroe's smile as a springboard to promote itself as the "Artichoke Capital of the World," Sullivan hopes to use the festival as a stepping stone to further her artistic career. Artichoke Festival organizers plan to print 31,000 posters and place her image on billboards in four states. "My website's address will be on all the posters," said Sullivan as she pondered the publicity windfall about come her way. "That's astounding."

The winning image, which was inspired by an original painting called "Wish," was chosen over 14 other submissions.

"The beautiful colors she used had a lot to do with her image being selected," explained Cheryl Della-Mora, North Monterey County Chamber of Commerce executive director. "It's something very different [from other submissions]. Jennifer's been a delight to work with. We're really happy her work and her ideas."

Sullivan is a rarity on the Monterey Peninsula — a young (she's 30) creative type with limited means seeking to support herself fulltime with her artwork. For a glimpse of her many talents, check out the walls of the Juice and Java coffee shop in Pacific Grove.

A native of New York, Sullivan said her creative journey began while she was still in diapers. By the time she could walk, a three-tiered Crayola crayon set had captured her imagination. By the time she was a senior in high school, she was immersed in creating watercolors and had taken every art class her school offered. Later, she attended the University of Notre Dame, where she managed to set a precedent at one of America's most prestigious colleges.

"The first day of class, I went to the art department and said, 'I want to be an artist,'" Sullivan remembered. "I was told no freshman in the history of Notre Dame had ever said that."

In 1999, Sullivan moved to the Monterey Peninsula to work as an apprentice to acclaimed sculptor Richard MacDonald. Seven years later, she's an artist in her own right, marketing cards and posters of her work in an effort to make ends meet. Such a lifestyle doesn't offer the security of a 9-to-5 job, but Sullivan is confident she's heading down the right path.

"I don't believe I've ever followed the norm," she said. "I believe in serendipity, and that involves being open to opportunities wherever they are."

Despite the challenges of living the life of an artist in one of America's highest-priced communities, Sullivan believes she's found a home.

"I love it here," she exclaimed. "I plan to never leave, except to travel the world pursuing creative endeavors."

Chefs Sean and Lisa Allen keep walkers, bikers well fed

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

BEIGNETS — THOSE lovely, light fritters dusted enticingly with powdered sugar — have been a drawing card in New Orleans coffee houses for many years. And they've been a signature dish at Monterey's Trailside Café and Coffee House since it opened eight years ago.

"The recipe for beignets has been in the family and prepared in family restaurants for years," chef/owner Sean Allen said. Lisa Allen, Sean's wife and partner in Trailside, grew up in the restaurant business and was a manager at her father's Scandia and The Avenue restaurants in Carmel-by-the-Sea (now Merlot Bistro and PortaBella).

It was restaurateur Jack Hakim who helped his daughter and son-in-law write the first menu for Trailside. It was small at first, but grew as the young couple gained confidence. There was helpful input from other restaurateur family friends, too, and Trailside line cooks brought in recipes from their families, as well.

The Allens met as students at the University of California, Santa Barbara. Sean came up the coast from Los Angeles — where he had bussed tables and worked the front of the house in restaurants — to get a degree in geography. Lisa went down the coast from the Monterey Peninsula to earn a B.A. in film studies, on the production side. After graduating two years ahead of Sean, Lisa worked in Los Angeles for a few years, as did Sean when he finished work on his degree at the university.

Soon after, Sean was hired to develop a mapping system for the Big Sur Land Trust, so they decided to move to the Monterey Peninsula, where they married.

With Lisa's practical background in the restaurant business and creativity in the kitchen, and with Sean's former cooking experience at a business park and working for a fast food franchise in Carpinteria while at school, they decided to plunge into the food industry. Restaurant space became available at perhaps one of the most beautiful sites in Monterey with the closing of the Coffee, Tea and Tea Leaf coffee shop on Wave Street.

Positioned just above Cannery Row and the recreation trail, the Trailside Café and Coffee House overlooks Monterey Bay, affording a spectacular view from the terrace of sparkling waters, cormorants at rest on old concrete pilings, seagulls circling overhead, and kayaks and sailboats gliding by.

To bring the café up to restaurant status, a full kitchen was installed, and designer Rebecca Elizabeth created an old world decor for the two inside rooms.

While Lisa ran the kitchen, Sean undertook formal training at the California Culinary Institute San Francisco at a satellite campus in Salinas, where he acquired skills in the basics of restaurant cooking and management. During his hours away from school, helped in the restaurant kitchen.

Lisa's mother, Querida King, and grandmother, Joyce Siebman, are gourmet cooks, according to Sean. They, along with her father, were inspirations for Lisa, and so she cooked at the restaurant until the first of their two children came along. Isabella, now 5, and Savannah, 2, take up a great deal of her time, but she's at the restaurant four days a week while the children are in school, and she also does the Trailside's books.

Sean puts in a good 10 to 12 hours a day at the restaurant and at home with computer, fax and cell phone, placing orders and updating menus.

Sean gives full credit to Lisa's creativity in the kitchen. The menu has evolved through the years, and lead cooks on the line are encouraged to make suggestions.

Diners who frequent the restaurant are accustomed to waiting a bit for their order to be cooked. "We strive for fresh, home-cooked American fare," Sean said, "and we try to make everything special every single time." Besides the beignets, other signature dishes are Brown Derby Restaurant's cobb salad, tempura calamari steak sandwich and fish tacos.

How to eat and drink like a king without leaving town

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

IN THE four-and-a-half years since Chef David Kinch opened what has become a "must" destination for foodies, Manresa has gained a reputation as one of the finest dining experiences in California.

The Los Gatos restaurant's name comes from the medieval town in the Catalonia region of northern Spain famous for its Gothic basilica and monastery, as well as from a beautiful stretch of beach south of Santa Cruz named by the Spanish Jesuits of early California. And its innovative cuisine has been gaining international recognition.

Manresa has consistently been designated one of the San Francisco Bay Area's top three restaurants by the Zagat Survey (behind Gary Danko and French Laundry). In April, it was named one of the world's 50 best restaurants by the London-based "Restaurant" magazine. This fall, it was among only four restaurants in the S.F. area to receive two Michelin stars in the famous guidebook's first survey of Northern California.

But if all those accolades make you want to jump in your BMW for a quick trip north, you might want to think again.

Next month, Monterey County foodophiles can get a taste of Kinch's cutting-edge kitchen craftwork when he teams up with Bernardus Lodge's Chef Cal Stamenov at "Wine Enthusiast's" "Top 100 Wines of The Year" Dinner during Monterey County Vintners and Growers Association's Great Wine Escape Weekend.

Annually, "Wine Enthusiast" publishes its prestigious "Top 100 Wines of the Year" and the MCVGA event will marry six superb gems that have received this accolade (several have sold out and will be made available from the vintners' private libraries)

Honoring the finest wines with some of the best food with a fantastic five-course menu. The menu will highlight produce from small organic farms, wild mushrooms from local foragers and fresh fish caught in Northern California waters. But far-away ingredients are also allowed. In fact, people who know his cooking are likely keeping their fingers crossed Kinch includes on the "Top 100" menu his signature savory olive madelines with red pepper gelées or his homage to Alain Passard's famous Arpège egg, a soft poached egg in its shell with herbs, butter, and maple syrup.

This gourmet evening-to-remember will be hosted by "Wine Enthusiast's" West Coast editor Steve Heimoff on Saturday, Nov. 11, at 7 p.m. at Bernardus Lodge. Tickets are $250 per person. For more information, visit www.montereywines.org serves such adventuresome breakfast fare as smoked salmon Benedict, French toast with banana and pecans, and breakfast burritos. Breakfast is served all day, while lunch is served until 3 p.m. weekdays and until 4 p.m. weekends.

The lunch menu offers exceptional quesadillas, Asian chicken salad, a grilled pesto chicken sandwich, as well as a selection of more standard dishes — all cooked to order with care.

Lisa and Sean combine sports with their busy work and child-rearing duties: Lisa hikes in Garland Park with the family's Siberian husky, Tahoe, and Sean snowboards in the winter and plays regularly with the Monterey Stinging Jellies Disc Golf Club. "Frisbee golf" lures a hundred members to games at CSUMB and Carmel Middle School.

Catering for special occasion dinners and parties is offered in the evening at the restaurant by arrangement. "We do wedding rehearsal dinners, baby showers and holiday parties," Sean said. "We have seating for up to 50 inside and on the terrace."

The terrace patio is shielded from wind by dense bushes, from the sun by umbrellas and from the cold with heat lamps. It is landscaped with Chinese lantern flowers, trumpet vines and a large, bright purple princess flower shrub in a terra cotta planter. English sparrows feel free to hop about the patio floor tidying up crumbs that have fallen their way. Recorded classic jazz and blues provide quiet background music, and on Sundays in summertime, local musician Jack Olver sings and plays cool jazz on his guitar.

Trailside Café and Coffee House is located on the lower level at 550 Wave St., Monterey. For information, call (831) 649-8600.

Pumpkin-perfect sweet treat for your ghosts and goblins

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

LIKE THEIR restaurant counterparts, home chefs prefer fresh ingredients to anything canned, frozen or otherwise processed, but that precept usually isn't followed when it comes to pumpkin and the many baked goodies containing the festive orange squash. Even now, when pumpkins are at their peak of freshness, I deem the canned, spice-free variety superior. The texture is consistently thick and, if you've ever attempted to make pies with 'from scratch' pumpkin puree (cutting, roasting, scraping, mashing), you know it's a mind-numbingly tedious task.

In the spirit of Halloween and all things fall, I like to bake several batches of these tasty pumpkin bars. The ridiculously easy-to-make recipe hails from the Big Apple's famous cupcake destination, Magnolia Bakery, where, unless customers call ahead, they can't purchase more than a dozen cupcakes per visit.

Pumpkin Bars with Cream Cheese Icing

Recipe reprinted with permission from "More from Magnolia" by Allysa Torey (Simon & Schuster)

- Bars —
- 1-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1-1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
 - 1 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1-1/4 cups canned pumpkin puree
 - 1-1/4 cups sugar

- 3/4 cup vegetable oil (preferably canola)
- 3 large eggs, at room temperature

- Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
- Grease and lightly flour a 13-inch-by-9-inch baking pan.
- In a small bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder,

- cinnamon, baking soda and salt. Set aside.
- In a large bowl, on the medium speed of an electric mixer, beat together the pumpkin, sugar, oil and eggs until smooth, about three minutes. Add the dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Stir in the pecans. Pour the batter into a prepared pan. Bake for 25-30 minutes, or until a cake tester inserted in the center of the pan comes out clean.
- Remove from the oven and allow to cool completely before icing.

- Icing —
- 8 ounces cream cheese, softened and cut into small pieces
 - 3 tablespoons unsalted butter, softened and cut into small pieces
 - 3/4 teaspoons vanilla extract
 - 2-1/2 cups sifted powdered sugar

- In large bowl, on the medium speed of an electric mixer, beat the cream cheese and butter until smooth, about 3 minutes. Add the vanilla and beat well. Gradually add the sugar, 1/2 cup at a time, beating continuously until smooth and creamy. Cover and refrigerate icing for three to four hours, but no longer, to thicken before using.

- Garnish —
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped toasted pecans (to toast, place on a baking sheet in a 350-degree oven for 15 minutes or until lightly browned and aromatic.)

- When everything is ready, ice and garnish the pumpkin bars, and cut into 12 pieces.

week. Yet touring acts have become the exception.

This weekend, The John Harris Tribute Concert, which appeared under the title, "Yesterday, Today & Tomorrow," at Monterey's Golden State Theatre last April, makes a return engagement at Monterey Live. The concert features a multimedia performance art presentation including music, stories and film clips taken during Harris' career with Nat "King" Cole, Johnny Mathis, Ann-Margaret, Teri Garr and Jim Morrison with nods to Elvis, The Beatles and the Rolling Stones. Arranger/conductor/pianist Stephen Tosh, will provide the musical accompaniment with his trio.

During the '60s Harris was a backup vocalist for Cole, Mathis and Ann-Margaret during their various tours and Las Vegas stints. A filmmaker as well, Harris was a neighbor to Garr and Morrison. In 1969, Morrison and his wife, Pamela, were building an art gallery in Beverly Hills, "Themis," for which Harris made films. These films and others are the backdrops to "The John Harris Tribute Concert," with music from the '50s, to scorching tributes to The Doors, Beatles and The Rolling Stones. Tickets and additional information are available at www.montereylive.com. Tickets can also be purchased by phone at (877) 548-3237.

"This is our major fundraiser of the year," explained Joan McCleary, office manager of the nonprofit art center. "The event typically raises $8,000 to $10,000 a year. In order to continue offering art exhibits to the public at no charge, and to provide art classes and artist studios at reduced rates, we need public support.

Each year, the art center's Gill Gallery is filled with original works of art composed in a dizzying variety of media, including oils, acrylics, sculpture, needlework, hand-painted silk and collages. Tickets — $50 for art center members and $60 for non-members — are sold in numbers equal to the number of pieces of art donated to the fundraising exhibit. The first ticket to be drawn allows the ticket holder to choose one piece from all the works in the gallery. The next ticket holder will choose from the remaining pieces, and so on. Tickets will be available at the Oct. 27 reception, and the drawing will be held Sunday, Dec. 10, at 2 p.m. For more information, call (831) 375-2208.

dents an opportunity to make their own "pinhole" cameras.

"One of the most basic cameras was made with an Altoids tin," McCleary said. "The photographs in the show are really amazing. There's a tremendous variety of work in this show."

Also opening Oct. 27 are exhibits by two local artists, Gabriele Hahn and Terrence B. Zito.

Hahn, who operates the Hahn Estates winery with her husband, Nicolas, offers a selection of oils inspired by her experiences in Africa.

"Gabriele and her husband own a ranch in Kenya," McCleary explained. "They spend several months there each year. Her oils capture the dignity and the joy of the tribal people living there."

Proceeds from the sale of Hahn's paintings support a school the couple founded on their ranch attended by more than 150 local children.

Zito, a longtime Pacific Grove watercolorist, presents an exhibit of recent oil paintings.

"A recent trip to Provence [in France] inspired him to return to oils," McCleary said. "His work is very impressionistic."

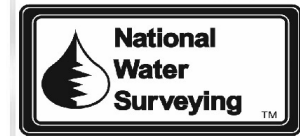

All three exhibits will continue through Dec. 10. For more information, call (831) 375-2208.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

LILY MESQUIT, 5 in December, had just come out of the water at Carmel Beach Wednesday at noon when she leaned, in a friendly manner, against us – thereby dampening our slacks from the knees down. This is par for the course on our Sandy Claws expeditions, and since nearly all our Sandys also step on our suede sandals as they cuddle in close, Lily did not disappoint.

Exuberantly happy and friendly would be good descriptions of this lovely yellow Lab whose greatest thrill every week is going to the beach with Grandmother Michiko. Dad Kenzo, 16, a Carmel High 11th grader, is at school when Lily gets her beach urges and doesn't want to wait until 3:15 p.m. for a watery romp.

Lily was adopted when she was 6 months old. A very nice 80-year-old lady soon learned a little Lab is in perpetual motion and in need of lots of walks and outings. She advertised for a new home for Lily, and the Mesquit family was the lucky applicant. Kenzo, Nana Michiko and Granddad Ron all fell in love with Lily, and she with them.

Lily enjoys dashing into the surf and getting thoroughly soaked. But what's even more fun is when she comes out of the water, She throws herself down on her back and slides in the sand, wriggling to propel herself. She usually draws an appreciative audience for this.

At home, Lily sleeps in a "Dogloo" – a doggie sort of igloo – in the garage, or sometimes in the den. The only trouble with the garage is occasionally the door is left open inadvertently, which gives Lily a chance to go exploring – sometimes three or four blocks away.

She enjoys eating raw carrots, broccoli and apples, and since there is an apple tree in the back garden, Lily takes advantage of the occasional windfall to secretly eat them out of sight of the family.

HISTORIC

Either the council could redo the ordinance and then update the context statement accordingly, or vice versa.

Roseth described it as a "chicken-or-egg problem," and said, "I don't think there is a perfect answer."

Rose warned the historic context statement "is far broader and vaguer than most people realize," and therefore "has been the source of a lot of confusion, not only among the public but for decision makers."

The consequence is inequity in historic designation of buildings, which "is a great shame," Rose said. The statement should "more closely reflect what our ordinances say, and the ordinances need to reflect what the council has done."

He said he would prefer high standards to preserve the most noteworthy properties, such as the first of a type built and the best example of a particular architectural style.

Councilman Erik Bethel agreed and said the same measures should determine whether a building is a Mills Act candidate.

"Make them the same," he said. "You can't have one standard for historicity for Carmel and another for the Mills Act."

Cunningham said they should be close, but not identical.

Since Mills Act contracts mean a reduction in property taxes, some jurisdictions limit the number that can be approved, and Cunningham suggested making them available only to those who face economic hardship as a result of historic designation.

"It's never going to be completely fair, no matter how you do it," Hazdovac said. "So I think the best we can do is tighten up our historic preservation requirements. We got off on the wrong track with the way it was done originally."

Only a few members of the public commented.

John Kerby Miller, who owns an historic home and wants it included on state and national registers, told the council, "I hope you can come up with something that helps people keep our town as historic as it can be. I hope people have the spirit this is a special town, and the old buildings help make it that way."

Changing the ordinance would require review by the historic resources board, the planning commission, the city council and the California Coastal Commission, according to Roseth. In the meantime, he said, "You have to use what you have."

Roseth said he would meet with city administrator Rich Guillen, who was on vacation and missed the Oct. 24 meeting, to determine the best course of action, and then return to the council for further direction.

takes a lot to learn how to be a handler and learn how these dogs react," Hanzelka said. "Then you go through the bonding stage."

But the lessons never end, and firefighters live with, feed and care for their search dogs full time. Hanzelka said the animals tend to be energetic, tenacious, rambunctious types who won't give up until they've completed their job, and they know how to climb ladders, get in and out of tight spaces, and root out whatever they're looking for.

"We call them Houdinis, because they'll get out of pretty much everything," said Hanzelka, who had to Ellie-proof his house in Carmel Valley Village before he brought her home.

Their first year together has been strictly regimented, with constant training that taps into the pup's love of play. Searching is the game, and playing is the reward. The search dogs learn to avoid distracting smells and sounds, and they bark and wag their tails when they make a discovery.

"We have to be able to read our dogs," Hanzelka said. "That's why we train so hard, so we'll know if and when they alert. They say to trust your animal."

It takes eight to nine months of work to pass the FEMA certification tests, according to Hanzelka, and the SDF's Irondog Canine Search Team Disaster Training & Skill Competition earlier this month helped the teams understand what will be expected of them.

Held in Irwindale at the Santa Fe Dam Recreation Area, the event tested the abilities of 60 certified dog-handler teams that encountered darkness, rubble piles, victims at significant depths and in subterranean tunnels, rappelling and unusual distractions. Dogs and handlers in training were allowed to shadow the pros.

And on Oct. 8, all competed. Dogs and handlers assigned to teams did drills showing how well they controlled their dogs and how well the dogs responded, including a timed obstacle course, a relay and commands given at a distance.

The six newly trained pairs from Monterey all did well, Hanzelka reported.

"We all finished higher than expected," he said, "and we are looking forward to testing soon."

CEQA strikes again

PROponents of incorporating Carmel Valley reacted with anger when they learned they'll have to dig into their pockets for an EIR before they can take their dreams of having their own city before the voters. But they directed their outrage at the wrong people.

The Local Agency Formation Commission that voted for the EIR isn't the problem. Its members aren't corrupt or stupid or trying to prevent the incorporation from taking place. They're just following a state law — a cumbersome, burdensome, ridiculous law which has been converted from its original, admirable purpose (protecting the environment) into a bludgeon which is mainly used to inflict delay, expense and emotional distress on people who have the gall to try to build something.

In this case, the pain caused by the California Environmental Quality Act is being inflicted not on people who want to build something, but on people who want to make sure as little as possible is built in Carmel Valley. They want their own mayor and city council, among other reasons, so they can start requiring more EIRs in the valley. (The phrase, "hoisted by your own petard," invariably springs to mind.)

But to get there, they need the approval of a duly designated government agency, LAFCO. And that agency cannot allow any new city, school district or water utility to be created without assessing its possible environmental impacts. If these impacts could be considered "significant," an EIR is required. And, as many people have painfully become aware over the last 30 years, the bar for determining "significance" is awfully low.

Furthermore, once it is decided an EIR is appropriate, the bar for determining what should be in it is also very low. Yet the standards are very high for how thorough an EIR must be. That's why they can run thousands of pages and cost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Even the greenest local activist knows how to exploit this situation. To thwart or discourage a developer, first demand that whatever he's up to be the subject of an EIR. Then, demand that the EIR look at every subject under the sun, with as many supporting studies as possible.

After it has been written, no matter how thorough it is, denounce it as inadequate, submit as many criticisms as you can think of, and protest that the EIR must be rewritten. Once it has been finalized, file a lawsuit claiming it is insufficient. If you win on even the smallest point, ask for hundreds of thousands in legal fees.

Even better, if you play your cards right, the legal wrangling will go on so long that, when the courts have at last deigned to allow the project to proceed to a final permit hearing, you can go back to the agency that required the EIR and ask them to require a new one, because the original one is out of date. Etc., etc., etc.

That's the way the CEQA game is played. It shouldn't be. But it is.

We support the right of the people of Carmel Valley to incorporate if they want to. They should not have to prepare an EIR or pay alimony to Monterey County to fulfill their right to self-determination.

Unfortunately, state law does not agree. The proponents should turn to Sacramento for CEQA relief. The state Legislature created the CEQA mess, and they can fix it anytime they want to.

Dear Editor,

I couldn't help but shake my head when I read the Oct. 3 letters to the editor which excoriated a majority of the Carmel City Council for its vote on the Homescapes Building. Barbara Livingston's vitriolic (and personal) attacks were to be expected, and only served to underscore the desperation of a dwindling number of naysayers whose views have been consistently rejected by our voters in recent years, but Olof Dahlstrand's recriminations were different. It's sad to see negative comments coming from a Carmel true legend who would substitute his subjective judgment for the rule of law — which he characterizes as mere "small print." Thankfully, our City Council was not thrown off course by sentimentality. What's right is right.

Gerard Rose, city council member,
Carmel-by-the-Sea

Hiring a mayor

Dear Editor,

At a recent candidates forum, mayoral candidate Susan Goldbeck presented an analogy of hiring an employee to help people decide who to vote for. Aside from having a record, commitment, performance, and a vision, these important questions entered my mind. "How well will this individual work with my employees?" "Will my employees want to work with this individual?" The answers would impact my customers.

What she did not address were the personal traits of integrity, trust, ethics, professionalism, consistency, loyalty and the ability to build consensus, all necessary to being a successful employee. Hiring an employee requires you to look beyond the individual in front of you and their record. A good employer would want to know how and what types of actions were taken to achieve such a record.

Dan Cort has all the traits we look for in an outstanding employee. He is an extraordinary individual, a gentleman, and his impeccable record speaks for itself.

Since becoming Mayor of Pacific Grove, his ability to deal with our City's problems, conflicts, and adversarial relationship(s) has truly demonstrated that he works well with people, and people want to work with him.

Carmel Plaza party raises $51K for Peninsula youth charities

MORE THAN 400 people attended Carmel Plaza's grand reopening party Saturday, raising $51,000 for the Carmel Youth Center and the Boys & Girls Club of Monterey County. Both nonprofits sold all their tickets to the $200-per-person affair, which was held at the newly remodeled Plaza and included drinks, hors d'oeuvres and live Cirque de Soleil-style performances.

According to the Plaza's public relations firm, the "recent renovation enhances its European-style village appeal, complete with luxury retailers and personalized services, making it a top-rated destination among the Monterey Peninsula's seven million visitors a year."

The remodel, which included updating decades-old buildings, removing a fountain and outdoor escalators, opening up the view into the courtyard from Ocean Avenue, and revamping the Ocean Avenue storefronts, took more than a year to complete.

The event also celebrated the arrival of new key retailers Wilkes Bashford and Anthropologie, as well as J. Crew-by-the-Sea and Louis Vuitton. Anchor tenant Tiffany &

Co. opened in the corner spot at Ocean and Mission in June 2005, and other businesses moving into the center indicate the Macerich Company's desire to attract upscale shoppers to the Plaza.

With the assistance of Mayor Sue McCloud, Macerich Senior Vice President of Leasing Randy Brandt cuts the ribbon on the remodeled Carmel Plaza Saturday. A fundraiser for local youth programs helped launch a new, more upscale image for the shopping center, which has acquired numerous new stores. Macerich has owned Carmel Plaza since 1998.

'A great success'

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Yellow Brick Road Benefit Shop's volunteers, staff and generous donors. I am writing to thank you for Chris Counts' article about our Nov. 21 Art Show. We were delighted by the story's front page placement, and thrilled by its inclusion of Salvador Dali's art in color.

Due to your story, the show was a great success. Buyers waited in line on Saturday, most of the pieces were sold, and we anticipate selling the remainder this week.

Furthermore, everyone raved about Chris' article. Enthusiastic Yellow Brick Road supporters mailed copies nationwide — to Florida, Pennsylvania, Texas, Arizona, and of course throughout California — east to west.

It is rare that Yellow Brick Road receives donations the likes of a series of Dali and

Tim Allen & Team present Al Smith's "Carmel Legends"

Values in Carmel

Bill Bates is too young to be a legend. But his illuminating insights into the Carmel mystique have forced him into that category before his time. Today's illustration, pinpointing the ambivalent nature of Carmel demonstrates it. Many artists, writers and even musicians have tried to capture the essence of this one-of-a-kind place, but few have caught it as well as BATES. You'd think he was born here. Not so. He came from Tyler, Texas, spent some years in the Air Force, was a cartoonist on a major San Francisco daily, did tongue-in-cheek portraits of classic comedians and great golfers. He lived in the South Seas for a time and produced memorable watercolors, etchings and lithographs of the Fiji Islanders. Forsaking his Gauguin period, he came back to Carmel and spent much of the 60's kidding Carmel. In the 80's, he sailed as a Cruise Director for Royal Viking Lines, where he produced over three thousand drawings from around the world. You may know him best for the mural on the wall of Nielsen's Market, a perceptive (and funny) map of Carmel done with Carol Minou, which is a guide to tourists and locals alike. BILL BATES currently maintains a studio in San Francisco, spends his summers in Woodside, and says, "I left my heart in Carmel." You'll see more of him here.

Monterey Peninsula real estate markets in major downturn

Third quarter report

HOME SALES on the Monterey

House Talk

By Paul & Nellie Brocchini and Mark Ryan

Peninsula suffered a major slowdown in the third quarter. The 10-year bull market in local real estate has definitely come to an end.

No one should be surprised. We live in a world of free markets, which do not run in one direction. People keep asking us what has caused the slowdown. Was it higher interest rates? A constant stream of news stories that the housing "bubble" would soon "burst?" Asking prices that were too high?

The answer is all of these and more. The "more" is the upward market simply ran out of gas — and not just here. Real estate is down all over the country. On a recent trip to San Diego, we read some sellers were resorting to auctions and offering major incentives to get rid of their properties. Fortunately, we are not at that point. But the year-to-year decline in the Peninsula real estate market is impressive.

The total sales volume numbers tell the tale. In the third quarter of 2005, the 10 Peninsula markets grossed $519,318,000. This year that figure declined 41 percent to $306,059,000. That is 211 million fewer dollars changing hands than last year — real money even in Pebble Beach and Carmel!

The high-and low-value markets were battered: Carmel, $133,700,000 in sales in the third quarter last year, versus $84,579,000 this year, off 37 percent; Pebble Beach, $62,755,000 versus $46,983,000, off 25 percent this year; Carmel Valley, $58,974,000 versus $25,973,000, off 56 percent; Marina, $30,461,000 versus $17,927,000, off 41 percent; Seaside, $45,877,000 versus $19,260,000, off 58 percent.

Unit sales in the 10 markets dropped 41 percent, from 409 in the third quarter of 2005, to 243 in the same quarter this year.

Median sales prices were all over the map — some up, some down. The interesting point is in spite of the steep decline in demand, sellers have not caved on prices. Sellers who insist on asking prices equal to or higher than the numbers achieved last year are, for the most part, sitting out there with little chance of selling. Sellers who are willing to look at this year's ranges and price their properties accordingly significantly increase their prospects of finding a willing and able buyer.

But some successful sellers are still receiving excellent prices for their properties. The median sales prices clearly show this: Carmel, $1,550,000 last year and a small decline to $1,500,000 this year; Carmel Valley, $1,300,000 down to $1,235,000; and Marina, $709,000 to $650,000.

Did you know...

Maybe overfishing caused the collapse of the Monterey sardine industry in the 1940s and '50s, as many people believe, but maybe not. Scientists have not reached a consensus on the question, pointing to deep natural biological shifts in the Pacific Ocean as a possible culprit in the plummeting stocks of sardines caught locally. Research on this topic continues today at local institutions.

But Pebble Beach's $1,560,000 median price in the third quarter last year went way up to $2,413,000 this year (a number distorted by the small number of sales). Monterey also went up, from $880,000 last year to $928,500; Pacific Grove, $842,000 to $895,000; and Seaside $559,500 to $642,000.

The Distribution of Sales Chart continues to show just how expensive housing is on the Peninsula. Eleven percent of the sales during the quarter were more than $2 million, and a full 31 percent more than $1 million. At the other end of the spectrum, only 23 percent of the sales were less than $700,000, almost all of those in Marina and Seaside.

On Oct. 1, the Market Barometer readings (the percentage of listings in escrow) were quite low. Only two markets, Del Rey Oaks and Monterey topped 20 percent, our minimum number for a decent market. Even these two were down from last year. The major declines were Pacific Grove, 49 percent to 14 percent; Marina, 39 percent to 9 percent; and Salinas-Monterey Highway, 42 percent to 8 percent. These low Barometer numbers augur a slow fourth quarter.

It is impossible to know where we go from here. We have read national commentators predicting a two- to three-year slump. But your guess is probably as good as theirs. We have used the famous quote of Danish physicist, Niels Bohr, before, but we still love it, so here it is again. Bohr said: "I refuse to make predictions, especially about the future."

That is what we say, too!
