Scientist's close encounter with lion on the hunt

By CHRIS COUNTS

AS THE resident director of the 2,500-acre Hastings Natural History Reservation since 1989, Mark Stromberg has had countless opportunities to observe the life and death struggles inherent in the animal kingdom. But nothing he had ever seen compared with the attack he witnessed two weeks ago.

On the morning of Jan. 12, Stromberg was on his way from staff housing on the reserve to his office, about one mile away. He was on a familiar path alongside a creek when he was surprised by a deer.

"The deer rushed across the trail," Stromberg recalled. It could have been one of three young males he had seen grazing nearby, where several oak trees have been dropping a lot of acorns.

But looking up the hill toward his office, Stromberg was shocked to see what was happening to another deer.

"I could see a mature buck rolling on the ground with a mountain lion biting its neck," he recounted. "They rolled together several times, and after about three flips from one side to the other, the deer remained on one side and did not move."

BOARD OKS TEEN'S SKATEBOARD RAMP

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE NEIGHBORS complained the teenagers who use it make too much noise, smoke cigarettes and sometimes even sleep on it. A city planner recommended requiring it be torn down. But the Carmel Design Review Board did not see the 12-foot-by-27-foot skateboard ramp in the yard of an Atherton Road home as a nuisance or illegal, and unanimously approved it Wednesday afternoon.

James and Ruth Smith said their son, a Carmel High School honors student, built the ramp last summer. Their neighbors, Al and Pauline Giordano, filed a code violation complaint with the city in June, citing "noise problems and impacts to property values."

Senior planner Sean Conroy said the ramp encroaches into required setbacks, a public right of way and a scenic easement.

The zoning code and residential design guidelines don't mention skateboard ramps at all — but that doesn't mean they're allowed, Conroy said. And despite the Smiths' proposal to move the ramp out of the scenic easement, paint it brown, screen it with a hedge, and cap it at 4 feet high, he concluded "the ramp is not consistent with the goal of preserving and enhancing the informal, forest setting and is not consistent with the neighborhood character."

Ruth Smith told the board her son, Dusty, "realized there aren't many legal places to skate around Carmel," so he talked with a contractor who advised him the ramp wouldn't need a permit because it's not permanent.

Dusty built it, but "unfortunately, he did it on a scenic easement," she said. The Smiths apologized for not ensuring the ramp was in a proper location.

She said it's barely visible from the roads near their half-acre property and provides a safe, supervised place for her son and his friends to play. They use it in the daytime, spending more hours on it in the summer than during the school year, and the noise barely competes with that generated by the Junipero Serra School across Rio Road.

She acknowledged teenagers can be messy, loud and even "a little obnoxious in a way, but there's no law against them in Carmel."

Also, teenagers don't stay that way for long.

'Headache-inducing' noise

But the Giordanos' lawyer, Bill Daniels, said the ramp has prevented the couple from selling their house. He provided photos showing sleeping bags on it and said, "I don't believe outdoor sleeping is consistent with the use of the scenic easement."

Middle school student dies in DUI wreck

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A CARMEL Middle School seventh grader died Saturday night when she was thrown from a car that overturned on Highway 1 just south of Piedras Blancas in San Luis Obispo County. A California Highway Patrol officer arrested 25-year-old Gorda resident Jason Halvorson for felony drunken driving and manslaughter in the death of Cessair Zadurski, who was 12.

CHP public information officer Scott Koolman, who works in the Templeton office, said Zadurski's mother, River Marcum, might be charged with child endangerment. Reportedly Halvorson's girlfriend, Marcum sustained minor injuries in the crash and was treated at Twin Cities hospital in Templeton, where her daughter, who was not wearing a seat belt as she lay across the rear seat of the 2000 Pontiac Grand Am, was also taken and pronounced dead.

According to Koolman, Halvorson was driving southbound on Highway 1 just south of the Piedras Blancas lighthouse at a "high rate of speed" when he lost control of Cessair Zadurski (top) and Jason Halvorson.

Former parishioner sues Episcopal rector for defamation, fraud

■ He says he was actually defending woman's reputation

By KELLY NIX

A FORMER member of St. John's Chapel in Monterey has sued the church's priest for defamation, emotional distress and fraud, claiming he spread sordid rumors about her to fellow parishioners, refused her communion on Ash Wednesday and barred her from the parish.

Rayn Random, 73, alleges William Martin, the Episcopal chapel's rector, carried out a "campaign of defamation" against her in an effort to drive her from the church. The case is set to go before a jury in February.

"[Martin] told parishioners of St. John's and others that Random tried to lure him into her hot tub, that it was necessary to get a restraining order against her, that she is actually a man and not a woman, and that her breasts were false,"

Random alleged in court documents.

The suit, filed in February 2006, also claims Martin told others Random made inappropriate sexual advances toward him, that she stalked him and that she made numerous harassing telephone calls that required Martin to change his number.

Martin's Sacramento-based attorney, Michael LeVangie, declined to comment on specifics of the case, but said the dispute should have been resolved within the church, which recently renewed Martin's contact, instead of in the courts.

"Bill has led this church for a while now, and it is a relatively small but devout congregation," LeVangie said. "And he has done anything he can to grow a church that is communal in nature. Something like this detracts from that. It's a very unfortunate case, to be honest with you."

Random is seeking unspecified punitive damages, an amount that could be determined by a jury. Her attorney, Neil

Foundation hopes donors will help it keep cooking for seniors

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOUR DAYS a week, the nonprofit Carmel Foundation feeds hundreds of seniors who come for lunch and live music, as well as those who can't leave their homes. But after logging more than 276,100 meals during the past eight years, the commercial-grade ovens and stove are pretty tired, so development associate Jennifer Martinez is trying to raise $20,000 to replace them.

Every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, three full-time workers prepare a hot entree special (this week's included chicken Marsala and meat loaf), as well as two soups, salads, freshly baked breads and desserts, for roughly 160 members who pay a few dollars each. The kitchen also provides meals for volunteers to deliver to the homebound.

Last year, 30,000 lunches landed on plates in the dining room, and another 7,000 were taken to seniors unable to leave home because of illness, frailty, surgery or full-time caregiving for someone else. Martinez said the dining room is filled to capacity most days, and the delivery program has a waiting list.

Foundation members are 55 and older and pay low dues to belong to the nonprofit, which receives no government funding. It relies entirely on donations from individuals, businesses and charitable organizations to offer low-cost meals, classes, medical transportation, shopping jaunts, field trips, and other activities and services. It's also the main provider of affordable senior housing in town.

The luncheon program, which began in 1965 with monthly potlucks hosted by volunteers, provides not just healthful food, but live music and social interaction, for a segment of the population known to suffer isolation and poor nutrition, according to Martinez. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, in 2000, 1.47 million senior households reported lacking adequate nutritious food to stave off hunger and stay healthy.

"Proper nutrition improves and maintains good health, and good food adds enjoyment to the spirit of living," she said. While healthy eating contributes to better quality of life and greater independence for older people, poor diet can prolong recovery from illnesses and lead to costly and frequent institutionalization.

Last year, the lunches and homebound delivery program cost the foundation $313,660.

Martinez said the foundation recently scraped together funds to buy a new freezer in the 800-square-foot kitchen, but the stove and ovens are more costly to replace, so the nonprofit hopes its supporters will pitch in to cover the expenses.

For more information about the foundation, visit www.carmelfoundation.org. To make a donation, call Martinez at (831) 624-1588 ext. 45.

Cal Am to drill $2 million desal 'test well' in Marina

By KELLY NIX

CALIFORNIA AMERICAN Water Co. is taking steps to build what amounts to a second pilot desalination facility using underground intakes — technology highly favored by environmentalists and the California Coastal Commission.

The $2 million test facility will be located about 300 feet inland from Marina State Beach off Highway 1 and would employ diagonally drilled wells to draw water from beneath the ocean floor. The project could be up and running as early as July.

"We think that the coastal commission will look favorably on this," said Catherine Bowie, Cal Am's community relations manager, "because the staff and the commissioners have expressed strong interest in it."

At a meeting in San Francisco in December, the coastal commission voted to issue Cal Am a permit for a pilot desal plant at the Moss Landing power station. That desal plant would draw its water from the power station's cooling system — a method loathed by environmentalists and the coastal commission's staff because larvae, plankton, small fish and other marine organisms are killed when they are drawn into the power plant's ocean intakes.

Not only is the coastal commission likely to prefer a pilot plant that uses wells, there is a greater likelihood the commission would approve a full-scale desalination facility that doesn't rely on open ocean intakes. By drawing water from beneath the ocean floor, or from briny aquifers below the beach, the desal plant would have little or no impact on marine life, according to Cal Am's plan.

Cal Am took the first step Jan. 16 when it sent the California Public Utilities Commission a detailed overview of the Marina pilot desal project. If the PUC approves it, the plan will go before the county, the State Water Resources Control Board and the coastal commission for consideration.

Bowie stopped short of calling the Marina test wells a pilot desal plant — although that's essentially what the project would be.

Exploring subsurface wells is "really just part of Cal Am's commitment to looking at any feasible technology and seeing what will work best" as the company tries to comply with a 1995 order that it drastically reduce pumping from the Carmel River, she said.

"The whole reason for these [test wells] is to protect the Carmel watershed," Bowie added.

Underground wells have long been used in the petroleum industry but are still considered experimental technology for desalination.

To build a pilot plant in Marina, Cal Am plans to work with members of an engineering team that successfully installed slant wells for a Dana Point desal project in Orange County.

Slant wells are more expensive to build than ocean intakes. But they can be cheaper in the long run because the water they produce is easier to treat.

Not everyone is convinced subsurface drilling is the best method to supply water for desalination. The Monterey County Agricultural and Historical Land Conservancy, which owns about 15,000 acres in Salinas Valley, contends beach wells would exacerbate saltwater intrusion beneath valuable farmland.

"This proposal will adversely affect and damage our groundwater rights and supplies," the group's Nov. 6 letter to the public utilities commission stated.

But Cal Am said engineers believe drawing water from Marina — where wells would be 375 feet in length and drilled at a 36-degree angle toward the ocean floor — could actually help prevent the advancement of seawater intrusion.

The water company hopes to collect enough data from test operations in Moss

Landing and Marina over the next six months to determine which location is preferred for a large-scale desal plant, said

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Car roof makes a poor trampoline

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 11

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Welfare check on Camino Real. Female reported her daughter was diagnosed with postpartum psychosis and was staying at the above noted location. Additionally, the daughter made threatening remarks toward her husband to the reporting party. The subject is angry due to her husband keeping their baby out of the area instead of letting the baby be with the subject. Contacted the subject in her hotel room and noted that she did not pose any danger to herself or others and was not gravely disabled. The subject stated her mother misinterpreted the comments made, and she had no intention of harming her husband or herself. The subject stated that she should be taking medication, but was not, due to fear of losing her child.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Loose dog on San Antonio Avenue. A citizen reported a possible injured loose dog in the area stated above. Officer transported the dog to the Carmel Police Department and secured him in the kennels. No injuries were found on the dog. The owner information was obtained through the dog license on the collar. The dog was lost from the owner on Carmel Beach. Kennel fees were paid and the dog was released to the owner at 1652 hours.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Unlicensed driver on Ocean Avenue. Person reported a 14-year-old female driving her parents' vehicle with their knowledge. The reporting party was following the driver, but due to traffic, officers were unable to catch the driver. The RP was able to catch her and stopped her. The RP drove her home. The girl and her parents came to the station at the officer's request and were counseled. The parents stated that sometimes they allow the girl to drive around a gated community. They were counseled and warned as well.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Welfare check on a dog at an 11th Avenue residence. Dog appeared fine and information was forwarded to animal control.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Alarm activation at Camino Real and Eighth. Both units on scene of a hotel structure with nothing showing. After investigating, there was no fire problem found and the alarm system was reset by the hotel manager. Ambulance and engine dispatched to another call.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Medical emergency on San Antonio. Both units on scene. The patient was an adult female who fell. The patient was treated and transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance dispatched to a medical emergency on Greenfield Place with Cypress Fire. Ambulance arrived at the scene of a patient complaining of leg pain. Patient treated with ALS procedures and prepared for transport from the second story of the residence. Patient transported to CHOMP Code 2.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Smell of natural gas on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Crews were met on scene by workers on the roof of the Doud Arcade who reported they could intermittently smell natural gas on the roof area. Investigation of the roof area found an open, unused and leaking half-inch gas line where the shutoff valve was not closed properly. Crews plugged the open line and fully closed the gas valve. Fire engine and ambulance available; chief returned.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance dispatched to Schulte Road for a victim of a burn. Patient walked to ambulance and was assisted inside. Treated for burns suffered after exposure to a structure fire. Transported to CHOMP Code 3.

Carmel area: An anonymous party reported a license plate was found in the Crossroads area.

Carmel area: Victim on Lower Walden Road advised unknown perpetrator(s) stole his SKS semiautomatic rifle.

Carmel area: A motorist was stopped for vehicle code violations and was found to be driving on a suspended driver license. The driver was cited and released, and the case forwarded to the district attorney's office for prosecution.

Carmel Valley: A Schulte Road residence sustained extensive damage due to a fire. The sole occupant was able to exit the residence but needed to be transported to CHOMP for burn injuries.

Sheriff offers cash to lure candidates for 35 deputy openings

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE MONTEREY County Sheriff's Office has so many job openings, it's offering a signing bonus to people who successfully apply for deputy positions, according to Cmdr. Lisa Nash. New recruits will have $700 added to their first paycheck, receive $1,050 after 90 days on the job, and be given an extra $1,750 on their first anniversary.

"In law enforcement, everybody's having problems filling positions, so the hiring bonuses are supposed to make them more inviting," she said.

The application process to become a deputy can also be arduous. But county sheriff Mike Kanalakis hopes the bonuses will make people more willing to endure.

Nash said being a deputy sheriff is interesting, the possibilities for promotions are plentiful, and the pay and benefits are good.

"We just had a very nice contract come through with the county," she said. The deputies successfully negotiated a 2.2 percent pay raise this year and had a seventh promotional step added to their salary scale. Once hired and finished with the academy, deputies move up a step each year.

"So the deputies now are making $54,456 per year at the first step and $74,380 at the seventh step," Nash said. By the end of the three-year contract, that top pay will reach $79,911 per year. "And that's without stipends, such as if you're a member of the jailhouse emergency response team, or bilingual, or on the SWAT team or have extra certificates."

In addition, "the benefits package is pretty competitive," Nash said. And in a sweet deal at the end of the road, the sheriff's department pays "3 percent at 50" retirement, meaning employees who quit at or after age 50 will receive retirement pay equaling 3 percent of their final salary for each year of service. A deputy at top level retiring this year after just 20 years with the department would be entitled to receive about $45,000, plus cost-of-living increases, for life, and probably still be plenty young enough to start another career.

The right people for the job

About 35 sworn positions with the sheriff's department are available, according to Nash.

Candidates must first pass written, physical ability and drug tests. Many fail to make it past those initial steps or are disqualified for having a felony conviction. For the rest, there's an extensive background check. Investigators contact friends, family members, former coworkers and others to develop an accurate picture of the person and determine whether law enforcement — a job that invests people with a lot of power and commands great responsibility — is a good fit.

If so, the applicant must then pass a psychological evaluation and a physical medical exam. If all is in order, the sheriff has the final say on whether to green-light the person, according to Nash.

Once hired, recruits are assigned to the

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CARMEL

FEBRUARY 2007

624-2522

www.carmelcalifornia.org

"WHAT'S GOOD FOR CARMEL BUSINESS IS GOOD FOR CARMEL!"

I'm proud to have been selected by the board of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce to be their chairman for 2007. My commitment is twofold; first, to get to know as many of you as possible so I can listen to your concerns as well as your suggestions on how the Chamber can best serve you. And, second, to work closely with the City to ensure we both meet those goals designed to attract more visitors and so increase revenue for the benefit of our residents and the business community.

Micheal Adamson
Board Chair,
Monterey County Bank

So what is the outlook for 2007? We know we are experiencing a downturn in the real estate market and this continues to affect retail sales. A recent economic forecast for California predicts a not too dramatic 2% statewide decline in median home prices and, based on what has occurred in the past, we should not be as badly affected as other areas. With our moderate climate, a truly unique environment and being relatively immune from natural disasters, this continues to be a most desirable place in which to live and to work. However, we have got to make Carmel a more exciting destination for our visitors who have so many other choices these days.

Nationwide, unemployment is down, inflation appears to be under control and the stock market is at an all time high. So, unless something unexpected occurs, 2007 should be a good year; hopefully for all of us.

On behalf of the Chamber of Commerce board and staff, I wish you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Pets, people safer after Red Cross classes

THE CARMEL chapter of the Red Cross will offer first-aid and safety classes for humans, as well as its popular course on first aid for pets, next month.

Pooches and kitties with wounds, burns, fractures, shock or sudden illness will be better off if their humans learn the ins and outs of immediate and temporary care of those afflictions, and the Red Cross considers the pet first-aid course one of its most popular. The class will be held Wednesday, Feb. 28, from 6 to 9:30 p.m., and participants will be asked to bring photos of their pets and will receive a reference book summarizing the lessons learned.

On the people-helping-people side, the Carmel chapter will host its comprehensive three-day class in community first aid and safety Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 5-7, in the evenings. Participants, who can pay $40 per night or $55 for all three, will learn CPR for adults, infants and children, and how to identify and care for life-threatening bleeding, sudden illness and injury. Upon completion, certificates will be issued for CPR, valid for one year, and first aid, valid for three years.

An adult CPR/AED (automated external defibrillator) class will be held Saturday, Feb. 17, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., for $50, and a standard first-aid class, including adult CPR and first aid with AED, will be offered Saturday, Feb. 24, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The fee for that class is $45. Call (831) 624-6921 to register.

Historic board grants Branch, Twig appeal in minutes flat

By MARY BROWNFIELD

IN WHAT likely set a record for its shortest meeting ever — less than 10 minutes — the Carmel Historic Resources Board speedily took care of routine business and then unanimously granted homeowner Luella Richter Floyd's appeal to have her Monte Verde Street home removed from the city's list of historic properties.

At their Jan. 22 meeting, board members learned Floyd's two Craftsman-style cottages, named Branch and Twig, were not designed or constructed by master builder M.J. Murphy, though he worked on a major remodel on the property. And without the strong association with Murphy, they cannot be considered historic based on looks alone, senior planner Sean Conroy told the board.

It was not the first time HRB members pondered the significance of the cottages. Floyd's appeal came before the board last October, but members delayed a vote on her appeal so historian Kent Seavey, who first reviewed the cottages in 2004 and concluded Murphy had a hand in their design, could take another look.

"During the initial review, there were substantial questions as to what role M.J. Murphy actually had on the property," Conroy said. "And there were questions whether the property would qualify as significant if those connections could not be verified."

In November, Seavey sent a letter recommending the city remove the cottages from the list of buildings that must be preserved.

His review of the property file showed no builder's name on the original building permit issued in 1924, though records show a carpenter named John T. Black did the construction work, which cost $2,500.

In 1927, the owner, Etta Fletcher, hired Murphy to remodel one of the cottages and add a garage. "At $1,500, Murphy's 1927 remodel of Branch was a major undertaking," Seavey wrote.

But that tie isn't enough to require the cottages' preservation, he said.

"Based on the new information found regarding the buildings, I would recommend their removal from the 2001 Carmel Historic Resources Inventory, as the record is mute on their builder and any contributions he may have made to the architectural character of Carmel," he wrote.

Floyd asked the board to grant her appeal because her home does not meet the criteria for historic preservation.

"There's no evidence the property is associated with a significant person or event in its history, and there's also no evidence that it's the work of a master builder," she said. In addition, the list contains many other better examples of Craftsman-style architecture.

"The board already agreed that age does not equate with historical significance, so again I request that you accept my appeal," she said.

Conroy also recommended the board grant Floyd's request.

"This is pretty straightforward," said board member Julie Wendt. "I think some nice research was done, and follow up, and this is how we go about perfecting our survey."

She made the motion to remove Floyd's property from the inventory, and the board, absent member Erling Lagerholm, unanimously voted to grant the appeal. That was the only hearing scheduled for the Jan. 22 meeting, which ended less than 10 minutes after chairman Erik Dyar banged the gavel to open it at 4 p.m. following a brief tour of the property.

M.J. Murphy did not build Branch and Twig, the Craftsman-style cottages at Monte Verde and Ninth, in 1924, so the city decided they are not historic.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
 Meg Parker Conners, R.N.

BURNING DESIRE TO LIVE LONGER

There is now evidence to show that the more calories you burn, the longer you may expect to live. In fact, even performing everyday chores may prolong your life. So says a study conducted by the National Institute on Aging, which followed over 300 healthy seniors for six years. The most active among these mature adults burned 2,611 calories daily while those in the least-active group only burned 1,766 calories per day. At the end of the study, it was found that the most active individuals were 70 percent more likely to be alive. According to the researchers, for every 287 additional calories that seniors expended each day, their mortality risk decreased 30 percent.

A longer life gives us more time in which to lead a better life. Getting at least 30 minutes of physical activity every day is key to living longer. It does not have to be done all at once — accumulating 30 minutes throughout the day is fine. No one is too old or too out of shape to make small changes toward increasing physical activity. The compassionate caregivers at VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES are professionally trained and possess a comprehensive understanding of community resources. We provide care in all types of settings — at home, or in one of our assisted living facilities

P.S. The most active seniors who were mentioned in the study cited above expended extra calories by performing mundane chores such as cleaning, gardening, and climbing stairs.

Carmel Valley

Commission to consider bed and breakfast, large home

THE MONTEREY County Planning Commission will hold hearings on two local development projects Jan. 31. The first aims to convert a single-family residence at 350 Los Agrinensors in Carmel Valley into a bed and breakfast. The county's staff has not recommended approval or denial.

The second project consists of a proposed 7,734-square-foot single-family residence with an 850-square-foot detached senior housing unit. The project, located at 1306 Portola Road in Pebble Beach, would also include removal of 47 Monterey pines (nine of which are more than 24 inches in diameter). The county planning staff has recommended it be approved.

The planning commission will meet in the board of supervisors chambers in Salinas.

county jail for about two years.

"Working there is a real asset in learning the job and learning the people that are part of the job," Nash said. "I think the jail offers a lot in that respect."

Later, deputies can sign up to work in any number of departments — not just patrol, but special units such as those fighting narcotics or gangs, the coroner's division or the bailiffs' unit.

"There's a lot opportunity to move around," she said.

The sheriff's office will next provide a chance for job seekers to take the written test Feb. 23 and 24, and a round of physical ability testing is set for March 16. Additional dates may be scheduled, and anyone interested in applying should visit the sheriff's website at www.co.monterey.ca.us/sheriff or call Nash at (831) 759-7259.

LION

With the lion firmly gripping its shoulders and biting its neck, the deer seemed to be near death.

Not wanting to disturb the scene — but also wanting to photograph it — Stromberg headed back down the trail to get his camera.

But suddenly, the deer that was attacked "rushed out of the forest and turned uphill along a road, followed closely by the lion," Stromberg said.

Apparently, the deer had been playing dead. Or perhaps the lion loosened its grip after being distracted by the sound or smell of a human. Either way, the deer had escaped.

"I retrieved my camera and drove up to get our field assistants (Ryan Drobek and Bridgett Piculell) and we went out to see if we could find the lion again," Stromberg continued. "Wet blood stood out on the leaves and grass where the deer and lion had struggled. They left deep rips in the soil and tufts of deer hair."

But tracking the hunter and its prey proved futile. The air temperature had been about about 20 degrees the previous night, and the ground was still frozen. "We tracked them about 50 yards north but lost them when they re-crossed the creek," Stromberg wrote in a blog on the Hastings website.

The encounter was a vivid reminder that, among the gently rolling hills and serene, oak-studded landscape of Carmel Valley, the uncompromising forces of nature are always at work.

"These kills must happen every day of the year," Stromberg considered. "But for the past 20 years, we've had three to five assistants spending six days a week outside observing birds or catching mice, and nobody has ever seen anything like this."

He's still kicking himself for leaving his camera behind. "I'll probably never see it again," he said.

Friend or foe?

Deer are the primary food source for mountain lions, and the existence of deer is likely an indicator of mountain lions, according to the nonprofit Mountain Lion Foundation.

The proximity of mountain lions to suburbia has long elicited fear from the human population. According to Karen Cotton, director of outreach for the foundation, that fear is largely unfounded.

"Mountain lion attacks on humans are extremely rare," Cotton explained. "In the last 111 years, there have been 18 fatal attacks in North America. It's a very primal fear, but it is so low on the scale of relative risk. Domestic dogs pose a far greater risk, yet people have no problem being friendly to dogs."

Still, Cotton suggested residents take a few precautions to avoid encouraging mountain lion encounters.

"I don't think you need to be afraid of mountain lions, but you should be smart," she said. "Mountain lions spend their lives looking for food, water and a mate. If you have deer coming into your yard, you risk mountain lions coming around. Livestock need to be enclosed from dusk until dawn. That's when mountain lions are the most active. Also, pets and pet food need to be kept inside at night."

And if, by rare chance, you encounter a mountain lion, it's best to take an aggressive approach, Cotton advised.

"Mountain lions don't like to get into fights," she said. "Look the lion in the eye. Appear as large as possible. Raise your arms over your head. Speak in a loud, firm voice. If you have a rock or a stick, throw it at it. And back away very slowly."

Despite the awkward and often uncomfortable relationship between mountain lions and humans, Cotton believes it's essential the elusive carnivores be allowed to exist in the wilds. She pointed to a new study by Oregon State University graduate students as evidence that mountain lions make an important contribution to the balance of nature.

The study, funded by tax dollars via the National Park Service, investigated the effects resulting from the mountain lions' general disappearance from Zion National Park. According to the study, "the deer population has dramatically increased, leading to severe ecological damage, the loss of cottonwood trees, eroding stream banks and declining biodiversity."

"We'd like to help people understand mountain lions and why it's a good thing to have them in your ecosystem," said Cotton.

Hastings, a biological field station for the University of California, is located along Carmel Valley Road, about 26 miles east of Highway 1. It has been in operation since 1937. The Mountain Lion Foundation, which is located in Sacramento, was started in 1989. One of its co-founders was the late Margaret Owings, a longtime Big Sur resident.

Low rainfall requires more conservation, Cal Am says

By KELLY NIX

BECAUSE OF lower than average rainfall this season, California American Water Co. is asking water customers to take extra steps to conserve.

The average rainfall for January on the Monterey Peninsula is 4.2 inches. As of Jan. 23, the Peninsula had only received 1.32 inches of rain, according to the National Weather Service branch in Monterey.

"The message we are trying to get out to people is that it's been a dry year so far," said Cal Am community relations manager Catherine Bowie. "If we don't get more rain, the resulting increase in outdoor water use will make it difficult to stay within state limits on our water supply."

Although Peninsula residents conserve more water than most communities in California, Bowie said there are still some things that can be done to conserve.

"The best thing people can do is to make sure their plants and yards really need it before they're watered," she said. "During the dormant season, plants' water needs are often very minimal, and in many cases, irrigation controllers should be turned off. If you are getting ready to plant for spring, consider drought-tolerant plants."

She said her company's pumping targets are about 30 acre-feet per day this time of year. "But we pumped 32, 35 and 34 acre-feet a few days last week."

For the rain year to date — starting July 1 — the Peninsula has an average of 9.96 inches of rainfall. So far, there's only been about 6.9 inches, according to the weather service.

The National Oceanic & Atmospheric Administration has predicted an El Niño condition that began in 2006 to continue into early 2007. That could mean above average rainfall in February and March.

"But of course," Bowie said, "that may not happen."

If Cal Am exceeds monthly pumping targets on several occasions by May 1, the end of the rainy season, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District could impose water rationing, she added.

Pebble Beach reads The Pine Cone

LAWSUIT

Shapiro, said his client simply wants vindication.

"The primary concern is to put an end to this, this absurdity," Shapiro said. "She simply wants a jury to establish that these statements come from him, were made by him, and that they are false."

The Pine Cone couldn't reach Martin for comment because he is reportedly out of the country.

The entangled case, outlined in hundreds of pages of court documents in several volumes, includes depositions by parishioners, members of the vestry and church staff who defend Martin as well as support Random's claims.

According to the lawsuit, in July 2003, Random complained about Martin's alleged comments to a former bishop of the Diocese of El Camino Real who reportedly said, "Rectors in our tradition don't apologize," but also assured Random she was still welcome to attend the church and would not be denied communion.

But on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 24, 2004, "as Random was kneeling at the communion rail, Martin refused her communion," the suit indicates. A month later, Random said she received a letter from the St. John's vestry informing her she was not a "respectful parishioner" and stating that if she ever returned to the church, she would be trespassing.

Martin refused Random communion another time and barred her from entering the church, she contends. In one instance, Martin reportedly called police saying Random had trespassed on the property. She was not arrested.

The Diocese of El Camino Real, which extends along the coast from San Francisco to Los Angeles, and oversees St. John's Chapel, is also listed as a defendant in the lawsuit.

In March 2005, at the advice of attorneys as a way of resolving the dispute, Random and Martin agreed to sign a "mutual release," a legal document preventing either party from suing.

"There was an agreement signed to put an end to this so the congregation could move forward," LeVangie said. "And instead we were faced with a lawsuit."

According to Shapiro, Martin broke the legal agreement when he allegedly told parishioners he only signed the release so he wouldn't be sued. In a Nov. 16, 2006, deposition, Martin denied making the statements about Random and said others in the church had made them.

He said he signed the release with "sincerity and in good faith" and did so because it became clear to him "that certain people in my church had possibly said things that would have been extremely hurtful to Random."

"I was taking responsibility for statements that had been received by Rayn Random, which were made by individuals to her who were under my charge," Martin said. "And so I was apologizing for those statements that were made."

In a May 3, 2006, deposition, Random said she "did a lot of crying" and was heartbroken over the case, but had not seen a psychologist or doctor about her emotional distress.

"I would go to a social gathering, and there would be people who would practically turn their backs on me, or, literally, did turn their backs on me," she said. "There were people who looked at me in kind of like sneering condescension."

According to the documents, Random moved to the Monterey Peninsula from Palo Alto in 2000 and began attending St. John's Chapel. It wasn't until 2001, after Martin was hired as rector of the church, she "became more involved in church matters and donated substantial money to St. John's."

The case was taken to the highest level of the church when Shapiro sent a letter to Frank Griswold, former presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States.

"Ms. Random's interest here is to obtain justice," Shapiro wrote to Griswold, "not to damage the image of the Episcopal Church."

St. John's Chapel is known by local Episcopalians because it uses the more conservative 1928 Book of Common Prayer, a book not widely used by most Episcopal churches, which mainly use a version updated in 1979.

The chapel also gained local notoriety for being the venue where tennis player Andre Agassi and his former wife Brooke Shields wed in 1997.

ACLU essay, art contest winners named

THE MONTEREY County Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union honored the winners of its 2007 Bill of Rights Essay and Art Contest at a ceremony at the Monterey Public Library Sunday.

The topic for the contest, open to the county's middle- and high-school students, was "Should we stop the death penalty?"

In the essay competition, Pacific Grove High School senior Daniel Lebowitz and Pacific Grove Middle Schooler Brianna Sanders took the first prizes, which came with checks for $150. Among artists, first prize in the high school division went to York senior Hannah Miller, who is also a member of the Youth Arts Collective. Beau Frank, a PGMS student, was tops among middle school artists. They each won $150.

Other honorees were Erik Kreeger (San Carlos School), Dayan Weller and Stefan Rock (PGMS), Hannah Fink, Hayley Walker and Laura Acosta (Buena Vista Middle School), Veronica Gamboa, Juliet Dominguez and Alyssa Diaz (Soledad High School), and Natalie Hirst and Sonhee Cho (PGHS).

the Pontiac. The car crossed the northbound lane, left the roadway, crashed through a fence and overturned, ejecting Zadurski. No one witnessed the accident, which occurred around 10:15 p.m. Jan. 20.

Officers took Halvorson to French Hospital in San Luis Obispo, where he underwent a medical exam for possible injuries and had blood drawn. Although toxicology results are pending, Koolman said, "All the signs and symptoms indicate he was under the influence." He was lodged at San Luis Obispo County Jail on charges of felony DUI and manslaughter, and the court set his bail at $200,000 Wednesday.

Depending on the results of the investigation, Halvorson could also be charged with gross negligence.

"We're going to look at the car and investigate the scene a little bit more, and talk to friends and relatives and find out what all went on," Koolman said. He estimated it would take another 10 days to complete the investigation.

Memorial set for Saturday

Madeline Franco, principal and kindergarten teacher at Captain Cooper School in Big Sur, said Cessair Zadurski attended the school for most of her elementary school career and caught the attention of all the teachers there. She enrolled as a sixth grader at Carmel Middle School in fall 2005.

"She was a wonderful, special little girl who was kind, well liked by all her peers and very intelligent," Franco said. In the 2005 Cooper yearbook, Zadurski wrote she "wanted to grow up to be one of the world's great mathematicians," according to Franco.

"She was such a strong person of character," she said, recalling the girl's many talents. "She was so good with helping other people with conflicts and resolving things between people."

Zadurski honed and used that skill as part of the school's conflict manager program, in which kids learn from counselors how to help students mend fences following fights on the playground.

Her death also reminded the Cooper School students and teachers of another tragedy just six months ago, when Pedro Sagrero Rivera reportedly crashed his car on Clear Ridge Road and fled the scene, leaving his 8-year-old daughter, Jacqueline, dead.

"This is the second little girl in six months who has died in a car accident," Franco said. "It's been doubly hard on the community and the staff." Many of the children at Cooper this week said hearing about Zadurski reminded them of losing their friend and classmate last summer.

Zadurski will be remembered during a memorial service set for 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 27, at the Captain Cooper School in Big Sur.

"It's my understanding we have people coming from this end of Big Sur, all the way south as far as Gorda, as well as people from the school district office and Carmel Middle School staff," Franco said. "It just impacts so many people."

'In the Mood' brings big band era to Sunset

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR A generation of young people coming of age in the 1940s, World War II presented daunting challenges and required enormous sacrifices. "In the Mood," a show that will be presented at Sunset Center Monday, Jan. 29, and Wednesday, Jan. 30, pays tribute to that generation and the remarkable big band music that provided a soundtrack for that unforgettable time.

"This show is a tribute to American music from 1935 to 1945," explained Bud Forrest, creator and producer of the show. "It's a combination of Broadway and Hollywood."

Featuring as many as 20 musicians, big bands reached the peak of their popularity during World War II. They played an upbeat version of jazz that employed saxophones, trumpets, trombones, and a rhythm section. With big bands leading the way, swing dancing became wildly popular. To this day, the 1940s are often referred to as the "Swing Era." Band leaders such as Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Duke Ellington and Count Basie were celebrities as famous as any war hero or ballplayer. For one brief, shining decade, Americans of all ages listened and danced to the same popular music.

For the past 10 years, Forrest has toured the United States and Europe with his traveling "In the Mood" show. Combining up-tempo instrumentals and intimate, romantic ballads, the show seeks to capture the energy and excitement of big band music.

From the start, "In the Mood" was a big hit with seniors. But in recent years, the show has attracted a devoted following among younger audiences, no doubt a result of a resurgence of popularity in swing dancing.

"In the Mood," which recreates the music of "Swing Era," features a trio of singers inspired by the Andrew Sisters.

"Big band music never been out of vogue," Forrest said. "Whether you're 8 or 88, the music is still relevant today."

For young and old audiences, "In the Mood" is more than just a trip down memory lane.

"We're not done making memories," he said. "We'll give the audience something to remember for a long time."

For tickets, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org. The shows begin at 8 p.m.

Local actors join forces to aid SPCA

A LOOSE-KNIT collection of actors from Carmel, Santa Cruz and points in between, the Actors Collective was formed a year ago to perform at benefits for local charities.

This weekend, the local chapter of the SPCA will be the recipient of the group's goodwill when it presents, "Noses and Ears," Jan. 26-27 at the Circle Theatre.

"This one is for the SPCA because of all the good work they do," explained Nina Capriola, who produced the play and serves as one of its three directors. "The evening will consist of a series of shorts about the animal kingdom. We're going to do a Shel Silverstein piece that's just fantastic. It adds up to a real fun and fast evening of entertainment."

"Noses and Ears" will feature the talents of many local actors, including

Three new artists highlight group show

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE WORKS of three new local artists — painter Sheila Delimont, sculptor Rick Carpenter and encaustic artist Matt Klein — will be featured in a group show opening Friday, Jan. 26, at Gallery North in Carmel. The gallery will host a reception Saturday, Jan. 27, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Also included in the show will be new works by Maria Aliotti-Ford, Tom Davies, Cornelia Emery, Bayesteh "BG" Ghaffary, Sarah Healey, Mary-Liz Houseman, gallery owner Barbara Kreitman and Holli Moon.

Delimont is a Pacific Grove artist who uses pastels to portray, in the words of Kreitman, "the many faces of the California landscape."

"Her pieces are almost like photo realism, but unlike photography, they capture the mood of the landscape," Kreitman explained. "She's a wonderful pastel artist."

LOOK MA! NO DEBT!

Let's say your Great Aunt Winnifred leaves you an unexpected little wad of cash when she passes on. The first thing that would cross some minds is a vision of paying off and canceling almost all their credit cards. What a relief!

Trouble is, the guys with the program that creates your credit score frown slightly on irregular activity in your credit accounts. Most particularly, they like to see credit card accounts that you've held on to and made regular payments on for years and years. They like that so much that many financial advisors suggest that you never close down your oldest accounts, even if you just hold on to them and never use them.

Strange, these credit matters! Things get even more confusing when you realize that some creditors never report your debt and good repayment record at all, usually because they are too small to work with the credit reporting agencies. Like it or not, an account or two with a major bank's credit card may serve you best, with your steady record of repayment being reported to the agencies promptly every month. For further help, talk with your real estate and mortgage advisors. Just call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

Carpenter, who recently moved to Salinas, uses recycled materials and found objects to create pieces that are rough and powerful.

"He was part of a recent invitational show at the gallery," Kreitman recalled. "Every one of our artists really loved his sculptures. It's rare when all of us are intrigued by someone's work."

Klein lives near San Diego, but he's planning to move to the Monterey Peninsula in April.

"His work is very meditative," Kreitman said. "When I look at the surfaces of his work, it appears to me that they are moving. It's like looking at leaves floating in water, but they're not leaves. They're abstract shapes."

The show continues through Feb. 26. The gallery is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. For more information, call (831) 620-1987 or visit www.gallerynorth.com.

Seeking sculptors

The 14th annual Carmel Art Festival is seeking sculptors to participate in its "Sculpture in the Park" competition, scheduled for May 17-20. Devendorf Park will host the exhibit, which will be juried by sculptor Albert Paley, Riverside Art Museum curator Peter Frank and local gallery owner Larry Fischer.

All participating artists need to be residents of California, and all pieces submitted in the show must have been completed in the past two years. Sculptors are invited to submit slides or photos. The deadline for sending in submissions is March 1. For more information, e-mail Jeff Durbin at jdsculpts@sbcglobal.net or visit ww.carmelartfestival.com.

SPCA

Nancy Bernhard (a North Salinas High School drama teacher), Jil Jackson (who recently appeared in "One-Eyed Charley" at the Cherry Center), Patrice Parks (Salinas High School theater teacher), Jani Davis (of the Western Stage Theatre), Jeffrey Heyer (of the Western Stage Theatre and PacRep Theatre) and many others.

The evening promises to be filled with lighthearted fun. Parks will play the operator of a baboon beauty parlor, while Davis will assume the role of Park's client, a cat. Meanwhile, Ally Abinati and Chas Croslin (of the World Theater at CSUMB) will provide a modern take on "The Fox and The Crow," one of Aesop's Fables.

"We do a lot of benefits," Capriola said. "That's how we get the cast we get with such good actors."

The Circle Theatre, which is part of the Golden Bough Playhouse, is located on Casanova between Eighth and Ninth. While there will be no admission charge to the SPCA benefit, donations are suggested and seating will be on a first come, first served basis.

SHUDDER TO THINK

If it feels like your engine is jumping around underneath the hood, the shuddering may be due to worn engine mounts. Marks on the radiator are one indication that this might be the problem. In vehicles in which the engine faces forward with the cooling fan being driven by a belt, these marks are a likely indication that worn mounts are allowing the engine to lurch forward in the engine compartment. Unlike the old days, when engine mounts were composed of simple slabs of rubber, today's mounts are precisely engineered into specific shapes. Some may be filled with silicone fluid while others may be electronically controlled. The new mounts may be more expensive to replace, but replaced they must be.

Engine mounts allow your vehicle to perform as intended; in fact your vehicle wouldn't work at all without them. Our technicians have the expertise to repair and replace your engine mounts. At the first sign of failing engine mounts, bring your car to us, so you can avoid problems caused by faulty mounts. Our services are guaranteed for 12 months or 12,000 miles with NAPA Peace of Mind Warranty, and some repairs offer extended warranties.

P. S. By the time most vehicles reach 70,000-mile mark or so, their engine mounts may be twisted out of shape or cracked due to vibration and high engine-compartment.

Expert's advice: You can't judge a wine by its color

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

MOST PEOPLE misjudge wine because they don't know how to drink it properly.

That was the message nearly 100 local food and wine professionals got at the Highlands Inn Monday.

The Monterey Bay Chapter of the American Institute of Wine and Food hosted wine expert Karen MacNeil for an all-day seminar to help people sharpen their knowledge of wine and wine tasting.

MacNeil is the chair of the professional wine studies program at the Culinary Institute of America in the Napa Valley, winner of the 2004 "Outstanding Wine and Spirits Professional" award from the James Beard Foundation, and host of "Wine, Food and Friends with Karen MacNeil" on PBS. The event was held at the Highlands Inn as part of AIWF's scholarship program and was offered at no cost to Peninsula restaurant and hospitality professionals.

MacNeil started the seminar by posing a question she'd asked Big Apple Chef David Bouley at the San Francisco Chronicle Wine Competition 15 years ago: "Do you think you know more about wine than most winemakers know about food?"

Bouley responded, "Karen, that's a ridiculous question. If you care about flavor, what difference does it make if it's solid or liquid in your mouth?"

She told the story to make a point about how we form judgments about food and wine.

According to MacNeil, just as we are intuitively accustomed to the unique tastes of steak, pork chops and chicken, we should be able to train out palates by practicing with "conscious intent" to immediately discern the differences between the flavors of Sauvignon Blanc, Pinot Blanc and Chenin Blanc.

The day was divided into two parts: Learning to identify the classic personalities of 13 classic varieties (undisclosed at the time of tasting), and in the afternoon, an exercise comparing five wines in a multitude of taste combinations with eight various food components. Students started off by writing a 10 word description of a specific wine. "To get past a three-word description is the most valuable skill," championed MacNeil.

The vivacious middle-aged redhead is a natural born educator. She knows her material inside-out and can deliver information in such a friendly and accessible manner that even the most seasoned wine enthusiasts can't help but have "Ah ha!" after "Ah ha!" moment. The Chicago Tribune referred to her as, "your favorite camp counselor. She is bright and quick, full of energy and countless tidbits of information."

Despite her affable demeanor, MacNeil is a stickler for discipline when it comes to wine tasting. "The key to describing wine well is to taste it well," she said. She explained that there are eight types of errors in the universe, and one of them — order error — applies to wine.

Many people who drink wine come to wrong conclusions because of the order the information about the wine is presented — first the look, then the smell and then the taste.

She emphasized that one should never really trust the first taste and should, “go back a few times for a reasonable assessment.”

You also can't really trust a wine's color. Sure, it indicates age, but it doesn't determine a wine's flavor or intensity, and many people fall prey to this inaccurate assessment.

After taking note of the color comes the fun part — swirling. “All young wines benefit from a vigorous swirl,” said MacNeil. It may be possible to over-swirl fragile varieties and older vintages, but swirling, followed by a series of short rapid sniffs, is the best way to get the most sensory information. And to taste, MacNeil says you don't need to, gargle or take in a lot of air. The trick is to hold it in your mouth for at least four seconds.

There are three components to tasting: body, mouth-feel (or texture) and flavor.

The body of a wine refers to its weight on your palate and can be described as light, medium or full. She drew a comparison to skim milk, whole milk and half-and-half. The body comes from the alcohol content. The more alcohol, the fuller the body, though full body doesn't necessarily mean full flavor. The mouthfeel refers to the texture of the wine and is often described in the language of clothing, using words like: silky, satiny, velvety, felt, cashmere, wool, burlap. The last element of tasting is the flavor. Instead of sitting back and waiting for the flavor to occur to you, she proposed visualizing a big blackboard filled with possible descriptors and mentally checking them off as they make sense. By approaching tasting in such a logical, analytical way and using a process of elimination, you should be able to guess an unknown variety and be better able to describe what you're drinking in conversation. And after practicing this conscientious method of tasting, the group as a whole, was spot on in their judgments more times than not.

Man arrested for attempted robbery with book bomb

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A MAN tried to rob two dozen people on downtown sidewalks Saturday afternoon before walking into an art gallery and saying the book he held was a bomb, according to Carmel Police Sgt. Mel Mukai. The suspect, 58-year-old Philip Beeber, was arrested a block away from his home in Capitola after police identified him on surveillance video and obtained his name from the Louis Vuitton shop at Carmel Plaza, where he had made a small purchase just before his alleged attempted crime spree.

"He wandered around town, and in the process he decided to confront people," Mukai said. "How he chose the victims, I don't know. He said, 'I need your wallet; I just spent a lot of money at Louis Vuitton.'"

Nobody handed over any valuables, despite his threats and claims the wrapped book he was carrying contained a bomb, according to Mukai. "He did this to 20 or 25 people, but it wasn't reported until he walked into Classic Art Gallery."

While the people on the street apparently took Beeber's alleged demands and threats as a joke, the two gallery employees called police.

Officers Chris Johnson and Lawrence Escobar interviewed the art gallery employees. "This was when a series of other victims came forward and identified the same subject," Mukai said. "But he had already fled the scene."

Officer Jeff Watkins spied a man matching Beeber's physical description on Louis Vuitton's surveillance tape, and the store clerk provided his personal information.

Based on that, Johnson contacted Capitola Police Department, and officers there arrested Beeber within a block of his home, according to Mukai. Johnson drove to the Santa Cruz County city and picked Beeber up to extradite him to Monterey County, where he was jailed on multiple counts of attempted robbery, and making bomb threats and terrorist threats.

"It was great police work on Chris' part, and all involved," Mukai said.

State parks restores access to Big Sur beach

THANKS TO the repair of a dilapidated staircase two weeks ago, visitors will again be able to easily access the beach at Garrapata State Park.

The project, which cost $5,000 in materials, was completed in three days by six state parks workers.

"People will be happy to know they have an easier and safer access route down to the beach," said Dave Schaechtele, state parks public information officer.

The bottom portion of the stairs washed away during winter storms several years ago, making access to the scenic beach difficult.

According to Schaechtele, the project is part of a statewide push to upgrade facilities at state parks. "We were fortunate to get the money," he explained. "There's a backlog of deferred maintenance projects located throughout the state."

The park, which includes a gorgeous beach and several popular hiking trails, is located off Highway 1, about seven miles south of Carmel.

Financial Focus

by Linda Myrick, AAMS
Investment Representative

STEPS TO CONSIDER WHEN A LOVED ONE DIES

After a loved one dies, you'll have to cope with grief. And yet, if you have even partial responsibility for settling an estate, you must focus on some financial matters.

Be prepared to consult with a competent attorney on tax and estate matters. You'll need to find your loved one's will, and, if you are the executor, start the process of carrying out the will's instructions. You'll also need to determine if probate is necessary.

And keep in mind that insurers don't automatically pay benefits upon the death of the insured. Contact the deceased's insurance company about filing any required insurance claims.

Settling the estate of a loved one will never be a happy task. But if done right, it can show respect for the memory of the deceased - and that's a worthy goal.

Dream home or disaster? County to consult with water quality board

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE NEIGHBORS say a new home shouldn't be allowed on Corona Road in Carmel Highlands, claiming the proposal doesn't meet septic and water quality requirements. The property owner says the neighbors are actually just trying to protect their views. This week the Monterey County Board of Supervisors put off a decision on a permit for Rick Kashfi so it could find out what state water quality officials think about the dispute.

Kashfi wants to build a 5,159-square-foot, two-story home at 74 Corona Road. Several of Kashfi's neighbors argued his 0.8-acre parcel is not large enough to accommodate the home's well and septic system.

"The well would be 50 feet from my property line," testified Mike Miller, who lives just west of Kashfi's property. "I'm worried I could be sued if my septic system contaminates his well."

Neighbor Wayne Franks echoed Miller's concerns. "You're allowing a well to be built in a sea of septic systems," he said. "It's a disaster waiting to happen."

Opponents of the project also contend its well wouldn't be reliable because it will tap into fractured granite.

Attorney John Bridges, representing Kashfi, called the complaints from neighboring landowners, "wild, last-minute speculation." The well on Kashfi's property "has passed all tests" for quality and quantity, he said.

Kashfi accused his neighbors of trying to stop the project simply to protect their views. He conceded his house would partially block the Franks' view, but he claimed he had his house designed in such a way that a portion of his neighbors' view would be preserved.

He also said he gave the Franks an opportunity to purchase his property and accused his neighbor of trying to sabotage his plans for a home.

"They strategically put septic pits on their property to stymie us," Kashfi charged. "We feel the Franks have taken an unfair advantage to protect their view."

Same project, two views

The Carmel Highlands/Unincorporated Land Use Advisory Committee voted 6-0 to recommend denial of the project due to the "massive" look of the residence and the proposed removal of three landmark trees. In response, Kashfi had the project redesigned to protect the trees, which are Monterey pines ranging from 25 to 27 inches in diameter.

A planning department staff report said there's nothing unusual about Kashfi's proposal.

"It is similar in size to existing homes in the area and meets all required site development standards," the report contended, adding that the structure does not exceed the 30-foot height limit and the development does not exceed the maximum 15 percent lot coverage.

After Monterey County zoning administrator Jeff Main granted a permit for the project Nov. 9, four of Kashfi's neighbors — Wayne and Beth Franks, Dr. John Willsen and Gwyn DeAmaral — appealed the decision to the supervisors.

After listening to testimony from both sides this week, 5th District Supervisor and board chair Dave Potter expressed concern about the large number of septic systems in the area. "Public safety is the most important part here," Potter said.

Richard LeWarne, Monterey County assistant director of environmental health, responded by suggesting the project be reviewed by the water quality board. Potter endorsed the idea, and the supervisors unanimously agreed.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of WANDA KEEBLE
Case Number MP 18419
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of WANDA KEEBLE.

A petition for probate has been filed by ANN KEEBLE in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that ANN KEEBLE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on this petition will be held on in this court as follows:

Date: February 2, 2007
Time: 10:30 a.m.
Dept.: Probate
Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Agujito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

On badgers and doctors

LAST WEEK'S front page contained stories about two species in trouble. The question is: Can both be saved?

According to a researcher from UC Davis, American badgers are losing their habitat to human development. A modest housing project on the old Carmel Valley Airport — 29 homes and 10 condos on 30 acres in the middle of Carmel Valley Village — may be called into question by evidence of badger dens on the property. If a study shows that badgers live there, and wildlife experts can make a case that the badger population is dwindling, the next thing you know, the number of housing units at the old airport will be reduced. Add concerns about water use and traffic congestion — not to mention those old standbys, the steel-head trout and red-legged frog — and pretty soon you won't have any new housing at all.

That's where the other endangered species comes in: family doctors. According to the head of Community Hospital, the Monterey Peninsula has a severe and worsening shortage of these doctors, who are the first line of defense for the community's health. Without them, who do you go to when you have the flu, a bad headache, a sprained ankle or any other symptoms that have you concerned? What if you need a physical exam or think your blood pressure might be getting too high? Who will be there for you if you just need advice about staying healthy as you get older?

Thirty years ago, there was national concern about the end of the house call. It was considered a major inconvenience to have to trek to the doctor's office for a diagnosis or prescription. Now, when you get to the doctor's office, there may be nobody there.

The reasons for the shortage are myriad and, in some cases, ambiguous. But one of them is crystal clear: The high cost of housing in the Monterey Peninsula discourages young doctors from setting up shop here. Usually, they have big student loans left over from medical school. Opening up a medical practice comes with lots of overhead. And government-funded medical programs such as Medicare and MediCal don't pay much. With all that uncertainty, why live in a place where a modest home can cost more than $1 million?

There's been a lot of talk about how the shortage of new housing in places such as Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach, and even Pacific Grove and Monterey, is making it hard for police officers, school teachers and nurses to afford a place to live. Now we find out even doctors — people we used to think of as rich — can't afford to live here.

It's wonderful our country has gotten so prosperous that we can spend plenty of time and money protecting badgers and other wild creatures. But there has to be room for humans, too.

20 to 30 million illegals

Dear Editor,

I commend you for your Jan. 12 article on illegal aliens' anchor babies in Monterey County. Ira Mehlman of the Federation for American Immigration Reform, quoted in your piece, is one of the serious authorities on the costs of illegal aliens on the United States' economy, environment and quality of life.

If more members of the media were willing to publish factual stories on the downsides of illegal migration into the U.S., our nation would not be facing the enormous strain on all fronts which we are now: in schools, prisons, hospitals, crime, overcrowding, water and other resources, Spanish as an unofficial second language requiring bilingualism to get jobs, and certainly, a substantial shift of state and local tax burdens to U.S. citizens due to the benefits given illegals under various laws.

The federal government has officially acknowledged 10 to 12 million illegals as of 2006; this does not include the several million who received amnesty under other administrations, nor the visa-overstays who are also considered illegal aliens by law. In fact, using U.S. Border Patrol statistics on apprehensions and "got-aways," it is easy to arrive at current figures of 20 to 30 million within the United States; mostly from Mexico and Latin America, but some from Islamic countries on our government's terrorism list.

Please know that you have performed an extremely valuable service by providing valuable information to the public arena.

Margaret Whiting, Carmel Valley

Just too many

Dear Editor,

I certainly agree with your Jan. 19 editorial on the 14th Amendment. Most Americans are kind-hearted and think hardworking people from impoverished parts of the world should have the chance to better themselves. But there has to be a limit. We cannot take all of them in California. According to news reports, 100,000 babies a year become instant citizens after being born in this state to illegal immigrant mothers — and all at taxpayers' expense. That is just too many.

SKATEBOARD

According to the conditions of the easement, granted to the city more than 20 years ago, no structures, signs, landscaping, topographical changes, or any "use that will or does materially alter the landscape," can occur, according to Daniels.

He argued those restrictions demand similar treatment of adjacent property, so the situation wouldn't be helped if the ramp were moved a few feet.

"It's not an inconspicuous item," he said. "In looking for a place for their children to play, the family really has to understand the impacts on the neighbors."

James Smith said they allowed their son and his friends to camp on the ramp twice but it wouldn't happen again if it's against the law. (On private property, it's not.)

"It's not like a flophouse for everyone who comes along," he said, adding that having the teens at the house allows the parents to have more control over who's there and what they're doing. "At some point, you have to step back and say it's not a national park, it's our yard."

Pauline Giordano objected. "The noise impact is terrible, and even if they move it, it's right under my kitchen window," she said. "It gives me a headache. I'm sorry, I can't handle that kind of noise."

Another resident who walks in the area said he finds the sounds "terribly obnoxious."

Giordano also complained the Smiths' kids and their friends smoke cigarettes while hanging out at the ramp, and she's allergic to the smoke.

"I just don't think a skateboard ramp is something that belongs in Carmel," she concluded.

Children are a fact of life

Board member Michael LePage was incredulous at Daniels' suggestion the scenic easement should dictate what occurs next to it and wondered, "Where's that going to stop?"

But what really bothered him, he said, was the evident discrimination against children.

"If you hear them during regular hours, that's just the way it is," he said. "That's life."

He also pointed out it's not illegal for someone who's 19 — the age of the Smiths' older child — to smoke outdoors.

"Personally, I don't see any reason why they shouldn't be allowed to have this skateboard ramp," he said.

"They offer a place at home outside where their children can exercise and enjoy an activity most of us can't do because it's too challenging," board member Janet Reimers said. "I applaud their efforts."

She acknowledged the noise factor but said the ramp would likely only be used in the daytime.

DRB member Karen Sharp said she would rather see children skateboarding on a ramp in the safety of someone's yard than on the more dangerous, heavily trafficked and steep streets in town, and she appreciated the Smiths' efforts to make the ramp as invisible as possible, as well as prevent its use by others when no one is home.

Member Keith Paterson said he could see both sides. "I remember looking at a property that had a skateboard deck next to it, and I said, 'No way,'" he said. "But I also appreciate that children need somewhere to play — somewhere safe — and the Smiths have done as much they can to make it as acceptable to everyone as possible."

The board, minus member Mary Bell, who was absent, unanimously agreed that, with the changes proposed by the Smiths, the ramp can stay.

"After 30 years
& hundreds of escrows,
...there will be no surprises!"

Evelyn Wallace Harness

1918 - 2006

Evelyn Wallace Harness, 88, a retired dermatologist, died Dec. 23 at her home in Carmel Valley, CA. Dr. Wallace was born June 24, 1918, in Newton, IA. There, she was raised in a newspaper family and graduated salutatorian in her high school class. She completed her undergraduate degree, medical school, internship, and residency in dermatology at the University of Iowa. She served as a medical consultant for the Army-Navy Hospital in Hot Springs, AK, after W.W.II.

After moving to the Monterey Peninsula in 1950 she set up solo medical practices, first in Salinas and three years later in Monterey where she became the first dermatologist to practice. There she raised her three children while continuing her work for over 30 years. Throughout the 1950s and 60s she continued consulting for the U.S. Army at Ft. Ord. In 1962 she served with her husband, Dr. William N. Harness, a local urologist, on the hospital ship Hope in Ecuador. This service sparked a lifelong interest in travel that took them to six continents. She retired from private practice in 1983.

She is survived by her half-brother, Wilbert Wallace of Alexandria, LA; her half-sister, Geraldine Taylor of Paris, TX; her son, William Harness of Carmel Valley, CA; two daughters, Julie A. Dorman of Eureka, CA, and Jane E. Johnen of San Jose, CA; seven grandchildren; and one great-granddaughter. She is preceded in death by William N. Harness, her husband of nearly 62 years.

But such is not the case, even in fantasy Carmel-by-the-Sea. Car-collector Dad Paul and Mom Emily drive their little family to the beach two or three times a week in the Austin and walk with them at water's edge from one end of the beach to the other.

All four formerly resided at the SPCA. Reading from top to bottom, we find perky Susie, 5, whose dainty frame once carried 14 pounds when rescued as an orphan, the adored pet of a loving owner who had passed away.

Cisco, 12, he of the black fur, is the senior brother. He was found on the side of Highway 101, rescued, and since joining the Woudenberg household has never looked back.

Then there's Poco, about 9, discovered eight years ago by Mom and Dad in an SPCA Christmas window setting at Gumps, San Francisco. He is honored by the others for his bravery with great big dogs.

In the foreground is Sam, 8, the "drop the chalupa" look-alike who melted Mom and Dad's hearts when they were introduced to him him at the Monterey SPCA.

The four siblings do everything and go everywhere together, looking forward to frequent play fests with their four cousins down the street at Auntie's house — three more Chihuahuas and a toy Manchester terrier.

One can only imagine.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 12

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Unwanted subject on Ocean Avenue. Subject reported a disturbance with a transient female who was asked to leave. Contacted the reporting party, who stated the subject assaulted a customer last week and didn't want the subject in the business anymore due to her behavior. The RP wanted the subject admonished that she was prohibited from entering the business in the future. The subject was advised she was no longer allowed in that business and stated that she understood.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle parked on Ocean Avenue was vandalized by an unknown subject. Subject climbed onto the roof of the vehicle and proceeded to jump on it, causing it to cave in.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Victim fell while crossing the street at San Carlos and Sixth Avenue. She was transported to CHOMP for treatment of her injuries.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Disorderly conduct on Monte Verde Street. A male suspect, age 38, was reported to be intoxicated and lying on sidewalk. He was arrested and booked.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a medical emergency on San Carlos Street. Upon arrival at 1305 hours, found a female in her 80s complaining of laceration to the nose secondary to a fall. Patient evaluated, loaded and transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on Junipero Street at Carmel P.D. Both units on scene. The patient was treated on scene but refused transport to CHOMP. Patient signed out a medical release form and was left in the care of Carmel P.D.

Pebble Beach: Resident advised unknown perpetrators stole a prized antique Indian prayer rug. Case suspended.

Carmel area: A Rio Road resident reported a continuing problem involving a juvenile climbing on her roof. The 11-year-old juvenile and her parents were contacted and warned concerning the trespass violation. Case sus-

Carmel area: A Carmel Rancho Boulevard store manager reported theft from their store. Manager knew ID of suspect. Suspect contacted and admitted to the theft. Case continues with the Monterey County District Attorney's Office.

Big Sur: Person reported three hikers missing on a trail east of the highway from Esalen. Members of the sheriff's rescue team, Big Sur Fire, Westmed and several Esalen staff members responded and hiked in several miles. Three victims, all residents of Israel, were located and assisted out of the canyon. All victims were treated and released by Westmed.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 13

his truck at midnight on Jan. 13. Upon opening the toolbox at 0900 hours the same morning, he noticed it was missing.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject stopped for failing to yield to a pedestrian on Junipero Street and found to have a suspended license and was violating a restraining order. Subject, a male, age 37, arrested and transported to the station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Theft of personal property on Seventh Avenue. Resident reported a bird bath was taken from her garden.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Welfare check on a dog on 11th Avenue. A followup on a welfare check made on Jan. 11. The owner of the dog was contacted, and the concerns with the tethered dog and its health were discussed. The elderly dog appeared to be friendly and healthy. The manner in which the dog is confined does not appear to cause any harm to the dog. Further information will be researched.
