Teenage driver brags on MySpace about rollover wreck on 17 Mile Drive

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITHIN HOURS of his crash in Pebble Beach Friday afternoon, the teenage driver who flipped his SUV while speeding down 17 Mile Drive with his buddies inside evidently posted a photo of the crushed car on his MySpace page and dubbed himself "Mr. Indestructible."

"Just to hear this cavalier attitude about it is just appalling," said California Highway Patrol officer Art Carbonel.

The Pine Cone is not identifying the driver, a student at Pacific Grove High School, because of his age.

Carbonel said the driver, who will turn 17 Saturday, had at least three other 15- and 16-year-old kids in the 1992 Oldsmobile Bravada when he lost control. Young drivers are not permitted to carry other minors in their cars for their first year on the road. Last July, two Carmel High School students died and three were injured when 16-year-old Alex Robbins, who had a probationary driver's license, drove his truck off Highway 1 near Lucia.

The teens in the May 11 wreck reportedly sustained minor injuries, and some fled to a Pebble Beach home

Dry year puts big dent in Peninsula's water supply

By KELLY NIX

WHILE RAINFALL was only about half of average this winter, runoff was even lower — just 17 percent of normal — leading Monterey Peninsula water officials to call for stepped-up conservation.

"This year is shaping up to be as bad as 1994 and perhaps as bad as 1990 in terms of lack of rainfall and effect on the Carmel River flow," said David Berger, executive director of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

This year — as in the droughts of the late 1970s and late 1980s — has been "critically dry," a MPWMD designation that means there has been less than 14,700 acre-feet of runoff measured at the San Clemente Dam, conditions which make it rough for steelhead fish and other wildlife in the river.

After two wet years

"On average," said MPWMD senior hydrologist Darby Fuerst, "we get 70,000 acre-feet a year of runoff at the San Clemente Dam. And this year we are only going to get about 12,000 to 13,000 acre-feet."

In comparison, 2005 and 2006 were wet years with more than 107,000 acre-feet each, while 2004 was "below normal," with just under 40,000 acre-feet of runoff flow.

A drought is marked by two consecutive dry or critically dry years. If next year is similar to this year, the Peninsula

STATE INVESTIGATES VOTER FRAUD AMONG CARMEL RESIDENTS

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CALIFORNIA Secretary of State has been investigating local residents for possible voter fraud, and some of the targets are wondering why.

"Knock off a few people, and you could really affect an election," observed Mission Street resident Jane Price.

The 2,861 registered voters in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea will choose their mayor and two city council members next April.

Price and her husband, Jim — a member of the Sunset Cultural Center board of directors — learned they were under scrutiny when one of the state's five investigators showed up at their Carmel home April 27 and their other home in Alamo May 4. The Prices divide their time between the two but use Mission Street as their registered address and have voted in Monterey County for a decade.

"I got a phone call from Irene Brazil," Price recalled. "We were in Alamo, and she was in front of our house in Carmel trying to reach us."

■ Illegal guest room discovered and ordered to be removed

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A NEW Carmel homeowner seeking to add 12 square feet to a bathroom so she can bring her washer and dryer inside must also turn her third bedroom back into a garage, the planning commission unanimously decided last Wednesday. Had Elizabeth Harmon not asked permission to make the small addition to her Monte Verde Street house, the city might never have known about the room illegally installed by a previous owner.

"As originally built, the residence included a single-car garage on the lower level," senior planner Sean Conroy wrote in his May 9 staff report for the commission. "At some point, the garage door was replaced with French doors and the interior was converted to living space. This was done without a permit."

Because the conversion occurred before she bought the house, Harmon requested a variance from the municipal code section requiring onsite parking, but Conroy said the exception would be difficult to justify.

It's legal to grant a variance if (1) a property's physical constraints make meeting a zoning standard impossible, (2) it would not constitute granting a special privilege, (3) "the situation or condition for which the variance is sought was not the result of actions of the existing or any prior owner of the property," and (4) the variance would not conflict with the general plan. Conroy said those findings could not be made.

But the commission should approve the small addition, Conroy said, as long as the owner also removes 12 square feet of site coverage on her 6,000-square-foot property in order to conform with city standards.

Harmon, who first came to Carmel in 1931 at the age of 1 and said she recently returned in order to spend the rest of her life here, asked commissioners to let her keep the illegally installed bedroom to accommodate her visiting friends and family and, later, a live-in caregiver.

Weekly local farmers market sought for Pacific Grove

By KELLY NIX

LOOK OUT, Monterey. Pacific Grove is taking steps to host a farmers market of its own that could be up and running this summer.

Mayor Dan Cort is pushing for the market, which he hopes will be set up on Lighthouse Avenue in downtown P.G. every Friday.

"It would feature lots of organic produce," Cort said. "We have only heard a 100 percent positive response to it."

Unlike some farmers markets, Cort said he would like to see the P.G. market concentrate on items sold by local vendors.

"It would start by being a food market, then evolve into a little more," he said. "It's not going to be a flea market. We can have organic food and other foods grown in the local region here instead of being trucked in from 150 miles away."

The market would not only offer local produce growers another venue, it would benefit downtown businesses since it would encourage visitors to patronize restaurants and shops.

"It would help open up storefronts because people would come in and see our downtown," Cort said.

The market would also run after the once-monthly Pacific Grove Artwalk.

"That is what we need to be a more dynamic downtown," Cort said.

The City of Monterey offers a farmers market on Alvarado Street Tuesday afternoons. Monterey Peninsula College hosts a market Thursdays.

Cort said he expects a public hearing about the P.G. farmers market to be held at the first council meeting in June. A committee is also being formed to discuss it, he said.

"The chamber of commerce and the city will get together to see if we can find an operator for the whole thing," he said. "We would like to be looking at it this summer."

Bicycle cabs proposed

Cort is also hoping to offer farmers market patrons alternative transportation by way of bicycle rickshaw rides.

Pedicabs, as they are also called, are bicycles fitted with a carriage to carry passengers. Cort said a couple of private individuals have expressed interest in opening a pedicab business in P.G.

"What they do is help us engage our residents and visitors to see our community," he said.

The service would be good for elderly residents who might want to attend the farmers market but don't want to drive or walk, he said.

Cities such as Washington, D.C., New York and Denver offer pedicab services, which charge customers a fee based on the number of passengers and the distance traveled.

Rancho Cañada hosts general plan debate

THE CARMEL Valley Rotary Club will host a debate between proponents of competing general plan ballot initiatives at its weekly meeting, Tuesday, May 22, at the Rancho Cañada Golf Club. The event begins at 12:15 p.m.

Glenn Robinson, an outspoken supporter of the drive to incorporate Carmel Valley, will represent LandWatch Monterey County, which backs Measures A and B and opposes C. Tom Carvey, executive director of Common Ground Monterey County, will represent Plan for the People, which is against Measures A and B and supports Measure C.

Space is limited, so attendees are asked to RSVP at (831) 625-5021 by Friday, May 19.

"Storybook Architecture" is the name given by scholars to a delightful genre of buildings erected in the 1920's and 1930's in the U.S. and England. (The style is also called "Hansel and Gretel," "Doll's House," "Fairy Tale" and "Provincial Revivalism.") Carmel is graced by many of these structures, created by Hugh Comstock. According to some sources, Comstock was inspired by illustrator Arthur Rackham. Maybe. According to John Robert Marlow, founder of www.storybookers.com, several spectacular storybook structures had been completed, or were underway, in Los Angeles by the time Comstock began work here in 1924. "Whether Comstock created his distinctive storybook 'look' independently, or was influenced by others, is unknown," says Marlow, "but without question, he was a master of the form."

Epoxy patches leak in CHS pool

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A DIVER located and repaired a slow leak in Carmel High School's new $3.4 million swimming pool last week, ensuring the boys training for this weekend's Central Coast Section championships at Stanford and the Barracuda swim club can continue using it.

School officials first became aware of the leak about six weeks ago, when they noticed the pool's recently installed meter indicated unexpectedly high water use, according to Rick Blanckmeister, chief business official for Carmel Unified School District. Investigation of a nearby storm drain showed water running into it that appeared to be coming from the pool.

Workers checked all the pumps to make sure they weren't to blame, and two divers took turns scrutinizing the interior of the new 40-meter pool, which was formally dedicated April 27.

The divers floated drops of colored dye near each of its 40 underwater lights with the idea that any leaks would draw the dye. Nothing happened.

But while inspecting a main drain at the deep end, "one of the divers noticed something that didn't look quite the same as the rest of the seam," in the Myrtha vinyl-coated stainless steel pool, Blanckmeister said. Another dye test confirmed the suspicious spot in the seam was the source of the leak.

The pool remained filled while a diver repaired the leak with a small epoxy patch, according to Blanckmeister, who said all the users seem happy with the new facility.

"I haven't used it myself," he added.

The $$$

One outside group, Barracuda Aquatics Monterey Peninsula, has been swimming in it since last month at a district-imposed rate of $50 per hour. The user fees for off-season — when the school's own swimming, diving and water polo programs are not in session — are not yet set but will likely be higher because the pool would be cheaper to maintain during that time if it went unused.

It will also require a full year to develop a reliable estimate of the new pool's operating costs, including water, energy and chemical consumption, Blanckmeister said. User fees are based on operating costs.

The 40-meter Myrtha replaced pools that were so old they failed to meet current safety standards and were too shallow, requiring CHS swim and water polo meets to be held elsewhere. The project, which entailed demolishing the old pools, reconfiguring the area to accommodate the new pool, installing necessary infrastructure and making other changes, was completed just a few months ago. But paying the bills remains a challenge, and Friends of Carmel Aquatics continues to solicit donations.

According to Blanckmeister, the group has provided $183,000 out of a total pledge of $250,000 to help pay for some of the basic installation, as well as necessary accessories like the scoreboard and lane lines.

Parent Mike Rianda paid more than $400,000 for the pool itself, which had been used during Olympic Trials in Indiana, and turned it over to the Carmel Unified School District for $200,000.

To pay for most of the $3.4 million project, the CUSD board of education earmarked $1 million in general fund money, with the balance coming from the $21.5 million bond voters approved in 2005.

HOME INVADER GETS EIGHT YEARS, EIGHT MONTHS

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE 29-YEAR-OLD King City resident who embarked on a failed crime spree in Carmel last April was sentenced to eight years and eight months in prison after admitting to five felonies, including residential robbery, burglary and car theft, the Monterey County District Attorney's Office announced May 2.

Joe Ramirez, now 29, and his female accomplice, Jessica Rodriguez, were burglarizing a Carmel Point home on April 18, 2006, when the owners returned to find an unfamiliar car backed up to their garage. They attempted to stop the burglars from leaving, but the duo fled, leading police officers and sheriff's deputies on a chase through the neighborhoods near Carmel Mission.

The couple ditched the stolen SUV on Rio Road and tried to escape on foot. Rodriguez was soon captured, but Ramirez continued running. He entered three homes but left the first two after being confronted by the residents. In the third, Ramirez demanded car keys and forcibly robbed a woman who was recuperating from a broken neck. He threw her to the kitchen floor and attempted to bind her with packing tape, but she escaped, ran upstairs and dialed 911.

Ramirez was later captured hiding in bushes near Highway 1 after Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana spotted him and alerted deputies, who trained a Taser light on him, explained what it was and ordered him to come out.

At the time of his arrest, Ramirez was on felony probation in Santa Cruz County, according to deputy district attorney Bob Burlison. Last November, Rodriguez pleaded guilty to

SINCE IT receives no tax dollars, the Carmel Foundation relies on donations to keep its programs for seniors up and running.

To shore up its $2.4 million budget and fund some "special projects," this week the foundation announced a new program called, "Giving from the Heart."

Catering to more than 4,400 Peninsula residents aged 55 and older, the group, founded in 1950, provides low-cost lunches, meal delivery for the homebound, transportation to medical appointments and shopping trips, and 50 classes or activities each week. It also supplies most of the affordable senior housing in Carmel.

"Caring and charitable individuals have ensured the continuation and success of the foundation with their support," said the foundation's development associate, Jennifer Martinez. "This generosity allows us to provide the tools for successful aging by enriching and improving the lives of local seniors."

She ticked off a list of particular endeavors for which the foundation hopes to raise money.

■ $40,000 for the purchase and installation of a new generator that would enable the foundation's kitchen to remain open when power fails. "Many local seniors rely on our meals for their health and well being," Martinez said, and continuing that service, especially during an extended power outage, is critical. In addition, "a new generator would provide the opportunity for use of our facilities during a disaster or citywide emergency."

■ $15,000 for 12 new computers for the Computer Learning Center where members participate in a variety of classes ranging from introductory to advanced. Computer classes help seniors learn valuable skills, increase their knowledge and keep in touch with friends and family.

"In fact, one of our members enjoyed meeting her great-granddaughter for the first time by watching a video online," Martinez reported.

■ $160,000 for transportation to medical appointments and stores for those who can no longer drive and have no family members in the area to help. Public transportation on the Peninsula is not comprehensive enough to deliver most people to their doctors' offices, and few can afford a cab ride to every appointment, according to Martinez.

But donors' support will enable the foundation to "continue to connect people to their community and to life," she

GETTING THAT MUCH NEEDED SPARK

Vehicle manufacturers make much of the fact that their products come equipped with extended-life spark plugs that can maintain a precise gap for 100,000 miles. However, before you wait that long to replace them, you should bear in mind that plugs that hit the 80,000-mile mark are four-fifths worn. As the gap in the plug widens, engine performance and gas mileage begin to suffer. In addition, spark plugs that have remained in place for tens of thousands of miles have a tendency to seize in the cylinder head. Once this happens, it can be a potentially costly job to remove them. Since your vehicle's spark plugs are going to require replacement sometime, better to do it sooner rather than later.

There are few parts that affect performance as much as spark plugs, so constant vigilance is required to protect the gas mileage, and overall performance the spark plugs allow your vehicle to have. We can evaluate your spark plugs, and replace them, if necessary, with quality parts designed for your specific vehicle. Let us perform preventative maintenance on a regular basis before you break down.

P.S Never downgrade to a less expensive replacement spark plug.

WHEN DO YOU NEED A TRUST?

To make sure your family and other beneficiaries receive what you want them to have, you'll need to do some estate planning. Trusts can be a key part of those plans. But when might you need to establish a trust?

To give something to charity, you may want to consider a charitable remainder trust. To reduce estate taxes for your children or other beneficiaries, explore an irrevocable life insurance trust. And if you're worried about your children or grandchildren spending their inheritance too quickly, look at a discretionary trust.

There are other scenarios in which a trust may make sense for you. But keep in mind that trusts are complex instruments. You will need to work with an attorney, a CPA and your financial advisor to make sure your trusts work for you to help achieve your goals.

Flames destroy cars but spare C.V. house

A FIRE that mysteriously started in a Ford SUV ended up totaling that vehicle, a Chevy Tahoe parked next to it, and the carport they were occupying outside a Carmel Valley Ranch condo last Wednesday night, but more than a dozen fire-fighters kept it from spreading to the home.

"The car where the fire actually started appeared it hadn't been used for two days," reported Carmel Valley Fire Division Chief Ron Lemos, who served as incident commander on the call. "It doesn't seem suspicious, but it's kind of weird."

A 911 call around 7:30 p.m. May 9 alerted the station to a vehicle fire at Carmel Valley Ranch, but the emergency was upgraded to a structure fire when it was learned the car was in a carport.

The house is saved

Two engines and two water tenders, for a total of 14 people, responded. By the time they arrived, the two SUVs and the carport were in flames. The residents — a husband and wife, and two kids — were outside.

"We just mainly knocked it down and kept it from spreading to the house," Lemos said. "Everything went well from our side."

No one was injured, but Lemos estimated the damage at $16,000 to $18,000 for the Tahoe and $8,000 for the Ford, including the contents of both cars, and $25,000 for the carport.

VIEWED TO BE THE BEST.®

— 1967 to 2007 —

Forty years ago, these pristine coastal highlands captivated Clint Eastwood. Today, he's not only created a community that's close to Carmel, but one that will always remain in harmony with nature.

High atop the Monterey peninsula, though less than ten minutes from Carmel and Monterey Bay, Tehama offers you both unspoiled vistas and easy access to city life. From here, you can see Point Lobos, Carmel Bay, Monterey Bay and more. What you can't see is the tireless attention paid to stewardship of the land — 85 percent of which will remain untouched.

"Taking an interest in the land was the only way to protect it."

Students spread the word to 'fight the bite'

TWO MONTEREY Peninsula teens — Katy Felsing from Carmel High School and Amanda Palmer of Robert Louis Stevenson School — represented the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross at the International Conference of Measles/Malaria Advocates in Washington, D.C., which they attended with Theresa Arlotto, co-chair of the chapter's international services committee.

"The pair are taking a leadership role in the movement to eradicate measles, the world's deadliest disease preventable by vaccination, and malaria, a deadly disease that also is preventable," according to Tia Gindick, who handles public relations for the local Red Cross chapter.

Malaria, a mosquito-borne disease which was nearly wiped out with the banned pesticide DDT, has made a dramatic comeback and now kills a child in Africa every 30 seconds.

The American Red Cross works with the World Health

Organization, UNICEF, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the United Nations Foundation and the International Red Cross to help fight the diseases.

Red Cross youth chapters are helping with prevention and education, including raising funds to buy insecticide-treated bed nets that keep malaria-bearing mosquitos from biting people as they sleep. The groups are also mobilizing thousands of volunteers throughout Africa to educate more than 10 million people to "fight the bite."

And according to Gindick, the battle against the deadly but preventable measles has already contributed to a 60 percent decrease in the disease's transmission and death rate during the past five years. A measles vaccination injection costs less than $1.

York School to offer Chinese language classes

YORK SCHOOL in Monterey has announced it will offer Mandarin Chinese course for students.

York will start Chinese with introductory classes beginning this fall. As the program grows, the school will offer multiple levels of advanced Chinese study in its curriculum alongside existing classes in World and Asian history, according to the school.

“As part of our mission to prepare students for the future,” said Chuck Harmon, the school’s head, “we recognize the leadership role China is playing in the global economy and the opportunities available to students who are fluent in the language and culture of China.”

The new program will be led by Lei Lei Bates, a native speaker of Chinese and wife of Pine Cone cartoonist Bill Bates. She taught Chinese and English at Nanjing High School and provided interpretation and translation services in Jiangsu, China.

York is a college preparatory day school with 235 students from grades eight through 12.

The school attracts top students from Monterey and Santa Cruz counties and is located between Ryan Ranch and Laguna Seca.

Pebble Beach project heads back to coastal commission

By KELLY NIX

ONE YEAR after the Pebble Beach Company withdrew its application for a new golf course, equestrian center and 160 hotel rooms in Del Monte Forest, the California Coastal Commission is expected to revisit the ballot measure that cleared the way for the development and put hundreds of acres of Monterey pine forest into open space preserves when voters approved it in November 2000.

The coastal panel could let the ballot measure go into effect, or it could overturn it.

When the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, at the request of the Pebble Beach Co., had the application withdrawn in June 2006, Mark Massara, an attorney for the Sierra Club, which opposes the P.B. project, accused the company of pulling the item at the last minute in order to "shop for an accommodating commission."

"I think it would be correct to say that [the Pebble Beach Co.] thinks they have a better chance now," Massara said Wednesday.

In March, Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger fired coastal commission vice-chair Meg Caldwell, a Stanford professor and staunch conservationist, and replaced her with Steve Blank, a teacher at UC Berkeley and Stanford.

Several other commissioners have come onboard since the Pebble Beach Co.'s application was withdrawn.

A representative with the Carmel Development Co., which is handling permits for the project, couldn't be reached for comment.

The Pebble Beach Co. contends the development, officially named "The Del Monte Forest Plan: Forest Preservation and Development Limitations," would provide unprecedented protection for the most vital parts of the pine forest because it places more than 900 acres (nearly 500 within Del Monte Forest) of pine forest and other land into conservation areas. In addition, the company would forego development of hundreds of homesites allowed under the zoning that existed before the ballot measure was approved.

Many environmentalists oppose the new golf course because it would require the removal of thousands of pine trees and affect other native species. Their campaign against the P.B. Co. project has been led by coastal commission executive director Peter Douglas, who says Monterey pines warrant special protection under the Coastal Act, even though the tree is one of the most common in the world.

The project includes 160 hotel rooms, underground parking at the Lodge and Spanish Bay, 60 new employee residences, 34 residential lots, and road and infrastructure improvements.

The Coastal Commission meeting is June 13-15 at the Hyatt Vineyard Creek Hotel & Spa, 170 Railroad St., Santa Rosa.

Incorporation on hold

LOCAL AGENCY Formation Commission executive officer Kate McKenna will present a status report on the Carmel Valley incorporation proposal when the agency meets at the Salinas courthouse Monday, May 21.

On April 5, LAFCO filed a lawsuit against the Carmel Valley Forum, seeking the recovery of $137,822 in expenses incurred by the agency.

The filing deadline for the Carmel Valley Forum's response is May 23. LAFCO's special counsel anticipates a court hearing on the case in late summer or early fall. The incorporation proposal is on hold pending resolution of the litigation.

March of Dimes event at Lovers Point

THE MARCH of Dimes is holding a fundraiser in Pacific Grove this Sunday to support research that helps prevent premature births and other threats to the health of infants.

The WalkAmerica event, to be held Sunday, May 20, at 9 a.m. at Lovers Point park, is part of an annual event that takes place in more than 1,100 communities in the United States, the March of Dimes said.

The walkers, including hundreds of families affected by premature births, will raise money to donate to the March of Dimes.

Some will be marching in memory of an infant who died, while others will be there to rejoice in the survival of a child, according to the organization.

Premature birth, the organization said, is the No. 1 cause of newborn death.

Register for the event by visiting the website www.walkamerica.org or by calling (800) 525-WALK.

measure and said five kids were in the SUV when it crashed.

Though CHP officer Nicholas Fishbough has yet to conclude his investigation of the accident, Carbonel said the cause was identified as "unsafe speed." It occurred at 17 Mile Drive and Old 17 Mile Drive at 4:50 p.m.

If Fishbough decides to charge the driver with violating his provisional license, the teen could lose his driving privilege for a year, Carbonel said.

"That's the harshest penalty," he said. "Part of the idea is to discourage these kids from doing what they do."

The California Vehicle Code is "very, very strict," when it comes to teens' rights to carry passengers, Carbonel said. Contrary to what many parents and kids believe, a simple note from a parent will not suffice.

"The bottom line is if it's a dire emergency where no other means of transportation exists," he said. "Parents need to know what their kids are doing and understand the law as well."

A few days after the accident, the photo of the crushed car was no longer on the front page of the teenage driver's MySpace site. Instead, a photo showed him shirtless, wearing dark glasses and striking a pose. The caption showed he had included the nickname, "Rollin."

Sewer fees going up, CAWD says

THE CARMEL Area Wastewater District is raising its rates for residences and businesses, the district announced.

Residential rates will increase from $301 per year to $319 per year for 2007/08 and to $337 per year for 2008/09. The increase is equivalent to about $1.50 per month for both years. Rates for businesses increase but vary from 1.71 percent to 10.79 percent, depending on the type of business.

CAWD said reasons for the rate increase include actual costs to operate and maintain the wastewater facility, increased costs of power, fuel, insurance and the transportation and disposal of biosolids.

Those who object to the charges may file a written protest with the CAWD board of directors. For more information about the rate changes, call CAWD finance officer Barbara Buikema at (831) 624-1248.

On June 28 at 9:30 a.m., CAWD will hold a public hearing at the district offices, 3945 Rio Road, prior to the adoption of its sewer rates.

Volunteer firefighters host Big Sur festival

PFEIFFER BIG Sur State Park will be the site of the first ever Friends of the Firefighters Festival Sunday, May 20, from noon to 4 p.m. The fundraising event will benefit the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade and will feature a fly-in by a California Highway Patrol helicopter, a Jaws of Life demonstration, a performance by the Big Sur Fire Dancers, a live auction, a raffle and BBQ.

The fundraiser was organized by the fire brigade's new auxiliary group, which will take over many of the group's fundraising and administrative tasks.

"We're hoping to take some of the load off our firefighters so they can focus on emergency calls," fire chief Frank Pinney explained.

The focus of the fundraiser is to raise money for three new fire engines and a water tender.

Tickets for the BBQ are $20 for adults; kids under 12 are free. To pre-purchase raffle or BBQ tickets, call (831) 667-2113. The fire brigade is also seeking auxiliary members. For more information, call (831) 667-0306. For more information about the fire brigade, visit www.bigsurfire.org.

Wayfarer pastor taps Peninsula's culture

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AUTHORS, MUSICIANS, actors and poets may not often be seen in church pulpits. But at one Carmel church, the Rev. Norm Mowery invites them to be.

"My vision for the Church of the Wayfarer is that we're a neighborhood church and really fit in with the context of the town, the milieu of the community, and Carmel's built so much on music and culture and the arts," he said.

Mowery began focusing on writers from the area, reading Robinson Jeffers and Henry Miller, among others, and talking about their works from a Christian viewpoint. Then he started inviting local authors to speak to his congregation.

"It's opened a whole new world for me," he said. "What wonderful, rich resources to draw from."

On Sunday, May 20, Big Sur poet, philosopher, artist and writer Ric Masten will appear at the Lincoln Street church the day after he is honored with a doctorate from California State University Monterey Bay. "What a fascinating individual," Mowery said. "He speaks to life."

And humorist Larry Wilde, author of 53 books and a nationally known motivational speaker, will discuss "Humor, Health and Spirituality" on Father's Day, June 17.

Mowery has also made Wayfarer a home away from home for the cast of characters who perform on the Forest Theater stage, offering it to them without charge for rehearsals most evenings.

"It's our gift to the community, but in turn, I have asked them if they would come and bring some of the music in or make a presentation on the play or musical they're doing," Mowery said.

As a result, the May 27 service will feature musical selections from "Cats!" presented by Forest Theater actors, and Mowery's sermon, based on the musical's story line, will be entitled, "I Remember the Time I Knew What Happiness Was." Afterward, patrons will be able to buy tickets to the production.

Later in the summer, when the Carmel Bach Festival descends on Sunset Center, Church of the Wayfarer will host 14 free recitals, and soloists will perform during some of the worship services. Mowery characterized the church's relationships with the Forest Theater and the Bach Fest as true partnerships.

"It adds culture and life to our church," he said.

Everybody Needs a Break Now and Then

Even the most dedicated of family caregivers periodically need some "time off" in order to replenish their energy and renew their spirits. But their commitment is so great that they have difficulty giving themselves permission to take a break.

Besides, the logistics — and the worry — involved in finding a qualified substitute or in taking their loved one to a care facility can be overwhelming.

We can help.

Our Home Care Coordinator will visit you to discuss your needs and wishes. Then, when the time comes, we will carefully select a Personal Attendant to be at home with your loved one while you are away, and to follow the routine that you have established. We'll do everything possible to make this temporary absence comfortable for your loved one and for you. It's worth a try, isn't it? Because you can't take good care of anyone else unless you take care of yourself.

Mayor solves Mutt Mitt mystery

‘BY THE awarding of this certificate and city pin, the secret is out and a question answered. Just who fills the Mutt Mitt dispensers?’

So read City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Certificates of Appreciation distributed to five dedicated women by Mayor Sue McCloud at the May 1 council meeting.

“In rain or shine, the women we are honoring today ensure there is a steady supply” of the biodegradable plastic baggies people use to pick up after their pooches in Mission Trail park, along Scenic Road and near Vista Lobos, McCloud said. “On behalf of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, we wish to express our appreciation for your unstinting service to the city, the environment, our marine sanctuary and man’s best friend. It puts new meaning in the expression, ‘It’s in the bag!’”

McCloud presented the certificates and pins, as well as small rolls of Mutt Mitts tied and embellished with a dog-bone-shaped tag bearing each woman’s name, to Nancy Gaylord-Callahan, Marikay Morris, Jeanie Lewis and Bernice Widrow. Becky Hanna was also honored but could not attend the council meeting because she was working as a docent at Point Lobos at the time.

In recent years, the city has spent about $10,000 annually on Mutt Mitts, using money generated by residents’ garbage pickup bills, according to city forester Mike Branson. The volunteers help the city save money by handling a duty that would otherwise be tended to by paid employees.

Hikers to get preview of new park

LOCAL HIKERS interested in a sneak preview of a future state park will have an opportunity to visit the Point Lobos Ranch.

The Big Sur Land Trust is offering a guided group hike of the ranch Saturday, May 19 at 9 a.m. The hike will follow San Jose Creek, passing through groves of redwoods and fields of wildflowers.

The 1300-acre ranch was proposed as the location of a conference center and condominium development until the BSLT purchased the property in 1993. The BSLT transferred the property to state parks in 2006.

Space on the hike is limited, so reservations are required. To make a reservation and learn more about the hike, call (831) 625-5523, ext. 1.

School supporters' gifts exceed $2 million

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE FRIENDS of Carmel Unified Schools distributed $70,000 last Wednesday night to buy cameras, computers, gardening supplies and other items not covered in the district's budget, according to board member and former River School principal Sharron Douglas. The gifts pushed FOCUS' contributions past $2 million since its inception in 1979.

"I was on the receiving end for so many years — it's so gratifying" to give, Douglas said after the annual party at Carmel Middle School attended by teachers and staff from the district's schools.

Each month, FOCUS issues "small grants" of $1,000, but it only distributes large gifts once a year. At the May 9 event, FOCUS donated $69,000 to the preschools and elementary, middle and high schools to help pay for audio systems, sand tables, computers, school gardens, art appreciation programs, software, lighting systems, cardiovascular gym equipment, cameras and bird banding equipment, according to Douglas.

The group also held drawings to give 10 teachers $100 each, bringing the total grants distributed this year to $159,937.

"We have excellent schools and are pleased to be able to support them," Douglas said.

FOCUS holds a few major fundraisers that enable it to meet its mission of supporting programs that get little or no money in the district's regular budget.

Its annual phone-a-thon took place in February, and the Golf for FOCUS tournament is set for June 27 at Poppy Hills

Golf Course in Pebble Beach. (Douglas said this year's event will be held in memory of Paul Porter, the Northern California Golf Association CEO who died last September.)

Tehama will be the site of the group's fall fundraiser in October.

"People are very generous in donating," Douglas said. "We have a lot of community support."

Speeding, pedaling, kicking, partying on tap at Laguna Seca season opener

By MARY BROWNFIELD

EVEN PEOPLE who aren't really into motorsports will have reason to visit Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca for this weekend's U.S. Sports Car Invitational, event organizers are willing to bet. From watching four-on-four soccer, to being able to pedal their own bicycles around the track, spectators will get more than the usual excitement of a weekend of car racing.

Of course, the racing gets top billing, and the Grand-Am Rolex Sports Car Series features drivers testing their skills behind the wheels of more than 50 Daytona Prototypes and GT sports cars that look fast even when standing still. The Grand American Road Racing Association was established in 1999 "to return stability to major league sports car road racing in North America," with cars driven by veterans Scott Pruett, Jorg Bergmeister and Christian Fittipaldi, and up-and-comers like 18-year-old Colin Braun.

Among them is Alex Gurney, son of racing legend Dan Gurney and a championship contender following his and teammate Jon Fogarty's win in their No. 99 GAINSCO/Bob Stallings Racing Pontiac-Riley Daytona Prototype in Mexico City in March. They battled during the grueling 24-hour race at Daytona, and since the season began, four different two-driver teams have won the four different races.

At his debut in 2005, Gurney was immediately fast in qualifying and started the race in pole position. Last year, he finished second.

"I'm very excited to get back to Laguna," Gurney said in a teleconference last Wednesday that also included his dad, who drove in the track's first professional race in 47 years ago and will be its first inductee to the Legends of Laguna Seca Walk of Fame this weekend.

"Dan's career is pretty unparalleled," White said. (He also started the now well practiced tradition of winners spraying Champagne all over each other and bystanders after accepting trophies on the podium.)

Dan Gurney will serve as grand marshal during Sunday's Grand-Am race while his son drives. He's the first of the five racing legends named as inductees to the walk of fame being installed in honor of the track's 50th anniversary. Wayne Rainey, Pete Lovely, Eddie Lawson and Bobby Rahal will each be honored at a separate major race

Polly Buzza Kenaston

January 22, 1918 ~ April 18, 2007

Polly Buzza Kenaston passed away peacefully on April 18 in Alamo, California with her daughter at her bedside. Her ashes were scattered under the Golden Gate Bridge at her request.

Polly was born in Minneapolis, Minnesota on January 22, 1918. At 14, she moved with her parents, George and Suzanne Buzza, to Hollywood, California, where George founded the Buzza-Cardoza Greeting Card Company. She started her lifelong career in art and design while working for her dad.

She graduated from Westlake Girls' School, and started at Chouinard School of Art. School was put on hold when her father took her on a cruise around the world. With her first husband, Robert Clark Lawton, she designed and built a home in the Malibu hills. Later she divorced and moved to the beach in Malibu, where she lived among the movie stars. Here she began working in interior design and attended Pepperdine University. In 1970, she moved to Carmel Highlands and opened her own successful interior design and antiques business. One of her most unusual projects was to decorate a private railroad car. In 1977, she married Jack Kenaston and lived briefly in Glendale, California, returning to Carmel Highlands when Jack retired. They lived in the Highlands for thirty happy years until Jack's death. They traveled extensively and collected antiques and art. Polly's next move was to Del Mesa Carmel, where she lived until April 2006. Her last move was to Alamo, California.

Polly was a prolific artist and tireless volunteer in the community. She has exhibited her work many times and her paintings light up the walls of several dozen homes. Her many community activities included the Monterey Museum of Art where she served on the board and received an Honorary Life Membership for establishing the Jesters, a "fun" fund raising group. She was a member of the Central Coast Art Association, the Pacific Grove Art Museum, the Carmel Women's Club, the Peninsula Club, the Republican Women and the Quail Lodge.

Polly is survived by her children, John Lawton (Carole) of Pacific Grove and Gigi Lawton (Bob Halliwell) of Danville; grandchildren, Jillian Halliwell of Los Gatos, and Ian Halliwell of Danville; her brother, Duke Buzza (Judy); nephew Shane Buzza (Beth) and niece Stephanie Izzarelli Ethan. She is also survived by Jack's children: Connie Stewart (Rob) and Court Kenaston (Sally).

Polly's motto was, "No matter the consequence, tell it like it is!" She was a friend to many with a great sense of humor and love of fun. Polly will greatly missed by those who knew her.

If it's happening this summer, it's happening at Monterey Peninsula wineries

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

SUMMER IN Monterey County is alive with wine festivals, events and tastings. There's nothing quite like leisurely strolling on a sunny day (when we're lucky enough to have 'em), exploring shops, nibbling treats, and sipping Merlot or Chardonnay. With nearly 30 tasting rooms and more than 80 wineries in the area, you can count on something always going on. And don't forget, the Grapevine Express (www.mst.org) is back in action to get you to and from the wineries safely. It connects Cannery Row with Carmel Valley wineries — and a $4.50 all-day pass will get you to any one (or all) of the 17 wine-tasting destinations surrounding the seven stops. The line runs Fridays through Sundays between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. To stay on top of local wine events, be sure to check out www.wineevents.org. More than 120 California wineries will pour more than 800 wines at the red- or white-only tastings. The event, which is held June 7-9, also includes educational seminars, cooking demonstrations and a live wine auction. Ticket prices vary by event. For more information, visit www.montereywine.com or call (888) 814-9463.

The event is hosted by Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce. There is a small wine-tasting fee, but free for those who don't wish to imbibe. For more information, visit www.carmelvalleychamber.com or call (831) 659-4000.

The Barnyard Shopping Village celebrates its 17th Annual Art & Wine Festival June 16. Twenty top-list California wineries will be on hand to pour; and the $25 ticket price benefits Girls, Inc. For more information, visit www.thebarnyard.com or call (831) 624-8886.

Cima Collina is in the throes of remodeling its new Art Gallery and Wine Tasting Bar and plans to open by mid-June. The tasting room will feature the art of Carol Chapman and Fred Slautterback (www.scfinearts.com). Located on the west side of San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh in the Paseo Courtyard (behind Kocek jewelers), the tasting room will be open Thursday through Monday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. (closed Tuesday and Wednesday). For more information, visit www.cimacollina.com or call (831) 620-0645.

For more information, visit www.clementineskitchen.com or call (831) 392-1494. The store also hosts fantastic cooking classes year round.

■ July

Starting July 6, Carmel Plaza is hosting its annual "Jazz at the Plaza." The 12-week concert series features a variety of live music by local musicians and highlights a different Monterey County winery each week. Bruce Forman & Cow Bop and Scheid Vineyards kick off the festivities. The Jazz Series runs through Sept. 21 from 5 to 7 p.m. each Friday (can you say al fresco happy hour?) and is sponsored by Carmel Plaza and the Monterey County Vintners and Growers Association. Music is complementary, and the weekly cheese and wine tasting is $15. The lineup of musicians and wineries is available at www.carmelplaza.com.

On Sunday, July 8, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Château Julien is having its annual Wine Estate Summer Jamboree. Featuring Private Reserve, Estate Vineyard and new vocation.

"I had never been so excited in my entire life," she recalled. "After class, I'd go to the library and get every art book I could get my hands on."

Despite the challenges of becoming an artist in life's midstream, few were surprised when Fassett suddenly became a prolific painter. Her grandmother was Jane Gallatin Powers, a pioneering Carmel artist. Her brother, Kaffe Fassett, is one of the world's most acclaimed textile artists. Her daughter, Erin Gafill, and her grandson, Chi Birmingham, are gifted painters.

Besides being surrounded by artists, Fassett's lifelong love of knitting no doubt eased her transition into the art world.

"Knitting is a de-stresser," said Fassett, who will present a demonstration at Big Sur Gallery Saturday. "The Greeks have their 'worry beads' and the Catholics have their Rosaries. For me, knitting is a meditation."

Like her brother, Fassett has an unabashed affection for the entire palette of yarns and paints.

"Color just thrills me," she said. "Some people in art class are afraid of it. But not me. I love it."

The gallery is located at 26543 Carmel Rancho Blvd. For more information, call (831) 624-1172 or visit www.bigsur-gallery.net.

■ Carmel Art Festival celebrates its 14th year

Highlighted by a plein aire competition, a juried sculpture exhibit and a lively musical lineup, the Carmel Art Festival returns this weekend for its 14th year.

Performing at Devendorf Park will be reggae musician Tony Miles (Friday, May 18, from 1:30 to 5 p.m.) steel drummer Derek Smith (Saturday, May 19, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.), acoustic quintet Heartstrings (Saturday from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.) and the Carmel Rotary Blues Band (Sunday, May 20, from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.) The park will also host a plein aire awards ceremony Saturday at 5 p.m. For more information, visit www.carmelartfestival.org.

■ New gallery hosts abstract art show

As a psychotherapist, Patricia Qualls of Carmel is an expert in the art of listening. As an abstract painter, Qualls has discovered those same listening skills can be an invaluable aid to the creative process.

"Deep listening and sensitivity are her tools," explained Cynthia Bianchetta, who curated an exhibit of Qualls' work that will open Saturday, May 19, at the new Elliott-Radoman Gallery in Carmel. "In her studio, she brings those same tools into play."

The gallery, which will host a reception from 1 to 5 p.m., is located at 26362 Carmel Rancho Lane. For more information, call (831) 626-0654.

■ The Art of Plein Aire

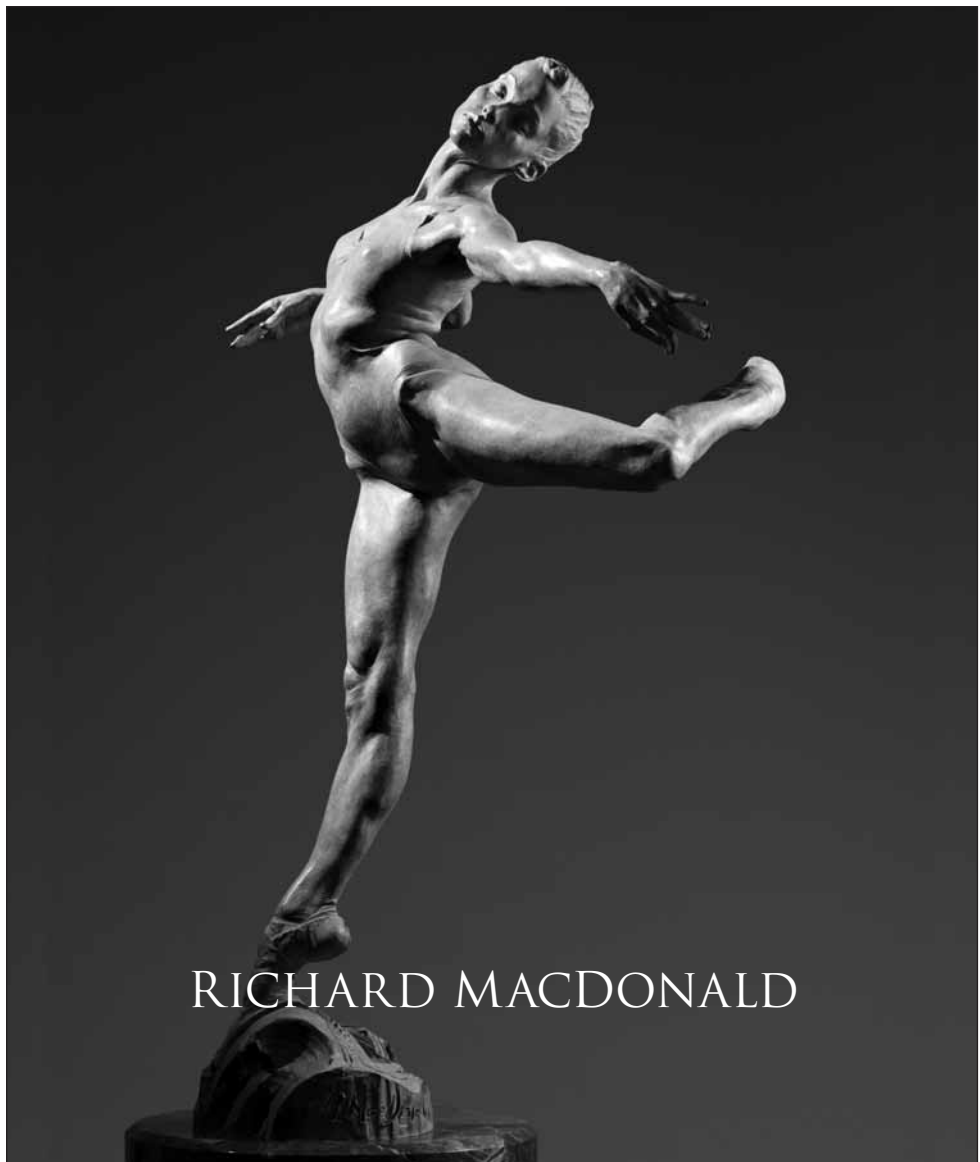

Christine Crozier of Pacific Grove will present a talk about plein aire painting at the Carmel Art Association Wednesday, May 23 at 7 p.m.

A member of the art association, Crozier is best known for painting the colorful gardens that often adorn California's historic missions and adobes.

The talk is free and no reservations are necessary. The gallery is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. For more information, call (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmelart.org.

■ Carmel artist subject of documentary

"My Name Is Belle," a documentary about Carmel artist and writer Belle Yang, airs at Sunday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. on PBS station KQED. Yang's new children's book, "Always Come Home to Me," will be published in the fall. For more information about Yang, visit www.belleyang.com.

DAWSON COLE
FINE ART

You don't have to be an expert to sip like one

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

CHOOSING A wine should be easy, enjoyable and, above all, fun. But if a trip to your local wine shop makes you feel nervous about appearing uninformed, this wine-by-type guide will help you navigate the formidable variety of Monterey County wines. And if you're still feeling stumped, you can always ask for suggestions from your friendly neighborhood wine clerk.

■ The little black dress — Blackstone Sauvignon Blanc 2005 ($8)

Bright and fresh with tropical fruit flavors and a touch of classic herbal notes, this wine has racy acidity and a crisp, clean finish. Small amounts of Chardonnay, Semillon and Viognier were added to enhance the luscious mouthfeel.

What it works with: Entertaining for a group and need something that'll make everyone happy? This versatile white makes nice with most dishes — fish and shellfish, pork, barbecue, roasted chicken, even scrambled eggs. www.blackstonewinery.com

■ Don't discriminate — Escafeld 2003 Monterey County Zinfandel ($20)

Dark red in the glass with rich aromas of chocolate, blackberry and raspberry. Those flavors, along with hints of violets and vanilla, give way to a long, lingering finish.

What it works with: This can't-go-wrong wine isn't too intense on the palate and pairs with almost every non-seafood dish imaginable, including American cooking classics such as BBQ, chili, seasoned steaks and robust dark meat dishes. www.escafeld.com

■ For the carnivore — Marilyn Remark Wild Road Horse Grenache 2004 ($45)

Grenache is the backbone varietal of Southern Rhone's

Chateauf-du-Pape region and this rich, intense, age-worthy wine boasts aromas of dark berry fruit. Flavors of blackberries and boysenberries meld with hints of white pepper and chocolate.

What it works with: Simply prepared meats - roasted, grilled or broiled - bring out the best in this sassy, full flavored wine. www.remarkwines.com

■ Order Italian — Ventana Vineyards 2004 Due Amici ($28)

"Due Amici" means, "Two Friends." This is medium-bodied blend of Cabernet Sauvignon and Sangiovese showcases a bright ruby color with red fruit flavors of cherry, blackberry and black raspberry alongside vanilla and light smoky tones of oak.

What it works with: This wine's greatest asset is its ability to pair with many styles of food. The zesty red cleanses the palate and cuts through heavy Italian dishes, like sweet Italian sausages, but pairs equally well with hamburgers from the grill and pizza. www.ventanawines.com

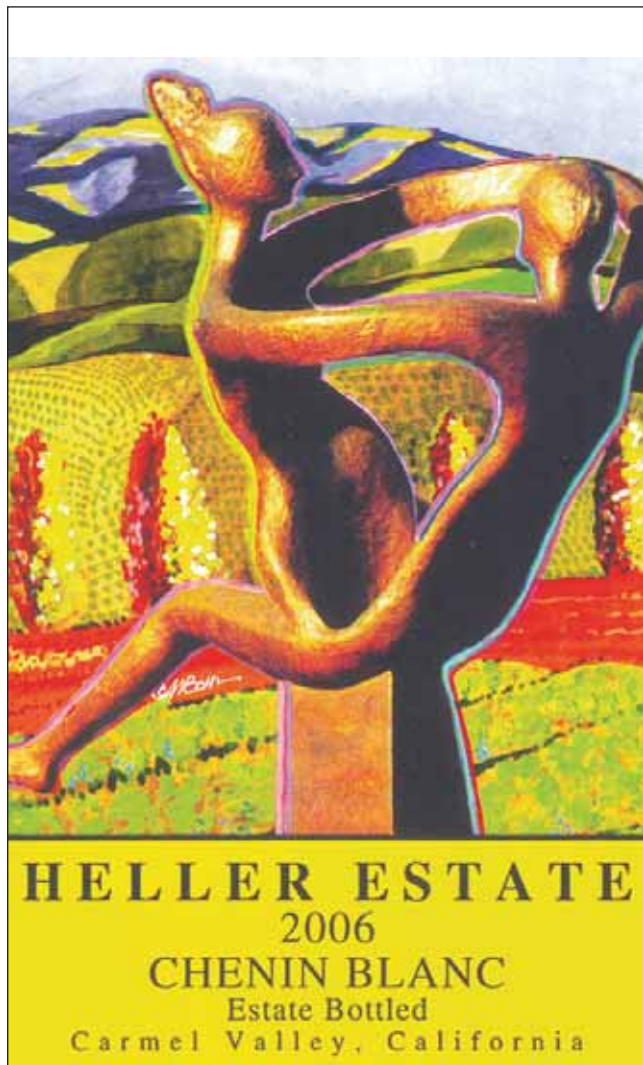

■ Distinctive label — Heller Estate 2006 Chenin Blanc ($25)

Heller Estate's signature "Dances on Your Palate" labels set their wines visually apart from the pack, but beyond the novelty, the perfect combination of bright, lively acid and smooth, long residual sweetness makes this Chenin Blanc shine. Look for flavors of lychee, citrus, ripe pear and green apple.

What it works with: This essential summer sipper complements a variety of warm-weather fare — salads, white meats and sushi. www.hellerestate.com

■ Spicy food — Cima Collina 2004 Newell Vineyard Petite Sirah ($35)

Produced with fruit from the Tondre grape field, located in the heart of Santa Lucia Highlands, this aromatic wine features spicy, sweet oak, cherry, and dried rose qualities, well-integrated oak and cherry rhubarb, raspberry flavors, with a long finish.

What it works with: This well balanced wine offers food-friendly acidity, ripe fruit flavors and robust tannins that cut through the fat of rich meats and heat of spicy Mexican dishes and Thai curries. www.cimacollina.com

■ When you are broke — Poppy Monterey County Pinot Noir 2005 ($10)

Like the girl next door, this wine is friendly, accessible and always there in a pinch — plus it's one heckuva value at $10. With fruit from Santa Barbara County and Russian River Valley, this ruby translucent wine combines cherry, pomegranate and plum flavors with light clove, tea and citrus rind accents. On the tongue, it's a light-middleweight Pinot with pleasant young tannins.

What it works with: For a grape that is so difficult to grow, it has no qualms when it comes to food pairings. Try this Pinot Noir with poultry, beef, fish, ham, lamb or pork. www.poppywinecompany.com

■ Dessert — Mer Soleil 2002 Late Harvest Viognier ($34, 375 ml)

This subtly sweet wine (third vintage in a row) makes for the perfect post-meal elixir. Botrytis cinerea occurred in a small block of Viognier vines at the northern border of the Mer Soleil Vineyard. This naturally occurring organism that turns grapes into a classic dessert wine also requires a specific combination of temperature and moisture. Expect concentrated flavors in a clear, nectar-like juice.

What it works with: It holds its own as a liquid dessert option but can also be paired with poached salmon with a creamy dressing or foie gras. www.mersoleilvineyard.com

■ Nightcap — Pessagno Wines Hames Valley Vineyard Port 2000 ($33)

This port is fashioned according to the exact standards and methods of Portuguese Port laws — including harvest parameters, vinification, and two years of barrel aging. This blend of Touriga Nacional, Tinta Cao, Souzao and Alvaraho boasts blackberries, blueberries, black pepper and licorice notes, with a subtle tannin structure.

What it works with: Kick back and enjoy the last moments of the day with this readily approachable, rich and lip-smacking-good port. Try it with aged cheeses, dried fruits and nuts, or on its own by a fireplace. www.pessagowines.com

■ Bubbly — 2005 Sofia Sparkling Wine ($19)

A mix of Pinot Blanc, Sauvignon Blanc and Muscat Canelli, this crisp, refreshing bubbly features dynamic pear, citrus and honey flavors. The palate is invigorating with mouth-catching flavors of apples and pears.

What it works with: Sparkling wine is incredibly food-friendly and versatile. Its effervescence makes it a surprisingly pleasant pairing with non-spicy, deep-fried foods: mini egg-rolls, tempura prawns and vegetables. Also works beautifully with sushi and sashimi, and of course, oysters. www.rubiconestate.com

■ Likes 'em rich — Talbott Chardonnay Sleepy Hollow Vineyard 2004 ($40)

This 21st vintage of Talbott Chardonnay expresses intense minerality, white peach, citrus zest, honeydew melon and pineapple notes. On the palate, this vintage shows lush silky richness and creamy notes of pear, peach, nectarine and toast.

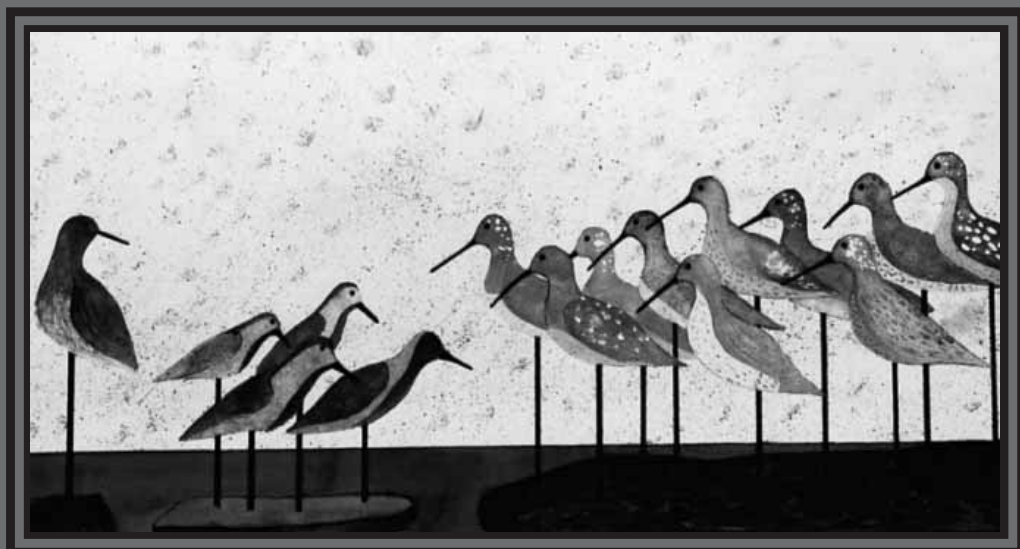

What it works with: Cream sauces, cheesy polenta and scallops in a butter, white wine sauce are yin to the perfect acidity (yang) in this luscious wine. www.talbottvineyards.com

■ Silky smooth — Pavona Wines 2001 Monterey County Pinot Noir ($20)

This silky wine with rounded mouthfeel has delicious cherry flavors and complex oak nuances.

What it works with: This extremely versatile wine pairs nicely with chicken, prime rib, turkey, salmon and soft cheeses. www.pavonawines.com

BIG GALLERY SUR

CELEBRATING THE ARTISTS OF THE BIG SUR COAST

Alice Russell invites you to Meet Our Artists this Spring and Summer.

Please join us from 3 to 5 pm on the 1st and 3rd Saturdays of each month at our Saturday Afternoon Wine, Cheese and Art Demonstration featuring selected artists.

Holly Fassett will be our Guest Artist on May 19, 2007

Holly is known for her vibrant acrylic renditions of the Big Sur Coast. She calls Highway One "Big Sur's Life Line," and many of her most intense images reflect the power of the road as it winds its way along the coast, describing this most dynamic meeting of land and sea. Most recently, Holly has brought her gaze inward to more domestic scenes, exploring the intimate juxtapositions of color and pattern of the still-life, under the tutelage of her brother, noted artist/designer Kaffe Fassett.

Holly will also demonstrate her knitting talents as we taste wines from selected local vineyards.

Backyard BBQ: pulled pork, cole slaw and homemade steak sauce

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

THE MONTEREY Peninsula may be well known for its fresh-caught seafood, but when warm weather rolls around, there's nothing like a killer barbecue to make any meat-and-potato-lovin' person cry with cow-induced happiness.

When it comes to a no-nonsense meat experience, Will's Fargo in Carmel Valley has the market cornered. They've kept the spirit of the twice baked potato, creamy garlic spinach and béarnaise sauce alive, and I recently discovered you can take their MidWest corn-fed angus beef home for your BBQ-ing pleasure. Flat iron, filet, top sirloin, Kansas City, Rib-eye, porterhouse, burger, quail and a fish selection are all available at Will's Fargo's Butcher Shop. Give them 72-hours notice, and they can whip up whole chicken and prime rib dinners with all the fixins', too.

Whether you like a straight ahead BBQ experience (just the burgers and buns, ma'am) or something that takes local ingredients into consideration, here are some grill tips that will make your friends glad they know you.

The most important part of any barbecue is the food, of course. Once you have an idea of how many people are coming to your event, you want to plan accordingly to have enough food and drinks on hand. Nothing stinks more than playing rock paper scissors for the last beer. If you want to save yourself some dough, plan a potluck and assign every guest a dish to bring. The host typically takes care of supplying the meat and condiments, and guests are encouraged to bring sides, desserts and booze.

Once you have a menu squared away, the next thing to consider is how you want to set up your patio or backyard. The key is to create an environment that can handle the capacity of your guest list but is also conducive to socializing. I like round tables for smaller functions, but long tables tend to work best for larger soirees. Set up the food and beverages buffet-style and guests can opt to sit or stand while eating. Folks with small backyards, pesky bug issues or who face the possibility of rain might want to consider setting up all of the food inside.

Last but not least, throw on some music (something festive, but not too loud — you want guests to chit chat and don't want the neighbors to complain) hang some lanterns or string lights for simple, yet chic, ambiance. Barbecues are meant to be casual gatherings, and you don't have to go crazy with decorations or orchestrating clever themes. The emphasis is on food, fun and being with friends.

It's time to get cooking. You can keep things super simple and go with the straightforward burger and hot dog route, but I always like to throw one made-from-scratch main dish into the mix. To quote a celebrity chef who fancies BBQ, the personal touch "kicks it up a notch" every time.

■ Pulled Pork Barbecue

Barbecues have long been a popular social occasion in the South, and this traditional Carolina-style pulled pork barbecue recipe uses one of the most under-appreciated parts of the pig.

What you need:
1 boneless pork butt
(about 5-6 pounds)

To make the rub:
2 tbs paprika
2 tbs salt
1 tbs black pepper
2 tsp cayenne, ground

To make the basting sauce:
1 1/2 cups cider vinegar
1/2 cup Bourbon
1 cup water
2 tbs molasses
2 tbs salt
4 chipotle peppers, finely chopped
1 tbs red pepper flakes
1 tbs black pepper
1 tsp cayenne, ground

How to make: In a small mixing bowl, combine the rub ingredients. Coat pork shoulder with seasonings and cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate eight to 24 hours. Preheat grill for medium heat. Place pork shoulder on grill and allow to smoke using hickory chips. (Make sure wood chips are soaked and drained before using.) Add charcoal and wood chips as necessary to keep temperature at medium, or 200-225°F. Smoke pork shoulder for five-six hours or until internal temperatures reach 185°F. Baste every 20 minutes during the last few hours of cooking. When the pork is completely cooked, shred, sauce and serve. (Boil sauce used for basting before applying to cooked food.)

■ Homemade Steak Sauce

Steak sauce is my favorite fix for making a less-than-perfect piece of meat taste great. It works equally well as a marinade for chicken or portabella mushrooms, a topping for burgers or for dipping French fries.

What you need:
1 cup ketchup
1/2 cup onion, coarsely chopped
1 large clove garlic
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup white vinegar
2 tbs soy sauce
2 tbs brown sugar
1 tbs prepared mustard

How to make: Combine all ingredients in a saucepan and simmer uncovered for 30 minutes or until it reaches a reasonably thick consistency, stirring occasionally. Cool. Strain to remove onion and garlic. Store in refrigerator.

Big Sur painter carries on family traditions of food, art

Holly Fassett of Big Sur knits in her front yard.

By CHRIS COUNTS

AFTER RAISING a family and managing a world-famous restaurant, Holly Fassett woke up one morning and discovered she had yet another talent.

"I never thought of myself as an artist," explained Fassett, who will be on hand at the Big Sur Gallery in Carmel Saturday, May 19, from 3 to 5 p.m. "I was always working and raising the kids."

Then, on a fateful day in 1993, Fassett came across a newspaper article about a painting class.

"The class was called, 'Painting for Beginners Only,'" recalled Fassett, who was just 5 when her parents opened the landmark Nepenthe restaurant in 1949. "Something just clicked, and I went right to the phone and dialed the number. I never would have done it if they called it an 'art class.'"

Fassett quickly immersed herself in her

Country Joe, '60s protest icon, pays tribute to Woody Guthrie

By CHRIS COUNTS

COUNTRY JOE McDonald once lived with Janis Joplin, shared the bill with Jimi Hendrix and the Who at the Monterey Pop Festival, and led nearly a half-million hippies in an obscene cheer at Woodstock.

Yet when the 65-year-old singer-songwriter plays at Fernwood Resort in Big Sur Friday, May 18, at 9 p.m., he will pay tribute to a folksinger — Woody Guthrie — whose name isn't generally associated with those heady times in the late 1960s when rock 'n' roll experienced some of its most colorful moments.

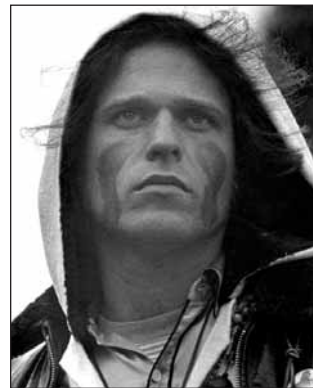

Guthrie had a profound influence on one of rock's greatest visionaries, Bob Dylan. And Guthrie's words and music sank deep into the consciousness of another singer-songwriter as he was growing up in Southern California in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

"He came into my life the day I was born," said McDonald of Guthrie's music. "My parents played 78 rpm records of his music all the time. When I was young, I kind of took his music for granted."

McDonald's parents embraced leftist politics, and those sentiments were on display in

By Margot Petit Nichols

LINUS & MOLLY Van Etten, 4 and 2 1/2 years old, respectively, are terrier “watchamacallits” according to Mom Miranda and Dad Mike, who were bringing them up the dunes at Carmel Beach Wednesday morning when we chanced upon them. Both were sporting new Puppia halters from Mackie’s Parlour in Carmel Plaza, and bejeweled leather collars made by a Tahoe artist.

Linus and Molly have an undetermined lineage because they’re rescue dogs. Linus has been a Van Etten longer than Molly, so when Molly came home with Mom and Dad, Linus more or less ignored her, being in the catbird seat. As time went on, Linus became accustomed to Molly and now he’s very nice to her. Molly thinks the sun rises and sets on Linus, according to Mom Miranda.

The Van Etten family came to Carmel from Meeks Bay on the West Shore of Lake Tahoe for a three-day holiday and to “catch a little sun.” Unfortunately, that’s what they did catch, but nevertheless everyone seemed to be enjoying Carmel Beach.

Although Molly likes to lie down in shallow streams back home when she and Linus go for walks on Meeks Canyon Trail, she wasn’t that enamored with the ocean waves, so she just waded a little.

Linus is known as “Mr. Personality” by family friends who think he should be in the movies because of his expressive face. But not being one for the limelight, Linus prefers to occupy himself keeping the squirrels out of Mom’s window boxes and raccoons out of the house. Otherwise, his main job is sorting trash in the house.

Molly is a “stay-at-home,” Mom said, preferring to spend most of her day on the couch where she can keep an eye on things. In contrast, Linus is more of a “man-about-town.”

Due to return to Meeks Bay Thursday, they finally got a little sun. It was just coming out at noontime as we drove away from Carmel Beach.

COUNTRY JOE

the folk music they played in their home. And Guthrie was one of the patron saints of the American socialist movement.

"My parents played a lot of political music," he said. "I grew up with the idea that writing political music was a natural thing."

Going to San Francisco

After serving as an air traffic controller in the U.S. Navy from 1959 to 1962, McDonald moved to Berkeley with the intention of furthering his formal education. But he soon was captivated by the folk revival of that era, which seamlessly was mixing politics and music. By 1965, rock 'n' roll had entered the scene, and soon the action was moving across the bay to Haight-Ashbury, a rundown San Francisco neighborhood that two years later would be the epicenter of the legendary Summer of Love. Against this backdrop, Country Joe and the Fish was formed.

"I was the only Joe in the band," conceded McDonald when asked where the "Country" in his name came from.

It was during this time that McDonald wrote the band's signature song, the protest anthem, "I Feel Like I'm A Fixin' To Die Rag."

"It just popped into my head one day in 1965," he recalled. "It took about 20 minutes to write."

Country Joe and the Fish attracted a loyal following at concert halls like the Fillmore and the Avalon Ballroom, where they shared the stage with other new groups like the Grateful Dead, the Jefferson Airplane and Big Brother and the Holding Company, which featured a then-unknown lead singer named Janis Joplin. McDonald and Joplin became romantically involved.

"In spite of her image, she was a regular person," McDonald recalled. "She enjoyed doing regular things, like walking around town and hanging out with friends. But she was pretty ambitious. And she became a star, that's for sure."

From Monterey Pop to Woodstock

By the summer of 1967, the San Francisco music scene had grown into a national phenomenon. In June, the Monterey County Fairgrounds hosted the Monterey Pop Festival, arguably the greatest concentration of rock 'n' roll talent ever assembled on one stage. Country Joe and the Fish performed at the concert, and McDonald was particularly impressed with two new acts, Jimi Hendrix (who played the guitar behind his back and set fire to it on the Monterey Fairgrounds stage at the end of his set) and the Who (the band des-troyed their equipment at the end of theirs).

"Hendrix was a great performer," McDonald remembered. "I was very amused by his theatrics."

As for the Who, "I thought it was very interesting the way the Who threw their instruments around," he remembered.

Over the next two years, Country Joe and the Fish enjoyed modest commercial success and a busy touring schedule. Then came the second great music festival in rock history, Woodstock. Again, Country Joe and the Fish took the stage, following up Richie Havens' mesmerizing concert-opening performance.

"The crowd was the star at Woodstock," he said. "The audience was so big."

In the 38 years that have passed since Woodstock, McDonald has continued to tour and record solo albums, carving out a small but enduring niche in pop music history.

Another millennium, another war

While the musical limelight has escaped McDonald in recent years, his affection for mixing politics and music occasionally has landed him in the headlines. In 2005, political commentator Bill O'Reilly compared McDonald with Fidel Castro after the singer-songwriter participated in an anti-war rally.

"I took it as a compliment," said McDonald. "Castro is the leader of a country and I'm not. It's not everyday I get compared to someone like that."

McDonald also defended his patriotism.

"Bill O'Reilly is not a military veteran and I am," he said. "He should just keep his mouth shut."

More from folkYEAH!

Thanks to the folks at folkYEAH! Presents, Big Sur's music scene is thriving. In addition to McDonald's show, folkYEAH! is responsible for bringing Black Crowes lead singer Chris Robinson to Big Sur for two concerts this weekend. On Saturday, May 19, at 9 p.m., Robinson's Wooden Family will play at Fernwood. On Sunday, the Henry Miller Library will host a 1 p.m. show by Robinson and his backing group. For more information about any of the folkYEAH! performances, visit myspace.com/folkyeahpresents.

Ode to another Joe

The Henry Miller Library will host a musical memorial celebration for Joe Edmundson of Big Sur Saturday, May 19. Edmundson, who passed away Dec. 5 at the age of 56, came to Big Sur in 1968. He was a familiar face and voice at Big Sur Multi-Agency meetings, where he was known for his outspoken support of local property owners. Edmundson was also a big baseball fan, a talented jazz flutist and a nature lover. He is survived by his wife, Shirley of Big Sur; his son, Dane of Big Sur; his daughter, Dr. Lanika Buchanan of Seattle, Wash., and his mother, Josephine Pilgrim of Monterey.

Dane Edmundson, who sings and plays guitar, will be joined by fellow singer-guitarist Brian LaPlace and a collection of local drummers. The music starts at 1 p.m.

will officially be in a drought.

The MPWMD and California American Water Co. have begun a new three-part campaign aimed at the Peninsula's 40,000 water customers.

"People need to be even more conscientious about their water use," said Cal Am community relations manager Catherine Bowie. "We have to prepare for what could be a hot, dry summer."

The water message, spread through mailers and newspaper advertisements, will remind residents to adhere to outdoor watering schedules and other Stage 1 water conservation rules, and to urge Cal Am customers to take immediate steps to reduce their water consumption.

Berger said it's hoped an increase in water savings by customers will "help delay or avoid the need for emergency conservation rate increases and other actions to bring demand down."

Conservation is also more important this year than in the past because of new pumping restrictions on the Seaside Aquifer, Bowie said.

Her company has been under an order to reduce pumping from the Carmel River by about 60 percent. But environmental and regulatory rules have delayed development of a replacement project.

Steelhead suffering

This year's dry spell has affected the Carmel River steelhead fish population. Low river flows, coupled with high temperatures in the upper Carmel Valley, make it difficult for the fish to survive.

Areas in the river that normally wouldn't dry up for another couple of months are already parched, said Frank Emerson with the Carmel Valley Steelhead Association. His group advocates construction of a desal plant so more water can be left in the river.

"Desalination is also the only truly drought-free water supply we can have," Emerson said. "Unfortunately," he added, "you have the anti-growth advocates who, in my view, are unfortunately willing to let the Carmel River suffer to prevent growth."

The MPWMD spends $1.6 million, about 20 percent of its annual budget, to rescue steelhead fish in the river. Some of them are moved to parts of the river that are still flowing. Others are taken to a fish-rearing tank. The money for these efforts is tacked on to Cal Am customers' water bills.

Contractor Dennis Wagner said if the city required restoration of the garage, his client would forego the addition altogether and take the less desirable route of reworking the small upstairs bedroom to accommodate the appliances.

Unswayed, commissioner Alan Hower moved approval of the design but denial of the variance, since someone had broken the law by turning the garage into a bedroom.

But forcing Harmon to remove the bedroom just so she could add 12 square feet seemed "petty," commissioner Robin Wilson countered, and he proposed approving her requests.

"Where do you draw the line, whether it's 14 square feet or 40 square feet?" chairman Bill Strid asked. "There is little difference in my mind."

And how could the commission justify the allowance, commissioner Steve Hillyard wondered. "As staff points out, we would have to make some findings to approve the variance," he said. "And as staff points out, we can't make findings, so we can't approve the variance."

"We're being told we don't have adequate reason," Wilson said. "We don't need adequate reason — we're the planning commission."

Without the variance, Harmon would have to turn the bedroom back into a garage even if she withdrew her application and opted not to do any other construction on the home, planning services manager Brian Roseth said.

"In reality, now that we are aware that conversion has taken place, we're obligated to pursue that, regardless of any building change being requested," he said.

Hower said Harmon might be able to seek some compensation for her troubles. "Since the applicant just bought this house recently, this may bring up the question of whether the person she bought it from or the realtor indicated whether there were illegal modifications to the garage," he said. "And recourse might be taken."

The commission unanimously voted to approve the 12-square-foot addition and deny the variance.

Today's Modern Dentistry

Presented by Frank J. di Bari, DDS

ARRESTING THE PROGRESSION OF GINGIVITIS

When periodontal (gum) disease progresses to the point where bacteria-laden plaque hardens on the teeth to form calculus ("tartar"), the inflammatory condition known as "gingivitis" appears. Left untreated, the chronic inflammation can spread down to the underlying bone to create the potential for tooth loss. To prevent this outcome, patients with gingivitis are treated with scaling and root planing, which removes calculus buildup on tooth surfaces above and below the gum line. Then, as an adjunct to scaling and root planing, an anti-bacterial powder may be applied to the pockets that surround each treated tooth. This helps to prevent the return of the bacteria that threaten periodontal health, and it is more effective than scaling and root planing alone.

In addition to poor oral hygiene, other factors that may contribute to gingivitis include diabetes, smoking, aging, genetic predisposition, systemic diseases and conditions, stress, inadequate nutrition, hormonal fluctuations, substance abuse, pregnancy and certain medication use. Gingivitis is reversible with professional treatment and good home oral care. For more information or to schedule an appointment, please call our office. Low interest financing plans are available. We are open by appointment.

P.S. The dentist or hygienist can assess the severity of gingivitis by measuring the depth of the pocket (sulcus) that surrounds each tooth.

Dr. di Bari, is a dentist in private practice at 20 Dormody Ct. here in Monterey. He may be reached at 373-3703.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by Meg Parker Conners, R.N.

FEELING SLEEPY?

While more than two-thirds of elderly individuals report having sleep problems, their physicians rarely take note of these complaints. So reports a recent study of more than 1,000 patients who were 60 years old or older and had recently visited their primary care doctors. According to social workers who surveyed the patients, 69 percent of them reported at least one complaint of experiencing sleep problems while 40 percent had two or more problems. Despite this high rate of sleep complaints, they were only noted by doctors in the patients' charts 19 percent of the time. This is a significant oversight since previous research has linked sleep disorders among the elderly with poorer mental and physical health and quality of life.

The relief of chronic pain and control of underlying medical conditions such as frequent urination may improve sleep in some people. Effective treatment of depression can also improve sleep. Other ways to promote sleep include having a specific bedtime and awakening time each day, exercising early in the day, avoiding naps during the day and large meals before bedtime, and avoiding stimulants such as caffeine. For more information, please call VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES.

P.S. Although sleep problems such as a reduction in deep sleep tend to occur with age, they are not inevitable with aging. Only one percent of elderly individuals with exceptionally good health report sleep difficulties.

Meg Parker Conners is an RN and owner of Victorian Health Care Services and Victorian Residential Care Homes. For assistance, call 655-1935.

LAGUNA

this season.

Alex Gurney also recalled watching races in 1992 and 1993, long before he ever drove at Laguna.

“Being able to be pretty close to Turn 4 and really see the speed of the cars and how loaded up they were,” he said, “was impressive and so much fun to watch. It’s a great track for viewing.”

Battles are also predicted in the Grand-Am KONI Challenge, which serves as a proving ground for almost 60 production-based sports cars, and the 2007 SCCA SIRIUS Satellite Radio Mazda MX-5 Cup that has newcomers in identically built street cars.

Kicking, pedaling, partying

Off the track, spectators can mingle with racing stars at Friday night’s Fan Party at the Mucky Duck on Alvarado Street in Monterey from 5 to 8 p.m., and autograph sessions will be held at Laguna Seca Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday evening, anyone who purchases a two-day ticket can get on the track — whether to speed or to coast — as long as a bicycle is involved. It costs nothing more to participate, but the 6:30 p.m. hour-long Sunset Bicycle Ride will benefit Camp Boggy Creek, a year-round camp in Florida for children ages 7-16 who have chronic or life threatening illnesses, and the Laguna Seca Raceway Fund that helps finance future improvements at Laguna. Register at 6 p.m. near Turn 5 to ride with Rolex Sports Car Series drivers Max Papis, Darren Law, Randy Ruhlman, Andy Lally and Craig Stanton. And of course, helmets are required.

Those who love “the world’s most popular sport” — soccer — will want to check out the Futbol Fiesta presented by GAINSCO, a four-on-four tournament with men’s and women’s teams from Central California. Preliminary rounds will be Saturday, with the championship Sunday. At 2 p.m. May 20, members of the California State University Monterey Bay team will host a free soccer clinic for kids.

As with all Laguna Seca events, children under 12 are admitted free to the track, and Monterey-Salinas Transit will give free rides to ticket holders. For more information on the weekend’s events, visit www.laguna-seca.com.

Horse competition in C.V.

SOME OF the state’s best cowboys, cowgirls and their horses will converge on Carmel Valley this weekend. The Central Coast Ranch Horse Classic will be held at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club May 19 and will feature 20 riders.

“It’s to honor the horses used on ranches throughout the country,” said Sarah Clifford, who is riding in the event. “And it’s not a rodeo. It’s really about about the horse, its abilities and the training of the horse.”

Riders and horses will have to demonstrate their proficiency in challenges such as roping cattle and riding through difficult obstacle courses, Clifford said.

“We are excited this year, because we have some top-notch competitors,” she added. The event, which is free for the public to attend, begins at 8 a.m. at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club on East Garzas Road.

said. Reliable transportation also allows seniors to remain independent and in their own homes, and can help ease the pain and frustration they feel when they can no longer safely drive themselves.

■ $50,000 to cover the costs of delivering meals to the disabled and ill, as well as their full-time caregivers.

"Any donation to this program for home-bound seniors provides a nutritious meal and feeds the body as well as the spirit," and costs just $4 for an entrée, vegetable, soup and dessert, Martinez said. Well balanced, freshly prepared food contributes to better health, while a poor diet can increase recovery time following illnesses, add to the costs and frequency of institutionalization, and diminish quality of life.

Gifts net new ovens

Martinez also wanted to thank those who have supported the nonprofit in the past, including the 15 donors who contributed a total $20,000 in February to replace the aged ovens and stove that had yielded 276,106 meals between 1998 and 2006.

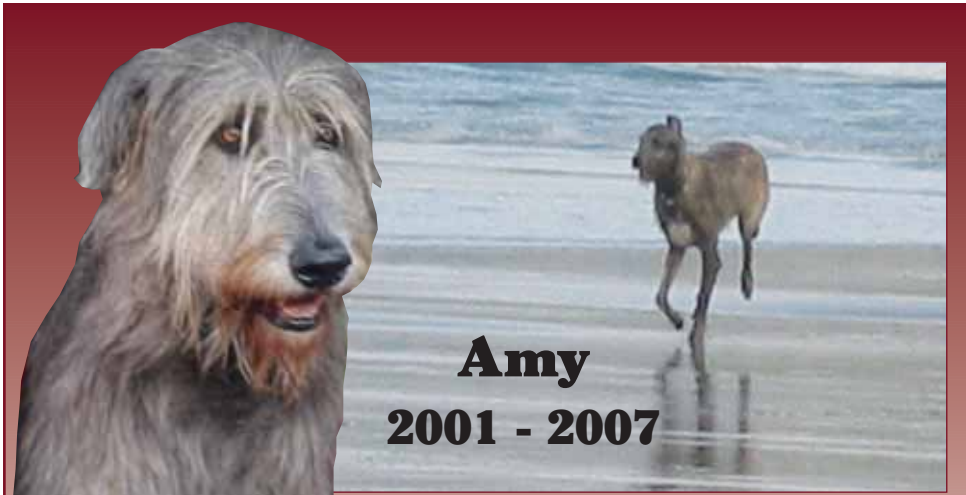

The group included members, other supporters and a couple from San Francisco who were staying at the Highlands Inn and made a generous contribution after reading about the need in The Pine Cone.

"The manager of the Highlands delivered the check on their behalf from the Richard Grand Foundation, as they support nutrition programs for seniors," she reported. With its luncheon program often near capacity and a waiting list for homebound meal delivery, the new ovens and stove have helped the foundation increase its efficiency and productivity, according to Martinez.

The lunches began in 1965 with monthly potlucks provided by volunteers and have grown to feature full meals four days every week.

Donations should be sent to Martinez at the Carmel Foundation, P.O. Box 1050, Carmel, CA 93921. For more information, call her at (831) 624-1588 ext. 45 or visit www.carmelfoundation.org.

MONTEREY COUNTY
WEEKLY

Monterey Symphony closes out season

THE MONTEREY Symphony will close its season with a bang when it performs Johannes Brahms' revered "Ein Deutches Requiem" Sunday, May 20, and Monday, May 21, at Sunset Center.

"This is one of [music director] Max Bragado-Darman's favorite pieces," said symphony executive director Joe Truskot. "It's just a sensational way to close the season."

Brahms' largest choral work, "Ein Deutches Requiem" offers the symphony an opportunity to display its talents on a grand scale.

"It's a big production," Truskot explained. "There will be 150 voices on stage, plus the full orchestra."

To come up with 150 voices, the Monterey Symphony Chorus will join forces with the San Jose Symphonic Choir. The performance will also feature solos by soprano Joyce Guyer and baritone Doug Botnick.

Preceding "Ein Deutches Requiem" will be a rendition of Howard Hanson's Symphony No.5 "Sinfonia sacra."

According to Truskot, the symphony is Hanson's "emotional response to the Easter story."

"It has three parts," he said. "The beginning, the death of Christ, is dark. The central section, the resurrection, is jubilant. The end is quiet, with a Gregorian-type chant. It's a very beautiful piece of music."

Sunday's performance starts at 3 p.m., while Monday's concert begins at 8 p.m. Tickets range from $33 to $58. Pre-concert lectures by musicologist Dr. Jean Widaman, which are free of charge to all ticket holders, will begin one hour prior to the start of each performance in Room 105 at Sunset Center.

On May 2, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Curtis denied that appeal and sentenced Ramirez to eight years and eight months in prison for his crimes. Santa Cruz County authorities could impose an additional prison sentence for Ramirez' probation violation.

FRAUD

Brazil, an investigator with the Secretary of State's fraud unit, dialed their Carmel phone number, but it forwarded to Alamo, and Price explained where they were.

"She said she was looking into voter registration," he said. Price asked if there was a problem. "She said, 'I don't know. That's why I wanted to meet with you personally.'"

Since registering to vote in Carmel, the Prices said they have never voted in Contra Costa County, so they wondered why the state was questioning them.

"She showed up out of the blue, when our doorbell rang in Alamo on May 4," Price continued. Brazil handed Price her business card and said she stopped by to check on the Prices' other home on her way to Livermore.

"Again, I asked her, 'What is this about? Is there an indication I haven't voted properly?'" Price said. She told him "some organizations" had provided "a number of names in Carmel" to investigate.

"Somebody must have made a pretty strong case," observed Jane Price, who said Brazil also furnished copies of their vehicle registration, which shows the Alamo address.

Brazil reportedly asked the couple not to be defensive and explained she was just doing her job. "Then she gave this little smile, and she said, 'This is your tax dollars at work,'" Jane Price said.

Few answers

Despite the Prices' experience, California Chief Deputy Secretary of State Evan Goldberg would not confirm or deny his office is looking into voter registration fraud in Carmel.

"People could request investigations be opened even if there is no substance behind the allegation, for the sole purpose of making it appear their opponent, for example, is under investigation by a government agency," he explained. The mere implication could affect the outcome of an election. "So that's why it's been the office's long-standing policy not to comment about whether or not an investigation has or has not been opened."

The state usually looks into voting issues after seeing them raised in the media or receiving tips from individuals.

"At some point, it evolves from looking-into-and-asking-questions status, into official investigation status," he said. Between 1994 and 2006, investigators opened 715 cases of fraudulent voter registration, referred 85 for prosecution and obtained 56 criminal convictions. Voter fraud can be charged as a felony or a misdemeanor, and depending on the defendant's history, sentences can range from a few days in jail and probation, to multiyear prison sentences.

California Elections Code sections 2020-2035 dictate where people may register to vote — principally, where they call home.

"There's a specific statute that addresses it, but the statute is relatively vague," Goldberg acknowledged. "Your registration is your place of domicile, and your domicile is where you declare it to be."

Most people use the only residential address they have, but "splitters," such as the Prices, divide their time between two homes and must select one for purposes of voter registration. Part of the code indicates the house for which a person claims a homeowner's tax exemption or renter's tax credit is the voter's domicile, though it defines that criterion as a "rebuttable presumption." The same section also says that basis should not be used if a vehicle registration or driver's license shows a different address.

"We chose to be active in the Carmel community — to be active in politics," said Jim Price. He and his wife said it seemed the state was questioning whether that was proper.

Living in a park

In reality, a domicile is simply wherever someone considers it to be, according to Carmel city attorney Don Freeman, who pointed out homeless people can register to vote. He also cited a 1980s case in which the court ruled in favor of a group of Santa Cruz university students who used post office boxes as their registered voting addresses and managed to get themselves elected to the city council.

He speculated the state might have begun investigating after the 2006 Monterey County Civil Grand Jury sent letters to cities requesting they verify their elected officials actually live at their registered addresses.

In response to the grand jury, Pacific Grove city attorney David Laredo drafted a five-page letter addressing the definition of domicile. While his reply specifically regarded a P.G. City Council member who has long used her office address, Laredo cited several cases.

One 1995 decision "held that a voter even had the right to register by listing a city park as that voter's residence. The court found this sufficient for voting purposes, even though it was unlawful to camp or sleep on the grounds of the city park referenced as a residence."

"I think the only real requirement is you can't vote in more than one place," Freeman said.

Goldberg said the state's five investigators — four in Sacramento and one in Southern California — weigh each allegation, whether it involves fraudulent registration of a name or address, or voting in multiple locations, and determine how to proceed.

"The investigators decide on an issue-by-issue basis what they need to do in order to conduct an investigation," Goldberg said.

Since their conversations with Brazil, the Prices have heard nothing further regarding whether they remain under suspicion.

The sunny side of a drought

THE WET weather we've enjoyed for more than a decade of winters makes the drought of the early 1990s seem like ancient history.

In fact, people who've moved to the Peninsula since 1992 can be forgiven for wondering what all the talk of a water shortage is about.

After all, the effort to build a desal plant has mainly been in response to a regulatory water "shortage" created when a state agency ordered a drastic cutback in pumping from the Carmel River — not because there wasn't enough water in the river, but because Cal Am didn't have the right to pump it. And while state regulators ordered Cal Am to stop about two-thirds of its pumping, they have never actually lifted a finger to make the company do so.

Meanwhile, the rain has kept falling and the taps have continued to flow freely. Unless you're one of the unfortunates who own undeveloped lots in Carmel, P.G. and the rest of the Monterey Peninsula, there hasn't been a water shortage at all.

But oldtimers remember plenty of dry, sunny winter days not too long ago when TV news anchors used their most serious voices to report that the Carmel River aquifer was nearly dry. Newspaper charts showed the same story: We nearly ran out of water.

So our front page story — that another drought may be under way — is very worrying. Fifteen years after the last serious drought, and 30 years after the community established a water management district in response to an earlier drought that was even worse, this community still does not have an adequate water supply. It's a perilous situation — not only for your landscaping, but also for your job and your health — that should never have been allowed to continue so long. Why has it?

One culprit is the rain. Our water shortage isn't treated like an urgent problem because it hasn't hit home in a long time. The people's representatives — at all levels of government — are taking their sweet old time solving it, and the people aren't demanding they get a move on.

All that will change if the skies stay dry for the next year or two. Even a mild drought will create popular momentum for a new water project. And if things get really bad, people will angrily start demanding answers: Why didn't somebody do something???

We don't care whether Cal Am, the Pajaro/Sunny Mesa Community Services District, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, the State Water Resources Control Board, the California Public Utilities Commission or the Man in the Moon takes charge of getting this community a new water supply. Right now, most of them are content to let somebody else do the work. If the rain stops falling, they'll be falling all over each other to do it.

If it takes a drought to get them to act, then a drought isn't such an unwelcome thing after all.

'Measure A lets you decide'

Dear Editor,

The Carmel Pine Cone seems to think the Monterey County Board of Supervisors is more capable to decide how Monterey County should grow than the voters. I suppose that might make some sense if you moved here yesterday and hadn't endured seven years of the supervisors' extraordinary malfeasance, blatant disregard for the democratic process, and clear track record of voting to support developers and realtors at the public's expense.

Consider what's happened since 1999. We watched supervisors fail at four attempts to update the county's 1982 general plan. We objected when they approved Rancho San Juan, the worst sprawl in Monterey County history. One day before 76 percent of voters rejected Rancho San Juan, the supervisors rescinded their approval of the full project and replaced it with Butterfly Village, a Los Angeles-style subdivision with 1,000-plus dwelling units and a 200-acre golf course on the last remaining farmland north of Salinas and east of Highway 101. When we qualified a second referendum on Butterfly Village, the supervisors illegally removed it from the ballot. A federal court finally ordered the supervisors to let us vote.

Measure A, the community's plan, puts an end to this charade of representative government. Under Measure A, you and I, not the politicians, have the right to decide how fast Monterey County grows. Under Measure A, Rancho San Juan is stopped once and for all.

Measure C, the supervisors' plan, puts us on the same path as Los Angeles and San Jose. Under Measure C, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors will continue to make decisions that favor their interests and those of their campaign contributors — like the real estate development interests that have provided nearly 70 percent of supervisors' campaign contributions since 1999. And the Los-Angeles based California Association of Realtors, which contributed $150,000 to defeat Measure A, will help them. Under Measure C, there will be many more Rancho San Juans in the years to come.

So who do you trust to make decisions about the future pace and pattern of growth in Monterey County? The board of supervisors? Or yourself? That's the decision you face on June 5.

It's been said that those that ignore history are doomed to repeat it. If you follow The Pine Cone's advice, rest assured, the sad history wrought by this board of supervisors will be repeated.

Please join me in voting Yes on Measures A and B and No on Measures C and D.

Michael DeLapa, President
LandWatch Board of Directors

'L.A. in 4,000 years'

Dear Editor,

Monterey County will hardly become Los Angeles under the supervisors' general plan (GPU4). Los Angeles County is barely three-quarters the size of Monterey County and holds more than 3,320,000 households — which is 3,180,000 more than the 140,000 in Monterey County. At GPU4's building rate of 21,500 households every 25 years, Monterey County will reach Los Angeles County's household density in about 4,000 years!

Additional daily household trips attributed to GPU4 will not create "gridlock" unless Landwatch continues to block infrastructure improvements as they are doing along Highway 68. Even if you accept the LWV's trip generation increases as being correct for the period 2000-2032 (using a seven-year-old starting point), GPU4's additional increase in Monterey County's current 1.1 million daily trips (102,000 to 141,100 daily trips per the League) is only 9 percent to 13 percent.

LandWatch's (of which the LWV's Janet Brennan is a board member) recent opposition to proposed improvements along Highway 68, the county's most congested route, while claiming they are improving the county's traffic level of service, speaks for itself.

'Foxes guarding chickens'

Dear Editor,

I have never been so disappointed with your publication as I am after reading your "No on Measure A" editorial in the May 11 issue. I also take offense and question your perspective when you suggest that the electorate are incapable of deciding what is best for them and "that's what your elected representatives are for." That is the true meat of the issue. The county board of supervisors is NOT fit for deciding these issues.

The supervisors' flagrant conflicts of interest and ties to developers throughout these long years of drafting and redrafting the general plan are exactly why Measure A came to be drafted the way it is with regards to keeping the electorate directly involved. Because they have shown repeatedly that the foxes cannot, MUST NOT, be trusted with guarding this chicken coop. It is well documented. Google each of the supervisors' names and see for yourself.

Is Measure A perfect? Far from it. But it is a far better compromise than just swallowing what the supervisors are serving up and choking on it later.

Yes on Measure A. It gives us time to ensure that the developers and politicians don't turn this into the next Southern California.

Aaron Ely,
Carmel

'A will hurt agriculture'

Dear Editor,

Voting yes on A means any land use decisions in unincorporated areas of our county will need to be voted on by the entire county for the next 25 years. Some say this will protect agriculture. I believe it will hurt the industry it's trying to save.

With food safety at the forefront, agriculture is awaiting the outcome of research that will help us understand how pathogens come into the field and how we might destroy them. What if research finds a kill-step but we must build more processing facilities in order to keep up with demand and keep our food safe? What if we need to build greenhouses to grow new crops, diversify our commodities and keep up with new trends? Neither of these things could be done without a county-wide vote under the terms of the Measure A.

By taking away the power of the growers and processors to work with the county, we're not taking care of our land. We're making it more difficult for growers to move with change and stay innovative. Please vote no on A. If we want to see rolling green fields in 25, years agriculture must be able to adapt and change.

Suspected art thieves in court

THE THREE men who allegedly stole a $40,000 oil painting and tried to burglarize a Carmel gallery last Monday night appeared in court Wednesday and are set to be there again Friday for a preliminary hearing to determine if cause exists to try them for grand theft and attempted burglary, according to deputy district attorney David Frost.

Thirty-year-old Anatoliy Melnik and 34-year-old Vadim Shavlovsky were near Simic gallery when Carmel Police officer Rachele Lightfoot single-handedly forced one to the ground and the other surrendered. The third, 37-year-old Victor Ivaschenko, was waiting in a car that also contained a painting by Eugene Garin, according to police.

"When they came in today," Frost said May 16, "I said, 'Hello,' to them in Russian, and they responded right away in Russian." Shavlovsky listed Kiev and the others named lesser known cities as their birthplaces, but Frost does not know the status of their U.S. residency.

"I heard they've been here awhile," he said.

If the men are convicted of felonies, they could be deported. Frost predicted their attorneys would petition to have the crimes classified as misdemeanors.

Margarite Alvarez, CEO of Community Care and Choice Home Health Care, does not support Assembly Bill 853, the Home Care Services Act of 2007. The article "D.A. warns of widespread elder abuse," which ran May 4, indicated otherwise.

Got Roots?

Do roots grow in your sewer line?
Do you have frequent sewer line backups?
Do you call a plumber more than twice a month?

If so, you could be a victim of "The Clog"

Tips for preventing clogs:

1. Inspect your sewer lateral and repair cracks and joint separations that allow roots in.
2. Don't use the sewer as a dumpster! "Flushable" baby wipes, diapers and feminine hygiene products catch on roots.
3. Don't use toxic copper root killers! Use a mechanical snake or call a licensed plumber.

TAX BENEFITS

Let's assume you're in the 28% tax bracket for a moment (leaving off considerations of state taxes). We'll also assume you took out a $500,000 30-year fixed-rate mortgage at 6.5% in a relatively recent purchase of your personal residence. What, specifically, are some of the tax benefits your home will provide?

Your first year interest payments—the highest over the life of the loan—will amount to $32,335. (I assume I have your attention here and, yes, that's $32,335.) This rather dismaying interest burden is eased significantly, though, because the deductibility of that interest obligation could cut your personal income tax liability by over $9,000.

How about property taxes and points? Let's assume you paid two points to originate your loan. That $10,000 is deductible in the year of purchase (not so if we're talking about a loan refinancing, which dances to different tax rules). You can also deduct your property taxes in their entirety.

And remember—you can exempt up to $500,000 in proceeds on the sale of this home from taxation if you are married and file jointly (up to $250,000 if you file solo). That's potentially a tremendous amount of untaxed capital gains, and it could mean thousands of dollars in added profits.
