Oak disease draws international researchers

By CHRIS COUNTS

LIKE PINE pitch canker, sudden oak death is a disease that has destroyed thousands of trees in Monterey County. But unlike pine pitch canker — which stirred widespread controversy a decade ago amid fears it would wipe out entire forests — sudden oak death has gone largely unnoticed by most local residents.

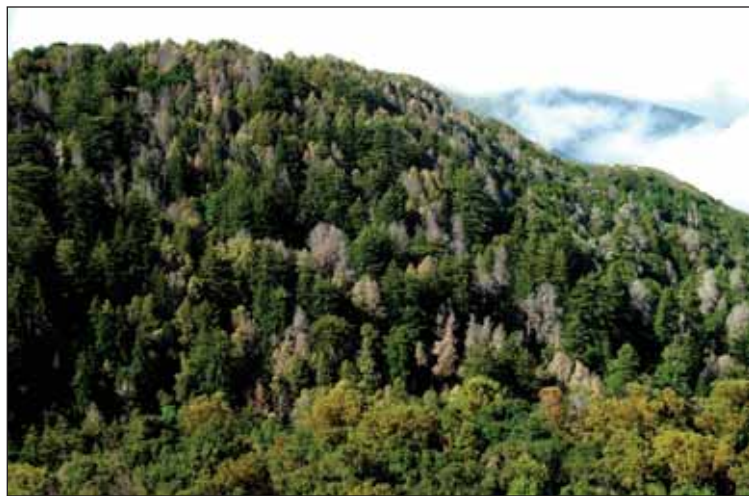

But the devastation of Monterey County's tanbark oaks has not escaped researchers. This week, international experts who study Phytophthora — a genus that includes the pathogen that causes sudden oak death — met at the Asilomar Conference Center in Pacific Grove. Representing 17 different countries, the researchers traveled to Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Carmel Valley's Mitteldorf Preserve to observe firsthand the effects of the disease.

"Sudden Oak Death went through Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park three or four years ago," explained David Rizzo, a forest pathologist and a professor at UC Davis. "If you walk to Pfeiffer Falls, you can see giant holes in the forest where trees have died."

But on 1,100 acres of Carmel Valley's most precious tanbark oak forest, the effects of the disease are just beginning to emerge.

"Sudden oak death just reached the Mitteldorf Preserve," Rizzo said. "You can see thousands of bright red trees that just died."

With most local residents living beneath or near a canopy of Monterey pines, the effects of pine pitch canker were difficult to ignore. Tanbark oaks, however, unlike the

WATER BOARD CANDIDATES AGREE: NEW SUPPLY BADLY NEEDED

By KELLY NIX

THE FOUR candidates running for two seats on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's board of directors have varying backgrounds but all say they are committed to one objective — finding a drought-free water supply.

On Nov. 6, Peninsula residents will decide whether to vote for Regina Doyle or Lee Yarborough for District 4, which includes Pacific Grove and Del Monte Forest, and Bob Brower and Lance Monosoff for District 5, an area covering Carmel and Carmel Valley.

Clearly, the biggest issue facing prospective water board members is finding an alternative source to the Carmel River, which is being overpumped by water provider California American Water Co. For a dozen years, the company has been under a state order to find an alternative water project to supply its customers.

Division 5 director Larry Foy, who will be replaced by either Brower or Monosoff, said the new directors will have the challenging task of deciding which alternative water project and supplemental projects are best suited for the Peninsula — not an easy task.

"We have several projects in the mix right now," said Foy, who believes a desalination plant is the solution to over-pumping of the Carmel River.

Best-selling authors, Pulitzer Prize winners headline three-day 'Authors and Ideas' festival

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

IF JIM McGillen has his way, the upcoming Carmel Authors and Ideas Festival will rival the much revered, long-standing Sun Valley Writers Conference once it gets off the ground late next month.

Scheduled to take place in Sunset Center Sept. 28-30, the festival will center around national and international celebrity authors who will put forth their ideas and writing experiences, sign books, and mingle with those attending the festival and at break-out sessions for smaller groups.

Pulitzer Prize winners and New York Times Best Sellers List authors are slated to appear at the festival. Included in the top-ranking writers are:

- Frank McCourt, author of "Angela's Ashes;"
- Elizabeth Edwards, wife of presidential candidate John Edwards and author of the memoir, "Saving Graces;"
- Doris Kearns Goodwin, presidential historian and winner of the Pulitzer prize;
- Irshad Manji, who wrote "The Trouble with Islam Today" and whom the New York Times called, "Osama bin Laden's worst nightmare;"
- John Grogan, whose story of his Labrador retriever swept the country under the title "Marley & Me," and
- Douglas Brinkley, editor of "The Reagan Diaries."

More than 30 other authors will appear and be accessible to attendees, according to the festival's organizers.

Security cameras to be installed at sewage treatment plant

By KELLY NIX

IN AN effort to prevent sabotage from terrorists or mischief from teenagers, security cameras that can be monitored remotely from laptop computers will be installed at the Carmel Area Wastewater District treatment plant.

Multiple cameras will be placed at various locations throughout the plant, including the lab, chlorine storage facility, front gates and parking lot.

"It allows us to look at areas of the treatment plant at any time when we get an alarm," said CAWD general manager Ray von Dohren. "Our operators will be able to turn on their laptop and call up the camera and look at the treatment plant in real time to see what the intrusion might be."

The $35,000 camera system, to be installed within a few months, was unanimously approved July 26 by CAWD's board of directors. The cameras will help detect intruders — animal or human — at the sewage treatment plant, located on the north bank of the Carmel River between Highway 1 and the Pacific Ocean.

"We had planned on putting in a security system for quite a while," von Dohren said.

Although the CAWD plant seems an unlikely target for terrorists, the security upgrade is just one of many being performed at power plants and water treatment plants across the nation.

The Department of Homeland Security this year warned U.S. chemical plants and bomb squads to guard against terrorist-manufactured chlorine truck bombs, which have recently been used in Iraq.

And the Chlorine Institute, according to Homeland Security, reported to the FBI several thefts or attempted thefts of 150-pound chlorine tanks from water treatment plants in California.

Although CAWD's chlorine, used to kill bacteria in treated sewage, is stored in 1 ton tanks, making theft unlikely, the cameras could prevent possible sabotage.

"We do have to worry about this stuff," von Dohren said.

The cameras, which will be mounted on poles or buildings, will also prevent any sort of mischief that might occur at the plant.

"We have had indications of people coming here — kids playing around and leaving stuff around," he said.

The security system will be integrated into CAWD's computer system. The plant's workers will be able to monitor the plant from home even if they get a call at 3 a.m.

"We have teams of two people each on standby for 10 days," he said. "If they get a call in the middle of the night, they are responsible for taking care of it."

And if it's just an animal that happens to trip the alarm, the employee on standby will be able to reset the alarm from home via laptop. If it's a human intruder, a CAWD employee will call the Monterey County Sheriff's Office and request a deputy respond to the incident.

"It keeps our operator from running down there in the middle of the night, and that saves money," von Dohren said.

The new system will require extensive modification of software and hardware, he said.

The camera system is part of CAWD's capital improvement plan. CAWD's insurance company, in an effort to keep premiums low, suggested installing the system, von Dohren said.

The school is non-sectarian. Over fifteen percent of students receive financial aid. Small classes, selective enrollment, and first-rate instruction are hallmarks of the school, as is a robust range of extracurricular activities, such as an Outdoor Education program that takes full advantage of the rich natural beauty of the area. (This program includes courses and trips in sea kayaking, rock climbing, backpacking, outdoor leadership, a famous ropes course, and other activities.) Among its alumni, the school counts college presidents, filmmakers, an Olympic athlete, published authors, and the director of a Nobel Prize-winning nonprofit organization. Canine calendar contenders invited to strut stuff at casting

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SPURRED ON by its “howlingly successful” inaugural 2007 calendar, the city will hold a 2008 Dog Calendar Casting Call at Carmel Beach next Saturday afternoon. Last year, more than 300 local canines competed to charm the judges into granting them immortality — or at least a little fame and some good press for their town while raising money for the SPCA of Monterey County — by appearing in the calendar.

During the Sept. 8 event, the dogs will come under the tough scrutiny of writer, producer and director Walt deFaria, Cypress Inn and poodle owner Denny LeVett, and Sherrie McCullough, the judges who “will evaluate contestants on personality, charm, face and first impression,” according to ad man Jeff Burghardt, who holds the city’s marketing/economic development contracts and conceived the calendar concept.

KSBW-TV news anchor Erin Clark will again preside over the competition, which is being sponsored by BARK, “the dog culture magazine.” The casting call will be open to all dogs living in the 93921, 93922, 93923 and 93924 zip codes.

“What the judges are looking for is anyone’s guess,” Burghardt counseled contenders. “So put your best paw forward and just be yourself.”

Carmel has long been considered one of the nation’s top dog-friendly towns. Retailers cater to canines almost as much as they do humans. Restaurants offer outdoor seating for pups alongside people, the Cypress Inn is famous for its afternoon tea featuring decadent drinks and treats for four-legged as well as two-legged customers, and every other Ocean Avenue shop seemingly has a water bowl outside and biscuits inside. Robbie, the mayoral pooch, recently enjoyed his film debut when a 15-minute documentary about his daily life was shown in city hall and turned into a five-minute podcast for the city’s www.carmelcalifornia.com website.

And The Pine Cone has profiled personable dogs in its Sandy Claws column, penned by Margot Petit Nichols, almost weekly for more than a decade.

tree for two days. Both SPCA and Carmel animal services were contacted and responded. A ladder was used by the humane officer to reach the cat. The cat was captured and appeared to be in good health. The cat was transported to the Carmel Police Department. Owner information was obtained through a chip identification. The owner was contacted and the cat was returned.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a theft of tools from a locked trailer on First Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen found a loose dog on Dolores Street and brought the Labrador to the Carmel Police Department. The owner was located and the dog was returned. A citation was issued.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported that her estranged boyfriend was allegedly harassing employees at her place of business on San Carlos Street. Both parties counseled.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported that workers hired by a neighbor were illegally trimming trees in an undeveloped lot on Fourth Avenue. Contact was made with the owner, and it was determined that the workers he hired did not have a work permit to trim trees or work on his house. Case referred to building inspector.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported several male adults on San Carlos Street were looking into cars and touching them. The subjects appeared intoxicated. Officers arrived and it was determined that they were only HBD ["had been drinking" — were not illegally intoxicated] and were field interrogated and warned.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Victim reported that there were five lavender plants missing from the front yard of a newly constructed residence on Mission Street. No investigative leads — information only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer was flagged down by subject on San Carlos Street who wanted to report a past-tense burglary. Subject was found to be an addict in possession of firearms and gravely disabled. Transported to Natividad Medical Center for a 5150 72-hour hold. All firearms were confiscated.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a reported fire alarm activation at Pacific Repertory Theatre on Casanova between Eighth and Ninth. Engine and ambulance on scene. As the building checked clear on arrival for a pull station activation in the main theater, crews awaited arrival of a responsible for interior access. A wall-hung shelf was found to have fallen off the wall, breaking the south wall emergency exit pull station box.

YOUR AUTO COLUMN

Presented by Kevin & Sue Anne Donohoe
THREE-VEHICLE HOUSEHOLDS

Have you ever wondered why three-car garages have become so popular? It is because nearly three out of ten American driveways are filled with three cars, up 27% since 1999. According to Edmunds.com, there are now 278 different models of automobiles on the road, a 26% increase from a decade ago. What is fueling this boom? To begin with, zero-percentage deals in recent years have made new cars irresistible to some. In addition, automobile makers have designed specialty vehicles that appeal to just about any kind of lifestyle, including convertibles, minivans, SUVs, light trucks, sport coupes, crossover vehicles, performance sedans, gas-sipping economy cars, pickups, and full-fledged trucks. There is a niche vehicle to fit every need and desire.

Here a Pacific Motor Service, we are committed to excellent custom service, and quality work. That's a promise. Our services are guaranteed for 12 months or 12,000 miles with NAPA Peace of Mind Warranty, and some repairs offer extended warranties. We are located at the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in downtown Monterey. All of our work is done by ASE Certified technicians, and we are also AAA Approved.

P.S. Nearly one in five new homes today has a three-car garage, almost double the rate of ten years ago, according to the National Association of Home Builders.

Half of Sunset board set to resign

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THEY INSIST it's not a mass exodus and that they're leaving because things are going so well — not so badly — but with the Aug. 21 resignation of the Sunset Cultural Center board's chairman, and three other trustees expected to retire when their terms end in October, more change is in store for Carmel's crown jewel. The center is also preparing for the arrival of a new general manager to replace Jack Globenfelt, who came on board in January 2005 and announced in May he would be leaving in September.

"I'm concerned that we not give people the idea there's an implosion," said Jim Price, who helped form the nonprofit contracted in 2004 to run Sunset, was the board's first chairman and assumed that role again after Perry Walker's departure. "In each case, my understanding was this has been contemplated for some time, and they felt we had brought the organization to a good place, with strong finances."

Price said serving on the board "takes an enormous amount of time," and with a year's worth of programming in place and more in the works, "we're in a position where people feel comfortable leaving without jeopardizing the business."

Walker, who tendered his resignation at last week's board meeting, said it was simply due.

"It's kind of like being invited to a dinner party — there's a proper time to arrive and a proper time to leave," said Walker, a founding member and the board's chairman for more than two years. "When the dessert is finished and the coffee's cold, it's time to go."

He said he felt comfortable moving on, considering the center's stable finances — most recently illustrated by the fourth-quarter report showing a budget surplus of $93,321 — a "solid staff," and performers scheduled for the coming year.

Walker also said the executive search committee, of which he was a member, is close to selecting Globenfelt's replacement. A consultant narrowed the field from 25 applicants to six candidates. Headed by Price, the committee also includes Sarah Brown, Dave Parker, and community members Roger Parkes and Graeme Robertson. The group interviewed the last of the prospective general managers this week and hopes to make an offer soon.

"Having those two responsibilities in one person gives continuity to things," Walker said of Price.

Back in black

Brown, another founding board member who served as treasurer until trustee Michael McMahan took over about a year ago, said she plans to retire when her first term ends in October. According to SCC bylaws, trustees may serve a maximum of two three-year terms.

"One thing I'm most pleased about is we've completed our first three-year contract with the city, and every year, we've been in the black," she said. This summer, the city and SCC opted to extend the contract another three years.

Brown said her decision to leave was not recent and, like Walker, she felt it was just the right time.

"I've done what I set out to do, and I do feel like SCC is stable and the center is moving along nicely," Brown said. "This has been a significant time commitment, and a very rewarding one, and it's been fun to tackle this."

ater's operations in advance of proposing their contract, SCC members discovered several different city departments helped run it. Budget numbers were difficult to calculate, as each department reported its own Sunset-related expenses, and other costs were unknown.

"We have tried to use some business practices, and I think we've organized the Sunset administration in a little different way than when the city managed it," Brown said. "I'm actually quite proud of what we've done. There were a lot of unknowns, and we jumped in without knowing exactly what was coming."

Walker and Brown said they have enjoyed being part of SCC.

"It was a real privilege to do it. It's a great board, good people to work with, a great staff, and we did what we wanted to do," Walker said. "We brought in some very creative programming — a wide variety of quality cultural events. We laid a good foundation, and that was a lot of fun. It's something I was glad to do for Carmel and for Sunset."

Brown and Price said they are aware of other board members who intend to resign at the annual meeting in October.

"There are different reasons for each, and I certainly don't want it to seem like there's a mass exodus, because it's not the case," Brown said.

Karen Kadushin, an original board member and SCC's first secretary, reportedly intends to leave, as does Katherine Bucquet. Neither could be reached for comment.

Other founding trustees who have already left and were replaced are Fred O'Such, Gary Luce and Demi Briscoe. According to the nonprofit's bylaws, one-third of the nine people must live in Carmel-by-the-Sea, and another third must reside in Monterey County. The departing members' replacements will be selected by the board, which also includes Steven Hillyard and Deanna Adolph.

Although their seats will be occupied by others, Brown and Walker said they plan to remain involved as part of Sunset Center's Producers' Guild, which was "created to act in concert with SCC to share the joys and risks of live-entertainment programming."

Organized by O'Such, the guild is seeking 25 individuals and couples to make onetime contributions of $10,000 to its Impresario Fund.

"Through this gift, you will be will be an integral part of our future, working in concert with SCC to identify, underwrite and promote new programming at Sunset Center," according to the guild.

"Sunset is Sunset — you can't divorce yourself from the place," explained Walker, who is also president of the Carmel Rotary club.

"I would love to continue to support Sunset Center and its programs," said Brown, who is also active in the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club. "And I will continue to attend events and support SCC in any way I can."

"WHAT'S GOOD FOR CARMEL BUSINESS IS GOOD FOR CARMEL!"

By all accounts the 'Concours-on-the-Avenue' on Tuesday, August 14, was a huge success. The weather was perfect, the variety and quality of the cars was excellent and everyone appeared to have a great time. What impressed me most was the efficient way in which this first-time event was organized. An initial survey indicates that the merchants, the restaurants and the inns all benefited from the influx of visitors at the beginning of what was very busy week. This was the kind of event that Carmel needs to improve our economy.

Our thanks are due to the City for agreeing to close some streets thus making the Concours possible. The only negative comment that I heard came from some of the businesses north of 6th Street who were unfortunately made invisible by the temporary 'Berlin Wall.' However, I feel sure that other arrangements will be made if the Concours is held again next year.

Above all, our thanks go out to Doug and Genie Freedman for bringing the Concours to Carmel. Being a new event, there were no large corporate sponsors such as those who support the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance so it was only made possible by the Freedmans generosity. This was truly a labor of love and we should all applaud their generosity and skill in organizing such a fine show. Let's hope the Freedmans will return next August.

Man sues over neighborhood 'eyesore'

By KELLY NIX

A PACIFIC Grove man is suing the City of Pacific Grove because he says officials have refused to enforce a public nuisance ordinance over his neighbor's unsightly property.

In the lawsuit filed July 27 in Monterey County Superior Court, James Willoughby wants the city to order his neighbor on the 1200 block of Shell Avenue to clean up his property.

The city has "totally destroyed the ambiance of the neighborhood and interfered with the enjoyment of my property," Willoughby told The Pine Cone.

He contends his neighbor didn't have permits when he bulldozed the property in 2006 to make a parking space for a boat and a motorhome. The property is directly across from Willoughby's dining room window.

"The car has not been registered for seven years," he noted in the small claims suit.

"The unauthorized grading is an eyesore in the neighborhood."

The complaint seeks to "remove the illegal storage of vehicles and restore the land to what it was before the excavation, and to meet all city codes."

But city attorney Dave Laredo said Willoughby should sue his neighbor over the blight, not the city.

"The bottom line is he would like the city to undertake an effort that he is able and legally entitled to do himself," Laredo said. "He could sue the neighbor for the same theories he is suing us for."

But Willoughby said his dispute isn't so much with his neighbor as it is with the city for not upholding the law.

"The city manager is responsible for enforcing all ordinances," he said. "He doesn't have the right to choose which ones he is going to enforce and which ones he is not."

Besides weighing several desalination plant proposals, an aquifer storage and recovery project, and increased water conservation methods, Foy said, the new directors will also have to look at the possibility of using reprocessed water for irrigation purposes, a project proposed by the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency.

■ District 5

Lance Monosoff, a 52-year-old Carmel resident and Sierra Club activist who has lived next to the Carmel River for the past 17 years, said he would like a desalination plant to help solve the Peninsula's water problems.

"Due to overpumping," said Monosoff, a real estate broker, "each summer the river changes from a living river into a dry riverbed. It is way past the time for a new water supply that does not rely on the Carmel River."

Aware of the possible fines that could be passed to ratepayers if Cal Am doesn't find a water supply alternative, Monosoff said at this point he's not sure of the best solution but, if elected, said he would find out.

"As both a resident and business owner, I am concerned about the costs to the residents of any water projects," he said. "At this time, it is unclear what the most economic desal plant would be to the consumer."

If elected, Monosoff, who currently serves on the Sierra Club's State of California Political Committee, said his priorities would be to implement a desal plant and establish a drought reserve.

Cal Am and Pajaro Sunny/Mesa Community Services District have proposed desalination plants in Moss Landing, while Cal Am has also agreed to consider a subsurface desal plant in Marina. Another company has proposed a shipboard desal operation.

Some of Monosoff's colleagues in the Sierra Club oppose certain types of desal operations because of their effect on the coastal environment. Others don't want a desal plant at all because it could promote growth.

"As an environmental activist," Monosoff said, "I have experience in environmental protection. I won't just talk about protecting the environment, I'll do something about it."

Monosoff said his supporters include former Assembly man Fred Keeley, Bill Monning, and current water board directors Kristi Markey and Judi Lehman.

Bob Brower, owner of Chateau Julien Wine Estate, who oversees 30 employees, said he hopes to bring a "fresh approach" to the water board.

"I think the biggest thing I bring is leadership," Brower said. "I believe I have some great managerial and leadership skills. I have not only been on the Hospice board 11 years, I created a whole new Hospice and got on a financial footing."

Brower, 58, said he'll carry to the water board the skills he's learned in business.

"You charge us to basically get a reliable and replaceable water supply that reduces the amount of groundwater we are currently using," he said. "We can't hurt our environment, but at the same time we need water. I think I can bring some leadership skills to resolve some of these issues."

Brower, who moved to the Peninsula 27 years ago, said the Carmel River is in "terrible shape" but said he's not sure whether a desalination plant is the answer to offset the damage being done to the steelhead fish and red-legged frog in the Carmel River.

"I firmly believe that desal is part of the solution, but I don't believe it's all of the solution," Brower said. "I haven't looked at all of the proposals as they have been presented to the water management district."

Brower, who is being endorsed by Foy, said he believes there can be more conservation.

"We have nothing in the hopper that is going to add one drop of water," he said. "And if we have another dry year, this is going to be one barrel of worms. I don't think we are moving fast enough. I think we need to pick up the pace."

Sand castle contest theme announced

TAPPING INTO Pottermania, city officials and members of the Monterey Bay chapter of the American Institute of Architects this week announced the theme of the 46th Annual Great Sand Castle Contest: "Carmel-by-the-Sea/Chamber of Secrets." The contest will be held on Carmel Beach south of 10th Avenue Sunday, Sept. 23.

Community services manager Christie Miller urged residents and visitors to, "Come down to Carmel Beach and join your friends, family and neighbors from near and far and build a wonderful sand castle, big or small. Everyone is invited to come create and/or admire the wonderful sculptures."

A long-running city tradition, the castle contest is free to entrants and observers, and construction may begin at 8 a.m., with judging set for 2 p.m. Registration will take place on the beach that morning, and contestants are advised to build between 10th and 12th avenues to ensure they are within contest boundaries.

Creativity is not confined to the sand, as judge-wooing is an art unto itself, and several awards are offered, including the Golden Shovel and Sour Grapes.

"And please remember that this is a family event," Miller said. "So make sure your designs are appropriate."

Carmel Valley reads The Pine Cone

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

XOUBIT MOREY (pronounced Zooby), is almost 2 1/2 years old and has a boyfriend. His name is Leroy, and he's the 5-year-old pit bull who lives across the street from her home here. Their chance encounters on walks are always fun to see, as they are obviously smitten with one another.

Xoubit has a girlfriend, too, with whom she plays – Lexi Burleigh, who was singled out in a recent Sandy Claws column because she didn't have an ear job, which is a rarity among Dobermans.

Xoubit knows and loves all the dogs and people on Carmel Beach and the Scenic walking path, and especially looks for her beach friend, big, fuzzy Honeybear.

When Mom Suzy gets up in the morning to make coffee, Xoubit slides out of Mom's bed and patters into Grandma Virginia's room to sneak in with her for another few winks and maybe a cuddle.

She has so many toys, Mom donates the surplus every so often. Her current fave is a stuffed gorilla she carries up and downstairs and all around the house with the gorilla making jungle noises as they go.

Unlike most beagles, Xoubit hasn't much of an appetite, so Mom has to tempt her with a few favorites: rosemary chicken, and poached salmon with olive oil and lemon. She does have an appetite for wall plaster, however, and has eaten holes in the wall in back of the sofa. She has also torn up a carpet or two and has eaten several mystery books.

She seems to have a predilection for Agatha Christie.

YOU ARE AS OLD
AS YOU FEEL

People may judge the age of others on the basis of outward appearances, but they judge their own age quite differently. Psychologists report that most individuals' self-perception remains constant throughout their lives. This inner continuity overrides any wrinkles and gray hair. Despite these physical and social changes, people still feel that they are the same "selves" that they were as children, young adults, or at other points in their lives. The age that one thinks of oneself as being is defined as "cognitive age." Quite often, it accounts for the fact that people feel that they are younger than others who are the same chronological age. The phrase "You're as old as you feel!" is, indeed, quite valid.

The activities department at RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES promotes companionship and encourages intellectual and physical participation to make our long-term care residents feel a sense of well being. Through diverse and ever changing activities residents are able to capitalize on their own strengths, thereby increasing their sense of emotional well-being and personal achievement. Since 1979, we have provided the best home care and geriatric care management for seniors or adults with physical and/or mental challenges in and around Monterey and Santa Cruz County.

P.S. "Functional age" reflects a person's ability to perform physical tasks that are ordinarily associated with a certain age group

SLEEPLESSNESS AND SMOKING HURT GUMS

When researchers recently undertook a study to identify the biggest risks for poor oral health, they found that smoking was the leading factor to be associated with the progression of periodontal (gum) disease. More than 41 percent of the study's subjects with progressive gum disease were smokers. After that, a lack of sleep was found to be the second highest risk factor. Study subjects who got seven to eight hours of sleep nightly had less gum disease than those who slept six hours or less per night. The study, which also took factors such as nutrition, stress, hours worked, and eating breakfast into account, found that high stress levels and daily alcohol consumption also significantly impacted periodontal disease progression.

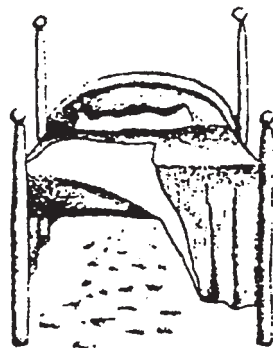

We do not make any assumptions about your dental health. Even if your teeth look healthy, we want to see you for a checkup every six months. At that time, we will perform a thorough examination where we will check your teeth, gums, tongue, jaw, and other tissue in your mouth. If we see a potential problem, we will use images from our digital x-ray and photos from our digital and intra-oral cameras to show you what is happening and then suggest possible treatment plans. For more information or to schedule an appointment, please call our office or see us by appointment.

P.S. A shortage of sleep may impair the body's immune response, which may lead to higher levels of gum disease.

Food & Wine

Fine food in Cachagua, state honors for local wines, etc.

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

AFTER NEARLY a year of topping my local dining wish list, I finally made it out to the Cachagua General Store for Chef Michael Jones' renowned Monday night dinner, and man-o-Manischewitz, it was good. Picture this: a table of 10 super fabulous friends, appetizers, entrees and desserts for all, and a steady flow of wine — all for less than $400. Incredibly fresh, seasonal ingredients and truly beautiful preparations — Monterey Bay sardines, pork loin and panzanella salad were all big hits. The sense of conviviality was unlike anything I've experienced since I've lived on the Peninsula and renewed my faith that there is indeed an element of folks here reckless enough to throw caution to the wind and stay out late on a work night. The twisty 45-minute trek from the Village may have deterred me in the past, but the culinary and social adventure is well worth it (provided you have a designated driver). This very well may be the best kept dining secret on the Peninsula.

■ Heller Estates wins big at California State Fair

The fine folks at Heller Estate Organic Vineyards took home some major bling at the 2007 California State Fair. Their 2003 Estate Cabernet Sauvignon scored 98 points, Best of Class and was awarded Double Gold as the best red wine on the North-Central Coast. The 2005 Chardonnay didn't do too shabby — it snagged 91 points and was awarded a Silver medal. And the 2003 "Dancers" Meritage landed a Bronze medal.

Want to give the wines a try? Swing by the Heller Estate Wine Tasting Room, located at 69 W. Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley Village, or buy online at www.hellerestate.com. The Tasting Room is open from 10:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily.

■ Hyatt Regency Monterey Opens The Wine Room

With the holidays right around the corner, TusCA Ristorante and Fireplace Lounge timed it right in opening its Wine Room. Consulting Wine Director Mark Buzan is at the helm of the state-of-the-art wine cellar with floor-to-ceiling displays created almost entirely of glass and entertaining space, which is ready for pre-dinner wine and appetizer action or intimate private events. The Wine Room seats up to eight at a communal table and can accommodate up to 16 for standing events. TusCA dinner guests are invited to indulge in a selection of charcuterie, antipasti or cheeses with a complementary glass of fine wine prior to dining. Cheeses are hand selected by R. Kent Torrey, from The Cheese Shop in Carmel Plaza. Buzan is also available for private wine tastings.

The Hyatt Regency is located at 1 Old Golf Course Road in Monterey, telephone (831) 372-1234.

■ Hola!

Executive Chef Felipe Cisneros at Hola! in The Barnyard is garnering a lot of buzz. I haven't dined there yet, but the super-lengthy menu is tacked to my fridge and looks really tasty. Plus, they have complimentary bocadillos (or appetizers) during happy hour, Monday through Friday, from 3 to 6 p.m. Promise to report back with a full recap and analysis once I've actually indulged.

Hola! is located on the upper level in the Valley Barn near the back of The Barnyard Shopping Center, (831) 626-1814.

■ The Broadmoor

By the time you read this, I will have been coaxed into a state of culinary and spa bliss at the 5-star fabulous Broadmoor in Colorado Springs (www.broadmoor.com). When one of my Los Angeles new mommy friends wanted a weekend away, we decided The Broadmoor was the way to tap into our outdoor-lovin', culinary-indulgin' and amenity-driven needs. The Broadmoor pretty much has it all — a killer spa, spacious rooms with the comfiest Sealy Posturepedic beds (available for sale), tennis (it was recently rated the third finest tennis resort in the country by Tennis Magazine), golf (it's hosting the 2008 U.S. Senior Open) and a food and beverage program that is way ahead of anything I've experienced in Colorado. Imagine a sprawling historical property reminiscent of a scaled-down Hearst Castle kitted out with every modern amenity and impeccable service from top to bottom. Dinner at The Penrose Room with new acquaintance 2010 Olympic figure skating hopeful, Jeremy Abbott (<http://pcfclub.com>), epitomized old-school elegance at its finest — the Colorado rack of lamb was divine. Yards of beer and sing-along songbooks were served up at onsite British pub, The Golden Bee (the bar fixtures were imported from the U.K.) The biggest surprise was Summit, an Adam D. Tihany-designed restaurant. With a towering wine rack echoing Charlie Palmer's Aureole in Las Vegas (sans the flying wine fairies), a sophisticated cocktail program, and a menu crafted by Daniel Boulud buddy and super-talent, Chef Bertrand Bouquin, this restaurant and lounge would be my go-to dining destination if I lived in Colorado Springs. Foie gras crème brulee, and hanger steak and frites, were among the highlights.

Heller Estate picked up several top honors at the California State Fair in Sacramento — including Best of Class for its 2003 Estate Cabernet Sauvignon.

2007 WAL-MART FIRST TEE OPEN

First Tee Open promises hot competition for pros, juniors

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ENTERING ITS fourth year raising money and international awareness of a nonprofit that teaches children and teenagers life skills through the challenging game of golf, the Wal-Mart First Tee Open at Pebble Beach kicked off this week with a field full of fierce competitors.

The First Tee Open's unique format pairs 78 youth players with 78 Champions Tour professionals, accompanied by pairs of amateurs, in competition at Del Monte Golf Course and the Pebble Beach Golf Links Aug. 31 and Sept 1. All the pros, and the juniors and amateurs who make the cut, will play the final round at Pebble Beach Sept. 2, with the rest of the juniors and amateurs competing at Del Monte.

Tournament-related activities included Tuesday's dedication of the new clubhouse at Twin Creeks in Salinas in the name of John Zoller, one of the forces behind the formation of the First Tee of Monterey County who died in January. Founded in 2004, the local First Tee chapter serves more than 400 kids and offers 33 life and golf skills classes weekly in Salinas, Monterey, Soledad and Marina.

First Tee Open practice rounds were held

Wednesday and Thursday, and a sold-out fundraiser set for Thursday night featured Hootie & the Blowfish lead singer Darius Rucker performing Frank Sinatra songs at a Monterey dinner presided over by Clint Eastwood, the tournament's chairman.

"The benefit concert — that's new for us," said Ollie Nutt, president and CEO of the Monterey Peninsula Foundation, which organizes the First Tee Open and the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Another First Tee Open first occurred behind the scenes this year, Nutt reported: a sizable waiting list of amateur players.

"I remember the first year, talking to everyone I could," he said. "It speaks well for it that people want to come back."

While major tournament sponsors, such as Wal-Mart and General Mills, fill some of those spots, invitations were extended for about 100, according to Nutt. Returning players include comedian George Lopez — a strong First Tee supporter — and Eastwood, who stayed off the course the past few years.

Unfortunately, the roster will not include actor Bill Murray, who played in 2006 and reportedly enjoyed the experience but is out of the country and will have to miss this year's Open.

"We have a great field of professionals and juniors coming in," Nutt continued. "All three groups just love it."

Competing for $2M

Among the notable field of 78 Champions Tour professionals vying for their shares of the $2 million purse are:

- defending 2006 First Tee Open champion Scott Simpson;

- Bill Rogers, a six-time PGA Tour winner who claimed victory at the 1981 British Open;

- Donnie Hammond, a two-time winner on the PGA Tour;

- Gary McCord, who divides his time between playing in Champions Tour events and serving as an analyst during CBS Sports golf telecasts;

- David Eger, a former PGA Tour staff member and USGA Senior Director of Rules and Competition who has twice won on the Champions Tour;

- South African Nick Price, a Champions Tour rookie, and

- Germany's Bernhard Langer, who will be making his first Champions Tour appearance after his 50th birthday Aug. 27.

They will join other top pros, including Ben Crenshaw, Tom Kite, Champions Tour points-leader Jay Haas and Tom Watson.

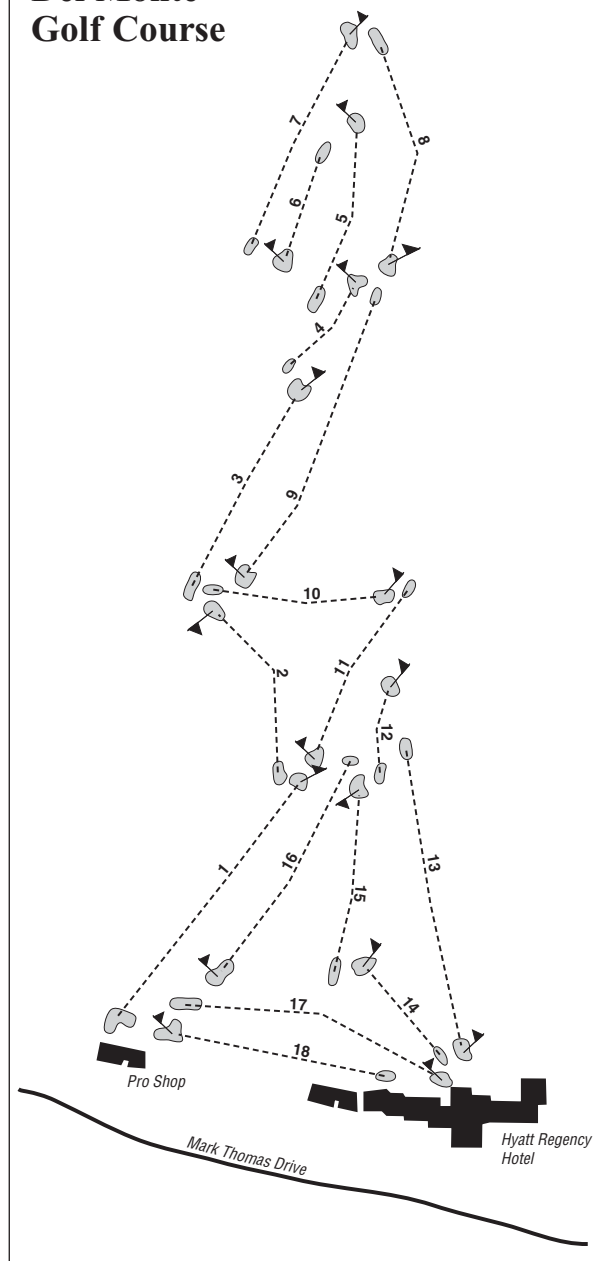

The youth field features 70 players affiliated with First Tee chapters across the country — a high number that pleased Nutt. While 10 players earned their spots during a qualifying round at Poppy Ridge Golf Course in Livermore, and 60 were chosen through the First Tee selection process held at Kansas State University, eight contenders were granted exemptions:

- Mina Harigae, a Monterey resident and Robert Louis Stevenson senior who won her first national title by taking the U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links Championship in June and made the cut at the U.S. Women's Open;

- Sydney Burlison, a Salinas resident and RLS student who qualified for the U.S. Women's Amateur Championship and is ranked No. 12 among female junior players in the United States;

- Pebble Beach resident Tucker Harper, the top player on

Del Monte Golf Course

As an independent Real Estate Broker with over 30 years of practical experience, I've learned I don't need all the sales. I've provided a full range of residential real estate services including estate management, to hundreds of customers and clients, a few people at a time. This has allowed me to give them and their property the care and attention they deserve. I answer my own phone and handle all the paperwork personally - so you don't have to rely on, or deal with automated phone systems, well intentioned staff or assistants. My only goal is to "Provide Personalized Service with Professional Care" and ample business has always followed - one good deal at a time.

2007 WAL-MART FIRST TEE OPEN

Pebble's only female caddie: A First Tee grad and volunteer

By SUSAN WATTS

AT AGE 20, Ashley Dickman is a standout in many ways.

As Pebble Beach's only female caddie, she modestly says,

"I think the only thing different is that my players may underestimate me when first meeting me on the tee box. I might have to work a little harder to gain their confidence."

Clad in the standard caddie-issue white shirt, khaki pants and signature Pebble Beach cap, she appears to be much like her fellow male caddies, except for her thick, blond pony tail extending out the back of her hat. At a closer glance, her Christian cross earrings are visible, and her athletic, slender build is apparent.

Aside from her attractive physical appearance, she's a standout in character and accomplishments, as she juggles her responsibilities on the California State University Monterey Bay women's golf team, her classes as a business major at CSUMB, and her caddie job at Pebble Beach.

But it's The First Tee that has opened doors for Dickman. She grew up playing in the program and later was a First Tee volunteer, teaching and coaching in her hometown of Rocklin, just north of Sacramento.

"It was so rewarding teaching the juniors the real meaning of golf and how it relates to life," she says. "I taught them how to play golf and, more importantly, the nine core values. Integrity is the value that stands out the most for me, because everything else builds on it."

The only golfer

"My dad inspired me to get into golf around the age 9," says Dickman, one of five children, but the only golfer. "I played a lot of sports, and golf was the one that stuck."

She played on her high school team, winning many competitions through the years, and was named Most Valuable Player her freshman and senior years.

As a result, she landed a partial golf scholarship from CSUMB and a $1,000 scholarship from The First Tee. But moving to the Monterey Peninsula was a bit of a shock.

"I had only seen the ocean twice before," Dickman recalls. "I was pretty excited to be able to come down here, and now I see the beach every day.”

As a member of the CSUMB women's golf team, she manages a demanding tournament schedule and maintains her class schedule, along with her caddie job. She currently is not keeping a handicap, but says she shoots in the low 80s and sometimes breaks into the 70s with her bag of mix-brand clubs. “We play all over the United States, but the funny thing is, the best courses are right here!” she says with a bright, beaming smile.

Not just carrying bags

“I was not apprehensive or afraid at all,” she says about her first day on the job at Pebble Beach. “I am used to sticking out like a sore thumb. I feel like I am one of the guys just in that I enjoy sports more than most women, especially golf. But then, I am quickly reminded how I want to go shop, tan and put on a little make-up,” she says.

And she appreciates the complexities of her job.

“Being a caddie is not just about carrying bags. There's a lot to it,” she says.

Along with all other caddies, she attended a rigorous training course before ever stepping out on the course — a training that added to her natural abilities.

“I have the physical strength to carry two bags, get to the player's ball before they do, provide course knowledge, give accurate yardage according to the conditions, recite rulings and read the greens well,” she says.

“I am proud to give caddies a good name, and I expect the same out of any caddie at Pebble Beach, male or female.”

She says she's not looking for any special treatment as a woman and that her fellow employees and managers are very nice and considerate to her. “If I were not able to do an excellent job, then I don't believe I deserve to be here,” she says.

“My goal is to make each player play their best while at Pebble Beach.”

She has caddied for the First Tee Open the last two years, and will caddie this year. Last year, she caddied for Linda Scott, wife of the CEO of Wal-Mart. “She was very down-to-earth, a great golfer and a lot of fun,” Dickman says. She has also caddied in the same foursome as Hale Irwin and Gary Player.

“It's one of the best jobs in the whole world — not just a summer job — and I take it very seriously,” she says.

The First Tee program seeks to “impact the lives of young people by providing learning facilities and educational programs that promote character development and life-enhancing values through the game of golf.”

Dickman is an example of how The First Tee influences lives and strengthens youth in the nine core values of honesty, integrity, sportsmanship, respect, confidence, responsibility, perseverance, courtesy and judgment.

Look for Dickman on the Pebble Beach course during the First Tee Open, serving as caddie for Heidi Ueberroth, daughter of Pebble Beach co-owner Peter Ueberroth. Ashley Dickman will be the caddie with the blonde ponytail, bright smile and positive attitude, giving it her best.

Ashley Dickman is the sole female caddie at Pebble Beach. But she says she likes to prove she has as much strength, stamina and golf-course knowhow as everybody else.

About the Monterey Peninsula Foundation

In 1937, Bing Crosby invited a group of friends to get together for some golf, a clam-bake and, most importantly, to raise money for local charities. Since that time, the tournament, now known as the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, has become one of the most popular and internationally recognized stops on the PGA tour and has raised more than $50 million for nonprofit organizations in Monterey County and surrounding communities. The Monterey Peninsula

Foundation also conducts the Wal-Mart First Tee Open at Pebble Beach on the Champions Tour with proceeds dedicated to The First Tee.

About The First Tee

The First Tee is an initiative of the World Golf Foundation which, since its inception in 1997, has opened 208 golf-learning facilities and has introduced the game of golf to more than 450,000 participants. The focus is to give young people of all backgrounds an opportunity to develop, through golf and character education, life-enhancing values such as honesty, integrity and sportsmanship.

project, Jim and Cindy McGillen, who have resided in Pebble Beach and Carmel for the past 30 years, were so impressed by the Sun Valley Writers Conference they haven't missed one session in the 15 years the event has been running.

"We have a second home in Sun Valley," McGillen said, "and I thought Carmel, with its literary history, would be just the venue for a similar festival. We've modeled our event on the fantastically popular annual Sun Valley Writers Conference. They have 1,000 tickets to sell, and they always sell out."

McGillen said tickets to the Carmel festival are limited to 705, and each ticket costs $500, plus a small handling fee. "I'm so sure anyone attending the sessions will enjoy them, I'm guaranteeing it. If someone buys two tickets and that person sells two more tickets, I'll refund the price of the tickets if the festival isn't as compelling, inviting and entertaining as we've said it will be."

McGillen continued, "This is a challenge to the community. We want to have a full house at Sunset Center. We've put up over $320,000 of our own capital to finance the festival — to rent the entire Sunset Center, to pay for speaking and travel fees for the major authors, accommodations for most and a luncheon for all attendees on Saturday."

Acknowledging the ticket price is steep, McGillen pointed out that a couple may split a ticket, with one person attending at a time. A concierge desk in Sunset lobby will be set up for this purpose.

"Further, those who can are encouraged to buy one more ticket than expected and donate it so that local educators and school children can attend," he said.

"The response to date has been overwhelming," McGillen continued. "Some people have called to order 10 tickets at a time and have even offered to host a dinner party." For the really enthusiastic, various donor categories have been set up, ranging from $1,000 to $20,000.

McGillen, who is semi-retired, said, "Cindy and I consider this an investment in our community. If the festival is as successful as we anticipate, we want to schedule it every year, possibly for a full week of speakers. I want people to plan their vacations around this."

The McGillens have been involved in television. Cindy McGillen was president of the local NBC affiliate, KSBW-TV, for six years but retired 10 years ago. McGillen has produced movies and movies for television for years and still does projects now and then.

"If there is one thing I want to leave with your readers," McGillen said, "it's that those who attend will have an extremely enjoyable weekend. Frank McCourt will be the featured speaker the first night of the festival. He's a wonderful writer, but an even better speaker. He's funny and insightful. I think of him as a Mark Twain and Will Rogers rolled into one."

McGillen said they first met McCourt in Sun Valley and subsequently in Donegal, Ireland, where they own a farm.

To order tickets, send a check to the Carmel Authors and Ideas Festival, P.O. Box 2424, Carmel, CA 93921, call the Sunset Center ticketing service at (831) 620-2048, or log on to www.carmelauthors.com.

presently wreaking havoc in many parts of the world. The devastation caused by Phytophthora is also nothing new.

The Irish potato famine of the mid-19th century was caused by a Phytophthora, and pathogens from the genus are suspected in the current die-off of European deciduous forests.

"There is a Phytophthora in West Australia," Rizzo explained. "It reduces forests to grasslands. It's really scary."

Locally, the deadly effects of sudden oak death can best be seen along the many creeks that pass beneath Highway 1 as it winds its way down the Big Sur Coast. Dense groves of redwoods, tanbark oaks and laurels typically shade the waterways, and anyone who hikes Big Sur's coastal canyons can't escape the presence of countless dead trees.

Curiously, it is the laurels that often pass the disease on to tanbark oaks.

"Sudden oak death infects just about everything, it just doesn't kill it," Rizzo said. "The laurels are one of the most important players in this whole thing. They get infected, but they don't die. And they're the ones that spread the disease."

Mysterious music class among CUSD Adult School offerings

By MARY BROWNFIELD

‘SENSE OF humor is the only prerequisite,’ for a music history/appreciation class to be offered Saturdays beginning Sept. 8 at the Carmel Foundation, according to instructor Scott MacClelland.

And since the course is offered through the Carmel Unified School District Adult School, students need not be members of the foundation to enroll.

“The tuition is $25 per semester — a bargain for enjoying a ‘concert’ each week from his vast collection of CDs,” reported Carol Stratton, who said MacClelland began teaching the course at the foundation 30 years ago but only recently passed his 55th birthday — the age required to join the nonprofit.

The teacher is well schooled in music, according to Stratton. A classical radio programmer and presenter for three decades, MacClelland also wrote a music column for The Pine Cone and “has written features and music criticism for all daily and weekly newspapers in the greater Monterey Bay area, and in the San Francisco Bay area.” He also contributes to Strings Magazine and is program annotator for the Carmel Bach Festival.

Repeating the class

Over the years, his course topics have varied widely, focusing on opera, classical music and musicians, music history, composers and performers, jazz, world music and dance. Many students attend semester after semester, year after year, because of that variety, according to Stratton.

“Each semester begins with a general discussion among students that leads to the specific topics for that semester,” she said. Past courses have included a video of the opera “Turandot,” which was filmed at The Forbidden City in Beijing; demonstrations by a clarinetist, a French horn player and a cello player; a video series by Leonard Bernstein from his lectures at Harvard on the basics of music; a video of the Ambrose Thomas opera, “Hamlet;” sacred chant; an audio documentary on the life of Mozart, and South American composers.

“This gleaning is just to give you a flavor of the wide diversity of subjects that we cover during the semester,” said Stratton, who has attended the class for eight years.

Students and MacClelland meet Saturday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon in the Ruth Blanchard House on the southwest corner of Dolores and Eighth in downtown Carmel.

People interested in attending must enroll through the CUSD Adult School, and MacClelland recommends they also purchase a copy of Michael Kennedy’s Oxford Concise

SAVE EARLY, OFTEN - AND WISELY - FOR COLLEGE

It's that time of year when college students across the country reach for their backpacks and head back to campus - while their parents reach for their checkbooks. If your children are still quite young, you can take steps now to cope with those big college bills that may someday head your way.

Depending on your income level, you can contribute up to $2,000 annually to a Coverdell Education Savings Account. You might also want to consider investing in a Section 529 savings plan, which allows for very high contributions. Earnings from both a Coverdell Account and a Section 529 plan are tax-free, provided withdrawals are used for qualified higher education expenses. Contributions are tax-deductible in certain states for residents who participate in their own state's plan. Please note that a 529 College Savings Plan could reduce a beneficiary's ability to qualify for financial aid.

Before investing in a Coverdell account or Section 529 plan, consult with your tax and financial advisors. But don't wait too long - your children may be young now, but time flies.

Big Sur garage band cranks up the rock 'n' roll volume

By CHRIS COUNTS

ON ANY given summer day, it's easy to find a musician in Big Sur. Whether it's a conga drummer laying down a beat in a pullout along Highway 1, a gray-bearded flutist playing a riff in the Esalen hot tubs or an idealistic young folkie sitting on a redwood stump tuning his guitar, the sparsely populated coastal community is a mecca for wayward musicians. But one thing you almost never see in Big Sur is a homegrown rock 'n' roll band.

With dueling electric guitars and a charismatic lead singer whose stage antics make Mick Jagger look subdued, Olde Panther definitely qualifies as a rock 'n' roll band. And with five longtime local residents in tow, they're certainly homegrown.

Olde Panther's affinity for high energy and loud volume will be on full display when they play at Big Sur's Maiden Pub Sunday, Sept. 2, just two days after opening for Lovers and Strangers at Monterey Live.

The fact that no homegrown rock 'n' roll band has thrived in Big Sur in recent memory should come as no surprise. Big Sur has long been a place with two distinct populations. The first — long-term residents — is known for its independent, and at times, stubborn nature. The second — made up primarily of newcomers searching for summer jobs or simply a place in the sun for the summer — travels light and flies off like migratory birds at the first sign of winter's chill. For better or worse, neither group has had much luck at creating enduring rock 'n' roll bands.

"You go to an open mike at the Henry Miller Library and you'll see 30 people playing, but you won't see them hanging out together," observed Todd Morton, Olde Panther's lead guitarist.

Yet despite the challenges of keeping a band together in Big Sur's everchanging and far-flung community, Olde Panther has survived — and started to thrive. Founded by Morton, vocalist Tod Williamson, guitarist Phil Wojtowicz and drummer Jud Wiesjahn, the group took its name from the brand of beer favored by the Three Stooges. The quartet started jamming together on Sunday evenings about two years ago.

"The first time we played together, it felt really good," recalled Morton.

Williamson, executive chef at Nepenthe Restaurant, agreed.

"I've played with 10 bands, but I've never played with a group like this," explained Williamson, who has been featured in The Pine Cone as a two-time Grand Masters winner at the Carmel Surfabout. "Sunday is now my favorite day of the week."

After jamming together for about a year, bassist Donnie Dickman joined Olde Panther.

"Donnie is actually a musician," said Williamson, showing off the band's trademark self-deprecating humor. "We're just hobbyists. I figured if he wanted to play with us, we must be all right."

The musical evolution of Wojtowicz — chef and part owner of the Big Sur Bakery — as a rhythm guitarist has also helped bolster the group's confidence.

"Phil's our anchor," Williamson explained. "When things go wrong, we turn to him."

Then there's Williamson, the band's irrepressible vocalist. A force of nature, Williamson uses his extensive martial arts training to enhance his well honed repertoire of rock-star moves. With his band mates perpetually edging away from the center of the stage, Williamson has plenty of room to move, which he does to impressive theatrical effect.

Keeping things simple, the band favors an upbeat contemporary sound that's low on frills but high in decibels.

"This is a garage band," declared Williamson, matter-of-factly. "There's no drum machine here. It's just straight-ahead rock 'n' roll."

The concert at the Maiden Pub starts at 9 p.m. The pub is located in the Village Center Shops, about 24 miles south of

College students present new play the 21st century way — on their cell phones

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE MANY — if not most — college students attend summer school to make up for lost ground in the pursuit of their degrees, a group of Monterey Peninsula College students used their summer break to produce a multimedia play in which all the characters speak exclusively on cell phones.

"Without Why" opens Friday, Aug. 31, at the Cherry Center for the Arts, providing a showcase for a talented group of local actors and actresses studying theater production.

"People who are coming to see the play can expect to see something a little different," explained Conrad Selvig, an MPC drama instructor who directs "Without Why."

Instead of using a classroom at the community college's Monterey campus, the Cherry Center hosted the course in its theater. There, Selvig and his students created a challenging and ambitious play.

"It's a complicated production," he said. "Three of the characters perform live, while three others have been filmed. Then there are three different levels of sound."

"Without Why" was written by longtime local poet, author and artist John Dotson, who also plays the story's main character, Galileo Caviot, a contemporary artist who lives in New York. The play is set in Central Park, where Caviot talks on his cell with variety of characters whose lives intersect with his.

"The play deals with all the layers that exist in contemporary society about how people connect," Selvig said.

As Caviot examines the shifting relationships in his changing world, he ponders the meaning of a 17th century verse by Angelus Silesius: "The rose is without why; it blooms because it blooms ..."

Selvig, who supervised the remodeling of the Cherry Center's theater, believes the intimate venue is just the right setting for the play.

"It's a hidden jewel," he suggested.

The Cherry Center theater will host performances of "Without Why" Friday, Aug. 31, and Saturday, Sept. 1, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Sept. 2, at 2 p.m.

The Cherry Center is located at Fourth and Guadalupe. For tickets, call (831) 372-3793. For more information about the Cherry Center, call (831) 624-7491 or visit www.carlcherrycenter.org.

■ Fairport Convention

British folk-rocker Richard Thompson — best known for his guitar work and songwriting with Fairport Convention in the late 1960s and early 1970s — will play at Sunset Center Thursday, Sept. 6.

Thompson and singer Sandy Denny teamed up to create a sound that was equal parts traditional British folk and contemporary American rock. On albums such as “Unhalfbricking” and “Leif and Leige,” Fairport Convention achieved its greatest commercial and critical success.

In 1974, Thompson and his then wife, Linda, recorded “I Want to See the Bright Lights Tonight.” Though never a commercial success, the disc was picked by Rolling Stone Magazine in 2003 as one of the Top 500 albums in rock ’n’ roll history. The same year, Rolling Stone also named Thompson “One of the 20 Greatest Rock Guitarists.”

Like Bert Jansch, who played in Ben Lomond last week, Thompson is an innovative guitarist steeped in traditional folk music. And like Jansch, his influence on other musicians has been far greater than his commercial impact.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. Tickets prices are $44, $54 and $64. For more information, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

"I've done more than 525 dogs, now," Nichols said, including "Frasier" TV star Eddie and the October 2007 Dog Calendar trio of Twinkie, Wilfredo and Daisy.

Carmel's most famous dog was Pal Kendall, a bulldog/Alaskan husky mix who roamed town in the 1930s, hanging out at the butcher shop and napping in the middle of the street, Burghardt pointed out. His portrait hangs in city hall, and his tombstone lies in front of the Forest Theater.

"Dogs and Carmel are so synonymous, it makes you wonder why the calendar idea took so long," Burghardt observed in his press release announcing the Sept. 8 casting call.

To participate, each dog must pay a $10 registration fee, half of which will benefit the SPCA, which will also receive a portion of the calendar sales. Registration forms may be found at www.carmelcalendar.com or at the casting call. Questions include name, breed, favorite Carmel hangout and special talent.

In 2007, the Top 10 hangouts were Carmel Beach/Scenic Road Pathway, Cypress Inn, Diggidy Dog, Forge in the Forest, Mission Trail Park, Carmel Plaza, Buon Giorno (now Chez Christine), Forest Theater, city hall and Ocean Avenue.

The Top 10 talents were apple picking, moonwalking, therapy, bilingualism, yoga, volunteering at the Red Cross, escaping, dancing, bottle opening and making people smile.

The winners of the 2008 Dog Calendar Casting Call will be photographed in hot spots around town by Paul Schraub, who is donating his services for a second year.

The casting call is set for Saturday, Sept. 8, from 1 to 5 p.m., on Carmel Beach at the foot of Ocean Avenue. Dogs must be leashed, and Burghardt promised "a faster line, more entertainment, and a shot at being a star!"

Dictionary of Music. Unlike other Adult School offerings, Stratton said no preregistration is required.

"Just come to the first class, listen, enjoy and participate, and if it interests you, then join," she said. "We are an informal group that simply enjoys music in all its forms and manifestations, and there is lively discussion facilitated by Scott's expertise in this field. It is an inspired twist on music appreciation."

Other courses

Each semester, the CUSD Adult School offers a wide range of classes at very low cost, as the courses are subsidized by state tax dollars. Fees run from free (English as a second language), to $105 for a three-month intensive master swim class taught by coach Bob Walthour. They are also held in different locations, mostly in Carmel and Carmel Valley, depending on equipment needs and available space. Some meet once weekly, while others gather two or three times each week. The fall semester runs Sept. 4-Nov. 21; winter, Dec. 3-March 1, 2008.

Classes set to be offered include ceramics, small sculpture, watercolor sketch/outdoors, painting with acrylics, painting with oils, outdoor painting, life drawing/painting, indoor or outdoor figure painting in Carmel Valley, watercolor (beginning and intermediate classes), experiential drawing, quilting, sewing, computer basics, Italian, Spanish, yoga, cosmetology, wood sculpting, and floral design.

Preregistration is required by calling (831) 624-1714 or (831) 624-3855.

Flanders Mansion nature walk

THE NONPROFIT Flanders Foundation will hold another "Lunch on the Lawn: Discover the Beautiful Flanders Mansion" nature walk Saturday, Sept. 15, at 10:30 a.m.

The walk, which will begin at the Rio Road entrance to Mission Trail Park, will include a historical/nature talk by retired Carmel Fire Chief and "noted birder" Bill Hill, and Melanie Billig, president of the Flanders Foundation, the nonprofit formed in 1998 to "protect and restore this historic asset both inside and out for the benefit and enjoyment of residents and visitors now and in the future." (The foundation sued the city to halt its sale of the mansion and received a favorable judgment this year.)

Hill and Billig will discuss the history and biology of the park, the 1920s-era mansion and the neighboring Lester Rowntree Native Plant Garden.

Participants are advised to wear comfortable shoes and bring a bag lunch. The foundation will provide cold drinks, and the event should conclude by 1 p.m.

TRUST & HONESTY

There is an odd missing connection evident in a recent survey by the National Association of Realtors®. Among the buyers and sellers contacted in the survey, 25% said an agent's trustworthiness and honesty were the most important qualities they looked for when choosing a real estate professional. (One suspects the same result would arise in a survey involving mortgage professionals, by the way.) Further, 23% cited the agent's reputation as the most important quality.

Fine enough, but when asked how many real estate professionals they contacted and interviewed, the vast majority of respondents to the survey said, simply, "one."

This is one of two reasons for explaining what we'll call the "continuing client relationship." Generally, when you get around to needing help from a real estate professional, you need it NOW. You're already several miles down the road from having time to interview agents and find that one whom you can best relate to and trust and communicate with.

It would be better, therefore, to find the real estate professional you'll want to work with long before you need his or her assistance. (You'll also find yourself profiting from that assistance long before you thought you would, but we'll get to that in another column.) When you do need the help of a real estate professional (or mortgage professional), then, you will have someone whom you can rely on, someone who already knows your situation, someone you know will get the job done right. Think about it...and then call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF MARY LOUISE SQUIRES Case Number MP 18734

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of ROSEMARY A. O'DOWD.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JILL SAXON HIMONAS in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that ROSEMARY A. O'DOWD be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held on in this court as follows:

Date: Sept. 21, 2007
Time: 10:30 a.m.
Dept.: 17
Room:

Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Agujito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

The tour tells it all

LAST WEEKEND, a group of enterprising local real estate agents put together an afternoon of open houses featuring homes in Carmel-by-the-Sea for sale at prices under $1 million. No fewer than 11 homes were included — a surprisingly large number, considering the super-escalation of prices that has gone on almost continuously since the town was born. The fact that such a tour was seen as a worthwhile selling device evokes some basic lessons in economics:

■ Buyers determine real estate values as much as sellers

When local real estate is under discussion, local know-it-alls can often be heard blaming “greedy sellers” for driving prices up.

But the price that a home sells for is not determined solely by the person trying to sell. He can set his asking price wherever he wants, but that price is just a number on a piece of paper until somebody decides to pay it.

In a free marketplace, such as local real estate, sellers compete with each other trying to get the highest prices for their goods, while buyers simultaneously compete with each other to get those goods for the lowest possible prices. Therefore, if home prices are rising more quickly than you’d like them to, it’s because a lot of other people disagree with you and are willing to pay higher prices for homes in this highly desirable area. In Carmel and neighboring communities, prices have been propelled into the stratosphere because lots of buyers have been only too happy to pay top dollar.

The same principle can be seen in its purest form in the stock market, where prices move up and down rapidly, reflecting the changing, and offsetting, desires of buyers and sellers. Practically every news report about the stock market misses this fundamental fact. When the market goes up, they attribute it to optimism, ignoring the obvious logic that every time a stock changes hands, the person buying thereby proves his belief the stock’s value will rise, while the seller’s decision to sell demonstrates his belief that it won’t. Likewise, when the market goes down, reporters invariably say, “sellers outnumbered buyers,” or something equally fundamentally wrong.

■ When demand exceeds supply, prices will rise

Local real estate prices may be declining in Carmel and neighboring communities. But if they are, the downturn is very likely only temporary, for the simple reason that more people want to own homes here than there are homes available to buy. Our great weather and beautiful scenery are two important reasons. But more important is the fact that almost no new homes are being built (except in place of old ones). The local water shortage is one principal reason. So are the Gordian-knot-like building regulations imposed by the California Coastal Commission and other government agencies.

So if you’ve owned a home in the Monterey Peninsula for more than five or 10 years, the next time you feel like cursing the coastal commission for making it difficult to cut down a tree or build an addition, or are on the verge of expressing outrage at local environmentalists for cutting off all new water, you might want to thank these groups for helping make you rich. Similarly, if you can’t afford a home, some of your ire should be directed at the people who make it virtually impossible to build any new ones.

BATES

“Hello, sweetheart, do me a favor. Go on line and see if there’s a McDonald’s in Carmel-by-the-Sea.”

Letters to the Editor

‘Shame on you’

Dear Editor,

It amazes me that downtown stores in Carmel-by-the-Sea are so intimidated by the Homerafters’ Marketplace held in November.

Many of them imply that it brings the “wrong type” of people to Carmel. Some of the people who come to the event are family members of our troops fighting overseas. How dare storeowners imply that those people are not the right type to shop in Carmel.

If their family members/loved ones can fight overseas and give up life and limb, not to mention their mental state upon their return, how is it that these people are the “wrong type” to shop/eat in Carmel?

Shame on you, downtown district. Shame on all the shops which signed petitions to stop a one-day event that brings in all types of people into Carmel.

Shame, shame, shame on you.

Harriett Richardson, Monterey

A Labrador has two sides

Dear Editor,

I was so happy to hear the black Lab was returned to its owner after being evaluated by an animal behaviorist — there are always two sides to a story.

I thank the Lord for such a happy ending.

‘We all have roles to play’

Dear Editor,

Your editorial on the Sunset Theater renovation (Aug. 24) was a helpful assessment since the theater’s reopening four years ago. The Sunset Cultural Center’s board and Jack Globenfelt are to be commended for broader programming which has attracted new audiences. Mayor McCloud and the City of Carmel have been dedicated stewards guiding the course of this valuable community asset.

It is encouraging to read of the recent quarterly deficit reduction; hopefully, this can become a trend. Those individuals in the community so inclined can still find numerous opportunities to underwrite user-group productions, help pay off the city’s debt on the project, join SCC’s Producers’ Guild, or contribute to the Sunset Theater Endowment Fund at the Community Foundation for Monterey County.

We all have our roles to play in financially supporting the performing arts and the numerous Sunset series. We are sure the 1,180 donors who helped make the renovation possible appreciate your editorial remembering their efforts. May we all show up for more performances! The box office is open frequently and available on line, so it is easy to obtain tickets. You will have a very pleasant and rewarding experience at the theater!

The Carmel Pine Cone was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 34750.

Reward upped in hope of more bites

A FEW possible tipsters nibbled at the $1,000 reward offered for information leading to the arrest of the Banksy-inspired copycat who left stenciled images of camera-toting tourists throughout Carmel — including one on the side of city hall — last month. But with no suspect in the bag, the police department has doubled the ante in hope of gathering more helpful information.

"We've upped it to $2,000 and are stressing that you can remain anonymous," detective Jesse Juarez said. "We're hoping someone can come forward and provide us with the identity of the person or persons responsible for the graffiti, no questions asked. All we care about is determining who is responsible." Anyone with information should call (831) 624-2403 and ask for Juarez, who said he can assure anonymity if requested.

EYESORE

But Laredo said "the question is at what point [and] to what extent should the city be enforcing all of its rules. Jaywalking occurs all the time, and it's discretionary when to enforce."

Willoughby contends he has sent four letters to the city manager and one letter to the community development department, but he said they have not responded.

"During our working years," he notes in the suit, "my wife and I had a dream of building our home near the ocean in a township that had strong city ordinances that would protect our lifelong investment. Unfortunately, our dream has not been fulfilled because the city fails to enforce its public nuisance ordinances."

The case is set for trial Sept. 24 in a Monterey courtroom.

WATER

■ District 4

Pacific Grove-based health education consultant Regina Doyle said she wants to join the water board to be more involved in the community.

"Since returning to Pacific Grove in 2000 with my husband, Brendan Doyle, an international water engineer, I have been deeply interested in the ongoing water supply and conservation issues facing our area," Doyle said.

Doyle, 52, believes Cal Am's proposed desalination plant is just one possible solution. She said pending reports from the MPWMD and a citizens advisory committee report on the feasibility of various water projects for the Peninsula could provide answers. Doyle also believes there are other non-desal plant options, such as increased water conservation.

She said more conservation is possible, if the community is informed what its options are to achieve it.

"I believe new technologies will present such opportunities. If elected, I will use my skills in public health education to further increase community involvement and awareness," Doyle said.

She said her career experience, including work with government institutions through UNICEF, the World Health Organization, World Bank and others, will help in her role as water board director.

"I believe that the processes and principles of encouraging participation and representing the interests of the local people are common to all societies, including ours," Doyle said.

Retired civil engineer and current publisher of the Pacific Grove Bulletin, Lee Yarborough has some heavy-duty and perhaps the strongest credentials for the water board because of his longtime role in public administration.

Yarborough, 76, was public works director of Daly City, city manager for King City and Placerville and executive director of the Transportation Agency for Monterey County.

"I've had a lot of involvement in water management," he said. "I have done stormwater management, and I handled management of the entire San Mateo County non-point source [system]."

Yarborough said he understands all too well the importance of finding an alternative water supply for the Peninsula.

"You are talking about the economy of the county," he said. "The consequences of a drought are a disaster. Do we want to be in that position, or do we want to try to manage the water? And that's what I really hope to contribute to."

Yarborough said he is not set on one water supply solution and will look at all of the options if elected.

"One of them is bound to pay off," he said.

Foy, who is endorsing Yarborough, said the publisher's experience with TAMC and as city manager would be beneficial to the board.

"He knows how a political system works," Foy said.

COLDWELL BANKER
DEL MONTE

Tim Allen
presents
Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

If you had frequented the corner of 6th and San Carlos Streets twenty years ago or so you might have been the subject of this week's legend. Louise Asmussen was an unusual lady. Notwithstanding her advancing age, she wore only the most current fashion for the times...black leather "go-go" boots, a very short skirt, often times a fur jacket, and carefully coiffed blond hair. Most notable, however, was her pet pigeon... which traveled along with her on a small basket. We can't recall if it had a name... but we do remember that Jim Bannerman who ran the 76 station on the present site of Cottage Row loved to call out from his office, "Is that squab ready for the oven yet?!", which would always elicit a lively response. Mrs. Asmussen, together with her husband, operated an antique business above the Hog's Breath for many years. They have both passed from this scene, along with the pigeon, and somehow that corner has never seemed the same since!
