15,000-gallon sewage spill at treatment plant

■ Effluent contained on site

By KELLY NIX

A QUICK response by employees of the Carmel Area Wastewater District last weekend helped prevent as much as 15,000 gallons of spilled sewage from seeping to nearby homes or the Carmel River Lagoon.

Crews at CAWD had been working on a $2.5 million upgrade to treatment plant's system Friday, Oct. 19, when the accident, caused by human error, occurred.

"This stuff [looks] like chocolate pudding," said CAWD general manager Ray von Dohren. "It stinks and it's all over the place. It's nasty stuff."

Von Dohren said employees noticed the sludgy, putrid mess when they arrived to work the next day.

"They were fast and blocked off the area to make sure the spill didn't spread," von Dohren said. "You get punished severely for these mistakes."

CAWD plant superintendent Mark Scheiter said crews used a backhoe and large squeegees Saturday to mop up the thick sludge. Work continued Monday, and by Wednesday it was mostly cleaned up.

There are homes directly across the Carmel River from the plant, but the sewage did not seep that far, von Dohren said. The amount of sludge that spilled is estimated to be 10,000 to 15,000 gallons.

"It got into our storm drain system," he said, "but it didn't have enough volume to get into the environment out-

Activist will try again to stop aerial spraying

By KELLY NIX

THE ATTORNEY for the environmental activist who filed an unsuccessful lawsuit to try to stop the aerial spraying of the light brown apple moth is hoping a court will hear further arguments in opposition to the state eradication program by the end of the year.

While spraying the insect's territory with a moth-confusing pheromone resumed Wednesday over parts of the Monterey Peninsula, Alexander Henson said he's hoping to convince Monterey County Superior Court Judge Robert O'Farrell that the state needs to perform an environmental impact report to keep up the campaign.

Henson represents Pacific Grove activist David Dilworth, who says he is executive director of Helping Our Peninsula's Environment.

While expensive EIRs are commonly required for relatively minor projects, O'Farrell decided Oct. 19 the spraying of much of the Monterey Peninsula could resume without an EIR because the California Department of Food and Agriculture declared the apple moth problem an emergency.

The state wants to eliminate the nonnative moth because it contends an infestation of the insect could cause hundreds of millions of dollars in damage to local crops, trees and plants.

As the planes resumed overnight spraying from Marina to Pacific Grove this week, residents reported being awakened by low-flying aircraft. Even areas not being sprayed — such as Carmel-by-the-Sea — are overflowed as the aircraft line up to make their passes.

Sickness?

Although HOPE said about 100 people complained of various health issues after the first round of spraying in September, O'Farrell, in his order to allow the spraying to resume, said he was satisfied with the state's efforts to monitor the efforts and to address health concerns.

And despite the health concerns, which are the basis of HOPE's complaint, Henson said there's no way to prove the health problems were caused by the pheromone mixture.

"For all I know," he said, "they could have been from exposure to airplane exhaust."

Where's the pheromone?

In a mixture that is mostly water, planes apply the synthetic pheromone as a mist, which carries the moth-confusing substance to trees, rooftops, plants and the ground.

Although some Peninsula residents have taken extra steps to cover their cars during the aerial spraying for fear a residue would

Party with costumed Carmelites at city's birthday bash

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TEENAGERS PLAYING music from the back of a flatbed truck. Little kids and big dogs decked out in costumes. An engineer behind the wheel of a meticulously restored vintage fire engine. Fancy cars carrying city dignitaries. The Batmobile. And more hot dogs, chili, chips, ice cream and cake than anyone could eat. All these are sure to be part of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea's 91st birthday party and Halloween parade set for Saturday, Oct. 27. The city was incorporated on Oct. 31, 1916.

The parade, which will begin in front of Sunset Center on San Carlos Street between Eighth and 10th avenues at 11 a.m., will follow a short route north to Ocean Avenue, cover a few blocks of the main downtown street and then return to the center. Everyone is invited to take part, and executive assistant Sandy Farrell pointed out the festivities will include Ken Talmage and Karen Sharp in their first parade as the newest members of the city council.

"The Batmobile will be there," she added, and members of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce will ride a Monterey-Salinas Transit trolley. Sadly, Carmel police said the 1951 Chevy squad car, which is undergoing a rebuild, won't be out of the shop in time, but

Water candidates split on small desal plant

TWO OF the four candidates running for seats on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board are criticizing the approval last week of a small desalination plant in Sand City.

On Oct. 15, MPWMD directors voted 5-2 to approve vital permits that will push forward the desal facility. Although it will only provide a small amount of water, the

Speeding no secret — especially not to drivers

EVER LOOKING for ways to remind drivers to slow down, the Carmel Police Department has acquired a new radar monitor to alert speeders on some of the city's busiest streets.

The $3,800 digital readout is mounted on the trunk of a patrol car and runs on batteries, according to Cpl. Steve Rana. It will eventually replace the old radar trailer that's been a frequent sight on Carpenter Street heading into town and Junipero Street heading out of it.

"The old radar trailer is kind of antiquated and needs to be recharged a lot, even though it has a solar panel," Rana said. "So we looked at getting a new radar monitor and wanted something that would incorporate a patrol car. That way, there's higher visibility for speeders."

He said the new apparatus is "very mobile and very user-friendly."

Officers can set the monitor at any speed, and it will advise any driver who exceeds it by rapidly flashing the vehicle's rate of travel. "I like to say it yells at you by blinking very fast what your speed is," said Rana.

REWARD OFFERED FOR RETURN OF CHAMBER'S BRONZE BIRD

By KELLY NIX

IT DIDN'T fly away. But a bronze bird that graced a memorial bench in Pacific Grove for the past few months is missing.

The bronze blue jay, perched on the end of the Harold Green memorial bench in front of the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, was hacked off at the feet and stolen about three weeks ago.

"On a daily basis," said chamber president Moe Ammar,

"people come in and say 'What happened to the bird?' They used to love to take their picture with the bird."

Although the bench was only placed there in July, visitors were regularly seen sitting on it. Until the theft, it featured a likeness of Green, with the blue jay perched to his right.

"They must have worked for an hour to saw off that bird," he said. "There is no way they could have broken it off. We will definitely not replace it. If you put another bird there it will disappear. It's really sad because its a piece of art."

Now that the bird is gone, it appears Green is staring at the arm rest, not the bird.

The sculpture of Green, a longtime P.G. civic leader who served on the chamber of commerce board for nine years, was created by Russian artist Alexander Prokopenko and commissioned by Green's family as a dedication acknowledging "all grandfathers, and great grandfathers whose efforts mold and create the children of the future," according to a P.G. Chamber press release.

Ammar said the chamber is offering $200 for the "safe return" of the bird, whose feet still remain on the arm rest. Ammar said he didn't report to police the vandalism to the sculpture, which he said cost an estimated $12,000 to create.

The Green family wanted the memorial to be a "friendly and welcoming exhibit," according to the press release, "so people would stop and sit and children could climb up on it and maybe talk about their dad or grandfather."

The missing bird is part of a rash of stolen items in the city, which include an entire bench on the corner of Forest and Lighthouse avenues and some speakers from a chamber storage closet. "I just bought another bench," Ammar said, "And I'm really going to screw it in the ground so nobody can pick it up."

Some pieces of another bronze sculpture at Lovers Point were also sawed off, said Ammar, who believes the thieves are melting the bronze down for other uses.

Open house in Hatton Fields

ALICE GOULDING has lived in her 80-year-old Hatton Fields house for half a century and will host a day-long open house Saturday, Nov. 3, to welcome all her lifelong friends, neighbors and other curious visitors, according to her daughter, Roberta Brunet. The house, built in 1927 by Antonese Anstovic, who constructed nine homes in the neighborhood, has been used for school parties, as a polling place, for church functions, and was a decorators' showcase home in the 1980s.

"There are a lot of people in and around the area who have been involved with the place," she said. "Come drop in and say, 'Hi.'"

The home, which the Goulding family moved into in November 1957, is located at 3377 Fourth Ave. in Carmel.

Did you know...

The Sunset Center has been a cultural web in Carmel for more than four decades, hosting world-renowned entertainers ranging from celebrated violinists to dazzling circus acts. The former schoolhouse took on that role in 1964, when city voters decided to buy the centrally located property and convert it to an arts center. It cost $575,000 at the time, which took the city 25 years to pay off. The auditorium built with the school in 1931 became the theater. While it may have been fine for 7- and 8-year-olds at school assemblies, adult concert-goers complained of acoustics when listening to the likes of Itzhak Perlman. Seating also became an issue, ventilation, and the conditions of the lobby and restrooms. More than 1,000 people contributed to a $21 million renovation fund and after two years of work, the 700-seat theater we treasure today opened in 2003 with modern comforts and remarkable acoustics.

Parent, businessman faces off against school board incumbents

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A SOLE challenger hopes to unseat one of three incumbents on the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education when voters cast their ballots Nov. 6. Richard Kreitman, who also applied for appointment to the board two years ago after Ernie Lostrom retired, is running against 14-year board member Annette Yee Steck, two-term member and current board president Amy Funt, and Marcy Rustad, who beat out Kreitman and other candidates to replace Lostrom in February 2006.

■ Annette Yee Steck

A financial advisor who has worked with numerous municipalities, including school districts, for more than two decades, Steck said she brings unique expertise to the board.

Fireproof storefront historic, apartments and home are not

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A DOWNTOWN commercial building made with early fireproof cement blocks is historic despite exterior changes, the Carmel Historic Resources Board decided Oct. 22, but an old house and a pair of apartment buildings can be removed from the city's list of structures that must be preserved.

According to historian Kent Seavey, hired by the city to conduct a survey of potentially significant properties, the one-story, flat-roofed retail building at Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street was constructed on the town's first commercial block in 1902 or 1903 using some of the first fire-safe cement blocks on the market. While smooth blocks became commonly used in construction, those on the building that now houses the Sharper Image, Hanson Gallery and the Carmel Drug Store are faced to appear carved from stone.

The building is owned by Ted Leidig, who appealed the historic designation, and by a partnership named for the streets on either side.

Seavey also said the drug store's portion once housed the Carmel Development Company of Frank Powers and Frank Devendorf, the city's founding fathers.

But Leidig's consultant, Meta Bunse, argued alterations on every side of the building compromised its integrity.

The east side contains three added windows, a restaurant and store were constructed to the rear, the west side was expanded, and the front facade has had a door moved, transom windows altered or covered, entrances enlarged and other cosmetic changes.

Bunse admitted no other buildings in Carmel utilize the faux rock concrete blocks but said the changes prevent its historic designation.

"While the basic form of the building remains, the character-defining features have been altered dramatically," senior planner Sean Conroy agreed in his report to the historic resources board. "Since the building has lost its integrity, the use of fireproof materials, many of which have been removed or altered, is not a sufficient basis for designation."

In addition, while the first Carmel Development Company office would be historic, the space, which has been the drug store's home for decades, has undergone even more changes than the other parts of the building.

Conroy said 47 downtown buildings are considered historic, with four predating 1910. The others are better examples of the architecture of the era, he added, recommending the board grant the appeal.

Board member Julie Wendt observed that no one had applied a frequently used litmus test regarding integrity: Would someone associated with the building when it was constructed recognize it today?

"I think, 'Yes,'" she said, as most of the materials and the general structure are unchanged. Further, if the board were asked to approve the alterations today, it likely would have found them consistent with historic preservation standards.

"It's on a prominent corner," she said. "There's a lot of history to it."

She also objected to having two drastically conflicting evaluations. "We have one from our local historian, and one from Ms. Bunse, who had to drive four hours to get here," said Wendt. "I like the idea of having an independent or third architectural historian who's local," because historic preservation is a local issue.

HRB member Erling Lagerholm, subbing as chairman after Erik Dyar stepped down due to a potential conflict, could think of no other buildings with similar faux rock concrete block and said the structure caught his eye when he first arrived in town years ago.

"I would like to see this go back for a third opinion," he said. "That would be the fairest way to go."

But Conroy recommended they decide the appeal and suggest seeking a third opinion if the decision were appealed to the city council. The board, including newly appointed member Nicole Schroeder, voted 3-0 to deny Leidig's appeal of the historic designation. Member Elinor Laiolo was absent.

Comstock or not?

An old Storybook-style house built on Lincoln Street in 1926 might look like an example of master builder Hugh Comstock's work, but it might not have even been constructed by him, according to developer Steve Dallas, who represented the Dorothy Price Trust at the Oct. 22 hearing. He also argued the two-story home and garage do not warrant mandatory preservation because no original plans exist, the house was extensively altered, and it's in poor condition. If

SCHOOL BOARD

ten better and better as the years have gone on.”

The district is financially healthy and striving to improve the academic performance of its students, particularly in the high school. It's also in the midst of significant capital improvements facilitated by a $21.5 million bond.

“The district is going in a great direction and accomplishing so many wonderful things, and we are lucky enough to have the resources to do it,” she said. “We also need to have a board that is focused on how to spend our money in the most effective manner.”

Steck said she has spent the last three years teaching school board members all over the state about finance and collective bargaining. “I have expertise very few board members throughout the state have,” she said.

Furthermore, she said a shift in curriculum — “from teaching students, to making sure that students learn” — is an important step for CUSD. “It sounds subtle, but it's really different,” she said. Pupils who fail to grasp a particular concept should not progress until they understand it. Steck also advocates more in-depth teaching and said benchmark testing has helped educators address achievement gaps.

While other school board members have enrolled their children in Carmel's public schools, Steck has not, but she said that has given her an advantage, not a disadvantage.

“I am on the school board not for my son, but for the sake of all of the students in our district, and in many ways, it is easier for me as a board member because I am able to be more objective.”

Some may say she lacks commitment because her son attends private school, but she said, “I'm passionate about making sure each and every student in our district does well. That's so important to me, and I really care about it. I wouldn't have been doing it for 14 years if I didn't care about it.”

■ Amy Funt

Seeking her third four-year term, Funt has served as its president for the past year and headed the campaign for passage of the 2005 school bond. With her daughter now in college and a son at Carmel High, Funt said she has been involved with the school district since enrolling her daughter in kindergarten more than a dozen years ago. She also heads a board that oversees special education in the county.

“I'm well educated to do this job and have considerable experience,” said Funt, who worked for Time Inc. and HBO, and holds a master's in child development. “I have a lot to contribute, and there's always unfinished business. There's a lot we can do to raise the bar for our kids and give them everything they need and deserve to become prepared for college and the world beyond.”

That can be achieved by using well conceived curricula and providing the proper facilities, according to Funt.

“Completion of the bond projects is a big issue for the district,” she said, particularly as construction costs rose by a third following the bond's passage.

“We're hoping costs will come down to make it easier for us to do more building, and we want to make sure we do everything we promised the voters we would do. We're trying to squeeze every bit of blood out of this bond money.”

Major projects she would like to see come to fruition at CHS include the new library — which Funt hopes will become a “destination” for students — and the theater.

Funt also said she has the know-how to deal with the fiduciary responsibilities, since she has served on the negotiating team with the teachers.

“I am very sensitive to the economics of running the school district,” she said.

With the board's stated goal of seeing 75 percent of CHS graduates meeting admissions requirements for California's public universities, Funt said academic priorities are moving in the right direction.

“We want to make sure every student has the broadest range of education options available when they graduate,” she said. “As a parent, I get to see a lot more closely what's going on at the high school and use that in my judgments as they pertain to curricular matters.”

She pinpointed hiring and retaining top teachers, making sure facilities are worthy of students and technology is up to date, providing nutritious food, and offering “a sports program that allows them to express their physical talents and use their enormous energy outside of school.”

Funt said serving on the school board is “the greatest privilege of my life, and I want to give it my best.”

■ Marcy Rustad

As a heavily involved parent for a dozen years, and as the principal of her own marketing firm, Rustad said she has a lot of experience, knows the inner workings of CUSD, and brings new and different ideas to the board. Since her appointment almost two years ago, she's also completed a master's degree. “I think I'm having a really positive impact on the district,” she said.

Rustad's goals for CUSD include improved communication with parents, better academic performance, prudent spending and installation of current technology.

High academic proficiency among graduating seniors is a worthy endeavor but requires a lot of work to implement, according to Rustad, who said the coursework at the middle and high schools should be mapped out to ensure students have the tools to get into college, even if they don't want to.

“Then if they change their minds in one, two or three years, they have the transcript,” she said.

Last year, the board voted to add American Sign Language and Chinese classes. “I've been a huge advocate for adding more foreign language, because I thought it was pretty weak,” she said. “And we have a lot of work to do in the math department.”

Rustad also said the district should better use technology.

“We're not on the leading edge of the use of technology, either in running our district or in educating our students,” she said. Increasing kids' familiarity with high-tech tools, using them to help teach other subjects, and encouraging educators, parents and students to make use of internal and external networks could improve skills and save time.

Running her own business makes Rustad adept at managing money, she said. “We need to be in better communication with the community about how we're using those funds, since they provided the capital,” she said of the bond money.

And the district should also maintain closer contact with parents. “It's not an easy thing, especially at the high-school level, to engage parents at the level they should be,” said Rustad, who served on the PTA when her son and daughter were in grade school, became PTA president at the middle school, and worked with the CHS Padre Parents Club before her appointment to the board.

Finally, Rustad said her work with private schools and inspires concepts that could work for CUSD. “I think I have a lot of ideas,” she said. “That's an added plus that I bring uniquely to the board, beyond my experience and passion for kids and education.”

■ Richard Kreitman

Kreitman, a financial advisor, has taken an active interest in CUSD via various roles since his two boys enrolled in its schools six years ago. He served on the boards of parent-teacher organizations at River School and the middle school, as well as the fundraising Friends of Carmel Unified Schools, and participated in district committees focusing on academic improvement. Last year, he co-chaired the committee that recommended changes to the Gifted and Talented Education program.

“For the past five years, I have attended nearly every public meeting of the Carmel Unified School District Board of

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
Meg Parker Connors, R.N.

EXERCISE STAVES OFF DEMENTIA

If you want to delay the possible onset of Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia, remain active. New research indicates older individuals who exercise three or more times weekly had a 30 to 40 percent lower risk of dementia. One reason for the benefit is that exercise may reduce levels of amyloid, the sticky protein that clogs the brains of Alzheimer's patients. While researchers did not analyze which types of activity were most beneficial at staving off dementia, even light activity such as walking seemed to help. In fact, it was surprising to researchers that such modest activity could produce such good results. So, if you want to clear your head, take a walk.

For people who already have Alzheimer's disease, physical activity should be continued for as long as possible. This is to help prevent muscle weakness and to help prevent other health complications associated with inactivity. VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES is affiliated with the National Association of Professional Geriatric Care Managers, American Society of Aging, and California Association for Health Services at Home, California Association of Residential Care Homes and The American Nurses Association.

P.S. The more movement you engage in, the better your circulation and the better your health is likely to be.

Accident victim remains in critical condition

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE WOMAN struck by an SUV in an Ocean Avenue crosswalk remains critically injured but stable at the Regional Medical Center of San Jose a week after the accident, and Carmel police have cited the driver with failing to yield to a pedestrian. Cpl. Steve Rana said the charges could be more severe if she doesn't recover.

Rebecca Tarumoto, 62, was crossing Junipero Street, walking east on Ocean Avenue, in the early afternoon Oct. 17 when 46-year-old Salinas resident George Gamboa hit her with his Dodge Ram while turning left, according to police.

The impact reportedly threw her several feet, causing her head to strike the ground. An ambulance took her to Highway 1 and Rio Road so a rescue helicopter could fly her to the trauma center in San Jose.

At the time of the accident, Gamboa said a pillar between the windshield and the driver's side window blocked Tarumoto from view.

Carmel has seen several car-vs.-pedestrian accidents recently. On Oct. 16 at about 10:20 p.m., fire and ambulance crews administered care to a woman in her 50s who was hit by a vehicle at San Carlos and Fifth. And this week, a car struck a sheetrock worker as he crossed Ocean Avenue just east of Hatton Road shortly before 9 a.m. Wednesday. Both of those victims were taken to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

CHS hosts College Night

ALL PENINSULA high school students and their parents are invited to attend College Night 2007 at Carmel High School Tuesday, Nov. 6. Representatives of more than 50 public and private universities and colleges will answer questions and share information about their academic institutions, admission requirements, programs, financial aid and other services. The event, intended to help students and parents make the best choices for education after high school, is free and will run from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the CHS gymnasium. Carmel High is located on Highway 1 at the top of Ocean Avenue.

Carol Knotts

Carol Knotts passed away September 4, 2007. Although Carol spent most of her life in Ft. Lauderdale Florida, she moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1997 after falling in love with this area on vacation. Carol had been a surgical nurse most of her life, after moving to Carmel, she worked in various boutiques. She was an advocate for enjoying the beauty of this area and was always willing to share her enthusiasm with everyone she met. Always a sharp dresser, this gourmet cook loved people and didn't hesitate to show it. She was first with the jokes, and never held back a laugh. There wasn't a dog or cat she didn't love, and enjoyed just feeding the birds.

A celebration of her life was held on Saturday October 13, at Carmel River Beach attended by many of her friends. She will be missed by all who knew and loved her. In remembrance of Carol, donations may be made in her name to the SPCA.

Dinner to benefit wilderness group

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE MASTERFUL growers of organic produce at Two Small Farms (comprising High Ground Organics in Watsonville and Mariquita Farms in Hollister) are teaming up with chef Brandon Miller of Stokes Restaurant in Monterey to host a fundraising dinner for the Ventana Wilderness Alliance Sunday, Nov. 11.

The feast will also honor John Libby, past VWA president and the man who delivers 2SF's weekly produce boxes to restaurants and individual customers in San Francisco and on the Monterey Peninsula.

"The VWA is a volunteer organization that promotes the well being of the Ventana Wilderness through cleanup projects, back-country trail maintenance, public outreach and lobbying efforts," according to Andy Griffin, owner and farmer of Mariquita. "Stokes Restaurant is the obvious place to have a benefit dinner. Chef Brandon has supported our farm for years."

Miller is always willing to use whatever produce Two Small Farms delivers and does his own charcuterie, so Griffin decided to raise two organic pigs for the dinner as well.

"If the pigs knew that they were going to 'benefit' the Ventana Wilderness Alliance, they might not eat all my leftover heirloom tomatoes and French fingerling potatoes so fast, but that's life," Griffin said. "They do seem to be enjoying themselves now."

The benefit dinner will begin at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11. The fee of $65 per person includes tax and tip, but not beverages, with proceeds benefiting the VWA. Call (831) 786-0625 or email csa@twosmallfarms.com to make a reservation. Checks only.

AVOID THESE FRIGHTENING INVESTMENTS MOVES

You're probably not too frightened about what you'll see on Halloween this week. But you can find some things in life that are truly scary - such as making bad investment moves. Here are a few to avoid:

Mistake #1: Investing too little in your 401(k) and IRA - Contribute as much as you can afford to your 401(k) and try to fully fund your IRA each year.

Mistake #2: Investing too conservatively - To achieve the growth you'll need to pay for retirement, you can't afford to invest only in certificates of deposit and Treasury bills - you'll also want to consider some stocks.

Mistake #3: Timing the market - It's impossible to know when your investments are priced low enough to buy or high enough to sell. Buy quality investments and hold them for the long term.

Don't make these scary investment moves - and have a Happy Halloween.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

PUPPER SEELY, 13, loves people, children, little dogs and salmon. While he's allowed to interact as much as he wants to with the first three, he's had to cut back on the salmon recently. His physique showed hints of a slight portliness in past months, but diet and daily walks to Carmel Beach with Mom Kathy have helped with the slimming.

In days of yore, Pupper used to play down at water's edge with a group of good friends, but as the years mounted, Pupper found it more comfortable to take his daily constitutional on the Scenic Road walking path above the beach.

Instead of the beach crowd, Pupper has his neighborhood pals for companionship – Mulligan, a Labrador who lives next door, and Cici, a poodle type who resides on the other side of his Carmel house. Until she crossed over the rainbow bridge, he played every day with Cici's sister, a winsome retriever whom Mom referred to teasingly as "Girl Friend."

He was particularly fond of going fishing at Tahoe with Dad Alan, who passed away two years ago. Pupper mourned for him for a long time.

While Pupper takes delight in chasing ground squirrels who make their homes under the beach bushes, he totally ignores cats. He loves to chase balls thrown for him but doesn't like to bring them back to Mom. He relishes chewing on bones but eschews toys.

Pupper most especially fancies being out and about. He goes everywhere with Mom, adoring rides in the car. Mom Kathy said he's a wonderful dog, a great companion, and his goodness shines through all. One has only to look into that kind, handsome face to realize the truth of her loving assessment.

Street work scheduled

PAVEX CONSTRUCTION will begin repaving Mission Street between Third and Fourth avenues Oct. 30, according to public works superintendent Stu Ross, with work running 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for three or four weeks. On Nov. 13, Pavex will work at night, from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m., to pave Fifth Avenue between Dolores and San Carlos streets, as well as the post office parking lot. The following day, crews will pave crosswalks on Ocean Avenue at San Carlos, Dolores and Lincoln streets, also at night, to avoid closing Ocean during the day.

DESAL

plant will mark the Peninsula's first significant new water supply project since the district was formed in 1978, which some contend is a positive step.

But water board hopefuls Regina Doyle, running against Lee Yarborough for the District 4 spot, and Lance Monosoff, facing Bob Brower for District 5, say the small, $10 million plant is a waste of money.

"For MPWMD consumers, there is no logical reason for this plant," said Monosoff, who is on Sierra Club's State of California Political Committee. He called it a "rip off."

California American Water Co. is expected to lease the plant for about 15 years from Sand City. The water company will distribute 300 acre-feet per year, 206 of which Cal Am will use as a surplus and 94 Sand City will use. The plant is scheduled to be operating by February 2009.

"Sand City will loan this water to Cal Am," Monosoff said, "but Sand City can have the water back whenever they want it. In the meantime, the ratepayers within the [district] will pay for the plant over a 15-year period. After 15 years, Sand City will have a free desalination plant and rights to all of the water. Only Sand City benefits."

Monosoff said he supports a larger desalination plant of about 9,000 acre-feet as a replacement for the water Cal Am is illegally pumping from the Carmel River, the Peninsula's main water source. The state has ordered Cal Am to drastically reduce pumping from the river or face hefty fines that would probably be passed to water customers.

Monosoff and Doyle are both endorsed by the Sierra Club and current MPWMD directors Kristi Markey and Judi Lehman, the only board members who voted against issuing permits for the Sand City desal plant.

The facility will allow Sand City to realize more development and help Cal Am reduce pumping from the Carmel River and Seaside groundwater basin, according to the city and Cal Am.

Over the next 10-20 years, the benefit of the desal plant to the overall Cal Am system will diminish as Sand City's build-out and redevelopment projects come to fruition and use the entire 300 acre-feet of desalinated water, according to the agreement.

Doyle, who is also endorsed by the Green Party of Monterey, said she believes the cost of the desal plant will be passed on to all ratepayers in the entire district "with no discernible benefit to residents of the Peninsula," other than those of Sand City.

"Any costs borne by Cal Am customers should be shared proportionately based on ownership and use of that water," she said, "and any new development should be required to meet the best possible recycle and conservation standards."

Doyle said she also feels there should have been an amendment to Cal Am's distribution permit approved by directors ensuring that any water produced by the desal facility first offset water being overdrafted from the Carmel River.

The desal operation would employ four beach wells in two locations west of Highway 1 to collect brackish water from a shallow aquifer. From there, it would be conveyed to the desalination plant for reverse osmosis treatment.

Good step forward?

Unlike Doyle and Monosoff, candidates Brower and Yarborough believe the desal plant is a positive step for the district.

Brower — endorsed by current water board members Michelle Knight and Larry Foy, and the Monterey County Hospitality Association — said the Sand City desal plant, although only providing 300 acre-feet, is a step toward finding a solution to overpumping the Carmel River, the Peninsula's primary water supply.

"It's definitely a plus in my view," Brower said. "If I was sitting on the board I would have voted for it."

Brower said the Sand City plant could be one of many smaller projects — instead of one large desalination facility — that could help the district find an alternative to pumping from the Carmel River.

"We might not solve the issue with one large plant," he said. "It might be solved better by small community plants."

Cal Am has proposed building a $230 million desal facility in Moss Landing that would supply enough water to replace pumping from the Carmel River. But the pilot plant for the project was opposed by the California Coastal Commission's executive director, Peter Douglas. The full-sized plant faces an uphill battle from environmentalists who oppose its intake system because it would trap and kill marine organisms.

Yarborough called the desal project between Cal Am and Sand City an excellent example of private/government partnership. "Approval of the Sand City desal plant permit is a first small step by MPWMD for all of Monterey County to avoid the inevitable hardship of drought that will impact all our people and creatures," Yarborough said.

Yarborough, whose endorsements include the Monterey County Hospitality Association and the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, also believes the answer to the Peninsula's water problem is with many different projects, such as multiple, smaller desal plants, treated wastewater, aquifer storage and recovery, and possible use of stormwater runoff.

He said the Sand City desal plant "will be a demonstration not only of technology and ability to produce water, but of how the overall distribution of costs of operation and development of such facilities can be absorbed into the system."

ELECTION

Education, observing, taking careful notes, participating in discussions, sometimes as a member of the community and at other times as a representative of a working committee," he wrote in his candidate's statement.

Kreitman said he's committed to improving the district and participating the process. "I've done it with all the service organizations in the district," he told The Pine Cone.

He also said seeking a trustee spot in the Nov. 6 election satisfies a pledge he made two years ago when he vied with Rustad and other candidates for appointment to the board. "I said I would run again, and I'm running again," he said.

Kreitman, who also tutors in math at the high school, said he has watched academics improve during the past five years and sees potential for even better results. "I've made a recommendation for a comprehensive math program," he said.

He said the district should consider working with community resources like schools and businesses focusing on foreign languages, and scientific institutions. His vision includes ensuring each school has strong programs across the curriculum so students are prepared to move to the next level. "At the middle school, there are improvements to be made to provide kids the kind of preparation they need to do well at the high school."

While some board members "are getting tired," Kreitman said he feels he would bring renewed "commitment and passion" for getting the jobs done.

Art 'lottery' makes everyone a winner

By CHRIS COUNTS

A LOTTERY is a game of chance that usually comes with long odds. When somebody wins, many lose.

But the Pacific Grove Art Center has never been a conventional place. In its annual effort to raise much-needed financial support, the nonprofit art center offers a lottery with a surprising twist — everybody wins.

The art center will host an opening reception for its fundraising Patron Show Friday, Oct. 26, from 7 to 9 p.m. All pieces featured in the show have been donated by local artists.

"This is our major fundraiser of the year and one of our most popular events," offered Joan McCleary, director of the art center. "We've had a wonderful response this year not only from longtime donors, but from new donors as well."

McCleary explained how the Patron Show works: "Tickets are sold equal to the number of pieces donated, so that each ticket holder will get an original piece of art," she explained. "The first ticket to be drawn allows the ticket holder to choose from all the works of art in the gallery. The next ticket holder selects from the remaining pieces, and so on, until all pieces of art are chosen."

Artists who have donated pieces for the fundraising show include Juanita Anderson, Joanne M. Baine, Carolyn Berry, Joanne M. Bevilacqua, Noriko Constant, Dan Cronin, Gene Elmore, Edward Eyth, Snick Farkas, Peter Hiller, Barbara Johnson, Michael Thomas Kainer, George Menasco, Jr., Elizabeth Murray, John McCleary, Joseph Nordmann, Connie Pearlstein, Rollin Pickford and Chase Weaver. The artists work in a wide variety of mediums, including oils, acrylics, watercolors, mixed media, collage, sculpture, fine needlework, and hand-painted silk.

Tickets for the Patrons Show are $50 for members of the art center and $60 for non-members, with a limit of two tickets for each person. Tickets will go on sale at the reception and will continue until the venue hosts its annual Patrons Show drawing Sunday, December 9, at 2 p.m.

For the first time ever, cash prizes will be awarded for the three pieces voted Best in Show by ticket holders. The first place winner will take home a prize of $100. Also opening at the art center will be new shows by

Once sued by Groucho Marx, comedian now pays tribute to his idol

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR A guy who does a great Groucho Marx impersonation, Gabe Kaplan didn't exactly make a good first impression when he met the legendary vaudevillian and movie star.

"Groucho sued me," conceded Kaplan, who will perform a comedy tribute to Marx, "Groucho," Saturday, Oct. 27, at Sunset Center.

Kaplan recorded a comedy album in 1974, and as part of his routine, he played a kid who insults his buddies while impersonating Marx. Word of the record reached the elderly Marx. Concerned his image was being used in poor taste, he sued. Kaplan, though, lobbied for a meeting Marx, where he successfully argued that the impersonation was in good taste. Marx dropped the lawsuit, and apparently, became a fan of Kaplan's soon-to-be-successful "Welcome Back Kotter" television comedy series.

Set in a Brooklyn, N.Y., high-school classroom, "Welcome Back Kotter" portrayed Kaplan as the teacher of a colorful cast of misfits who endearingly call themselves the "Sweathogs." The Sweathogs were led by young heartthrob Vinnie Barbarino, who was played by an up-and-coming John Travolta.

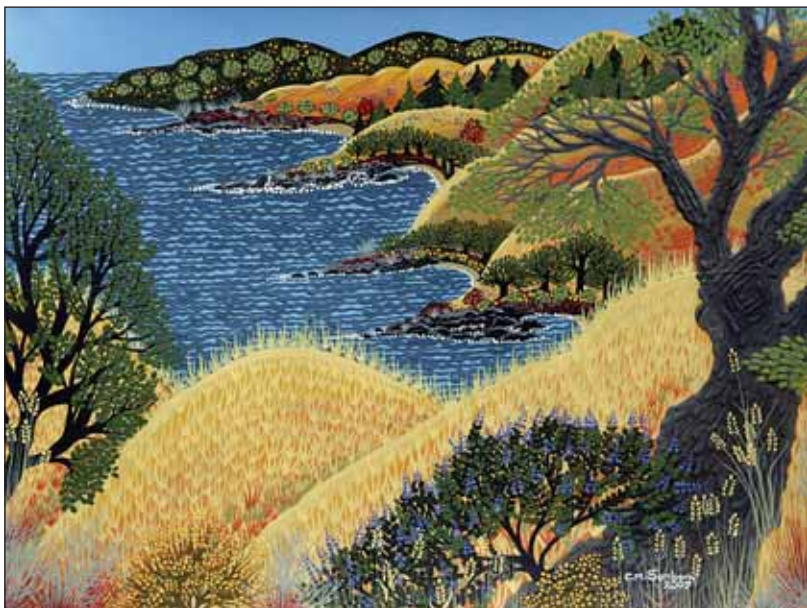

Groucho Marx, in fact, nearly appeared on "Welcome Back Kotter" — sitting in the audience several times while the show was being taped. Kaplan approached Marx with the idea of a cameo where Kaplan would tell a joke, and an elderly man on an photographer Yao-pi Hsu ("Ten-year Photographic Journey from Yellow Mountain"), painter Lud Oliviera ("Chromatic Suffusion") and printmaker Donna Orme ("Monoprints, Etchings, Collages & New Cast Acrylic Monotypes").

Yao-pi Hsu, a research scientist at Stanford University for more than 30 years, is also a gifted photographer whose works chronicle her extensive travels to her native China. "Many of her photographs look like paintings," McCleary observed.

Oliviera is a Monterey resident with an affection for the natural world.

"He paints scenes of animals and nature in oils, using bold brush strokes and such vivid colors that his paintings literally glow," McCleary said.

Orme, meanwhile, creates abstract works that utilize a variety of printmaking techniques. "Her art is contemporary in feeling, playful, with a sense of rhythm and energy," McCleary added.

The art center is located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. For more information, call (831) 375-2208 or visit www.pgart-center.org.

■ Exhibit looks at L.A.'s many faces

If there is anything that defines Los Angeles, it's the contrast between its promise and its reality. Is L.A. a palm-tree-lined Shangri-la where the sun always shines and all roads lead to a white sandy beach? Or is it an overpopulated sea of humanity where the smog blots out the horizon and all freeways lead to more bumper-to-bumper traffic?

Opening Friday, Oct. 26, at the Lisa Coscino Gallery is a new group exhibit, "L.A. Icons," that explores the City of Angels' multiple personalities. According to gallery owner Lisa Coscino, Los Angeles is a fascinating subject for artists. And she likes to emphasize the positive.

"The city has taken on an almost mythic quality," Coscino explained. "It's like the Field of Dreams for so many people. It's a city full of realized dreams as much as broken ones. It's a place of limitless possibilities."

The exhibit presents a series of somewhat nostalgic images that are often associated with L.A., including hot dog stands, the Goodyear blimp, the Hollywood sign, the MGM lion and assorted stars and starlets such as James Dean, Marilyn Monroe and Joan Crawford.

Other works, including a remarkable panoramic photograph of a hillside wildfire, dramatically illustrate how brittle the city's facade really is. Perhaps most remarkable, though, is a piece by Abeles that was created almost entirely out of smog. A resident of downtown L.A., Abeles took a 4-foot-by-6-foot piece of Plexiglas and applied stenciled letters to its surface. The Plexiglas was then placed on the roof of her studio, where it collected a month's worth of smog and debris on its surface. Later, the stenciled letters were peeled off, revealing a work of art that is both fascinating and somewhat disturbing.

The work of 30 different local and not-so-local artists will be featured at the show, including Abeles, Carlos Almaraz, Bruce Brown, Kevin Flynn, Bud Gordon, Shane Guffogg, Sam Hisey, Dave Lefner, Dan McCleary, Frank Romero, Michael Rosenfeld, Robert Rosoff and David Trulli.

Also opening this weekend will be a show of papercut portraits by Seaside artist Kevin Miller.

"He creates beautiful figures out of paper," Coscino said. "They're minimal, they're sparse and they're delicate."

The gallery, which is located at 216 Grand Ave. in Pacific Grove, hosts a reception from 6 to 8 p.m. The exhibit will continue through Nov. 24. For more information, call (831) 646-1939.

■ From furniture to T-shirts

Six years ago, a friend convinced Big Sur artist Celia Sanborn to switch from painting furniture to paintings canvases. This weekend, Sanborn will see her artwork takes its next big leap — from canvases to T-shirts.

Sanborn's work will be featured on commemorative T-shirts offered at Saturday's annual fundraising Big Sur River Run.

For many years, Sanborn painted colorful, intricate designs on furniture. She only switched to painting canvases after Big Sur resident and professional framer Gail Bengard encouraged her to try it.

"She said my artwork would look great if I painted it on a canvas," Sanborn recalled. "She even offered to frame a piece for free. So I tried it and discovered it was even more fun than painting furniture."

Like so many Big Sur residents and visitors, Sanborn is captivated by the landscape.

"My painting is my way of interpreting the landscape," she offered. "I see a lot of design and detail in it. I've been here all my life, and the landscape is in my blood. I spent so many years observing the landscape. It was time for it to be expressed."

While Sanborn long admired painting, she was often too busy to pursue it while raising two sons and helping to run Big Sur's Ripplewood Resort. But her kids are now grown (she has two grandsons) and she retired from the resort business early last year.

"Painting is my thing," she said. "I'm really looking forward to spending more time on it."

All participants in the Big Sur River Run will receive commemorative T-shirts. The first-place winners in the men's and women's categories will receive giclee prints of Sanborn's original painting.

Sanborn's artwork can be viewed at Del Campo Gallery, which is located at Loma Vista in Big Sur. For more information, call (831) 667-2618.

Escape into wine, tour a chef's world and dig into ice cream

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

MOVE OVER Mario Batali. Step aside José Andrés. Sure, it was nice to meet these guys this past June at the Food & Wine Classic in Aspen, but among my most memorable chef meetings was with Warren Schwartz, the Executive Chef at Whist at Viceroy in Santa Monica (www.viceroyssanta-monica.com).

There's a lot to like about this guy — he lacks the usual Los Angeles chef attitude, he's extremely well traveled and likes to incorporate his experiences into his dishes (he has a separate menu at Whist, "Warren's Culinary Journal"), and he puts on these over-the-top, intimate dinner parties in the hotel's poolside cabanas, complete with handwritten invitations and menus.

Best of all? He's breaking free from his busy kitchen to come to the Peninsula to partake in this year's Great Wine Escape Weekend and is preparing a four-course "Around the World" lunch on Friday, Nov. 9, at The Monterey Plaza Hotel & Spa from 12:45 to 2 p.m. Buy your tickets now — it's going to be a sellout for sure.

There's also a blurb in the current issue of Food & Wine on his recent travels to Nicaragua if you want a sneak peek into Schwartz' world.

While we're on the subject of Great Wine Escape Weekend, I'm going to shamelessly plug The Wine Artisans seminar being held on Saturday, Nov. 10.

Yours truly has been asked to moderate the all-afternoon extravaganza, which highlights four fabulous wineries that produce up to 10,000 cases annually. Chris Weidemann, owner/winemaker of Pelerin Wines; Michael Leven of Carmichael Vintners, Michael Michaud of Michaud Winery; and Caitlan Pianetta, marketing director of Pianetta Vineyards & Winery.

I have a lot of homework to do between now and then.

The Wine Artisans Seminar will be run 12:30 to 3 p.m. at Montrio Bistro (414 Calle Principal, Monterey). Tickets are $70, and attendees receive early tasting access into the Boutique and Hidden Gems Wine Tasting at the Monterey Marriott. For more information about Great Wine Escape Weekend, visit www.montereywines.org or call (831) 375-9400.

As per my smarty-pants significant other's advice, I tried a new tactic this year (which I cannot divulge), and weeks before the official reservation request date, I managed to defeat the El Bulli odds. I'll use any excuse to go to Spain, but making my most coveted dining experience come true is well worth nine time zones' worth of travel.

■ Quail Lodge Resort & Golf Club

Last week, I powwowed with several local media folks for a delicious preview of The Lifestyle Academy Culinary Series at Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley. Kicking off the program was Calvin Soh, Chef de Cuisine of Shanghai Terrace at The Peninsula Chicago (Peninsula Hotels owns Quail Lodge). Soh wowed the discriminating audience with dishes such as herbal chicken tea (with cordyceps, a "performance enhancing" root that commands $3,300 on the trade market), wok-roasted Wagyu beef (flown in from Japan, this is the Rolls Royce of meat-eating experiences) and lobster dim sum, with Soh's signature XO sauce, an awesome textural and taste combination of dried scallops and shrimp, prosciutto, sesame oil and brandy. (I'm missing a few ingredients, but you get the gist.) The Covey's Chef de Cuisine, Matt Bolton, contributed a tasty five-spice chocolate cake to finish off the mix, and Michael Marcy, The Covey's new restaurant manager, paired wines for the five-course, Asian-inspired extravaganza. Plan a night on the town to savor what Soh and his Windy City cohort, Terry Crandall, are cooking up for Peninsula dining enthusiasts.

The event takes place until Oct. 27 with Calvin Soh, Chef de Cuisine of Shanghai Terrace, The Peninsula Chicago, and then continues Oct. 30-Nov. 8 with Terry Crandall, Executive Chef, The Peninsula Chicago. The five-course menu is $95 per person, plus tax and gratuities. Call (831) 620-8820 for more information or to talk menus. www.quaillodge.com

Flutist kicks off Day of the Dead fete

IN A preview of its upcoming Day of the Dead festival, the Big Sur Spirit Garden presents Viviana Guzman and Divas Latinas in concert Thursday, Nov. 1. Guzman, a native of Chile, is a classically-trained flutist who has performed in 73 different countries. She'll pay tribute to the richness and diversity of Latin music, song and dance. Thursday's concert's marks the beginning of a the Big Sur Spirit Garden's Day of the Dead celebration, which will continue Friday and Saturday, Nov. 2-3, with live music, folk dancing and great Mexican food. "It's a celebration of Latin culture," explained Jayson Fann, creative director of the event. "And it's a celebration of life." The Thursday performances start at 7 p.m. The Big Sur Spirit Garden is located along Highway 1 at Loma Vista, about 27 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-1300.

Big Sur park hosts 27th annual River Run

PFEIFFER BIG Sur State Park will host the 27th annual Big Sur River Run 10k race Saturday, Oct. 27. A 5k walk will also be offered.

The mostly level course gently winds its way through majestic redwoods and along the Big Sur River.

In keeping with tradition, various musicians will be on hand to supply the soundtrack to the race. A classical string quartet, bagpipers and Big Sur's beloved mariachi group, Trio Esparza, will entertain runners as they navigate the course, while Just Friends (R&B, jazz) will greet the weary as they cross the finish line. 10k runners will also receive a complimentary 10-minute massage and all runners will receive a commemorative T-shirt with art by Big Sur's Celia Sanborn. Winners in the men's and women's divisions will receive giclee prints of Sanborn's original artwork.

The races start at 10 a.m. The cost of running either race is $35. Registration will be available at the park on the morning of the race. The park is located on Highway 1, about 26 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 624-4112 or visit www.bigsurriverrun.org.

Tularcitos kids gear up for festival, receive dictionaries

TULARCITOS ELEMENTARY School will present its annual Fall festival, "Fiesta Verde," Friday, Oct. 26.

In keeping with tradition, the festival will feature a carnival, games, bounce houses, raffles and a silent auction. New this year will be an emphasis on environmental education and a Mexican-themed dinner. The fun starts at 2 p.m. The cost of attending the festival is $20 for each child. The dinner, with tickets at $8, starts at 7 p.m.

Meanwhile, students at Tularcitos last week received 80 dictionaries from the Carmel Rotary Club. The gift is part of an international effort — the non profit Dictionary Project — that has distributed 6.8 million dictionaries.

"The goal of the program is to assist students in completing the school year as good writers, active readers and creative thinkers by providing them with a personal dictionary," explained Warren "Pete" Poitrus of the C.V. Rotary chapter. "The dictionaries are a gift to each student to use at school and at home for years to come."

The school is located at 35 Ford Rd. in Carmel Valley. For more information about the school, visit www.tularcitos.org. For more information about the local Rotary chapter, visit www.rotary5230.org.

GROUCHO

adjacent park bench, Marx, would turn around and say, "That was the worst joke I ever heard."

Unfortunately the pair never actually worked together. Contract hassles doomed the cameo, and Marx died about four months later.

In "Groucho," Kaplan plays a 70-year-old version of Marx as he looks back on his career and his life. "He was brilliant on stage," Kaplan remembered. "He was funny when he talked and he was funny when he walked. Everything he did was funny."

Kaplan will be accompanied by pianist Gary Kupper, actress Jennifer Valentine and actor Robert Saoud, who plays Marx's brother Chico. The show starts at 8 p.m. Tickets range from $52 to $60. Performance Carmel is celebrating its 15th year with a special treat — 15 tickets will be made available Saturday at 7 p.m. for $15 each. # SPILL side the plant except for wash water that went into a ditch behind the laboratory building.”

Following the state’s protocol for such a spill, von Dohren said CAWD cleaned and disinfected the storm drain, which required digging a pit at the end of the drain’s system to collect any material that may have traveled offsite as a result of the wash down.

The collected waste was then pumped to the head of the plant and retreated, von Dohren said.

“The soil around this collection point will be removed and taken to our old sludge dewatering area on the treatment plant site,” he said. “This is strictly a precautionary step.”

The type of sewage that spilled, called “waste-activated sludge,” is recycled by cotton and alfalfa growers in Kern County who use it as a soil amendment, which improves the quality of a soil. It is partially treated and not considered raw sewage.

Von Dohren said a simple mistake caused the accident.

“We were putting equipment back online as part of the microfiltration and reverse osmosis project,” he said. “And that required turning off a lot of valves and then turning them back on ... and so forth.”

But during the last cycle, von Dohren said, employees “simply forgot to close the overflow valve,” which caused the sludge to flow onto the grounds of the treatment plant, located off Highway 1 just south of Rio Road.

He said there are no health concerns as a result of the spill.

“We ran it by the regional board and they are satisfied with our response,” von Dohren said.

The estimated $22 million microfiltration and reverse osmosis plant at CAWD, paid for by the Pebble Beach Co., will improve the quality of water used to irrigate Pebble Beach golf courses and recreational fields.

An existing reclamation project has already been saving the Monterey Peninsula about 700 acre-feet of potable water a year since it went online in 1994. But the mineral content of the reclaimed water has been too high for the type of grass used on the courses. As a result, potable water has been used to rinse the greens to get rid of the salts that build up in the soil.

The new system is expected to be finished in spring 2008, von Dohren said.

Concert showcases local youth orchestras

THE TALENTS of the Monterey Peninsula's finest young classical musicians will be showcased when Sunset Center presents Youth Music Monterey's "Festival of Light and Sound," Sunday, Nov. 18.

Led by conductor John Larry Granger, the Youth and Honors orchestras feature more than 130 musicians from 36 local schools.

Adela Peña, the concertmaster of New York City's Grammy award-winning Orpheus Chamber Orchestra, will join the orchestras in a performance of Bruch's Violin Concerto No. 1.

The concert will also include the premiere of the first movement of local composer Stephen Tosh's Symphony No. 2, and works by Saint-Saens, Alfvén and others.

Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 for seniors and $5 for students. Tickets are available at the door, at the Bookmark in Pacific Grove, or by calling (831) 375-1992.

HALLOWEEN

the Carmel Fire Department's antique Luverne engine will make the drive. The Carmel Youth Center band will hitch a ride on the back of the city's flatbed truck and belt out tunes on the move.

Community services assistant Cindi Lopez speculated she will spy "a bunch of Harry Potters." Last year, pirates seemed to dominate, perhaps due to the popularity of the "Pirates of the Caribbean" films.

While throwing candy has long been a pastime, Lopez offered a discouraging word. "We don't have candy police," she said, "but we encourage them not to throw candy."

But parade participants can have their fill of sweets back at Sunset Center beginning at noon. The city will buy 600 individual cups of ice cream, and the cakes are coming from Safeway and Save Mart. "They're huge, full sheet cakes," Lopez said. "They're really big."

For those who don't want to go straight to dessert, a hot-dog lunch that includes chili (donated by Bruno's Market owner Fermin Sanchez), chips and drinks will be offered for $5, with advance tickets sold at city hall on Monte Verde Street and at Nielsen Bros. Market at San Carlos and Seventh. Volunteers from the Carmel Celebrates Community group will serve up the grub, and Earthbound Farm is donating a vast variety of pumpkins and gourds that will decorate the grounds and can be claimed by party goers after the festivities end.

"And this year, we're going to have the Carmel Rotary blues band playing," Lopez said. The group will be on stage in the Sunset Center parking lot the entire time. "Last year, we had a DJ, but I think live music is better."

Other Halloween news

In honor of the city's birthday, Jennifer Martinez of the Carmel Foundation reported, the Tommy Bahama store in Carmel Plaza will donate 10 percent of its Oct. 27 sales to the nonprofit senior organization. From 5 to 7 p.m., shoppers will also enjoy savory treats like rum marinated pulled pork provided by Bruno's Market.

And on Halloween proper, law enforcement agencies are warning parents to make sure trick-or-treaters stay safe while walking the streets, as kids are more than twice as likely to be hit and killed by a car than on any other night. Carmel and Pacific Grove police will be handing out free glow necklaces on Halloween again this year to help make sure children are visible when out after dark. The necklaces, as they have been since 1997, are donated by The Pine Cone.

MOTHS

be left behind, there has been little or no trace of the pheromone after it has been applied. The state only sprays 15 to 20 grams of the pheromone per acre.

And Henson said HOPE was not able to collect any evidence of the mixture after the first round of spraying.

"If someone were to collect the dust around their backyard to have it tested," he said, "such a test would be quite expensive."

To determine how evenly the pheromone is being applied throughout the Peninsula, the state is using 1-foot square cards to collect samples of the pheromone, which confuses the male moths and prevents them from finding females, halting the insect's mating and reproduction process.

They may not be paying attention, so you have to

IN RECENT weeks, three pedestrians have been hit on downtown streets. One, a 62-year-old woman who was struck crossing Ocean Avenue last Wednesday, remains in critical condition.

How can this happen? Under normal circumstances, it certainly doesn't have to.

If a driver intentionally runs down a pedestrian, or a vehicle is completely out of control, there may not be any way for a person on foot to avoid being struck. Likewise, if a pedestrian darts out into traffic, approaching cars may not have time to react. (Thankfully, both circumstances are rare, and neither seems to have been a factor in the recent downtown accidents.)

Absent such bizarre circumstances, every pedestrian can easily avoid being hit by a car. All you have to do is follow the classic advice: Look both ways. Stated more comprehensively, the rule means that when you prepare to cross a street, you should look at all the cars that might collide with you and avoid them. This means noting what direction the cars are going, how fast, and whether the drivers seem to be aware of your presence.

Likewise, motorists approaching intersections and driving in busy areas always have to be alert to the behavior of pedestrians. If they are, they won't hit one.

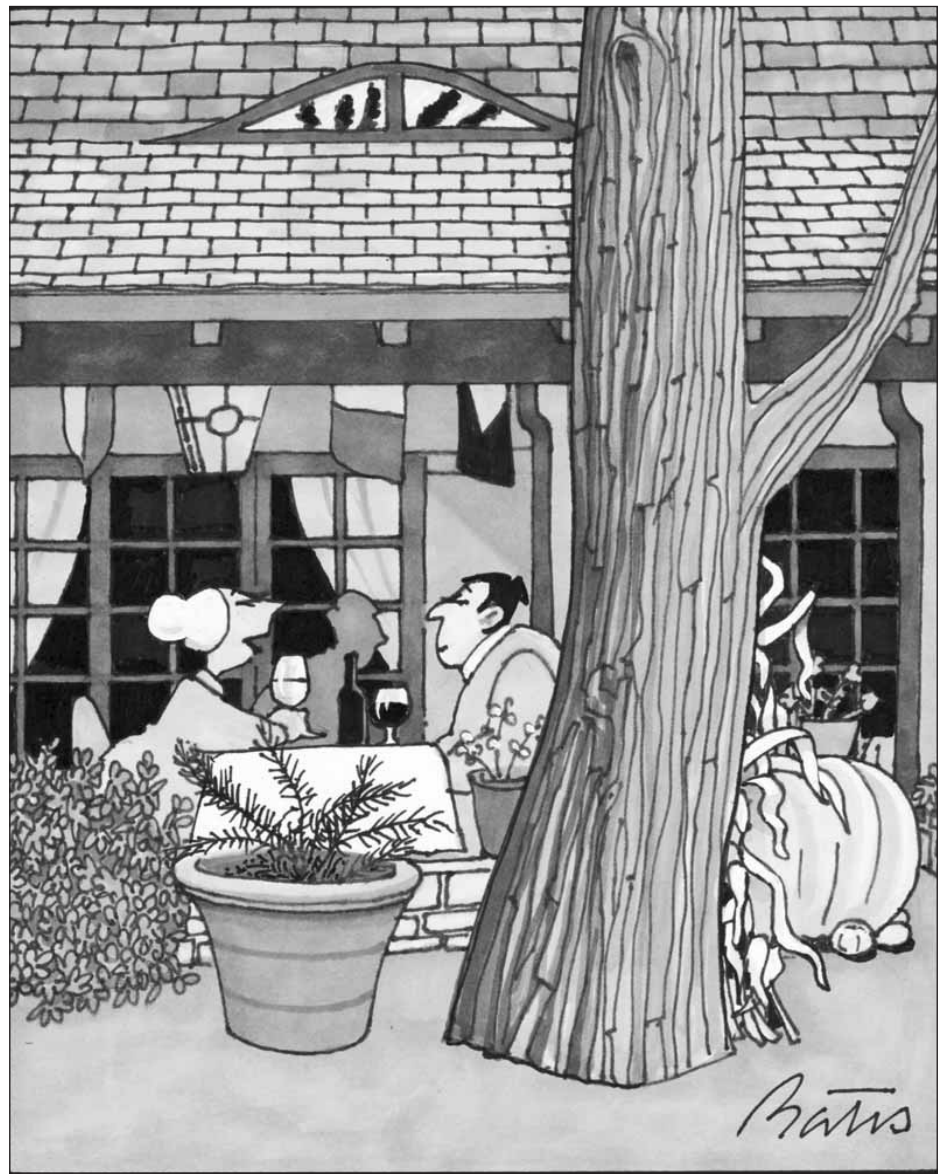

If everybody is following the rules of the road, pedestrians will hardly ever be hurt. Furthermore, when a pedestrian and a vehicle start to enter the same space, the pedestrian still won't be injured if either the pedestrian or the driver is paying attention.

The only way for an accident such as the terrible one last Wednesday to occur is if BOTH the pedestrian and the driver are not exercising ordinary caution.

And that is the lesson to be drawn. All of us are distracted from time to time while we are driving — with our cell phones, radios, fellow passengers, whatever. Likewise, pedestrians crossing a street might be talking on the phone, looking at their mail or daydreaming. It is when these briefs periods of distraction intersect that tragedy can strike.

So when you are driving your car or taking a walk downtown, remind yourself to be doubly aware of what the other guy is up to. To protect yourself, you have to pay attention. Because he might not be.

Your Neighborly Duty

Dear Editor,

I have lived in Pacific Grove my whole life and choose to live here for the close-knit community the town prides itself on. I recently encountered a major wake-up call, a dreadful incident which my neighbors chose to ignore or downplay, that deserves attention. Every citizen within this community needs to understand his or her role as a neighbor.

Recently, my miniature dachshund was attacked by a raccoon at night in my yard. In the process of rescuing my dog, I screamed and yelled like I have never before (and I hope to never experience again). While attempting to scare the raccoon with loud vocals, I yelled as loud as I could, "Help!" amidst my dog's constant screams. Still panicked, I yelled once more, "Somebody help!"

After the adrenaline rush ended, I was appalled that NOBODY had come to my aid, even though my porch lights and inside lights stayed lit for an hour to serve as an obvious signal that my property was where all the noise had originated. While the incident ended before anybody lost their lives, I am disturbed that my desperate screams and yells for help were unanswered. The only reaction I noticed was neighbor's porch lights turning on. That was it. I screamed as if someone was coming after me, and who's to say that I was not in a struggle against an attacker or a rapist? If the incident had been a different scenario, I am frightened that I would not be able to get a rise out of the neighborhood. What does it take to get a reaction from people? Picture a loved one in this same situation: My story is proof that yelling repeatedly at the top of my lungs did not work.

So, neighbors, the moral: When in doubt, play it safe ... call the police. Act on your instincts, do not assume that someone else will call. Call the non-emergency number if you are nervous about calling 911. You can go back to sleep knowing you did your part and the least that will happen is the police will patrol the neighborhood and come up empty. On the flipside, do nothing and I perish the thought of what the outcome could be.

E. Castillo,
Pacific Grove

The Carmel Pine Cone

was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 34750.

Students, admin disagree on library sprinklers

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL HIGH School's new library will contain no fire sprinklers because the state does not require them, but student body president Kyle MacDonald, whose dad is a fire-fighter, is worried that could lead to damage or death.

"I just want to urge any of the concerned parents or citizens to come to the board meeting on the 29th of October to speak their minds about this matter, because I think this is an important issue not just for Carmel High School, but for the community as a whole," he told The Pine Cone this week.

As school president, MacDonald, a senior, attends meetings of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education and raised the question earlier this month. CUSD Superintendent Marvin Biasotti replied that he would provide information at the next meeting regarding the board's decision not to sprinkle the library.

During an April 23 discussion of several capital projects funded by a $21.5 million bond, a representative of Wald Ruhnke & Dost architects said the state architect's office, which must approve projects at public schools, would not require fire sprinklers in the library.

At the time, the board was contending with skyrocketing building costs, and Biasotti recommended installing sprinklers only according to state requirements. The district's insurance company would provide no rate deduction for sprinklers, and other systems, such as smoke detectors and fire alarms, would provide plenty of notice to get people out of the building and alert fire departments.

"You're spending just under $3 million on a library which is going to have hundreds of kids in it on a daily basis, and the amount of money to install fire sprinklers is nothing compared with the damages caused by a fire or a lawsuit for a loss of life," MacDonald countered. And sprinklers would keep a fire from spreading to other buildings.

Henry Ruhnke, chief architect for the district's capital projects, confirmed the board opted out of installing them in the library to cut costs. "There is risk whenever you don't do that, but obviously with fire sprinklers, they can also cause a lot of damage, especially in a library," he said, because it's full of books and computers. Sprinklers sometimes activate accidentally or otherwise fail.

The current water system also lacks the size and pressure to serve a sprinkler system.

Other buildings, such as the gymnasium, require sprinklers due to their size and the number of people likely to be inside during an event, according to Ruhnke.

School board chair Amy Funt said the trustees and the district would never put students or facilities at unnecessary risk or approve a project that doesn't comply with the law.

"I don't understand how a fire in a building could not be a student safety issue," MacDonald responded.

HISTORIC

Comstock did build them, he added, other better examples of his creations exist.

"Again, the appeal really hinges on the integrity of the residence," Conroy told the board. He believes it is a Comstock.

Since the file contains no original drawings, it's impossible to verify exactly what changes occurred, and when, but Conroy said other records indicate the house was smaller and only one story. Also, a former deck was apparently enclosed.

"I also don't think it's particularly a very good example of Comstock's work," Dyar said.

Lagerholm agreed the home lacks integrity, and Schroeder made no comments. Wendt stepped down because of a possible conflict, and the vote was 3-0 to grant the appeal and remove the home from the list.

Another Konigshofer

Two flat-roofed, single-story, nondescript apartment buildings at the corner of Lincoln and Seventh built by John Konigshofer — who also designed the Sand & Sea complex at San Antonio and Fourth avenues — are nothing special, representatives of the Irwin Trust argued before the board.

Bunse said she had a difficult time even classifying the style of the wood, brick and concrete complex. She settled on the modern Bay Area Tradition, the category consultant Richard Janick used in his report justifying his recommendation that the city require their preservation.

Bunse contended the apartments are not architecturally significant. Konigshofer was not a master builder, so being "the only known multiunit dwelling" designed by him is not adequate argument for mandatory preservation, and the two parallel buildings are not important examples of the work of builder Carl Daniels.

In his report, Conroy reminded the board the city council removed the Sand & Sea district from the historic inventory, and another residence designed by Konigshofer was also delisted. He recommended the board remove the apartment complex as well.

"While I don't necessarily agree with what the city council said about John Konigshofer, I do agree about this project," Dyar said. "It's not a significant example of a style or his work."

The board voted 4-0 in favor of the appeal.

INTERNET USE BY HOME BUYERS

In 1995, roughly 2% of all buyers (according to annual National Association of Realtors® surveys) made use of the Internet in the research process. Ten years later, in 2005, that number had mushroomed to 77%. And last year, it climbed further to 80%. Indeed, 73% of all buyers of real estate cited the Internet as very useful in their home search.

Having found homes that interested them, 23% of all buyers then found the real estate professional on the Internet through whom they would purchase a home. And 24% discovered the home they would eventually purchase on the Internet (while 36% originally found that home because their real estate professional showed it to them).

Intriguingly, 87% of those who used the Internet as part of their home search called upon a real estate professional for assistance with the process and transaction, while 74% of those who did not use the Internet called upon a real estate professional for help.

The Internet is not only taking a central role in a majority of today's real estate transactions, it is also demonstrating to buyers and sellers the advantages they will receive by calling upon real estate professionals for help. Very rapidly, real estate and mortgage professionals have created a working partnership with the Internet—each of them providing different, complementary levels of information and support. ## YOUR AUTO COLUMN

Presented by Kevin & Sue Anne Donohoe
ARE YOU ONBOARD?

Every vehicle sold in this country from 1996 to the present has the updated On-Board Diagnostics (OBD II) system that enables technicians to access trouble codes and other engine management system information with the use of a scan tool. This very important system performs automatic checks of various components that affect emissions. After uncovering a problem, the OBD II will trigger the "CHECK ENGINE" light. The engine management system will then generate a code that the technician can use to locate the problem. While this system largely takes diagnosis and repair of many problems out of the hands of owners, it does provide an efficient means of keeping the vehicle in good working order.

The only way to avoid further damage is to have your car

Inspected by an automotive technician at the very first sign of the "Check Engine" light. We have the specific equipment necessary to interact with the On Board Diagnostics present in your vehicle. With these tools are our disposal we know that we can cure any problem your vehicle is suffering. We are located at the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in Downtown Monterey.

P.S. If the "CHECK ENGINE" light comes on, about the only thing a driver can check for him- or herself is to see if the gas cap is securely in place.

Tim Allen
presents
Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

Several weeks ago, 80 men gathered for their annual weekend encampment at the Boy Scout Camp in the far reaches of Palo Colorado Canyon. Among them were the Sheriff, the District Attorney, several judges, and an assorted crew of ranchers, fishermen, doctors, lawyers and businessmen. This was THE BUCKEYE (not the Buckeyes), a motley group of Monterey County men, brought together in controversy in 1965 and continuing in harmony ever since. They care about this county, they love good food, drink and companionship, and they constitute a strong, if convivial force in this county. The ranchers and farmers bring their best tomatoes, artichokes and steaks. Insurance men man the barbecue and bar. State authorities talk about the ecology, forest fires and water supplies. Newspaper men reveal little known stories. Sportsmen talk about deer, trout and wild boar. This year a leading wine grower, a cattle rancher, a Salinas Valley lettuce farmer and a fishing entrepreneur talked about their industries, their markets, and their economy. The food is prepared with men in mind; the bar is generous; the music is brought with love by Jake Stock and his Abalone Stompers. All of these elements combine to make this a memorable annual event. The history of THE BUCKEYE is shrouded in mystery. But it's there, and it's sort of wonderful (what a breakfast!) It's a legend.

The Carmel Pine Cone

EMAIL EDITION • JUST LIKE THE PRINTED PAPER BUT WITHOUT THE DEAD TREES

■ If you love trees, why have them cut down to make newsprint just so you can get the latest news from Carmel, Pebble Beach, Big Sur, Carmel Valley and Pacific Grove?

■ The Pine Cone's email edition is IDENTICAL to the printed paper, but in a convenient electronic format (pdf), which allows you to search for text and zoom in to make the words as big as you like.

■ Distributed every Thursday evening, The Pine Cone's email edition is available up to 12 hours before the printed version hits the streets.

■ Downloading the complete edition takes only a few minutes ... which gives you just enough time to hug your favorite cypress, pine or oak!

Curve). Two vehicles involved, with two patients to be transported Code 2 to CHOMP.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency (vehicle vs. pedestrian) at San Carlos and Fifth at 2220 hours. Firefighters assisted ambulance personnel with c-spine precautions, packaging, diagnostics and gathering information on a female in her 50s who was struck by a vehicle and was experiencing head and face pain. The patient was transported to CHOMP by ambulance. Police also responded to investigate and assist.

Carmel area: California Highway Patrol officer turned over a purse that was found by an anonymous person a few days ago. The purse was reported stolen from a vehicle in September. It is to be returned to the owner.

Pebble Beach: Report of violation of restraining order via phone.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Theft of a women's purse from an unlocked vehicle parked on Junipero Street. No suspect(s).

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Victim stated that he went to the bank on San Carlos Street and parked in the lot at 1155 hours. he was in the bank for approximately five to 10 minutes. After he left the bank, he received a call from a friend saying that his briefcase was in the underground parking lot. The victim responded to the parking lot and found his briefcase. The victim said that the briefcase was in his unlocked car when he walked into the bank. He remembered seeing a male adult, 6 foot 3, with short black hair near his vehicle. He did not see who took the briefcase. He added that there was nothing missing out of the case. He wanted the report on file in case there were any other similar incidents.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suspect stole two checks from victim on Lasuen, forged information and signatures, and cashed them at a business in Seaside without the knowledge or permission of victim.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on private property on Mission Street. Vehicle was drivable.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Resident on Carpenter Street was served a restraining order within the city limits for a civil case. Resident understood each term and turned over all firearms.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to an unknown medical emergency on Santa Fe. Upon arrival at 1030 hours, found a female in her 90s with a chief complaint of a GI bleed. Patient treated, loaded and transported to CHOMP.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance dispatched on a mutual aid for Westmed to Via Mar Monte for a female with abdominal pain. Patient transported Code 2 to CHOMP.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine, chief and ambulance were dispatched to a fire alarm activation at an inn at Junipero and Third. Upon arrival, found the reporting party, who stated it was an accidental activation and that he called the alarm company to cancel. After investigation, all units cleared and returned.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine was returning from a previous call when the crew saw bystanders waving at the engine. Upon investigation, found a female in her 60s who was struck by a vehicle while she was in the crosswalk. FireComm notified and ambulance on scene one minute later with P.G. Fire assistant chief. Patient evaluated and CALSTAR 2 requested by chief. Patient treated, packaged and loaded into ambulance. Transported to Rio Road and Highway 1, where Cal Fire engine had set up an LZ [landing zone]. CALSTAR 2 landed and flight nurse continued treatment in ambulance. Patient loaded onto CALSTAR and transported to San Jose Regional Medical Center.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine was dispatched to a hazard at Junipero and Sixth. Upon arrival, found evidence that a cleaning product was dumped into a storm drain. Product had dissipated as rain water was still flowing in storm system. No hazard left to mitigate. Health department notified and a responsible called CFD for situation report. Health department deemed it unable to mitigate and did not respond.

Carmel Valley: A West Carmel Valley Road resident reported suspicious activity involving a neighbor's residence. It was determined that an unknown person vandalized a home and vehicle parked in the driveway. Case continues.
