Eastwood brings his deft touch to a heart-wrenching drama

By PAUL MILLER

BURBANK — THE SIGN on the wall says, "Insolence will not be tolerated."

But it's not an indication that Clint Eastwood, former Mayor of Carmel, international movie star and Oscar-winning director, has let success go to his head.

Rather, the sign is one of the authentic details that add verisimilitude to the set of, "The Changeling," Eastwood's latest movie, starring Angelina Jolie as a mother whose young son disappears.

When she gets the boy back, her objections that he is not really her son land her in a 1920s insane asylum. The script, by J. Michael Straczynski, is based on a true story.

An army of cinema experts — writers, producers, set designers, carpenters, painters, costumers, makeup artists and technicians — have transformed one of the soundstages at Warner Bros. in Burbank into a frighteningly authentic replica of a place you would not want to spend an afternoon, let alone be exiled to for years.

"They didn't look at people with mental illnesses in those days the same way we do now," Eastwood said Tuesday during a break in filming.

Around him, a set for the asylum's commissary was authentic to a T — right down to the ancient mechanical clock, the chipped paint on the furniture, the crude, frayed gowns worn by the inmates and the dented metal food trays piled with lumpy, gray oatmeal.

One actress playing the role of a mental patient, and whose face was made up with bloody, open sores, complained that the makeup department wouldn't allow her to wash her hair.

Another actress wasn't even that lucky. Her head had

McCLOUD RUNS FOR FIFTH TERM

■ Would become city's longest-serving mayor

By MARY BROWNFIELD

'IF IT ain't broke, let's not fix it.'

That's what council members and supporters told Mayor Sue McCloud, so she decided to run for a fifth term, she announced this week. If she wins on April 8, 2008, she will become the city's longest-serving mayor, outdoing former Mayor Ken White, who lost to McCloud in 2000 as he sought his fifth term.

McCloud, who came to Carmel as a young child and grew up in town before attending Stanford University and undertaking a 31-year career with the Central Intelligence Agency, said she would like to see several pressing issues through to completion.

"We are in the midst of a few things, though I realize we are never going to not be in the midst of a few things," she said.

Among those topping her list are the renovation of the Big Sur couple rescues sick pelican

WHEN A Big Sur couple noticed something unusual on a recent drive along the coast, they decided to investigate. As a result of their curiosity — and initiative — an adult male pelican is alive today.

The driver of this big rig — identified as 53-year-old Francisco Parrilla of Stockton — swerved to avoid two deer before crashing his Safeway truck into a power pole and overturning on southbound Highway 1 just south of Carpenter Street at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, according to a firefighter who was at the scene. He also said a 1991 Camry crashed into the truck and bounced off its rear wheels. Two people went to the hospital, and the accident closed the road in both directions for hours while crews righted the truck and unloaded its cargo. The CHP is investigating.

Puppy OK after tail and ears cut off with scissors

By KELLY NIX

A NORTH Monterey County man who reportedly claimed "dogs don't feel pain," is being sought by police for felony animal abuse after the SPCA said he used household scissors to cut off the tail and ears of a 5-month-old puppy.

The shepherd mix puppy, named Cirrus, was also deprived of food and water, which owner Salvador Romero-Herrera hoped would make the dog "act fierce," according to the SPCA for Monterey County.

"This was a very painful act of animal cruelty against this little dog," said SPCA humane investigations supervisor Judi Adams.

An arrest warrant has been issued for Romero-Herrera, who failed to show up in court Nov. 16, when a judge was supposed to set a preliminary hearing on felony charges of torture and mutilation, and depriving an animal of food, water and shelter.

To firm up the criminal case against Romero-Herrera, the SPCA has offered a Historic, or just well loved? Divided council seeks counsel

By MARY BROWNFIELD

IN AN unusual move, a split Carmel City Council put off deciding whether the century-old Ocean Avenue building that houses Sharper Image and Hanson Gallery is historic in order to solicit further testimony from a consultant.

Owner Ted Leidig appealed a decision in October by the city's historic resources board that the building qualified for protection as an important historic resource.

According to historian Kent Seavey, who reviewed the building on the northwest corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street in 2003, it was built in 1902-1903 on the city's oldest commercial block and was the first "fireproof" concrete-block building in town. Further, the section of it that now houses Carmel Drug (and is owned by a partnership separate from Leidig), was once occupied by Frank Powers and Franklin Devendorf's Carmel Development Co. Seavey concluded the building is historically significant — a decision upheld by the HRB, which cited the importance of Carmel Development Co. and noted the building had not significantly changed.

At the Dec. 4 city council meeting, historian Meta Bunse, who analyzed the building for Leidig and attorney Michael Albov, said it had undergone too many exterior alterations to be protected. In addition to the restaurant constructed at its rear and a store added to its west side, three windows were cut in the east wall, and the storefronts received larger entrances, new windows and veneers. Furthermore, transom

Clint Eastwood saved the popular Mission Ranch from demolition in 1986, the same year he was elected mayor of Carmel, by buying the rustic structures and surrounding acreage to keep them from being replaced by a planned condo complex. The property was once part of the Carmel Mission, overseen by Father Junipero Serra and the Spanish priests after they moved from Monterey in 1771. Mexico gained independence from Spain and closed the missions in 1834, selling the lands around them to settlers moving into California. This scenic setting along the Carmel River passed through several owners before John Martin bought it in the 1850s, put cows in the pastures, and started a dairy business. The dairy was replaced in 1937 by a private tennis/swim club, which became an officers' club in World War II, and eventually a public bar/restaurant/resort and the most enduring nightspot in the area.

Movies could return to Lighthouse Cinemas

By KELLY NIX

PACIFIC GROVE could be the setting of a remake — not of a film, but of the city's shuttered movie theater. Negotiations are in the works to reopen the old Lighthouse Cinemas, according to city officials and the property's owner.

"There have been some preliminary discussions with potential theater operators to reopen the Lighthouse Cinemas," said Robert Enea, the Danville-based developer who owns the building.

If the deal goes through, Enea said the building at 525 Lighthouse Ave. would be remodeled and upgraded with things like new seating and sound systems.

There have been failed offers this year from businesses hoping to occupy the building, including a beauty school and liquor giant BevMo. And Enea said a local church has also offered to buy the 8,500-square-foot building. "That is not our first choice, to sell the building to a church," he said. "But if something doesn't happen soon, we will have to do that."

Pacific Grove City Manager Jim Colangelo said a movie theater would likely have the advantage over those other businesses since it would not be required to seek additional city permits. And he said a first-run movie theater could revitalize nearby stores and restaurants in the downtown area.

"Most people I've mentioned it to think it's a good idea," he said. "It will bring people downtown, which is what we hoped that use would do. If we could get some foot traffic downtown, I think it would be good for everybody."

Colangelo said Enea, who has also proposed sprucing up the Old Bath House restaurant at Lovers Point, is expected to meet with city officials to discuss the project.

The Lighthouse Cinemas theater, last operated by Metropolitan Theatres Corp., shut down in September 2006 after the new multiplex Century Cinemas Monterey at Del Monte Center opened.

The old four-screen theater, which was built in the mid-1980s, couldn't compete with the much larger, more modern cinemas.

"There are a lot of hurdles to be cleared with distribution," Colangelo said. "They have these rules how close theaters can be that run first-run movies."

YOUR AUTO COLUMN

Presented by Kevin & Sue Anne Donohoe

ENSURING YOUR VEHICLE'S LONG LIFE

Auto experts agree that the best way to ensure the well-being of your vehicle is to follow the maintenance schedule outlined in the owner's manual and repair your vehicle as needed. Car owners who believe they can save money by skipping regular oil changes are likely to lose out in the long run owing to premature engine wear and the like. Money spent on recommended fluid changes helps ensure the health of the vehicle's various systems and components. In addition, if you drive primarily in the city, reside in a hot/cold climate or near the ocean, make many short trips, tow a trailer, or drive on dusty roads, you should follow the extreme-use maintenance schedule in the owner's manual.

We have years of experience with many, many, many different vehicles over that time. As our regular customers can tell you, we treat the cars that come into our shop with the utmost care and professionalism. In addition to our ability to properly service your specific automobile, we treat you with respect and provide high quality personal and dedicate service to all those we help. We are located at the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in downtown Monterey.

P.S. Because fluids provide clues as to what is going on inside your automobile, check them regularly in terms of levels and quality

Layoffs to save money end up costing plenty

By KELLY NIX

THE CITY of Pacific Grove this year will have to pay out a whopping $600,000 in accrued vacation and sick time to employees it recently laid off and other workers who are retiring or quitting.

In an effort to save about $570,000 per year, the city in October notified 16 employees their positions were being eliminated. It also cut eight other job positions that weren't filled.

But getting rid of the workers will be costly for P.G.

City budget director Jim Becklenberg said it will cost the city as much as two-thirds of the estimated $600,000 to pay off just the laid off employees. The rest of that money will be spent toward workers leaving who were not affected by the layoffs.

"The payout costs could end up being lower," Becklenberg said. "Or they could end up being higher."

The layoffs are part of a reorganization drawn up by city manager Jim Colangelo intended to save money and make the city run more efficiently while not reducing services.

About 25 workers are expected to leave the city. Among them, a few will also be paid for accrued comp time, Becklenberg said.

"Compensatory time can be taken instead of overtime," he said.

But the majority of employees will be paid for sick and vacation time they acquired while working for the city. Most Pacific Grove workers are allowed to accrue a maximum of 400 hours of vacation time, while a few can accrue up to 600 hours, Becklenberg said.

"If an employee gets close to their maximum vacation bank," he said, "we have to come up with a plan for them to use the vacation."

The city's policy is to pay no more than half the accrued sick leave of a worker, Becklenberg said.

"In general," he said, "You're owed half of your accrued sick leave up to 1,000 hours."

Although 16 employees were told their positions were being eliminated, some of those workers have the option of taking other city jobs along with a pay cut.

Becklenberg didn't know how many will stay employed with the city since workers have until the end of the year to make a choice. How many laid off employees decide to take other city jobs will affect how much the city has to spend.

He said the city budgeted the payouts, which the city calls "accrued leave balances."

"We knew we would have these one-time costs," Becklenberg said. "This is money the city owes. Employees have earned it."

At Wednesday's city council meeting, Colangelo's team presented budget goals for 2008 and 2009, which included cost-cutting ideas.

The city in early January is expected to hold two community meetings to allow the public to weigh in on what should or shouldn't be cut from its budget. The council could announce its intended cuts in late January.

The city believes if it cuts $2.6 million from the budget on an ongoing basis, it could restore its reserves to a healthy level and eliminate deficits in all city funds within three years.

Burglars ditch register in road

THE CASH register on the side of the road was a clue. Responding to a report of a register left on the roadside near Carpenter and Fourth shortly before midnight Dec. 3, Carmel Police Sgt. Ken Shen recovered the equipment and found checks made out to Nancy's Florist in the till, according to Sgt. Mel Mukai.

"They went back to that location and discovered the lower half of the Dutch door had been kicked in," he said. The thieves "didn't disturb anything else, just the register." They made off with $70 in currency and coins, and police reportedly have no leads.

Fanatic turns teddy bear addiction into tool for rescuers

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SUSIE HANSON admits she's a lifelong "teddy bear-aholic," but after learning what the little fuzzy creatures can do for a child in distress, she decided to begin collecting them for other people instead. She launched Teddy Bears with Heart — a project that gathers stuffed animals to provide to fire departments, the sheriff's office and Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"I got my first teddy bear when I was born, actually," recalls the Carmel Valley resident. "And I still have it."

At its peak, her collection numbered about 200, including one teddy that's bigger than her 10-year-old, and she admits diving headlong into the Beanie Baby craze.

Then came the realization.

"I figure, at 40 years old, I don't need all those bears," she says, so she decided to start giving most of them away. Conversations with friends who are firefighters illuminated a need and sparked an idea.

"I found out that they give stuffed animals to the children they come in contact with. They had found that it gave comfort to the children who had been hurt, abused or traumatized," she says. "Unfortunately, they do not always have that little 'comfort' to provide, as they are not supplied with the stuffed animals and bears on a regular basis."

In response, she started Teddy Bears with Heart to supply local fire stations, police departments, the Monterey County Sheriff's Office and the pediatric ward at CHOMP throughout the year. "That way, no child would be without some kind of comfort in traumatic or scary situations."

She wanted to form a nonprofit but learned it would cost about $5,000 just to launch it — money she doesn't have. As a result, this year's drive is relatively informal, and she's looking into linking up with Good Bears of the World, an international nonprofit that's been collecting stuffed animals for kids since 1969.

Her inaugural drive began Dec. 3 and will run through Dec. 21.

She realizes her campaign competes with other toy drives but says there is a notable difference: "What we need are smaller bears."

That's because she puts them inside zip-top plastic bags so they don't get dirty or smoky, and they fit on fire engines that lack extra cargo space.

But larger bears, she adds, are wonderful as well, particularly at the hospital.

She's trying to gather 500 before Christmas and has already made deliveries to Carmel and Pacific Grove fire departments.

"We'll accept anything that's new and loveable and child safe," she said.

Excavation, lecture explore history of early Chinese village

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN AN effort to shed light on the role of Chinese immigrants in early California history, a Stanford University graduate student spent much of last summer excavating an archaeological site at Point Alones, which is now home to Pacific Grove's Hopkins Marine Station.

On Dec. 15, the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History will host Bryn Williams, a Stanford doctoral candidate, who will present an overview of last summer's archaeological work.

A thriving Chinese fishing village existed in the late 19th century at the site of the marine station, which is part of Stanford University. A mysterious fire burned down the village in 1906 and it was never rebuilt.

"This was one of the largest Chinese fishing villages in the United States," Williams explained. "Unlike the traditional image of the Chinese as temporary male sojourners or hired laborers, this village had a stable population of men, women and children. It also was the birthplace of multiple generations of Chinese Americans."

Williams is hoping his work will help dispel myths that exist about early Chinese immigrants.

"The Chinese in California were assumed to be temporary bachelor male contract workers who came to California, worked on the railroad or in the gold fields, and then returned to China without having much of an impact on the social and cultural formation of the state," Williams said. "The Chinese village in Pacific Grove is interesting because it so starkly contradicted this stereotype. Although there were plenty of single men in the village, it was also village of families, many of whom were second and even third generation American citizens."

The project has unearthed a fascinating collection of everyday items.

"We discovered assorted artifacts including goods made in the United States, England and China," he said. "We found Chinese and American coins, and medicine bottles for traditional Chinese medicine and Western medicine."

Archaeology can provide a window into a bygone era, Williams suggested.

"History can tell us about the big events, but it cannot tell us the mundane everyday realities of life. This is the part of history that archaeology tries to capture."

The talk starts at 2 p.m. The museum is located at Forest and Central in Pacific Grove. For more information, call (831) 372-5716 or visit www.pgmuseum.org.

we buzzed by a pelican sitting on a guard rail," recalled Corrine Handy. "Four hours later, we were driving back and our headlights caught him on another post nearby. We realized something was wrong."

Handy and her husband, John, own and operate Treebones Resort, a retreat center that features 16 yurts. After wrapping the pelican in a towel, they transported him to the resort. Before long, the couple and their three children began referring to the pelican as Pete.

"He was wet and shivering," Handy said. "We didn't know what to do, so we looked up pelicans on the Internet."

Handy quickly learned it was important for the pelican to remain warm. "We turned up the heat and turned out the light," she explained. "He slept all night long."

Handy's research led her to Karen Benzel, a Carmel resident who works as media relations director for a nonprofit group called the International Bird Rescue Research Center.

"She told us, 'Don't let him go. He probably won't survive,'" Handy recounted.

Benzel soon put the Handys in touch with Rebecca Dmytryk, a Carmel Valley resident who Benzel calls a "master bird rescuer."

The Handys received permission to feed Pete some mackerel. "You should have seen him go after the it," she recalled.

The Handys won't soon forget their encounter with Pete. "He has a great spirit about him," Handy said. "He's a real character. He isn't afraid of humans. He is very calm, and you can tell he is intelligent. We just helped him through a rough time."

The sick pelican was taken to Pacific Wildlife Care in San Luis Obispo. "He's in good hands," Benzel said. "I think he would have died if they hadn't rescued him."

Benzel suspects Pete is suffering from the same ailment that has led to the rescue of more than 600 birds along the California Coast since Nov. 7. Laboratory tests this week determined the birds were exposed to domoic acid, which is produced by algae. Before identifying the substance, researchers — who previously determined Moss Landing was the center of the outbreak — referred to the incident as the "Moss Landing Mystery Spill."

(The lab tests also confirmed that CheckMate, the pheromone recently used to combat the light brown apple moth, was not what sickened the birds.)

Benzel said domoic acid is generally associated with algal blooms, including red tide. She said pollution also may play a factor in the outbreak. Like oil, domoic acid compromises a bird's ability to stay warm.

When sick birds are taken to rescue centers, they are washed with a common dishwashing liquid, Benzel explained. They also go through a series of baths to realign their feathers, which restores their waterproofing.

While it is unknown how many birds perished as a result of exposure to domoic acid, 82 deceased birds have been recovered. An additional 188 birds either died in captivity or were euthanized, and 340 birds have been rehabilitated and released. Meanwhile, rescued birds continue to arrive daily at San Francisco Bay Oiled Wildlife Care & Education Center.

Convenient Parking

City offers residents parking permits

PEOPLE WHO live in Carmel-by-the-Sea can catch a break parking downtown if they spend a few minutes at the police department procuring a permit. Residential parking permits for 2008 will be available at the station, located on Junipero Street at Fourth Avenue, beginning Dec. 17.

The permit will provide three hours in spots currently posted for 90 minutes but which will change to two hours shortly after Jan. 1, according to Carmel P.D. Although the posted time limit is increasing, the time allowed by the residential parking permit will not.

People with resident stickers may also leave their cars in 30-minute spaces for an hour, and may park in restricted areas, such as the section of Monte Verde Street north of Sixth Avenue.

Anyone seeking a permit must bring $20, the registration of the vehicle that will bear the sticker, and proof of residency, such as a PG&E, water or tax bill, to the department between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

PUPPY

$2,500 reward for information leading to his conviction.

Romero-Herrera faces up to three years in prison on each felony count and a fine if convicted, said Monterey County Chief Assistant District Attorney Terry Spitz.

Romero-Herrera's roommate reportedly told Adams during the SPCA investigation that the suspect cut the dog's tail and ears because he wanted the dog to look mean. But Romero-Herrera has denied mutilating the dog.

Only a portion of Cirrus' ears remain and his tail has been reduced to half its length. The man made two attempts at cutting off Cirrus' tail with scissors, Adams said.

"He didn't use any anesthesia or painkillers," she said. "In his first attempt, he hit bone and it didn't go through, so he went down a little and cut again."

Despite what the puppy has been through, he is doing remarkably well, said Adams, who added the SPCA staff, which gave Cirrus his name, has fallen in love with the dog.

"He still loves people and is not fearful at all," she said.

"We have his two sisters, his littermates, and he is staying with them and plays with them."

The puppy, which suffered the abuse around Labor Day, was treated by a veterinarian in Santa Cruz and is now under the care of Carol Iida, the SPCA's staff veterinarian.

"There's no doubt Cirrus suffered great pain and distress," Iida said. Cirrus' sisters, Rebekah and Naomi, were not injured.

Adams said the SPCA found out about the dog when a woman gave the puppy to the Santa Cruz SPCA after her boyfriend, whose office is near the suspect's residence, saw the dog in distress. "She said he saw the little dog come out of the trailer and it was pretty traumatized," Adams said. "And it was shaking and crying."

The Monterey County SPCA took the dog into custody since the crime occurred in North Monterey.

Cirrus, who is "very playful," and his two sisters will be up for adoption after the case is resolved, since they are considered evidence, Adams said.

SPCA spokeswoman Beth Brookhouser said donations are being accepted for the care of Cirrus and his two sisters.

The SPCA is asking anybody who witnessed the acts of cruelty against Cirrus to call them at (831) 373-2631. All calls will be kept confidential, according to the SPCA.

Protecting motorists and steelhead a challenge

Loose dirt along the newly graded shoulders of Carmel Valley road creates an erosion hazard and could damage steelhead habitat, according to the director of the Hastings Reserve.

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE MONTEREY County Public Works Department wants to ensure that local roads are safe for motorists. Meanwhile, the director of biological field station is concerned that recent roadwork in Carmel Valley jeopardizes not only steelhead habitat, but the storage capacity of water for Monterey Peninsula residents.

Earlier this month, public works graded about 10 miles of shoulders along Carmel Valley Road just east of Tassajara Road.

"We try to grade the shoulders every three or four years," explained Ron Lundquist, public works director.

EASTWOOD

been partially shaved to make way for a cruel lobotomy scar. And just out of camera range, cables snake everywhere, microphones on long poles follow the actresses as they turn their heads, artificial lights make the sun shine on cue, a focus puller measures the distance from lens to subject, and at least a dozen members of the crew look after other details. Amidst all the heart-wrenching make believe and technical complexity, and throughout a long afternoon of takes and retakes, Jolie remains professional and never misses a line — certainly a contradiction with the image created for her by the tabloids. Her makeup, hair, facial expressions and costume bespeak the ordeal her character is going through. The day before, Jolie was filmed undergoing a brutal delousing procedure. Earlier, her involuntary arrival at the asylum was filmed in an artificial driving rain. At the center of it all, Eastwood directs with the self-confidence of the Hollywood legend he is, but without any of the self-centeredness that so often accompanies stardom. “We have a great cast and a great crew,” he says when asked how the filming has been going. While it’s obvious everyone on the set respects him and doesn’t want to make a misstep, the actors and crew also enjoy his easygoing nature. “We are lucky, because people will even leave other jobs to work on this crew,” said one technician.

Without the cliches

When it’s time for a take to begin, a standard Hollywood clapboard is clapped in front of the camera, an associate director calls out, “Roll sound,” and then cues the extras on the set with the word, “Background.”

And then Eastwood, avoiding the command usually associated with his job, quietly says, “Begin,” or, “Commence,” or, to Jolie, “Come ahead.”

As the actresses speak their lines — one scene shows how Jolie’s character is counseled by another mental hospital inmate not to try to convince the authorities she’s sane — Eastwood stands just to the side of the camera, listening to the dialogue on headphones and watching a small, handheld video monitor. A TV camera, feeding Eastwood’s monitor and others around the set, looks through the same lens as the camera creating the film that will become the theatrical version of “The Changeling.”

When a take is finished, Eastwood usually says, “Stop,” or “That’s it,” but never, “Cut!” At the end of one scene, which includes a line about a cat, Eastwood ends the filming by meowing.

A mob of extras

With shooting wrapping up on “The Changeling” this week, Eastwood, 77, will have completed another arduous job of directing a major Hollywood film. In 2006, he directed two major releases, “Flags of Our Fathers,” and “Letters from Iwo Jima.” The current movie promises to be as big as those — and making it hasn’t been any easier.

One scene, filmed in October, involved 600 extras at Los Angeles City Hall. Another required taking over the San Bernardino train depot for three days.

“The station’s been preserved very well from the way it looked in the ’20s,” Eastwood said. “We had 300 extras at that one.”

As work on the movie shifts to the editing room and other phases of postproduction, much of the work of producers Rob Lorenz, Ron Howard and Brian Grazer is finished. But a major decision is yet to be made by them and the suits at NBC Universal: When the film will be released.

“I haven’t the foggiest idea, and I don’t think anybody does,” Eastwood told The Pine Cone. “I think they’re going to look at it and see what they’ve got and make up their minds then.”

He hinted the release date could be in October — just in time for optimum exposure as a possible candidate for the 2008 Academy Awards.

Clint Eastwood and Angelina Jolie, in makeup and costume as an unwilling mental patient, discuss an upcoming scene.

Meg’s Health Notes

Presented by
Meg Parker Conners, R.N.

SAVING LIVES

It is not a subject that many people are likely to want to discuss, and that may be part of the problem. The fact is, however, that the elderly are the highest risk population for suicide in this country. While the overall suicide rate is 11 per 100,000 people, that figure rises to 14 per 100,000 among those aged 65 and older. One of the reasons for this high rate may rest with the fact that older individuals are less likely to seek out help. Many suffer from depression, a key risk factor for suicide, and are not sure what their problem is or what to do about it. At this point, family and friends should step in and help.

Due to the stigma surrounding mental health care, the elderly are far more likely to visit their primary care physician, rather than a mental health professional, when experiencing depression. All too often, signals that an older person is depressed and contemplating suicide are confused with signs of aging. For more information, please call VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES. We provide the best in home care and geriatric care management for seniors or adults with physical and/or mental challenges in and around Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties.

P.S. Lend a compassionate ear to elderly friends and family members to get a clear idea of what they are thinking.

DEAR READERS: In this weekly column I have offered information to seniors about various topics. I am curious to know if you find this helpful. Should we continue this column? Please let me hear from you. Thanks.

Forest Theater, the possible establishment of a city museum and the resolution of the debate over Flanders Mansion.

"The whole theme is how we balance the past with the opportunities for the future," she said. "The Forest Theater is almost 100 years old, and we are in the process of trying to preserve it as it is for future generations."

Playing a minor role in "Brigadoon" a few years back gave McCloud a bit of insight on the subject. "The conditions are just abominable," she said, for the actors and crews who work in the indoor and outdoor theaters.

A proponent of a museum to showcase the city's extensive art collection and artifacts such as builder Hugh Comstock's desk and chair, which were recently offered by their owner, McCloud said the concept is in its infancy. During her next term, she would like to determine whether sufficient support exists.

Regarding Flanders Mansion, which the council had planned to sell until a judge ruled further evaluation and legal steps are necessary before the historic house can be put on the market, McCloud said she wants the matter resolved.

"We still haven't seen Flanders through, and I would like to see it through to whatever the conclusion will be," she said. Last week, the city filed court documents detailing how it is complying with Judge Robert O'Farrell's orders.

Eye on the books

Under McCloud, the city continued its practice of fiscal prudence, including cutting jobs to balance the budget in 2004 following a significant economic downturn. Now, with a projected $14 billion state budget deficit looming, the city should prepare for tight purse strings again, she warned.

"The history of the state balancing its budget on the backs of cities is well documented, and we're waiting for that shoe to drop not just this year, but out there in the future," she said. "The city's always been very conservative in its budgeting, and we're fortunate in that, but we're a one-crop economy." Tourism drives the city's budget, which is largely supported by hotel and sales taxes.

Challenges also lie in dealing with a perpetual water shortage.

"How do we manage change in a one-square-mile city without water?" she asked. "The two-word response is: very carefully."

She reflected on accomplishments during her tenure, including the long-overdue Local Coastal Program, the $21.65 million renovation of Sunset Center and a host of capital projects, like the seismic retrofit of the firehouse. She also mentioned short-term issues, such as a response to the California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control's crackdown, the flooding of the basement in the library's Park Branch, and repairs at the beach.

The city's future will include more Authors and Ideas festivals, which Jim and Cindy McGillen presented for the first time in September, and possibly a film festival, which she said has generated significant interest.

"That's something that marries well with the values that are in the city and in our history," she said of the book festival.

Carmel will also have to contend with more strict state rules, including a possible recycle rate upped from 50 percent to 75 percent, and stormwater runoff issues.

And while green building is catching waves of support and popularity, "that's going to conflict in some cases with our design guidelines," which will require creative responses, according to McCloud. Applications are reportedly under way for sod roofs, and solar panels, encouraged by the state, can not be subjected to local design laws.

The filing period for the April 8, 2008, election, in which voters will choose two city council members and a mayor, opens Monday, Dec. 17. With McCloud's announcement this week, all three incumbents have declared their intentions to run.

difference in elevation between the pavement and the dirt shoulder.

"That can lead to a breakdown of the pavement," Lundquist warned. "The drop-off creates a safety problem."

Finch Creek — a tributary of the Carmel River — is home to a dwindling steelhead population, according to Mark Stromberg, director of the Hastings Natural History Reservation. Because the creek parallels Carmel Valley Road, recent shoulder work by public works has the potential to deposit large amounts of sediment in the watershed.

"The sediment is first going to silt up Finch Creek, where hundreds, if not thousands, of young steelhead live," Stromberg suggested.

Evidently, steelhead have an appetite for insects that inhabit the coarse gravel that lines the beds of local creeks.

"Between the gravel is where the aquatic insects live," Stromberg explained. "When those open spaces fill up with sand, there is no place for the bugs to live."

Because the work was done so late in the season, Stromberg is worried winter rains will carry sediment down to the San Clemente Dam, putting further stress on the reservoir's shrinking storage capacity.

"There is not much storage in the reservoir because of all the silt that is already there," he said.

Stromberg concedes that much of the sediment buildup is a natural occurrence.

"We have a very erodible landscape," he said.

Still, Stromberg believes it would have made more sense for public works to do the grading earlier in the season. "They could have done it in the spring," he offered. "Why do it just before the rains?"

Lundquist conceded that, under ideal circumstances, Stromberg is right about the timing of the project. "Early spring is the best time," he said. "When it's damp, [the sediment] packs down into place pretty easily."

Unfortunately, ideal circumstances don't exist for public works. "We don't have all the time we need in the spring," he explained. "We just don't have the staff and the resources. We squeeze things in whenever we can get to them."

Lundquist said he is aware of the risk shoulder work can cause for creeks and steelhead. As a precaution against rains carrying sediment downstream, public works has installed numerous straw waddles along the shoulders near Finch Creek in an effort to catch sediment.

Most of the work along Finch Creek has already been completed, Lundquist reported.

"There is still some work to do," he added. "We're basically finishing up what we started."

Finch Creek is a tributary of Cachagua Creek, which flows into the Carmel River near Princes Camp, just below Los Padres Dam. The creek, which flows through the Hastings Reserve, was named after local homesteaders Charlie and James Finch.

INVESTMENTS CAN MAKE GREAT HOLIDAY GIFTS

Now that the holidays are here, you're probably looking around for the right gifts for your loved ones. This year, why not add financial gifts to your shopping list?

For example, if you have a young child or grandchild, you may want to contribute to a Section 529 college savings plan. A 529 plan may even have tax advantages for residents who participate in their own state's plan. Or, if you know a loved one has an IRA, consider making a contribution.

You might also want to give shares of stock of a company that produces products or services that are used by your intended recipient. And don't forget old-fashioned U.S. Savings Bonds, which can make nice gifts, especially for young people who can use the money in the future.

A financial gift may not be traditional, but it can have a big impact on the recipient's life - and it won't be forgotten after the holidays are over.

Santas for Soldiers to supply socks and other necessities

By MARY BROWNFIELD

INJURED AMERICAN soldiers in military hospitals in the Middle East will receive some holiday cheer and basic comforts from generous Monterey Peninsula residents. Santas for Soldiers, a Dec. 15 fundraiser for the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary's Support Our Troops program, will be held in the clubhouse at the Black Horse Golf Course.

The evening, featuring a dinner dance and silent auction, is sponsored by the Seaside/Sand City Chamber of Commerce, LeTip of Monterey, Primerica Financial Services of Salinas and Monterey Peninsula businesses, according to Dr. James Michel of Carmel.

"They're taking 100 percent of the money to purchase items needed by troops already injured in Iraq and Afghanistan," he said. "There are two hospitals in each that are getting this attention to basic human needs — things like deodorant and toothpaste."

In addition to funding basic necessities, the cash will pay for cards, "so they can send holiday greetings to their loved ones," Michel said. "They don't even have access to that kind of stuff, so it's a really valuable thing."

Basic needs

Michel said he was perusing the list of items the auxiliary has sent overseas and was surprised to find 8,000 pairs of socks at the top.

"It's unbelievable — they can't even get socks while in the hospital," he said. Regardless of whether people agree with the war, it's "a really important need we're filling, and a wonderful way to support the troops."

The money will be raised via the $70-per-person ticket price ($55 for military) and an extensive silent auction featuring trips, wine packages, golf, bay cruises, concerts and plays, dinners and various services.

For more information, to purchase tickets or to donate auction items, visit www.santasforsoldiers.com (beware, the site plays music), or call the Seaside/Sand City Chamber at (831) 394-6501.

City receives $183K for Sunset Center gardens

STATE TAXPAYERS ponied up $183,205 for landscaping at Sunset Center, and the Carmel City Council accepted the cash Dec. 4.

In November 2003, the city applied for grants under the California Clean Water, Clean Air, Safe Neighborhood Parks and Coastal Protection Act of 2002, and the Safe Neighborhood Parks, Clean Water, Clean Air and Coastal Protection Bond Act of 2000.

Three-and-a-half years later, the city contracted with the George DiPeso Landscape Company for work on San Carlos Street and in front of Carpenter Hall, which were part of Phase II of the Sunset Center Landscape Project. The council authorized the transfer of $171,436 from the capital reserve fund in order to pay him, with the understanding it would submit reimbursement requests to the state for the grant money.

On Nov. 6, the city received two checks totaling $183,205, and the council voted without discussion to accept them at the Dec. 4 meeting. Its members also authorized administrative services director Joyce Giuffre to transfer $171,436 back into the capital reserve to replace the funds borrowed to pay for the work.

Admirers celebrate poet's 177th birthday with verse, gingerbread

By CHRIS COUNTS

THERE IS considerable irony in the enduring popularity of Emily Dickinson's poems. While countless poets struggle in vain to find an audience, Dickinson's poems have reached millions of readers despite the fact their author apparently had no intention of ever publishing them.

Dickinson's poems are still widely read for the simple fact that readers are still passionate about her work. Yet even in the world of Dickinson scholarship, the devotion of Dr. Barbara Mossberg to her favorite poet is extraordinary.

Mossberg, who has lived in Carmel since 2003, presents "Reflections on Emily Dickinson" Saturday, Dec. 15, at the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts.

"I have been reading her work in a curious and joyous way for over 35 years," explained Mossberg, a drama and literature professor who serves as director of the integrative studies program at CSUMB. "Sharing her poetry has been a lifetime's passion for me."

The reclusive Dickinson was a prolific and unconventional poet. While she wrote nearly 1,800 poems, fewer than a dozen were published during her lifetime. Her work finally reached a larger audience with the publication of "The Poems of Emily Dickinson" by Thomas H. Johnson in 1955. Today, she is generally recognized as one of the 19th century's most influential American poets.

A world traveler, Mossberg has carried her enthusiasm for Dickinson abroad.

DICKINSON

"I have lectured about her in over 30 countries," she said. "And whether I was in Thailand, Singapore or Helsinki, I would look at the audience after reading her poetry and they would be weeping or laughing."

This week marks the 177th anniversary of the poet's birth in Amherst, Mass.

"Wherever I have been in the world on her birthday, I have done a reading of her work and served gingerbread made from her own personal recipe," Mossberg offered. "That's my way of sharing the joy of what she has given to me."

In addition to serving gingerbread (complete with birthday candles!), Mossberg will lead the audience in singing happy birthday to the poet.

"This is the third year we've hosted this event," added Robert Reese, director of the Cherry Center. "Dr. Mossberg is not only a Dickinson scholar, but she really inhabits the spirit of Dickinson. She's really remarkable."

Mossberg, who once served as president of Goddard College in Plainfield, Vt., is author of "When a Daughter is a Writer," a book on Dickinson that won a CHOICE Award for Outstanding Academic Book of the Year in 1983. She is also cofounder of the Emily Dickinson International Society.

The event starts at 2 p.m. Dec. 15. Admission is $10. The center is located at Fourth and Guadalupe. For reservations or more information, call (831) 624-7491.

LEIDIG

windows were changed or covered.

Senior planner Sean Conroy agreed and recommended granting Leidig's bid to remove the structure from the city's list of buildings that cannot be demolished.

"While the basic form of the building remains, the character-defining features have been altered dramatically," he wrote.

He also said the textured concrete blocks that were unique in Carmel at the time of construction — and are the only example of their kind in town now — are not reason enough for historic designation due to the extent of their alteration.

Finally, he said four other pre-1910 buildings on the inventory exemplify early commercial design better than Leidig's.

Though the HRB recommended seeking a third opinion if the matter were taken to the council, Conroy disagreed.

"There is substantial information to make a decision; however, if the council is uncomfortable, we certainly could request a consultant," he said.

Early memories

Former councilwoman Barbara Livingston seemed shocked by the debate.

"My heart is pounding so hard. I never thought I'd be standing here today saying, 'Of course you should deny the appeal,'" she said. "All of us growing up, we knew those buildings. My mother worked at the hardware store [the T.A. Work Hardware Store, which occupied the current Hanson Gallery space]. I worked there."

According to Livingston, "every major politician and movie star," shopped there or in the grocery store next door. She also argued for declaring downtown Carmel an historic district in order to protect all of its old buildings.

Erl Lagerholm, a member of the historic resources board, remembered noticing the building four decades ago when his parents, who retired here, drove him from the train station in Monterey into downtown Carmel for the first time.

"It's a landmark," he said. "It really was, and it always has been."

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac, who grew up in town, said the present building doesn't look all that different.

"To me, it would be a travesty to grant this appeal. If we do that, I don't even know why we bother having an historic preservation program at all," she said. "This is one building you still recognize after many, many, many years."

McCloud, who spent most of her early years in Carmel as well, said the storefronts would still be familiar to someone who had last seen them decades ago.

"It has looked essentially the same for as long as I can remember," she said. "If Rip Van Winkle walked down the street, he would feel comfortable with those buildings."

But recognizability is not an argument for historic preservation, according to Bunse, who evaluated the structure in a 16-page report.

"You get a situation where you have a cumulative effect of all of these changes," she continued. "Does this building convey what it was when it was built? And it doesn't."

Conroy pointed out, "None of the storefronts are original — all have changed."

The building is significant, councilman Ken Talmage said, but it falls short on integrity.

"The 2003 report is three pages long and very thin on facts — it just supports the conclusion," he observed. "Meta Bunse's report is loaded with factual material: It doesn't pass the integrity test."

In agreement, councilman Gerard Rose said sentimental attachment is not sufficient cause to declare a building historic.

Chez Christine boasts two French chefs, dynamite onion soup

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

CHRYSTINE RICHARD (pronounced Ree-shar) learned French culinary wizardry from her grandmere who was chef of her own two-star Normandy restaurant patronized by such luminaries as astronauts Alan Shepard and Walter Cunningham and film stars Gérard Depardieu and Jackie Coogan — to name just a few.

And now Carmel-by-the-Sea is benefiting from this familial Gallic background Chef Christine and Chef Francis, a husband and wife team, are holding forth in their restaurant, Chez Christine, on Junipero at Sixth. Son Christophe works alongside his parents.

Wednesday through Sunday, the restaurant is open for breakfast from 8 a.m. serving omelettes and quiche, and luncheon is served until 3 p.m. with such typical French fare as escargots, endives au gratin, pâté, French onion soup (so good Chef Christine calls it her signature dish) with a full complement of soups, salads, quiche and sandwiches. Filet mignon with peppercorn sauce, duck, leg of lamb, beef tenderloin and chicken dishes, to name a few, have appeared on evening dinner menus Wednesday through Saturday from 6 to 9 p.m.

Chez Christine opened this year on Jan. 15 after the Richards moved down from Danville where, for 15 years, they ran their successful restaurant, Café de Paris, at Blackhawk.

Chef Christine had always wanted to live in Carmel-by-the-Sea because of its European charm, and so when their lease was up and the rent raised, the Richards decided the time had come to fulfill Christine's dream.

At Blackhawk, the Richards always offered five specials for dinner and made everything from scratch, even the mayonnaise and salad dressing — practices they continue here.

Fortunately for the Richards, many of the loyal patrons of Café de Paris have second homes in Carmel, which afforded Chef Christine an immediate clientele who could refer friends and neighbors to the Carmel restaurant. Small and intimate, it seats 22 inside, 18 on the back patio and 12 on the front patio.

Chef Christine comes from a long line of chefs. Her great, great grandmother owned and cooked in her own Normandy restaurant 130 years ago. In the 1800s it was known as a "carriage restaurant," handling carriage trade. The family traded up for larger restaurants, finally owning the Hotel de la Gare, with Grandmother Marie Marguerite as the chef. So popular was the eating establishment, people came from Paris — 300 miles away — to dine there. It garnered two Michelin stars. She was asked to cook for President de Gaule at the Elysees Palace. She accepted.

It was Grandmere Marie Marguerite and an aunt and uncle who taught Christine to cook at an early age. Later, when she crossed the channel to study in England, a young man came to work at the restaurant. When she returned from her studies during Easter vacation, she fell in love with the

Wolfgang Puck, hot dogs, new menus and Tassajara lunches

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

SO, I spent this past weekend getting pampered to the max at The Ritz Carlton, Bachelor Gulch. The occasion? The opening of Wolfgang Puck's latest Spago outpost.

Among the roster of writers who made the guest list cut were Sarah Ivens from OK! Magazine; Bruce Schoenfeld, the Wine and Spirits Editor from Travel & Leisure; Alain Gayot of Gayot.com, Juliette Rossant from SuperChefsBlog.com; Larry Olmsted, free-lancer extraordinaire and Guinness World Book record holder for playing a round of golf in Australia and California in one day; Chantal McLaughlin, former Town & Country assistant editor and editor of to-be-launched Spire.com; and Ann Wycoff, the lifestyle editor of VIV Magazine.

The opening reception was sponsored by Dom Perignon, and Puck's signature dishes flowed in bite-sized portions all evening. The snow gods dumped more than a foot of fresh powder on the slopes our second day, allowing for a once-in-a-lifetime, closed-to-the-public ski experience with Puck at the posh ski-in/ski-out property. A media-only luncheon and dinner allowed for more intimate conversation with Puck and the new Spago's Executive Chef, Mark Ferguson, and corporate pastry chef and "Desserts by the Yard" (Houghton Mifflin) author Sherry Yard's delicious desserts, as well as more menu sampling. I could eat Puck's spicy paprika goulash with spätzle all winter long — it's pure slow-cooked comfort in a bowl. If you like top-notch ski conditions and amenities up the you-know-what, I can't think of a better place to spoiled while savoring Puck's signature dishes that made Spago the quintessential Los Angeles restaurant.

On a side note, I got to meet Sheri Heedum at the opening reception, the public relations power behind the 26th Annual Food & Wine Magazine Classic in Aspen. Tickets for the June 13-15, 2008, event went on sale this Monday and the lineup is pretty fabulous — think Jean-Georges Vongerichten, Bobby Flay and Jacques Pépin along with trend-setting talents such as David Chang, José Andrés and Michelle Bernstein. Tickets for the Food & Wine Magazine Classic in Aspen are $1,050 before March 15, 2008, and $1,150 thereafter. To register, call (877) 900-WINE or visit www.foodandwine.com/classic.

young man, Francis Richard. They were married a year later.

Francis had always wanted to be a chef and learned well from Christine's grandmother, father and uncle. He completed his formal education at school in La Baule, then joined the family's restaurant as a cook.

The young married couple started a family, and when their son, Laurent, was 4 and Christophe was 2, they opened and operated their own restaurant in Brittany from 1981 to 1986.

Proximity

In 1990 they decided to come to the United States, and so the four Richards, plus Minet the cat, came to Danville to open Café de Paris. The boys attended middle school and high school in Danville as the restaurant flourished.

Now in Carmel-by-the-Sea, the Richards live in proximity to the restaurant with son Christophe and his black Labrador named Harley, and three exotic birds: an African gray Congo parrot, a double yellow head green Amazon parrot, and a large white umbrella cockatoo. Laurent lives in a nearby town with his German shepherd/akita mix, Sena.

Chef Christine and Chef Francis have not returned to France in the 17 years they have lived here, but Christine's mother and cousins visits occasionally.

The Richards have not changed the decor from that of the former restaurant, Buon Giorno, except for the art that decorates the walls. A continuing and changing exhibition of abstract paintings on canvas by Mary Titus has been received well, and a small wall adjacent to the back patio displays oil paintings of dogs — portraits done from photographs — by Daniel Trammer of Nance, France. This seems appropriate for a restaurant that is dog friendly on both patios.

Earlier this month, a special fundraiser dinner was held at the restaurant to help defray ongoing family medical expenses. It was immediately sold out. The next fundraiser will be held Sunday, Jan. 6 and will feature an entrée of salmon in dill sauce, soup or salad, dessert, and wine, coffee or tea. Reservations are required for the $50-per-person dinner.

Chez Christine is located on Junipero near Sixth Avenue, across the street from Bruno's Market. For information or reservations, call (831) 624-0168.

■ Carmel Valley Market Hot Dog Eating Contest

Carmel Valley Market is hosting a hot-dog eating throwdown Jan. 19. The logistics are a bit fuzzy, but nearly a dozen contestants eager to channel their inner Joey Chestnut (the San Jose resident who usurped the Nathan's Famous Fourth of July International Hot Dog Eating championship from former champ Takeru Kobayashi) have signed up. For more information, call Carmel Valley Market at (831) 659-2422 or swing by the store at 2 Chambers Lane in Carmel Valley Village.

■ New menu at Cantinetta Luca

If I had to eat out five nights a week on the Peninsula at only one destination, it would have to be at Cantinetta Luca. (Cachagua General Store would tie if only it were open five nights a week.) The most exciting thing to happen in my local dining world in 2007, Cantinetta Luca has filled a much-needed niche with reasonably priced food (served until — gasp! — 10 p.m.), a convivial atmosphere and a killer wine list. Executive Chef Jason Balestrieri recently unrolled a new menu and, so far, I haven't found a single flop in the lineup. Highlights include Trippa alla Romana ($10), a tripe stew with mint and Parmigiano; Crudo ($14), sliced raw sea scallops, with pomegranate, almonds and mint; Uovo Raviolo ($20), ricotta and egg yolk ravioli with shaved truffle; Parmesan Gnocchi al Coniglio ($17) with olives and pine nuts; and a luscious lemon semifreddo and cinnamon zeppole ($7), the Italian's version of the doughnut.

I'd love to see more restaurateurs imitate, or least be inspired by Cantinetta Luca's success in the new year. Right now, we have too much mediocrity in the Monterey area culinary scene.

■ Tassajara Lunches, Picnics, and Appetizers Cookbook

Karla Oliveira, M.S., R.D., landed in my inbox this week dishing about her new(ish) "Tassajara Lunches, Picnics, and Appetizers Cookbook" (Gibbs Smith). Written by the local nutritionist, private chef and (of course) Zen student, this beautiful hardback book has been out for about three months and is selling about 50 copies a day. Oliveira's had her own business, Conscious Eating Cuisine, for the last 14 years, specializing in international cuisine. She says Indian food is her forte and expressed an interest in a steady cooking position for a local family, couple or single. "It's a super useful book for lunches (even kids!) and appetizers," she shares. "It's all very healthy, but still rich with butter, etc. Moderation is the key." Tassajara is famed for its three gourmet meals a day and renowned for its bag lunch options.

Oliveira recently had a booksigning at Pilgrim's Way bookstore and will be on Health Talk (1240 AM KNRY) on Thursday, Dec. 20, from 4:05 to 5 p.m. "Tassajara Lunches, Picnics, and Appetizers Cookbook" is available for purchase at Pilgrim's Way Bookstore at Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue in Carmel.

Happy New Year!

HISTORIC

While she said it's "heartbreaking" to see the buildings of one's childhood disappear, councilwoman Karen Sharp questioned whether Leidig's was unchanged enough to be considered historic. She speculated her position would displease some of her colleagues.

City administrator Rich Guillen and city attorney Don Freeman also entered the discussion. Guillen suggested putting off the vote so staff could do more research on what could legally happen to the building if it were taken off the list, though issues other than its historical significance were not up for discussion. Guillen also said the city could seek a third opinion, as recommended by the HRB.

Freeman said the council did not have the opportunity to hear Seavey discuss his original analysis and suggested waiting so he could come testify.

"In a sense of fairness, the city should ask that person to come in and defend his position," he said. The advice was unusual, considering historic-designation appeals always include conflicting analyses and the council does not typically ask the author of the original report to speak.

"This has never been done, to my knowledge, in any of these challenges," Rose objected.

Representing Leidig, attorney Michael Albov commented, "I'm a little surprised by the process. The council can do whatever it wants, but it's a little weird."

Freeman said the building's prominence and location on a major thoroughfare justified it, and Guillen agreed. So did a slim majority of the council, which voted 3-2, with Rose and Talmage dissenting, to put off the hearing until January so Seavey can attend.

PAUL JOHN

1926 - 2007

Paul John, 81, died early Monday morning, the 19th of November. He was born in 1926 in Morgantown, West Virginia, son of Everette G. and Edith John.

Paul attended the University of Michigan at the age of 16 and was in the graduating class of 1946. While in college, he volunteered for the job of providing "orientation" to new students entering the University. He served as an officer for his Fraternity, Delta Upsilon. He also served on the school's Michigan Development Council (fund raising).

Paul was a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force but that was short lived as the war ended and he entered the work force. His entrée into advertising started with the advertising agency J. Walter Thompson office in Detroit. He followed that with a job for a Milwaukee based printing company.

In 1956 Paul moved to Campbell-Ewald, one of the advertising agencies for General Motors, creating advertising for Chevrolet. His talent for marketing and helping people blended together in many of his creative ideas. He led the Chevrolet client into big-time television sponsorship advertising on the programs, "Bonanza", "My Three Sons" and "Route 66". In the college football world, he created the "Chevrolet Player of the Game", a recognition that continues today with a 40 year legacy of contributing nearly 10 million dollars in scholarship funds. At the agency, Paul became Chairman/CEO in 1985. He retired after 30 years with Campbell-Ewald.

Paul worked nights and weekends building a beautiful home on Pine Lake where he and wife Nancy lived for 31 years. They were members of Orchard Lake Country Club and were involved in numerous organizations that kept them both quite busy.

In his retirement, Paul and Nancy, returned to her roots (3rd generation San Franciscan) and settled in Carmel, where they had been married at the Church of the Wayfarer 52 years prior.

Retirement never slowed him down. Paul purchased Ocean Chevrolet, later to include Honda, which is now run by his son Steve. Paul was also on the Board of Directors of the Monterey Institute of International Studies and of the Beacon House. He was a member of the Old Capital Club, Monterey Peninsula Country Club and the Beach and Tennis Club. He was an avid golfer and enjoyed playing bridge.

Paul will be remembered by his family and many friends as generous, helpful, positive, kind and funny. He had a great zest for life and was definitely a man of action. Above all, he was devoted to his family.

He is survived by his wife, Nancy, his children Steve (and his wife Lisa and their children Alexa and Kyle), Tina Grippi (and her husband Chris and their children Danielle and Joanna) and his sister Patricia Cochran of Burlington, Vermont. He was preceded in death by his brother, Robert John of New York City.

A private service will be held by his family at a later date. Contributions in his name may be made to the First Tee of Monterey County, 1551 Beacon Hill Drive, Salinas, CA 93905.

past, in what would have been a nice tribute to him for all of his friends and family, you had to dirty it up and make him sound like a terrible person.

Do you not think it cruel to his family and son to print such things?

Peter was well known and well loved all over the world, and you should be so lucky to have standing room only at your memorial.

I regard your paper as nothing more than trash and I will no longer read anything you have to report.

Shame on you.

Robin Shaw,
Monterey

'Extremely disappointed'

Dear Editor,

While reading, again, another tribute to Peter Davi, revered surfer, father and member of a well known family on the Peninsula, I was extremely disappointed in The Carmel Pine Cone's article bringing up his "checkered past." It wasn't necessary and was inappropriate at this time when his family and friends are gathered together here grieving their loss.

Debbie Reed,
Big Sur

In defense of Newdow

Dear Editor,

As a frequent visitor to Carmel, I enjoy reading articles from your Internet version of your newspaper. Your Dec. 7 editorial makes excellent points about some very inaccurate reporting by the AP.

However, I think you were needlessly harsh in your judgments about Michael Newdow, referring to him as "infamous" and attributing his litigation against the "under God" wording in the Pledge of Allegiance to his "thirst for attention as the high priest of nonbelievers." The word "infamous" is defined as "someone with a reputation of the worst kind, notoriously evil." Would you agree that perhaps "controversial" would have been a better word?

In my opinion, many nonbelievers are troubled by the influence that such words recited in a setting of authority can have on susceptible young minds. However, nonbelievers seem less inclined to speak out, let alone to direct insults if not threats or actual violence toward believers, than are believers to nonbelievers. The reasons for this difference are subject to much debate about the nature of religion and the Bible. So perhaps Newdow has sincere concerns and is somewhat of a spokesperson for a large silent minority and not deserving of your insults.

SOME SCANNERS PRODUCE GREAT PICTURES.

OUR SCANNER'S PICTURES ARE, WELL, LIFE-ALTERING.

For the first time ever, a scanner can view a beating heart without a blurred image or the need for heart-slowing medication. Community Hospital was the first in Northern California to offer this amazing technology. This means heart disease can be diagnosed with incredible accuracy, tumors can be targeted, and stroke damage can be pinpointed in fractions of a second using 3-D imagery. It also means you don't need to leave the Peninsula for state-of-the-art medical care. Talk to your doctor for more information or visit chomp.org.

Editorial

A race with no challengers?

IT'S TOO soon to be sure, but the upcoming Carmel City Council race could be another one with only token — or nonexistent — opposition. And that wouldn't be a good thing.

Two years ago, when Sue McCloud, Paula Hazdovac and Gerard Rose ran for reelection, hardly anyone tried to take their place.

The one candidate — Ryan Walbrun — who might have been viable if he'd had more experience and kept his nose to the grindstone, and who said he'd consider running again in 2008, moved out of the city soon after the results were announced.

At this moment, there isn't an obvious candidate anywhere to challenge the incumbents this time around.

And that's true even though the council candidates who've announced are incumbents — but just barely so. Ken Talmage and Karen Sharp were appointed in place of Erik Bethel and Mike Cunningham, who won their seats in 2004.

The lack of competition is a pity, because there are plenty of important issues facing the council over the next two years.

The foremost of these is whether to renew the effort to sell Flanders Mansion. A small group of ardent preservationists succeeded in convincing a judge the city hadn't crossed all its t's or dotted all its i's when it decided to sell the old place in 2005. But the judge's decision explicitly recognized the city's right to sell Flanders Mansion if it wants to. As in the past, the decision rests with the mayor and council. So if the Flanders Foundation sincerely wants to turn the mansion into a public facility, and if it thinks the public supports its preservationist cause, at least one candidate should run on a "Save Flanders Mansion" platform.

Similarly, the city is facing a major burden imposed by the federal government: Eliminating stormwater runoff into Carmel Bay. That's a tricky — and possibly very expensive — problem to sort out.

Also, the Forest Theater needs rehabilitating. The Scout House remains unused. New festivals of one sort or another are proposed with increasing frequency. Etc., etc.

But, while we urge qualified candidates to take a shot at being elected to the council, we don't think the race should attract anyone who hasn't lived in town at least a decade and served on a city board or commission for several years. Being a city council member isn't easy, and the decisions it requires aren't for rookies. On the other hand, having one's name inscribed in Carmel's history books is an honor, and so is the opportunity to help protect and preserve one of the finest small cities in the world.

'Utter disgust'

Dear Editor,

I want to express my utter disgust with the article written about Peter Davi and his horrible, tragic accident. The informative portion of your article was fine, letting us know details of what exactly happened that day, but the part entitled "Checkered Past" was totally inappropriate and uncalled for! Anytime we lose a member of our community, it affects everyone because we are such a close-knit community, especially the surf community! We are all still in mourning over this terrible loss and now would have been the perfect time to reflect upon the things that made Peter such an amazing person. His achievements! This is definitely not the time to showcase his past mistakes. I feel you owe the family a huge apology. You did not do him justice in this article. It disappoints me that the writer would take the time to research his records from the courthouse rather than research what his friends and family have to say about him. I hope that you make this right so that Peter's legacy is not the dark cloud that you have painted.

Lisa Hanes,
Pacific Grove

'Appalled'

Dear Editor,

After reading your article about the tragic death of local big wave surfer, Peter Davi, I was appalled that a reputable newspaper like Carmel Pine Cone lowered its ethics to inappropriately include a paragraph about alleged public information concerning Peter Davi's past. In a sad event like this, it is improper to "dredge" up hostile and adverse gossip about the person whom is being grieved by many in the local community. Even if the source is public records, the publication of such information is disgraceful and untimely. Publicizing such information is an insensitive, uncompassionate assault to a grieving family, as well as our local community of watermen. Consider the scenario of your publishing all criminal records, innuendo and negative rumors in all your obituaries. How would we feel? OK, so Peter had made some mistakes in his life. He served his sentences for his violations, and went on to raise a family and contribute to the community ... enough so that he became a legend among both the local and international surfing community.

The Carmel Pine Cone was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 34750.

Pescadero Point is indeed a dangerous place during high seas. You may be aware (in your records) that I risked my own life to save a Pebble Beach woman from violent storm seas at this same location on Dec 13, 1996. You recognized me in your paper for the rescue I successfully performed. The U.S. Coast Guard later felt that my action was significant enough to call for the USCG Silver Lifesaving Medal, and the Carnegie Foundation also responded with the Carnegie Medal for heroism. Mentioning this is not to "toot my horn," but to make you aware that members of the local surfing community are not "bums" and criminals, but knowledgeable, skilled members of the seafaring community who do not think twice to save lives of those who run afoul of the potentially deadly conditions that often occur on our rocky, exposed coast. I am not the only local surfer who has been recognized for heroism. Several years later, surfer Brendan Wahl put his life to extreme risk performing an extraordinary feat to save a child from the seething waves and rocks near Garrapata Creek. There are many others. Without the local surfers, the lives of many citizens would have been lost. Surfers are the ones who know every nuance of the coast, from reef topography to wave hydrodynamics, to meteorological phenomena that cause massive surf at key locations. Surfers are AWARE. Surfers watch out for each other. Surfers watch out for anyone who may come into distress, and will not hesitate to take the necessary action to save a life ... which has been repeated over and over on our coast.

I have always respected your newspaper and realize that as humans, we all make mistakes. So I am sure that you will "see the light" on this matter, and make good on it. The public needs to be informed that those who spend their lives devoted to the sea have been life savers for many, and that should be emphasized.

David Allan,
Carmel

'Poor taste'Dear Editor,

The "checked past" past section of your article on Peter Davi was unnecessary and in poor taste. Peter, despite his run-ins with the law, was the type of man that would give you the shirt off his back. He did live his life by his own rules but he was a good man, and he will be missed.

Mike Dilks,
Kailua, Hawaii

'Caused pain'Dear Editor:

I cannot help but wonder why you felt it necessary to include in your report of the unfortunate drowning of surfer Peter Davi the fact that a decade ago he pled guilty to a number of felony charges, and even that "police also believed" he had committed another with which he was never even charged. That inclusion added nothing to the public's understanding of the sad event and can only have caused pain to his family and friends.

I readily accept that you had the legal right to include that information; it is a matter of public record. But with every right comes the responsibility to exercise it properly. That, in my humble opinion, is where you failed. Had you weighed the limited social value of including the information against the harm such publication would cause, perhaps you would have acted more sensitively, and more responsibly.

Sandra Meyrose,
Carmel

'You should be ashamed'Dear Editor,

You should be ashamed of yourself for memorializing Peter Davi's "Checked Past." When I was informed that your publication resorted to doing that, I couldn't believe it until I read it myself. A reporter with your experience should not resort to such journalism. I'm sure the few compassionate people who read The Carmel Pine Cone agree that memorializing Peter Davi's criminal record is just wrong. When I read your editor's biography, I just could not believe that a man with that much experience in journalism would write something like that about a local man who died tragically. What really bothers me is that family members who loved Davi will now be reminded about their loved one's misgivings in life. What did you intend to convey to your few readers in your last paragraph? What I can say to you is that many people are disappointed. Maybe next time you write an article memorializing somebody's life, you might want to refrain from summarizing their criminal history. I have been in public service for 18 years and have seen many tragic things happen to many people. However, I have never seen a reporter resort to memorializing somebody's "checked past" in what is basically an obituary.

Vincent Maiorana,
Orinda

Also 'appalled'Dear Editor,

In regards to your story, "Big waves claim the life of their challenger," I am appalled about the report printed in your paper.

I cannot believe you had the gall to print Peter Davi's "checked past."

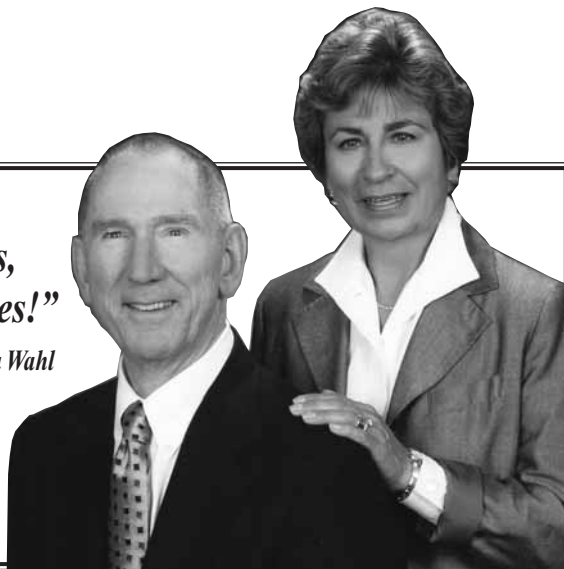

We have all done things in our lives that we may not be proud of, and for your reporters and editor to include Peter's

THE WALL STREET MISTAKE

To put it plainly, Wall Street economists approach home ownership as if it were the rough equivalent of owning a little portfolio of stocks. Prices go up, you sell at a profit; prices go down, you consider selling, waiting on the sidelines, and buying again when prices have bottomed. But there is ever so much more to home ownership—a huge range of financial and emotional and health issues that the Wall Street view seems to pay very little attention to.

This should not surprise us greatly. Wall Street economics offers up such things as the Gross Domestic Product, after all—which measures how our economy is growing—and it includes thoroughly nutty factors. A hurricane in the Florida, for example, elevates the GDP somewhat because it means more work, more materials used, more repair. The economic outlook pays no heed at all to the fact that it also means a lot of misery and reduction of quality of life.

It is safe to say, since they are so close to these issues, that real estate and mortgage professionals are far more conscious of the many ways that home ownership can improve your life. Most likely, you are, too. So basing your real estate decisions on whether some Wall Street economist thinks it's a good or bad time to buy or sell all too often misses the point entirely. If you are faced by a good deal, if you are looking at the home that most truly fulfills your current and future needs, if your household will gain greatly by moving into this new home—it isn't time to wait for an all-clear sign from someone in a back office on Wall Street. Instead, get the help of the best, most compatible and trustworthy real estate and mortgage professionals you can find. Just call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

CHARLIE & CARLIE Sullivan, 3, Pomeranian brother and sister shorn of their immense coats of fur, look like two adorable, chubby foxes.

When Mom Laura and Dad John first saw pictures of Charlie on the Internet at www.puppyfind.com, they immediately sent to Mississippi for her. The breeder told them – at the last minute before boarding the flight to California – that Charlie had a brother. And so, with minutes to spare, Charlie was loaded into Charlie's commodious travel crate. It was indeed a Kodak moment.

Their main home is in the Sacramento area, in Granite Bay, where it gets so hot they would swelter away without their puppy cuts. Although it was chilly in the winter sun at Carmel Beach Wednesday at noon-time when we encountered them with Mom Laura and their nanny, Auntie Betsy Biasi, neither seemed to regret the shearing of their locks.

They spend at least four cumulative months of the year at their second home here in Carmel-by-the-Sea with Mom and Dad, who bring them to the beach for playtime.

Charlie and Carlie prefer to romp with small dogs and greet those they recognize with barks of delight. Pomeranians like to express themselves vocally, Mom Laura said, and they particularly like to say hi to passersby from behind their garden gate that looks out onto Ocean Avenue – assuring a goodly supply of pedestrians for their woofing pleasure. They also like to bury mozzarella string cheese treats under the trees in the garden – just in case.

Their diet appears to be of the gourmet variety – grilled chicken, string cheese and duck jerky strips – augmented by doggie carob cookies. Is it any wonder their favorite shop in town is Mackie's Parlour and Pet Boutique at the Plaza?

SUMMONS FOR PUBLICATION (CITACION JUDICIAL) CASE NUMBER: (NUMERO DEL CASO) 07AS04798

NOTICE TO DEFENDANT (AVISO AL DEMANDADO): ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE MATTER OF the validity of a Settlement Agreement, dated October 16, 2007, by and between the State Board of Equalization, Pacific Gas & Electric Company, and the counties of Butte, El Dorado, Mariposa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sierra and Yuba, YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAIN-TIFF (LO ESTA DEMANDANDO EL DEMANDANTE): STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

You have until January 30, 2008, to file a typewritten response at this court. This action seeks judicial validation of that certain Settlement Agreement and Mutual Special Release ("the Settlement Agreement"), dated October 16, 2007, by and among the State Board of Equalization ("SBE"), Pacific Gas & Electric Company ("PG&E"), and the counties of Butte, El Dorado, Mariposa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sierra and Yuba ("the Counties"), establishing the methodology to value certain state-assessed real property, and accordingly assess certain property taxes, relating to SBE's determination that PG&E has taxable possessory interests in certain local agency hydro-electric facilities located within one or more of the Counties, from fiscal year 2007-2008 through the expiration of PG&E's presently existing power purchase contracts with five local water agencies/irrigation districts. The Settlement Agreement resolves a pending lawsuit filed by PG&E against SBE and the Counties, and resolves claims for refund filed by PG&E with SBE and the Counties, wherein PG&E alleged that it did and does not have such taxable possessory interests and that the amount of state-assessed property taxes assessed and levied was excessive; and by which PG&E sought to recover such state-assessed real property taxes for fiscal years 2000-2001, 2001-2002, 2002-2003, 2003-2004, 2004-2005, 2005-2006 and 2006-2007. Plaintiff seeks a judgment from the court that, among other things, SBE has the lawful authority to enter into the Settlement Agreement and that the Settlement Agreement is a valid, binding, and lawful agreement of SBE and the parties thereto, and creates valid, binding and lawful obligations of SBE and the parties thereto pursuant to its terms.

Esta acción procura validación judicial que cierto Acuerdo de Finiquito y Liberación Especial Mutua (el "Acuerdo del Finiquito", fechado el 16 de Octubre del 2007, por y entre la Junta Estatal de Igualación ("SBE"), Pacific Gas & Electric Company ("PG&E"), y los condados de Butte, El Dorado, Mariposa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sierra and Yuba ("los Condados"), que estableció la metodología para valorar bienes raíces tasados por el estado, y de acuerdo a esto tasar ciertos impuestos de propiedad, relacionados a la determinación de SBE que PG&E tiene intereses posesorios imponibles en ciertas instalaciones de la agencia local hidroeléctrica ubicados dentro de uno o más de los Condados, del año fiscal 2007-2008 hasta el vencimiento de los contratos de compra de potencia existentes con otros cinco distritos hidráulicos/distritos de irrigación locales. El Acuerdo del Finiquito resuelve un litigio pendiente archivado por PG&E contra SBE y los Condados, y resuelve reclamaciones de reembolso archivadas por PG&E con SBE y los Condados, donde PG&E alegó que no tenía y no tiene tales intereses posesorios imponibles y que la cantidad de los impuestos sobre la propiedad tasados por el estado impuestos y tasados era excesiva; y por lo cual PG&E procuró recuperar tales impuestos sobre bienes raíces tasados por el estado para los años fiscales 2000-2001, 2001-2002, 2002-2003, 2003-2004, 2004-2005, 2005-2006 y 2006-2007. Carmel Plaza offers a new shopping adventure

By HILARY HANLON

SINCE IT opened in 1961, Carmel Plaza has undergone two major renovations — one in 1973 and the most recent one in 2005. Despite their familiarity with the Plaza over the years, even longtime residents who regard the shopping center as “tourist territory” have noticed the elimination of the escalator, the new fountain, appealing stonework and impressive storefronts that are part of its recent face-lift and are wondering, “What else is new at Carmel Plaza?”

“Within the Plaza we have a wide spectrum of shops that cater to everyone,” says Jim Griffith, marketing manager of the shopping center.

Like the trickling sound of the fountain out front, it appears there’s been a “soothing” of the age-old tension between tradition and modernity. And the Plaza’s new fountain is also helping out an important local charity.

“All of the coins from our new fountain go to the Kinship Centers in our area,” says Griffith.

Whether it is the luxury wing on Ocean Avenue that draws tourists or its quaint Spanish-village style-entrance that pleases locals, Carmel Plaza is here to stay and its management wants everyone to take a look inside.

“We have 34 stores now. While some are new and ‘upper-end’ there are so many affordable places mixed in,” says Griffith, who was very instrumental in ensuring the recent renovation would gracefully incorporate the plaza into Carmel’s small-town ambiance.

Beyond the new entrance and the beautiful courtyards and seating areas, visitors to the Plaza discover another new feature — a full-service concierge center, located on the second level next to Cole Haan.

“We will hold your bags for you while you shop, make hotel and dinner recommendations, give references for whatever you are looking to buy and really offer you any help we can,” says Griffith.

Shopping amid the pine trees in a small town is one thing, but being able to locate unique gifts for everyone on a holiday gift-list in one location is exceptional. Carmel Plaza says it would like to be that place for every shopper this season.

Here is a list of stores at Carmel Plaza, and my personal suggestions for a gift from each. Shop ‘til you drop!

Give the gift of a mini-Monterey Peninsula getaway

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

EXTENDED VACATIONS can require a lot of planning, but after soaking up the inevitable stress of "the most wonderful time of the year," a short winter weekend getaway may be the best first step on the road of post-holiday recovery. Spoil your sweetie or woo faraway friends with the gift of a leave-the-details-to-us getaway. Instead of using up precious vacation days or indulging in the usual stay and play hotel packages, these four Monterey Peninsula packages are the perfect excuse for taking an impromptu time-out from chores, silly New Year's resolutions or destressing with your significant other. Sometimes, the best vacations are as close as your own backyard, and when your backyard boasts some of the most scenic spots on the California Coast, it's a gift that everyone on your holiday list — from your hard-to-please in-laws to hopelessly well-heeled best friend will appreciate.

Books shed light on histories of favorite places

By MARY BROWNFIELD

HAVE A history buff on your Christmas list? Or a fan of vintage black and white photos? Or someone who is simply interested in a certain special place, like Carmel-by-the-Sea or Pacific Grove? Tapping into the devotion and knowledge of people who are passionate about the places in which they live, Arcadia Publishing — the largest publisher of regional history books in North America — releases paperbacks filled with old photographs and prose detailing the pasts of some of the most beloved communities across the country.

Locally, Arcadia's Images of America titles include, "Carmel-by-the-Sea," "Presidio of Monterey," "Monterey's Hotel del Monte," "Point Lobos," "Point Sur," "Big Sur," "Monterey Peninsula: The Golden Age," "Pacific Grove," and, most recently, "Carmel: A History of Architecture," and "Monterey Peninsula's Sporting Heritage."

These two new titles, released in October, walk readers through a visual past augmented with tales of people come and gone, trends alive and dead, and economic booms and busts.

al heritage, sited at one of the most scenic meetings of land and sea in the world," Arcadia summarizes in its description of "Carmel: A History of Architecture." Historic-preservation consultant Kent Seavey, who served as the city's historian and has reviewed many of its buildings for their historic significance, wrote the book. The Carmel chronicle is his second work for the publisher, his first being "Pacific Grove."

Supported by photos of examples of notable trends in the small city's architecture — including some rarely seen images — Seavey walks readers through Carmel's past.

Padre Junipero Serra's arrival on the coast and the construction of the San Carlos Borromeo de Carmelo Mission in 1771 led to what would become California's first distinctive architectural style, Mission Revival, and the adjacent Carmel City was first pitched to potential visitors as a Catholic retreat.

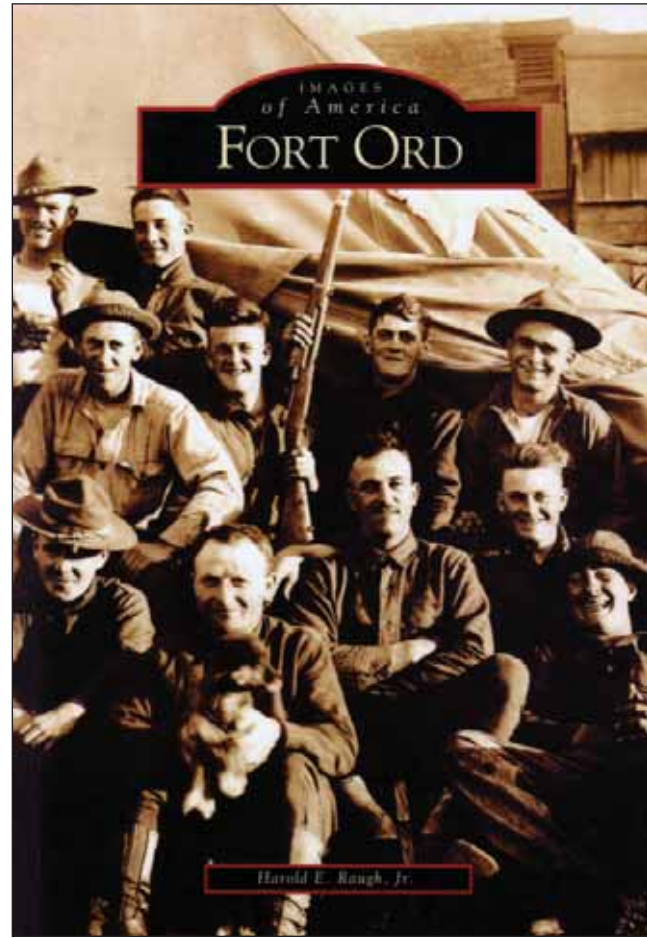

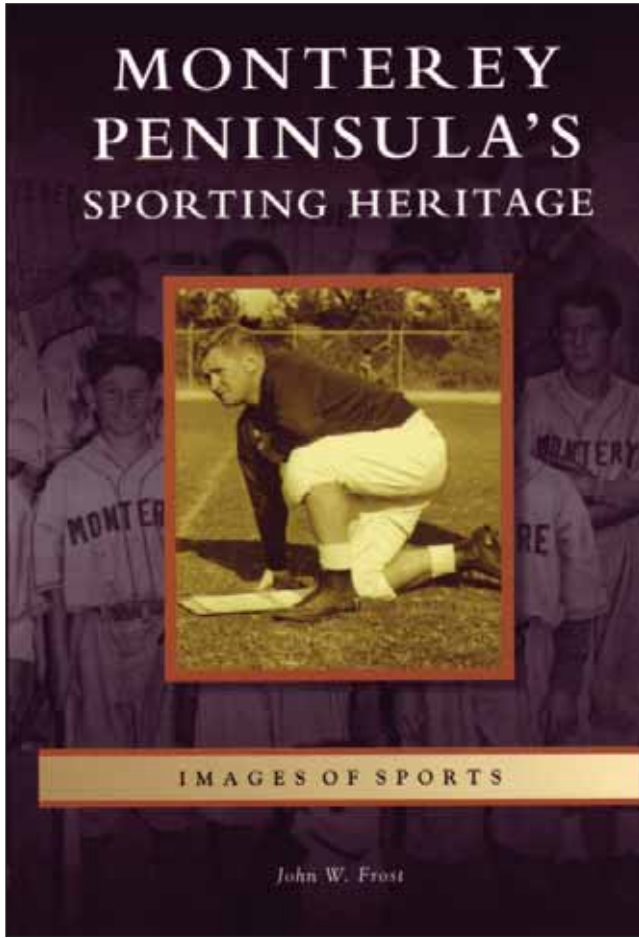

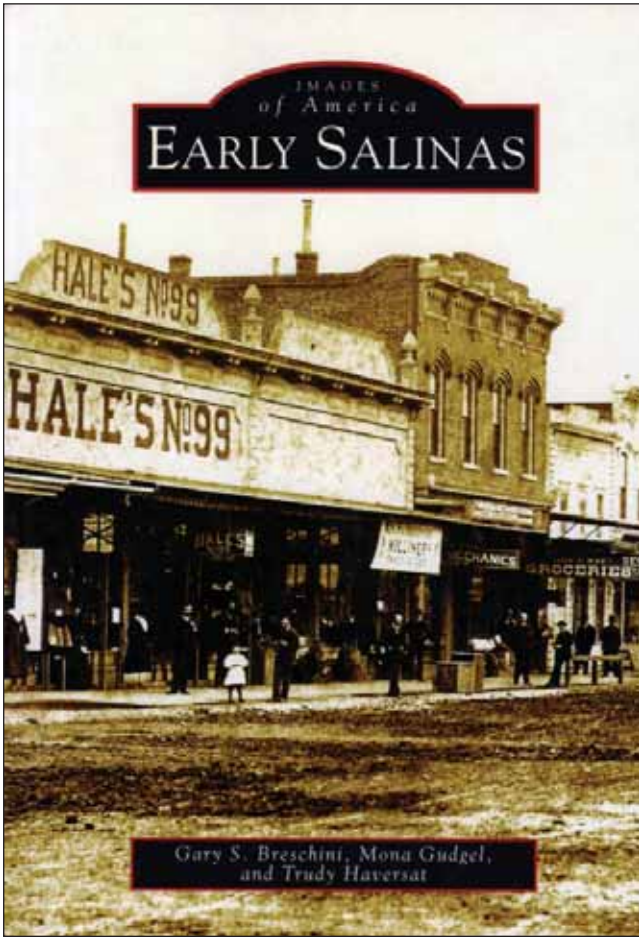

Writers and artists

As it developed, Carmel "survived the imposition of a standard American gridiron street pattern," according to the book. Frank Devendorf and Frank Powers, who founded the Carmel Development Company, are credited with developing and selling some of the first residential lots in Carmel-by-the-Sea in the early 1900s. The town attracted artists, writers and academics who "embraced the arts-and-crafts aesthetic of handcrafted homes built from native materials, informally sited in the landscape."

Tudor Revival and Spanish Romantic Revival styles appeared, complementing Carmel's idyllic coastal setting, and builders like M.J. Murphy and Hugh Comstock imposed their distinctive — and changing — styles on its homes, many of which have become icons.

Devoted to preserving its architectural past, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has created strict and comprehensive rules for updating historic buildings and constructing new homes, and present-day architects, building designers and other craftsmen have adapted their works accordingly.

In the book, Seavey selects hundreds of buildings to highlight, including the Pine Inn — which was placed on giant logs and rolled down Ocean Avenue to its present location — the former Bank of Carmel building, with its 1920s modern style and bas relief — and other distinctly Carmel structures.

Sporting past

John Frost, a former professional tennis player who earned a doctorate in history, “captures the stories that tend to go untold in Monterey history — those of outstanding and ordinary athletes, athletic competitions, and even the sardine fishing industry,” according to Arcadia. Based on Frost’s personal recollections of growing up on the Peninsula (he was born in Monterey in 1934) and the oral histories of those who came before him, the book shares the tales of the Peninsula’s exceptional, and often forgotten, athletes.

“Monterey Peninsula’s Sporting Heritage,” also describes the activities that have drawn visitors from all over the world to the Central Coast and have kept its inhabitants entertained.

“Over the first half of the 20th century, the Monterey Peninsula produced an exceptional number of outstanding athletes, a few of whom earned widespread recognition. They were the offspring of Sicilian fishermen, of contract laborers from Spain, and of Japanese abalone divers — and some were from families that had been here for generations and produced

Solutions for all shoppers: Gifts outside the box

By SUSAN WATTS

THERE ARE three kinds of shoppers: "The Ace Shopper," "The Typical Shopper" and "The Non Shopper."

Ace Shoppers are distinguished by their intent, purpose and organization. They study and contemplate the likes and interests of family members and loved ones. They imagine the joy and surprise resulting from their gracious and generous gift. Careful consideration is given to details of selection and presentation in their gift giving.

Typical shoppers, on the other hand, leisurely patrol malls and shops, looking for gifts that are not too heavy to carry to their car, are in their budget and can go with just a bow, no wrapping.

Lastly, Non Shoppers mainly watch football and enjoy seasonal beverages. On Christmas Eve, they end up sprinting out the door in hopes of finding anything that doesn't cost too much.

As the Big Day draws close, you can actually encounter all three types at local stores. The Non Shoppers are the ones with the panicked looks on their faces.

To help the Non-Shoppers avoid embarrassment when the presents are opened, I have prepared a primer on gift giving to assist them:

❖ Lessons on Gifting and Thinking Out of The Box

The person:

- What do they like?
- How do they spend much of their time?
- Have they dropped any hints lately?

Next, consider what broad category would appeal to the person and circle each category below that is valued most by the person. Circle as many as apply:

- Quality time;
- Adventure;
- Sports;

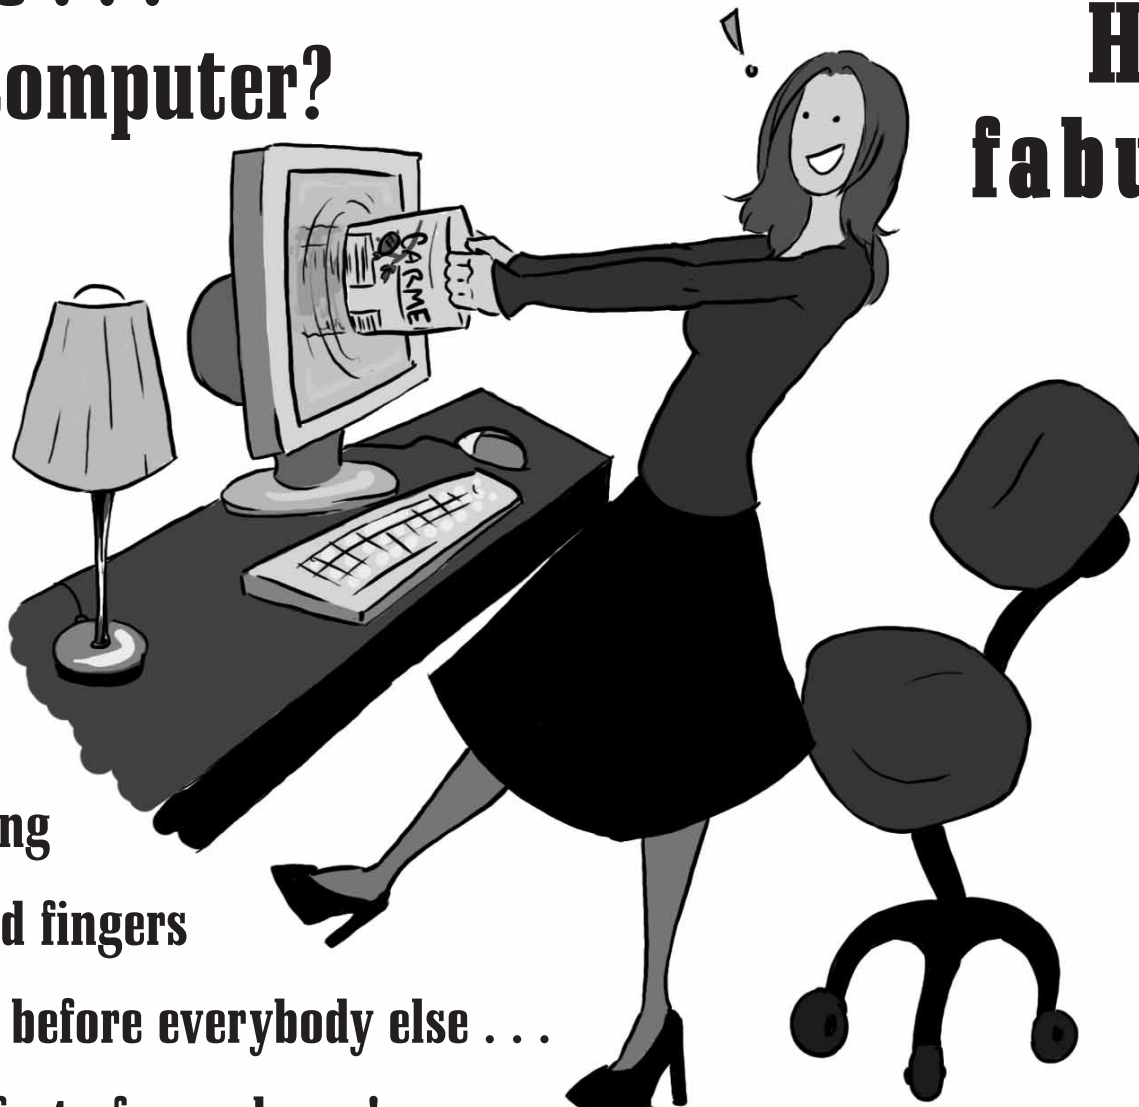

Is somebody on your gift list dreaming of being a race car driver? A gift certificate for the Skip Barber Racing School at Laguna Seca is probably just the ticket ... and it doesn't require any wrapping!

A miracle in seven minutes

By DODIE BARKLEY

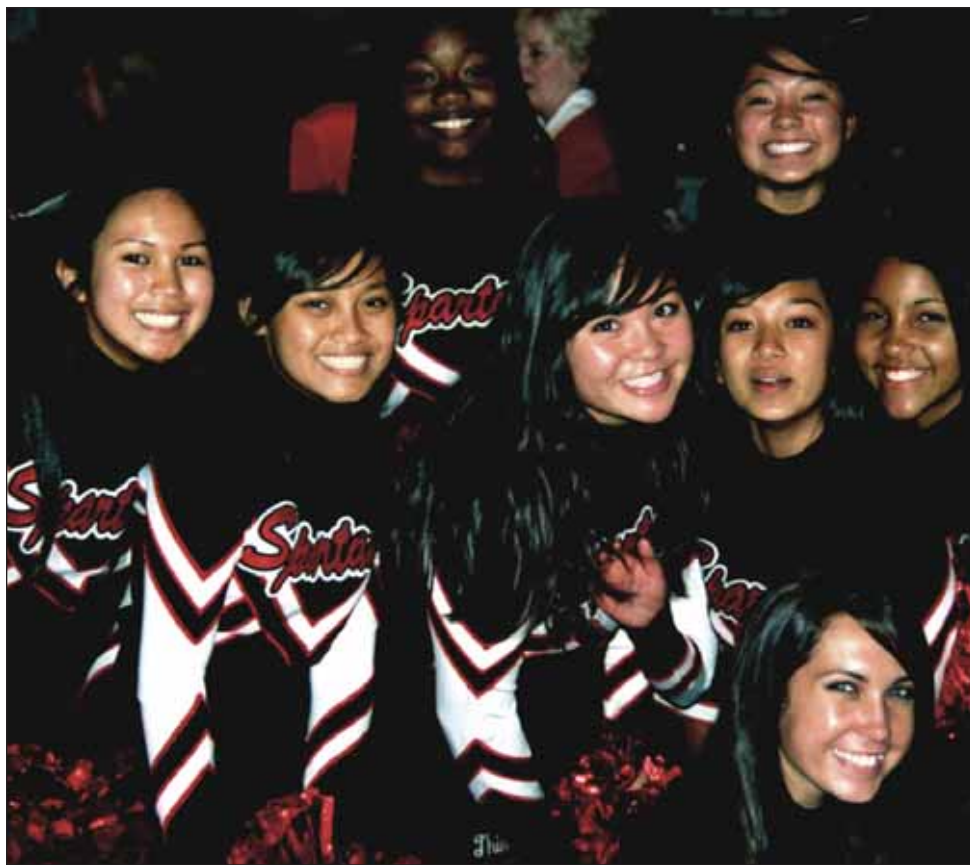

IT HAPPENS every year. Volunteers and Salvation Army Staffers position themselves in front of Stores and Post Offices with red kettles and bells. They ring those bells to remind everyone that Christmas is a time for giving to those of us who are less fortunate than others.

Well, the Bible tells us that God created the world in seven days, but the Salvation Army, armed with those kettles and bells, created a miracle in only seven minutes. Where? Right here in our own backyard at the Inn at Spanish Bay.

Together with celebrities and table sponsors like David Armanasco, Bob and Patty Brower, Morley Brown and Ron Weitzman, Jackie Craghead, Dorothy Finell, Mark Verbonich (of the Pebble Beach Company event sponsor), Temple Elliott, Vern Johnson, Edith Ichiuji, Rob Pappani Merv Sutton and many others, they collected more than $164,000 to jump-start the Salvation Army's Christmas program to help the homeless and other people in need.

Greeting the attendees at the Nov.

PHOTOS/CHURCK SCARDINA

Cheerleaders from Seaside High School performed at the annual Red Kettle Kick-off Luncheon at the Inn at Spanish Bay Nov. 13.

ABOVE: Mark Verbonich (left) of the Pebble Beach Company (one of the sponsors of the Salvation Army luncheon) models the new red jacket, which was a "thank you" souvenir for him. Also receiving Salvation Army jackets were Dan Green and Erin Clark of KSBW-TV. They gave the signal to start the luncheon's frenetic round of collections, which netted almost $170,000.

TOP: Newly elected water board member Bob Brower holds his kettle as Betty Meyer makes a contribution.

13 event was a bevy of adorable cheerleaders from Seaside High School, who warmly shook everyone's hand and greeted them with loud hellos. Later on they gave a rousing performance, lending great fun to the event. What is it about kids at Christmas time that warms the cockles of the heart? WOW!

Each year, former Carmel mayor Ken White, chairman, of the Monterey Peninsula's Salvation Army advisory board, welcomes the guests as they take their seats. He introduced some very successful people who told their story and describing how the Salvation Army had started them in the right direction. One, a local doctor, made us realize how powerfully the Army had influenced him when he was young and poor.

This year, the Salvation Army has given out 20,000 meals, 12,000 lodgings and helped 900 kids. Imagine what else they have donated since being here in Monterey since 1895!

The Pebble Beach Company sponsored the simple, but delicious luncheon of soup and salad and, after viewing a brief film depicting the lives of four women who found help and strength from the Salvation Army, the real fun began.

KSBW news anchors, Dan Green and Erin Clark, introduced all the hosts and hostesses of each table. Most of them are well-known philanthropists. Each host, given a humorous description by Green and Clark, lined up in front of the podium with a red kettle. Green gave them a GO signal and they all had seven minutes in which to rush about the tables and collect as much money as possible. People sat at the tables waving large amounts of dollar bills and reached generously into the kettles to deposit them. You could see the enjoyment the hosts and donors got from the contributions. They couldn't wait to fill up those kettles. One host, Nick Glaser from Sotheby's, carried a tiny boy in his arms as he rushed about the tables, making everyone laugh more and want to give more. Dan Green noted that when a tiny hand asks for money, more is given. The audience cracked up at that remark. I think Green has found two right marks in his life. He is one of the funniest men I have ever seen. He manages to make everything seem hilariously funny and then relates the news each evening with a straight face. Clark is a good straight woman for Green's humor. Wonderful combination!

After Green gives a countdown—five, four, three, two, one—the hosts must stop and bring their kettles to the kitchen where from 30-45 local CPAs take a kettle and count all the money within. As the audience waited to hear the final tally, Green and Clark conducted an auction and door prize drawings. The auction raised approximately $6,000.

The three tables that made the most money were Temple Elliott, $23,821; Morley Brown, $22,181; and Vern Johnson, $21,480. Just incredible!

To host a table for ten costs only $200, and the ten people contribute $20 each, so think about it for next year. Call the Salvation Army become a host/hostess. This is one of the great yearly events and assures everyone that their money is going to be well used.

Almost $170,000 collected during the Salvation Army's annual Red Kettle Kick-Off luncheon

Making a church service part of your Christmas

❖ Carmel Presbyterian Church Corner of Ocean Ave. and Junipero (831) 624-3878

The church will offer a Christmas Concert, Saturday, Dec. 15, at 7 p.m. This concert will include both choral and orchestra music. Admission is free.

Christmas Eve Services — three candlelit services will mark the evening:

4:30 p.m. — Featuring music by children;

6 and 7:30 p.m. — Traditional services that will conclude with attendees holding their candles and singing Silent Night before the Living Nativity in front of the church.

❖ Church in the Forest (Multi-demoniational) 3152 Forest Lake Road Pebble Beach (831) 624-1374

For those who live in Del Monte Forest, an exceptional Christmas Eve service awaits at the Church in the Forest. Situated in the middle of soaring pines, visitors will wonder if they aren't sitting deep within the forest while in the sanctuary. Redwood pillars, pebble-inlaid, aggregate floors and a soaring four-story altar window with the trees as its backdrop add depth to this picturesque sanctuary. "Our church is 'all dressed up' during the Christmas season and our acoustics are amazing," says Kay Gameiro, church receptionist. When music from the Steinway Grand Piano, pipe organ and brass (added specially for this season) fills this sanctum, visitors understand why the church is selected annually for the Bach Festival.

Christmas Eve Services at Church in the Forest will take place at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

❖ Church of the Wayfarer (Methodist) Corner of 7th and Lincoln, Carmel (831) 624-3550

One of Carmel's oldest churches will feature three Christmas Eve Services:

5 p.m. — Family worship with the children's choir;

8 p.m. — Traditional service with Wayfarer Singers;

11 p.m. — Christmas Carol Sing-Along;

All three services will be candlelit and have a Christmas sermon entitled, "A Boy Named Jesus," given by Dr. Norm Mowery.

Arcadia Publishing, based in South Carolina, has utilized an innovative means of growing its book titles to more than 4,000 since its founding in 1993 as a small publisher of local history. It produces books in its Images of America, Images of Rail, Images of Sports, Images of Baseball, Black America, Postcard History, Campus History, Corporate History, Scenes of America, and Then & Now series by accepting submissions and seeking proposals on local history topics. The authors, who usually have personal ties to the areas about which they are writing, work with regional publishing teams to compile images for their works.

All of its titles — most of which sell for about $20 — can be found at www.arcadiapublishing.com. And since they're paperbacks, they fit nicely in a Christmas stocking or don't take up too much room under the
