POTTER: THE CROSS CAN STAY

By PAUL MILLER

A MONTEREY county supervisor said this week the county would not try to force the owner of a 40-acre ranch in Carmel Valley to remove a modest wooden cross he erected seven years ago on top of a hill above Carmel Valley Road.

Supervisor Dave Potter also said Monterey County will consider changes to ordinances that require complicated permits for very simple structures.

"I talked to [county administrator] Lew Bauman, and we agreed it's ridiculous to take an enforcement action against the owner of the cross," Potter told The Pine Cone. "The county will stay enforcement while we work on an ordinance that would set up an administrative process for things which are de minimis."

would have to get a permit for it, including site plans, setbacks and permit fees of up to $1,000.

But Scholink questioned the permit requirement, because

According to Potter, after consulting with the head of the county building department, Tim McCormick, he realized that, "technically, the cross is in violation" of the county code, along with numerous other structures around the county, such as treehouses, swing sets and flagpoles.

Last fall, after a complaint from a neighbor — whose name is being kept confidential by the county — the county building department told the owner of the cross, Larry Scholink, he

Advanced treatment plant ready for testing

■ A drought-proof water supply for Pebble Beach's golf courses

By KELLY NIX

AFTER YEARS of planning, fundraising and construction, testing will begin this week at a new sewage treatment plant on the south bank of the Carmel River to convert wastewater into pristine irrigation water for the famed golf courses of Pebble Beach.

The new treatment plant, located just across the Carmel River from the Carmel Mission, will be turned on for the first time Friday, as workers from the Carmel Area Wastewater District test a reverse osmosis filtration system that will reduce the mineral content of reclaimed wastewater used to irrigate Del Monte Forest's golf greens and athletic fields.

Previously, golf greens that were irrigated with recycled water from CAWD had to be periodically flushed with drinking water because the salt content of the recycled water was too high.

By making it possible to eliminate use of drinking water, the new reverse osmosis system will save about 270 acre-feet of precious potable water every year, which amounts to about 88 million gallons, said CAWD general manager Ray von Dohren. And that's on top of the recycled water that's already being used.

With the Monterey Peninsula facing strict new water conservation limits, the savings could be significant.

"Altogether, about 316 million gallons per

Council may revive art festival with $30,000

By CHRIS COUNTS

JUST A week after this year's Carmel Art Festival was canceled, Mayor Sue McCloud said the city council will consider contributing $30,000 to the event. If the council approves the bailout at its meeting Thursday evening, the art festival will likely return this spring for its 15th year.

"We've offered to bail them out because we think think this is an event that should go forward," McCloud explained.

Whether the money will be a loan or a gift is unclear. McCloud met this week with city administrator Rich Guillen, Carmel Chamber

Food and wine fest a hit in its first year

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ORGANIZERS OF last weekend's Pebble Beach Food & Wine only got about five hours of sleep during the week leading up to it, cofounder and vice president David Bernahl speculated. And, by all accounts, their hard work paid off in the form of satiated participants, pleased chefs, satisfied vintners and contented sponsors. Many have already pledged to return for the 2009 event next April — and they plan to bring their friends, too.

"We had more than 3,000 people for the weekend. It's pretty amazing," Bernahl said this week, including 2,000 attendees of the Lexus Grand Tasting in the two-acre tent at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center Saturday and Sunday.

"For a first year event, we couldn't be more pleased," said Pebble Beach Company President Cody Plott.

"Next year, you ride in on a white horse," said Jessie Sartain of Chefs in America, to Bernahl, who was wearing a white suit Sunday.

The four-day PBF&W, which was staged at the resort's five facilities, included wine tasting seminars, chefs' demonstrations, lunches, dinners and the Grand Tastings. The most exclusive offering of the Standing on a patio at Spanish Bay today, listening to bagpipes serenade a sunset over the Pacific, it's hard to imagine this as an industrial area. But it was. For more than seven decades, millions of tons of gleaming white sand were hauled off the beach west of 17 Mile Drive and taken to plants to make glass for windows, jars, stucco, and ceramics. The sand mining started circa 1900 and grew into an industry large enough to be compared to the booming sardine canneries in Monterey in the 1930s and '40s. Two processing and bagging plants off what is now Congress Road turned out a trainload of cleaned sand each day. Del Monte Properties Company made huge profits from the operation, enough to carry the company through the Depression. The plants closed in 1973, after the state enacted environmental laws to restrict the waste that can be dumped into the ocean. Next week: PG's Magic Carpet.

Men arrested for impromptu hotel burglary

By MARY BROWNFIELD

POLICE ARRESTED three suspected burglars outside a San Carlos Street inn early Tuesday morning and cited a fourth person for possession of drug paraphernalia after the manager heard noise in the lobby and called the cops.

"It was 3:40 a.m. There shouldn't have been anybody in there," explained Carmel Police Officer Chris Johnson. "It was a basic report of a burglary in progress called in by the live-in manager. When we got there, we ended up confronting five people in the parking lot."

Guns drawn, Johnson and officer Ricardo Mendoza quickly determined four had scattered throughout the lot, some hiding behind cars, while a fifth ran. Johnson ordered that man to stop and, once the suspect was lying on the ground, held him at Taser point. Mendoza kept the others at gunpoint, and everyone stayed put until Monterey County Sheriff's deputies arrived a few minutes later to help.

"With only two officers and five people, we called for the sheriff's office. We didn't have enough manpower," he said. Not to mention handcuffs.

"You can't investigate the lobby, process evidence and try to interview five people and keep them separated," Johnson said. "The sheriff's deputies helped us a lot to identify people, get them searched and keep them detained."

With the four men and one woman in custody, police learned during questioning that Kristen Garlit, a Svendsgaard's Inn employee who assists the live-in manager by staying overnight to address guests' after-hours requests, had invited her boyfriend and three of his friends over, according to Johnson. While she and her boyfriend were off by themselves, the three others found her master keys for Svendsgaard's and other Inns by the Sea properties.

They let themselves into a vacant guest room and took a television, and then entered the lobby, Johnson said.

They reportedly grabbed a stereo, money and part of a computer system before Garlit walked in, saw what they were doing and told them to put the items back. No guests were victims.

"Everybody pretty much confessed," he said, adding that none of the men have criminal records.

Johnson reported 21-year-old Salinas resident Jeffrey Paul Edwards, Marina resident Fidel Rodriguez Diaz, 20, and 21-year-old Germaine Amos Johnson of Seaside were arrested and charged with burglary, conspiracy and possession of prescription medication. One of the men got ill and was taken to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula by ambulance, while the other two were lodged at Monterey County Jail.

"We also arrested the victim employee, because she had a meth pipe on her," Johnson said of Garlit, who was cited and released from the station.

New Golden Bough to be quieter, prettier, more comfortable

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FUNDRAISING IS ramping up as plans solidify for the $6 million makeover of the Golden Bough Playhouse, according to Stephen Moorer, executive director of Pacific Repertory Theatre. As architect R.F. McCann finished the preliminary design and moved on to schematics — defining every detail of the proposed demolition and rebuild — the PacRep board hired Jim Bennett to run the capital campaign, promoted Moorer and brought in Kenneth Kelleher to fill the artistic director job Moorer held for 26 years.

“We finished the pre-design, where we identified everything we wanted to do — all the problems we wanted to solve and the goals for the project,” he said, including pleasing neighbors, artists and audiences.

For the people who live near the Golden Bough, located on Monte Verde Street a block-and-a-half from city hall, noise is the key issue.

“When we play ‘The Buddy Holly Story’ or ‘High School Musical,’ you can hear the electric guitars down the block at [former Mayor] Ken White’s house and at the beach,” Moorer said. “And if the wind’s right, you can hear it in Monterey.”

Residents also complain about parking on theater nights.

Little can be done about that on the Golden Bough property. But Moorer suggested the city consider an “arts shuttle” to carry people from restaurants, inns and other parts of town to Carmel’s three theater venues on Friday and Saturday nights.

Inside the theater, problems that need rectifying include a stage that creaks when people walk across it, the lack of sound insulation, which means “when someone sneezes in another part of the building, you can hear it in the auditorium,” and three tiny dressing rooms which “are embarrassingly inadequate,” Moorer said. They fit just a few people at a time, making preparation for a show with a large cast a challenge in itself.

The playhouse lacks modern technology, and Moorer said its systems are failing. The electrical components can’t handle the demand of productions, and “the plumbing is a nightmare.” Termites have gnawed away at the wood in the old building, and all anyone who wants a memento from the Golden Bough has to do is walk by and pick up a bit of roofing that blows off daily.

“This building won’t last,” Moorer said.

The Golden Bough, which was a movie house for decades, has no fly loft from which sets can be lowered, or wings on either side of the stage, so McCann’s plans call for an expansive basement and elevators below the stage. And to make scene changes even easier, a permanent turntable would be built into the stage.

“The scene shop will be in the new basement,” Moorer continued. Sets have been built and stored outside, exposing them and the workers to the elements while creating an eyesore for the neighbors.

going to put in more bathrooms, aren’t you?” said Moorer, who finds it perplexing the 300-seat theater was constructed a half century ago with only two stalls in the women’s restroom and one in the men’s. More will shorten the time people have to wait in line during intermission.

Finally, a new lobby will accommodate patrons far better than the small space that maxes out at 120 people even though the theater holds more than twice that.

In order to achieve those goals while conforming with height restrictions and setbacks, the theater layout will be reversed so the stage backs onto Monte Verde Street, where the lobby is now. People will still enter from that street and follow a courtyard to a doorway on the side, according to Moorer, but the switch will allow for extensive basement space underneath the stage for the elevators, dressing rooms, scenery and other necessities of live theater. It will also mean the larger lobby will offer spellbinding views of Point Lobos.

It will have new walls, roof, floor, stage, basement, bathrooms and infrastructure, but the Golden Bough will not grow by a single theater seat.

Nor will the small Circle Theatre below the Bough’s main stage change. At least, not for now. A second phase of the PacRep capital campaign might raise another $4 million to overhaul the smaller venue, but “the $6 million first phase focuses on the main stage theater,” Moorer said. “That’s where the majority of the neighbor complaints come from, audience complaints come from and artists’ complaints come from.”

The new theater’s exterior might be English Tudor style with gables, decks and courtyards that will complement its surroundings, according to Moorer.

“It will be so much better for the neighbors to look at,” he said. “We are really sensitive about that — we have to be.”

In fact, though the building is not historic, the site is, since it was occupied by the arts and crafts building that hosted Carmel’s earliest theatrical productions in 1906, according to

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Loud noise investigated with tall ladder

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week.

This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

FRIDAY, MARCH 21

Carmel area: At 1244 hours, sheriff's patrol units were dispatched to a coastal incident at Whaler's Cove, Point Lobos. A male had reported that he had lost contact with his wife while they were kayaking and diving in the cove. The husband had searched the surface for his wife and then reported her missing. Sheriff's helicopter (STAR 1) volunteered to respond to assist with the search. STAR 1 lifted off from Salinas Airport and arrived on scene in 10 minutes. STAR 1 searched the area for about two minutes, at which point the crew spotted a female on the surface in the outer/middle part of the cove, about 200 yards from shore. Crew directed Carmel Highlands Cal Fire rescue boat to the female. Highlands Fire confirmed it was the female being searched for and reported she was exhausted but otherwise uninjured. The Highlands Fire rescue boat crew was able to lift the female onto the boat and transport her to shore. Sheriff's search and rescue, and state parks also assisted with the incident. Ambulance responded from Carmel and contacted the patient and her husband. They were evaluated and released. Both signed medical release forms.

SATURDAY, MARCH 22

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen found a dog loose in the business area on San Carlos Street. The dog was brought to the police department and secured in a kennel. The owner called into the department to report the dog missing and was advised of the dog's location. A friend of the owner came to retrieve the dog and paid the kennel fees. A warning was given.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Found men's wallet in the area of Junipero and Fifth Avenue, Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on public property on Junipero. Property damage only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported finding a loose dog at her residence on Santa Rita. Officer responded to the residence and then transported the dog to the police department kennel for safekeeping. Attempts to contact the owner were made from information on the collar. Later, the owner was advised and came to the department to retrieve her dog. The dog had escaped, due to a gate left open by a visitor to the residence. Fees were paid and a warning was given.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Carmel Fire called Carmel P.D. and reported a subject walked into the station on Sixth Avenue to get first aid for a dog bite. Firefighters reported the patient suffered a small bite to the left forearm, and bleeding was controlled. Wound bandaged and patient advised to go to CHOMP for further evaluation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male subject, age 39, was arrested on Carpenter Street for possession of controlled substance paraphernalia.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine, ambulance and chief were dispatched to a coastal incident at Scenic and Santa Lucia. Upon arrival, met up with state parks lifeguards, who had a visual on persons in the water. After lifeguard made entry into the water, it was determined the persons were not in distress, just recovering kite-surfing equipment from the rocks.

Carmel Valley: A party called 911 to report an unidentified male entered the Safeway grocery store and attempted to steal a bottle of alcohol.

Carmel area: Sheriff's office dispatch requested a welfare check on an anonymous female on Tolando Trail after she called 911 and said she was depressed. Case suspended.

Carmel Valley: A subject on Miramonte Road reported tension between himself and another person over money. Case suspended.

EASTER

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a non-injury collision on San Carlos Street on public property. Property damage only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen found a dog at large on Monte Verde Street. The dog was transported to Carmel P.D. by the animal control. CPD was unable to contact the owner, and the dog was transported to MCAS by the officer at 1620 hours due to the fact the dog was a barker when placed in the CPD kennel. The owner came to CPD after hours at approximately 1950 hours. Both kennel and transport fees were paid. Owner was warned

City loses Robert Evans, another Eastwood councilman

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ROBERT EVANS, who once owned a downtown dinner theater, had his home annexed into the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea so he could be involved in its politics and was appointed to the city council by Mayor Clint Eastwood, died March 25 at the age of 96.

Born Christmas Day in New York City in 1911, Evans graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Columbia College when he was 19. He studied economics at New York University Graduate School of Business Administration and during World War II headed the Wood Pulp Allocation Office of the War Production Board. While the United States fought in the Korean War, he served as a consultant for the National Production Authority.

Though his initial career focused on investments, he went on to work in paper products and packaging, overseeing plants that produced telephone poles, boxes, and much of the country's bible pages and cigarette papers, according to his son, Carmel Knolls resident Bob Evans. The family lived in Louisiana. "He traveled quite a bit to the different facilities," he said. "And in 1953, we made the grand tour of the West."

They packed up the family station wagon and hit Route 66, visiting National Parks and ending up at an inn on San Carlos Street called the Cheerful Tortoise. "After that, every summer they rented a house in Carmel, and we drove night and day to get out of the heat of the desert," Bob Evans said.

Their son was the first to move to town full time around 1960, while Evans, who had become active in the arts, theater construction and public works initiatives in Monroe, La., followed five years later, when the projects were complete.

"We all kind of knew that we didn't like living in Louisiana with mosquitos the size of small birds, the heat and humidity," he said. "Carmel was just ideal."

Bob Evans' sister, Janvrin Wells, and her husband, William, moved to Carmel as well, the latter working for a time as editor of The Pine Cone.

Around 1965, mother, father and son bought the Studio Theatre and Restaurant on Dolores Street, where the Winfield Gallery is now, and ran it for a decade.

"My mother sewed costumes, and I produced the shows and built the sets, and for a number of years, my dad did a lot of the publicity," he said. Evans also acted in some productions, usually playing the father figure. "My mother and Dad backed out of it after about three years, but they were always there and supportive of it."

They sold the theater in 1975, and it continued to operate for another decade. The family still owns the building.

Carmel comes to Evans

Having been involved in city politics and community service in Monroe, Evans sought a role in Carmel as well. But the house he and his wife had bought at the south end of town was outside the city limits.

"He annexed his portion of Dolores Street into the City of Carmel just so he could be active in city politics," Bob Evans said. "It's noted on city records as the Evans Annexation."

Evans served on almost every city board, including the arts, cultural, planning and forest commissions, as well as the public library board. His final city hall post was as a councilman appointed by Mayor Clint Eastwood to fill a vacancy in October 1986. He did not run for the office in 1988.

"He served for the time he was appointed and decided that was enough," Bob Evans said. "He and Clint remained friends all through the years. I don't know how recently they talked, but they used to talk fairly regularly."

Even though he no longer occupied a seat behind the dais, Evans — who was also described by his son as being, at one time or another, an equestrian, a sailor, an orchid grower, a philatelist, a birder, an instructor and an art collector — remained an active contributor to the city he adored. He helped fund the Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center, which is named for his mother, and develop the center's Chapman and Bingham rooms.

And his voice continued to be heard in city hall.

"He never hesitated to write the mayor and express his opinion," said Bob Evans, who recalled a conversation with former Mayor Ken White. "Ken told me how much he admired my dad. He said, 'I used to ask him for advice all the time, and once I got it, I would always do the opposite.'"

He most recently opposed the city's installation of a temporary speed bump on his street. It was removed the morning of March 25, and he died hours later, after weeks of attempting to recover from hip surgery necessitated by a fall in January. "He said he was tired," Bob Evans said. "He had led a good life, and that was it."

No service will be held for Evans, whose ashes will be scattered by his grandson, Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance paramedic Graham Evans, over Lake Atitlan in Guatemala. "Carmel and Guatemala were two of his favorite places," Bob Evans explained.

Robert Evans is survived by his sister, his wife, his son and daughter from his first marriage, his former wife, four grandsons and three great-grandchildren. Memorial contributions can be made in his name to the Carmel Foundation, the Carmel Public Library Foundation or the Community Hospital Auxiliary.

Shouldn't a village of neighbors have a City Council to match?

I think so and that's why I'm running. I pledge to listen to you and work with you.

We need an open, responsive government for all of us here in Carmel.

As YOUR Councilmember, I will:

- ▶ Put issues of public safety FIRST
- ▶ Stand for fiscal responsibility
- ▶ Protect Carmel's unique character
- ▶ Work for a healthy urban forest
- ▶ Support the arts and culture
- ▶ Treat all residents with respect

I've lived and worked here for 32 years. I've spent 6 years on the Design Review Board. I know what makes Carmel special. I want to help keep it that way.

I would appreciate your vote on April 8th.

SPRING Into Action!

Conserve water now to make a difference in the summer.

Conserving water is important during any time of year, and taking special care to be efficient during springtime can make a big difference. Almost 50 percent of residential water use is outdoors. Limiting the use of sprinklers and automated irrigation systems during April and May means water will be available in the dry months ahead.

HERE ARE A FEW WAYS YOU CAN
"SPRING INTO ACTION" NOW:

- Wait before you water outdoors. Keeping your sprinklers off during April and May saves you money and helps protect our environment.
- When you do need to water, do it in the early morning when there is less wind.
- Replace high water use plants with water-efficient varieties.
- Give your irrigation system a spring tune-up and repair all leaks and worn nozzles.
- Renovate your irrigation system and incorporate water-efficient products, including weather-based controllers, rain shut off devices and drip irrigation systems.
- Apply mulch in landscape beds to reduce water loss.
- Consider replacing portions of your lawn with water-efficient plants, ornamental grasses and decorative hardscapes.

Get your free water-saving devices, helpful tools, and information about rebates that are available for installing water-efficient irrigation products and indoor high-efficiency appliances from California American Water today!

Paramedics added to fire crews

By MARY BROWNFIELD

COME MONDAY, fire engines headed to emergencies in Carmel Highlands, Pebble Beach and the areas surrounding Carmel will carry paramedics, Cal Fire Chief George Haines announced this week.

"This will provide the fastest possible response to the people," said Haines, who heads the San Benito-Monterey unit of the state agency that runs the Cypress, Pebble Beach and Highlands fire districts. "Since 50 percent to 70 percent of our calls are medicals, this is a natural extension of what we do."

According to statistics, those districts' engines are on scene within four minutes 92 percent of the time, and they are often the first to arrive. For the best chances of survival, national standards recommend patients receive basic life support within four minutes and get advanced life support — provided by paramedics — within eight minutes at least 90 percent of the time.

The shift toward adding a paramedic firefighter began with P.B. Fire when it contracted for a medic to staff a "quick response vehicle" because ambulances took longer to arrive at emergencies in Del Monte Forest.

"Later on, they explored the idea of continuing that and adding a fourth firefighter the engine, and we decided we could do both: put a fourth firefighter on the engine, and it would be a paramedic," he said.

Its board of directors, as well as those in the Highlands and Cypress districts, recognized the benefits and directed Haines and his staff to make it happen. And because their funding comes from property taxes, they are not confronting the shortfalls that have become commonplace in cities.

"The credit for the implementation of the paramedics goes to the boards of the three districts," he said. "They're the ones who really wanted to get it going."

Cal Fire trained a dozen paramedic firefighters. They had to receive county accreditation, which included logging a certain number of calls of various types, and the busy Salinas Fire Department agreed to let the trainees ride on their engines to fulfill those requirements, according to Haines. They also had to complete Cal Fire's academy.

Since last November, paramedic firefighters have been riding engines dispatched from Pebble Beach and Carmel Hill, and Carmel Highlands followed a month later. Starting April 7, Cypress Fire's Rio Road station will have them on board as well.

"I'm really pleased this is happening," he said. "It's a huge step forward for the people in those districts."

Candidates wrap up campaigns, bring in $$

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CANDIDATES FOR Carmel's city council and mayor are using the final days of their campaigns to meet and greet voters, mail fliers and ensure their names and issues are on people's minds when they cast their ballots April 8.

But they have also reported being satisfied with the time they spent stumping for office and becoming better acquainted with their constituents and the city.

"You learn a lot more during the campaign than you do during the rest of the year," commented council candidate Karen Sharp, who was appointed to replace Mike Cunningham last summer and is making her first election bid. "People tell you what their concerns are, what we should do."

Ken Talmage, who was appointed to the council in December 2006 after Erik Bethel left for Shanghai, is also orchestrating his first campaign for office.

"You stand in front of the post office and people will have a favorite issue, and they want to share it with you and give their opinion," Talmage said. "I don't think you'd find that in other communities — that's unique about Carmel."

Challenger Michael LePage, a longtime resident also new to the campaign trail, said he was impressed by people's commitment to their town.

"I've been going door to door to get to know people," he said. "An election like this is really just about neighbors talking to neighbors."

Mayor Sue McCloud is seeking her fifth term virtually unchallenged, since the only other mayoral candidate, Dogman McBill, has been largely absent.

As a result, McCloud said she has scaled down her campaign efforts in order to focus on pressing city issues like the

STATE BOARD HEARS PROS AND CONS OF WATER CUTBACK ORDER

By KELLY NIX

THOSE OPPOSED to a state order compelling California American Water Co. to drastically reduce pumping from the Carmel River, as well as those who think it's a great idea, gave the state water board an earful this week at a hearing in Monterey.

On Tuesday, more than 30 speakers at the Monterey Conference Center weighed in on the State Water Resources Control Board's draft cease and desist order issued Jan. 15, which calls for a cut in river pumping from 15 to 50 percent within six years.

The public statements made Tuesday will be taken into consideration by the board before a June 19 hearing in Sacramento when Cal Am and the SWRCB will present evidence regarding the order, and testimony will be taken from local officials, including from the City of Carmel.

About one-third of the speakers told SWRCB board members Gary Wolff and Arthur G. Baggett, Jr., they supported the cease and desist order, while the rest said they opposed it.

"You have raised a brouhaha of great proportion in our community," Manuel Fierro of Monterey told the two directors. "I support the cease and desist order. Why? Because our leaders have done so little over so long a time to solve the water problems."

But Carrie Theis, president of the Carmel Innkeepers Association, said her industry is doing all it can to use less water, including using low-flow shower heads and reusing towels and bed linens. And she said the cease and desist order could have drastic economic consequences.

"I need to make it unequivocally clear," she said, "that our association members could not keep their doors open for business if they had to comply with this order."

The draft order alleges that since 2000, Cal Am has illegally diverted at least 7,164 acre-feet of water from the Carmel River and that the illegal diversions are detrimental to the threatened steelhead fish and red-legged frog that inhabit the river.

Not surprisingly, the hospitality industry on the Monterey Peninsula opposes the order, arguing it will severely impact business. Less water means less tourism, they contend.

"The proposed water cutbacks are highly unfair," said Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce President Moe Ammar. "It is unfair to the residents; it's unfair to the businesses."

The SWRCB's draft cease and desist order comes 13 years after the agency issued Order 95-10 limiting Cal Am's water rights in Carmel Valley.

Nancy Pratt, a Del Mesa Carmel resident who supports the cease and desist order, said Order 95-10 has not been taken seriously.

"For 13 years, Cal Am, the MPWMD, the board of supervisors and the Peninsula cities have allowed new construction and issued new water permits," Pratt said. [Her comments did not acknowledge the permit moratorium that has been in effect in most jurisdictions since 95-10 was issued.]

One Monterey resident who opposed the order said it won't be Cal Am that bears the brunt of the state decree.

"It makes no difference if Cal Am doesn't have the water," he said. Instead, the company's customers will be told, "You get less and we will charge more."

But Lawson Little, president of Quail Lodge, defended Cal Am while also saying his business was under great stress because of the area's water problem.

"They spend money telling their customers not to buy their product," Little said.

of Commerce CEO Monta Potter, city councilwoman Paula Hazdovac and marketing consultant Jeff Burghardt to discuss the festival's cancellation.

"The purpose of the meeting was to see if there was anything we could do" to save this year's festival, McCloud reported. If the event is canceled, "it would be twice as hard to restart."

McCloud heard from local businesses owners who told her it was too late to cancel this year's event, which is supposed to take place May 15-18.

"We heard from innkeepers that people have reserved rooms for the festival," McCloud recounted. "We also heard from gallery owners who had taken out ads in magazines."

The cancellation of the festival came as a surprise to many people, particularly the participating artists, many of whom bemoaned its demise.

The four-day festival, which is presented by the Carmel Gallery Alliance, features a plein aire competition, an art exhibit for Carmel youths, a sculpture show in Devendorf Park, a "quick draw" contest and a day of arts-related activities for kids.

Even with the help of the city, McCloud said the festival needs help from the public.

"I would hope there will be members of the community who will join the city council's efforts to fund the festival," she added.

Tammi Tharp — president of the festival's board of directors — said the decision to cancel the event was not easy to make.

"We all had tears in our eyes when we voted," said Tharp of fellow board members. "There was no joy in making that decision."

Tharp said the city's tentative offer to help finance the festival came as a big surprise.

"It really touches my heart that people care about the festival," she added. "We're back on the bus."

CRASH

ger seat of the 1992 Ford Explorer driven by 45-year-old Sand City resident Marcelo Barragan. Near the intersection of Via Petra, Barragan turned left in front of a Peterbilt tractor-trailer traveling west on Carmel Valley Road at the posted speed of 55 mph.

Covello reported the morning sun was shining in Barragan's eyes when "the passenger told him to go ahead and turn." He drove directly into the path of the oncoming big rig piloted by 34-year-old Jeffrey Khune of Salinas.

Khune slammed on the brakes but could not stop the Peterbilt from broadsiding the Explorer.

"You're dealing with tens of thousands of pounds versus a 4,000- to 5,000-pound SUV," Covello said. The impact pushed the SUV more than 300 feet backward before it came to a stop in the middle of the road. Khune's Peterbilt jack-knifed, careened off the road and struck a tree.

During the Friday morning commute, the two westbound lanes were closed for 45 minutes, with the right lane blocked for an additional hour and 15 minutes, as emergency crews tended to the injured and cleared the wreckage.

Due to the severity of his injuries, Catugda was flown by CALSTAR helicopter to Regional Medical Center of San Jose.

"At first we thought the passenger might be fatal, because he suffered major fractures, collapsed lungs, multiple blunt force trauma," Covello said. "But being a 25-year-old, he was able to bounce back," though he remained in ICU.

An ambulance took Barragan, who also sustained major injuries, to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, while Khune went to CHOMP for treatment of minor injuries after complaining of pain.

Covello said he does not know whether the SUV driver will be cited for the accident, which is still under investiga-

Good Old Days return with parade, music and arts & crafts,

By KELLY NIX

BESIDES A parade, live entertainment on four stages and other family events, the upcoming Good Old Days in Pacific Grove will feature 240 vendors of arts and crafts from 16 states.

The 51st annual Good Old Days Festival will be held April 12-13 in downtown Pacific Grove.

"This is the largest arts and crafts fair in Monterey County," said P.G. Chamber of Commerce president Moe Ammar.

The highlight of the event is "an old-fashioned patriotic parade," which features 100 entries, including equestrian clubs, the Wells Fargo stagecoach, military bands, color guards, antique vehicles and motorcycle drill team.

"You will not see a logo or a banner promoting a company," Ammar said.

The parade's grand marshal will be John Miller, who was the city's recreation director until he was laid off because of budget problems.

"He worked for the city for 38 years and was director of special events for 20 years," Ammar said.

Entertainment is set on four stages with more than 70 bands, performers and shows. Besides regulars such as Red Beans & Rice, The Cachagua Playboys and Chicano All Stars, the festival will host Culann's Hounds, an Irish band from San Francisco. Some Culann's Hounds members graduated from Pacific Grove High School in 1986, Ammar said.

"This will be the first time they have come back to perform in Pacific Grove at a festival," he said.

Some of the family-oriented activities include carnival rides, bocce ball, an antique fashion show and a pie-eating contest.

The festival will also allow the public to dunk city officials such as Mayor Dan Cort and councilman Alan Cohen to raise funds for the P.G. High lacrosse team.

Because of the city's budget constraints, the police motorcycle competition won't be held this year. But Ammar said the chamber is working on bringing it back next year.

A Sustainability Faire is new this year and includes workshops and demonstrations about local environmental programs.

Of course, Good Old Days will feature an eclectic mix of tasty grub.

"We have 30 food vendors," Ammar said. "If you want seafood, Middle Eastern, Hawaiian, Thai, German or Swiss ... you name the food, you will find a vendor at Good Old Days selling it."

For more information about Good Old Days, visit www.pacificgrove.org or call the chamber of commerce at (831) 373-3304.

WATER

year will be saved," said von Dohren.

Stored in winter for use in summer

The treated water from the reverse osmosis system — which forces water through microfilters — will be pumped to the 100 million gallon Forest Lake Reservoir in Pebble Beach, where it will be stored for use on the golf course and athletic fields of Del Monte Forest.

In the summer, when demand for irrigation is at its greatest, Pebble Beach golf courses require up to 4.5 million gallons of water per day.

On Friday, crews will test the microfilters, von Dohren said. The plant should be fully operational by mid June.

Lessons from a drought

For decades, the golf courses and other open spaces of Del Monte Forest were irrigated with hundreds of acre-feet a year of drinking water from the Carmel River and other local water sources.

But during the severe drought of the early 1990s, when Pebble Beach and other golf courses faced the possibility of losing access to water from California American Water Company, a wastewater reclamation project was begun to convert sewage to a drought-proof irrigation water supply.

But the water produced by traditional sewage treatment methods had too much salt for the type of grass used on the golf courses. Since then, drinking water has been periodically used to rinse the greens to get rid of the salt.

The latest project will eliminate the need for flushing the greens.

Cal Am community relations manager Catherine Bowie extolled the project for its conservation benefits.

"Everyone should recognize that the reclamation program has already reduced golf course water use by 70 percent, which has been a huge part the community's conservation efforts," Bowie said. "The new reverse osmosis will make the savings even greater, and every additional drop saved really counts."

The reclaimed water will be transported via pipeline from the CAWD plant adjacent to the Carmel River to the Forest Lake Reservoir, and from there will be distributed to the golf courses and athletic fields of Del Monte Forest.

The reservoir, which had been unused for years, was rehabilitated in 2006.

To prevent it from leaking water, crews lined the entire surface of the 980,000-square-foot reservoir with a waterproof material, which will prevent most of the reclaimed water from seeping into the ground.

Built in the late 1800s, the reservoir was used by Cal Am before the private water company sold it to the Pebble Beach Community Services District.

state's threatened cease and desist order against Peninsula water users.

Their money

According to campaign disclosure statements filed by the four candidates last week, Sharp surpassed the others in fundraising, bringing in $5,807 between Feb. 26 and March 25, for a year-to-date total of $9,946.

Her top donors, who gave $500, were contractor Gary Bruno of Fresno, and retirees Al and Jean Pederson of Carmel. Other supporters included educator and Forest Theater Guild President Barbara Mossberg, Glenn and Marian Leidig, Victory Auto Dealership and architect Rob Carver.

Talmage brought in $3,327 for the same period, for a total of $9,085. Top supporters of his campaign included the Republican Lincoln Club of Northern California and art gallery owner Bill Karges, each giving $500. Victory Auto Dealership Group CEO Peter Blackstock and Carver were also among his contributors.

LePage gathered $4,039 between Feb. 26 and March 25, for a total of $8,675. The largest gifts of $500 each came from carpenter Mark Bayne, Karges and Perspectives store owner Mike Brown, while other supporters included homemaker Louise Von Hasseln, Bob Kohn, lawyer Cheryl Moreland and teacher Pamela Gillooly.

Evidence of McCloud's relaxed campaign manifested in her fundraising, which netted $1,983 for the period, bringing her year-to-date total to $6,922. The Lincoln Club contributed $500, with Doris Lawton donating $300, Patricia Walker contributing $200 and S.H. Dolley giving $100.

Election night up in air

Despite Carmel-by-the-Sea's long-standing tradition of counting ballots and announcing results at a party in city hall on election night, it's unknown when the results will be announced April 8. According to Monterey County Registrar of Voters Linda Tulett, the Carmel ballots — those dropped at the polling place on election day, as well as the 840-plus absentee ballots mailed in by voters — can not be opened and counted until after the polls close. In addition, the tallying will be done by hand.

"It does take awhile," she said. "We're going to recruit more people to make it go faster."

For the latest information about the city election, including the status of the election night celebration, when the results will be released and whether it will be broadcast online as well as televised, visit www.carmel.ci.ca.us or call (831) 620-2000.

CUTBACK

Del Rey Oaks Mayor Joseph Russell called the order "Draconian" and said it would have a severe economic impact on the county.

"There will be no doubt it would be devastating," Russell said. "Let's not rush into a solution that will have long-term ill effects."

Although water activist George Riley said he didn't think the order was practical, he said the arguments the order would be devastating to business were merely "fear statements" to "scare away" the SWRCB from acting on the order.

"I think this community has only reacted when there has been external pressure," Riley said. "We have been living with complacency here."

After the meeting, Cal Am community relations manager Catherine Bowie called for unity.

"It's obvious that the state board is really serious about enforcement," Bowie said, "and our best hope is for our community to show a united front and all actively work collaboratively toward a solution."

Moorer. "So this land is really the birthplace of the Carmel theater movement," he said.

$1M down, $5M to go

With predesign done and its vision meshing with the PacRep board's goals, R.F. McCann began the schematic design — "the nuts and bolts of what it's really going to look like," Moorer said. Its detailing every plumbing fixture and door knob will also help pinpoint estimated costs.

The designers have met regularly with city planning services manager Brian Roseth to get his feedback and make sure the proposal meets zoning rules, height restrictions, setbacks and other requirements, according to Moorer.

He's particularly excited to see the 3-D model that will be generated from the completed schematics in about six months and will serve as a key fundraising tool.

Bennett, who joined PacRep in mid-March after many years of raising capital for the SPCA, and then the Hospice Foundation, is leading the moneymaking effort. "It's a Godsend to have him step in," Moorer said. "He's already has a great network of donors and development people."

Bennett also has a theater background, though "his true love is planned giving," Moorer said, which is perfect, since PacRep is set to launch its planned giving program, called the Encore Circle. It also recently established an endowment fund that will provide for upkeep of the new building.

After commissioning a study to see how much money the group might raise, PacRep embarked on a "quiet campaign" for the first $3 million that should continue until spring 2009, according to Moorer. It has already raised one-third of that amount from some key donors, including Bertie Bialek, the Monterey Peninsula Foundation and the Robert & Virginia Stanton Endowment Fund of the Community Foundation for Monterey County.

This year's goals also include forming a "blue ribbon committee" of about 40 community leaders, major donors and foundation representatives who will make monetary contributions and commit to bringing their pier groups on board, according to Moorer.

Once past the $3 million mark, PacRep will take its financial plea to the general public. "We're hoping that the community interest and will propel us to within 75 percent to 80 percent of our goal, where we can break ground," he said.

An admitted optimist, Moorer said he hopes construction will begin in spring 2010, with the brand new theater opening a year later. But that won't mean a year off for the only full-time professional theater between San Luis Obispo and San Jose. PacRep will hold its major musical at the Forest Theater, as usual, and may present two Shakespeare productions there instead of one. In addition, it could do a "marketing tour" of a show to help spread the word in communities within an hour's drive of Carmel.

ADOPT TODAY

Meet Jasper!

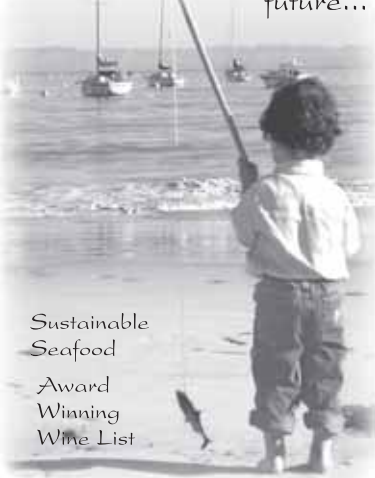

Jasper is just adorable, with big brown eyes and a soft fluffy coat that just begs to be stroked. He's a two-year-old American Eskimo Dog mix who weighs about 17 pounds. Jasper is house trained and walks nicely on the leash without pulling. He gets along great with other dogs, and is probably cat-trainable. Jasper would enjoy a fairly quiet adult home or a family with kids over age 12.

Got Clogs?

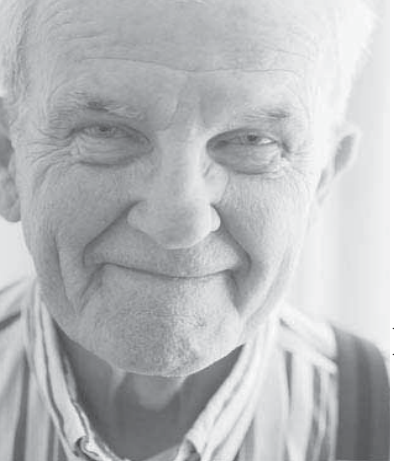

Do you have frequent sewer line backups?
 Do you call a plumber more than twice a month?
 Do roots grow in your sewer line?

If so, you could be a victim of "The Clog"

Tips for preventing clogs:

Prestigious string quartet celebrates composer's 100th birthday

By CHRIS COUNTS

LONG RECOGNIZED as one of America's finest and most distinguished ensembles, the Julliard String Quartet performs at Sunset Center Sunday, April 6.

The Julliard String Quartet pays tribute on its current tour to composer Elliott Carter, who recently turned 100.

"Their musicianship speaks for itself," explained John Newkirk, managing director of the concert's presenter, Chamber Music Monterey Bay.

Founded in 1946 at the Julliard School in New York City, the four-time Grammy Award-winning ensemble plays a wide range of classical music, ranging from Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Bartók, Debussy and Shostakovich, to contemporary composers like Elliott Carter, Ralph Shapey and Milton Babbitt.

The string quartet's present lineup includes Joel Smirnoff and Ronald Copes on violin, Joel Krosnick on cello and Samuel Rhodes on viola.

As Quartet-in-Residence on Julliard's campus at Lincoln Center in New York, the ensemble has a profound influence on aspiring string players.

"They're heavily involved in teaching as well as playing," Newkirk said. "As far as we're concerned, teaching about art is as important as doing art."

In recognition of composer Elliott Carter's 100th birthday, the string quartet

Artists turn to clever water bottle for inspiration

By CHRIS COUNTS

FORTY-SIX YEARS after Andy Warhol famously turned Campbell's Soup cans into pop art, Lisa Coscino is seeking to do the same with Fred water, a cleverly marketed product that the Pacific Grove gallery owner recently stumbled across at Grove Market.

The Coscino Gallery presents "Fred: The Bottle," an exhibit opening Friday, April 4.

The novelty of Fred water is in its packaging — the water comes in a clear, plastic version of a standard whisky flask. Coscino, though, decided the bottle was destined to serve another — and perhaps more exalted — purpose. She asked 30 mostly local artists to treat the bottle as they would a canvas.

Young jazz musicians take center stage

DOWNTOWN MONTEREY will be jumping to the sounds of jazz this weekend with the arrival of the fourth annual Next Generation Festival. The weekend event, devoted to the future of jazz, includes the festival's 38th Annual National High School Jazz Competition, with big bands, combos, vocal ensembles and individual musicians competing for a spot on the stages of the Monterey Jazz Festival next summer. More than 50 groups from nine states will perform. In addition, for the first time in its history, the Next Generation Festival will present special guest groups from Australia, Japan and the Czech Republic throughout the weekend.

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

The festival officially begins with the traditional Kick-Off Concert at 7 p.m. Friday, April 4, at the Golden State Theatre. The opening night's activities will include the festival's annual Salute to Jazz Education, along with performances by the competition judges, Christian McBride, the MJF County All-Star High School Band, the MJF Middle School Honor Band and the MJF Honor Vocal Jazz Ensemble.

Continuing the evening's kick-off celebration, the Berklee College Latin Jazz All-Stars will perform at 10 p.m. at Monterey Live, across the street from the Golden State Theatre, for free.

The National High School Jazz Competition starts at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 5, in downtown Monterey's conference center, with high-energy big bands, combos and vocal ensembles. The event will also host a variety of educational events, including clinics with Christian McBride, vocalist Rosana Eckert and drummer Terri Lyne Carrington.

The Next Generation Festival continues through April 6 with the country's top middle school, college and conglomerate big bands performing in the conference center's Steinbeck Forum. The winning college big band and conglomerate big band (to be announced during the day) will also earn a performance slot at MJF/51.

Auditions will also be held throughout the Next Generation Festival weekend for the Jimmy Lyons Scholarships to Berklee College of Music, and for the Next Generation Jazz Orchestra, MJF's national all-star high school band, which now includes a vocalist spot. All Next Generation Festival competition activities April 4-6 are open to the public and free of charge. More information on all Next Generation Festival activities and events is available on Another happy customer: "The black duster was terrific! I felt good in it, and I really like the fabric and styling a lot. It was too chilly to only be in a cashmere sweater, but by adding the duster, it wasn't too bulky or heavy, and looked fantastic with everything. It is a terrific travel piece and doesn't wrinkle at all. I think it will end up being one of my most favorite pieces of all time."

is presenting selections of his often-challenging work on its current tour, which includes stops in Europe and Japan, as well as the United States. The ensemble has frequently performed and recorded Carter's work, and in 1991, it released a landmark collection of those recordings.

The concert marks the final performance of Chamber Music Monterey Bay's 2007-2008 season. "The season went extremely well, better than we had hoped," Newkirk added. "We had our first ever world premiere, and that had to be our No. 1 highlight of the year."

The piece Newkirk is referring to — Kevin Puts' String Quartet/Dvorak Quartet in F Major, Op. 96, "American" — was commissioned by Chamber Music Monterey Bay and performed by the Miró String Quartet Oct. 12, 2007, at Sunset Center.

Dr. Jean Widaman will present a pre-concert lecture in Sunset Center's Studio 105 at 2 p.m.

The concert starts at 3 p.m. Chamber Music Monterey Bay reserves for each concert a limited number of choice seats for students (grades four to 12) and their adult companions. For more information, call (831) 625-2212 or visit www.chambermusicmonterey.org.

Brass quintet comes to Carmel

The Julliard String Quartet isn't the only world-class ensemble performing in Carmel this week. The American Brass Quintet plays at Sunset Center Tuesday, April 8.

Establishing an impressive legacy during the past 48 years, the quintet has released more than 50 recordings, premiered more than 100 contemporary brass works and embarked on extensive international tours that have taken the ensemble to Europe, Central and South America, Asia, Australia and all 50 states. Committed to providing musical education for the next generation of brass players, they've been in residence at Julliard School since 1987.

The quintet's lineup features Raymond Mase and Kevin Cobb on trumpet, David Wakefield on horn, Michael Powell on trombone and John D. Rojak on bass trombone.

Tuesday's concert, which is presented by the Carmel Music Society, will feature works by William Simmes, John Ward, Giovanni Coperario, Osvaldo Lacerda, Joan Tower, David Sampson, Josquin des Prés and Eric Ewazen. For tickets and more information, call (831) 625-9938 or visit www.carmelmusic.org.

Irene Erickson Blackwelder

1927 ~ 2008

Irene Erickson Blackwelder was born on August 1, 1927, in Carmel, California, and passed away on March 27, 2008 in Pacific Grove, California. She was the daughter of Robert Erickson of Newburgh, New York, and Irene Maria Goold, of Carmel, California. She was the former wife of George McGuire (deceased) and of Harold Blackwelder. She is survived by her daughters Mary Linda Brinker and Elizabeth Ann Blackwelder, and predeceased by her son Michael Robert McGuire and her daughters Ann McGuire and Sally Jean Blackwelder. She is survived by her sister Penny Erickson Randle, her half-sister Joan King, her grandchildren Mary Noelle Fabiano, Christine Stanard, and Jason Olivas, and her great-grandchildren Megan and Emily Fabiano, and Matthew, Jason Harold, and Elijah Olivas, as well as her 8 nieces and nephews and their numerous and beloved offspring. Irene, a graduate of Carmel High School class of 1945, was a long time resident of the Canterbury Woods retirement community in Pacific Grove, and was an avid, prize-winning quilter. She made exquisite porcelain dolls for her friends and family. She was the great-granddaughter of Christiano Machado, who immigrated to Carmel from the Azores in the mid-1800s, and the granddaughter of Charles Goold, renowned citizen of Carmel. As per Irene's request, there will be no funeral or memorial service.

Chef Lorenzo Crespo makes a tasty mole at Club Jalapeño

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

IF YOU find yourself hungering for a spicy cheese chili relleno, Oaxacan mole enchilada or fresh fish tacos, head for Club Jalapeño in San Carlos Court in downtown Carmel-by-the-Sea.

There, Chef Lorenzo Crespo holds forth in the kitchen of this small, intimate

At Club Jalapeño in downtown Carmel, Lorenzo Crespo is in charge of the tasty cuisine.

Mexican restaurant that seats 40-plus in the dining room, seven at the bar and eight outside in the sunny, flowered courtyard.

Becoming a chef came as a surprise to Crespo, who came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1991 with his bride, Felisa, from their home in Oaxaca, Mexico. Untrained in restaurant work, he nevertheless found a position at The Grill on Ocean Avenue, and then the Plaza Cafe in Carmel Plaza. He threw himself into kitchen work, watching, listening and then trying. Much to his pleasure, he found he could cook, and cook well. Now, after 17 years in local kitchens — including eight years at Club Jalapeño — he said he really loves his work. He was sous chef at the restaurant until a year ago, when he was made head chef.

He's especially proud of his mole, a rich, dark reddish-brown sauce he serves with Oaxacan enchiladas made with the diner's choice of chicken, beef or pork, and on his chicken chili relleno. Not surprisingly, these two dishes are all-time favorites with the restaurant's regular clientele. Other best sellers are the spicy cheese chili relleno and Baja fish tacos, made of fresh pollock, a firm fleshed white fish of the cod family. Other tacos include Oaxacan — with a choice of chicken, beef or pork filling; Tijuana — with a spicy, marinated flank steak, and a tofu taco. Housemade tamales are prepared every other day.

Crespo prepares fresh halibut by charring it as Club Jalapeño's own "fiery dusted fish," or in a dish called "banana fish," in which the grilled halibut is topped with a sauté of bananas, honey, a pinch of cayenne and a squeeze of fresh lime.

Again, Crespo employs halibut in the “crispy coconut” fish entrée which is prepared by crusting the fish with coconut, then frying and topping it with a spicy chipotle sauce and spicy fruit salsa.

While Chef Crespo prepares these dishes from start to finish, he’s quick to give credit to owner Wendy Miller, who originated the recipes with her first chef de cuisine, Oaxacan Jose Barragan, who has since moved on. Miller and her business partner, Benny Enea, refer to her menu as “eclectic.”

Crespo works six days a week, cooking lunch and dinner. On his day off, he spends time with Felisa and their three children, Luis Gustavo, 9, Edgar, 5, and Carlos Daniel, 8 months old, and his mother, Soledad, who resides with them in Seaside. He finds time to play soccer with the Deportivo Quialana, too, and to coach son Luis, who also plays soccer.

Crespo came to the United States to earn money for his family and to make sure his children have a good future.

“Here the kids have opportunities for school, jobs and a better life,” he said, glad that he made the decision to leave his own country and come here.

An atmosphere of camaraderie prevails at Club Jalapeño and among its staff. Bob Lewis, known as “B.O.B.” has been the bartender at Club Jalapeño “since the beginning” in 1997 and also serves as manager.

Other staff members, Moises Perez and Maria de Los Angeles — also from Oaxaca — declare B.O.B. makes “the best margaritas” in town.

The bar is separated from the dining area by dividers, but those seated at the bar can see activity in the kitchen by a pass-through window where Chef Crespo and his staff — Abrahm Azevedo, Adrian Valenzuela and Espanislao Ramirez — are at work.

Tables in the dining room are copper covered, and the chairs and tables are of dark wood. A Diego Rivera print is the focal point of one wall, while an amusing painting of a green chile man wearing a serape dominates another. The ceiling is beamed, and all the furniture, dinnerware and glassware at the restaurant were purchased in Mexico by Miller.

All in all, Club Jalapeño is a small, distinguished restaurant where dedication to excellent Mexican Oaxacan cuisine prevails — with Chef Lorenzo Crespo presiding.

Club Jalapeño is open seven days a week serving lunch from noon and dinner until 9 p.m. It is located in downtown Carmel-by-the-Sea in San Carlos Court on San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. For information or reservations, call (831) 626-1997.

Farm founder, chef show how to cook and eat Food to Live By

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ORGANIC PRODUCE from the fields next door took center stage during an intimate cooking demonstration and lunch presented by the Lifestyle Academy at Quail Lodge and Earthbound Farm in Carmel Valley Saturday.

Earthbound Farm cofounder Myra Goodman cooked alongside chef Sarah LaCasse in the first of what organizers hope Orange Walnut Vinaigrette, and Raspberry Poached Pears, both of which appear in Goodman's cookbook. The April issue of Bon Appetit features their thoughts and recipes for spring peas, pea tendrils and pea sprouts.

During their hour-long demonstration — which Quail director of operations Axel Binneboese described as “eatertainment” — Goodman shared stories, divulged the secrets of preparing the farm's tasty and pop-grapes, lettuce, nectarines, peaches, pears, potatoes, spinach and strawberries.

Luscious lunch

After entertaining guests with their cooking tips — including how best to poach the pears, roast and peel the beets, prepare the dressing, reduce the raspberry sauce and present each dish — LaCasse and Goodman joined them in the Peninsula Ballroom for lunch. Despite the gray skies outside, the bright, airy room bore the feeling of a garden terrace, with large potted plants and wood furniture more common to al fresco dining.

Most of the tables seated four, though a larger one at the center accommodated twice that many, and guests of the sold-out event started lunch with Roasted Beet and Arugula Salad with candied walnuts and feta cheese — which they had just learned how to make — paired with organic 2006 Chenin Blanc produced by Heller Estate in Carmel Valley. Though salads are typically difficult to pair with wines due to their acidic dressings, the combination worked well, with the Chenin Blanc's touch of residual sugar lending a complementary sweet note.

Kathy's Rosemary-Roasted Chicken, which Goodman said is her mother's recipe and is also featured in the cookbook, followed. The succulent bird and accompanying pan sauce were served with garlicky string beans, black trumpet mushrooms and roasted potatoes seasoned with rosemary, salt and pepper. Heller's tannic 2004 Estate Cachagua Cabernet Sauvignon, though a fine wine, was an incongruous pairing with the dish's lighter flavors.

The beautifully rosy Raspberry Poached Pears rounded out the lunch, and after a guest asked Goodman if any chocolate sauce was available to accompany them — as she and LaCasse had recommended during the demo — small pitchers appeared on each table.

At the lunch's conclusion, attendees carried canvas bags packed with goodies, including Earthbound's famous ginger snaps, and Goodman's cookbook, into the lobby, where the author waited to sign them.

After the event, Quail Lodge general manager Sarah Cruse said she hopes to regularly offer lunches and cooking demonstrations. Despite the Pebble Beach Food & Wine being held at the same time just down the road, the Quail event sold out, speaking to its allure and potential.

will become a series of lessons and lunches.

With Earthbound's acres nestled against Quail Lodge property, and the resort's restaurants using produce grown there, the joint venture seemed a no-brainer. On an elevated stage equipped with burners, utensils and ingredients, the duo presented recipes from Goodman's new cookbook, “Food to Live By,” to about 40 fortunate guests.

Goodman, who with her husband, Drew, started selling cartons of raspberries from the two-and-a-half acres they planted in front of their garage in Carmel Valley 24 years ago, is engaging, articulate and clearly passionate about her business. After all, Earthbound was the first to market bagged prewashed salad greens more than a decade ago and has grown to become the largest organic producer, with 150 farmers cultivating 40,000 acres.

She's known LaCasse, a longtime chef, for years, but LaCasse only recently came to run the kitchen at Earthbound Farm. In addition to drumming up dishes to sell at the farm stand, the duo may write a cookbook together and regularly contribute to Bon Appetit magazine.

“They call us when they don't know what to do with odd produce,” Goodman told those gathered to watch them prepare Roasted Beet and Arugula Salad with ular granola, and asked LaCasse about cooking methods and preferences. The two also answered questions from the audience.

Why go organic?

Born in New York, and raised on TV dinners and sugar cereals, Goodman didn't learn to cook until she lived on a farm. During the demo, she explained the benefits of eating produce grown without chemical pesticides, herbicides or fertilizers. Not only does organic farming reduce the use of chemicals blamed for creating dead zones in the ocean and polluting other resources, but the fruits and vegetables are superior.

“A lot of us intuitively believed organic was better than conventional,” she said. According to Goodman, a recent study concluded organic produce is 25 percent more nutritious. She also said Earthbound's farming practices will keep 12.8 million pounds of chemicals out of the environment, conserve 2 million gallons of petroleum and “sequester enough CO₂ to equal keeping 7,700 cars off the road,” this year.

But since buying organic goods is not always possible or affordable, she advised focusing on a dozen items government data show carry especially high levels of pesticides when grown conventionally: apples, bell peppers, celery, cherries, imported

FRED

"Fred: The Bottle" features work by Dianna Cohen, Trevor Meeker, Michael Gullberg, Monika Bauer and others.

Coscino called Fred water's founder — Fred Brands of Brooklyn, N.Y. — to let him know about the show.

"He loves the idea of the show," recounted Anita Hilton, gallery director. "He's really thrilled."

Coscino isn't the first art lover to see artistic merit in Fred water. According to Hilton, the eye-catching bottle was recently featured in an exhibit on new concepts in marketing and packaging at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. Fred water, by the way, was served at the MOMA reception. Coscino, of course, will do the same.

"I hope people will save the empties and make artwork," Hilton suggested. "And you don't need to buy a frame."

The opening of the exhibit marks a new chapter for the Coscino Gallery, which has undergone a considerable makeover since Coscino and Hilton closed its doors in December. Located just around the corner from its former location, the slightly downsized gallery (once a storage space for the former gallery) will continue to feature an interesting and eclectic mix of fine and functional art with an urban edge.

Coscino and Hilton designed the new gallery with versatility in mind. Most of the furniture is on wheels for easy removal.

"We hope to offer more evening and weekend events like poetry readings, book signings, art classes and workshops," Hilton offered. "We're not going to compete with what's going on down the block. We want to present events with a different twist. It's going to be an ongoing creative process."

The reception starts at 6 p.m. The show will continue through the end of May. The gallery, which is open Wednesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., is located at 216B Grand Ave. For more information, call (831) 402-9141.

ART ROUNDUP

■ Glassblower 'rolls' his way to creative innovation

USING A technique that looks like something you'd see in a sandwich shop, Johnathon Schmuck offers a refreshing take on glass art.

The Masaoka Design Gallery in Carmel Valley presents, "Johnathon Schmuck — Twenty to Life: Two Decades of Glasswork," an exhibit opening Saturday, April 5.

"It's a really interesting process," said gallery director Somer Harrold of Schmuck's innovative technique. "Instead of using blown glass, he cuts strips of sheet glass and fuses them into flat tiles."

Schmuck then attaches a clear chunk of molten glass to the end of his blowpipe.

"The glass is sticky and is at a compatible temperature

Rip Matteson's portraits depicting the female form will be featured in a new Carmel Art Association exhibit.

with the tiles," Harrold observed. "It looks like honey."

The molten glass on the end of the blowpipe sticks to the tile, which Schmuck rolls into the shape he desires.

"It almost looks like a gyro," Harrold suggested as she conjured up an image of the popular Greek sandwich.

In the glass world, the method is known as the roll-up technique.

Early in his artistic career, Schmuck's innovative approach to glass art won him a Fullbright Scholarship, the first to be hosted by the Canberra School of Art in Canberra, Australia. It was there that the Santa Cruz resident learned to "roll" glass.

"It has a totally different look," said Harrold of Schmuck's work. "After a piece cools down, he takes a grinding wheel to it. He gets a really beautiful texture you can't get with regular blown glass. It has almost a sandblasted look to it."

Schmuck's work has been displayed in the United States, Canada, Italy, Spain, Korea, Taiwan, Singapore, Japan and Australia. According to Harrold, he is currently working on a book about the roll-up technique.

The gallery, located at 13766 Center St. in Carmel Valley Village, will host a reception from 5 to 6 p.m. The exhibit will be on display through May 31. For more information, call (831) 659-4953 or visit www.alanmasaoka.com.

■ Octogenarian photographer

The Carmel Foundation — a nonprofit best known for the numerous resources it provides to seniors — presents a new photography exhibit by Monterey's Larry Weeks.

Weeks is a prolific photographer who only began focusing on his craft in his early 70s. While his camera has captured a variety of subjects, his specialty is photographing musicians, particularly pianists.

"Every Sunday I go to the Hyatt and listen to the jazz jams," said Weeks, now 84. "When I come home and look at the photos, I can still hear the music."

He's also a big fan of the foundation. "I go there a couple times a week for lunch," he added. "They're wonderful."

Weeks' exhibit continues through April 30. The foundation is located on the corner of Eighth and Lincoln. For more information, call (831) 624-1588.

■ New exhibits open at art association

Wrapping up a busy week on the local art scene will be the opening of three new exhibits at the Carmel Art Association Saturday, April 5.

Gael Donovan presents "Family Album," a collection of paintings that aim to capture the feeling of snapshots from an old photo album. M. Ralph "Michie" Long offers a show of oil paintings, "Four Years with the San Juan Islands." Meanwhile, a group exhibit features Fred Carvell's abstract acrylic landscapes, Rip Matteson's figurative oil paintings and Rollin Pickford's watercolor landscapes.

The show will be on display through May 6.

The art association, which is located on the west side of Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, will host a reception from 6 to 8 p.m. For more information, call (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmelart.org.

and officer assisted the owners by escorting them out to Salinas' MCAS shelter to retrieve their dog due to the fact the owners were leaving town tonight.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Found wallet at Carmel Beach.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a reported trash can fire at Del Mar and Ocean. Upon arrival, crews discovered a plastic trash bin on fire. Firefighters filled the bin with water, drowning the fire. The cause of the fire was not determined, but it appeared to be accidental. There was no damage to the bin.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to a structure fire on Mentone Road. Assignment from Mentone Command was to stage at San Remo and Mentone at 2058 hours. At 2116, the engine was released as the fire was determined to be under control.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were on scene on Sixth Avenue for a request by the police department for a 24-foot ladder to allow officers access to a roof. A loud noise on the roof was heard by the residents in the apartments, and police searched the roof for the possible source. Ambulance was released, and when officers came back down from the roof, the engine's crew secured the ladder and returned to the station.

MONDAY, MARCH 24

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle stopped on Highway 1 for speeding, and the driver was found to be in possession of marijuana.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Victim reported that someone spray-painted the windows to his work vehicle while it was parked on San Carlos Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Victim on Junipero reported that an unknown male was leaving rude messages on his cell phone and calling and hanging up. The caller's ID was blocked, and the reporting party was unaware as to who the suspect might be. He was advised to contact his cell phone carrier and ask if they were able to get a phone number on the caller, even though the call was blocked. If they were unable to provide that information, the officer advised the RP to get a new phone number.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Conducted a traffic stop on Ocean Avenue at 2236 hours and found marijuana in the vehicle. Registered owner of the vehicle stated the marijuana was his. Two passengers in the vehicle stated the RO of the vehicle had furnished them with marijuana on this date and on other days as well. RO, who is 20, was arrested.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a medical on Carpenter Street. Upon arrival, found a male in his 60s with seizures. Patient treated and transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel Valley: Parent called in for welfare check on her 29-year-old son who she said threatened to buy a gun and shoot himself. Subject suffering from mental condition but was not 5150 W&I [eligible for committal and 72-hour hold for evaluation]; no overt act, no weapon. Subject referred to further counseling. Small amount of marijuana found, which is to be destroyed. Case closed.

Carmel Valley: Bank reported suspected elder financial abuse by relative of victim. Case continues.

Carmel area: Elderly subject at a Camino Real residence was found to be greatly disabled, unable to care for himself and violent toward others. He was taken to CHOMP for a psychiatric evaluation.

Pebble Beach: Reporting party found a Medi-Cal card for a female in the sand near Spanish Bay, and the card was later returned to her. Case closed.

TUESDAY, MARCH 25

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers contacted suspicious person panhandling on San Carlos Street who was found to be intoxicated and missing out of Mountain View. The 43-year-old female was eventually 849(b) [released].

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Repossession of vehicle on Ocean Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of false registration and providing an officer with false information on Scenic Road.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a medical on San Carlos Street. Upon arrival, found a female in her 40s without complaints, needing assistance to move due to Parkinson's. Assisted person.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a medical on Lincoln Street. Upon arrival, found a female in her 90s with altered level of consciousness. Patient treated and transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel Valley: A 14-year-old female was reported as the victim of a sexual assault. Investigation continues.

Carmel area: Victim reported Infinity brand subwoofer and amplifier were torn out of the trunk of his unlocked vehicle. They were attached with cables and bolts. Total value $1,000. Entry made via interior trunk latch. Occurred between 2100 hours on March 14 and 0600 hours on March 15.

Carmel Valley: Female in the mid-valley area reported that her former boyfriend violated a domestic violence restraining order.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of 476PC on Mission Street.

[This law states, "Every person who makes, passes, utters or publishes, with intent to defraud any other person, or who, with the like intent, attempts to pass, utter or publish, or who has in his or her possession, with like intent to utter, pass or publish, any fictitious or altered bill, note or check, purporting to be the bill, note, or check, or other instrument in writing for the payment of money or property of any real or fictitious financial institution as defined in Section 186.9 is guilty of forgery."]

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer responded to a citizen's complaint of two dogs barking on 11th Avenue. On arrival, heard two dogs barking from the front yard of a residence. During the time of the officer's arrival, a man was walking a dog in the area. The barking continued after the man left the area. A notice was left at the gate for the owners to contact the officer at the police department. The officer contacted a neighbor for information; during that time, two dogs at that residence were barking and the owner was warned. On March 29 followup contact by telephone was made with the owner of the dogs. A warning was given.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Party on Lincoln Street requested an information report for insurance purposes.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were on scene at Dolores and Seventh for an alarm activation due to accidental pull station release. There was no fire problem, but the alarm company needed to be notified to have the pull station restored.

Big Sur: Resident reported an Ohio-based bill collector called on $636 outstanding debt for online gambling that he denies. He attempted to confirm the debt with the company but

Are You at Home?

Increasingly, we've realized that there is something magical about looking at a house that you may want to buy and make your own. When a home looks right, when it strikes you from the first moment you enter the door, your mind almost inevitably begins to imagine how your belongings, your furniture—indeed, your life—would look in this house.

There are several things that can pop the imaginative bubble in which potential buyers tour a home. If a home looks neat and clean to the point of sterility, for example, it is difficult to imagine living in it. No one wants to live in a hospital ward. A home should look inviting, like comfortable clothing. On the other hand, it shouldn't look messy, dark or full of other people's paraphernalia or memories.

Thus, the best preparation of a home for a showing involves making it bright, spacious, livable, and—for lack of a better word—free of history. Free of the presence of its actual owners. This can be very subtle. Too many photos of family members, for example, simply remind a potential buyer that this is not their home. And the bubble bursts.

And if photos can pop the bubble, the physical presence of those who live in the house can demolish all the potential buyers' imaginings of what it would be like to live there. Sellers should not be present while buyers try to imagine their furnishings replacing the seller's furnishings. FOLLOW A WITHDRAWAL STRATEGY THAT WON'T LEAVE YOU EMPTY

When you retire, how much can you withdraw from your investment portfolio each year without running out of money? There's no one right answer for everyone.

Generally speaking, of course, the younger you are when you retire, the lower your annual withdrawal rate should be.

Another factor to consider is the income you can expect from other sources. If you open a small business or do some consulting, you may be able to withdraw less from your investment portfolio than if you have no earned income during your retirement years.

You also may be able to make lower annual withdrawals if you've built up a sizable pension or 401(k), supplemented by your monthly Social Security checks.

By putting the right withdrawal strategy to work, you can go a long way toward enjoying the retirement lifestyle you've envisioned.

weekend was the black-tie rare wine auction and dinner.

"When the product was finally showcased, it was all the things we had hoped it would be," Bernahl said, adding that he was particularly heartened by the positive comments from many of the 50 chefs who participated in the inaugural event and look forward to returning in future years.

"If the chefs don't want to come to your event, you're going to have a hard time getting people to come. You can't say, 'Come see David Bernahl cooking pancakes,'" he said.

During the course of the weekend, people found themselves part of culinary history in the making. At the Lexus Grand Finale Dinner Saturday, a handful of the world's top chefs prepared the courses. Eating in just one of their restaurants would be rare enough, Bernahl pointed out, but to have several cooking in one place for one evening was mind-blowing.

"The heads of Lexus and American Express Publishing said it was unreal," said Bernahl, and considering they are huge sponsors of the event, their approval is very important.

Another highlight: The winemaker from Dom Perignon pouring from magnums of rare vintages.

"That's something that's not available anywhere else in the world," he said.

Bernahl especially enjoyed observing people enjoying themselves.

"When you walk around and see all the smiling faces — I must have had 500 people walk up and say, 'Thank you. I will look forward to coming every year,'" he recalled. "I'm pretty pleased, considering it went from an event that had never happened before, to something that was wonderful.”

A good fit

Although she could not attend the festivities, Carmel Chamber of Commerce CEO Monta Potter said she will not miss next year's PBF&W.

“It's a class event — the kind of event that should happen on the Monterey Peninsula, because we're a unique destination, and this is the kind of event that draws the kind of people we want to have come visit,” she said. “It fits.”

Potter is also confident it benefits local businesses, which Bernahl and cofounder/president Rob Weakley identified as one of their goals. “I think it's here to stay, and I think it's great for everybody,” Potter said.

Bernahl and the rest of the team in the downtown Carmel office of Coastal Luxury Management are already at work on next year's event, which will be held April 16-19.

The group is considering turning the rare wine auction into an all-day affair that could draw collectors from around the world, and another vision for the future would entail having more people who work in the local hospitality industry attend, according to Bernahl.

Developing a trade program for restaurant workers, waiters, bartenders, hotel staff, managers and others would enable them to meet leaders in the culinary world and taste wines they wouldn't have access to otherwise.

In the meantime, he's focusing on 2009.

“I'm already looking forward to next year. Seeing people have a good time is addictive!” he said. “We will definitely sell out next year, so we're going to have to figure out how to deal with that. But it's something we'll be happy to deal with.”

By DOROTHY MARAS-ILDIZ

RECOVERING from four consecutive 20-hour work days comes slowly at my age. Three days after the Pebble Beach Food & Wine, I am still trying to digest what I've just seen, tasted, heard, enjoyed and endured. While 3,000-plus guests were sipping 1999 Dom Pérignon or swooning over a five-decade-long vertical tasting of Château Margaux, my vantage point was completely different, yet equally awesome.

“For me, it was the only place to be.”

May Waldroup, former owner, The Barnyard and Thunderbird bookstore

This was not a difficult choice. I'm delighted with my life at Carmel Valley Manor. The location is superb; I've loved the Valley since the first time I saw it. My apartment and patio are just right. It felt wonderful to let go of excess furnishings and decorative objects. Community life offers many enjoyable options. I frequently visit friends in the Manor's wonderful care centers and it's good to know those are available should I ever need them.

My advice? Plan ahead; don't wait too long to get on the waiting list.

vantage point was completely different, yet equally awesome. I can't tell you how silky the Margaux was, but I did get to stand next to their boxes in the storage room. Reliable, although somewhat inebriated, sources reported the Dom was flowing like the Carmel River after five days of rain. Can't tell you about that, either, but here are a few experiences very few people had.

About the chefs

Superstar chefs from France and America, (Alain Passard, Gerard Boyer, Jacques Pépin, Hubert Keller and the staff of the absent Philippe Legendre) with enough Michelin stars to fill a constellation were elegant, gracious, charming and calm.

They were present in the kitchens where their staffs were busily preparing their courses for the 200 to 300 guests they were going to feed and were actively involved in everything. At the famous "after parties" (10 p.m. to 2 a.m. nightly) that were held for the chefs, sommeliers, VIPs and more than a few gate crashers, these "big guys" shook hands with the nobodies and line cooks while patiently describing their dishes for the wannabes. In contrast, many of the newly minted television-genre chefs were surly, late to their events, picky and temperamental. If you want me to name names, you'll have to call me on a secure line.

The Pebble Beach Company's "host chefs" deserve culinary platinum medals and a week off with pay for their Herculean efforts. P.B. Lodge Executive Chef Patrick Mullin, who said to me, "I am here to serve," and meant it, personified what hospitality truly means. Club XIX Chef de Cuisine Ressel Rassallat, whose kitchen was the invasion site of the French contingent, was an exceedingly patient, personable, charming host who deserves many Michelin stars not only for his participation in this event, but for his own incredible culinary skills. Ben Brown, Chef at The Beach & Tennis Club, was as cool as a cucumber, as was his Sous Chef Owen Appelt. At the Inn at Spanish Bay, Executive Chef Rod Uncango, Sous Chef Elias Lopez, Chef Yoichi Saito of Roy's, and Arturo Moscoso, along with Corporate Pastry Chef John Hui, endured never-ending, "Where's the this?" and, "Can you get me a that?" from hundreds of people in white coats and aprons, with grace and humor.

minute changes/substitutions/whims or whatever. So, if you were at any of these functions and your menu seemed as warm as your appetizer, it probably was just spit out of a copy machine. Proudly, I have possession of the entire set of signed copies from the inaugural Pebble Beach Food & Wine. More proudly, there were only a few minor changes to the ingredients and no changes (with the exception of Chef Rassallat, whom I firmly believe made me change a hyphen and a comma just to test the effectiveness of my blood pressure medication) made to menus as far as terminology and spelling. In the land of culinary heroes or zeroes, I had kicked a last-second field goal at the Super Chef Bowl....

During one of the infamous after parties, impish Chef Jean Joho of Everestin Chicago invited me to taste what he was sipping in his wine glass and challenged me to identify it. Standing in the presence of my new pals, Jacques P., H. Keller, his wife Charmaine, and Chef and Mrs. Gerard Boyer, I felt no pressure at all. Very long story short: I was quaffing a 1966 Chateau Cheval Blanc and told them so with a huge degree of certainty. They were flabbergasted that "these Americaine, had such a French palate." Mon Dieu! Fifteen minutes after impressing them, I had to let on that one of the Master Sommeliers was standing behind them showing me the bottle.

I've got more stories like these, (including hijacking a truck from P.B. Co. for a chef who desperately needed one), but they'll have to wait for another day.

the Carmel Youth Center, Jeff's memory will live on within the youth of Carmel for years to come. We were so touched to see Jeffrey's beautiful smile and read the tribute written of his life on the cover of The Pine Cone. Thank you for printing the wonderful dedication by Mary Brownfield, and also for the following article by our Goddaughter, Hilary Hanlon, which captured the endearment as we had to say goodbye to Jeffrey at his memorial service.

The affection and support from everyone in Carmel clearly tell us that Jeffrey was truly loved and deeply touched the lives of all he knew. We cannot thank you enough.

A good deed at Good Old Days

Dear Editor,

During the Pacific Grove Good Old Days April 12 and 13, the Trees for P.G. program will be handing out saplings in George Washington Park. We will plant the saplings as a community on Arbor Day, April 25, at 10 a.m. Residents are encouraged to purchase a living tree to plant on their own property or donate to the city. Donated trees can be dropped off at the Pacific Grove Corporation Yard, 2100 Sunset Drive, P.G., Monday through Friday, from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. and noon to 4 p.m., or call (831) 375-6464 for pickup. You can also donate money, with donors of $75 or more receiving a certificate of acknowledgment and donors of $250 or more also being included on a plaque at City Hall. Mail your donations to Trees for P.G., c/o City of Pacific Grove, 300 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove, CA 93950.

This event, which Trees for P.G. and I are participating in, is to offset the emissions from the vehicles that come into Pacific Grove for Good Old Days. I am taking part in this project for my Mitzvah Project, a good deed that I perform to pass as a bar mitzvah in the Jewish tradition. I am also taking part in the Trees for P.G. program because I care about the environment and how we affect it. I think the Trees for P.G. program will help our city regain its famous forest coastline and bring back some of the tourists. We think it is wonderful if you make a donation, but, please try to come down to George Washington Park and plant a tree yourself!

Michael Goldman, Pacific Grove

What I saw, heard and tasted

My position with Pebble Beach Food & Wine was "event concierge/menu writer/advertisement seller and article writer." Try to imagine the incredible pressure of writing courses for a single dinner menu that chefs with a mere total of 17 Michelin stars had conjured up. Imperfections aren't a part of this caliber of chef's repertoire in print or on the plate.

What you don't realize is the menus for each of the five simultaneously occurring lunches and the four dinners must be approved by each and every chef about one hour prior to the event and then sent to print with any changes necessary due to last

Everybody Needs a Break Now and Then

Even the most dedicated family caregivers periodically need "time off" to replenish their energy. That's what our Respite Care service is for.

Our Home Care Coordinator will visit you first to discuss your needs and wishes.

When you need a break, we will carefully select a Personal Attendant to be at home with your loved one while you are away, and to follow the routine that you have established.

You can't take good care of anyone else unless you take care of yourself!

"Central Coast Senior Services arranged for care for my parents several times and I couldn't have been more pleased. Literally within a couple hours of my phone call, they had someone in my father's home so he could return from the hospital. They provided 24-hour care for my father, who is blind, including fixing his meals and helping him bathe. I found their services to be exceptional."

Editorial

Who's in charge, anyway?

All people are by nature free and independent and have inalienable rights. Among these are enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and pursuing and obtaining safety, happiness, and privacy.

— California Constitution, Preamble

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

— 10th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution

THE CONSTITUTIONS of the United States and California are unambiguous about the need to protect the people from too much government. And, as the excerpts from these constitutions cited above amply demonstrate, the government has no rights at all — only powers, and only those that are granted to it by the people.

Why is it that so many government officials go around acting like they have all the power, and that poor little peons being governed should be glad to be allowed to do anything at all?

A prime example of this was the hearing this week by the State Water Resources Control Board in Monterey. This group, demonstrating all the wisdom of the Wizard of Oz, is trying to make up its mind whether the people of the Monterey Peninsula should be forced to get by with half the water they're using now. Nevermind that most residents already use less water than anybody else in the state. Some additional conservation might be possible. But 50 percent? Forget about it.

The SWRCB's complaint is that a water cutback order it issued 13 years ago hasn't been fully complied with. The SWRCB's patience with us has run out, so we're told. We've had plenty of time to build a replacement water project, the theory goes, and since we haven't done so, we deserve to be punished.

But why haven't we built a new water project? Because other state agencies are standing in the way!

The people of the Monterey Peninsula want a reliable, drought-proof and environmentally sensitive water supply. And they're willing to pay for it, provided it includes enough new water to restore the Carmel River and take care of the basic human needs of the community. And it's certainly not their fault that various state agencies can't get their act together.

If members of the SWRCB want to do something truly constructive, they would convene a meeting of all the government officials with jurisdiction over the Monterey Peninsula's water supply, lock the door and refuse to let anybody leave until there was agreement about what should be done. And then they would present this unified idea to the people they serve — us — for our approval.

That's the way government is supposed to work.

Letters to the Editor

'Attentive listener ... independent voice'

Dear Editor,

On April 8 I will vote for Ken Talmage for city council in Carmel-by-the-Sea. He has an excellent command of the facts, is an attentive listener and is an independent voice for our village. The list of people who have endorsed Ken includes Carmel's last three Mayors — Jean Grace, Ken White and Sue McCloud.

I think Ken is the right choice for Carmel.
Patricia Steele, Carmel

'A step in the right direction'

Dear Editor,

Michael LePage deserves credit for fingering Carmel's lackadaisical attitude toward fire safety. This is one reason (but by no means the only one) he has my vote.

I am not by nature an alarmist, but the city's willingness to overlook serious threats to fire safety is truly alarming. Many fire hydrants remain inoperable for months on end. During every performance at the Forest Theater, cars are parked on both sides of our narrow street, making fire engine access completely impossible. (This problem was cited in the last study of the Forest Theater completed over a decade ago but has remained ignored.)

My home overlooks Mission Trail Nature

Preserve, which the stand of English-Ivy-choked dead trees and dense thickets of dried underbrush make a firestorm waiting to happen. This is no far-fetched fantasy. Several years ago I called the fire department to report wisps of smoke from a small fire started by a youngster playing with fireworks. And while I was pleased to hear that in November the city council passed an ordinance banning smoking in city parks, now, almost six months later, not a single sign has been posted. Last week I was awakened at 2 a.m. by the voices of a group of spring-break celebrants having a party in the park, a party probably fueled by beer and cigarettes.

I am sure that all of us agree that public safety is the top responsibility of any city government. One new voice on the city council can't solve all of Carmel's problems, but a vote for Michael LePage is a step in the right direction.

'Slander' of ACLU

Dear Editor,

I agree with most of your March 28 editorial regarding Larry Scholink's cross.

I find it regrettable, however, that you could not resist the opportunity to make slanderous remarks regarding the ACLU.

Hornik for judge

Dear Editor,

I have been involved in law enforcement for more than six years — four as a prosecutor in Monterey County and two as a peace officer in Ventura. I know the importance and impact of the judicially created exclusionary rule and its relationship to the Fourth Amendment and criminal prosecutions. Todd Hornik has successfully argued hundreds of motions concerning the constitutionality of law enforcement officers' efforts to stop, prevent and solve crimes in this county. In recognition of his expertise, he has become an instructor for the California District Attorney's Association. This past year he has made four presentations on Fourth Amendment/Search Warrant issues to other experienced prosecutors and peace officers from around the state. For the past eight years, Hornik has taught California Department of Parks and Recreation cadets the need to understand and respect the Fourth amendment in their daily activities and the consequences of their failure to do so. He is standing for election to the Superior Court Bench June 3. No other candidate has the depth of knowledge that he possesses in this very relevant field. And no other candidate has the Monterey County courtroom experience that he does. Hornik understands the law and the need to apply it fairly to all parties. He has been an advocate for the People for almost 20 years, protecting victims' rights and helping to assure appropriate consequences for those who violate the law. Use your vote to elect a candidate with the experience needed to preside over our criminal courts.

Rolando Mazariegos, Salinas

When is a poll a 'poll'?

Dear Editor,

In spite of your headline on the March 28 front page proclaiming "poll" results related to upcoming city and national elections, your survey does not offer Carmel voters the meaningful results of a true opinion poll. Instead, it was simply yet another expression of potentially biased "opinions" from yet another undisciplined and unscientific web-based survey — in this case one that may have been, for all anyone knows, designed for the purpose of propagandizing the political leanings of a narrowly self-selected set of Internet-savvy Pine Cone online readers intent on influencing public opinion.

According to the National Council on Public Polls, web-based surveys "are completely unreliable" and "to describe them as 'polls' is to misuse that term." The council furthermore states that if there is no evidence that an Internet-based survey is designed to be representative, then "it is not worthy of being reported." After all, polls are generally designed to predict actual behavior, and pollsters attempt to remove bias to generate as accurate a prediction of that behavior as possible. As we have seen in recent primaries, even with sophisticated modeling they don't always succeed; but, at least they try (presumably). I suggest that The Pine Cone continue to use Internet-based surveys for the purpose for which such surveys are best suited — to promote your web site's readership.

But, please, preserve your front page for news that is reliably researched.

Douglas Paul Ambort, Carmel

Suttons' thanks

Dear Editor,

On behalf of our family, we would like to express our sincerest gratitude for the outpouring of love and kindness which we have received from the community of Carmel since the death of our son, Jeffrey. Especially at a time like this we feel so fortunate to live here in Carmel and blessed to be surrounded by all of our dear friends and neighbors. Our broken hearts were and continue to be truly comforted by all of your countless acts of kindness. Your prayers, sweet words, flowers, and hugs continue to carry us as we grieve our unimaginable loss. Through your tremendous generosity of donations made to

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

NICKY ABBOTT, about 5, is thought to be part Australian shepherd, part cocker spaniel. Her shiny black coat is offset with two white bobby socks with black polka dots. Her upper lip and chin are white, but that's just decorative coloring, not a sign of age.

Nicky is a rescue dog whom Dad Tom and Mom Laurie Casey discovered a few years ago. She had the same facial hair coloring then as she has now, so her folks know she's still a young dog.

Dad said she's bright as a button and that she came in first at her Santa Cruz obedience class. Whenever she does anything she's not supposed to, Dad has only to quietly admonish her once, and she never falls from grace again with that particular foible.

Nicky loves her fluffy, stuffed toys with squeakers inside. She has almost loved to death her stuffed frog and pig, now limbless.

Not lacking for playmates, Nicky is affectionate with her three indoor cat sisters: Tony, 14, a female manx; Poppy, 5, a pretty calico; and winsome Missy, another manx with whom Nicky curls up for short snoozes. There are three more kitties, cousins to Nicky, who reside in the barn on Dad's three-acre farm in the Aptos countryside. There are chickens and two horses, too, but Nicky doesn't play with them, although she likes them. Dad said the horses, for some unknown reason, haven't taken to Nicky.

Mom, Dad and Nicky come to Carmel several times a month, at which time Nicky runs on Carmel Beach with the big dogs

At night, Nicky sleeps in her own bed in the living room, where she can keep an eye on things. The cats sleep with Mom and Dad, leaving the watch-dogging to Nicky.

POLICE LOG

that wasn't successful. Possible ID theft issue (not confirmed).

Carmel area: Victim reported a residential burglary that took place between March 25 at 1200 hours and March 26 at 0800 hours. No suspect information.

Carmel area: Person reported a suspicious subject climbing over a fence of a residence under construction. Area check was made and nothing suspicious located.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female subject, age 43, was arrested at the Crossroads shopping center at 0212 hours on a felony no-bail warrant and a $5,000 misdemeanor warrant. She was lodged at county jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person called to report a voluntary repossession he processed on Junipero Street. The vehicle was entered into the stolen vehicle system as a repossession. Nothing further.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were on scene at Camino Real and Eighth due to cooking smoke and the failure of the staff to activate the hood fan. Search of the premises showed no other problems, so all units cleared and returned to the station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine, ambulance and police personnel were on scene of a reported hazardous materials spill at San Antonio and Fourth. Materials determined to be sheetrock dust which was washed off of tools at a construction site east of the spill. Spill was contained to the entrance of the storm drain, assisted by a thick layer of dirt inside the storm drain. Firefighters applied absorbent to standing liquid inside the storm drain and notified the building inspector. Building inspector was to contact public works to remove the absorbed product and excess dirt from the storm drain. He was also going to contact the contractor to clean the stain left by the flow of the product from the job site.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a reported structure fire on Dolores south of Seventh at 1856 hours. Upon arrival, units were updated by FireComm to respond to the west side of Forest south of Seventh, arriving at 1902 hours. Firefighters discovered a plastic trash bin on fire, the result possibly from spontaneous combustion from oily rags. The fire was extinguished by a neighbor and fire personnel. This was determined to be an accidental fire.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

THE BEACH HOUSE
Pacific Grove

Less than 50 yards to the surf, 15 Acropolis is just steps to miles of coastline. With breathtaking views of the Pacific Ocean and Monterey Bay, watch the sea otters and seals rolling in the waves. Reflecting the character of a "Carmel quaint" beach house, this home is mixture of gracious living and casual life. The generous living room with spectacular ocean views has a cozy fireplace, open-beamed ceilings and hardwood floors. The adjacent dining room can accommodate a table for ten. This 2,290 sq. ft. reverse floor plan home has a variety of intimate areas for entertaining both indoors and out. For informal entertaining, the spacious family room with floor to ceiling windows has a panoramic view to Monterey and the sand cliffs beyond.

OWN A PIECE OF CARMEL HISTORY

Classic Entrance to the Golden Bough Theater Circa 1922

A rare opportunity to own this beautiful historic building in the enchanting courtyard behind the Cottage of Sweets on Ocean Avenue (just west of Lincoln Street on the south side of Ocean Avenue). Built in 1922 by Edward G. Kuster, the lower level has two charming retail stores currently occupied by Fourtane Gentleman's Boutique and an adjacent art gallery. The upper level consists of three separate offices overlooking the courtyard, a common reception area with a peek of the ocean, a full bathroom and kitchenette. The upper level may be converted to a wonderful pied a terre living unit; just imagine the convenience of an in-town residence with business below! Total leaseable area is 1,820 square feet, attractive assumable financing available, possible tax benefits due to historic building.

CARMEL

Least expensive 2 bed home in Carmel. "Bluebird" is a cute little cottage on the high side of Ocean Ave sheltered by trees and vegetation so you almost would not know it was there. Long driveway for plenty of off street parking, big lot with 4800 SF provides the room for a very nice large back yard for out door living. Great little house for the first Carmel get away or starter home.

Offered at $725,000

You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money and property may be taken without further warning from the court.
There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association.
Tiene 30 DIAS DE CALENDARIO después de que le entreguen esta citación y papeles legales para presentar una respuesta por escrito en esta corte y hacer que se entregue una copia al demandante. Una carta o una llamada telefónica no lo protegen. Su respuesta por escrito tiene que estar en formato legal correcto si desea que procesen su caso en la corte. Es posible que haya un formulario que usted pueda usar para su respuesta. Puede encontrar estos formularios de la corte y más información en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp/espanol/), en la biblioteca de leyes de su condado o en la corte que le quede mas cerca. Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentacion, pida al secretario de la corte que le de un formulario de exencion de pago de cuotas.

Hay otros requisitos legales Es recomendable que llame a un abogado inmediatamente. Si no conoce a un abogado, pueda llamar a un servicio de remision a abogados. Si no puede pagar a un abogado, es posible que cumpla con los requisitos para obtener servicios legales gratuitos de un programa de servicios legales sin fines de lucro. Puede encontrar estos sin fines de lucro en el sitio web de California Legal Services, (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California, (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp/espanol/) o poniéndose en contacto con la corte o el colegio de abagados locales.
