Dramatic beach rescue as man nearly drowns

Rescuers teamed to help save the life of a Pacific Grove man who was apparently hit by a wave while swimming at Carmel Beach Monday afternoon, knocked unconscious and nearly drowned. He remains hospitalized in intensive care.

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AS WALKERS, surfers and sunbathers speckled Carmel Beach enjoying Monday afternoon's warmth and sunshine, a Pacific Grove man was rushed to the hospital after being pulled unconscious from the waves by a friend.

According to Carmel Police Sgt. Mel Mukai, 33-year-old Damien Thompson was swimming with friends when probably got hit by a wave and knocked unconscious.

"His friend noticed he was just floating face down in the water and pulled him ashore, at which time various people assisted with first aid," he said.

A fire engine and ambulance were sent to Carmel Beach around 5:15 p.m. following a 911 call from someone the dispatcher described as "hysterical." Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance paramedic David Jedinak and Carmel Fire Capt. Ian Watts took the

Kenney: I shot neighbors after being assaulted

By CASEY MILLER

IN DRAMATIC testimony at the Salinas courthouse Thursday afternoon, accused double-murderer John Kenney took the stand, telling the jury he shot his Carmel Valley neighbors in self-defense, not cold blood.

"It was pandemonium. I was acting half on instinct and half on self-preservation," Kenney said about the deadly confrontation with his neighbors, Mel and Elizabeth Grimes, on January 29, 2007. "I wasn't thinking of anything. I was trying to save my life."

Kenney began his testimony by briefly describing his early life, from his service in Korea as a combat paratrooper, to becoming an expert in theoretical physics working for the petroleum industry. His wife and two children, he said, live in France at his other home, and they have not visited Carmel Valley with him since 2005, when Elizabeth Grimes, assaulted him and gave him a concussion, according to Kenney.

The defense and the prosecution agree the fatal shooting was the culmination of a dispute between Kenney and the County unlikely to back regional water supply project

■ Supe vehemently opposes proposal

By KELLY NIX

WORK BY an ambitious group on a regional water supply was halted this week because a county agency has not committed to backing the group's efforts.

Water for Monterey County — launched by the California Public Utilities Commission in 2007 — has been working on a plan that would supply as much as 29,000 acre-feet of water, enough to solve the Peninsula's water supply problem, as well as shortages in other communities.

But directors of the Monterey County Water Resources Agency have not signed a contract to manage the group, forcing the cancellation of WMC's monthly meeting Sept. 3.

"We're out of money," said Steve Kasower, the UCSC economist and professor who heads the WMC group.

While California American Water Co., the Marina Coast

Water District and Castroville Community Services District have agreed to fund the group so it can craft a regional water supply project, the money can't be used until a contract to manage it has been forged.

While MCWRA board directors were asked Monday to vote whether to manage the project, they postponed their vote, opting to look at the issue during a special meeting Sept. 3.

And directors seem poised to vote against embracing the WMC plan.

"They have really grappled with what their role should be," said MCWRA General Manager Curtis Weeks. "And there have been concerns about taking groundwater out of the Salinas Valley."

Supervisor leads charge

The opposition to the WMC project is being led by 2nd District Supervisor and dairy farmer Lou Calcagno, whose district includes North Monterey County.

In a tirade Wednesday, Calcagno blasted the plan which he said was being pushed by people from "out of the area."

"I represent North County, and they have severe water problems," Calcagno told The Pine Cone. "To put together a project that says Monterey County but is all geared toward the Monterey Peninsula, what the hell is going on?"

Besides his concerns over water rights, Calcagno said drawing water from the Salinas aquifer for the WMC project would aggravate saltwater intrusion in the aquifer.

"Until we solve the water problems in the Salinas Valley ... don't come in our backyard and play this chess game with a little water here and little water there," he said. "You have no jurisdiction to this aquifer."

Kasower said the group's research shows that drawing water from the aquifer over a long period of time would actually reduce the amount of salt in the aquifer, a study Calcagno said he doesn't think is credible.

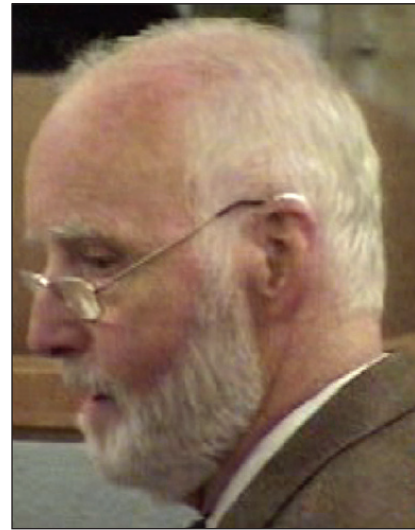

"In 50 years," Kasower said, "drawing from the aquifer would clean it up."

Calcagno, who has never attended a meeting of the

Scott admits growing dope but denies lighting fires

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE PROSECUTION'S case is mostly circumstantial, and no one saw Lance Oliver Scott set any fires. But he apparently doesn't have any alibis, and in a county courtroom this week, investigators, law enforcement officers and experts testified how Scott set 11 fires in the Jacks Peak area in 2006 and 2007.

Opposite them, friends described his love and knowledge of nature, while Scott took the stand to explain he was in the area where the fires were set, not to start them, but to hike, drive, relax and water his pot plants.

After Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Steve Somers and defense attorney Richard Rosen made their opening arguments before the jury and Monterey County Superior Court Judge Terrance Duncan last week, the prose-

Lushies get naked and so do their goods

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE COPS weren't very amused, and some passersby seemed a bit befuddled at the sight of three women on the sidewalk wearing nothing but black aprons and shoes.

But thanks to media attention (including this story), an anti-packaging campaign launched by Lush Fresh Handmade Cosmetics Wednesday turned out to be a pretty effective means of getting the message across.

The trio of nearly naked women, including store manager Daphne Engelken, stood in front of the Ocean Avenue store handing out flyers and samples during the lunch hour.

"We're just wearing our aprons today," Engelken explained. "We're trying to bring some awareness of the excessive packaging in the cosmetics industry."

Long involved in environmental and social causes, the U.K.-based cosmetics company is known for embarking on unusual efforts to convey its concerns. In April, a Carmel store employee dressed as a "bag monster" paraded up and down the street with coworkers decrying people's excessive use and waste of plastic carrier bags and encouraging them to switch to reusable sacks.

This week, Lush workers touted their "naked" products, which are sold without packaging, other than perhaps a little tissue paper, and demonstrate the wastefulness of plastic wrappings, boxes and bottles.

By removing water from its products, Lush can sell solid

Refinery for Moss Landing (part 2) - A number of retired industrialists, conservationists, and politicians led the fight against Humble Oil Company's plan to build a refinery at Moss Landing. Carmel photographer Ansel Adams and even former Governor Goodwin Knight joined the fray, with Knight warning: "Humble Oil will kill you. Don't let them." A fourth of Monterey County residents signed petitions against it, the Salinas Valley agriculture community was split, and county planners opposed it. But the county's Board of Supervisors, after a 17-hour hearing in December 1965, voted 3-2 in favor of the refinery, deciding the county could regulate air pollution. Courts upheld the approval, but directors and shareholders of parent Standard Oil got an earful at the annual shareholders meeting. In August 1966, Humble dropped the plan and announced that instead it would build a larger refinery in a more welcoming Benicia. Humble said opposition on the Monterey Peninsula was a factor, but engineering and soil tests at Moss Landing were more decisive. (Next week: Monterey Bay's Oil Industry.)

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Suspicious tying of black boxes

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 12

Carmel Valley: A Marina resident requested a civil standby to provide personal property to a Carmel Valley resident. Property was exchanged without incident.

Carmel Valley: A Carmel Valley resident reported her husband grabbed her by the throat and threatened her. The victim received no injuries. Case continues with the Monterey County District Attorney's Office.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 13

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject contacted at a residence on Ridgewood. He entered the home without deactivating the alarm. False alarm.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported a dog altercation ensued while two dog owners were approaching each other on Mesa Trail in Mission Trail park. The Dalmatian owner reported her dog was walking next to her and the retriever was five feet from its owner. Both dogs were off leash when the retriever approached the Dalmatian and attacked the dog on the neck, and both dogs tumbled to the ground. The Dalmatian owner was able to put her jacket between the two dogs to separate them but stated the retriever owner did not assist with keeping his dog away. The male owner of the retriever had two retrievers with him, but only one showed aggression. The Dalmatian owner only obtained the retrievers' owner's name, and both left the area. The Dalmatian owner returned to her vehicle and checked her dog for injuries, and none found.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on Ocean Avenue. Property damage only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen on Santa Fe reported a dog loose had chased her cat into her yard. The dog owner was in the area and took control of the dog. The citizen requested the dog owner be contacted since prior incidents had occurred but were not reported. The dog owner was contacted and warned. The owner

"WHAT'S GOOD FOR CARMEL BUSINESS IS GOOD FOR CARMEL!"

Baby you can drive my car

Once again the time has come and gone when visitors can amble mindlessly down the middle of Ocean avenue in front of cars at a dead stop and actually have drivers smile at them. Concours on the Avenue 2008 is now a memory.

And a successful one, too, from my perspective. Though I know there has been discussion on that point from fellow merchants, looking at my Monday/Tuesday numbers the week before and the week after Car Week, I know that business was up for me as well as foot traffic. But foot traffic is the most important point to these events, anyway, I think. As a business owner, I love seeing all the visitors coming to town to look at the vintage cars, wandering into my shop after walking the streets and taking pictures. As a resident, I love that they'll go home singing the praises of their visit to Carmel and wishing they were as lucky as us to live here.

But of course, it wasn't only visitors gawking and drooling at all the cars. As I did my tour of the entries (continually reminding myself that it was o.k. to get off the sidewalk and walk in the road), I kept running into friends both looking at the cars and exhibiting them. I have to admit, my personal favorite was the Citroen exhibited by Sabine and Michael Adamson of Sabine Adamson Antiques in Su Vecino Court, primarily because I know the back-story. Sabine and Michael bought it on a buying trip to France and it just last month arrived stateside. While Michael claims the original intent of a Citroen was to take a farmer, his wife, two children and a pig to market, Sabine bought it as a delivery vehicle for her store.

Only trouble is, Sabine can't drive a clutch.

So if you see Sabine driving her Citroen, give her a wave and a LOT of room. And if you see Michael driving it on Carmel hill, get out and help him push. Citroens don't have much power.

Carmel Valley bicycle trail clears first hurdle

By CHRIS COUNTS

CARMEL VALLEY has never been a very bicycle-friendly place, but a proposed 1.1-mile trail that would parallel the Carmel River could go a long way toward changing that.

The Monterey County Planning Commission approved a "mitigated negative declaration" this week for a paved trail along the south bank of the river to connect the western edge of the Quail Lodge property to Palo Corona Regional Park. "The environmental document was one of the project's biggest hurdles," explained Patricia Lopez, a management analyst for Monterey County Public Works, the agency that would construct the path.

Funded by federal, state and local agencies — and aided by a contribution from the Big Sur Land Trust — the trail will cost about $2.1 million to build.

The trail crosses just one piece of private property, and the owner has agreed to let the path go through, according to Monterey County Planning Commissioner Martha Diehl.

While getting the environmental analysis approved, Lopez said the planning commission will likely weigh in on the project's permit in six to eight months. If the planning commission OK's it, construction would likely begin in 2010 and could be completed later that year or early in 2011.

The trail is just one phase of a proposed bicycle route that would stretch from the eastern end of Valley Greens Drive to Highway 1. If completed, path could be part of a larger network of trails that would allow bicyclists to access Carmel River Beach, the Crossroads and Barnyard shopping centers, and Carmel Hill.

Tim Jensen, planning and conservation manager for the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District, has been working on the trail for five years and is a big supporter of the project.

"It is one of the primary goals of the park district to help facilitate community connectedness with open space parklands," Jensen explained. "The path is part of a greater network of paths that will integrate the lower valley community. Bicycles are a great way to get around."

Diehl also supports the idea of making it easier for bicyclists to get around Carmel and Carmel Valley.

"Anything we can do to offer kids a safe route to school and commuters a safe route to work is a good thing," Diehl said. "I don't see a downside to it."

The Big Sur Land Trust is another longtime supporter of creating a network of bicycle trails in Carmel and Carmel Valley. In 2005, the land conservation group unveiled its Carmel River Parkway Plan, which offers a bird's-eye view of possible bicycle routes.

"The whole idea is to create pathways so people can get out of their cars and walk or ride bicycles," added Rachel Saunders, director of communications for the land trust.

Potter and Farr host C.V. fire meeting

LIKE THEIR counterparts in Big Sur, the residents of Cachagua and Tassajara will get a chance to sound off on how the recent Basin Complex Fire — and the response to the fire by government agencies — affected their lives.

Fifth District Supervisor Dave Potter and Congressman Sam Farr will host a special meeting on the fire Thursday, Sept. 4, at the Cachagua Community Center.

The meeting will feature a discussion on what worked, what didn't work and what needs to be improved before the next potentially devastating fire threatens Upper Carmel Valley. Agency representatives will also identify programs and services that can benefit residents as they grapple with the challenges created by the recent wildfire and the erosion many expect to follow this winter.

Agencies invited to participate in the meeting include the Monterey County Sheriff's Office, Office of Emergency Services, Water Resources Agency, Planning and Building Department, Environmental Health Department, and Public Works Department; the California Highway Patrol, the United States Forest Service, Cal-Fire, the Cachagua Fire Protection District and Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

The meeting starts at 6 p.m. The community center is located at 37100 Nason Road.

A beautiful weekend for First Tee Open

ALMOST 80 talented young golfers — including several Peninsula stars — are competing in this week's Wal-Mart First Tee Open alongside the professional players many of them would like to emulate. The tournament, a relaxed, lively affair that has kids and pros bantering as proud parents and fans watch from outside the ropes, is taking place at the Pebble Beach Golf Links and the Del Monte Golf Course through Aug. 31, with more than 150 amateur players rounding out the field.

The open raises money for The First Tee, a program providing kids of all backgrounds the opportunity to develop life values through learning golf and building character. Last year's event generated more than $850,000 for The First Tee and The First Tee of Monterey County, which serves more than 1,500 kids in golf programs in Monterey and Salinas.

Seventy of the junior players earned spots by participating in a selection process held last month in Kansas for boys and New Hampshire for girls, and organizers invited eight others, including Luke Vivolo of Carmel, Sydney Burlison of Salinas, JT Harper of Pebble Beach, Ariana Patterson of Carmel and Annie Bowsby of Monterey.

They are paired with 78 Champions Tour professionals, among them defending champ Gil Morgan, and the amateurs complete each foursome. Practice rounds were held this week, with competition set for Friday and Saturday on both courses. Sunday's final round will be held only at Pebble Beach, where all 78 pros will compete for the championship, along with the 10 leading amateur teams and the top 22 pro-junior teams.

Daily tickets are $30 at the gate, and kids are admitted free with paying adults. Any firefighter, law enforcement officer or member of the military can bring a guest, and both attend for free. In addition, people who bring cell phones to donate to soldiers, or e-waste like old computers, monitors, copiers, fax machines, batteries and televisions to dump at Collins Field next to the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday or Sunday, will be rewarded with free tournament tickets.

Part of P.G. hiking trail is for sale by railroad company

By KELLY NIX

A "FOR sale" sign on 10 acres of undeveloped land near Asilomar in Pacific Grove is causing consternation among some residents who fear its sale could mean the loss of a section of the city's beloved recreation trail.

Back in the days of the Del Monte Express, when daily train service was available from Pacific Grove to San Francisco and special trains sometimes went to Asilomar, the property was the site of a small station. The station was torn down in the 1940s, the tracks were removed in 1983, and the level route once plied by steam trains became a hiking trail.

But, unlike the path along the shore of Monterey Bay, which was acquired from the railroad in the late 1980s, the right of way adjacent to the Pacific Grove golf course and through the Asilomar neighborhood has remained in private ownership. And the site, now for sale for $1.6 million, is zoned for up to 170 units of "visitor serving" or "medium density residential" uses. The property is located along Sinex between Crocker and Dennett.

Harvey Broadsky, who said he's walked on the railroad trail at least 5,000 times since 1984, said he's worried a fence might eventually block off its access.

"It would just break my heart to not see that trail available for myself and the hundreds and hundreds of other people who enjoy it," Broadsky said.

Resident Al Saxe, who lives about 200 yards from the trail on Sinex, started a campaign to stop the sale of the property, distributing fliers that state, "Save the trail, stop the sale."

"What a crime to disrupt something like that," Saxe said. "You can walk from the senior center to Spanish Bay. It's a marvelous trail."

He told The Pine Cone he wants a public agency or a conservation group to buy the land.

At the Aug. 20 Pacific Grove City Council meeting, residents told council members they are worried about what might become of the beloved tree-lined trail.

Nearby homeowner Bill Robertson said development of the property would be a "sin of neglect" by the city.

Curtis Jansen, who told the council he is building a home to the rear of the trail, said he would have not built it had he known the trail "was in jeopardy."

Development unlikely

But according to senior city planner Lynn Burgess, it would take a small miracle for a buyer of the property to build on the trail.

"In Pacific Grove," Burgess said, "there is a provision that all property zoned open space as of 1986 should remain open space unless the voters approve a zoning change."

In an Aug. 21 letter to the Union Pacific real estate department, city attorney David Laredo argued the public already has an easement along the hiking trail.

"This public easement has been acquired by prescription by reason of adverse, continuing, open and notorious use that has been continuous and uninterrupted for a period exceeding two decades," Laredo wrote.

Pacific Grove Mayor Dan Cort, who was out of town when Union Pacific suddenly revealed its intention to sell the property, said he believes negotiations can produce a solution.

And Union Pacific spokeswoman Zoe Richmond said the rail company hopes the trail, which Union Pacific purchased from Southern Pacific in 1996, remains open to the public.

"Ideally, what we hope happens here," she said, "is that the community gets to keep it as a trail."

The city council will discuss the issue Sept. 3 at 6 p.m. The council meeting will be held at city hall, 300 Forest Ave.

Countywide bike map printed

AS MORE people jump on their bicycles, whether to save gas, get more fit or enjoy the Peninsula scenery, the Transportation Agency for Monterey County wants to make sure they know where they're going.

The agency has finished updating its map of Monterey County bike routes and the Monterey Bay Coastal Trail from Marina to Pacific Grove.

It also indicates points of interest, riding distances, park-and-ride lots, and contact information for local bicycle shops and rentals. Look for the free bike maps at transit locations, recreation centers, chambers of commerce and visitor centers, or online at http://tamcmonterey.org/programs/bikeped/bike_map.html.

City seeks fans of history, books, buildings, trees, parks and fun

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SIX CARMEL boards and commissions will have seats up for grabs in October, and though all but one of the people who hold them now are seeking reappointment, the city is searching for other qualified applicants. But the deadline is fast approaching, and candidates need to submit their paperwork to city hall by 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 29, for possible appointment to the forest and beach commission, Harrison Memorial Library board, planning commission, design review board, historic resources board, or community activities and cultural commission.

The community activities and cultural commission will have two four-year terms available: Donna Jett was appointed in October 2004 and Ruth Rachel was appointed this year to finish out a term that also expires in October.

According to the city, "applicants should have an interest in, or familiarity with, the creative or performing arts," the public park and recreational programs, and its facilities.

The commission meets the second Tuesday of each month at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers at Carmel City Hall.

The planning commission, one of the most powerful decision-making bodies in the city, will have one spot up for appointment with the end of the four-year term held by Robin Wilson. One of the commission's longest serving members, Wilson was first appointed in 1996, and then reappointed in 2000 and 2004. All planning commissioners must be interested and familiar with planning issues, and each month on the second Wednesday, beginning at 3:30 p.m., they tour properties they will be discussing and then hold hearings at city hall.

Another group that handles planning issues in the city, the design review board, is looking for applicants for the seat held by Jonathan Sapp, who was appointed in 2007 to serve a partial term.

"Applicants should share varied backgrounds and experience in architecture, historical architecture, design art, landscaping or the construction/building industry, or any combination thereof," according to the city. The DRB tours properties at 3:15 p.m. and meets at 4:30 the fourth Wednesday of each month in Carmel City Hall.

Forest and beach commissioner Tad Pritchett's four-year term will expire in October, and he is not seeking reappointment. The city is seeking candidates who are interested and familiar with the city's parks and open space. The forest and beach commission meets the first Thursday of each month at 1:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Members of the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees serve for three years, and longtime member Robert Irvine's term will end in October. Irvine, a passionate library supporter who often speaks at city council meetings on behalf of the board, was appointed in 1996 and reappointed in 1999, 2002 and 2005.

All members of the board must, of course, hold valid library cards, and they should have an interest in and knowledge of the services it offers. The board meets on the fourth Wednesday of each month at 9 a.m. in city hall.

Homecrafters' hopefuls must submit creations

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ARTISTS AND crafts people living in Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz counties who want to sell their creations during the City of Carmel's 38th annual Homecrafters' Marketplace in November must first have their work judged to see if it's good enough. A three-person panel will comb through the applicants' wares Wednesday to determine which should be among the 100 vendors at the holiday sale set to be held on Ocean Avenue Saturday, Nov. 22.

According to community services assistant Cindi Lopez, the arts and crafts offered for sale must be handmade by the applicant, who must reside in one of the three counties and attend the judging in person. Candidates should bring at least two examples of their work, as well as a photograph or drawing showing how they plan to set up their booth during the sale. The city requires any potential newcomers, as well as those whose work was last judged three years ago, to undergo the jury process.

regional water supply group, said he has discussed with MCWRA directors his disdain for the WMC project.

"If anything is done, it will be done by the Monterey County Water Resources Agency," he said. "It won't be done by the PUC and a professor."

Kasower said Calcagno's dislike for the project even led the supervisor to try to remove the county's logo from the project's documents.

It could stay afloat

The biggest question is whether the WMC plan, which some feel is the most promising water supply solution the Peninsula has had in years, can survive if the county and Calcagno don't back it.

Kasower said it's possible the project could stay afloat without the county's managerial help, but that would require the agencies funding the project to enter into a contract with UCSC's Center for Integrated Water Research, which Kasower and his assistant, Catherine Borrowman, work for.

Water for Monterey County had been funded by the PUC Division of Ratepayer Advocates. But in August, the contract expired, and the DRA passed the torch to local agencies to fund it. Most of the money goes toward paying Kasower and Borrowman for their work.

In the group's relatively short life, it has managed to submit a detailed environmental analysis of the project to the PUC, which means the plan will be reviewed in an environmental impact report for the Coastal Water Project, Cal Am's proposed desal plant.

Other supervisors

Kasower said other county officials, not just Calcagno, should have more say in the regional water supply project. "How can one county supervisor have that much authority to remove something from a regional process that would impact the Peninsula without even discussing it with Supervisor Dave Potter, who represents the Peninsula?" Kasower asked.

Cal Am's project?

Cal Am, which supplies water to about 40,000 Peninsula customers, is operating a test desal plant as part of its Coastal Water Project in Moss Landing. But the desal operation may never see the light of day, in part because it faces harsh criticism from environmentalists who don't like its once-through cooling method, which kills fish.

Calcagno, who accused some of those involved in the WMC project as being "leeches" trying to "make money," suggested the regional plan is Cal Am's backup project if the Coastal Water Project doesn't come to fruition.

"Do we want to work with the Monterey Peninsula? Yes we do," Calcagno said. "Is there a way to do it? Maybe. But don't come in and do it underground and try to camouflage it under a regional project when it only is one thing: Cal Am plan B."

Cal Am community relations manager Catherine Bowie rejected the notion the regional plan is Cal Am's baby. "We have always advocated faster, cheaper and better," Bowie said. "If [the WMC proposal] is viable, we are certainly supportive of exploring it. But we didn't initiate it."

YOUR AUTO COLUMN

Presented by Kevin & Sue Anne Donohoe
YOUR CAR'S VALUE DOWN THE ROAD

Whether or not car buyers relish the negotiating process that goes along with purchasing a vehicle, consumers want to get the most for their money. Therefore, when it comes to determining the value of a vehicle, consumers should take into account that there are other factors than purchase price to consider. For instance, car buyers will want to check a vehicle's track record for holding on to its value during ownership. While some vehicles may cost more to buy, they may also depreciate less. In addition, consumers should bear in mind a vehicle's safety record, which could affect insurance costs. Quality is another measure of value. Vehicles that are less prone to break down cost less to own.

Keeping records on all the maintenance and scheduled repairs performed during your ownership of your vehicle will benefit you when you sell it. Here at Pacific Motor Service, we are committed to excellent customer service, and quality work. That's a promise. We can help you not only maintain your car, but maintain a detailed track record for your vehicle. We are serious about car care and we know that a potential buyer will appreciate the fact that your vehicle has been maintained by the oldest independent repair facility in Monterey going... and growing!

HINT: Keeping accurate records of a vehicle's service history helps to ensure its value (as long as the manufacturer's procedures and recommendations are followed).

Will Greener = Longer?

There are new trends developing as a result of both higher energy and fuel expenses and greater concerns about the amount of carbon dioxide we send into the atmosphere. Both areas of concern have ultimate economic ramifications, and one of the possible results of the dollars-and-sense concerns may be a tendency to look at our homes as long-term sanctuaries rather than as stopping places that we change every seven years or so.

Consider: If you decide to install better windows, to upgrade your insulation, to put solar shingles on the roof, you are creating a far more energy-efficient home. But the initial cost is somewhat prohibitive. So we take the long view.

Will we live in our home long enough to reach the point where the small energy bills have paid for the more expensive and efficient hardware? And if we move before we reach that point, will our highly-improved home fetch a larger selling price, paying for the improvements that we made?

Energy-efficiency is one of today's homebuyer's main concerns, studies show us. There is no doubt that buyers will pay a premium for better, less expensive energy hardware. More and more homeowners will notice this and act accordingly. And most of us are likely to look upon our homes as longer-term residences than we did in the past. This will surely turn out to be a good thing for us all...and for the environment in which we live. To find out more, call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

cution spent three days interviewing witnesses to support arson and drug charges against Scott. It was a difficult case to solve.

"Doing arson cases gives me gray hair," Cal Fire investigator Mark Kendall told the court. "You have to develop a suspect, and once you develop a suspect, you have to follow that suspect and gather enough information to make an arrest."

Nab him too soon, and the case might be weak. Wait too long, "and a fire gets out of control, and it burns somebody's house down," he said. "It's a fine line you have to walk."

Cameras installed on access roads to Jacks Peak led investigators to identify Scott as a prime suspect, and officers tailed him before placing a GPS tracker on one of his cars. Surveillance showed him in the areas of some of the fires around the times they started, they testified.

After a suspicious fire erupted in August 2007 on a dead-end road in Jacks Peak and threatened a house, they decided to arrest him. When they searched Scott's home and cars, officers found fireworks, torn match books and other items they said were consistent with arson. Burn marks scarred the seats of Scott's car, though Rosen suggested they were from Scott smoking pot.

Officers also found marijuana plants growing on the deck and in the backyard, dope in bags and other containers throughout the house, and a PVC pipe turned into a device for making "honey oil" from marijuana by pouring butane over it.

And one of the prosecution's witnesses was an inmate from the county jail who said Scott asked him to light a fire for him.

Defense: Wrong place, wrong time

Late Tuesday morning, Rosen launched his defense, which focused on Scott's longtime love and knowledge of the outdoors, his liking to drive the scenic route rather than take the freeway, and his penchants for growing and smoking marijuana.

Several friends described their relationships with Scott. Frank Emerson of the Carmel River Steelhead Association said Scott helped rescue steelhead from the drying river each summer.

A few longtime friends talked about his knowledge of nature in superlative terms and said he was an avid fisherman, hunter, hiker and outdoorsman. They testified he knows more about plants, animals, bugs and other wildlife, and is more observant, than most people.

Scott, clean shaven and attired in a suit and tie, also took the stand on Tuesday. He talked about his family — including his wife and three children, ages 10, 6 and 3 — and described his upbringing in Carmel and Carmel Valley. He recalled catching his first fish, an octopus, at 6 years old and getting into big-game hunting before he was a teenager. As an adult, he embarked on fishing and hunting expeditions throughout the West.

He said he's driven every road in Jacks Peak multiple times over the years, hiked every trail, and enjoyed taking his children there.

"I really respect that area — I like it and like taking my kids through there and teaching them what I know," about flora and fauna, he said. "I didn't start any of the fires."

Scott testified he first smoked dope when he was 13 or 14, and grew his first plants — more than three dozen — next to the Carmel River when he was 15. He's now 39.

"The cops staked out my garden, and I got in trouble," he told the court. He was sent to juvenile hall, fined $50, forced to attend drug diversion classes and put on probation for six months.

"Did that cure you?" Rosen asked.

"No," Scott answered.

He continued cultivating year after year and said he was tending pot planting in Jacks Peak in 2006 and 2007. That, his tendency to drive the scenic route, and his enjoyment of hiking should explain why his car was seen in Jacks Peak around the times of some of the fires, according to the defense.

During one blaze, while he was returning from a shopping trip with this family, he said he saw the smoke and went up to look.

"I thought we'd take the kids up there to see a house burning down, maybe to show them to not play with matches," he said.

Scott explained the sparklers, Piccolo Petes and other fireworks found in his home as being leftovers from July 4 celebrations, as the family has an annual tradition of setting them off in a school playground in Seaside. While investigators alleged sparklers found with the handles broken off were intended for starting fires, Scott said they probably came broken in the box or broke while on the floorboards of the car.

The prosecution argued a model-rocket kit found at his home tied in with the incendiary device found at one of the fires that used rocket engines, CO2 canisters, duct tape and a shop towel dipped in flammable fluid, even though the engines were not from the kit. Scott said he and his family simply enjoyed shooting off the rockets in a ball park in Carmel Valley, where they lived in 2006.

And Scott told the jury his wife used torn match books to smoke pot in a bong.

During cross examination by Somers, he admitted lying to Kendall about a few things related to his drug offenses and even hiding the presence of a pot garden from his own attorney until several months after his arrest. He said he feared being in more trouble than he already was.

Not worried

But Scott said he was unconcerned by the arson charges.

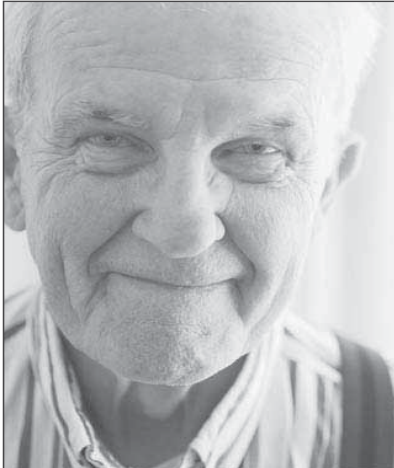

"When I was arrested for arson, I knew they had the wrong guy, so I thought I would be out of jail a lot sooner than this," said Scott, who has been incarcerated since his arrest.

And Scott said he couldn't verify his location or activities elsewhere when the fires were set, since he didn't hold a full-time job with a time clock and hadn't looked to see if he'd been somewhere spending money during those critical dates and times.

"Can I take that to mean you don't have an alibi for any of those 11 fires?" Somers asked.

"I guess," he answered.

Following closing arguments and instructions from the judge, the jury began its deliberations Thursday afternoon.

Grimeses over a strip of land Kenney considered his "front garden," but which the Grimeses drove over to access their driveway. Acting on legal advice from Susan Goldbeck and two attorneys from Fenton & Keller, Kenney said, he had a boulder delivered and placed to prevent the Grimeses from creating an easement over his property by driving across it.

The day of the shooting, Kenney arranged for a Monterey County Sheriff's deputy, his own legal counsel and an armed guard from First Alarm security company to be present during the boulder's delivery to resolve any disputes. However, the deputy never arrived, Kenney said, and his lawyer and the guard left for personal reasons before the Grimeses arrived. That left Kenney alone on the property, which caused his "level of anxiety to increase by two to three orders of magnitude," he told the court.

Kenney claimed he then went back into his home to prepare dinner, and was in his kitchen with his hearing aides removed when he heard banging on his door. Kenney went up to his bedroom and grabbed his pistol while "in a high state of fear." He was "alone and vulnerable," he said.

He walked out of the house to confront Elizabeth Grimes, and when his questions were countered with insults and derision, he demanded she get off his property.

It was then that he noticed Mel Grimes striking the boulder "in a frenzy" with a sledgehammer, Kenney testified, and he walked down to demand Grimes get off his property. But when Kenney reached the boulder, he claimed, Elizabeth Grimes struck him in the back of the head.

When he pushed her to the side, Kenney testified, Mel Grimes rushed at him with "the sledgehammer raised like a battering ram." Kenney claims he struck Mel Grimes in the left cheek with his pistol, leaving an abrasion in the shape of the pistol's sight, before stepping back and firing four shots alternating between the couple. After he felt he was in "no immediate danger," he accidentally fired a fifth shot into the ground because his "hands were shaking so badly."

When emergency crews arrived, Kenney said he was "puzzled" they did not approach him or ask for assistance, so he walked back up his driveway and sat down. When a deputy sheriff, later identified as Brian Irons, escorted him to his patrol car, Kenney alleged the deputy "suddenly slammed me against the car, put my right arm in a hammer lock, handcuffed me and shoved me into the car."

Under cross examination by assistant district attorney Berkley Brannon, Kenney defended his account of the shooting, despite discrepancies in his timeline of the tragic day's events. He also testified he didn't know his victims were dying after he shot them. Asked why he didn't try to help them, he said, "I was concerned primarily and uniquely with my own well being."

And he said he felt no remorse, "because there was no guilt there."

'Baby-sit a rock'

To support its case that Kenney killed his victims in cold blood, the prosecution produced a number of noteworthy witnesses earlier in the week, chief among them Irons and deputy Mark Flores, as well as Dr. John Hain, a forensic pathologist who performed the autopsies.

Irons was the first to arrive on scene, responding to a dispatch warning of a possible disturbance at the Grimes residence.

When he got there, Irons testified Monday, he found Kenney standing up on his driveway in a "parade rest" position, and looking "emotionless," with a "blank expression." When asked what had happened to the blood-covered Elizabeth Grimes, Kenney responded, "She did it to herself."

But when Irons touched Kenney to help him into the patrol car, Kenney reacted defensively, trying to pull himself away from the car, which prompted the deputy to handcuff him and force him into the car.

Defense attorney Thomas Nolan sparked a minor confrontation Monday morning by accusing Irons of "invading [Kenney's] space" by stepping in front of Kenney and informing him he would not be allowed to return to his residence. Nolan then asked Irons if, when he placed his hand on Kenney to help him into the patrol car, he was disregarding his training "for dealing with victims of sexual assault."

When it was pointed out by the prosecution that sexual assault had nothing to do with the case, Nolan withdrew his question, asking instead if the deputy had been trained to deal with people in shock.

Flores, who was assigned to Kenney's request for law enforcement presence when the boulder was delivered, testified Wednesday he considered the call no longer necessary after the driver who delivered the boulder told him there had been no problems.

When asked if he should have proceeded despite being informed that everything was fine, he responded, "I couldn't have gotten approval. We didn't have the resources to stay there just to baby-sit a rock."

Shot in the back

Interrupting the prosecution's line of witnesses, Army Col. Renee Burgess, a friend of Kenney's, was called to the stand Tuesday to testify to Kenney's character. He said Kenney was "angry at the situation" with the Grimeses but "believed in law, and order, and living in boundaries."

Burgess insisted Kenney felt the argument was "a matter of principle ... a struggle between good and evil." Repeatedly insisting Kenney is "not a violent man," he said the accusations were "completely inconsistent with what I knew about Jack Kenney."

Hain took the stand early Wednesday afternoon and withstood a lengthy, heated cross examination by the defense. Showing a number of slides and a mannequin depicting the gunshot wounds, Hain stated he believes Elizabeth Grimes was hunched over in a kneeling, defensive position when she was shot in the back.

When asked if he felt his examination had been tainted by bias in favor of "the government," he responded, "As much respect as I have for law enforcement, I don't think they are smart enough to create the type of evidence [that would be required] to fool me."

The prosecution punctuated its case by playing Elizabeth Grimes' recorded 911 call on the day she was shot. The confrontation could be clearly heard: screamed obscenities, Grimes begging her husband to leave, sounds of a struggle and five distinct gunshots. As the couple lay bleeding on the ground, their voices were barely audible — a feeble gasp of, "Help me," and a profession of their love, followed by silence.

The Grimeses and Kenney had a long history of mutual animosity, with numerous allegations of assault, harassment and property damage by both sides over several years. While riding in the ambulance shortly before she died, Grimes was asked why Kenney shot her. She had only this to say: "Because he's an asshole."

city's ATV, stored in a shed at the foot of Ocean Avenue, down the beach to the 10th Avenue area, where a group had assembled around the prone man.

A nurse who happened to be on the beach initiated CPR, and Thompson's friends helped with chest compressions, according to Jedinak.

When he and Watts arrived, Jedinak was grateful to see someone with lifesaving skills already working on the victim.

"It was like having a third set of hands," Jedinak said.

"If it looks like they know what they're doing, we let them help, because we could always use more help," Watts said.

A bystander held an IV bag, but it and a defibrillator were unneeded, as Thompson's vital signs improved after the medics intubated him.

They loaded him onto a stretcher and into the back of the CFD pickup truck that had brought more firefighters down to the beach, and took him up to the waiting ambulance on Scenic Road.

Watts and Jedinak did not know the circumstances in which Thompson, who was wearing pants but no shirt, entered the water, but it prompted Watts to comment on the often unperceived dangers of the sea.

"I think people sometimes are out there swimming and are not experienced in the ocean," he said, and as a consequence will turn their backs to waves or be unaware of the cold water's effects on their bodies.

Thompson was unconscious during the ordeal and was taken to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, where he remains in the intensive care unit with serious injuries.

The beat goes on in Big Sur

By CHRIS COUNTS

BY THE time the late Nigerian drumming legend, Babatunde Olatunji, began teaching drumming workshops at the Esalen Institute in 1985, Big Sur — as a result of its status as a countercultural mecca — was already well established as a haven for African, Caribbean and Latin American musicians and dancers.

Two decades later, the beats and rhythms of what is now called “world music” continue to echo across Big Sur’s steep and dramatic landscape. This week — thanks to the efforts of local drummer and promoter Jayson Fann — Big Sur’s multicultural music scene offers an abundance of riches.

■ Drumming and dancing under the stars

The Big Sur Spirit Garden hosts a performance Saturday, Aug. 30, by Kayos and Vizien, two performing artists who have been initiated and ritually trained in the art of Congolese music and dance.

“As performers, they are captivating, passionate and energetic,” explained Fann, creative director of the Big Sur Spirit Garden.

Before the concert, the pair will offer lessons to anyone interested in Congolese drumming and dancing.

“As instructors, they are patient and encouraging,” Fann added.

The concert starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $15. For more information about the performance, or drumming and dancing lessons, call (831) 667-1300.

Big Sur Spirit Garden is located on Highway 1 adjacent to Loma Vista and about 27 miles south of Carmel.

■ Celebrating Labor Day

In collaboration with the Big Sur Spirit Garden, Esalen Institute hosts a Labor Day Celebration Monday, Sept. 1.

Performing at the event will be La Mixta Criolla (featuring Hector Lugo), the Extra Action Marching Band, Yaocuahtli Aztec Dancers, the Exhibit celebrates the art of people-watching in Hollywood

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE COUNTLESS artists strive to achieve some measure of commercial success, it is doubtful any have taken quite the same path as Todd White.

White — whose work will be featured in a new exhibit opening Saturday, Aug. 30, at Galerie Rue Royale — knows it takes more than just creative talent to succeed as an artist.

“You can’t be lazy,” explained White, whose colorful figurative work often focuses on the people — and fascinating personalities — that populate Hollywood at night. “And you have to have thick skin. If you can’t take criticism, you’re in the wrong business.”

Evidently, White is in the right business, even if initially it was only apparent to him.

When he first started looking for a gallery to display his work, he found no takers. Undeterred, he rented a wall in a furniture store.

“I told the woman who owned the furniture store that I was willing to pay $500 a month to display my work,” White recalled. “I sold three pieces within a week. That was the last month I had to pay for gallery space.”

Later, White displayed his work at a cigar shop and a martini bar. Actor Vin Diesel, now a collector of White’s work, discovered him in the martini bar. Other admirers include Michael Douglas, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Hugh Hefner, Larry King and Christian Slater.

This painting by Todd White was featured as the poster art for last year’s Grammy Awards.

Before embarking on a career as a fine artist, White worked at Warner Bros. Studios designing cartoon characters. While many of contemporaries were still in art school, White joined the lead animation team for “Sponge Bob Square Pants.”

About five years ago, White left the relative security of cartoon-character development for the unpredictable life of a fine artist. Living in Southern California, he found creative inspiration simply by observing the numerous people surrounding him.

“I go to bars, restaurants and airports,” he explained. “I bring a sketch

A singer who ‘knows and loves the standards’

SAN FRANCISCO Bay Area jazz vocalist Sony Holland returns to the Jazz and Blues Co. this Saturday, Aug. 30, in a special duo performance accompanied by her husband and guitarist, Jerry Holland. Sony Holland is a singer who knows and loves the standards. Her latest CD, “Swing, Bossas, Ballads & Blues,” is a collection of 16 of her favorite songs from many different eras and musical traditions.

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

Holland’s interpretations of the great American songbook show a deep respect and love for the music. She has made the San Francisco area her home since 2003, although she now performs internationally, including extensive concert tours in Tokyo, Hong Kong, and Bangkok. The show starts at 7:30 p.m. Call (831) 624-6432.

Pianist Dick Whittington, who performs weekly at Terry’s Lounge, in the Cypress Inn calls saxophonist Andrew Speight “an exceptional alto player who is my personal favorite next to Charlie Parker and Cannonball Adderley.” Speight, a hard-driving alto saxophonist and one of San Francisco’s most lively proponents of straight-ahead book and try to find something that's interesting. I like to paint people. I try to tell a story. I'm an observer. Occasionally I paint backgrounds, but they don't interest me half as much as hands and faces."

White's hard work and initiative were rewarded when a painting he created was chosen for the cover of the 2007 Grammy Awards ceremony program. The piece also adorned the event's commemorative poster.

Despite all he has achieved as an artist, White realizes he is in a business where respect is often fleeting.

"The worst thing that ever happened to me was when a woman called me years after she bought a piece," White recounted. "She told me she got a new couch, and she asked me to change the color in the background of the painting to match the couch."

White wouldn't change the color. "You don't buy art to match a new couch," he insisted. "You buy art because you feel something in it."

While White concedes he knows little about the Monterey Peninsula, he's thrilled to be opening his latest exhibit here.

"I'm excited about coming to Carmel," he added. "I'm really proud of this show. It's deeper and more expansive than what I've done before."

The gallery, which is located on the south side of Ocean between Dolores and Lincoln, will host a reception from 6 to 10 p.m. For more information, call (831) 626-3456.

■ Gallery North offers ode to color

A new group exhibit, "Color Suites," opens Saturday, Aug. 30 at Gallery North.

Featured in the show will be new paintings by Kreitman, Maria Aliotti-Ford, Patty Biederman, Tom Davies, Sheila Delimont, Cornelia Emery, Bayesteh "B.G." Ghaffary, Sarah Healey and Matt Klein. Also included in the exhibit will be sculpture by Rick Carpenter and Christianna Hunnicutt; hand-painted gourds by Liza Hunter-Muhly; and blown glass by Nick Leonoff and Nancy Francioli.

"Each artist's grouping of work uses color, sometimes vibrant, sometimes muted, to evoke an emotion or create a familiar, yet unique, scene," gallery owner Barbara Kreitman explained.

The gallery will host a reception from 1 to 5 p.m. Harpist Liyanna Bea will perform from 1 to 3 p.m. The show will be on display through Oct. 31. Gallery North is located on the east side of Dolores, between Fifth and Sixth. For more information, call (831) 620-1987.

■ The art of the Caribbean

The Big Sur Spirit Garden in Big Sur unveils a new exhibit by oil painter Robert Maja of the Dominican Republic. Maja uses vibrant colors to display the daily rhythms of island life in the Caribbean.

The Big Sur Spirit Garden will host a reception at 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 30. The gallery is located on Highway 1 adjacent to Loma Vista and about 27 miles south of Carmel.

For more information, call (831) 667-1300 or visit www.bigsurspiritgarden.com.

Broadway Tucker Blues Band and Seleh, a belly-dancing group based in Big Sur.

Fann is particularly excited about the local appearance of La Mixta Criolla, which comes from Puerto Rico. He describes the group's music as electrifying and beautiful.

"They strive to inspire, move the body and the soul, and educate audiences about Puerto Rican music and culture," said Fann, co-producer of the event.

John Broadway Tucker is a familiar face in Big Sur and on the Monterey Peninsula. Not only is he a regular at Esalen, but he's a local musical treasure steeped in the blues and '60s soul music.

The event starts at 2 p.m. Tickets are $25 and can be reserved over the phone or purchased at the gate. For more information, call (831) 667-3000, ext. 3950.

Early dining, great sax, wine whirlwinds and holiday (!) planning

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE INSPIRED duo of Jon and Carmen Magnusson at Bistro 211 — “where it’s all from scratch, and always from the heart” — offer nightly specials for $16.95 that include a featured main course and a choice of Caesar salad, house salad or soup. The only catch: You must be hungry early.

Selections are always changing, and patrons dining between 5 and 6:30 p.m. this Friday and Saturday can enjoy Brazilian fish stew Aug. 29, or braised lamb shank with acorn squash Aug. 30. Next week’s specials at the Crossroads restaurant will include Hungarian chicken on Monday, grilled fresh sole served over gnocchi and vegetables Tuesday, grilled pork chop topped with apples and onion relish Wednesday, braised lamb shank with butternut squash in red wine Thursday (which will also include a live performance by cellist Linda Mehrabian), grilled fresh halibut over braised spinach Friday, and grilled flat iron steak with ragout of portobellos, onions and peppers Saturday.

And each Sunday, Bistro 211 serves up brunch from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. For reservations, email bistro211@comcast.net or call (831) 625-3030.

■ Two MoCo mainstays

Summer must be on the wane, since the 12-week Jazz in the Plaza concert series will hit week No. 9 Friday, Sept. 5. Between 5 and 7 p.m., quintessential jazz man Roger Eddy will perform in Carmel Plaza’s courtyard for free, and attendees can pay $15 to taste Paraiso Vineyards’ various vintages and whatever exotic offerings the Cheese Shop provides.

“Roger Eddy’s sax is swinging, soulful and seriously burning,” said Ryan Williams, marketing manager at the Plaza.

Another local favorite, Paraiso, has produced wine in South Monterey County since Rich Smith began planting grapes on his 400-acre property. Some 35 years later, Paraiso wines capitalize on the nearly 150,000 vines growing in 16 vineyard blocks throughout the estate, where varying microclimates and terrain profoundly affect the flavor, aroma and color of the fruit.

■ Grand grandparents

Central Coast Senior Services, Inc., which provides home care for the elderly, will sponsor a Sept. 5 luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Meals on Wheels in the Sally Griffin Active Living Center in Pacific Grove in honor of National Grandparents Day.

The holiday was founded by a West Virginia housewife "to champion the cause of lonely elderly in nursing homes and encourage grandchildren to recognize the wisdom and heritage their grandparents provide," and 30 years ago President Jimmy Carter proclaimed it would be celebrated annually on the first Sunday after Labor Day.

The lunch, which will be held Friday, Sept. 5, in the senior center at 700 Jewell Ave., is free to all grandparents, as long as they are older than 60. Space is limited to 100 people, and reservations may be made by calling (831) 375-4454.

■ Wine fest gets makeover

It may be celebrating its 32nd year, but the Monterey Wine Festival set for October has new leaders bent on taking it to new heights. A Canadian firm took over and is making dramatic changes to turn it into a premier event that "focuses on quality, not quantity."

The Monterey Bay Aquarium will host the festival's kick-off from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Oct. 16, when guests will choose from more than 300 wines and a wide variety of culinary offerings from local restaurants and gourmet food manufacturers. Master sommeliers will be available to answer questions, and the setting will undoubtedly be unmatched. Tickets are $99 and limited to 1,500 guests.

The main event will be held Oct. 18 from 4 to 9 p.m. at the Monterey Fairgrounds, offering some 3,000 participants more than 600 world-class wines from California, Oregon, Washington and Australia, as well as educational seminars presented by industry leaders, a live wine auction, gourmet food and live music. Tickets are $99 per person.

ly decadent Truffle Dinner.

The harvest bash will be held Saturday, Nov. 15, from 4 to 6 p.m. when executive chef Cal Stamenov, pastry chef Ben Spungin, wine director Mark Jensen and bar manager Zole Andahazy combine forces to fix up their holiday favorites — from black truffle stuffing, to spiced hot chocolate — discuss wine pairings and share the secrets of easy seasonal cocktails. The price is $65 per person for what “should be a fun evening, with so many Bernardus personalities involved,” according to Stamenov’s assistant, Gina Martin.

People so love the annual Chocolates and Desserts Cooking Demo that last year Bernardus offered it twice to ensure everyone who wanted to attend got the chance. The same will happen this year, with demos scheduled for 1 to 3 p.m. on two Saturdays: Dec. 6 and Dec. 13.

Stamenov and Spungin will guide guests through tastings to discern the differences between Valrhona, El Rey, Dagoba and other premium chocolates. Attendees will also savor spiced hot chocolate with homemade marshmallows, and Andahazy’s chocolate cocktails, learn Stamenov’s favorite recipes and hear fresh ideas for cookies, cakes and candies.

“Whether the interest in chocolate is for giving, sharing, cooking or just indulging, there’s something for everyone at this afternoon in chocolate paradise,” according to Bernardus. The cost is $65 per person.

The ultimate exercise in indulgence, the 12th annual Truffle Dinner at Marinus slated for Friday, Dec. 5, is sure to please all the senses. Celebrated 2-Star chef David Kinch of Manresa restaurant in Los Gatos will join Chef Cal in devising brilliant ways to celebrate the black truffles of France and the white truffles of Italy.

The evening will include Stamenov’s signature black truffle Grey Goose martinis and white truffle risotto with carnaroli rice and parmigiano-reggiano foam, and Jensen will select top-rated wines to complement the six-course tasting menu created by Stamenov and Kinch.

The decadence will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a cocktail reception, followed by dinner at 7. The per-person price is a hefty $500 (plus tax and gratuity), as truffles are extremely expensive, and the event always sells out. The annual Truffle Dinner is truly a once-in-a-lifetime experience, even for the fortunate few who devotedly return year after year.

jazz, performs Aug. 30 with Whittington at the intimate Carmel jazz venue.

In 1991 Speight was introduced to the international jazz world at the Thelonius Monk International Saxophone Competition in Washington, D.C. Of some 500 entrants from around the world, he was the only non-American to win an award. He is a faculty member of San Francisco State, and his 1998 release, "Andrew Speight in Australia," received the Australian Recording Industry Association award for Best Album of the Year. The music starts at 6:30 p.m. and continues until 10. Call (831) 624-3871.

Sisters, Zoe and Kim Boekbinder, the performing artists also known as Vermillion Lies, have spent their lives "honing their craft at clown boot camp and the local dump, where they found their favorite instruments like toy piano, accordion, typewriter and BBQ grill." Performing Thursday, Sept. 4, at 8:30 p.m. at Monterey Live on Alvarado Street, Vermillion Lies have impressed audiences the world over with their unique brand of beauty, silliness and creativity. Check out their website at vermillionlies.com for a sneak preview. Call (831) 375-5483.

At the Big Sur River Inn down the coast, local acoustic swing band Andrea's Fault performs Aug. 31 from 1 to 4 p.m. From "All of Me," to "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To," the Pacific Grove quartet plays sophisticated and swingin' jazz with sassy and sultry vocalist Andrea Carter leading the way. Call (831) 667-2700.

Also around town this weekend: Local reggae superstar Tony Miles gets the crowd grooving at 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Cibo Ristorante. Call (831) 649-8151. And at Sly McFly's on Cannery Row rhythm and blues bands Silicon Valley House Rockers and Soul Fine play all of the dance hits this Friday and Saturday, respectively. The music starts at 9 p.m. call (831) 372-3225.

shampoo bars, conditioners, hennas, massage bars, body butters, bubble bars and soaps. According to the company, which has stores throughout the world, Lush customers helped prevent the manufacture, transport and disposal of approximately 3 million plastic bottles last year.

When Engelken learned the company's workers in 25 American cities would be shedding their clothes and donning aprons reading, "Ask me why I'm naked," to encourage consumers to not spend their money on packaged goods, she determined which of her employees would want to participate. "I only put on the staff today who understand it and are comfortable — and of course no one under age," she said. "The staff today are hardcore Lushies."

Fortunately for Brittany Hall, Bridget Connole and Engelken, the weather was sunny and still, and the passersby were mostly mellow, except for the TV news crew that reportedly wanted them to walk up Ocean Avenue.

Saying the 40-minute campaign was "almost too dull," Engelken commented, "We're quite proud and happy that we did it. It wasn't a flashy, theatrical display. It was a message we wanted to make, and I think it came off well."

But apparently not everyone was pleased, as police received complaints of the apron-clad, bum-bearing women giving away samples of cosmetics. By the time Cpl. Steve Rana arrived, the three were clothed and out to lunch.

"Of course, being the diligent officers we are, I had to come investigate," Rana said.

He told store employees the business could not embark on another naked campaign without risking punishment. "It borderlines on indecent exposure," he said.

posed remodel projects meet standards for historic preservation, will also have a seat available in October, since Elinor Laiolo was appointed in 2006 to finish out a term.

The board holds hearings on the third Monday of each month at 4 p.m. in the council chambers and conducts its tour of inspection at 3:15 p.m. the day of the meeting.

For the planning commission and DRB, commissioners must live and vote in the city, while one-third of the memberships of the cultural commission, forest and beach commission, and library board may comprise residents of areas just outside the city limits.

For the HRB, all members should be residents and voters in Carmel, but when no resident with the required expertise comes forward, a "professional member" who lives nearby can be appointed.

For information about the positions, their requirements and applications, call Carmel City Hall at (831) 620-2000 or stop by between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

Carmel Plaza concierge Beth Culbertson, assistant city administrator Heidi Burch and Diane Bower, a previous Homecrafters' judge recommended by former community services director Christie Miller, will select the best vendors based on quality, variety and other criteria. Pat Sippel, who has assisted with the Homecrafters' jury for years, will serve as cashier and help applicants check in.

Lopez, who served as a judge but took over the event this year after Miller left and can therefore not occupy both roles, has already heard from many artists who plan to enter.

"And who knows how many walk-ins we'll get?" she said. Last year there were 110 applicants. Of those, 19 new and 19 returning vendors were invited to join the sale.

The judging will be held between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., Sept. 3, in the city-owned Vista Lobos building at Torres and Third. The $10 fee for entering is nonrefundable, and photographs will not be returned. No appointments are necessary.

Lopez can be contacted at (831) 620-2020 or lopez@ci.carmel.ca.us.

Schools offered free bins

IN AN effort to increase the public's awareness about recycling — and teach children about its benefits — the Monterey Regional Waste Management District is offering free recycling bins to schools.

The agency will provide up to eight free beverage container recycling bins to any public or private school located within district's boundaries that requests them.

To receive bins, school officials need to fill out an application, which is available on the MRWMD's website at www.mpwmd.org. Applications can be emailed to Kimberly Herring, the MRWMD public education coordinator, at khering@mrwmd.org. They may also be faxed to (831) 384-3567.

For more information about the program or the MPWMD, call (831) 384-5313.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

SAMMY & SMARTY, two great Carmel Valley friends, get to go to Carmel Beach and Carmel River together almost daily. Smarty Pants Kennedy (at right), 13, is a female black Lab, and Sammy Marx, 10, is an Australian Queensland Heeler.

Smarty lives with her Mom, Ann Kennedy, who has raised her since she was 3 when rescued by a neighbor and given to Ann to take care of. Smarty had been tied to a tree since puppyhood and lived on a diet of boiled rice. When the cruel owner moved away, Smarty was abandoned, then happily rescued. Now Smarty is the cheeriest dog in the world, much loved and cosseted with chicken breasts and chicken soup dinners. She is a wonderful companion to homebound Mom Ann, and a great pal to Cisco, 3, her 18-pound black-cat brother.

Smarty babies everybody, being sure everything and everyone is hunky dory — a true nanny.

Sammy, Smarty's happy-go-lucky friend, is originally from Malibu. He moved here with his Mom Judy Marx three years ago. He enjoys chasing foxes (which he never catches), eating barbecued chicken and kibble, and swimming.

Judy takes both dogs to the river and beach on daily outings, but when Ann's son, Mark, is visiting from Boise, Idaho, as he is now, they all go out together. Mark, who grew up on the Monterey Peninsula, is here on an extended stay doing odd jobs and repairs on his mother's house, and keeping her and Smarty company.

Mark said Mom Ann loves to read "Sandy

Claws" in The Carmel Pine Cone weekly, and boy, will she be surprised when she sees Smarty and Sammy in this Friday's edition!

Eleven foxes euthanized, one in Carmel Valley

NEARLY ONE dozen gray foxes, including one from Carmel Valley, have been euthanized because they came down with the canine distemper virus, according to the SPCA for Monterey County.

The SPCA is advising pet owners make sure their pet's vaccinations are up to date, especially for canine distemper. The SPCA recommends pet owners and others contact it immediately if they see foxes exhibiting strange behavior.

Most of the foxes euthanized were from the Prunedale area.

Contact the SPCA's Wildlife and rehabilitation Center at (831) 373-2631.

The Art of CARPETING & DECOR

with Dan Jones

AN OLD FAVORITE

If you have a second home by the water or a primary residence with a pool, you may want to utilize tropical décor to infuse your interiors with an island breeze. If so, let the indoors and outdoors blend by using a combination of sheers and shutters. Exploit the effortless sophistication of white linen in your window treatments. In a landscape where blues and greens shift in tone with every passing breeze and wave, unleash these colors in rooms as a natural, fresh change from white. Keep ceilings high and pale over polished dark floors. Mix natural fabrics and materials for a sensuous variety of textures, and leave lots of horizontal relaxation space (sofas, chaises, and daybeds) for heat-of-the-day siestas.

We love working with colors and textures, mixing and matching them and using them to blend or contrast. In fact, the fun and challenge for us at CARPETS & FLOORS, INC. is tapping the potential in each home, creating exciting environments for our busy clients. After all, what is foremost in our minds when working on your home is that this is your pace. If the design doesn't reflect you, we haven't done our job. Help us do our job — call us or stop by the next time you're ready for some changes in the flooring in your home, vacation home or office.

HINT: Take a 21st-century global view of things tropical and mix Asian design with British Colonial Caribbean and other European influences.

Dan Jones is the President of Carpets & Floors, Inc., located at 471 Lighthouse Ave. (between Drake and McClellan) here in Monterey. Ph: 372-2300.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
Meg Parker Connors, R.N.

LIVING WITH PARKINSON'S

Parkinson's disease affects the way a person moves. It occurs when there is a problem with certain nerve cells in the brain. Symptoms of Parkinson's disease include muscle rigidity, tremors, and changes in speech and walk. Fatigue and difficulties getting around can make activities of daily living more difficult for people with Parkinson's disease. It is progressive, which means it gets worse over time. There is no cure for Parkinson's, and treatments are given to help relieve symptoms. Along with appropriate medications, exercise, and other management techniques, adaptive equipment can help maintain a level of independence. A home healthcare specialist can recommend a variety of assistive devices that are designed to make home care and daily activities more comfortable.

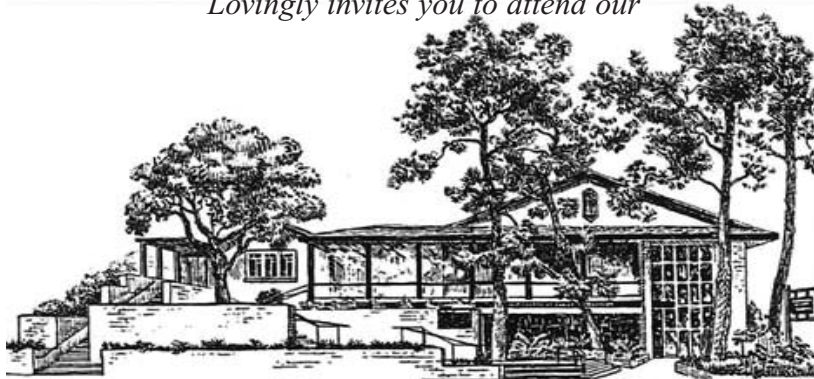

This column has been brought to you by VICTORIAN HOME CARE/RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES. Our in-home care program assists older adults in maintaining their independence at home, or can ease the transition to a new setting if needed. Each caregiver is carefully selected after an extensive background check, testing, and an intensive interview process. This results in caregivers that are dedicated, experienced, and qualified. Our mission and promise to our clients is to provide the best care possible, as many hours as we are needed.

P.S. There are currently ongoing studies on using stem cells to treat Parkinson's disease.

Meg Parker Connors is an RN and owner of Victorian Residential Care Homes. For assistance, call 655-1935.

Badly in need of updating

THIS TOWN is one of renowned quaintness and charm — a reputation that is justly deserved when one looks at many of its residences, churches, restaurants and shops, not to mention Sunset Center and the Mission.

But even a quick tour of town would reveal to the observer's eye that Carmel-by-the-Sea is also home to a large number of outdated, if not rundown, motels. Not only aren't these establishments suitable for this town, they probably wouldn't be welcome in any number of towns of lesser architectural distinction than Carmel. One architect recently claimed the Carmel Sands Lodge (located at San Carlos and Fifth) might be a good fit for Fresno — a statement Fresno residents could justifiably regard as an insult.

Many of these ugly motels and inns date from the 1950s. Presumably, the people of that era regarded them as attractive. Which just goes to show that, despite the claims of some historic preservationists, not every era before this one was a Golden Age.

If all these obsolete motels were to be updated over the next decade, it's not just the city's beauty that would be enhanced. Because a large part of the town's revenue comes from hotel taxes, and because updated inns would invariably charge higher prices than their humble predecessors, Carmel's municipal budget would also benefit significantly. And with hardly any environmental impacts.

Accordingly, as we have argued in this space before, it should be one of the city's priorities to pave the way for hotel remodeling projects. Even if permit fees are reduced, or extra staff is brought on to expedite the permit timelines, in the end the city will not lose money or anything else. Instead, it will only gain.

A youngster on the school board?

AS PRESIDENT of the Carmel High School student council last year, Kyle Macdonald was a nonvoting member of the board of directors of the Carmel Unified School District. In that capacity, he made a very good impression, sticking around until the end of meetings and demanding — and getting — sprinklers for the new school library. Just a few months out of high school, he now wants to be appointed to a full seat on the board. We'll let the other board members decide if they want Macdonald to fill the vacancy created by the departure of Howard Given. But we would like to congratulate him on his ambition and civic-mindedness. And we also have to admire his local political savvy: He's already released a campaign photo of himself with his dog.

Letters to the Editor

Taxpayers and the cost of C.V. Incorporation

Dear Editor,

All along, the proponents of incorporating Carmel Valley promised that taxpayers' funds would not be used in the process. They swore up and down that not a single cent would come from the public. But, lo and behold, it appears that Monterey County taxpayers will be forking over $300,000 to pay for the C.V. incorporation process after all.

A big lawsuit was filed against LAFCO to determine whether the commissioners had the right to ask for a full environmental impact report before proceeding with an election. A judge of questionable impartiality neutered the commissioners, taking away their authority to make important local decisions.

Ironically, according to state law, if Carmel Valley were to become a city, taxpayers would be required to pay for an extensive and expensive EIR. It seems the proponents want taxpayers to pay for everything. Perhaps this is why some 80 percent of C.V. residents do not support the establishment of a city. They already know that the crowd pushing for cityhood are spendthrifts and can't wait to seize more money from our shrinking wallets.

If anyone wants to see them, the surveys on C.V. incorporation are listed at www.SaveCarmelValley.org under the "surveys" menu.

Given was good

Dear Editor,

Kids, parents, administration and teachers were all well served by recently retired Carmel Unified School District board member Howard Given. As parents of two kids, Carmel High students Marc and Lindsay, we would like to thank Howard for his selfless service on the school board for the past 10 years. It's one of those incredibly important, but thankless, responsibilities, and Howard did it masterfully. For free.

Deeply involved in school and sports programs, he always had a good finger on the district's pulse. You could always call or approach Howard to discuss your ideas and concerns, and he listened. He advocated vigorously for the students, always striving to make our Carmel public schools ever better. As a result, the community can boast some of the finest schools, public or private, in all of California.

Now that his youngest has graduated from Carmel High, he is bowing out after a terrific run. Howard, you've left our schools, the district and its board in A+ shape, and we owe you a huge debt.

Mike and Vicki McMillan,
Carmel Valley

Free erosion control advice offered

IN RESPONSE to concerns about the erosion that could follow the Basin Complex Fire, longtime Big Sur resident and second generation landscape contractor Seth Parker is offering his neighbors a free erosion control workshop Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 5 p.m. Participants are asked to meet in the turnout located just south of Loma Vista.

According to Parker, there are measures residents can take that will reduce the threat of erosion near their homes. "There are going to be a lot of places where we can't do anything, but there will also be a lot of areas where we can do something," he said. "A lot of it is maintenance."

Parker said he is hoping the workshop will empower his neighbors.

"For anyone who's a 'do-it-yourselfer,' this is a great opportunity," he added. Loma Vista is located on Highway 1 about 27 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call

Tim Allen
presents
Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

Few places in the country adjusted to PROHIBITION as promptly and smoothly as Carmel. There were of course, a few bona fide bootleggers who developed a thriving business. But other solutions (no pun intended) were more inventive. For example, boating became a very popular sport early in 1919, and it was common for pleasure craft to sail down along the Big Sur coast, stopping occasionally at small inlets which almost overnight sprouted little jetties where refreshments could be found. Also a strange new illness, called the Carmel Plague, developed in that year and quickly assumed epidemic proportions. It was characterized by sluggish blood and could only be treated by regular infusions of whiskey, which explained the veins and arteries and brought almost instant relief. Doctors wrote hundreds of prescriptions for this remarkable medicine, and certain drug stores grew wealthy filling these medical orders. But the disease was persistent and continued at a steady pace until the mid-1930's.
