

Late-night surprise: Mountain lion charges into woman's bedroom

By CHRIS COUNTS

SECONDS AFTER a late-night encounter with a mountain lion this week, a Big Sur house cat did the most logical thing possible — it scampered under its owner's bed. Unfortunately for the cat, the mountain lion — following close on its heels — tried to do the exact same thing.

"It was about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday, and I dozed off while I was reading in bed," recalled Jane Chanteau, who lives off Palo Colorado Road. "I woke up when my cat let out a horrible scream. It sounded like a cat fighting, only much louder."

Opening her eyes in the dimly lit bedroom, Chanteau thought she saw a dog chase her cat, a black and white 11-year-old named Bearli, under the bed. The intruder's head was also under the bed, so Chanteau gave him a good whack on his behind.

"I hit him, and I yelled really loud," she explained.

Much to the 73-year-old grandmother's surprise, a lion pulled its head from beneath the bed.

"He jumped up on a box about four feet away, sat down and just looked at me," she said. "He wasn't aggressive at all. He was calm."

Fierce advocate for historic buildings dies at 86

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ENID SALES — a dedicated preservationist touted as a hero by some and vilified by others for her fierce fights against the demolition of historic buildings — died Wednesday at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula of respiratory failure. She was 86.

"She could be a maddening person to work with, because she had definite ideas about how she wanted things done," said former Carmel City Councilwoman Barbara Livingston, who met Sales more than 50 years ago when both were living in the San Francisco Bay Area. "In the end, of course, she was always right. She had a wonderful sense of aesthetics and ethics and would never

Kenney's sentence to be life without parole

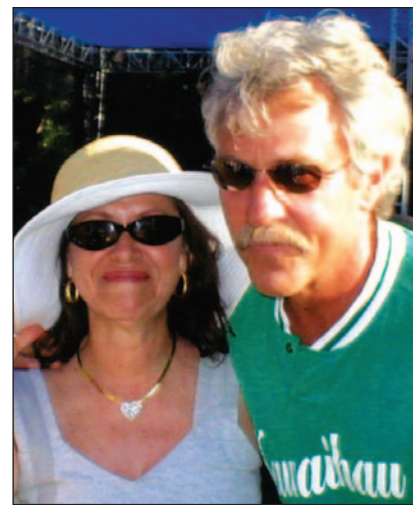

■ Convicted of two murders and 'special circumstance'

By PAUL MILLER

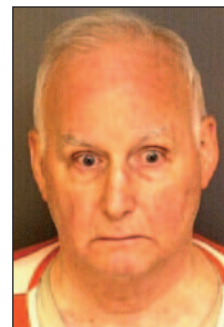

HE ADMITTED he killed his neighbors, claiming it was in self-defense. But a jury decided John Kenney's story was a lie and convicted him of two counts of murder Wednesday — second degree for killing Mel Grimes after a confrontation over a boulder Kenney had placed on a shared driveway, and first degree murder for shooting Elizabeth Grimes as she tried to get help for her mortally wounded husband.

After three days of deliberations, the jury also decided the double murders were a "special circumstance" which, under California law, means Kenney will get life without parole when he is sentenced Nov. 3 by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Stephen Sillman.

The jury acquitted Kenney of "lying in wait" — another charge which, combined with the murder verdicts, could have brought a sentence of life in prison without parole. But because the jury decided on the special circumstance of multiple murders, the acquittal doesn't lessen the penalty Kenney faces, according to Assistant District Attorney Berk Brannon.

"There were two ways to get the sentence of life without parole," Brannon said. "It was a very just verdict."

City to try free MST trolley next summer

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE THIRD time was the charm for supporters of a free cable-car-style trolley to shuttle tourists, workers and residents in a loop that will include Carmel Beach, Sunset Center, Vista Lobos, Carpenter Street and much of Ocean Avenue. After rejecting two earlier proposals for a trolley, the city council decided last week to try out the Monterey-Salinas Transit trolley between Independence Day and Labor Day next year.

Council members said they preferred the new plan because the trolley would not leave Carmel.

Free up parking

"This concept is expected to increase the amount of time tourists stay in our city, which is an important factor of economic revitalization, as well as improve the availability of visitor parking in the business area," city administrator Rich Guillen said in his report Sept. 9.

Councilwoman Karen Sharp, who represents the city on the MST board and helped spearhead the idea, said the free trolleys would serve three groups of customers: businesses and their workers, visitors and people who live in town.

"I think we all know that people who are parking in front of their stores and moving their cars every two hours are eliminating some of their own business," she commented. Instead, they could park in the free city-owned lot at Vista Lobos and hop a shuttle in the morning.

No uphill climb

Visitors could similarly leave their cars in a downtown lot all day and still go to the beach without having to climb back up Ocean Avenue, while residents could use the trolley for running errands, visiting friends or getting to Scenic Road.

"Gas prices are high, and we're trying to reduce our carbon footprint," Guillen said. "We should encourage mass transit, even if it's just within one square mile."

Two prior failed propositions had the shuttles traveling into town but also serving other areas, such as Pebble Beach. In May 2006, the council decided not to test a trolley targeting tourists, and in June 2007, the council voted 3-2 to reject a plan for one in and about town, even though the Carmel Chamber of Commerce and the Crossroads Shopping Village would pay for it.

With those proposals, people were concerned the buses would take people out of Carmel rather than bring them in.

MST administrator Hunter Harvath discussed the proposed city-only route, which would incorporate MST bus stops and

Latest Internet scam: Fake C.V. rental on Craigslist

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE THREE-BEDROOM house with lots of amenities was offered for just $1,300 a month, and all you had to do was send your first month's rent and security deposit to somebody in South Carolina.

"The house is perfect and I am looking for a tenant who will take very good care of it," said the listing on the Internet site, Craigslist.

The dream-come-true house was supposedly located at 8040 Carmel Valley Road, the website said.

"I drove out to the house, and it was not the one pictured in the ad," said Sheryl Brooks, who responded to the Internet listing by email, but quickly realized the rental didn't exist.

According to Brooks, a "landlord" calling himself Calvin Gore replied to her inquiry:

"I am in Greenville, South Carolina, now where my company has transferred me to," the scammer emailed. "Unfortunately, I would not be available to show you the home."

Instead, Calvin asked the potential renter to fill out an online application.

"After approval, I would send you the keys and agreement document via FedEx," he continued.

To close the deal, all Brooks needed to do was send $1,300, plus a $500 security deposit, to the landlord.

Brooks was livid after discovering the scam.

"Let's hope this creep can be stopped," she wrote. "It really makes

Burghardt gets his $60K contract for 'economic revitalization'

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MONTEREY ADVERTISING executive Jeff Burghardt's job as "economic revitalization manager" is intact until next summer, the Carmel City Council decided 4-1 last Tuesday. During two prior meetings, the council debated renewing Burghardt's $60,000 contract. It contemplated his accomplishments and goals, and the potential overlap between his jobs as ER manager and as the city's marketer and publicist, for which his firm, Anda Burghardt, receives $128,750 per year.

City administrator Rich Guillen said the third version of Burghardt's work plan focuses on a few tasks slated for completion in 2008/2009.

"Even though we recognize that marketing can go hand in hand with economic revitalization, we felt it would be clearer to eliminate projects that were already incorporated in the Anda Burghardt marketing contract," Guillen reported to the council Sept. 9.

According to his "scope of services," Burghardt, who will spend a minimum 10 hours weekly on his ER manager tasks, will develop an economic revitalization plan detailing how to attract and retain quality businesses.

He pledged to research demographics and analyze market trends, develop goals and objectives, and create a timeline and budget for implementing them.

He will also create a "market profile" highlighting opportunities, trends and pertinent information about Carmel in order to attract businesses, and identify the existing mix of businesses and determine what the desired mix is.

Mayor Sue McCloud expressed her doubts about the usefulness and efficacy of the job. "This is year two, and we haven't done any economic revitalization — that's where I'm coming from," she said, adding that spending $60,000 on the tasks Burghardt detailed seemed unnecessary.

Instead, she said she thought an ER manager would be organizing new festivals and visiting trade shows.

"We have some empty stores, and have another as of yesterday," she said, referring to Concepts, a longtime Carmel business that closed its doors on Ocean Avenue for the last time Sept. 7. "And I don't see anything in here about how we're working to fill those and get festivals."

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac expressed frustration at the continuing debate.

"This is the third time we've discussed this just this year, and we're already two-and-a-half months into his contract," she said. "That's because some of us keep changing focus. If we could just get started"

"Fine, I'll just vote against it," McCloud said, and she did. The council voted 4-1 to renew the contract.

Did you know...
Fort Ord's Mascot- In 1941, ten months before the attack on Pearl Harbor, the newly activated 7th Infantry at Fort Ord was able to indulge in a love of dogs that is still seen on the Monterey Peninsula. Among the base's 15,000 men lived 75 dogs. Private Everett Scott had left his 10-year-old airdale back at his farm in Kansas, and the grieving dog named Laddie had lost 15 of his 40 pounds in the three months since Scott arrived at Fort Ord. Laddie was flown the 2,000 miles to California to be re-united with his master. When he arrived at the post he was found wrapped in blankets and hot water bottles. Laddie perked up at the sound of Scott's voice and began eating again. The base veterinarian provided blood transfusions, injections, and brandy. Men at the base hoped that Laddie would enjoy his last years chasing rabbits around the Army Reservation. But Laddie survived only four days on the base. The 7th Infantry held a simple funeral for their new — and late — mascot. (Next: The Monterey Gold Rush)

Fire department to grow by three

By MARY BROWNFIELD

DURING CONTRACT negotiations with Carmel's professional firefighters, city administrator Rich Guillen agreed to consider hiring more of them. And last Tuesday, the Carmel City Council agreed to do just that — employ one additional firefighter per shift — at an estimated annual cost of $324,000.

In a heavily forested city with many old buildings lacking fire sprinklers and numerous homes built of wood, police chief George Rawson told the council Sept. 9, having enough firefighters in the station to quickly respond to a blaze is vital. And though the two people who work on the ambulance parked at the downtown station are cross-trained as firefighters, they frequently respond to medical emergencies that make them unavailable for at least an hour — and often longer. For at least a decade, the ambulance crew has backed up the fire engine, according to Guillen, but that system is "outdated."

"Every time the ambulance is gone, it only leaves two in the city — two people to cover billions of dollars in infrastructure, and our lives and the environment here," said fire chief Andrew Miller. "And I really feel that two isn't enough to adequately give us the opportunity to do our job."

While negotiations with the firefighters' union compelled Guillen to raise the issue and form a committee to study it, state occupational safety laws also played a part. They require a minimum of four firefighters on a call, so a pair can remain outside a burning building while two others enter.

According to Rawson, a fire chief who violates that law can be fined as much as $250,000 and face criminal prosecution, while a $3.5 million fine could be levied against a city or fire district. With three people on the fire engine and an on-call supervisor rushing to the scene of a fire, the requirement would be met. Almost all other Peninsula fire departments have three or four people per engine working each shift.

Fire engineer August Beacham, president of CFD's union and a member of the committee along with Rawson, Miller, Guillen, administrative services director Joyce Giuffre and engineer Matt Gardner, called the issue "extremely important."

"Firefighting is a labor-intensive activity, and having that third firefighter is a quantum leap for us," he said.

Councilman Gerard Rose, who represents the city on the board of Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance, which is jointly run with the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, said agreements with neighboring fire departments ensure enough firefighters respond to structure fires in Carmel.

But that system could fail, he supposed, and he asked if spending an additional $27,000 per month would be worthwhile to keep the city from violating safety standards.

"It's a lot of money, but it's worth it," he said. "If it saves one firefighter from major injury sometime in the next 20 years, it's worth that."

Councilman Ken Talmage said he thought the management of the fire department should be settled first.

But Guillen said increasing the number of people on the engine to three is simply a matter of "getting basic fire services back in the fire department" and updating a decade-old system.

"All we're looking at is authorizing three additional firefighters, not how that happens," city councilwoman Paula Hazdovac commented. "We're not putting an ad in the paper to hire three people tomorrow."

Councilwoman Karen Sharp, who lost her house to a fire in Santa Barbara years before she moved to Carmel, admitted talking about firefighting got her a little choked up and said more staff is well worth the cost to taxpayers.

"One life is worth so much more than $324,000," she said.

Windows to Energy Savings

One of the most reliably cost-effective approaches to saving heating and cooling costs is to install new windows if your existing windows are not up to date. Probably the first place to look into the matter is <http://www.efficientwindows.org/>, an unbiased information source regarding which windows would work best in your area and any available programs to minimize costs of windows and their installation. (The Energy Policy Act of 2005, for example, allowed tax credits for purchases of new windows in 2006 and 2007.)

This is not simply an economic issue. Living and sleeping in drafty rooms can be unhealthy, particularly for people who are vulnerable to allergies. The other side of this coin, though, is that the improvement of windows—and, often, doors as well—can leave a home with very little air circulation. The lack of fresh air can cause mold or mildew, along with cooking smoke and indoor pollutants, to accumulate. Homeowners can usually counter these effects easily by installing fans and attic air vents.

This is no small issue. About 47% of all energy used by buildings, amounting to 18% of our nation's economy, is used by heating and cooling systems. Energy-efficient windows alone can reduce that expense very significantly. For assistance call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

In Loving Memory “Lady Jane” Hilburn

April 20, 2000 - August 21, 2008

Lady Jane Hilburn, a beautiful and gentle Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, lost her battle with a failing heart August 21, 2008, at the age of eight years and four months.

Having survived the first six years of her life in a desolate Missouri puppy mill as a “mill mama,” she rose to become a welcomed regular at some of the best dog-friendly establishments on the Monterey Peninsula such as The Lodge at Pebble Beach, The Covey at Quail Lodge and, of course, The Cypress Inn, where she often greeted other dogs in the bar while her parents, Don and Carol Hilburn enjoyed an evening meal.

Her rescue from the puppy mill by Lucky Star Cavalier Rescue, Inc., provided the opportunity for her adoption by Don and Carol in April, 2006. Until then she had never walked on grass or climbed a stairway, never had a toy or a dog bed until her rescue and had experienced only harsh treatment by humans. Nevertheless, she was the most gentle little creature one could imagine and always exhibited a quiet dignity that touched all who met her.

Her name was so appropriate for she was indeed the perfect “lady”. She attended all the Cavalier events and enjoyed her “Cavie” friends Lilly McTurk, Lexie Harrington and Blossom Brooks and will be missed by them, as well as by Petunia Nelson, Aspen Peters-Rothman and Chips Zola-Urcis.

She loved to climb into the back seat of dad’s Jaguar every time he would go somewhere, whether it was just a trip to the Post Office or a family getaway to one of many California destinations, including The Four Seasons in Santa Barbara, to visit friends Arnold and Dianne in Fresno, or to Napa, Sonoma or Mendocino. She loved her afternoon walks on Carmel Point, wandering along the sidewalks in downtown Carmel-by-the-Sea and visits to the bank with her dad. She was still gradually, and very tentatively, learning to trust people and if Lady Jane even sniffed your hand it was like a fabulous gift from this little being.

Lady Jane was much loved, will be sorely missed, but never forgotten.

Woman alleges civil rights abuse

By KELLY NIX

A LAWSUIT against the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea seeks nearly $4 million because a woman alleges its police department violated her civil rights when she was arrested last year. In the 34-page suit filed Sept. 8, Joanna Pfeister alleges cruel and unusual punishment, discrimination, false arrest and intentional infliction of emotional distress by the Carmel Police Department.

"Their [police] actions were not only egregious, but clearly illegal," Pfeister claims in her suit.

Carmel Police arrested Pfeister Aug. 6, 2007, after serving a search warrant for her apartment and finding her in possession of a pellet gun. Pfeister resisted arrest while being taken into custody and was taken to Monterey County Jail, according to police.

But Pfeister, 62, says her constitutional rights were violated. "Their oppressive and malicious actions were not only intentional and done with wanton and reckless disregard for [Pfeister]," her suit alleges, "but also with the wrongful intention of injuring [Pfeister] and from an improper and evil motive amounting to malice."

Pfeister, an attorney representing herself, wants the city to pay her at least $3,800,000 in damages.

Carmel Police Chief George Rawson, who is also named in the suit, declined comment and referred questions to city attorney Don Freeman, who did not return a phone message left by The Pine Cone.

The day Pfeister was arrested, police had gone to her home after a painter working on her apartment complex alleged Pfeister had brandished a gun at him a week before.

The run-in, according to the worker, occurred after Pfeister objected to the color he and coworkers were painting the apartment complex.

Pfeister filed a separate suit June 30 against the construction company that employed the worker, claiming slander and other allegations. In the suit, Pfeister denies she ever brandished a gun and said she wasn't in the area when the alleged threat occurred.

In her most recent lawsuit, Pfeister alleges police did not have a right to arrest her because they did not get approval from the city attorney before taking action, "as specifically mandated," by Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"The Carmel police also acted without probable cause," the lawsuit says, "because they had no reasonable ground to suspect that Pfeister had committed or was committing a crime."

She also claims police knew the painter was lying when he made the allegation that she brandished a gun.

Excessive force?

In her suit, Pfeister contends officers, while taking her into custody, "used excessive force, slammed her against the wall of her foyer, put an elbow in her back and sprained her arm while twisting it behind her back with great force."

And while police allege Pfeister resisted arrest, she claims a police report states she did not resist.

Pfeister also alleges while in custody at the Carmel police station, officers demanded she pay $40,000, the amount of her bail, in cash.

Also according to her suit, Carmel police officers did not read her the Miranda Rights before questioning her about the alleged confrontation with the painter.

And Pfeister said Carmel police discriminated against her when officers told Monterey County Sheriff's deputies that Pfeister "was a man posing as a woman," which led deputies to put her in solitary confinement at the county jail.

Her arrest was malicious and "for the purpose of causing her to 'suffer humiliation, mental anguish and intentional and physical distress,'" she claims.

Helping Obama Win Two Voters at a Time

AN ENTREPRENEUR FROM A SMALL CALIFORNIA TOWN AWOKE one morning to find that, against all odds, Barack Obama had become the Democratic candidate. Inspired, he called his old college friend and suggested that they put their normal lives on hold and immediately develop a plan to help

The result is a national advertising campaign by "Two Voters," Cliff Branch and David Riordan. They also designed the Web site TwoVoters.com to help citizens speak directly to one another through the Internet. Branch said, "Folks are tired of the pundits and special interest groups and would like their voices heard. David and I wanted to create a series of messages outside the mainstream political parties." Together, they produced a series of videos designed to connect with fellow citizens. Indeed, the videos are unique, well-crafted and thought provoking. Both Branch and Riordan are quick to point out that their messages were developed without the knowledge or input of any political organization and they are solely responsible for the content.

"Support has been overwhelming," adds Riordan. "Award-winning cinematographers, writers, and business people have volunteered their services. We are all motivated by a deep desire to help our country move in a new, more positive direction." Branch added, "Our intent is to give Obama supporters the tools they need to help convince moderate Republicans, Independents and Hillary supporters to vote for Obama. All you have to do is click your mouse and you can send our videos to family and fellow voters."

The preliminary campaign launched nationally in September, 2008 with the introduction of a DVD and the TwoVoters.com Web site. The Web site is being promoted in national publications such as USA Today, Rolling Stone, Newsweek, regional newspapers and magazines, and activated by a massive e-mail campaign and targeted direct mail. However, the viral nature of the YouTube type technology has been largely responsible for TwoVoters.com's success among younger voters.

There's a new kind of healing at Community Hospital. It's 100-percent pure, concentrated oxygen. A higher concentration than the air we breathe. It can help mend hard-to-heal wounds, such as those often experienced by people suffering from diabetes.

Hyperbaric oxygen enhances white blood cell activity to treat infection, promotes the development of new blood vessels, and decreases swelling. You simply lie on a padded table, slide into a sealed chamber, and just breathe. The healing has begun.

Our wound care center is the only one on the Central Coast providing hyperbaric oxygen to heal wounds. Our treatment team is certified and credentialed, which means you get the highest level of expertise with the most state-of-the-art equipment.

A WARPED VIEW

When you step on the brake pedal of your automobile and feel a pulsing sensation in the brake pedal and steering wheel, the problem is likely to be a warped rotor. If the disc is warped to the point at which its outer surfaces are not parallel, the caliper pistons will rapidly push in and out as the pads contact high and low spots. Warping can be the result of normal wear, or it can be the result of uneven heat dissipation. That is, the part of the rotor adjacent to the heat pads releases heat more slowly than the rest of the rotor. This is more common among lighter-weight rotors. Replacement is the only safe option.

noise, or anything out of the ordinary when braking, it is important that you get your vehicle the attention it needs from professionals you can trust. We can inspect your brake system and make any repairs that may be necessary. Bring your car to us today for automotive maintenance you can rely on. The Art of

with Dan Jones

IT'S A LONG STORY

Eventually, just about every fashion and decorating trend will come back in an updated form. Just as bell-bottomed pants have made it back, so has shag carpeting. However, this type of carpeting bears little resemblance to its 1970's forebears. In fact, even the name is different. While the shag carpeting of four decades ago was often too airy, poorly constructed, and had pile that was too long, today's "super friezes" feature advanced nylon fibers (which were not available years ago) and tightly twisted cut pile. The longer length and individuality of the tufts produces carpeting with nubby textures that looks as luxurious as it is durable. In addition, it is highly resilient, trackless, easy to clean and crush resistant.

The carpeting you choose will likely set the tone for your room's formality or informality. In addition, carpeting anywhere in the home needs to be appropriate to the area which it will serve. Confused about carpeting's many piles, fibers, styles, densities, stain-resistant abilities, cleaning methods, etc., etc., etc? Let CARPETS & FLOORS, INC. take the worry out of what goes where. Pleasant and uncomplicated, or bold and vivid - what's your style? We'll help you discover it, with our problem-solving ideas and outstanding selection of quality carpeting and other flooring options. Only our very best will do.

HINT: The highly textured, longer-piled frieze carpeting mentioned above lends itself well to high-traffic areas of the home.

Dan Jones is the President of Carpets & Floors, Inc., located at 471 Lighthouse Ave. (between Drake and McClellan) here in Monterey. Ph: 372-2300.

ILLUMINATING IDEA!

A brightly lit environment may be as effective as medication in helping seniors stave off dementia. Researchers made this finding after exposing elderly patients with dementia in long-term care facilities to bright lights. This simple non-medical intervention helped the patients score 5% better on cognitive tests. They also experienced 19% fewer depressive symptoms than similar patients residing in less well-lit facilities. These results are thought to be due to the fact that, with age, the cells in the hypothalamus, which helps regulate the body's sleep-wake cycle, become less active. The elderly also tend to spend less time outdoors in the sunlight, which increases melatonin production in the pineal gland, causing sleep and mood disturbances. Improved lighting helps counteract these factors.

Environments where seeing is easy and comfortable help promote an elderly person's sense of competence and independence, and add to quality of life. For more information, please call VICTORIAN HOME CARE. We provide the best in home care and geriatric care management for seniors or adults with physical and/or mental challenges in and around Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties. Our in-home care program assists older adults in maintaining their independence at home, or can ease the transition to a new setting if needed.

P.S. The brightness of the lights used in the study described above was comparable to that found in many office and retail settings.

For a free in-home care assessment, please call Victorian Home Care at 655-1935.

Just then, Chanteau's husband, Guge Punchera, came into the room. He had heard glass break.

Grabbing a broom, Chanteau handed it to her husband, as the lion began to pace and look for a way out.

"He went from window to window, knocking over all sorts of things," Chanteau explained. "But he never panicked."

Chanteau and her husband decided their best course of action was to leave the room and hide in another part of the house. With a clear path to the front door, the lion scurried off into the darkness.

How did the lion get inside?

After examining a pile of broken glass that was once part of their front door, Chanteau and her husband reconstructed the incident. Bearli was inside the house at the time, and he just happened to be walking past the front door. The lion, peering inside the house and presumably hungry at the time, watched the cat pass by. To catch his prey, the lion jumped through the glass and tried to pounce on the cat.

Bearli, thankfully, survived unscathed, but according to Chanteau, "He didn't come out from under the bed for two days."

Chanteau has lived in Big Sur 24 years and long worked at the front desk at the Esalen Institute. But neither she or her husband had ever seen a lion in Big Sur. Still, the incident did not leave her frightened.

"I was in awe of this beautiful animal," she exclaimed. "I felt honored to see him."

According to her husband, the lion was about 4 feet long and 3 feet high. And while Chanteau said it's important to be careful with pets at night, she also suggested the incident isn't reason for somebody to go after the lion.

"We're in their territory," she said. "People should just leave them alone."

SALES

"Enid's skill, deep knowledge and enthusiasm for historic preservation were remarkable and inspiring," commented attorney Susan Brandt-Hawley, who worked for Sales in many of her fights to thwart demolitions. "She educated so many about preservation and kept local agencies aware that threats to historic resources would be carefully monitored."

"Her take-no-prisoners approach roiled many who misunderstood that this was the only way this 'warrior' could fight the good fight," said friend and neighbor Suzanne Paboojian.

"She started the focus on what is historic in Carmel," commented Mayor Sue McCloud, and the documents the city uses to determine buildings' significance "are probably a natural outgrowth of what she started years ago as chair of what is now the historic resources board."

James Bryant and his wife, Mary Hill, met Sales after buying an historic adobe in Monterey in 1999. Bryant formed the Alliance of Monterey Area Preservationists, and Sales joined its board. They became close friends, and toward the end, they helped take care of her in her failing health.

"We were kindred spirits," Bryant said. "Enid was an inspiration for many reasons."

Born June 3, 1922, in Salt Lake City, Utah, Sales moved to San Francisco with her family around the age of 10, according to Bryant.

Her mother had a home in Carmel, and Paboojian said Sales recalled "how she and her brother would run from the beach and up the back steps of La Playa hotel, where she always enjoyed going for a drink or dinner later in life."

She attended Reed College in Oregon and was married for a short time to jazz critic Grover Sales.

In San Francisco in the mid-1970s, she ran the city's redevelopment agency and "organized moving a dozen Victorian homes in the middle of the night in order to save them, shutting down the city's transit and traffic light systems, and making sure everything was up and running in time for the morning commute," Paboojian reported.

Later in Carmel, she fought to place Sunset Center on the National Register of Historic Places, but she also savored the city's less grand buildings.

"It was the good examples of vernacular, ordinary things that ought to be preserved — all the little cottages of Carmel," Livingston said. "She was a champion in my book."

In 2006, the California Preservation Foundation named her Preservationist of the Year, and AMAP gave her a Lifetime Achievement Award. In addition to organizing and running her own Carmel Preservation Foundation, she served on the county's historic resources review board.

She often took on preservation work almost single-handedly, recently fighting the demolition of the Marsh's building in Monterey that Bryant now sees as a memorial to her.

"She loved Carmel so much," he added. "She wanted to establish the downtown core as an historic district and promote it."

In fact, "heritage tourism" will be the topic of a Sept. 19 forum, A Bright Future for a City's Economy, which Sales organized. "It was her hope it would inspire our area to use historic buildings for good economic reasons, not just for sentimental reasons."

While a formidable, uncompromising opponent, Sales was also funny, sharp, congenial and bright.

"She adored bourbon — sometimes gin — and loved good stories and sitting around with people, and talking and laughing and good food," Livingston said.

Bryant and his wife visited Sales at the hospital the night before she died. Despite her struggles with pain and labored breathing, they managed to share a few laughs.

"She was sharp to the end, and funny, and so pragmatic and objective about things, including herself," he said.

"There's a void I don't think can be filled."

Bryant said a party will be held to celebrate her life.

"There will be a Jack Daniels for her," he said.

TROLLEY

include Carmel Beach, Sunset Center, Vista Lobos, Carpenter Street and much of Ocean Avenue.

Mayor Sue McCloud questioned the logic of traveling down Carpenter Street but not going to Carmel Mission, a very popular tourist destination.

"We looked at the Mission, but one of the problems was, how do you turn the bus around without going down to the Crossroads?" Harvath explained, because traffic signs posted on Rio Road prevent turning around any earlier.

McCloud encouraged him to work with police chief George Rawson to make it work. "The number of people who walk to the Mission is surprising," she said.

Monta Potter, president and CEO of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce and a longtime trolley supporter, said tourists most frequently ask about the beach and the Mission.

She suggested turning the city-owned Rio Park property into a parking lot, but city attorney Don Freeman said easements prevent direct access and neighbors would object.

Carrie Theis, owner of Hofsas House hotel and president of the Carmel Innkeepers Association, said the service would make the city's sights more accessible. "We have a lot of people who come into town, and not everybody's very mobile."

Former city councilwoman Barbara Livingston recommended confining the trolley to the business district, considering its commercial appearance.

She also objected to the possibility of raising funds to pay for the trolley by using a GPS unit and a narrator to describe supporting businesses as the trolley passed by them — a feature she suspected could get quite annoying.

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac agreed but suggested handing out a printed piece to passengers that would describe the businesses helping to pay for the service.

According to MST, running the shuttle nine hours per day from May 23 to June 30, 2009, at $73.53 per hour would total $25,809. On July 1, the hourly rate would probably jump to $90, for a total of $54,270 for July 1 through Sept. 7, 2009.

"The reason it's so costly is because it doesn't leave the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea," Sharp explained.

McCloud recommended commencing the trolley on July 4 instead of Memorial Day and everyone else agreed.

SCAM

it hard for honest people to find a place to live."

Contacted by The Pine Cone, Brooks urged renters to be cautious of potential scammers. "Craigslist is a very valuable resource," she observed. "But unfortunately, there are many greedy and ruthless predators out there taking advantage of unsuspecting people."

Another potential renter had a similar dialogue with Calvin. "It sounded like a scam from the start," the second renter wrote. "I exchanged several emails with the person who called himself Calvin Gore just to see how far he'd go. Then I sent copies of the emails to the FBI Internet fraud tip hotline."

A third potential renter said Calvin claimed he was in Africa. "Please be careful out there if you are looking for a place," the third renter warned others.

The house located at 2040 Carmel Valley Road is actually available for rent. But it goes for $2,650 per month.

Wendy Kramer, owner of Munras Property Management, said her company has received about 10 calls this week from people hoping to rent the house at the bargain price. Kramer also said a scammer recently tried to use another one of her listings — this one at 851 Taylor in Monterey — to rip off renters.

Kramer said renters need to be cautious when dealing with landlords online, particularly when they ask for sensitive information like credit card and Social Security numbers.

"People need to be careful," Kramer added. "It's really frightening."

The key to finding Kenney guilty was the jury's belief he lied on the stand, according to Brannon and the jury foreman, Michael Jones. "We found Mr. Kenney guilty of first degree murder, so therefore the things he said [on the stand] we found didn't have an enormous amount of veracity," Jones told reporters after the trial ended.

Brannon was blunt: "Kenney's an arrogant man who told falsehoods on the stand that were easy to prove as such."

The murders came after years of acrimony between Kenney and the Grimeses, who were neighbors in a remote part of Carmel Valley. Grimes, a well known defense attorney in Salinas, and his wife, Elizabeth, a nurse, accessed their carport over a strip of land Kenney claimed didn't belong to them. On Jan. 29, 2007, acting on the advice of several local attorneys, Kenney placed a large boulder on the land to prevent the Grimeses from driving on it.

But according to testimony during the trial, when Mel Grimes came home from work, he angrily attacked the boulder with a sledgehammer. That's when Kenney confronted him and the double murder ensued.

"I don't think Kenney was planning when they got home to go down and shoot Mel and Elizabeth, and I can understand the jury's doubt about premeditation in the case of Mel," Brannon said.

But while arguing over the boulder, Kenney knocked a cell phone out of Elizabeth Grimes' hand, and then pulled his gun, testimony in the trial showed.

"At some point during the sequence of events, he made the decision to kill them," Brannon said.

First Kenney shot Mel Grimes and, while Elizabeth Grimes hysterically pleaded for help in a 911 call, Kenney shot her, too, including one shot in the back.

During his testimony, Kenney said the Grimeses attacked him and that, once in danger, he responded the way he was taught in the military in the 1950s. "My training was when you're attacked by multiple people, you take them all down," Kenney said calmly.

"Was he trained in the military to slaughter whole families?" Brannon asked.

Sillman, a former presiding judge of the Monterey County Superior Court, came out of retirement to preside over the Kenney trial, and prosecutors praised him for his expert handling of the case.

Brannon also said he couldn't have won the case without the help of deputy D.A. Pam Ham and investigator John Coletti. And Brannon said he had one regret: "Mel Grimes was an honorable man and I wish we'd been able to do more to honor the victims during the trial."

Library offers cyber homework help

KIDS who get stuck on tricky homework questions need not pay top dollar for tutors. Instead, from the comfort of their own homes, they can log onto Harrison Memorial Library's website and get free online help, according to children's librarian Grace Melady.

"Expanding online tutoring to more students is a natural next step for the library as we continue to find new ways to serve everyone in the community," she said.

The service is free to library card holders and accessible between 1 and 10 p.m. daily via www.hm-lib.org. The user clicks on the Live Homework Help link, selects a grade level from kindergarten through "adult learner," and chooses one of 12 subjects.

Tutor.com — the largest online tutoring service — provides the help in English and Spanish.

Vick's abused dogs get new life from Monterey County SPCA

By KELLY NIX

THERE'S STELLA, the outgoing "wobble-butt;" Ginger, the shy sweet one, and, last but not least, Red, the gentle 6-year-old male who is overcoming cancer.

All three pit bulls are getting a new lease on life after being rescued last year from the home of NFL player Michael Vick, who was convicted of operating a dogfighting operation on his Virginia property.

When the SPCA for Monterey County took in the dogs in October 2007, it was unknown whether they would make good pets, but their futures look bright thanks to patience and hard work by their foster parents — all SPCA employees.

"They are doing really, really well," said Beth Brookhouser, SPCA spokeswoman.

Authorities raided Atlanta Falcons quarterback Vick's property on April 25, 2007, and seized 66 dogs and equipment commonly used in dogfighting. About half the dogs were found chained to car axles. The other seized dogs were placed in other shelters.

Vick was sentenced to 23 months in prison for running the dogfighting operation.

Extremely friendly

Amanda Mouisset, a pet behavior specialist with the SPCA, is fostering Red, who lives with her and her husband, their two girls and two other dogs.

"He pretty much has become part of the family," Mouisset said. "He does extremely well with our dogs."

When Red came to the SPCA, he was shy and reserved. "We don't know if he was a fighting dog or a bait dog," she said. "He has a lot of bite scars on him."

While he's still an "even-keeled" pooch, Mouisset said he's now much more comfortable around people.

"Red is extremely gentle when meeting new people," she said. "He loves to shimmy over to you to say hello, but he also seems to know when people are anxious about meeting him."

But Red is fighting another battle. In April, Mouisset discovered swelling on Red's body. He was examined by veterinarians who found seven cancerous tumors. The tumors were successfully removed and Red is undergoing chemotherapy.

"The doctors think he can beat it," Mouisset said. "They said it could reoccur, but right now it's looking good for him."

And as part of Vick's settlement with the court, he was ordered to pay for future treatment of the dogs, which includes Red's cancer treatment.

"Michael Vick is paying for it," Mouisset said, referring to the formerly highly paid NFL star.

Painter supports her art with a career in financial planning

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR MANY aspiring artists, the choice between making a living and pursuing one's creative impulses is not an easy decision to make. Carmel artist Maria Boisvert, though, has long believed that her passion for art and her desire for financial security can coexist.

"All my life I've been a painter," explained Maria Boisvert, whose work will be displayed in an exhibit opening Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Christopher Bell Gallery in Monterey. "But I've learned that it's very difficult making a living selling art."

And that's why Boisvert has dual occupations as artist and financial consultant. Not only has handling other people's money paid her bills, Boisvert said her experience as a financial planner helped her understand the business of art, and her work as an artist has benefited her other career.

"Art has given me the sensitivity to work in my business," Boisvert said. That sensitivity has helped her develop empathy for clients.

As a painter, Boisvert uses oils to capture the landscapes, seascapes and cityscapes of China, Europe and Monterey County.

"It is important for me to put down on canvas or paper the places, moments in time that are most inspiring," added Boisvert, who lives part time in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The gallery, which is located at 200 Alvarado St., will host a reception from 4 to 6 p.m. For more information, call (831) 649-0214 or visit www.mariaboisvert.com.

Free tips and techniques

Artist Gerard Martin will present a free painting demonstration Wednesday, Sept. 24, at the Carmel Art Association. Martin, whose work is featured in an exhibit at the nonprofit art center, will share tips for aspiring artists.

A Monterey native, Martin uses bold, colorful strokes to capture Monterey's fishing industry and the farm workers of the Salinas Valley. Fascinated by local history, Martin employs many of the same techniques used by early California artists, giving his work a sense of timelessness.

The gallery is located on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth. For more information, call (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmelart.org.

Art center seeks donations for fundraiser

The Pacific Grove Art Center is seeking donations of original artwork for its annual fundraising Patrons' Show. Donations will be accepted until Oct. 18, and the show will open at the art center Oct. 24. For more information, call (831) 375-2208.

Magic's in the air as a new era opens at Sunset

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE FOLKS at Sunset Center brought in new executive director Peter Lesnik to work a little magic on the performing arts center's schedule of events. Apparently, Lesnik took the task literally — Sunset Center opens its 2008-2009 season this weekend with a show dedicated exclusively to magic tricks.

"It's Magic," which will be performed Saturday, Sept. 20, at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., showcases the talents of many of today's top magicians, including Eric Buss, Dan Birch, Les Arnold and Dazzle, Chuck Jones and Company, Tom Ogden and Dan Cole.

"It's a great show for people of all ages," Lesnik said.

While Sunset Center regulars may not be accustomed to magic shows, Lesnik is confident "It's Magic" will win them over.

"Magic is a performing art," he explained. "It involves movement, skill and ingenuity, and it leads to surprise. People connect with magic on an emotional level."

According to Richard Myer, a local magician who will perform during a reception between the two shows, "It's Magic" offers an impressive lineup of performers. Buss, for instance, recently performed on the "Late Show with David Letterman."

"I'm hoping he does the same act, because it is really funny," Myer recalled.

Birch is best known for his work with the magician's bird-of-choice, the dove.

"Doves are one of the magical things in magic," Myer observed. "When a magician produces a rabbit, it appears out of a hat or a box. When a magician produces a dove, it appears out of nowhere."

Arnold and his daughter, Dazzle, present an act that walks

ECLECTIC GUITAR VIRTUOSOS JAM UNDER THE REDWOODS

By CHRIS COUNTS

IT'S DIFFICULT to imagine a more appropriate setting than Big Sur's Henry Miller Library for a concert featuring two of the most gifted — and eclectic — guitarists in contemporary music.

Jazz great Bill Frisell teams up with Nels Cline of the alt-country band Wilco Saturday, Sept. 21, at the library for an afternoon performance under the redwoods.

Like the library — an unusual mix of museum, art gallery, bookstore and concert venue — Frisell and Cline defy categorizing.

Frisell, who won a Grammy Award in 2005 for Best Contemporary Jazz Album for his recording, "Unspeakable," is hardly a jazz purist despite his reputation as one of the genre's most gifted guitarists. Instead, he uses jazz to explore, pay tribute to, and ultimately redefine folk, blues, country and pop music.

As the lead guitarist for Wilco, a critically acclaimed and genre-busting rock band that has helped redefine the rules of the music industry, Cline often plays in front of audiences with little knowledge of his jazz credentials. And yet, when he's not on the road or touring with Wilco, he's often playing with his improv/free jazz ensemble, the Nels Cline Singers. And for more than a decade, he led another jazz group, the Nels Cline Trio.

"We're really honored they're coming here," said Magnus Toren, library director. "This is one of the most extraordinary concerts we've had."

The concert starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $30 at the door. The library is located on Highway 1 a quarter-mile south of Nepenthe restaurant and about 28 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 667-2574 or visit www.henrymiller.org.

Jazz universe revolves around Monterey fairgrounds this weekend

By STEVE VAGNINI

ON THE third weekend of September, our little corner of the world becomes the center of the jazz universe. For more than half a century, the Monterey Jazz Festival has reigned supreme, annually attracting the best jazz musicians from around the world to perform at the oak-studded Monterey Fairgrounds. Amazingly enough, during this span, only two men have handled the booking chores — each with his own distinctive style. Cofounder and former general manager Jimmy Lyons consistently booked the giants of jazz. His successor, Tim Jackson, still lures the big-name acts to perform, but also tends to be more creative — more daring, if you will — and his lineups year after year are sprinkled with new and cutting-edge artists from the world of jazz.

With this year's festival getting under way Sept. 19, typical of Jackson's innovative booking approach is the Friday night "New Grooves" phat and funky party. For the 51st edition of the MJF, "New Grooves" will feature Artist-In-Residence Christian McBride performing alongside saxophonist Walter Smith III, keyboardist Geoffrey Keezer, drummer Terreon Gully and the New York-based Rudder, an aggressive, driving rock and jam vibe band. In the festival's DJ/Dance tent, Turntablists-In-Residence Quantic and 4onefunk will alternate hour-long sets each evening throughout the MJF weekend.

In the Main Arena, the festival launches its second half-century of legendary live performances Friday evening (Sept. 19) with another lineup featuring living legends from the music world as well as the future superstars of jazz. Artists scheduled to perform on the Jimmy Lyons Stage include vocalists

CHEF REGESTER IS PROUD OF HIS 'SUSTAINABLE' CUISINE AT THE C

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

WHEN HE was 10 years old, Jerry Regester called his mom at work to ask, "How do you make spaghetti sauce?" His mother owned and operated her own coffee shop in the Buffalo, N.Y., area, and she was only too happy to tell him.

Young Jerry had always been interested in cooking and tried his hand at it whenever his mother wasn't at home. How did it turn out? "Well, I didn't burn down the house," he said.

Since then, he's worked at some of the most prestigious restaurants in California and is executive chef at Monterey's newest hotel on the bay, the InterContinental the Clement Monterey. He presides over The C Restaurant, with its floor-to-ceiling windows that cover the entire front wall. On a clear day, when the mountains stride across the horizon as backdrop for Monterey Bay, or on a fog-enshrouded day when all is gray and mysterious, The C is a unique spot for breakfast, lunch or dinner.

The restaurant and bar — indeed, the whole hotel — is decorated with restrained elegance utilizing colors of the ocean and adornments mimicking gifts from the sea. The Clement is neighbor to Monterey Bay Aquarium whose Seafood Watch sustainability guidelines are followed at The C.

The restaurant seats 84 indoors and 30 outside. Another area adjacent to The C, the large Pacific View Courtyard, has two fire pits, heat lamps and tables and chairs for al fresco service of appetizers, small plates and drinks.

Over the years, Jerry Regester paid his culinary dues that gave him entrée into prestigious kitchens of Cape Cod, Napa Valley, Washington, D.C., Carmel, Big Sur, Phoenix, Pebble Beach and Monterey.

Career groundwork was laid by attending vocational school as an introduction to cooking while studying academic subjects in his high school junior and senior years. He worked at a restaurant after school and on weekends for a 40-hour stint, but kept up his studies as well.

After graduation, he was accepted into the New England Culinary Institute, where he completed a two-year course. "I love cooking," he said, "and I don't know what else I'd do."

Armed with his degree, he cooked for the Cape Cod Country Club and went on to the Occidental Restaurant in the nation's capital. He stayed a year-and-a-half as a line cook before a former teacher asked him if he'd like to go to California. "Why not?" he reasoned, and drove out to the Napa Valley in his truck, sleeping in the front seat when he was too tired to drive on.

At Domaine Chandon in Yountville, he was first put to work as expeditor, then was asked to take a station as a line cook. He moved up to lead cook then advanced to sous chef. He met Chef Cal Stamenov there during his three years of employment. When Stamenov moved to the Monterey Peninsula to preside over Pacific's Edge restaurant at the Highlands Inn, he brought Regester out to be his sous chef. During his time there, he participated in five Masters of Food & Wine, the four-day cooking extravaganza that brought chefs from all over the world to prepare sumptuous meals for an adoring public of gourmands and wine aficionados.

After this, he was employed as executive chef at Ventana Inn's Cielo restaurant for two- and-a-half years. He found his first exec chef position very exciting. "I had a great time there," he said. "I changed the menu daily. Mushrooms grew right outside the kitchen door, and I put in my own herb garden."

Then the Phoenician Hotel in Scottsdale, Ariz., called him to run The Terrace Restaurant as chef de cuisine. Arizona heat got to him quickly, as well as Sunday brunch which saw the restaurant serving 800 to 1,000 patrons. After eight months, he found

Ag & Artists, harvest hurrahs, Thunderbirds and birthday parties

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE NONPROFIT Ag Against Hunger needs volunteers to work with local growers for a few hours Saturday, Sept. 20, picking produce left after the commercial harvesting of their fields. The donated fruits and vegetables will feed the masses via food banks and pantries in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties, and anyone interested in helping should call AAH to learn where to meet at 9 a.m. that day.

Those who want to support Ag Against Hunger's mission without getting grubby might consider attending its inaugural Ag & Artists Feeding the Hungry silent art auction and fundraiser Saturday, Oct. 11, from 4 to 7 p.m. at Gallery i fine art, 685 Cannery Row, Ste. 113, in Monterey.

Chef Kevin Hincks from the highly regarded Cantinetta Luca in downtown Carmel will prepare the appetizers to be complemented by fine local wines. The auction will feature works donated by local and international artists.

The $20 suggested contribution to attend will include "Life in Light," a book about artist Harold Hitchcock. For more information on gleaning or attending the fundraiser, call (831) 755-1480.

■ Indian fried chicken — Mmm!

The dynamic duo of Sangita and Arijit Das will host another incredibly affordable and enjoyable Indian cooking class Saturday, Sept. 20, from 6 to 9 p.m. in the activity center at La Mesa Village in Monterey. For $25 per person, students will learn how to prepare and then sample tasty samosas (fried turnovers), kheer (rice pudding), vegetable khichdi (rice and lentils) and fried chicken.

For more information or to sign up, call (831) 375-5144.

■ U do the picking

The Agriculture and Land-Based Training Association, better known as ALBA, will host U-pick days Sept. 20 and Oct. 11 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at its farm near Salinas. The DIY harvesting offers a chance to buy beautiful fresh produce grown by people training under ALBA, which helps farm workers and himself longing for the cooler clime of the Monterey Peninsula and was lured back by an offer from The Lodge at Pebble Beach during general manager David Fink's reign. He worked as chef de cuisine at Stillwater Grill for three years, then as executive sous chef at The Lodge under Jeffrey Jake.

After that, he became executive chef for two years at Wente Vineyards' restaurant, where he had his own organic garden. But the daily drive from Carmel to Livermore grew wearisome, and when announcement was made that the InterContinental Hotel was building on Cannery Row in Monterey, he applied for the executive chef position at The C Restaurant and got it.

The hotel and restaurant opened May 14 with the kitchen ready for Regester to take charge. He hired his staff, and although the menu had already been written, Regester is revising it to his own specifications.

His Manila clam chowder, for instance, is made from scratch for each order. He steams the clams over Chardonnay, adds crème fraîche to the liquid, then adds fingerling potatoes and leeks. "The chowder is very fresh and lively," he said. "We make almost everything in-house, even down to our own tomato catsup."

Although fresh seafood dominates the menu, entrées of meat and poultry are also offered. Seasonal produce is organic and from local farms.

Through the past 10 years, Regester has been married to Rita, his wife. They have three children, Joey, 20, and Domenic, 16, by Rita's first marriage, and little Gracie Jane, 2 1/2.

The C Restaurant and Bar is located at 750 Cannery Row, Monterey, and is open daily for breakfast, lunch and dinner. A 10 percent discount on food items only is offered to locals. For information and reservations, call (831) 375-4800.

■ Fly me to the moon

On the eve of the California International Airshow in Salinas each year, chambers of commerce of the Salinas Valley and the Monterey Peninsula host a joint mixer, and this year's party will take place Thursday, Sept. 25, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency Monterey at 1 Old Golf Course Road. For $10 (members) or $20 (prospective members), you can mix and mingle, sip and nibble, give away business cards like they're going out of style, and meet your favorite U.S. Air Force Thunderbird. The T-birds will be flying their trademark F-16 Falcons during the Sept. 27-28 airshow, which will also feature daredevil aerobatics, demonstration teams and a whole lot of entertainment in the sky and on the ground at the Salinas Airport.

■ Sonny & San Saba

If you've been meaning to get to the Carmel Plaza on a Friday night this summer to enjoy a little live music, cheese and wine, Sept. 26 will be your last chance. That night, featuring Sonny G and San Saba Vineyard, will conclude the 12-week Jazz at the Plaza concert series hosted by the Plaza and the Monterey County Vintners & Growers Association.

Sonny G's singing and piano playing are reminiscent of Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Mel Torme and other masters but have a Southern flair solely his own. While he performs, San Saba will pour wines made from grapes grown on its 70 acres of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Pinot Noir, Sauvignon Blanc and Chardonnay vineyards. For $15 per person, guests can taste San Saba (named for the Mission in the owners' home state of Texas) and samples offered by The Cheese Shop. The fun will happen between 5 and 7 p.m. in the Carmel Plaza courtyard in downtown Carmel.

■ Everyone's harvest

Everyone's Harvest Certified Farmers Markets, which organizes the weekly open-air affairs in Pacific Grove and Marina, wants to remind visitors and locals to check them out. The P.G. market, brand new this year, is open from 4 to 8 p.m. Mondays on Lighthouse Avenue between Forest and 17th, while the Marina market opens at 10 a.m. and closes at 2 p.m. Sundays in the Marina Village Shopping Center at 215 Reservation Road.

Everyone's Harvest often offers special events on market day, and on Sunday, Sept. 28, the Marina Tree and Garden Club will hold its Fall Seed Exchange at the Marina market. For more information, call (831) 384-6961.

■ Homescapes turns 9

Photographer Windy Osborn and Sierra Mar executive chef Craig von Foerster will help Homescapes Carmel (Dolores and Seventh in downtown Carmel) celebrate its 9th anniversary at a public open house Friday, Oct. 3, from 5 to 8 p.m. Brothers Beau and Thompson Lange and their staff will have their bells on, and guests will enjoy music and refreshments, including dishes featured in von Foerster's "Sierra Mar Cookbook," based on his work at Big Sur's Post Ranch Inn. Preventing slides along Highway 1 is a high-wire act

By CHRIS COUNTS

BIG SUR residents and visitors can expect delays along Highway 1 this week as the California Department of Transportation begins to install an ambitious rockfall drapery system along a 14-mile stretch of the scenic road.

The work, which begins Monday, Sept. 22, just south of the Torre Canyon bridge, will continue through the end of October.

With steep hillsides literally stripped bare of vegetation as a result of this summer's Basin Complex Fire, Caltrans officials are seeking to prevent falling rocks and debris from landing on the highway. The drapery system will install a series of fences and nets above the road between the Big Sur Multi-Agency Facility and just south of the Lime Creek bridge. The fences and nets will be installed at up to 18 locations along the highway.

AIS Construction Company of Ventura is the contractor for the $1.8 million emergency project. It will be assisted by engineers and geologists working for Caltrans.

Working on some of Big Sur's steepest terrain, Caltrans and AIS employees will be assisted by a helicopter.

"Do not try this at home," warned Susana Cruz, a public information officer for Caltrans. "It will be awesome to watch what they're doing, but it's very dangerous work."

According to Cruz, Caltrans workers participating in the project have specialized training and "are extremely cautious."

The work will occur Mondays through Thursdays from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. In an effort to complete the project before winter rains arrive, it is possible that work on Saturdays may be required.

"He did an illusion I had never seen before," he said. "My mouth just dropped."

For Lesnik, the 2008-2009 season at Sunset Center can't get started soon enough.

"We're like a bunch of horses at the starting gate waiting to get out," added Lesnik, who took over the leadership of Sunset Center in January.

Sandy Claws By Margot Petit Nichols

FRIGOR, RITTER and Truffle Thurston, left to right, 4, 1 1/2 and 8 1/2, respectively, are all Carmel Valley Bernese mountain dogs encountered Wednesday morning at play on Carmel Beach.

Only Ritter ventures into the water with derring-do; Frigor and Truffle dip in, but don't swim out to the surfers waiting to catch a wave as Ritter does. He then body surfs in to shore with a wave. Ritter's favorite spot at home is a love seat in the living room which he keeps covered with cherished stuffed animals.

All three love plush toys. When they come home from an outing, they go directly to their three bins of playthings, select their current favorites and carry them companionably about the house.

Frigor, largest of the three, weighs in at 120 pounds and is described by parents Robert Thurston and Susan Schwartz as "a good boy." He likes to sleep with Mom and Dad on their king-size bed. Frigor used to visit Mom's elderly mother at an Orinda nursing home weekly until she passed away. On his last visit, he pushed her wheel chair, which made her laugh with pleasure. A nice memory for all.

Truffle is the only girl in the family, and she's the Alpha of the group – the "commander," as Dad calls her. Although she's the oldest of the three, Mom and Dad still think of her as "Baby Truffle," as they've had her since her birth. She sleeps under the desk in their home office, and even when they go on trips, she'll claim the desk in the hotel room as hers.

Their favorite dog-friendly dining-out spots are From Scratch and Lugano Swiss Bistro in The Barnyard, and Jeffrey's Grill at Mid Valley. They've learned socializing and etiquette at these restaurants since they were 4 months old.

Mouisset will keep Red for about five months until his cancer treatment has ended; then he will likely be placed up for adoption.

Nonstop licking

Three-year-old Stella, who is being fostered by SPCA worker Jon Sparks, is the most outgoing of the dogs, jumping into the lap of anybody who will let her, Brookhouser said.

"She is a wiggle-butt, kid-loving happy dog," she said. "She just loves to be with people. And if you give her the chance to start licking your face, she is never going to stop."

The cuddly, black and white female will eventually be placed up for adoption, but Brookhouser said they don't know when that will be.

Shy but sweet

In November, Stacy Schmidt, annual fund manager for the SPCA, began fostering Ginger, the shyest of the three pit bulls.

"She is not used to people wanting to be very affectionate toward her," Schmidt said. "I have been working with her, giving her a lot of hugs and a lot of attention."

When Ginger arrived, she was very withdrawn, which "took a lot of patience," Schmidt said. But the hard work paid off.

"She has come a long way," Schmidt said. "She is more comfortable around people and different situations."

Like Mouisset and Sparks, Schmidt intended to only foster the dog until it was ready for adoption. But at some point, Schmidt realized she couldn't let Ginger go.

"I would just look at her and say, 'I can't live without you,'" she said. "She has become such a part of my life. She just looks at me with those eyes."

For information about the SPCA for Monterey County, call (831) 373-2631 or visit www.spcamc.org.

DUI problems

THE PUBLIC learned some very disturbing things in the last few weeks about its laws against driving under the influence.

The first was a column in the Sept. 8 Monterey County Herald by Jerry Gervase, in which he described his experiences at a DUI checkpoint on Del Monte Avenue in Seaside.

According to Gervase, he barely escaped being arrested for driving while drunk, even though he'd only had one glass of wine two hours before he was stopped. His age (72) and nervousness made it difficult for him to pass the DUI tests the officers administered, creating the impression he was intoxicated. He was unnerved and became more disoriented as the tests continued, Gervase wrote, but somehow managed to avoid being arrested.

Afterward, Internet research led him to believe the tests can be wildly inaccurate, and also can be refused with no legal consequences, "other than angering the officer," Gervase said.

But a local attorney advised him that angering a police officer can itself have serious legal consequences:

"Angering a police officer may result in your vehicle being towed, loss of your license for a year, nine months of classes, conviction of a DUI, an interlocking device attached to your ignition and a 148(a) resisting-arrest conviction," the attorney said.

"But what if I cooperate without resisting?" Gervase asked.

"If you're told to put your hands behind your back to be cuffed you may flinch because it's a natural reaction to being cuffed. That flinch can be written as resisting arrest," the attorney explained, according to the Herald.

Needless to say, the idea that a law-abiding citizen could end up in jail and charged with resisting arrest under such flimsy circumstances is unacceptable. We hope local police departments and the CHP reviewed Gervase's column and discussed ways to avoid such mistreatment of the people they are supposed to serve. California's DUI limit is very low (.08 percent) and is violated under otherwise routine circumstances by many people — including, we are sure, off-duty police officers. Enforcement of it without probable cause should be done with the utmost care and discretion.

Meanwhile, a prosecutor says the woman who killed a Pacific Grove father two weeks ago while in a state of intoxication from prescription drugs had at least five prior DUIs on her record.

Maybe one of the officers who was putting Gervase through the DUI gauntlet would have better spent the time checking up on the woman to see what she was up to.

Letters to the Editor

Focus on bigger problems

Dear Editor,

Complaining about local government salaries or waste, or any government salary or waste not connected to the U.S. War Machine (Defense Department + Homeland InSecurity), is analogous to fixing a dripping faucet in New Orleans after the levees broke.

Is The Pine Cone not aware of the million- to hundred-million-dollar salaries pulled down by failed and sometimes corrupt corporate executives? Of the collapse of the "shadow" banking system, based upon hyped, grossly inflated capital, created by Lehman Brothers, Merrill Lynch and Goldman Sachs? Of the billions of cash dollars unaccounted for by private U.S. corporations and private armies in Iraq?

Does The Pine Cone know that the War Machine spends $5,000 per second on its misguided wars? That's $300,000 per minute; $18,000,000 per hour. That the War Machine's invasion has displaced over 4 million Iraqis, killed uncounted thousands — or hundreds of thousands — of innocent civilians, and poisoned and destroyed the birthplace of modern civilization? And that this destruction was based upon forged documents and lies?

Or that Homeland InSecurity, the department that carefully checks us in airports for holes in our socks, does not examine entire massive shiploads of goods entering our ports? Or that it spent billions of dollars in 2008 and still cannot provide prompt emergency services to victims of natural disasters, even when it has advance warning of the disaster?

Pine trees thrive in fog. But it's time for the Pine Cone to look through the mist and get some perspective.

John Dalessio, Carmel Valley

Get rid of acacia

Dear Editor,

As a retired environmental landscape consultant, I feel that Monterey Peninsula property owners wishing to remove black acacias, or replace them with non-invasive trees, should be allowed to.

Black acacia is a fast-growing tree which is deceptively attractive in early spring with its handsome form and cream-colored flowers. Like other Australian acacias found locally, it is extremely invasive in the natural forest and in landscapes, spreading by abundant seeds. In addition, this species spreads even more rapidly by suckers that arise from the roots, like bamboo. One tree can eventually become a dense grove.

No respecter of property lines, black acacia suckers will come up and grow quickly in neighbors' yards, in shrubs, against home foundations. An unwanted black acacia that is cut down for removal without killing the stump soon sprouts even more numerous suckers that quickly become a thicket of fast growing acacia trees.

POLICE CHIEFS SEEK FIREPOWER OF REGIONAL SWAT TEAM

By MARY BROWNFIELD

HIGHLY TRAINED marksmen will soon be ready to respond to a hostage situation, terrorist attack, act of violence or other serious crime on the Monterey Peninsula, according to Seaside P.D. Deputy Chief Mick Vernon. A tactical commander on Seaside's strategic response team that handles less demanding situations, Vernon has been tapped to organize and oversee a new regional SWAT team supported by several Peninsula cities.

"Were we to have a full SWAT incident, our team couldn't do it," Vernon said of Seaside's SRT. "We could assist, but we would have to wait for the sheriff's office."

So chiefs from several Peninsula cities and California State University Monterey Bay decided to collaborate on a SWAT team of about 30 officers who could react to situations involving hostages, active shooters, terrorists or high-profile robberies. The team could also serve high-risk warrants.

Equipment is on its way, and Vernon and a few other key law enforcement officials — including Pacific Grove Police Cmdr. John Nyunt — are looking for the right people to serve on the SWAT team. According to Vernon, ideal candidates are more skilled than most when it comes to firing weapons, of course, but they also have above average physical fitness and make good decisions quickly.

"Once you get into a house with multiple rooms and two-man teams, and something happens, you need to be able to make decisions," Vernon said. "That, more than anything else, is what you look for."

Each participating police department makes recommendations regarding which of its officers might be good for SWAT, and candidates are tested and interviewed. So far, about 17 have been selected, including several on Seaside's SRT, since they already have some of the necessary training and knowledge.

In addition to helping with recruitment, Nyunt, who was named tactical commander, is also a liaison with other departments, and is responsible for training, equipment and logistics.

Nyunt has already undergone SWAT training, and after all SWAT officers undergo initial training, they will keep their skills sharp by engaging in live-fire drills, simulations, and communication and threat-assessment exercises.

"This is something that the chiefs all felt was necessary for the Peninsula, because we have so many hard targets, as well as soft targets," Nyunt said. Hard targets are military installations, power plants and other protected government buildings, while soft targets are schools, shopping centers and other places where civilians congregate.

Vernon said the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, provoked small agencies to figure out how to work together effectively during major disasters.

"I've been here 25 years, and any type of regional organizing was almost unheard of," he said. "Over the last five years, that's changed a lot. One of the goals of homeland security is to promote regionalization."

In fact, Homeland Security dollars are footing part of the bill for the regional SWAT team, though Vernon said each participating jurisdiction — Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey, Seaside, Marina, Sand City and California State University Monterey Bay — will also share the financial burden of implementing and running it. The leaders are still hammering out the details.

"This will be a team that will make the whole Monterey Peninsula safer," Vernon promised.
