John Kenney gives his house to his lawyer

Attorney asking $625,000 for home with 'inspiring views'

By PAUL MILLER

THE ONE-ACRE property and three-bedroom home at 80 Southbank Road in Carmel Valley were the scene of an infamous double murder.

Last week, the man convicted of shooting his neighbors gave the house to the attorney who unsuccessfully defended him. And the attorney immediately put it up for sale.

At the Monterey County Jail, where he is at the beginning of what promises to be a life sentence without the possibility of parole, John Kenney signed a deed last Thursday giving his former home to Thomas J. Nolan of the Palo Alto law firm, Nolan, Armstrong & Barton LLP. And the attorney promptly listed it with Sotheby's International Realty for $625,000.

Kenney was convicted Sept. 17 of murdering Mel and Elizabeth Grimes after a long-running dispute over a shared driveway. He is to be sentenced Nov. 3.

According to a Sotheby's website, the listing of the Kenney home is "new this week." It describes the three-bedroom, two-bath house as a "mountain side retreat" with "inspiring views" and a "spacious master bedroom with sunroom addition and office."

According to testimony at the trial — which ended with Kenney convicted of second-degree murder for shooting

Internet advertising for the former home of convicted murderer John Kenney was launched this week after Kenney gave the home to his defense attorney.

Mel Grimes, and first-degree murder for gunning down Elizabeth Grimes as she tried to help her mortally wounded husband — it was also where Kenney waited in January 2007 for his neighbors to come home after he placed a boulder on part of the driveway he claimed was his, but which the Grimeses routinely used to access their carport.

According to the prosecutor in the case, Berkley Brannon, a title search showed the Grimeses had an easement to use the disputed part of the driveway.

Kenney, 73, testified he asked Monterey County Sheriff's deputies, along with several personal advisers, to

State official: P.B. revised plan won't have golf course

By KELLY NIX

A REVISED version of a plan by the Pebble Beach Co. that called for a new equestrian center, hotel rooms and employee housing could be unveiled by the end of the year, but without its most contentious component — an 18-hole golf course — according to a senior staff member with the California Coastal Commission.

The project, called the "The Del Monte Forest Plan: Forest Preservation and Development Limitations," was unveiled eight years ago. It included a cap on building in the forest and would have created large open-space preserves.

The plan was embraced by residents and county officials as it made its way through a lengthy permit process, but was rejected by the coastal commission last year after the agency decided the golf course would do too much damage to "environmentally sensitive habitat" — especially Monterey pine forest.

To appease the commission, while still getting some use of its land, the Pebble Beach Co. will likely abandon the golf course proposed for the site of the equestrian center, a coastal commission planner told The Pine Cone this week.

"We have been discussing an option that wouldn't have a golf course," said Dan Carl, manager of the commission's central coast district office in Santa Cruz.

The golf course the company wanted to build would have involved cutting thousands of Monterey pines — one of the world's most plentiful tree species, but which the commission decided needs special protection in its native range.

"We said that, from our perspective, a golf course wouldn't be part of the package, at least of that scale," Carl said. "And they said they're not interested in a smaller scale."

Though nothing has been formally submitted, in addition to eliminating the golf course, the revised plan will probably also be scaled down in other respects.

"It may not be as big an expansion as they had pro-

TAMC concedes Hatton Canyon trail needs EIR

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE COST of a hiking and bike path through Hatton Canyon, which opponents have dubbed "The Trail to Nowhere," just went up.

The Transportation Agency for Monterey County agreed this week to pay for a full environmental impact report before it tries to construct a 1.7-mile bicycle and walking path between Canyon Drive and the Carmel River. Before agreeing to fund the EIR, the agency estimated the project would cost $3.8 million.

A group of neighbors living near the proposed trail — calling itself "Save Hatton Canyon" — insists the project brings too much development into what the neighbors believe is an environmentally sensitive area. Activists successfully stopped the Hatton Canyon Freeway project with the same argument.

"It's a massive road, not a bicycle trail," said Joe Krings, who lives near the canyon. "You can't just mow down wetlands."

According to John Dillard, another Hatton Canyon neighbor, residents of Carmel Hills and Carmel Knolls sent more

DUI driver wants mental exam by third doctor

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ONE DOCTOR believes Deborah King is fit to be tried for murder and vehicular manslaughter in the Sept. 2 death of 35-year-old Joel Woods, but another said she is not. On Wednesday, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Adrienne Grover said she wants the differences in opinion settled and put the matter off until Nov. 7 so the defendant could undergo further analysis.

Police arrested and jailed the 51-year-old Monterey resident after she allegedly ran down Woods with her BMW SUV as he picked up his son from Pacific Grove Middle School. Officers determined she was under the influence of prescription drugs at the time. Because King had accumulated five DUI charges in another county a decade ago, the district attorney's office filed murder and gross vehicular manslaughter charges based

SEWAGE TURNED INTO WATER THAT'S 'ALMOST TOO PURE'

By KELLY NIX

THREE MONTHS after it began operating, a high-tech filtration system built specifically to irrigate Pebble Beach golf courses and other open space with reclaimed sewage is running smoothly, according to its operators.

The reverse osmosis system — which forces treated wastewater through microfilters, removing virtually all contaminants — pumps more than one million gallons of water daily from the Carmel Area Wastewater District plant to a reservoir in Pebble Beach where it is used for irrigation.

Some of the treated water is also flowing to the Carmel River Lagoon to improve the habitat for native plants and animals.

"The plant is running peachy keen," said Mark Scheiter, CAWD plant superintendent.

Father Serra - Sainthood was proposed for Father Junipero Serra 60 years ago by the Catholic Diocese of Monterey-Fresno. The laborious process has moved slowly since. In 1985, the Vatican recognized Serra as worthy for establishing the Spanish missions in California during the 18th century. In 1986, Pope John Paul II declared the priest venerable, and was expected to beatify him in September 1987 while visiting Serra's grave at the Carmel Mission. But Indian protests erupted. Some historians and Catholics see Serra as a hero who brought Christianity to save the souls of thousands of California Indians, while other historians and Indian descendants see him as a brutal force of cultural genocide. Most Indians died young from various diseases brought by the Spanish, and some were treated as captives and slaves. A year after his Carmel visit, the pope did beatify Serra and move him one step from sainthood, but the controversy simmers on. (Next week: Asilomar)

Commission wants control of demolition permits, nixes clad windows

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL PLANNING commissioners believe they, not members of the design review board, should be in charge of approving demolitions in the city. They voted Oct. 8 to recommend the city council make that change.

At issue was the workload, according to planning and building services manager Sean Conroy. The commission handles general plan updates, the creation and revision of policies and ordinances, and other broad issues, while the DRB handles most design applications.

"Right now, the design review board reviews applications that don't require a use permit," Conroy said. "A lot of the land use projects don't require use permits, so the DRB agendas tend to be longer."

In September, the city council discussed that imbalance, and instead of recommending merging the two bodies into one, it suggested requiring use permits for all demolitions, Conroy told the commission Oct. 8.

"That would kick all demolitions and rebuilds into planning commission review," he explained, while the DRB would continue considering substantial alterations and other projects.

But at the meeting, Conroy proposed another solution: simply revising the code to state that only the planning commission can vote on demolitions.

"Use permits have a fee associated with them, and more paperwork and staff time are involved," he said. In addition, use permits require a four-fifths affirmative vote in order to pass.

The commission unanimously agreed with Conroy's recommendation to amend the municipal code, which must be done by the city council.

Meanwhile, in the ongoing debate about the acceptability of clad windows, the commission denied an application from Charles Dunbar to install aluminum-clad wood windows in a home at Mission and Third.

The decision came a day after the Carmel City Council approved another homeowner's wish to keep the aluminum-clad windows he had already installed in his stucco house.

"The windows have come a long way," planning and building services manager Sean Conroy said of the aluminum-clad versions, which can be difficult to distinguish from painted wood windows.

"Clad windows are easier to maintain, and when properly detailed, have an appearance very similar to wood," Conroy added.

They also need painting much less frequently than wood windows, especially in oceanfront areas.

'A long, long way'

Nevertheless, Conroy advised the planning commission to deny Dunbar's request, because unclad wood windows would better match the architectural style of his home and are preferred by the city's design guidelines, which call for natural materials unless style dictates another material is more appropriate.

"I have for a long time thought aluminum-clad wood windows were a good idea, and I think technology has come a long, long way," commented commissioner Robin Wilson.

He wanted to approve the application but got no support from his fellow commissioners, so it was denied.

Commissioner Steve Hillyard suggested revamping the code to allow clad windows, if that's what city officials want, to "put everyone on an even playing field."

CHS seeks $ for DC trip

ELEVEN CARMEL High students — including four with political aspirations — will attend the inauguration of the next President of the United States in Washington, D.C., in January. But two cannot afford the $2,000 cost of the trip, so their classmates are hoping to raise enough money to cover them. Student Jake Odello reported the group has raised about half the funds but needs more help.

"We have already received many donations from the community, and we are entirely grateful," he said. "However, we need more community support. Anything helps." Donations may be made out to CHS-ASB and sent to Nora Ward, P.O. Box 222780, Carmel, CA 93922.

DON'T LET MARKET VOLATILITY DERAIL YOUR INVESTMENT STRATEGY

From October 2007 to the end of June, the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell about 20 percent. This decline was caused by a variety of factors, including gloomy economic news, rising oil prices and the sub-prime loan crisis.

While these issues continue to affect the market, you, as an individual investor, may still find an opportunity to buy quality investments at lower prices.

Specifically, you may have buying opportunities right now, because the decline in stock prices has also meant a drop in the ratio of share prices to company earnings ("P/E"). In plain English, this means that some stocks are now relatively lower in cost. So, if you have room in your portfolio to add certain investments, look for them now.

And if you've created a long-term strategy — one that is suitable for your needs, goals, risk tolerance and time horizon — stick with it. Don't let market volatility derail your investment strategy.

Peace Corps in Tanzania has school and students — but no books

By MARY BROWNFIELD

DAVE AND Wendy Banks, Carmel residents who put their lives on hold to serve as Peace Corps volunteers in East Africa, have a message for their friends, family and supporters back home: Send books.

“They are teaching high school over there and have absolutely no materials,” explained longtime friend Judy Kirk, who lives at Del Mesa Carmel.

The Bankses — she a retired public school teacher, he a retired pharmacist — left the Peninsula in June to work in Tanzania. When the four dozen Peace Corps volunteers bound for Africa assembled in Washington, D.C., to make the trip, the Bankses found they were the only couple, and two of only four older folks amidst many college students and other young workers. “We said we could be mom and dad to anyone who needs some TLC,” they wrote in a June 10 blog entry.

After arriving in Africa, and undergoing training and learning the ins and outs of their host country, including its cultural mores and language, the Bankses and the other volunteers were officially sworn in as Peace Corps workers during a ceremony Aug. 20.

A week later, they arrived in their new home village of Malindi. The village is about 1.5 hours “via dala dala and foot,” from Lushoto, where they can go online when the power is on, do their banking and pick up supplies. (A dala dala is an African minibus or shared taxi.)

“This is a cooler, mountain area which stays green year-round and has an abundant supply of fresh fruits and veggies. We are nestled in one of many valleys where everyone farms,” they wrote, describing their home as comfortable and new, with an outdoor area for cooking and showering. “We do not have electricity but can read and play cards by lantern light at night. The southern sky is beautiful at night, as it is so dark.”

And the people are warm and welcoming: “All the walking up and down valleys is delightful, and the villagers are extremely friendly: Greet, re-greet and then greet some more.”

During the next several weeks, they got situated, and one blog entry recounted observations of the potato harvest as women dug up the plants, bagged the little spuds, sewed the sacks shut and carried them on their heads to the side of the road to wait for a market-bound lorry. They attended a workshop, participated in health clinics and worked on a health education program to be implemented in a primary school.

On Sept. 27, the Bankses described embarking on their first adventures as teachers in the local school, where he is handling biology and she is covering English.

“Picture a classroom with only wooden desks, blackboard and chalk ... that’s it. Oh, and 80 eager-to-learn students jammed into benches, four per bench,” they wrote. The students are 14 to 18 years old and learn in English. More than 325 attend the school, with another 180 kids set to join them in January.

But they have no books at all, and the Bankses urged their blog readers and others to collect and send classroom reference books in all subjects, as well as fiction and nonfiction, magazines like Scientific American and National Geographic, sports books, dictionaries, “anything.” They also suggested sending some simpler books that

Big Sur stockpiles sand

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE SUN is shining and there is hardly a cloud on the horizon, but that isn’t stopping residents from worrying about what will happen when winter rains come to Big Sur.

With entire hillsides stripped bare of vegetation as a result of the devastating summer wildfires, officials now worry mudslides could devastate the Big Sur community. In response, many locals are stockpiling one of the oldest deterrents against flooding — sandbags.

With little fanfare, the Monterey County Public Works Department recently delivered 35 tons of sand to a large Highway 1 turnout located just south of Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. “The sand just showed up on our doorstep,” explained Martha Karstens, assistant chief of the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade. “We didn’t know it was coming.”

According to interim maintenance manager Shawn Atkins, public works has increased the amount of sand it typically delivers to Big Sur residents at the request of Cal Fire, the state fire protection agency.

The free sand is available to any resident. “Just go get it,” Karstens suggested.

The fire brigade is also offering free bags. For more information, call (831) 667-2113.

While stuffing sand into bags might sound like drudgery, one resident is turning the task into a festive event. At Riverside Campground and Cabins, manager Amanda Rideout is hosting a sandbagging barbecue this weekend for her family and friends. Four of Riverside’s cabins, it turns out, lie in the flood plain of the Big Sur River, which will likely be inundated by mud and debris this winter.

“We have 3,000 bags and a huge pile of sand,” Rideout added. “We’re building a flood wall.”

Emergency team volunteers honored by President

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FIFTY-SEVEN MEMBERS of the Pebble Beach Community Emergency Response Team who helped residents cope during winter storms and put in more than 2,400 combined hours of work this year will be applauded at the Oct. 31 meeting of the Pebble Beach Community Services District board. Each member will receive the national President's Volunteer Service Gold Award, according to Cal Fire Capt. Jennifer Valdez.

Established in 2003, the award is given annually to people, groups and families who "have demonstrated exemplary citizenship through volunteering." At the PBCSD meeting, each person will receive a gold lapel pin, certificate and congratulatory letters from President George W. Bush and the President's Council on Service & Civic Participation.

"For a newly formed organization, the Pebble Beach Community Emergency Response Team has a remarkable history of volunteer service," Valdez said. "It shows how many hours they've given back to the community, and I think it's a great way to be recognized."

The volunteers, who underwent CERT training provided by the fire department, help in their neighborhoods and the community by doing public outreach, patrolling fire roads, assisting firefighters and other emergency workers during local disasters, standing by in case their skills are needed at special events, and undertaking ongoing monthly training. "I want to stress what a major accomplishment this is," Valdez said.

The latest CERT course began this week, it's not too late to sign up, and everyone is welcome to participate in the free training, according to Valdez.

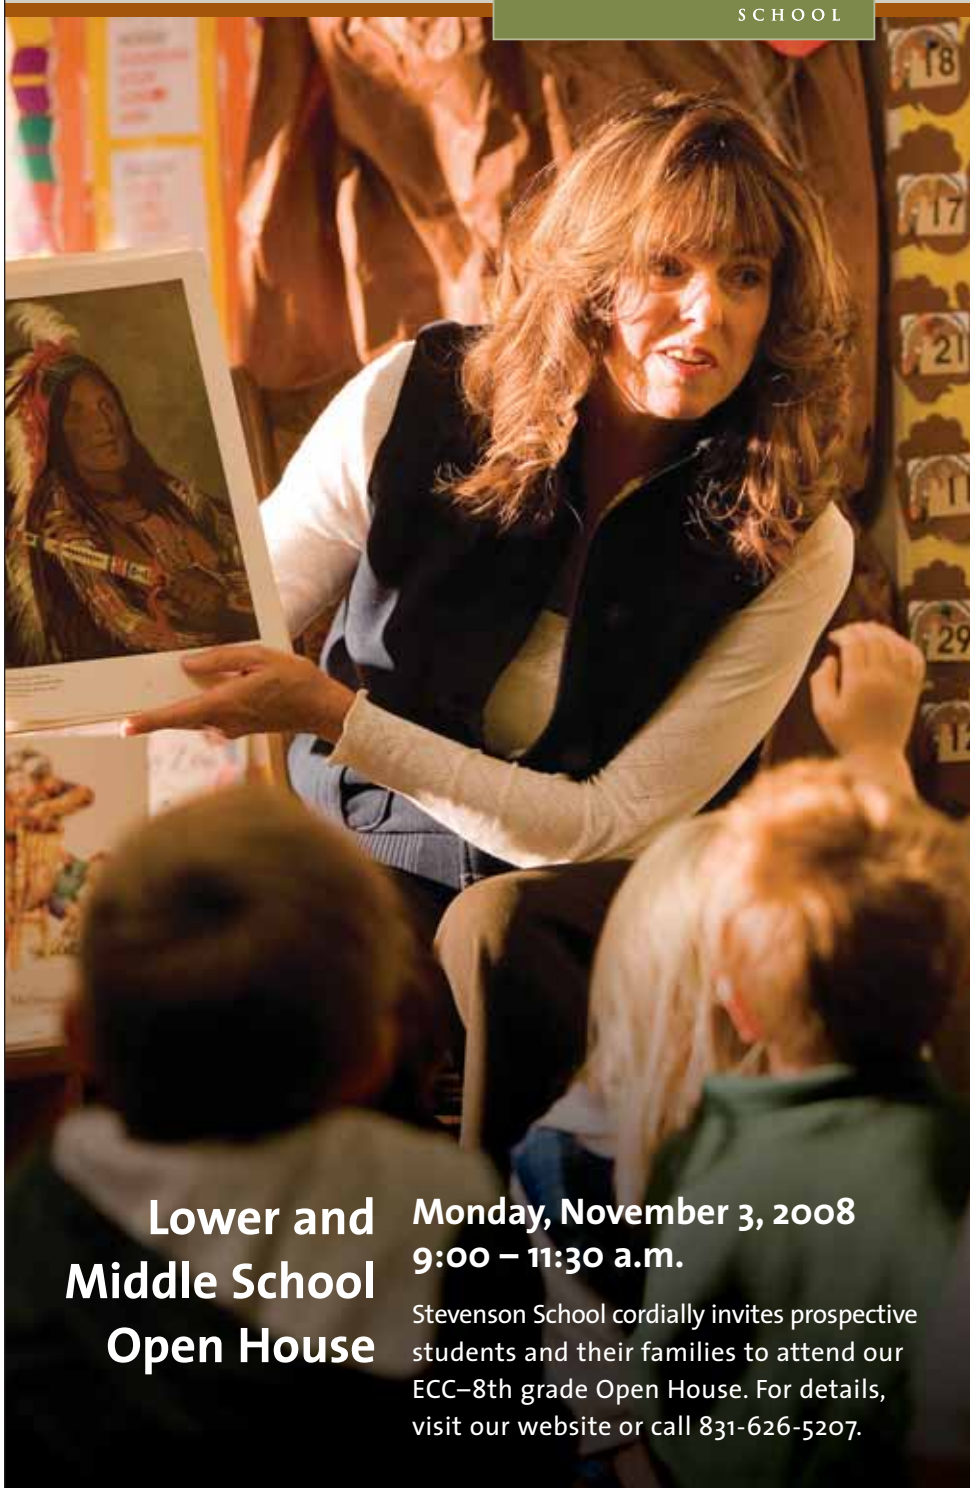

Topics include hands-on use of fire extinguishers, disaster preparedness, disaster medical operations such as how to treat life-threatening conditions and do triage, light search-and-rescue operations, how CERT fits in with professional emergency responders and its members' roles during major incidents, how to tell if someone is coping during an emergency, how "to deal with all the horrible things you see in disasters," and facts about terrorism. The course culminates with a day of demonstrating skills as a team.

"We turn the station and engine bays into a disaster site," Valdez said, and people pretend to be victims.

To sign up, call (831) 647-5642.

The Art of CARPETING & DECOR

with Dan Jones

THE GREAT IMPOSTOR

Long a favorite in Europe, laminate flooring is becoming more popular in this country. One advantage over traditional wood plank floors is that it installs very easily over an existing substrate. Its many looks range from traditional woods to tile, stone, and other natural materials. In essence, a laminate floor features a base of wood composite with a moisture-blocking back layer a face layer that is a completely detailed photographic image of the material it is intended to mimic. In some cases, a layer of real wood veneer replaces the photo layer. Overlying the top layer is a durable layer of aluminum oxide for protection and stain resistance. The result is a wear-resistant floor that looks like the real thing.

Ease of maintenance, good craftsmanship, and creative design are crucial to the enjoyment of the beautiful expanse of flooring you have your heart set on. Talk to us at CARPETS & FLOORS, INC., whether you are decorating or redecorating one room or your entire home with laminate flooring or another flooring choice. For all of your interior decorating projects, we're easy to find and well worth the visit. Only our very best will do.

HINT: Laminate flooring is the perfect choice for installation over a concrete basement.

Dan Jones is the President of Carpets & Floors, Inc., located at 471 Lighthouse Ave. (between Drake and McClellan) here in Monterey. Ph: 372-2300.

With little vegetation left to burn, Chalk Fire's days are numbered

By CHRIS COUNTS

HIGHWAY 1 was closed at Limekiln State Park Thursday as the Chalk Fire burned close to the scenic route, dropping rocks and debris on the pavement.

Thankfully, despite road delays and thick smoke, the fire appeared to pose little risk to the nearby New Camaldoli Hermitage, which is located just north of the state park.

"The only issue we have right now is that the fire is kicking rocks," explained Martha Karstens, assistant chief of the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade. "The hermitage is looking good, the east side is looking good, and there's nothing left to burn to the south."

The fire started Sept. 27 near Chalk Peak, which is located south of Nacimiento-Fergusson Road, but quickly jumped the narrow and winding route through the mountains.

Although a few spot fires have been reported south of the road, nearly all the present fire activity is located north of it. The road remains closed to make way for fire-fighting operations.

"We're very happy with the way the fire is going," Karstens added. "It will eventually burn itself out."

The fire has consumed more than 15,000 acres. The cost to date for fighting the fire is more than $21 million. A total of 32 fire engines, 11 helicopters, 10 air tankers and five bulldozers have been involved in the firefighting effort.

More than 700 firefighters, including 20 local volunteers, have battled the blaze, with 17 injuries reported. Other agencies participating in the effort include Cal Fire, the U.S. Forest Service, the Monterey County Sheriff's Office and the California Highway Patrol.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation. The Pine Cone received an unconfirmed report that it was accidentally caused by hunters.

City announces street closures

PUBLIC WORKS superintendent Stu Ross announced the dates of road construction that will disrupt drivers, walkers and cyclists in downtown Carmel in late October and early November.

Sunset Center's south parking lot, which is in dire need of repaving, will be resurfaced Oct. 28-30.

On Nov. 3 and 4, Scenic Road along the beach will undergo slurry sealing, making it off-limits to walkers, motorists, cyclists and anyone other than the people doing the work. On Monday, Scenic will be closed from Ocean to Eighth Avenue, as well as from 13th Avenue to the southern city limit. On Tuesday — Election Day — the beach-front road will be closed between Eighth and 13th avenues. Work hours both days will run from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

And on Nov. 4 and 5, crews will work throughout the night — between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. — to remove and replace crosswalks on Ocean Avenue. Detours will be available, and will change as work progresses.

Don Chapin Company will handle the projects, according to an agreement approved by the Carmel City Council this month.

The company estimated it will cost $46,240 to slurry seal Scenic Road, $25,993 to redo the crosswalks and $55,052 to repave the south lot at Sunset Center.

Smoldering butt sets P.B. garage ablaze

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A CARELESSLY discarded cigarette set a garage on fire in Pebble Beach Wednesday morning, but the fortuitous location of a fire engine parked just around the corner led to the quick dousing of the flames.

Cal Fire Battalion Chief Dennis Carreiro said a crew from the Pebble Beach fire station was working on equipment on nearby Huckleberry Hill when a neighbor called 911 at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 22 to report smoke and flames coming from the garage of a home on Costado Road. Carreiro estimated the smoldering began around 8:45 a.m. when the man who lives there apparently discarded a cigarette before he got into his car and left — not realizing the butt landed on a stack of folded shop towels. "It appears he missed the trash can," Carreiro said.

Responding to the 911 call, three firefighters could see smoke coming from the garage — but firefighting rules prohibited them from entering the garage until another engine arrived. So they hooked up to a nearby hydrant, ensured the flames had not reached into the home itself and made sure nobody was home. Once a second engine arrived, they were able to break into the garage and fight the fire — using the least amount of water needed, so as not to cause unnecessary damage.

"Two of our sharpest guys were on the nozzle," Carreiro said. "They let steam do the work." (When water comes in contact with high heat, it turns into steam, which interrupts combustion without drenching everything.)

The fire was confined to the empty side of the garage where the resident's car had been. Damage from the flames, smoke, heat and water was limited to the walls, ceiling, work bench, lights and tools, and totalled an estimated $25,000.

Carreiro said the Mercedes parked in the garage's other space would probably be fine following a thorough detailing.

A total of 20 firefighters from Pebble Beach Fire Department, Cypress Fire Protection District, Monterey Fire Department and Cal Fire responded to the incident.

Wave Street Studios, Highlands Inn and the Hyatt make a splash

By STEVE VAGNINI

WAVE STREET Studios in Monterey is a state-of-the-art audio and video recording studio, and one of the best kept secrets on the Monterey Peninsula.

The creation of Rhett Smith, a Carmel native, the intimate venue nestled atop Cannery Row also features a residential retreat for musicians and a Quock Mui Tea Room and boutique. Smith was the creator of the Media Room, a Pacific Grove music venue in the late 1990s that hosted more than 100 live performances before closing down due to disability access issues. Smith partnered up for a short while with David Kimball at the KRML Jazz and Blues Co. before leaving to open his latest venue.

Performing at Wave Street Studios Sunday, Oct. 26, at 8 p.m., local pianist, composer, author and jazz journalist Bill Minor will host an upbeat evening of poetry and original music celebrating the release of his CD, "Mortality Suite: a Broadside of Jazz Riffs."

The evening will feature appearances by local actor Taelen Thomas, bassist Heath Proskin, flutist Richard Mayer and original music performed by Minor. For more information, call (831) 655-2033.

Vive La Jazz (formerly the Hot Club), featuring San Francisco guitarist George Cole, blends the gypsy jazz of Django Reinhardt and Stephane Grappelli with songs from the Great American Songbook. They will be performing at the Ol' Factory Café in Sand City Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. The group's Latest CD, "Samois Faire," contains a dozen original compositions written in a style that captures the spirit of the gypsy jazz masters of Paris.

Cole, the band's lead vocalist, guitarist, composer and producer, has toured with Joe Walsh of the Eagles and was featured on Chris Isaac's platinum-selling "Forever Blue" album. He has performed with Warren Zevon, Buster Poindexter, Robert Cray and Boz Skaggs. Call (831) 394-6000.

Performing Oct. 24 and 25 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey, pianist Gennady Loktionov moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1994, drawn by the area's inspiring beauty and rich jazz tradition. A classically trained jazz pianist, Loktionov was befriended by a host of local jazz musicians, including Kenny Stahl, Bobby Phillips, Andy Weiss and the late great Buddy Jones, and performed at Mission Ranch, Los Laureles Lodge and Stonepine Resort in Carmel Valley.

A talented composer as well, Loktionov's music scores have been featured in Clint Eastwood movies "Mystic River" and "Million Dollar Baby." On Friday, beginning at 7 p.m., he'll be joined by drummer David Morwood. Sunday afternoon at 2, Morwood, vocalist Lee Durley and guitarist Gino Raugi host the monthly jazz jam at the Hyatt. Call (831) 372-1234.

Lee Durley moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1970 as a member of a touring rock 'n' roll band, and the deep voiced jazz vocalist has never looked back. Promotions director and on-air personality for KIDD Magic 63, Durley has been a member of the Monterey Bay Blues Festival Board of Directors for 20 years, and he is a regular performer at a myriad of clubs and lounges throughout the Monterey Peninsula. Durley performs every Friday and Saturday night at the Highlands Inn, (831) 620-1234, with his Easy Street Band and has been hosting the popular Wednesday night jam session at Sly McFly's for more than 20 years.

Get the right bra, help fight breast cancer

RESEARCH SHOWS eight out of 10 women wear bras that don't fit properly. Vastly more alarming, one in eight will develop breast cancer during her lifetime, and of the estimated 692,000 cancer diagnoses that arise in women this year, more than a quarter will involve breast cancer.

That's why Macy's and Wacoal are hosting a local "Fi(gh)t for the Cure" event in the Del Monte Center department store Thursday, Oct. 30, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Specialists will help women get fitted for the proper Wacoal, DKNY Underwear or Donna Karan Intimates bra, and will sign them up for free monthly reminders to conduct breast self-exams that could save their lives. Participation is free, and for each woman who takes part, Wacoal will donate $2 to the Susan G. Komen foundation's breast-cancer research and outreach programs. The company will kick in another $2 for every Wacoal, DKNY Underwear or Donna Karan Intimates bra sold. The campaign's nine years have generated more than $1.7 million for the Susan G. Komen foundation.

The Fi(gh)t for the Cure will be held in Macy's West Monterey at 100 Del Monte Center. For more information, call (831) 372-3333.

LIVING AT HOME WHILE SUFFERING FROM AIDS

Home healthcare can help coordinate a consistent and coherent approach to the management of AIDS while being responsive to a patient's changing needs. A healthcare worker can provide a link between the doctors, specialists, and others on the medical team who are treating the patient. Health care providers can communicate information to families about the status of the patient's health. They can also help the families understand the nature of the disease and what to expect as the patient's condition progresses. Home healthcare professionals must often facilitate access to a broad range of services and therapies. Flexibility in adapting care to changes in an individual's needs and circumstances is an important aspect of management continuity.

This column has been brought to you by VICTORIAN HOME CARE. Our in-home care program assists older adults in maintaining their independence at home, or can ease the transition to a new setting if needed. Each caregiver is carefully selected after an extensive background check, testing, and an intensive interview process. This results in caregivers that are dedicated, experienced, and qualified. Our mission and promise to our clients is to provide the best care possible, as many hours as we are needed.

P.S. Healthcare professionals can help with diet and nutrition for patients who have AIDS.

MANDATED ROLLOVER PROTECTION

In recognition of electronic stability control's (ESC) effectiveness in preventing rollovers, the government will require all new passenger vehicles to have this rollover technology by the 2012 model year. ESC helps drivers avoid skidding across icy roads and helps them maintain control of their vehicles when swerving to avoid an unexpected object. Electronic stability control senses when a driver may lose control and automatically applies brakes to individual wheels in an effort to stabilize the vehicle. Once ESC is incorporated in all vehicles, the U.S. Department of Transportation estimates that 5,300 to 9,600 deaths and 238,000 injuries will be prevented annually. This safety technology is deemed to be as important as seat belts and airbags.

This column on electronic stability control is brought to you by our entire staff. ESC effectively increases the amount of control you have over your vehicle in emergency situations. We are your local automotive experts and we have the technology to make sure your ESC is working properly. We are located at the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in Downtown Monterey. We are the oldest independent repair facility in Monterey going... and growing!

HINT: More than 10,000 people die in rollover accidents each year, even though only 3 percent of crashes involve rollovers.

Sculptor allowed to keep his extra-wide gallery doors

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHO KNEW an argument over a door would have such a galvanizing effect?

More than a dozen people attended a design review board meeting in Carmel City Hall Wednesday evening for the debate over the doors in sculptor Steven Whyte's Dolores Street gallery and art studio. Some said the doorway's 8-foot width violates the rules for downtown and looks like it belongs in a shopping mall, while others argued the doors are nice looking and enable people to see an artist at work.

Assistant planner Marc Wiener said planners believed Whyte's plans for remodeling his Su Vecino Court storefront called for a single door and side lights, not a double door.

"It was not indicated how the door would open; however, staff assumed that the door would open in a traditional pivoting manner," he wrote in his Oct. 22 report for the board. According to commercial design guidelines, "Entrances to stores should not be excessively wide, and single doors are strongly encouraged."

Wiener suggested Whyte be allowed to keep the door, but "the side light panels shall remain closed at all times."

The sculptor said he was surprised to learn the doors were an issue and that he be on hand when the boulder was delivered, because he knew it might anger his neighbors.

But they weren't home, and when the boulder was placed without sparking a confrontation, the advisers left, and a deputy sheriff decided he wasn't needed. Alone at his house, Kenney went inside to make a chicken dinner.

Soon, Kenney testified, Elizabeth Grimes began knocking on his doors and windows, and yelling. Before going outside to confront her on his deck, Kenney went to his bedroom to retrieve his gun and, after confronting his neighbors, he killed them, Kenney admitted. A jury rejected his claim he was acting in self-defense.

After being arrested for the killings, Kenney took out a $250,000 mortgage on the property where the killings took place. And, according to records at the county courthouse, in August 2007, Kenney promised to pay $400,000 to Nolan, a specialist in criminal defense.

According to the deed signed last week, the gift of the home was to satisfy the $400,000 debt, plus 6 percent interest per year. Presumably, after selling the home, Nolan will pay off the $250,000 mortgage and keep whatever is left as his fee for defending Kenney.

It's also safe to assume the new owner will be aware that the neighboring house, where Mel and Elizabeth Grimes lived, has a driveway easement over part of Kenney's land.

ating in mid-July, eliminates the need for about 42 million gallons of drinking water per year that had been used to irrigate the greens — and that's on top of saving hundreds of millions of gallons of drinking water that the first phase of water treatment had replaced.

Treated water from the first phase, which went online in 1994, proved to be too salty for the sensitive greens of Pebble Beach and other golf courses, which had to be periodically flushed with drinking water.

The newest plant, which uses the same technology as a desalination plant deploys to turn saltwater into potable water, is probably the first of its kind built for golf-course irrigation. "Honestly, I don't know if there is anything like this anywhere in the world," said CAWD general manager Ray von Dohren.

While most reverse osmosis systems are designed to handle constant flows of water, the CAWD plant was designed to handle a variable flow, which called for some special design characteristics.

"Our reverse osmosis unit has to go fast and slow, fast and slow, and they aren't designed to do that," Scheiter said.

The treated water from the reverse osmosis plant, which produces about 750 gallons per minute, is pumped directly to golf courses and athletic fields in Del Monte Forest, or to the 100 million-gallon Forest Lake Reservoir, where it can be stored.

In the summer, Pebble Beach golf courses require up to 4.5 million gallons of water per day.

Though the new system has had few snags in light of its unique design, Scheiter said it hasn't been completely fool-proof.

"We had to make a few minor changes here and there," he said. "Fifteen to 20 percent of what you build is going to be problematic. We have had about 5 percent."

When water comes out of the facility, it is so pure it has a lower salt content and fewer minerals than drinking water.

"We actually have to add salinity and hardness back to the water so it doesn't damage the greens," Scheiter said.

For golfers and for fish

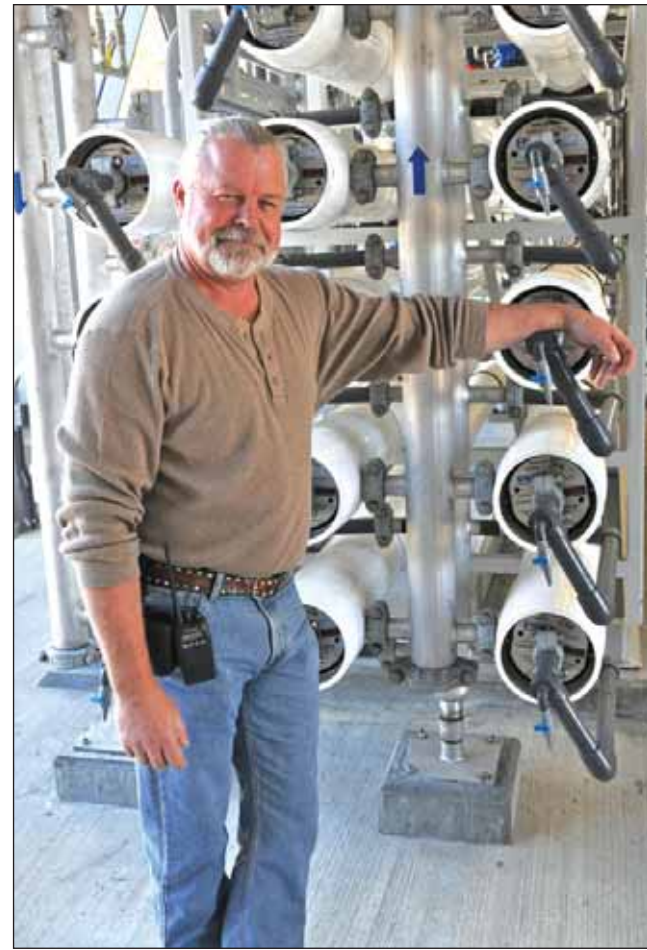

Water that goes through the plant not only irrigates the greens, but about 160,000 gallons per day are pumped into the Carmel River lagoon to boost the water level for the threatened steelhead trout habitat.

"We discharge it into the lagoon about two hours a day," von Dohren said. "Then we turn it off, and we discharge into Pebble Beach" for the remaining 22 hours.

The system allows water at the reservoir to be stored during the winter months, when the demand is lowest, so it can be used for the golf courses and athletic fields in summer, when the demand for water is at its peak.

Scheiter said it's expected a few hundred thousand gallons more water per day will be pumped to the reservoir within the next few months.

"We are only running the reverse osmosis facility at two-thirds of capacity," he said. "Once the flows pick up due to the rainy cycle, we will probably will kicking it up to 1.4 million to 1.5 million gallons per day."

Carmel Area Wastewater District plant superintendent Mark Scheiter says the new reverse osmosis system helping to irrigate P.B. golf courses is "running peachy keen."

than 150 letters opposing the project to TAMC in the last several weeks.

Plans call for the paved portion of the trail to be 12 feet wide, with a 4-foot shoulder of decomposed granite for walkers. The project would also feature a lighted Carmel Valley Road underpass.

TAMC planned to approve permits for the path with a mitigated negative declaration — a much less thorough, and cheaper, type of environmental review based on the conclusion that a project would not have any serious consequences for the environment. But the concerns of residents convinced the county to pay for the EIR.

"It was decided to do the study, because there were enough comments," project manager Todd Muck explained. "We decided it was prudent to do an EIR."

Muck declined to guess how much the EIR would cost, but he said he was confident it wouldn't delay the project, which is scheduled to begin in late 2009.

The trail aims to provide a bicycle and walking route between the Crossroads, Carmel Rancho and Barnyard shopping centers, Carmel High School, and adjacent residential and recreational areas.

The project is a partnership between California State Parks, the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District, the Big Sur Land Trust, Caltrans and TAMC.

Robert Edward Tierney

December 25, 1933 – October 17, 2008

Robert Edward Tierney died Friday night in his home in Carmel, CA of prostate cancer. Bob is survived by Sally Masterson Tierney, his bride of fifty years, their four married children, eleven grandchildren and countless friends, whom he loved dearly. Bob led an exciting and exemplary life, dedicated to service for his country, family and friends.

An only child, raised in the Midwest, Bob's aspiration as a young boy was to become a soldier statesman. In 1958 he graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point and began flight training. He was a pilot in Strategic Air Command during the Cuban Missile Crisis and in 1965 he joined the Central Intelligence Agency where he was awarded the Certificate of Distinction. Bob led a distinguished career in the CIA serving his country in Laos, Singapore, Japan and ultimately in the U.S. Mission to the United Nations under Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick. Throughout, he earned a strong reputation for integrity, independent thinking, and disciplined intelligence. As one senior diplomat recalls with a smile "Bob was always the one to ask the question that none of us wanted to answer..." Bob was equally engaged and inquisitive with his family; at home his favorite seat was at the family dinner table, where his probing inquiry was balanced with wit, patience and love.

During his career, Bob and Sally moved over fifteen times and engaged in each community as if it were their hometown, setting roots and "giving back." After retiring from government in 1983, Bob and Sally moved from New York City to Camden, ME, where they opened a family business, "The Maine Stay" Bed & Breakfast. Gregarious by nature, a gifted conversationalist, and quick with a (long) joke, Bob became a popular innkeeper and civic leader. He led the Camden Economic Council and he created The Camden Conference, a nationally renowned education and policy program focused on foreign affairs, now in its twenty-second year. Bob was instrumental in the development of the Institute for Global Ethics and, following the suicide of a close friend, he co-founded the Depression Awareness Program. Bob's ability to create institutions that continue to thrive today derived from a unique balance of imagination and leadership, optimism and discipline.

In 2000, Bob and Sally officially retired to Carmel, CA, to settle in the home they had purchased in 1975, next door to Sally's parents. The following year, Bob was diagnosed with advanced prostate cancer. Bob's enthusiasm for life and devotion to his Faith, together with the support of his outstanding doctors, sustained him and those surrounding him for seven wonderful years.

With daily intent, Bob lived an authentic and prosperous life. He served his country with honor abroad and at home. He helped to build stronger communities. He delighted himself and others with his recreational pursuits, as an adventurous sailor exploring Midcoast Maine, an outdoorsman on weekly treks with his hiking club, and as an enthusiastic bass singer in the Carmel Mission Choir.

Above all, Bob was a devoted husband, father, grandfather and friend. We will miss him dearly.

A Memorial Service celebrating Bob's life was held on Thursday, October 23, 2008 at the Carmel Mission Basilica. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the UCSF Comprehensive Cancer Center (415.476.3952), the Big Sur Land Trust (831.625.5523) or Hospice of Central Coast (831.649.7750).

Coming soon to Sunset Center: Lions and tigers and bears

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE STAGE at Sunset Center has showcased a wide variety of performers since opening in 1931. But it's safe to say it has never presented anything like "Jungle Jack" Hanna's exotic animal show.

America's most famous zookeeper, Hanna and his troupe perform shows at Sunset Center Sunday, Oct. 26.

"I love his television show," said Peter Lesnik, executive director. "I never realized he did a performing arts center version of it, and when I had a chance to book it, I did."

Humorous animal demonstrations on Good Morning America and the David Letterman show in the 1980s brought national attention to Hanna's efforts to turn the Columbus Zoo and Aquarium into a world-class facility. He served as director of the zoo from 1978 to 1993.

Dressed like Indiana Jones in his trademark khaki safari outfit, the goofy zookeeper has hosted a syndicated TV show, "Jack Hanna's Animal Adventures," since 1997.

While nobody is quite sure what specific members of the animal kingdom Hanna will bring to town Sunday, previous animal shows have featured camels, kangaroos, marmosets, lemus, bearcats, zebras and even a baby cougar. When he takes the stage at Sunset Center, Hanna will not only tell stories about his encounters with exotic animals, he'll show video of his global adventures as well.

Lesnik said Hanna's show is perfect for a town that loves animals.

"When I first came to town, I went out to dinner, and the next thing I knew, a bunch of dogs came walking in," Lesnik recalled. "This is critter country."

The shows begin at 1 and 4 p.m. Tickets range from $25 to $35. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For more information, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

Bates fundraiser Sunday at Crespi Hall

TO HELP with his family's living expenses while he is in the hospital, a group called "Friends of Bill" will host a fundraising event for Pine Cone cartoonist Bill Bates at the Carmel Mission's Crespi Hall this weekend.

The event, "Wine, Wit, Wonder," will take place Sunday, Oct. 26, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Bates, whose cartoons have been featured in The Pine Cone since 1972, suffered a heart attack in July. While recovering at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, he contracted a staph infection and has been hospitalized ever since.

Doctors repaired Bates' heart, but the infection has kept him in CHOMP's intensive care unit for nearly four months.

According to Bates' friend, David Loye, the cartoonist's wife, Lei Lei and his daughter, Chelsea need help with basic living expenses.

Although Bates has shown signs of improvement, he still has a long road to recovery, Loye said.

Gallery features political wisdom of Dr. Seuss

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH FILM and pop stars — and even plumbers and hockey moms — weighing in on next month's hotly contested presidential contest, it seems only reasonable that the Cat in the Hat is dispensing political advice.

The Hanson Gallery hosts an opening reception, Saturday, Oct. 25, for a new exhibit, "Dr. Seuss for President," which pays tribute to the political cartoons, views and activism of Ted Geisel. Under the name of Dr. Seuss, he penned and illustrated popular children's books like "The Cat in the Hat," "Green Eggs and Ham" and "Horton Hears a Who." Geisel, who died in 1991, was also the creator of the timeless Christmas classic, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas!"

Before he achieved fame as Dr. Seuss, Geisel was a successful political cartoonist during World War II. Not shy about his liberal views and an outspoken opponent of fascism, he enthusiastically supported the war effort, praising the leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt at every opportunity. His primary targets included Hitler, Mussolini and anyone critical of Roosevelt, which included Congress, the Republican Party and several influential U.S. newspapers.

Geisel's passion for activism had a profound influence on his most popular work, "The Cat in the Hat." In 1954, Life magazine featured a report on illiteracy, concluding that children were having difficulty with reading because the books they were reading were boring. Geisel's publisher challenged him to write a book with only the most important 348 words, and by the time "Cat in the Hat" was finished, the author had whit-

Belly dancing in the market, splurging locally and turkey dinners every week

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE COMBINATION of barbecue and the big screen is a hit, according to Dana Neikirk at Willy's Smokehouse in Monterey. Tony Tollner's newest restaurant and the Peninsula's only IMAX theater are neighbors and have collaborated on a BBQ and a Movie deal to draw weeknight revellers.

For $19.95 for a documentary film such as "Wild Ocean 3D" or "Sea Monsters 3D," or $24.95 for a feature such as "The Dark Knight," diners choose an appetizer (calamari, fritters, clam chowder or a garden salad) and a main course (BBQ chicken, a pork and brisket platter, country-fried steak or the restaurant's renowned spareribs).

A perusal this week revealed great garlicky, creamy Balsamic dressing on the salad, perfectly cooked vegetables alongside moist barbecued chicken garnished with corn salsa, tender brisket and delectable ribs. A rack of four BBQ sauces — well, three and ketchup — provides ample opportunity to manipulate the flavors to your liking. Check out Mojo and Mama's Boy, which are particularly tasty.

Dessert is not included, but considering how much money you save, you might as well commit to the sinfully good Mississippi Black & Tan Mud Pie, a tower of chocolate and coffee ice creams atop a cookie crust and doused in chocolate and caramel sauces. Not for the faint of heart.

And if sitting through a movie after all that might spark spontaneous narcolepsy — or you'd rather see a matinee, since only "The Dark Knight" is showing in the evening — the movie tickets need not be used the same night you dine. Just keep them and show up at the theater whenever the time is right — as long as it's not a Friday or Saturday, the deal's blackout nights.

BBQ and a Movie makes a great gift, too, pointed out Neikirk, whose wife came up with the Dinner and a Movie concept so popular with Tollner's Montrieo restaurant customers. Not only are they fun and convenient, but they don't weigh much, don't take up any space and will not go bad when purchased well in advance.

Willy's Smokehouse — which also offers nightly specials like Meatloaf Mondays, and has fabulous Happy Hour discounts on drinks and appetizers — is located at Prescott and Wave in Monterey, and can be reached at (831) 372-8880 or www.willysmoke.com.

Peninsula will be auctioned during the upcoming Culinary Classique d' Elegance at Spanish Bay in Pebble Beach. But first, the artist and his painting will appear during a public reception Sunday, Oct. 26, from 4 to 6 p.m. at Meals on Wheels headquarters in the Sally Griffin Senior Center, 700 Jewell Ave., Pacific Grove.

Buffet, who has lived and painted all over the world, has earned commissions from numerous notable corporations, and his work even appears on cups, plates, ties, clothing and calendars. He's also a Monterey Bay Area resident and offered his talents to Culinary Classique founding chef Bert Cutino to benefit the group that ensures seniors get healthy, hot meals.

Unique among lavish wining and dining events, the Culinary Classique ensures every sense is satiated. Each of the 23 tables will have its own chef and designer, with the culinarian creating six courses based on a main ingredient chosen by Cutino and inspired by the designer's theme. Each team tries to outdo the others, making for an eye-catching array and an exciting night.

The event, which is a black-tie optional and always sells out, will begin at 4:30 p.m. Nov. 2 with a reception and silent auction, followed by the table viewing at 5:45, live auction at 6 and dinner until around 10. Tickets cost $275 per person. Call (831) 375-4454.

■ She of the belly

The statuesque Jamaica Sinclair and her band of belly dancers will certainly draw the admiring attention of shoppers perusing the Pacific Grove farmers' market Monday, Nov. 3, between 5 and 6 p.m.

The owner of Encore Boutique is an extremely talented dancer who offers weekly lessons to students of varying abilities, and she frequently performs at special events and in restaurants like Amir's Kabob House

Whether you're interested in learning loads of useful information, or simply want to indulge, the Great Wine Escape has much to offer. Seminars will focus on topics like healthy cooking, terroir and Pinot Noir, wine tasting and Riedel stemware. Restaurants and wineries will pair up for more than 20 winemakers' dinners Friday and Saturday, including "the weekend's most elegant event," in which executive chef Cal Stamenov will delight guests in Marinus restaurant at Bernardus Lodge. And participants can take guided "wine country tours" or draft their own itineraries to visit open houses at the wineries.

smoked chicken and game hens, smoked pork chops, thick-cut bacon and a plethora of sausages like Cajun buffalo, cheesy Bavarian, Creole, Andouille and even ostrich, just to name a few.

The market has its own smokehouses to custom-cure meats and fish for customers, and also offers fresh beef, pork and chicken, marinated and unmarinated. But wait — there's more! A nice selection of local wines hard to find elsewhere, interesting foreign foods like Spotted Dick and Turkish Delight, fresh seasonal pies, good chocolate and Sandpiper organic strawberries can be found there, too.

And, as a bonus, the staff is knowledgeable and friendly. Cruise to 569 Corralitos Road at Hames Road, or call (831) 722-2633 for more information.

■ Turkey Thursdays

Wish it were Thanksgiving every Thursday? At Rosine's on Alvarado Street, it is. The restaurant perhaps best known for its towering, over-the-top desserts is offering roasted turkey dinners with mashed potatoes and gravy, bread stuffing, and baked yams with pineapple and brown sugar, as well as soup or salad, for $14.95.

Also check out the seasonal soups, such as chicken apple curry, pumpkin, butternut squash and carrot, and fall-inspired nightly specials like almond-crusted or apple-stuffed pork chops, braised chicken with apples and sage, and butternut squash ravioli with sage brown butter, and roasted leg of lamb with rosemary. Rosine's is open daily for breakfast, lunch, dinner — and dessert. Visit www.rosinesmonterey.com or call (831) 375-1400.

■ Learn what's good for you

Just as it wraps up its fall Epicurean Series, the Scheid Vineyards Wine Lounge on Cannery Row has released its winter schedule of events highlighting local purveyors. The first will be held Thursday, Nov. 13, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., and will feature Deirdre Bascou, owner of Inspired Beauty Body & Soul. Bascou will introduce guests to the nourishing benefits and anti-aging effects of grapeseed — proof it's not just the fruit of the vine that's good for you. For $65 plus tax, attendees will enjoy makeovers with all-natural D'Vine products, appetizers by the Culinary Center of Monterey, wine tasting and a special gift.

Other upcoming sessions will feature holiday shopping opportunities with Annieglass (Nov. 20, 6 to 9 p.m., $20), and "Spice up your Life!" with Culinary Center of Monterey Chef Mary Pagan (Dec. 4, 6 to 8 p.m., $55). The lounge is located at 751 Cannery Row in Monterey. To reserve, email marci@scheidvineyards.com or call (831) 455-9990.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

MICHELE LIEBERT, 5, known as Mick or Mickey to her intimates, has been a Carmel dog only since this spring.

Dad John lost a beloved 14-year-old collie, and to cheer him up, his son Drew of Sacramento insisted he get another collie right away. Drew went on a search and found Michele, a retired show dog, at a breeder.

When Drew brought Michele home to John, they bonded immediately. "Where I am, she is," Dad said when we encountered them on the Scenic Road walking path Wednesday morning.

Now they both go for walks on Mission Trail where Mick, ever so gregarious, enjoys encountering the new friends she's made. Once a week they go to Carmel Beach. Dad has a shepherd whistle which he wears on a leather strap around his neck. He has only to blow into it once to have Mick return to his side.

All in all, Mick is enjoying life to the fullest here in Carmel. At home she has a fenced yard to play in. When brother Drew comes for a visit with his golden retriever, Luke, they play "endlessly" in the garden.

Although semi-retired as an employment law attorney, Dad John goes occasionally to San Francisco or Los Angeles on business. A sitter comes in to keep Mick company while Dad's away, or Drew and Luke come down to fill in.

At night, Mick sleeps in Dad's room in her own bed or crate, sometimes alternating from one to the other. And the only trouble she gets into is when Dad leaves food out on the kitchen counter, too tempting to resist. But then, that's Dad's fault.

bled it down to just 236 words. The book continues to be one of the most popular children's books ever created.

"I grew up in the 1950s and 1960s," explained Jennifer Walker, gallery director. "We were still reading 'See Spot Run' and 'Dick and Jane and Sally.' When Dr. Seuss books came out, they really transformed the whole idea of reading. He brought fun to reading."

Although not always clearly evident, Geisel's children's books were filled with political and social commentary. The exhibit, which will be on display until the end of the year, will feature a mix of artwork, political cartoons and illustrations from his children's books.

The reception starts at 2 p.m. The exhibit will be on display through November. The gallery is located in Suite 110 at Carmel Plaza. For more information, call (831) 625-6142 or visit www.hansongallery.com.

■ Another side of drummer, dancer

As the leader of the Big Sur Natives drum and dance ensemble and the owner of Heartbeat Gift Gallery, Teresa Bradford has long played a leading role in Big Sur's arts and music scene. Bradford unveils a different side of her creativity Saturday, Oct. 25, when the Big Sur River Inn presents an exhibit of her giclee photographs, "Unfolding Works."

"She has an astonishing eye for what is beautiful," said Janet Lesniak, general manager of the Big Sur resort. "Teresa is full of nonstop energy, but her photographs are so peaceful. A sense of calm and inner beauty really shines through."

The exhibit will be on display through the end of the year. The Big Sur River Inn will host a reception from 3 to 7 p.m. Nico Georis will play solo piano. The resort is located on Highway 1 about 24 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 667-2700.

■ Fundraising exhibit, shows

The Pacific Grove Art Center hosts the opening of its annual Patron's Show fundraising exhibit Friday, Oct. 24, offering locals an opportunity to purchase a piece of fine art for a bargain price, and at the same time, support a popular nonprofit arts institution.

"This event is our major fundraiser of the year," said Joan McCleary, director of the art center. "We will display a wonderful variety of acrylics, collage, encaustic, gouache, linocuts, mixed media, needlepoint, oils, pastels, photographs, watercolors and other work."

An impressive selections of mostly local artists donated works for the show, including Johnny Apodaca, Jean Brenner, Peter K. Brooks, Helga Browne-Scarlett, Fred Carvell, Michael Duffy, Gene Elmore, Hauk Fine Arts, Joseph Nordman, Connie Pearlstein, Paul Roeofs and Michael Zambory.

Raffle tickets are $50 for art center members and $65 for non-members. There is a limit of two tickets for each person. The art center will feature a drawing Saturday, Dec. 6.

"Each person who buys a ticket gets a piece of original artwork," McCleary explained. "The first person whose raffle ticket is drawn gets to choose from everything in the gallery."

Also opening at the art center will be shows by painter Gary Coleman ("Landscapes"), the members of the Monterey Bay Metal Arts Guild ("Expressions in Metal") and painter Laura Williams ("Of Land and Sea — The Splendor of California"). The work of studio artists Connie Pearlstein and Julie Brown Smith, and the students of Julie Heilman's children's art classes, will also be on display.

The art center is located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. For more information, call (831) 375-2208 or visit www.pgartcenter.org.

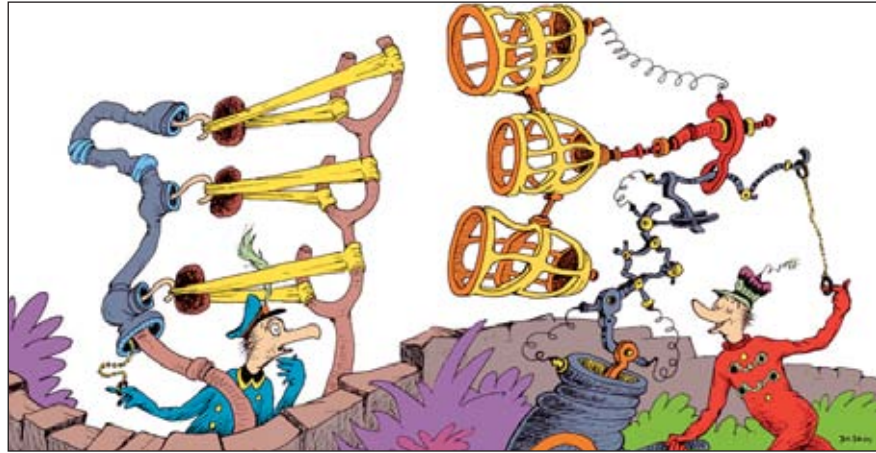

■ Figurative painter offers demonstration

Gallery i Fine Art presents an exhibit Saturday, Oct. 25, by painter Hessam Abrishami, who will offer a demonstration of his work at a reception that begins at 4 p.m.

According to gallery director Rohana LoSchiavo, Abrishami's figurative paintings "sway with the rhythm of life." Popular themes include love, music, food and joy.

"It will be a thrill for people to watch him painting in the gallery on Saturday," LoSchiavo suggested.

The exhibit will be on display until Nov. 30. The gallery is located at the southwest corner of Ocean and Mission. For more information, call (831) 626-1617 or www.galleryifineart.com.

Date: November 21, 2008
Time: 10:00 a.m.
Dept.: 17
Room: Probate L&M

California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. DOORS would have to ask the DRB for permission to use them.

"Nobody questioned us how the doors were going to work. The building inspector signed off on them as doors, not as doors and side lights," he said. "I knew they were larger than normal doors. That's why we applied for the design, and had there been any questions, we would have modified the design accordingly."

Whyte said he designed the doors so they could be opened wide to allow passersby to see him working in his sculpture studio toward the back of the gallery, as well as for moving large pieces in and out. He said they're placed at their full width two days a week for four or five hours.

Love the doors, hate the doors

Several speakers defended Whyte's gallery and said the work he did on the building adds to the ambiance and character of Carmel. They also pointed out the city benefits when artists work in their stores.

"This is exactly what Carmel wants and needs," commented longtime resident Wies Norberg. "We always wanted working artists and their galleries."

She contrasted Whyte with sculptor Richard MacDonald, who recently opened a large gallery — which she likened to a palace — and has sold his pieces at several places in town for years but does not sculpt here.

Ted Balestreri, son of the prolific landowner, said Carmel should be grateful to have Whyte, whom he wished had remained on Cannery Row.

Another tenant in the complex that includes the gallery complimented the improvements Whyte made to the "ugly building," and he accused the door opponents of picking on him. Ocean Avenue, he added, is more mall-like than the Dolores Street art gallery.

Susan Lukowski argued it would be unfair to restrict the door.

"It was approved, and now you're asking him to change it because of a mistake made by the city," she said.

But several residents said the large opening on Dolores reminds them of stores in shopping malls.

"When we were walking through town, I saw that and thought, 'What happened to that building?'" Carmel Residents Association member Linda Anderson said. When the doors are open, "the front of that building is gone."

She advocated not just restricting Whyte's use of them, but permanently fixing them so they could never be opened wide.

CRA member Monte Miller said the design guidelines should be followed, and if city officials decide they want larger doors, they should change the rules to match.

"Of course all business owners would like the front of their businesses to be wide open," commented former city councilwoman Barbara Livingston. "I call those doors

'bazaar doors.' They're very inappropriate." Businesses should only have single doors, preferably Dutch doors, she said, to match the traditional look of Carmel.

Majority favors flexibility

"It's very rare I disagree with Barbara Livingston, who has done so much for our city over the years," said board member Michael Lynch.

But it's not as if the gallery's entire front is open, and then sealed with a Bronx shield at night, he pointed out. "The design of the doors themselves is very nice."

If the city required all downtown doors to be 36 inches wide and Dutch in style, "that's even worse," than allowing some flexibility in design, board member Jonathan Sapp said.

Chairman Keith Paterson also sided with Whyte (and his famous English bulldog, Lord Wellington), but DRB member Michael LePage did not.

"I'm really surprised how much response there was to this," he said. "And I appreciate everyone's points of view, but we are the design review board, and we enforce the design guidelines, which are very specific about the size of the door. This door wouldn't have been approved."

He made a motion to forbid Whyte from using the full width of the doors, but the motion died for lack of a second. The board then voted 4-1 to allow Whyte's use of the doors as he designed them — a vote that drew applause from many in the audience.

on the premise she knew driving under the influence was dangerous but did it anyway.

During court proceedings, questions arose regarding her mental competency, and Monterey psychiatrist Taylor Fithian was asked to evaluate her. He found she was unable to stand trial but may be able to in the future with proper medication. At an Oct. 1 hearing during which his report was discussed, Grover decided another court-selected expert should examine King.

Deborah King

On Oct. 22, she received a report from psychologist Elaine Finnberg, who determined King is taking proper medication and able to understand the criminal proceedings against her.

"Rather than having a split decision and having a trial on the subject, perhaps Dr. Fithian could take a further look," suggested Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Steve Somers. "His followup report is dated Oct. 3, and I think a lot has happened in the last three weeks."

But King's attorney, Joy McMurtry, said her client preferred a third evaluation by a new doctor.

"My client would like an independent evaluator," she said. "She sees Dr. Fithian and Dr. Finnberg fairly often, and with a split decision, I'm uncomfortable with Dr. Fithian going back again." (When ordered by the court, the $325 to $500 experts receive for the evaluations is provided by taxpayers.)

Grover opted for trying to resolve the differences in opinion between the two before calling for a third expert. She added, "My opinion is Ms. King does appear to be more engaged in our proceedings," than she was during past court appearances.

If Fithian still disagrees after completing his investigation, Grover said she would consider McMurtry's request.

"Criminal proceedings remain suspended," she said. "I would like to come back on Nov. 7 at 8:30 a.m. for receipt of Dr. Fithian's updated report and further proceedings under 1368."

The "1368" to which she referred is the California Penal Code section ensuring no mentally incompetent defendant is forced to stand trial.

REVISED

posed," Carl said.

In addition to the golf course, the original plan included 33 luxury homes, 160 new hotel rooms, expansion of the Inn at Spanish Bay, 60 new employee housing units and the relocation of the equestrian center to the Sawmill Gulch area.

Ever since coastal commissioners rejected the plan at a meeting in Santa Rosa in June 2007, representatives from the Pebble Beach Co. and Monterey County have been meeting infrequently with coastal commission staff to try to agree on a plan.

Carl said the discussions have included "pursuing all sorts of options, including avoiding the areas that are biologically sensitive."

"I think it's been a good back and forth about what their needs are ... their bottom line, money kinds of needs, and the areas that are sensitive and they need to avoid," he said.

The parties last met six weeks ago and are expected to meet again in mid-November. Besides Carl, coastal commission deputy director Charles Lester has been present at the meetings.

The plan, as first drawn up, would have provided long-term protection for the most vital parts of the native Monterey pine forest by limiting future development far beyond what the coastal commission envisioned in the 1980s.

But environmental groups, including the Sierra Club, contended the development would impact dozens of sensitive plant and animal species.

The Pebble Beach Co. and others have long argued that Monterey pines, which number in the millions in Monterey County, are not environmentally sensitive habitat.

The broad outlines of the original plan were approved by voters in 2000, when they agreed to amendments to the county's general plan.

But the coastal commission also rejected those plan amendments.

Whatever plan is finally agreed upon, the Pebble Beach Co. may still need to amend the general plan to allow the development.

"At a very basic level," Carl said, "that has to be changed for them to pursue anything they want to pursue."

Yes on Z

WITH the trillion-dollar federal budget, the $160 billion state budget, plus county and local budgets of tens of millions more, does the government have enough money to keep our roads in tip-top shape? The answer is a big fat yes, but somehow the public servants in Washington, Sacramento and Salinas manage to find other things to spend the colossal treasure on. That's why voters sometimes have to take matters in their own hands by specifying where they want their hard-earned tax dollars to go.

Measure Z will increase local sales taxes by one-half percent for 25 years, with the money going to some badly needed Monterey County road projects. If you've ever tried to drive to Santa Cruz or Prunedale on a busy weekend, or use Lighthouse Avenue in New Monterey at 4:30 on a weekday afternoon, you know what we're talking about.

Any new tax needs to be considered very carefully. We think Measure Z passes the test — especially because, unlike most other taxes, when you pay it, you'll know what it's being used for.

Yes on 1A

While we're on the subject of transportation, we'd also like to ask our readers to support a state ballot measure that would authorize (and pay for) a high-speed rail line connecting Sacramento and San Francisco to Southern California. The closest station to the Monterey Peninsula would be Gilroy, so it's not something that would be an everyday solution to traffic congestion in Monterey County or that would make it easier for tourists to pay us a visit. But the benefit to the entire state would be enormous. Many other countries have reaped the benefits of high-speed, intercity rail service. It's time for California to join the list.

Yes on 11

There could be nothing more beneficial for state government than taking redistricting out of the hands of the politicians who benefit from creating safe seats for themselves. With its widespread support, it seems impossible for Proposition 11 not to pass. But don't take it for granted.

Yes on 4

It is patently absurd for a teenager to be able to get an abortion without her parents' knowledge. Proposition 4 does not require parental consent, and also gives teenagers from abusive homes a way around the parental notification requirement. But it is simply unacceptable for parents not to be informed when a doctor is about to perform a major medical procedure — with potentially life-altering, if not life-threatening, consequences — on their daughter.

BEST OF BATES

"I hear they wind them up for the weekend."

Letters to the Editor

The Pine Cone encourages submission of letters which address issues of public importance. Letters cannot exceed 350 words, and must include the author's name, telephone number and street address.

The courts' role

Dear Editor,
While I agree with the Pine Cone's editorial urging a no vote on Proposition 8, I was disappointed at the faulty reasoning shown in the editorial. The editorial suggested that the state supreme court should not have decided same-sex marriage was a fundamental right because, only a few years before, the voters voted against it.
In fact, the state supreme court did exactly what the founders of our country would have wanted by assuring that everyone is "equal before the law" — as both the state and U.S. constitutions require.
In their ingenious way, the founders created a "checks and balances" system so that, among other things, a minority's rights could not be voted away by the majority.
For those who have always been able to marry, allowing same-sex couples the same right doesn't diminish yours one iota. Even if Proposition 8 is defeated, churches will not have to perform same-sex marriages. But, let's remember that, unlike a religious community that we can either join or not, government is for all people and therefore government has a special obligation to treat people the same.

Let's not be the first to place discrimination in the constitution. Let us recognize, as your editorial did, that we have moved a long way culturally, and that we should vote no on Proposition 8.
Renee Franken, Monterey

The best for airport board

Dear Editor,
As the current Chairman of the Board for the Monterey Peninsula Airport District Board of Directors, I believe that my fellow board members (Bill Sabo, Mary Ann Leffel and Dick Searle) are the best qualified candidates for the Monterey Peninsula Airport District in the upcoming election.
As everyone is aware, these are very difficult economic times. It is in all of our best interests for the airport to continue to remain financially self-sustaining and free from local tax support while at the same time focusing on retaining and enhancing air service to our community (Seattle, Portland and San Diego) as well as being sensitive to the needs of the local residents and their concerns over issues such as air traffic operations, safety and noise.
Please join me and cast your votes for Bill Sabo, Mary Ann Leffel and Dick Searle for the Board of Directors for the Monterey Peninsula Airport District.

The Carmel Pine Cone was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 34750.

36 years later, local duo takes the stage

MANY FOLKS in Carmel know Jon Zobler as the founder of Cornucopia Natural Foods. Yet few realize the longtime Palo Colorado Canyon resident came here not to open a health food store, but to play music.

The Langford Zobler Band will perform at the Planet Ultra Lounge Saturday, Oct. 25, proving it's never too late to pursue your rock 'n' roll dreams.

A native of New Jersey, Zobler came to California in 1972 to play guitar and sing with Bob Langford, who was living in Carmel Valley at the time. While he had never met Langford, Zobler had high hopes and made the cross-country journey. His enthusiasm was understandable — a neighbor he once played with, a singer and guitarist named Bruce Springsteen, had previously made the trip to California to tour with his band and things had turned out pretty well for him.

In California, Langford and Zobler hit it off, and soon they were performing at several long-forgotten venues on the outskirts of Carmel. Curiously, one of their favorite venues was Latitude 36, which was located in the same space where Cornucopia resides. They also played at a place called The Buckeye, which was located where the Carmel Valley Library is.

For more than a decade, the duo performed regularly on the Monterey Peninsula, carving out a niche in the local music scene. Eventually, though, music took a backseat to other professional goals and responsibilities. Zobler started Cornucopia in 1977, while Langford pursued a career as a truck driver with Dreyer's Ice Cream and Orowheat bread. But the idea of the duo performing again was never very far away.

"We've been friends forever," Langford explained. "We work really well together."

So what does the Langford Zobler Band sound like?

"If you took the Eagles, Hall and Oates, Little Feat, Boz Skaggs and Steely Dan and put them in a blender, that's what comes out," Langford said.

Langford and Zobler place a particular focus on vocal harmonies. "The emphasis is on singing," Zobler added. "That's what we do best."

Tickets are $26.95 with dinner and $10 without dinner. Dinner starts at 6 p.m., and the show will follow. Comedian Todd Paul will open for the band. The Planet Ultra Lounge is located at 2110 N. Fremont St. in Monterey. For more information, call (831) 373-1449.

The swing era comes alive again in C.V.

IT'S BEEN six decades since the heyday of big band music, yet the sounds of the swing era — made famous by bandleaders like Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey — are still popular in the 21st century.

Hidden Valley theater hosts the annual Elder Hostel Big Band Diner and dance Friday, Oct. 24, recreating an era when jazz was the most popular music in America.

"We've been doing this for 15 years," explained director Peter Meckel. "It's great fun."

A turkey and roast beef dinner starts at 6:30 p.m., and the music begins at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $35. The theater is located at 88 W. Carmel Valley Road. For more information, call (831) 659-3115.

COLDWELL BANKER
DEL MONTE

Tim Allen
presents
Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

Everybody knows that Del Monte is the oldest golf course west of the Mississippi, actually dating from 1897. But can you guess the second oldest in this area? Pebble Beach? Cypress Point? No, that honor belongs to the CARMEL GOLF CLUB, a nine hole links measuring 2112 yards, spread over the dunes of Carmel Point. Its club house stood on a rise at what is now 14th Ave, and San Antonio, and it is still there! It's a small, shingled building, now used as a guest house by descendants of the founders, Philip and Laura Wilson. The course was opened a hole at a time in 1912, and the first official meeting was held Nov. 20 of that year at the Pine Inn. Memberships were $20 a year, green fees 50¢ a day. The land was owned by the Carmel Development Company, which assured the Club by written contract that it "would not be sold in lots or otherwise till after the year 1915." Among the members was Dr. Clappett, which brings us up to date. The Club expired around 1920, and today nearly 300 houses stand on its abandoned fairways. Think what might have been!
