Service animals for the disabled:

Should horses, pigs and iguanas be included?

By KELLY NIX

LAST WEEK the New York Times reported a national trend of disabled people replacing service dogs with more exotic animals — such as monkeys, parrots and small horses.

And you don't have to go far to find an example. One resident of Pacific Grove uses a miniature horse for stability as she moves around her home. The horse is often seen being walked around a neighborhood not far from the beach.

According to the Guide Horse Foundation, miniature horses make good service animals because "they demonstrate excellent judgment and are not easily distracted by crowds and people."

But there is a growing debate over whether unconventional service animals such as monkeys and pigs should be allowed to cozy up to people in restaurants,

Gang members drawn to quiet P.G.

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

MORE GANG members are taking up residence in Pacific Grove, according to detective Adam Sepagan, who arrested one of them Jan. 14 for drug offenses and probation violation — specifically, possessing "gang indicia" such as clothing indicating his Sureño affiliation.

"They're moving into town," he said, citing the area of Arkwright Court, where apartments are abundant and cheap. "Unless they do something wrong and we catch them, we can't ask them not to live here. We'd like to."

It's mostly Hispanic gangs, according to Sepagan, and while Norteños were predominant for a while, more Sureños are arriving as of late.

Their taking up residence in "America's Last Hometown" marks a change from the past, when Pacific Grove was considered neutral territory for Monterey County's prolific gangs.

"For the longest time, those people didn't come to P.G., because they didn't want to get caught for something like a taillight," and then be found driving a stolen car or having an outstanding warrant, Sepagan said. "But as things are getting worse throughout the county, sometimes they come here because they want to get away from the violence and everything."

And even if they come to Pacific Grove to get away from violence, they commit crimes once they're in town.

"Anytime you've got active gang members, it's all funded by drugs, guns and crime," Sepagan said.

That means Pacific Grove residents need to be more vigilant in protecting themselves, particularly from mail theft, which can lead to identity theft. Gangs have discovered how lucrative it can be to swipe people's personal information from their unlocked mailboxes and then sell it to criminals who use it to steal victims' identities and money.

"There are a lot of unsecured mailboxes," Sepagan said.

Revised law spells setback for Carmel Inn plans

By MARY BROWNFIELD

BEFORE OWNER Ron Chaplan and business partner Nader Agha could celebrate winning planning commission approval last week to reopen the long-vacant Carmel Inn for Seniors for senior housing and a restaurant, their victory was wiped away with the addition of a small clause in a revised state law. The planning commission's Jan. 14 approval of the pair's use permit to run a boarding house for elderly residents and operate a restaurant open to the public relied on two concessions given for their providing affordable housing, but planning and building services manager Sean Conroy said the new state code covering such concessions voids the commission's approval and sends Chaplan and Agha back to the drawing board.

The duo first presented the housing-and-restaurant concept to commissioners last November and received general support for the idea. Agha returned Jan. 14 with a firm request for a use permit to operate rental units for the elderly and a commercial restaurant on San Carlos Street. Agha said the existing building would remain — rather than being demolished to make way for the nine condos approved by the city in 2006 — and contain 24 units and a 56-seat restaurant that would help make the project financially feasible. The dining establishment would serve the residents and the public. Although the zoning does not permit a restaurant on the property, Agha and Chaplan requested it as a concession in exchange for providing two affordable units.

At the meeting, Conroy said his reading of the state code

Long wait ends in arrest for liquor theft

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A 19-YEAR-OLD man staying at a friend's home in Pebble Beach was no doubt surprised to see police approaching his front door Jan. 12 with an arrest warrant for burglary. He had to figure the liquor he's suspected of stealing last summer had long been forgotten. But it hadn't.

According to PGPD detective Adam Sepagan, Patrick James Ayers stole liquor from the Pacific Grove Safeway on June 19, 2008.

"One of the Safeway employees saw him as he was leaving, and we just happened to have an officer who was there in the parking lot," Sepagan said. But when the cop approached the suspected burglar, "the guy took off running, jumped a fence, ditched one of the bottles and got away."

The suspect escaped, but the officer recovered the bottle of hard alcohol the man dropped, and police managed to lift some fingerprints from its surface, according to Sepagan.

"We submitted the prints to the Monterey County crime lab, they were able to find a match, and we were able to get

Extras needed as movie begins production Tuesday

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CARMEL Mission will be awash in equipment and busy crew members Tuesday, the first day of a month of filming for "Carmel the Movie," a feature film produced and directed by local Lawrence Roeck about international art forgery and the town's deep artistic roots. The story centers around a 15-year-old art prodigy who is abandoned by his mother in a local hotel and ends up fabricating major works of art.

Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana is helping coordinate street closures in town for the filming and asked that inconvenienced people be patient.

C.V. HOMEOWNERS GROUP LAUNCHES LEGAL WAR WITH ITSELF

By CHRIS COUNTS

A MEETING of the Los Tulares Homeowners Association last month nearly erupted into fisticuffs — resulting in a visit from a Monterey County Sheriff's deputy.

Underlying the incident is a long-standing dispute within the homeowner's group that has now escalated into a lawsuit and allegations of misuse of the association's money.

The dispute occurred Dec. 2, 2008, at the Carmel Valley Community Center. While nobody present agreed to be interviewed about what happened, a report compiled by homeowners association member Oliver Ray provides a few details.

Grand jury criticizes government response to 2008 storms

■ Carmel's new plan already in place

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AS THE Monterey County Civil Grand Jury weighed in last week on four Peninsula communities' abilities to deal with the raging storms of a year ago, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea had already taken steps to mitigate many of its concerns. Last month, the city council adopted the new Carmel Emergency Operations Plan outlining how to better care for people during disasters.

Much of it seems to address the issues laid out in the grand jury report that examined emergency preparedness and response during the Jan. 4, 2008, storms when very heavy rains caused flooding, hurricane-force winds toppled trees and downed power lines, and people all over the Peninsula were left without electricity, many for several days.

Carmel's emergency operations center responded to more than 60 storm-related calls, Monterey Fire answered an equal number, P.G. Fire fielded 70, and P.B. Fire handled about 60. Amid all that activity, the various EOCs were plagued with moderate equipment failures, according to the report. The grand jury recommended all jurisdictions routinely test their emergency equipment, especially upon receiving notice of an impending major event, and that they hold routine training, including EOC activation drills.

Most of the trouble last winter came after the storm, according to officials who told the grand jury "power outages and poor communication with Pacific Gas and Electric Company frustrated emergency response workers in their efforts to locate and safeguard people who might need help."

Overworked fire crews were stuck baby-sitting live power lines as they waited for PG&E crews with unclear or non-existent arrival times, and no one working for the utility "seemed to have the authority to prioritize PG&E work or to coordinate efforts with emergency response agencies," according to the grand jury.

Since then, county officials have tried to develop a more effective means of dealing with PG&E, but to little avail. The jury recommended the county board of supervisors appoint an individual or group to help develop a better way for emergency services and the utility company to communicate and coordinate during major incidents.

Jurors also scrutinized the communities' efforts to reach

Images sought: Ansel Adams, possibly the best known photographer in the world, died in Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula in 1984 at the age of 82. But his unique photos still sell well as prints, posters, books, calendars and cards. One of the more than 30,000 prints Adams made himself sold for $609,000 during a 2006 auction in New York. And just three months ago, a new visitors' center at a national park in New Mexico opened with a roomful of photos Adams took there in the 1940s. Born and raised in San Francisco in 1902, Adams was a concert pianist until he was 28, when he decided to devote himself to his photography. He went into it with zeal and lived for years in Yosemite, then moved to Carmel in 1962. Adams had to support his art and his family with commercial photography, portraits, teaching and editing for 40 years until the 1970s, when he was able to make a living solely from his famous images. Teacher hopes Haiti hero will inspire Carmel High kids

■ First ever school-wide community service effort planned

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AARON JACKSON is a young Floridian who reminds Carmel High School teacher Therese Strutner of some of her own students: He grew up in a well-off family, played golf almost every day and was comfortably unaware of much of the world's poverty and ills.

But during a trip to Central America and the Caribbean in his early 20s, Jackson's eyes were opened to real human suffering, and it changed his life. He left home for Haiti, where he has spent the past several years building orphanages and helping to curb the intestinal parasites that plague millions of impoverished children living in filthy conditions.

In a 2007 "CNN Hero" profile that captivated Strutner, Jackson told viewers it's his goal "to de-worm the entire world." For the price of a pack of cigarettes, he said, a school of 250 kids can be treated for worms, which are spread through contaminated water, undercooked meats and other unsanitary conditions.

Strutner seized on Jackson and his story as a means of inspiring her students, who must do community service in order to graduate.

"At the end of every school year, kids are scrambling to get community service hours," said Strutner. "If I'm a teacher looking for a model of what our students could do, what Jackson is doing is the best."

His orphanages in Haiti have helped free kids from slavery and the sex trade, according to Strutner, and his medical work has saved many, many lives.

"This year, 5 million people are going to be de-wormed by his program," she said. "It's incredible to see what a person can do without a big, cumbersome organization."

She emailed Jackson to see if he could come share his story with Carmel High students, and he said he would. The Padre Parents Club is paying for his flight from Haiti, and Jackson is set to speak at the school Monday morning.

"We've had speakers, and kids responded by wanting to do something, but we didn't have anything organized," she said.

To ensure that's not the case this time around, work is already under way on a school-wide effort that will fea-

GETTING A LITTLE BLUE IN THE TOOTH

Bluetooth technology, which enables devices such as cell phones and laptops to connect without wires, is playing an increasingly important role in automobiles. As new laws require drivers to keep their hands on the wheel and not their cell phones, car manufacturers are incorporating Bluetooth controls in their vehicles, which enable drivers to make and receive phone calls while maintaining their grip on the wheel. The second most popular use of the technology involves using a mobile phone or MP3 player to stream music through the vehicle's stereo system. In the future, there is likely to be Bluetooth video streaming into backseat entertainment units. Buyers who value this technology should opt for factory-installed units.

This column on Bluetooth technology is brought to you by our entire staff. We take customer service very seriously, always treating your vehicle with the utmost care because we know how much you and your passengers rely on your vehicle. We appreciate your business, and provide personal service to each and every customer. We are located at the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in Downtown Monterey.

HINT: As with most cutting-edge technology, Bluetooth was first introduced into luxury automobiles, but is now available in more affordable models.

The Art of CARPETING & DECOR

with Dan Jones

TEXTURED CARPETING

One of the biggest new trends in wall-to-wall carpeting involves texture. While Saxtonies have long enjoyed popularity for their traditional appearance, increasing numbers of homeowners are looking to carpeting that offers a little more durability and personality. With this in mind, many are choosing frieze textures (a shorter version of the shag with extra twist), as well as carpeting that offers a subtle pattern effect. Geometric shapes and nature-influenced florals and leaves are also popular. These patterns are tufted into the carpet by using variable pile heights of cut and loop tufting technology. In addition, ultra-soft carpeting is gaining in popularity. Ultra-fine fibers lend these ultra-soft carpets a luxurious feel and unique luster.

At CARPETS & FLOORS, INC., our approach to interior design and décor is to bring harmony into a room and create an environment that is comfortable for all who are in it. The next time you need help choosing among contemporary carpeting's patterns and textures, are looking for a floor treatment for a hard to decorate room, or are updating the floor decor in your entire house, we have the confidence you'll need to achieve the results you want. It's always fun to visit with us! Or call for an in-home consultation. We accept Visa, MasterCard, and Amex.

HINT: Aside from a new focus on texture, there is interest in a more sophisticated color palette in broadloom carpeting.

Dan Jones is the President of Carpets & Floors, Inc., located at 471 Lighthouse Ave. (between Drake and McClellan) here in Monterey. Ph: 372-2300.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 4

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Three weapons were turned in to the Carmel Police Department on June 23, 1996. The weapons were stored in the Carmel Police Department firing range. Weapons turned in to property for destruction.

Carmel Valley: A 51-year-old female suspect was found to be under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs while operating a motor vehicle on West Carmel Valley Road.

Big Sur: Employees of a Big Sur hotel found one of their occupants, a 56-year-old female, deceased in her room.

MONDAY, JANUARY 5

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 2032 hours, fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a Carmelo Street residence on an EMS call. This was a domestic incident.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a Junipero residence on a service call. Crews assisted a physically disabled individual; resident denied any injuries.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a non-injury accident on Lincoln south of Ocean.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported past-tense observations of frequently seeing dogs unattended on Carmel Beach. The citizen believes surfers are leaving their dogs on the beach while they are in the water. Close patrols will be conducted.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a non-injury accident on Dolores and Seventh.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Victim called and stated that she was not receiving assistance from a local bank officials with regards to various discrepancies related to her business checking account. The female claimed that there were various charges which were not valid and was seeking reimbursement. She was counseled with regards to the situation. The female will be conducting followup with a member of the bank's corporate division for further assistance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen was contacted on Mission at Seventh and was found to be driving a vehicle with false tabs affixed to the license plate. The citizen admitted he had taken the valid tags from his scooter and had placed them on his SUV.

Carmel Valley: Report of the theft of a jewelry box from a Carmel Valley Road residence where contractor employees were working. No specific suspects. Case continues.

Pebble Beach: At 1215 hours, a homemade oversized firecracker was discovered in a residential mailbox off of Middle Ranch Road. Instead of exploding inside of the metal mailbox, it simply vented its contents through the open end of the cylindrical container. The flame produced by the burning gases left black carbon marking on the inside of the mailbox door. This was believed to have been a random juvenile prank.

Carmel area: A subject on Carmel Rancho Boulevard reported that a client of hers was acting suspicious.

Worried about mudslides? Weather radios offer warning system

Ironically, fire danger returns to Big Sur

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE THE California Department of Transportation is working overtime to reduce the threat of erosion in Big Sur, a meteorologist has a piece of advice for residents worried about mudslides and flash floods.

"Get a weather radio," said Tom Evans of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Monterey office.

With its hillsides stripped bare of erosion-controlling vegetation as a result of recent wildfires, officials are warning Big Sur residents to prepare for mudslides and flash floods in the event of wet weather.

While a simple electronic device can't stop an onrushing wall of mud or water, it can potentially warn residents of an impending disaster.

"It works like a smoke detector," Evans explained. "It makes a loud noise as a warning."

Just last week, NOAA announced the installation of a transmitter at the Post Ranch. From its strategic location, the transmitter will allow the federal agency to communicate emergency bulletins.

"We were very fortunate to get permission," Evans said. "They have a nice hill up there for getting information out."

Because of Big Sur's uneven terrain, some residents will be unable to receive the transmitter's messages. But many, particularly those living atop ridges, will now be able to get an emergency warning.

An optional antenna is available to improve reception. And while the radios are powered by electricity, they can also run for two days on a pair of AA batteries.

For anyone interested in buying a weather radio, Peninsula Communications in Salinas is offering First Alert model WX-200 weather radios at cost, $45.60. Or email Dick Ravich at bigsursat@sprynet.com to place an order.

While residents are being warned to prepare for mudslides, fire season season returned to Big Sur in the middle of January, thanks to last week's hot, dry weather. It turns out that the Basin Complex Fire, which ignited seven months ago and was fully contained July 27, is still burning.

The Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade received a report of smoke in the upper reaches of Partington Canyon. The fire was in a location which heavily burned last summer, but a small amount of fuel apparently remained.

Assistant fire chief Martha Karstens said that fire was one of three flare-ups reported in Big Sur last week.

"I don't think anybody anticipated such hot weather," Karstens said. "On Partington Ridge, it was in the 90s."

Firefighters know that embers can survive — deep inside a tree, for example — many months after a fire is officially out, and when hot, dry weather returns, the fire can suddenly break out again.

Fire danger is still serious

While there is nothing residents can do to change the weather, there's a lot they can do to make their homes safer from wildfires. Karstens said this is the perfect time to clear brush around residences, especially in neighborhoods west of Highway 1, which last summer's fires didn't reach.

"Clear, clear, clear," she suggested.

While it may have felt like fire season outside, technically it wasn't. Much of Los Padres National Forest is closed as a result of fire damage, and a temporary ban on fires exists at Pfeiffer Beach. But visitors can still make campfires or use portable barbecues at several campgrounds and picnic areas, including Plaskett Creek and Kirk Creek campgrounds, and Sand Dollar Beach, Mill Creek and Willow Creek day use areas. And south of Prewitt Ridge, the backcountry is still open to hikers, who are allowed to start campfires where designated fire rings exist.

If not enough rain falls soon, it's quite possible the U.S. Forest Service will tighten fire restrictions. "We've had some internal discussions," said Mike Kremke, division chief of the Monterey ranger district. "It's starting to become a concern for us."

"You can be who you are at Canterbury Woods."

Ryan Ranch moratorium may become permanent

By KELLY NIX

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL of the Monterey Peninsula wants to build more than 100,000 square feet of offices and medical facilities in Ryan Ranch it says would benefit its patients.

But CHOMP's plans and other new development at Ryan Ranch could be stymied indefinitely if the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District imposes a building moratorium it imposed on an interim basis last fall.

In a hearing Wednesday to determine if the moratorium should continue, MPWMD's general manager, Darby Fuerst, said Cal Am doesn't have enough water to meet current demand, much less for new buildings.

In fact, the water district wants Cal Am to supply less water to Ryan Ranch than it has been pumping.

"We are saying the production limits should be set at 72 acre feet a year," he said "which is less than what Cal Am supplied last year."

Officially, Cal Am's supply limit in Ryan Ranch is 175 acre feet to 190 connections. But Fuerst said the limit should be reduced at the business park because the aquifer beneath the office park is being overdrawn.

At the hearing, held at the MPMWD offices, Fuerst said Cal Am delivered 82 acre feet of water last year but used an "emergency" connection to pump some of the water from the Carmel River.

That, he said, was a violation of Cal Am's agreement with the MPWMD, since Cal Am's Ryan Ranch system is supposed to be independent of other systems. Cal Am annexed the Ryan Ranch system in 1989.

But Cal Am contends the system should be treated as one and that it should be able to use the Carmel River — the Peninsula's main water source — to supplement the Ryan Ranch supply.

"We are under our pumping limits in the Seaside Basin and the Carmel River, and the systems are interconnected," said Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Bowie.

"So we think the systems should be treated as a whole."

Development halted

Meanwhile, CHOMP and another hospital will not be able proceed with building plans until the moratorium is lifted.

The hospital bought 21 acres for the planned development five years ago and has already built about 88,000 square feet of offices.

"Completion of the development is integral to our ability to fulfill our mission to meet the healthcare needs of the Peninsula," said CHOMP spokeswoman Brenda Moore. "A moratorium would jeopardize that and also have significant adverse and unforeseen economic consequences for the hospital."

"The district and I support the hospital," Fuerst said. "We are doing this to see if we can work out a way so Cal Am increases their production capacity so they have a reliable supply when it is built."

Salinas Valley Memorial Healthcare System also has plans to expand its facilities in Ryan Ranch.

Attorney Sheri Damon, who represents Ryan Court Investors, LLC and another company that have offices being built in Ryan Ranch, said she's concerned the district could put limits on her clients' water use if the moratorium continues.

"This is a business park," Damon said, "and the last thing we want to do now is make it even more difficult for businesses to do business."

But MPWMD directors Dave Potter and Bob Brower were hopeful the matter could be resolved.

"We are good at setting rules and regulations," Potter said, "But I'm solution oriented. It seems we could come up with rational, implementable solutions to get us out of this legal quagmire."

The hearing is set to continue Feb. 18 at 8:30 a.m. at the MPWMD offices at 5 Harris Court, Building G.

Jean Booth Mitchell

September 30, 1917 to January 19, 2009

Carmel-by-the-Sea, CA—Jean Mitchell, 91, passed away at her home in Carmel on January 19, 2009. Jean was born in 1917 in Oakland, CA to George Wilford Booth and Jean Samson Booth. She was predeceased by her siblings, Hallie Maurine Booth and Bill Booth, Jr.

Jean grew up in Piedmont, attended Havens School, Piedmont High School, and the University of California at Berkeley, where she was a Delta Gamma, and where she met the love of her life, William F. (Bill) Mitchell of San Francisco. Jean and Bill were married in the garden of the Piedmont Community Church in 1940. After WWII they bought a home in Piedmont, in which they raised their family. In Piedmont Jean was active in anything involving her children and everything pertaining to gardens and the environment, namely the Piedmont Garden Club and the Piedmont Beautification Foundation. Jean was an avid gardener, conservationist and garden lover.

In 1975, the Mitchells moved to Carmel, where Jean's side of the family had resided since the twenties. They opened a small real estate office in the El Paseo Building and called it "The Mitchell Group". In real estate sales, Jean found her true calling. She was dynamic, convincing and indefatigable. Her enthusiasm was infectious and her successes legendary.

In the late seventies, Jean and some other ladies who belonged to Garden Club of America clubs elsewhere, combined their talents and founded the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club. Jean was the first president. Among a multitude of achievements over the years, Jean was most proud of the Club's campaign to "save" Piccadilly Park, a little oasis in downtown Carmel.

In her later years, Jean continued to tend to her cottage garden at the Mitchells' home called "Cobweb" on Casanova. She is renowned not only for her garden (one of the first to be featured on the Garden Club of America's website at the Smithsonian), but also for her topiaries.

Jean was preceded in death by her husband Bill after 64 years of marriage. She is survived by three children, three granddaughters, and six great grandchildren. They are: Bill and Vicki Mitchell of Pebble Beach and their daughters Sheri Mitchell of San Francisco and Shelly and Dan Lynch of Carmel; John and Karen Mitchell of St. Helena and daughter Sarah and Chris Hansen of Napa; and Hallie Mitchell Dow and Brad Dow of Carmel. Arrangements by Paul Mortuary. A family service will be held, and a celebration of Jean's life will take place at a later date. Memorial contributions may be made to the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club Founders Endowment Fund, P.O. Box 1972, Carmel, CA 93921. This fund was created to honor the founders of the club, and to maintain the public gardens in Carmel in perpetuity.

MEN'S DEMENTIA-AVOIDANCE ADVANTAGE?

While women have a better chance than men of living to 90, men of that age may be more likely to avoid dementia than their 90-year-old female counterparts. According to a recent study of male and female retirement community residents who were aged 90 and older, signs of senility were found in 45% of women and 28% of men. Dementia, commonly known as senility, refers to the mental confusion that can strike the elderly. While Alzheimer's disease, stroke, and brain injuries can lead to the condition, its cause is often unknown. Because the population is rapidly aging, and individuals are living longer, experts want to know everything they can about dementia. This is one more bit of information.

Once a diagnosis of dementia has been made, a family has to learn ways of coping. The most important thing a family dealing with dementia can do is remain supportive of each other. At times, emotions may be volatile, but understanding about the disease and its symptoms goes a long way toward alleviating the fear and anger that often accompanies a diagnosis. If you have a loved one who needs specialized care, please call VICTORIAN HOME CARE. Our mission and promise to our clients is simple—to provide the best care possible, as many hours as we are needed. We handpick and hire only the most dedicated and qualified caregivers.

P.S. People who have more education and more intellectual attainment in their lives are less likely to suffer from dementia, perhaps due to a better ability to cope with aging.

For a free in-home care assessment, please call Victorian Home Care at 655-1935.

stores, churches and other public places.

"Where will it end?" asked Pacific Grove Mayor Dan Cort. "Because camels could be good service animals, too."

The Americans with Disabilities Act protects service animals, without specifying what species are included, and requires they be allowed to go wherever their owners want.

But the national debate prompted the U.S. Department of Justice last summer to propose new regulations that would narrow the definition of acceptable animal species to "dog or other common domestic animal," and eliminate wild animals including reptiles, rabbits, ferrets, rodents, miniature horses, pigs and other farm animals.

If the DOJ proposal goes through, it means the P.G. woman would not have the right to take her horse with her as a service animal and might not be able to keep it at home.

Pacific Grove's laws are a bit vague on the types of animals allowed in the city.

"There is nothing special in our code that says you can't ride horses in the city," said Elizabeth Conti-Yeo, Pacific Grove's animal control officer. "But it says no hoof stock, including horses, may live in the city."

City attorney David Laredo told The Pine Cone Wednesday he believes small horses and other service animals should be considered legal within the city limits.

"Service animals are protected under the law as long as they behave," Laredo said. "Federal and state laws prohibit discrimination against disabled people."

To clarify the city's municipal code, the city council in February will go over the city's rule on service animals, Cort said. It's possible the council could vote to allow animals of all kinds, or just certain types, as service animals.

"I think many people's eyebrows are going to rise, because they are going to hear that some people with psychosis have [service] birds that make them feel better."

Cort, who owns a business restoring historic buildings, is worried that business owners could be forced to pay to modify their businesses to allow for extra accessibility for unusual service animals.

"I would hope that individuals who want a more exotic animal wouldn't impose significant restrictions or costs on small businesses or small Victorian [buildings]," he said. "To pile on more responsibilities for service animals is unjust and unfair, and I think would be an imposition of a Draconian nature."

In November, the council voted to exempt chickens from the list of banned farm animals so one resident could keep a few as pets.

Cort said a couple of years ago he was at a P.G. restaurant and had an experience with a bird. It wasn't clear if it was a service animal or just a pet.

"A woman came in with a parrot on her shoulder, and it pooped in my food," he said. "That was the end of my meal."

The owners of the miniature horse, Harvey Brodsky and his wife, whose name he would not disclose, declined to be interviewed because they didn't want to draw attention to the animal. But everyone The Pine Cone spoke to for the article was already aware of the horse.

Miniature horses are not as unusual as some service animals being used. Capuchin monkeys are said to be helpful for people with spinal cord injuries, potbellied pigs can be trained to help the visually impaired, and ferrets and iguanas are used for anxiety.

The Times article even profiled a St. Louis man who uses a parrot to help control his psychotic tendencies.

While Cort, like others, understands the importance of service dogs, he questioned whether other animals might pose a health risk to the public.

"You have a responsibility to provide for health and safety for yourself and your neighbor," Cort said. "If we are going to bring country animals into the city, we have to find out what would allow and disallow those animals. Would they bring diseases?"

In 2005, the American Veterinary Medical Association stated, "The AVMA does not support the use of nonhuman primates as assistance animals because of animal welfare concerns, the potential for serious injury and animal-to-human disease transmission risks."

From all accounts, the owners of the miniature horse in Pacific Grove keep a fairly low profile. Conti-Yeo said she has not received any complaints about the animal.

Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce President Moe Ammar said he hasn't fielded concerns from business owners, either.

"I have not heard a thing," Ammar said. "I work and live downtown and have never seen the creature."

"There will be some no-parking zones cordoned off, and they will be cleared as soon as shooting stops — we're trying to make it a rolling thing," he said. After shooting at the mission Jan. 27, crews will be on Carmel Beach Jan. 29, and in the area of Lincoln and Sixth at Richard MacDonald's new gallery Jan. 30.

"And then, for the next two weeks, there's hardly anything in town," Rana said, as the crew films elsewhere on the Peninsula. Traffic will again be affected Valentine's Day weekend — which is also the final weekend of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Peter Newfield is location manager, and will be visiting businesses and residences in affected areas. Rana said people with concerns should contact Newfield at (831) 332-1071.

Extras needed

Roeck has announced he needs extras of all shapes and sizes for the movie, and the taxpayer-funded Monterey County Film Commission is helping round up several hundred volunteers. The casting director's email address can be found at www.FilmMonterey.org, and anyone interested in being an extra — which not only offers a chance to be caught on film, but provides the opportunity to see how a movie is made — can send an email for more information and an application.

Financial Focus

MAKE YOUR NEW YEAR'S FINANCIAL RESOLUTIONS

It's time for New Year's resolutions. This year, why not try some financial resolutions? Here are a few to consider:

First, resolve to stay calm. As you're well aware, 2008 was not exactly a stellar year for the stock market. What will 2009 bring? No one can say for sure, but as an investor, your best move is to stay calm and remain focused on your long-term goals.

Next, vow to increase your 401(k) contributions. Your 401(k) is still a great way to save for retirement.

Also, build an emergency fund containing six to 12 months' worth of living expenses, kept in a liquid account. This fund can help prevent you from having to sell stocks to pay for an unexpected expense.

Finally, be patient, disciplined and forward-looking. The investment world has taken some knocks lately, but good investment opportunities are still out there.

WAR

At the meeting, a vote was called to make changes to the group's bylaws to provide greater oversight of the board, including how it imposes and collects assessments and late charges. Ray was chosen by the board to be one of three "inspectors" for the election.

According to Ray's report, when the ballots were turned in, only 23 of 57 met the legal requirements for the vote. The rest were disqualified. With so many ballots disqualified, the amendment could not be adopted for lack of a quorum.

At this point, Ray and another inspector insisted they were required by law to keep possession of the ballots. When the 85-year-old Ray tried to leave the meeting room with the sealed ballots, he claimed he was detained by a board member, John Endriz. Moments later, Ray reported he was "threateningly confronted" by another board member, Eric Sand, and was told he was "under citizen's arrest."

Tracy Brown, commander of the sheriff's Monterey Coastal Station, said a deputy was sent to the community center after his office received a report of a disturbance with "heated tempers."

After the deputy arrived, he determined the dispute was civil in nature, and he decided the ballots should go to the company that manages Los Tulares.

Going to court

The Dec. 2 incident is the latest flare-up in a dispute that led to a lawsuit which was filed Sept. 21, 2007 by several Los Tulares residents against the homeowners association and its board.

The suit alleges the association conducted illegal elections for its board and improperly tried to raise homeowner's annual dues from $550 to $1,900.

The suit also contends the board illegally made decisions regarding the construction, repair, modification and of roads.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Susan Dauphine ruled Nov. 4, 2008 that the Los Tulares Homeowners Association is subject to the Davis-Stirling Act, a state law governing homeowners associations.

"We consider her ruling to be a major homeowner victory," former board member Frank Koucky said. He is one of the five plaintiffs in the suit.

According to Koucky, the Davis-Stirling Act requires that all elections be "fair and secret." He insisted that voters in previous elections were not granted anonymity; therefore, the voting wasn't "secret."

The lawsuit is also asking that all elections dating from 2007 and 2008 be invalidated and new elections be scheduled.

The residents are divided into three camps, Koucky said.

"One is the 'follow-the-law' group," he explained. "Another is the 'don't follow-the-law' group. And the third is the 'why-can't-we-get-along?' group."

Koucky said the lawsuit was only filed as a last resort.

"This is an old association, and there are some stubborn people who want to hold onto power while ignoring the law," he added.

Thomas D'Amato, an attorney representing the homeowners association and its board, declined comment.

Julia Felis

August 8, 1910 ~ January 18, 2009

Carmel ~ Julia Felis, a 35 year Carmel resident, died at her home on January 18. Born August 8, 1910 in Red Bluff, CA, Julia worked at Magnolia Hospital in Long Beach for over 30 years before moving to Carmel. She worked for 14 years with the Carmel Business Association where she became very well-known locally. She was also a parishioner at Carmel Mission where she was quite active in the Altar Society.

Julia is survived by her son, Michael (Gordana Stjepanovic) Phelps of New York, NY. She was preceded in death by her siblings, Manny and Chris Graves, Flora Doss, Marie Stevenson, Polly Johnson and Connie Schafer.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated yesterday, Thursday, January 22 at 10:30 AM at Carmel Mission Basilica followed by burial at San Carlos Cemetery in Monterey under the direction of The Paul Mortuary. In lieu of flowers, contributions are suggested to the donor's favorite charity.

on concessions for affordable housing projects wouldn't permit the number of units and restaurant as proposed. He suggested revising the plans to include 10 units, with one of them designated affordable so the commission could approve the restaurant as a concession. The other space in the building could be used as zoning allows, such as for offices.

Agha said he disagreed with Conroy's interpretation of the law. He said the bank was threatening foreclosure, and he and Chaplan were losing $25,000 per month on the unused property.

"The longer we leave it vacant, the more it will deteriorate and be an eyesore in this town," he told the commission last week. "Work with us, please."

Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston said affordable housing is a laudable goal but difficult for a small city like Carmel to accommodate. She also said the CRA opposes "spot zoning" — such as changing the land use to accommodate a restaurant that would otherwise not be allowed — and Assemblyman Bill Monning's office sent a letter informing the commission it has the responsibility to not grant concessions that would damage the city's community character.

"If I had known [Barbara Livingston] was going to go to Bill Monning," Agha responded, "I would have given him my side, and you would not have seen that letter."

Planning commissioner Robin Wilson favored "a slight bend in the law" if it provides the practical outcome of more senior housing in Carmel. "It may be spot zoning, but sometimes spot zoning is a pretty good idea."

Conroy then said Agha and Chaplan might be able to get more concessions — one for allowing the number of rental rooms in the building and another for the restaurant — if they agreed to make at least 20 percent of the units affordable.

Agha consented, and commissioners unanimously voted to approve the use permit for the senior housing and restaurant, as long as they received assurance all the residents would be able to afford to eat there, since their homes will not contain kitchens.

But after the meeting, Conroy read the new 2009 version of the Government Code and discovered the clause, "if permitted by local ordinance" had been added to the section allowing a city to give concessions for density like that bestowed upon the Carmel Inn project. Carmel has no such ordinance, and it would take at least six to nine months to draft and adopt one — if the California Coastal Commission would even approve it.

him ID'ed," he explained. Because more serious crimes take priority in the lab, months had passed before a technician had time to run the prints through the system.

As soon as police learned their suspect's identity, they went to work tracking him down.

Although he has long been a Pacific Grove resident, Ayers is "kind of transient" and was staying with a friend in Del Monte Forest, according to a tip officers received.

"He's in custody now," Sepagan said.

The economy's down ...
but that doesn't mean your spirit has to be!

WITH ALL the bad news about the economy in the national media, it's almost impossible to turn on the television or pick up a newspaper (except The Pine Cone, of course) without getting depressed.

But difficult times also offer an opportunity for reflection and self-improvement. And they provide a perfect chance to renew your commitment to your community by patronizing local businesses. So what better way to do both than to take a break at one of our local spas?

Not only that, but with Valentine's Day just a few weeks away, it's a perfect time to start thinking of a special gift for your special someone.

We have so many outstanding examples, it's hard to know where to begin ...

The rooftop Jacuzzis at the Monterey Plaza Hotel and Spa on Cannery Row (left) offer the perfect place for relaxation and rejuvenation while enjoying the spectacular scenery of Monterey Bay. At Casa Palmero in Pebble Beach (below), the setting is a bit more serene, but also incredibly sumptuous.

■ Monterey Plaza

Cannery Row is sometimes overlooked by locals, being mostly a tourist area and all. But down there among the historic cannery buildings and souvenir shops are some of the finest local restaurants, hotels and spa facilities.

Monterey Plaza, located at 400 Cannery Row, is a perfect example. So good is it, that just this week the Mobil Travel Guide recognized it with a coveted Four-Star Award (joining Bernardus, Spanish Bay and The Lodge at Pebble Beach in the exalted category among local inns).

One very popular indulgence is the Water Experience, which is based upon ancient traditions of relaxation and rejuvenation. After you immerse yourself in a private soak tub, you can step into the steam, sauna or inhalation rooms for a few moments of quiet time. And then you can invigorate your body with a symphony of water in the Pebble Beach Signature Shower ($50 for 25 minutes).

Another very popular item with the Beautiful People is the Flotation Wrap, which allows couples, friends or families to enjoy 45 minutes of heated bliss on dry "flotation beds." ($135 for one person, or $210 for two.) Combine this experience with the ultra-moisturizing Swiss Creme Wrap, and you're guaranteed to leave happy!

tor for Quail Lodge, the outdoor facilities are also the perfect place to hold a party, especially with the view of the lake, outdoor fire pit and poolside catering.

Some of the Quail Lodge spa specialties are worth considering for yourself or that special someone.

Many have enticing names, such as the Lavender Peppermint Cooler, the Citrus Detox Reviver and, of course, the Rose Indulgence, which the spa describes like this: "Lie in a bed of roses and indulge in this nourishing and thoroughly moisturizing treatment. Rich oils and creams with Damask Rose are gently pressed into freshly exfoliated skin, leaving it glowing, silky soft and revitalized." ($220 for 80 minutes.)

Call (888) 828-8787 or go to www.quail-lodge.com to learn more.

Ventana

Speaking of Valentine's Day, the Ventana Inn and Spa in Big Sur is offering what it calls the "perfect romantic getaway." This package, available all year, includes two nights' accommodations, a couples' spa welcome basket, dinner for two, an 80-minute Couples Experience at the resort's Allegría Spa, a special turndown amenity each evening, a complimentary breakfast and a wine-and-cheese reception. Call (800) 628-6500 or go to www.ventanainn.com for reservations.

The package is a bit pricey, with rates beginning at $1,250 per night. But Ventana is surely worth it. So go ahead ... indulge!

(Left) If this looks like your idea of a perfect afternoon (is there anyone who wouldn't think so?), Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley is the place for you. But if relaxing in front of a fire in your bathrobe sounds enticing (top right) head for the Monterey Plaza Hotel on Cannery Row. In Pebble Beach, Casa Palmero offers indulgent couples' massages (lower right).

Your Gardener's Checklist for January 23-29, 2009

- This is one of the best times to transplant both evergreen and deciduous shrubs.
- Move tuberous Begonia into a dry cool area.
- It's time to prune your deciduous fruit trees for larger fruit and healthier trees. Bare root season is here. Pick out your favorite roses, lilacs and other flowering shrubs, berries and grape vines.
- For a delightful flower or ground cover in the shadier part of the garden, plant forget-me-nots or vinca minor.
- A decorative accent with a bonus of full size fruit, plant a dwarf citrus tree in the garden or in a container in your sunniest location.

Sculptor chosen to honor civil rights hero

By CHRIS COUNTS

A CITY in Florida will honor Martin Luther King Jr. with a bronze statue of the slain civil rights leader created by a Carmel sculptor.

Steven Whyte received the commission after officials from Hollywood, Fla., conducted a nationwide search and interviewed 47 candidates.

Whyte is the owner of a Carmel gallery, Wellington's Legacy Fine Art Sculpture. He is perhaps best known locally as the "Sculptor in the Park" at the annual Carmel Art Festival, where he creates a larger-than-life-sized statue of a noted figure in American history at Devendorf Park while an

For Whyte, a native of England, the commission is a great honor. But it's not an easy task.

"This is our third Martin Luther King piece," Whyte explained. "It's always a struggle to reproduce his likeness. He's very close to people's hearts, so you've got to get it right. The statue is going to effect a lot of people's emotions."

If all goes according to plan, Whyte and his staff will complete a clay sculpture of King in the next two weeks. The clay piece will then be sent to Marina, where it will be cast in bronze. "We're hoping to ship it to Florida by the middle of March," Whyte added.

Once the statue arrives in Florida, it will be installed in a downtown Hollywood park. Accompanying the statue will be the complete text of King's "I Have a Dream" speech.

Whyte's studio and gallery are located in Su Vecino Court on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

Arts "champions" honored

When El Niño storms caused road damage so severe that Big Sur became a virtual island, Tom Birmingham and Erin Gafill created the Big Sur Arts Initiative to offer arts programs to "stranded" local children.

More than decade later, Birmingham and Gafill will be recognized Saturday, Jan. 24, as "Champions of the Arts" by the Arts Council for Monterey County. They'll be joined at a dinner and reception at the Embassy Suites hotel in Seaside by fellow "champions" Jack Swanson, Gail Higginbotham, David Allan, Paul Fleischman, David and Susan Gill, Dr. Amalia Mesa-Bains and the Youth Arts Collective.

While Birmingham and Gafill no longer manage the BSAI, the arts council still wants to recognize the pair for their good work. "They have done so much for so long in the Big Sur area," explained Paulette Lynch, executive director of the arts council. "They've always been there to help promote the arts, and it's time we honored them."

For Lynch, the event provides a showcase for why the arts are important to communities. "Communities with vital arts and cultural programs are thriving," she said.

Lynch also believes the arts play a key role in education. "The arts are like a spoonful of sugar," she added. "Knowledge is easier to absorb if it's absorbed through the arts."

The "Champions" dinner and reception begins at 5 p.m. Tickets are $75. The hotel is located at 1441 Canyon Del Rey. For more information, call (831) 622-9060 or visit www.artsformontereycounty.org.

After surviving disco and the British Invasion, doo-wop is here to stay

By CHRIS COUNTS

NEIL YOUNG once sang that it's better to burn out than to fade away. While countless rock 'n' rollers have done both, Joe Terry refuses to do either.

"I'm going to keep singing as long as my body allows it," boasted Terry, a 68-year-old charter member of Danny and the Juniors, who will perform in "The Best of Doo-Wop," Friday, Jan. 23, at Sunset Center. Danny and the Juniors will be joined on stage by The Four Preps, The Olympics and a tribute to The Drifters.

Doo-wop was a vocal-based style of rhythm and blues that was enormously popular in the 1950s and early 1960s. Terry's group etched its place in rock 'n' roll history with the release of "At the Hop" in 1957, which reached the top of the Billboard Charts. While the song is undeniable catchy, Terry attributes much of its success to the marketing genius of early rock 'n' roll's greatest promoter, Dick Clark.

"I was visiting with Dick just yesterday," Terry said Tuesday in a phone interview with The Pine Cone. "We talked about the song. It was originally called 'Do the Bop.' It was Dick's idea to change the title to 'At the Hop.'"

The name change did the trick, and the song was suddenly number one in the country, according to Terry, who is still amazed by the its popularity.

While the heyday of doo-wop passed by the time The Beatles took center stage, the genre has endured. In fact, by the mid-1970s — buoyed by the success of the movie, "American Graffiti," and the television show, "Happy Days" — doo-wop enjoyed a revival.

"We were working 250 days a year," Terry recalled about those days, 30 years ago.

Today, Danny and the Juniors play about 70 concerts a year, which suits Terry just fine. He's watched countless rock 'n' roll trends come and go, and he's convinced doo-wop is here to stay.

"Doo-wop is happy music," he added. "People can easily relate to it. We survived the Beatles, we survived disco, and we're still here."

Mission Ranch piano bar a must-do

By STEVE VAGNINI

HISTORIC MISSION Ranch Restaurant is a popular destination for tourists and locals alike — and one of its main attractions is its venerable piano bar.

Performing on the keys every Friday through Sunday at 8 p.m., pianist Maddaline Edstrom began her professional career 30 years ago in Monterey. She then upped her career by moving to the San Francisco Bay Area and performing in theater-district piano bars. Then she returned to the Monterey Peninsula to perform at Mission Ranch. Other regulars at the Ranch Restaurant include Giovanni Dimitrijevic and Gennday Loktionov. Call (831) 625-9040.

At Hidden Valley Theatre in Carmel Valley, flutist Ali Ryerson performs Friday, Jan. 23 with Charles Loos. The concert starts at 8 p.m. Call (831) 659-3115 for more information.

And making her debut performance at Sly McFly's on Friday, Jan. 23 is Ajuana Black, who has been singing in r & b, hip-hop and gospel groups for over a decade. Black has performed at various prestigious San Francisco venues, including the Great American Music Hall, Slim's and The Fillmore, and was a featured performer in numerous musical theater shows including "Dreamgirls," "Ain't Misbehavin'" and "Once on this Island." Black performs Jan. 26 at 9 p.m. with her group, the Blackouts. Call (831) 649-8050.

Fab abs make Highlands Inn debut, ladies hit the kitchen

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SUPER ABS — not rippling stomach muscles, but well fed red abalone raised by Monterey Abalone Co. in collaboration with scientists from the Moss Landing Marine Labs — debuted at a delightful dinner at Pacific's Edge restaurant in the Highlands Inn Tuesday night.

The event, presided over by executive chef Mark Ayers and wine director Mark Buzan, served as a blind tasting to determine whether people preferred conventionally farmed abalone, which feed off harvested wild kelp, or the newfangled Super Abs that eat kelp and farm-raised red seaweed keeping closer to their natural diet.

The evening grew from an experiment at MLML in which scientists discovered they could cultivate red seaweed and feed it to farmed abalone, which took on the red hue they are known for in the wild, grew at a faster rate while requiring less work harvesting wild kelp. They went to work with Monterey Abalone Co., which raises abalone in baskets beneath the commercial wharf in Monterey, to see if their Super Abs would tempt people's taste buds and do well on the market. Commercial harvesting of wild red abalone has been illegal since 1997.

"Tonight, all of you are eating my science experiment," exclaimed Thew Suskiewicz. "Two years of my work is on your plates, so I hope you enjoy it."

Ayers devised four courses, with guests sampling identical preparations of the two types of abalone — one served on round plates and the other on squares. Guests listened to the scientists and abalone growers speak as they dined, and at the end of the evening, they indicated which they preferred. (Super Abs won by a landslide.)

But the fun isn't limited to those fortunate folks. During February, the restaurant will offer the four preparations of Super Abs — ceviche-style with endive and citrus "caviar," traditionally pan fried in butter with lemon and parsley, steak-and-eggs style with lacquered bacon and tiny pearl onions, and seared and served with cauliflower puree and lobster butter — for $15 per plate. Anyone partaking would do well to order a glass (or two) of the wines Buzan selected to accompany the dishes: for the first two, a crisp, citric 2007 Sauvignon Blanc from Voss, and for the second two, a rich, nicely balanced 2006 Alban Vineyards Viognier.

The special abalone dishes will be available in Pacific's Edge and the inn's Sunset Lounge, both of which are located in the main building at 120 Highlands Drive in Carmel. For more information or to make reservations, call (831) 620-1234.

■ Ladies Nights

Personal chef and caterer Karen Anne Murray decided it might be fun for women from all walks of life to gather for good food and conversation once a month, so she launched Ladies Night in the Eddison & Melrose kitchen on Orange Avenue in Sand City. The first gathering, dubbed Bombay Nights, is set for 6 to 9 p.m. this Friday, Jan. 23, and will feature "yummy curry for a cold winter's night" at the bargain-basement price of $10 per person.

To RSVP, call (831) 601-4851 or (831) 393-9479, or email eddisonmelrose@hotmail.com. To find out more about Murray, who also teaches cooking classes, helps clients improve their fitness and nutrition, and makes food available for pickup or delivery, check out www.eddisonandmelrose.com.

STORMS

residents. The county OES issued major storm warnings on Jan. 3, 2008, via the media, advising people to prepare to shelter in place for up to 72 hours. But during and after the storm, the Peninsula cities and Pebble Beach had trouble notifying people of outages and where they could go for help. The grand jury concluded each jurisdiction should "set up a system of contacts with the local media, especially newspapers."

To reach residents, P.B. Fire used a reverse-911 system that was deemed largely ineffective because people's cordless phones don't work without electricity, while P.G.'s was "too antiquated to use." Carmel and Monterey had no systems, though Carmel has since joined the Monterey County Telephone Emergency Notification System.

The grand jury recommended the county work with all jurisdictions and public service agencies on an "aggressive campaign to inform the public about the new emergency telephone system and to register as many people in the system as possible."

Considering how many elderly people live on the Peninsula, ensuring the disabled and homebound are reached and cared for during disasters presents a significant challenge. P.B. Fire officials had a limited list of those who might need extra help and are reportedly working to update that database and combine it with the reverse-911 system.

Conversely, "Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove did not have such databases and relied primarily on the homebound and people with special needs to notify them if help was needed," though Carmel also worked with some local nonprofits.

The grand jury recommended all jurisdictions consult with disabled people when updating their emergency response plans, and it suggested they designate temporary shelter locations.

Carmel officials have already taken several steps against a repeat of the January 2008 storm, including adopting their new disaster response plan last month.

The 280-page Carmel Emergency

Operations Plan, drafted by former Monterey County OES director Harry Robins, meets state and federal standards and covers authority, responsibilities and operations. It replaces two documents drafted in 1981 and 1993.

"Carmel is unique, and presents some unique challenges," Robins said during his Dec. 2, 2008, presentation to the council, citing the city's lack of street addresses as an example. In response, he drafted a comprehensive, easy-to-use plan, so "someone who's not familiar with the city could come in and pick it up and get an understanding." It includes detailed checklists, duties and procedures for preparing for impending disaster, running the EOC, evacuating the city, closing the beach, equipping workers and the EOC, and working with volunteer groups.

The document names the city administrator, rather than the mayor, as the director of emergency services, includes a training plan for city workers, and provides a timeline for implementing the plan and a schedule for updating it every two years.

"The CEOP is a plan both for today and the future that will complement the city's long-standing commitment to effective emergency services management and disaster preparedness," police chief George Rawson told the city council.

He also explained that adopting the new plan would ensure the city is eligible for Federal Emergency Management Agency reimbursement for the costs of disaster management or hazard mitigation.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF CLARE LEWIS JARDSTROM
Case Number MP 19333
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of CLARE LEWIS JARDSTROM.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by MARTA JARDSTROM THYSELL in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.
The Petition for Probate requests that MARTA JARDSTROM THYSELL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held on in this court as follows:

Date: January 30, 2009
Time: 10:00 a.m.
Dept.: Probate
Room: 17
Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Agujito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Not the city or the school district's fault

THE DEATH of Joel Woods in front of Pacific Grove Middle School Sept. 2, 2008, was a terrible tragedy for the man's family, for the school and for the community.

It was not, however, the city's or the school district's fault.

According to police, the accident was caused when a driver under the influence of prescription medication careened down Forest Avenue, colliding with Woods while he tried to enter his vehicle after picking up his son at school. From witness accounts and all the other evidence available at this point, the police account seems to be true.

In which case, the fault for the accident lies with just one person: The intoxicated driver.

However, the family has filed a claim against the City of Pacific Grove, alleging that somehow the city was responsible for the death of Mr. Woods, because the street was too narrow, the drop-off point for the school was in the wrong place, etc., etc. The claim will inevitably lead to a lawsuit, which Pacific Grove taxpayers will have to pay to defend. It could also lead to a sizable award for the Woods family, which will come from taxpayers' wallets.

While we sympathize with the family, we object to any attempt to make the city's taxpayers pay for their loss.

Civil courts are supposed to be places where justice is served. If Party A damages Party B, Party B can ask Party A for restitution. If Party A refuses to make good for the damage he caused, state law (and a long legal tradition dating back to biblical times) allows Party B to ask a judge to compel Party A to pay up.

However, too often in our society, the civil courts have become places where money is redistributed from people who have it to people who don't, regardless of who may be at fault in a particular situation.

So if Party A damages Party B, but Party A has no money, Party B looks for some other convenient individual or group with deep pockets to sue.

This strategy is particularly effective if Party B, the one bringing the lawsuit, also has no money and is in a particularly sympathetic position.

Thus, the jury looking at a case of grievous damage done by A to B looks at the rich party brought into the lawsuit because he is rich, decides he could easily do without some of his money, and awards it to A, regardless of the fact that the rich party did not cause the damage to A. This happens all the time in our civil courts.

In the current circumstances, the intoxicated driver probably has some insurance or assets for the Woods family to gain in a suit against her. But the City of Pacific Grove and the Pacific Grove School District (which will also surely be sued) have, in effect, unlimited assets.

That is why the city and the school district will be sued: Because they have money. They are not at fault in the accident which killed Joel Woods. But they'll have to pay anyway. If you're reading this editorial and you happen to live in Pacific Grove or the PGUSD (which includes parts of Pebble Beach), then you are going to be handed a very large bill for something you had nothing to do with.

Letters to the Editor

Stick to covering golf!

Dear Editor,

It is truly sad to have had a Santa Cruz resident bring to my attention the grossly ignorant assaults my hometown paper printed about Jane Kay, a reporter for the San Francisco Chronicle (Jan. 16). Though, after reading your statements, I find myself not too surprised by your lack of knowledge on the subject of pesticides. The Monterey County agriculture industry prevents any light to be shone on the dangers of pesticides as they quietly runoff into the bay by the millions of tons a year. And we can't figure out why the birds are sick and the otters die ... hmmm? But to actually question the Chronicle's ability to check the facts is a far more amusing stance for The Pine Cone to take! As a local community organizer for a non-profit that supports community-led activism to stop the use of pesticides, I have dedicated nearly a thousand hours to the study of the LBAM campaign since 2007. Thousands of other citizens have done just the same. Jane Kay's statement that the pheromone sprayed on Monterey and Santa Cruz residents was in fact a "pesticide" is entirely correct because the definition of a pesticide is a product that is intended to wipe out or "eradicate" a species. That is in fact what the CheckMate pheromone was engineered to do: inhibit the male and female moths from mating with the intent to "eradicate" them. We figured this out a long time ago. You should try to catch up on your research. There are, in actuality, thousands of facts about this moth, the chemicals contained in the pheromone spray that we were all exposed to in the fall of 2007 and the LBAM program itself that would more than raise Monterey County citizens' eyebrows. But those facts rarely rise to the surface here in Monterey County journalism. It is no surprise that you are so ignorant about them. The pesticide industry makes billions of dollars in Monterey County alone. And though California has reduced its overall usage of pesticides, Monterey County has actually increased its use of some of the most deadly pesticides on record. Luckily, the savvy journalists in the Bay Area began listening to the thousands of outraged people raising their voices against the unnecessary spraying of pesticides on humans to try to eradicate this harmless superficial feeding tortricid (feel free to look that term up). Jane Kay continues to be a voice of truth in the campaign to "Stop the Spray" and she is responsible for some of the most in depth and revealing reporting to date. The bottom line is that you can disagree with anyone you like, but to throw ignorant insults around so glibly is to make a fool of yourself, and speaks volumes about you and your publication. Your cheeks should be red with embarrassment by now. If I were to write about you as you did about Jane Kay I say, "Stick to what you know — celebrity golf tournaments, art galleries and raccoon attacks — and let the real newspapers report on the real news." Thank goodness I am above making such remarks.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

CHARLIE PHILLIPS, a Carmel-by-the-Sea golden retriever, had parents who were both show dogs. But he hasn't let that go to his head. He's just like any other playful, smiling 2-year-old who likes to come to Carmel Beach five days a week.

Dad Paul or Mom Linda walks with him to the beach from their home, Charlie pulling at his leash all the way, looking out for small dogs with whom he can strike up an acquaintance.

In fact, one of his best friends is a little 3-year-old shitzu named Louie who lives in Lodi. Louie from Lodi is Charlie's cousin, because he's Mom Linda's brother's dog. Another good friend is Joey, a German shepherd mix, who lives across the street from Charlie. They often take walks and play together.

But Charlie's not lacking for company at home. He has two sisters: Seventeen-year-old Ali, a senior at Notre Dame High School in Salinas, and Halie, 14, a student at Carmel Middle School.

Dad Paul said Charlie retrieves everything in the house, bringing all manner of things to him and Mom – even purloining items from his sisters' backpacks to present as gifts. Dad thinks the tattoo on Charlie's tongue is from an indelible pen he swiped from their belongings.

At night, Charlie sleeps protectively outside his sisters' rooms, then at dawn crawls in with Halie, who has the bigger bed.

To keep his coat nice and shiny, Mom puts a little fish oil on Charlie's kibble, and gives him a spoonful of his all-time fave, cottage cheese with pineapple, too. It doesn't do anything for his coat, but it certainly tastes good.

"They just open the door and grab the mail." But that's easily prevented, he pointed out, by getting a post office box or purchasing a locking mailbox.

While police don't learn of some gang members' arrival until the department receives a tip or something goes wrong, officers usually know when a gang member on probation moves into town, since the county keeps track of where they live. In addition, some convicted gang members must register in person at the local police department whenever they relocate.

"When they're on probation, we always keep an eye on them, and tips will come in," Sepagan said. If police are suspicious, officers will arrange with the probation department for a sweep of past offenders and will pick up anyone found in violation.

It was in coordination with the probation department that officers arrested 23-year-old P.G. resident Jacinto Trinidad-Ruiz — a "validated gang member" — on Jan. 14 for possession of methamphetamine, drug paraphernalia and probation violation.

ing in Haiti," she said.

According to statistics supplied by Strutner, Haiti has the third-highest hunger rate in the world, and 76 percent of its people live below the poverty line, making it the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. Furthermore, an estimated 300,000 Haitian children are laborers or domestic slaves, and one in eight will die before reaching the age of 5.

Every student organization on campus is contributing to the effort to raise money for Jackson's programs, according to Strutner. They hope much of the money will come from the $10-per-person admission (plus any additional donations) for the Feb. 25 show, which will feature talented students and faculty in the theater at Sunset Center. Off stage, kids will sell food, work as ushers and help out by any means possible.

Strutner was also delighted to announce that during his brief visit, Jackson will have a chance to revisit a bit of his past life by playing a round of golf on one of the world's most famous courses.

"I went to the Pebble Beach Company today and met with [company CEO] Bill Perocchi, who was wonderful," she said, as Perocchi invited Jackson to play Pebble Beach while he is here.

hotel at Junipero and Fifth for a water leak. Crews provided manpower in attempts to shut off a water leak at the meter box. It was determined the leak was on the Cal-Am side of the meter. Cal-Am was notified and sent crews to make repairs.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dispatched to Mission Street and Fifth Avenue for a public assist. Crews attempted to retrieve a cell phone from a storm drain. The phone could not be located, as it probably slid down the drain chute. The reporting party was notified of the effort made and was satisfied, accepting the loss of the phone.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 0836 hours, fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to an Oak Knoll residence for a water leak. Responders discovered water flowing from the crawl space into the yard and threatening neighbors' yards. According to bystanders, this was taking place since Jan. 8. Water was flowing into the crawl space of the main house through the floor boards. Crews shut down the water main and electricity, as sparks were shooting out of an outlet. Gained access to the residence with permission of the owner (out of town), and removed water from the floors of bathroom, master bedroom and walk-in closet area. Advised owner to contact licensed plumber, electrician, insurance company and contractor. Responders searched for the source of the leak but were unable to find one. Break could possibly be inside a wall as indicated by the electrical sparks. Walls are plaster, which does not show water marks easily from an interior leak. With the power shut off, firefighters secured perishables from the refrigerator and took them to the fire station to be put into the spare refrigerator.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to a business on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh for an alarm system activation. Alarm was activated due to a heat gun near a heat detector from construction workers.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 1806 hours, fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to Junipero and Fourth, the police station, for an EMS call. Crews treated a 63-year-old male who sustained lacerations and abrasions to his forehead and bridge of the nose. History of two heart transplants, plus wears a back brace. The patient refused further treatment and transport, but was advised, based on his history, to see a doctor for further evaluation as soon as possible.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 10

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 32-year-old male driver was stopped on Third Avenue for a vehicle code violation. Driver was found to have an expired driver's license and was in possession of marijuana. Driver was cited and released at the police department. The vehicle was towed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two anonymous persons called to report their neighbor's dog on Guadalupe Street was barking for more than four hours. An officer attempted to make contact at the residence, but was met with negative results. A business card was left for the dog owner to call the department.

Carmel Valley: Responded to a Trampa Canyon address on a child protective services referral that was determined to be unfounded.

Pebble Beach: Female Crest Road resident stated she was involved in a heated argument with her longtime live-in boyfriend.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 11

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Units responded to a burglary to a vehicle on Lasuen Drive and Rio Road. The vehicle's window was smashed, and a purse was taken. No suspect information.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person on Junipero Street called in regards to a civil standby referencing an unwanted subject. The person advised the patron that she was unwanted and needed to leave based upon previous contacts in the past. The subject left without incident.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on Mission Street. Informational exchange was conducted.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported seeing a mountain lion on Carmelo at Fourth. The citizen said the mountain lion continued southbound on Carmelo without incident. Carmel P.D. units checked the surrounding area for the mountain lion but were unable to locate.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 1605, ambulance was dispatched to Point Lobos for a male who experienced a syncopal episode. Upon arrival, Cal Fire medic had assessed the patient. Patient refused transport to CHOMP via ambulance and would go in POV (wife) to CHOMP. Patient signed medical release.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 1628 hours, fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to a residence on Lopez to assist a physically disabled person. Patient signed medical release.

Carmel Valley: Vehicle burglary in Carmel Valley. Items taken while the victim was in church.

Carmel Valley: A husband grabbed his wife by her throat and slapped her face, causing visible injuries. The violence occurred in front of the two children. The husband was arrested and transported to the Monterey County Jail.

MONDAY, JANUARY 12

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person on San Carlos Street reported an attempted fraud that originated from England requesting the person wire funds. The transaction was not completed. Person was counseled.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: An 18-year-old male driver was stopped on Santa Fe for a CVC violation and found to have marijuana for sale and illegal prescription pills in his possession. He was lodged at county jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 1215 hours, fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to Mission Street for a female in her 50s with syncope. Provided advanced life support and transported the person to CHOMP.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 1332 hours, fire engine and ambulance were dispatched to Mission and Seventh for a female in her 60s who had suffered a fall in the roadway. Police department on scene for a fall-on-city-property report.

Pebble Beach: Victim at Forest Lodge and Stevenson Drive reported receiving numerous harassing phone calls from a credit card company.

Pacific Grove: A Pacific Grove Public Works employee found what appeared to be a military ordnance that washed ashore. The object was an "Mk 58" marine marker used by the U.S. Navy and Coast Guard in training exercises. The canister was 12 pounds and contained polytechnic candles to produce flames and smoke while floating in the ocean. A significant portion had not ignited and therefore presented a danger of inadvertently igniting. The canister was kept at a secure location submerged in water at the city public works yard until the EOD team from Travis AFB could respond and take control of it.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 13

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Carmel P.D. units responded to a past-tense burglary of a vehicle on Scenic Road at Santa Lucia. The vehicle's left rear passenger window was smashed, and a purse was taken from inside. There is no suspect information at this time.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Observed a dog at large on Junipero and subsequently returned it to the owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: The officer responded to a complaint of a barking dog on San Carlos Street. The officer observed people walking their dogs past the house, and neighbors coming and going from their vehicles. For the duration of the time of the investigation, no violation was heard.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to Ocean and San Carlos for an alarm activation at the Liniggi building. The activation the result of a service technician on scene conducting testing and not notifying the central station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to a Dolores Street business for a female in her 80s with a severe nose bleed. Patient transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two fire engines, two ambulances and a chief were dispatched to an art gallery on San Carlos Street for an odor investigation. First engine and ambulance arrived on scene and investigated a reported odor in the downstairs office located in the southeast portion of the building. Crews shut down the office's track lighting system on the lower floor, and the odor dissipated. Gallery advised to have track lighting inspected by electrical contractor prior to further use.

Carmel Valley: Male resident reported that his 14-year-old son, an unreported runaway, was refusing to return home after being located.

Pebble Beach: Pebble Beach homeowner reported finding a rifle in her driveway. Deputies determined the gun to be a toy although it appeared real. The toy was taken as found property.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Cell phone found in residential area of San Carlos Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen employed to wash windows of a market on Junipero felt he was unjustly treated by the store management and wished to seek payment for work he had performed. The management of the market felt the work had been done unsatisfactorily and refused to pay. It was the wish of the management that the citizen not return to the market. The citizen was contacted via telephone by CPD and was advised not to return to the market.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer was flagged down by a dog-sitter on Ocean Avenue who reported the dog slipped out of its leash while being walked and could not be recaptured. Officers attempted to assist with capturing the dog but were met with negative results, as the dog wouldn't allow them to get close enough. The dog was not aggressive and seemed to be only playing. After approximately 45 minutes, the dog ran off and was last seen southbound on Junipero from Ocean Avenue. An area check was made for the dog, but officers were unable to locate it.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to a San Carlos Street hotel for a male in his 60s with severe stomach cramps. Patient taken to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched
