State seeks to rebuild lagoon sandbar

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN THE topsy-turvy world of Carmel River Lagoon sandbar management, one agency aims to keep the lagoon from overflowing, while another strives to keep it full.

When the California Coastal Commission meets in San Francisco Thursday, May 7, the watchdog agency will consider an application by California State Parks to increase the water level in the lagoon by building up the sand berm that stops the surface flow of Carmel River water to the sea in late spring.

In contrast, the Monterey County Public Works Department applies every winter for an emergency permit to cut the sandbar to relieve pressure in the lagoon, which swells with water after it rains and threatens nearby homes with flooding. The work typically occurs in December or January.

But by the middle of spring, it's unlikely the lagoon could threaten the homes adjacent to the lagoon, and that's when state parks wants to rebuild the berm.

"The sole purpose of the project is to enhance fish and wildlife habitat," explained Ken Gray, state parks planner. "We'll have more freshwater and less saltwater in the lagoon. It's good for steelhead to have freshwater in the summer. Hopefully, more will survive."

The Carmel River's steelhead trout are classified by the federal government as a threatened species, although they are very plentiful around the world.

According to Gray, the work on the berm will begin each year in April, May or June — depending upon how high the water level is.

"We want to keep water in the lagoon while the river is still flowing, but has been reduced to just a trickle," he explained. "Then, we'll bring heavy equipment on the beach to raise the beach berm so the lagoon will fill."

Despite the use of bulldozers, Gray said the project will hardly leave a mark on the landscape. "There is nothing permanent about our work," he explained. "Waves will reshape the beach in the fall and winter. Sand movement will obliterate any trace of our bulldozers."

Council puts off Flanders decision

■ Preservationists apparently want delay in public vote

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER HEARING two hours of public comment Tuesday — including complaints that limiting speakers to three minutes each was unfair and 24 hours didn't provide adequate time to review the 120-plus-page report — the Carmel City Council decided Tuesday to delay further discussion of the fate of Flanders Mansion. The April 28 meeting was the first step in putting the question of selling the historic house in Mission Trail park to a public vote.

The council had been poised to decide on certifying the environmental impact report, adopting conditions of sale and a plan for offsetting its environmental impacts, deciding to pursue the sale of the property and setting a date

"for hearing of protests against the sale of public park land," as required by law. Now, council members are tentatively scheduled to take the matter up at a special meeting during the week of May 11, and written comments from the public are due in city hall by close of business May 4.

In the report he compiled for the meeting, planner Brian Roseth said the forest and beach commission, the historic resources board and the planning commission all recommended the city council certify the EIR as adequate and move ahead with the process. And an independent economic analysis concluded selling the mansion for use as a private

Pfeiffer bridge on its way from Alabama

By KELLY NIX

JUST IN time for the busy summer tourist season, officials with the California Department of Parks and Recreation purchased a $400,000 temporary bridge from an Alabama company and expect to have it installed at the entrance to Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park by the end of May.

The temporary one-lane bridge will replace the

P.G. High's new stadium nearly complete

By KELLY NIX

NO LONGER will it be an embarrassment for Pacific Grove High School to host football games, soccer matches and other sporting events.

That's because, in two weeks, the school will have a new $7 million athletic stadium to replace the dilapidated one in use since the 1960s.

"The new stadium is going to be quite a facility," said P.G. Unified School District assistant superintendent Robin Blakley.

The stadium, under construction since June 2008, will be completed May 15 and dedicated May 30. This week, construction crews were installing a rubberized track to replace the old dirt one.

The stadium features upgraded aluminum bleachers, synthetic grass field, snack bar, scoreboard, field house and wheelchair access. It also features an upgraded parking lot and walkway to the field.

And Blakley said graduation ceremonies for the PGHS class of 2009 will be conducted at the new stadium June 5.

The stadium was paid for by taxpayers through a $42 million bond made possible through Measure D, which voters approved in June 2006 to renovate P.G. schools.

"We have had a lot of community support," Blakley said.

The athletic field was designed to host football, soccer, track and field, lacrosse and other events. It will also be open — on a reservation basis — for the community to use for various events.

"It is intended to be a community resource, not just a school resource," he said.

Blakley said the project is on time, but there were some unexpected costs that amounted to about $160,000.

The field has been in place several months, and now the grandstands, snack bar, field house and running track are also nearly ready for use.

Idea to place WWII guns at P.G. lighthouse fizzles

By KELLY NIX

THE PLAN to place large World War II guns on the grounds of the Pacific Grove Lighthouse has been dropped because the guns do "not fit into our tentative landscaping plans," according to an official with the Pacific Grove Heritage Society.

The idea was to display 155mm, disabled guns near the lighthouse to honor their role in deterring Japan from invading the United States in the months after Pearl Harbor.

But the planned display of the guns, proposed in January by heritage society member Ken Hinshaw, has fizzled.

"There are no plans now, nor do we anticipate any plans that will involve placement of any cannons or guns on the Point Pinos lighthouse grounds," said Dennis Tarmina, vice president of the heritage society.

After the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, when the nation feared a Japanese invasion through several points on the California coast, including Monterey Bay, the large-caliber guns were positioned at Point Pinos and manned by African-American soldiers with the 54th Coast Artillery unit. Their mission was to sink any Japanese ships that might appear over the horizon.

While Japanese vessels patrolled the coast of North America during the war, and even shelled Oregon and Santa Monica, no invasion of the mainland was attempted.

Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History director Lori Mannel still supports the idea of a display to honor the World War II defense of the coast but said nobody else is working on getting guns placed at the lighthouse.

"It's a great idea," Mannel said, "so hopefully it will be championed by someone at a later time."

During the war, most Monterey Peninsula residents knew the Pt. Pinos emplacement existed, because the artillery practice could be heard from miles away. But it was top secret, which means few records of it exist. Local news media at the time apparently never mentioned it.

The guns were at the lighthouse from 1941 until the war ended.

The 155mm guns, nicknamed the "Long Tom," could fire more than 40 rounds per hour of high explosive, chemical, smoke or illuminating shells.

The black servicemen, some of whom were former players of the Negro Baseball League, spent their off hours competing with Pacific Grove teenage "twilight" softball leagues, who were so-called because of the wartime restrictions on using artificial light after dark.

Did you know...

The United Nations - Monterey may be an international language capital now with the Defense Language Institute at the Presidio and the Monterey Institute of International Studies turning out linguists who frequently work for the United Nations. But before those schools were established, the Peninsula was considered a possible headquarters location for U.N. That was back in the 1940s before the new world organization decided to settle in New York City. Samuel F. B. Morse offered 500 acres of land in Del Monte Forest "without restrictions" to the U.N. if the organization would like to build its headquarters here. "I did it myself because I didn't think anybody else had the territory to offer," Morse told The Herald in 1945. He discussed it with the U.S. Secretary of State while he was a guest in his home, Morse said, then supplied complete data on the Peninsula climate, geographic and scenic advantages. The Peninsula was one of about 20 locations considered before the U.N. in 1946 decided to settle in New York City. (Next: Morse Offers 500 Acres to the Monterey Peninsula Country Club)

Chamber honors volunteers, members

MEMBERS OF the Carmel Chamber of Commerce gathered for lunch at Rancho Cañada last week to celebrate nearly 90 years of promoting business in the city and to honor some of their own.

At the 2009 Membership Luncheon April 23, Hofsas House proprietor Carrie Theis was named Volunteer of the Year for 2008 for her work as president of the Carmel Innkeepers Association, and as a member of the boards of the chamber and the Monterey County Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Spirit of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce awards went to longtime Carmel resident and visitor center volunteer Kay Prine (known as Carmel Kay) and radio host Gary Hamada, who hosted the "For Locals Only" program on KRML for four years.

Businesses belonging to the chamber for five, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 35 and 40-plus years were honored as well. Records go back to 1964, when 32 members were already on the books — including The Carmel Pine Cone, which was founded in 1915.

The newest member to join the 40+ Club is the Carmel Insurance Agency.

Strid quits planning commission after more than a decade

By MARY BROWNFIELD

“I THINK the only thing I’ll be remembered for is the gargoyle on the chimney,” Bill Strid commented Friday, the morning after his final meeting as a member of the Carmel Planning Commission.

The rooftop beastie — to which he was the sole opponent when the homeowners sought permission to install it in 2006 — generated more letters to the editor and comments than most major projects, and even inspired a cartoon by Pine Cone artist Bill Bates, but it was just one of the myriad proposals Strid heard during nearly a dozen years on the commission.

Strid has already moved to San Francisco, and at the April 24 special meeting held to discuss the EIR on the sale of Flanders Mansion (which the commission approved and sent to the city council with a recommendation the mansion be sold or leased as a private home), Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston thanked him for his service.

“You have earned the deepest respect and gratitude of all Carmelites for your careful — not careless — and thoughtful — not thoughtless — adherence to the goals, objectives and policies of our general plan, and to the ordinances, guidelines and master plans of Carmel-by-the-Sea,” she said. “Your deliberations and decisions were always based on your long-term vision of what was best for the city you served.”

Strid, a trained architect working for the Army Corps of Engineers at the Presidio of San Francisco, moved to the Peninsula with his companion (now spouse), Warren Bryant, in 1977, when he was assigned to Fort Ord as assistant residential engineer. After living in and working on homes in Carmel Valley, Corral de Tierra and Otter Cove in the highlands, they moved into a house on Monte Verde Street.

While planning changes for it, Strid became a regular in city hall and befriended then-planner Chip Rerig, who encouraged him to apply for appointment to the planning commission.

“I had just retired, and I said it would probably be interesting and keep me off the streets,” Strid recalled. “As a result of that, [then-Mayor] Ken White called and said he was interviewing for positions, and he asked me to come in.”

Strid had lived in Carmel less than a year when the mayor and council appointed him to the commission.

The good and the bad

In the intervening years, Strid has had a say in hundreds of projects large and small, from illegal skylights, to the Cypress Inn expansion and the new Richard MacDonald gallery. He’s debated the fates of Flanders Mansion and the

Local Doctors Restore Men’s Sex Life Erectile Dysfunction Clinic Opens in Monterey

DAVID ARCHER—

MONTEREY — A team of local physicians are part of the Male Performance Medical Partnership, a new clinic that opened recently in Monterey, specializing in only one unique, niche area—men’s sexual performance.

Erectile dysfunction and premature ejaculation have long been a problem for millions of men nationwide. In spite of the popularity of recent medications such as Viagra, Levitra and Cialis, many men either are not helped by these medications or cannot take them due to medical conditions and adverse side effects.

The Male Performance Medical Partnership employs several local physicians. “We successfully help almost every patient we see here,” says Clinic Medical Director Dr. John Weaver, “and we’ve treated men from as young as twenty-one to as old as eighty-nine. Men with diabetes, heart conditions, bypass surgery, high blood pressure, prostate problems and surgery, you name it and we’ve treated them.

Regardless of age or medical condition, our results every day are amazing.”

The treatment method, the MP2 Protocol, is a blend of FDA-approved medications, and no surgery is involved. “Our doctors can adjust the dosage for a man’s performance to 45 minutes, an hour, 90 minutes or longer,” according to Dr. Weaver, “and we offer a simple guarantee: If you don’t respond to our medication on the very first visit, it’s free.”

With that guarantee, local patients have nothing to lose. The clinic books appointments far in advance but can occasionally accommodate someone quickly. Saturday appointments are also available. Patients are assured of the utmost privacy and professionalism with private waiting rooms and an all-male staff. Further information is available by calling (831) 373-1955, or toll-free at (800) 380-5070. Male Performance Medical Partnership (an affiliate of Sacramento Male Performance Clinic), 1010 Cass St., Monterey, CA 93940. www.sacramentomaleclinic.com

Seeking Big Sur waterfall vista, visitors create highway hazard

By CHRIS COUNTS

HOME TO Big Sur's most famous waterfall, Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park has been closed to the public since last summer's wildfires. But according to locals, that isn't stopping visitors from coming to the park — and creating a dangerous parking situation along Highway 1 in the process.

"When I drive down the coast on Sundays, I notice that just about every wide spot on the shoulder where the park is filled with cars," observed Jim Cronan, a Carmel Valley resident who works in Big Sur on weekends.

What Cronan and others have repeatedly witnessed are cars pulling in and out of traffic where there is little visibility. "I figure at some point, somebody's going to make a bad guess, and somebody's going to be hurt or killed."

Under normal circumstances, few motorists leave their cars along the highway. Extensive parking is available east of Highway 1 and a convenient pedestrian tunnel beneath the road allows visitors to access a popular overlook, where they can view picturesque McWay Falls.

Yet on a recent Sunday afternoon, more than a dozen cars were lined up along the scenic route, while the parking area to the east was empty. Perhaps the park's closure has led to the mistaken perception that the parking area is not open.

Some motorists slowed to a snail's pace as they searched for places to park. Meanwhile, others — particularly those parked along the west side of the highway — flipped dangerous U-turns on a curve with little visibility.

Brian Wiest, a public information officer for the California Highway Patrol, is quite familiar with the parking issues on this stretch of road because he served as Big Sur's resident CHP until as recently as February.

"There's nothing illegal about parking on the shoulder, but I was very aggressive about ticketing anybody who parks on the white line or over it," Wiest said. "For the really serious cases, we would have them towed, but that usually doesn't work because it takes a tow truck an hour to get down there, and most people are only there for about 20 minutes."

It would seem the easiest solution to the dilemma would be to simply post signs prohibiting parking on both sides of the highway adjacent to the park. But even if it was determined that parking on the shoulder should be made illegal, it could take months to get the signs up.

Burn ban begins Friday

THE SEASON for backyard burning ended Thursday, and controlled burns won't be allowed in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties again until Dec. 1, according to the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District. Burns to dispose of dead and dry vegetation in residential yards, or to clear areas slated for housing and commercial development, are only legal between Dec. 1 and April 30.

Controlled burns are prohibited in late spring, summer and fall to help preserve air quality and reduce fire danger. Vegetation fires release carbon monoxide, nitrogen oxides, particulate matter and hydrocarbons, some of which combine to form smog.

But the burn ban does not pertain to "agricultural burning, recreational and ceremonial fires, or use of in-home fireplaces/wood stoves and outdoor barbecues."

In general, officials at the air pollution control district would prefer people avoid open burning as much as possible. Instead, they suggest using green-waste pickup offered by trash-collection companies, composting, chipping, grazing animals or transporting green waste to the dump, where it can be turned into mulch.

Fire department's new toy is in the house

By MARY BROWNFIELD

NEARLY TWO years after firefighters began discussing what they would want in a new engine, the half-million-dollar machine they ordered rolled into the Carmel firehouse April 10.

Manufactured by Pierce in Appleton, Wis., the engine will be put into to service as soon as all of the necessary equipment is installed and all the engineers have learned how to drive it, according to engineer Kenny Hutchinson, who oversees the CFD fleet and ran the committee in charge of designing and ordering the custom-built apparatus.

The new rig will replace the E-One, which the city bought in 1999, as the first engine dispatched to an emergency. The E-One will take the second-out spot, with the oldest set of wheels — a 1988 Beck — remaining in the station for back-up as needed.

The Pierce Saber PUC Pumper is, of course, equipped with the latest bells and whistles. It's quieter, roomier and more easily accommodates the self-contained breathing tanks, saws and other bulky pieces of equipment firefighters need in the line of duty. Its LED flashers are bright and effective, its floodlights easier to use, and its reflective striping, lettering and decals more slick and detailed than on the older engines.

It also had to be lowered and shortened to fit in the engine bay in the old fire station, which is quite a bit smaller than most modern firehouses.

"We have a 70-page spec sheet that's basically the entire engine, from axles to lights," Hutchinson said, referring to level of detailed planning that went into the machine.

To save money, the department decided to install some of the equipment, such as brackets and hardware, itself, and have a local contractor deal with radios and communications technology. Another shop is putting the rear camera and navigation tools in place.

When it's ready to roll, the three CFD engineers will have to familiarize themselves with the new engine's dimensions and turning radius, and take a DMV course before they can run calls. They'll train at the Monterey Airport, which also ordered two new engines from Pierce at the same time.

"The airport has been kind enough to allow us to do the DMV driving course, and the pump and foam training at their facility," Hutchinson said.

The Pierce has a pump-and-roll feature, meaning it can be pumping water out while moving. "If you have to fight a brush fire that's moving, instead of chasing the fire on foot, we can drive and follow it," he explained. "It saves a lot of time, and saves a lot of energy and effort for the firefighters, since they don't have to carry all that hose."

The Pierce will also make maintenance easier. "The new apparatus is designed to greatly reduce downtime, with ease of access to the pump, the plumbing and the fittings," he said. "They say this apparatus will actually cut about a quarter of the time it takes to replace and repair the items."

Hutchinson estimated the new engine, which is costing taxpayers $435,982 plus another $71,479 in interest, will be rolling to fires and other emergencies by mid-May.

The Art of CARPETING & DECOR

with Dan Jones

FLOOR SHOW

One of the most important decorating considerations you can make when purchasing a rug is the color of the floor that will lie beneath it. Think of the relationship between a rug and its flooring as a picture and its frame. It is important to coordinate these two elements. Whatever flooring is in place, it belongs to a certain color family (i.e., it could have a yellow or pinkish cast). You must pay attention to that color because it should be picked up in the rug. It is not enough to think of floor as simply "wood" since wood is not a color. Look deeper than that, and then select a rug that contrasts with the floor, or complements it.

Soft and subtle or boldly bright, monochromatic or multi-colored, or purpose is to give your own personality true visibility and meaning through the design and decor of your home or office. We listen to our clientele so that we can help them select the right floor decor to suit their lifestyle and budget. It really can be done, and CARPETS & FLOORS, INC. does it well. Stop by soon and see why many of your neighbors in Monterey choose us as the fun place to shop for all their flooring needs. Only our very best will do.

HINT: When shopping for a rug, look at it from two perspectives - straight down and from a distance.

DUI HIT-AND-RUN THAT KILLED 17-YEAR-OLD SET FOR TRIAL

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TWO MEN accused in the DUI hit-and-run accident that killed a Big Sur teenager will be put on trial July 13, a Monterey County Superior Court judge ruled last week.

Christopher Tindall and Mark Hudson face multiple charges in the Aug. 28, 2008, crash on Highway 1 near

Cinco de Mayo DUI crackdown

IF YOU plan on celebrating Cinco de Mayo with a few margaritas or bottles of Negra Modelo, get someone else to drive. Police throughout the Monterey Peninsula will be on the lookout for drunken drivers this Friday and Saturday night, even though the holiday itself isn't until Tuesday. They will embark on similar campaigns later this spring and summer for Memorial Day and Independence Day weekends.

Taxpayers cover the costs of the extra patrols, which are imposed in 40 California counties during particularly celebratory times of the year, and which seem to be working. In 2008, the state registered the lowest number of traffic fatalities in 33 years, and last year's rates were 12 percent below 2007's.

Victims' rights ceremony

LOCAL CRIME victims and the people who take care of them will be honored during a May 1 ceremony at the Salinas courthouse to mark the end of National Crime Victims' Rights Week.

The nationwide annual recognition seeks "to promote victims' rights and services, and to educate our communities about the devastating impact of crime on victims, neighborhoods, schools and our nation as a whole," according to the Monterey County District Attorney's Office, which fields some 20,000 criminal cases each year.

Crime victims and representatives of the various agencies that assist them will be honored at noon Friday at the Salinas Courthouse Government Center in the board of supervisors chambers, 168 W. Alisal St. in Salinas. For more information, call Pamela Patterson at (831) 755-5070.

Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park.

On April 23, Tindall's new defense attorney, Frank Dice, asked another Monterey County Superior Court judge to examine the preliminary evidence in the case and determine whether enough existed to hold him to the charges. Another judge had already decided months ago that Tindall's accusers had enough cause to try him, but requesting such a hearing is common practice when a client hires a new lawyer, according to county prosecutor Doug Matheson.

"On Wednesday in Judge [Russell] Scott's court, there was a hearing on whether charges against Mr. Tindall should be dismissed based on whether there is enough evidence," Matheson said.

Scott decided there is, and the following day, Judge Terrance Duncan schedule the case to go to trial in July.

Complicated events

During the intervening months, attorneys on both sides will collect information, interview people they want to call during the trial, and exchange information with the other side, as required by law. Matheson said he expects to call about a dozen people to testify if the case goes before a jury.

On June 11, the attorneys will meet with the judge to see if any agreements can be reached without jurors ever hearing the facts.

"Many times, we can anticipate how a jury will look at the evidence, and we can resolve the case without a trial," Matheson explained. If they can't decide on pleas or resolution, jury selection is scheduled to begin July 13.

Given the complexity of the events that unfolded the night of the accident, a trial could take some time. The accident occurred shortly before 2 a.m., when, after leaving a bar in Big Sur and heading south on Highway 1, Tindall reportedly lost control of his 2006 Chevy HHR near Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, swerved off the road, struck an embankment and overturned. The SUV came to rest on its left side in the southbound lane.

He allegedly fled, leaving two passengers, a 26-year-old man and 17-year-old Rachel Wiesjahn, who died at the scene. Moments later, a Ford pickup driven by another alleged drunken driver, Mark Hudson, crashed into the Chevy.

Hudson also reportedly left, with the help of another man, Allen Duarte, who assisted in towing Hudson's truck from the accident site.

Tindall turned himself in later that morning, and Hudson was arrested at the hospital, where he had gone to seek treatment many hours after the wreck.

Hudson and Tindall are accused of vehicular manslaughter, felony hit-and-run causing great bodily injury, and other charges, and will be tried jointly. Duarte was also initially arrested for being an accessory, but Matheson dropped the charge against him in order to use his testimony in the case.

Local pitcher not ready to let go of big league dream

By CHRIS COUNTS

FORMER PACIFIC Grove High School pitcher Kyffin Marcum is hoping for a chance to make it to the big time.

Every year, thousands of high school and college baseball players are forced to accept the cold reality that they don't possess enough talent to play professional baseball, much less make it to the major leagues. For most of them, finding a needle in a haystack is more likely than cashing a paycheck for playing the game they love.

After college, Marcum wasn't picked in the Major League Baseball draft. But he isn't quite ready to hang up his baseball cleats. Next month, he'll travel to Rockford, Ill., where he'll compete for the closer's job on the roster of the River Cats, who play in the independent Pioneer League, which functions as an intermediary step between college baseball and the minor leagues. Its rosters are filled with ex-college players, former high-school stars and fading professionals simply trying to keep their baseball dreams alive.

Marcum realizes he's facing a tough challenge to make it to the big leagues, and he's trying to keep it all in perspective. But that doesn't mean he's not giving professional baseball his best shot.

"My ultimate goal is to make it to the major leagues, but for now I'm going to just concentrate on what I'm doing and hopefully turn it into something better," explained Marcum, who served as a pitching coach this year for P.G. High School and also works in the off-season at Spanish Bay to offset the meager salary he receives playing for Rockford.

While many parents would question the sanity of a son who won't give up his boyhood dreams, Marcum counts his family among his strongest and steadiest supporters.

YOUR SOURCE FOR NEWS, THE ARTS AND OPINION SINCE 1915

*'They love us ...
they really,
really love us!'*

Here's what our readers are saying —

- "I get The Pine Cone every week and enjoy it more than you can know. What a wonderful paper you have. I read every word!"
- "I just wanted to let you know how truly outstanding The Pine Cone is. The writing equals, if not exceeds, top-notch national papers. You and your staff should be proud. I know I've told you before how great I think The Pine Cone is, but it really is a terrific paper."
- "Thank you for providing balanced and researched reporting and upbeat articles. I hope we have The Pine Cone around for many years to come. If it gets down to it, I would pay for the subscription to keep the paper viable."
- "We poll our ticket buyers as to where they hear about our concerts. You might be surprised to learn how many of them mention The Pine Cone. Thanks!"
- "Thanks for the consistently great job you do with your newspaper. I regularly read several newspapers from around the country, and yours has the best editorial integrity — bar none. Keep up the good work!"
- "I look forward to The Pine Cone more than you will ever know."
- "The Pine Cone used to be my Friday morning habit, and now it's my Thursday night habit. I also love the fact I can get the entire paper online when I'm out of town."
- "I am a regular advertiser in your paper, and I have been meaning to tell you how much I enjoy your writing. It accomplishes exactly what I guess you want it to: I always want to read on. I appreciate and enjoy your talent."
- "I just wanted to tell you how much I appreciate The Pine Cone and the fact that it seems to be the only news medium that does not feel it must serve up a diet of perversion, doom, gloom and controversy in order to glean and keep readers."
- "I am writing to thank you for your excellent newspaper, especially since it is available online. God Bless you and your editorial and production staff."
- "I love your newspaper!"
- "I am so grateful to read all about the local news."
- "I just want to tell you how much I enjoy receiving The Pine Cone online ... it keeps me connected with Carmel. I love what you guys do."
- "I don't know where all the good reporters have gone, but I sure miss them when I read other local papers. Keep up the good work. Your community needs you."
- "I can't begin to tell you how much I look forward to The Pine Cone. It gives me more news in one week and one edition than the Herald does all week. You and your staff seem to have an ability to sniff out what is really important and of interest to Carmelites, weed out all the extras, and deliver it in a concise and timely manner. I can't thank you enough for it."
- "I love Carmel and your enticing commentary. You're creative."
- "Probably 50 people came to our event because of the article you printed. I kept asking people, 'How did you hear about this?' and pretty much to a person, they said, 'The article in the paper,' which meant The Pine Cone. Thank you so much."
- "I have always been amazed at your editorials in The Pine Cone, in that I do not believe I have ever disagreed with one of them. From taxes and the economy, to our current leaders, the crazy historical preservation efforts in Carmel and our court system, you have been a voice of sane reason in an increasingly insane world. I call you the 'anti-Chronicle,' and, believe me, that is a huge compliment."
- "Thank you for your excellent, easy-to-read, always-appreciated newspaper."
- "Your team is doing a great job! I have been a subscriber for a while now. The paper lets me know what's going with my Favorite Place On Earth."

home is the most viable option, while finding someone to lease it as a home or low-impact public use, or a group to buy it for public use, is less likely.

'Don't sell'

City attorney Don Freeman explained the task before the council. "The city council is not voting on the sale of Flanders Mansion," he told the overflowing crowd in city council chambers. "This is just a series of steps toward a future ballot where the residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea will be able to decide. They are the ones who will make the decision whether parkland should be sold, not the city council."

Nonetheless, as has occurred in the past, dozens of people stepped up to share their opinions on the sale, with a few commenting on the adequacy of the EIR and other documents.

A participant in Maryland's "resident curatorship" program — in which someone fixes up an historic home in exchange for the right to occupy it for life — said the economic analysis was incomplete because it did not consider the possibility of a similar setup. (His presence at the hearing and interest in Flanders Mansion were not explained.)

Attorney Skip Lloyd, who opposes the sale and complained at length about the three-minute limit, said the EA was unfair because it just looked for the most profitable alternative, even though profit is not a stated objective of the sale. He also delivered a thick document highlighting other deficiencies and urged the council to read his comments before deciding anything. "I'm not sure I could get through these in three minutes, or even three hours," he said.

More than 20 people testified against selling Flanders, saying doing so would irreparably harm the adjacent Mission Trail Nature Preserve, create an in-holding and violate city policies.

After trying for years to find a public use for the building, spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in legal bills and other expenses toward a sale, a drawn-out lawsuit and decades of debating the pros and cons of owning Flanders Mansion, some sale opponents called for collaboration by city officials, preservationists and nearby residents.

"I think the possibilities for negotiation are still very rich, if we have the imagination and the will for it," commented John Hicks.

Even though revising the EIR again would delay an election on the issue, Flanders Foundation members, the group's president, Melanie Billig — who in the past said she wants voters to decide Flanders' fate — and its attorney, Susan Brandt-Hawley, took turns pointing out flaws in the studies, including the fact the EIR did not consider what would happen to the house if a government agency bought it. According to law, the city must offer the mansion to other public entities before seeking a private buyer.

(In November 2005, Billig said she would support a public vote. "It's undemocratic for the people of this community not to have a vote," she told The Pine Cone at the time. "We want the people to say, 'Yeah,' or 'Nay,' and then let the chips fall where they may.")

'Sell'

About a dozen people who live on Hatton Road and elsewhere near the mansion encouraged the city to sell it as a private home, just as it was when it was built more than 80 years ago. In testimony and more than 40 letters, residents disputed the contention Flanders' return to private ownership would damage the park or the public's use and enjoyment of the surrounding acreage.

Bertie Bialek, who lives nearby, supported certification of the EIR and selling the house to a family, because of concerns that public use of the home would increase traffic on Hatton Road. She also said a question arose in her mind after opponents made various arguments that the mansion should be kept public because it is in the middle of a park, and that raising funds to preserve it and dealing with parking would not be difficult.

"If all these things are true, then why not build a road from the Carmel side?" she asked.

Pat Sippel recalled serving for eight years on a committee tasked with figuring out how to use Flanders. "We looked at many, many, many things we thought would be good solutions," she said. "This has been looked at upside down, inside out and every other way, and it always came down to the neighbors."

Although she pointed out the fact the neighbors would not be allowed to participate, since they live outside the city limits, Sippel said, "We should put this to a vote. Let the people decide."

After the public hearing closed, council members took a break to go over the comments and meet with the team of consultants working on the Flanders sale. They reconvened 40 minutes later, and Freeman told the audience he recommended putting off further discussion and deliberation until mid-May.

"A lot of information has been presented to the public in a very short timeframe, as late as today," he said. "We would like to extend the public the courtesy and opportunity to submit written comments."

They are due in city hall by the close of business Monday, May 4, and Freeman said they should focus on "things not brought up tonight." Since the public hearing was closed, it will not be reopened at the next Flanders meeting, except perhaps to deal with specific new material, according to Freeman. "We're trying to create a record, and we want to assure the public that everybody gets heard and everyone has the opportunity to give input," he said.

Sand City 'ecoresort' developer wins suit against water district

By KELLY NIX

A JUDGE ruled this week that the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District must reconsider its March decision to deny a water permit for a proposed resort in Sand City.

On March 26, MPWMD directors refused to issue developer Ed Ghandour a water distribution permit for his proposed $300 million "ecoresort," called Monterey Bay Shores. Ghandour, in turn, filed a legal motion challenging the district's authority to refuse to issue the permit.

On Wednesday, Monterey County Superior Court Judge

Roger Randall ruled the district had to set aside its decision and rehear the matter within 30 days.

"I think the court did the right thing," Ghandour told The Pine Cone after the hearing.

The MPWMD's attorneys contended that water from the Seaside Aquifer the resort is entitled to would be commingled with Carmel River water certain times of the year. They argued that using that mixed water could have an effect on the Peninsula's water supply.

But Randall didn't agree.

Randall also said that there was no need for a review under the California Environmental Qualities Act to explore the water mixing issue as the district had sought.

During the winter when Carmel River flows are highest, water is pumped to the Seaside Aquifer then pumped to a large storage tank. The storage tank contains both Carmel River and aquifer water.

Before making his ruling, Randall said he was not concerned about any "philosophical or political concerns" that may have influenced the water board's decision to deny Ghandour his permit.

Ghandour has accused MPWMD directors of denying the permit because they are antigrowth and want to stop the development.

Ghandour is entitled to to 149 acre feet of water but would use only 90 acre feet for the resort. Under an agreement, California American Water Co. would pump and distribute the water to the resort.

The 161-room ecoresort would be located across from Seaside High School west of Highway 1. The resort would use state-of-the-art sustainable design, including wind power and solar energy, Ghandour contends.

Though a date for the MPWMD board to rehear the matter hasn't been scheduled, the board's next meeting is May 20.

Last week, Ghandour filed a motion in a San Francisco court last week to prevent the California Coastal Commission from holding a public hearing on the development May 7.

He said the commission should have waited for a public hearing after the resort was issued a water distribution permit. Ghandour also said he and his attorneys were not notified by the commission of the hearing.

A San Francisco judge heard the matter Thursday.

"The judge said that if the coastal commission keeps it on the agenda, then we can go back to court for a remedy," Ghandour told The Pine Cone after the hearing.

Meanwhile, the coastal commission's staff issued its report on the project this week, recommending the ecoresort's permit be denied because of an inadequate water supply, erosion and habitat concerns, blocked public views and highway congestion issues.

The coastal commission is set to hold a public hearing on the resort May 7 at 9 a.m. at the Hyatt Regency Embarcadero in San Francisco.

STADIUM

"They found out there was quite a bit more water under the field, which had to be addressed," Blakley said. "It's not unusual for a project of this scope to see a 15 percent deviation [in cost], and we are below that."

Andy Miller, commercial division manager for DMC Construction, said as many as 50 workers were involved in the stadium project.

"We at DMC are very pleased about how this project has progressed," Miller said, "and the positive working relationship we've had with the school district, the architects and the rest of the design team."

While construction for the stadium has been under way, football games were held at Monterey Peninsula College's athletic field. Soccer games were played at P.G. High's practice field above the stadium. Track meets were held at Stevenson School.

TRAILS

Padres National Forest, which has been closed to the public since last summer's wildfires.

"We really feel like the trails are in good enough condition now," explained John Bradford, Monterey district ranger for the forest service. "Also, we've received a ton of requests from the public, so we're trying to meet the public's desire."

Although most of the trails in the forest will be open May 1, the Pine Ridge Trail between Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Redwood Camp will remain closed due to rockslides and fallen trees. The 15-mile route along the Big Sur River is by far the most popular trail in Big Sur, mostly because it's the only way to reach the Sykes camp "hot springs" (which are actually just muddy and lukewarm). Bradford said the trail receives more than 70 percent of all foot traffic in the forest.

Also remaining closed is Escondido Camp, where the first major wildfire last summer — the Indians Fire — began. The camp's structures were heavily damaged in the blaze.

It is doubtful that even the loss of the popular Pine Ridge

Trail will deter hikers, who are expected to turn out in droves this weekend to catch the waning days of this year's spectacular wildflower bloom.

The flowers — particularly lupines and poppies — thrive in the aftermath of a fire, and rarely has so much of Big Sur burned in one summer. The local wildflower bloom typically peaks in April. By May, tall grass begins to obscure the flowers, although in June, clarkias add a splash of pink to the landscape.

Big Sur's many trails can accommodate just about any level of hiking ability, and Bradford offered a couple suggestions:

■ Vicente Flat Trail — This five-mile trail offers stunning views of the Big Sur coastline along its first three miles, and it's doubtful you can find a better place to enjoy the wildflowers. By Big Sur standards, the hike isn't very steep, but "steep" in Big Sur is a relative term — it's always a good idea to wear shoes with good ankle support. Also, watch out for ticks, because they're plentiful this spring. The trailhead is located across the highway from Kirk Creek Campground about 60 miles south of Carmel.

■ Carmel River Trail — Starting at Los Padres Dam in Cachagua, the Carmel River Trail meanders beside Los Padres Reservoir and the Carmel River for about 9.5 miles before veering up Hiding Canyon. Along the way, hikers will be treated to a lush canopy of hardwood trees, lush stream-side vegetation and a generous profusion of wildflowers. To get there from Highway 1, drive east on Carmel Valley Road for 15.8 miles. When you reach Cachagua Road, turn right and follow it for 5.8 miles until you reach Princes Camp. From there, turn right and follow Nason Road for a short distance before it ends at a parking lot and trailhead.

■ Salmon Creek Area — A variety of trails and one of Big Sur's most impressive waterfalls make Salmon Creek an ideal destination for hikers. It's a long way from the Monterey Peninsula (about 73 miles along Highway 1), but it's worth the extra travel. The waterfall is located close to the highway, and it's easy to scramble along the creek to reach its base for a refreshing dip. If it's wildflowers you're after, try the Buckeye Trail. Its trailhead is located adjacent to the ranger station just north of Salmon Creek.

A colorful cause for celebration

In Big Sur, the locals will throw a party for just about anything, and this weekend, appropriately, they're celebrating this year's extraordinary wildflower bloom. The Big Sur Lodge Conference Center will host a Big Sur Wildflower Party Saturday, May 2.

Photographer David Gubernick, author of "Wildflowers of Monterey County," will be on hand to talk about the flowers and offer photo tips.

The lodge is located inside Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, about 26 miles south of Carmel. The park is currently closed, but the lodge is open. The event starts at 2 p.m. and admission is free.

The 'Great Crash'

A "WITTY, erudite analysis of 'that most memorable year in our economic history,'" will be the topic of the May meeting of the Carmel Public Library Foundation's nonfiction book club. On May 20 at 4 p.m., the group will meet in the Chapman Room at Sunset Center to discuss Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith's book, "The Great Crash of '29," and the meeting is free and open to the public. Galbraith "filled the role of public economic intellectual from the '50s through the '70s," according to Joy Newman of the CPLF, and he served under four U.S. presidents, including as ambassador to India under President John F. Kennedy. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth in Carmel. For more information, call (831) 624-2811.

Poet's legacy looms at Tor House party

By CHRIS COUNTS

ROBINSON JEFFERS died nearly 50 years ago, but as far as Alan Stacy is concerned, he's more relevant than ever.

"His ecological themes are very relevant today," said Stacy, a docent for the Tor House, which will host its annual Spring Garden Party Sunday, May 3, from 2 to 5 p.m. "His poetry makes us realize how much our lives are entwined with the world around us."

Carmel's most distinguished literary figure, Jeffers lived here from 1914 until his death in 1962. His popularity reached its peak in the 1920s and 1930s, when his poems — often written in the epic style of the ancient Greeks — earned him critical acclaim. His commentary on man's relationship with nature, which came at a time when a growing number of people were becoming disenchanted with an increasingly mechanized world, struck a chord with readers.

Jeffers was also the first resident of Carmel Point, building his home on a untouched, treeless meadow he purchased when he arrived. His family later subdivided the land Jeffers owned, paving the way for today's densely packed neighborhood.

The May 3 celebration will not only pay tribute to Jeffers' legacy as a poet, but will also serve as a showcase for one of Carmel's most fascinating homes, which Jeffers constructed from stones he gathered on the nearby shoreline.

The event will feature live music and art. Bagpiper Ed Jarvis, flutist Marc Rush and a trio of Carmel High School students — Elizabeth Cho on violin, Deanna Lynn on viola and Melissa Martin on cello — will perform. Plein aire artists Johnny Apodaca, Alicia Meheen, Gerard Martin, and Joe Ouwe will paint in the Tor House garden.

The annual celebration also marks the only day of the year when guests can take photographs inside the Tor House and from its landmark tower.

Tickets are $15 for general admission and $10 for seniors. Children must be at least 12 to attend. The Tor House is located at 26304 Ocean View Ave. For more information, visit www.torhouse.org.

Glass illuminates the mystery of the sea

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE SECRET world that lives beneath the waves comes alive in "Sea Forms," an exhibit of ocean-inspired glass art opening Saturday, May 2, at Masaoka Glass Design in Carmel Valley.

"All the forms in the show are created with blown glass, casted glass or lead glass," gallery owner Alan Masaoka explained. "Some of the best glass blowers on the Central California coast will be exhibiting their glass creations in this show."

Included in the exhibit are new works by Masaoka, Treg Silkwood, Candace Martin, Richard Satava, Paul DeSomma and Marsha Blaker, Johnathon Schmuck, M.C. Johnson, Mark Abildgaard, Nancy Francioli, Nick Leonoff, and Jennifer Horning. Paintings by Ellen Henrici and photographs by Robin Robinson will also be on display.

Because of its nature, glass is a versatile and effective medium for creating forms from the sea.

"Water is translucent and glass is translucent," Masaoka observed. "The detail work in all the forms is just amazing."

The gallery will host a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. The show will continue through July 5. The gallery is located at 13766 Center St., behind Will's Fargo Restaurant. For more

FRIENDLY FARMERS, BRAZILIAN FEASTING, PLAYBOYS IN THE GARDEN

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FARMERS MARKETS abound on the Monterey Peninsula, but who says there isn't room for one more? Monterey Bay Certified Farmers Markets, which has been organizing markets here for more than three decades, is launching a new one at Del Monte Center in June.

"Basically, we're partnering with Whole Foods," explained Catherine Barr, MBCFM executive director. "They would like to do more local produce, and we're going to be helping them do that."

The opening date of the market — created at the behest of Del Monte Center — has not been set, but it will be held Sunday mornings from 8 a.m. to noon through October, according to Barr. The market will take place in the small parking area to the right of Whole Foods, keeping the main lot open, and will feature more than 40 vendors.

"We're going to try to incorporate cooking classes with things that are done seasonally," Barr added. "I think it's going to be a really good partnership. Del Monte Center really put out the welcome mat for us."

Reopening for the season next Tuesday, May 12, is the small and relaxed market at the Barnyard shopping center which features about 25 vendors and will have a few new participants this year, according to Barr, including an egg farmer who also grows potatoes, a cheese maker and a honey producer from Corralitos.

"It's a great little market," she said. "We're really looking forward to opening day."

The Barnyard market will be open on Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. from May 12 through September. MBCFM also runs the fabulous farmers market established in 1976 and held year-round at Monterey Peninsula College Thursdays from 2:30 to 6 p.m., and a market in Aptos. www.montereybay-farmers.org.

Take a hike

To help fight blood cancer, Carmen Magnusson at Bistro 211 is holding a fundraising dinner May 5 at the Crossroads restaurant, where chef Jon Magnusson will cook up an inspired feast to help her raise the $4,500 required as part of Team in Training's Hike for the Cure. Team in Training is a well established program that raises money for the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society by helping to train and enroll participants in various endeavors, from marathons and century bicycle rides, to organized hikes venturing into places like the Grand Canyon.

Chef Jon will prepare a traditional Brazilian Feijoada, accompanied by salada de palmito and pudim de leite, for $40 per person, which includes a glass of wine. Dinner will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. For more information, visit www.bistro211.com.

Grow your own

The Hilton Bialek Habitat at Carmel Middle School will host its seventh annual sale Saturday, May 9, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., offering the perfect opportunity to stock up on baby fruit and vegetable plants and trees for your home garden.

Central Coast natives and student-grown organic seedlings are the main draw of the event, which raises money for the habitat project, but the day will also include the Cachagua Playboys serving up their signature Carmel Valley Zydeco, and gardening experts answering all sorts of questions.

Local produce and crafts will be sold during an accompanying farmers' market, and the Monterey Bay chapter of the California Native Plant Society will set up a book table.

The sale will feature native trees, shrubs, flowering plants, ground cover, ferns, seeds and bulbs, as well as organic vegetables and ornamental plants, and people snap them up quickly, so shoppers are encouraged to arrive early for the best selection. And bring your cash or checkbook, since credit cards are not accepted. Carmel Middle School is located at 4380 Carmel Valley Road.

Mother's Day Her Way

Indulge in an array of amazing amuse bouches, hors d'oeuvres and appetizers while your menu order is prepared for service at your table.

Executive Chef Christophe Grosjean has created an exciting new way to enjoy Mother's Day, combining the variety of a buffet with the pleasures of table service.

Not to be outdone, Executive Pastry Chef Ron Mendoza has prepared an exquisite variety of desserts and pastries to finish an extraordinary dining experience.

Seating will be indoors or al fresco in the flower-filled courtyard. Treat your loved ones to this delightful presentation.

Mrs. Betty Gottula

Mrs. Betty Gottula passed away April 19, 2009 peacefully at her home in Carmel. She was born in Kansas City, Missouri June 7, 1923 and was one of two children born to the late Homer and Lura Islee Bredouw. Mrs. Gottula attended Bradford Women's College in Massachusetts and worked at Lord & Taylor in New York City. She married John Anderson, an Air Force officer. After his death, she married Edwin Harbordt of Kansas City, Missouri and lived in Egypt where Mr. Harbordt worked for the Foreign Service. After their divorce in 1962, Mrs. Gottula became a successful real estate agent in the Bay Area. In 1968 she married Ernest Gottula, a real estate broker, and in 1978 made Carmel their home.

Mrs. Gottula's husband Ernie Gottula preceded her in death in 1998. She will be remembered by her sister Josephine Holmes of San Antonio, Texas; daughter Dale Davis and her husband Kevin of Reno, Nevada; son Kurt Harbordt and his wife Patty of Walkersville, Maryland; stepson Barry Gottula and his wife Nicki of Klamath Falls, Oregon; stepson Marc Gottula and his wife Sharon of Kansas City, Missouri; stepdaughter Stacy Palermo and her husband John of Peoria, Arizona. Mrs. Gottula is also survived by four grandchildren Lauren Davis, Kyle Davis, Leah Harbordt and Nicole Harbordt; four step-grandchildren Mason Gottula, Jasper Gottula, Scott Gottula, Todd Gottula and his wife Melody; one step-great-grandchild Edina Gottula. She also has countless friends whom are blessed to have known her. Mrs. Gottula was a bright, witty, and spirited person. She loved the 30 years of living in Carmel.

A memorial service will be scheduled at a later date. The family requests expressions of sympathy to be in the form of memorial contributions sent to the caring people at the Central Coast Visiting Nursing Association (CCVNA) (831)372-6668 or www.CCVNA.com.

Homescapes building numerous times, contributed to master plans for the city's most scenic areas, and helped craft the rules to which designers and builders must adhere.

Among the city's greatest achievements during his tenure, Strid said, were the Design Traditions Project that details the vision for the town, the Local Coastal Program (which was more than 20 years overdue) and the general plan update.

"Design Traditions is a wonderful document that will maintain the essence of Carmel," he said, though he feels it's not used to the greatest possible effect. "I'm not sure it is presented to the public with enough emphasis."

Design Traditions goes into great detail about the look of the city's residential areas and what makes them special, Strid pointed out. "Carmel is not going to be static — it's a dynamic city — and if people looked at the guidelines, there would be a lot less of what people don't want to see," he said, such as "McMansions."

Strid was reluctant to name any particularly wonderful or particularly disappointing designs over which he presided.

"When I drive around town, I see projects I wish we had done a better job on during review, but I'd rather not enumerate those," he said.

He praised designers, contractors and architects who have a grasp of the special elements and looks that make Carmel what it is, and complimented fellow planning commissioners, such as Robin Wilson, for their abilities to focus on the issues and make sound decisions.

"When Robin decides to leave, that's when you're really going to see what a guiding light he is," Strid said.

And he encouraged others to step up and serve.

"Certainly, there is no such thing as apathy in Carmel," he said, and many residents have the interest, time and aptitude to take a seat on the planning commission or another city board.

"A lot of the time, the people who have the talent are hesitant to do it," he observed. "They need to be encouraged to participate."

In San Francisco, Strid and Bryant are living in a condo and keeping an eye out for their next project home.

They will also be busy traveling to the far reaches of the globe, as they have been for years. Next month, they're taking Bryant's sister and niece to Paris, and in July, they're heading for Ecuador.

But serving on San Francisco's planning commission is not in his plans.

"I would think the planning commission in San Francisco would be a far more political body than the planning commission in Carmel, and I am not a really political person," he said. "That's why I never focused on a position other than at the planning commission."

■ A place of his own

One of the Monterey Peninsula's best-loved artists, Johnny Apodaca can now add another accomplishment to his creative legacy — gallery owner.

Twice named "Best Local Artist" at the Carmel Art Festival, Apodaca will occupy the former space of Galerie Plein Aire on Dolores. Galerie Plein Aire, meanwhile, is moving into a space next door that was once home to the Highlands Gallery. "I hope to make it like old Carmel," Apodaca said. "When I came here in 1972, there were galleries where local artists worked, and you could meet them in their studios."

He hopes to open his gallery in early May. For more information, visit www.johnnyapodaca.com.

■ Sculptor's reception

Sculptor Richard MacDonald's latest bronze creations are on display at the Dawson Cole Fine Art Gallery, which will host a reception Saturday, May 2, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

MacDonald, a classically trained painter and illustrator, is celebrating his 20th year as a sculptor. Like many of his sculptures, his newest works are inspired by the Cirque du Soleil performance, "O," at the Bellagio Hotel in Las Vegas.

The exhibit will continue through May 22. The gallery is located at Lincoln and Sixth. For more information, call (800) 972-5528 or visit www.dawsoncofineart.com.

BASEBALL

"They've encouraged me to keep playing," said Marcum, who graduated from P.G. High School in 2002 and Linfield College (Oregon) in 2006. "They want me to pursue what I love to do."

Just earning a spot on an independent league roster was a big challenge for Marcum. Finally, after his fourth tryout, he was offered an opportunity to play for Rockford.

Last season, his first as a professional player, went quite well for Marcum. As a side-armed reliever with a wicked slider, he won six of seven decisions (tying a Rockford record for relief wins), struck out 33 batters in 32 innings and held opponents to a .186 batting average.

Rockford is perhaps best known among baseball fans as a place where women came to pursue their baseball dreams. The 1992 movie, "A League of Their Own," which starred Tom Hanks and Madonna, is based on the story of the Rockford Peaches, although much of the movie was actually filmed at another ballpark in Evansville, Ind.

"We played at the ballpark in Evansville, which is one of the oldest in the country," Marcum added. "You can see the spot where Tom Hanks threw his glove. It's a pretty cool place."

The River Cats open the 2009 season May 21 against the Windy City Thunderbolts. To keep tabs on Marcum's progress, visit www.rockfordriverhawks.com.

Myths on the front page

IT'S AMAZING the kinds of things that are presented as facts by the news media — especially the things that any thinking person would have to realize could not be true, and yet which supposedly knowledgeable and experienced journalists accept without a second thought. Two outstanding examples occurred this week.

■ The filibuster-proof majority

When Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter announced he was switching parties Tuesday, virtually every news outlet presented the announcement as a dramatic change in the legislative makeup of the Senate, potentially giving President Barack Obama a 60-vote, filibuster-proof majority that would clear the way for his ambitious agenda.

But for that to be true, Specter will not only have to switch parties, he will have to switch his position on key issues. In other words, that as a Republican, he would have voted X, but as a Democrat, he will now vote Y.

On the other hand, if his positions on global warming, health care, the economy, and the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq remain what they have been, his party switch will make no difference to the outcome of votes in the Senate.

After his Big Announcement, Specter wasn't asked about changing his positions on specific issues, as far as we could tell. (Probably because everybody knew he would emphatically deny any intention of doing that.) In fact, in numerous press conferences and interviews, he made it perfectly clear he was switching because he already disagreed with Republicans on most issues.

Thus, if President Obama will now have a filibuster-proof majority in the Senate, he also had one before Specter switched parties. Yet the news coverage universally ignored this obvious fact.

Why did Specter become a Democrat? Because he decided he could not be reelected as a Republican. And that's what the headlines should have said, rather than all that nonsense about a sudden change in the prospects for President Obama's preferred legislation.

■ First fired, last hired

On Tuesday, a story appeared on the front page of the Monterey County Herald, and in dozens of other newspapers around the country, claiming that blacks and Hispanics were suffering more in the economic downturn than whites and Asians.

"When things get bad, minorities are the first fired and the last hired," said Roderick Harrison of an outfit called the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies.

His comments went unchallenged by the reporter, Hope Yen of the Associated Press, who evidently believed the racism-is-alive-and-well conclusion was not only newsworthy, but also beyond reproach. At least, she didn't bother to include any doubts about the racism angle in her story.

Unfortunately, the report also didn't present any statistical or even anecdotal evidence that the "first fired, last hired" claim was true. It was based — very flimsily — on a survey that purported to show a decline in wages received by college-educated blacks and Hispanics as compared to their college-educated white and Asian counterparts over the last several years.

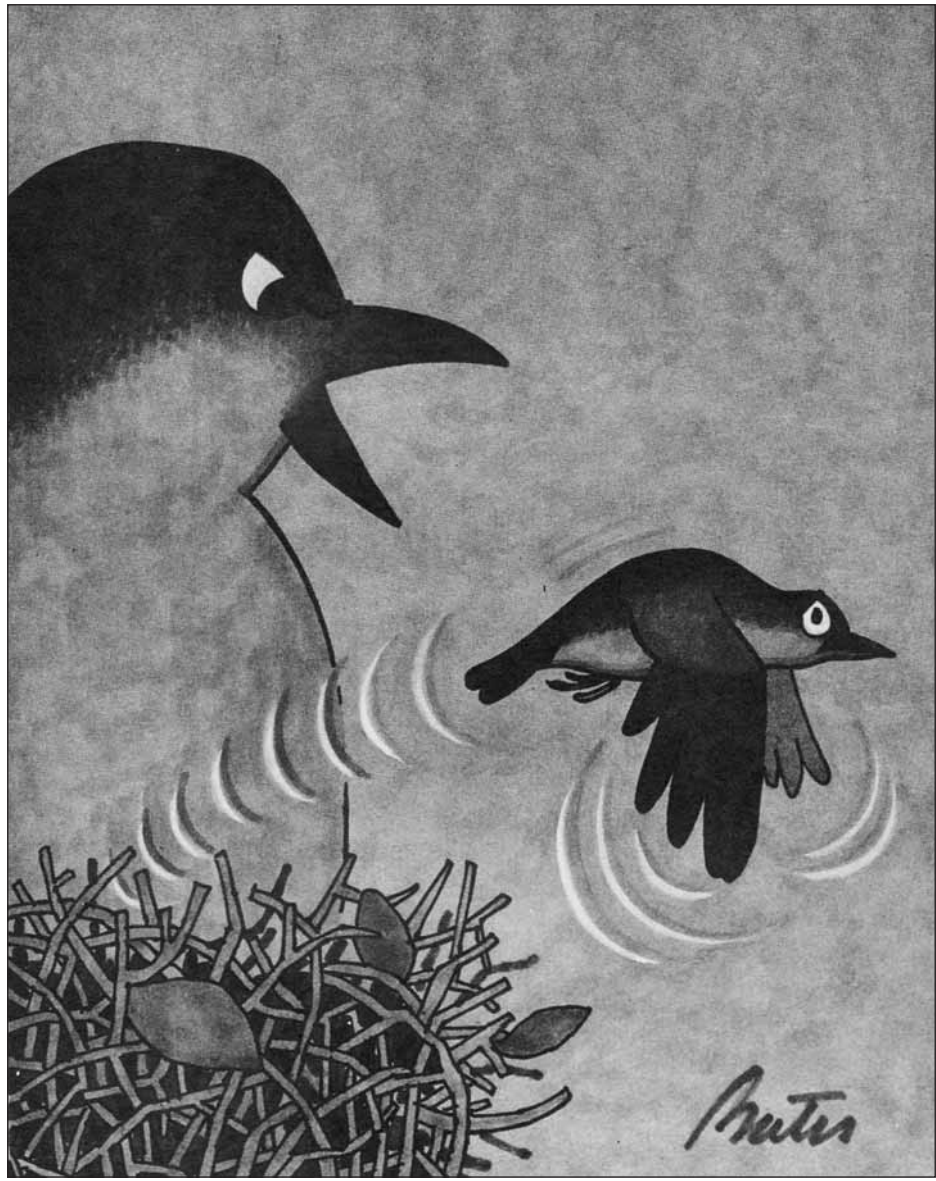

Using that "evidence," Mr. Harrison reached the "first fired, last hired" conclusion on his own. And then his group presumably issued a press release to trumpet the suffering by minorities the group had "discovered" — a press release the AP evidently swallowed hook, line and sinker. And that's how the assertion ended up in your daily newspaper.

Unfortunately for the credibility of the AP and the newspapers that carry its reports, most Americans know that the opposite is usually true. Affirmative action is a major force throughout the United States — in schools from kindergarten to the graduate level, as well as in public and private employment.

Of course, there are still incidents of racial discrimination against minorities in the United States. But far more common is this fact: Minorities are given tons of advantages in school and in workplaces that whites and Asians are denied. Indeed, where blacks and Hispanics are concerned, at most workplaces, the truth is more like "first hired, last fired" than the opposite.

It's a fact that isn't news to anybody ... except journalists, apparently.

Letters to the Editor

How to provide insurance

Dear Editor,

Your April 24 editorial on this country's health insurance situation was illuminating but I must confess I am a little flummoxed. Were you suggesting that health insurance companies have to make a profit, kind of like First Amendment rights guarantees? Each year, hundreds of thousands of people file for bankruptcy because of medical bills they cannot pay. Going bankrupt because of medical bills may appear normal for us, but the rest of the industrialized world finds it uncivilized, if not insane. Obviously, what is insurance to them is something different than what insurance is to us.

In Germany, the government guarantees health insurance; however, it is administered by private insurance companies. If you want to be in the health insurance business in Germany, there are two important conditions. One, you cannot make a profit. And two, you have to accept every applicant, no matter what their health. So, how many insurance companies in Germany want to play by these rules? More than 200.

Taiwan's universal health insurance has administrative costs of 5 percent of the total program. In this country, our administrative costs are around 25 percent. If we could reduce those costs by half (which would still be 2.5 times Taiwan's) we could provide health insurance to all those Americans who now have none.

So you can see there is a way to provide insurance, and then there is a way to provide insurance!

Chris Tescher,
Carmel

'Follow the money'

Dear Editor,

Once again, in your editorial on health insurance, you have done a remarkable job of simply explaining what should be (but quite apparently isn't) obvious to everyone. I agree completely with what you wrote, but want to throw one more wrench into the works. Even if we had an ideal situation where 100 perfectly healthy people put $1,000 apiece into the account to cover costs of unforeseen health needs, in our real world, there would probably only be around $20k of that $100k available for these circumstances. Why? The remaining $80k would be pocketed by the huge pyramid of executives and other middlemen who compose the insurance companies, since, after all, they are in this for the profit. The real cause of the health care crisis is not the fact that people contract catastrophic illnesses. It has to do with the greed of the insurance companies which universally wish to collect premiums and never pay out on claims. The reality is most "health care dollars" are paid to anything but "healthcare." Want to determine the cause of the high cost of healthcare? Take Deep Throat's advice: Follow the money!

The Carmel Pine Cone was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 34750.

'Population bomb' author to speak in P.G. Sunday

THE AUTHOR who in 1968 became a household name after he wrote "The Population Bomb," will sign books and give a lecture in Pacific Grove this Sunday.

Paul Ehrlich, who is the president of the Center for Conservation Biology at Stanford University, will discuss his newest book, "The Dominant Animal," which describes the "genetic and cultural endowments that have enabled humans to dominate the planet."

"The Population Bomb" predicted "the world would experience famines due to population growth outstripping resources."

The event is being sponsored by the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History.

Ehrlich will be at Chautauqua Hall, 16th and Central Avenue in Pacific Grove, Sunday, May 3 at 2 p.m. Admission is $10 for the general public and $8 for museum members.

BRIDGE

park's old bridge that was removed months ago and couldn't be replaced when the state froze funds for thousands of infrastructure projects throughout California.

"The new bridge is en route from Alabama," said Matt Fuzie, district superintendent of California State Parks Monterey District. "And we hope to have it in place and a ribbon cutting ceremony sometime before Memorial Day."

The bridge installation will be a huge relief to the park and Big Sur shops and restaurants, some of which have seen a sharp decline in business because Pfeiffer park's campgrounds were closed since there was no vehicle access.

Because the state couldn't use bond-sales money to pay for a permanent bridge, expected to cost about $1 million, the temporary bridge was paid for from state parks' general fund, Fuzie said.

"It makes sense to spend some dollars to make good money for the community," Fuzie said.

Memorial Day is the kickoff for the park's summer season, its busiest time of year. As many as 1,000 people per day visit the campgrounds during the summer.

The park generates about $1.5 million in camping revenue during the year, and about 75 percent of that revenue during the summer season, while the adjacent Big Sur Lodge makes about $1 million during that time, Fuzie said.

"Every million dollars we bring in, the community is reaping multiple millions," he said.

For the installation of the bridge, Fuzie said state parks hired a local engineering firm, which purchased the bridge from Bailey Bridges, Inc. Installation is expected to begin next week.

The temporary bridge, which will have a signal to regulate alternating one-way traffic, will be in place the rest of the year and will be replaced with a permanent one once state bond money is freed up.

The old bridge was removed last fall after studies showed it could be undermined by potential mudslides caused by erosion from three separate wildfires last summer, which burned about a quarter-million acres and closed off much of the coastal area to visitors. It couldn't be put back because engineers determined it was not sound enough to reinstall.

The park had been undergoing a major renovation project when the old bridge was removed.

Meanwhile, the park's softball field, which has also been closed because it was used a storage area for construction materials, is in the process of being cleared.

"We are trying to clean up the softball field and get that open and available for summer use," Fuzie said.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

JACK & BABU Altwies, 1 and 8, respectively, are cotons de Tulear living in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Their dad, Jason, is off at Linfield College in Oregon pursuing a higher education. He's left the care of Jack and Babu to his parents, Tim and Gisele, who bring the boys to Carmel Beach every day.

The cotons haven't ventured into the ocean, except by mistake, but they love to play on the hard-packed sand down at water's edge. Off leash, they stay within ear-shot and can be called back at any time, as is required of all Carmel Beach dogs.

Young Jack has only been in the family for three weeks.

He came with long and snarled hair, so the only solution was to have him shorn as close as possible. Jack is looking forward to the day his fur has grown out to be as luxurious as Babu's, hopefully by the time Jason comes home next. According to Tim, Jack is a wonderful dog – so full of life. He was a little skittish of Tim at first – not of Gisele – but Jack has come 'round since, and is settling in nicely.

While on leash, the boys are imbued magically with the spirit of German shepherds and will bark at anything that moves. Once off the leash, their delusions of grandeur fade and they become meek and mild – which speaks well of their intelligence.

Tim and Gisele got in a lot of world travel before Babu came along, and so chose a Nepales name for him. Speaking fondly of Babu, Tim said he has been "a very good companion, a good traveler, a good, all-around guy and a deep traveling soul man."

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported two dogs running loose in the residential area of San Carlos Street. Resident called back and stated they secured the dogs behind a fence in a yard believed to be the dog owner's. Being familiar with the dogs, the officer secured the gate, which was damaged, and left a message at the door for the dog owner. The owner was later contacted and a warning given.
