HELICOPTER AMBULANCES — ARE THEY WAY TOO EXPENSIVE?

■ $30,000 for a 50-mile trip
By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN Janet Vise attended a motorcycle-riding school at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca last year, she had no idea her day of fun would end with a $75,000 hospital trip. But after she was knocked unconscious in a crash, a paramedic decided she might have a serious head injury and should be flown by helicopter to a hospital that deals with severely injured patients. She walked out of the trauma center in San Jose later that night with diagnoses of a cracked scapula and a concussion.

Vise doesn't remember anything about the accident or the short flight for which California Shock Trauma Air Rescue — known as CALSTAR — charged $30,096.67.

At the Regional Medical Center of San Jose, she underwent several CAT scans and other tests before being released. "The hospital bill was $47,295.50," she reported. Her share for the several-hour experience was $3,500, with the remaining $73,892.17 paid by Altius insurance.

Vise's experience is not only a paradigm of the soaring medical bills paid by sick and injured Americans who have private insurance, it is also at the crux of a debate over the transport of injured patients to trauma centers by helicopter — an expensive practice some Monterey County officials say is overused.

Rationing looms as state board cuts Peninsula's water

By KELLY NIX

SACRAMENTO — DESPITE TESTIMONY from several dozen Monterey Peninsula residents who asked the State Water Resources Control Board not to impose severe cutbacks on the local water supply, the SWRCB board voted 3-1 Tuesday to require a reduction in pumping from the Carmel River of at least 17 percent over the next seven years.

The action could bring rationing and a ban on outdoor watering to the Monterey Peninsula at any time, water officials said, though they were still waiting for the order's final language to determine what the immediate effect would be.

California American Water is considering filing a lawsuit to stop the order while it tries to get permits for a replacement water project, spokeswoman Catherine Bowie said.

"The water shortage is a crisis for our community, and that's why we're working so hard to build a new water supply," Bowie said. "We think the state board should have waited until the new water project is online to impose the pumping limits."

The final order — less severe than its draft version — calls for California American Water to immediately reduce pumping by 5 percent, or 549 acre-feet a year, requires tens of millions of dollars in Cal Am system upgrades, restricts the use of potable water for irrigation, and prohibits new water hookups for projects that didn't have a water permit by

Winery raises big stink over onions

By KELLY NIX

ONE OF Monterey County's biggest wineries is crying over onions it says have made its Chardonnay taste like chicken soup.

J. Lohr Vineyards and Wines in Greenfield filed a lawsuit Oct. 13 against neighboring Sensient Dehydrated Flavors because the plant's onion processing allegedly permeates the air with the scent of onions, tainting the winery's grapes and making its vino taste, well, yucky.

"The airborne effluent from dehydrating onions has led to an onion-tainted odor and chicken soup flavor in the wine," according to the suit filed by J. Lohr in Monterey County Superior Court.

The company, which annually produces more than 1 million cases of wine,

Budget shift reveals city's legal bills

■ $360,000 in one year because of Flanders suit

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A BIT of budgetary balancing raised eyebrows at the Carmel City Council meeting Oct. 6, when resident Carolyn Hardy asked about an after-the-fact transfer of funds to cover $324,000 in unbudgeted legal costs. During the year, the city racked up more than a half-million dollars in legal bills, mostly for fighting a lawsuit filed over the proposed sale of Flanders

Mansion.

To balance the books, administrative services director Joyce Giuffre recommended a transfer of $342,242 to cover unanticipated bills the city received during the 2008/2009 fiscal year. The transfers, which were proposed in a report slated for approval without discussion, would be made from the budgets of departments that had not spent all the dollars earmarked for them.

To cover the costs, Giuffre recommended

Federal judge tosses gay cop's harassment, discrimination suit

By KELLY NIX

A FEDERAL judge has ruled in favor of the City of Pacific Grove, its police department and two chiefs over a lawsuit filed by a police officer who alleged he was denied promotions and harassed because he is gay.

In a summary judgment Oct. 16, U.S. District Court Judge Ronald M. Whyte ruled against P.G. Police Sgt. Darrin Smolinski, whose federal discrimination lawsuit, filed in April 2008, targeted the city, former police chief Scott Miller and present chief Darius Engles.

Smolinski claimed that for 10 years on the force, he was the target of jokes and ridicule because he is gay, and that little was done to stop the harassment. He also alleged a pattern of denied promotions.

The officer had accused the department of retaliation, negligence, intentional infliction of emotional distress and discrimination.

Afghanistan duty costs city worker his paycheck

By MARY BROWNFIELD

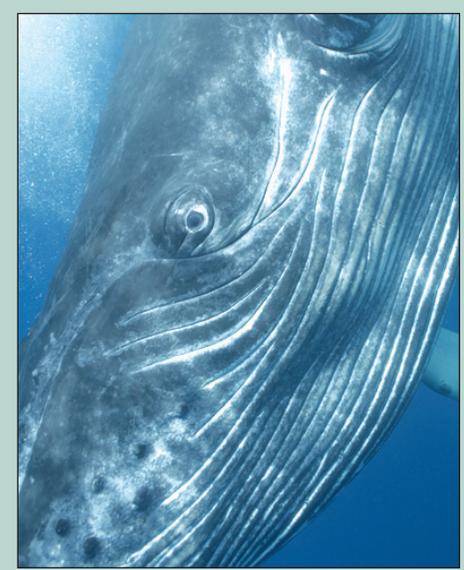

WHEN CITY building official and reserve police officer John Hanson left in July for a yearlong National Guard assignment helping towns on the Afghanistan-Pakistan border become agriculturally productive, his family believed the city would cover the gap in his pay and continue providing health insurance, just as it did when he served more than a year in Iraq with the Guard in 2004.

But a September letter from Carmel Assistant City Administrator Heidi Burch advised the paychecks would stop after Hanson's month of vacation time ended in November, and his medical benefits, through which Hanson, his wife and their two college-going kids are insured, would cease Dec. 31.

Six seek election to board of troubled C.V. fire district

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE SALE of Flanders Mansion and Carmel Valley incorporation may be the hot local issues on Nov. 3, but fire-fighting in Carmel Valley is also on the ballot, with two career firefighters, a retired police detective, a former paralegal, a realtor and a property manager vying for four seats on the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District's board of directors.

The victors face the challenges of helping the beleaguered district, which was operating in the red after depleting its reserves, get back on its financial feet. They may also choose the successor to former Chief Sidney Reade, who retired early this year. Salinas Rural Fire Chief Michael Urquides and his staff have been filling in ever since.

Sharon Waller

Waller, who was appointed to the fire board during the last term, is a retired paralegal and former C.V. Fire administrative employee who said she wants to serve the community and has "very strong feelings about the fire department, having worked there for so long."

"I bring a thorough understanding of the strengths and weaknesses of the district's policies and financial objectives," she said. "I have a sound understanding of the complexities of the existing problems facing this district, and I will offer viable solutions."

Waller has lived in the district for more than 50 years and said her skills and experience in management, finance, board administration certification, fire management and other fields make her a strong candidate for the board.

"Public safety is my primary concern," she said. "I am dedicated to helping ensure that the residents of all areas of this fire district receive an equitable and efficient response from our very capable professional paid and volunteer firefighters and paramedics."

Warren Poitras

Poitras, known to many as Pete, said he wants to "finish the job I started when I was appointed." A retired longtime

Pine Cone closes San Carlos Street office

BECAUSE OF the recession's effect on advertising revenues, The Carmel Pine Cone will consolidate its offices at its location in Pacific Grove Oct. 31.

"As soon as things pick up, we will reopen an office in downtown Carmel," publisher Paul Miller said.

After occupying rental offices at Fourth and San Carlos for 10 years, Miller was in escrow to buy the Forest Lodge on Junipero Street in 2004, intending to convert it to offices for the newspaper. City planners

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Elderly tenant doesn't exist

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A subject entered a business in Carmel Plaza and attempted to take a jacket without paying. Once confronted, the subject stated he was waiting for his wife to come and pay for the jacket. The subject then put the jacket down and exited the business and did not return. An area check was conducted to locate the subject but was met with negative results. The subject was described as a male adult, 6 feet tall, 200 pounds, unshaven and wearing a white shirt with Asian lettering.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Carpenter Street resident reported her neighbor was trimming ivy on her side of the fence and wanted him warned not to do it again.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to Mission Street for a female in her 90s who fell, with no injuries. The occupant was assisted to her bed and left in the care of her daughter as requested.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to a hotel on San Carlos Street for a male in his 70s with a possible dislocation of the left hip.

Pebble Beach: On Oct. 4, a resident reported someone stole his wallet from his unlocked vehicle during the night.

Pebble Beach: Man reported someone stole personal property from his unlocked vehicle during the previous night.

Pebble Beach: A victim on Sloat Road reported someone entered his unlocked vehicle during the previous night and stole several personal items.

Pebble Beach: Sloat Road resident reported an unknown person entered his unlocked vehicle during the night and stole a CD player.

Carmel area: Unknown suspect(s) broke into a vehicle while it was parked on Highway 1 near Point Lobos and stole numerous items.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A vehicle was stopped on Junipero Street for a mechanical violation, and the driver was found to have a suspended license for a prior DUI. The vehicle was impounded for 30 days and the driver, a 42-year-old male, was cited and released.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 23-year-old male was stopped on Carpenter Street due to several driving violations and found to have a suspended license. He also admitted to placing a fraudulent registration tab on his vehicle.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A tavern called to report that a customer was refusing to leave. Management wished to have the subject given a verbal stay-away order, which officers provided. The subject agreed not to return.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: During traffic stop on Ocean Avenue, a 46-year-old female driver was showing obvious signs of intoxication, and after a series of field sobriety tests, she was determined to be under the influence of alcohol and over the legal limit.

Carmel area: An El Potrero resident reported an unknown person charged more than $7,500 to his credit card in Great Britain.

Carmel Valley: A 38-year-old male was wanted for PC 243(e)(1) [spousal battery]. The suspect was located on Village Drive and arrested. Suspect was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the arrest.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 63-year-old male subject was stopped on Junipero Street for a mechanical violation, and was found to have a suspended/revoked driver's license. Subject was cited, and vehicle impounded for 30 days.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance and fire engine were dispatched on a service call for a pick-up-and-put-back of an elderly female. But Carmel P.D. determined that she had an altered level of consciousness, confusion and swollen ankles. Patient transported Code 2 to CHOMP.

Carmel area: Vandalism of a vehicle in a parking lot at Highway 1 and Ocean Avenue. The back window was broken sometime in the morning, possibly by a rock.

Carmel area: Mesa Court resident reported receiving a suspicious phone call, with a woman screaming.

Carmel area: Person at a Barnyard shop reported a fraudulent business check ($5,245.65) was sent to a Northern California resident as prize money.

Carmel Valley: Suspect was contacted after trying to move his vehicle and failing in front of the Carmel Valley Library on West Carmel Valley Road. Suspect was discovered to be drinking beer in his vehicle while delivering the newspaper. California Highway Patrol responded to conduct a DUI investigation and arrested the suspect for DUI.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7

Carmel area: Welfare check request of elderly female who appeared disoriented and was talking about a missing man. Woman and husband contacted. There was no missing person. There appears to be a health issue causing her belief in the past presence of an elderly renter at the household, now gone, which the husband denied ever existed.

Burglars continue targeting Peninsula homes

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE STRING of residential burglaries plaguing the Monterey Peninsula continued this month, with five homes hit in 10 days, according to the Monterey County Sheriff's Office. The break-ins followed multiple burglaries of homes in Carmel, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and other areas during the summer. The criminals remain at large.

The most recent was reported by a housekeeper who discovered the damage to a home on Marchetta Lane Saturday, according to Sheriff's Cmdr. Tracy Brown. The thieves broke in through a window while the residents were away for a few days.

"Taken were a computer and alcohol," Brown reported. "And the car — a 1999 Jeep Wrangler."

Although no one was arrested, the Jeep was recovered in Salinas a few days later, according to Brown.

On Oct. 13, a man told the sheriff's office someone had broken into the 17 Mile Drive home where he was working.

And the previous day, an employee notified authorities after discovering his boss' Sloat Road home had been burglarized.

On Oct. 9, suspects broke into a Carmel

Suspects jailed after being found with LeVett's stolen Bentley

By MARY BROWNFIELD

HOTEL OWNER Denny LeVett's 1989 Bentley 8 was stolen from the garage beneath an old Carmel apartment building sometime before Oct. 12, but was recovered in Salinas last Wednesday night after police thought the car's presence was unusual, especially with two young men in it, according to CPD Sgt. Mel Mukai.

Marina residents Michael Neil, 20, and 24-year-old William Cooper were arrested by Salinas police just after 10 p.m. Oct. 14 and taken to Monterey County Jail.

LeVett learned his car had been stolen after he asked his property manager to move it.

"I got a call back, and he said, 'You must have driven the Bentley,'" and I said, 'No.' He said, 'You sometimes have a habit of driving a car and forgetting where you put it,'" LeVett recalled. But it was gone, and they "searched everywhere and talked to everyone, and finally filed a report with Carmel P.D."

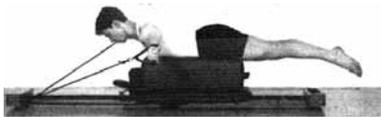

Around 10 p.m. Oct. 14, a California Highway Patrol officer noticed the Bentley

FBI could begin tracking CHS Facebook scammers next week

AN ATTORNEY for a Carmel High teacher who filed a lawsuit alleging someone created a false Facebook account in his name and then used the Internet site to make fun of his students said they are narrowing in on those responsible for the crime.

Teacher Michael Guardino filed the suit in September against unknown perpetrators who in April created the fake accounts.

"We have the IP address now and are in the process of narrowing the traps," Cisneros said Thursday.

The perpetrators used Guardino's full name, date of birth and profession to create a Yahoo email address and a Facebook account, then sent out invitations to his students and others on Facebook asking them to become "friends" on the social networking site.

Some students were then ridiculed on Facebook, according to the suit.

Cisneros said Facebook forwarded him an identifying 12-digit IP address after he issued the company a subpoena. The IP address can be tracked and lead to those who committed the crime.

Once the Yahoo IP address has been provided, which could be any day, Cisneros said the FBI will be notified so it can find those responsible. "It almost certainly is going to be a minor," Cisneros said. "It's probably a Carmel High student."

Birdies for Charity is back

THE THIRD annual Birdies for Charity event will get underway Nov. 1, ensuring plenty of time for nonprofits to gather pledges before the 2010 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am in February. This year, 75 local and regional charities collectively raised more than $135,000 — a 75 percent increase over the inaugural effort in 2008.

BFC pledges are based on the number of birdies made by PGA Tour professionals during the AT&T Pro-Am, and all 501(c)3 nonprofits are invited to participate and raise money. The Monterey Peninsula Foundation, the tournament's charitable arm, bears the program's administrative costs and pays a 10 percent match for each dollar collected by participating nonprofits.

Donors can make flat donations or commit to per-birdie pledges, and BFC offers incentives designed to encourage people to contribute.

For more information on becoming a BFC charity or to find out about donating, contact Nettie Porter at nporter@attpbgolf.com or (831) 649-1533.

Pt. Sur Lightstation offers spooky tours

IF YOU'RE interested in getting the daylight scared out of you — and you'd like to support a worthy cause at the same — the Pt. Sur Lightstation is hosting its third annual Ghost Tours Oct. 24-25.

"This is a unique experience at the Lightstation and lots of fun for those who attend," explained Mary Jane Hammerland, a lightstation volunteer. "It starts off like a regular tour, but then all sorts of spooky things start happening. The setting is perfect, because the old buildings are so mysterious." Professional actor/storyteller Kevin Hanstick, who works for the lightstation as a volunteer docent, will tell ghost stories. Meanwhile, other volunteers have cooked up a clever mix of surprises.

The tours start at 5:15 p.m. The cost is $55 per person. Each tour, which takes about three hours to complete, is limited to 40 people, and Saturday's tour is close to selling out. Proceeds will benefit future restoration of the lightstation.

For reservations or more information, call (831) 624-7570 or email cclk@pointsur.org.

Euripides (Peter)
Fotios Lallo

June 13, 1930 ~ October 16, 2009

Passed away peacefully in his Carmel, California home on October 16, 2009 at the age of 79. Born June 13, 1930 in New York City to his parents Fotios and Vasiliki Lallo, Peter as he was affectionately known to his family and friends, was a first-generation Greek American. He received his Masters Degree from Columbia University in Foreign Affairs and later studied at NYU where he received an additional Masters Degree in Economics. Peter joined the US Army in 1950 where he proudly served as his company's Intelligence Officer and ultimately attained the rank of Captain.

Given his background in Intelligence and Far East Studies Peter was recruited by the US Department of State where he served as a case officer in Hong Kong for a number of years, which he enjoyed immensely and spoke about frequently. He also spent numerous years working in Europe, specifically Germany during the height of the Cold War. Shortly thereafter Peter was recruited by the Department of Defense to serve as an attaché to the Royal Iranian Air Force, living in Tehran and working directly with the Shah. It was in Iran where he developed a lifelong fondness and respect for the Middle East and its people.

Peter spent the balance of his career traveling between Washington DC, Europe, the Near East, and later Central and South America. He concluded his career at the Defense Language Institute in Monterey California, where he ushered the language training program into the 21st Century by establishing the first Distance Language Video Teleconferencing program via satellite. Throughout his career Peter received numerous awards for his diligent service to the United States during and after the Cold War.

In his retirement Peter continued to take pleasure in traveling with his family and finally had the opportunity to enjoy the company of his children and grandchildren.

Peter is preceded in death by his brother Panayotis Lallo of New York. He is survived by his wife Ave Lallo, his daughters Victoria Crane of Menlo Park, Alexa Lallo of Menlo Park, Francesca Lallo Brandl of Madera, and his son Alexander Lallo of Carmel. He also leaves three grandchildren, Sensimilia, Ivria, and Dahlia and his two son-in-laws Barry Crane and Noel Brandl.

Of all Peter's varied experiences and accomplishments his family and heritage remained his greatest source of pride. Funeral services were held at The Paul Mortuary Chapel, Thursday, October 22 at 11:00 a.m. Burial for Mr. Lallo will be at Arlington National Cemetery at a later date.

EXPENSIVE SEWER SYSTEM: Malibu Residents Were Told It Could Never Happen There!

“City Warns Residents of $1,000 Monthly Sewer Fees”

Headline – The Malibu Times, Oct. 14, 2009

The proponents of cityhood have touted Malibu as a model for a future city of Carmel Valley. Property owners of Malibu were told they could keep their septic systems under incorporation.

Ironically, Malibu property owners now face the real threat of having their septic systems banned by the Regional Water Quality Control Board. The proposed ban would phase out septic systems within five years and build an expensive wastewater plant. The water board could issue fines up to $10,000 per day to those who do not comply.

The local CV incorporation proponents have said this could not happen because Malibu has local control. But a higher authority is controlling its destiny! Remember, if Carmel Valley incorporates, it will be encumbered with stricter state-mandated standards.

Sewer costs, voters list raises hackles in C.V. citihood debate

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN RESPONSE to a political ad which implies Carmel Valley property owners could be forced to pay for an expensive sewer system if incorporation succeeds, a candidate for Carmel Valley's city council criticized his opponents for telling "one lie after another."

"It's a spaghetti toss of fear tactics," Glenn Robinson charged.

Meanwhile, less than two weeks before voters weight in on Measure G, the Monterey County District Attorney's Office is looking into a complaint that incorporation opponents may have violated state law by sharing a list of Carmel Valley's registered voters.

Real worry or fear tactic?

The new ad by incorporation opponents warns voters that Carmel Valley property owners could be required to pay up to $1,000 in monthly fees to fund a sewer system and water treatment facility. To back up their claim, they point to Malibu's long-standing battle with a regional water quality control board over its septic systems, which the agency claims are polluting the Southern California town's coastal waters. A consultant hired by the town, which incorporated in 1991, claims the new system will cost Malibu property owners about $1,000 a month and they could face fines of up to $10,000 a day if they fail to comply.

But Robinson said incorporation will have no bearing on whether or not Carmel Valley property owners are required to pay for a sewer system.

"Sewering is a state decision," he said. "It has nothing to do with local government. Sewering gets mandated when groundwater drinking supplies get unsafe levels of nitrate pollution. So it's the state and only the state that can force sewerage to happen."

But incorporation opponent Lawrence Samuels insisted a city would be more vulnerable to oversight by regulatory agencies.

"There's greater pressure," explained Samuels, chair of the Monterey County Libertarian Party. "If you become a city, you're on the radar."

But Robinson said Carmel Valley is already on the radar. "The Carmel River provides nearly all the drinking water for the greater Monterey Peninsula and is therefore tested regularly for nitrate and other pollutants," he said. "How much more visible can you get?"

Samuels conceded Malibu likely would have faced scrutiny over its septic systems even if it had never incorporated, but he still believes Carmel Valley residents are asking for trouble by incorporating.

"It's a high probability that we're eventually going to be pressured like Malibu to install a sewer system if we incorporate," Samuels added.

Did opponents violate election law?

Monterey County assistant district attorney Stephanie Hulsey confirmed her agency is looking into a complaint by town supporters that an opponent illegally distributed confidential campaign information.

According to proponents, Samuels emailed copies of a "walking list" to other opponents. The list, which contains the names, addresses, phone numbers and party affiliations of about 7,500 Carmel Valley residents, was purchased by opponents from the Monterey County Elections Department. Proponents insist Samuels committed a crime by emailing the data.

"Campaign lists are entrusted to campaigns and not to be sent out to people at large," said town supporter Christine Williams. "At our campaign office, they're closely guarded."

In the Oct. 2 email, Samuels tells incorporation opponents, "I have enclosed the 'Walking List' of registered voters in Carmel Valley. You may want to talk to your neighbors about why a city would ruin Carmel Valley," the email said.

Samuels admitted he emailed the list to about 100 people, but he insisted he was unaware he was doing anything wrong. He also said he stopped doing it after learning of the complaints against him.

"I thought it was public information," Samuels said of the list. "How do you walk around and knock on doors if you don't have that information?"

Realtors pitch in $50K for Trevvett Court

THE CARMEL Foundation has raised $1.8 million to build its Trevvett Court apartment complex for low-income seniors, but it needs to gather another $1.4 million to get the project finished, according to development director Linda Lee.

"When we have raised 60 percent of our goal, the Stanton Fund at the Community Foundation will contribute $50,000 for the project," she said this week.

Ground was broken on the long-planned project during a ceremony Oct. 2 attended by Mayor Sue McCloud, foundation administrators and city dignitaries. Also at the ceremony, the Monterey County Association of Realtors presented the foundation with a $50,000 donation for Trevvett Court.

The 14-unit complex designed by Pacific Grove architect Eric Miller will replace the 60-year-old hotel-turned-nine-unit-building demolished a few weeks ago. Each one-bedroom apartment will be 500 square feet and equipped with modern amenities, according to the foundation. The housing project will also include an elevator, six parking spaces, common areas and storage space. SBI Builders is doing the work.

Apartments will first be offered to the former Trevvett Court residents who were moved into other foundation-owned units in town while the new complex is constructed. Lee said Trevvett should be ready for occupancy by the middle of next July.

Fundraising events are in the works to help the foundation, which receives no tax dollars and is the city's main provider of low-cost housing for seniors. For more information or to donate, call (831) 624-1588.

City workers honored

POLICE SGT. Paul Tomasi and administrator Karen Love won recognition at the City of Carmel's annual employee barbecue Oct. 8, while other employees were honored for significant milestones.

Tomasi, who came to work for Carmel P.D. in 2008, was named Employee of the Year for being "an individual who exemplifies outstanding performance — someone who consistently goes above and beyond the already high level of performance that is expected."

A city employee for more than four decades, Love received the Customer Service Award for being someone "who provides exemplary service to the public and fellow employees, or who institutes a new idea or method leading to improved efficiency." Love handles payroll and benefits, among other tasks.

Longtime employees, among them Cmdr. Mike Calhoun and Sgt. Mel Mukai, both of whom have been with the city for 25 years, were recognized as well. Carmel Fire Department part-timers Roy Thomas and John Trenner celebrated their 30th anniversaries with the city, and 11 others were honored for their five, 10, 15 and 20 years of employment. Each received a check based on the milestone, ranging from $50 for five-year employees, to $400 for Thomas and Trenner.

(Among those named at the luncheon was human resources manager Jane Miller, a 10-year employee, even though she has been away on leave for months and is suing the city for sexual harassment and age discrimination. Her decade of employment earned her a $100 check. She did not attend the luncheon.)

Patricia Mewhinney

August 2, 1923 – October 10, 2009

CARMEL - Patricia Mewhinney, age 86, died peacefully on October 10, 2009. Pat was born in Manhasset, NY on August 2, 1923, the youngest of three daughters of Peg Schnetzler and Frederick Goddard.

She was recently widowed by Col. Nathaniel S. Mewhinney, USMC (Ret), her husband of 65 years, and is survived by her son, Michael (Linda); daughters, Katherine (Ken), Ann (Dave) and Carol; six grandchildren: (Adam, Erin, Matthew, Ryan, Jennifer and Julie); and her sister, Dorie Matthews of Huntington Beach.

Pat loved to golf, read, eat chocolate, wear anything teal green and was an avid horsewoman. She had a deep affection for all animals, particularly dogs. She was devoted to the compassionate treatment of animals and a member of many humane organizations throughout her life. She was dearly loved and will be deeply missed.

Volunteers spruce up bedraggled north entrance to town

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MEMBERS OF the Carmel Woods Neighborhood Association pitched in labor and cash to spruce up the bedraggled north entrance to town, and association president Richard Warren said the group will continue to take care of the public landscaping, as long as dues and donations keep funding the effort.

The neighborhood group is perhaps best known for placing the poinsettias on Jo Mora's Junipero Serra statue during Christmastime and, as seen this month, decorating the statue with colorful gourds donated by Mark Marino from Earthbound Farm.

But its members, some through their own sweat equity and all via their $25 annual dues, have also made a big impression on the main streets leading into downtown Carmel.

They hired Juan Garcia Landscaping to work on problem areas between Highway 1 and the Serra statue, and the crew cleaned up trash and pulled weeds, put in new plants, spread mulch and scattered wood chips in several locations.

The most visible is the long, narrow median on Carpenter

Street west of Highway 1. Formerly overgrown with dead weeds and filled with trash, the strip is now neatly maintained and planted with Mexican sage.

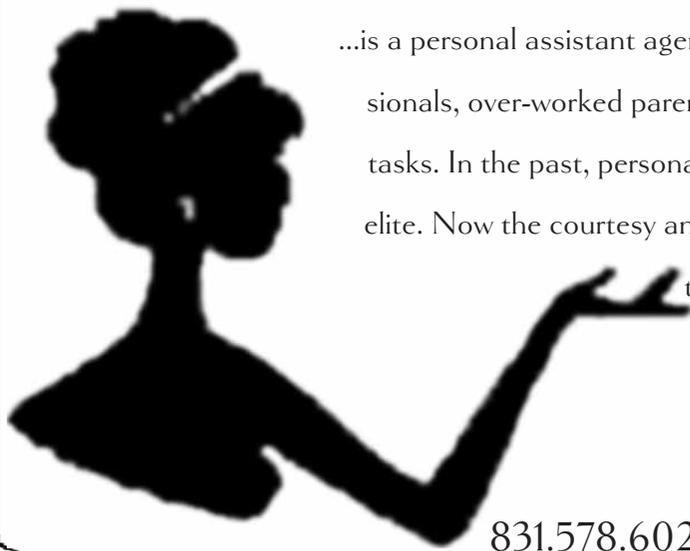

A triangular spot at the intersection of Carpenter and Serra was littered with tires, bumpers and other garbage before it was tackled by the crew, according to Warren. The group also facilitated the makeover of what it calls "the golden triangle" at Camino del Monte, Pico and Santa Fe, and a bus stop on Serra.

While the neighborhood is outside Carmel's city limits and its roads are maintained by Monterey County, keeping the area neat and tidy is a low priority for the county, according to Warren, so the neighbors are filling the gap.

"The county is strapped for funds, so we just wanted to take pride in our area and try to create something of lasting beauty that will give people a sense of pride in the community," he said. The overall goal was to create a cohesive, natural appearance tying the main streets into town together.

The city council helped with a $500 check early this year, and city forester Mike Branson said his employees removed two dead trees in the Carpenter median and are watering some of the plants not reached by irrigation systems.

HELICOPTERS

ber of deaths due to patients' not reaching adequate hospital care in time, has been the main provider in Monterey County since setting up its Gilroy base in 1987, according to CALSTAR regional director Michael Baulch. Six years ago, it added a Salinas Airport location. Stanford Life Flight and the California Highway Patrol also fly Monterey County trauma patients, but CALSTAR fields more than 90 percent of the calls.

In determining whether flight is necessary, emergency personnel at the scene of an accident assess the patient using three criteria known as MAP, which stands for mechanism, anatomical and physiological. If a patient has two "hits," he is a trauma-center candidate.

"Mechanism" refers to how the injury occurred — a gunshot wound, a fall from greater than 20 feet, a vehicle rollover without a seat belt — "basically any incident that involves a tremendous energy release," said Carmel Valley Fire Capt. Eric Ulwelling, a paramedic for 13 years.

"Anatomical" refers to the type of injury, such as an unstable pelvis, multiple fractures of major bones or abdominal pain with a distended abdomen, indicating substantial internal damage.

"Physiological" is "a little harder to qualify," Ulwelling said, but refers to signs and symptoms of shock and altered level of consciousness, such as confusion or unresponsiveness, drastically fluctuating body temperature and other red flags.

"There's certainly the element of good clinical judgment on the part of the first responders who are assessing the patient," he said.

According to the EMS Agency's 2008 annual report, 288 Monterey County patients were flown to trauma centers: 113 traffic-accident victims, 51 people who sustained injuries in assaults (including stabbings and shootings), 18 fall victims, eight burn victims, seven with "unknown" injuries, and 91 categorized as "other," which included amputations, seizures, heart attacks and suicide attempts. More than 25 percent of the calls originated in the City of Salinas, with another 18 percent from the Salinas Valley. Many of the patients were covered by taxpayer-funded programs that provide free medical care for the elderly and the poor.

Unnecessary rides?

Fifth District Supervisor Dave Potter said there have been complaints about unnecessary use of air ambulances.

"I brought this up at the board of supervisors, because I had some complaints about people being flown when it really didn't look like they needed to be helicoptered out, and the costs were unbelievable," he said. A union leader told him some of his workers had been airlifted for "inconsequential things."

"There's a whole bunch of stuff that doesn't seem quite right," Potter said. He wondered whether patients — and the insurance companies or government medical care programs that pay their bills — were being taken advantage of.

The board of supervisors asked EMS Agency director Tom Lynch to look into the use of air transport. He said his agency met with representatives of CALSTAR and AMR Ambulance a few weeks ago to discuss the system.

Baulch, who oversees the Gilroy, Hollister and Salinas bases, said after arriving at a call, his crews assess patients according to MAP criteria "because I don't want our people flying folks who shouldn't be flown."

But having been a flight nurse for 16 years before taking the administrative job, he commented, "It's really hard to tell how injured the people in the field really are. Nurses are trained, but without the benefit of CT scans and other tools, sometimes it's hard to tell."

According to the 2008 annual report, of the 864 calls for air transport, 401 patients ended up being flown by CALSTAR, Life Flight or the CHP, including 113 people who were taken from one hospital to another. Of the transports that did not occur, 164 were canceled by medics at the scene or the flight crew on arrival, while the others were missed due to weather, staffing, mechanical issues or unavailability.

Baulch said between 30 percent and 40 percent of the people in his region who are flown to trauma centers don't necessarily need to be. The national average is 50 percent.

The system errs on the side of caution, according to Ulwelling.

"The system is designed to protect the person who has sustained a significant traumatic injury," he said.

A more detailed scoring system used by trauma centers to assess patients' injuries might be more effective, Baulch said, "but anything that gets too complex in the field isn't practical."

What are the costs?

Potter and Lynch are concerned the unnecessary flights are costing taxpayers and patients a lot of money.

Baulch conceded air transport is expensive. The basic mechanical cost of getting a helicopter off the ground runs from $650 to $1,000 per hour, but the total bill for transport is many times that amount.

And he could not say how patients' bills are calculated, or how the 50-mile trip that took Janet Vise from Laguna Seca to the San Jose regional medical center ended up costing more than $30,000.

"I wish I could give a better answer as to what the formula is, but it's predicated on prevailing rates and what our financial people see that the fees need to be to cover the costs," he said. The formula includes the cost of liftoff, per-mile charges, flight conditions, medical supplies, the needs of the patient and other factors.

"Keeping an eye on what our costs are is certainly important for me, because of the impact on any patient we fly," he said. But the primary focus is on patient care, not the cost. "I have a lot of pride in what those folks give to those patients under really difficult circumstances."

Government programs like Medicare and Medi-Cal usually reimburse 33 percent to 50 percent, while private insurance will cover up to 100 percent, according to Baulch. The uninsured often can't pay at all. He said the collection rate in Monterey County is around 40 percent of what CALSTAR's charges are.

Thus, private patients such as Vise and their insurance companies are required to pay for their own care, as well as the care of others.

According to IRS records, CALSTAR took in $41.2 million in revenues in 2007 and recorded $39.1 in expenses. Most of its income comes from charging for services, with some generated by membership dues, subscription fees and investment earnings.

As with many businesses and government agencies, a large chunk of its expense is payroll, which totaled about $15.7 million in 2007. The highest paid official was CEO Joseph Cook, who received $250,012 in compensation, $26,697 in contributions to benefit and deferred compensation plans, and $5,590 for expenses. The CFO's salary was $183,076, plus $24,177 in contributions and $62,808 in expenses. The five highest paid employees included the lead pilot, chief flight nurse and Baulch. Their compensation ranged from $142,000 to $177,000 in 2007.

Other costs included $5.7 million for aircraft maintenance, $1.4 million for fuel and $3.2 million for an unspecified legal settlement. Dispatch cost $664,104, and insurance was $801,942.

"It's an incredible organization," Ulwelling said. "They do a lot of training, a lot of community outreach, they seem to always be focused on improving their standard of care, and they do a really good job of working with public-safety agencies to make the operations safer and more patient-care centered. I really have nothing but good things to say about them."

But Potter and Lynch would like to see a county contract for emergency air transport, so they would have more control over the numbers. Lynch said he hopes to issue a request for proposals next year, "to do due diligence for the public, so they can be sure they're getting a high-quality, cost-effective service."

A contract wouldn't make financial sense for an air ambulance company whose coverage area crosses county lines, Baulch argued.

"An operator that's just dedicated to Monterey County couldn't work without some sort of subsidy," he said.

Nonetheless, if Monterey County asks for bids, CALSTAR will probably submit one. If another provider took over air transport here, its Salinas base would be useless.

"As impractical as the idea is, we would compete," Baulch said.

Potter said he just wants the system scrutinized, the issues raised and the questions answered.

"For me to say I have an answer to this would be extremely premature," he said. "There's certainly an issue here."

ONIONS

is asking a judge to order Sensient to immediately stop processing onions so the odor won't affect its grapes. J. Lohr said it has lost at least $1.6 million because of the tainted wine.

The wine tastes and smells like chicken soup, a lawsuit claims and taint the neighboring grapes," according to J. Lohr's suit.

The wine company claims it has suffered lost profits and diminution in the market value of its grapes, and is seeking punitive damages and damages for inconvenience, annoyance and emotional distress.

J. Lohr wants a judge to order Sensient not to process onions within 25 miles of its vineyards.

But according to the case court file — already 1-inch thick with hundreds of documents — Sensient claims the lawsuit was filed to pass blame.

"We believe the main issue between Sensient and J. Lohr is that J. Lohr purportedly has tainted wine and is trying to lay all responsibility for that problem with Sensient," according to a Sept. 25 email from attorney Jason Retterer to J. Lohr's attorneys.

The lawsuit claims Sensient has been dehydrating onions at the nearby plant in violation of the company's county permit.

According to the Monterey County Resource Management Agency, the county issued Sensient a permit in 1972 — when the company began operating in Greenfield — to dehydrate peppers, celery and parsley, but not onions because of the odor onions emit and the potential to damage nearby grape vineyards.

Earlier this month, the county cited

Sensient for for being in violation of its use permit.

Sensient "is knowingly and willfully destroying J. Lohr's grapes, vineyards, wine-making business and reputation," according to the suit, filed by J. Lohr attorneys Brian Finegan and Chuck Warner.

Wine produced from the tainted grapes smells like "onion juice," according to J. Lohr, which owns 776 acres of its own vineyards and has another 196 acres of joint venture vineyards in the Greenfield area.

According to Sensient, however, J. Lohr had been aware it had been processing onions at the Greenfield plant since 2003 but didn't object to the operation until this year.

"For J. Lohr to say in late September 2009 that one more month of onion processing is totally unacceptable and out of the question is disingenuous and unreasonable," according to Retterer in the email message.

The food processing company has applied for an amended county use permit that would allow them to process onions, court documents show.

In an Oct. 13 opposition to J. Lohr's request for a restraining order, Sensient attorney J. Kenneth Gordon said the wine company has not provided recognized literature or expert testimony to offer the opinion the alleged onion smell in the wines is the result of Sensient's operation.

J. Lohr first learned its grapes were being tainted in 2007 when it purchased Chardonnay fruit from Amaral, a vineyard immediately south of Sensient, the suit says.

In 2008, Lohr noticed its own grapes, grown just west of Sensient, were also tainted.

"This led us to search for a firm that had the ability to discover the source of this onion taint," according to an Oct. 13 declaration by Steven Lohr, the wine company's chief operating officer.

The winery contacted "a gentleman who is one of the leading wine aroma and flavor researchers in the world," according to Lohr.

The researcher and his team identified mercaptan (a sulfur compound) as being responsible for the cooked onion aromas and flavors found in the J. Lohr wine.

"It is indeed from onions, and has never before been identified in wine," Lohr said.

The mercaptan, which is detectable by humans at a threshold of eight parts per trillion, was found in the J. Lohr wine in excess of 378 parts per trillion, according to the researcher. "Needless to say, we have no uses for this wine, and it is not marketable on the bulk wine market," Lohr said.

Though Sensient is not dehydrating onions now, J. Lohr's lawsuit contends that molecules from the onion could be absorbed into the grape vines, retained over the winter and reintroduced into next year's fruit.

"There is some evidence that suggests that such a process can occur with vines that have been affected by smoke from forest fires," the suit says.

Also listed as a defendant in the suit is Sensient's Milwaukee-based parent company, Sensient Technologies. The corporation's website says it's the "leading supplier of flavors, fragrances and colors" used for foods and beverages, pharmaceuticals, cosmetics, home and personal care items, and other products.

In 1972, Jerry Lohr planted 280 acres of wine grapes in Arroyo Seco near Greenfield and in 1974 completed his winery in San Jose, where the company is now based.

Today, the company has about 900 acres in Arroyo Seco, producing Chardonnay and other cool-climate varietals such as Riesling, Valdiguié and Pinot Noir, and has 2,000 acres in Paso Robles which produce Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and other red varietals.

Court files indicate Sensient has finished dehydrating onions for 2009 and won't resume until 2010.

In addition to wines under the J. Lohr name, the company produces wines labeled under Cypress Vineyards, Painter Bridge and Ariel, a nonalcoholic wine. In February, J. Lohr was listed by Wine Business Monthly as No. 16 among the top 30 U.S. wine companies.

JUDGE

"At best," Whyte said in the six-page judgment, "plaintiff has come forward with evidence that his sexual orientation was known to some within the department, and that over the course of his 10-year tenure, he has been offended by some comments and conduct, only a few of which were directed at him."

Smolinski's attorney, Stephen Usoz said Thursday the judgement was unfortunate.

"Obviously, it didn't go in Darrin's favor," he told The Pine Cone. "We are reviewing it for purposes of appeal."

Whyte also said Smolinski had not shown the alleged offensive comments or conduct were pervasive enough to give rise to his claim he worked in a hostile work environment.

"The fact that some fellow officers made comments that could be construed as derogatory toward homosexuals over plaintiff's many-year career and that at a period of time an outsider sent harassing correspondence to the department does not meet requirements for a hostile work environment," Whyte said.

Whyte found Smolinski also didn't provide any evidence of anti-homosexual attitude by Miller and former city manager Jim Colangelo, who turned down Smolinski for commander in favor of another officer.

Smolinski also failed to show that the city, its police department and Miller had engaged in "willful, malicious and outrageous conduct," according to the ruling.

At the time Smolinski was up for promotion to commander, Whyte said there was evidence Miller told Colangelo he believed the officer was dishonest. But the evidence also showed Colangelo disregarded Miller's comment and based his decision not to promote Smolinski on what Colangelo considered to be the officer's unsatisfactory interview, according to Whyte.

Decade of harassment alleged Smolinski alleged in his suit that problems began a decade ago when Miller was police chief. He said the problems continued when Chief Darius Engles was hired in 2006. Engles announced his resignation in August.

Smolinski sought an unspecified amount of money in damages. He claimed the police department's email system was used to "circulate information which utilized derogatory terms and statements relating to homosexual and bisexual individuals."

One joke, entitled, "Time for your annual 'Am I Gay' self examination," included seven off-color, disparaging questions, he said. The sender included a disclaimer that the message was intended as a joke.

Though he said he was denied promotions, Smolinski maintained he received "multiple commendations" and top scores during promotional interviews. The suit also alleges Smolinski was retaliated against and suffered depression and anxiety because of his support for a bisexual coworker, Rhonda Ramey, a former parking officer. Smolinski claimed he wasn't promoted as retaliation for his support of Ramey, who filed a complaint in 1999 against Miller for not disciplining a supervisor who had "harassed her for being bisexual and having an open marriage."

In June 2001, six months after Miller fired Ramey, she filed a federal harassment and retaliation lawsuit against Miller. Smolinski helped Ramey prepare for trial and testified in court on her behalf against Miller. A jury later ruled in favor of Miller.

transferring $133,750 budgeted for positions in administrative services, the police department, public works and community services that went unfilled last year, along with $62,287 that was not spent on police overtime. Unused funds allocated for professional and contractual services provided most of the remainder, as well as $27,960 from the stormwater runoff program and $12,865 from the workers compensation fund.

"With the exception of the transfer from the workers compensation reserve fund, these transfers do not increase the total general fund expenditures budget," she said in her report. "Rather, they shift monies from one line item to another." The council agreed with Giuffre's recommendations and voted to approve the transfers.

After the meeting, in response to a request from Hardy, Giuffre said the city had originally budgeted $60,000 for legal professional services in 2008/2009. At midyear, the council increased the amount to $185,000, but actual expenditures by the end of the year topped out at $507,898.

Giuffre reported litigation over the Flanders property accounted for the largest amount — $360,359 — with John Mandurrigo's unsuccessful lawsuit over the city's failure to approve his downtown Plaza Del Mar project totaling $66,200. "General matters and employment law issues," including costs related to the city's defense against a sexual-harassment lawsuit filed by human resources manager Jane Miller, totaled $81,339.

on a street in Salinas. A Salinas P.D. officer was also in the area at the time and asked a dispatcher to look up the plate number to see who owned the car, according to Mukai.

"They were driving around in the Bentley and looked suspicious," he said, so police "ended up doing a traffic stop and arresting the two suspects."

LeVett said he received a call late that night that his Bentley had been found and parked in a tow yard. It's now at the repair shop, and LeVett, who was out of town when it was stolen, said he planned to drive over Thursday to inspect the damage.

The men were reportedly in the process of dismantling it for parts, starting with interior components. While LeVett wondered how someone would know to look for the car in the underground garage, find the key where it had been hidden and risk driving such a high-profile vehicle, his insurance agent told him that rings of thieves often strip expensive cars for their costly parts.

"I love the doggone car," he said. "I'm pretty nervous about looking at it. They dismantled the upholstery, and it had gorgeous leather interior. I need some hand-holding when I go over there."

Cooper and Neil were arrested for possession of stolen property. Neil was also charged with probation violation and possession of a controlled substance.

D. Jack Gibson

D. Jack "Jack" Gibson, 85, passed away peacefully at his residence in Carmel, California, on September 28, 2009. Jack Gibson was the son of George and Irene Gibson, Spearfish, South Dakota. He graduated from Spearfish High School in 1941 and attended South Dakota State University until he was drafted and entered the United States Army.

Just prior to serving in the European campaign of World War II, Jack married Donna Rae Searls of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, on February 8, 1944. Upon his return to the States, Jack soon began his career in the trucking industry, working for Wilson Truck Lines in Sioux Falls. In 1953, he was involved in the formation of Midwest Coast Transport. Mr. Gibson held the position of President of Midwest Coast for some twenty years, and was Executive Vice President of All American Transport, Sioux Falls during the same period.

Upon leaving Midwest Coast Transport in 1972, Mr. Gibson was an industry consultant for several long haul truck lines. Jack and Donna spent time in Chicago and Madison, Wisconsin until 1976 when he joined United National Bank in Sioux Falls.. In 1977, the Gibson's purchased The Horizon Inn, Carmel, California. They owned and operated the Horizon Inn until 1983, at which time he retired.

Jack Gibson enjoyed traveling, golf, entertaining friends, and cooking; but his passion in life was politics. He held various local, state and national positions within the Republican Party. Jack Gibson was a past member of the Republican National Committee and a member of the convention site committee. He was twice a delegate to the Republican national convention. He held campaign management positions for several presidential campaigns, including Barry Goldwater and Richard M. Nixon as well as various congressional and legislative campaign roles throughout his lifetime. His last volunteer campaign position was that of chairman for the Eastwood for Mayor, Carmel, California, mayoral election.

Besides his political positions Mr. Gibson was an active member of the Young Presidents Organization, American Truckers Association, Rotary, Scottish Rite, El Riad Shrine, Karl Mundt Library Foundation, and was a past member of the Sioux Falls School Board. Mr. Gibson had volunteered his time to Meals on Wheels in Monterey County.

Mr. Gibson is survived by his wife, Donna of Carmel, California, and their two children, Claudia Gibson, Clifton, New Jersey, and David (Sheri Jo), Brookings, South Dakota. He is also survived by four grandsons, Patrick (Samantha) McCoy of Belleville, New Jersey, Joseph (Christine) McCoy of New York City, Daniel (Nicole) Gibson of Sioux Falls and Taylor Gibson of Brookings, South Dakota and one great grandson, Daylen Gibson of Sioux Falls.

A private family memorial was held in Carmel, California. The family requests any gifts in the memory of Mr. Gibson be directed to the benefit of Hospice of the Central Coast, 2 Upper Ragsdale Road, Monterey, California.

WATER

Oct. 20.

Before the order was imposed, Cal Am said the directive could mean customers would be limited to about 50 gallons per person per day, 20 gallons less than the average amount customers use on the Peninsula. Statewide water use averages about 120 gallons per person per day.

"Fifty gallons a day is only enough to cover the bare minimum of indoor use," Bowie said.

"We feel the reductions required in the order, especially in future years, would potentially jeopardize public health and safety," said Monterey Peninsula Water Management District general manager Darby Fuerst.

The Pebble Beach Company and residents of Del Monte Forest who bought water from the company's allotment got a last-minute reprieve when the SWRCB exempted them from the water hookup ban. After switching to reclaimed water for irrigation of the company's golf courses, the company was allowed to use half the saved water — about 365 acre-feet per year — for new development.

"With respect to the Pebble Beach area, if you either had a water credit or buy one from the Pebble Beach Co., the moratorium will not impact you," Don Eastman, vice president with the Del Monte Forest Property Owners, said after the meeting.

Cal Am must end its illegal diversions from the Carmel River by Dec. 31, 2016, the SWRCB said.

Rallying for water

On Tuesday, a group of 42 Peninsula residents opposed to the order boarded two chartered buses to attend the hearing in Sacramento. The group, calling itself Our Water, Our Lives, included public officials, hospitality and real-estate industry workers, who told the board of hardships that would accompany a cutback order.

Del Rey Oaks resident Andy Clarke, who is running against Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Director Judi Lehman for the Division 2 seat, said the order would punish Peninsula residents who have tried their best to conserve.

"The cease and desist order isn't against Cal Am," he said. "It's against me and my two little children."

Those opposed to the order outnumbered the proponents 43-5. The few who called for the order are concerned about the river's population of steelhead trout — a protected fish which prompted the state to compel Cal Am to reduce its water use back in 1995.

Larry Silver, attorney for the Carmel River Steelhead Association and the Sierra Club, urged the board to move forward with the order.

"It takes a positive step forward in regards to the public trust resources that are in the river," Silver said.

Though environmental groups list the fish as part of the South-Central California Coast Steelhead group, and call it a "distinct population," Oncorhynchus mykiss is plentiful around the world, and in some areas is even considered invasive. There is no threat the species will go extinct.

Jonas Minton, with the Planning and Conservation League, urged the board to adopt the order so the momentum that's been gaining over the past couple of years toward developing a water project for the Peninsula doesn't fade.

"If you do not follow through with the cease and desist order," Minton said, "it's quite likely the old frictions and old inertia will return, and nothing will happen."

Carmel resident Carolina Bayne was blunt about her take on the order.

"I really don't give a rat's ass about the salmon and the steelhead ... " she said. "When it comes to me or them, I'm for me."

Ron Chesshire, president of the Monterey/Santa Cruz Building Trades Council, told the board the construction business has been hit hard by the recession and that the order would only worsen things.

"The construction industry is in shambles," he said.

Sen. Abel Maldonado told the board not to cut back water on the Peninsula.

"This is not an issue of politics," Maldonado said. "This is about the economic health and solvency of an entire county."

The California Public Utilities Commission is reviewing three different projects, including a regional plan that includes a desalination plant in Moss Landing. The plant would be operated by Marina Coast Water District, which would sell the water to Cal Am. That plan has received wide support.

Before imposing the order, board member Arthur Baggett said he was "heartened" to know there was progress toward developing a water project.

"What this order before us today is, is a plan to move forward," he said. "It's a prescription. You may not agree with it but that's what this order is."

The sole vote against the cutback order came from SWRCB member Tam Doduc, who said it wasn't harsh enough.

Motorcyclist hits bus near Bixby

A PACIFICA resident who was riding a motorcycle was airlifted to San Jose Regional Medical Center by a CALSTAR helicopter Saturday after he collided with a Monterey-Salinas Transit bus on Highway 1 in Big Sur. The accident occurred about 1.3 miles south of Bixby Bridge at about 12:30 p.m.

"The motorcyclist was traveling south, while the bus was going north," California Highway Patrol spokesman Bob Lehman explained. "The rider seems to have lost control of his bike and slid. It is not known if he made contact with the bus before he lost control of his bike."

Lehman was unable to provide any details of the rider's injuries or an update on his condition.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF TERRY LEE LAPPIN, aka TERRY L. LAPPIN, aka TERRY LAPPIN Case Number MP 19679 To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of TERRY LEE LAPPIN, aka TERRY L. LAPPIN, aka TERRY LAPPIN. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by KAREN LAPPIN in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that KAREN LAPPIN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held on November 6, 2009 at 10:00 a.m., Dept.: L & M, in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of NANCY MORROW

Case Number MP 19689

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of NANCY MORROW, also known as NANCY SCHALLERT LOFTON and NANCY MORROW BURKETT.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by WELLS FARGO BANK in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that WELLS FARGO BANK be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held on in this court as follows:

Date: November 20, 2009

Time: 10:00 a.m.

Dept.: 16

Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Agujaito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for petitioner:

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea will conduct a public hearing in the City Hall Council Chambers, located on the east side of Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh Avenues, on Wednesday, November 4, 2009. The public hearings will be opened at 4:00 p.m. or as soon thereafter as possible. Note: one or more of the items may be on the Consent Agenda. Items on the Consent Agenda will be approved without discussion unless someone requests otherwise. For all other items staff will present the project, then the applicant and all interested members of the public will be allowed to speak or offer written testimony before the Commission takes action. Decisions to approve or deny the project may be appealed to the City Council by filing a written notice of appeal with the office of the City Clerk within ten (10) working days following the date of action by the Planning Commission and paying a $260.00 appeal fee as established by the City Council. For those projects listed as appealable to the California Coastal Commission, appeals may be filed directly with the Coastal Commission for no fee, by filing a written notice of appeal with the Coastal Commission's Central Coast office in Santa Cruz. Such appeals must be filed within ten working days of the Coastal Commission's receipt of the City's Final Local Action Notice.

If you challenge the nature of the proposed action in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered to the Planning Commission or the City Council at, or prior to, the public hearing.

GUARD

Code, Burch told Hanson his pay for the first 30 days of military duty would end Oct. 12, after which he would use a month of vacation time.

"As such, your health insurance will end on Dec. 31," she wrote. "At that point, you will be eligible for COBRA."

But Annette Hanson, who is by now accustomed to her husband's long absences as he fulfills his duties as a First Sergeant in the U.S. Army National Guard, said it will cost more than $1,000 per month to keep her family covered. In addition, the loss of her husband's paychecks will mean a substantial drop in monthly income, while her business as a massage therapist and manicurist in Pacific Grove continues to suffer during the recession.

"Before John left, [city administrator Rich Guillen] and Heidi said they were going to continue to take care of the medical and make up the difference in pay like last time, and not to worry about a thing," she said. "And I thought it was a done deal until I got this certified letter, and there was no explanation in the letter."

She said she inquired at city hall as to the reason and heard the benefits were withdrawn because Hanson's participation in the Afghanistan effort was voluntary.

While being in the National Guard is voluntary, guardsmen have no control over deployments, she said.

She acknowledged the city's covering the gap between his National Guard pay and his earnings as the building official, just as it did when he was employed in building maintenance and serving in Iraq as a Staff Sergeant, is not mandatory.

"They didn't have to do that, but it showed the support of the city," she said, and the family had been led to believe the same would be true this time.

Before he left, the Hansons sat down and budgeted around those numbers. "It's a fine line," she said, with two kids in college. Keely, the oldest, has one more year at UC Irvine and is planning to attend law school after she graduates. Travis is a freshman at Santa Ana City College and is living with his sister.

Now, Annette Hanson is considering pounding the pavement for more business, getting a second job or renting out rooms in the family home to help make ends meet.

After hearing about Hanson's impending loss of pay and medical benefits, Col. Eric Grimm of the U.S. Army 40th Infantry Division Agribusiness Development Team sent a letter to Guillen Oct. 8 requesting they be kept intact. He assured Guillen Hanson's mobilization was involuntary and said he had been chosen for the assignment because of his engineering background.

"This unit has a unique mission to assist villages and small towns within Kunar Province, Afghanistan, to rebuild infrastructure related to agriculture and related businesses," he wrote. "Each soldier assigned to this unit was selected because of his or her civilian acquired skills."

John Hanson arrived there a month ago, and the rest of the team joined him this week, according to his wife.

She said she hopes to get answers from the city, though she has yet to hear from Burch or Guillen. She has also been in touch with a lawyer to see whether the city can legally withdraw Hanson's medical benefits or take away his job while he's serving.

Burch referred The Pine Cone to the city's attorneys. Mayor Sue McCloud said she was not familiar with the situation and did not even know where Hanson had been sent. Col. Grimm's letter listed her as a recipient, but she said she had not seen a copy. "The city council doesn't have anything to do with it. I don't know any of the particulars, but I gather something is going on," she said. "Those things we don't get involved in, unless there's a policy issue."

Big Sur park hosts 29th annual 10k race

PFEIFFER BIG Sur State Park will present the 29th annual Big Sur River Run 10k race Saturday, Oct. 24. A 5k walk will also be offered.

The mostly level course gently winds its way through majestic redwoods and along the Big Sur River.

In keeping with tradition, an eclectic collection of musicians will be on hand. A classical string quartet, bagpipers and Big Sur's beloved mariachi group, Trio Esparza, will entertain runners as they navigate the course, while Just Friends (R&B, jazz) will greet weary participants as they cross the finish line.

Runners will also receive a complimentary 10-minute massage and all participants will receive a commemorative T-shirt with art by Big Sur's Holly Fassett.

Proceeds from the run benefit the Big Sur Health Center and the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade.

The races start at 10 a.m. The cost of participating in either race is $38. Registration is available at the park on the day of the race from 8 to 9:30 a.m. The park is located on Highway 1 about 26 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 624-4112 or visit www.bigsurriverrun.org.

Quail hosts party for pooches

ONLY AN area as crazy about canines as Carmel could be home to anything called the Howl-O-Ween Dog Paw-ty. The third annual party for dog lovers and their pets will be held Sunday, Oct. 25, from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Quail Meadows off Rancho San Carlos Road in Carmel Valley.

TV personality Hunter Finnell will play host, and activities will include a costume contest for children and dogs, a canine fashion show of "the hottest new designer doggy trends," live and silent auctions, and children's activities. The Salinas Monterey Agility Racing Team will do a demonstration, and sponsors Diggidy Dog, Maddie Girl Organic Food, Natural Veterinary Therapy and McCall Events will display their latest goods and services.

People can even take home a new family member, as adoption services will be provided by Animal Friends Rescue Project.

Tickets, which include lunch, wine and goodies, are $35 for adults and $10 for children 4-12, with kids under 4 and all pets admitted free. For more information, call (831) 624-2888 or visit www.quaillodgeevents.com.

Sandy Claws

By Margot Petit Nichols

SOFIA & SOPRANA Catanzaro, 7-month-old Yorkypoo/mini Pomeranians, are usually as happy as larks.

But the little sisters were peeved Sunday at Carmel Beach, as you can see from their expressions. And they had good reason.

What started out to be a fun day turned into a seemingly endless grooming session at a Peninsula salon, complete with bath, haircut, blow dry and perky bows. Then, when they were finally all set for a frisky afternoon walk at the beach – with anticipated admiring glances from passersby – it instead turned into an unexpected interminable photo session with an obsessed journalist.

After unsuccessful poses on benches, sand and large rocks, where they tended to ignore the camera, it was decided Mom should hold them.

Later, during their interview, we learned the two 5-pound dogs live with their Mom Joette and Dad Gaspar in Seaside, where their 21-year-old cat, brother Mario, rules the roost by sheer weight, height and durability. Mario is really brother Vito's cat, but he's living in San Diego following graduation from San Diego State, where he majored in history and cinematography.

Although hyperkinetic, Sofia and Soprana stay out of trouble – for the most part. They've been known to chew up carpets, magazines and Dad's flip-flops.

The girls have an abundance of stuffed animal playthings, all with squeakers; the two most doted-upon currently are a dog and a giraffe. The stuffed monkey, for which they formerly showed a marked preference, has gone on to monkey heaven as simian confetti.

Their doggie playmates include Bear and Bella Grillo, Layla Napoli, Lola Montante, Bella Grannis and Roxie Pavone. Much-loved Nonna Agnes D'Agui and friend Joe Real babysit Sofia and Soprana two days a week, thus giving elderly Mario some time to rest, and Agnes and Joe five days to recuperate.

FLU

barred anybody under 16 from visiting in order to help stop the spread of the virus to patients, children and pregnant women.

CHOMP officials met several times this week to discuss the option of restricting some visitors, including children, but as of Thursday hadn't made a decision.

"We have not placed restrictions," said CHOMP spokeswoman Brenda Moore. "But they're under consideration."

Hospitals are restricting young people because the H1N1 strain is spread easily among children.

Salinas Valley Memorial Healthcare System spokeswoman Adrienne Laurent said that hospital has already begun restricting two visitors per day for patients who have H1N1. Visitors also must wash their hands.

Laurent said the restrictions were made, in part, because of a national shortage of respirator masks visitors are required to wear when seeing patients with the virus.

In addition to a mask, visitors seeing H1N1 patients also must suit up in a full gown and wear eye protection.

Natividad Medical Center in Salinas began restricting visitors in September, according to hospital spokeswoman Carol Adams. "As a precaution and to reduce the spread of the flu, we did amend the visitor policy," Adams said.

The hospital now prohibits those under 18 from visiting the pediatric and obstetric areas of the hospital.

"In terms of others over 18, we are limiting it to immediate family members," Adams said. "Those who have flu-like symptoms, we request they refrain from visiting."

Even though there are no national guidelines directing hospitals to restrict visitors, local hospital officials have met to discuss the impact of such restrictions.

"Our hospitals are working together just to make sure we are all on the same page," Laurent said.

But it's not clear how much barring visits will slow the spread of swine flu. That's because there's been little study on whether curbing visitors, or screening them for symptoms, keeps flu from spreading in hospitals, the Associated Press reported this week.

The news agency also said neither the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention nor the American Hospital Association have set guidelines on the issue.

Stanford officials said its policy will be in effect through the height of the flu season into the spring, and will be reevaluated at that time.

LETTERS

Rowntree Native Plant Garden, the Martin Meadow, and access to many of the trails.

Instead of selling, let's honor the individuals who had the vision, the courage and the determination to see Flanders as a vital part of the MTNP by keeping it and maintaining it. Please join us in voting no on measure I.

Karen and Hugo Ferlito, Carmel

Too big to fail?

Dear Editor,

So, what do AIG, GM, and Flanders Mansion have in common? In the eyes of some, they are "too big to fail!" For the last few years we have been bombarded by those who have rhapsodize about how the Mission Trail park, if not the entire southern border of Carmel, will be ruined if the Flanders house is allowed to again become a residence. If Carmel could print money like the federal government, then maybe we could afford a bailout. But with TOT and sales taxes down, Carmel has little choice but to sell off unused inventory ... a little like GM selling Saturn and Hummer! And don't forget, it was just a couple of years ago that Carmel voters rejected a small increase in property taxes to fund a wastewater project. Selling Flanders is one way to raise important revenues when voters reject tax increases.

However, there may be another option. Why not sell the mansion to the Flanders Foundation for $1 with the proviso that if the group can't make a go of it, they will sell it back to the city for a buck. That way they can bring their plan before the planning commission, do the required EIR, then the revised EIR, then go to the city council, then back to the council, then tackle the appeal to the coastal commission, and then fight the five-year lawsuit from the neighbors. All the while, they will have to pay the taxes, insurance, maintenance, lawyers' fees, architectural fees, and whatever else any applicant has to pay. My guess is that after seven to 10 years of this charade where nothing is resolved, the foundation would be begging the city to buy back the property for a dollar!

We could do that ... or we could save everyone more debauchery by voting Yes on I on Nov. 3.

Chris Tescher, Carmel

The last California frontier

Dear Editor,

It seems that no one has addressed the fact that a city set up along a 14-mile corridor could have problems having a united vision. Most of us know that the social profile of the two extreme ends of this corridor are very different.

The voters need to know about the ongoing struggles and challenges the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce faces in representing its business community within this 14-mile corridor. The mouth of the valley has a very different focus and attitude than Carmel Valley Village. Conflicts are common and the chamber is basically running on fumes. Be assured that incorporating could never serve and represent all of us well for the very same reasons. Carmel Valley City would have great difficulty embracing the diversity of our community. It could not provide a common heart, vision or even know what it should become.

The west end and the east end of the proposed city limits have very different cultural and business needs. On both sides of the issue there are very concerned and committed people who love and want to protect what they have. The Yes on G side has a small but powerful group that needs a city in order to provide the mechanism that will empower their commitment to growth and development. We all love our Carmel Valley, but none of us in the private sector can have the stamina, money or complete knowledge of how the game is played. We will not be able to suppress and overcome the appetite of the self-serving.

The voters need to realize that an economically failing city is what developers need and hope for. This is the way they will get their projects passed. "More development equals more tax revenue." The new proposed city of Carmel Valley will not be able to protect or provide longevity to any of its ideologies.

For those citizens that support Yes on G, take a close look at where your funding comes from before you cast your vote.

Yes or No, the majority of us want to protect Carmel Valley's rural lifestyle, and I do hope you realize that this is the last California frontier. Don't damage it by making it a city.

I love not having a chalk line on my tires. How about you?

Portrait photographer puts a face on the world's biggest creature

By CHRIS COUNTS

SEEKING TO capture an intimate portrait of the largest animal on earth, photographer Bryant Austin ended up with one whale of an adventure.

Austin — who will present a talk about his images Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Post Ranch Inn's Sierra Mar restaurant in Big Sur — was seeking to photograph whales from a new perspective when he traveled to the island nation of Tonga in the South Pacific about five years ago.

On a two-week break from his job as a marine researcher in Santa Cruz, Austin fruitlessly tried to capture an interesting shot of a whale. With his departure imminent, he called his boss on a whim and squeezed another week's vacation out of him.

"I told him I missed my plane," Austin admitted.

Back in the water after extending his trip, Austin had an experience he'll never forget.

"I was snorkeling on the surface and observing a mother whale," he recalled. "A 6-week-old calf swam right up me and passed within inches of my face."

While a mesmerized Austin watched the calf, the mother moved in for a closer look as well. Before he realized it, Austin found

Sunset Center: Best-selling author, legendary trumpeter, and more

By CHRIS COUNTS

A PERFORMANCE by one of America's funniest men highlights a busy week at Sunset Center.

David Sedaris, a Grammy Award-winning comedian and best-selling author, takes the stage at Sunset Center Wednesday, Oct. 28.

"He's kind of like the rock star of humorists," explained Peter Lesnik, executive director of Sunset Center. "He has a view of the world that is loving and sardonic at the same time. He's so smart and understated."

Sedaris published his first collection of essays and short stories, "Barrel Fever," in 1994. Since then, each of his works, "Naked" (1997), "Holidays on Ice" (1997), "Me Talk Pretty One Day" (2000), "Dress Your Family in Corduroy and Denim" (2004) and "When You Are Engulfed in Flames" (2008) have been New York Times best-sellers.

The performance starts at 8 p.m. Tickets, which range from $52 to $77, are nearly sold out. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For more information, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

■ Heeeeere's Doc

Best known for leading the orchestra on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," legendary trumpeter, band leader and pops conductor Doc Severinsen performs at Sunset Center Sunday, Oct. 25.

He'll be joined at Sunset Center by a six-piece Latin jazz combo.

"This concert is a benefit for the Monterey Symphony," said Joe Truskot, executive director for the symphony. "We're pleased to present someone with such a distinguished career. He's a fabulous musician. It's going to be a lot of fun."

In addition to his work with Johnny Carson, Severinsen has served as principal pops conductor for the Phoenix Symphony, the Colorado Symphony Orchestra, the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra, the Minnesota Orchestra, the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra and the Pacific Symphony Orchestra.

The concert starts at 3 p.m. and will be followed by a Fiesta. Tickets are $25 and $50 for the music, and $75 for the party. For more information, call (831) 646-8511 or visit www.montereysymphony.org.

■ String quartet returns

Winners of eight Grammy Awards, the Emerson String Quartet returns to Sunset Center Friday, Oct. 23.

In addition to its impressive collection of Grammys, the string quartet was the first ensemble ever to be awarded one of classical music's top honors, the prestigious Avery Fisher Prize.

The string quartet features violinists

Big Sur gets in touch with its gourmet past and present

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ALTHOUGH PEOPLE who live in or regularly visit Big Sur know all about its great high-end restaurants and accomplished chefs, it (fortunately) has not become one of those trendy culinary meccas splashed across glossy magazine pages or featured on the Food Network. But the area continues to make its mark on the culinary world in its own distinctive way, most recently with the release of a part-memoir-part-cookbook by Romney Steele, granddaughter of Nepenthe founders Bill and Lolly Fassett, and a new food and wine festival slated for Nov. 6-7.

Steele, whose great-great-grandfather was early Carmel developer Frank Powers, combines Big Sur history and memories of growing up there with compelling recipes in "My Nepenthe: Bohemian Tales of Food, Family, and Big Sur."

The beautiful book published by Andrews McMeel is packed with photos, and Steele, known to many as Nani, said she enjoyed reminiscing, gleaning memories from family members and longtime restaurant employees, and deciding which recipes to include. Her aunt, Holly, and cousin, Kirk, run Nepenthe now.

The Fassetts opened Nepenthe, which means "no sorrow" in Greek, after picnicking at an old cabin on the site one summer day in 1947 and deciding they should buy the beautiful spot. Rita Hayworth owned the cabin, which Orson Welles had bought her as a wedding present, according to Steele, and that "added to Nepenthe's mystique."

Initially, the food was fairly simple, due to Nepenthe's distance from major marketplaces and limited resources. Prime steaks, local fish, home-baked hams for sandwiches and the famous Ambrosia Burger made up most of the menu.

People visited Nepenthe for the music, dancing, poetry, art, people and the view, more than for the food. "The fact that there was good food, and indeed it was considered gourmet for its time, was almost a bonus," she said.

Steele recalled being surrounded by "this kind of mad creativity" at Nepenthe. Ogling celebrities was against the rules, so she and the other children would watch them from her grandmother's windowsill.

The emphasis is now more on relaxing, enjoying the scenery and eating good food. Nepenthe has an award-winning wine list, as well as a creative and more extensive menu.

Steele tends toward her childhood tastes when pondering her favorites. She admitted a nostalgic fondness for the Ambrosia Burger, though she rarely eats meat. "It's easy for me to feel stuck in Nepenthe's past — my comfort zone. I love the pumpkin spice cake and cheese pie, and the chef salad was a Nepenthe standout when I was growing up, as was the cheese board, with its plethora of grapes, fat slices of black bread, and seasonal fruit," she said, adding that such recipes appear in her book.

"Today, I almost always order the fresh fish of the day, simply grilled with a baked potato, halved and also grilled." The potato is "not on the menu, but divine," she said. "Ask your waiter." The roasted garlic with goat cheese is perfect with a glass of wine on the terrace, and Nepenthe continues to be popular for its huge baskets of thin French Fries, "or Golden Plumes, as we used to call them," Steele said.

She selected the recipes by combing through menus dating back to the restaurant's start. "It struck me that as much as our menu has changed over 60 years, the general concept has stayed the same," she said. "I tried to give a sense of that in the recipes I included."

The stories also influenced her choices, like the chocolate Torta di Capri included in the section about Lolly Fassett's time in Capri, Italy. "The Orange Chiffon cake came out of a conversation with my aunt Dorcas, who first made that cake for Sunday brunch, way back in the '50s," she added. "Many of the recipes come from my memories of my grandmother — like her famous hotcakes — and spending hours with her in the family kitchen above the restaurant, and also cooking with the family cooks."

The Big Sur landmark will host a book signing, release party and reception for Steele Saturday, Oct. 24, followed by dancing on the terrace. The book is for sale in the Phoenix shop there for $35 and will make its official debut in early November. On Nov. 7, Sweet Elena's in Sand City will hold a 4 p.m. signing and 6 p.m. dinner "to celebrate and remember Lolly's Kitchen," and on Nov. 14 from 2 to 6 p.m. Carmel Bay Company will host a signing and talk. The Works in Pacific Grove will host a similar event Dec. 8 at 6 p.m.

FOOD & WINE

Escape into wine, support Quail cooks, play pink poker

By MARY BROWNFIELD

NOVEMBER IN MoCo means the Great Wine Escape, and wineries throughout the county are getting ready for glass-toting vino fans thirsting to taste something new, meet the people behind the bottles and learn a thing or two. The well organized Nov. 13-15 event put on by the Monterey County Vintners & Growers Association ensures every participant will get plenty of everything, from education and instruction during panels, tastings and tours, to a whole lot of delicious food and wonderful wine during the Finale Sunday. After more than a decade of holding the GWE, the MCVGA knows what works.

On Friday, participants can attend Coastal Kitchen food and wine seminars during the day, and then make their way to one of the many winemaker dinners, like the after-hours tour and feast at the Monterey Bay Aquarium with Estancia. Nearly a dozen dinners are on offer, such as De Tierra at Montrio, Pessagno at the Sardine Factory, Boekenooogen at Anton & Michel, Ventana Vineyards at Grasing's Coastal Cuisine and Wrath at Pacific's Edge.

On Saturday, people can take self-guided or bus tours to wineries to taste new releases, enjoy food and meet the winemakers, or they can embark on educational vineyard and winery tours at Chalone and Estancia. The hands-on Winemaker for a Day seminar at Paraiso will have winemaker David Fleming showing guests how to blend, and they will be invited to take their creations home.

More wineries and chefs will host dinners that night, with the highlight being the annual Wine Enthusiast dinner honoring Monterey County Wine Country's Founding Fathers the InterContinental hotel on Cannery Row.

The GWE concludes with its Finale in the InterContinental Sunday from noon to 3:30 p.m.

For event information, as well as tickets for individual events and packages, visit www.montereywines.org/gwe.

■ Bernardus style

Fall brings some of Bernardus executive chef Cal Stamenov's favorite ingredients — winter squash, shelling beans, wild mushrooms, apples, pears and huckleberries — inspiring him to host Holiday Entertaining with Bernardus Style at the lodge in Carmel Valley Saturday, Nov. 14, from 4 to 6 p.m. The aim is to show guests how to prepare wonderful seasonal dishes at home.

"He understands the value of family-style meals, which allow people to reconnect and share the stories of the day," said his assistant, Gina Martin. "During the holidays, there is not enough time to concoct elaborate meals — especially when the desire is to spend time with family at the table, not in the kitchen."

Stamenov, pastry chef Ben Spungin, florist Susanna Gamble and Kent Torrey, owner of The Cheese Shop in Carmel Plaza, will share their knowledge and tips. The chefs will describe their holiday favorites, from whole roasted herb chicken, to heirloom apple crêpes, while Gamble provides tips for easy arrangements and centerpieces. Bernardus wines, hors d'oeuvres and interesting cheeses will be in abundance.

The cost is $85 per person, including tax and tip, and reservations may be made by

■ Pink Poker Night

The rescheduled Pink Poker Night, which will raise money for culinary scholarships and the Natividad Medical Foundation via a lively night of female-only gambling, will be held at the Culinary Center of Monterey on Cannery Row Saturday, Nov. 21, at 6 p.m.

The night will include a buffet dinner, pink cocktails from a no-host bar — and lots of poker, with winners taking home spa treatments, dinners and other prizes. Guests will be served by an all-male staff of culinary students and well known locals who will donate their tips to the star charities.

Tickets are $50, which includes $25 in poker chips. To reserve by Nov. 19, call (831) 333-2133.

■ Quail for Thanksgiving

It may be a rather quiet place by then, considering Quail Lodge will close in mid-November, but the golf course and clubhouse — including Edgar's restaurant — will be open for business throughout the holidays.

Don't feel like slaving in the kitchen on Thanksgiving? Edgar's will offer family-style "stress-free three-course holiday meal" for $25 per person, excluding tax and tip. Want to eat at home but avoid any cooking? The kitchen staff will also prepare a pre-cooked take-home feast for $35 per person.

Throughout the month of December (except Christmas Eve and Christmas Day), Quail will present holiday-inspired prix fixe dinners for $25 per person. For reservations, call (831) 620-8910 or visit www.quailodge.com.

Companies, families, clubs and groups can book private holiday parties of 12 or more for a three-course lunch ($35 per person) or dinner ($45 per person), and tack on a one-hour full-bar reception for another $10 per person. The parties include decorations, punch and raffle prizes, and anyone who books before Oct. 31 will receive $10 off the per-guest price. FIRE

Carmel Police Department detective who now spends much of his time doing professional wedding photography, Poitras accepted 5th District Supervisor Dave Potter's appointment in spring 2008 because he wanted to give back to the valley he has called home for the past two decades.

"I thought this was a fair way to return some of the good things that have happened to me since I've been here," he said. After accepting the job, Poitras admitted he was surprised to learn how challenging it was. Major tasks Poitras faced on the board included finding new leadership and getting the district out of a deep financial hole.

"The most important thing was hiring Chief Mike Urquides and his administrative team," he said. "I hope that whatever board results from the election will continue that relationship for at least one more year."

Poitras praised Urquides' cost-cutting and the successful passage of a new tax. Paid firefighters took a 10 percent pay cut, one was demoted and two were laid off to help reduce spending. Then, in August, 85 percent of C.V. voters approved the doubling of an assessment property owners have been paying for years.

"We were in dire financial conditions prior to their arrival, and the steps they've taken have been nothing short of fantastic," he said of Urquides and his team. His primary focus as a board member would be continuing to work on the district's financial recovery.

Morale has also improved, with volunteers and paid staff at both C.V. stations becoming more united, according to Poitras, who said he has the endorsement of volunteer firefighters and the union.

Poitras believes his police experience makes him a strong candidate. "I'm able to look at the organization from the ground level, because I've worked in an organization that's not dissimilar," he said.

Justin Hastings

A Seaside firefighter and owner of Hastings Construction, Hastings said he decided to run for the board after members of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District asked him to consider it. He used to volunteer as a firefighter in the valley but is now too busy, so he thought serving on the board would be an ideal way to contribute, he said.

Hastings said his focus would be on "making the fire department better than it has been in the past."

"Ultimately, there has to be a serious look at the budget and where the expenditures are," he said. "But we can't cut the services more than we already have."

He pointed out the department is sending two people out on the engine every time it's dispatched, while most other departments send three or more paid firefighters. At a fire, a minimum of four people need to be there, so two firefighters can enter the building while two others remain outside, according to occupational safety rules.

"They rely heavily on the volunteers, and they are a good asset, but at the Mid Valley Station, the volunteers are not so strong," he said. "Being from the fire service, I'm going to have a better understanding of what can and cannot be done, in terms of cost savings."

Hastings, who lives in Carmel Valley Village with his family, has been a firefighter early 1990s. He started with Mid Valley Fire, where he worked until shortly after the consolidation with the C.V. Fire Department nine years ago. The combination did not go smoothly, and Hastings left to work for Seaside Fire.

"I've lived here a long time and am involved in the community," he said, adding that being a business owner and a firefighter make him a strong candidate, as he could apply his knowledge of both. "I'll be a really valuable asset to the board, having all of those elements," he said.

Gaudenz Panholzer

Appointed incumbent Panholzer, a professional firefighter in San Jose who lives in the C.V. Fire Protection District, said the board has made progress in reducing some of the discord that erupted between employees and volunteers after consolidation, and he would like to continue to work on improving the district.

"We've made a lot of progress in resolving some of those issues," he said. "And there are a lot of financial issues that have come to light in the recent past. We're working hard on bringing those around."

Panholzer said the district will finish this year in the black — a first in several years. "When you start something, you want to finish it up, so I want to keep working on those issues," he said.

When he was appointed during the past term, Panholzer said he was "the first person, to my knowledge, who got on the board who had the endorsement of all the different groups." The paid staff and volunteers, along with administrators, "felt I was a good candidate, and they've asked me to continue serving," he said.

Getting CVFPD on sound financial footing is an obligation to residents and employees, according to Panholzer, as is addressing the concerns and needs of the paid employees and volunteers. He also said the ambulance system, which is jointly run by Carmel and Carmel Valley, needs assessment to ensure it is as cost effective as possible. Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance boasts superlative response times that, within the City of Carmel, average three to four minutes.

"Is this still the best model for us to provide ambulance service? As part of the conversation, we need to look at all the possible alternatives, including not providing ambulance service and letting the county provide it," he said. "You always have to look at all the options, even if you think right off the top it's not the best one."

Susan Augustitus

A realtor, former Carmel Unified School District program facilitator at Tularcitos and business owner, Augustitus has been a valley resident for 36 years and said she has the unique perspective borne of being married to a man who was a district volunteer for more than two decades. Augustitus is endorsed by the Valley Volunteers.

"CVFPD remains at a critical juncture," she said, as it searches for a new chief and strives to get its finances in order. "The newly elected board of directors must have the stamina, commitment and wisdom to see this transition to a successful completion."

Augustitus said the district's financial problems have been evident for years, and she condemned prior leaders for lacking common sense. "Finances are a critical part, but it also has to do with maintaining the morale of the department, because obviously, we have very fine people working with the district now," she said.

Augustitus does not favor further consolidation and said the combining of the former Mid Valley and Carmel Valley fire departments was good in theory but problematic in practice, particularly when it came to budgeting and morale.

"Oftentimes, theory in application misses by a mile," she said. "How consolidation was implemented was a disaster. That speaks to management, and that speaks to the board."

Every victor in the Nov. 3 board election "needs to have a big passel of common sense," she said.

Ron Builta

Builtta, who lives and works at the Santa Lucia Preserve, is the only long-timer seeking reelection. He joined the board 11 years ago and has served two terms as its president, and is running because he enjoys the job.

"We're financially strapped, but through Mike's hard work, and staff's, we see the light at the end of the tunnel," he said. "It hasn't been easy, but it's going to improve."

The challenges of keeping morale up and ensuring a high level of service while keeping an eye on the budget and rebuilding reserves are going to make the next few years "very interesting," Builta said. "That's the main reason I want to stay with the district."

Builtta would like to see more firefighters on CVFPD engines, though the two-person system used now is adequate and legal. "We could always use some more staffing, once we can afford it," he said.

Builtta also said he appreciates the chance to work with the firefighters and other people in the district.

"It's been very rewarding," he said.

FOOD

commences in its own inimitable style the first weekend in November with offerings like Hiking with Stenware and a wine dinner at the exclusive Esalen Institute. The two-day festival, sponsored in part by the Henry Miller Library, features wine dinners at Big Sur restaurants, wine seminars, a dinner and auction, and a grand tasting.

Organizers have managed to develop a stellar roster of big-name winemakers and guest chefs who agreed to participate not just because they are proud of what they do, but because they love Big Sur. "Without boasting, we have one of the greatest lineups of winemakers," said president Toby Rowland-Jones. "These people are at the very very top of what they do, and they come to us because they love to be here and they know us. It's all about friendship and connections."

Consider the "Legends of the Fall — Power Pinot Panel" Friday morning starring the charismatic kings of Pinot Noir, including Au Bon Climat's Jim Clendenen, growers and winemakers Gary Francioni and Gary Pisoni, Dan Karlsen from Talbott and Josh Jensen of Calera. The entertainment factor alone makes it worth attending, not to mention the great wines. Peter Granoff, master sommelier and owner of the S.F. Ferry Plaza Wine Merchant, will be the moderator.

Several other seminars will be offered

Friday and Saturday, and restaurants will pair up with winemakers for elaborate and interesting dinners.

The largest gathering will be the Grand Public Tasting from noon to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, when 30 wineries and restaurants, including Passionfish, The Cheese Shop, Mundaka and TreeBones, tempt taste buds in the Lodge at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park.

An auction and reception at Ventana will include checkbook-tempting items like the 6-liter bottle of 2002 Ridge Montebello worth about $2,000.

"It's a massive bottle — it's bigger than I am," Rowland-Jones said. "We've got all these incredible donations that are unique."

While a few winemaker dinners are also set for Saturday night, the headliner is Dinner with Friends — A Benefit for Big Sur. Guest chefs from the Peninsula, including Cal Stamenov and Ben Spungin of Bernardus, and Mark Ayers of the Highlands Inn, will cook to complement Talbott, Ridge, Chappellet, Bernardus and Justin wines.

And to make the logistics of drinking wine in Big Sur a little safer and easier, organizers contracted with Monterey-Salinas Transit for a free shuttle between Monterey and Big Sur on Saturday. The bus will pick up participants in town, bring them down the coast for the day, circulate between venues, and then head north in the late afternoon.

To check out all of the offerings, from the seminars, to the wine dinners, discussions and fundraiser, visit www.bigsurfoodand-wine.org.

Hopeless

WEATHER FORECASTERS say this will probably be a wet winter, with another El Niño forming in the Pacific Ocean. If the big storm that drenched the Monterey Peninsula last week is any indication, we're in for four or five months of floods and power outages.

But never mind the tens of billions of gallons of free water that may be headed our way, courtesy of Mother Nature. State regulators have decided that humans are only entitled to capture and use a tiny portion of it. The rest is for the fish.

Thus, one state agency ordered us this week to sharply cut our water use, consequences be damned, even as another state agency stands in the way of a water supply project that, ridiculously expensive as it may be, would at least keep the taps running after the Carmel River is put off limits.

So many things have to be dysfunctional for the Monterey Peninsula to reach this ridiculous state of affairs, with one of life's most basic necessities about to be severely curtailed. It would be no less bizarre if some state agency decided we couldn't have food, clothing or shelter, while the Legislature and the courts stood idly by, and the news media seemed to applaud. (This week The Monterey County Herald endorsed a no-water candidate for reelection to the water board.)

We've been warning for years of the dire consequences to the local economy of water rationing. But now, so severe might the water restrictions become, even the health and safety of residents is threatened, not to mention their lifestyles and convenience.

All that might be enduring if some accident of nature caused the water shortage. But this water shortage is a political artifice, imposed on us by our fellow man.

The 45 citizens who pleaded with the State Water Resources Control Board not to impose water rationing on the Monterey Peninsula are to be commended — and their protests weren't completely in vain. The callous SWRCB backed off a bit. But things promise to soon be very bad, nonetheless.

Already for 15 years, hardly any new water has been available to the people of the Monterey Peninsula, even as our cities suffer for lack of infill housing, business expansions and the ability of residents to make incremental additions to their own homes. Now, even the existing water is about to be sharply reduced.

Construction of a desal plant is still years away. It even seems likely it will never be built. And if it is ever completed, it will be very expensive to operate.

We have repeatedly called for some political leadership to save us from this dilemma — either from our representatives in the California Legislature, or in Congress, or even from the courts. The government, after all, is supposed to serve the people, not conspire against them. But, aside from testimony by Sen. Abel Maldonado at the SWRCB this week, nothing has been done. And it seems nothing will be.

Flanders Fact vs. Fiction

Dear Editor,
Fiction: In a recent letter about Flanders Mansion, Bob Kohn stated that "there are nine 40-by-100-foot lots in the Native Plant Garden that could be sold and developed."

Fact: There are no lots that could be sold and/or developed. In June 1968 (before the city purchased the Flanders house with 14.9 acres) a "tentative map" was drawn up showing 58 home sites on the Flanders property. This subdivision was never approved.

Fact: On Dec. 7, 1999, the city council voted 3 (Ken White, Paula Hazdovac, Sue McCloud) to 2 "to ensure the preservation of the Lester Rowntree Native Plant Garden."

We urge those in this debate to stick to the actual facts!

Paula Hazdovac,
Carmel

The wonder of parks

Dear Editor,
It was timely that we were recently able to view the PBS special on National Parks. The incredible vision and determination that Teddy Roosevelt, John Muir and others had to set aside those beautiful lands for all of us was inspiring.

It took vision for a former city council to purchase the Flanders property and add it to Mission Trail park back in the 1970s. It took courage for another council to listen to residents and decide against selling it off in the 1980s. Once again we are faced with the decision of whether to support and enhance that original vision or sell off Flanders for short-term gain. What will our legacy be? Will it be one that preserves the open space, views and possibilities of Flanders or will it be one of "selling off the jewels to fill a few potholes?"

Let's do the right thing for future generations of residents. They just might be more creative and cooperative than we have been. Selling Flanders breaks up the Mission Trail Nature Preserve and creates an inholding in its midst. Inholdings within parks cause problems: privacy issues, noise, fences, etc. Imagine if we were trying to buy this parcel to complete the park. We probably couldn't afford it at today's prices.

Before you vote, please make it a point to go up to Flanders and have a look around. As you walk, notice the blue marker stakes. You will see that if it is sold, it would greatly impact the use and enjoyment of the Harriet

Carmel Valley

Rural Valley or NEW CITY?

Rural Valley vs. New City To realize that Carmel Valley, by its very nature, is a rural community and should not be an incorporated city, requires only a simple 14-mile drive from Highway One through the Carmel Valley Village.

Density The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has roughly 4,000 residents in 1 square-mile. Carmel Valley has 12,500 in approximately 39 square-miles. This difference in density is dramatic! Herein lies the problem: Lacking the density, places a tremendous burden (new taxes, assessments and fees) on those that live here.

Development One argument of the pro-city supporters is to stop massive future development of the Valley. The Carmel Valley Master Plan and the General Plan Update #5 (GPU5) have already preempted over-development by restricting it. In fact, 92.8% of the allowable development in Carmel Valley has already been built. That leaves only 7.2% to be built... that's it. Fear of over-development is an irrational, non-issue and the proponent's #1 scare tactic. To create an entire new layer of government for the final 7.2%, when the systems are already in place, could be very expensive for everybody.

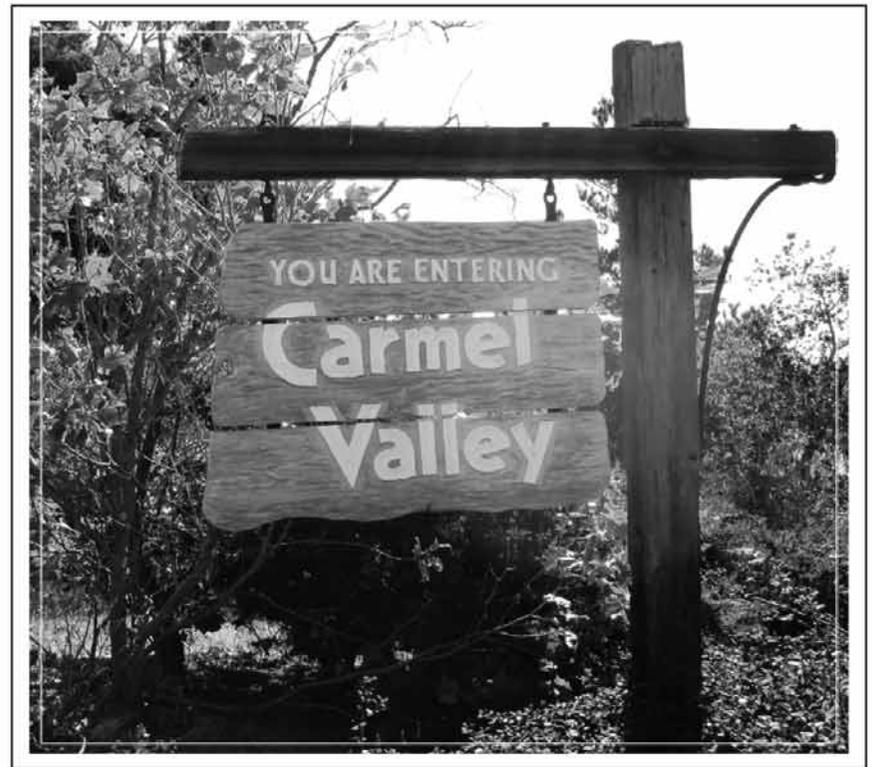

Underestimated Staffing to Deliver Services New layers of government are not cheap. Cities, special districts, and general government services throughout California are in serious economic trouble. The City of Carmel is looking to reduce its budget by 10%, while Monterey and Pacific Grove are having very serious challenges. Are the new proposed city staffing estimates realistic? Here's a revealing comparative snapshot:

- Proposed New City of Carmel Valley
23 employees | 39 square miles | 12,500 residents
- Current Carmel-by-the-Sea
80 employees | 1 square mile | 4,000 residents

The daily operations of a 39 square-mile city requires an enormous infrastructure and staff, which the County already has in place—and, at no additional expense to taxpayers!

Volunteer Government It is unrealistic to believe that the City would be operated by an unpaid city council and volunteer staff and illogical to believe that Carmel Valley property owners would turn over this vast landmass of 39 square miles to amateur, volunteer politicians and bureaucrats. Government services cost money, which come from taxes and fees and require skilled and experienced management, not volunteer services.

Road Liability "...$2,000,000 deficit by year 10 and Carmel Valley roads will only get worse after incorporation..." Quote from the LAFCO Executive Officer's Report: November 25, 2008, page 5 Update – Public Hearing Draft, Comprehensive Fiscal Analysis of the Proposed Incorporation of Carmel Valley, Dated November 11, 2008; Table 1a: Summary of Revenues and Expenses Carmel Valley Incorporation Analysis, Attachment D-56.

Financial Crisis The State of California and every City within are facing either financial crisis or bankruptcy. Who wants to create a new City during these down-trending financial times, especially a proposed-city that could already be broke? Vallejo has already declared bankruptcy!

Where Has All the Revenue Gone Tehama and Rancho San Carlos have been removed from the 39-mile boundary. Gardner's Resort and Quail Lodge's bed tax revenues, which constituted two large sources of income for the proposed City, have closed their doors indefinitely. How many more businesses will be closing? Carmel Valley Ranch lost 75% of value from its previous assessment and all property values in the valley have been deflated, which simply means lower tax revenues.

New Taxes City governments must employ 'Bond Redemptions' for Capital Improvements such as road reconstruction making property tax bills go up. With the decline in Transient Occupancy Tax (hotel bed tax), sales tax and property tax, it's not a question of if, it's simply a question of when and how much will property taxes and sales taxes be increased?

Litigation Costs Every City has to defend itself from lawsuits over land use matters, slips and falls, sexual harassment, etc. Who will pay for these lawsuits? Anyone who has doubts about this huge exposure to litigation costs needs to examine Half Moon Bay. This city was recently forced to issue a $35 million bond in order to avoid bankruptcy to cover the settlement for the city's denial of a subdivision. How much will the new city attorney be paid per hour? These are the costs of a new needless level of government.

Wild Land Fire Fighting The State's Cal Fire currently pays the cost of wild land fire protection for 23,916 acres in Carmel Valley at no charge to the unincorporated County. Cal Fire charges for wild land fire protection for incorporated areas of California, and so Carmel Valley residents will incur this cost if Carmel Valley becomes a City. Given the State financial crisis, we can expect the State will raise its charges for fire protection, which could easily reach millions of dollars. This is a major budget issue never addressed in LAFCO studies about incorporation.

Rural Valley vs. New City Lifestyle Residents of Carmel Valley enjoy living in a beautiful, simple, rural area, which is why many came here and why it is important to resist the misguided attempts to citify the Valley with petty politics, unnecessary government and unwanted new taxes. Keep our lifestyle free and our valley rural.

avored the idea, but a few residents vehemently opposed it and threatened to drag out the approval for years, forcing Miller to look elsewhere. Since early 2005, The Pine Cone's administrative, advertising and production offices have been located in a 90-year-old Victorian at 734 Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove.

Meanwhile, reporter Mary Brownfield, writer Margot Nichols and advertising representative Vanessa Jimenez have worked at a small office in Stonehouse Terrace on San Carlos Street.

"In recent years, more and more business has been conducted by telephone, email and over the Internet," Miller said. "Only four or five people a week visited our Carmel office." And with revenue off about 15 percent this year, he decided to close it.

"The important thing is to maintain the quality of our news coverage," Miller said. "We have three full-time reporters, and I want to keep it that way."

And he reminded readers of the importance of supporting the newspapers' advertisers. "With the holidays approaching, I want to ask everyone to spend their money at businesses they find on the page of The Carmel Pine Cone," Miller said. "That's what keeps us afloat."

"I felt a tap on my shoulder," he said. "It was gentle but firm. I thought it was a friend of mine. I turned, and that's when our eyes met."

Austin found himself staring into the face of the mother, who was just a few feet away.

"I was just deeply humbled — and shaking," he remembered. "I weigh 220 pounds, but she weighed more than 50 tons. Yet as insignificant as we must seem to them, they try not to hurt us."

Almost immediately after the encounter, Austin decided to undertake an ambitious project. His aim would be to create life-sized photographic portraits of whales — and use those portraits to bring attention to their diminishing population.

"Whales have been reduced to quotas and numbers, but I'm showing people what a whale really looks like. I'm giving a face to the issue," Austin said.

Funding the exhibit — and the extensive field work required to create the photographs — was no small challenge for the 40-year-old Austin. "I sold everything I owned," he conceded. "I sold my car and cashed out my retirement."

Eventually he raised more than $150,000. He also helped

"The resident was gone for three or four hours in the morning and returned to find the forced entry," he said.

And two days earlier, a property manager reported someone had broken into a vacant home on Magellan in Pebble Beach while the resident was out of the country. Brown said the sheriff's office does not know what was taken, since the victim has yet to comb through the home and compile a list.

"The bedroom window was pried open and the screen removed," he said. "Drawers had been opened and the contents had been scattered on the floor, so they knew someone had been inside."

Leads in the most recent break-ins are few, according to Brown.

Former students offer jazz CD and concert

TWO FORMER local high school students celebrate the release of a new recording with a concert Friday, Oct. 23 at the Pacific Coast Church in Pacific Grove.

Pianist Ross Garren, who graduated from Robert Louis Stevenson School in 2003, and drummer Gavin Salmon, who graduated from Carmel High School the same year, will play jazz from their new CD, "Elision." They'll be joined by bassist Dominic Thiroux. The performance starts at 6 p.m. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students. Up close and personal Partly due to the immense size of whales, most of Austin's photographs simply capture a face. But remarkably, he has created two images that depict an entire whale. One is a photograph of a baby sperm whale, while the other portrays an adult dwarf minke whale. The shot of the baby sperm whale is composed of 15 separate 50-megapixel images, and is 28 feet long and 6 feet tall.

After photographing whales in Tonga, the West Indies, Australia and the Azores, Austin has learned a few tricks about shooting portraits of whales.

"I float motionless and let them come to me," he said. "I let the whale know I'm predictable, respectful and interested."

Some of the encounters lasted up to six hours, he added.

While Austin is uncertain how his work will benefit the earth's whale populations, he's willing to take a chance that it will make a difference. "It is my hope that my work will effect change so whales can continue to be on this planet for many generations," he added. "My greatest fear is that this will be an archive of what we've lost."

The talk starts at 2:30 p.m. Austin's photographs, which sell for $3,200 to $10,500, will be on display at Sierra Mar until Feb. 20, 2010. Post Ranch Inn is located on Highway 1 in Big Sur, about 28 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 667-2200 or visit www.postranchinn.com.

■ Local artists chip in for big fundraiser

The Pacific Grove Art Center presents the opening of its annual Patron's Show fundraising exhibit Friday, Oct. 23. The event offers locals a chance to purchase a piece of fine art for a bargain price and, at the same time, support the nonprofit art center.

The Patron's Show is the art center's biggest fundraiser of the year. The exhibit showcases work by many of the Monterey Peninsula's finest artists, including Albert Brevard, Meredith Mullins, Beverly Dennis, Sharon Strouse, Warren Strouse, Randy McKendry, Elaine Mackoff, George Menasco, Irene Evers Elisabeth, Sheila Delimont, Carolyn Berry, Donna Schaffer, Anita Kaplan and Joann Kiehn.

This year's event is dedicated to the memory of William F. Stone, Jr., who passed away in August.

"Bill was a personal friend to many of us, as well as a generous supporter of our Patrons' Show and Tiny Treasures Miniatures' Show Fundraisers for many years," said Joan McCleary, director of the art center. "He touched many lives and benefited many community members and organizations."

Also opening at the art center Friday will be exhibits by watercolorist Cheryl Kampe ("Coastal Views"), painter Douglas Collins ("Oil on Paper), painter Brian Kauppi ("Natural Hybrid: Oil and Watercolor Paintings") and studio artists Connie Pearlstein and Juanita Anderson.

The art center will hosts a reception from 7 to 9 p.m. The exhibits will be on display until Dec. 17. The art center is located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. For more information, call (831) 375-2208 or visit www.pgartcenter.org.

Tim Allen
presents
Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

Della Walker was a childhood friend of FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT, and when she asked him to design a seaside HOUSE for her, he was 84 years old. He didn't know that, so he accepted the challenge (his only ocean house), and personally supervised its construction in 1954. "Make it low," said Della, "so my neighbors views will not be interrupted." He did that, and now the prow of the house, on Scenic drive near Martin Way, drives ceaselessly into the waves that buffet Carmel Bay. It is designed like an ocean liner, facing the tireless sea. The living room, slightly sunken, looks across the deck through stepped-down windows like a captain's bridge. The corridors, right and left, are narrow. Doors are slender and locked tight with catches. The kitchen is a galley, saving space in every corner, yet totally efficient. Staterooms along the halls lead back to a master bedroom with views to port and starboard, and a fireplace to defy the fiercest weather. The roof is copper, now oxidized to a timeless green. Della doesn't live there anymore, but the house will last forever.

Question of the Week

In today's confusing marketplace, which of the following buyer types score the highest on the "pursuit of happiness scale?"

- The market timer
- The cautious buyer
- The experienced buyer
- The "right house, right now" buyer

Answer: D. The "right house, right now" buyer. They find the right house and negotiate the best deal. Some people keep things simple and never look back. See our latest blog "Buyer Behavior...Nearing a Bottom?" www.theheinrichteam.com/blog

POLICE LOG

Big Sur: A Pacific Grove resident was stopped in Big Sur for a vehicle code violation. It was determined the driver had a suspended driver's license. The driver was cited and released. Case continues with the Monterey County District Attorney's Office.

Carmel Valley: Mother wanted to report that her daughter ran away from home again.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8

Carmel-by-the-Sea: After a traffic stop on Ocean Avenue for a vehicle code violation, the 23-year-old male driver was found to be in possession of 56.63 grams of marijuana in his vehicle. The driver was cited and released.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Injury accident on Carmelo Street. Person transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: During a vehicle check on Ocean Avenue, the owners of the vehicle were found camping on the beach. The male subject provided a false name and was later found to have a warrant. He was taken into custody for providing a false name and the warrant. He was also found to be in possession of 144.32g of marijuana. The male suspect, age 26, was booked into county jail.

Pebble Beach: Resident reported his mailbox was vandalized sometime between Sept. 19 and 20. Damage estimated at $50. No suspects.

Carmel Valley: Traffic stop for no front plate and cracked windshield found driver and sole occupant was driving on a suspended driver's license, wrong license plate displayed (intentional act) and no proof of insurance. Search of the vehicle yielded a container of less than 1 oz. of marijuana. Followup check of his 15-year-old daughter, home sick from school, led to discovery of one mature marijuana plant.

Carmel Valley: Victim reported her lost debit card was used to make $140 in fraudulent charges. No suspects.

Carmel area: Person reported losing a pair of prescription bifocal glasses valued at $200 at Carmel River State Beach.

Pebble Beach: Bonifacio Road resident reported his life being threatened Carmel area: New York resident was stopped in Carmel for vehicle code violations. He was found to be driving under the influence and subsequently arrested by CHP.

Big Sur: A bystander walking on the beach below Highway 1 at the Bixby Creek Bridge discovered a duffel bag in the surf filled with personal property and a handgun. The bystander immediately contacted authorities. The Monterey County Sheriff's Office and CHP responded to the scene to investigate and initiate a possible search of the area. A CHP helicopter was also requested to assist with the search. A motorcycle with severe damage was located near the location of the duffel bag. A subsequent search of the area lead to the discovery of a deceased male adult, located just south of the Bixby Bridge, approximately 100 feet down a cliff wall west of Highway 1. At a date and time to be determined, a motorcyclist riding a 2000 BMW K1200LT had been traveling northbound on Highway 1, south of the Bixby Bridge. As the BMW approached a right curve in the roadway towards the Bixby Bridge, the rider lost control of the BMW, failing to negotiate the curve. The BMW continued across the southbound lane, leaving the west side of the roadway, and struck a dirt embankment. The BMW continued over the dirt embankment and down an approximate 250-foot precipice to the beach below. The rider was ejected from the BMW and was located approximately 100 feet west of the highway. The CHP helicopter was utilized along with rescue crews to recover the victim from the steep mountainside. This accident is under investigation.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog found on San Antonio Avenue.
Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of disorderly conduct on San Carlos Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: An employee of a retail store on Ocean Avenue reported the theft of a handbag from a display located inside the store.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Found dog on 17 Mile Drive reported to Carmel P.D.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CPD officer recognized a 60-year-old male subject who has a suspended driver's license driving his vehicle on Mission Street. Subject was stopped and was cited for driving on a suspended license. The vehicle was towed and impounded.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to Mission and Eighth for a hazardous condition — a parked vehicle leaking fuel. Crew applied absorbent and awaited arrival of a tow, as the vehicle was leaking fuel at the tank/filler tubing connection.
