

Millions to save a 'threatened' fish that costs just $17 to eat

By KELLY NIX

LAST WEEK, Cal Am asked the government for permission to spend $49 million of ratepayer money to remove San Clemente Dam.

A week before that, the Sierra Club filed a lawsuit to stop a $300 million hotel project in Sand City.

A desal plant in Marina will cost at least $250 million. And millions of dollars more have been spent on various habitat projects in Carmel Valley.

All those Herculean efforts and impressive outlays of public funds are to protect the steelhead trout.

At Carmel restaurant La Bicycleette, however, steelhead is on the menu. Price: $17.

"It's a great fish," La Bicycleette chef John Cox told The Pine Cone. "It has everything I like about salmon, but it has a more delicate flavor."

For lunch this week, Cox pan-seared the steelhead and served it with garden vegetables and green salad. For dinner, the steelhead was prepared with an avocado purée and a chilled salad of heirloom tomatoes and trail of tears beans.

"We try to keep the flavors very mild, so it complements the fish," he explained.

Art & Film Fest add venues, events

By CHRIS COUNTS

AFTER MAKING a splash in its debut last year, the Carmel Art & Film Festival is taking an even bigger plunge this year.

"Last year, we held just about all our events at Sunset Center," observed Tom Burns, director of the festival. "We've added a number of different venues this year. We've got some phenomenal films, and there will be tons of things to do. If you are an art buff or a film buff, you're going to be in heaven."

The list of venues hosting festival events includes the Golden Bough Theater, the Carmel Youth Center and Carmel Plaza. But the award for the festival's most interesting venue goes to the City of Carmel, which is permitting Burns and Co. to screen films in its city council chambers.

"I said to [city administrator] Rich Guillen, 'I'd love to use the city council chambers for the festival,'" Burns recalled. "In response, Rich said, 'That's a great idea. We're going to make that work.'"

The centerpiece of the festival is the screening of about 70 films. While most are domestic productions, the festival will also feature movies from Australia, New Zealand, Canada, France and Austria. Festival volunteers screened hundreds of submissions before settling on a final lineup.

"I am so pleased with the quality of the films," Burns

New solutions sought for crowding at River School

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A FLOOD of new kids enrolled at Carmel River School this year, and administrators are wondering how to handle the influx. While principal Jay Marden continues to have confidence in the first-rate education his students are receiving despite enrollment reaching an all-time high of 506 kids, he said the Carmel Unified School District must develop a long-term strategy for contending with the growing population at the popular elementary school. The CUSD Board of Education is tentatively set to discuss solutions Oct. 6.

"I feel strongly that our district has to act," said Marden, who saw enrollment rise to 460 students in the 2008/2009 school year and then to 480 kids last year. When the issue first arose in February 2009, the rising number threatened

S.F. attorney sues inn over bumped head

Alleges 'mental suffering'

By KELLY NIX

A SAN Francisco lawyer who stayed at a Carmel hotel in August is suing the business after bumping his head on a door frame, according to documents.

In a lawsuit filed Sept. 21 in Monterey County Superior Court by attorney Jacob P. Alpren — who is representing himself — Alpren targets the historic Lamp Lighter Inn & Sunset Suites on Ocean Avenue and Camino Real.

According to the suit, Alpren and his family checked into the Lamp Lighter Aug. 1. That night, Alpren went to the inn's office to "order breakfast for the following morning."

However, Alpren apparently had a mishap before entering the office.

"The door height to the office was no more than 5 feet 8 inches," according to the lawsuit. Alpren "did not notice the unusually low clearance and cracked his head against the top

STILL NO TRIAL IN 2008 FATAL DUI WRECK

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CASE of two men accused of driving drunk and killing a Big Sur teenager on Highway 1 more than two years ago has been delayed, again — until next year. The complicated matter had been put off several times, as attorneys prepared for trial and contended with busy schedules, but all three lawyers were finally ready to go when they met with Monterey County Superior Court Judge Terrance Duncan Sept. 23, according to deputy district attorney Doug Matheson.

Explaining the delay to the victim's family is the hard part

Unfortunately, a busy court schedule, an impending move from temporary buildings back to permanent courtrooms, the judge's vacation, the holiday season and other factors necessitated rescheduling the trial — which was supposed to have begun Monday — to February of next year.

By then, it will have been two-and-a-half years since 17-year-old Rachel Wiesjahn died on Aug. 28, 2008, around 2 a.m. She had been riding in the SUV driven by an allegedly intoxicated Christopher Tindall, who lost control of it on southbound Highway 1 after leaving a Big Sur bar, causing the vehicle to turn on its side in the middle of the road.

After the accident, according to authorities, Tindall fled, leaving behind his Chevy and his two passengers, a 26-year-old man and Wiesjahn. Moments later, Mark Hudson, also allegedly drunk behind the wheel of a Ford pickup, crashed into the Chevy. Hudson also reportedly fled the scene, with the help of another man.

Tindall turned himself in later that morning, and Hudson was arrested at the hospital, where he had gone for treatment many hours after the wreck. They are accused of vehicular

Marine scientist takes students to an undersea dormitory

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER A while, swimming seems natural while walking is foreign, it's difficult to conceive of a meal that doesn't involve reconstituting freeze-dried food in hot water, and the personalities of individual fish begin to emerge.

That's just part of life in the Aquarius Undersea Laboratory, the world's only underwater research station located on the ocean floor in the Florida Keys, according to Carmel resident James Lindholm, Ph.D, a professor of marine science and policy who will leave next week for his fifth mission in the lab.

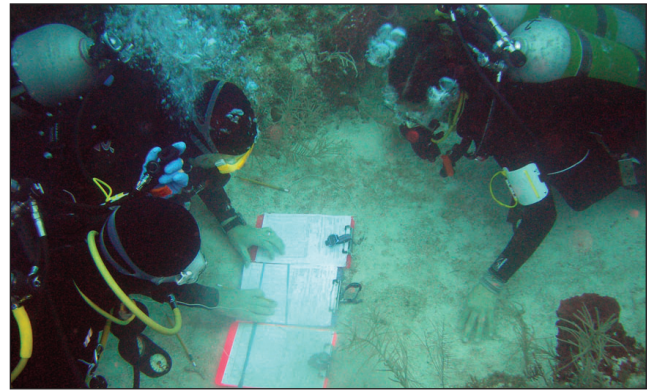

Lindholm, who is also the director of the Institute for Applied Marine Ecology at California State University Monterey Bay, is working with the National Marine Sanctuary Program and will take three CSUMB students to help study the "social foraging of coral reef fishes and its role in maintaining biological diversity." He dubbed his mission, "If Reefs Could Talk."

They will train Oct. 4-9, mostly on how to deal with emergencies while living underwater, since a person's body becomes saturated with nitrogen at such depths and requires 12 hours to surface safely. Then he and graduate student Jessica Watson will head to the station 60 feet below for their Oct. 12-21 undersea mission, while grad student Chelsea Parrish-Kuhn and undergraduate student Alexandra Davis will remain on the surface to collect data during dives in other areas.

Lindholm, who embarked on his first Aquarius mission in 2001 — and was underwater when terrorists struck on Sept. 11 — undertook subsequent research trips there in 2002, 2005 and 2008. He described the lab as a tube roughly the size of the International Space Station, 49 feet long and 19 feet in diameter, with six people inside at a time.

JAKE BASHAM, 8, a Monterey border collie, divides his time between Carmel Beach, CHOMP and Westland House, where he is a therapy dog.

Jake loves his patients at the hospital and nursing facility, and brings joy to one and all on his visits wearing his official therapy dog vest.

Jake was adopted as a pup from Petco eight years ago when Mom Mary Kay and sister Katy, then 12, were on a cat food run for their female domestic short hair, Lucky. Jake was there, ready to be adopted, and one can only imagine how cute he was at that age, judging by his handsome appearance today.

When he's not engaged in his medical work, Jake plays with a triumvirate of friends in his neighborhood, namely Edie, a golden retriever; Tyler, a black standard poodle; and Nali, an Australian shepherd.

Dad Dave tosses Frisbees for Jake at Carmel Beach, although he thoughtfully flings them a bit lower than before to preserve Jake's back. Jake's also taken for two walks a day, so he gets plenty of exercise, and he eats a healthful diet recommended by his vet.

Jake's wild about road trips. The longest one he's ever taken with the fam was to a relative's big ranch in Nevada last summer. While there he was allowed to chase horses and cattle and to swim in the family pool.

It was so hot while they were visiting there, Jake plunged into the pool at every opportunity for a refreshing swim.

While Jake is still Katy's dog, Mom and Dad have become his surrogate parents while Katy's off at college. Now a senior at Seattle University, she's majoring in art history. Jake's majoring in bed hogging with Mom and Dad. He starts out at the foot of the bed, but by morning, he's vying with Dad for top-of-bed status.

Gymnasts try out for national team

THREE YOUNG Monterey Peninsula gymnasts are in Texas trying out for a spot on a prestigious national team, whose past members have included numerous Olympians.

Annika Coleman, 8, of Carmel Valley; Madeline Gose, 9, of Corral de Tierra; and Avery Blanco, 10, of Marina are in Houston among only 276 qualified young competitors in the country to be invited to the USA Gymnastics National Testing Oct. 1-3.

The girls participated in California level testing this summer, as did 2,700 other gymnasts — ages 8 to 11 — across the country before being picked to go to Texas.

The girls will test in abilities including strength and flexibility, as well as traditional gymnastics skills on vault, bars, beam and floor.

If the girls do well enough in Texas, they will be among 20 chosen in each age group for the TOP National Team. Three of the 2008 Olympic gymnastic team members were TOP National Team members.

Battle between gallery and artist heads to court

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN THE latest round of a legal dispute between a Carmel Gallery owner and a Los Altos artist, Carlos Porras of Canapo Art Gallery sued Gilbert Marosi Sept. 24 in Monterey County Superior Court.

The suit alleges that statements made by Marosi to Carmel Police Department, Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud and the Monterey County District Attorney's Office were "false and defamatory" and harmed the Carmel gallery owner's reputation. In particular, the lawsuit singles out Marosi's repeated usage of the word, "scam," when describing Porras' business activities.

The complaint also charges that Marosi made "false and defamatory" comments that were posted on the City Search website, further damaging Porras's reputation. He is seeking $78,000 in damages.

Porras claims in the lawsuit that Marosi owes him two portraits the artist created of the Carmel gallery owner. In the suit, he said the portraits are worth $8,000.

Marosi, meanwhile, sued Porras in February for $2,500, the amount he claims he is owed for two paintings sold by Canapo Gallery.

Porras does not deny that he owes the artist $2,500. Instead, he is refusing to pay the commission until the artist gives him the two portraits. Marosi admitted painting the portraits, but he insisted he created them as gifts.

Marosi has repeatedly complained about Porras to police and the district attorney's office. Despite his efforts, the district attorney's office has never filed any charges against Porras.

Two other artists — Angela Gomez-Rubio of Clear Lake and Hugo Lecaros of Sunnyvale — have taken Porras to court over what they say was his failure to pay commissions on their work. Also, former Carmel gallery owner Don Becker of Las Vegas — who alleged fraud and won a judgment against Porras 11 years ago — is still waiting to get paid.

Hikers rescued from Arroyo Seco gorge

BY CHRIS COUNTS

FOUR LOST hikers were rescued from the Arroyo Seco River gorge Monday, Sept. 27, more than 24 hours after embarking on a day trip up the canyon.

A California Highway Patrol helicopter spotted the hikers just before darkness set in. They were found about three miles up the river.

The hikers were identified by the Monterey County Sheriff's Office as John and Bonnie Navarro, Robert Stewart and Robert Saybers. There were no injuries reported.

"They were sore, tired and hungry," said Sgt. Joe Moses of the sheriff's search and rescue team. "They hadn't planned on staying out all night, and they had all their supplies back in the parking lot."

LUXURIOUS GRANITE

Not only is granite the epitome of the popular natural-stone look, but granite floors and countertops have become synonymous with luxury. From a functional standpoint, granite withstands heavy use and resists stains (when properly sealed). Aesthetically speaking, granite can be both earthy and sophisticated. With its natural color and patterning, granite slabs and tiles lend a sense of permanence, strength, and connection to past civilizations. The stone provides a rustic or handcrafted look that reaches back to traditional cultures for inspiration. Granite is an elegant and durable option for many areas in the home, from the foyer to the kitchen. Its neutral colors blend well with many decorating schemes and offer a quietly beautiful backdrop to furniture, cabinetry, and fixtures.

At CARPETS & FLOORS, INC., our ideas can help bring style, charm, and beauty into your home or office, creating an interior that reflects your personality and taste. When you need help choosing among the many materials available today in flooring, whether for new construction or renovation or remodeling, we can help you. Start with a phone call or stop by for a visit. We're proud of our solid reputation for quality service and quality products. We're located between Drake and McClellan on Lighthouse Ave, where only our very best will do.

HINT: Granite tile is an excellent stand-in for granite, when limited budgets dictate the choice of countertop material.

Glow-in-the-dark creatures, new leadership brighten up museum

By CHRIS COUNTS

TO HELP illuminate its recent reorganization and makeover, the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History is turning to a little known but dazzling source of light.

On Saturday, Oct. 2, the museum unveils "Glow: Living Lights," an exhibit that may be its most ambitious to date. The display focuses attention on some of the earth's most remarkable creatures — animals that create their own light.

The multimedia exhibit — presented in a darkened gallery — will offer visitors an opportunity to learn about "bioluminescence," a chemical reaction that occurs in a variety of organisms, including deep-sea fish, insects and even fungi.

The display is curated by two of the world's leading authorities on the subject, Dr. Edith W. Widder and Dr. James F. Case. The exhibit debuted in 2003 and has since been presented in more than 30 cities.

"You walk in, and it will be a total sensory experience," explained Lori Mannel, executive director of the museum. "The exhibit is layered so a child can enjoy it, yet an adult can explore another level of information. It engages the public on a very rich level."

While few terrestrial animals — like lightning bugs — can produce light, the ability is surprisingly common among sea creatures, particularly those that live at greater depths. Some, like the viper fish, use light to attract their prey. Others, like deep-sea shrimp, use light to confuse their predators. Bioluminescent creatures exist in the Monterey Submarine Canyon, and this exhibit brings these mysterious animals to life.

"This exhibit meets our vision of turning the museum into a field guide for the Central Coast," Mannel said. "I am so excited about it."

In addition to presenting a fascinating subject, the exhibit aims to showcase the museum's reorganization and makeover, which began when the City of Pacific Grove turned over management of the facility in April 2009 to the Museum Foundation of Pacific Grove.

Since Mannel took over as executive director last year, the museum staff and its board of directors have focused their efforts on increasing the museum's visibility among students, visitors and potential benefactors.

"I want to put this museum back on the map," explained Jason Burnett, a Carmel City Councilman who serves as president of the museum's board of directors. "I want to give people a reason to come back more often than once a generation or even once a year. This exhibit does that. It makes the museum a destination."

According to Mannel, attendance at the library is up 49 percent since the new leadership took over, and the museum's budget has grown from $150,000 a year to more than $500,000 annually.

And, while presenting ambitious exhibits like "Glow: Living Lights" is expensive, Burnett said the museum is in better shape financially than it was a year ago.

"Previously, the museum was funded almost entirely by the city," he noted. "But the economic downturn forced the city to cut back."

By ramping up its fundraising efforts, the library is now depending less on the city's backing and more on an expanding array of revenue sources like grants, private donations, a membership program and the generosity of its board of directors.

"As any financial advisor will tell you, you want to have a diversified portfolio," Burnett added. "That's what we set out to achieve."

The museum, which is located at 165 Forest Ave., will host a reception at 5 p.m. The exhibit continues through Jan. 2, 2011. Admission is free, although a donation is suggested. For more information, call (831) 648-5716 or visit www.pgmuseum.org.

GARDEN CLUB STARTS OVER WITH RENOVATED LIBRARY GARDEN

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER COMPLAINTS that the landscaped area in front of Harrison Memorial Library didn't look like much of a garden — especially when pine needles covered the low-growing plants that made up a lot of it — the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club is giving it a makeover. Using money raised for its community garden projects, the club redesigned the garden it renovated just three years ago and hired a contractor to do the work, which started in mid-September.

"Over a period of two years, we got a lot of negative comments, so we decided we really needed to tackle it, and not just piecemeal, but do the whole thing," said Clay McGuire, chair of the committee overseeing the redesign. "We are keeping, reusing and repeating the stuff that did well, but we want to make it have more of a wow factor."

The club asked landscape designers Marion Weaver and Tom Deyerle to take on the task of updating the library grounds, which are at Ocean and Lincoln.

"We felt it wasn't as gardenny as we'd like. We're going to have a little grassy area, a dry creek bed with iris, the ceanothus with bright blue that does so well, and more flowers," McGuire said. "It will be more colorful and more lush — although within the bounds of what does well in a very water-conscious area. We're hoping for interest all year round."

The old sprinkler system caused problems, so a new irrigation system is being installed. It will include a rain sensor to prevent the garden from being watered when rainfall is sufficient.

"The spot is so prominent in the city, it should be state-of-the-art in water conservation," she explained.

Doris Mitchell of Better Gardens is doing the work and is trying to procure as many plants as possible from local sources, according to McGuire.

The club is also installing display boards showing the plans, so passersby will know what's growing there and can use that information when selecting plants for their own gardens. The front desks at the main library and the Park Branch up the street at Mission and Sixth will have copies as well.

McGuire said Mitchell will care for the garden during the first few months, to make sure the plants don't die.

"And then the garden club will take over, like we do at Piccadilly Park," she said.

All the design work, materials and maintenance are being paid for with money the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club has raised during the past several years for the very purpose of taking care of public gardens in the city.

New recreation trail unveiled at ceremony

THE CARMEL Hill and River Bicycle Trail — which travels from the Carmel River to just north of Carmel Valley Road and includes an underpass — was dedicated Thursday, Sept. 23, in a ceremony along the path.

"It's open for business," said Todd Muck, who serves as project manager for the Transportation Agency Monterey County.

TAMC recently completed the stretch of the trail that travels from Carmel Valley Road to Rio Road. The project, which was started in March and cost federal taxpayers $1.2 million, was paid for with Department of Transportation funds designated for transportation "enhancements."

The Big Sur Land Trust, meanwhile, finished construction several months ago on a section of the path that runs from Rio Road to the river.

The trail aims to provide a safe route between schools, residential areas, parks and local shopping facilities. The path is part of a larger Carmel River Parkway project, which the BSLT has designed to in an extensive network of trails in Carmel and Carmel Valley.

The ceremony featured a variety of speakers, including 5th District Supervisor Dave Potter, Big Sur Land Trust executive director Bill Leahy, state parks sector superintendent Dana Jones, Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District board member Ben Post and Cynthia Buhl, general manager of the Crossroads shopping center.

VETERAN SHOWMAN BRINGS THRILLS TO SALINAS SKIES

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MIKE GOULIAN is so at home in his airplane, he can claim flying death-defying stunts is second nature.

But he doesn't necessarily want it to look that way. When he pilots his Extra 300 SC through a 12-minute routine above the crowd at Salinas Municipal Airport during this weekend's California International Airshow, he wants to captivate his audience.

"We make no bones about it: We want to make a rock show in the sky, and we want everybody to stand up and cheer when it's over," he told The Pine Cone. "We don't want it to be beautiful; we want it to be mind blowing."

Mike Goulian

Considering his talent, skill level and passion, that won't be hard. Born and raised in Massachusetts, the son of a flight-school owner, Goulian has been flying since 1984 and bought his first competition aircraft in 1986 at the age of 18. In 1989, he won 13 of 14 regional competitions and was named Advanced National Aerobatic Champion in 1990. More championships followed, and he was a three-time member of the U.S. Aerobatic Team at the Unlimited Level. In 2006, he joined the Red Bull Air Race as Team No. 99 and won the Budapest race last year. He also took highly regarded showmanship awards in 2006 and 2009.

"I don't know if you choose aviation as much as aviation chooses you," he said. "It's like any endeavor that has a lot of passion, not a lot of money and a lot of danger: Do you really want to jump off of this cliff? I'm not sure I really had a choice of doing anything else."

Intensely competitive, Goulian was playing hockey with his brother as soon as they could walk and took up golf — which remains another passion of his — at 9. When the brothers were around 14 years old, they went to work for their father at the flight school, handling tasks like washing airplanes, so they would learn the value of a buck.

There, Goulian turned his competitive eye toward being a pilot. "Anything in life that I've tried to do, I've tried to do it absolutely well," he said. "I either want to be a scratch golfer, or I don't want to do it at all. It's the same with flying."

He learned quickly and studied hard in Florida at one of the nation's half-dozen specialized flight training schools.

"Competition aerobatic flying is similar to ice skating, where you have a specific set of maneuvers being watched by judges from the ground," he said. Over the course of a dozen years, "that makes you an incredible aviator."

He worked with a coach who critiqued every move, communicating with Goulian via radio as he flew.

"What you see from the airplane looks very different to someone on the ground," he explained. "You always think you're a rockstar when you're in the plane."

After thousands of flights and 5,000 hours in the air and practicing every day, flying has become natural for Goulian. He and his crew plan his routines, drawing from a catalog of skillful maneuvers he has honed during his years as a pilot, and he practices — a lot.

"A lot of it is mental, and that will go away in a week, so you have to do it every day," he said.

That allows him to make sure his flying is exhilarating to watch and spot-on accurate. Among Goulian's favorite maneuvers are those that involve tumbling nose over tail, then stopping in midair.

"The airplane will hang there," he said, until he turns on the smoke, the music starts again and he heads into a dive.

Why Salinas is tops

Goulian arrived in town last weekend and spent a few days golfing with fellow aerobatic star Sean Tucker at Spanish Bay, Tehama and Spyglass Hill, which he called an "airshow pilot's golf course," because "you can stand up there and hit it like a big boy."

He's also been practicing and surveying the airport grounds. "Salinas is not a very easy place to fly," he said.

But he loves the show and said it's a favorite among aerobatic pilots for its well organized implementation, friendly staff and volunteers, eager spectators and welcoming community. This year is the California International Airshow's 30th, and it's celebrating giving more than $7 million to local nonprofits since its inception.

"If you have it on your calendar as an airshow performer, it will be one of the highlights of the season, not because of the size or the number of people who attend, but because of who the people are," he said, mentioning media coordinator

Julie Ann Lozano and executive director Harry Wardwell.

"This is a show that's as organized as any in the country, and they're just amazingly good at what they do," said Goulian, who flies in 18 shows per year. "No. 1, it's an honor, and No. 2, it's a joy to come here."

He also praised organizers' ability to mix up the show every year to keep people interested, and their efforts to get the community involved.

Reggie Jackson sues employee over misappropriated funds

■ $5,000 Rolex, $20,000 cash

By KELLY NIX

SLUGGING GREAT Reggie Jackson is accusing a former employee of throwing a beanball at his baseball memorabilia business.

In a Sept. 16 lawsuit, Jackson accuses Frank Perry, whom he hired to help run his businesses — 44 Dotcom LLC and www.reggiejackson.com — of breach of fiduciary duty, breach of contract and conversion. Jackson also alleges Perry refused to return a $5,000 Rolex watch and didn't repay a $20,000 cash loan.

The baseball legend hired Perry as an independent contractor to negotiate business deals, keep financial records, operate Jackson's memorabilia business and book personal appearances and engagements, including autograph signings.

Jackson contends Perry kept him in the dark about elements of the business "thereby ensuring [Perry] would be able to maintain total control of the business operations, to the exclusion of [Jackson], his business office personnel and accountants."

Perry "refused" to properly maintain business records, and instead provided them on an "incomplete and haphazard basis ..." according to the lawsuit filed in Monterey County Superior Court. Jackson lives in Monterey, where his principal business office is based. He also operates an office in Costa Mesa.

Jackson maintains Perry decided he was entitled to "a percentage off the top" of the company's revenue.

Perry "placed such cash in a separate bank account(s) that he only controlled, and thereafter accounted for, and paid, only such sums to [Jackson] as Perry determined to be appropriate ...," Jackson alleges.

Perry's actions were "willfully, maliciously, despicably and with the intent to disrupt, control and usurp the business operations ... in wanton disregard of [Jackson's] property rights," the lawsuit says.

Frank Perry could not be reached for comment.

Jackson's lawsuit seeks tens of thousands of dollars in general and punitive damages.

After Jackson fired Perry in May 2009, Jackson alleges Perry took the company's phone system and a computer, "which contained on its hard drive all of the company's written records."

When Jackson requested Perry return the computer, Perry refused, saying the hard drive contained Perry's personal information and "certain photographs to which he believed would violate his privacy if seen by others," the lawsuit says.

"The reasonable value of the hard drive containing information that is vital to [Jackson's] business cannot be calculated," Jackson says in his lawsuit, "and the value far exceeds the cost of a hard drive."

Perry, upon being terminated, had all the phone numbers that had been linked to www.reggiejackson.com transferred to his residence, the lawsuit indicates.

"When demand was made for the release of the phone numbers," Jackson's contends, Perry "refused, claiming that he was the owner" of the numbers.

P.G. teen enters plea for hosting DUI party

■ Gets community service, not jail

By KELLY NIX

THE TEENAGER who hosted a party where alcohol was served to high-school students later involved in a serious car crash entered a plea this week to avoid jail.

Christopher "CJ" Veloz pleaded no contest Tuesday in a Salinas courtroom to one misdemeanor count of violating Pacific Grove's municipal code when he hosted a party where alcohol was consumed by minors last February.

Veloz was sentenced by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Efren N. Iglesia to a suspended six-month jail term on the condition he perform 40 hours of community service by Jan. 7, 2011. If Veloz violates the terms, he could be sent to jail.

Veloz, then 19, is alleged to have hosted a party at his Syida Drive home Feb. 21 where former P.G. High School student Aaron Corn and other P.G. High students drank after a high-school basketball game.

After leaving the party, police say a drunken Corn and numerous other teens piled into Veloz's Toyota 4Runner before Corn crashed the SUV in Skyline Forest at about 3:30 a.m.

Teenager Chelsie Hill was paralyzed in the accident. Corn also received serious injuries. Two other teens were also hurt.

'Lapse of judgment'

Pacific Grove city attorney David Laredo brought the charges against Veloz.

"The judge's sentence offers a just end to this part of an unfortunate and continuing tragedy," Laredo told The Pine Cone Tuesday. "We hope this result may dissuade others from taking similar risks."

Corn, who is still in Monterey County Jail, is charged with felony counts of drunken driving, infliction of great bodily injury and auto theft. After a preliminary hearing Aug. 20, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Russell Scott ruled there was enough evidence to try Corn on the charges. Corn faces more than 10 years in prison if convicted of all the charges.

In September 2011, Veloz has the opportunity to request the misdemeanor violation be converted to an infraction as long as he abides by the law during until then.

"We all must recognize that any lapse of judgment, however momentary, can cause good people to contribute to bad consequences," Laredo said.

SPCA will host wild celebration Sunday

THE SPCA for Monterey County's 17th Annual Wild Celebration event — in which rehabilitated owls will be released back into the wild — is Sunday, Oct. 3.

The event features food, wine and dozens of silent and live auction items, all to support the SPCA's efforts to help rescue injured and orphaned wild animals at its Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Center, the only full-service wildlife rescue center in Monterey County.

Wild Celebration takes place Sunday, from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley. Call (831) 373-2631 ext. 203 for more information or go to www.spcamc.org to purchase tickets, which are $65 each.

City seeks state $$ to fix up beach

THE CITY of Carmel is requesting money from the taxpayer funded California Habitat Conservation Fund to undertake improvements at the beach, according to a city council decision last month.

The work, all of which was outlined in the Del Mar Master Plan approved by the city and the coastal commission earlier this year, includes a 1,300-foot ADA-compliant pedestrian pathway along San Antonio Avenue from Fourth Avenue to Ocean Avenue, a 600-foot boardwalk and staircase for beach access at Fourth Avenue to the sand at the north end of the beach, a 200-foot boardwalk and viewing platform at the foot of Ocean Avenue, and plant restoration and protection of the dunes north of Ocean.

The report prepared by city administrator Rich Guillen for the city council Sept. 14 did not indicate how much money would be requested but said a 50 percent match of city funds will be required.

"Updated cost estimates are needed for each of the projects remaining in the Del Mar plan, and discussions are under way with the Coastal Conservancy for funding portions of the plan," he wrote. "As these proceed, a decision will be made regarding the specific projects to be included in the HCF application."

Without discussion, the council OK'd the grant request as part of the consent agenda at its September meeting.

of the door frame, injuring his neck.”
 Denny LeVett, owner of the Lamp Lighter Inn & Suites, declined to discuss details of Alpren’s lawsuit but told The Pine Cone what he thought of it.

“It is so dumb,” LeVett said Wednesday. Before Alpren’s accident, The Lamp Lighter had a sign posted outside the office warning people of the low clearance, LeVett said.
 Alpren, who doesn’t mention his height in the court documents, is seeking tens of thousands of dollars in damages from the Lamp Lighter. Alpren works for the Pine Street law firm, Collette, Erickson, Farmer & O’Neill LLP.

 Alpren claims that the day after he hit his head, the office staff told him they were aware of the low clearance and “that guests sometimes hit their heads on the door frame,” his suit indicates.
 “However, despite its knowledge of this dangerous condition” the Lamp Lighter “deliberately and recklessly chose not to correct it,” according to Alpren.

Because of the bump, the attorney said he sustained injuries to his neck and “surrounding areas” and has incurred medical and other expenses.
 “The injury, which was directly and proximately caused by the low clearance, has significantly restricted [Alpren’s] well being and caused him significant physical and mental suffering,” according to his suit.
 The case is set for a Jan. 21, 2011, hearing in a Monterey courtroom.

TROUT

What makes the appearance of steelhead on a Carmel menu unusual is that catching one in the Carmel River could land a renegade angler in prison.

That’s because Steelhead in the Carmel River — and other areas in California, Oregon and Washington — are considered “threatened” under the Endangered Species Act.

But La Bicyclette isn’t breaking any laws. Steelhead trout are plentiful in many parts of the world, and the restaurant at Dolores and Seventh gets its steelhead (via FedEx overnight) from a Columbia River supplier. The restaurant received another batch of the fish Wednesday. The Columbia River steelhead are, on average, about twice the size of the local version.

“The Columbia River is especially well monitored,” Cox explained. “They have a few environmental impact plans. And if it looks like the [steelhead] levels are low, they cut the season short.”

Concern over local steelhead led the state water board in 2009 to impose an order on California American Water severely limiting the amount of water it can divert from the Carmel River — since low water levels can hurt the steelhead’s habitat.

And through the years, Peninsula ratepayers have spent millions of dollars mitigating the impact to the threatened steelhead trout in the Carmel River, and may soon spend hundreds of millions more.

Meanwhile, Cox said La Bicyclette will continue to offer the fish until the season is over. Steelhead has been a very popular dish, and patrons haven’t once questioned him about the origin of the fish it offers.

“We have [offered steelhead] three times, and we haven’t had any resistance to it,” he said. “It always sells really well when it’s on the menu.”

Party for the Paws Saturday to benefit animal shelters

■ Auction items include dinner at home by Sardine Factory chef

By KELLY NIX

THE DOWNTURN in the economy has taken its toll on local animal shelters. Dogs and cats are being turned in at unprecedented numbers, and shelters are struggling to keep up with the demand.

An event Saturday, Oct. 2, that features homemade pizza, wine, live entertainment and lots of interesting items to bid on seeks to help out four animal shelters that are trying to make ends meet.

The goal of Party for the Paws at McShane's Nursery in Salinas from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. is to raise money for Animal Friends Rescue Project, the City of Salinas Animal Shelter, Monterey County Animal Services and Peace of Mind Dog Rescue.

"All four organizations are very needy and very worthy," said Karen Sonne, organizer of Party for the Paws. "They don't make a lot of money like the SPCA does. They run out of food," they run out of everything."

Party for the Paws will feature homemade brick oven pizza, wine from local wineries and live music by Michael Heller. Tickets to the event are $25.

"There will also be a ton of silent auction items," Sonne said.

Included in the auction items are a $100 gift certificate from Diggidy Dog in Carmel, "Invictus" movie poster and a Mission Ranch poster autographed by Clint Eastwood, $50 gift card to Bruno's Market in Carmel and lots of other items.

One lucky silent auction bidder will receive a four-course meal (with wine pairings) at the winner's home prepared by chef Brant Good of the Sardine Factory.

Of course, there will also be dogs at Party for the Paws.

Representatives from the four animal shelters will present a brief introduction about the services they offer. They also will have dogs on hand.

"They will bring two to five dogs each and tell everyone a little bit about the each animals" in hopes people at the event will adopt a pooch, Sonne said.

For information about the event and for a list of all the auction items, go to www.partyforthepaws.com or call Sonne at (831) 915-3732.

CARMEL ART & FILM FESTIVAL

October 6-10, 2010

Chaos and creativity are not opposing forces. Finding an original point of view is not easy or comfortable. It begins with a single idea, one word on a page, or even a gnawing buzz in the brain that simply won't go away. For the artist it is the starting point, a place where the marathon of imagination begins, and the work still lies ahead. There will be inevitable stops and starts along the way, but the process has begun, and the collision of chaos and creativity harnessed into something real and unique, and often quite extraordinary. The world of independent film and contemporary art and music is not an intellectual safe haven, but rather a minefield of the unexpected.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

THE ART OF THE INDEPENDENT FILM • October 7 – 10

The Carmel Art and Film Festival will present four days of non-stop film screenings in a half dozen venues scattered throughout Carmel. We have opened up the festival this year to submissions from all over the world (details at www.carmelartandfilm.com). 70 films have been selected from hundreds of submissions. Film categories include: Feature, Documentary, Student and the ever-popular crowd pleaser – Shorts! Directors will hold Q&A's after screenings.

CELEBRATION OF PHOTOGRAPHY DINNER AT EDWARD WESTON'S HISTORIC WILDCAT HILL HOME • Wednesday, October 6

Hosted by Gina and Kim Weston (grandson of legendary photographer Edward Weston), this intimate dinner for 24 promises to be a once in a lifetime experience. Enjoy spectacular views, stimulating conversation, fine wine, food prepared by Kim Weston himself and a rare glimpse at the Weston's personal photography collection.

OPENING NIGHT • Thursday October 7

Gala Celebration • Overtone Performance Clint Eastwood Filmmakers Award • Opening Night Screening

The 2010 Festival kicks off with an opening night reception for 600 at the Sunset Community and Cultural Center, highlighted by the opening of our photography exhibition, and an opening night screening. The Sunset Community and Cultural Center, with its flagstone patios, large courtyards and gorgeous lobby with soaring ceilings, is the perfect setting for an indoor/outdoor celebration. Enjoy fine wine and food provided by Bernardus Lodge under the direction of award winning chef Cal Stamenov. Overtone, the acapella boy band "discovered" by Dina and Clint Eastwood in South Africa, will perform, and new this year the presentation of the Clint Eastwood Filmmakers Award. The award was designed by local sculptor Gustavo Torres, and will be presented by Dina Eastwood. Followed by our opening night film screening. Check out the fine art photography exhibit, mingle with artists, photographers and filmmakers, and top off the evening with an exhilarating cinematic experience.

ART SHOW • Saturday & Sunday October 9-10

This outdoor exhibition, held over two days, is designed to give painters and sculptors a platform to show and sell their work. Set up like a marketplace in Carmel's picturesque Devendorf Park located on Ocean Avenue in the heart of Carmel-by-the-Sea, each artist will be provided a 10'x10' tent. With stone walkways, a fishpond, shade trees, lush vegetation and public restrooms, the park is a charming oasis in the middle of town. There are no commissions – artists keep 100% of their sales.

PHOTOGRAPHY EXHIBITION • October 7 – 30

Carmel has a rich photography history, and we are committed to honoring that heritage. Through a juried process, 50 artists will be selected for a month long exhibition at the Marjorie Evans Gallery at the Sunset Community and Cultural Center in Carmel, California. One top winner will be featured in ARTWORKS Magazine.

DIRECTORS DINNER • Friday, October 8

The art of fine wine and food, coupled with animated conversation with artists and filmmakers, this event is designed to bring in collectors and connoisseurs from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Held at Clint Eastwood's Mission Ranch, the intimate dinner promises to put an explosive amount of creativity in one room, making for provocative conversation and remarkable access to some of the best in the art and film business.

BOB SCHNEIDER AND GRIFFIN HOUSE IN CONCERT • Friday, October 8 • $30

Participating galleries are "opening" exhibitions that night with artists and winemakers on hand to "meet and greet." Festival visitors can stroll through town, stopping along the way to see great art, taste great wine and chat with gallery owners, artists and winemakers on their way to the featured film of the evening at the Sunset Cultural Arts Center, an easy three-block walk from Ocean Avenue.

WOMEN IN FILM • Saturday, October 9 • $150

Women are making great strides in the film industry. We have to look no further than this year's Academy Awards. As the first woman to win an Oscar for directing, Kathryn Bigelow smashed the glass ceiling. In an effort to promote the next generation that will continue down the path that Bigelow and others have forged, the Carmel Art and Film Festival presents Women in Film, a special luncheon and panel discussion with five powerhouse women. Lunch will be served on stage at the Sunset Center, catered by Grasings Restaurant, and panel discussion and film screening of "The Other City" will follow. As part of our continued commitment to young filmmakers, up to 20 seats will be reserved for young women interested in film as a career. We believe they must have a "seat at the table."

Panelists:

Susan Koch, documentary film director, "The Other City"
Canadian Filmmaker, Penelope Buitinhaus, director of feature film "A Wake"
Diane Bell, feature film director, "Obselidia" (featured at this year's festival)

Brunch on the patio catered by Grasings.

ART AUCTION • thru October 10

This is a revenue sharing program to support artists and local non-profits. The auction exhibition will be on display at festival headquarters at the Carmel Plaza, where everyone can view and bid. This year the auction will benefit the film department at California State University, Monterey Bay, including an innovative program that pairs film and music majors work with at-risk, underserved or incarcerated teens in Monterey County, introducing them to digital filmmaking. Beyond the obvious educational benefits, the program strives to offer these teens a productive tool for self-expression, and in an area devastated by gang crime, inspire these kids to choose a different path. Artists will receive 40% of sale price.

ARTIST PRINT SERIES

Each year the festival selects a nationally known artist to create the festival print. Los Angeles based street art phenomenon Mr. Brainwash created this year's signature print exclusively for Carmel Art and Film. Printed on high-end paper, hand signed by the artist and with a thumbprint on the back, these lithographs are sure to become collectors' items. They will be available for sale, as supplies last, before and during the festival.

Ninety-nine years after its local debut, 'Twelfth Night' returns to theater

By CHRIS COUNTS

NO PLAY has been staged more often at the Forest Theater than William Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," so it only seems appropriate that the timeless play will be performed there during the facility's centennial year.

A romantic comedy for the ages, "Twelfth Night" opens Saturday, Oct. 2. The play is the second installment in PacRep Theater's 21st annual Shakespeare Festival. In 1911, it became the first play by Shakespeare to ever be presented at the Forest Theater.

"It's the perfect romantic comedy," explained Stephen Moorner, executive director of PacRep Theater. "It's good for families and audiences of all ages. It's just a whole lot of fun."

In "Twelfth Night," a young woman named Viola is shipwrecked on an island in the Adriatic Sea. There, disguised as a man named Cesario, she enters into the service of a local duke. The duke, meanwhile, has fallen in love with the Lady Olivia, and he asks Cesario to convey his feelings to the objection of his affection. The Lady Olivia, though, believes Cesario to be a man and falls in love with him (who is actu-

Burns said. "I think people are going to be surprised."

Opens with photo show and dinner

The five-day festival kicks off Wednesday, Oct. 6, with the opening of the Photography Exhibition at the Marjorie Evans Gallery, which is located at Sunset Center. Paying tribute to Carmel's rich photographic tradition, the show will present the works of 50 different photographers from around the world. Admission to the month-long show is free.

On Wednesday evening, Kim and Gina Weston will host "Dinner at the Westons." The Westons will serve spaghetti, while Kim will offer a private tour of his studio and collection of photographs. The dinner is limited to just 20 people. Tickets are $150 each and proceeds from the event will benefit the festival and the Weston Scholarship Fund.

"Kim is full of so many incredible stories about the Weston family," Burns explained. "This is a wonderful opportunity for anyone interested in photography."

Eastwoods honor filmmaker

The festival officially begins Thursday, Oct. 7, when Sunset Center hosts its Opening Party at 6 p.m. Bernardus Lodge will cater the event, and Overtone — the South African vocal group that Dina Eastwood discovered during the filming of Clint Eastwood's "Invictus" — will perform.

At 7:30 p.m., The Eastwoods will present the first-ever Clint Eastwood Filmmakers Award.

"Most film festivals present awards at the end," Burns noted. "But Clint and Dina are leaving for the Newark Film Festival, so everything had to be pushed forward."

Burns said the festival's organizers were happy to work around the couple's schedule "because their support has been wonderful."

After the awards presentation, a short film, "Butterfly Circus," and a full-length movie, "Obsilidia," will be screened. "Both are pretty remarkable films," Burns promised.

Big party at Mission Ranch

On Friday, Mission Ranch will host the festival's Directors Dinner. The event is limited to those who purchased a VIP ticket ($550) or a Patron ticket ($2,500). Attending the event will be the Eastwoods and filmmakers participating in the festival. The fun starts at 5:30 p.m. "This is our most exclusive party," Burns said.

Also on Friday, singer-songwriters Bob Schneider and Griffin House perform at the Golden Bough Theater at 8 p.m. Tickets are $30.

"We had Griffin here last year and the response was great," Burns noted. "He and Bob are recognized as two of the top contemporary songwriters in the U.S."

Talk pays tribute to women in film

Sunset Center will be the site of Saturday's "Women in Film," an event that will showcase the role of women in the film industry. Lunch, which will be catered by Grasing's, begins at noon.

A panel discussion, which starts at 1 p.m., will feature filmmakers Susan Koch and Diane Bell, composer Helene Muddiman and an associate director of the Sundance Film Festival, Alesia Weston.

The talk will be followed by the presentation of a documentary by Koch, "The Other City." Tickets for lunch, the panel discussion and the documentary are $150, while tickets for just the talk and the film are $35.

Cinema on the sand

"Films on the Beach" promises to be one on the festival's most interesting — and family-friendly — events. Starting just after sunset (about 7 p.m.) on Oct. 9, a collection of short films will screened on the white sands of Carmel Beach.

And on Sunday, composer Alan Silvestri returns for a Composer's Brunch at Sunset Center. This year he'll be joined by fellow composers Mark Mancina and Dave Newman. Together, they'll offer an inside look at how they make music for the movies. Grasing's will cater the affair, which starts at 10:30 a.m. The cost is $65.

It has a state-of-the-art sound system, too, so everyone everywhere can hear everything.

Goulian said this year's lineup will be a strong draw. The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds are the headlining jet demonstration team, but the schedule also includes The Horsemen, an aerobatic team of three P-51 Mustangs. "They'll be awesome for people who love vintage warbirds," Goulian said.

Other aerobatic pilots signed on to perform include Kent Pietsch, Bill Cornick and Spencer Studerman. The U.S. Navy

F/A-18F Super Hornet and the Canadian C/F-18 will do tactical demonstrations.

And on the ground, the Smoke-n-Thunder Jet Car and Monster Trucks will offer up a lot of action.

In addition, a static display of more than 50 aircraft — including a high-tech E-6 Mercury communications plane piloted by Navy Lt. Mark Brophy, a member of the Carmel High School Class of 1992 — will provide plenty to take in, and vendors will be selling all sorts of food, drink and air-plane-related wares.

Chef Shir Chan Huang's superb cuisine attracting full house

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

NOT MANY successful chef/restaurateurs would sell their businesses to have more time to spend with their children, but that's just what Shir Chan Huang did in 2002.

Justin, now 19, and Crystal, 21, were youngsters then, just entering their teens; their father knew they would benefit from his presence at home, something he had not been able to give them when they were younger.

Chef Shir Chan, known by his American name, Joe, had worked from early morning until late at night when he and his wife Kwan owned China Gourmet in Carmel-by-the-Sea. He worked long hours in his second-floor kitchen at China Gourmet, sending down plate after plate of steaming Chinese food on the dumbwaiter to the ground floor restaurant.

It wasn't only his children who rarely saw him; his customers seldom caught sight of Joe, who was always upstairs in his kitchen domain.

His wife and partner, Kwan Lau, worked as cashier and bookkeeper at the restaurant. Her younger sister, Ling Lau, took care of the two children while both parents worked at the restaurant. Long-ago patrons of China Gourmet, when the Huangs owned it, remember the children visiting the restaurant with their auntie, whom many mistook for their mother.

"I guess they thought I was the children's grandmother," Kwan said, "because they were always with Ling."

In 2002, when the Huangs sold China

Gourmet, they took a four-year hiatus from the restaurant business. Father Joe stayed home and was there for the children, sending them off to school in the morning, being there for them when they returned in the afternoon, cooking dinner for them all. He tended the garden at their Carmel home while the children were at school.

Mom Kwan took advantage of this time to attend classes at Monterey Peninsula College and to work as a bookkeeper at Benihana in Monterey. Sister Ling, who had previously taken courses at MPC when she was not baby-sitting her niece and nephew, was now attending the Monterey Institute of International Studies, where she earned two degrees.

Everything went according to plan, and then, with the children being older, an opportunity arose in 2005 they just couldn't pass by.

The commercial space at 429 Alvarado — a few doors down from the State Theater — became available. It had housed other Chinese restaurants over the years. The first Chinese restaurant in Monterey, Fortune Cookie, was at this location for many years. Then it changed hands and was known as Tsingtao, which eventually became Wing's fast food, complete with steam tables.

Then followed months of renovation as they remodeled the restaurant from scratch, getting rid of the steam tables altogether. Four layers of wall paper had to be removed before the dining room could be painted a pleasant shade of yellow. Huang, their family name, means yellow in Chinese. They painted the high ceiling a silvery blue to resemble the sky.

Kwan saved a substantial piece of the Fortune Cookie wall paper, which depicted classical scenes of Chinese life. She had it framed to preserve the history of Monterey Chinese restaurants.

FOOD-AND-WINE EVENTS like last weekend's Harvest: Farm-to-Table presented by the Coastal Luxury Management team are always a learning experience of the loveliest kind for someone who really enjoys eating and drinking. Following are a few gems that might be worth looking into.

■ Chateau d'Esclans (www.chateaudesclans.com) in Provence, France, makes wonderful rosé, spanning from the light (and most affordable) Whispering Angel — a blend of Grenache, Cinsault, Rolle, Syrah and Mourvedre — to more pricey vineyard-designated bottlings like Garrus, a surprisingly complex and balanced blend of Grenache and Rolle that, in the words of one local French-wine aficionado, "drinks like a white Burgundy."

■ Mrs. Delish's Cupcake Boutique (400 Lighthouse Ave., Monterey; www.mrsdelishs.com) served up diminutive cakes topped with candied bacon, among other flavors, and is hoping to make it onto "Cupcake Wars" on the Food Network. Mrs. Delish's also sells at the Monday-afternoon farmers market on Central Avenue in Pacific Grove.

■ Caraccioli Cellars (www.caracciolicellars.com) pours great local bubbly, including the Brut served during Harvest, and will soon open a tasting room and shop on Dolores Street in Carmel. Its wines were made with grapes harvested in 2006 from highly regarded Sleepy Hollow Vineyard, which is owned by Robert Talbott.

■ To adeptly combat the heat, affable Mark Chesebro (www.chesebrowines.com) put the Pinot Noir under the table and poured a lot of his refreshing dry rosé, fruity Sauvignon Blanc and remarkable Roussanne, all made with grapes grown on vineyards he and his family own. Anyone looking for a good alternative to Chardonnay should definitely consider the Roussanne.

■ Tim Mosblech of the to-be-opened-someday Restaurant 1833 in the former Stokes Restaurant in Monterey showed his creative flair with tomato and watermelon gazpacho containing the surprising crunch of Marcona almonds, and rabbit ballotine with pickled fennel radish. You can't help but wonder what his menu will look like when the doors finally open at 500 Hartnell St., the location of CLM's latest venture.

■ Few people know how to cook meat better than Monterey's Rob Baker (Me and the Hound, www.meandthehound.com), who is always a sight to behold, with his gigantic portable BBQ rig. He turned out tasty 24-hour apricot-wood-smoked Memphis-style pulled pork with "family recipe vinegar sauce" and peppered cole slaw, just one example of what makes him so popular.

■ The talented and personable chef Matt Bolton (Pacific's Edge, Highlands Inn, www.pacificsedg.com) didn't fail to impress with his delicious pan-seared California white sea bass, roasted Swank Farms white corn, heirloom tomatoes, chanterelle mushrooms and Chardonnay sauce. It's worth the trip to Carmel Highlands to see what else he's up to these days.

They completely redid the kitchen and recarpeted the floor of the dining area. Award-winning nature photographs by Joe's brother, Shir, and some by Joe, decorate the walls. There are no lanterns or the usual embellishments found in most Chinese restaurants — with the exception of a bamboo plant near the entrance and an enlarged reproduction of a 1076 poem by Su Tung Po entitled "Thinking of You" which is hung over the door. The last line of the poem reads, "Though far apart, we are still able to share the beauty of the moon together."

From this poem they derived the name of the restaurant — Full Moon — which also signifies peace, family time and prosperity.

The restaurant seats 65 at tables (none of them the traditional round table of most Chinese restaurants) and there are no condiments on the tables, not even soy sauce. When the food comes from the kitchen, it is healthfully seasoned: Very little salt and oil, and no MSG. And brown rice can be substituted for white rice.

Chef Joe's personal favorite of all the dishes on his menu is his spicy Kung Pao chicken, "because it tastes so good."

Customer all-time favorites include Mandarin chicken, sesame chicken and mu shu pork, according to the chef.

Chef Joe's mastery of Chinese cooking has attracted a loyal following of locals ("some come in three or four times a week," Kwan said), including students from the Defense Language Institute and visitors who discover Full Moon while out for a stroll on Alvarado. They also keep hospitable Nobi Reed busy, taking orders and serving. She has been with the Huangs since their China Gourmet days and was immortalized in Carmelite Roy Gilligan's mystery novel, "Chinese Restaurants Never Serve Breakfast."

Chef Joe, who started out as an electrician in Vietnam, came to the United States with the boat people who fled Communist Vietnam. Not speaking English, he took a job as dishwasher at Chong's in Monterey. But wanting to learn English and become a chef, he went to Hong Kong for some time where he worked in many kitchens, learning the intricacies of cooking dishes from all the regions of China.

Joe and Kwan were married in Hong Kong in 1984 and came to Monterey the following year. They purchased China Gourmet in Carmel in 1989 and ran it successfully until they sold it 13 years later.

Full Moon Mandarin Cuisine Restaurant is located at 429 Alvarado St., Monterey, and is open Tuesday through Sunday. For information or reservations, call (831) 333-1288.

the annual Taste of Carmel is held in the picturesque courtyard at the Carmel Mission, it's hard to think of a more pleasant sipping-nibbling-schmoozing-fundraising event to attend for a couple of hours on a Thursday evening. Organized by the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, the Taste of Carmel will take place from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 7, with 30 restaurants and 20 wineries represented.

According to chamber CEO Monta Potter, some restaurants have been participating since the annual affair launched in 1989, a testament to its fun and value. They include PortaBella, Anton & Michel, Forge in the Forest, Terrace Grill and the Grill on Ocean.

The theme this year is "Thursday Night Fever," and guests are encouraged to dress accordingly — if they like. They will also be encouraged to check out and bid in the extensive silent auction that will include items from A Signature Day Spa, Allegro Gourmet Pizzeria, Avant Garden & Home, Bernardus Lodge, Bountiful Basket, Cannery Row Brewing Co., Carmel Music Society, Carmel Plaza, Chock Rock Vineyard, Cima Collina, Jane M. Designs, Katy's Place, Kurtz Culinary, Land Rover Experience Driving School, Lloyd's Shoes, Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca, Monterey Bay Aquarium, Pebble Beach Co., Robert Talbott Vineyards, Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation, Sunset Center, Ventana Inn & Spa, and numerous others.

Tickets are $95 each. The mission is located at 3080 Rio Road in Carmel. For more information, visit www.tasteofcarmel.com.

■ Oktoberfest at Peter B's

Fall means beer in Germany, and Peter B's brewpub in the Portola Hotel & Spa at the foot of Alvarado Street in Monterey is celebrating the occasion with month-long special and the release of its seasonal German-style lager.

Brewmaster Andrew Wyer crafted the lightly hopped, "smooth beer with sweet malty flavor," and Peter B's is selling it by the glass for $5.50 for 16 oz. and $6.50 for 20 oz. Meanwhile, the kitchen is offering appropriate pairings: grilled bockwurst ($7), wiener schnitzel ($10) and kasseler ippchen ($10) — smoked pork loin served with braised cabbage and potato pancake au jus.

The special beer and fare are available every day until Oct. 31. Peter B's is open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily, and until 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights. For more information, call (831) 649-2699.

■ Gorgeous Galante

Galante Vineyards will hold its annual Harvest Open House Saturday, Oct. 23, from 1 to 5 p.m. Owner/winemaker Jack Galante describes fall as the best time to be at the vineyard, which is located in Cachagua, and he wants everyone to join him there.

He and winemaker Greg Vita, vineyard manager Eliud Ortiz and everyone else involved will share stories and knowledge, and the event will also include hors d'oeuvres, wine, music and fun. Tickets are $10 per person and are refundable with a minimum purchase of $100, while Wine Gang members can attend for free. For reservations, email dawn@galantevineyards.com, and for more information, call (800) 425-2683. The winery is located at 18181 Cachagua Road.

Also during the open house, Monterey photographer Randy Tunnell will offer portraits for Monterey County residents for $129, and reservations can be made by calling (831) 649-3101.

On top of all that, the prices are reasonable, starting at just a few bucks for baby basil or tarragon.

And on Oct. 16, folks who want to grow their own can get even more for less. Cole Canyon is hosting a Greenhouse Sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., when a huge variety of garden plants, vegetable starts, culinary and medicinal herbs, and everything else will be available for half price.

MARINE

“Your main goal is to be out diving as much as possible,” he said. Aquarius-based researchers can dive for up to eight hours per day, while divers from the surface only have about four hours in the water.

“And when you’re inside, it’s kind of tight, so you try to stay out of everybody’s way,” he said.

Owned and operated by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association and the University of North Carolina Wilmington, Aquarius costs $1.3 million to $1.5 million annually. NASA frequently uses it, and the fees it pays subsidize other missions, according to Lindholm. Private donations also help, and Lindholm said some of his missions have been partially funded by Walmart and AT&T.

Aquarius has a fivefold mission: scientific research, coral reef and ocean observation, undersea technology development, training, and ocean education and outreach. Since 1994, it has hosted 90 missions that yielded some 300 peer-reviewed scientific publications, as well as articles, educational programs and TV spots. It’s also home to one of the world’s longest running and most detailed coral-reef-monitoring programs.

I’d like to be, under the sea

The days are always very structured, according to Lindholm. They generally include a quick breakfast around 7 a.m., a three-to-four-hour dive, lunch and the transfer of data from divers’ tablets, communications with the surface, a nap, another three-hour dive, dinner, more data transfer and the planning of the next day’s activities.

“And then we go to sleep and do the whole thing all over again,” he said. “It’s very regimented, with the goal of being in the water as much as possible. It’s invaluable for the scientists to be in that environment continuously for 10 days.”

The food is mostly “freeze-dried hiker foods” reconstituted with instant hot water, since the research station contains no refrigerator, microwave or stove.

“NASA uses the Aquarius a lot, so there’s always a lot of freeze-dried astronaut food,” he added.

After a short while, researchers begin to feel more marine-like, according to Lindholm, since when they are not out in the water, they are peering at sea life through portholes in the walls. “You begin to forget you’re a biped,” he said. “We start to learn the personalities of individual fishes.”

While it’s all about collecting scientific data, the undersea journey will also afford a unique opportunity for researchers to tell people, including school kids, what they’re doing, as they do it. For the first time, they will broadcast from Aquarius, including live Q&A sessions with the kids in places like Carmel River School, where Lindholm’s daughter attends first grade.

The research team will be tweeting, updating Facebook pages, writing blogs and preparing three broadcasts per day — which cuts down on research hours but is well worth it, according to Lindholm.

“With that many broadcasts, there will be thematic broadcasts that highlight the sanctuary program, the marine climate in general, fishing, pollution, climate change and other marine themes,” he said. They will be sent to primary and secondary schools all over the country in English and Spanish. Aquarius also has live webcams inside and out that people can access online, and Lindholm said he and his research team welcome interest in underwater life and their mission.

“There are lots of avenues to communicate, and we’re always interested in fielding questions from the public,” he said. (Visit <http://aquarius.uncw.edu>.)

No shortage of excitement

His past experiences as an “aquanaut” aboard the Aquarius have taught Lindholm to anticipate the unexpected and rely on good training.

In 2001, he and his research team submerged just 15 minutes before the first plane hit the World Trade Center, and they remained underwater for 10 days as the nation 60 feet above their heads panicked and mourned.

“We had Internet and cell phone down there, but no TV, so it was quite an experience,” he said, adding that they obtained much of their information from a tiny MSN popup window on the computer screen.

During a mission the following year, he and his diving buddy refilled their tanks at an underwater way station and discovered they were breathing bad air.

“We started swimming back, and we started feeling really terrible. The air tasted like shoe polish,” he said. They swam back to the way station, which was completely contaminated, and sounded the alarm.

“I’m certain that had we tried to swim back to the Aquarius, we never would have made it,” he said. Crew members at the Aquarius called the other team of scientists in from their dive, refilled their tanks and sent them out to rescue Lindholm and his partner.

“They swam out 1,000 feet to find us,” he recalled, and the foursome swam back together, swapping regulators between them the whole way, as the darkness of night fell. “Nobody panicked, and we did exactly what we were trained to do, and it worked perfectly.”

They never discovered the source of the foul air.

On another occasion, Lindholm and the team were left in the station to weather a tropical storm, since it would take too much time to bring them up from the deep.

“We couldn’t leave the habitat, and the waves were big enough that every time one passed over, our ears popped — every two seconds,” he said, because the troughs in the waves changed the depth of the water dramatically, affecting the pressure in the research station.

But tolerating such discomfort had its reward. During the next day’s dive, Lindholm observed fish behaving in ways he hadn’t seen before and hasn’t witnessed since.

“I saw species that normally swim alone or in pairs swimming in thousands,” he said. “Something about the storm changed their behavior, and I never would have known that.”

Case Number MP 20050
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of CHESTER L. MOORE.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE

has been filed by LEWIS MOORE in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that LEWIS MOORE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) Date: October 8, 2010
Time: 10:00 a.m.
Dept.: 17
Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

America's decline

IF HAPPINESS is determined by the gap between expectations and reality, the people of China must be a lot happier these days than the people of the USA.

That's because, while the average Chinese is much poorer than the average American, millions of people on this side of the Pacific Ocean have seen their personal prospects — net worth, income or even the ability to find a job — decline far below what they expected just a couple of years ago, while many of the people of China are seeing their lifestyles improve in ways that were unimaginable in the recent past.

This is true despite the fact that America's economy is largely market based, while China's is strictly managed by the government. Based on 10,000 other examples of economies in world history, we should be prospering while China stagnates. How to explain the fact that the opposite is true?

In our case, the present, long-lasting economic decline was caused in major part by the hubris and overconfidence of earlier success. Because our national wealth grew so much in the post-World War II era, entire generations of Americans grew up thinking they had it made and wouldn't even have to work very hard to have bestowed upon them a generous, middle-class lifestyle. By the mid-1970s, even workers with high-school educations and blue-collar jobs expected to live in impressive houses on big suburban lots with plenty of luxuries to fill them and two cars (at least) in the driveways. Oh, and the house always had to increase in value. And you could take the family on a nice vacation every year. And you were practically entitled to live a long, healthy life and die a painless, peaceful death after a lifetime of topnotch medical care you did not pay for.

Meanwhile, our political leaders, with oceans of tax dollars constantly pouring into Washington and the state capitals, invented all sorts of government programs to spend them on.

But as wealth grew, productivity in many parts of the economy declined. Furthermore, the continued growth in the overall economy was fueled with borrowed money — a phenomenon that has a natural limit, as we have now seen in the collapse of real estate values.

On the other side of the world, the Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse Tung, who died in 1976 after 27 years as dictator of China, was so fanatical, so murderous and so callous that when he died, he left behind a country that was desperately poor, with life expectancies far below those in the West and where workers toiled long hours for minuscule wages. In the early 1970s, the average Chinese lived in a cramped dwelling with several generations under one roof, had very little education, few material possessions, zero chance of seeing Paris or San Francisco, and didn't expect things to improve.

But, like Americans of a few generations before, the Chinese people were also intelligent, hardworking and ambitious. And in China, these latter two traits were enhanced because the people were so poor. So when the bizarre strictures of Communist ideology began to be lifted, and the people's ambitions were unleashed, the nation of China experienced an explosion of productivity that has turned that nation into the world's factory, not only for trinkets and knockoffs, but for products that require highly refined engineering and manufacturing (such as iPads, made in Shenzhen), and others that require industrialization on a large scale. The new Bay Bridge connecting San Francisco and Oakland, for example, is largely being fabricated in Shanghai. If California gets high-speed rail, it will also probably be built by a Chinese company. Today, many Chinese people expect to have cell phones, nice places to live and the opportunity to see the world, and their wealth is increasing every year.

These trends — one nation's prospects going up, while another's decline — may narrow or even be reversed in the decades to come. As Chinese wages increase, some of their manufacturing will move to other cheap labor countries, such as Cambodia and India. And, more importantly, American workers are learning that wealth requires productivity and doesn't magically come from entitlements or borrowing. The government, too, is realizing that tax revenues don't appear out of nowhere, and that a successful private economy is essential to fulfilling the ambitions of even the most ardent tax-and-spend Democrat. With the slowdown dragging on and on, those lessons can't be learned too soon.

Letters to the Editor

'Oppressive and demoralizing?'

Dear Editor,

Recent letters to the Monterey County Herald regarding Rich Guillen have included remarks about the "current oppressive and demoralizing atmosphere" at Carmel City Hall. But city hall employees are wondering who, exactly, is reporting this? The letter-writers are mostly unknown to city hall employees, and we wonder from where this inaccurate information is coming. To the current city hall employees, Rich Guillen is fair and professional. None of us have experienced any questionable behavior, and we are distressed to be classified as "working under a black cloud." Our workplace is not oppressive, nor intimidating, and we wish to clarify what we consider to be a misconception about our day-to-day work environment.

Carmel City Hall employees

'Silent Majority'

Dear Editor,

I have been reading editorials and letters to the editor for months regarding Rich Guillen and what a terrible job the city council does, and I can't sit by silently any longer. I am so tired of hearing from a very small group of troublemakers that they are embarrassed to live here. These people do not speak for me!

I am so proud of our city and the people who run it. They work harder than most of us realize and make very tough decisions every week. I think Gerard Rose spelled the issues out very well; unfortunately, the negative minority chooses to ignore the law that the council governs under. They also choose to ignore the fact that the Millers have sued at least one other city, and that Jane took the low road and leaked one side of the story after she happily took her $600K.

Guillen is a fine, professional man who has done a great job helping Carmel be the prosperous city that it is. I am proud to call him my friend and think it is a shame that a few mean-spirited people have tarnished his reputation when he has worked so tirelessly for our city.

The naysayers can keep stirring the pot, but I am very proud of what our city has accomplished in these tough economic times and continue to appreciate what our city council and Rich Guillen have done for us.

'Irresponsible' garbage policy

Dear Editor,

Recently our beautiful neighborhoods were littered by thousands of garbage/recycle/yard waste bins as a result of a policy imposed on rural Carmel and Big Sur residents by the Monterey County Environmental Health Department. Dozens of rented U-Haul trucks, staffed with 3 to 4 workers each, taking days to complete rounds, delivered three bins each to residents in these areas. The bins were left everywhere ... at properties whose owners are deceased, to residents who cannot use these bins because they are too big to transport in their cars some 15 miles to designated pick-up locations, to properties that are not developed or vacant, and to residents who are extremely proactive in composting, recycling in town and burning their own yard waste, thereby never needing this service. This mandatory garbage policy will also mean that there will now be oversized vehicles driving through our dangerous, delicate canyons that can be impassable due to landslides, fallen trees and eroded road conditions. Their plans to have Waste Management drive these newly created routes are not only hazardous to these environmentally sensitive habitats (the very thing that this agency was created to protect) but a noise and air pollution issue, and a real danger to the lives of those driving waste vehicles. There are no safe turn-arounds for trucks of this size if they encounter one of these natural unsafe road conditions.

If you were negatively affected by this mandatory garbage policy, contact Monterey County Environmental Health (831) 755-4579 and ask for an exemption application. They have graciously opted to waive the $44 submittal fee, but you will have to resubmit this application each year and pay a $15 fee. Wow!

Wildfire plan's importance

Dear Editor,

Thank you for providing leadership coverage of a critical countywide issue, the need for the county board of supervisors to sign the Monterey County Community Wildfire Protection Plan. Our county is at risk of losing critical federal dollars to help us move forward from the status quo, which is not working.

The MCCWPP can help prevent the kind of damage we saw from the Basin Complex Fire in 2008 and can help protect communities like the Carmel Highlands, Carmel Valley, Del Rey Oaks, Marina, North County, Pine Canyon, Lockwood, and others near areas subject to wildfires. Cal Fire experts found that over 80 percent of the county's land area is at high, very high or extreme threat of wildfire.

At this recent board of supervisors hearing, organizations like the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club and the Ventana Wilderness Alliance proclaimed that homeowners living near areas subject to wildfires should simply make their homes manslaughter, felony hit-and-run causing great bodily injury, and other charges, and are set to be tried jointly. Matheson estimated the trial would take two weeks.

TRIAL

He said he and attorneys Frank Dice (who is defending Tindall) and Larry Biegel (who is defending Hudson) expense, were prepared to begin jury selection this week, but during the Sept. 23 meeting with Duncan, they learned another trial was tying up his courtroom for longer than expected.

Meanwhile, all court business — except for urgent matters like criminal arraignments — is being canceled while the courtrooms are being moved back into permanent buildings, starting next week, Matheson said. After that, Duncan is set to go on vacation until Oct. 25, and the lawyers speculated they would have a hard time selecting a jury this week and then telling its members they had to come back for the trial at the end of October.

Holidays and other vacations further complicated things, “so it was obvious we had to postpone again,” Matheson said.

“I’m ready to go at any time, but you have to respect everyone’s schedules.”

He said no one is to blame for the delay, “but it’s frustrating, most of all for the family.”

Matheson said he was agonizing over having to contact Wiesjahn’s parents, but they understood, with resignation. Meanwhile, Tindall and Hudson are free on bail.

GORGE

The hikers parked at Arroyo Seco National Forest Campground, which is located about 20 miles west of Greenfield. From there, they likely followed a gated dirt road that parallels the Arroyo Seco River as it winds its way up the gorge just upstream from the campground. The road — once open to the public but now simply a National Forest hiking trail — provides numerous access points to reach the river, which is a popular summertime destination due to its abundance of swimming holes.

But as the hikers soon discovered, boulder-hopping and swimming down the river — while no doubt fun — is a time-consuming task.

Didn’t return home

A search was launched Monday after deputies received a call about a group of hikers that didn’t return home. One of the hikers missed a flight, triggering the emergency response.

“He was supposed to fly to Georgia,” Sgt. Moses said. “His wife reported him missing.”

In addition to the CHP helicopter crew, a CHP ground crew, rescue workers from the sheriff’s office and a U.S. Forest Service ranger participated in the effort to find the hikers.

JACKSON

Perry, Jackson said, also recorded a fictitious business name for www.reggiejackson.com in his own name rather than Jackson’s name.

Jackson is also seeking $20,000 in a personal loan he says he gave Perry in four $5,000 installments from December 2008 to March 2009.

“Perry failed and refused to repay the sum, despite repeated demands,” Jackson’s suit says.

In 2008, Jackson said he let Perry “borrow” a Rolex watch. After Jackson fired Perry, Jackson said the former worker refused to part with it, telling Jackson he had “given” the watch to him.

A’s, Orioles and Yankees

Jackson’s website currently has links to dozens of eBay auctions including autographed A’s, Orioles and Yankees’ jerseys for $350 a piece, Mr. October-signed baseballs and various black-and-white and color autographed photos.

Jackson also operates the philanthropic nonprofit Mr. October Foundation for Kids, which was founded in 1997 to provide access to computers for kids. According to Jackson’s website, the foundation has given more than $600,000 to schools and other organizations.

TURN TO US.

In the 14 years since Central Coast Senior Services, Inc. was established, we have learned that what most people are seeking, even more than services, are answers, to all the “how do I” and “what if” questions related to the challenges that arise in caring for seniors. Providing answers and solving problems comprise the heart and soul of our business. Yes, we provide highly trained Personal Attendants to help your loved one through daily activities at home. But personal assistance is only a part of the picture. Each of our clients also has a Home Care Coordinator to prepare a Personal Care Plan, to monitor the entire situation, and to find solutions to problems as they arise.

We provide you with options, with answers, with strategies. We’ll be there during transitions, connect you with medical, legal and financial specialists as needed, take your loved one to medical appointments, arrange for household repairs. Whatever it takes, we can handle it — and all our services are covered by one hourly fee.

You don’t have to face this alone any more. Call us: (831) 649-3363.

CROWDING

the loss of state class-size reduction funds that required a ratio of just over 20 students per teacher. Those tax dollars have since evaporated due to the recession, but if the program returns in 2012/2013 as predicted, River School would have too many kids in each class to qualify.

“Despite that high number — and this isn’t a company line — I still feel that class size is healthy,” Marden said, with rooms ranging from 21 to 25 students per teacher. “When you look statewide at what other school districts are contending with, we are hearing horror stories of 40 kids in a classroom.”

Marden sees the greatest impact on the playground.

“With that many kids in one space, there are going to be issues,” he said.

What to do?

One possible solution would be redrawing boundaries in the district to send more children to Tularcitos Elementary School in Carmel Valley Village, a proposal that worried some parents when it was discussed early last year.

“The Tularcitos population has declined — there are empty classrooms there,” Marden pointed out.

River could also close its classes to newcomers and bus new students to Tularcitos, or it could send all its transfer students to the Carmel Valley Village school, or it could relocate an entire program, such as kindergarten, according to Marden.

Building more facilities on the River School campus, however, is not a viable option, he said.

Some of its neighbors tend to decry any change at the school, the California Coastal Commission is known more for being obstructionist than for being cooperative, and the campus is too small.

“We would have to build up in order to accommodate more kids,” he said.

As for why the population at River School spiked so dramatically, Marden speculated the rise in the number of new student is due to a favorable home rental market within the district’s boundaries, along with increasingly poor conditions in cash-strapped school districts elsewhere on the Monterey Peninsula.

“People are recognizing the benefits of their kids’ attending CUSD and are moving accordingly,” he said.

Marden also said he wants the district to devise a long-term solution to the problem, because even more children might come after homes at September Ranch and Rancho Cañada are built, if they are built.

“In the future, we don’t know how many kids we may gain through new housing developments,” he said. “We know we’re going to have to create a plan to address this as a school district.”

fireproof, and all would be well. They claimed there is no need to reduce any significant portion of the county’s hazardous overgrown vegetation, and no need to maintain existing firebreaks. They urged the board of supervisors to not sign the MCCW-PP.

The board was asked to sign the plan by fire professionals who provide fire prevention and suppression services for almost all of Monterey County, including Cal Fire and the U.S. Forest Service, and by numerous citizens concerned about safety in the event of wildfire. The board chose to defer its decision for 45 days, based on a motion from Dave Potter.

taken him to seek any medical care as of yet. She described the play equipment as a "bus" painted black and yellow. She said he had climbed onto the top of it and was unable to get down safely. When he tried to get down, he fell, landing on his arm. She felt the equipment was unsafe because kids could access the top of the equipment, where there were no rails or safety handles.

CARMEL CHAT

ON REAL ESTATE

BY JUDY TOLLNER

It's rather funny when I look back on the day I was introduced to CARMEL'S JACKS PEAK, long before I was a Realtor with COLDWELL BANKER DEL MONTE REALTY, and the very day I learned that we really should trust our Realtor...Back in 1999, after having gone through a remodel on a sweet home in Carmel Woods, and winding things down after Chairing SANTA CATALINA'S 18th Annual Wine Auction and Winemaker's Dinner with MONTRIO BISTRO and ROBERT TALBOTT VINEYARDS, the last thing on my mind was purchasing a new home. However my Realtor was not on the same page and on this particular day she would not take 'no' for an answer...She called to inform me she had a house for me to see in her favorite area JACKS PEAK. At the time I had never heard of JACKS PEAK, only the park. So my Realtor, not taking 'no' for an answer, 'hung up' on me after announcing she was on her way to pick me up...With my morning tea in tote, I jumped in her car to see this house that I was not interested in seeing—until I saw it! Don't get me wrong, by no means was it perfect, it didn't even have heat, was in need of a remodel—great, another remodel, and on overgrown property that one could barely see, but it ended up being my favorite home and location if ever there was...CARMEL'S JACKS PEAK was where my Realtor wanted to end up, instead it's where I call home to this day...I can only imagine you'd enjoy living here too and I have two 'spectacular listings', and just like JACKS PEAK'S uniqueness, they each offer something different, are wonderful properties, very private in breathtaking settings, in a Sunbelt, on 5+ acres, and JACKS PEAK is possibly the most convenient location on the entire Peninsula. Hope to see you at my Open Houses this Saturday...follow the signs to:
