Padres take home Shoe, prepare for playoffs

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR THE Carmel High School football team, this year's shoe was a perfect fit.

Carmel High cruised to a 56-21 win over arch rival Pacific Grove High School last Saturday in a final tune-up before the Central Coast Section IV playoffs begin.

While the game had little impact on the standings, it took on great significance because of "The Shoe." Like "The Axe" that Stanford and U.C. Berkeley fight over every fall, a bronzed football cleat is the trophy that honors the victor of the annual grudge match between the Padres and the Breakers.

Carmel High running back Jimmy Osornio had the game of his life as the Padres trounced P.G. High. The senior, a third-string back just a year ago, broke countless tackles by Breaker defenders as he rolled up 206 yards on 22 carries and reached the end zone an astonishing six times.

For Carmel High — which took home "The Shoe" for the third straight year — there was jubilation when the game ended. For the Padres, the trophy offers more than just bragging rights for another season. "It's something they're going to remember for the rest of their lives," head coach Golden Anderson predicted.

When "The Shoe" made its debut in 1948, Carmel High had a strong team that crushed P.G. High 33-0. In the first three years of the rivalry for the trophy, the Padres outscored the Breakers 95-19. But in 1951, an improved P.G. High battled Carmel High to a 6-6 tie. And in 1952, the Padres found

Council considers stricter workplace harassment policy

■ Could ban even consensual relationships

By MARY BROWNFIELD

IN THE wake of a sexual-harassment lawsuit against the City of Carmel that resulted in a $600,000 settlement for former human resources manager Jane Miller and generated criticism from residents who said the city didn't do enough to deal with the problem, the city council considered a revised harassment policy Nov. 2. The new rules would clearly outline all prohibited behaviors and how to handle complaints.

After a suggestion from a resident, the possibility of prohibiting even consensual relationships between supervisors and employees was raised, even though such relationships are not illegal. It was unclear whether that proposal would be part of the final policy.

Lifeguard's quick response saves 8-year-old's life

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CALIFORNIA STATE Parks lifeguard Erik Landry didn't even have time to put on his wetsuit when he rushed into the chilly water at Carmel River Beach Saturday afternoon to rescue a boy who had been swept into the ocean. On duty in his state parks truck, Landry was patrolling along Scenic Road south of Carmel when he happened to see a wave hit the young boy, according to Mike McMenamy, supervising ranger of the Monterey District for state parks.

Shortly before the incident, Landry had been using the

11 DAYS AFTER CRASH, BIG SUR DRIVER SURRENDERS

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE DRIVER of a vehicle that crashed on Highway 1 in Big Sur Halloween night, leaving a Carmel gallery owner paralyzed, turned himself in to police last Friday. Myles Goldman Lerner was charged with felony hit-and-run.

Meanwhile, two other passengers who were traveling in the vehicle — Joseph McEvoy, 26, and Vanessa Hacker, 28 — were charged this week with felonies for being accessories to Lerner's crime.

The 30-year-old Lerner had been missing since leaving the scene of the accident that occurred Nov. 1 a short distance south of the Henry Miller Library. While he was a fugitive, he was reportedly staying in Cachagua.

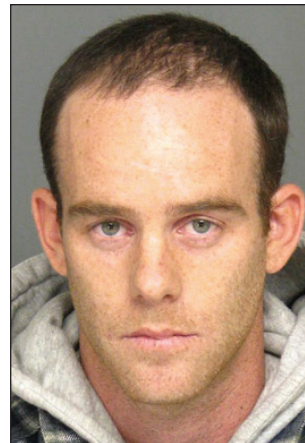

The victim of the crash, local fine art photographer Rachael Short, remains hospitalized at Santa Clara Valley Medical Center. Short, who suffered a broken neck, is co-owner of Gallery Exposed.

Lerner's attorney, Jim Dozier, disputed the charge that his client broke the law because he left the scene of the crash.

"There is no crime in leaving the scene of an accident once medical aid has been rendered," Dozier insisted.

But Sgt. Rick Salmeron of the California Highway Patrol said Lerner broke state law anyway, because he was required to give his name, current residence address and other information "to any traffic or police officer at the scene of the accident."

When asked why Lerner left the scene, Dozier said he was disoriented from the collision, which left him with a concussion. He was later treated for his concussion at Community

Chief Rawson to retire

■ Full pension at 54

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER 34 years in law enforcement — his last nine as the chief of Carmel Police Department — George Rawson is retiring next month to take a job that brings him full circle. He will become head of security at Northridge Mall, the same shopping center where he got his first taste of law enforcement in 1974 while working to thwart shoplifters at Mervyn's.

Share the wealth for toy drives, community Thanksgiving

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE KIWANIS Club of Monterey — with the help of volunteers and generous donors — served up 2,300 Thanksgiving dinners last year, and organizer Michael Fields anticipates demand will be high again next week when the doors open for the 40th Annual Community Thanksgiving Dinner at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Fields was careful to remind people that everyone is welcome to attend the free meal, not just those in need, and the casual event is much more like a large family gathering than a soup kitchen.

"We want everyone to feel like they're treated with dignity, like they're walking into my living room," he said. "You don't have to be embarrassed — everyone should feel joyful."

He also wants to make sure everyone is well fed. The supply of turkeys is looking pretty good, though

TUCKER HOUSEMAN, 9, is part mini poodle and part something else – possibly a mini lion. He weighs about seven pounds and sports a unique, Simba-like coif.

Dad Jeff and Mom Mary Liz, who adore little Tucker, dressed him up as an escaped prisoner for the city's Halloween/Birthday Parade last month. His black and white striped outfit had a matching convict pillbox hat which was kept on his wild mane with an elastic band.

Carried away with his criminal attire, Tucker mini-lunged at a large golden retriever dressed in fairy wings. But the big dog, as big dogs do, regarded Tucker with kindness and continued on his sylphine way without being goaded into an unseemly embroilment.

The Housemans adopted Tucker from the Monterey County SPCA three years ago; it was love at first sight. Tucker has two grown up sisters who live in Fairfax: Heather, and Sara Gardner, married to Steve, and Mom of pug Cho Cho, one of Tucker's closest friends as well as a first cousin.

Other pals are Penny, a dachshund/Chihuahua mix who lives in San Rafael; Winston, a mix of unknown origins, but who looks like a mini German shepherd; and Cosmo, a cocker spaniel who works as a greeter at Nancy Dodds Gallery here in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Besides getting together with his friends, he takes daily walks at Carmel Beach with Mom and her walking group. Sometimes he accompanies landscaping contractor Dad in his truck. Other times he visits artist Mom at Gallery North.

Tucker's favorite stuffed animal toys are Bearly, a polar bear, and a small stuffed fox.

At night, Tucker sleeps in Mom and Dad's room, either on a cushion or on a jacket that has slipped to the floor and is too inviting to pass up.

Useful advice if you're going to be dead in the water for four days

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

IN MEDIA accounts, it's constantly referred to as a "nightmare cruise" or the "cruise from hell." And while what happened to passengers aboard the Carnival Splendor off the coast of Mexico last week may not have been quite that bad, it was still "chaotic" and "horrific," said Monterey resident Carol Hutchings, who was on the ship with five childhood friends for a long-planned reunion.

"To have no electricity or flushing toilets for four days was terrible," Hutchings said. "And you wouldn't believe what they fed us."

The lesson, she said, is that nobody should go on vacation or out of their usual environment expecting everything to be perfect.

"You really have to make some simple emergency preparations," she said. "Take a flashlight with you, and some dried fruit and peanuts. And chocolate."

The ship, with more than 3,000 passengers on board, was just 12 hours into its trip off the coast of Mexico when something went terribly wrong in the engine room in the early morning Nov. 8.

"Everybody was sound asleep, and it sounded like an earthquake," said Hutchings, whose cabin was above the engine room.

'You wouldn't believe what they fed us ... it was bread with maybe a slice of beet.'

---

"Shake, shake, shake and then crunch, crunch, crunch!"

Off her balcony, she could see a yellow glow emanating from the lower part of the ship. And then a "massive amount of smoke."

An announcement over the ship's intercom said there was just "a little difficulty," with no hint of the seriousness of the failure, which apparently started in the engine's crankshaft.

Since they were near the engine room, Hutchings' group didn't believe the problem was minor.

"My friends were upset, and they left the room and went to the life rafts," Hutchings said. "But I stayed in the room."

And that's pretty much where she remained for four days.

"I didn't want to go near the food service area, because the stench [from food spoiling in the refrigerators and freezers] was so bad."

And the food being offered wasn't anything to brag about.

"It was bread with maybe a slice of beet on it," she said.

The only lights on the ship were emergency lights in the hallways. And with the ship's power out, the passengers also lost their cellphone signals. Water was rationed.

"The cruise ship company and the employees were not prepared," she said.

There was excitement on board when the U.S. Coast Guard and Navy arrived to help. But still, it took four long days to reach San Diego.

Back home in Monterey, Hutchings returned to her financial services company. All the passengers got a refund and were awarded a free cruise in the future.

But will Hutchings, who owns her company and therefore doesn't take a lot of vacations, go on another cruise? "That depends on what the other girls decide," Hutchings laughed. "After what we went through, we're going to be together always on Nov. 8, and each year one of us gets to pick what to do. So if she says we're going on a cruise, I have to say, 'Yes.'"

Council lets apartment have aluminum, not wood, windows

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE GREAT debate over windows in Carmel — principally, whether they can be made of anything other than painted wood — continued Nov. 2, when the city council voted 2-1 to overturn the planning commission's denial of the installation of aluminum-coated wood windows in an upstairs apartment.

More than three years ago, owner Nancy Moresco received permission to convert second-floor offices in Su Vecino Court on Lincoln Street into apartments. The approved design called for unclad wood windows, but a couple of months ago, Moresco asked the planning commission to allow aluminum-clad wood windows instead. Sticking with their belief that wood windows are almost always preferred, commissioners denied her request on Sept. 8.

Two weeks ago, Moresco appealed that denial, and planning and building services manager Sean Conroy asked the city council to decide whether she could install the windows she wants.

While design guidelines for homes weigh heavily in favor of unclad wood windows, commercial design guidelines are not as strict, Conroy told the council. According to the commercial guidelines, "Window design should be consistent with the original building concept or with its architecture."

"The existing building and approved alterations incorporate a flat-roof contemporary design," Conroy said in his report. "This design lends itself to the use of a window material other than wood. However, the majority of the windows in Su Vecino Court are unclad wood."

Representing Moresco, attorney Michael Cling said she chose aluminum-clad wood windows because they are energy efficient, cost effective and low maintenance. He said the windows would not "do violence to the architectural standards of the city," and are similar to those installed in the new Trevvett Court senior housing complex and the

Ocean Ave. holiday lights will sparkle till springtime

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TO GIVE a festive spirit to the town's main shopping street for more than just the Christmas holidays, the median on Ocean Avenue will twinkle with holiday lights all the way until next spring.

The Carmel City Council decided Nov. 2 to let the lights stay on from Thanksgiving week until daylight savings time begins, rather than shutting them down in the middle of January, as was done in the past. The council also authorized the purchase of a commercial-grade LED system that will use much less electricity and won't have to be removed each year.

"Last year, we decided to leave the lights up until the AT&T golf tournament," city clerk Heidi Burch said. "This year, we're asking to leave them up a bit longer, due to the overwhelmingly positive response we received."

Business people and passersby like the lights' sparkly appearance, Carmel Chamber of Commerce CEO Monta Potter pointed out, and councilwoman Karen Sharp said the visibility they provide makes Carmel's dark streets a little safer.

But fire codes dictate that leaving the lights on for four months straight requires a heavier-gauge commercial-grade system, according to Burch, so she researched the installation of LEDs and received quotes from three companies.

"With the upgrade to commercial-grade LED lighting, cost savings would be realized not only in the difference in energy costs, but also in labor costs," she said in her report for the council. And since the lights would be installed permanently, they could be used not just during the winter holiday season, but during special events, too.

"Each year, the city spends approximately $1,800 in labor costs to install the lights in the medians," she continued. "The life span of commercial wiring is conservatively four to six years when left up year round. A savings of $7,200 in labor costs would be realized if the lights are left up for five years."

Over a five-year period, she estimated the materials and installation of LED lights would total $27,800, while incandescent lighting would total $25,000.

Despite the higher initial outlay for LEDs, Burch recommended the council vote in their favor.

She also reported already receiving an anonymous donation of $1,000 toward the project and said other contributions could be forthcoming.

Councilman Ken Talmage observed that lights left installed all year would be more vulnerable to damage.

"People climbing through medians are going to tromp on the lights, so we're going to have a labor cost," he said.

"We will have to figure in maintenance costs," city administrator Rich Guillen agreed.

Councilman Jason Burnett said the money for the lights wasn't in the budget, so he wanted to see cuts made elsewhere to pay for it. Other council members said donations might help cover some of the tab, and everyone voted in favor of installing the new lights as early as Thanksgiving week and letting them twinkle until mid-March.

Man condemns show of force, but police defend it

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A CONTRACTOR who arrived at a client's home to see what caused a burglar alarm to go off, only to surprise two cops who were in the home investigating the same alarm, is upset because the officers pointed their guns at him.

But the officers' commander said they acted appropriately and applauded their self-restraint.

Mark Knutson, who lives in Capitola but does high-end carpentry and maintenance work for several Carmel clients, said he had been on a bicycle ride last Monday afternoon when an absentee homeowner called and asked him to find out why the alarm had activated in the home at Casanova and 12th. Knutson and another contractor had been working on a gas leak there earlier in the day, and the other man had apparently forgotten to lock a back door that had blown open in the wind, so Knutson went to turn off the alarm and secure the door.

Dressed in his cycling gear, Knutson unlocked the front door and walked in on Sgt. Mel Mukai and officer Jeff Watkins, who were investigating the noisy alarm and immediately trained their guns on him.

"I put my hands up and said, 'I'm the contractor,' and I kept repeating it," Knutson said. With his hands still raised — and with the officers' semi-automatic handguns still pointing at him — Knutson shut off the alarm and entered the cancellation code that only he and the homeowners know.

At that point, Mukai and Watkins should have holstered their guns, he argued, but they didn't.

"I have a key. I have tight spandex on — I can't hide anything — and I announced myself a dozen times," he recounted.

Mukai, who was standing in front, lowered his weapon to about a 45-degree angle, but Watkins kept his pointing at Knutson for what he reported was a full minute.

A week later, he's still upset by the encounter. "I could have been any homeowner in Carmel, any person coming home from the beach," he said. "It would have been terrifying for any homeowner. They could have shot me."

Knutson said he complained to CPD Cmdr. Mike Calhoun about the incident but was unhappy with the response he

THE SANTA LUCIA COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT ANNOUNCES REPAIRS ON BRIDGE OVER CARMEL RIVER

Improved design of Rancho San Carlos Bridge allows heavier emergency vehicles safe passage: Expect road closures and use alternative route

CARMEL, CALIF. — The Santa Lucia Community Services District (SLCSD) and its neighbors, Quail Lodge Inc. and Carmel Valley Athletic Club, announce the repair and maintenance of Rancho San Carlos Bridge over Carmel River. The bridge's new design meets higher standards of load weight, allowing larger emergency vehicles safe and efficient passage.

As a result of construction, there will be road closures and the community is advised to use Valley Greens Drive as an alternate route. Due to increased traffic on Valley Greens Drive, a temporary traffic signal will be installed at the intersection of Carmel Valley Road and Valley Greens Drive. Please respect the posted speed limit on Valley Greens Drive.

The anticipated start date of road closure is December 6, 2010 (subject to change) and could last for six months during construction.

themselves on the losing end of a 39-12 rout, and a fierce rivalry was born.

The two teams have now competed for The Shoe 64 times. Even after last week's victory by the Padres, the Breakers still hold the edge in the series, 32-30, with two ties.

Carmel High has little time to bask in the afterglow of the victory over its longtime rival. The Padres host The King's Academy of Sunnyvale Saturday at 1 p.m. in what they hope will be just the beginning of their defense of the CCS Section IV crown. Carmel High crushed the Sunnyvale school 59-6 in the semifinals of last year's playoffs.

"Our seniors want to keep playing, and we want to do everything we can to make that happen," Anderson added. "This is the time of year when the loser goes home."

If the Padres defeat The King's Academy, they will next play the winner of Friday's game between Greenfield High and Half Moon Bay High. If they win that game, they'll play for the title Dec. 4.

Cops find loaded gun during search for wallet

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A BYSTANDER'S report of a possible drunken driver with an open beer in his SUV Sunday afternoon led to the man's arrest for possessing a loaded gun.

Officers found the pistol in the GMC's center console while they were searching for David Jay Castleberry's wallet, according to Carmel Police Sgt. Mel Mukai, who said he and officer Joe Boucher found Castleberry in the Del Mar lot near the beach.

"The vehicle was parked, and he was standing at the rear cargo hold of the GMC SUV, with the rear tailgate open," Mukai recalled. As Boucher engaged Castleberry in conversation, Mukai peered through the passenger window and saw the open Corona inside. When the officers asked Castleberry for his license, he said his wallet was somewhere in the car and gave them permission to search for it, according to Mukai.

Upon finding the Hi-Point semiautomatic .380-caliber pistol in the center console — along with the man's wallet — Mukai and Boucher handcuffed Castleberry. The weapon was loaded, and he had no license for it and no permit to carry a concealed gun, according to Mukai.

"He basically admitted that he forgot it was in the car," he said. "He said he travels a lot and keeps it for protection."

Mukai also reported Castleberry had been drinking but wasn't noticeably drunk. And they weren't able to establish that he had been driving, so it didn't matter whether his blood alcohol level was .08 percent.

"We attempted to get the witness back to our location to charge Castleberry with the possible DUI, but the person refused to return to the scene, so we couldn't place him behind the wheel," he explained.

A local company towed the SUV, and police took Castleberry to Monterey County Jail on charges of possessing a loaded weapon and having an open container in his vehicle. Mukai said he had been convicted of domestic violence in Texas, which could lead to more severe punishment if he's found guilty of carrying a loaded gun without a permit, which is a felony.

than two decades, will be interim police chief until the city hires a replacement and said he plans to apply for the head job.

Rawson could have retired with maximum benefits when he turned 50 four years ago, since payouts from the public employees' retirement system funded by local and state taxpayers max out at 90 percent of a Carmel police officer or firefighter's salary after he has worked for 30 years, but Rawson liked working at CPD too much to leave.

"I had thought about it a couple of years ago, but this was such a wonderful opportunity that I wanted to continue on," he said.

But when former Carmel Police Chief Don Fuselier told Rawson about the job running security and guest services at Northridge in Salinas, he decided it was the right time to retire from the public sector.

Macerich, the corporation that owns and operates Northridge, has 78 malls in its portfolio, including Carmel Plaza. At the Salinas mall, Rawson will oversee two dozen security guards and plans to bring his signature eye toward community service and public outreach to the shopping center, which has worked hard to scrub its image and increase safety ever since a guard was shot there five years ago.

But he's sad to bid farewell to Carmel, where signs of his values and leadership will remain long after he's gone.

"It's hard to say, 'Goodbye,' when you're having fun," Rawson said.

"The level of excellence that we have achieved is really through him," said Calhoun, who has worked under four different chiefs during his career at CPD. "He has been a positive influence on all of us."

Calhoun mentioned Rawson's "leadership skills, ability for conflict resolution and dealing with people" in a professional manner.

"He's also a caring person and very sympathetic to people and their needs," he continued. "They always say, 'Lead by example,' and I think I've been able to follow a lot of his examples."

Outpouring of praise

After Rawson announced his impending retirement last week, numerous friends, fans and former coworkers sent heartfelt responses.

"What amazes me is that it took Carmel nine years to complete the background check!" joked Hall Schilling. "As a direct appointee or contract interim, during the course of my local government career, I managed 11 cities in five Western states. I can say without equivocation that you were the best police chief I ever had (and I was privileged to work with some very, very good chiefs)."

Many knew Rawson from his years at Indio P.D., where he had been chief before he came to work for Carmel.

"Frankly, the entire Coachella Valley will forever be a poorer place because you decided to accept the position of chief of police at CPD," wrote attorney Martin Brhel, Jr. "You are a class act and have left a VERY BIG pair of shoes to fill. I am privileged to be able to call you my friend and treasure our relationship."

"Our professional and personal relationship has been a highlight of my career," wrote Richard Kreisler of the Liebert Cassidy Whitmore law firm.

"It has truly been an honor and a pleasure to work with you over the years," wrote Monterey Police Chief Tim Shelby. "One of the things that I admire most about you is that you care about your people so much, and you take every opportunity to recognize them for the great work that they do, every day. It is so evident that it comes from your heart, and I know that the support and appreciation that you show to them is a huge part of your success as a police chief."

Chief Calhoun

Calhoun will be running the department, continuing many of the programs and standards Rawson brought to Carmel.

"I've had Chief Rawson here by my side, and I won't have that anymore, so it's a good challenge for me to step into that role and take on the opportunity to continue the growth in the department," he said.

Calhoun hopes to maintain the emphasis on mentoring, teaching and learning among CPD officers and staff, allowing everyone to experience different aspects of law enforcement. He plans to apply for the permanent job of police chief and said the next six months will provide a good proving ground.

According to a recent salary survey, the police chief is the highest paid person in the City of Carmel. Rawson's pay included $140,000 in salary and $61,240.88 in benefits. His pension will therefore be about $126,000 a year, plus annual cost-of-living increases for the rest of his life.

WITH HER dry delivery and biting wit, best-selling author Sarah Vowell accomplishes something countless teachers never master: She makes history fun.

Vowell performs Friday, Nov. 19, at Sunset Center.

"I like her because she is somebody who can find humor and irony in American history," explained Peter Lesnik, executive director of Sunset Center. "I love irony, and she's like the princess of irony."

Vowell is no conventional historian. Her 2005 book, "Assassination Vacation," for example, tells the story of a morbidly funny road trip to visit the grave sites of three presidents who were shot.

In addition to writing five books and numerous articles that appeared in The Village Voice, Esquire, GQ, Spin and the Los Angeles Times, she has filled in for New York Times columnist Maureen Dowd.

Vowell has also been a hit on the talk show circuit. She's been featured on "Nightline," "The Daily Show" with Jon Stewart, "The Colbert Report" and "The Late Show" with

By rationing his own water, local painter produces drought-tolerant art

By CHRIS COUNTS

LIKE THE Monterey Peninsula landscapes he often paints, Marina artist Miguel Domínguez's creations don't need a lot of water to be beautiful.

Domínguez, whose landscapes will go in display Friday, Nov. 12, at the Carmel Bay Company, uses a watercolor technique that ironically uses very little water.

"I use what is called a 'dry-brush technique,'" explained Domínguez, a member of the Carmel Art Association since 1973. "The term, though, is misleading because the brush isn't dry. The challenge is using just the right mix of water and pigment."

For Domínguez, that means creating paintings that look like oils but have an atmospheric quality that resembles watercolors.

After spending much of his life in the Salinas Valley, Domínguez has developed an affection for the rural and agricultural landscapes of Monterey County. But unlike many local plain air artists, he prefers to do most of his work in the studio.

"I'm a studio painter," conceded Domínguez, who typically only photographs or sketches a subject on his outings. "Much of my work is from my imagination. I've tried painting outside, but I like to have my gadgets around."

In addition to presenting a collection of larger works, Domínguez will unveil a series of miniatures at the Carmel Bay Company.

The Carmel Bay Company, which will host a reception from 5 to 7 p.m., is located at Ocean and Lincoln.

■ 'Impressions of Light'

If you haven't had a chance, be sure to check out William Neill's exhibit, "Impressions of Light," which is on display at Weston Gallery, in which the artist uses his camera to "paint" with light.

"My goal is to remove context within a landscape, distilling down to its essence, in order to convey the energy of a subject or scene in a fresh way, much as snow simplifies the land," Neill explained.

Weston Gallery is located at Sixth and Dolores. For more information, visit www.westongallery.com.

The wildlands of Monterey County are the subject of an exhibit by artist Miguel Domínguez, which opens Saturday.

Help for Rachael, Pie Tasting Day, and a gazillion Thanksgivings

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE WILDS of Cachagua will host a fundraiser for fine-art photographer Rachael Short, whose neck was broken in a Big Sur car wreck on Halloween. The driver, who allegedly fled the scene at the time, has since turned himself in, and Short, who was airlifted to a trauma center and underwent multiple surgeries, faces life-changing injuries and a lengthy recovery.

Friends, family and strangers have rallied to raise money for Short by hosting events and running in last weekend's Big Sur Half Marathon on her behalf. Caterer Michael Jones and the Cachagua community will do their part on Sunday, Nov.

21, when they host a fundraiser from 1 to 4 p.m. at Jones' Cachagua General Store.

According to Jones, the Sky Ranch Jalapeños (Pat Clark and David Schiffman) will play, plentiful wines will be poured, and the Store chefs will turn out their usual mouth-watering appetizers, Micah's pizzas and a BBQ buffet of pistachio-fed tri-tip, local fish and Joanie's chilies. The cost is $25 at the door, "but we will also pass the hat!" Jones said, and every dollar from both will go to Short.

"It is really heartwarming to see the way everyone wants to pitch in for Rachael," he said. "All manner of local farmers and chefs are coming out of the woodwork. I am treating this like the beta for the real fundraiser later somewhere proper — at four or five times the money."

Local winemakers known and unknown, public and private, are bringing bottles to share.

"Whatever else anyone says about the Peninsula, the valley, Cachagua and Big Sur, we try to take care of our own," Jones said.

The Cachagua Store is located at 18840 Cachagua Road. For more information, call (831) 659-1857.

■ Not Pompeii

Prolific restaurateur Rich Pèpe, who bought the building at Mission and Sixth that was the longtime home of Piatti until several weeks ago, announced plans to open a new restaurant there next spring.

"Vesuvio is the symbol of power and strength of Southern Italy," he said, so he decided to name his new bar/trattoria/restaurant after the volcano that buried the city of Pompeii in ash in 79 A.D. "Naples (Napoli) was the ancient port for Rome during the Roman Empire, and was the playground for the rich, famous and powerful of that era."

The restaurant will feature the cuisine of Campania, the region of Mt. Vesuvius — and of Pèpe's family. While his Little Napoli restaurant focuses on his Italian-American heritage, Vesuvio will feature recipes from his cousins and great-aunts in Southern Italy, as well as the wines of the region. Pèpe's sons, Christian and Gian Antonio, will help open the restaurant.

Pèpe also announced the winner of his recent cocktail contest and said the drink, called the Sevencello, will be served at Vesuvio. Erin Arnese won dinner for four at Little Napoli and immortality as "The Next Negroni" for the cocktail, which calls for 1 ounce of vodka, 1 ounce of lemoncello, 2 ounces of lemon-lime soda, 2 ounces of fresh lemonade, and sliced lemons and fresh mint for garnish. (Add the soda last and gently stir to preserve the bubbles.)

Celtic 'Winter's Eve' concert to help local music and art programs

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE MUSICAL heritage of Ireland and Scotland will be showcased Friday, Nov. 19 at this year's 5th annual Celtic Winter's Eve Concert, which will be staged at the Performing Arts Center of Pacific Grove.

Two of California's most popular homegrown Celtic groups, Tempest and the Black Irish Band, will play at the fundraiser to help raise money for the Foundation for the Performing Arts in Pacific Grove.

Founded more than two decades ago in Oakland, Tempest combines traditional folk music with other folk influences, as well as progressive rock.

"They've been around forever," said Edie McDonald, one of the event's organizers. "They can also play some very good country music. They're very versatile."

Before Tempest performed at last year's Celtic Winter's Eve Concert, there was some concern that the group's amplified musical approach might be a bit loud for the event, but While Vowell's words have earned her a devoted following, it was her voice that caught the attention of the producers of the animated film, "The Incredibles." In the movie, she provides the words for shy teenager Violet Parr.

On Friday, Vowell makes her first appearance at Sunset Center.

"She is really extraordinary," Lesnik said. "She's a really good writer and a wonderful performer who is warm and engaging with an audience."

The performance starts at 8 p.m. Tickets range from $48 to $68.

DRIVER

Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"He had his bell rung," he explained. "He was very dazed. He's still not thinking completely lucid. He keeps asking me the same questions again."

Dozier said the perception that Lerner was avoiding law enforcement authorities is inaccurate, even though he turned himself in 11 days after the accident. "It was terribly unfair the way it went down," he suggested.

The attorney had hoped to negotiate an arrangement with law enforcement officials that would — at least temporarily — keep Lerner out of jail. In spite of Dozier's efforts, Lerner was incarcerated after he turned himself in.

"He was trying to do everything on his terms," Sgt. Salmeron said of Dozier. "He didn't want his client to be arrested."

The CHP, though, opted to put him in jail. "Someone's going to be paralyzed from the waist down," Sgt. Salmeron said. "That's something we take very seriously."

Bail for Lerner was originally set at $240,000, an amount Dozier called "unfair." At his arraignment hearing Tuesday, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Adrienne Grover agreed to reduce the bail to $100,000, but first required that Lerner surrender his passport and driver's license, and waive his right to an extradition hearing should he leave the state. According to the Monterey County District Attorney's Office, Lerner is planning to surrender those documents Friday.

Dozier was also critical of efforts by law enforcement to locate his client.

"They practically had a manhunt going on in Cachagua," he said. "They had a helicopter looking for him, and they were knocking on doors with shotguns."

As of Thursday, Lerner was still in jail. "It's got to be tough for him" in jail, the attorney said. "He's never committed a crime in his life."

Sgt. Salmeron said the CHP is still investigating the accident, which happened when the 2005 Toyota sports utility vehicle Lerner was driving crossed over a double yellow line and crashed into an embankment on the east side of the road. Sgt. Salmeron said alcohol "may have been involved in the crash."

Dozier, though, was quick to point out that something else may have been responsible for the crash, such as a "mechanical failure" with the vehicle.

Responding to Dozier's concerns, Sgt. Salmeron conceded "other factors may have contributed to the crash."

Lerner is scheduled to return to court Friday to enter a plea. McEvoy and Hacker are scheduled to be arraigned Nov. 30.

After Traveling the World, Forest Hill Manor is the Perfect Retirement Home

John and Bernice (Bea) Polosky led a full and fascinating life traveling the world as John rose through the ranks of Western Electric. Working in the telephone industry in an era of great technological change brought him challenges and rewards but nothing more exciting than directing communications for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles. They moved to Carmel after he retired as Vice President of Telephone Sales division in 1984.

John has always been a decision maker and as they began to consider future health needs, he and Bea decided that only a Continuing Care Retirement Community would provide the benefits they wanted. They had planned on moving to another CCRC until they came to the Open House for the South Wing. After touring, John said, "I think we've found exactly what we've been looking for: a building where we can live comfortably but with assisted living and skilled nursing care an elevator ride away." Having an underground garage made the choice perfect.

As John says, "It's in an ideal location: we can just jump in the car and be in Carmel visiting family and friends in minutes or have them visit us here." Bea adds, "The pluses are the nice people, the fine dining and all the activities. Forest Hill Manor just has everything we've envisioned for the future."

If you're planning for the future, Forest Hill Manor may be the right place for you too. Call today for more information and come for a visit! Call (831) 657-5200 or toll free 1 (866) 657-4900.

■ Thanksgiving with Dory or Christopher

Don't want to cook, but don't want to sit in a restaurant with strangers, either? Dory Ford of Aqua Terra Culinary has the answer to that conundrum: Order his full menu to enjoy at home.

Ford has a couple of options to offer. His traditional Thanksgiving dinner serves 12 to 14 people and consists of a choice of one hors d'oeuvre, soup or salad, roasted Diestel turkey, gravy, cranberry sauce, bread stuffing, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, steamed green beans, glazed baby carrots, velvet cream biscuits and two pies for dessert, all for $375.

For $575, the premium menu feeds the same number but offers more choices and a little creative flair, with two hors d'oeuvres, soup and salad, roasted Diestel turkey with gravy and cranberry sauce, two stuffings, mashed and sweet potatoes, chanterelle mushroom and green bean casserole, pan-roasted Brussels sprouts with smoked bacon, biscuits and two desserts.

Orders are due by 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 22. Customers can pick up their food at 529 Central Ave. in Pacific Grove or have it all delivered for $50. To order or to view the full menu and available ala carte items, visit www.aquaterraculinary.com.

But if dining out in a charming little Carmel restaurant with contemporary touches sounds good, consider Christopher's. For the first time since he opened his restaurant seven years ago, Christopher Caul will cook for fans, friends and random strangers on Thanksgiving this year.

"Every year, we get hundred of calls, and like a dummy, I turn them away," he said. "But not this year."

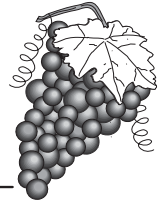

Located in the courtyard on Lincoln Street south of Fifth Avenue, Christopher's will be open from 2 to 8 p.m. and will be offering an ala carte menu containing items like roasted butternut squash and vanilla bean bisque, wild mushroom

How to quench your thirst

Opinions about wine are as varied as wine itself, but many experts agree: Pinot Noir is a perfect accompaniment for the array of tastes and smells of the traditional Thanksgiving table.

With soft tannin, decent acidity, structure, and a good balance of earthiness, spiciness and fruitiness, the Burgundian varietal, made well, can contend with the sometimes tricky flavors of turkey and its many side dishes.

There might be nowhere better to find the right Pinot than at Cima Collina in Carmel. Winemaker Annette Hoff has crafted seven different Monterey County Pinots, each with distinctive characteristics. Hilltop Ranch, $60, is described as "a richer, earthier and more age-worthy Pinot," while Chula Viña, $28, is a "bright ruby wine [that] opens with an intense black-cherry and violet-like bouquet," followed by berries and spice on the palate, and a long finish.

Cima Collina also has two affordable Monterey County vintages, and its Tondre Grapefield, $48, boasts "complexity, minerality and a long textural finish," with dark berry and ripe fruit aromas.

The tasting room on San Carlos Street north of Seventh Avenue is open Thursday through Monday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. To place an order, call (831) 620-0645 or visit www.cimacollina.com.

Ice skating causes hunger

The Portola Hotel & Spa, California State Parks, Café Fina and Domenico's are collaborating on this year's outdoor skating rink installed by Magic Ice USA in Custom House Plaza. The rink will open Saturday, Nov. 20, and the hours will be Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 8 p.m., until Jan. 9, 2011.

Admission and skate rentals are $13 for children and $15 for adults, and those who bring their own skates will save $3. Two-hour parking is free in the Waterfront Parking Lot and Downtown West Garage for Monterey County residents.

After getting their fill of triple Salchows, skaters can stroll over to Fisherman's Wharf to satisfy their hunger at Café Fina or Domenico's on the Wharf.

The rink sponsors are running a Skate for Schools program to donate 20 percent of skaters' dinner bills to Monterey public schools.

Café Fina is located at 47 Fisherman's Wharf No. 1, while Domenico's is just across the way at 50 Fisherman's Wharf No. 1. For more information, call (831) 649-4511.

Win a party at Hula's

Through Dec. 15, Hula's Island Grill and Tiki Room on Lighthouse Avenue in Monterey is holding a contest to give lunch for 20 to one local do-good business. To enter, write 300 words or fewer about why your office deserves a holiday lunch and send it to marci@chatterboxpublicrelations.com.

Include the name of the company and contact person and a phone number. The powers that be at Hula's will select the winner Dec. 18 and announce it on Facebook. Lunch must be redeemed by the end of this year, so be prepared to act fast.

none will be turned away if donors deliver them to cold storage at Del Monte Produce sometime soon, but Fields said he's seeking contributions of hams, baked goods and cash. He's talking to area growers about donating produce.

"We're definitely in need," he said. "We would like to see donations of hams and desserts," homemade or store bought.

Fields also hopes people will bring clothing to donate and will write checks to help cover costs like paper plates and packaging for the 500 meals that will be delivered to shut-ins during the community feast.

"The person who donated styrofoam can't donate anymore, and we haven't found a donor," for paper goods. Using styrofoam is against the rules.

Other than turkeys, which should be delivered sooner rather than later, so they have time to defrost, Fields is requesting contributors bring their donations to the Monterey Room at the fairgrounds on Wednesday, Nov. 24.

"We will be there starting at 9 that morning," he said.

Volunteers are also welcome to help when, where and how they like.

"People come whenever they want and help out as much as they can," he said. "And most of the people who volunteer to help are also there to participate, so that's just great."

Thanksgiving dinner will be served between noon and 3 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 25.

To donate, deliver frozen or fresh turkeys to Del Monte Produce, 2400 Del Monte Ave., in Monterey. Everything else should go to the Monterey Room at the fairgrounds on Wednesday. For more information, call Fields at (831) 659-2493.

"We're looking to put out a great product," he said.

Monterey Fire drive

Monterey firefighters are accepting new toys for their annual drive at all four stations: Station No. 1 at Pacific and Madison, Station No. 2 at 582 Hawthorne, Station No. 3 at 401 Dela Vina and Station No. 4 at 600 Pine Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Track collects toys

Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca is giving race tickets to people who donate toys to The Salvation Army. Anyone who brings a new, unwrapped toy for a child up to the age of 12 will receive a free Sunday ticket for the American Le Mans Series races on Sept. 18, 2011.

The toy drive runs through Dec. 13, and donors can bring their unwrapped toys to the souvenir store located in the paddock next to the Skip Barber Racing School classroom. To learn more about the track and the lineup for next year, visit www.mazdaraceway.com.

Cops' toy drives

The Crime Prevention Officers Association of Monterey County is holding its annual toy drive, too. The CPOAMC works with churches and community service agencies throughout Monterey County to identify children in need and wrap the new toys. Last year, the effort netted more than 1,400 gifts for needy kids.

Drop-off points on the Monterey Peninsula include CSUMB P.D. at 100 Campus Center in Seaside, Seaside P.D. at 400 Harcourt Ave., Pacific Grove P.D. at 580 Pine Ave., Presidio of Monterey P.D. in Building 4468 on Gigling Road, Sand City P.D. at 1 Sylvan Park, Carmel P.D. at Junipero and Fourth, the Monterey County Sheriff's Office at 1200 Aguajito Road in Monterey, Monterey P.D. at 351 Madison St., and Del Rey Oaks P.D. at 650 Canyon del Rey.

Free screening of award-winning film

THE TOP prize winner at the recent Blue Ocean Film Festival, "Bag It" will be screened Friday, Nov. 19, at the Golden State Theatre in Monterey.

According to the filmmakers, Americans throw away 60,000 plastic bags every five minutes. Among other related topics, the documentary asks where those bags go.

While the numbers are disturbing, perhaps the most graphic illustration of the problem is the existence of a floating "island" of debris in the North Pacific that is twice the size of the state of Texas. While the "island" contains a variety of waste, plastic bags and other plastic materials used in packaging are a significant component of it.

The film's creators were inspired to make the film after learning about a competition between the Colorado resort towns of Telluride and Aspen to see which one could achieve a greater reduction of plastic bags within its city limits.

While the movie is free, a suggested donation of $5 will benefit the Surfrider Foundation.

The film starts at 8 p.m. The theater is located at 417 Alvarado St. in Monterey.

“Everybody loved them,” McDonald recalled.

The Black Irish Band, meanwhile, was formed when co-founders Patrick Michael Karnahan and Richard Restivo met during the filming of the movie, “Back to the Future III,” in 1989. For the past 20 years, the band has performed a mix of folk music from around the world.

“They’ve played at First Night in Monterey,” McDonald noted. “We thought they were pretty good.”

Also performing at the concert will be bagpiper Michel d’Avenas, who will close the show with a rendition of “Amazing Grace.”

“He’s the best piper around,” suggested Xavier Maruyama, another event organizer. “He’s the one you hear playing at Spanish Bay at sunset.”

The concert starts at 7 p.m. Preceding the event will be a reception at Canterbury Woods, which begins at 6 p.m. Just before 7 p.m., d’Avenas will lead a procession to the Performing Arts Center while playing his bagpipe.

The Foundation for the Performing Arts in Pacific Grove will use the money it raises to help fund arts and music education for local students.

Tickets to the reception and the concert are $50. Tickets to the concert only are $20 for adults and $10 for children. Canterbury Woods is located at 651 Sinex Ave. The Performing Arts Center is located at 835 Forest Ave. For tickets or more information, call (831) 655-4814 or (831) 647-1988.

■ Two Kikis are better than one

The daughter of the late “Green Acres” star Buddy Ebsen, Kiki Ebsen performs Friday, Nov. 19, at Plaza Linda restaurant in Carmel Valley Village.

Local music promoter and singer-songwriter Kiki Wow is big fan of Ebsen’s.

“Kiki is by far one of my favorite singer-songwriters anywhere in the world,” Wow said. “I’m thrilled that my idol has the same name as me. She’s so colorful in her songwriting, with jazzy instrumentation and vocals that will go right through you.”

Ebsen has opened for pop acts like Christopher Cross, Peter Cetera, Emmylou Harris and Al Stewart, and she’s shared the stage with the pop group Wilson-Phillips as well.

Currently, Ebsen is working on her first recording of new music in five years, and Friday’s concert will offer her an opportunity to preview the disc. The recording will feature background vocals by the late Kenny Edwards, a singer-songwriter who performed recently at Plaza Linda. Edwards was one of the original Stone Poneys (the trio scored a huge hit with “Different Drum” in 1967) with Linda Ronstadt.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. There’s a $10 cover. Plaza Linda is located at 9 Del Fino Place. For more information, call (831) 659-4229.

HIDDEN VALLEY KICKS OFF AMBITIOUS 'BEST OF BEETHOVEN' SERIES

By CHRIS COUNTS

PLAGUED BY illness and nearly deaf, Ludwig van Beethoven saved his best for last.

Hidden Valley Theater pays tribute Sunday, Nov. 21, to a some of the composer's final — and greatest — works when it hosts the first installment of its ambitious new series, the Beethoven Project.

"Near the end of his life, Beethoven composed five string quartets," explained Peter Meckel, general director of the theater. "He was almost deaf by the time he finished, but he wanted to leave something for future generations."

He clearly succeeded in his final task. Considered some of Beethoven's finest works, his five "late quartets" have had a profound effect on subsequent generations of classical musicians.

"They've been inspirational for many composers," he said. "Many string quartets are derivative of these string quartets."

During the next three years, Hidden Valley Theater will present a total of six Beethoven Project events. The first five will each focus on a single "late quartet," while the sixth installment in the series will showcase older works that inspired Beethoven. Each of the first five events will also present a more contemporary piece of music that was influenced by Beethoven's later work.

Each event is really a mini-festival in its own right. In addition to offering a performance of each composition by the Hidden Valley String Quartet, each installment will also include a lecture and a dinner.

Sunday's event will begin at 3 p.m., when Scottish conductor Stewart Robertson presents a talk about Beethoven and his later compositions. Members of the string quartet will be on hand at the talk to offer demonstrations.

"Stewart is a brilliant musician, a gifted conductor and a very interesting presenter," Meckel observed.

At 5 p.m., wine and cheese will be served, which will be followed by dinner at 6. The feast, which will be prepared by Chef Andrea Winterfeldt-Lake, is served in Hidden Valley's dining hall.

"She's German, and she's quite familiar with German and Viennese food," Meckel said. "She will serve a dinner that very likely could have been served to Beethoven."

The Hidden Valley String Quartet — which features Roy Mallan and Jenny Bufano on violin, Darcy Rindt on viola and Vanessa Ruotolo on cello — begins its performance at 7:30 p.m. The quartet will offer renditions of Beethoven's String Quartet, Opus 127 in Eb Major, and Mendelssohn String Quartet #2 in A minor, Opus 13. Mendelssohn's work was included in the program because it was influenced by Beethoven's piece.

A second wine and cheese reception will follow the concert. "This is going to be really fun," Meckel added.

The cost for the lecture and the first wine and cheese reception is $50. Dinner is $50, and tickets to the evening's concert are $50 as well. The Hidden Valley Theater is located on Carmel Valley Road near the intersection with Ford Road. For more information, call (831) 659-3115 or visit www.hiddenvalleymusic.org.

GUNS

Calhoun told The Pine Cone he sympathizes with Knutson but said the officers were doing their job, and they did it well.

"Anytime you're on a search with an alarm and open doors, there is the possibility of a threat," he explained. "They're going to have their guns drawn, and if you walk in on them, you could be the recipient of that."

And he said Watkins and Mukai showed good judgment and self-restraint in their reaction to Knutson's presence.

"Just because you feel you're not a threat, the officers don't know that, and they want to go home safely to their families, too," he said. "The gentleman's concern was the initial officer lowered his weapon, but the other did not. That's the backup officer. His primary safety concern is for that other officer, so he's not going to be lowering his weapon until he's positive the other officer is safe. We don't want our officers to overreact, but at the same time, we want them to be cautious and careful."

Knutson said exactly what they did was overreact.

"For a local police department to come up with that kind of force and have zero cognitive abilities displayed between the both of them for a full minute is unconscionable," he said. "I can understand the first few seconds, but not having guns still on me after I have made it very clear I'm not a burglar."

Calhoun said Knutson's experience provides an opportunity for residents to learn an important lesson about law enforcement. If they arrive at a home or business and police are on the scene, they should stay outside and be as cooperative as possible.

"Even when the owner comes, we won't let them go in," he said, until after a thorough security check is completed.

More water mischief

FIVE YEARS ago, Monterey Peninsula voters overwhelmingly rejected a ballot measure to turn California American Water company into a public utility. They had good reasons for doing so, and it is useless to bring the subject up again. Nevertheless, the group which backed 2005's failed Measure W is trying to get it going again.

As we explained at the time, while private companies are far more efficient than the government, and can almost always deliver better quality goods and services at lower prices than government agencies could hope to do, there is nothing inherently wrong with a public water system. Many communities have them, and if the people of the Monterey Peninsula want to buy out Cal Am sometime in the future, they should go right ahead. But now, with the community's critical water shortage still unsolved, is the utterly wrong time even to talk about it. Everyone's energy and attention should be focused on getting a new water project online. Another takeover bid will just be a counterproductive distraction.

Furthermore, a grotesque misconception is being advanced by the backers of buying out Cal Am to try to justify the takeover. In their publicity materials, they blame Cal Am for the high price of water and for the water shortage itself. But Cal Am isn't to blame for either the high price of water or the fact that there's not enough of it. The government is.

Keep reading ....

Bush league

KION and KCBA newscasts, anchored by Marc Cota-Robles and Jasmine Viel, are doing their best to chip away at the big lead Dan Green and Erin Clark, on KSBW, have long had in the local news market. With flashy promos and segments like "Manhunt Monday," the upstart stations are showing some gumption.

But this week, KION and KCBA took a giant step backward when they broadcast a report about the local water supply that was so dumb it wouldn't even have been good enough for a high school TV show.

Reporter Candice Nguyen, apparently alerted by several viewers on the Monterey Peninsula about super-high water bills, set about to unearth the scandal behind those bills.

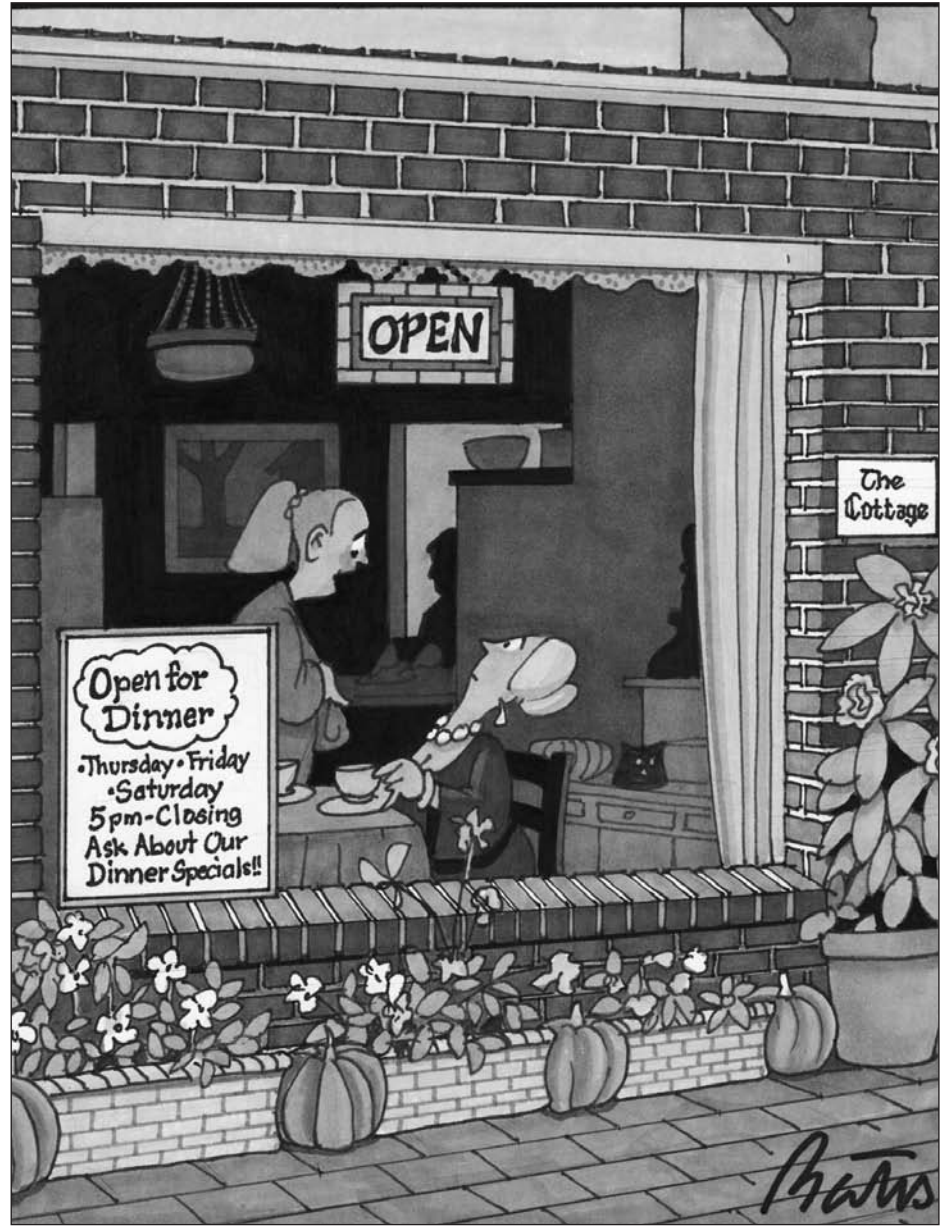

And, according to her report, this is what she found: Cal Am raised its prices to "punish" people for irrigating farmland, and also to pay for its "pricy projects," such as building a desal plant in Marina and removing San Clemente Dam.

Unfortunately for the hapless Ms. Nguyen, Cal Am has no ag customers. All the water the company supplies to the Monterey Peninsula goes to domestic and urban uses. Furthermore, the price of water isn't sky high to punish anybody; it's to encourage conservation. And those pricy projects? They're all things the government requires Cal Am to do in the name of protecting the environment.

Is there a scandal about local water bills? Yes. But the cameras should be pointed at the California Department of Fish and Game, the California Public Utilities Commission, the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife, the California Coastal Commission, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, etc., etc. Cal Am is just the vehicle these government agencies use to stick it to the people they're supposed to be serving.

And the media, instead of amateurishly reporting myths and superstitions about big bad corporations screwing their customers, should tell the truth about who is really wasting the people's money — namely, the government.

Letters to the Editor

Next time ...

Dear Editor,

After a lengthy hearing, and years of trying, September Ranch was approved Nov. 9 by a 3-2 vote of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors Potter and Parker voted against it, for which we commend them. As usual, supervisors who do not represent Carmel Valley residents outvoted them.

The key "keep it rural" anti-incorporation leaders, Lawrence Samuels and Bob Sinotte were both there speaking in favor of this 95-unit development. It has always been obvious to us that the "keep it rural" rhetoric from the "no" people, those who were against creating our own town, governing ourselves, and making decisions that would truly keep Carmel Valley protected from big development, was a slick campaign strategy used to confuse the voters. Which worked, but not by much.

Had we incorporated, this would not have been approved. How important 138 votes have become. 5,459 voters voted (out of about 7000+); 2,867 voted no; 2,592 voted yes. That means that if 138 no voters had voted yes, we would have our own town. Such a close vote. (Data from the county elections website.)

Next time, don't believe the rhetoric. Believe the people who consistently speak for protecting our rural character.

'Most talented designers'

Dear Editor,

For more than 15 years, I've happily worked for Thompson and Beau Lange, two of the most talented merchandisers and designers on our Peninsula. The Grove building in Pacific Grove is a stellar example of use complimenting beauty: A beautifully restored heritage building, full of artworks, and featuring a grand staircase welcoming you to a balcony with unique display shelves, an opera box and art galleries.

The opportunity to open a second store in Carmel in the Walter Burde bank building in Carmel at Seventh and Dolores was a good move; the rent was reasonable, for at any time the owner and his partners' ambitious design for rebuilding this structure could be approved by the city of Carmel. They envisioned a two-story with underground parking, apartments and shops — an ambitious project with maximum impact on the neighborhood and the lower business section of the city. Each time his building plans were defeated, our rent was raised. Even though the economy had flatlined.

I remember seeing the owner choosing the couches and chairs he would take in trade for rent the last few months we all worked hard to keep the store open and serve our customers. Perhaps if the owner and his partners had been more flexible with their building plans these last 10 years, they would be sitting more comfortably today.

POLICY

Attorney Jon Giffen, whose firm represented the city in the Miller case, told the council and the public his task was to "draft the policy broadly to prohibit all unlawful workplace harassment," in "plain, easy-to-understand language." The rules would require a victim or witness to report the harassment to one of several people but would not demand that the victim confront the harasser about the offensive behavior.

The policy would also forbid retaliation in any form, call for as much confidentiality as possible and require an immediate investigation of any allegations.

"We did change the existing policy rather radically," he said, to make it more formal and clear.

According to the draft, "Employees, applicants for employment, and others are to be free from harassment on the basis of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, handicap, physical or mental disability, medical condition, marital status, registered domestic partner status, sexual orientation, sex, pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions, age (40 or older), or for asserting family care leave rights, or for any other basis protected by law."

Harassment could be verbal, such as "suggestive, insulting or derogatory comments, epithets, innuendoes, sounds, jokes, teasing or slurs;" physical, including "assault, impeding or blocking movement ... touching, pinching, brushing with the body;" visual, such as "derogatory posters, pictures, suggestive objects, notices, bulletins, cartoons, letters, drawings or gestures;" or unwanted sexual advances, threats or demands to submit to sexual requests. In addition, offering employment benefits in exchange for sexual favors and threatening retaliation if the person resists would be forbidden.

Giffen suggested the city adopt a "zero-tolerance policy toward even a single instance of any such conduct which by itself or when repeated would constitute harassment."

At the Nov. 2 council meeting, resident James Emery said the policy would put too much emphasis on confidentiality, but city attorney Don Freeman said employees' privacy is protected by law, and the city can not reveal information about harassment investigations without the risk of litigation. The only exception would be if the accused opted to have a disciplinary hearing in public.

The policy also acknowledges workplace romances might develop: "A friendly interaction between two persons who are receptive to one another is not considered unwelcome or harassment. Employees are free to form social relationships of their own choosing."

But Emery said the policy should forbid any sort of sexual relationship between a superior and a subordinate, even if it's consensual.

"Like when I was a professor, it was absolutely prohibited to have any kind of a relationship with a student," he said.

Regardless of whether a victim directly confronts the harasser and demands an end to the offensive behavior, the person must immediately report it to a supervisor, the human resources officer or the city administrator, according to the policy.

The employee's allegations would have to be addressed in a timely and thorough manner, and anyone found guilty of harassment would be punished accordingly, up to suspension or termination.

Two pedestrians hit in crosswalk

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A 28-YEAR-OLD Australian woman struck two people with her Ford Focus Monday afternoon as they crossed Junipero Street, according to Carmel Police Sgt. Mel Mukai. The men — who were in the same crosswalk where a woman was hit by a car and killed three years ago — were taken to the hospital for treatment but were released later that evening.

"She had stopped at the westbound stop sign at Ocean and Junipero, and then began to turn left onto Junipero, heading southbound, and she did not see the pedestrians in the crosswalk," Mukai said of Jessica Mackay, who is vacationing in the area.

Monterey resident Jose Gutierrez, 30, and 39-year-old Seaside resident Eliazar Delao had been walking to their car, which was parked on Mountain View, after getting off of work at about 3:15 p.m. Nov. 15.

"She didn't see them at all," Mukai said. "The front end of the vehicle impacted with both pedestrians, and they rolled off the front."

Gutierrez' head cracked the windshield, and he suffered abrasions and complained of shoulder pain, according to Mukai. Delao reported pain in his left leg. Several witnesses dialed 911 as soon as the collision occurred, and some assisted police and medics by translating for the victims.

Mukai said Mackay could not explain why she hadn't seen the pedestrians. "She was not under the influence of any alcohol or drugs," he said, and she had not been using a cell phone, adjusting the radio or engaging in any of the many other activities known to distract drivers.

Mackay posted $292 bail on two counts of failure to yield to pedestrians in a crosswalk — an infraction under the California Vehicle Code.

The crash bore strong similarities to another daytime collision that occurred in the same intersection in October 2007, though the outcome was far different. In that incident, Salinas resident George Gamboa was turning his SUV left from westbound Ocean Avenue onto southbound Junipero Street when he failed to see Carmel resident Rebecca Tarumoto in the crosswalk on Junipero Street. She suffered serious injuries and was airlifted by CALSTAR helicopter to a trauma center, where she died 12 days later.

Carolyn Stanley Graham

Carolyn Stanley Graham passed away peacefully September 26th, 2010 at the age of 87. She was born December 14th, 1922 in Santa Monica, California.

Carolyn retired to Carmel, California in 1988. She became an active member in the Gentrain Society of MPC, her neighborhood association, and volunteered for the League of Women Voters. In later years, she was particularly attached to her many friends at the Unitarian Universalist Church of the Monterey Peninsula. As a member, Carolyn initiated the popular Circle Suppers, helped with the newsletter and was a participant in many of the church's activities.

Never at a loss for a good joke, Carolyn's good nature and optimism, mixed with a dash of her own brand of whimsy was an inspiration to her family and the countless friends she accumulated over the course of her adventurous life.

She was preceded in death by her husband of 34 years, Walter W. Graham of Gurnee, Illinois. She is survived by her sister Laura Shirley Atterbury, of Oceanside, daughters Seana Ann Graham of Santa Cruz, Stephanie Robin Graham of San Rafael, and Julie Graham Zeiden of Pacific Palisades, and her grandchildren Graham Evan Mann, Liam Daniel Zeiden, and Olivia Caroline Zeiden. Very special thanks to her devoted caregiver and friend, Gail Hannigan-Winfield.

Donations may be made to the Disabled American Veterans, or Jamal Place, Inc. in Chicago, IL.

Memorial service to be held at the Unitarian Universalist Church of the Monterey Peninsula at 1:00 p.m. on November 20th, 2010.

Thousands of monarchs visiting Pacific Grove

By KELLY NIX

TO THE delight of monarch butterfly enthusiasts, thousands of the insects have already migrated to Pacific Grove this fall, sparking hope that the numbers will continue to climb over the next couple of months.

As of Nov. 14, the number of butterflies at the Monarch Grove Sanctuary off Lighthouse Avenue was about 4,000, according to Jessica Griffiths, a graduate student at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo who coordinates monarch counting at the sanctuary.

In a Nov. 17 email message to docents, Griffiths noted that volunteers at the sanctuary counted between 3,957 and 4,315 monarchs. "It's interesting to see that there's not much variation between maximum and minimum," numbers of monarchs that were counted, Griffiths noted.

The monarch population this year is encouraging, especially since last year at Thanksgiving, butterfly counters in Pacific Grove found fewer than 800 of the insects.

The greater numbers of monarchs this fall is good news to Griffiths and enthusiast Bob Pacelli, who brought in more than 20 boxed eucalyptus trees to the sanctuary in hopes the butterflies would cling to them.

"The [box] trees worked better than I dreamed," Pacelli told The Pine Cone.

Pacelli had the trees brought in after he and others attributed the sharp decline in monarchs in the city last year to a bad pruning job by a tree crew that left nine eucalyptus trees almost bare and undesirable.

The boxed trees — planted around the existing trees in the grove — also create an important wind break for the insects.

This month, the numbers of Monarchs nearly doubled between Nov. 8 and Nov. 14.

The butterfly counters found more than twice the number of monarchs in Pacific Grove than in an area in Big Sur where monarchs are also counted, according to a survey Pacelli provided to The Pine Cone.

The Pacific Grove City Council decided Oct. 29 to hold off on an eight-year program of tagging monarch butterflies for fear handling the insects could disrupt the population of the butterflies.

Tagging monarchs requires holding the butterflies and placing a small round sticker or tag on a wing. There are numbers on the tag identifying the butterfly as having been tagged in Pacific Grove, which helps researchers track their migration patterns.

But the council decided to continue with the counting program, which does not require handling of the insects.

When visiting the sanctuary, keep in mind that the butterflies scatter during the day to eat. Early morning and dusk are the best times to see them.

If you stop by Pacific Grove's monarch butterfly sanctuary in the early morning or late afternoon you'll see a lot more butterflies than you would have last year, sanctuary volunteers say.

P.A. system on his vehicle to warn people on the beach to stay away from the waves, as the sea was rough and dangerous, McMenemy said. Some heard him and moved up onto the sand, but a group farther down the beach continued to play near the water.

"He was going to walk down there and make personal contact with them, and as he was driving, he saw a wave crash on the beach and pull someone into the water," he said.

Flipping on the lights and sirens, Landry sped the short distance remaining to the parking lot, grabbed his fins and, not taking the time to don his wetsuit, ran to the water wearing only his shorts.

"We're talking seconds," McMenemy said. "And by the time he got there, there were between five and six people in the water. They went in after the kid."

That made a dangerous situation even more chaotic. Fortunately, most of them got out of the water on their own, so Landry could focus on the boy, whose 8-year-old twin sister was safely on the beach.

"He dove right in and went and got the child," McMenemy said, since he was most urgently in need of rescuing.

"Three other people got out, but one woman was still in the water in the surf, getting tumbled between the surf and sand, and he went in and got her out, as well."

In the meantime, Monterey County Sheriff's deputies, state parks rangers, Cal Fire and Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance had also arrived to help assess and treat victims and keep order on the beach. McMenemy said everyone else who had been in the water refused additional medical help, but CRFA took the boy to the hospital for evaluation as a precautionary measure.

"He was very glad to see Erik," McMenemy said of the little boy. "The family was very grateful and said, 'Thank you,' many times."

When he's not at work rescuing people from the surf, California State Parks lifeguard Erik Landry catches big waves.

dows set a bad precedent and are irrelevant.

"Simply pointing out that there are windows elsewhere that would be inconsistent with our guidelines doesn't seem to be an argument for approving them," he said.

But councilwoman Karen Sharp and Mayor Sue McCloud said the windows would be acceptable, and the council voted 2-1 to overturn the planning commission's denial and grant Moresco's appeal. (Council members Paula Hazdovac and Ken Talmage recused themselves because they have property nearby.)

BIG SUR DINNER AND RUN RAISE MORE THAN $17,000 FOR INJURED WOMAN

By CHRIS COUNTS

A FUNDRAISING dinner Wednesday night at the Big Sur River Inn raised more than $13,000 for the medical expenses of local fine art photographer and gallery owner Rachael Short, who was critically injured Nov. 1 in an automobile accident.

"We had a huge turnout," reported Janet Lesniak, general manager of the River Inn. "It was a fabulous Big Sur scene of love and healing."

Donations were still trickling in Thursday, reported Jennifer Guzowski, the River Inn's controller.

"It was standing room only," Guzowski said. "We served over 300 dinners. The support for Rachael was overwhelming. I saw a lot of familiar faces and many I didn't know. I was amazed."

While the crowd feasted on spaghetti and meatballs, Paige Too played music. Meanwhile, Short's mother provided friends and family with an update on her daughter, who is being treated at Santa Clara Valley Medical Center. "She told everybody how positive Rachael's spirit has been and how her sense of humor has continued," Guzowski said.

Another $3,800 was raised for Short's medical expenses last Saturday when Guzowski; her husband, Ted; and her co-worker, Selena Perez, participated in the Big Sur Half Marathon. The trio took pledges before the race and collected far more money than they expected.

"I was dreaming we might raise $500," she conceded. "I was blown away."

Guzowski said pledges came from as far away as Hawaii and England.

"People who had no idea who Rachael was pledged money," she added. "It was a really beautiful experience."

A 2000 graduate of Carmel High School, Short grew up in Carmel Valley but was living in Big Sur at the time of the accident. She is co-owner of Gallery Exposed in Carmel.

Short's family is asking that all correspondence to her be sent to derric@adventurepop.com. Contributions toward her medical expenses can be sent in her name to P.O. Box 161, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Give thanks for not getting a ticket

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL POLICE, California Highway Patrol officers and cops from other law-enforcement agencies will blanket Carmel-by-the-Sea and the surrounding area Wednesday morning in a major effort to enforce traffic laws. The citation campaign is part of the roving Monterey Regional Strategic Traffic Operations and Prevention Program, in which police from different departments team up to ensure drivers are following the rules — and bust them if they aren't.

On Wednesday, Nov. 24, from 7 a.m. to noon, they will be out in force all over Carmel, according to CPD Cpl. Steve Rana, who handles traffic enforcement in Carmel and Pacific Grove.

"There will probably be about eight officers cruising the city and the outskirts," he said.

They'll be looking for people who are speeding, drivers using cell phones and those not wearing seat belts, to name a few possible violations.

And officers know how to find them, Rana pointed out, including motorists who employ what he calls the "slice-of-pizza approach" to cell-phone use.

"They're holding it in their hand like it's a slice of pizza and talking to the speaker phone," he said. "And that is not hands free."

Rana also warned people who think they're being sneaky by keeping their phones in their laps to send text messages while at stop lights or stuck in traffic.

"They do the head bob: look down, look up, look down, look up," he said. "That's the telltale sign we are looking for. They are text messaging."

The bowing couple still resides in the inner courtyard of the El Paso building. Earl Graff hired Jo to help with the decorative elements in his shop, the Carmel Dairy, on the corner of Ocean and Mission. The humorous murals that Mora painted left fond memories for those who saw them. His later work for Graft included the shops menus, souvenir calendars, Milk bottle decorations and some of the dairy's Christmas card designs. One last reminder of Mora's work there is the exterior light sconce, with two cows, on the corner building.

Arrived on scene to find a boiler motor which had burned, putting out an odor which was detected in Unit 5. This is what prompted the call to 911. Cypress Fire was asked to cover the city, and Carmel Valley Fire staged at Lincoln and Eighth. Firefighters conducted primary and secondary searches for possible extension and other fire problems. The power to the boiler was shut off and confirmed by a representative of the complex. There had been electrical-issue concerns by tenants about two weeks earlier. Maintenance person was contacted and was to tend to repairs the following day.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance dispatched to Junipero and First to assist police. Arrived on scene to find a 66-year-old male intoxicated and in custody of police. ## Coldwell Banker Del Monte kicks off annual toy drive

IN PARTNERSHIP with the United States Marine Corps Reserve, Coldwell Banker Del Monte Realty has launched its 24th annual Toys for Tots campaign. Fifty Northern California Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage offices, including Carmel, Carmel Rancho, Pebble Beach and Pacific Grove, will serve as official collection centers for new, unwrapped toys until Dec. 17.

Founded in 1947, Toys for Tots has evolved from a small, Los Angeles-area project to a nationwide campaign. Over the past 63 years, Marines have distributed more than 400 million toys to some 188 million needy children across the nation.

“Toys for Tots is a wonderful highlight of the holiday season,” said Rita Lewis, vice president and managing broker of CBDMR. “Each year our agents and staff spend weeks collecting toy donations from their clients, knowing they will bring smiles to the faces of needy children. At a time when so many in our communities are struggling, it is a gift to be able to bring such happiness to those who are going without this holiday season.”

Members of the Marine Corps Reserve will pick up the toys from each Coldwell Banker Del Monte Realty collection center and deliver them to charitable organizations and social welfare agencies in the area just in time for the holidays.

Individuals interested in donating to the Toys for Tots program can do so at the following locations:

- Junipero near Fifth, Carmel-by-the-Sea, (831) 626-2221.
- 3775 Via Nona Marie, at the mouth of Carmel Valley, (831) 626-2222.
- 501 Lighthouse Avenue, Pacific Grove, (831) 626-2226.
- 17 Mile Drive at Palmero, Pebble Beach, (831) 626-2223.
