Big Sur River becomes latest steelhead battleground

By CHRIS COUNTS

IS EL Sur Ranch harming the Big Sur River by pumping too much water from two wells at Andrew Molera State Park?

That's what two state agencies and a fishermen's group claim as they oppose a permit for the ranch to continue pumping from the wells, which its owners have done since 1949.

The State Water Resources Control Board will conduct a hearing March 8 to consider an application by the ranch to pump an average of 1,200 acre-feet per year from the river over a 20-year period.

The California Department of Parks and Recreation, the California Department of Fish and Game, and the California Sportfishing Protection Alliance filed protests against the proposal, insisting that the pumping is reducing flows in the Water district asks public to save its $$$

By KELLY NIX

FACED WITH the possibility its budget could be slashed by almost half — a blow that would force sweeping reductions in programs and layoffs of about one-third of its workers — the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is appealing to its constituents for help.

On Dec. 21, 2010, a judge with the California Public Utilities Commission rejected an application by California American Water to recover an 8.325 percent user fee it had tacked onto customers' water bills. The fee — which Cal Am

THE STATE agency that led the charge for a regional water project for the Monterey Peninsula is challenging a decision by another agency that would allow it to go forward.

The Department of Ratepayer Advocates on Monday filed a motion with the Public Utilities Commission compelling the PUC to reconsider a decision it made last month approving a plan that would offer a drought-free water supply for the Peninsula.

PUC commissioners voted Dec. 2, 2010, to issue California American Water a permit for the estimated $300-

Council surprised to find raise in firefighters' contract

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER DISCOVERING a provision that would give the city's firefighters an 8.75 percent raise retroactive to the beginning of last year, the Carmel City Council decided Tuesday not to vote on changes to the firefighters' contract, which expired at the end of the 2010.

Council members were also concerned that changes to the contract favored a fire merger with Monterey, instead of leaving the door open to other options.

The proposal — presented to the council by city administrator Rich Guillen after negotiations with the firefighters' union — was to extend the contract while council members debate options for running Carmel Fire Department, including a takeover by the City of Monterey or contracting with a state agency, Cal Fire. But the retroactive raise, which would be triggered if the city didn't approve a merger by March 31, drew criticism from council members.

"It looks like a contract extension, and then when you get into it, it looks more like a renegotiation," observed councilman Ken Talmage, who removed the item from the consent agenda at the Jan. 4 meeting in order to raise his concerns.

According to their old contract, firefighters were due an 8.75 percent raise as of Jan. 1, but the amended contract presented to the council included a provision that would grant the raise a year earlier, "if no merger of fire-related services, or Joint Powers Authority for fire-related services, or any

BIG SUR DRIVER WHO FLED ARRESTED IN RENO

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MARK HUDSON — the 50-year-old Big Sur man accused of drunken driving in the accident that killed 17-year-old Rachel Love Wiesjahn in August 2008 — was booked into Monterey County Jail Wednesday morning after being transported from Reno, Nev., where police discovered there was an outstanding warrant for his arrest.

When police contacted Hudson in Reno, reportedly for his involvement in a traffic collision, officers discovered Monterey County Superior Court Judge Terrance Duncan had issued a bench warrant for him last month after he failed to show up in court for a hearing. Duncan had ordered Hudson to court because he allegedly violated the terms of his $500,000 bail by driving drunk on Oct. 13, 2010, in a city near Sacramento, but his attorney, Larry Biegel, showed up without him.

"There are a lot of unanswered questions here," said Monterey County deputy district attorney Doug

Miller takes office as new county sheriff

By MARY BROWNFIELD

Jane Miller pins the Monterey County Sheriff's badge on her husband, Scott Miller, at his swearing-in Monday.

HE TOOK the oath of office last Thursday and became Monterey County Sheriff at 12:01 a.m. New Year's Eve.

But Scott Miller was also ceremonially sworn in Monday in the board of supervisors chambers in front of a standing-room-only crowd of friends, family, supporters, sheriff's office employees and representatives from numerous other law-enforcement agencies throughout the county.

After joking a bit and describing the challenges of running a countywide campaign out of his home, Miller said he told the audience the election is past, and "now it's time to focus on providing the best law enforcement services to Monterey County, which is a big goal — a multifaceted goal."

Miller said he'd been working 12-hour days with people at the sheriff's office since early December. He prepared for the transition by getting to know his new employees, reacquainting himself with those he knew from his long law-enforcement career in Salinas and Pacific Grove, and learning the ropes of the large agency, so he would be ready to take over when out-

Suspect in Mucky Duck shooting eludes police

A MAN was found dead, a house caught fire and no arrests were made Wednesday during a coordinated raid on two Greenfield homes in connection with the New Year's shooting in front of a Monterey bar that sent three men to the hospital. The prime suspect, 23-year-old Greenfield resident Alejandro Gonzalez, is wanted on three counts of attempted murder and is still at large.

Best of Sandy Claws

CHARLIE PHILLIPS, a Carmel-by-the-Sea golden retriever, had parents who were both show dogs. But he hasn't let that go to his head. He's just like any other playful, smiling 2-year-old who likes to come to Carmel Beach five days a week.

Dad Paul or Mom Linda walks with him to the beach from their home, Charlie pulling at his leash all the way, looking out for small dogs with whom he can strike up an acquaintance.

In fact, one of his best friends is a little 3-year-old shitzu named Louie who lives in Lodi. Louie from Lodi is Charlie's cousin, because he's Mom Linda's brother's dog. Another good friend is Joey, a German shepherd mix, who lives across the street from Charlie. They often take walks and play together.

But Charlie's not lacking for company at home.

He has two sisters: Seventeen-year-old Ali, a senior at Notre Dame High School in Salinas, and Halie, 14, a student at Carmel Middle School.

Dad Paul said Charlie retrieves everything in the house, bringing all manner of things to him and Mom — even purloining items from his sisters' backpacks to present as gifts. Dad thinks the tattoo on Charlie's tongue is from an indelible pen he swiped from their belongings.

At night, Charlie sleeps protectively outside his sisters' rooms, then at dawn crawls in with Halie, who has the bigger bed.

To keep his coat nice and shiny, Mom puts a little fish oil on Charlie's kibble, and gives him a spoonful of his all-time fave, cottage cheese with pineapple, too. It doesn't do anything for his coat, but it certainly tastes good.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Presented by Lois Lagier, D.D.S.

RESOLUTIONS!

What is your New Year's resolution? Is it to lose weight, eat healthier, go on a diet? All these add up to one basic theme- be healthy.

It is important to be aware of the link between oral health and general health. Poor oral health can be linked to cardio vascular disease, stroke, kidney disease, diabetes, low birth weight babies and preterm births, not to mention the misfortune of losing perfectly healthy teeth. On the other hand, a healthy mouth can pay big health benefits.

Resolve to develop good oral health habits every day: Make an appointment with your Dentist today for a thorough examination, buy a new tooth brush (change it out every three months), floss daily, brush after every meal or at least twice a day, stop using tobacco products, and eat a healthy diet.

Oral health is important for appearance, speech and ability to chew food as well for good breath. Make this the year you take control of your oral health and your general health. Happy New Year!

The dental team of Dr. Lois Lagier is dedicated to providing you with state-of-the-art dental care in a comfortable atmosphere. Let us care for you!

McCall named to CHP's foundation board

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL VALLEY car guy Gordon McCall — who expertly prepped show cars in his shop at the Monterey Airport for years before embarking on other ventures, including finding rare vehicles for some of the world's top auction houses — has been selected for the board of the California Highway Patrol's 11-99 Foundation. Founded three decades ago, the nonprofit gets its name from the CHP radio code for "officer needs assistance," and it benefits officers and their families in times of crisis.

A longtime supporter of the foundation, McCall also helped create the very successful Quail Motorsports Gathering and its younger sister event, the Quail Motorcycle Gathering. The party he stages with his wife, Molly, at the Monterey Jet Center each August helps raise funds for the foundation.

"I'm really humbled that they saw anything in me, that they would want me involved," said McCall, whose charisma and high energy level might at least partially explain the foundation's decision.

"The active board is about six people, and the idea is to raise awareness," he said. "Molly and I have enjoyed raising funds for the foundation but want to go beyond that."

McCall said he hopes to spread the word about the good the foundation accomplishes and address some of the "myths," like that it grants members immunity when it comes to obeying traffic laws.

CHP Commissioner Joe Farrow issued an agency-wide notice ordering officers to not give preferential treatment to supporters and the nonprofit stopped issuing its "Member 11-99 Foundation" license-plate frames in January 2009, after the L.A. Times detailed incidents of favoritism and reported the frames were selling on eBay and Craigslist, but the reputation persists.

"I'm going to try to squash that, but it's a difficult thing," McCall said.

He will also focus on touting the help the organization has provided to families of officers wounded or killed in the line of duty, including its remarkable ability to act quickly.

"A $25,000 check goes to a family of an officer within 24 hours," he said. "The fund has established itself over the years. And it's not just catastrophic loss — they're putting kids through college."

During a two-month period last year, the CHP lost five officers, according to McCall "And who's there on the doorstep offering not just immediate financial assistance, but to console?" he asked. "It's daily life for those people — they go to work with that on their minds."

McCall and his wife were invited to attend a recent graduation at the CHP Academy in Sacramento.

"My visit to the academy just blew me away," he said of the 500-acre facility, which he likened to the FBI's training grounds in Quantico, Va.

There, they were hosted by Farrow, a Pacific Grove High School alumnus who used to work as a Pebble Beach gate guard — and on whom McCall has some dirt: When the two were teenagers, they raced their cars through Del Monte Forest together.

"It means absolutely nothing, other than that it's really funny," he said. "We called him Joey. Of course, he corrected me very quickly," during their recent reunion.

consolidation of fire-related services with the City of Monterey/Pacific Grove is completed by March 31, 2011."

Talmage objected to the exclusive reference to Monterey and said the former contract referred not just to that department — with which Carmel firefighters want to merge — but to "any other agencies."

Councilman Jason Burnett agreed that was a concern and produced a copy of the contract with the union amended a year ago that read, "A salary adjustment of 8.75 percent will be applied to salaries effective Dec. 31, 2010, [if no] merger of fire-related services with any agency, or JPA for fire-related services, or any consolidation of fire-related services with the City of Monterey or any other agency(ies), is completed by Dec. 31, 2010."

Therefore, he said, a straight extension should have simply amended the last date to reflect a new expiration on March 31, and not limited the city's option to Monterey.

"The staff report wasn't clear about these changes, and I had to discover them by going back and reading the previous contract language," he said after the meeting. "I'm not inherently opposed to a substantive change, but it sure should have been flagged for the council's consideration and should not have been on the consent agenda."

Guillen said the Jan. 1, 2010, date was an error but that he needed to confer with the union before any changes could be made. so the council did not vote on the contract.

Foundation commits to paying salaries at city libraries

By MARY BROWNFIELD

IN ORDER to protect Harrison Memorial Library from 10 percent annual cost cuts — which would lead to layoffs and reduced operating hours — the nonprofit Carmel Public Library Foundation told the city council Tuesday it will raise money to help employees there keep their jobs. Council members unanimously voted to enter a five-year joint strategic plan with the library's board of trustees and the CPLF that will generate up to $100,000 in addition to the funds the nonprofit already provides for programs and services.

The idea grew from a temporary agreement between the city, the library board and the CPLF that began a few years ago. Each year, city administrator Rich Guillen asks every department to cut 10 percent from its budget, but since the city only pays for library staff, while the CPLF and the Friends of Harrison Memorial Library pay for materials and programs, "when you do that to the library, you're talking staffing, because there's nowhere else to cut," Guillen told the council Jan. 4. To avoid layoffs, the CPLF and the board of trustees offered to cover two-thirds of the 10 percent, if the city would make up the rest.

According to the new plan presented by library director Janet Cabbage, "the Carmel Public Library Foundation will incrementally assume the city's costs, up to $100,000, for part-time library staffing," which would preserve the library's hours and services while costing the city less.

In return, the city must continue funding eight full-time positions "that are critical to running the library," and can only make a 10 percent budget cut once during the life of the five-year plan, if absolutely necessary. Cutting jobs and hours, she said, could negatively affect the CPLF's ability to raise money.

The CPLF contributed $27,000 to help pay part-timers this fiscal year, with the library board and the city matching those funds. Next year, it will provide $60,000. In 2012/2013, the CPLF's contribution will increase to $90,000, followed by $100,000 in 2013/2014 and $100,000 in 2014/2015, according to the plan. That money will be on top of the $280,000 the foundation already gives to the library for programs and services every year.

"The success of the plan depends upon the Carmel Public Library Foundation's ability to increase contributions from the citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea and outlying communities," the proposal reads. "The plan will necessitate CPLF raising enough money to continue current funding levels for library programs and services in addition to funding library staff."

"We really think we can do this," said CPLF board president Peter Mollman, who also represented the HML board at the hearing. "We think we can step up to the plate and increase that funding."

He said the foundation has received generous contributions toward its endowment and has an "incredibly talented" finance committee that manages its money well.

"We're confident that the people love the library," he said. "We're letting people know they can continue their love of the library and help support it by funding the foundation."

'A slippery slope'

But Carolyn Hardy, past president of the foundation board and a major donor, was not pleased.

"This arrangement allows you to abrogate your responsibility of providing employees for the library," she said, worrying that the focus on funding jobs would hurt the foundation's ability to raise money for materials and programs.

"But if these people think they can raise both, then more power to them," she said. "It's a slippery slope, and I would imagine someday they will be paying for all the employees."

She doubted the CPLF's ability to raise the money but wished the group well.

"When you talk about various decisions, there's always this business of unintended consequence," Mollman responded. "And if we make a decision not to do this, we don't have an unintended consequence, we have an intended consequence — the library will not be open the same number of hours — and we don't want that to happen."

Councilman Ken Talmage said the city should support the plan, especially as other libraries are threatened by lack of public funds. During the life of the plan, the CPLF will contribute almost $1.8 million to the library.

"That's the public-private partnership that allows Carmel to have a leading regional library that it wouldn't have just being funded from the city budget," he said. "It's an outstanding, extraordinary act of generosity."

Councilman Jason Burnett said it's important for the city to commit to its end of the bargain, so "this is not a slippery slope where the more the foundation gives, the less the city will give." He said CPLF contributors want to support the library, not the city.

The council unanimously voted to enter the five-year strategic plan with the CPLF and the board, and Mollman said he would return with a final version at a future meeting.

Pebble Beach owners, employees, give big to United Way

By KELLY NIX

WHEN IT came time for the Pebble Beach Co. and its employees to give back to the community during the 2010 holiday season, they went all out.

During the P.B. Co.'s annual campaign to raise money for the United Way last fall, workers in just two months raised $92,000, a sum that was matched by the company.

The amount — $184,000 — represents the largest ever raised for United Way by a Monterey Peninsula business.

"It's phenomenal," said Mary Adams, president and CEO of United Way Monterey County.

Pebble Beach employee Margo Daniels, who helped organized numerous meetings with her fellow workers to inform them of the benefits of donating to the United Way, said 72 percent of the the company's employees donated. The goal was 70 percent.

"This is the biggest year we have had," said Daniels, who has been chair of the United Way fundraising campaign for the P.B. Co. for seven years.

To help motivate workers to give back, Daniels explained to employees their monetary donations stay in the community and are used for local services.

Even those workers who are not high on the salary payscale helped out, she said.

"The housekeeping departments at the Inn at Spanish Bay and The Lodge were 100 percent," Daniels explained.

Pebble Beach Co. CEO Bill Perocchi said a good portion of the company's 1,400 employees regularly volunteer, donate to the Boys & Girls Clubs of Monterey County or give cash to charity.

And during the 2010 fall fundraising campaign, workers exceeded expectations.

"We keep raising the bar, and our employees keep stepping up to the plate," Perocchi told The Pine Cone Tuesday. "It's a great accomplishment and one we are really proud of."

Next year, the P.B. Co. will likely aim even higher for its fundraising goal.

"We will probably have to shoot for $100,000 next year," Perocchi said.

Overall, in 2010, the company raised about $350,000 for the United Way through its annual employee campaign and from the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance, he said.

Adams said Monterey County ranks the second highest of all United Ways in California for per-capita giving.

Padres win opener as Muegge pours in 31

By CHRIS COUNTS

NEARLY OUTSCORING the entire King City roster by herself, Jule Muegge scored 31 points to lead to the Carmel High girls basketball team to a 57-36 win at home in its first league game of the season. The Padres (8-2) won their seventh straight overall.

Muegge, who sank 10 of 20 shots, also played stellar defense, recording five steals. After 10 games, the sharp-shooting senior is averaging 19.5 points a game, the top mark among all Monterey Bay girls basketball players.

Sarah Anderson added 17 points, recorded five assists and drilled four of seven 3-pointers, while Abby Farrell grabbed 10 rebounds.

Outscoring King City 18-9 in the first quarter, Carmel High took control of the game early. Going into Friday's home game against Stevenson School, which starts at 6:30 p.m., the Padres own an 8-2 overall record.

In their final tune-up before Wednesday's league opener, the Carmel High girls scratched out a 41-37 victory last Thursday over Strathmore Union High at home.

Although the Padres sank only 10 out of 40 baskets, the team controlled the boards by grabbing 44 misses, including 10 by Farrell, nine by Mackenzie Dooner and seven each for Anderson and Muegge.

The Strathmore offense sputtered in the second half, no doubt stymied by Emma Fuzie's four blocked shots. "She played great defense down the stretch," coach Jeff Nakamura said.

Sealing the win for the Padres were two shots from beyond the arch by Kaylee Vandenberg — the only two shots she took all night. "The two huge 3-pointers in the second half gave us the momentum," Nakamura explained.

Anderson drained three of nine 3-pointers to aid Carmel High. She finished with a team-high 13 points.

Two days earlier, Carmel High was paced by a dominating performance from Muegge, outlasting visiting Burlingame 46-39.

"Jule had a huge game on both ends of the floor," Nakamura said. "We made a great comeback."

Muegge — who was named tournament MVP at the Lady Cougar Classic in Felton three weeks ago — scored 23 points, grabbed five rebounds and made four steals.

The box score shows the Padres won the game at the free throw line. Burlingame repeatedly sent Muegge to the charity stripe, where she showed off her shooting touch by sinking 15 of 16 foul shots.

Anderson added another 11 points for CHS, making three shots from behind the arc. Dooner, meanwhile, hauled down 13 rebounds and rejected a pair of Burlingame shots.

CHOMP series helps cancer patients cope

By KELLY NIX

BEING DIAGNOSED with cancer can wreak havoc on many aspects of a person's life. A series hosted by Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, however, hopes to help people with cancer live a little easier.

Starting Jan. 12, CHOMP will begin a free eight-week series called Cancer Journey, which will offer "simple, practical tools to use during diagnosis, treatment and recovery."

"The overall goal is to teach people skills for coping with cancer," according to Joy Smith, nurse educator for the hospital's cancer program. "I often tell my patients, for some people [cancer] is life-threatening, but for everybody it's life-changing."

Subjects covered in Cancer Journey, which continues until March 2, include cancer basics such as quality of life decisions, herbs and supplements, and spirituality.

The sessions are led by experts including doctors, therapists and a holistic pharmacist consultant, according to CHOMP.

"We feel that the doctors provide great medical care," Smith said. "But emotional, mental and spiritual things are often under addressed."

The sessions, which are held by CHOMP several times a year, allow cancer patients to share experiences with others who are struggling with the illness. Family members of those with cancer may also attend.

CHOMP spokeswoman Brenda Moore said in 2009, the hospital treated more than 700 patients with cancer.

Of those cases, 150 people were treated for breast cancer, 67 for lung cancer, 56 for prostate cancer, 44 for non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and 35 for colon cancer. Other types of cancer such as bladder and pancreatic cancer amounted for remainder of those treated.

Statistics also show that 152 of the patients resided in Monterey, 146 in the Carmel area, 77 in Seaside, 71 in Pacific Grove, and 68 in Salinas. The remainder resided in other cities throughout the county.

Besides medical care, CHOMP's Cancer Center also offers programs and services, information about support groups, a library and educational materials.

Cancer Journey is Wednesdays from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Cancer Center classroom at CHOMP, 23625 Holman Highway in Monterey. Participants may attend all sessions or join at any time.

For a complete schedule, go to www.chomp.org. To register or for more information, call the Comprehensive Cancer Center at (831) 625-4753.

The Art of
CARPETING & DECOR

with Dan Jones

LAMINATES TAKE THE FLOOR

One reason that wood flooring has become such a popular option for kitchens, baths, and other high-traffic areas is that laminate flooring combines the look of solid wood flooring with the durability of tile. Laminate flooring is constructed of layers of dense fiberboard, wood laminate, and a clear protective layer that resists scratches and dents. Because it has to be neither nailed nor glued to the sub-surface, laminate flooring is termed to be a "floating" floor. This makes it ideal for installation over concrete and other "problem" sub-surfaces. It is also remarkably stable. It will not shrink or warp with changes in temperature and humidity. No wonder laminate flooring is fast becoming the clear choice of homeowners.

We know that people are sometimes too busy with their families and work demands to keep up with the latest materials, trends, and styles in vogue today. That's why they choose to work with an experienced professional. CARPETS & FLOORS, INC. is dedicated to meeting your individual needs when you're looking for the latest in flooring fashions. For the products that will please you, the atmosphere that will delight you, and the results you will be happy to live with, visit soon! We accept MasterCard, Visa, and Amex.

HINT: Laminate floors are also very easy to maintain, requiring no refinishing.

Dan Jones is the President of Carpets & Floors, Inc., located at 471 Lighthouse Ave. (between Drake and McClellan) here in Monterey. Ph: 372-2300.

plus million project, which includes a desalination plant in Marina. But an attorney for the DRA — a wing of the PUC — filed a 33-page motion Jan. 3 to have the decision reheard on several grounds.

For one, the December PUC decision “unlawfully” shifts authority to set water rates from PUC commissioners to the regional project’s operators, Marina Coast Water District and the Monterey County Water Resources Agency.

“The [PUC] unlawfully relies upon ... the public agencies, over which it has no jurisdiction, to assure that the costs of the regional project are reasonable and prudent,” according to the document, signed by attorney Monica McCrary.

Though the regional water project agreement signed off by the PUC states the state agency “will have an opportunity to review” the project’s financing plan, the DRA says there is no provision in the document that requires the project’s backers to submit the plan to the PUC for review.

That could allow customers’ rates to get out of hand because there would be no state oversight, the DRA contends.

“If Cal Am files a financing plan that triples Cal Am’s revenue requirement,” McCrary wrote, “the [PUC] could do nothing because it has already deemed the project reasonable under any financing scenario.”

The DRA also argues the PUC decision contains numerous factual errors in the project’s costs estimates.

For instance, though project backers say it would produce water for about $6,300 per acre-foot (about 326,000 gallons), the DRA challenges the basis for the costs, saying each acre-foot could cost more than $10,000.

And the DRA takes issue with the amount of decision-making the PUC afforded Monterey Peninsula cities.

While a representative from the cities will be able to advise on the water project’s management and rates, cities don’t have a “meaningful role” because they won’t have a voting seat on the project’s board, according to the DRA.

“The public processes do not provide Cal Am ratepayers with adequate protection from unreasonable costs,” according to the DRA.

McCrary told The Pine Cone the PUC will either grant or deny the request by the DRA for a rehearing.

“Most likely the decision will not be issued for months,” McCrary wrote in an email.

Although it’s opposed to the plan now, the DRA was the agency that began the discussion about the possibility of a regional water project. The DRA hired a University of California Santa Cruz professor to lead a series of public meetings that began in January 2007 and ended in the fall of 2009 when the DRA stopped funding the process.

Since then, the DRA has been outspoken against the project’s costs, which it believes to be excessive.

Meanwhile, a Cal Am spokeswoman defended the PUC’s December decision to approve the project, saying it represented “a fair and beneficial outcome for all.”

“We support the PUC’s decision and are confident it will stand,” Catherine Bowie told The Pine Cone. “The commission made their ruling after weighing all the evidence presented in an exhaustive process, which included ample opportunity for public input.”

Another California agency, the State Water Resources Control Board, required the Monterey Peninsula to develop a water supply aside from the Carmel River, which is home to steelhead fish and red-legged frog populations.

In October 2009, the SWCRB issued Cal Am a cease and desist order, which calls for a drastic rampdown in pumping from the river until 2016. If Cal Am violates the order, the SWCRB will impose massive fines that will be passed on to Peninsula water customers.

Former Monterey Peninsula Water Management District director Ron Chesshire said the DRA’s decision to challenge the PUC highlights the infighting among state agencies that has been a hurdle in securing a water supply project for the Peninsula.

“The DRA has and is continuing to cost our community stability, time and a considerable amount of money,” Chesshire said. “Their opposition to the [regional water project] ... is costing us dearly.”

With Kanalakis, undersheriff Nancy Cuffney and two of Kanalakis’ chief deputies, Steve Deering and Ray McLaughlin, also retired.

Miller replaced the outgoing executive management team with three upper-level managers: Capt. Chuck Monarque as interim chief deputy overseeing operations and patrol, Cmdr. Jeff Budd as interim chief deputy of corrections, and former assistant county administrative officer Jim Colangelo as acting business manager.

At the official swearing-in ceremony Jan. 3, Miller’s wife, Jane, pinned his badge for him. (Pine Cone readers know Jane Miller as the city’s former human resources manager who successfully sued Carmel for sexual harassment and received a $600,000 settlement last summer.)

“It was pretty exciting and was really nice for my family,” Miller said of the ceremony.

“My mom was there, and my wife and my brother and niece and nephew, and friends and people who helped in the campaign, and people who have supported me over the years,” he said.

“All the seats were taken, and people were standing around the walls,” reported one of those in attendance. “It seemed to be a favorable response — no heckling.”

P.B. Concours d'Elegance, historic races at Laguna Seca accepting 2011 entries

ORGANIZERS OF the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance and the Rolex Monterey Motorsports Reunion announced the classes they will be offering during their

"Unfortunately, Mr. Gonzalez is not in custody, but that continues to be our primary focus," Monterey P.D. Deputy Chief Phil Penko said Thursday. "The events of yesterday have started to settle down, and we did a number of interviews with potential witnesses which were quite helpful."

According to Penko, at 9 a.m. Jan. 5, members of the Monterey Peninsula Special Response Unit and the Monterey Sheriff's SWAT served warrants on two Greenfield houses after Greenfield P.D. and the Monterey County Probation Department helped identify Gonzalez as the suspected shooter in the incident outside the Mucky Duck bar on Alvarado Street that occurred shortly before 2 a.m. Jan. 1.

The shooting occurred after two women became unruly and were asked to leave the bar, owner Eric Waddell told KSBW-TV. The women remained, but two men who were with them left. A third man accompanying the women then punched a security guard, Waddell said.

"As we were trying to subdue him and get him to the ground and contact Monterey P.D. to let them know we had an incident that we needed their assistance with, the other two gentlemen returned and one of them opened fire on the staff members and a patron," Waddell added.

Using security video from the restaurant police were quickly able to identify the alleged shooter as Gonzalez.

In serving the warrant at a San Antonio Drive home, officers spent an hour using a loud speaker to try get the residents to come out. They then used a flash-bang "diversionary device" to prepare to enter the home, which caught fire.

Firefighters found a man inside the house who was pronounced dead at the scene. Monterey County Coroner's investigator Randal Dyck later identified him as 31-year-old Rogelio Serrato and said the cause and manner of death are pending further investigation.

"We're waiting on toxicology and some further investigation," he said Thursday. "There's nothing that we're releasing at this time. We have to conclude our investigation before we release any results."

Meanwhile, police are still on the hunt for Gonzalez, who was not at either of the Greenfield houses targeted Wednesday. The three men he is accused of shooting were flown to trauma centers for treatment of their wounds. Penko said they are in stable condition and did not sustain life-threatening injuries, but he had no further information.

Penko asked anyone with information about the shooting or Gonzalez' whereabouts to call the investigations division at (831) 646-3809 or the anonymous tip line at (831) 646-3840. Gonzalez is considered armed and dangerous, so anyone who sees him should dial 911.

The Concours, founded more than six decades ago, is the premier show of rare vintage vehicles, and the races are considered a top exhibition of historic cars on the track.

The 2011 P.B. Concours will celebrate the 125th anniversary of the automobile — a history that began in 1886 with Karl Benz' receiving the first patent for a gas-powered car, the three-wheeled Benz Patent Motorwagen. Also that year, Gottlieb Daimler mounted an engine on a four-wheeled vehicle. In addition, the 61st annual Concours will showcase early Rolls-Royce Silver Ghosts (1907-1919), the centennial of the American Stutz sports car, the birth of the Ferrari 250 GTO and Italian motorcycles.

The Concours' selection committee is tasked with choosing the 200 most rare, well kept, vintage cars and motorcycles to represent the classes at the world-renowned show. Invitations to apply were mailed to enthusiasts last month and are due by Jan. 15. Following review and research of all the applications, the selection committee will issue formal invitations to compete in the spring. The Concours will be held on the 18th Fairway of the Pebble Beach Golf Links Sunday, Aug. 21. To learn more, visit www.pebblebeachconcours.net.

Racers wanted

The Rolex Monterey Motorsports Reunion, formerly the Monterey Historic Automobile Races, will star some new classes this year, too, and participants can apply for entry until the end of January.

Among the new groups is Can-Am cars — eye-catching, cutting-edge machines like Lolas, McLarens and Porsches with unlimited engine sizes and practically unrestricted aerodynamic designs. When Laguna hosted the series from 1966 to 1973, Chaparrals and McLarens dominated, and a strong showing is expected when they return to the track during the Aug. 19-21 Reunion.

The FIA 3-liter Formula 1 class (1966 to 1983) will honor the era that saw Mario Andretti win the 1978 world championship in a Lotus 79 and Jackie Stewart take his third and final world championship in the Tyrrell 006.

Other classes slated to compete include:

- Pre-1940 Sports Racing and Touring Cars;
- 1929 to 1940 Racing Cars;
- 1955 to 1961 Sports Racing Cars;
- 1947 to 1955 Sports Racing and GT Cars;
- 1955 to 1966 GT Cars;
- 1959 to 1963 Formula Junior Cars;
- 1960 to 1968 Sports Racing USRRC Cars;
- 1964 to 1969 FIA Mfg. Championship Cars;
- 1966 to 1972 Trans Am;
- 1970 to 1976 FIA Mfg. Championship Cars;
- 1973 to 1982 IMSA GT, GTX AAGT Cars; and
- 1981 to 1989 FIA Mfg. Championship & IMSA GTP.

According to public relations coordinator Jennifer Capasso, the entry deadline comes months before the races to give organizers enough time to select the top cars for each class. Each entry will undergo intense scrutiny to ensure the vehicle is authentic, has proven provenance and has not been mechanically altered from its original race condition.

For more information about the track, entering a car or purchasing tickets, call (800) 327-7322 or visit www.MazdaRaceway.com.

red-legged frog and the Southwestern pond turtle, each of which is listed as threatened or endangered. State parks also claims the ranch is pumping more water than it needs to irrigate its pastures, resulting in runoff and erosion.

The landmark 7,000-acre ranch, much of which forms a scenic corridor along Highway 1, is owned by Jim Hill. The ranch irrigates about 267 acres with water from the river, although only about 25 of those acres lie within the Big Sur River watershed.

Two decades of contention

The controversy started in 1990, when state parks filed a complaint against El Sur Ranch alleging it was taking water from the river's underground flow, and not from a separate aquifer. In 1992, the SWRCB agreed, and required El Sur Ranch to get a permit to use the wells. The agency also "allowed" the ranch to continue using the wells while the permit was being processed.

But 19 years later, the issue remains unresolved. According to attorneys from the ranch, studies were launched, hearings were conducted, applications were revised and an environmental impact report was rejected. Attorney Mark Blum insisted the ranch has tried to resolve the dispute in a timely manner. "We have been cooperating in good faith," Blum said.

The ranch released a new EIR in October 2009. According to the document, strict limits on pumping would be enacted during the driest months of the year, when the ranch would divert a maximum of 735 acre-feet from July 1 through Oct. 31 and pump no more than 230 acre-feet during a single month.

In response, a consortium of environmental groups — including the Center for Biological Diversity, Friends of the River, Los Padres Forest Watch, the Sierra Club's Ventana chapter, the Ventana Wilderness Alliance and the sportfishing alliance — accused the ranch of simply delaying the inevitable judgment against it. "It is clear that El Sur Ranch has used the water rights application process to delay remedial action and avoid culpability," a joint statement by the groups reads.

Is the ranch breaking the law?

In addition to their claim that El Sur Ranch has delayed the resolution of the case, some of the groups insist its existing pumping is illegal, regardless of what the SWRCB told the ranch in 1992.

"In 1990, El Sur Ranch was caught illegally diverting from the river," reads a quote from California Sportfishing Protection Alliance executive director Bill Jennings that was used last week in a press release. "Finally, after almost two decades of illegal diversions ..." begins another comment.

Blum, though, said the ranch has "has not been cited for any illegal activity" pertaining to its pumping from the river. He also insisted the ranch has permission from the SWRCB to pump water from the river while its application is being processed, although the state agency has placed a limit on how much water the ranch can pump.

"The board requested and obtained the ranch's agreement not to divert more than 3.5 acre-feet annually per acre pending a hearing on the application," Blum explained.

A spokesman for the SWRCB, however, said there is no formal agreement between the agency and El Sur Ranch.

"Technically, what they are doing is illegal," explained Dave Clegern, who works in the agency's public affairs office. "We have chosen not to enforce our authority."

Not enough fish?

Environmentalists insist that not only is the pumping illegal, it is diminishing the number of steelhead in the river.

But Blum points out the National Marine Fisheries Service has the following statement regarding "South-Central California Coast" steelhead posted on its website: "All of the four largest watersheds (Pajaro, Salinas, Nacimiento/Arroyo Seco and Carmel rivers) have experienced declines in run sizes of 90 percent or more. Only a few populations along the Big Sur Coast have retained near historic numbers."

While the CDFG isn't specifically counting the number of steelhead in the river, the agency is seeking to find out how much water is necessary to sustain its existing population of the fish. The agency launched a lengthy study this past summer. Since the study is not expected to be completed until at least 2012, it's unlikely to be much help at the March hearing. When asked this week if the agency can say how much water is needed in the river for the steelhead, Robert Holmes, an instream flow program coordinator for the CDFG, conceded he didn't know. "That's why we're doing the study," Holmes said.

Despite the lack of evidence, longtime steelhead activist and Big Sur resident Jack Ellwanger said he believes the pumping by the ranch is significantly reducing the amount of water in the river. "The lagoon is getting graveled up," Ellwanger said. "It doesn't have the volume it needs."

Yet Ellwanger has also seen recent signs that steelhead are still thriving in the river — despite the impacts of development and periodic natural disasters like fires and flooding.

"I was down at Molera the other day, and I saw a lot juveniles leaping the air," he added. "It was great to see."

Who gets their water first?

When the SWRCB meets in March, they will also consider whether another water application deserves a higher priority. In 1998, the Division of Water Rights determined that a well owned by the Clear Ridge Mutual Water Company, which serves 42 properties on nearby Clear Ridge, was pumping water from the underground flow of the river. In response, the water company filed an application the following year with the SWRCB, which approved the request last month. The permit allows the water company to pump up to 42 acre-feet annually. The well is located upstream from El Sur Ranch.

In September, the water company asked the SWRCB's Division of Water Rights to grant its application priority over the ranch's application because they say California water law states that domestic uses of water are more beneficial to the public than agricultural uses. Since the Clear Ridge Mutual Water Company already had its application approved, it's unclear how it would be affected if the SWRCB approves the El Sur Ranch permit and denies the water company's request to make its pumping a higher priority.

gives the MPWMD for its Carmel River mitigation efforts — amounts to $3.5 million of the district's $10 million budget.

In 2002, two-thirds of Monterey Peninsula voters called for the water district to be disbanded because of its reputation for curtailing water instead of supplying it. The water district survived that setback by barely acknowledging that it happened. But administrative law judge Maribeth Bushey's decision, which still must be adopted by CPUC commissioners, is a real threat to the district's viability.

To try to gain the public's support, on Sunday the water district ran a full-page advertisement in the Monterey County Herald (at a cost of $1,500) urging Cal Am's 40,000 water customers to support the user fee, which they would pay every month.

"The proposed decision [to eliminate the fee] would terminate the long-standing funding for fish, riparian, lagoon, hydrology, water supply and conservation programs that have protected our primary source of water," the ad said. It included addresses for CPUC President Michael Peevey and his advisor so water customers can forward their support of the MPWMD.

"Your comments can make a difference," the ad states.

In another plea Wednesday, an MPWMD employee sent a mass email message explaining the "critical" user fee situation and requesting people sign an attached "support letter" and send it to Peevey.

The message, which calls Bushey's proposed decision "despicable," also has an attached Q&A for readers to familiarize themselves with the issue.

"Edit and personalize [the letter] at will," the email tells readers.

And on Friday, officials with MPWMD, Cal Am and the Department of Ratepayer Advocates are scheduled to meet with Peevey's advisor about the user fee money.

"We will ask that the commission approve the ... agreement that was submitted as part of Cal Am's application to collect and remit the MPWMD user fee," said General Manager Darby Fuerst.

If Peevey agrees, his office could sponsor an "alternate proposed decision" for CPUC commissioners to consider, Fuerst explained. The commission is expected to consider the issue late this month or early February.

In July 2009, the 8.325 percent user fee was removed from customers' water bills after Bushey questioned it and ordered Cal Am to find another way to fund the Carmel River mitigation measures, which cost $300,000 per month.

Since then, Cal Am has advanced the water district about $4.1 million for its efforts.

In a portion of a letter sent to The Pine Cone from former MPWMD director Ron Chesshire, Chesshire challenged the district's motives.

"Don't buy into the 'save the river' campaign," Chesshire wrote. "It's all about 'save them.'"

District spends $2 million more

The current water district budget, approved last summer, calls for a spending increase of $2.1 million this year above last year's level, according to records.

The water district budgeted a total of $10,590,100 in expenditures for the 2010/2011 fiscal year, compared to the $8.3 million and $8.4 million it budgeted in 2008/2009 and 2009/2010, respectfully. That represents the biggest budget in the history of the water district, formed in June 1978.

Among the expenditures slated for this fiscal year are $2,273,200 in salaries for the district's 28 employees (an average of $81,186 per employee), $400,000 in attorney fees, $429,900 for retirement costs, $54,000 for employee travel and a host of other things.

MPWMD CFO Rick Dickhaut said a good chunk of the $2.1 million increase will pay for an aquifer storage and recovery project in Seaside, an effort with Cal Am that diverts excess winter water from the Carmel River into a groundwater basin so it can be used during the summer months.

Dickhaut also pointed out that the amount budgeted isn't what the district actually spent. Though the 2009/2010 budget audit won't be complete until the end of January, Dickhaut said the district's expenditures were "considerably less" than what was budgeted.

Here is a list of some of the water district's expenses.

Salaries

A salary list shows the MPWMD's 28 workers earn a range of $47,773 to $157,000, with 18 employees earning more than $70,000 per year.

During this fiscal year, the MPWMD budget calls for

Sunset photography: Faces aren't the only things that matter

By CHRIS COUNTS

MOST PHOTOGRAPHERS, understandably, focus on the faces of the people they point their cameras at. But Dale Garell of Carmel Valley has compiled a series of images that manages to hide or obscure the faces of those he photographs.

An exhibit of Garell's work, "People I've Seen," went up this week at the Marjorie Evans Gallery.

A pediatrician as well as a fine art photographer, Garell has an affinity for capturing images of people as they walk away from him.

"You can't tell if the subjects in his photographs are happy or sad," explained gallery curator Barbara Davison.

"The photographer gives the viewer a chance to use his or her imagination to decide where a subject is coming from or going to. The viewer has an opportunity to create a story."

For Garell, photography presents him with an opportunity capture extraordinary — but fleeting — moments.

"I believe photography can be used to explore the vast complexities of human nature and to tell a story about people that we see in everyday life," Garell said. "In an instant, it is possible, I think, to capture a special moment, a split second never again to be repeated — a spontaneous opportunity to explore a unique human experience."

Garell's photographs are featured in a soft-covered book, "People I've Seen," that he released last year. A second book in the same series comes out this month.

The gallery, which is located at Sunset Center (San Carlos and Ninth) will host a reception Friday, Jan. 14, from 5 to 7:30 p.m. The exhibit will be on display through the end of the month.

Local photographer falls for the City of Love

WHILE MANY local artists turn to the bright lights of San Francisco or Los Angeles for creative inspiration, a Pacific Grove photographer aims her camera a little bit farther from home.

Paris is the inspiration for "En Dehors du Temps (Outside of Time)," a new exhibit by Meredith Mullins that will be unveiled Friday, Jan. 7, at the Pacific Grove Art Center. The display is just one of four exhibits opening this weekend at the art center.

A onetime photography instructor at Monterey Peninsula College and a former member of the Pacific Grove Arts Commission, Mullins has been living in Paris part-time for the past four years.

"For many years, I described myself as someone who really knew Paris, even though I was just a passing traveler," explained Mullins, who was named Pacific Grove Visual Artist of the Year in 2001. "Now that I am living in Paris on this 'extended visit,' I know that I am just beginning to understand the force and the power. Paris is truly a timeless place — a defiant and elegant integration of past, present and future."

Also opening Friday at the art center will be exhibits by a quartet of local photographers, mixed media artist Robert Armstrong and pen and ink extraordinaire Peter Plamondon.

"Different Directions" showcases the work of four Santa Cruz women, Virginia Scott, Gail Nichols, Susan Lysik and Susan Hillyard, who are displaying their work under the banner of the Different Directions Collective.

"From street to studio, film to digital, color to black and white, the women, who have been exhibiting together for three years, do indeed move in different directions, while encouraging and inspiring each other to maintain high standards of quality and elegance as they grow in their craft," reads a description of the group's focus.

Armstrong, who lives in Monterey, uses a wide range of materials to create his work, including paint, kelp, cloth, ceramics, metal, dried fruit, cord and wood.

"In my artmaking, I try to favor an 'attitude/intention strategy of experimentation that serves to keep the process open and lively," Armstrong said. "This helps feed an immersion in the creative mode, and an integration of my own inclinations with the greater 'world we live in.' I want this intention to come across as an essential part of the work: a sense of surprise, learning, fascination and challenge to expectations."

Plamondon, meanwhile, is a Carmel resident who has long been fascinated with the simple power of a pen and ink drawing. "It has always intrigued me that I was able to sit in an antique store looking at a jumble of stuff; or a gathering of people, tables and chairs in a café interior, and with a simple line, reproduce it all on paper."

The show is the art center's first under the leadership of new executive director Jacqui Hope, who took over this month after Joan McCleary retired in December.

The art center will host a reception from 7 to 9 p.m. The exhibit will be on display until Feb. 17. The venue is located 568

Famous glee club coming to Big Sur, Pebble Beach

By CHRIS COUNTS

NO ORDINARY student singing group, the Cornell University Glee Club — one of America's most enduring vocal ensembles — will perform Tuesday, Jan. 11, in Big Sur and Pebble Beach.

The glee club — which includes 2008 Carmel High School graduate Ben Perlmutter — will offer a free performance at the Big Sur River Inn at 11 a.m. Ben's father, Alan, is owner of the resort as well as a graduate of Cornell.

After singing and having lunch at the River Inn, the ensemble will travel to Stevenson School in Pebble Beach, where they will perform a concert at 7 p.m.

"They do a tour every winter break," explained River Inn publicist Janet Lesniak, who is also Ben's sister. "This year, they planned to do a West Coast tour, so I said, 'We should put them up at the River Inn.'"

Diavolo brings playground of color, movement and sound

By CHRIS COUNTS

SUNSET CENTER has been the sight of many dazzling spectacles of color, movement and sound, but it is unlikely its audiences have witnessed anything quite like Diavolo.

Combining dance and high-wire acrobatics with some of the most interesting playground equipment you've ever seen, Diavolo performs at Sunset Center Wednesday, Jan. 12, at 8 p.m. Tickets are $48 to $68.

Diavolo's artistic director, Jacques Heim, founded the dance company in 1992 with the aim of creating "large-scale interdisciplinary performances which examine the funny and frightening ways individuals act with their environment."

To achieve his vision, Heim employs the talents of a 10-member troupe of dancers, gymnasts and actors who interact with a curious collection of giant "architectural objects," showcasing their physical strength and dexterity.

Heim's work caught the eye of Cirque du Soleil, which commissioned him to choreograph its popular "Ka," which has been running in Las Vegas since 2005.

"There's a lot of substance and heart to everything Jacques does," said Peter Lesnik, who stepped down last month from his role as Sunset Center's executive director and is now working for the theater as an advisor. "He's one of my favorites. His background is in theater, so he understands story and content. All of your senses will be pleased."

In addition to Wednesday's performance, Diavolo will conduct a workshop Jan. 10 for

Hooking regulars, baking pies and lunching for less

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHO MAKES the best olallieberry pie? It just might be Inga Yontz, who started baking pies commercially a few years ago when her husband, Rio Grill executive chef Cy Yontz, lost his pie supplier and asked her if she was up for the task.

"I said I would give it a try," said Yontz, who has "been a home baker forever," following in the footsteps of her mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. "That's pretty much how it started — pretty much out of desperation."

But "everything's going really well," she said, and bolstered by customers' demands for her creations — like the pumpkin cheesecake she turned out during the holidays — she launched Inga's Pie Whole so they could order whole pies to take home.

"Right now, we're doing olallieberry, a cheesecake with amaretti cherries on top and an almond-graham crust, and a lemon tart," she said. "Those are the featured pies, but I can do anything; if someone wants apple or cherry, I'm flexible."

Yontz makes the pies from scratch in her Pebble Beach house, turning out at least a few every couple of days for the restaurant.

"We have a nice size kitchen," she said. "It helps, because I have four kids at home," her most recent of which was born just a few weeks ago.

"Luckily, he didn't come the week I had to make 25 pumpkin pies," she said.

Yontz is excited to be offering her homemade whole pies to everyone for $25 apiece, plus tax, and they can be ordered by calling the Rio Grill at (831) 625-5436 or directly through Yontz at (831) 402-7072 or icyontz@yahoo.com. Yontz said most people pick the pies up at the restaurant.

■ Aquarium welcomes new chefs

A slew of hospitality professionals and chefs crowded into the Monterey Bay Aquarium Wednesday night for a reception held in honor of its new chefs, Cindy Pawlcyn and Jeff Rogers. Renowned for her culinary prowess in Napa Valley, Pawlcyn was hired to oversee the Aquarium's culinary ventures, including its full-service restaurant, while former Quail Lodge executive chef Rogers will be in charge of day-to-day work in the kitchen.

Under former executive chef Dory Ford, the Aquarium solidified a reputation for great food in an exceptional setting. With Pawlcyn and Rogers in charge, the quality and creativity should continue to evolve.

Aramark provides food services for the Aquarium, which hosts thousands of visitors daily, and at the reception, executive director Julie Packard thanked the company and everyone involved for their "incredible hard work to make this transition, especially during the holidays."

■ Beat a path to Christopher's

To attract new customers during the slow season and grow his flock of regulars, Christopher Caul is offering a couple of bargains at his Lincoln Street restaurant in Carmel.

"There are still soooo many people that haven't tried us, and I am hoping these deals will get them in over the slower winter months," he told The Pine Cone this week.

Caul is presenting soup or salad and an entrée for $19.95, and a similar dinner for two for $49.95 that includes a bottle of wine.

"I will be offering some old-school specials," he said, including chicken picatta, chicken marsala, Pork Scaloppini Milanese, pork osso bucco, stuffed local sole with crab and lobster sauce, wild mushroom ravioli, and sausage and peppers with polenta.

The wine that accompanies dinner for two will be a white or red selection from Monterey, Paso Robles, Napa or Sonoma — "none of that Two Buck Chuck!" he promised.

Christopher's is located on Lincoln south of Fifth and is open for dinner from 5 p.m. nightly except Tuesdays. Call (831) 626-8000 or visit www.christopherscarmel.com for more information.

Half-off Hula's

Hula's keeps giving diners more and more reason to drop in for a basket of sweet potato fries or a plate of poke. Now, it's half-price lunches on Tuesdays in January. On Jan. 11, 18 and 25, the Monterey restaurant will serve up midday fare for 50 percent off (food only).

Hula's Island Grill and Tiki Room is located at 622 Lighthouse Ave. For more information, go to www.hulastiki.com or call (831) 655-HULA.

Rombi launches wine club

Sal Rombi, who produces tiny batches of Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon from his vineyard in Carmel Valley, has launched an equally tiny wine club open to just 50 people. Rombi's vineyard was planted in 1998, four years after work began on the property, and the 2006 vintage is his first commercial release.

Wine club members will receive two shipments per year of two bottles of each wine, as well as invitations to the annual harvest party at the winery. The price includes a 10 percent discount on the wines, which regularly run $70 for the Cab and $55 for the Merlot.

"The only way to purchase the wine is through my web page, www.rombiwines.com, or to become a member of the wine club," he said. "My production is so small (100 cases per year), it is currently not possible for me to sell to retail outlets or restaurants for resale."

Questions about membership should be directed to mollie@rombiwines.com.

The business of food

The annual EcoFarm Conference at Asilomar will be held Jan. 26-29, when farmers, academics and food-industry professionals gather to talk about trends, safety, new laws and myriad other issues. The conference is the major annual event of the Ecological Farming Association, which seeks to "nurture healthy and just farms, food systems, communities and environment by bringing people together for education, alliance building and advocacy."

The conference is slated to include more than 60 workshops, and attendees also enjoy organic meals and entertainment during "the largest sustainable agriculture gathering in the western United States."

Topics run the gamut, from mineral balancing for optimal animal and soil health, access to land and capital, farm education and rangeland conservation, to recruitment of new farmers among military veterans, identification of beneficial insects, social media, alternative fuels, farmers markets, regulations on fertilizers and compost, GMOs, successful organic farming and comparisons of the environmental impacts of organic and conventional dairy farms.

To learn more or to attend, visit www.eco-farm.org.

Super Bowl grub

Kula Ranch in Marina, which has been hosting Pigskin Mondays since late summer, will celebrate professional football's biggest game in style Feb. 6. With eight large TVs, three big screens and a theater screen with surround sound, it should be impossible to miss a single minute of the action.

For a $25 cover, fans can graze the all-you-can-eat buffet of spit-roasted pulled pork sandwiches, wings, tacos, chili dogs, nachos and potato skins from 3 p.m. until the end of the game, as well as pick up a free gift at the door. Pints of Bud and Coors will go for $3, while pitchers and buckets-o-beers will be $15, and drink specials will be announced throughout the game.

For more information, call (831) 883-9479 or check out www.kula-ranch.com. The restaurant is located in the Marina Sanctuary Resort off Highway 1 at Reservation Road at 3295 Dunes Drive.

Free parking in 2011

The city-sponsored incentive encouraging locals to patronize Cannery Row's restaurants and businesses is continuing in 2011.

Since residents might balk at pumping parking meters with quarters to visit particularly touristy parts of the Peninsula, Monterey's Cannery Row Garage and the city parking lot at Fisherman's Wharf are providing free parking after 4 p.m. daily for locals. All they need to do is show a driver's license listing a 939 zip code when leaving the garage.

Clambake for a Cure talent

The second annual Golf & Grapes Clambake for a Cure fundraiser will be held Thursday, Feb. 10, in Del Monte Forest during the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, and organizers announced the lineup of chefs and wineries slated to appear. Proceeds benefit the Musella Foundation for the research and treatment of brain tumors.

Among the talented folks lined up to cook that evening are chef Hosea Rosenberg, owner of Streat Chefs and "Top Chef" winner; Beachwood Restaurant chef Jamie Lauren, appearing on "Top Chef All Stars;" Plumed Horse chef Peter Armellino; Coastal Luxury Management corporate chef Mark Ayers; chef Tyler Stone; Todd Fisher, chef and owner of The Kitchen; Wild Thyme Deli and Michael's Catering owner and chef Terry Teplitzky; and chef David Frappiea, owner of the Courtside Cafe at Chamisal Tennis Club.

Expected to pour are Jocelyn Lonen Winery (which is hosting the fundraiser), Hoot Owl Winery, Rocca Family Winery, Elkhorn Peak Cellars, Eagle Eye Winery, Bourassa

Winery, Schweiger Vineyards and Elizabeth Spencer Winery.

Shuttles to the party will begin taking guests to the ocean-front venue at 4 p.m., and attendees will mingle with celebrities, PGA Tour golfers and award-winning chefs. Honoring the clambake theme, chefs will prepare shellfish dishes alongside other creations. In addition to raising money for the Musella Foundation, the event will help Sonoma 7-year-old Ella Stewart and her family contend with the expenses of treating her brain cancer. Jocelyn Lonen Winery is owned and run by Brandi Jocelyn Pack, whose father died of brain cancer when he was 56.

The cost to attend is $75 per person. For more information or to purchase tickets, go to www.golfandgrapes.org or www.clambakeforacure.com.

Caricatures for couples

In honor of Valentine's Day, Morgan Winery's tasting room in the Crossroads is offering Portraits, Pairs & Pinot on Saturday, Feb. 12, from noon to 5 p.m. That day, guests who buy two bottles of any of the wines carried by Taste Morgan will receive a caricature by artist Wolfgang Niesielski.

The tasting room is located on Crossroads Boulevard near River House Books and Lula's Chocolates. To learn more, visit www.morganwinery.com.

$111,600 more than last year to pay its 28 employees.

Fuerst — who is the district's top earner with a base salary of $157,000 — said the 5.16 percent increase in overall pay was due to raises and promotions.

"A year ago, there was no pay increase," he said. "And this current fiscal year, there is a 2 percent raise."

A list of some of the district's other top earners shows that the water district's chief technology officer earns $103,220, the CFO makes $128,373, the district engineer earns $132,939, the water demand manager makes $88,299, the water resources manager earns $109,597 and the manager of public relations has a salary of $98,422.

The MPWMD also seeks outside help. In 2008/2009, the district spent just $500 on temporary employees. In 2009/2010, it spent $45,500 and this year budgeted $75,500 — 66 percent more than last year — for temps.

Fuerst said the workers are with a firm hired by the MPWMD to integrate the district's antiquated databases. Though it launched the system last year, the system is still being worked on, he said.

"We did a major overall of our water demand division database, which is our permit office," Fuerst said.

Legal fees

Perhaps the most stunning of the expenses is the $400,000 budgeted for legal fees, which the district incurred in its battles against the regional water project, a proposed Monterey Bay Shores resort in Sand City, the general rate case and other work, Fuerst said.

"I think we spent over $200,000 on the [Sand City resort]," he explained.

Fuerst said with the exception of a contracted attorney the MPWMD hired to work on the Monterey Bay Shores litigation, most of the legal fees will pay the water district's attorney, David Laredo.

However, this year's lawyer expenses are $50,000 less than last year's and $75,000 less than the year before that, according to the budget.

THE MPWMD also budgeted $30,000 for auditors, $25,000 for a redistricting consultant (which Dickhaut said is required because of new census data), $5,000 for a strategic planning consultant and $35,000 for a Sacramento lobbyist.

The water district also set aside $22,600 for membership dues so its employees can belong to several professional societies such as the Association of California Water Agencies and the California Special Districts Association, according to Fuerst.

Proposed Decision Jeopardizes Carmel River Protection Program

Your Comments Can Make A Difference!

A message from the Board of Directors
Monterey Peninsula Water Management District

California-American Water Company (Cal-Am) and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) have cooperated for two decades on a required program to offset the environmental impacts of community water use on the Carmel River, known as the Mitigation Program. Activities include fish rescue and rearing, streamside erosion control and plantings, lagoon management, surface and groundwater monitoring, conservation and new water supply through diversion of excess winter streamflow into injection-recovery wells. The Mitigation Program has improved river conditions to the benefit of people, fish and wildlife.

Funding for this successful partnership is threatened by a Proposed Decision issued in December 2010 by Administrative Law Judge Maribeth Bushey of the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC). The Proposed Decision is factually and legally flawed, yet provides no opportunity to set the record straight in a public hearing.

The Proposed Decision would deny Cal-Am's Application No. 10-01-012 to reinstate the District's user fee on the Cal-Am bill to fund the Mitigation Program even though Cal-Am, MPWMD and the CPUC's own watchdog Division of Ratepayer Advocates support the application. All agree that the existing Mitigation Program funding mechanism should continue without change.

Cal-Am has repeatedly stated that MPWMD is best equipped to carry out the Mitigation Program in a cost-effective manner due to the District staff's expertise and experience. Mitigation Program implementation by MPWMD also allows the public to participate in program oversight and budget development through open board meetings and local public hearings.

If approved by the CPUC without change, the Proposed Decision would terminate the long-standing funding for fish, riparian, lagoon, hydrology, water supply and conservation programs that have protected our primary source of water supply.

Notably, the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) requires Cal-Am to undertake the Mitigation Program measures if the MPWMD program ends. However, the Proposed Decision makes no provision for Cal-Am to ramp up and start a new program on its own. This is no time to interrupt the Mitigation Program activities while the community strives to comply with SWRCB Order 95-10 and the federal Endangered Species Act.

Your efforts can help the Carmel River. Please voice your support for Application No. 10-01-012 to ensure uninterrupted protection of the Carmel River. Please encourage the CPUC to modify the Proposed Decision and accept the Settlement Agreement that will continue the Mitigation Program. The deadline for comments is January 10, 2011. GLEE

Lesniak and her husband, who watched the glee club perform on a tour of the Southeastern United States, came away impressed.

"We chased them down in New Orleans and Texas," Lesniak recalled. "They're a fabulously talented group of kids. They all have to excel academically, or they wouldn't be there. But they dedicate a tremendous amount of time to singing."

Founded in 1868, the 60-man glee club was the first student group formed at Cornell, an Ivy League college in Ithaca, N.Y. More significantly, they were the first American collegiate choral group to tour Europe (1895) and the Soviet Union (1960). They've also toured China twice, and in its 142-year history, the glee club has visited 25 different countries.

They've also made countless television appearances, performing on programs as diverse as Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion" and "The Price is Right."

In addition to singing traditional Cornell songs, the ensemble offers a wide repertoire of classical, folk and popular music. Also, their stellar work has not gone unnoticed by their contemporaries — the ensemble frequently performs world and American premieres of compositions written for male choruses.

Although the River Inn performance is free to the public, the Big Sur resort is accepting donations in the name of the nonprofit Big Sur Health Center. The River Inn is located on Highway 1 about 24 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 667-2700.

The Erdman Chapel at Stevenson School will host Monday night's concert. The school is located at 3152 Forest Lake Road. Tickets are $15 and will be available at the door. For more information, call (585) 727-3145 or visit www.gleeclub.com.

Editorial

The upside of a crisis

NOT LONG after President Barack Obama took office, his chief of staff, Rahm Emanuel, famously observed that it was important “never to let a serious crisis go to waste.”

The crisis he referred to was the recession, which the Obama White House then used as justification for a colossal stimulus bill which devoted billions of taxpayer dollars to all sorts of Democratic Party pet projects that would never have been funded in the absence of an economic emergency.

But while much of the public, the media and even quite a few members of the Republican Party initially accepted the rationale for stimulus spending, as the economic slowdown dragged into its third miserable year, they also became increasingly frustrated at the huge amounts of money wasted by all levels of government and began demanding more accountability and efficiency from their elected officials. So while at the outset the economic crisis was opportunistically used to justify massive new government spending, its flipside also isn't going to waste, as the public now demands spending cuts, reduced taxes and answers from anybody who seems to be wasting their money.

It's a phenomenon that's happening in Washington, Sacramento, at city halls up and down the state, and even at Ryan Ranch, where the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is facing a serious challenge from a top official with the California Public Utilities Commission of one of its principal funding sources.

Normally, the water district could expect to easily overcome the crisis. Because of its focus on reducing the local water supply instead of enhancing it, the water district has become the darling of local environmentalists and has been fiercely protected by many of our representatives in the state Legislature for its no-growth ardency.

And now, with a far-left-wing governor just taking office, it could be expected to take no more than a phone call or two to the CPUC for the official's decision to be reversed and millions of dollars of fees added to local water bills and then happily spent by the water district on its various projects.

But these are not normal times. When the CPUC considers the water district's appeal to keep its precious funding, lo and behold, commissioners with the power to decide the matter will probably stop and sincerely ask themselves, “Is this is a worthy use of the taxpayers' precious dollars?”

Some of the work carried out by the water district is certainly worthwhile. But the agency itself is superfluous and, indeed, counterproductive. In 2002, the voters of the Monterey Peninsula overwhelmingly expressed their desire to see the water district done away with. At a minimum, the CPUC is right to curtail its funding. And if the water district finally disappears, the way it should have a long time ago, then Rahm Emanuel will, at the local level anyway, finally be proved right.

BEST of BATES

“Storms are great! You don't need a permit to trim your trees!”

Enough with the water district

Dear Editor,

The Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association is not anti-government. We are anti-wasteful government. That is why we are calling for the elimination of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. This public agency has wasted a lot of our money and produced little of value for it. To wit:

■ Why did the MPWMD spend an estimated almost $500,000 trying to kill the Regional Water Project when their mission is to “manage, augment and protect water resources for the benefit of the community and the environment”? From our perspective, this does not mean trying to kill a reasonable, public-based water project.

■ Why does the MPWMD attach itself to every Cal Am PUC action? We eventually pay through our water rates for Cal Am's defense of issues at the California Public Utilities Commission. Why must we pay for the MPWMD to also participate? A most egregious example is the recent litigation at the CPUC over the Regional Water Project. How schizophrenic can we get that we will pay Cal Am to defend itself along with the Marina Coast Water District and the Monterey County Water Resources Agency against the opposition who we also have to pay?

■ Cal Am could competitively bid out the mitigation efforts and replace the efforts of the MPWMD to “manage, augment and protect water resources for the benefit of the community and the environment.” Remember, we the citizens put together the Regional Water Project, not the MPWMD. MPWMD was dithering away our money studying desalination plants in Sand City that someone told their anti-growth board would be limited in capacity as it would be limited in its footprint size. This was folly and a waste of our money as well diverting attention away from the Regional Water Project.

■ Cal Am gets 5 percent of the $4.1 million it annually gives MPWMD to “manage, augment and protect water resources for the benefit of the community and the environment.” This money ultimately will come from us ratepayers as the $4.1 million per year will be going back on the water bills as Cal Am fights to reverse a recent CPUC administrative judge decision that disallowed Cal Am from recovering these expenses from es from rates.

■ MPWMD gets $23,000 for a water connection fee but never installs a foot of pipe. Proposition 218 (now Article XIII C and D of the California Constitution) required every other water district in the state to have a direct correlation between connection fees and infrastructure. Proposition 218 significantly changed local government finance, but apparently MPWMD thinks it doesn't have to follow the Constitution.

Now is the time to write or email the California Public Utilities Commission and voice your outrage at the rip off of we rate-payers by the MPWMD.

Matheson, who is prosecuting Hudson and another suspect, Christopher Tindall, in the fatal accident that occurred on Highway 1 in Big Sur. "I hope to get them answered."

In the accident that killed Wiesjahn, she was riding with Tindall in an SUV when he overturned it in the middle of the highway and then fled the scene shortly before 2 a.m. Aug. 28, 2008, leaving her and another passenger behind, police reported at the time. Shortly after, Hudson, also allegedly drunk behind the wheel, ran into the wreck with his truck, which he and a friend towed from the scene and abandoned a half-mile away. Tindall and Hudson were later arrested.

Hudson's bail is $500,000, but Matheson said he might ask for more, considering the suspect's failure to come to court last month. Biegel told The Monterey County Herald Hudson was in Reno receiving medical treatment for a serious condition and opted to continue with treatment rather than make his court date in Salinas, but Matheson was skeptical.

"There are a lot of treatment facilities in California," he observed. "So this is an additional set of facts I'm going to present to the judge for an increase in bail."

Last Monday, Wiesjahn's mother, Annalisa Sand, shared the jubilant news on her Facebook page that Hudson had been found.

"Merry Belated Christmas, and Happy New Year! Reno police have Mark Hudson in custody... at least people can stop referring to him as a 'fugitive from justice'.... now he can be called a 'recipient of justice,' thank you," she posted.

The trial against Hudson and Tindall is set to proceed March 21.

Aaron Corn may change plea

THE PACIFIC Grove man charged with drunken driving in a February 2010 crash that seriously injured one of his passengers will either enter a guilty plea later this month or decide to take his case to trial.

On Wednesday, Aaron Corn appeared in a Salinas courtroom where Monterey County Superior Court Judge Russell Scott set a Jan. 19 court date for Corn to enter into a negotiated plea deal or decide to take his case to trial. "We had a full and thorough discussion about possible outcomes, potential sentences and impacts," said Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Todd Hornick.

Corn, was driving a Toyota 4Runner when he crashed the vehicle into a tree in Skyline Forest, according to police. Corn and four of his friends were injured, including Chelsie Hill, then 17, who was paralyzed in the crash. Corn is charged with with drunken driving causing injury and taking a vehicle without the owner's consent. He faces a maximum of more than 14 years in prison, Hornick said.

Drama school stages first event

THE SCHOOL of Dramatic Arts will stage its first performances Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 10-11, in its new home at the Indoor Forest Theater.

The event, which will showcase the Pulitzer Prize-winning poetry of Mary Oliver, is the first in a series of five "Words on Stage: Voices from Great Literature" events, which feature readings by professional actors and actresses.

"She's a great American poet whom I love," said Suzanne Sturn, who is directing the performance. "She is a visionary poet like Henry David Thoreau or Ralph Waldo Emerson who is deeply connected to the natural world."

Oliver's poetry "offers revelations of our own human nature," she added.

Over the next four months, the school — which operates under the banner of the PacRep Theater — will offer "Words on Stage" readings on the subject of romance (in February), William Butler Yeats (in March), "The Spirit of the Wilderness" (in April) and "Canvas and Prose," which will be staged in May.

This week's readings are free and start at 7:30 p.m. The theater is located on Mountain View, between Santa Rita and Guadalupe. For more information, call (831) 622-0100.
