Herculean effort rescues three hikers

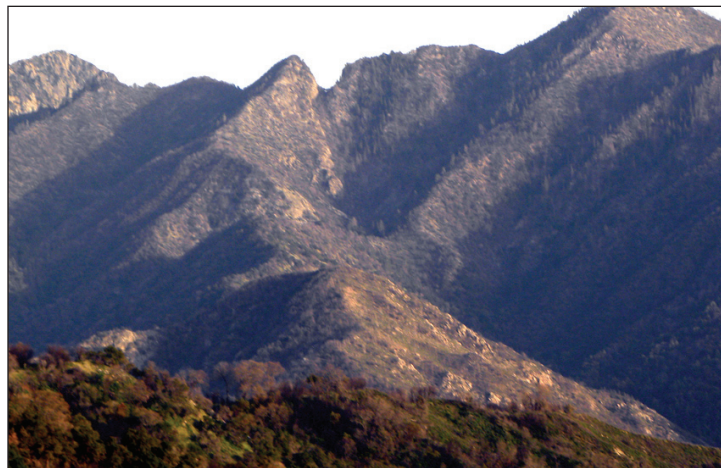

■ 22 miles over steep terrain in the rain and the dark

By CHRIS COUNTS

WET, COLD and exhausted after two days of hiking and camping in the Big Sur back country, three hikers used a cell phone last Sunday morning to call authorities for help.

In response, the Monterey County Sheriff's Search and Rescue team walked a grueling 22 miles across steep terrain to reach the hikers and bring them back to Bottchers Gap campground, where they had left their car. Skirting some of the highest peaks in the Ventana Wilderness, the rescue team was drenched by rain and hampered by darkness through much of the trek — all while carrying 30-pound packs.

Council may vote again on Guillen's future

■ September vote was 3-2 ... if it happened

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A SEPT. 21, 2010, closed-door city council meeting included a vote on whether to fire city administrator Rich Guillen, with council members voting 3-2 to keep him on the job. Or did they?

Speculation swirled around city hall this week, but the results of the September meeting are not being made public, which city councilman Jason Burnett said Tuesday is a violation of state open-meeting laws. City attorney Don Freeman, on the other hand, said state law requires confidentiality for the vote — if it happened — because it wasn't final.

At a city council meeting Feb. 1, Burnett asked Freeman to describe the motion made during the closed session last fall, as well as the vote, but Freeman said he could not make the information public.

Burnett countered that the council's failure to hold any closed sessions on Guillen's employment since last fall indicates the action was, in fact, final, which would require the city to disclose it.

"Despite requests from Ken Talmage and myself, no closed session meetings have been held in several months," he said after the meeting. "I believe the vote was final action, and the lack of follow-on meetings clearly shows that it is not an ongoing issue/negotiation/etc."

Therefore, he argued, the motion made and by whom, who seconded the motion, and the final vote should all be made public.

DUI driver had multiple drugs in her blood

■ Tests showed morphine, Vicodin, Ambien and others

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A HEAVILY sedated Deborah King nearly rear-ended a car and was weaving as she drove into Pacific Grove on her way to a therapist's appointment in September 2008, according to another motorist on Highway 68 that day. The other driver, Alesia Uchida, called 911 to alert police to the danger just moments before King ran into and killed Joel Woods as he was picking up his son from Pacific Grove Middle School, Uchida testified Monday in Monterey County Superior Court.

Prosecutor Steve Somers said the cause of King's erratic driving was a combination of drugs in her blood, including the painkillers morphine and Vicodin, along with anti-anxiety drugs Xanax and Wellbutrin and the sleeping aid Ambien.

Because she had five prior DUIs and had been repeatedly warned the drugs she was taking for chronic back pain could cause drowsiness, the Monterey County District Attorney's Office accused her of murdering him.

But King's defense is that Woods' death was the result of an accident.

How to find the homeless? Ask the formerly homeless

By KELLY NIX

COUNTING EVERY homeless person on the Monterey Peninsula is a daunting task. But that's exactly what a couple of dozen volunteers — with the help of "homeless guides" — set out to do last week.

On Jan. 26 at 5:30 a.m., volunteers met at the Salvation

Army Community Center in Seaside before going along with homeless guides — those who are or who have been homeless — to track the people on the Peninsula who live on the streets or in their cars.

Counting the homeless "is very difficult to do," said Fatima Dias, director of marketing and communication for United Way Monterey County, one of the organizations that helped with the effort.

The count, which also took place in Carmel, Pebble Beach, Big Sur and Carmel Valley, is necessary to obtain federal funding for homeless services. This year, Monterey County will receive about $1.7 million as a result of the last census in 2009.

Before dawn, a Pine Cone reporter accompanied guides Benji and Keith as they trekked west of Highway 1 to find the homeless who call the sand dunes in Sand City their "home."

"I used to live over here,"

Cal Am takeover bid: Based on wrong $$$?

By KELLY NIX

THE BACKERS of an effort to purchase California American Water could be seriously underestimating the value of the company by using oversimplified accounting methods, according to data compiled by The Pine Cone.

Activist Ron Weitzman, who leads a group called WaterPlus and was behind a failed 2005 ballot measure to take over the water company, has been telling local city councils, community groups and the media that it would probably cost $102.5 million to purchase Cal Am — a number he says he obtained from the California Public Utilities Commission.

But according to Richard Rauschmeier, a financial examiner with the PUC's Department of Ratepayer Advocates, the figures Weitzman is using are a "gross oversimplification" of the value of Cal Am because they are based on the depreciated value of the company's dams, pipelines, wells, tanks and other infrastructure.

The $102.5 million figure is Cal Am's rate base, which "is purely a mechanism used to determine what rates should be set at to allow for a reasonable return on the investment," Rauschmeier explained. "The con-

PacRep beats out Guild for chance to lease kids' theater

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER AN allegation that the Carmel City Council violated the state open meeting law last November by asking the city administrator to let Pacific Repertory Theatre oversee children's drama programs at the indoor Forest Theater rather than seeking proposals from various groups that might want the job, the city council discussed the issue again Tuesday night but arrived at the same decision.

Following the Nov. 2, 2010, decision, Adam Moniz accused the city council of acting outside of its agenda, which was to "receive report and provide policy direction on circulating a request for proposals for the management and operation of the Children's Experimental Theater."

Because the agenda item made no mention of PacRep, he argued, the council's action was illegal.

"If this current Carmel City Council does not like the Brown Act, the appropriate forum to redress your grievances is with the state Legislature," he said at the January council meeting. "Until the time that the Legislature acts and changes the law, however, you are obligated to follow it."

After Moniz aired his grievances, city attorney Don Freeman said the council did not stray from its task, because it did "provide policy direction" — which was to look into leasing the indoor theater to PacRep and its executive director, Stephen Mooror, who proposed to carry on the CET tradition by using it for his School of Dramatic Arts for youth.

"However, in an abundance of caution, I recommended the item be placed on the agenda this evening," Freeman said at the Feb. 1 council meeting. "The city can go out for an RFP if it chooses to do so, or it can pursue a lease," which would have to come back to the council for approval at a future meeting.

Competing proposals

Tuesday night, representatives of the Forest Theater Guild and PacRep outlined their proposals for the children's theater.

FTG board president Rebecca Barrymore said her group, which encountered financial troubles in recent years but has since paid off its debts, wants to lease the indoor theater to operate its Youth Academy of Arts. The program would cultivate performing skills, theater production, technical aspects and digital arts/production.

Barrymore pointed to the century-old Forest Theater's heritage as a community resource and said the guild would perpetuate that through its youth academy.

"The Forest Theater is a community theater, and we would like to continue it as such," she said, adding that PacRep, which is a professional theater company, already owns its own theater on Monte Verde Street.

Mooror said PacRep's School of Dramatic Arts has been operating for 11 years and needs a home. He proposed basing SoDA in the indoor Forest Theater and offering the classical theater element that CET did. He also hopes to resurrect a traveling troupe of student actors and use the small stage for poetry readings and other small community events.

Residents, past and present board members and other supporters spoke in favor of each proposal.

PacRep's SoDA "has been very successful, and they are Carmel residents, and it certainly is open to any children in this whole area," Barbara Brooks said.

"The guild is the appropriate group to oversee the CET," countered Megan Terry. "They stand ready to prove themselves to the community at large."

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac and Mayor Sue McCloud focused on the history of the well established SoDA program as justification for reaffirming the directive the council gave in November.

New, simpler permit regs launched

■ Meeting this week outlined new rules in P.G.

By KELLY NIX

PACIFIC GROVE city planners Monday outlined a new streamlined permit process designed to save applicants time and money and make the experience less painful.

In a meeting at the P.G. Community Center that drew nearly 50 people, three planners outlined improvements to simplify permit procedures for architectural design review, use permits, variances and other land use permits. The new rules went in to effect Feb. 4.

City officials say one of the reasons they decided to simplify permit procedures is that some residents — faced with the daunting permit process — have been “reticent” to come to the city for permits at all because they were “fearful” of the process.

“So they decide not to remodel, or they do it on the side over a weekend,” chief planner Lynn Burgess explained.

Now, when residents come to city hall with questions, they’ll have many of the answers available at their fingertips. That’s because the city has prepared new handouts with answers to frequently asked questions.

“Basic questions can be answered very readily without even having to talk to a planner,” Burgess said.

The city will also have handouts with information on fences, stormwater guidelines, the coastal zone, areas of special biological significance, landscaping and numerous other topics.

“It will help us improve customer service,” assistant planner Jill Miller told the audience, “because we can easily hand them out, email them, etc.”

The city has also launched the website www.pgparcel.net, a database which allows residents or others to enter an address and find out the APN, lot size and whether or not a structure is in an archaeological or coastal zone and if it’s on the city’s historic inventory list.

There are also plans to include more detail on the website including the ability to find information about a particular project.

“Say if you wanted to find out if there was a project happening at your neighbor’s house,” explained assistant planner Ashley Hefner, “The idea is you would be able to type on an address or APN ... and it will give you the basics.”

The new permit changes came after the P.G. City Council formed a committee to come up with ways to improve the permit-

Commission sees no need to add restrictions to wine tasting rooms

By MARY BROWNFIELD

ARE WINE tasting rooms actually operating like bars? And if so, is that bad? The Carmel Planning Commission discussed the subject last week and decided not to change any of its rules governing wine tasting but to do a better job of enforcing those it has.

Typically, wine tasting is approved as part of a wine shop. It can only take up to 30 percent of the store's floor area and must limit tastes to 2 ounces each.

"I was the one who asked that we look at this," commissioner Steve Hillyard explained at the Jan. 26 meeting. His inquiry was prompted by a particular tasting room in town that "looks like a bar. It's full and people who seem to be enjoying themselves, and the question came up, is this something we want to promote in this town?"

According to associate planner Marc Wiener, the city has approved eight wine shops that dedicate a portion of their floor-space to wine tasting. Six of those permits have been issued since 2007, and three more applications are in the pipeline.

But "even with the retail display occupying the majority of the floor space, a wine shop often takes on the appearance of a drinking establishment," Wiener said.

But Jane Beery, manager of the Cima Collina tasting room, said nothing about it resembles a wine bar. She pours half-ounce tastes of six wines to help clients determine which bottles they might want to buy.

"I am also the boss, and if I see somebody that has a problem or is not qualified to have any more wine or liquor of any kind, they're out of there," she continued. "So please don't confuse the wine tasting rooms with the wine bars, because they are not the same."

According to the permits city officials have approved for wine stores that offer samples, the tasting areas usually takes up no more than 30 percent of their floor space, and tastes are limited to 2 ounces apiece.

Jonathan Sapp said the 2-ounce limit is too strict, and so is the 30 percent floor space rule.

"It adds an inflexibility to the marketing of the wines, which is the reason for the tasting. I also feel there should be some flexibility on the amount of area for the tasting, but, yes, it should be a wine shop that offers tasting."

Resident Barbara Livingston argued people come to Carmel not to drink glasses of wine in tasting rooms, but for the peace and tranquility that could be destroyed by a proliferation in the number of drinking establishments.

"There is no real reason why anyone going into a wine tasting room should be given a glass of wine to drink," she said, adding that "a wine bar is a bar."

"What makes Carmel such a special place?" she continued. "Is it a wild, crazy nightlife? Or is it a place of great calm and beauty and tranquility?"

Chairman Jan Reimers asked commissioners if they wanted to change any of the rules governing wine tasting.

"We need to ensure that if it's acting like a bar, then it can't be operating within Carmel," Hillyard said, perhaps by not allowing tasting rooms to have tables at which patrons can sit. "I see no reason to become more lenient."

But commissioner Keith Paterson said he didn't see it as a big problem, and commissioner Victoria Beach wondered why it matters what they appear to be, as long as they are in fact following the rules governing what they are. She proposed enforcing the permit requirements that already exist.

"If there is a problem, then we need to pull them in at the next meeting and not dilly-dally around," agreed commissioner Steve Dallas. "Let's get on with it."

Watkins named officer of the year for reviving heroin user

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOR SAVING the life of a man who overdosed on heroin, Carmel police officer Jeff Watkins was selected as an Officer of the Year by the Monterey County Peace Officers Association and will be honored at the group's annual awards dinner Feb. 18, interim CPD Chief Mike Calhoun announced at Tuesday's city council meeting.

"This person is living well today, and has changed his life," Calhoun said of the unidentified heroin user, who had reportedly kicked his drug habit since the incident.

On Aug. 19, 2010, Watkins responded to a report of an unresponsive male in a Mission Street apartment. He arrived to find the victim lying on the floor and a female administering CPR. Watkins took over for the woman and applied chest compressions — which he did for 10 minutes, according to Calhoun. The man revived, and medics from Carmel Fire took over his care and transported him to Community Hospital.

Watkins, whose wife and three children also attended the council meeting to hear the announcement, said the rescue was an example of how police and firefighters collaborate to protect residents and visitors.

"It is a testament how we work so well together for the citizens of Carmel, and again this time we were able to save a life," he said.

At the awards dinner next month, he'll be joined by a California Department of Corrections officer, Jose Marron, who was selected as large agency Officer of the Year.

While off duty, Marron undertook a harrowing rescue of people in a burning van he came across while driving with his family on Highway 46. Two victims had died at the time of the crash, but Marron risked his life and managed to save the other two from the burning van.

D.A. investigator honored

Also at the dinner, Monterey County District Attorney's investigator Christina Gunter — who investigated the 2009 case of convicted rapist Carl Bergstrom and last year's case against New Zealand resident Michael Brady, who eventually pleaded guilty to the attempted rape of his 15-year-old stepdaughter at a Carmel hotel — will be honored for her successful work on "numerous complex sexual assault cases," according to district attorney Dean Flippo.

He told The Pine Cone Gunter has a particular knack for establishing rapport with victims and witnesses in highly sensitive cases and convincing them to testify. In the case against Bergstrom, who was arrested after a woman fled his Carmel house and said she'd been forcibly sodomized, she worked diligently with the victim and other women who testified about their experiences with the physician. After a jury found him guilty of forcible sodomy in the summer of 2009, Bergstrom was sentenced to six years in prison.

Working on the Brady case, in which a panic-stricken naked teenage girl came to the Carmel Police Department in the early morning hours of April 14, 2010, to report her stepfather had tried to rape her, Gunter established relationships with the victim and her mother before they returned home to New Zealand and continued working with them until Brady eventually pleaded guilty in July to assault with intent to commit rape.

Flippo also mentioned several other high-profile cases that benefited from Gunter's expertise, including a 65-year-old man convicted of 20 counts of sexual abuse of victims between the ages of 10 and 23, and the successful retrial of a man who had been convicted in 1997 for sexually assaulting a 13-year-old girl.

"She has a wonderful ability to communicate with victims, especially child victims," he said of Gunter. "She solidifies these cases, and for us to get these kinds of results in cases where there are oftentimes very few witnesses is a real credit to her skills as an investigator."

EXPERT RECOMMENDS NON-NATIVE TREES TO KEEP MONARCHS HAPPY

By KELLY NIX

A REPORT on the Monarch Grove Sanctuary in Pacific Grove recommends a series of measures to keep the grove healthy and attractive to butterflies, which have been thriving because of the recent warm weather.

The City of Pacific Grove contracted Stuart B. Weiss' Creekside Center for Earth Observation last summer to draw up a management plan for the sanctuary, a follow up to a plan he did for the city in 1998.

Among his recommendations for the sanctuary are placing eucalyptus trees for more wind shelter and "habitat complexity," trimming hazardous trees, planting more oak trees and assessing older trees and pitch canker risks of Monterey pines on the property.

Even though they are native to Australia and have nothing to do with the monarch's historic habitat, Weiss said it was critical for the city to plant new blue gum eucalyptus trees along the southern row of the grove — and he said it should be done in February and March after the monarchs leave.

"Planting while the soil is still charged with water is important, and deep irrigation during the summer will greatly assist tree establishment," according to the report.

This week, there were about 7,000 monarchs in the sanctuary, according to docents who volunteer there. That's a much higher number than fall 2009, when there was a sharp drop off in the number of butterflies in Pacific Grove. A poor pruning job that left many of the trees bare was blamed on the decreased numbers of monarchs.

Weiss' report also noted that the two dozen box eucalyptus trees that monarch enthusiast Bob Pacelli placed in the grove a few months ago in an effort to attract monarchs have helped the insects.

The box trees "provided roosting sites on some days, and had some effects on wind and light exposure at low heights along the southern edge," Weiss noted.

Pacelli said he agreed with much of what Weiss found in his analysis of the sanctuary.

"Stuart's report pretty much validates everything we've been doing," Pacelli told The Pine Cone. "I think the major point is we

Researchers count migrating grays

By SIRI HAKALA
Biologist, NOAA Fisheries

IF YOU haven't seen the whales themselves, you've surely seen the cars pulled off to the side along Highway 1 in Big Sur. The yearly southbound migration of gray whales is in full swing, and researchers from NOAA Fisheries arrived at their research site at Granite Canyon Jan. 1 to begin their count of the whales as they head to Mexico.

NOAA Fisheries monitors the population status, trends and health of the eastern North Pacific gray whales and has been conducting land-based gray whale counts from Granite Canyon since 1967. The Southwest Fisheries Science Center's Granite Canyon laboratory is a research facility perched above the ocean 12 miles south of Carmel on Highway 1. In addition to the gray whale surveys, the site is used by the UC Davis Marine Pollution Studies Laboratory and by scientists from the California Department of Fish and Game.

On the first day of the new year, NOAA scientists from SWFSC arrived with two large white trailers and set up their observation stations. Observations are done with a combina-

HOMELESS

in the dunes, Keith said.

A black man in his early 40s, Keith said he became homeless and ended up living in a tent in the dunes after making “bad choices,” which included using drugs before he went to rehab in 2003.

“I didn’t want to burden my parents, so I dealt with [my problems] on my own,” he said.

Keith led the way to the first Sand City encampment — on the site of a proposed $300 million ecoresort a stone’s throw away from the recreation trail. It was a makeshift tent made of draped tarps and blankets nestled between bushes and trees.

A bicycle nearby was partially covered, and a pair of crutches rested against a tree. The guides whispered, because the occupant was likely sleeping.

“I think someone is in there,” said Benji, using a pen and clipboard to document the number of homeless people on a provided tally sheet.

As it got brighter, the pair made their way on a road parallel to Highway 1 for a couple of minutes before coming across a blue store-bought tent with a spray painted San Francisco 49ers logo on the outside. A portable barbecue was outside the tent.

Benji noted the encampment and the two moved on, walking uphill on ice plant to find two more sites, one offering a perfect cliff-top view of the Pacific Ocean.

As they continued through the sand dunes looking for other homeless people, the two men continued to share their own stories with The Pine Cone.

Keith explained that while he currently leases an apartment in Seaside for $850 per month, he’s behind in rent. The difference between being homeless and not, for him, has come down to a few bucks.

“I’m about $150 behind for January,” he said. “And the late charges keep piling up.”

To raise money, Keith is in the process of selling a few of his limited possessions — a TV, his broken truck and other items.

Keith’s connection to the street is strong, and he still regularly goes to The Salvation Army’s Good Samaritan Center in Sand City for coffee and other services. The center was the last stop for the guides during the census.

“These are my people,” he said as people of various ethnicities in their 20s to 70s lined up for the center’s 8:30 a.m. opening so they could get a bite to eat, take a shower or do some laundry — services provided by The Salvation Army at no cost.

Keith, who also has a 13-month-old daughter who lives with her mother in another city, said he is trying to find a job so he can support his little girl.

He regularly goes to a career center and the Seaside library to check Internet job site, and recently tried to get a delivery job at a local company but was turned down.

“I’ll probably lose my apartment, then get hired” for a job, he said, understating the irony.

Benji, a cheerful man in his late 50s, has for years traveled from state to state as a carnival worker installing bleachers for county and state fairs. He has lived on and off in Monterey County for a long time.

But Benji concedes traveling is difficult, and he soon wants to go to Hawaii, where much of his family lives. He also wants to have an apartment and a regular life.

“I want to settle down,” Benji said. “I just want one job, one woman. Maybe have some kids running around.”

For the past couple of months, Benji has assisted other homeless people by working with Shelter Outreach Plus, a Marina organization that provides housing and other support for homeless and victims of domestic violence.

“I get watery eyes when I help people,” he said. “It makes me feel good. The people I help get watery eyes too.”

While waiting outside The Salvation Army in Sand City, another man told Benji a couple needed diapers for their baby. He told him he would bring them some.

“I’ll make a mental note that they need diapers,” he said. “Because the children come first.”

At night, Benji sleeps at any one of numerous churches on the Peninsula that offer shelter for single men as part of Shelter Outreach Plus’ I-HELP program.

The guides received a stipend — $10 per hour — to help out with the census. While it was Keith’s first year, it was Benji’s third.

The census, required every two years by Department of Housing and Urban Development, enables the county to obtain federal and state funding to pay for homeless services.

The Coalition of Homeless Services Providers, in partnership with United Way Monterey County, Monterey County Department of Social and Employment Services and Monterey County Behavioral Health, sponsored the census.

Dias said there are two key elements to the count. The first is an observational count. The government requires that volunteers see those they are counting, not just take the word of their friend or family.

“Unless we see them ... they are not counted,” Dias said.

Counting the “invisible homeless” is even more difficult. Those include the working poor — individuals or families who crash on someone’s couch, live in a relative’s garage or camp in a friend’s backyard.

At the Good Samaritan Center, a couple in their 50s appeared to be living in their van. They had cats and a dog that slept in the window while they ate and did laundry.

Impossible to count, Dias said, are the homeless migrant workers who travel to Arizona in the winter looking for work.

“We have fewer homeless people in Monterey County in January than we do in the summer,” she said.

On Jan. 25, the night before the street count, volunteers performed a separate count at the shelters, and transitional housing facilities. To avoid duplication, the homeless stayed at the shelters until after the street count was completed the next morning, Dias said.

More information about family size, duration of the time they’ve been homeless, ethnicity, age and gender was also collected during the census.

The final tally of those counted during the homeless census will be complete and available to the public in the spring.

Orchid group welcomes public to monthly talks

THE CARMEL Orchid Society holds a free meeting the first Monday of each month and hopes a big crowd will attend the Feb. 7 talk by Ken Jacobson entitled, “Cymbidium Seedling Surprises!”

Jacobson first learned about the captivating flowers in the 1960s from his uncle and has been growing cymbidiums for more than four decades. After his wife, Amy, caught the addiction, they began raising cattleyas, laelias and many others, too, bringing their total collection to more than 5,000 plants. A published writer of journal articles, Jacobson is also a judge for the American Orchid Society and heads the Cymbidium Society of America’s judging program.

The Carmel group’s membership numbers more than 70, and at the monthly meetings, members (and anyone else who wants to attend) listen to a speaker address an orchid-related subject, set up a raffle table of orchids, hold a show and tell of blooming plants cultivated by members and offered for sale, partake in light refreshments and have a short business meeting.

The Feb. 7 meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, 4590 Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley.

VALUE

nection between rate base and the worth of a company is tenuous at best.”

Basing the worth of a company on essentially its “book value,” is not often done, explained Pacific Grove certified public accountant Jim Calandra.

That’s because the book value and fair market value are disparate, Calandra said.

“Most things are not purchased at book value,” he said, “because it is a meaningless number.”

While it’s possible that actual value could be the same as book value, or even lower, it’s much more likely, for a company such as Cal Am, that its actual worth is far higher than book value.

For example, an office building that cost $100 million to

And after his safe return at the hands of authorities, 22-year-old Corey King was arrested after it was learned that he was wanted on a charge of felony petty theft.

Hikers set sights on dramatic peak

Residents of Pacific Grove, King, 24-year-old Joshua Rutt and 19-year-old Jeffrey Rutt left Friday from Bottchers Gap, a national forest campground located about eight miles southeast of Highway 1 at the end of Palo Colorado Road. The trio of backpackers was accompanied by a dog.

The hikers’ goal, presumably, was to reach Ventana Double Cone, a 4,853-foot peak that is easily identified by a prominent notch in it. Early Spanish explorers called the notch, “Ventana,” which translates into English as “window.”

MCSO Sgt. Joe Moses, who was part of the rescue effort, confirmed that the hikers spent Saturday night on top of the rugged peak, where they encountered cold weather, rain, high winds and snow.

According to Moses, the sheriff’s office received a call from King Sunday at about 9:45 a.m. “We geared up and hit the trail at about 1 p.m.,” he said.

Starting at Bottchers Gap — which is located about 2,050 feet above sea level — the rescue team circled the Little Sur River watershed, ascending Devils Peak (4,158 feet) before descending to Pat Spring Camp. At Pat Spring, which is located about halfway to Ventana Double Cone, four members of the team set up a base camp while the other five continued on.

Just past 4,766-foot Uncle Sam Mountain — and about 2.5 miles from the Ventana Double Cone — the rescue team found the hikers, who had descended from their camp near the top of the mountain. Ill prepared for wet weather, the hikers’ tent, sleeping bags and clothing were soaked. Even their matches were wet. According to the sheriff’s office, Jeffrey Rutt appeared to be hypothermic, and the dog was unable to walk.

“They were cold and wet,” Moses reported. “They got rained and snowed on. They were wearing cotton clothing and had no rain gear.”

The rescue team provided the hikers with dry clothing and medical assistance.

Law enforcement officials had hoped to evacuate the hikers by helicopter at Pat Spring, but cloud cover made the expensive effort too dangerous. So the only option available to the ailing hikers was an arduous — but thankfully mostly downhill — 11-mile trek. The hikers and the rescue team made it back to Bottchers Gap at about 3 a.m., about 14 hours after the rescue effort began.

While the return to civilization no doubt brought relief to the soggy hikers, King’s elation was short lived. He was taken to jail as a result of his outstanding warrant.

“The judge really wanted to see him,” Moses said.

As for the rescue team, its members earned a well deserved rest.

Formed in 1963, the rescue team features about 15 deputies who are in exceptional physical shape. In 1989, a volunteer unit was established. There are 20 volunteers on the rescue team, but “we’re always looking for more,” Moses said. (If you’re interested in becoming a volunteer, visit www.montereysar.org.)

Calling ahead for conditions

Andrew Madsen, a spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service, said hikers need to use good judgment when entering the back country if wet weather has been forecast.

“It flies in the face of common sense,” Madsen said of the hikers’ decision to make the trek. “But you’re always going to have extreme thrill seekers, no matter what anybody says to them. We always encourage people to call our King City office at (831) 385-5434 to check on what the conditions are like. It’s a great time of year for a day hike, but overnight stays can be tricky.”

Even in good weather, the route to Ventana Double Cone can be hazardous. Many hikers visiting the peak spend a night at shady Pat Spring Camp or Big Pines Camp before making the final ascent. But those areas burned severely during the 2008 Basin Complex Fire, which killed many trees. As a consequence, falling trees are common, which makes it dangerous to camp there.

build will have a depreciated book value of nothing in less than 20 years. But its actual value may have gone up.

Weitzman defended the numbers.

“I’m just trying to show that using the ratebase as a working assumption is reasonable, not a ‘gross oversimplification,’” Weitzman said.

Because Cal Am shareholders earn a percentage based on the ratebase of the company, WaterPlus figures $102 million is a “solid working assumption” of Cal Am’s value.

Since Cal Am insists it’s not interested in selling the company, the process would be subject to an eminent domain proceeding, in which the value of the company would be determined through court hearings and based on the fair market value of the company, not its book value.

“Nobody can say what the cost would be at this point,” said Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Bowie. “We are not for sale. If this movement [by WaterPlus] were to progress, it would require a hostile government takeover of private property, and it would have to be done through eminent domain.”

Bowie said Cal Am could be worth “two, three, four, five times as much,” as WaterPlus estimates.

“The public should know what they are getting in to,” she said.

Residents in Felton fought Cal Am for about seven years to purchase their water system, which proponents originally estimated would cost about $2.5 million.

When the San Lorenzo Valley Water District finally purchased the Felton system in 2008 [through a settlement to avoid eminent domain proceedings], it cost about $13 million. The Felton system had only 1,350 customers, compared to Cal Am’s 40,000.

Though the price tag to buy the Felton system was much more than originally expected, Weitzman said WaterPlus is trying to be transparent about the prospect of buying Cal Am.

“WaterPlus is not Felton FLOW,” the group that pushed the sale of Felton’s system. “We are not over-promising to sell a project. We are simply doing the best we can to present as objective a case as possible before Cal Am ratepayers.”

Some have opined that if Cal Am was purchased, it would delay the construction of the regional water project, which includes a desalination plant in Marina that would provide an alternative to drawing from the Carmel River, the Peninsula’s primary water source.

Weitzman said WaterPlus supports the regional project, and a public agency would only “take Cal Am’s place at the desal table” and would not upset the water purchase agreement or hinder the project’s construction.

He also says public ownership of Cal Am would result in lower costs for water customers, since the public version of the company would not try to make a profit.

Supporters of private ownership, however, say government-run organizations are less efficient and have less incentive to control costs, pay their employees too much and often end up costing more.

WaterPlus, whose members have met in a private Carmel Valley home since September, has forwarded drafts of the petition — which calls for the replacement of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District with a new public agency — to LAFCO and the MPWMD attorney for review, both of which should be completed soon.

Weitzman said members are paying out of pocket for the group’s attorneys fees. The group has also hired a company to handle its petition drive for the more than 5,000 signatures it needs to place an initiative on the November ballot.

PUBLIC PARTICIPATION HEARINGS

About Public Participation Hearings

The California Public Utilities Commission will hold a local Public Participation Hearing at the time and date listed above. These hearings will be your opportunity to provide your comments regarding this GRC to the assigned Administrative Law Judge in Application 10-07-007.

The hearings will be facilitated by an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). The ALJ will consider public comments and include them in this proposed application. The hearing's location is wheelchair accessible. If you need a language interpreter or need special assistance, please contact the CPUC's Public Advisor's office at the address listed below at least five days in advance of the hearing date.

Customer services representatives from California American Water be present to assist with individual customer billing and service concerns. Staff from the CPUC's Public Advisor's Office will also be present at all meetings to assist you.

What is a General Rate Case (GRC)?

The CPUC requires that each water company with more than 10,000 customers to file a GRC every three years. In accordance with this requirement, California American Water has filed Application 10-07-007 to set rates for the years 2012 to 2014 based on forecasts of water demand and costs associated with supplying water.

Summary

The proposed revenue increase for the Monterey District is outlined in the chart below. For more detailed information about these rate designs please visit the "news" section of our website www.californiaamwater.com or by visiting our office at 511 Forest Lodge Road during normal business hours. Information will also be available at the Public Participation Hearing.

Primary Drivers of the Rate Increase

The proposed rate increase is critical to sustain and improve the integrity of the area's water supply system and offset increases in operational and maintenance costs. Some of the major infrastructure projects that these rates will help fund within the Monterey service district include rehabilitating wells, upgrading a booster station, constructing new water storage tanks, and replacing water mains.

The CPUC Process

The CPUC's Division of Ratepayer Advocates (DRA) will review this application. The DRA is an independent arm of the CPUC, created by the Legislature to represent the interests of investor owned utility customers throughout the state and obtain the lowest possible rate consistent with reliable and safe service levels. The DRA has a multi-disciplinary staff with expertise in economics, finance, accounting and engineering. The DRA's views do not necessarily reflect those of the CPUC. Other parties of record will also participate.

The CPUC may hold evidentiary hearings whereby parties of record present their proposals in direct testimony and are subject to cross-examination before the assigned Administrative Law Judge. These hearings are open to the public but only those who are parties of record may present evidence or cross-examine witnesses during evidentiary hearings. Members of the public may attend to observe, but only parties of record are permitted to participate.

After considering all proposals and evidence presented during the hearing process, the ALJ will issue a draft decision for review and approval by the five CPUC Commissioners. The commissioners may adopt all or part of California American Water's request, amend or modify it, or deny the application. The CPUC's final decision may be different from California American Water's proposed application.

If you are writing or e-mailing a letter to the Public Advisor's office regarding any portion of the application identified in this notice, please reference the Application 10-07-007 in your communication. All public comments will be circulated to the Commissioners, the assigned Administrative Law Judge and the Water Division Staff for review. You may view the GRC proposed application at the CPUC's Formal Files Office in San Francisco, CA Monday – Friday, 8:00 a.m. to noon.

LED BY Jule Muegge's sensational play, the Carmel High School girls basketball team breezed to its 15th victory in a row Wednesday, easily dispatching Stevenson School on its home court.

Muegge — who currently leads all Monterey Bay hoopsters with an average of 20 points a game — made 11 of 14 shots on her way to scoring 28 points. The senior also hauled down five rebounds and swiped the ball from her opponents six times. Layla Nichols-Cosgrove paced the Padres with seven rebounds as Carmel High dominated the boards. Abby Ferrell added five steals.

The dynamic duo of Muegge and Sarah Anderson lit up the scoreboard last Friday, leading the Carmel High to its 14th straight win at King City High. The final score was 60-38. Muegge — scored 24 points, adding three assists and three steals. Anderson — who leads all local players in three point shooting by a wide margin — sank six shots from beyond the arc.

Leading the Carmel High on defense was MacKenzie Dooner, who grabbed 10 rebounds and blocked four shots. With 14 blocks, the Padres made the Mustangs work hard for every shot they made.

The two wins improve Carmel High's overall mark to 16-2. The Padres are 9-0 in league play.

■ Carmenita steps up to podium

At last Saturday's Overfelt Classic tournament in San Jose, Jack Carmenita led all Carmel High wrestlers with a fifth place finish in his weight class.

"Jack wrestled great, and his intensity and technique reached a new level," said Russ Shugars, the Padres wrestling coach. "I always get excited when I see one of our wrestlers have a breakthrough performance. We come to this tournament for the tough competition, so it was a nice surprise to get a wrestler on the podium."

The Padres are gearing up for their last dual meet of the season. They will battle arch rival Pacific Grove High for the "Headgear" trophy, which has been at Carmel for the past three years. "But the Breakers are fielding one of their toughest teams in recent history," Shugars said. "We have our work cut out for us."

The match begins at 6:30 p.m. in the P.G. High gymnasium.

Renaissance woman turns husband's doodles into sculptures

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE MANY painters, sculptors and photographers are influenced by great works in their field, sculptor Lenore Meyer is inspired by her late husband's doodles.

Meyer is inspired by her late husband's doodles.

Meyer's sculpture — as well as her poetry — will be showcased in an exhibit that opened this week at the Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center. The gallery will host a poetry reading and reception for the show in the Sunset Center lobby, Thursday, Feb. 10, from 4 to 6 p.m.

Meyer's fascinating creative journey began when she was just a teenager. At 15, she started offering drama and speech lessons to her neighbors. When she was only 18, she opened "Miss Lenore's School of Speech and Drama" in Miami. A natural on the stage, she entertained troops during WWII. But she didn't take up sculpture until the relatively advanced age of 30.

"My husband had a Kerry Blue Terrier that he loved so much," the 89-year-old Meyer recalled. "When he lost her, he was very sad. So I sculpted a portrait of the dog. I had never sculpted before. Hank was so happy when he saw the sculpture. He used to sit and pet it."

While Meyer's dog sculptures have brought joy to many admirers, they have also led to a few awkward moments. A friend was afraid to look at a one of her works because she thought it was real — and stuffed by a taxidermist. Meanwhile, another family dog mistook a canine sculpture for the Real McCoy and tried to mount it.

Meyer's dog sculptures, though, are not the focus of this month's exhibit. Instead, the gallery will showcase a series of abstract sculptures that Meyer modeled after Hank's doodles. Her husband, who passed away in 1999, was a public relations executive who would doodle when he was on the phone. "He would make the most exquisite little doodles," Meyer remembered. "As an artist, I had never seen such beautiful designs. Hank was a great problem solver and the bigger the problem he was solving, the bigger the doodles."

At first, Meyer crafted gold cufflinks based on her husband's doodles. But soon she advanced to sculpture, creating large and small pieces made of steel and fiberglass.

"It's very avant-garde," said Meyer of her abstract sculpture. "I express my love for my husband through them."

After living in Miami for most of her adult life, Meyer visited Carmel in 1985 — and Florida never looked the same

Quartet and pianist come to Sunset Center

By CHRIS COUNTS

ONE OF classical music's most dynamic quartets will be joined on the Sunset Center stage Friday, Feb. 4 by one of its most promising young pianists.

"It's exciting to hear young artists who are so mature," said Amy Anderson, president of the nonprofit CMMB.

Formed a decade ago while three of its members were students at the Cleveland Institute of Music, the Jupiter String Quartet features Nelson Lee and Meg Freivogel on violin, Liz Freivogel on viola and Daniel McDonough on cello. The ensemble is truly a family affair — not only are Meg and Liz Freivogel sisters, but the former is married to McDonough.

The quartet has won first prize in the Banff International String Quartet Competition and taken home the grand prize in the Fischhoff National Chamber Music Competition. They also are recipients of Chamber Music America's Cleveland Quartet Award, which "honors and promotes a rising young string quartet whose artistry demonstrates that it is in the process of establishing a major career." The last award was particularly satisfying for the quartet — the now-disbanded Cleveland Quartet is one of the ensemble's biggest influ-

A heart for students, more sweetheart stuff, and a bistro breakfast

By MARY BROWNFIELD

APPROXIMATELY 65 percent of the students at California State University Monterey Bay receive financial aid made possible by taxpayer grants and loans, private endowments, and even fundraisers like the Have a Heart for Students Dinner & Auction set for Saturday, Feb. 26.

"As you can imagine, more and more students are depending on scholarships to get through college, so this event is really important to them," commented committee member Julie Ann Lozano. "Having a son who was just awarded a scholarship to a university in Iowa, I can't even begin to tell you how much it meant to our family."

During the dinner, a CSUMB faculty member will be assigned to each table to act as a "dining concierge," who will be working for tips that will be donated to the scholarship fund. And the silent and live auctions will feature items like a pearl necklace from Tiffany & Co., an instant wine cellar, tickets to the Panetta Lecture Series and a "treasure chest" worth at least $500, among other items. KSBW-TV meteorologist Jim Vanderzwaan will emcee.

The evening will begin with a reception and silent auction from 5 to 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner and the live auction. Cocktail attire is requested for the soiree, which will be held in the University Center on Sixth Avenue. Tickets, which are $85 per person, may be purchased at www.csumb.edu/heart or by calling (831) 582-4141.

■ Clambake culinary lineup

The chefs cooking in the second annual Clambake for a Cure, the Feb. 10 Pebble Beach party raising money for brain cancer research, announced the dishes they will be preparing.

Chef Terry Teplitzky from Michael's Catering, for instance, will serve Manila clams "Casino" ceviche, and chef Tyler Stone will feature filet of lamb with black garlic sauce and petite vegetables, while Cannery Row Brewing Co. chef Mark Ayers will cook his signature beef sliders with crispy shallots and Marin French Brie. Chef Todd Fisher (the Kitchen) will cook razor clam and Kobe beef shabu shabu with shellfish dashi, and chef Deric Wenzler of Baum and Blume in Carmel Valley will serve polenta with clams and Taleggio, as well as shellfish cocktails. Slanted Door chef Charles Phan will prepare dumplings steamed in banana leaf, chef Jamie Lauren of Beechwood Restaurant and "Top Chef All Stars" will showcase hamachi, and chef David Frappiea of Chamisal will bring geoduck clam risotto with matsutaki mushrooms and geoduck clam sashimi. Finally, chef Peter Armellino from The Plumed Horse will make Bellwether Farms ricotta cheese gnocchi with caviar and veloute.

Several wineries will pour alongside the star chefs throughout the evening.

The Clambake for a Cure takes its name from the Crosby Clambake, as the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am was once known, and it will be held at the Chateau in Pebble Beach following the first competition round of the tournament Thursday, Feb. 10, from 4 to 9 p.m. Pro golfer Jonathan Byrd, who is playing in the AT&T Pro-Am, lost his father to brain cancer and will attend the Clambake to help fight the Peter B's BrewPub in the Portola Hotel at the foot of Alvarado Street is hoping to woo football fans for Super Bowl Sunday with special menu items like the Roethlisburger — "a massive burger topped with an omelet including cheese, bacon, sausage patty, beef patty and onions" — as well as Bratwurst with homemade sauerkraut, a Green Bay specialty. Texas-style ribs will be made in honor of Dallas, the host city.

All football food requires libation, so Peter B's will offer $5 Captain Morgan drink specials and suds from its own microbrewery — the only one on the Peninsula.

Guests can enter to win a one-night stay at the Portola Hotel and dinner at Jacks.

The festivities will begin at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6, in Peter B's at Two Portola Plaza in Monterey. To learn more, call (866) 711-1534 or visit www.portolahotel.com.

"We haven't had them here before, but we're very excited to have a spot for them," Anderson explained. "They're very accomplished and very polished."

The pianist, 27-year-old Benjamin Kim, came to prominence in 2006 after winning the prestigious ARD International Music Competition in Munich, Germany. For those who were familiar with his talent, the award came as no surprise — at the age of eight, he performed his first public solo recital and he made his orchestral debut when he was just 12.

A native of Portland, Ore., Kim is now lives Berlin, Germany.

"He's quite phenomenal," Anderson said.

At Sunset Center, the quartet will perform György Kurtág's 12 Microludes for String Quartet and Beethoven's String Quartet in A Major, Op. 18, No. 5. Kim will join the quartet for the finale, Shostakovich's Piano Quintet in G Minor, Op. 57.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. Kai Christiansen will present a pre-concert talk at 7 p.m. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Tickets range from $31 to $55. For more information, call (831) 625-2212 or visit www.chambermusicmontereybay.com.

Best known for his role as the host of the radio show, "A Prairie Home Companion," storyteller, humorist, author and musician Garrison Keillor performs at Sunset Center Monday, Feb. 7. In addition to his radio show, Keillor is the author of the best-selling book, "Lake Wobegon Days."

When The Pine Cone went to press Thursday, only a few tickets remained for the nearly sold-out show. For more information, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

KING

Another motorist who witnessed the accident, Erica Clardy, told jurors that after Woods was hit and thrown into the street, King stopped, stepped out and asked something to the effect of, "Did I do that?"

"She had a lack of reaction. If I had just hit someone, I would have been freaking out a little bit," she said. "But she was just standing, saying, 'What did I do?'" Her arms were limp at her sides."

Clardy also said King wasn't crying.

An employee at the middle school, Randle Withrow, had his back to the street when the crash occurred but immediately rushed to the car and retrieved Woods' son, 12-year-old Jacob, to take him back into the school. When he returned, he said, King "walked up to me and said, 'Did I do this?'" She said it in a bewildered state, like she didn't really know."

That common thread ran through the testimonies of the first three witnesses Somers called after he and public defender Heather Rogers made their opening statements in the case Jan. 31. During the accounts of Woods' death, his widow, Adrianna, and other family members sat in a front row of the courtroom and listened, often crying.

In his opening argument, Somers detailed the drugs King had taken — many of which bear warning labels against driving while taking them — and her decision to get in her BMW SUV and drive to a noon appointment in Pacific Grove rather than ask her boyfriend, who was in their Monterey home at the time, for a ride or take a taxi. He described her SUV's drifting into the side of Woods' truck, which he was preparing to enter after putting his son in the passenger seat.

"He was sandwiched between the two cars, and she still wasn't braking," Somers said. "When the mirror hit his hip at the 35 mph speed, Joel Woods was thrown through the air, landed on his head and sustained massive injuries to his head." He was airlifted to a trauma center and died about 12 hours later.

King failed field sobriety tests at the scene and was arrested for DUI — a charge that was elevated to murder after Woods died — Somers said.

"We believe she acted in a conscious disregard for human life," he said.

The soft-spoken Rogers, however, contends King — who was seriously injured a number of years ago when she was attacked while working as a prison guard — did not know driving while taking those drugs at therapeutic levels as prescribed by her doctor was dangerous. She hopes to convince the jury King was involved in a tragic accident that killed a man but is not guilty of murder.

"She didn't wake up believing she would be acting recklessly. She didn't wake up with an, 'I don't care,' attitude. She woke up with her normal routine," Rogers said.

The defense attorney then went on to describe the straight stretch of slightly downhill Forest Avenue in front of the middle school as "tricky" and said it continues to narrow.

"As Deborah King was driving down that grade, adjusting her speed to slow for a hill, adjusting to the left and trying to avoid traffic, Joel Woods steps off the curb; he steps off into traffic," Rogers said, and King's car clipped him.

"She was not impaired that morning. This was an accident. This was a split-second miscalculation on a tricky part of road," she said. "It's not a murder; it's not a manslaughter."

Doctor warned King

But a Salinas physician who treated King for chronic pain and anxiety said King was repeatedly warned that the combination of drugs she was taking could make her sleepy.

"I saw her monthly, and I told her on almost every visit that all these medications had the potential to sedate and that therefore one has to be very cautious and certainly not overuse them," Dr. Adelheid Ebenhoech said in court Tuesday.

She also said that if she had known of King's multiple DUI convictions, she would never have prescribed morphine and Vicodin at all.

"If I had known about her history, I would never have agreed to prescribe that regimen for her," Ebenhoech said. "I would have refused, and she would have been required to seek pain management through a specialist."

Thursday's court session began with Rogers' attempt to convince Monterey County Superior Court Judge Russell Scott to declare a mistrial, because criminalist Ronald Kitagawa told the jury he found evidence of marijuana and THC in King's blood — even though he had been told not to mention them because they were inactive and had no effect on her level of intoxication at the time of the accident. Jurors were told at the time to disregard that information, but Rogers argued Thursday morning it had prejudiced them, warranting a mistrial.

"The witness was spring-loaded to deliver prejudicial information," she argued. She also argued Somers had violated rules regarding information that should have been provided during the discovery process of preparing for the case.

Somers countered that he dealt with the problematic testimony when it was delivered and said jurors would not be prejudiced by the revelation, especially considering the gravity of other evidence, such as the five DUIs King received in the 1990s, her two-year prison term, and the video testimony of Jacob Woods, who was 12 at the time, describing the crash that killed his father. He also said he had told Kitagawa not mention the inactive elements of marijuana he had found in King's blood.

Scott said he did not find any egregious discovery issues and agreed the jury would be able to rule fairly in the case in spite of Kitagawa's testimony, so he denied Rogers' motion for a mistrial.

"The question in the court's mind is whether there is some negative impact that is injected into the case that makes it impossible for the jury to process the facts," he said. "It just doesn't have that kind of impact."

He then instructed the jury, when it entered the courtroom, to ignore that part of Kitagawa's testimony and disregard it while deciding the case, and Somers called his next witness, California Highway Patrol Sgt. Matthew Lindholm. Lindholm, who trains officers to evaluate motorists for drug use and has been working with the CHP for almost three decades, discussed each of the tests King underwent at the scene of the crash and explained that many of her reactions, such as missing her nose while trying to touch it while her eyes were closed, indicated she was under the influence of drugs.

As recently as Monday, Burnett said, Freeman agreed with him.

"Mayor Sue McCloud disagreed and had a conversation with Don on Monday night," he said, and on Tuesday, Freeman said he would not make the vote public. He also said another attorney agreed with his position on the matter.

At the council meeting, Burnett asked why his requests for closed session meetings about Guillen's employment had been denied or ignored, but he received no answer. He then made a motion calling for such a meeting as soon as possible, but it failed 2-3, with McCloud and councilwomen Karen Sharp and Paula Hazdovac voting against it.

"Either this is an ongoing issue, in which case there is no justification for blocking closed session meetings, or it is a resolved issue, and the Sept. 21 vote is final and needs to be made public," Burnett said Wednesday. "Either way, the council is not doing its job" and is in violation of the Brown Act.

But he said he was heartened by McCloud's promise to schedule another closed session and Freeman's pledge to reveal the council's closed-door actions once they are final.

Burnett also said he had a followup call in to Freeman and had called Monterey County District Attorney Dean Flippo seeking information about the process and what resources are available to pursue the issue.

"I don't want to have to go there, but I want to understand what the options are," he said.

At around 11 p.m. Tuesday, about an hour after the council meeting ended, Burnett posted on his website, "At least the public now knows who is pushing for a resolution and who is deferring to the mayor, who seems to have no sense of urgency to resolve the most pressing issue facing the city. Sorry that I wasn't more successful in getting our city council to be open and honest with the public."

again. "I was meant to be born here," she said of Carmel. "I rented a home here in the summers until I just couldn't stand it anymore. Then I bought a house here. I just love it in Carmel."

A true Renaissance woman (she's a published author and a talented painter as well), Meyer is also an accomplished poet. Each of the sculptures on display in the gallery are accompanied by a poem. Next to a sculpture of a dancer are the following words:

"Love is a dancer," the poem reads. "She holds the answer to life's rhythm and beat. She puts wings on your feet, so step up and take a chance when loves asks you to dance."

The poem is a great metaphor for Meyer's busy life. "I'm a doer," she added. "Time is measured by accomplishments, not age."

While Meyer and Sunset Center assistant director Barbara Davison were making plans for the sculpture exhibit, the former spontaneously began to recite her poetry.

"She knew them all by heart," Davison recalled. "And they were beautiful. You could tell how much of herself and her life she expressed in her poetry by the way she recited the poems. There was so much emotion."

In response Davison suggested incorporating the poems into the exhibit, something she said has never been done before at Sunset Center. She said the end result is a fitting tribute to touching love story between Meyer and her late husband.

"They had a magical 50 years together, and she adored him," Davison added. "It was after his passing that she earnestly started expressing herself and her feelings in her poetry and sculpture work."

The exhibit will be on display until the end of the month. The gallery is located at San Carlos and Ninth.

Gallery North presents group show

The many talents of a trio of local women are featured in an exhibit opening Saturday, Feb. 5, at Gallery North.

"M&M3" showcases monotypes and mixed media by Barbara Johnson, Evelyn Klein and Bayesteh "B.G." Ghaffary.

Johnson, who has lived in Carmel for more than 30 years, is a painter and a printmaker. Her new display includes a group of monotypes that bear a striking resemblance to her paintings.

"Barbara is a very interesting lady," gallery owner Barbara Kreitman explained. "She came out of the school of abstract expression, and she's stuck with it. She was way ahead of her time."

Klein's new work uses bees — and beehives — as metaphors for the idea that cooperation is the key to any industrious endeavor.

"Evelyn's pieces are really quite spiritual," Kreitman said. "She listens to her inner voice, and she draws a lot from nature."

Ghaffary, who lives in the Carmel Highlands, is deeply influenced by nature.

"B.G. is really innovative," Kreitman added. "She knows no boundaries, and she creates what's in her heart."

The gallery, which will host a reception from 6 to 8 p.m., is located on the northwest corner of Sixth and Dolores. The exhibit will be on display until Feb. 20. For more information, call (831) 620-1987 or visit www.gallerynorthcarmel.com.

AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am ticket sales up — again

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE NUMBER of tickets already sold for next week's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am is higher than it was this time last year, setting up the golf tournament for a second year in a row of growth, according to Monterey Peninsula Foundation President Steve Worthy. The foundation organizes the annual tournament that features PGA Tour professionals and amateur partners, including many celebrities.

"We are right at 10 percent ahead of sales with general tickets," he said Thursday. Add to the mix the special Fairway Club ticket package offered exclusively by Costco for the first time, and that number jumps to 25 percent higher.

"We're quite pleased with where we are," Worthy said. "And day-of sales are always quite a variable with us."

With a great forecast predicted, ticket sales on the day of the tournament could be strong, too.

"Any day will be a great day to come out and watch," Worthy said. "In good weather years, we've done quite well

After revising plan, Pebble Beach couple gets OK for cottage

A PEBBLE Beach couple can build a caretaker's cottage on their property — they just can't build it where they wanted to.

Two months ago, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors unanimously denied a plan by Leslie and Idamarie Pelio to build a caretaker's unit between their main residence — which is located at 3346 17 Mile Drive — and the Pebble Beach Golf Links.

In response, the Pelios came back to the board Jan. 25 with a new plan that would place the caretaker's unit at the other side of their property, thereby not interfering with a neighbor's view. The supervisors unanimously approved the project.

The caretaker unit is part of an overall remodel of the home, including adding a second story, demolishing an existing detached "accessory structure," and building a 974-square-foot garage and 636-square-foot storage area.

In November 2010, the supervisors voted 5-0 to uphold an appeal of the project's prior approval by the Monterey County Planning Commission. The appeal was filed by William McKiernan, who lives next door to the applicants. McKiernan's attorney, Tony Lombardo, successfully argued that the unit not only interfered with his client's view, it was actually intended as a guest unit.

tion of handheld binoculars and by eye. Each whale swimming by is recorded into a custom-designed computer program that assists observers by plotting the whale's location on a map and estimating (using swim speed and general direction) where each whale will be seen when it surfaces next. This year, the team is also using thermal sensors, as was also done in the mid-1990s, that allow them to count whales at night. The NOAA observers conduct their visual observations from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., while the sensors run 24 hours per day. This count will last until Feb. 18, when historically the majority of whales have passed Granite Canyon.

The eastern North Pacific gray whale population was rapidly depleted by commercial whaling in an earlier era but has successfully recovered from low population numbers and supports a major whale-watching industry along the west coast of North America. The population is presently estimated at about 20,000 animals. Gray whales undertake one of the longest annual migrations of any mammal, traveling some 15,000 to 20,000 km round trip. By late November, most gray whales are moving south from high-latitude summer feeding areas to low-latitude winter calving areas.

During summer and early autumn, gray whales are distributed in Arctic waters, where they feed on benthic invertebrates, such as amphipods that live on or near the sea floor. Their southward winter migration takes them along the Canadian and U.S. West Coast down to the protected lagoons of Baja California, Mexico for the mating and calving season. After females give birth, the whales leave Mexico, and begin their return northward migration to their Arctic feeding grounds. NOAA researchers will gather again, this time at the Piedras Blancas Light Station south of Big Sur, for the annual mother and calf count. This survey begins in late March.

You can see the whales anywhere along the coast as they travel within 2 km of shore. The Granite Canyon research facility is not open to the public, but for further information on the whales, visit the SWFSC website at <http://swfsc.noaa.gov/prd> or contact Dr. Dave Weller at the Southwest Fisheries Science Center, (858) 546-7000.

TEST

point, you've been working for an hour, and you're pretty tired," he said. "Having to climb the ladder the last time to sound the roof was probably the hardest, because by then, you have already climbed up three or four times."

After an hour-long break, Hamilton tackled the second half of the exam, when he had to demonstrate his knowledge of the 24 different types of tools used in firefighting, including rope rescue, extrication, stabilization, firefighter rescue, salvage (the equipment firefighters use to mitigate property damage when fighting fires), SCBA, ventilation, and hand and power tools.

That took another hour, though he wasn't subjected to a time limit.

"Dan's the first CRFA full-time employee who has followed this training program that we have developed with the City of Monterey," Watts said. "He did really well — he passed."

But his trial isn't over. For the next several months, Hamilton will work on expanding his knowledge of sprinkler systems, specialized tools and other aspects of firefighting. He'll give a presentation to his engine company and receive critiques. Next, he'll make a presentation to the battalion chiefs, and they will evaluate him.

"I'll be meeting the endurance challenge again," he said. And when he passes it for a second time, his nine-month probation will come to a close.

"I'm stoked to be here," Hamilton said. "So I'm really happy."

And Watts is happy to have another set of capable hands in the firehouse. The additional training means enough skilled workers will be on hand at all times, especially during major emergencies, and they can fill in when a firefighter is sick or on vacation.

Soon, another CRFA new hire will face the test, too. The ambulance company, which is overseen by the city, is hiring for one more position, and Watts said the job announcement was just issued. With two cross-trained people working on the ambulance and three people working on the fire engine, the department has a much stronger front line without the cost of hiring more firefighters.

"So it's a good thing," Watts said.

When you're the primary caregiver for an older family member, you find that the situation often changes unexpectedly, and the strategies you have carefully put into place are no longer sufficient.

Sometimes you just don't know where to turn next...

TURN TO US.

In the 14 years since Central Coast Senior Services, Inc. was established, we have learned that what most people are seeking, even more than services, are answers, to all the "how do I" and "what if" questions related to the challenges that arise in caring for seniors. Providing answers and solving problems comprise the heart and soul of our business. Yes, we provide highly trained Personal Attendants to help your loved one through daily activities at home. But personal assistance is only a part of the picture. Each of our clients also has a Home Care Coordinator to prepare a Personal Care Plan, to monitor the entire situation, and to find solutions to problems as they arise.

We provide you with options, with answers, with strategies. We'll be there during transitions, connect you with medical, legal and financial specialists as needed, take your loved one to medical appointments, arrange for household repairs. Whatever it takes, we can handle it — and all our services are covered by one hourly fee.

You don't have to face this alone any more. Call us: (831) 649-3363.

Editorial

A shameful commentary

WE HAVE often used this space to decry waste and irresponsibility at all levels of government. But we have also pointed out that the closer government is to the local level, the more effective it usually manages to be.

Likewise, while national politics generate all sorts of passion and even vitriol, local politics are usually more civil. It's easy to call someone names when there's no chance you'll run into him at the grocery store.

But while there has been lots of discussion lately about the need for more civility in national politics, here in Monterey County, things have been getting nastier. The last Carmel municipal election was a travesty, with opponents of Mayor Sue McCloud resorting to all sorts of dirty tactics to try to elect her challenger. And a more recent case was the commentary by land-use activist Julie Engell printed in the Monterey County Herald Feb. 1.

Engell is a familiar figure at meetings of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and seems to have an opinion about pretty much everything the board considers. Her politics are familiar as well: She's a no-growther who opposes almost all new development. Which is fine, of course. No-growthers are as entitled as anyone else to participate in the democratic process and try to get their way on the important issues of the day.

But where Engell goes too far, and where she went way too far in her Herald commentary, is in her criticism of people who aren't on her side. In this, she doesn't just say they're wrong and explain why. All too often, she impugns their integrity and intelligence. To her, someone who votes for a development project isn't just making a mistake; he's corrupt.

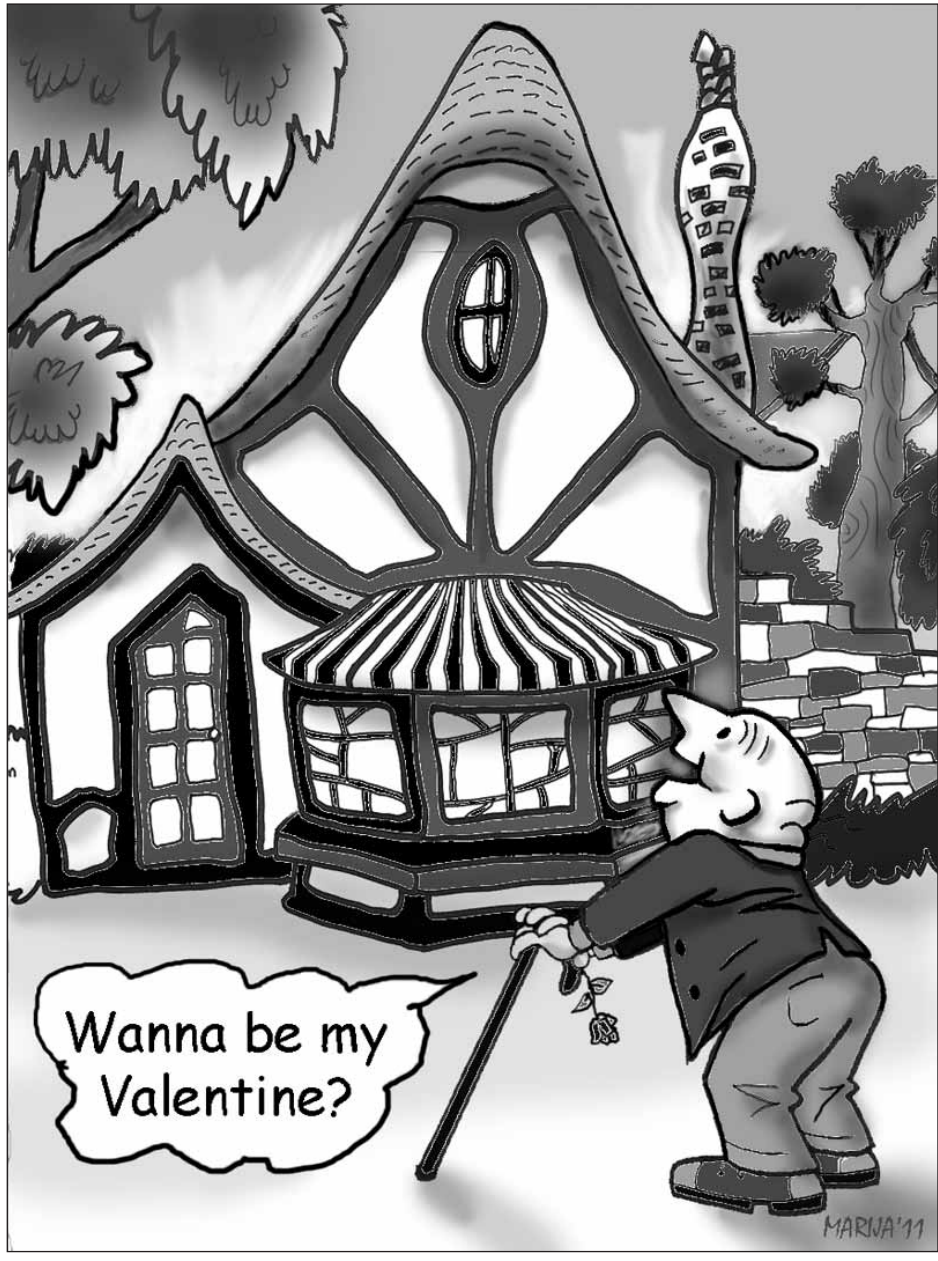

Supervisor Lou Calcagno was her chief target this week. In his role as a member of the county agency responsible for approving annexations to cities and making other significant land use designations that can lead to development, Calcagno hasn't been doing what he thought was best for the county, according to Engell. Instead, he's been "meddling with the public's right to vote," and also "meddled" in other supervisors' districts. And while he meddled here and there, Engell said, Calcagno was able to "dole out favors" and "exact retribution" on a "regional scale." Furthermore, his membership in the annexation agency was illegitimate to begin with, because it resulted from a "stealth" process, Engell alleged.

These inflammatory statements were grossly unfair to Calcagno, who has served the public well as a member of numerous agencies for many years. And while it's obviously permissible to disagree with his votes on the thousands of important issues that have come up while he has been a county supervisor, it is wrong to accuse him of corruption without proof.

Not only is it wrong — it's counterproductive. Engell's commentary only served to hurt her credibility. And it also damaged the credibility of Supervisor Jane Parker who, whether she approved of it or not, was tarred by Engell's irresponsible essay.

Stick to the issues, folks, and leave the personal attacks to cable TV.

'Paid parking: a very bad idea'

Dear editor,

On Jan. 27, the City Council of Carmel-by-the-Sea offered up a belated Christmas present to the merchants of downtown: a public workshop to discuss the development of a paid parking program and with the intent to receive public input.

If this initiative becomes a reality and when those new meters are in place, we can expect the number of shoppers who might have considered downtown Carmel destinations will ebb. That means a boon for the Crossroads Shopping Center and the Del Monte Shopping Center, not to mention the privy purse of city hall.

Over and over again, downtown merchants have pleaded with the city not to proceed with a plan for metered parking. And over and over again during the past months, the political machine in Carmel has maintained that paid parking is a necessity to improve parking, traffic, circulation and revenue.

For many of us running a business in Carmel, paid parking landed with the thud of a herd of elephants. Far too many downtown businesses — including some very well-known restaurants, shops and galleries — have closed because they didn't have enough customers to enable them to pay their bills.

We have no problem understanding the budget difficulties the city has been experiencing. Indeed, practically every business and local government entity in Monterey County is continuing to feel a lot of financial pain. However, we simply cannot believe the city wants to sign death sentences for more downtown businesses.

Having run a business for more than 12 years, I personally know how valuable these parking spaces are and the need for them to turn over every two hours. The loss of this turnover will lead to a loss of business and tax revenue to the city. There is no question that businesses will lose sales and be forced out of business. Landlords will lose tenants and be forced to further reduce rents to less desirable store fronts.

Last, but far from least, is the impact the kiosks will have on the much loved charm of Carmel. To sully one of the most beautiful landscapes in the world is unthinkable to me. As a property owner, resident and business owner I implore the city and other business owners to do everything in their power to stop paid parking.

We've said it before; we'll say it again:

Wants a recall

Dear Editor,

Last week I was having a beer with my friend, Dr. Bobo, over at the Carmel American Legion. He asked me "Hey, are there any comedy clubs in Carmel?" I quickly responded, "Sure, Carmel City Hall." Boy was I ever right. And after watching a report about Tuesday's meeting on the news, I saw how right I was. I don't understand why our mayor seeks to protect "her baby" while obviously ignoring Carmel residents pleas. Throw the guy out! It's over, Guillen. At least Clint Eastwood has a great reputation and I never hear anyone complaining about his time in office. There is only one council member who I have faith in, and he's councilman Jason Burnett.

Let's end this now. Notice how we don't hear about the mayor wanting to sell-off Flanders Mansion. Of course not; it's best to try to stifle the complaints about our city administrator's sexual harassment complaint; just ignore them and they'll fade away. We won't, nor will the issue at hand.

Not including councilman Burnett, it appears that the rest of our city council is just a big clique. Aren't you guys supposed to be listening to and representing us? Apparently not. I say, recall!

Let me close with a line from the movie "The American President": "This is a time for serious men, Bob, and your fifteen minutes are up."

Reckless driving by police?

Dear Editor:

Your Jan. 28 story on the CHP officer's badly timed U-turn brought to mind an experience I had a couple of weeks ago when I was turning left off Carmel Valley Road onto Tierra Grande right before the busy Mid-Valley Shopping Center. A law enforcement vehicle with lights and siren approached me from the east going so fast I couldn't tell you if it was a sheriff or CHP. I would estimate it was moving at least 90 mph. It bothered me at the time, but it bothers me more the more I think about it. I don't care what emergency the officer was responding to, the few seconds he or she may have saved coming through this congested area at a dangerous rate of speed was not worth the lives put at risk. I appreciate the difficult job our emergency responders face, but like the rest of us drivers on the road, they need to exercise a little common sense.

Offensive headline no. 1

Dear Editor,

Sir, I was disappointed with the poor taste of word choice displayed in the Jan. 21 edition.

An article on page 19, by Chris Counts, had a headline that screamed, "Getting stoned in Big Sur can be relaxing — and legal." Poor choice of words, especially considering the front-page article by Mary Brownfield regarding Calista Garcia, who is accused of killing a man just south of Point Lobos while driving under the influence of marijuana.

Drug use here is far too widely accepted ... regardless of the dangers. Counts' story lends to the problem. No doubt your readers think it is terrible that Garcia killed a man while high on marijuana. But how many of them think that it is also terrible to glorify marijuana use, as Counts does? How many of them think it is also terrible to go to Alvarado Street on (pick a Friday or Saturday night) and witness firsthand the how it is making our next generation brain-dead?

Dan Lacaria,
Pacific Grove

Editor's note: The article referred to in this letter was about hot stone massage.

Offensive headline no. 2

Dear Editor,

I was dismayed at the inclusion of a blatantly sexist quote in The Pine Cone's Jan. 27 article, "$30, 000 lawsuit filed over trapped squirrel's nutty rampage." In the article, Kelly Nix quoted David Hollingsworth, the attorney for Mary Brinton, as saying, "The reason it did so much damage is that it was a female squirrel. It wouldn't have been so much if it were a male." I found th the quote offensive and in poor taste. It is unfortunate that gender-based jokes are made. It is more troubling still that Nix chose to include one with no apparent purpose other than to craft a humorous article. While I understand Hollingsworth's remark was meant to be lighthearted, printing it did nothing to advance the intent of the article. It should have been identified as unacceptable by The Pine Cone staff and removed during the editing process.

Women's rights have progressed significantly in the past 100 years in the United States; however, as evidenced by your recent article, stereotypes harmful to continued advancement endure. It is shocking to think that in the 200 plus years of our democracy, a woman has yet to be elected president. In the workplace, the wage gap between men and women is still alive and well.

The reason for these inequalities may be due in some part to our continued inundation with sexist ways of thinking by the media. It spoke volumes to the widespread nature of the issue to be so clearly confronted with it even in a seemingly innocuous local article about a squirrel with little social, political or global importance.

It is imperative as citizens to continue to speak out against demeaning, pejorative statements made even in jest. In the spirit of growth, they must not be tolerated.

This is one of the most interesting houses in Carmel, located on the "quiet" block of San Carlos, a short, level walk to town. A perfect retirement or vacation home, nestled amongst the oaks, it is historic, designed by renowned architect Mark Mills. Built in the sixties, the house is described as "organic" in architectural style. The two bedrooms are separated by a spacious living room with skylights and a cozy corner fireplace. Sliding doors open to a sunny, private patio with southern exposure. Peaceful, tranquil, light and bright, this sanctuary awaits your personal touches to make it a home once again. Priced to move quickly at $895,000 will continue putting eucalyptus down there."

While Weiss noted in the 20-page report that the sanctuary and surrounding forest still contain the "necessary components" to support monarch butterflies, he said "it is on the edge, and butterflies have abandoned the site after large storms in previous years."

He said the L-shaped grove of blue gum Eucalyptus trees provide "the key structure for microclimate suitability" for the monarchs.

Large areas of the sanctuary, he found, are still exposed to northwest winds, which often drive the butterflies to cluster on trees on private property south of the sanctuary. Some of those trees are older and need to be assessed for health and potential longevity, according to the report.

For the analysis, Weiss mapped every tree in the sanctuary and analyzed photographs to determine wind exposure and other conditions.

Correction

Carmel resident Mary Brinton's insurance company paid for the loss of rental income due to damage to her home caused by an ill-behaved rodent that was outlined in a story last week entitled "Lawsuit filed over squirrel's nutty rampage," not the defendants in the suit.

PAC REP

"I would prefer to go with a proven program that's in place, if we go that route," Hazdovac said.

Councilman Jason Burnett said he was leaning in that direction as well, though the door should remain open to the guild to submit another proposal in the future.

Only councilman Ken Talmage favored issuing a request for proposals. He said that process would be the most equitable and would allow for thorough evaluation of all options.

"To make sure this is handled in a fair and open way, I think we ought to ask for proposals," he said.

City clerk Heidi Burch, sitting in for absent city administrator Rich Guillen, said seeking proposals would take about two months. She did not know how much the process would cost.

The council voted 4-1, with Talmage dissenting, to reaffirm its November decision to negotiate a lease with PacRep for the indoor Forest Theater. The specific lease will require council approval at a future meeting.

LAFCO VOTE: SUPES CHOOSE EXPERIENCE OVER CHANGE

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors this week rejected chairwoman Jane Parker's bid to join the Local Agency Formation Commission, instead reappointing supervisors Lou Calcagno and Simon Salinas as voting members and supervisor Dave Potter as an alternate.

Calcagno, Salinas, Potter and supervisor Fernando Armenta supported the reappointments, while Parker dissented.

The vote comes just a week after Parker's nomination of Janet Brennan as the 4th District's representative on the Monterey County Planning Commission was turned down by supervisors on the grounds that she lives outside the district in Carmel Valley.

Traditionally, the board has made appointments to LAFCO and other commissions with little or no public discussion. Parker, though, said that should change.

"I felt it was something that deserved public discussion," Parker explained. "I think we should examine the issue if the board is committed to Peninsula representation on LAFCO."

Parker said she raised the topic "in the spirit of transparency." It's not "appropriate or legal to work out the details ... behind closed doors," she said.

The Jan. 25 meeting featured lengthy — and at times passionate — commentary on Brennan's nomination. At the Feb. 1 meeting, the commentary on the LAFCO appointments was a bit more subdued.

The first speaker was LeVonne Stone, the executive director of the Fort Ord Environmental Justice Network. Stone suggested commission appointees be drawn from a wider pool of applicants.

"Why is it so hard for the average citizen to serve on a board or a commission?" Stone asked. "Why do one or two people have so many hats?"

Former Seaside Mayor Ralph Rubio, meanwhile, endorsed reappointing Calcagno and Salinas because of their experience.

"I sat on the LAFCO board," Rubio noted. "The issues are complex. Institutional knowledge is important."

While other speakers echoed Rubio's emphasis on experience, Julie Engell of Monterey disagreed.

"LAFCO is one of the most powerful commissions in Monterey County, because development decisions at the ground floor are basically made by [the agency]," Engell explained. "We need to make sure there's a circulation of representatives on LAFCO so power does not become entrenched and used across district lines. I recommend a change on LAFCO."

Engell also pointed out that Brennan's nomination was rejected despite her having a wealth of experience.

Many speakers appeared to be there to show their support for Calcagno, who was criticized in a public commentary by Engell published Monday in the Monterey County Herald.

"One of the most important things LAFCO does is protect

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Presented by
Lois Lagier, D.D.S.

WHITENING
Bleaching or whitening your teeth has become a common procedure in dentistry. As we get older the teeth often get darker as the structure becomes denser and reflects less light. Teeth also become stained from bacteria, the pigment of foods that we eat, drink and tobacco use. Certain antibiotics that are taken while the teeth are developing can also result in permanent staining to teeth.

There are many methods to whiten teeth. It is recommended that you have an exam by a dentist that thoroughly checks the health of your teeth, gums and includes a medical history and a review of any allergies and sensitivities. The next step is to establish daily good oral hygiene habits. The second is a professional cleaning by your dentist or hygienist to remove debris and surface stains. Then bleaching agents that contain carbamide peroxide can be used to lighten the shade of the teeth. Carbamide peroxide is an oxidizing agent that bubbles out the stains that have accumulated in the porous part of the mineralized structure of the teeth.

Results can vary, depending on which application is chosen. The range of whitening agents can vary from over the counter strips, toothpastes, gums and rinses to paint on gels. Professional products range from at home trays to a onetime dental office visit. The at home method is achieved by using custom guard trays. Thin trays are constructed over a model of the patient's teeth. The dentist then proscribes the concentration of gel that will whiten the teeth but not irritate the gum tissue. The at home method can be used to achieve good results but requires daily use for 7 to 14 days. An instant result can be achieved in one visit to the dental office by applying a light that increases the potency of the whitening gel and allows it to penetrate the tooth faster. Treatment times and recommendation are dependent upon the condition of the patient's teeth.

Bleaching can produce dramatic changes to your smile. I have seen patients come in afraid to smile or hide their smile with their hand and then after bleaching have more self-confidence and be willing to share a smile. Frown and you frown alone, but smile and the whole world smiles with you.

The dental team of Dr. Lois Lagier is dedicated to providing you with the state-of-the-art dental care in a comfortable atmosphere. Let us care for you!

the day of." Walk-up ticket purchases could account for as much as 30 percent of total sales.

Last year, a total of 125,773 tickets were sold — a significant increase over 2009's total of 90,247. The 2010 AT&T featured several changes and improvements, including replacing Poppy Hills Golf Course with the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Shore Course in the tournament rotation and cutting the number of professional and amateur players from 180 to 156 to help improve the pace of play.

Practice rounds at Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and the Shore Course are scheduled for Monday through Wednesday, and competition will begin Thursday. Worthy said sales of tickets for practice rounds are far stronger than in previous years.

"A big piece of that is the fact the Giants/49ers shootout is driving a lot of interest — more than we've had on Tuesdays in the past," he said. Four San Francisco Giants and four San Francisco 49ers are competing in a five-hole shootout at the Pebble Beach Golf Links for a $100,000 purse that will benefit their teams' foundations and four other nonprofits. The Feb. 8 competition will begin at 1:30 p.m.

"We're looking forward to a good week," Worthy said.

Follow the money

Every five years, the foundation commissions an economic impact study, and the figures for 2010 indicate how important the event is to the Peninsula.

According to the study, 80 percent of the 57,801 people who attended the tournament were from outside the Monterey area, while 20 percent were local. The survey concluded the overall economic impact of the tournament was $66,296,000, based on a formula that calculates the effect of dollars that are spent and then re-spent locally.

According to the 2010 study, locals spent $1,974,000 during tournament week, while out-of-towners spent $24,286,000. Average expenditures by residents attending the AT&T was $161, with the average per-person expenditure on food and beverage coming in at $80, while visitors' numbers were $483 and $138, respectively, in addition to an average of $158 for lodging. Hotel taxes totaled $1,158,000, and sales taxes were $1,344,000.

In 2005 — a robust year, economically — resident spending totaled $1,547,000, while nonresident spending was $27,051,000 and MPF's spending was $7,488,000. Hotel taxes were $719,000, and sales taxes were $1,553,000. Using the multiplier, the study concluded the overall economic impact of the tournament on the area was $68.2 million.

In 2000, prior to the dot-com bust and the 9/11 terrorist attacks, resident spending totaled $2,363,000 during tournament week, while nonresidents spent $24,576,000. MPF spent $6.2 million. Hotel taxes were $816,000, and sales taxes totaled $1,362,000. With the multiplier effect, the survey put the total economic impact of the tournament at $55.5 million.

At a press conference last month, MPF CEO Ollie Nutt said 2010 was a banner year in many ways.

"All said and done, we set a new record — we went over $7 million," in money raised and donated to charity as a result of the tournament, Nutt said.

That charitable number put the AT&T Pro-Am at No. 2 on the PGA Tour behind the Valero Texas Open, and the $86 million generated for charity since Bing Crosby brought his clambake to the Monterey Peninsula in 1947 has earned the tournament the No. 2 spot in overall giving behind the Byron Nelson Championship.

"We think we will hit the magical number of $100 million in the next couple of years," Nutt said.

farmland," LAFCO alternate Sherwood Darington said. "Supervisor Calcagno has been in agriculture his entire life and he probably knows farmland better than anybody else in Monterey County. He's done more than anybody else to protect farmland and agriculture."

While some speakers suggested that LAFCO-related issues are focused in other parts of the county, executive director Amy White of LandWatch Monterey County disagreed.

"District 4 has a lot of rural-urban interface," White explained. "With the new general plan, Fort Ord is slated to get a lot of development. There needs to be representation from the 4th District to deal with those issues."

Several speakers debated precisely how many LAFCO members currently represent the 4th District, which includes all of Seaside, Sand City, Del Rey Oaks and Marina, as well as parts of Salinas and unincorporated areas of the county.

According to Kate McKenna, the executive officer of LAFCO, the district is represented by Marina Mayor Bruce Delgado. Also serving on LAFCO is Salinas Mayor Dennis Donohue, who has constituents living in the 4th District as well. McKenna said state law limits the number of county representatives on LAFCO to three members.

After the public comment period, Potter offered Calcagno his endorsement. "There's probably not an inch of acreage in this county that he doesn't know the actual ownership and history of — dating back to the days of Junipero Serra," he said.

Potter also expressed his displeasure with Engell's commentary in the Herald.

"There's 12 paragraphs in the article and supervisor Calcagno's name is mentioned eight times," Potter observed. "There's absolutely no discussion of representation of the 4th District, which seems to be the major issue that's come before us today. I don't think personal assaults will get us to where we want to go."

After Potter's comments, Parker offered her reasons for seeking a role on LAFCO.

"District 4 has some issues coming up in the near future that involve LAFCO," Parker explained. "I have been waiting for a couple of years for this opportunity, and I think it's a good time to consider my appointment. I don't think LAFCO appointments should be given to supervisors for their tenure on the board, and I don't believe committee assignments should get locked in by one board member and not subject to change."

Calcagno, meanwhile, suggested that the public debate over the reappointments led to unnecessary contention.

"I don't think it's healthy we have these sorts of debates," Calcagno said. "I can feel animosity in the community and animosity in the press."

Pacific Grove: Theft reported from a Lighthouse Avenue business. Owner saw the suspect taking a gold necklace on a security camera and then observed the suspect rapidly exit the store with a lookout.

Jeannine Brown Dyer

Jeannine Mary Lyman Brown Dyer (Mrs. Peter Dyer) of Carmel passed away on January 12, 2011, just before her birthday. Mrs. Dyer was born in Scheveningen, The Netherlands and as a young girl lived in London and New York before moving with her parents to San Francisco in 1934. She graduated from the Sarah Dix Hamlin School (San Francisco) and in 1940 received a Bachelor's Degree in History from the University of California, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. As a volunteer during World War II, Mrs. Dyer reported to the Pacific Stock Exchange building where she recorded reports of enemy aircraft; she also helped raise her two young nephews, who had been evacuated from London to San Francisco in 1940.

She married Peter Dyer in 1944, moved to Monterey in 1946, and to Carmel in 1955. Mrs. Dyer was active in the community, taking a particular interest in her children's activities, in the arts and in education. She was a founding member of the Casa Abrego Club, the York School Auxiliary, the Bishop Kip (All Saints' Day School) parents' group, and the Junior League of Monterey County, was a member of the Town and Country Club in San Francisco and was active in the Monterey Symphony. Mrs. Dyer was an active member of All Saints' Episcopal Church and volunteered for over 30 years in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District helping children improve their reading. She studied piano, French and New Testament Greek and, as an avid reader, remained curious about and interested in the world all her life.

Mrs. Dyer was preceded in death by her husband Peter Dyer, daughter-in-law Zin Dyer, sister Elizabeth Longsdon Sturch, and parents Walter Lyman Brown and Elizabeth Jane Adams Brown. She is survived by: her sons Stephen Dyer (Cindy) of Carmel, Peter Dyer, Jr., of Woodland, and John Dyer (Katee) of Lyndonville, Vermont; daughter Jane Dyer Cook (Alan) of Stockton; grandchildren Elizabeth Dyer Schwalbach (Mike), Jennifer Dyer Cornelissen (Chris), Alison Dyer Sikola (Brett), Katherine Cook Donaghy (Kevin) and David Cook; sister-in-law Ruth Dyer of Lafayette; nephews Nicholas Sturch of Monterey and Richard Sturch of England; niece Susanne Dyer (Charles Daley) of Suisun City; and seven great-grandchildren.

A memorial celebrating Mrs. Dyer's life is scheduled for Saturday, February 12, 2011 at 2:00 p.m. at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Carmel. Our family suggests that those who wish to honor her memory may make contributions to their favorite charitable organization.

Donna recently represented me as the Buyer of a property in Monterey County. I was very impressed by her negotiation techniques, particularly since she represented both sides of this transaction. She was very honest and always had my best interests at heart. Once we agreed to all the contractual terms, she recommended the best people in the business for inspections and financing, and everything proceeded without a hitch. Her knowledge and experience in the local market is second to none. I am pleased to say that I have an agent for life! Thank you so much Donna!

DID YOU KNOW?

Presidential Golf- Dwight Eisenhower played golf at the exclusive Cypress Point Club in Pebble Beach in 1956. He arrived after a train trip from SF to Monterey, waving to well-wishers from the back of the train. Ike joked that the sea lions always began barking when he commenced a drive. While here, he would need to respond to a nuclear test by the USSR and monitor the Suez crisis. He also faced a very personal test: the infamous 16th hole at Cypress. Ike had to take strokes to keep his ball on land. The Eisenhowers went to church on Sunday at the newly-built Carmel Presbyterian Church and visited the Carmel Mission where Ike shook hands with all 36 nuns.

Down market batters long-term gains in local real estate

Fourth quarter and year-end report

By PAUL BROCCINI and MARK RYAN
Coldwell Banker Del Monte Realty

THE END of 2010 once again provides an opportunity to look at the long-term real estate trends in the Monterey Peninsula market. When you review at the annual charts published with this report, you'll see that the biggest impact of the prolonged down market has been its devastation on appreciation.

Please take a look at the Median Sales Price chart covering 2000 to 2010 to get the full flavor of the wreckage. Carmel Highlands and Pacific Grove showed the largest gains of 24 percent, a meager 2.4 percent per year. Carmel was second best with a 10-year gain of 23 percent. In terms of sales' price, most markets peaked in 2005 with robust gains after just five years. Those gains have evaporated.

Seaside suffered the most dramatic swings. Median sales prices peaked in 2006, reaching $670,000. There was a slight slip in 2007 and then a plunge to $326,000 in 2008. Median sales prices bottomed out in 2009 at $270,598 and crept up a bit last year to $279,200. Its ten year gain was just 9 percent, or an infinitesimal 0.9 percent per year. We think Seaside has hit the bottom.

If you go back a bit farther, say to 1998 when the median sale price in Carmel was $567,500, you get a gain of 84 percent in 12 years or 7 percent per year, not great but better than the ten-year numbers.

The tongue-in-cheek query, popular in hot markets, "How do you feel when you get home at night and realize your house made more money than you did?" is now a quaint reminder of the past.

■ Dollar Volume

Dollar volume is an excellent reflection of the vigor or lack thereof of a real estate market. 2010 saw a bit of a bounce back from the 2009 totals. $940,721,265 changed hands last year, an increase of 13 percent. This was the second straight year of gross sales under $1 billion. From 2002 to 2008 we had seven consecutive years of dollar volume topping the $1 billion mark.

High water was in 2007, when gross dollar volume fell just short of $1.8 billion. 2009 was less than half of that. These figures illustrate how far we have to go to get back to the historic high numbers.

■ Fourth Quarter

The fourth quarter numbers show a continuing decline. Almost every figure is down from the same quarter last year: unit sales down 34, or 10 percent; dollar volume down $12,237,729, or 5 percent; median sales prices down in six markets and up in four; market barometer readings down in nine of the 10 markets comparing January 1, 2010, to the same date this year.

There is no doubt that the slump deepened last year. Funny thing is there seems to be some optimism brewing. Maybe it is just the days getting longer, but, intuitively, prospects seem improved. Is this wishful thinking? We hope not and here are some numbers to give one heart.

On January 20 we did a spot check of activity. From New Year's Day until the 20th, 81 properties went into escrow on the Peninsula: 11 in Carmel, one in Carmel Highlands, five in Carmel Valley, one in Del Rey Oaks, nine in Marina, 11 in Monterey, 12 in Pacific Grove, eight in Pebble Beach, nine along the Salinas/Monterey Highway and 14 in Seaside.

If this pace continues there will be over 300 sales in the quarter, a hefty increase over the 234 sales made last year. What will happen to dollar volume and median sales prices is anyone's guess. A sure thing is that there are some interesting months coming up in our local real estate market.

PEBBLE BEACH is one of the most famous places in the world — and not only because it's home to renowned golf courses such as Cypress Point, Spyglass Hill, Spanish Bay, Monterey Peninsula Country Club and, of course, Pebble Beach. In this unique area, which is also known as Del Monte Forest, you can find hillsides crowded with pines and laced with hiking trails, pristine beaches practically devoid of footprints, rocky coves populated with harbor seals and sea otters, and endless expanses of salt-air meadows dotted with windswept cypress. Meandering through it all is scenic 17 Mile Drive, which practically qualifies as a destination all its own.

Amid all that splendor, of course, are numerous impressive mansions with pedigrees going back to some of California's founding families, and now occupied by captains of Wall Street, Hollywood and Silicon Valley. For most visitors and would-be residents, those places are objects of pure fantasy. But did you realize that just around the corner from homes costing $10 million and up are plenty of far more affordable options? If you're looking for your Pebble Beach dream home at a price under $1 million, this page is for you

THE TOURNAMENT

After two wins in a row, Dustin Johnson aims for record

By MICHAEL JAMES

IN HIS four-year PGA Tour tenure, Dustin Johnson has had more success and disappointment than many PGA Tour pros have in their entire careers.

Johnson has four PGA Tour titles. But he also had a 54-hole lead at the U.S. Open last June at Pebble Beach only to shoot a final-round 82. Two months later, at the PGA Championship in Wisconsin, Johnson was eliminated from playoff contention after a controversial two-stroke bunker penalty on the final hole of regulation play.

Tall and thin and possessing a wickedly powerful swing, Johnson speaks softly and hits the ball straight and far. And at age 26, he's also in position to do what neither Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Jack Nicklaus nor Tiger Woods could do at Pebble Beach. Since the tournament debuted on the Peninsula in 1947, no one has won it three straight years.

Following an early week preamble of practice rounds and celebrity events, the $6.1 million, 72-hole championship will unfold for three days on a three-course rotation — Pebble Beach Golf Links and Spyglass Hill Golf Course, both par 72s, and Monterey Peninsula Country Club (Shore Course) par 70.

And, weather permitting, the final round will be held Sunday at Pebble Beach and will include the 60 lowest scoring pros (and ties) and 25 low teams. The winning pro will earn $1,134,000.

"I have no hard feelings at all," said Johnson of his pending return to the Monterey Peninsula after the disaster in June. "It's beautiful here and I've always enjoyed coming back. Even at the U.S. Open, I played really well for three days. I just struggled a little bit on the last day. It was a great learning experience, and I take a lot from that week. I'll always enjoy coming back here."

The MPCC layout debuted last year, replacing Poppy Hills Golf Course. The pro-am field was also reduced last year from 180 to 156, resulting in substantially faster rounds.

Johnson, currently ranked 14th in the world, finished the 2010 season fourth on the money list with more than $4.4 million. But while aware of his potential record third straight title at the AT&T, it's not a priority.

"This year my goal is to get to the top 5 in the world," he said. "I just want to give myself as many chances to win as possible."

Dustin Johnson receives the championship trophy from tournament chairman Clint Eastwood after the 2010 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. If he wins this year, Johnson will have done something even golf's greatest players never could: Win the Pebble Beach event three years in a row.

Phil Mickelson, the reigning Masters champion and three-time AT&T titlist (1998, 2005, 2007), John Daly, David Duval, Jim Furyk, Justin Leonard, Rocco Mediate, Sean O'Hair, Nick Watney and Mike Weir are among arguably the most internationally diverse field in tournament history.

Sunghoon Kang, the early round leader at the recent Farmers Insurance Open in San Diego, and his South Korea countryman Bio Kim, will be first-time AT&T entrants. Fabian Gomez (Chile), Alexandre Rocha (Brazil) and Jhonattan Vegas (Venezuela), winner of the Bob Hope Classic on Jan. 23, will also make their AT&T debuts.

More than a dozen foreign-born PGA Tour veterans, Arjun Atwal (India) to Mike Weir (Canada) to Tim Clark (South Africa), are also entered.

Johnson faltered in the final AT&T round last year. But his 2-over-par 74 at Pebble Beach still gave him a one-stroke win over J.B. Holmes, who had a 71, and David Duval, who finished with a 69.

"Obviously, Sunday there is a little more nerves going on and a little more excitement," said Johnson. "That always plays into account. I was comfortable and nervous, but nervous in a good way."

Since its first year on the Peninsula, the former Crosby Clambake has always mixed a strong pro field with a diverse field of amateur businessmen and celebrity golfers.

Actor Johnny Weismuller (Tarzan) and Del Webb, the real estate magnate and former New York Yankees owner, played in the 1947 tournament. This year, in addition to numerous business executives, the celebrity field will feature about two dozen entertainers, broadcasters and athletes.

Regular attendees Harris Barton, Michael Bolton, Chris Berman, Tom Dreesen, Kenny G, Andy Garcia, George Lopez, Craig T. Nelson, Chris O'Donnell, Ray Romano, Kelly Slater, Clay Walker and perennial favorite Bill Murray will all return.

Kevin Costner will return after a missing the event the past two years. He'll be joined by Matt Cain, Brandi Chastain, Eric Close, Oscar de la Hoya, Joe Kernen, Jackie Flynn, Oliver Hudson, Toby Mac, Tony Romo and Kurt Russell.

The AT&T, like other PGA Tour events, is immersed in charitable causes. The Monterey Peninsula Foundation, which oversees the AT&T, raised a record $7 million for charity in last year's event.

The total, according to Ollie Nutt, the foundation CEO, was the second highest on the PGA Tour last year, behind the Valero Texas Open. The $86 million raised by the tournament in the past 63 years is also the second most on the PGA Tour behind the Byron Nelson Classic.

"Those numbers aren't that bad considering that we're a small community," Nutt said. "We're pleased with that."

Television coverage of the AT&T will be shared by the Golf Channel and CBS. The Golf Channel will broadcast the tournament Thursday and Friday from noon to 3 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

CBS will televise the tournament Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 3:30 p.m.

Tickets are available via phone (800-541-9091) and the tournament web site: www.attpbgolf.com.

CELEBRITY SHOOT-OUT

49ers and Giants face off in revamped charity event

By MARY BROWNFIELD

BASEBALL VS. football. San Francisco vs. San Francisco. Four of the top Giants and four of the greatest 49ers to ever play the game will duke it out during the five-hole AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am Charity Shoot-Out, which has been revamped for this year. The competition will be held on the Pebble Beach Golf Links the Tuesday of tournament week, with the players fighting for a $100,000 purse to benefit charity.

At a media day held at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club in January, tournament organizers announced former offensive tackle Harris Barton will captain the 49ers team, while pitcher-turned-broadcaster Mike Krukow will head the Giants team. The remainder of the 49ers team will be former tight end Brent Jones, and former receivers Dwight Clark and Jerry Rice.

Former infielder Duane Kuiper (who is also a broadcaster), pitcher Matt Cain and outfielder Cody Ross will round out the Giants team led by Krukow.

Starting at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 8, the four two-man teams will tee off on the 1st Hole at Pebble Beach, and then play through the 2nd and 3rd holes before heading to the 17th and finishing on the 18th. During the shoot-out, the players will use the Scotch format. Each teammate will hit a drive, after which they will play from the best of the two tee shots in an alternate-shot format. Each hole will be worth $20,000, with half the money going to local charities and the other half benefitting the 49ers' or Giants' foundation, depending on which team wins the hole. In the case of a tie, the prize money will roll forward to the next hole.

Barton said he received a call from Monterey Peninsula Foundation CEO Ollie Nutt last summer and was happy to take part. Clark volunteered to play.

"And Jerry Rice — I don't know if you'd call him a professional golfer, or not," he said, referring to Rice's bid last year to play on the Nationwide Tour.

Barton said everyone involved is thrilled to be coming to the Monterey Peninsula in the name of giving back. He also praised the Monterey Peninsula Foundation, which organizes the pro-am, for providing the $100,000 purse.

"This is one of the great events for an amateur to play in, and when you get invited to play, you do it," Barton said of the pro-am, which he described as "the Super Bowl of amateur golf."

"And when you get asked to do something for charity," he added, "you certainly do it."

When asked what the makeup of the 49ers teams would be, Barton said he suspected Clark and Rice would "do that receiver thing."

He also couldn't resist a little trash talking. "We've got 12 Super Bowl rings against the Giants' two, so I don't think they really stand a chance," said Barton, who has played in the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am seven times, finishing third in 2007 and making the cut in 2008. "But we'll see."

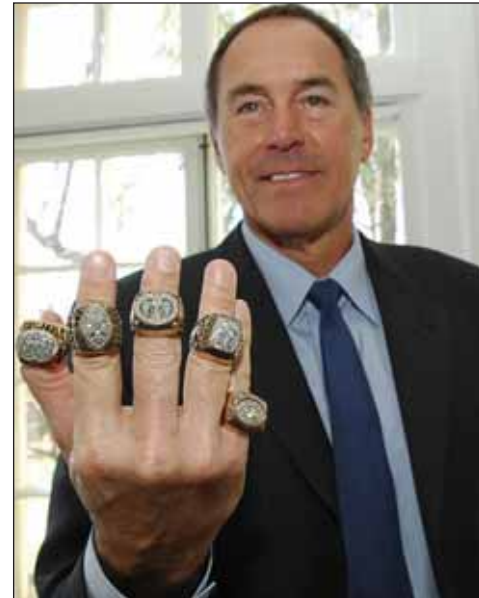

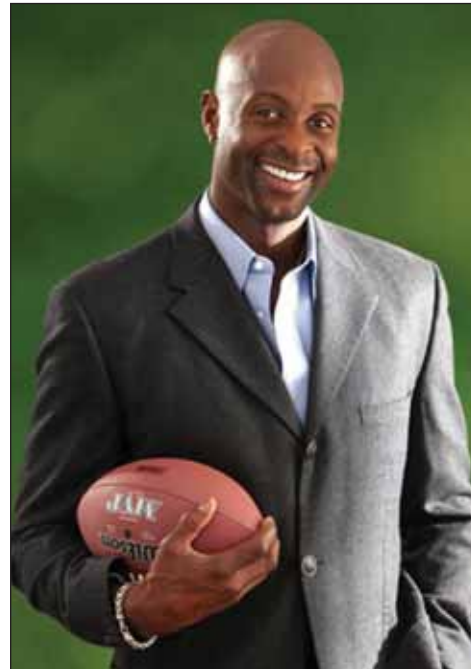

The Giants team members, of course, weren't present to defend themselves, so the truth will have to be found on the golf course.

"They're obviously exceptional in their selective fields," said Monterey Peninsula Foundation President and tournament director Steve Worthy. "So, we will see how they do on the golf course."

In addition to the 49ers and Giants foundations, the charities that will benefit from their prowess on the greens are the American Heart Association, CALSTAR (California Shock Trauma Air Rescue helicopter), Sunrise House and Interim, Inc. They were selected from among more than 80 charities that competed during a closest-to-the-pin contest at Pebble Beach Jan. 22.

The charity shoot-out will begin on the 1st Tee at 1:30 p.m., and admission is included in the Monday-through-Wednesday practice-round tickets that sell for $60 each. For more information or to purchase, visit www.attpb-golf.com.

Pro-Am vital for local nonprofits

By CHRIS COUNTS

THANKS TO the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, Carmel's youngest softball players now have their Field of Dreams.

The fabled golf tournament — which was once known as the Crosby Clambake — has raised more than $85 million for local charities since the event was first staged in Pebble Beach in 1947.

"It's looking really good," said Matt Davis, who serves as the league's president. "The grants have made a big difference for us."

This year's grant also financed the purchase of new netting for a batting cage.

Last year, the league used its AT&T grant to give the same field an extensive makeover. "We graded the field and put new fencing in," Davis explained.

Formed in 1999, the CCGS now boasts nearly 200 local players ranging from 6 to 14. "Our primary focus is to provide a fun, safe and competitive environment to play softball," Davis explained.

Despite Carmel's reputation as a retirement community, the town is also earning a reputation as a hotbed of softball talent. "Our program has fielded teams that have placed in the state and regional championships each of the past three years," Davis observed.

Davis attributed part of the girls' success to tough local competition, which has helped prepare the players for regional and state tournaments. The girls regularly take on teams from Pacific Grove, Monterey, Toro Park, Seaside and Marina. "Not only do we have talented players, but cities across the Peninsula field strong teams," Davis explained.

The league is led by a dedicated board of directors and an energetic group of volunteers.

"The board, the families and the coaches have a real strong community," Davis said. "People have really put in the work. We have a great program."

Big Sur light station

It's no small task to maintain a 120-year-old lighthouse that's perched on a massive wind-blasted and foggy rock. So the volunteers who work to restore the Pt. Sur Light Station in Big Sur are always happy for the support they receive from the AT&T Pro-Am golf tournament.

In 2009, the nonprofit Central Coast Light Station Keepers were given $15,000 by the Monterey Peninsula Foundation to replace part of the roof on the light station's signal room, which over the past century has housed a fog horn and other sound-making devices.

"In the early days, a whistle was mounted on the roof, and it was powered by steam from wood-fueled boilers," explained Doug Williams, who serves as vice president for the CCLSK. "Through the ages, different methods were used. The last one was a fog horn."

About half the roof was in bad shape. "It was very dilapidated and leaked badly," Williams noted.

It took $27,500 to fix the roof, and the grant from the AT&T Pro-Am covered more than half of the expenses.

MONTEREY PENINSULA GOLF

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT: YOU'RE IN A GOLFERS' PARADISE

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE MONTEREY Peninsula has long been considered a destination for golfers, and many fans of the game — as well as the pros who play it — have made it their home. The number and diversity of the courses here run the gamut, from bargain rounds at hidden gems, to over-the-top splurges on pristine fairways and greens, accompanied by a fabulous lunch in a fancy restaurant. In fact, in addition to the world famous Pebble Beach Golf Links, which is hosting the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am Feb. 7-13, the Peninsula is home to courses appropriate for all skill levels and budgets, and many are open for public play.

■ Bayonet and Black Horse, Seaside

Created in Fort Ord's heyday for military use, these two courses now belong to Seaside Resort Development and underwent $13 million renovation, reopening last year following a comprehensive redesign by Gene Bates. The courses were named to Golf Digest's list of Best Remodels for 2009 and placed 15th on the magazine's list of Best Public Courses in California in 2010. Gen. Robert McClure, original designer of Bayonet in 1954, was known for his left-handed slice and designed the holes accordingly, with severe doglegs running right to left. The 7,104-yard par-72 course was named for the 7th Infantry Light Fighter Division, nicknamed the Bayonet Division, and was infamous for its grueling Holes 11 through 13, known as Combat Corner. Gen. Edwin Carns designed Black Horse, which is now 7,024 yards and also has a par of 72, in 1963, and it was bestowed with the nickname of the 11th Calvary Regiment, which had been stationed on the other side of the bay at the Presidio of Monterey from 1919 to 1940. The courses have hosted the PGA's Qualifying School and the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am's companion event, the First Tee Open. Bayonet and Black Horse are located at 1 McClure Way in Seaside and include a full-service clubhouse, restaurant, pro shop, custom club fitting with Hot Stix Golf, and driving range. Club rentals and professional instruction also available. Green fees run $35 (for juniors) to $120. Call (831) 899-7271 (PAR-1) or visit www.bayonetblackhorse.com.

■ Carmel Valley Ranch, Carmel Valley

Closed in 2007 while undergoing a multimillion-dollar makeover overseen by Gene Bates, the 6,117-yard, par-70 golf course created by Pete Dye and built in 1981 reopened in 2008 to great fanfare and much anticipation on the part of its members and guests. The stunning 400-acre Carmel Valley Ranch — which is under new ownership and recently underwent an overhaul — sits just east of mid-valley, with the course running along the Carmel River and up the base of nearby hills. C.V. Ranch seeks to offer the quintessential private country club experience to players, and the course was named among the best in the country by readers of Conde Nast's Travel + Leisure magazine. "Enjoy the challenging terrain and beautiful scenery of this truly unique Monterey golf course. Marvel at the breathtaking views of the lush woods and expansive mountains," beckons the course website. Rates range from $85 to $195. Nine-hole rates are also available, as are club and shoe rentals — and don't miss the great Happy Hour at the clubhouse. Carmel Valley Ranch is located at One Old Ranch Road off of Carmel Valley Road just east of Mid Valley Shopping Center. For more information, call (831) 626-2510 or visit www.carmelvalleyranch.com.

■ Corral de Tierra Country Club, Salinas

The private 6,683-yard par-72 course, situated off the Monterey-Salinas Highway and graced with some of the best weather on the Peninsula, was designed by Bob Baldock in 1960. It was redesigned in 1999 and 2000 by J. Michael Poellot to offer the added challenges of a multitude of bunkers. Its gentle elevation changes and tree-lined fairways also make it a great walking course. Corral de Tierra has served as a site for U.S. Open qualifying rounds and hosted the 2010 sectional qualifier for the Women's U.S. Open Championship. Corral de Tierra is located a few miles east of Los Laureles Grade on Highway 68 (Monterey-Salinas Highway), and is open only to members and guests. Inquire about reciprocal agreements with other private clubs. For information, call (831) 484-1112 or visit www.corraldetierracc.com.

The CCLSK has twice before received AT&T Pro-Am grants. In 2002, a $15,000 gift was used to help pay for new windows in the assistant caretaker's quarters. The total bill for the project was about $100,000.

And in 2005, a $10,000 contribution helped redo a 250-yard trail and two flights of stairs. The final cost for the project was about $225,000.

Opened in 1889 to provide boats with an aid to navigation, the light station has a rich and colorful history. For 85 years, a series of four keepers and their families resided full-time at the facility. But in the 1960s, the U.S. Coast Guard began automating light stations. The last resident keeper left Pt. Sur in 1974.

If you are interested in visiting the light station, tours are available Saturdays and Sundays starting at 10 a.m., and Wednesdays beginning at 1 p.m. The schedule will expand in April. The cost is $10 for adults and $5 for children 6 to 17. Children under five get in free.

The tours are offered on a first-come, first-serve basis only. Space is limited. Visitors are asked to meet just outside the light station's front gate, which is located along Highway 1.

The light station is located on Highway 1, about 19 miles south of Carmel. For more information, visit www.pointsur.org.

its breathtaking par-3 16th Hole that entices braver players to fire their tee-shots over the frothing sea. Golfer Marion Hollins first conceived of the idea in 1924 and pursued the development of a first-class golf course and a clubhouse containing a handful of sleeping rooms. Membership would be limited to 200 people who would pay about $2,500 (in 1924 dollars) to subscribe. The club, which in the past hosted the Walker Cup, is open only to members and their guests. Cypress Point Club is located at 3150 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach. For information, contact the pro shop at (831) 624-2223.

■ Del Monte Golf Course

Nicknamed "Old Del Monte," and sometimes merely called "Old D," by locals, the Del Monte Golf Course was designed by golf and polo enthusiast Charles Maud and built in 1897, making it the oldest continuously operated course west of the Mississippi River. (The course at the Presidio in San Francisco was built a year earlier but was temporarily converted to a drill field during the Spanish-American War.) Owned and operated by the Pebble Beach Company, Del Monte G.C. — 6,365 yards from the blue tees, par 72 — is open to the public and is home to the Monterey Bay Golf Club, founded in 1932. Del Monte was the original site of the California State Amateur and still hosts the annual Callaway Golf Pebble Beach Invitational and The First Tee Open each fall. Greens fees are $110. Carts, pull carts and Callaway rental clubs available. Old D is located at 1300 Sylvan Road adjacent to the Hyatt Regency Monterey, with its full-service restaurant, TusCA, a lounge and Knuckles sports bar for post-round revivification. For more information, call (831) 373-2700 or visit www.pebblebeach.com.

■ Laguna Seca Golf Ranch, Monterey

Robert Trent Jones Sr. and Robert Trent Jones Jr. designed this public course together in 1970 in their first joint venture, which yielded "18 beautiful holes that follow the natural terrain of the oak-studded coastal hills along the Monterey-Salinas corridor." The 6,157-yard, par-71 course is located off of Highway 68 east of the Monterey Airport and can be reached by turning north on York Road and following it to the end. Green fees range from $20 to $70. A 13-acre natural grass practice facility and Cobra golf club rentals also available. For information, call (831) 373-3701 or visit www.lagunasecagolf.com, which also features online specials.

■ The Links at Spanish Bay, Pebble Beach

"Spanish Bay recalls the original Scottish concept of the game golf established over five hundred years ago ... Here, the golf course provides you with the choice of using your regular shot or a low, running shot to play the firm turf while keeping the ball under the steady ocean breezes," according to P.B. Resorts. Open for public play, the 6,821-yard par-72 Spanish Bay links were jointly designed by Robert Trent Jones, Jr., former USGA president Sandy Tatum and Tom Watson, who once remarked, "Spanish Bay is so much like Scotland, you can almost hear the bagpipes." "Links" refers to the old Scottish term for a sandy seaside wasteland with bristly grasses and stiff prevailing winds, and the Monterey coastline is reminiscent of the rugged beauty of that country. The course overlays land once occupied by a sand mine and included extensive rehabilitation of the dunes and native plants in the area. Remember to listen for the bagpiper who notifies golfers that the day's play is coming to an end, and then head inside for some food and libation at Roy's, Pèppoli or Sticks. The rate is $260. Carts and caddies available. The course is located at 2700 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach. For reservations, call (800) 654-9300 or visit www.pebblebeach.com.

■ Monterey Peninsula Country Club, Pebble Beach

Monterey Peninsula Country Club was founded in January 1925 when Sam Morse, James Habbord and Thorwell Mullally decided to combine a golf club with housing, and Morse served as the first president of the MPCC board of directors. Two courses make up MPCC: the Dunes Course, which was designed by Seth Raynor in 1926 and redesigned by Rees Jones, and the Shore Course, which was designed by Bob Baldock and Pebble Beach Golf Links architect Jack Neville in 1961, and then remodeled in 2003 and 2004 by architect Michael Strantz. Open only to members and their guests, the Dunes course runs a 6,762-yard par 72 from the gold tees. The Shore Course reopened with a par-72 yardage of 6,806, also from the golds. While the Dunes Course first hosted what was then called the Crosby Pro-Am after the

■ Monterey Pines Golf Course, Monterey

Recently renovated, the official U.S. Navy course offers one of the best deals in town. "Those who have played are unanimous in their assessment of the course: challenging for all, well conditioned, great pace of play and friendly staff. The new course offers our servicemen and women an outstanding venue for golf at affordable rates. Monterey Pines is well on the way to being recognized as one of the best of all Navy Golf Courses," according to the Naval Postgraduate School, which operates Monterey Pines. Golfers who get a rush from being directly under the flight path of a regional airport should definitely put in a round at the U.S. Navy's golf course, which is also open to the public for very low rates. But the course is not without its darker stories, including the crash-landing of a Cessna on the 6th Fairway in September 2003 (no golfers were involved), and the crash of a Carmel Valley attorney's small plane in the driveway more recently. Robert Muir Graves designed the course in 1963, and it has been redesigned by Marc Messier. The remodel work that had the course closed in 2009 also included renovating the Monterey Pines Grill & Bar that now offers a private banquet room for meetings and special events, a bar, multiple televisions and new furnishings. The 5,409-yard, par-69 course is located at Garden and Fairgrounds roads in Monterey, near the Monterey Airport. A pro shop and professional instruction are available as well. For more information, call the golf shop at (831) 656-1087 or visit www.nps.edu/Services/MWR/Services/FitnessRecreation/Golf/index.html.

■ Pacific Grove Golf Links, Pacific Grove

Affectionately known as the "Poor Man's Pebble Beach," and ranked among Golf Magazine's Top 50 Golf Courses Under $50, P.G. features a truly links-style back nine. Designed by Jack Neville — who also designed Pebble Beach Golf Links and Monterey Peninsula Country Club's Shore Course — and H. Chandler Egan in 1932 partly on land the city bought from Pebble Beach Company founder Sam Morse, this 5,732-yard par-70 public course is situated on prime real estate near Asilomar State Beach and surrounds the historic Point Pinos Lighthouse. The ocean scenery is unsurpassed, and the highly regarded Zagat Survey selected it as one of the best courses in the country in 2003. "The holes are unpretentious, reminiscent of an era when the 'par fours' were sometimes less than 300 yards and the 'par threes' could be contemplated by the common folk. There are not many bunkers, and the greens are small," according to the City of Pacific Grove, which also boasts of the course's scenery and ocean views. The new clubhouse, located at 77 Asilomar Blvd. in Pacific Grove, was completed in February 2006. Fees for 18 holes range from $20 to $48. Discounts are offered for 9-hole play, twilight rounds and junior players 17 and under. Club rentals and lessons also available. Call the golf shop at (831) 648-5775 or visit www.pggolflinks.com for more information.

■ Pasadera Country Club, Monterey

Designed by Jack Nicklaus, Pasadera opened in spring 2000, just a few months before the U.S. Open was played at the Pebble Beach Golf Links. "The original landscape at Pasadera provided a unique opportunity to create a dramatic layout that incorporates selected design features reminiscent of the world's most revered layouts. The course evokes similarities to The Old Course at Saint Andrews, Augusta National, Pine Valley and Pebble Beach, which are arguably four of my favorite courses in the world. It is my hope that golfers will enjoy the subtleties that Pasadera has to offer, from the opening tee shot, to the final putt," says Nicklaus, who designed the 6,743-yard par-71 course open only to members and their guests. Capitalizing on the existing hills, canyons and old oak groves, Nicklaus used natural-style bunkering and took advantage of splendid hazards, such as the awe-inspiring par 3 over a deep chasm. Located at 100 Pasadera Drive off Highway 68, Pasadera lies just east of Laguna Seca Golf Ranch and west of the world-famous race track by the same name. The pro shop can be reached by calling (831) 647-2421.

■ Pebble Beach Golf Links, Pebble Beach

Situated on scenic coastal land originally slated for houses, Pebble Beach opened to the public in 1919 and is considered one of the greatest courses in the world. Its oceanfront holes, including the dramatic par-3 7th and the spectacular 18th, are particularly captivating. The course was designed by Jack Neville and Douglas Grant, but Jack Nicklaus designed the par-3 5th Hole dedicated in November 1998. Pebble Beach has been the site of five U.S. Open Championships — 1972, 1982, 1992, 2000 and 2010 — and was ranked the No. 1 Public Course in America by Golf Digest in 2005, 2007, 2008/2009 and 2009/2010. It is slated to host the U.S. Open again in 2019, in celebration of the course's centennial. "Since 1919, the exquisite beauty and unique challenge of Pebble Beach Golf Links have thrilled golfers and spectators alike," according to the resort. When not closed for tournaments, the course is open to the public, with priority given to resort guests. Green fees ($495) include a cart for resort guests. Carts for non-resort guests are extra, and caddies are also available for a fee. For more information, call golf reservations at (800) 645-9300 or visit www.pebblebeach.com.

designed by Robert Trent Jones Jr. in 1986 and is open to the public. In 1991, Poppy Hills became one of the three courses hosting each year's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. That continued until last year, when it was replaced by the Monterey Peninsula Country Club's Shore Course. PGA Tour statistics in 2006 affirmed its 5th Hole as "the toughest on tour," and Poppy is known for its undulating fairways, challenging elevation changes and other characteristics designed to force golfers to carefully calculate their shots. Players enjoy Poppy Hills so much they named it No. 12 among the most popular golf courses in the United States, according to the 2007 Zagat Survey. Joining the NCGA can get you nearly 75 percent off green fees, and twilight rates are available. Rates range from $25 to $200. Carts are GPS equipped. The course, the first in the United States to be owned and operated by an amateur golf association, is located at 3200 Lopez Road in Pebble Beach. For reservations, call (831) 625-2035 or visit www.poppy-hillsgolf.com.

■ The Preserve Golf Club, Carmel Valley

Tom Fazio designed this private,

7,004-yard par-72 course located among the "stands of massive ancient oaks, beautiful rolling meadows, ponds and streams" deep within the Santa Lucia Preserve and highlighted by the spectacular Santa Lucia Mountains. Fazio commented, "It's as if you are going on a grand hike and happen to have a golf club in your hand," and said the course has no signature hole, as the entire place is a signature property. Dave Nelson holds the course record 65. When the course opened in 1999, membership was limited to 300, all of whom had to be owners of property within the preserve's gates. But this year, the club began accepting membership applications from non-property owners, making Fazio's gorgeous work and the course's stunning natural setting accessible to more people who will truly appreciate the opportunity to play it. Prospective members tour the club, meet with members and, if the fit seems good, are invited to apply and undergo an interview with the club's membership committee. Contact (831) 620-6871 or register at www.santaluciapreserve.com for information.

■ Quail Lodge Resort and Golf Club, Carmel Valley

The hotel shut its doors in November 2009, but the golf club continues to operate strongly, thanks to devoted members and capable employees who want everyone to know Quail remains viable. "A round of golf on our scenic Carmel Valley golf course is so relaxing, the wildlife may ask to play through. Go ahead and let them — when you're surrounded by hills and lakes this beautiful, it seems a shame to rush," crows Quail's website. The 6,449-yard par-71 Quail Lodge course — abundant with 10 lakes and lush, colorful landscaping — was designed in 1963 by Robert Muir Graves. It was honored by "Golf for Women" as one of America's most friendly facilities and hosted the Women's California Amateur Championship in 2009. The course is

*'They love us ...
they really,
really love us!'*

Here's what our readers are saying —

- "I get The Pine Cone every week and enjoy it more than you can know. What a wonderful paper you have. I read every word!"
- "I just wanted to let you know how truly outstanding The Pine Cone is. The writing equals, if not exceeds, top-notch national papers. You and your staff should be proud. I know I've told you before how great I think The Pine Cone is, but it really is a terrific paper."
- "Thank you for providing balanced and researched reporting and upbeat articles. I hope we have The Pine Cone around for many years to come. If it gets down to it, I would pay for the subscription to keep the paper viable."
- "We poll our ticket-buyers as to where they hear about our concerts. You might be surprised to learn how many of them mention The Pine Cone. Thanks!"
- "Thanks for the consistently great job you do with your newspaper. I regularly read several newspapers from around the country and yours has the best editorial integrity — bar none. Keep up the good work!"
- "I look forward to The Pine Cone more than you will ever know."
- "The Pine Cone used to be my Friday morning habit, and now it's my Thursday night habit. I also love the fact I can get the entire paper online when I'm out of town."
- "I am a regular advertiser in your paper, and I have been meaning to tell you how much I enjoy your writing. It accomplishes exactly what I guess you want it to: I always want to read on. I appreciate and enjoy your talent."
- "I just wanted to tell you how much I appreciate The Pine Cone and the fact that it seems to be the only news medium that does not feel it must serve up a diet of perversion, doom, gloom and controversy in order to glean and keep readers."
- "I am writing to thank you for your excellent newspaper, especially since it is available online. God Bless you and your editorial and production staff."
- "I love your newspaper!"
- "I am so grateful to read all about the local news."
- "I just want to tell you how much I enjoy receiving The Pine Cone online ... it keeps me connected with Carmel. I love what you guys do."
- "I don't know where all the good reporters have gone, but I sure miss them when I read other local papers. Keep up the good work. Your community needs you."
- "I can't begin to tell you how much I look forward to The Pine Cone. It gives me more news in one week and one edition than the Herald does all week. You and your staff seem to have an ability to sniff out what is really important and of interest to Carmelites, weed out all the extras, and deliver it in a concise and timely manner. I can't thank you enough for it."
- "I love Carmel and your enticing commentary. You're creative."
- "Probably 50 people came to our event because of the article you printed. I kept asking people, 'How did you hear about this?' and pretty much to a person they said, 'the article in the paper,' which meant The Pine Cone. Thank you so much."
- "I have always been amazed at your editorials in The Pine Cone in that I do not believe I have ever disagreed with one of them. From taxes to the economy, to our current leaders, the crazy historical preservation efforts in Carmel, our court system, you have been a voice of sane reason in an increasingly insane world. I call you the 'anti-Chronicle,' and, believe me, that is a huge compliment."
- "Thank you for your excellent, easy-to-read, always-appreciated newspaper."
- "Your team is doing a great job! I have been a subscriber for a while now. The paper lets me know what's going with my Favorite Place On Earth."

Rancho Cañada Golf Club, Carmel Valley

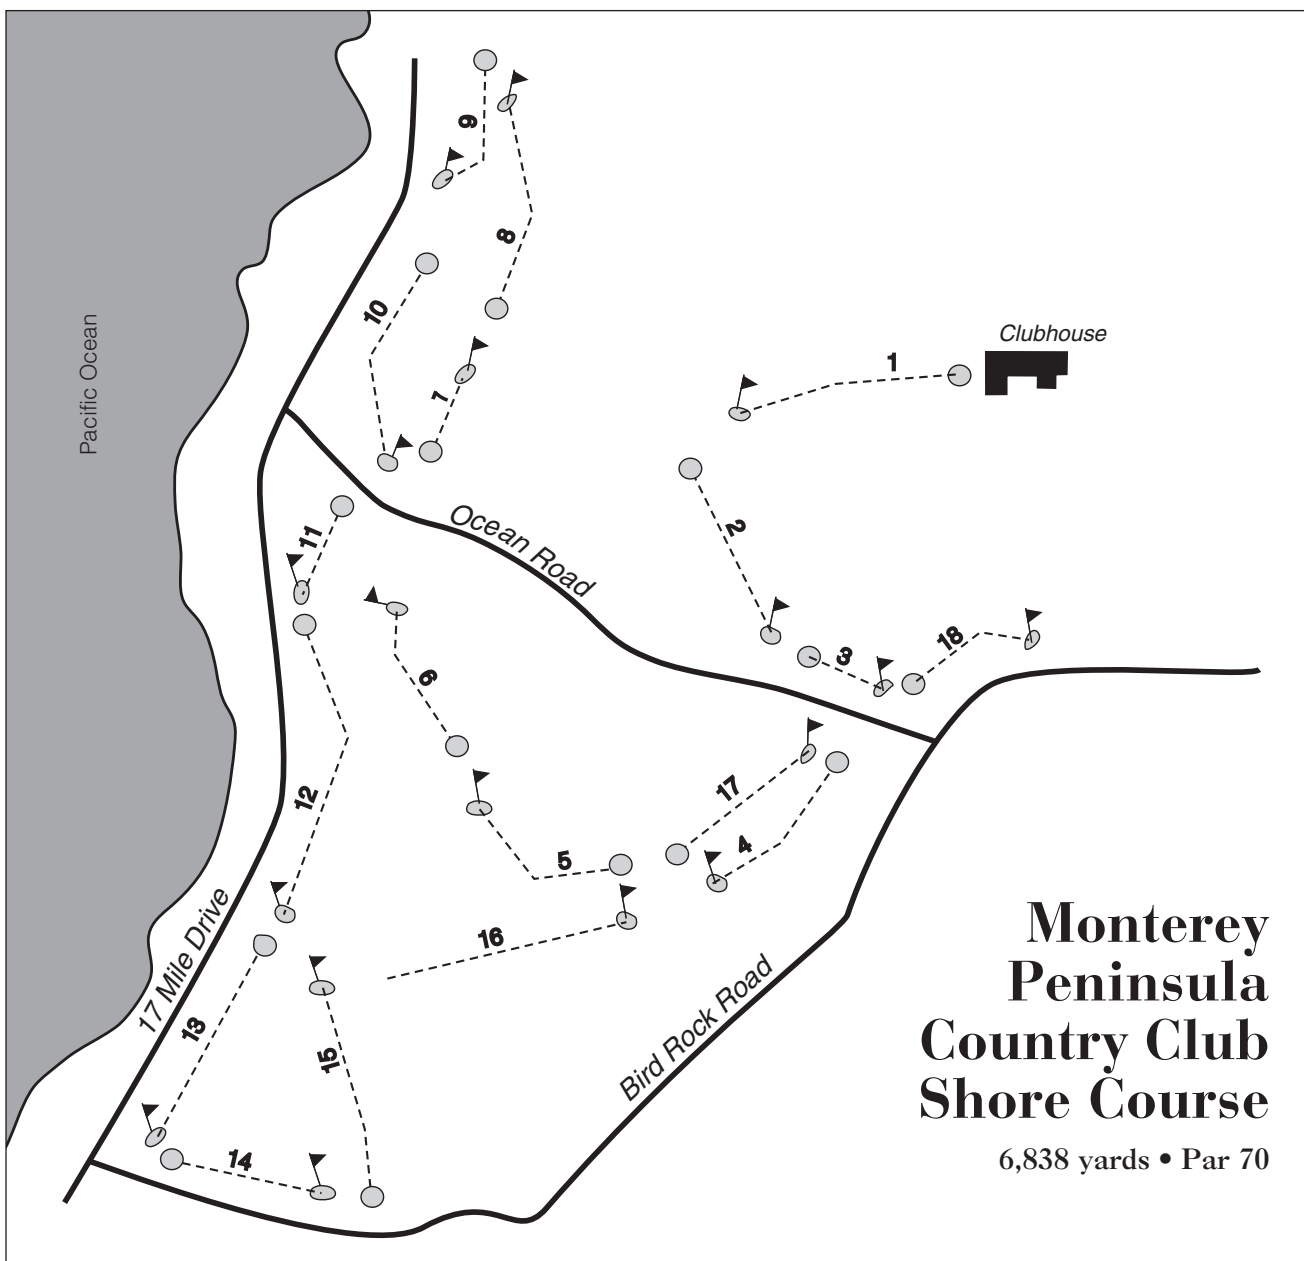

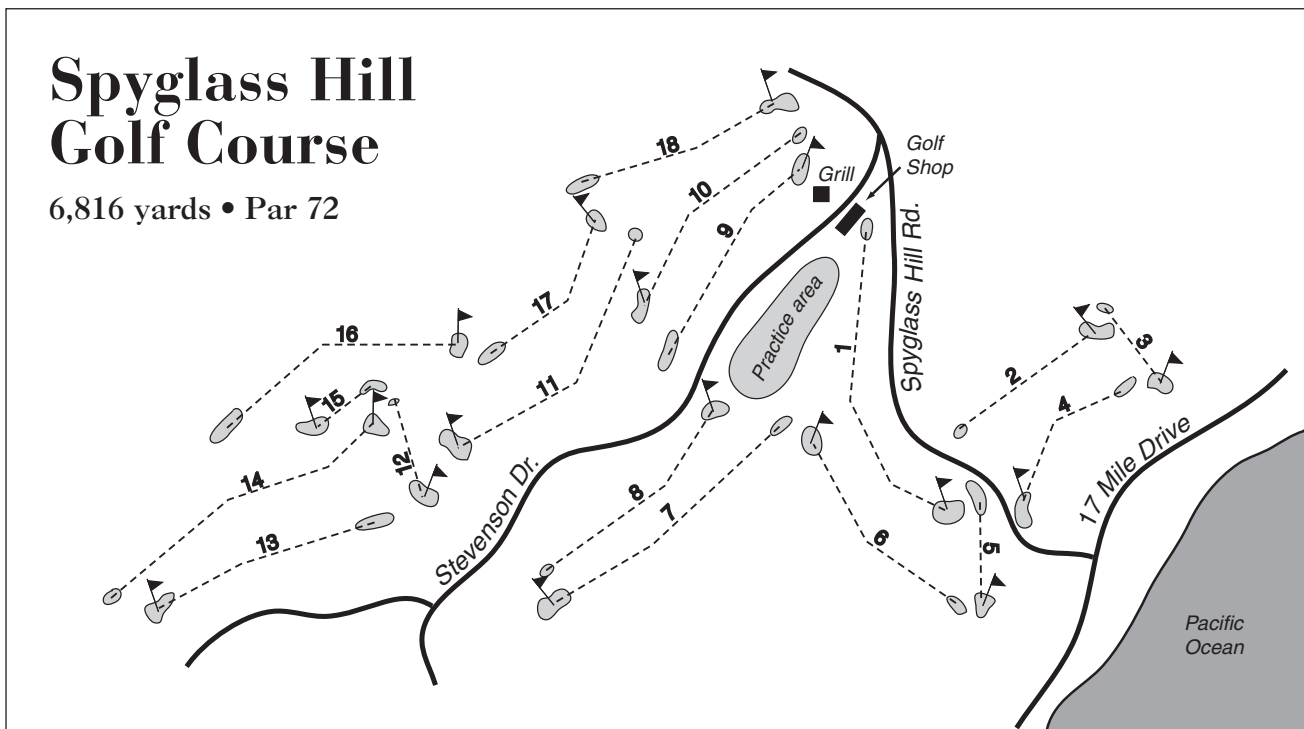

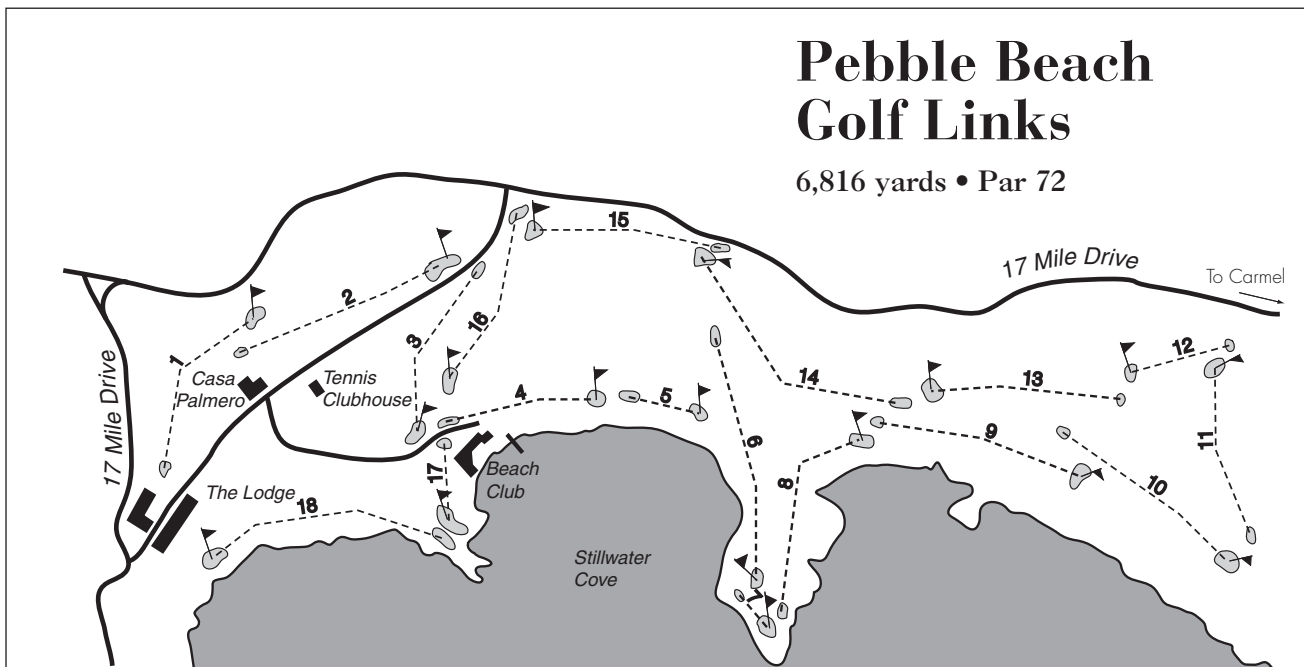

Situated along the Carmel River, Rancho Cañada features two 18-hole courses: the 6,357-yard par-71 West Course, with fairways described as "deceptively broad to needle narrow," and the 6,125-yard par-71 East Course, where the Carmel River comes into play on the front 9. Famed pro golfer Sam Snead once said the 15th Hole on Rancho Cañada's West Course was the narrowest hole he had ever played. Both designed by Robert Dean Putnam in 1970, the East and West courses are open to the public and are located at 4860 Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley, just a few miles from the coast. Rancho Cañada also offers grass practice facilities, tournament services, club rentals, a pro shop and a full bar. Green fees run from $35 to $70. Contact the golf shop at (831) 624-0111 or visit www.ranchocanada.com for more information.

Spyglass Hill Golf Course, Pebble Beach

Designed by Robert Trent Jones Sr. in 1966 as part of the master plan for the Pebble Beach oceanfront, this resort/semiprivate course measures 6,953 yards at par 72 and takes its name from Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." Local legend has it he spent time walking in the area while brainstorming, and many of its holes bear notable names, such as Black Dog and Billy Bones. The year after the course was completed, Spyglass replaced the Monterey Peninsula Country Club in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament in 1967 and has been part of that contest — now the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am — ever since. In 2007/2008 and 2009/2010, Golf Digest ranked it No. 11 on its list of America's 100 Greatest Public Courses. According to the resort, "the first five holes roll through sandy seaside dunes challenging the golfer to carefully pick the safest path. The following 13 holes are cut through majestic pines with elevated greens and strategically placed bunkers and lakes to grab the errant shot." The rate to play is $350. Carts and/or caddies available. The course is located at Stevenson Drive and Spyglass Hill Road in Pebble Beach. For reservations, call (800) 654-9300 or visit www.pebblebeach.com

Tehama Golf Club, Carmel Valley

Jay Moorish, who also designed Shadow Glen in Kansas City, Troon and Troon North in Scottsdale, and Loch Lomond in Scotland, created this 6,506-yard par-71 course high in the hills above Carmel Valley. The hilltop course is described as being, "where the golf is legendary, the service is impeccable, and the memories last a lifetime." According to Tehama, "the tranquility and natural beauty of the land, combined with this time-honored game, provides the golfer a surreal hideaway." Owned by former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood, the course opened for private play in 1999 and climbs 200 feet in elevation during its 18 holes, six of which are uphill. Members and guests only. For more information about Tehama, which is located at 25000 Via Malpaso off Carmel Valley Road, contact the golf shop at (831) 622-2250 or visit www.tehamagolfclub.com.

Take a shuttle to the AT&T!

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TO WOO visitors to eat, drink and shop in their towns when they're not taking in the golf at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, and to provide easy ways in and out of the tournament, chambers of commerce are offering shuttle services between their towns and Pebble Beach. The buses eliminate the need for golf fans to take shuttles to the tournament from parking lots at California State University Monterey Bay on the former Fort Ord.

■ Carmel-by-the-Sea

The Carmel Chamber of Commerce and the Carmel Innkeepers Association will run shuttle buses from Carmel to the pro-am from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 9; from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 10-12; and from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 13.

Buses depart from Carmel Plaza and drop spectators off in Pebble Beach, and passes, which allow unlimited rides, are $20 per person per day. A Wednesday-through-Sunday pass is available for $75.

Fans may also purchase any-day golf tournament tickets for $55 (as opposed to $60 at the gate) at the bus stop or at the Carmel Chamber of Commerce Visitor Center, located on the west side of San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues, ahead of time.

Paid parking is available at the Sunset Center lot on Eighth at Mission Street and in the Carmel Plaza on Mission between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Free parking is available in the Vista Lobos lot at Third and Junipero, as well as on the street, though people should be aware of parking time limits in certain areas of town. If fans want to take a break from golf and come into Carmel for lunch or shopping, they can catch the shuttle by the P.B. Equestrian Center.

Shuttle tickets and tournament any-day tickets may be purchased ahead of time by calling the Carmel Chamber of Commerce at (831) 624-2522 or visiting www.carmelcalifornia.org. During the tournament, tickets can be purchased at the Carmel Plaza bus stop.

■ Monterey

The Cannery Row Co. and the Old Monterey Business Association are operating the Monterey Express Shuttle. Fans can park their cars at two Monterey locations, get their fill of golf and return for an evening of food and fun on Cannery Row or in downtown Monterey.

The shuttle stop is located at the corner of Prescott Street adjacent to Steinbeck Plaza, with parking in the Cannery Row Garage. In downtown Monterey, the stop is at the Monterey Conference Center in Portola Plaza, with parking in the downtown garages on Tyler and Franklin streets.

Buses leave approximately every 20 minutes on Feb. 9 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., Feb. 10-12 between 6 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., and Feb. 13 from 6 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The cost is $15 per person for a one-day round-trip shuttle ticket, and parking is $5 per vehicle at the municipal garages near the shuttle stops. Shuttle tickets and AT&T Pro-Am tickets may be purchased at the stops.

For more information, visit canneryrow.com or call (831) 657-6485.

■ Pacific Grove

The Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce will also run a shuttle Wednesday through Sunday, Feb. 9-13, and is also selling golf tickets for $55 each. The shuttles will leave from the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History every 30 minutes. The cost is $20 for all day, and a five-day pass is available for $60.

Free unlimited parking is available a block away on Ocean View Boulevard.

For more information, contact the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce at (831) 373-3304.

WHEN YOU'RE NOT ON THE LINKS

Massage therapist offers relief from watching (or playing)

By KELLY NIX

FOR TENS of thousands of golf fans each year, the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am is a chance to see the world's best golfers play on one of the world's best golf courses.

However, among the die-hard golf fans there are always more than a few family members and friends who would rather ditch the greens and do something else — get a massage, perhaps — while their partners enjoy golf all day long.

If you fall into that category, there's a massage therapist in Pacific Grove — just a few minutes from Pebble Beach — who can come to your rescue.

Certified massage therapist Stacy Bradley who owns Massage and Holistic Wellness Services at 167 17th St., knows well the benefits of massage — and hears it regularly from her clients.

"I often hear people say 'I feel like my self again,' and that's a beautiful thing," Bradley said. "My clients tell me they feel a little more whole again."

Bradley received formal training and certification in Swedish-style massage from the Monterey Institute of Touch in Carmel. She is also trained in a variety of other techniques including orthopedic, deep tissue, shiatsu and sports massage.

"Most that have tried massage would agree that this is one of the nicest things you can do for yourself," she said.

Instead of insisting on a specific massage discipline, Bradley offers whatever feels best for a person, whether it's deep tissue or orthopedic.

"I use whatever technique will help a person get off the table and feel more relaxed, more mobile and free of pain," she said.

Bradley also offers sessions in various types of energy work, such as Reiki, which involves transferring energy to a person with light touch or even no touch at all.

"I can do an entire session without touching a person," she said, "but I prefer putting my hands down."

Clients who are at first unsure or skeptical about energy work, often later praise its benefits, she said.

"Not everybody is ready to hear 'energy' or 'hands-on healing,'" Bradley said. "But they understand massage and, to some degree, the healing power of touch. I try to keep it simple. People just want to feel better."

A typical session in energy work involves a client laying clothed on a massage table while Bradley uses her hands and lightly places them on areas of the body.

Even though there is no massage and Bradley doesn't move her hands much, the experience — as demonstrated in a 15-minute session with a Pine Cone reporter — is extremely relaxing.

"While some people feel the energy being taken into their body and describe it as a feeling of warmth or cool air or a mild tingling sensation," she said, "others feel nothing but conclude the session with the overall feeling of relaxation and peace."

Bradley's sessions take place in a comfortable setting in her P.G. studio. She offers clients a choice in music and different types of organic massage oils that she makes.

While some clients prefer to remain quiet — some even go to sleep — others like to carry on a conversation, options Bradley happily leaves open.

"It's your special time so you can choose to remain quiet and simply explore your own thoughts during a session or chat if desired," she said.

Special needs

About half Bradley's clients are those who are ill or in chronic pain. Some have disabilities or are confined to a bed. Human touch, especially by an expert like Bradley, can be comforting and rejuvenating, increase circulation and even reduce or get rid of pain, she said.

"When someone is in chronic pain, acute pain or depressed," Bradley said, "it's a wonderful thing to see them experience relief."

She also has many senior clients who sometimes can't endure the pressure that massage offers. Light touch is a good alternative.

"Energy work is really helpful with older people who have a lot of arthritic pain and are really unable to tolerate massage," she explained.

"When I put my hands down, it warms up their joints and helps comfort and relax them," she explained.

Bradley also works with people who are in hospice care. Some are in chronic pain and others are terminally ill. She recognizes every client has their own circumstances and challenges.

My clients leave with a better sense of well being," she said. "They feel better on the inside and on the outside."

Massage & Holistic Wellness Services is at 167 17th Street in Pacific Grove. Call (831) 277-0643 or go to www.spiritsdelight.com for information and to schedule an appointment.

Holistic massage is about more than just manipulation of the body. It's also about atmosphere, fragrances and oils.

The Essence of Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH is one of the most famous places in the world — and not only because it's home to renowned golf courses such as Cypress Point, Spyglass Hill, Spanish Bay, Monterey Peninsula Country Club and, of course, Pebble Beach. In this unique area, which is also known as Del Monte Forest, you can find hillsides crowded with pines and laced with hiking trails, pristine beaches practically devoid of footprints, rocky coves populated with harbor seals and sea otters, and endless expanses of salt-air meadows dotted with windswept cypress. Meandering through it all is scenic 17 Mile Drive, which practically qualifies as a destination all its own.

Amid all that splendor, of course, are numerous impressive mansions with pedigrees going back to some of California's founding families, and now occupied by captains of Wall Street, Hollywood and Silicon Valley. For most visitors and would-be residents, those places are objects of pure fantasy. But did you realize that just around the corner from homes costing $10 million and up are plenty of far more affordable options? If you're looking for your Pebble Beach dream home at a price under $1 million, this page is for you
