Snow puts on quite a show

From Big Sur to Marina, snow decorated the hillsides and even some low lying parts of the Monterey Peninsula Saturday. At Chamisal Tennis Club, Tamsen Forrest's mid-afternoon USTA match was canceled because of heavy snow "getting into everybody's eyes," while at the Running Iron in Carmel Valley Village, manager Tawny Scardina said "everybody ran outside" to look at the heavy snow coming down about 5 p.m. At higher elevations, there were substantial accumulations, but even in some neighborhoods no more than 1,500 feet above sea level, such as Hidden Hills (right), front yards were turned into winter wonderlands.

Council meetings drawing crowds of smart meter protesters

■ Out-of-town activists cite conspiracies, make dire predictions

By KELLY NIX and MARY BROWNFIELD

YOU'VE SEEN them on TV and read in the newspapers about their statewide campaign to ban smart meters. And now, local city council meetings are being crowded with vehement anti-smart-meter activists — almost none of whom seem to live in the area.

At Tuesday night's Carmel City Council meeting, one woman complained of widespread billing problems following meter installations in Bakersfield and Fresno, where residents saw their energy costs double and triple. She also said the new technology presents "substantial health issues," due to "very strong, very brief pulses of microwave radio frequencies" emitted as often as "every few seconds." She said residents experienced dizziness, flu-like symptoms, irregular heart rhythms, ringing in the ears and cognitive problems like memory loss following the installation of smart meters.

Furthermore, because the meters use Wi-Fi or cell phone networks to transmit data to the utility companies, they are vulnerable to hackers, she claimed, and she asked the city council to consider an ordinance to stop their installation.

After she spoke, a crowd at the back of the chambers broke into applause, eliciting a reprimand from the mayor.

Another opponent, who visibly trembled as she spoke, held handmade posters, including one that read, "Smart Meters = Ubiquitous Microwave Radiation," to show the

MAN SUES DOC FOR OPERATING ON WRONG KNEE

By KELLY NIX

MOST PEOPLE have heard horror stories of "wrong-sided" surgery — when a surgeon mistakenly removes the wrong kidney or even amputates the wrong limb.

A Monterey Peninsula man knows the feeling too well.

Robert Pegis Sr. filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court Feb. 23 alleging a surgeon at a Monterey clinic in 2009 accidentally operated on the wrong knee.

"When [Pegis] recovered consciousness from the anesthesia," according to the suit, "he was shocked to discover that his left knee, not his right knee, had been operated on"

Pegis is suing the Monterey Peninsula Surgery Center and physicians Jeffrey Carter and James Field. He is seeking an unspecified amount in damages exceeding $25,000.

The lawsuit contends that on Dec. 18, 2009, Pegis was admitted to the Cass Street surgery clinic for a procedure to his right knee known as an arthroscopic partial medial meniscectomy with debridement.

Before the operation, Pegis signed a "disclosure and consent" form indicating doctors would perform surgery to his right knee, the suit says.

Medical staff at the surgery center who tended to Pegis "confirmed with [him] prior to the surgery that the arthroscopic procedure was to be performed on [his] right knee," according to the lawsuit.

But somewhere along the way, something went wrong. Pegis alleges Carter cut into the wrong knee for the operation.

Council OK with chickens — as long as they aren't a nuisance

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITH MAYOR Sue McCloud voting "no" because she didn't like the idea of chicken coops being allowed in front yards, the city council voted 4-1 this week to let Carmel residents keep two hens — front yard or back.

The law, which is set to expire June 30, 2013, would require a permit to keep hens and would only allow 15 to be issued during that period.

After resident Anna Yateman asked the city to allow her to keep hens for their eggs, fertilizer and pest control, the council asked the planning commission last October to weigh in on an ordinance and forward it to the council for adoption.

According to the law proposed by the commission in January, a maximum of two chicken hens would be permitted per building site in the residential district. Roosters would not be allowed, since they are noisy, and the hens would have to be kept in a 20-square-foot enclosure no taller than 5 feet. They could only be outside the coop when supervised, and the owners could not sell them or their eggs.

Furthermore, the planning department would have to approve the location and design of the enclosure, and

300K gallons of partially treated sewage flow to bay

By KELLY NIX

A SPILL of about 300,000 gallons of partially treated wastewater into Carmel Bay Sunday night likely will have no significant adverse effects on the marine environment, according to the general manager of the Carmel Area Wastewater District.

The water had gone through the first two stages of treatment — sedimentation to remove solids, and then aerobic digestion to break down organic matter — but hadn't received a final chlorine disinfection treatment before it flowed into the bay Sunday about 5 p.m. A series of system malfunctions is being blamed on the accident.

Water samples taken Monday at the Carmel River Lagoon, the north shore of the Carmel River mouth and at Monastery Beach indicated very low levels of coliform bacteria.

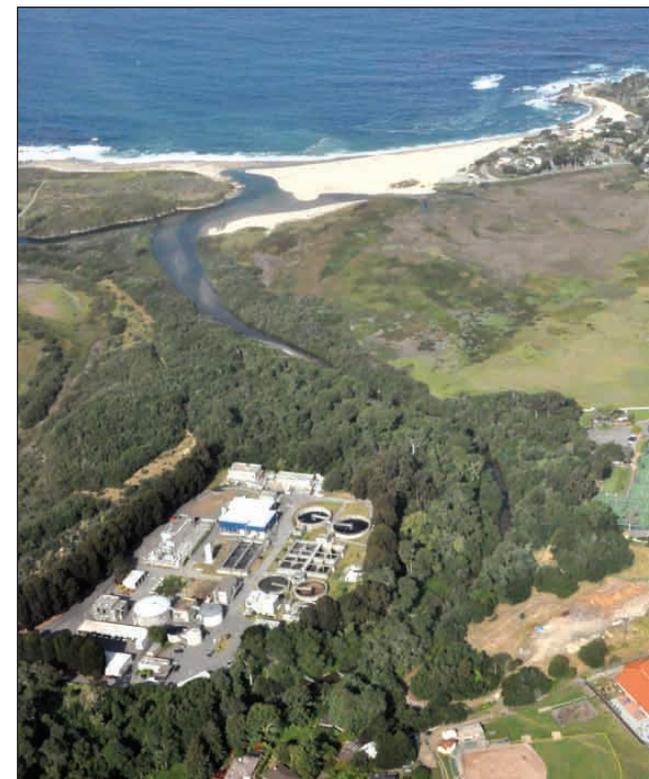

"We think it had very little effect, negative or otherwise on the marine environment," CAWD general manager Barbara Buikema told The Pine Cone.

The cause of the spill seems to have been caused when CAWD's primary chlorination injection system became detached from its mounting.

"It appears that the system, which is bolted to concrete walls, pulled out of those fittings, causing it to wobble," said Buikema, who took over as GM in July 2010 after Ray von Dohren retired.

The movement contributed to what Buikema believes caused the unit's seals to fail, which caused coolant to leak

A system to treat sewage with chlorine before it is discharged into Carmel Bay failed Sunday afternoon, allowing 300,000 gallons of bacteria-laden water to escape.

Stars reunite for concert to benefit CHOMP heart institute

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITH AN aging population, the Monterey Peninsula needs topnotch heart care close by, and Community Hospital's Tyler Heart Institute is designed with that goal in mind.

Recognizing its importance, Carmel resident David Liskin and marketing consultant Dan Parker teamed up to organize the heart institute's first benefit concert. Singer-songwriter Al Stewart ("Year of the Cat," "Time Passages") and his former keyboard and guitar player, Peter White, along with other former bandmates, will reunite for a May 7 performance at Sunset Center.

"We're excited about this concert, because it's really going to raise some good money for the hospital, especially the Tyler Heart Institute, and the hospital has never really done anything like this before," Liskin said. "We're hoping it will become an annual event."

While raising dollars for Tyler Heart, which was founded on Valentine's Day in 2007 following a "significant donation" from William and Susanne Tyler, the concert will also raise awareness of its existence and mission, according to Liskin. As part of CHOMP, the Tyler Heart Institute seeks to seamlessly address diagnosis, intervention and rehabilitation of heart disease, but its primary goal is to help prevent it.

"I thought the hospital would be a great beneficiary, because they are such a great asset to the community," Liskin continued.

Dr. Richard Gray, the cardiologist who serves as the institute's director, said it encompasses multiple aspects of care: electrophysiology, catheterization, surgery and recovery, as well as a women's heart program, community outreach and other elements.

"All of that comes under the umbrella of the Tyler Heart Institute, and what differentiates it from a program at a hospital is our aim in a special organizational unit to provide cardiac care, from symptoms, to testing, to diagnosis to treatment," he said. "I might describe it as basically going the extra mile to give patients the feeling that they are receiving personal attention."

The center's nurses and physicians want to ensure their clients "don't feel like it's just a doctor providing a procedure and moving on to the next patient," he said.

"I think it's such an important part of the community," said Liskin, whose family foundation has quietly supported nonprofit endeavors in the medical field over the years. "I wanted to get the word out about Tyler Heart."

The idea of generating money and awareness for the institute stemmed from a meeting Liskin had with CHOMP President/CEO Dr. Steven Packer and the chairman of its board of trustees, Frank Amato. He told them he wanted to hold a fundraiser for the hospital, and together they decided Tyler Heart would be a particularly worthy beneficiary.

The idea resonated with Liskin, who credited the experts at the institute with saving the life of a close family member, though he declined to go into details.

He also decided to take on all of the risk of hosting a benefit concert.

"I guaranteed them a donation, even if we lost all our money, even if no one showed up," he said.

Gray said the institute is worthy of accolades and support, as indicated by its very low mortality rate in cardiac surgery and "extremely fast treatment" of heart attacks.

"We have enviable results in both those areas, and that's the result of everyone at the Tyler Heart Institute working together," he said.

In addition to creating an event for a worthy cause, Liskin and Parker are excited to be

GETTING THE PROPER BACKING

Those purchasing carpeting are likely to pay far more attention to the color, material, and construction of the soft side than the backing. However, carpet backing is worthy of note in that it plays a very important role in determining the shape and structural stability of the carpet, backing usually is composed of two layers. The first, the primary backing of coarse material through which carpet fibers are woven or tufted, forms the structural element of the carpet. The secondary backing helps insulate the carpet from moisture, bacteria, and mold. The heaviness of the secondary backing's weave can be used to gauge its durability and integrity.

Dress up your floors with a custom treatment from CARPETS & FLOORS, INC. When you are choosing among the many offerings from the carpeting industry, we'll find the look that fits your room's style and your family's lifestyle. For residential or commercial floors, we look forward to meeting and working with you on your project. Your friends and neighbors here in Monterey Peninsula will tell you that we are the place to visit for the best in floor decorating service. We're open Monday through Saturday 9am to 5pm.

HINT: Carpet padding, which is laid beneath the carpet backing, provides another layer of insulation from sound, cold, moisture, bacteria, and mildew.

TOOTHPASTE,
DID YOU KNOW?

The first toothpaste was made in China and India in 300/500 BC. They used abrasives such as bone, eggs and oyster shells. Later tooth powders were made with powdered charcoal, powdered bark and flavoring agents. In Britain in the late eighteenth century the modern toothpowder or dentifrice was made available. The soap in this formula was replaced after World War II with Sodium Lauryl Sulphate an emulsifying agent. Our mouth contains over 500 types of microorganisms. Some of these create sticky plaque from the food residues in your mouth. The bacteria feed on leftover food to create acid and volatile sulfur molecules. The acid eats into tooth enamel to produce cavities while volatile sulfur molecules give breath its foul odor. Toothpaste works with the toothbrush to remove the sticky plaque and polish the surface of the tooth. Fluoride in various forms helps to prevent tooth decay by making the tooth less affected by the acid in plaque. Other ingredients can include anti-bacterial agents, remineralizers, whitening ingredients and anti-sensitive agents. Pick toothpaste that is not too abrasive, as that will remove tooth enamel. Talk to your dentist or hygienist as to what will be the best paste to meet your needs.

The dental team of Dr. Lois Lagier is dedicated to providing you with the state-of-the-art dental care in a comfortable atmosphere. Let us care for you!

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12

Carmel area: Deputies responded to an Oliver Road residence in regards to a physical altercation between a boyfriend and girlfriend. The suspect forcibly opened a car door, striking another vehicle, then pushed his girlfriend several times around the head and neck area. The girlfriend tried to get away several times, but the suspect held her down, preventing her escape.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 13

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A Mission Street resident reported an unwanted subject in her residence and wanted him to leave. The subject was her husband, whom she was having an argument with. She stated that she was upset because he was being verbally abusive. Both parties appeared to settle their differences.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vandalism to a vehicle on San Carlos Street reported.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to do a welfare check on an elderly female Sinex Avenue resident with known medical problems who had not been heard from for approximately 10 days per the reporting party, who said he usually talks to her on a daily basis and is informed if she's going away. Neighbors confirmed she had not been seen for approximately one week, and she had recently been hospitalized. Local hospitals had no patients with her name. Exterior of house was secure, but the officer noticed an oxygen tank within view of the back door. With no way to contact a key holder, fire department assisted police to gain entry through a back door. The female was not inside, and the house appeared to be in order. The empty mailbox and the fresh cat food, water and clean litter box suggested someone is caring for pets and collecting while she is away.

Carmel Valley: Assisted CHP with a traffic-accident investigation at Carmel Valley Road and El Caminito Road involving horses.

VALENTINE'S DAY

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A male subject, age 46, was contacted in the downtown business area on an unrelated matter and found to have two outstanding warrants issued for his arrest. Male subject arrested, booked at Carmel P.D. and transported to MCSO jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed from Junipero and stored for expired registration and an unlicensed driver. Vehicle then repossessed. Fees paid and vehicle released to lien holder. Vehicle entered into the system.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CPD units were dispatched to a report of two male subjects on Dolores Street involved in a verbal altercation over marital problems each was having with his respective spouse. Upon arrival of police units, both parties were separated, counseled and released from the scene.

Pacific Grove: A 24-year-old male subject was arrested for vandalism after throwing a wooden sign through the window of the home of his ex-girlfriend's boyfriend. Subject was booked, cited and later released.

Pacific Grove: Woman reported that her friend's ex-boyfriend has been contacting her and is now threatening her if she does not help him contact the friend. She stated the subject threatened to kill her and believes he is capable of causing harm because of his unpredictable temper. Subject lives in So Cal and has threatened to travel here.

Big Sur: Person reported overdue hikers who were later contacted and found to be in good health.

Pebble Beach: An unknown suspect entered a garage on Forest Lodge Road and stole a bicycle.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 15

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman on San Carlos Street asked for help with annoying telephone calls from a former friend. All parties counseled.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to Junipero north of Vista for wires down on the roadway. Crew secured telephone wires to the side, and Fire Comm was to make notification for repairs.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to a home on Lincoln Street. Arrived on scene to find an elderly woman on the floor, uninjured and requesting assistance up and back into her chair. She did not want any further treatment or help and was physically and verbally abusive and combative.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to a multifamily residence at Lincoln and Fifth because of smoke alarm. Cooking smoke was the cause.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to a multifamily dwelling at Junipero and Fourth for the removal of victims from a stalled elevator. Arrived on scene to find two people trapped. Assisted them out of elevator by using an attic ladder.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance dispatched to a Taylor Drive residence for a male who was unconscious, unresponsive and not breathing. Upon arrival, Cal Fire medic made the primary assessment and pronouncement of a patient with obvious signs of death.

Pacific Grove: Canterbury Woods reported a resident who is a potential wanderer. Photo included.

The person reporting the incident was calling from Pebble Beach on behalf of her daughter, who lives in Pacific Grove. She said the solicitor is very aggressive, and he was not supposed to be soliciting in Pebble Beach and Pacific Grove. Contacted the daughter to see if she needed any assistance, and she advised that she did not know why her mother called the police. Daughter did not want anything done regarding the solicitor.

Pacific Grove: Driver was stopped on Central for texting or reading while driving. It was subsequently revealed that he was unlicensed. The driver was cited, and the vehicle was towed.

Big Sur: Victim lost his Mexican passport somewhere in Big Sur between September and October of 2009. The victim needed a report filed before the Mexican Consulate in San Jose would issue him a replacement.

Carmel area: Resident answered a job offer on Craigslist. He

C.V. woman accused of knifing friend in neck

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MONTEREY COUNTY Sheriff's deputies arrested a 20-year-old Carmel Valley woman for attempted murder Friday morning after she admitted cutting a friend on the neck with an 8-inch kitchen knife, according to Cmdr. Tracy Brown.

The victim, 22-year-old Salinas resident Michael Schmidt, called to report the attack but "wouldn't say how he got injured," Brown said. Deputies found him standing outside an apartment on Woodside Place shortly before 11 a.m. Feb. 25.

He had sustained a knife wound to the neck that ultimately required seven stitches from a physician at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"He had come over to the apartment the night before," Brown said. Deputies repeatedly asked the suspect, Ashley Passey, and Schmidt if they were romantically involved, but neither would say. "Clearly they are good friends and have known each other for a long time," he said.

Ashley Passey

Schmidt was reluctant even to identify Passey as his attacker, according to Brown.

"It took quite a bit of time to get that out of him, but he did eventually say she was the one that cut him," he said.

They also would not tell deputies how the stabbing occurred.

"He was in the bathroom of the apartment, and she came over and cut him with the knife," he said. "They had been arguing, but they wouldn't say why."

Passey, who was not at the apartment when deputies arrived but returned while they were still there, also admitted to cutting Schmidt, according to Brown. While deputies determined Schmidt had been drinking, Passey was reportedly sober.

Deputies took Passey to Monterey County Jail on a felony charge of attempted murder. She appeared for arraignment in Monterey County Superior Court Feb. 28, and a preliminary examination to determine whether sufficient evidence exists for her to stand trial on the charge has been scheduled for March 10.

A man from a small inland town shot himself and was found floating in the water off Soberanes Point by a passerby Sunday, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. Joe Moses. Floyd Calvin Miller, 87, lived in Pioneer in the Sierra Foothills and evidently came to the coast with the intent of ending his life. The Monterey County Sheriff's Search and Rescue Team, with the help of two California State Parks lifeguards — who had to enter the water to pull the body out of a cave — raised Miller up the cliff from the shoreline. Sheriff's Cmdr. Mike Richards said the coroner's office determined the man had died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. He left behind notes in his car indicating he planned to kill himself.

Pricey Junipero repaving project gets council go-ahead

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE $363,662 contract to fix Junipero Street between Ocean and Eighth avenues is going to Monterey Peninsula Engineering, the Carmel City Council decided Tuesday.

The two-block stretch of roadway bears a lot of the city's bus and auto traffic and has become "seriously worn," according to public works superintendent Stu Ross.

City engineer Sherman Low told the council the block between Ocean and Seventh "will be completely torn up and reconstructed, and the section between Seventh and Eighth would be overlaid." In addition, some of the planters will be changed "to make that left turn from Seventh onto Junipero heading north a lot easier."

At $317,400, MPE's bid was the lowest of seven submitted for work slated to include replacing plumbing in the storm drain, excavating and repaving the street, installing a cobblestone curb, repainting the street, and adjusting the sewer and telephone manholes, water and gas valve boxes, the cleanout and the utility box. The Don Chapin Co. submitted a bid of $319,000, Granite Rock Pavex Construction Division bid $331,830, Granite Construction bid $358,420, Garcia Engineering bid $368,717.50, and Robert F. Enz

Construction bid $455,670. The city engineer estimated the costs at $374,220.

At the March 1 meeting, the council approved a contract with MPE that also includes a 10 percent contingency for unplanned expenses, $9,522 for engineering and inspection, and $5,000 for soil compacting testing, for a total of $363,662.

A taxpayer-funded grant from the Transportation Agency for Monterey County will pay for the work, and then some. According to Ross' report, TAMC awarded $462,760 to the city, and the capital improvement plan for 2010/2011 allocated all the money to the project.

City councilman Ken Talmage wondered if the nearly $100,000 difference between the grant amount and the contract costs of repaving Junipero could be used for something else. "Can we spend this money on other projects, or is it use it or lose it?" he asked.

Assistant city administrator Heidi Burch said the money had to be spent on road work in town, though not specifically repaving Junipero Street.

"There are some possibilities for us to use the remaining grant money," she said.

Dewey Evans, the city treasurer, recommended the council not allocate the balance to other work until it's sure the Junipero reconstruction is covered. "It's a little premature, yet, to be spending the money for other projects," he said.

The council unanimously approved the contract with MPE as part of its consent calendar March 1.

After the meeting, Ross said he would be meeting with MPE and Low to determine when the work will begin.

CHICKENS

neighbors within 100 feet would be notified of the pending hen application. A public hearing with the planning commission would be held if someone objected.

The ordinance also stipulates, "animal excretion shall not be permitted to accumulate so as to become offensive to any neighboring property," and the outdoor slaughter of chickens would be forbidden.

Finally, failure to comply with the law could result in revocation of the chicken permit.

Councilwoman Karen Sharp sought assurance the coops would not be visually prominent and also wanted the law to stipulate that killing chickens indoors, as well as outdoors, would not be allowed.

Non-chicken-owning homeowners' interests should also be considered, according to councilman Ken Talmage, who worried a property owner wouldn't be able to prevent his view from being ruined by a neighbor's constructing a henhouse three feet from his kitchen window.

"I think we need to protect the neighbors, here," he said.

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac pointed out that with only 15 permits to be issued among the city's 2,800 residential lots during the next two years, the location of coops should be handled on a case-by-case basis.

"I think they should be in rear yards only," McCloud commented. "I can't imagine them being in the front yard. I think you would have a real squawk when there's a coop of that size in the front yard."

Conroy said the design review process would address issues of location and view impacts, but council members wanted more strict provisions, ultimately deciding to include a requirements that, "chicken enclosures shall not be visually prominent from the street," and "the keeping of chicken hens shall not result in a public or private nuisance."

Yateman, the impetus for the ordinance, defended hens and asked the council to let them range more freely and have larger runs, so they can feed, exercise and clean themselves. She said dogs create more problems than chickens would.

Resident Barbara Livingston also reiterated her support of the hen law.

"As I understand it, the hens would not be allowed out of their coop unless under parental supervision," she said. "According to people who raise hens, chickens need to scratch." She said they should have a run so they can scratch in the yard "for good chicken health."

But resident Carla Ramsey argued for maintaining the ban against barnyard fowl, citing the story of a neighbor who had a chicken coop that attracted raccoons, which eventually "destroyed his coop, destroyed his chickens, and they soon began destroying the neighbor's house."

She worried allowing hens would cause the raccoon population in town to grow again.

"I don't know why we would have chickens on a 4,000-square-foot lot," she said. "It just doesn't seem to make sense to me ... I think there could be a lot of repercussions."

After also adding Sharp's suggestion that the law stipulate no slaughtering can be done within the city limits, the council voted 4-1 to adopt the chicken ordinance. If it receives final approval next month, the law will take effect in early May.

Church hosts young musicians, spring breakers

THE CHURCH of the Wayfarer in downtown Carmel will present a special concert Sunday, March 6, to raise money for school music programs. According to the Rev. Norm Mowery, the Keeping Music Alive program has been providing music lessons for students at Oasis Charter School in Salinas, and organizers hope the performance will generate funds to allow the teaching to continue.

"It is wonderful to see students themselves reaching out to other students," he said.

On Sunday at 11:30 a.m., nine high-school students from throughout Monterey County will perform in the church. The concert will be free, but the group will seek donations after the program to help support its efforts to bring music to kids in need.

Alternative spring break

For a quarter-century, Vanderbilt University has been sending students on Alternative Spring Breaks so they might participate in community projects instead of partying. For the second year, the Church of the Wayfarer is hosting a dozen students while they undertake community-service work organized by the Elkhorn Slough Foundation and other conservation groups.

From March 5 to 11, the students will be staying at the church and preparing their meals there, according to coordinator Alex Arnold.

"Our trip to Carmel is environmentally focused and will be working with a variety of organizations to that end," she told The Pine Cone.

The Church of the Wayfarer is located at Seventh and Lincoln in downtown Carmel. For more information, call (831) 624-3550 or visit www.churchofthewayfarer.com.

council and audience.

"I'm more shaky than usual because of the wireless Internet in here," she said. "Wireless means microwave radiation," which she said causes tremors and rapid heart rate, and is "very unhealthy."

She also said arcing from smart meters caused the devastating gas-line explosion in San Bruno last September.

Another protester worried about privacy issues, billing accuracy and intrusion by PG&E in the personal lives of residents.

Professor Glen Chase said he's read hundreds of reports on the Smart Meter issue and spent more than 5,000 hours studying it.

"They have found cell damage, breaks in DNA chains and breaches in the blood/brain barrier," he said. "We are far beyond the tipping point." Furthermore, the FCC "has never done the laboratory tests and they're in the era of the 1500s," he claimed.

Nobody mentioned any potential benefits of smart meters.

Long hours of waiting

At the Pacific Grove City Council meeting the next night, it wasn't just the smart meter activists who crowded the council chamber.

In fact, it might have been the most bizarre council meeting in the history of the town.

"It was a very interesting night," Mayor Carmelita Garcia told The Pine Cone Thursday.

For example, the council and the audience of more than 100 listened to a guy who claimed alien spacecraft constantly hover in the skies and can be seen by earthlings if they have special equipment.

"I can show anyone with military-grade night vision goggles," the man said, "there are spacecraft in the sky."

One council member appeared to hold back a laugh.

Next, an excited man gave a fiery speech about various obscure government conspiracy theories and told the city council its authority was in question.

Pacific Grove police, in anticipation of the smart meter issue on the agenda, stood watch to make sure things didn't get out of hand.

A police commander and officer were in council chambers as a sergeant waited in the foyer while at least two dozen people — many of whom were not P.G. residents — waited to tell the council how smart meters were bad for their health and to urge the council to ban the devices.

But the council, which had several more pressing issues on Wednesday's agenda, never got to the topic. A couple of hours into the council meeting, more than half of those waiting to talk about smart meters left.

"I wish [the council] would have put the smart meters on the top of the agenda," a Marina woman told The Pine Cone.

Garcia said a woman who traveled from Santa Cruz told her she was disappointed that the smart meter issue wasn't heard.

The Carmel City Council has no further debate about smart meters scheduled, and no one has made an official proposal to ban them.

In Pacific Grove, a special council meeting to discuss smart meter technology is scheduled for Wednesday, March 9, at 6 p.m.

At Tuesday night's Carmel City Council meeting, a protester (left) warned that various catastrophes would ensue if smart meters become commonplace, and she asked the council to ban them. Meanwhile, the meters are being installed not only on electric meters around the Monterey Peninsula, but on gas meters (below). Smart meters track use of electricity and gas in real time and periodically report it to utility companies, which make the data available to customers online, allowing them to fine-tune their usage to save money and protect the environment.

Players who 'eat, drink and sleep' soccer are Big Sur's latest export

By CHRIS COUNTS

BETTER KNOWN for its abundance of hiking trails, its thriving community of artists and even its quirky softball league, Big Sur has emerged as an unlikely hotbed for another activity: soccer.

Last Sunday, the Red Devils FC defeated Alianza FC 5-2 in the Monterey Bay Soccer League's B Division championship for players 16 to 35. Sponsored by Post Ranch Inn, the Red Devils are made up almost entirely of Big Sur players.

"They eat, drink and sleep soccer," explained league president Dan Priano, who is also the general manager of the Post Ranch Inn. "They play hard, and they're very passionate about the game. I think they all go to bed with a soccer ball in their hands."

In its win over Alianza, the Red Devils were led by Juan Carlos, who scored a pair of goals, and Guillermo Narciso, Jose Arango and Pedro Gonzalez, who each scored a goal.

It was only a year ago that Priano and others revived and reorganized a league that had folded. Today, the MBSL boasts 38 teams in two divisions. And the league's leadership has plans to add more teams and expand to three divisions. The players come from as far away as Salinas, Gonzales and even San Jose.

The names of most of the teams — such as Deportivo Honduras, Athletico Guerrero and Aliaza FC — reflect the players' affection for their families' hometowns or their favorite soccer teams. Alianza FC, for instance, is named after a popular El Salvadorian team.

Juggling a passion for soccer with the responsibilities of work and family is no small challenge for the players, especially those who live down the coast. Yet the players endure long commutes and rough fields to play the game they love. Priano said they'll practice "just about anywhere they can find a flat piece of ground."

Last Sunday's championship, though, was played on Monterey Peninsula College's state-of-the-art field. For players accustomed to fields badly in need of maintenance, the experience was a revelation.

The Red Devils FC of Big Sur advance the ball in Sunday's championship game.

"The players were really impressed," Priano added. "It brought up the morale of the entire league."

Utilizing a variety of local athletic fields, the MBSL plays its games on Saturday nights and Sundays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information about the league, visit www.mbsl.us.

Win streaks — and title hopes — end for CHS basketball teams

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE CARMEL High School girls basketball team's Cinderella season — as well as its 22-game win streak — came to an end Saturday when the Padres fell to top seed Scotts Valley High 67-37 in the Central Coast Section Division IV playoffs at Notre Dame High School in Belmont.

"Scotts Valley is the No. 1 seed for a reason," coach Jeff Nakamura explained. "They were playing with confidence, and their shots were falling early and often. We couldn't seem to get into a rhythm offensively."

In her final game as a high-school player, Jule Muegge scored 25 points, sank four 3-point shots and grabbed six steals. "She tried to put Carmel on her back," Nakamura said.

To earn the right to play Scotts Valley, the Padres outlasted Half Moon Bay High 57-53 last Thursday in a tough road game.

Carmel High's season looked in doubt after Half Moon Bay dominated the third quarter 22-12 and took a 2-point lead entering the final period. But the Padres held on for the win thanks to some clutch 3-point shooting by Sarah Anderson, who sank six shots from beyond the arc (including four out of five in the fourth quarter) and led all scorers with 24 points.

Muegge, who averaged 20 points per game, finished the season as the top scorer in the Monterey Bay region. She also ranked fourth in steals. Anderson led all players in 3-point shooting, while Emma Fuzie and MacKenzie Dooner finished seventh and 10th, respectively, in blocks. Dooner also ranked sixth in rebounds.

The girls' final record stands at 23-3 overall.

Boys' playoff run ends in Atherton

After winning its playoff opener against Harbor High Saturday on a timely 3-pointer by Garret Woodward, the Carmel High boys' basketball team was eliminated from post-season play Tuesday by Sacred Heart Prep School.

Both games were played at Menlo High in Atherton.

Against Harbor High, the Padres were down by 4 with 1:18 left in the game after giving up a late 8-point lead. But the Carmel High players kept their opponents in check and were behind by just 2 points when they brought the ball up the court with just 26 seconds left.

"I told the guys if the 3-point shot is there, go for it," recalled coach Ryan Sanchez.

Woodward took Sanchez' words to heart and sank a clutch three-pointer with just five seconds left, sending the Padres to the next round of the playoffs.

Matching up against a taller Sacred Heart team, Carmel High held a 21-17 halftime lead. In the second half, though, everything

Activists turn up heat on county over traffic counting method

By CHRIS COUNTS

MORE THAN 100 residents turned out Feb. 24 at Carmel Middle School to hear a panel of activists blast the county's method for measuring traffic on Carmel Valley Road, which they claim will lead to overdevelopment in the valley.

They also warned that the county's new general plan, which was adopted Oct. 26, 2010, would allow the method to be used in other parts of the county.

The event, in the CMS gymnasium, was presented by the Carmel Valley Association, whose members have long argued that the county, by measuring "density at peak hours" instead of "average daily traffic," would allow traffic congestion to increase as much as 80 percent before measures were implemented to reduce it.

"Traffic is allowed to increase beyond previously accepted levels," said panel member Tim Sanders, who called the method a "transportation infrastructure disaster for county."

Sanders and others accused county officials of using the method specifically to permit more development.

"It misrepresents traffic to allow for greater traffic," Sanders said. "That's favorable to the county because it wants to raise taxes from developers. And it's favorable to developers who want to develop more."

A 'very real threat'

Previously, a subdivision moratorium restricted new subdivisions in Carmel Valley. The moratorium was triggered by traffic flows along Carmel Valley Road. But the moratorium ended when the new general plan was adopted. It was replaced by a cap of 266 newly created lots. Sanders and others are concerned developers will find ways to circumvent the cap.

Another member of the panel, Chris Fitz, told the attendees that the threat of unwanted development in Carmel Valley is very real. Specifically, he said the three supervisors who don't represent the Monterey Peninsula districts — Lou Calcagno, Fernando Armenta and Simon Salinas — are "hellbent on approving subdivisions, particularly in Carmel Valley, because you're such relentless activists who care so much about principled land use."

"They have it in for you," insisted Fitz, the former executive director of LandWatch Monterey County.

One speaker in the audience, Lawrence Samuels, asked why nobody who works for county government was present at the hearing. In response, CVA President Christine Williams said that as a result of a lawsuit her group filed against the county Nov. 24, 2010, it was unlikely that anybody working for the county would be able to comment on the matter. The complaint alleges the traffic method violates the California Environmental Quality Act.

Williams also suggested that if a member of the county

Still going strong at 94, artist tests his creative limits

By CHRIS COUNTS

MANY ENDEAVORS are a bit difficult to pick up at the age of 94. Abstract painting, though, is definitely not one of them.

After spending much of his life replicating the real world on canvas and paper, nonagenarian Olof Dahlstrand will unveil his first exhibit of abstract art, "Landscapes of the Mind," Saturday, March 5, at the Carmel Art Association. "Most of my work is pretty representational," said Dahlstrand, who once served on the Carmel City Council.

But in September, the art association challenged its members to create something abstract. Dahlstrand enjoyed the experiment so much that when he was offered a show this month, he decided to focus his talents exclusively on creating abstract art. "Basically, all art is abstract at its roots," he explained.

Focusing on design, color, proportion and composition — and using acrylics mixed with dry pigments — Dahlstrand created a series of paintings unlike any others he has ever attempted.

"I'm amazed at the end result," he told The Pine Cone this week. "Everyone who has seen these has gone bananas."

In addition to the praise he has received for his recent work, Dahlstrand reported that his last show at the art association sold out. But fame and fortune aren't what's keeping him painting. To the contrary, he simply loves what he is doing.

"It's really been fun," he said of his latest creative project. "That's what art should be."

In addition to being on Carmel's city council and planning commission, Dahlstrand enjoyed a successful career as an architect, designing local landmarks like the bank in mid-valley, the original Carmel Plaza complex and the former Crocker Bank next to Devendorf Park, now the Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch.

In 2005, the Carmel Residents Association named Dahlstrand its Citizen of Brazilian group brings dance spectacle to Sunset

THE RICH and colorful dance tradition of Brazil — which lies at the heart of the country's annual Carnival celebration — will be showcased Saturday, March 5, when Balé Folclórico da Bahia performs at Sunset Center.

A 38-member troupe of dancers, musicians and singers, Balé Folclórico da Bahia creates a dazzling visual and audio spectacle that incorporates African-influenced folk dancing, slave dancing, capoeira (a form of martial arts), the samba and dances that celebrate the season of Carnival.

"I'm really excited about the show," said Christine Sandin, Sunset Center's new managing director. "They are the only professional folk dance company in Brazil. I haven't seen them before, but my colleagues rave about them."

Formed in 1988 and guided by artistic director José Carlos Arandiba, Balé Folclórico da Bahia is considered a national treasure in its homeland.

The show starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are $48 to $58.

Coming up next for Sunset Center is the tribute show, "One Night of Queen," which will be staged Saturday, March 12. The following night, the Carmel performing arts center presents "The Aluminum Show," a cutting-edge performance that combines movement, dance and visual theater. Tickets are still available for both shows.

Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For more information, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

Featuring 38 dancers, musicians and singers, Balé Folclórico da Bahia performs at Sunset Center Saturday. A national treasure in Brazil, the group brings together a wide range of cultural influences, creating a wildly-entertaining spectacle.

'101 Dalmatians' on PacRep stage

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE HEARTWARMING tale of the recovery of a dognapped litter of Dalmatian puppies comes alive Friday, March 4, on the stage of the Golden Bough Theater.

PacRep Theater and its School of Dramatic Arts program present a three-weekend run of the children's stage version of "101 Dalmatians."

The play is based on Walt Disney's 1961 animated film adaptation of Dodie Smith's 1956 novel, which tells the story of eight Dalmatian puppies stolen by an aptly named villainess, Cruella de Vil. She plans to turn the puppies (and many others of their breed) into dog-skin coats. A daring and nail-biting rescue ensues.

The play features a cast of more than 90 actors, most of whom are children. The youngest is just 4 years old.

The starring roles in "101 Dalmatians" are played by students Kevin Matsumoto, Orion Keehan, Emma Satchell, Mia Pak, Paul Davis, Jessica Homami and Daniel Sanford. They will share the stage with adult actors Mitch Davis, Laura Akard, Sally Burn, Phyllis Davis and Mike Sanford.

For the children, the play offers a practical introduction to the wonders of live theater. "It gives a lot of children an opportunity to be on stage," explained Mary Ann Schaupp-Rousseau, the director and choreographer of the play. "It's quite a learning

■ Artist takes new look at the sea

In an exhibit that opened last week at the Marjorie Evans Gallery, Carmel painter David Molesky takes an unconventional look at a common source of creative inspiration — the ocean. "What captured my interest so much was how his work has moved from being very concrete and figurative to being more abstract and non-figurative," explained Barbara Davidson, assistant director of Sunset Center and the curator of the show.

At first, Molesky created conventional seascapes, but later "he became more intrigued with the waves and how beautiful and heavenly looking they were, so he painted these in soft pastel and blue colors," Davidson continued. "Then, when the oil rig disaster happened in the Gulf of Mexico, he started seeing the ocean differently [again]."

As a result, Molesky's more recent work highlights the ocean's turbulence and is painted with vivid colors.

"Eclipse of an Undercurrent" will be on display until the end of the month. The gallery will host a reception Thursday, March 10, from 5 to 8 p.m.

facilitating the reunion of troubadour Stewart with White, and they expect the artists to shine in the "intimacy and acoustic excellence of the Sunset Center."

Sales of special tickets — including 50 VIP packages priced at $500 per person and 240 premium seats going for $195 each — will raise money for the institute, and the hospital is managing their distribution and sale, according to Parker.

The VIP package includes an invitation to the performers' rehearsal as well as the concert, a catered dinner with wine that Stewart will attend, "the best seats in the place," a dessert reception after the show with appearances by the musical stars, autographed photos and limited-edition posters. Of the $500 price tag, $280 will be tax deductible.

The 240 seats priced at $195 ($100 tax deductible) will have premium locations and include the rehearsal and concert.

General admission is $95.

Foraging and feasting, chanterelle champs, and a different dinner

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AS LOCAL foragers know, the Monterey Peninsula is rich with wild plants and animals worthy of culinary efforts in the kitchen. To celebrate this bounty and capitalize on the knowledge of people like wild-mushroom expert and California State Parks ranger Chuck Bancroft and forager Freddy Menge, Bernardus Lodge is presenting the Edibles from the Wild Demonstration & Lunch Saturday, March 12, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

In preparation for the day, chef Cal Stamenov and pastry chef Ben Spungin have crafted a creative buffet lunch menu based on an exhaustive "working list of wild ingredients," including roots, miner's lettuce, dandelion greens, ramps, leeks, onions, nasturtiums, woods sorrel, nettles, watercress, coyote mint, prickly pear, acorns, cattails and mustard greens. And the list goes on: pine, oak, candy cap mushrooms, honey, sea salt, rice, eggs of various birds, seaweed, barnacles, crab, crayfish and samphire, not to mention venison, quail, deer, frog legs, fennel, fiddleheads, bay laurel, manzanita blossoms, chamomile, purslane, epazote, mussels, abalone, rock fish, three varieties of trout, boar and deer.

Stinging nettles, for instance, will be served in a soup with braised snails and wild onion butter, while agaricus mushrooms will appear in a salad with pine nuts and chic weed. Mussels will be poached in chamomile and coyote mint with seaweed butter, while wild frog legs will be dipped in ground corn, fried until crispy and served with watercress, nasturtium and Meyer lemon aioli. Other planned dishes will feature trout, quail and deer.

During the event, Bancroft is expected to talk about the legality of foraging and collecting in urban areas, state parks and the coastline, as well as the history of coastal ingredients and his adventures hunting for wild mushrooms throughout Big Sur and Carmel. Menge is set to discuss backyard cultivation of wild ingredients, home gardening and farming, foraging through the Santa Cruz Mountains and the conditions that impact foraging, such as forest fires' effects on morels and the best situations for collecting sea salt.

Stamenov said he plans to field the cooking questions, such as how to prepare snails, sea snails, wild mushrooms and thistle root, and he will share ideas for incorporating untraditional and wild ingredients into everyday cooking. Spungin, meanwhile, will wow guests with his signature creative and beautiful desserts, including black truffle crème brûlée, chanterelle caramelized white chocolate mousse, candy cap meringue cheesecake, goat yogurt panna cotta with puffed wild rice, pine caramels and oak ice cream.

The cost is $95 per person, including tax and tip. Reservations are required by calling (831) 658-3550.

Bernardus Lodge is located at 415 Carmel Valley Road at the foot of Los Laureles Grade in Carmel Valley.

■ The kids are cooking

Rancho Cielo's Drummond Culinary Academy dining room, part of the nonprofit's high-school and vocational training program in culinary arts, will launch its Friday dinner service March 4.

Under the guidance of executive chef Marcus Whisenant, who trained at the California Culinary Academy in San Francisco and is making culinary education his career, students will prepare and serve the three-course prix fixe, which will include a salad, an entrée and a dessert for $15 to $20, including service. The menu, which will change regularly, currently includes New York Steak with garlic mashed potatoes, pico de gallo garnish and sautéed vegetables; salmon with beurre blanc and broccolini; vegetable lasagna; and a chicken dish, according to Rancho Cielo executive director Susie Brusa. All ingredients are sourced locally when possible, and the fish selection is guided by the Monterey Bay Aquarium's Seafood Watch list.

The restaurant also offers Monterey County wines at retail prices. While Paraiso, Scheid and Meador Estate are featured on the list, Brusa hopes other local wineries will want to be included, too.

She encouraged Monterey Peninsula residents to venture to Rancho Cielo for the culinary experience and to support the kids who hope to make cooking their livelihood.

"It seems really, really far away, but it's probably about 35 minutes from Carmel," said Brusa, who makes the drive frequently as a member of the board of directors of the Carmel Bach Festival.

The culinary program serves Monterey County residents between the ages of 17 and 24 who did not finish high school and are contending with poverty or other hardships, according to Brusa. Rancho Cielo works with a charter school that grants high-school diplomas, so the students can obtain that valuable certificate and valuable vocational training at the same time. Applications are available on the website.

Guests who dine at the Drummond Culinary Academy will help provide useful training as their dinner tabs help sustain the program. Seating is available from 5:30 to 7 p.m. each Friday, so the kids can be finished around 9:30, Brusa said. Reservations can be made by calling (831) 444-3521.

To learn more, visit www.ranchocieloyc.org. Rancho Cielo is located at 710 Old Stage Road in Salinas, and driving directions are available on the website, as GPS systems reportedly provide inaccurate information.

■ Chef of the Year

The Monterey Bay chapter of the American Culinary Federation will hold its 37th Annual Chef of the Year Dinner & President's Ball Saturday, March 19, when local ACF members will honor chef Ken Goebel, executive administrative director of nutrition and environmental services for Salinas Valley Memorial hospital. The celebration will be held in the Grand Ballroom at the Hyatt Regency Monterey.

Sardine Factory executive chef Bert Cutino, past ACF National Chef of the Year, will acknowledge Goebel, along with Purveyor of the Year Erasmo Aiello of Palermo Bakery and the 2010 winner, Dory Ford of Aqua Terra Culinary.

Congressmen, a state senator, local mayors and other dignitaries will share in the accolades, according to organizers. The event will begin at 6 p.m. with hors d'oeuvres and Champagne, followed by the awards and a six-course wine dinner prepared by executive chef Russell Young.

The Hyatt is located at 1 Old Golf Course Road in Monterey. Tickets are $100 per person. To purchase, mail a check with all guests' names to ACF Monterey Bay Chapter, P.O. Box 7034, Carmel, CA 93921. For more info, call chef Paul Lee at (831) 333-0475 or email pjbhlee@sbcglobal.net.

■ Chanterelle victories

The sold-out Big Sur Chanterelle Festival and Cook-Off drew talented chefs from the Monterey Peninsula and down the coast, and the foodies who packed the Big Sur Lodge to taste their creations Feb. 26 cast votes for their favorites.

Regarding the best celebration of the ubiquitous Big Sur chanterelle mushroom, the people voted Michael Jones of A Moveable Feast/Cachagua Store as Most Creative for his ooey-goey, delicious sweet of chanterelle nougat with chanterelle dulce de leche, caramelized chanterelles in butter and Murray River pink salt.

"Nice to know that weird is not limited to our valley!" Jones said via the Store's Facebook page after the contest. "Thanks, folks! And thanks to Brendan [his son and an accomplished chef as well] for trying to figure out how to make a Chanterelle Mars Bar!"

Stamenov and Spungin jointly won the Tastiest and Best Overall categories. Stamenov prepared a savory, captivating and texturally rich combination of golden chanterelles with Bloomsdale spinach, garlic cream, cured steelhead salmon roe and butter croutons, while Spungin's talent manifested in a nutty, not-too-sweet chanterelle and white chocolate mousse with pistachio and grapefruit.

Although he didn't win a prize, Treebones chef Michael Wood won a lot of praise and attention — and potential visitors to the resort and restaurant — with his chanterelle-stuffed beef tenderloin over creamy mascarpone polenta with chanterelle black truffle ragout. The grassfed beef came from Hearst Ranch, and the chanterelles were local.

"I picked a lot of them myself this weekend," he said, adding that the challenge of a chanterelle cook-off is that the mild mushroom is not by nature "a big star."

Jonathan Roberts, also known as PigWizard and a winner at last year's cook-off, prepared a whole boneless piglet injection brined with chanterelle pork stock, soba noodles cooked in the same stock, his Orange Poppy Chicken Sausage and pickled chanterelles, while Mundaka chef Brandon Miller offered veal chanterelle terrine with mustard seed crème fraîche and chanterelle paella with duck confit, roasted duck breast, saffron and blood orange.

Also impressive were Deetjen's chef Domingo Santamaria's Big Sur chanterelles with lamb and butter beans cassoulet garnished with yoghurt and truffle oil raita, and resident Seth Parker's cream of wild Big Sur sage and chanterelle soup with bacon fried potatoes.

"It was an amazing day — the weather held firm, and the crowd was fabulous and they loved it," reported organizer Toby Rowland-Jones, adding that a benefit for photographer Rachael Short, who was injured in a car accident late last year, raised more than $4,000, "which in itself was a wonderful achievement."

Protesters don't need facts

IN THE Spring of 1977, doom was on its way to neighborhoods around New York's Kennedy Airport.

That's what hordes of community activists said, anyway, as they fought to keep the supersonic Concorde from being granted landing rights in the United States.

"We'll have to live in caves because of the noise," one protester told the New York Times.

The Concorde's sonic booms would shatter windows as it flew over land, the activists said, and would stun, if not kill, whales when it was over the sea. The plane would deplete the ozone layer, thereby causing an increase in skin cancer worldwide, they maintained. And it would bring about widespread insanity among people who lived near airports.

"There's no way we're going to take it ... absolutely we will prevent it physically," a protester said. Another advocate angrily promised "confrontation and massive demonstrations" on runways to block the aircraft.

"They say it will just be a 16-month trial period, but by that time we'll all be deaf or in mental institutions," one woman lamented.

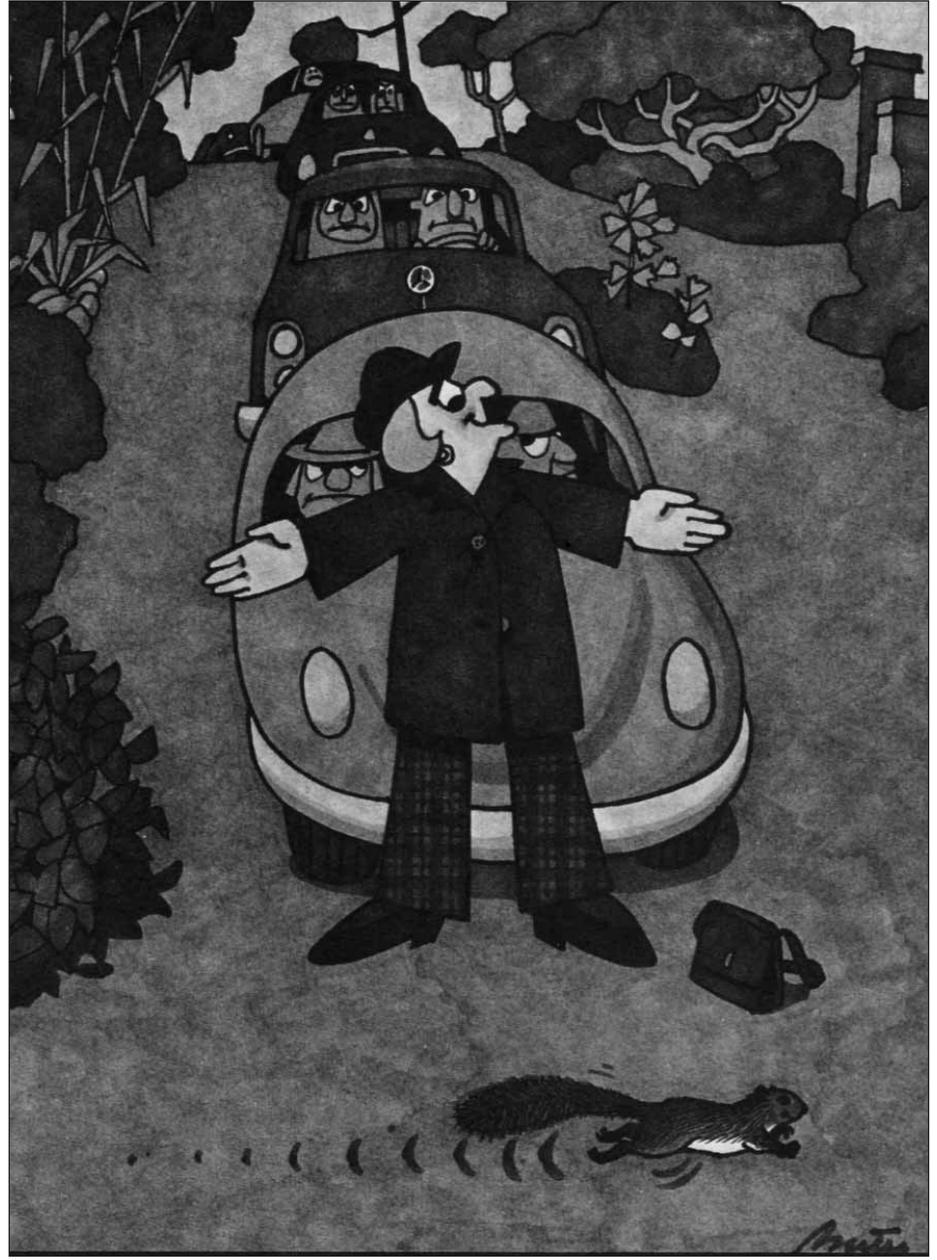

The claims of the anti-Concorde protesters were reported without a hint of skepticism by the news media, dominating front pages for weeks on end and even catching the attention of the mighty "CBS Evening News" with Walter Cronkite, especially when protesters purposely created gridlock around Kennedy Airport by staging slow-moving convoys on the airport's access roads.

Despite their best efforts and the support of the media, the anti-Concorde protesters failed, of course. The Concorde was approved by the Carter administration and operated out of Kennedy Airport quite successfully from 1977 to 2003. Even after just a few months, it became apparent that none of the things predicted by the anti-Concorde demonstrators were even remotely going to happen. Their frenzied claims, it turned out, were utterly false. But while their particular campaign of misinformation may have been forgotten, the tactics of the anti-Concorde protesters certainly haven't been. In fact, they've been improved.

In Madison, Wis., for example, all sorts of doom is being predicted if Gov. Scott Walker succeeds in stripping public employees of most of their collective bargaining rights. Nevermind that workers in many states can't form unions, or that federal employees have very few union rights. So effective have the anguished protests at the state capitol been, opinion polls show that a majority of the public is now against Walker's move. But how many people responding to those polls even know what the words, "collective bargaining," mean?

Right here at home, a traveling circus of anti-smart-meter protesters is making the rounds. For the time being, their ridiculously apocalyptic claims aren't getting much traction with the news media or the public. But just wait ... once the chaos in Wisconsin is over, all those union protesters will need something new to do. And aren't smart meters going to put a whole bunch of meter readers out of work?

Walking lane needed

Dear Editor,
I walk Scenic Road from Carmel Beach to Carmel River State Beach and back every day of the year, rain or shine, mornings, afternoons and/or evenings. I am dumbfounded that the county has not made all of Scenic Road (from Santa Lucia to Carmelo) one-way with a walking/running lane years ago.

Have you ever observed the number of people walking the road on a busy holiday weekend? Hundreds a day, and it could very well be even a thousand or more. Have you ever observed the way tourists drive Scenic Road? Trust me, not with their eyes on the road.

I am 53 years old and I have been almost run over countless times and I am extremely careful the way I walk and watch out for cars. I have also observed countless close calls between autos and pedestrians on Scenic at least five times a week, more on the weekends.

There are senior citizens and mothers with strollers walking out there every day. We especially owe them and everyone who walks on Scenic the high margin of safety that a one-way road with a walking lane would provide.

This walking lane would be similar to a bike lane painted with a thick white line so as to keep autos in their own lane and away from pedestrians.

This is a very simple fix. The project wouldn't cost much. It would add a much higher level of safety to the walkers/pedestrians who walk/run on Scenic.

Finally: There is not one speed limit sign on Scenic Road between Carmelo and Santa Lucia ... there ought to be.

David Chaladoff,
Carmel

Divine solution?

Dear Editor,
Very recently, the United States vetoed a proposed United Nations resolution which would confirm the illegality of the Israeli settlements throughout the West Bank. However, there are those who believe that God made a gift of this land to the Jewish people many millennia ago.

If God is omnipotent, as many believe, it would behoove Her to appear on Earth and resolve the gift question. I would abide by Her decision.

Erling Lagerholm,
Carmel

The Carmel Pine Cone

was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 34750.

D'Ambrosio honored by CRA

FORMER ASSISTANT city administrator Greg D'Ambrosio will receive the Carmel Residents Association's Citizen of the Year award Sunday, March 27, at a 3 p.m. celebration in the Carmel Woman's Club at San Carlos and Ninth.

CRA board member Barbara Livingston called D'Ambrosio "the conscience of Carmel's natural environment," and said he will receive the award "for his past and ongoing efforts to build, maintain and enhance the trails, pathways, parks and open space of Carmel-by-the-Sea."

Carmel City Councilman Jason Burnett, who also tapped D'Ambrosio for campaign treasurer during his inaugural city council election last year, will preside over the ceremony. A catered reception will follow.

For more information, call (831) 626-1610 or visit www.carmelresidents.org.

The Del Monte/Mission connection

PEBBLE BEACH Company historian Neal Hotelling will present a free lecture Sunday, March 6, at Sunset Center in Carmel that will "trace the late 19th century transformation of this region into a tourist mecca, with particular focus on connections between the Old Hotel Del Monte — America's first all-season resort hotel — and the Carmel Mission's restoration of the 1880s," according to the Carmel Mission Foundation. The talk will be held in Studio 105, which is accessible through the main entrance at San Carlos and Ninth, at 3 p.m., and a book signing and free refreshments will follow. Call (831) 624-3261 or visit www.carmelmissionfoundation.org.

KNEE

After the procedure was over, Carter told Pegis' wife that the surgery went "very well," that a tiny tear on her husband's knee had been repaired, and that "he found no arthritis in her husband's knee," according to the suit.

However, after a nurse escorted his wife in to see him while he was recovering, Pegis told them "they did the wrong knee."

The nurse "immediately notified" Carter of the mistake, and the physician told Pegis he would take him back to the operating room to perform surgery on the right knee. Shortly thereafter, the doctor performed surgery on the correct knee.

The lawsuit alleges Carter, who has an office in Ryan Ranch, performed the surgery. Field is an anesthesiologist.

A message left for Carter was not returned. Field and the Monterey Peninsula Surgery Center declined to comment about the lawsuit.

The complaint alleges medical malpractice, and physician's performance of unauthorized treatment and failure to obtain informed consent.

It also alleges battery because actions of the physicians "were not consented to or authorized, and represented offensive and intentional touching."

Pegis is seeking general and punitive damages, past and future medical expenses, lost wages and earnings, attorneys fees and other costs.

Before surgery, the suit says, medical staff never marked Pegis' right knee to indicate that was the leg that needed surgery — a common practice by many surgeons.

That's why — unbeknownst to Pegis because he was unconscious — the clinic's staff wrongly prepped his left knee, not his right, for surgery, he contends.

The left knee, which had not caused Pegis any problems, will eventually require surgery "to repair the injuries suffered as a result of the negligence of defendants," according to the suit.

Pegis also alleges he "suffered and continues to suffer great physical and emotional pain" and is unable to work because of the mistake.

There are numerous other high-profile cases of so-called wrong-sided surgery in the United States and abroad.

A Florida doctor in amputated the wrong leg of a patient in 1995, and at a Rhode Island hospital in 2007, there were three separate occasions where surgeons operated on the wrong side of a patient's head.

out. A suction hose got slashed when it wound up around a central impeller, causing the system failure.

The chlorination unit has been sent for repairs, and a backup system is working in its place. Buikema estimated it would cost as much as $7,000 if the chlorine unit needed to be replaced.

Pager and cell phone alarm systems that are supposed to notify employees of a system malfunction also failed.

Buikema said CAWD contacted the county health department, regional water board and NOAA about the spill.

"We had NOAA down at the plant this afternoon asking the very same questions regarding impact on marine life, inspecting our systems, and examining the effluent," she said. "They indicated they would not be taking any action because of this incident."

It's possible the state could fine CAWD about $3,000 for the spill, although Buikema said they are hoping to avoid any monetary penalties.

"I think that the fact that we promptly reported to all appropriate agencies and that we did not violate our permit limits," she said, "it may turn out that we will not receive a fine."

Buikema said CAWD officials are in the process of trying to determine exactly what went wrong with the failed systems so it doesn't happen again.

"I believe we've taken all the steps we can to correct where things failed, and we'll continue to look at what happened to see if we've missed anything or need further upgrades," she explained.

Paul O. Larson

JANUARY 9, 1927 – FEBRUARY 18, 2011

Paul Larson of Benicia, California died February 18, 2011 from complications following recent surgery. He passed away peacefully surrounded by his loving family.

Paul was born on a farm in Bovey, Minnesota on January 9, 1927 to Alma and Nels Larson. Raised in the Lutheran church, his faith sustained him throughout his life. He began his education in a one room schoolhouse and graduated from Greenway High School in Coleraine, Minnesota in 1944. Paul attended Itasca Junior College in Coleraine and the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, where he graduated with a degree in Electrical Engineering in 1950.

Paul served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean War.

In 1948 Paul married Annie Makedonsky. Friends say he was smitten by her and it was obvious he fell in love with her the moment he met her. They had two daughters, Nancy and Peggy, and five other children who died in infancy. His long career with General Motors took him and his family to a number of locations - including Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Santa Barbara, California; Detroit, Michigan; San Jose, California. He and Annie spent their retirement years in Pebble Beach, California.

In 1952 Paul began his thirty five year career with General Motors Corp. in basic research in the field of inertial guidance. During his tenure with GM he was engaged in engineering and program direction of the development of guidance and navigation systems for ballistic missiles, Projects Mercury through Apollo, commercial aircraft and Air Force space boosters. He led GM's development of the Lunar Rover, built to expand the exploration of the moon. After the Apollo missions, Larson was Program Director for GM's newly formed Mass Transit Division. Following his stint in mass transit he became Chief Engineer for GM's Truck and Coach Division. He completed his career as President of G and F Corporation - a joint venture between GM and FMC Corp.

Larson was awarded the Ballistic Missile Systems Division Commander's Award for his contribution to the Titan II program and received the Presidential Medal of Freedom award for his efforts in procedures that led to the safe return of the Apollo 13 astronauts. Larson had a truly remarkable career using his talents for the greater good and contributing to the betterment of mankind.

Larson received the University of North Dakota Sioux Award in 1965. He served on the UND Alumni Association and Foundation Board of Directors, and acted as president of the Alumni Association for one year. He was a member of the Mensa International Society. Paul had many hobbies including reading, cooking, hunting, fishing, golf and travel.

Paul was a loving husband, father and grandfather and will be dearly missed by his family and many friends. He will be remembered as a gentle man, remaining sweet-natured and with a sense of humor even in illness. He is survived by daughter Nancy (Patrick) Roetzer of Benicia, California; daughter Peggy Larson of Seattle, Washington and granddaughter Anne Roetzer of Seattle, Washington. He is also survived by sisters Annabelle O'Malley and Helen (Roger) Hughes both of Mesa, Arizona; cousins, nieces and nephews; the "angels" at Benicia Angel's Home and beloved childhood friend, Dr. Donald Martin of Sonoma, California.

Preceding him in death were his wife Annie and five infant children; also his parents, sisters Mabel and Louise and brother Norman.

Private family funeral services will be held at Passalacqua Funeral Chapel in Benicia, California. A memorial service will take place at a later date in Santa Barbara, California. In lieu of flowers, memorials can be directed to the University of North Dakota Foundation - Paul and Annie Larson Endowment Fund, 3100 University Avenue, Stop 8157, Grand Forks, North Dakota 58202.

Bridge jumper pleads not guilty to charges

THE MAN charged with two felonies and three misdemeanors related to his December 2010 BASE jump off Bixby Bridge pleaded not guilty to the charges Wednesday in a Salinas courtroom.

Steve Jester was taken into custody Dec. 8, 2010, after he leapt off the bridge in front of a California Highway Patrol officer, who warned him not to. Jester deployed a parachute and landed safely on the beach below.

But prosecutors allege that after he was taken into custody, Jester made threats against an officer and his family. He's charged with resisting and obstructing a peace officer and threats of violence, both felonies, which, if convicted, could land him three years and eight months in prison.

Jester is also charged with with disobedience to an officer, possession of less than 1 ounce of marijuana while driving a vehicle, driving under the influence of alcohol and an enhancement of refusing to submit to a chemical test, all misdemeanors.

Jester's jump was posted on YouTube and since then has received 1.6 million views.

A pretrial has been set for April 13 and a jury trial scheduled for April 25.

Margaret E. Hanson

FEBRUARY 21, 1910 – FEBRUARY 21, 2011

PACIFIC GROVE ~ Margaret E. Hanson joins those few individuals who are born and die on the same date. Maggie celebrated her 101st birthday on February 21, 2011, her very last day on earth. She died peacefully at Forest Hill Manor surrounded by her loving family.

Maggie loved the Portland, OR area, where she was born, and returned frequently to visit friends and relatives. At age 92, she made her last visit, staying in the cottage her father built at Cannon Beach in 1918. She attended St. Helen's Hall, Portland, and the University of Washington, Seattle. Maggie was a renaissance woman in many ways: she had a keen interest in the arts, music, and travel. She was a devoted journal writer, keeping letters and pictures for over 80 years.

Margaret Johnson married Bill Hanson on January 1, 1935. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1985. Bill died the following year. During the 1930's and 40's, Maggie and Bill lived in the Philippines, Panama and Cuba. During this time, they made deep and lasting friendships. Many of Maggie's friends' children continued to be a part of her life after their parents' deaths.

Maggie and Bill settled in Pebble Beach and Carmel in the 1940's where they raised their children, Peter Hanson and Carolee St. Clair. Maggie was a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Pacific Grove and All Saints Church, Carmel. She was an active member of the Carmel Foundation and volunteered at St. Mary's Thrift Shop until she retired at age 90.

In addition to her children, Maggie is survived by her granddaughters, Michele James, Stephanie (Jeff) Youngblood and Christine (Scott) Baker and seven great-grandchildren, Justin, Jessica and Joshua James, Cody and Makaela Youngblood and Isabelle and Alessandra Baker.

A Celebration of Maggie's life will be held in the spring. Memorials in her name may be directed to the Carmel Foundation, P.O. Box 1050, Carmel, CA 93921, Legal Services for Seniors, 915 Hilby Ave, Suite 2, Seaside, CA, 93955 or Planned Parenthood Mar Monte, 1691 The Alameda, San Jose, CA 95126.

Please visit www.thepaulmortuary.com to sign Maggie's guest book and leave messages for her family.

staff was permitted to speak freely on the subject, he would endorse the CVA's view. Samuels also questioned whether the method is really as bad as the CVA is making it out to be. "The method is used in thousands of communities across the United States," he observed. "Why is it not good here?" Sanders, though, dismissed Samuel's defense of the method. "I'd like to see some evidence that it works well anywhere," he countered. "It doesn't make any difference if someone else uses it. If someone else jumps over a cliff, that's their choice." Carmel Unified School District board member Amy Funt moderated the talk. Also serving on the panel was local activist Julie Engell. When asked this week why the new method of measuring traffic is preferable to the old method, planning director Mike Novo said he couldn't comment because of the pending litigation. But he did say, "We have a lot of policies that limit land use, and traffic is just one of them." He also insisted the new method "will not lead to any unwanted or unplanned growth."

County official : No charge for appeals within coastal zone

IN LAST week's Pine Cone, we reported that a group of Carmel Point residents was told by county staff that they would be required to pay about $5,000 to appeal a decision by the Monterey County zoning administrator. We also reported that 5th District supervisor Dave Potter stepped in and worked out a deal to waive the fee. This week, county planning director Mike Novo told The Pine Cone that the fee was waived not because of Potter's intervention, but because appeal fees can only be charged on projects outside the coastal zone. In this particular case — which pertained to making a section of Scenic Road one-way — the project would occur well within the boundaries of the coastal zone.

clicked for the opponents. The Padres were outscored 35-14 in the third quarter and 26-4 in the final period as Sacred Heart cruised to a 78-39 win. "They got off to a hot start in the second half, and it just snowballed from there," Sanchez explained. Still, the coach was thrilled by the Padres' performance this year. "We had a great season," he added. "We won the league title for the first time in 21 years. The coaching staff is very proud of our players." The loss ended the boys' 17-game winning streak. The team's final record stands at 21-5 overall.
