High-speed chase ends in crash, arrest of burglary suspects

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A CAR chase down Carmel Valley Road hit 100 mph before culminating in a crash that landed two suspected car burglars in jail last Wednesday, and Monterey County Sheriff's Cmdr. Tracy Brown credited an eagle-eyed deputy with the arrests.

Deputy Oscar Leon had noticed the car — an older-model, black, four-door Honda sedan — earlier that morning in the area of Highway 1 and Garrapata State Park and had found it suspicious. "One of the windows had been replaced by plexiglass," Brown explained. "So he decided maybe the window had been broken, and maybe the car was stolen."

Leon turned around to follow the vehicle but lost sight of it and then had to respond to a separate call in the Carmel Highlands. Afterward, at around 11:45 a.m., he saw the black Honda again at the stoplight at Highway 1 and Rio Road, according to Brown.

A registration check indicated the 1992 Honda Accord's tags expired in 2009, so Leon attempted to stop the driver.

"The car sped off east on Carmel Valley Road," Brown said. "It ran at least one red light, and speeds

Highway 1 reopens at Rocky Creek

■ But huge slide keeps road closed to south

By CHRIS COUNTS

BIG SUR residents and businesses finally got some good news Wednesday, when Highway 1 reopened to one-lane traffic at Rocky Creek after being closed five weeks.

A front end loader and dump truck are dwarfed by an enormous landslide blocking Highway 1 at the south end of Big Sur. At the other end of the scenic highway, a collapsed section of road has partially reopened.

But the effort to clear a massive slide of rock and debris that closed the scenic route south of Big Sur April 14 has been complicated by gravity and environmental regulations, which require that material from the slide be trucked to a disposal site instead of being pushed over the edge.

The stretch of highway that fell into the ocean March 16 was reopened to motorists Wednesday at about 8 p.m. Traffic is restricted to the inside lane and alternates in each direction, as controlled by a traffic signal. According to highway officials, motorists can expect five-minute delays. There are no weight, length or width restrictions on vehicles, making it possible for motor homes, passenger buses and delivery trucks to use the road.

California Department of Transportation spokesman Colin Jones credited the constructor of the $2.5 million project, Condon Johnson & Associates of Oakland, with working hard to open the highway ahead of the May 1 target date.

"We've had a great contractor," Jones said. "Everyone came together and managed a very difficult situation well."

While the inside lane was reopened Wednesday, it could take years to fix the outside lane. Highway officials said it may even be necessary to build a viaduct, which is a series of small bridges.

For those who travel between Big Sur and the Monterey Peninsula for work or school, the reopening of the highway is cause for celebration. Over the past five weeks, local commuters have gone to extraordinary lengths to get to and from town. Some have taken helicopter rides, others have been escorted past the slide area on foot and some — particularly those whose jobs require trucks or heavy equipment — have added hundreds and even thousands of miles to their odometers by using the Nacimiento-Fergusson Road and Highway 46 as detours.

Meanwhile, business owners anxiously await the arrival of tourist traffic. "It's certainly going to help," said Alan Perlmutter, co-owner of the Big Sur River Inn. "It's been a real struggle to stay open and keep our business alive."

FORMER INNKEEPER FIRES BACK OVER LAWSUIT

■ Buyer may have planned to build homes

By KELLY NIX

THE LONGTIME proprietor of a Carmel inn who is being sued by the new owner for not disclosing alleged problems with the motel fired back this week, insisting there were no issues with the $8.7 million inn when he sold it three years ago. He also called it suspicious that the lawsuit came after he filed a "notice of default" because the buyer stopped making payments on a $7.2 million loan.

Businessman Tong Kim, who is being sued by the Campbell-based Intrapec Investments LLC for breach of contract and fraud, told The Pine Cone this week the 20-unit Carmel Resort Inn was in sound shape when he sold it in April 2009.

"I was not aware of any of the alleged problems at the time of the sale," Kim said Wednesday about the Carpenter Street inn.

Furthermore, the new owner planned to demolish the inn's 20 buildings and replace them with single-family homes on the property's 16 lots, Kim said.

Intrapec, owned by real estate buyer/broker Iftikhar Ahmed, alleges in a suit filed April 8 in Monterey County Superior Court that Kim did not mention there were problems with the inn, including issues with its water pipes, sewer

Temporary administrator on the job at city hall

By MARY BROWNFIELD

JOHN GOSS, a retired city manager who now works as a consultant, started his new job as temporary Carmel city administrator Tuesday. He will help run the city — including seeing through the passage of next year's budget, undertaking labor negotiations and facilitating discussions on how to run the fire department — while a replacement for Rich Guillen, who retired at the end of March, is found.

It's not Goss' first time working with the city. As a consultant who conducts management and organizational studies for Ralph Andersen & Associates, he evaluated a proposed business license tax increase in 2006 and the operation of Harrison Memorial Library in 2007.

"I've been in the community before and understand the budget, and I think the city council appreciates that I can hit the ground running," he told The Pine Cone the afternoon of his first day on the job. "I have an affini-

Five elephant seal pups are on their way home

THANKS TO the Marine Mammal Center, Point Lobos State Reserve has six new residents.

After being treated for malnutrition, five elephant seals and one sea lion were released Thursday at Weston Beach.

Each of the young seals — which were likely born in January — had become separated from or was abandoned by its mother.

"The mothers may have been under stress from problems in the food chain or the pups may have been washed off the beach by winter storms," explained Sue Andrews, manager of Monterey Bay operations for the Marine Mammal Center. "There are so many things that could have happened to them."

Sadly, some mothers abandon their pups when peo-

SVMH waited nine days to notify parents of fetus switch

By KELLY NIX

THE SALINAS hospital that gave the parents of a stillborn baby the wrong body didn't inform the couple of the mixup more than a week after hospital staff discovered the error, according to the attorney for the couple.

Ahmed Musa, 24, and Hana Mohammed Dharhan, 23, contend Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital gave them the wrong fetus after Dharhan delivered the stillborn baby girl — Baby Shefa — on Sept. 2, 2010, according to a lawsuit the married couple filed in February against SVMH.

A day after Dharhan delivered the baby, Musa picked up the body he believed was Baby Shefa from SVMH. The couple then buried the body.

Though the couple's attorney contends SVMH found out about the error on Sept. 29, it wasn't until Oct. 7 — nine days later — that a hospital employee notified Musa it gave them the wrong fetus, while their baby's body had been in the hospital morgue.

"They should have have told them right away," of the mistake, Anne Marie Murphy of the Burlingame law firm, Cotchett Pitre & McCarthy told The Pine Cone Tuesday. "They knew that it was very important that Baby Shefa be buried immediately."

The couple are Muslims, a religion that requires a body be buried immediately after death. After SVMH gave them the body, they took it to their mosque for religious rites and prayers. Baby Shefa was then buried in a Muslim cemetery in Alameda County.

Though the hospital hasn't admitted wrongdoing, a California Department of Public Health investigation last fall confirmed the hospital mixed up the two fetuses.

On Sept. 29, 2010 an SVMH supervisor went to the hospital morgue and noted that "fetus 1" [Baby Shefa] "was still in one of the refrigerated compartments with the identification sticker attached to the plastic covering," according to a Nov. 23, 2010, state document citing deficiencies with SVMH's morgue policy.

"This was unusual, as she knew that fetus 1's body had been released earlier to the parents," the document states.

The state goes on to say that further inquiry revealed "fetus 1" had been stored in the same morgue compartment as another fetus. As a result, "the father of fetus 1 was given the body of fetus 2 in error," according to report signed Dec. 17, 2010, by SVMH CEO Sam Downing.

The error occurred because an SVMH security guard responsible for releasing bodies to families failed to follow the hospital's policy of double checking the identify of a corpse.

The guard should have checked the ID tag of the fetus with a morgue release form, according to the state.

Baby Shefa's body had been unknowingly stored in the hospital's morgue for five weeks causing it to "decompose and mildew," according to the lawsuit.

The couple's stillborn baby was eventually positively identified through DNA testing.

Since the mixup, SVMH said it has made changes, including numbering morgue compartments and using additional letter designations for fetal remains.

The hospital, which declined to comment this week, also revised its morgue inventory log to include compartment and section designations, so hospital staff can confirm the identity of remains.

Also, SVMH now requires body identification be performed by nursing staff, while security staff can "serve as witness to the verification process."

Identification tags are now placed on a corpse's ankle, which will correspond to an outside ID tag.

The unidentified security officer who gave the couple the wrong fetus was "immediately counseled" for not complying with the hospital's policy, SVMH noted on the state report.

What the state document doesn't indicate is why the hospital took nine days to notify the couple of the error.

"Quite frankly," Murphy said, "we don't know what the hospital is going to use as an explanation for that."

‘Drunken rampage’ leads to jail

A CARMEL Valley man was arrested April 8 after his girlfriend reported he got drunk, threatened her and stole $40 from her during an altercation in front of their 4-year-old child at her home in Pacific Grove, according to PGPD Cmdr. John Miller.

Police booked Jay Ballard, 39, into Monterey County Jail on $66,000 bail for felony second-degree robbery and making terrorist threats, and misdemeanor spousal battery, willful cruelty to a child and probation violation.

“It’s domestic violence that goes back a few months,” Miller said Monday, since the alleged victim did not report it at the time but finally decided to tell police about the abuse.

“There were several incidents that occurred,” Miller said. “We responded to the location at the time, and she said nothing happened, but then she reported it later.”

Jay Ballard

As a result, Ballard came to the department for questioning April 8, and officers took him into custody after the interview.

Ballard, who weighs 300 pounds, had been drinking — a violation of the terms of his probation for an earlier conviction — when he grabbed the woman, whose identity is protected, and demanded money, according to Miller. Feeling threatened, she handed over $40 cash, which led to the robbery charge.

He also reportedly threatened to kill her, and since the exchange took place in the presence of their 4-year-old, officers are seeking a charge of misdemeanor child abuse as well.

“It was a drunken rampage,” Miller said.

Records indicate Ballard has an extensive history with Monterey County Superior Court, including felony, misdemeanor, traffic and family law cases.

KEVIN SHABRAM will share the secrets and history of a particularly stunning stretch of the California coastline when he presents a talk entitled, “In Search of Point Lobos,” at 6 p.m. Monday, April 25, in Harrison Memorial Library’s Park Branch.

Shabram, a docent at the state reserve and helper at the Whalers Cabin Museum, will discuss the historical timeline of Point Lobos, including how the area got its name and other fascinating tidbits.

Report: Somebody else should run city's fire department

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CITY should hire Cal Fire or the City of Monterey to run its fire department, according to a report retired Carmel Police Chief George Rawson is set to present at a special city council workshop April 28. Council members will discuss contract proposals from the City of Monterey — which already provides a chief and supervisors for Carmel Fire — and state-run Cal Fire. The debate over how to operate CFD has been under way for nearly a decade since its last chief, Bill Hill, retired.

While officials in Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and other cities have studied forming a regional Monterey Peninsula fire department, that effort landed on the back burner several months ago after Seaside firefighters vehemently objected, so Rawson focused his review on three options: running a stand-alone department, hiring Monterey to take over (just as it has done in Pacific Grove) or contracting with Cal Fire, which also operates the Carmel Highlands, Pebble Beach and Cypress fire districts.

He concluded hiring a chief and two other supervisors, a part-time fire marshal and clerical support to augment the three-person engine company at CFD would be too expensive, at an estimated $2,604,535 in the first year and $12,813,077 over five years. A deal with Monterey Fire would cost an estimated $1,928,541 in 2011/2012 and $9,560,633 over five years, according to his report, while a Cal Fire contract would run $1,801,437 for the first year and $8,686,017 over five years.

According to Rawson's review, all three would maintain response times of three to five minutes for 90 percent of the calls, and Cal Fire and MFD would put four engines, one ladder truck, one ambulance and one chief officer at the city's disposal. All the options would also have the Carmel Fire station staffed with a three-person engine, would provide fire inspections and would maintain the station and equipment under the ownership of city taxpayers. If a contract is approved, Carmel firefighters would become either Cal Fire or Monterey employees, provided they meet hiring requirements.

Although Cal Fire would be cheaper, Rawson said Monterey would offer certain advantages, including giving the city more control over salaries and costs, the ability to share other services, more local employees with potentially less turnover, "proven local government partnership," and a faster transition due to the fact the city already contracts with Monterey for some of its fire services.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. Thursday in Carmel City Hall on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean Avenue. Copies of the fire proposals are available for purchase at Copies by the Sea at Dolores and Fifth. The store is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and can be reached by calling (831) 624-6223.

Wife's 911 call leads to man's arrest for possession of child pornography

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE EVIDENCE literally landed in the hands of Monterey County Sheriff's deputy Bryan Hoskins, who arrested 57-year-old Hacienda Carmel resident Gregory Winsell for possessing more than 500 pornographic photos of underage boys and girls early last Wednesday.

According to Cmdr. Tracy Brown, Winsell handed Hoskins some of the photos to hold as he gathered other possessions while preparing to leave his home for the night.

Hoskins and detective Larry Bryant arrived at Winsell's Carmel Valley home after his wife dialed 911 shortly before 12:45 a.m. April 13 to report he had locked himself in the bathroom. "He had some pills, and she was worried about his mental health," Brown said. "When the deputies got there, he was still locked in the bathroom."

Hoskins and Bryant ended up having to break through the door.

"They were concerned about his personal safety in there, so they kicked the bathroom door open and safely removed him from the bathroom," he said.

The deputies interviewed Winsell to determine if he was a danger to himself or others — which would have made him a candidate for an involuntary 72-hour hold and evaluation at the hospital — but they determined he was not suicidal or likely to injure anyone, according to Brown.

Nonetheless, his wife was afraid and wanted him out of the house for the night, so he agreed to stay in a hotel, to which the deputies would drive him.

"He was gathering some stuff, and when he went to a cabinet to pull out some paperwork, the deputy watching him noticed there were photos of underage males who were naked," he said. "The suspect handed the deputy the items to hold onto while he gathered some other stuff."

Reportedly under the influence of a prescription medication that Brown would not identify, Winsell "probably wasn't thinking clearly" when he allegedly handed Hoskins some of the 500 photos depicting nude and partially nude boys and girls estimated to be between the ages of 12 and 17.

"There's no reason for us to believe that any of the pictures that were there were taken by Mr. Winsell," Brown added. "So we didn't have any of the children in the pictures as victims that we could establish. He said he got them off the Internet."

Winsell was booked into Monterey County Jail for possession of child pornography.

Havoc wreaked in empty restaurant

VANDALS SLASHED seats, spray-painted walls and the bar, broke tiles and a mirror, and smashed electrical outlets inside the prominently located Lovers Point building that most recently housed Lattitudes restaurant, police learned April 9. According to Pacific Grove Police Cmdr. John Miller, the culprits pried open a door to gain entry to the windowed seaside venue, which has been vacant for months.

A caretaker of the Ocean View Boulevard building called police after discovering the break-in and vandalism, and the property owner reportedly estimated the damage at $45,000.

Lattitudes, which was also firebombed by convicted arsonist Nathan Augustine in July 2009, had been owned and operated by Tene Shake but closed last year. In November 2010, Richard and Sally Elves posted a California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control notice of application for ownership change that indicated a new restaurant called the Lovers Point Bistro & Bar at the Beach would be opening there.

Police have no leads regarding who might have committed the vandalism, nor a motive, Miller said.

Dachshund doing OK after pit bull attack

By KELLY NIX

THE OWNER of Harry, the miniature dachshund who underwent major surgery after he was attacked by a pit bull at Good Old Days in Pacific Grove April 10, said the pooch is still missing a few teeth but is on the road to recovery.

Ilana Enns was walking Harry on a leash in Jewell Park when a pit bull named Heidi, who was up for adoption by the SPCA for Monterey County, bit him on the muzzle and latched on. By the time Heidi was pulled off of Harry, he had received serious injuries.

But Enns said the 5-year-old black and tan Harry is doing much better after undergoing reconstructive surgery at UC Davis veterinary hospital and is expected to fully recover.

"He still wants to be petted by everybody," Enns said. "And he is still very much loving life."

his nose area, and vets had to remove part of a bone, Enns said.

"He is lucky to be alive," she said.

Enns said she took Harry to see the dogs at the SPCA for Monterey County adoption booth when they encountered Heidi, who was also on a leash. Without being provoked, the pit bull suddenly attacked Harry, according to Enns.

"The pit bull just decided she was going to bite Harry's nose," she said.

An SPCA worker rushed Harry and Enns to Ocean View Veterinary Hospital in P.G., where the dog was given a morphine injection for pain. Harry was then taken to a Santa Cruz veterinary clinic, which also was unable to treat him because of the nature of his injuries.

The UC Davis veterinary hospital treated Harry, who went back to the facility Wednesday for a checkup. Enns said Harry

Mysterious 'bird bomb' fire blamed on wine company

By KELLY NIX

AN ATTEMPT to scare birds away from valuable wine grapes caused a big wildfire in South Monterey County in 2009, and the world's largest wine producer is responsible for it, according to a lawsuit filed by a woman whose home was consumed by the blaze.

It didn't take long for Cal Fire officials to determine that a bird bomb — a pyrotechnic device used by agricultural workers to scare birds away from crops — caused the blaze known as the Gloria Fire that began Aug. 27, 2009, and took nearly 400 firefighters about a month to fully contain.

But officials never figured out who set off the device.

Winery responsible?

In a lawsuit filed April 18 in Monterey County Superior Court, however, Mary Malolepszy points the finger at Constellation Wines U.S. for using the bird bomb that caused the wildfire she said destroyed her home at 34120 Fabry Road in South Monterey County.

Workers at an unnamed vineyard near Camphora-Gloria Road "negligently" used the agricultural fireworks device that ignited the grass fire, according to Malolepszy, who wants the winery to pay to rebuild her house and compensate her for her hospital and medical expenses and emotional suffering.

Constellation Wines U.S. did not respond to a voicemail message about the lawsuit. Constellation Wines U.S. was founded in 1945 and is the "world's largest wine business by dollar volume" and "the leading premium plus wine supplier in the United States," according to the company's website. Its wine headquarters are in San Francisco and St. Helena.

In addition to Estancia Estates Winery in Soledad, Constellation owns 14 wineries in California and dozens more in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Europe and South Africa.

Besides losing her home and personal possessions, estimated to be about $500,000, Malolepszy's personal injury and property damage lawsuit claims the fire caused "severe and ongoing mental and emotional distress," and physical and psychological injury.

The August 2009 fire injured two and cost $4 million to fight, including the efforts of 367 personnel using 35 engines, according to Cal Fire.

It consumed 6,437 acres but destroyed just two structures, one home and one out-building.

More than 100 homes in Soledad were evacuated while the fire was fought.

Malolepszy's lawsuit doesn't indicate why she believes a winery employee was responsible for firing the bird bomb.

The lawsuit, which is set for an August hearing, gives no indication whether Malolepszy had fire insurance.

Firefighters stump for MDA

CAL FIRE firefighters from Carmel and Pebble Beach stations raised almost $7,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association last week by asking passing motorists at the mouth of the valley to "fill the boot."

The campaign had crews standing on street corners and in the median in the area of Carmel Valley Road and Carmel Rancho Boulevard for several hours April 15, and their efforts were rewarded with a total that far surpassed previous years'.

"This has been an annual event locally, and we appreciate the donations from all those who helped," reported Battalion Chief Buddy Bloxham.

"Some gave pennies, some gave dollars, and some just gave us a smile and a thumbs up in support," he said.

Pollacci: MoCo is prejudiced against him

Change of trial venue sought

By KELLY NIX

A PEBBLE Beach rapist facing new charges of raping two more victims should have his trial moved out of the county because most people in Monterey County already believe he is guilty, making it unlikely a fair and impartial jury could be seated here, according to the results of a survey commissioned by Pollacci's public defender.

Thomas Pollacci, 51, is charged with assaulting two women who came forward after hearing about his arrest for raping an acquaintance inside his family's Pacific Grove liquor store in the spring of 2008. He was convicted of the crime and sentenced to eight years in prison.

According to Pollacci's attorney, a survey conducted in February showed that 98 of 100 eligible jurors were familiar with his case and 96 of them believed Pollacci was "definitely" or "probably" guilty of the newer rape charges.

The survey doesn't break down results by different parts of the county, but Pollacci's defense attorney, Michelle Wouden, filed a motion April 14 to ask Monterey County Superior Court Judge Terrance Duncan to move the trial from Monterey County to Madera County, which has had no media coverage of Pollacci.

The survey, conducted by California State University Fresno professor Susan Geringer, showed there was overwhelming awareness about Pollacci among some Monterey County residents.

"In addition to the large extent of press coverage this case and Pollacci have received," Geringer concluded, "one may not discount the strength of word-of-mouth and gossip."

In response to the survey question, "How would you describe Thomas Pollacci?" Pollacci was called "vicious, despicable, guilty," "evil," a "slime ball" and "scuzz bag" and an "egotistical guy who has to rape to feel superior."

One person reportedly didn't know anything about Pollacci "except for rapes, so I guess I would use rapist to describe him."

From February 2009 to February 2011, there were 174 stories published in five local newspapers, including The Pine Cone, that included Pollacci's name. Of those, 172 articles "included negative comments" about Pollacci, according to the survey.

Local TV stations have aired 224 stories from March 2009 to February 2011, 218 of which portrayed Pollacci in a "negative light," the study found.

As a result of the press coverage of his rape conviction, there is "no doubt to the fact that defendant Pollacci is despised by a large number of individuals" in Monterey County, Geringer concluded.

She also noted a comment by a Monterey County judge, who stated, "Pollacci has a reputation that is well-known, long-lasting and enduring as a rapist in this community."

The study also included a doctored photo of a sign that pretended to be in front of Ron's Liquors on Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove that said "Parking only for registered sex offenders." The photo appeared on local Internet message boards.

A survey was also conducted in Madera County, where there was no media coverage of Pollacci, and not one person had heard of the case, according to Geringer.

Of those polled, 56 percent were white, 20 percent were Hispanic, 13 percent were black, 1 percent Native American, 6 percent Asian-American and 2 percent stated they were of "other" ethnicity.

Most of those polled — 65 percent — said they live in Monterey, Carmel and Pacific Grove. The remainder live in Salinas (12 percent), Marina (6 percent) and just 3 percent elsewhere in the county.

The survey included categories of ques-

Senior inn OK to open; garage OK'd for studio

By MARY BROWNFIELD

PLANNING COMMISSIONERS voted last week to amend, but not revoke, the business license for the Carmel Inn for Seniors. Neighboring San Carlos Street property owners Gunnar and Niels Reimers had appealed the license, arguing that renting out its units to seniors would congest parking and cause other ills. They also said using a minimum age of 62 was illegal.

Attorney Brian Finegan, hired by Carmel to review the license since city attorney Don Freeman has property next door, concluded the age restriction is established by state law, parking is not an issue and the use is permitted, according to planning and building services manager Sean Conroy.

Conroy recommended the commission deny the Reimers' appeal and amend the business license to reflect owners Ron Chaplan and Nader Agha's plans to rent out 19 units in the building, not 27. Commissioners agreed and also determined the owners do not need to provide more parking. They voted 4-0 to deny the Reimers' appeal and change the license. (Chair Jan Reimers had to recuse herself.)

Commissioners also voted April 13 to approve George and Barbara Pappas' application to make improvements to their Lincoln Street home and convert an inaccessible garage into a studio. Last month, commissioners objected to design-

Pebble Beach welcomes chefs and their fans

THE FOURTH Pebble Beach Food & Wine kicks off Thursday with a celebrity golf tournament on the area's famous golf links and an opening night celebration at the Inn at Spanish Bay. Three more days of wining and dining — in the form of cooking demonstrations led by famous chefs, tastings of some of the world's most coveted wines, interesting and luxurious lunches and dinners, and two huge Grand Tastings featuring dozens of chefs and hundreds of wines — will follow.

Organized by the Coastal Luxury Management team and sponsored by American Express and several other corporate supporters, the food-and-wine extravaganza draws foodies and oenophiles from far and wide. Spanish Bay, the Lodge at Pebble Beach, the Beach and Tennis Club and the grounds of the equestrian center host the festivities.

Sunset is second home for Tokyo quartet

By CHRIS COUNTS

ONE OF world's finest classical ensembles, the Tokyo String Quartet, returns to Sunset Center Friday, April 22, where the music of Mozart and Beethoven will take center stage.

"We've got the masters playing the masters," explained Amy Anderson, president of Chamber Music Monterey Bay, the group presenting the concert.

Founded in 1970 at the Juilliard School of Music by alumni of the Toho School of Music in Tokyo, the string quartet is now based in New York City. The ensemble has released more than 40 recordings and performs more than 100 concerts each year.

"They're one of those really famous quartets," Anderson said. "They're consummate artists."

See STRINGS page 17A

Four decades after its inception, the Tokyo String Quartet, which is based in New York City, makes its ninth appearance in Carmel.

Eclectic S.F. duo comes to Big Sur, Santa Cruz folksinger plays in P.G.

By CHRIS COUNTS

LIKE SO many of her contemporaries, singer-songwriter Mary McCaslin's career took flight in the early 1970s, when acoustic guitars briefly dominated pop music. McCaslin, a Santa Cruz resident who has long been regarded as one of the Monterey Bay's finest folksingers, performs Saturday, April 23, at the Works in Pacific Grove.

"Mary is an American classic," said Robert Marcum, owner of the P.G. bookstore and coffeehouse. "She is a real pro, and she's been at it a long time. She has a unique vocal style, and she's an excellent guitar player as well."

McCaslin's sound is rooted in traditional American folk music, although her affection for country music is undeniable. While her sound strays far from pop and rock, she's not averse to covering songs outside her genre. Her interpretations of the Beatles "Blackbird" and "Things We Said Today" have only helped to broaden her appeal.

As a songwriter, McCaslin draws inspiration from the Old West. Her songs are populated by outlaws on the run, wide open prairies and the lonesome whistles of passing freight trains.

The concert starts at 7:30 p.m., and there's a $12 cover. The Works is located at 667 Lighthouse Ave. For more information, call (831) 372-2242 or visit www.theworkspg.com.

Simple but weird

The unusual and quirky talents of a duo from San Francisco, Jascha Hoffman & Spiff Wiegand, will be showcased Saturday, April 23, inside the Henry Miller Library.

The performance marks a departure for the library, which typically hosts concerts outside in its redwood-shaded garden.

A journalist and a songwriter, Hoffman has drawn praise for his "deceptively simple" but "deeply weird" original music. Wiegand, meanwhile, somehow manages to play (juggle?) as many as seven instruments at a time.

Easter options, sipping and ripping, and a tropical getaway

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE OWNERS of a small hilltop vineyard in the Gabilan mountains near Chualar can open a tasting room on Seventh Avenue, the Carmel Planning Commission decided last week.

John and Julie Allen received approval for their new venture, Up, Up and Away, which will be located on Seventh between San Carlos and Dolores streets. There, they will pour four of their Coastview Vineyards wines.

"The vineyard is perched right on top, at 2,400 feet — it's the highest mountaintop vineyard in Monterey County," Julie Allen told the planning commission April 13. "It's a one-of-a-kind vineyard, and we need to start promoting ourselves."

The split-level building they purchased should nicely accommodate a small tasting room, as well as a collection of art for sale, according to the Allens.

Commissioner Steve Dallas wondered why art and wine should mix.

"My husband and I collect art. We're art connoisseurs and think art and wine go together," she responded. "It's a way to run a business without just selling wine, but it's also a way to utilize the wall space."

They also plan to offer wine-related merchandise like aprons, wine glasses, gift baskets and candy.

Associate planner Marc Wiener asked commissioners to consider whether opening another tasting room in that part of town makes sense, considering nearby Dolores Street already has four, including Vino Napoli just next door.

"The commission should discuss whether an additional wine-tasting use at this location would conflict with the city's goal of maintaining a balanced mix of uses," he said in his report.

Commissioners decided another tasting room would be fine and approved the Allens' application, including the maximum operating hours of 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

Also last week, the planning commission OK'd restaurateur David Fink's request to open an Italian bakery and delicatessen next door to Cantinetta Luca on Dolores Street. Occupying a storefront that previously belonged to an art gallery, Salumeria Luca is slated to include salumi, butchered meats, cheeses, prepared salads, pasta dishes, gelato and other edibles, as well as cold drinks and wine by the bottle.

In describing the bakery and deli, Fink wrote its main objective "would be to provide the consumer with the only true Italian shopping experience on the Monterey Peninsula." He said it would serve made-to-order sandwiches, bread, and hot and cold antipasti as well.

The kitchen at Cantinetta Luca would be accessible via an interior door and used for all food prep, and the store would be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily, according to Fink.

Without discussion, the planning commission approved the permit.

■ Big Sur back in business

Much to the delight of Monterey Peninsula residents and Big Sur business owners, Highway 1 reopened Wednesday night for the first time since the road near Rocky Creek collapsed in mid-March.

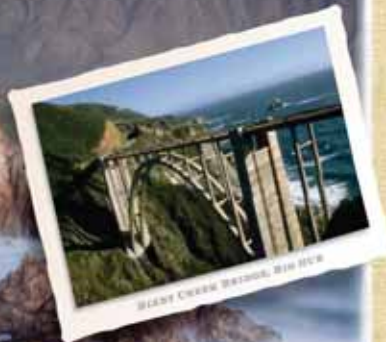

The single lane is subject to control by a traffic light, creating some delays, but the wait will be worth it for a drive along a spectacular stretch of coastline — and a meal (or two, or three) in one of the area's many fine restaurants, which are particularly desperate for a breath of life after several weeks of virtual isolation.

Perhaps a burger and beer at the Big Sur River Inn is in order, or lunch (or simply one of the magnificent mocha cookies and a cappuccino) at the Big Sur Bakery. Sierra Mar at the Post Ranch Inn and the Restaurant at Ventana offer superlative, innovative dining, and Deetjen's is as charming as it is tasty. Nepenthe Restaurant and its casual sibling, Cafe Kevah, have commanding views, diverse dishes and lots of local lore, while the Roadhouse and Ferwood are popular way stations. The Big Sur Lodge in Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park is a great stop for park visitors and folks driving past, and those who want to stay on the road a bit longer might head to Lucia Lodge for breakfast or lunch on the

■ Granola girl

Karen Anne Murray, chef and owner of Eddison & Melrose on Soledad Street in Monterey, is now selling her signature granola at several Central Coast stores and online nationwide. The product stems from her initial attempt to develop a recipe for the grain cereal seven years ago to use in a cooking class. She soon realized how she could improve upon it — and how much she enjoyed making it.

Now, her granola is sold in nine stores in Monterey and Santa Cruz counties and can also be ordered online via Amazon.com. Flavors include Cranberry, Cranberry Harvest and Wheat-Free Golden Walnut.

■ It must be summer

Cima Collina winery will extend the closing time of its tasting room to 7 p.m. as of May 1, offering downtown visitors the chance for a little pre-dinner sipping. The tasting room, located on San Carlos Street north of Seventh Avenue, opens at 1 p.m. Thursday through Monday.

Made in small batches by winemaker Annette Hoff using estate-grown and selectively purchased local fruit, the wines will also star during a dinner at La Playa Hotel Thursday, May 12.

The evening will begin at 6:30 p.m. with passed hors d'oeuvres, followed by four courses created by executive chef Bunyan Fortune to complement the Chula Viña Chardonnay, Tondre Grapefield Pinot Noir, Lockwood Oaks Meritage and other Cima Collina creations.

The cost is $95 per person, all inclusive, and reservations are available by calling (831) 624-6476 ext. 488. La Playa is located at Camino Real and Eighth in Carmel.

■ New Bahama happy hour

Happy Hour manifests in $5 cocktails, $2.50 draft beers, wine by the glass and appetizers for $3 to $7.

Among the daily Aloha Dinners — which cost $15.95 and include soup or salad, as well as ice cream for dessert — are blackened mahi mahi, meatloaf, hoisin salmon and chicken

By chance, Anderson had an opportunity to watch one of the quartet's earliest performances.

"They were just young kids then," Anderson recalled. "But I was riveted by their intensity and ensemble-playing. It will be neat to see them perform 40 years later."

Friday's concert marks the ninth visit to Carmel for the talented string quartet, which was founded in 1966.

The quartet features Martin Beaver and Kikuei Ikeda on violin, Kazuhide Isomura on viola and Clive Greensmith on cello. At Sunset Center, they will open with Mozart's String Quartet in D minor, K. 421.

"The string quartet is one of Mozart's late, great works in d minor," Anderson observed.

The second selection on the program is Szymanowski's String Quartet in C Major, Op. 37.

"Most people aren't familiar with Szymanowski," Anderson noted. "He was a Polish writer from the turn of the century who was influenced by Chopin, Strauss, the late romantics and the French impressionists. His music is very tonal and very lush. It's really quite lovely."

The concert finale is Beethoven's String Quartet in C-sharp minor, Op. 131. "It's one of his late quartets and also one of his masterpieces," Anderson added.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. Musicologist Kai Christiansen will present a pre-concert lecture at 7 p.m. in Studio 105 at Sunset Center.

Tickets are $41 to $65. For tickets or more information, call (831) 625-2212 or visit www.chambermusic-monterey.org.

a nonprofit representing more than 80 local vineyards and wineries with the goal of promoting and supporting "the art, the science and the business of wine" — will present its annual Monterey Wine Country Golf Tournament at Corral de Tierra Country Club Monday, May 9.

gourmet food and Monterey County wines.

The cost is $195, though folks who want to skip the golf can attend the rest of the festivities for $85 per person. Registration and lunch begin at 11 a.m., followed by a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m. The reception is slated to start at 5 p.m.

ADMIN

ty for Carmel based on my past work here.”

Goss was among nearly 20 applicants who sought the short-term position. He touted his 15 years as city manager of Chula Vista, along with top administrative positions in Fremont and San Bernardino County, and his analyses of government agencies and operations.

“We believe John is a nice fit with staff and our city,” Mayor Sue McCloud said. “His familiarity with Carmel will be particularly helpful in tackling the budget that has to be balanced and approved by the end of June.”

Councilman Jason Burnett said, “It’s fairly straightforward that the council was unanimous in thinking he was the right person for the job. His past experience as city administrator and doing consultant work for a variety of cities means he’ll bring some good ideas and good experience to Carmel over the coming months. I look forward to working with him.”

In addition to meeting everyone and learning his way around, a process that will include attending the April 23 Breakfast with the Bunny hosted by the Lions Club in Devendorf Park, Goss said his most pressing duty is getting a handle on the 2011/2012 budget.

He’s also preparing for an April 28 meeting to discuss proposals from Monterey and Cal Fire on how to run the city’s fire department — a task he said he’s well equipped to handle. While conducting a study for the City of Albany, Goss reviewed contracts for fire administration and services between Monterey and Pacific Grove, and discussed the proposed regional fire department.

He reported he has no interest in the full-time permanent job and does not plan to recommend any drastic changes during his few months in charge of the city.

“But I’m not letting anything lag,” he said. “I’ll get things accomplished pursuant to the direction of the city council.”

Goss lives in the San Diego area but is looking for a rental in town for the duration of his city hall job. In the meantime, he’s staying with a friend in Monterey.

When he’s not evaluating government agencies and determining the best way to oversee Carmel, Goss said he enjoys playing music, particularly jazz. He owns three saxophones and performs with a band in San Diego. City management and planning aren’t that different from musical improvisation, he said, because both “require you to be creative, to look at things in a broad way and think outside the box.”

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Presented by
Lois Lagier, D.D.S.

IMPLANTS

Dental implants are among the most successful procedures in dentistry.

When a tooth is lost, the surrounding bone begins to shrink away or re-absorb. This compromises the adjacent teeth and changes the appearance of your natural facial contours. When you have missing teeth there are problems eating fresh vegetables and fruits thus compromising your nutrition. When patients have dentures or partial dentures, they lose some of their ability to taste foods. In addition, chewing can be difficult and painful so digestion is compromised. Because dental implants function like natural teeth, they offer the benefit of better health due to improved nutrition, digestion and taste.

Implants are the root replacements for missing teeth. Most dental implant screws are composed of a titanium material. Once the implant is placed and restored with a crown, it looks and feels like a natural tooth in your mouth.

If you have lost all your teeth, implants can be placed as a support for your partial or full dentures. Once the support is placed, a post is placed on the implant and your dentures can be snapped into place. This eliminates slipping and the “clicking” of unsupported dentures. With implants that support dentures or replace teeth you can smile, talk and eat with more comfort and confidence.

If you have missing teeth, ask your dentist about the possibility of implant placement to restore your smile and chewing ability.

The dental team of Dr. Lois Lagier is dedicated to providing you with the state-of-the-art dental care in a comfortable atmosphere. Let us care for you!

Commission's hot topics: electric cars, wine and business signs

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will hold a special meeting at 1 p.m. Tuesday, April 26, to discuss several citywide issues, including wine tasting, signs on shops and where to put a charging station for electric cars.

On the topic of wine — an increasingly popular business venture in Carmel — a sub-committee comprising planning and building services manager Sean Conroy and commissioners Steve Dallas and Keith Paterson considered whether the city should restrict city approval of tasting rooms.

In reaction to growth spurts in certain types of businesses, city officials in the past have imposed restrictions, such as a cap on the number of jewelry stores and limits on where art galleries can operate. In a similar vein, the committee drafted a wine tasting policy last month and will present it to the full commission at Tuesday's meeting.

"The planning commission recognizes the demand for establishing wine tasting facilities but also recognizes that their proliferation could impact the balanced mix of uses that the general plan encourages," they wrote.

The committee recommended establishing several standards.

When tasting is associated with a wine stores it should:

- be limited to 10 percent of the retail floor area unless otherwise authorized by the commission, and not greater than 30 percent;
- feature only wine;

- provide no more than 2 ounces per serving;

- be at least 200 feet from another tasting room;

- close by 10 p.m.; and

The thing that wouldn't die

BY THIS time you've probably heard of the Great Pacific Garbage Patch, which is a concentration of plastic bits — the partially decayed remnants of modern civilization's garbage — suspended in the mid Pacific Ocean over an area said to be larger than the State of Texas.

You can't see them from a satellite or even from a boat, but the millions of plastic particles that make up the patch are lurking just below the surface, insinuating their way into the food chain and generally mucking things up for pelagic creatures.

The existence of all those bits is a testament to the durability of some of man's inventions. Buildings may fall in tsunamis, be burned to bits in wildfires or destroyed by tornados, but plastic lasts a long, long time. And, while the cloud of plastic pieces in the Pacific may not have been shown to hurt anything, the only sure way to have less plastic in the ocean is to use less of it on land. Unfortunately, something else manmade that refuses to die is in the way.

We're talking, of course, of the infamous California Environmental Quality Act, which the Legislature pretended to put on the books to protect the environment, but which actually exists to provide a bludgeon for any small group of activists to use to thwart majority rule and put a stop to anything it doesn't happen to like, whether it's building a nuclear power plant, selling off a piece of surplus real estate or passing a city ordinance.

But that bludgeon can be swung both ways, it turns out. When the City of Manhattan Beach passed an ordinance three years ago prohibiting the city's stores from giving customers single-use plastic bags to hold their purchases, manufacturers of polyethylene bags decided to fight the ban, and they copied their strategy right out of the environmentalists' playbook.

The first thing the manufacturers did was give themselves a sincere, grassroots sounding name: Save the Plastic Bag Coalition.

And then they filed a CEQA lawsuit claiming that banning plastic bags couldn't be done without an EIR — one of those ridiculously expensive documents that takes a year or more to finish and can then be exploited to open the door to lawsuits.

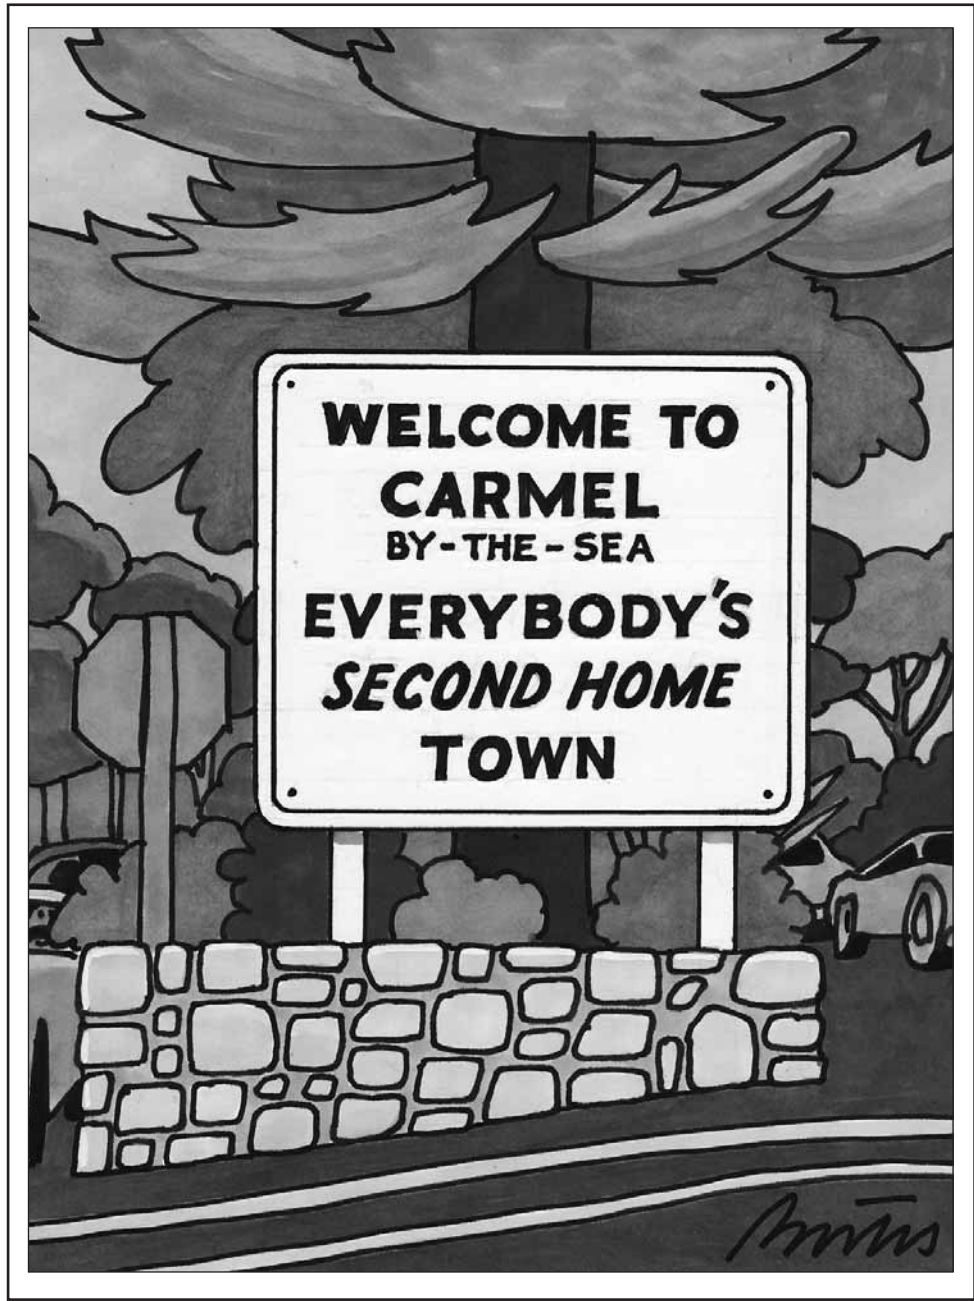

Surely, even the most diehard environmentalists in the state Legislature realize CEQA should not apply to environmentally insignificant, if not beneficial, city ordinances such as Manhattan Beach's plastic bag ban. But these legislators dare not do anything that might displease activist groups such as the Sierra Club and the Planning and Conservation League — groups that consider CEQA sacrosanct because it serves so beautifully to make sure they get their way.

So the Legislature has made no move to assist Manhattan Beach, which has been left to fight its way through the courts alone ... all the way to the California Supreme Court, in fact, which will hear the plastic bag case May 4.

It is a pitiful shame that the courts are constantly being asked to fix what the legislative bodies have screwed up. And if the state Supreme Court declines to act as a fix-it legislature, the people will lose.

Plastic is forever. And so, unfortunately, are stupid laws.

Letters to the Editor

Don't blame the victim

Dear Editor,

Your April 15 editorial hits a new low in blaming victims for being victimized. It gets the facts wrong, it gets the law wrong, and it tries to cover up for the mayor. According to the editorial, the city's human resources director's job was to protect herself against Richard Guillen's wrongful conduct toward her. Wrong.

First, Guillen is to blame. He voluntarily engaged in a pattern of conduct that cost the city $600,000 because his conduct was not defensible.

Second, under the city code, the mayor and city council promised the human resources director that if she was harassed by Guillen, she could go straight to the council's personnel committee. The mayor and council promised that the committee would step in and protect her. It's a straightforward policy, common to cities and required by state law.

The problem is that the mayor and council dissolved the personnel committee without replacing it with anything. And when the human resources director went directly to the mayor and city council and asked for protection, the mayor and council allowed Guillen to control his own investigation. Guillen stonewalled the city and the investigator, denied everything, claimed that he had never sent the scores of harassing emails and hid behind the mayor. Eventually, the taxpayers paid for Guillen's conduct and the broken promises of the mayor and city council.

This is no way to run a city. As long as the city and The Pine Cone blame the victim, the city will be at risk.

Doesn't like 93921

Dear Editor:

Reading of the travails of Steve and Barbara Walker (April 15) in remodeling their home, I am left wondering where common sense ends and government meddling begins. It seems that the bureaucrats on the Carmel Planning Commission have nothing better to do than harass citizens who want to improve their properties, and while adhering to the intent of the oversight process, add a few personal touches. Carmel has many dilapidated properties, which one would think the planning commission would encourage owners to update, improve or remove entirely. It seems the minor transgressions of the Walkers could be overlooked in favor of the result that has been achieved. The power which the planning commission bureaucrats wields over its citizens does very little to improve the look of the community. Instead, it only makes the task of improving one's property onerous and promotes tattling of one neighbor on another. The fact that the aesthetic preferences of an associate planner would prevail anniversary.

"Tsunami relief is a great cause," Alan Jardine, a longtime Big Sur resident and a founding members of the Beach Boys, told the Pine Cone this week. "And the song is appropriate, because it's about protecting and being aware of the ocean."

The song was originally recorded by the Beach Boys in 1988, explained Jardine, who co-wrote it with Terry Jacks. But that version was never released until now.

"It got put on the back shelf, and we forgot about it," Jardine explained.

Recently, though, Jardine remixed the song and was thrilled with the results.

In addition to Jardine's voice, the song features harmonies by Mike Love, Brian Wilson and the late Carl Wilson. "And Carl sings a beautiful verse on it," Jardine noted.

The flip side of the single features an a capella version of the Beach Boys' classic song, "Friends," which was recorded nate. Last month the bureaucrats refused a property owner's structure covering the garbage cans. What constitutes an "ostentatious design treatment" and who makes such a decision? Barring a flagrant violation of the rule, why cannot reason prevail in the decisions of the planning commission? Reading of such nonsense in Carmel over the years, I am thankful that 38 years ago we decided in favor of zip code 93923 over 93921.

Taxpayers shouldn't pay

Dear Editor:

The recent destruction at the lagoon from breaching the Carmel River sandbar should once and for all point out the brainlessness of attempts to thwart nature. Steelhead trout have spawned and survived there without the "help" of man for centuries. Let nature take its course and allow the river to do its own breaching. Those who build houses in a flood plain should bear the burden created by doing so, not the taxpayers.

Charles Pifer, Carmel

in 1968. Jardine said the inclusion of the song symbolizes the band's solitary and support for "our friends across the sea in Japan."

The 7-inch single is pressed on white vinyl with a red circle in the middle to resemble the Japanese flag. The label features a depiction of the Japanese character for friendship.

Jardine also shared with The Pine Cone plans for a much-anticipated Beach Boys' reunion. This year marks the 50th anniversary of the band's first single, "Surfin'."

"We're cooking with the gas on for the reunion," he added. "We're already making plans."

The record sells for $20, and its first pressing is limited to 1,000 copies. Jardine said he planned on dropping off some copies of the record at Do Re Mi Music, which is located at 26135 Carmel Rancho Blvd. (831) 625-1229. The single is also available at www.aljardine.com.

Robin Stone Bystrowski, a resident of Sacramento and Carmel-by-the-Sea, passed away peacefully at home on Wednesday April 13, 2011. She was a major shareholder and matriarch of the John O. Bronson Co. in Sacramento and the Monterey Insurance Agencies in Monterey, California. Founded in 1888, the John O Bronson Co is one of the Top 100 insurance agency & brokerage firms in the United States as well as being the 28th oldest business in Sacramento. In her communication, she had the endearing ability to give her full attention to a person and make them feel like they were the " most important person in the world ". Near strangers or one time acquaintances would often have positive unforgettable experiences when meeting her. Devoted to her family and children, she was a deeply religious person in the Church of Christ, Scientist, which was the foundation of her gift of love to the world. One person quoting Scripture remarked, if it is true that the meek shall inherit the earth, then Robin was a very rich person.

Robin graduated from Encina High School in Sacramento (1970) , U.C. Davis (BS - 1973) and the University of Southern California (MS - 1975).

Famous for her love of chocolate, especially homemade chocolate chip cookies, she was a loving Wife, Mother & Grandmother. Robin is the granddaughter of E. MARATHON GETS MORE SOCIAL MINGLING AND carb-loading will join the running, walking and shopping that will mark Big Sur International Marathon weekend. On Thursday, April 28, from 5 to 7 p.m., the Barnyard shopping center will host a joint chamber of commerce mixer to welcome runners, supporters and community members, and the Carmel Chamber of Commerce will offer Carbs in Carmel at the Carmel Plaza from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 29. The plaza is located at Ocean and Junipero.

On Marathon Day (May 1), buses will leave from downtown Carmel to take runners to the starting line, this year located at Highway 1 and Rio Road due to the collapse last month of a section of road near Rocky Creek. Carmel chamber CEO Monta Potter suggested runners staying in town could even use the short trek to the starting line as a warmup, skipping the bus altogether and getting a bit more shut-eye, too.

Meanwhile, Heidi, who was in quarantine at the SPCA after the attack, was scheduled to be put down Thursday.

The incident marked the first time in 26 years that an SPCA dog at an offsite adoption event has bitten another dog, according to SPCA executive director Gary Tiscornia.

Furthermore, the pit bull never showed any previous signs of aggression, and Tiscornia said she passed her initial SPCA temperament test with “flying colors.”

The SPCA has covered the costs of Harry’s medical procedures and Enns’ hotel and traveling costs.

and electrical and key systems. He also claims the inn had dry rot and termites.

But Kim, who owned the inn for about 30 years, said it was always maintained. He called the lawsuit "suspicious," and said Ahmed filed suit after Kim served him with a notice of default on the property in February.

He "waited almost three years before he filed a lawsuit," said Kim, who said the inn has been in operation since Ahmed purchased it. "How could he keep the motel open with these [alleged] problems?"

Ahmed "is behind" $1,168,000 on the inn's payments, Kim said.

"As it turns out," according to Kim, Ahmed "has simply been unable to come up with the money to complete the funding of the purchase, much less the development of the property."

Ahmed has also not "not paid any real estate taxes — approximately $277,000 — to Monterey County since he has owned the property," Kim said. According to county tax records, the figure Intrapec owes is about $357,000.

Though he repeatedly asked Ahmed to pay the property tax on the property, even offering to forgive a year's worth of payments on the inn if he did so, Ahmed hasn't paid the tax, Kim said.

"If he doesn't pay property tax, then the county places a lien, and I have to pay the tax," Kim explained.

Though Ahmed has operated inn since he purchased it, Kim contends Ahmed always intended to bulldoze its cottages and build single-family homes on the property.

A city survey, completed in September 2007, determined the inn is about 85 years old but is not historic because of the numerous alterations to the property over the years.

"Mr. Ahmed is a sophisticated real estate broker who chose not to have the property inspected since it was his intent to develop the 16 residential lots on which the inn is located rather than continue to operate the inn for a meaningful period of time," Kim said.

He said Ahmed even hand wrote the words "as is" in the sales contract for the inn.

Furthermore, Kim said he showed Ahmed seven years of tax returns for the inn, which indicated that operating the inn wouldn't generate enough revenue to pay for the property.

"The income was not enough to support the payments," Kim said. Ahmed "was looking at the development aspect of the purchase."

Besides rescinding the contract, return of the $2 million and other damages, Ahmed is seeking attorneys fees and costs. He didn't return a phone message left by The Pine Cone Wednesday.

The California Secretary of State's website shows Intrapec Investments, LLC was established in 2005.

The inn's purchase included $4 million for the cottages and land, $4.6 million for business and $100,000 for its furniture, fixtures, accessories and other property, the lawsuit indicates.

Kim said his reputation in the local community is stellar, and that Ahmed's allegations upset him, even causing him to lose sleep.

"They all know me as a generous and honest person," Kim said.

reached 100 mph at one point. They were passing cars on the left over the double-yellow and passed one car on the right." That one car was a white Volvo driven by Carmel Valley Village resident Jean Terry, who told The Pine Cone she had no idea the fleeing car and its pursuing officers were racing up behind her as she headed east after leaving the Safeway at Mid-Valley Center.

"If I had seen them in my mirror, I know I would have pulled to the right to get out of the way without seeing the car pass me at 110-120 mph, or whatever they were going, and been hit," she said. The near miss badly frightened her.

As the men in the Honda approached the Village, traffic ahead of them slowed, and the driver tried to swerve around it but hit an embankment near Via Petra, according to Brown.

In his report, Leon reported the driver, later identified as 28-year-old Gabriel Gomez of Castroville, "drove onto the shoulder of the road into the dirt and subsequently lost control and collided into an embankment, then spun a few rotations, ending up on the opposite side of the road."

At that point, the passenger, 43-year-old transient Jeffrey Brents, tried to escape by running into a nearby park, but deputies caught him at the perimeter, according to Leon. Gomez stayed in the car.

Terry said she came upon the scene a few minutes after the Honda passed her.

"They were surrounded by the sheriffs with all their guns drawn, telling the driver to get out of the car, and one of the sheriffs came from the park with the other guy and put him in the back of the squad car," she said. "They finally got the guy still in the car out in handcuffs and into an ambulance."

"We believe he feigned injury," Brown said of Gomez, who reportedly has gang ties in Salinas. At Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, physicians determined he was uninjured, and deputies took him to Monterey County Jail.

Meanwhile, a search of the car and crash site yielded a backpack, a GPS unit, cell phones, personal checks and other items apparently taken during car burglaries that had occurred as recently as that morning, according to Brown.

"One victim had parked his car at 10 a.m. at the entrance to Point Lobos, and upon returning, noticed his window had been smashed and his belongings were missing," Brown said. His black backpack containing a passport, checkbook and CDs was found at the scene of the crash.

Gabriel Gomez

Jeffrey Brents

"It had been thrown from the window," Brown said.

Another victim's purse and phone were stolen from her car while it was also parked on Highway 1 south of Rio Road that morning, and Brown said the phone's GPS traced it to the area of the accident.

Authorities are searching for more victims to claim the rest of the items, and Leon asked anyone whose vehicle was recently burglarized in the area of Highway 1 from Point Lobos to Rocky Creek to call the sheriff's office in Monterey at (831) 647-7702.

Gomez and Brents are both on probation stemming from other Monterey County cases and were booked into county jail on charges of felony evading, possession of stolen property, possession of burglary tools, possession of a controlled substance and resisting arrest.

HIGHWAY

Sur is still blocked by a slide near Alder Creek. "This area of Highway 1 continues to be extremely unstable," Caltrans said.

The problem, according Jones, is that the slide apparently isn't done sliding. And as dirt is removed from the highway, more descends to take its place.

"If you're at the beach and you pick up some sand, the hole fills right back in with more sand," explained Jones.

With constant debris pouring down on the pavement, it's no small challenge to get rid of so much material — in large part because of Big Sur's tough environmental regulations, which are only strengthened by its proximity to the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary.

Even though Big Sur's mountains have been eroding into the sea for millennia, "we can't dump the debris over the side," Jones explained.

Instead, highway workers will use trucks to drive the material to approved dump sites in the Willow Creek area — about four miles to the north — and the Gray Slip area — about one mile to the south.

"The Alder Creek slide is a big challenge for us," he explained. "It's safe to say that hundreds of tons of material are going to require hundreds of truck loads."

The road could be closed for another three to four weeks, Jones added.

Perlmutter, meanwhile, pointed out the irony of using so much heavy equipment and gasoline to avoid harming the environment. "It is illogical to me that all this material is being driven away by diesel trucks spewing their exhaust along the highway," he observed.

Big Sur Chamber of Commerce President Kirk Gaffill, meanwhile, urged residents to remind their leaders just how vital the flow of traffic along Highway 1 is to the local business community. "It is imperative that our community contact our elected representatives to urge their support of Caltrans' efforts to reopen Highway 1 in the timeliest manner possible," explained Gaffill.

As a result of devastating wildfires and periodic mudslides, the Big Sur business community has faced enormous challenges in recent years. This spring's highway closures only add to those woes.

"The current socioeconomic costs to the community associated with the highway closures have been enormous, and each and every day that the highway is closed to the south adds to that cumulative cost," Gaffill continued. "My best estimate for Big Sur alone, much less the Monterey Peninsula and San Luis Obispo communities, is that a [closure to the south of Big Sur] will reduce Highway 1 traffic levels by at least 35 percent to 40 percent of normal."

With Caltrans facing a mountain of environmental restrictions, Gaffill reminded everyone that people are part of the environment as well.

"The most critical environmental issue is the economic health of the residents, employees and businesses that depend almost entirely on Highway 1 being accessible to the traveling public and that there are no reliable or suitable alternate routes for the traveling public," he added.

Meanwhile, Big Sur residents Thursday afternoon were shouting from their Internet rooftops about the new-found mobility represented by the reopening of the highway at Rocky Creek.

"Road to Freedom!" read an email from the Coast Property Owners Association.

ple get too close to them.

"Our big message this year is to leave the seals alone," Andrews urged the public. "Let them have their space."

Because the pups were separated from their mothers so early in their lives, they weren't strong enough to learn how to fend for themselves. "We had to teach them how to eat solid food," she said.

The seal pups spent about a month at the center's hospital in Sausalito, where they were fed a steady diet of sardines, herring and other fish. "The extra month gives them time to mature," she noted.

At the center, the seals were also given names. The five elephants seal pups were dubbed Phylliss, Tips, Priceless, Jeffster and Gibby, while the young sea lion acquired the moniker, Macsquat.

Since 1975, the center's volunteers have rescued more than 16,000 marine mammals along the coast from Mendocino to San Luis Obispo. According to Andrews, the center relies on the efforts of more than 800 volunteers, including about 70 who live in the Monterey Bay region.

Tim Allen
presents
Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

Della Walker was a childhood friend of FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT, and when she asked him to design a sea-side HOUSE for her, he was 84 years old. He didn't know that, so he accepted the challenge (his only ocean house), and personally supervised its construction in 1954. "Make it low," said Della, "so my neighbors views will not be interrupted." He did that, and now the prow of the house, on Scenic drive near Martin Way, drives ceaselessly into the waves that buffet Carmel Bay. It is designed like an ocean liner, facing the tireless sea. The living room, slightly sunken, looks across the deck through stepped-down windows like a captain's bridge. The corridors, right and left, are narrow. Doors are slender and locked tight with catches. The kitchen is a galley, saving space in every corner, yet totally efficient. Staterooms along the halls lead back to a master bedroom with views to port and starboard, and a fireplace to defy the fiercest weather. The roof is copper, now oxidized to a timeless green. Della doesn't live there anymore, but the house will last forever.

Claudio Ortiz' proposal and sent him back to the drawing board to make several changes.

He returned Wednesday with a compromise that addressed most of their concerns about paving and walkways on the property, skylights, the use of too much stucco and building mass.

Ortiz said he had worked with his clients to create more green space on the property and modify other aspects, but George Pappas did not want a wood house, as commissioners had requested.

"His goal is to be sitting in the living room looking out at the patio or studio or in the yard, looking back at the house, looking at plaster," he explained. "He does not like wood."

The Pappases reluctantly accepted the idea of having wood on the upper level of the house and plaster on the ground floor, Ortiz said. They also acquiesced on some of the skylights, grapestake fencing instead of a wall, less hardscape and other changes in order to accommodate commissioners' requests.

"Thank you," Reimers told Ortiz. "You responded really fantastically."

Commissioners approved the plans after deciding to remove one more skylight and make a few other changes.
