

PARK RANGERS GO UNDERCOVER TO CATCH NUDE BEACHGOERS

By KELLY NIX

BACKED UP against the precipitous cliffs of Highway 1 about 8 miles south of Carmel, Garrapata State Beach is known for its breathtaking views of the north and south coast. It's also known to some as a place to go in your birthday suit.

While nudity and sunbathing au naturel are prohibited at all state beaches, they are not uncommon. But in the past few weeks, state parks officials have had an unusual number of reports from beachgoers complaining of people — mostly men — in the buff at Garrapata State Beach.

In response, state park rangers and lifeguards have stepped up enforcement, issuing more than a dozen tickets for public nudity since July 8.

"Because we've had complaints, we are trying to do more regular patrols down there to help park visitors stay safe," Dana Jones, state parks superintendent for the Monterey area, told The Pine Cone.

Jones said her office in the past few weeks has received numerous letters, emails and phone calls from about nudity at Garrapata, one of many beaches incorrectly listed on

Police opt for the stealth — and friendliness — of bike patrols

By MARY SCHLEY

CARMEL POLICE officer Chris Johnson's desire to resurrect the department's bicycle patrols got a much-needed capital infusion last week, when the city council accepted a $4,999 donation from Augustina clothing store owner Tracy Odle.

Pedaling through town on mountain bikes allows cops to better interact with the public, get to the scenes of accidents and crimes quickly despite traffic jams, and sneak up on criminals.

"It's a way to be more visible and approachable," Johnson told The Pine Cone this week. "When you're in a car, you kind of have a shell around you."

Carmel P.D.'s former bicycle patrol program ran through the 1990s to 2002, after which the bikes were placed into storage until Johnson rediscovered them a few months ago and decided to try to put them back into

Water board skeptical about Cal Am takeover

By KELLY NIX

THE GROUP of activists seeking the public takeover of California American Water convinced the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District this week to organize an advisory committee to discuss the possibility even though ratepayers have shot down the idea several times before.

Though Monterey Peninsula voters on three separate occasions have rejected the idea of turning Cal Am into a public entity, WaterPlus believes buying Cal Am now is a good idea and would save ratepayers lots of money on their monthly water bills.

At Monday's water district board meeting, the group presented a 6-year-old appraisal of Cal Am which estimated the company's fair market value at $100.7 million. But the appraisal also said the company had "contingent liabilities" in 2006 of up to $175 million.

Ron Weitzman, who heads the group, gave directors a rosy view of the plan Monday, telling them an average monthly water bill of $90.20 under Cal Am's ownership would be reduced to $52.78 under public ownership.

Following Weitzman's presentation, Cal Am vice president Kevin Tilden told water district directors the company is "unequivocally" not for sale.

He reminded directors of the three failed attempts — most recently in 2005 — by activists to take over Cal Am. Weitzman was part of that effort, which asked voters to shell out $550,000 for a study.

"The voters have spoken, not once, not twice, but three times," Tilden said.

Dan Presser, a member of WaterPlus, however, said this time around he believes voters would support the idea of a takeover.

MORE THAN 100 WANT TO BE CITY MANAGER

By MARY SCHLEY

NEARLY 130 people from throughout the country applied to be city administrator of Carmel before the July 8 deadline, and headhunter Bobbi Peckham pledged to winnow the group to about a half-dozen finalists who will be interviewed by the full city council in closed session Aug. 11-12, according to Mayor Sue McCloud.

"They are not just from California, but from all over the United States," McCloud told The Pine Cone this week. "To get that kind of response shows there are people who are willing to make a change. I have no idea who they are."

McCloud said a substantial number — just under half of the group — are women.

Peckham, a partner in the executive search firm Peckham & McKenney, reported she reviewed 129 applications from people interested in running the one-square-mile city that operates with a $13 million budget. Of those, she chose the 20 strongest applicants and sent them supplemental questionnaires.

"While these candidates have very impressive backgrounds, I am clearly looking for the right fit for this community and the organization," Peckham said in an update to city officials.

Bach Fest's 'new era' getting raves

FROM THE moment he lowered his baton at the opening concert Saturday night (above), and with the unusual staging of the St. John Passion Sunday afternoon (left), new Bach Fest conductor Paul Goodwin has impressed audiences and musicians with his energy and enthusiasm, and he's surprised them with his new approach to playing and staging classical music. "It feels like Paul's music is cracking open new places in people's hearts (certainly my own)," said the festival's general manager, Camille Kolles. "Seeing his musicality is one thing, but the framing is equally interesting, and the audiences have been very warm and enthusiastic," said Mayor Sue McCloud. Bill Sharpe, Carmel resident and a 1990 Nobel Prize winner in economics, said Goodwin, "has phenomenal energy and is almost like a force of nature. The music is glorious, and he infuses it with vigor and enthusiasm." The festival continues through July 30. Go to www.bachfestival.org for concert schedules and tickets.

KRML's new owner has ambitious plans

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A FIXTURE in Carmel since 1957, the jazz radio station KRML has a new owner.

The owner of Carmel Valley Athletic Club, Scot McKay purchased the radio station, which is best known for being featured in the 1971 Clint Eastwood film, "Play Misty for Me."

The amount of the sale was not disclosed, but the radio station was listed at $350,000 by its owner — Monterey County Bank — in January. Less than two years earlier, it was on the market for $1.5 million.

From 2004 to 2009, KRML was located in the Eastwood Building on San Carlos Street, where passersby could watch the radio station's deejays in action and shop at an adjacent retail store, the Jazz & Blues Co. But its owner, Dave Kimball, declared bankruptcy in February 2009, and two months later, the Jazz & Blues Co. closed its doors. Monterey County Bank, which had financed Kimball's operation, took over the station's assets.

Despite the setback, volunteers kept the station on the air, moving its hardware to a shed located behind the Crossroads shopping center.

A Carmel Valley resident since 2003, McKay has a lot of

Gentle Giant

SOMEWHERE NEAR the summit of Mt. Jenner in Bavaria, whose breathtaking terrain is dedicated to advanced skiers and avid mountain climbers, they decided to get a dog. A German shepherd. Named Jenner. Altitude does that.

Two months later, Jenner von Jenner was born, and they brought him home at 8 weeks on New Year's Eve. After another two weeks, he made his debut at the beach and enrolled in swimming lessons with a couple of black Labs. By nature, he does not like water. But having grown up thinking he is a Labrador retriever, Jenner loves to get wet. And by now, his most favorite place in the world is Carmel Beach.

Second best to the sand under his feet are the trails of Garland Park in Carmel Valley, where he logs 60 miles a week with his person. But while he runs foot-loose and free along the shore, he often is tethered to a lead in the foothills, as he is apt to dart after anything that crosses his path – a rabbit, a squirrel, a mountain lion, a cat.

Recently, Jenner was riding in the back seat of the family car when a cat darted across the street. Jenner bolted after the cat. The windshield broke, the cat got away, and Jenner got a new ride inside a crate in the back.

And when he came across a squirrel while hiking at Jacks Peak, Jenner chased it down, gaining on it with every step, until the squirrel reached a redwood. Instead of dashing up the trunk, the little fellow began running in figure eights at the base of the tree. Jenner froze, the squirrel stopped, and the two faced off, nose to nose, until Jenner lost interest and returned to the trail.

At 105 pounds, he's like Shrek, says his family; a gentle giant who has no idea how formidable he is.

Cleopatra the dog is subject of children's book

A RESCUED basset hound with the curious name of Cleopatra is the subject of a new children's book by two Carmel women, who are donating the profits from the publication to a local animal welfare organization.

In "Cleopatra, Queen of Pebble Beach, a True Story," authors Suzanne Lehr and Mary Wurtz chronicle the escapades Cleo, a pet Lehr and her husband Jeffrey had in the 1980s that they adopted from the SPCA for Monterey County.

Wurtz said she had been looking for the right story to author her first book. She found it in Cleopatra. "When I heard the story of this dog while at a dinner party," she told The Pine Cone, "I thought this could be a charming book that might also serve as a vehicle for raising funds for a nonprofit organization."

Cleopatra's adventures included being hit, by a car three different times. "This story took place in the 80s, and there are still people in Pebble Beach who remember her."

Lehr and Wurtz donated a limited number of books and all publishing rights to the SPCA for Monterey County. So far, they have raised $7,600.

"The book is darling," said SPCA director of development Susan Koza. "You will be laughing out loud. This dog must have been something else."

In hopes of raising more for the animal welfare group, the authors will have a book signing of the first edition July 30 from noon to 2 p.m. at the SPCA Benefit Shop, 26364 Carmel Rancho Lane near the Barnyard in Carmel. A $100 donation is being asked in exchange for a copy of the signed book.

The Art of CARPETING & DECOR

with Dan Jones

RECOGNIZING A PATTERN

Patterned carpet is often preferred for use in dining rooms and high-traffic areas, where it camouflages spots and spills. The most popular of carpet patterns are "organics" such as leaves, swirls, and waves; however, the uniformity of geometrics, such as plaids, remains a popular option. When choosing patterned carpeting, bear in mind that it is good to have at least eight to ten repeats to the motif to establish its rhythm. Remember that solid furniture will hide much of the design, while leggy furniture will be more revealing. Also be sure to vary the scale of pattern on your carpet, upholstery, and draperies so that each of the individual elements stands out.

At CARPETS & FLOORS, INC., we have lots of ideas to show you regarding how to use flooring to achieve a look you'll like. If up-to-the-minute ideas, superior-grade service, and first-rate quality are important to you, then we should be at the top of your list of people to see and places to shop. See how we can pair good floor design with practical application, and find out for yourself how enjoyable decorating can be – call us for an appointment for a consultation. We're open Monday through Saturday 9 am to 5 pm.

HINT: Textured carpet enables homeowners to choose neutral colors and still add to a room's interest with sculpted effects.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Presented by Lois Lagier, D.D.S.

SLEEP DENTISTRY

Are you among the millions of Americans who avoids dental care out of fear or anxiety? If so you may be compromising more than just oral health. Your mouth needs medical attention just as other parts of the body do. And when you forego regular dental care -- or even worse, ignore warning signs such as pain or discomfort -- you may be jeopardizing your overall health. Fortunately, a trip to the dentist no longer has to mean a frightening journey. Modern dentistry offers tools and options to make necessary dental treatments comfortable experiences. For many patients that option is called sedation dentistry.

Many patients find being able to relax deeply the key to regular dental visits and good oral health. This level of comfort is called sedation, and it uses commonly prescribed medications. Sedation dentists receive special training and education. At no point do you sleep during this process, or lose consciousness. You're able to respond when the dentist ask questions and you remain aware of your surroundings. As long as the medication is administered properly by doctors licensed to perform this care the practice of sedation dentistry is extremely safe.

The dental team of Dr. Lois Lagier is dedicated to providing you with the state-of-the-art dental care in a comfortable atmosphere. Let us care for you!

Water district hires new GM to replace Darby Fuerst

By KELLY NIX

A FORMER consultant to several local water agencies, including the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, will become the water district's new general manager beginning September 1.

On July 18, the MPWMD board of directors approved a $155,000 per year contract with David J. Stoldt, a civil engineer and infrastructure financing expert who was a consultant to the MPWMD and the Monterey County Water Resources Agency.

Stoldt, who currently lives in Massachusetts, was also an expert witness during the California Public Utilities Commission hearings for the regional desalination project and was the lead investment banker for the Pebble Beach water reclamation project.

Current general manager Darby Fuerst, who has worked at the district for 25 years, said Stoldt's familiarity with local water issues and the respect he's garnered with local water agencies will make him a good addition to the district.

"I think he will be a great fit where the district is right now," Fuerst, 61, told The Pine Cone. "He has an engineering background with an emphasis on water resources."

Stoldt's financial roots will also be an asset in the water district's pursuit of future water projects, Fuerst said.

Stoldt was in senior management for several startup companies, was an officer in a Wall Street firm, served as a member of governmental committees, and was on the boards of several nonprofits, according to a press release by the water district.

Water district board chairman Bob Brower also said Stoldt's financial background will benefit the district, which has to work within a leaner, $9.5 million budget this year.

"He brings some financing knowledge and business knowledge that is absolutely critical to us at this particular time," Brower said.

Brower said Stoldt also "knows the challenges of the district."

"He worked with us in doing the financing plan for the regional water project," Brower said. "He is very much involved and very much aware of what's going on."

Stoldt is scheduled to start work on September 1 but will first begin attending water district meet-

Police & Sheriff's Log

How'd the marijuana plant get there?

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

SATURDAY, JULY 2

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to a store at Ocean and Dolores for a hazardous condition, a small sewage leak, confined to the sidewalk. Store manager contacted on scene and was already aware of the problem. She requested personnel shut off water to the business, as they were unable to obtain a plumber until after the July 4 holiday. Water shut off, and building responsible notified.

Pacific Grove: DUI accident at Eardley and Ninth.

Pacific Grove: Grove Acre resident found eggs had been thrown at his front porch.

Carmel Valley: At Carmel Valley Road and Via Mallorca, the driver of a vehicle was stopped for vehicle code violations. Suspect is on probation with a search and seizure waiver. A search of the vehicle revealed narcotics and hypodermic syringes.

Carmel area: Husband and wife were involved in a verbal argument.

Carmel Valley: At Cachagua Community Park, juvenile male and his mother were involved in a minor altercation.

Carmel Valley: At Outlook Drive and Cañada Drive, a juvenile suspect spit on deputies' face while being detained due to a verbal altercation. While in custody, juvenile kicked and destroyed rear passenger window of sheriff's patrol vehicle. Juvenile was taken to juvenile hall.

SUNDAY, JULY 3

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A dog was reported lost from Carmel Beach. Followup contact with the owner, who stated the dog was lost while the owner was surfing. Officer advised the owner of the violation and the requirement for a dog off leash. Later, a citizen contacted the department and stated his daughter found the dog on Carmel Beach and brought the dog home. The dog owner was advised, and the two parties contacted each other.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer observed a dog loose on Scenic Road and followed it until captured. The area was checked, and the owner located. Dog was returned to the owner, and a warning was issued.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A Dolores Street business person reported witnessing an adult male subject, approximately 65 years of age, fall on the sidewalk area outside of a business. The citizen attempted to assist the male subject; however, the subject refused assistance. As the subject walked away, he told the business person he was going to sue him for the fall. The business person told the subject the sidewalk area was city property and if the fall was caused by an indentation of an empty tree square, then the subject would need to report the fall to the appropriate city official. The subject left without identifying himself or asking for assistance from the police department. The business person did not witness an injury and did not believe the male subject was injured in the fall.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 38-year-old male with prior DUI was cited for driving without a license, no interlock device, no insurance and expired registration.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported his parked vehicle on 13th Street was struck and damaged by an unknown driver.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic stop at Highway 1 and Rio Road resulted in a 45-year-old male driver's being arrested for DUI and child endangerment.

Pacific Grove: Woman was walking her dog along Park Street. Her dog lunged after being frightened by another dog that was inside a fenced area, causing her to fall onto the ground. The woman suffered abrasions to her legs and a laceration to her forehead.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A traffic stop was conducted on Ocean Avenue and a 24-year-old female driver was found to be DUI. She was arrested.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman reported the loss of a bracelet 30 to 50 days ago. Exact location of loss is unknown.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine dispatched to San Antonio and Ocean for an outside rubbish fire — fireworks debris. Extinguishment by fire service personnel.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to a DBF [dead body found] on Ocean View Boulevard. Contacted the victim's husband, Coroner took custody of the body. Unknown cause of death.

Carmel Valley: East Carmel Valley Road resident reported someone had stolen his key from his living room while he was in another room in his residence. Resident didn't see nor hear anything suspicious. After speaking to the the resident's mother, she stated her son is 5150 and is always accusing family members of taking his property after it gets misplaced by him.

Carmel area: Woman reported her 16-year-old son wanted to run away from home after he discovered she was not going to let him move to Seattle.

Carmel area: Deputies responded to a domestic disturbance and located suspect outside of the residence on Via Mar Monte. He was intoxicated and found to be violating the terms of his probation and a court order.

TUESDAY, JULY 5

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Rear license plate of a tow truck was reported lost or stolen. Front plate still on vehicle.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ladies watch lost; exact location unknown. Woman advised that she had been walking in the residential and commercial districts and also in the area of the Barnyard.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Mission Street hotel manager called for a civil standby and assistance with escorting two HBD [had been drinking] subjects from the property. Officers stood by while the subjects made other hotel arrangements. They requested they be tested to determine if they were able to drive. Both were found to be unable to drive due to their level of intoxication.

Pacific Grove: Observed a man on his cell phone driving north on Forest Avenue. Made a traffic stop at David Avenue and Seaview and contacted the driver. Advised the driver as to the reason for the stop and asked for his license. A DMV check

Motorcyclist injured in head-on with car

A MOTORCYCLE rider was seriously injured late Thursday afternoon after hitting a sedan head-on on Highway 1 near Palo Colorado Canyon, and a California Shock/Trauma Air Rescue Helicopter was summoned from Gilroy to fly the 61-year-old man to a medical center for treatment.

"Our officer witnessed it or came on the scene immediately after it happened," reported California Highway Patrol public information officer Bob Lehman, who said the rider is from the San Francisco Bay Area. "It appears the motorcycle rider is being flown out with some fairly severe injuries; however, officers reported the rider is responsive — talking and coherent."

The helicopter was delayed by weather, and the pilot radioed that if he couldn't land at the scene, he would retrieve the patient at Monterey Airport.

Lehman could not say how the accident occurred or which directions the rider and driver were traveling.

CHP offers advice to teen drivers

THE NEXT session of the California Highway Patrol's Start Smart program will be held Tuesday, July 26, at its office in Salinas. Considering vehicle crashes are the most common cause of death for teens, the class seeks to impress upon young drivers the importance of driving safely and the tools necessary to do so.

The program, designed for teenagers and their parents, covers what causes crashes and how to avoid them, drivers' responsibilities, local trends in traffic collisions, and testimonials from parents who have lost their children in automobile accidents.

The class, which is free, will be held at 6 p.m. in the CHP Monterey Area office at 960 E. Blanco Road in Salinas. For more information or to reserve a seat, contact officer Robert Lehman at (831) 796-2130.

Two drivers arrested in Big Sur after road-rage incident

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

TWO BIG Sur residents were arrested July 5 after one man reportedly rammed his car into another man's truck, and the second man retaliated by throwing a rock at the truck.

According to Sgt. Ron Willis of the Monterey County Sheriff's Office, Jorge Abrajan was arrested at the scene of the incident — which occurred about 27 miles south of Carmel — and charged with reckless driving, assault with a deadly weapon and driving with a suspended license.

Charges were later filed against Sterling Rose for reckless driving and assault with a deadly weapon.

Rose — who was driving a Ford F150 truck — told a sheriff's deputy that he was driving along Highway 1 in Big Sur Valley when he noticed Abrajan driving close behind him and trying to pass.

Rose said he and Abrajan have "disliked each other for a long time." He was worried the other driver meant him harm, and he "feared for his safety." As a result, he turned the Ford pickup truck he was driving into a parking area in front of Loma Vista, where the Big Sur Bakery, a gas station and other businesses are located, because he believed he would be safe there, according to police.

Abrajan, meanwhile — who was driving a Volkswagen Jetta — told a sheriff's deputy that he followed Rose into the parking area only because he was planning to meet a friend there.

What happened next is unclear, but it appears the two cars collided in the parking area. Moments later, Rose said he was trying to park his truck when he became "flustered" and "accidentally" put his truck in reverse, ramming Abrajan's Jetta, causing extensive damage to the car, according to Willis.

In response to the second collision, Abrajan stepped out of his car, picked up a large rock "the size of a cantaloupe," and threw it at Rose, cracking the truck's windshield before Rose drove away.

A witness — who knows both suspects — later told police that he observed the two drivers "racing" through the parking area and "trying to overtake" one another.

A sheriff's deputy interviewed Rose first. Later, after interviewing and arresting Abrajan, the sheriff's office filed charges against Rose as well.

AMENITIES SUBJECT TO CHANGE

World's best at Laguna Seca this weekend for U.S. Grand Prix

By MARY SCHLEY

MORE THAN 230 million viewers in 191 countries will tune into the action unfolding at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca this weekend, when the top motorcycle racers the world compete for the checkered flag in the Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix. The three-day event features the MotoGP world championship — the upper echelon of international motorcycle racing — as well as the American national championship, promising a lot of break-neck competition.

Sunday's MotoGP race will attract twice the viewership of this year's Super Bowl, according to Mazda Raceway GM Gill Campbell, making it by far the most-watched sporting event originating from the Monterey Peninsula.

Since its return to Laguna Seca in 2005, grand prix motorcycle racing has also been known to draw more than 50,000 people per day to the track.

The action will begin Friday, with practice sessions in six classes of racing, ranging from the fastest riders in MotoGP and three different categories in the national championship, to the e-Power International Championship, which is striving to generate interest in electric motorcycles.

Qualifying sessions will dominate Saturday's schedule, which will conclude with the 40-mile AMA Pro American Blistering pace and breakneck competition characterize grand prix motorcycle racing, which comes to Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca this weekend for the Peninsula's biggest — and most watched — sporting event.

SuperSport race at 5 p.m. This year, competition is fierce and the racing is close in every class of the national series, making for particularly entertaining races as riders try to prove themselves.

Sunday will be the biggest and busiest day, with four races on the schedule. Top-billed MotoGP will start at 2 p.m., when Americans Ben Spies (riding for Yamaha), Nicky Hayden (Ducati) and Colin Edwards (also Yamaha) will try to use their home-field advantage to beat the rest of the best — including reigning champion and Spies teammate Jorge Lorenzo of Spain; Australian Casey Stoner, aboard a Honda; and his teammate, Spaniard Danny Pedrosa. Italian Valentino Rossi, who figures among the top-earning athletes in the world and is a fan favorite not just for his skills on the track, but for his personality off of it, is struggling this year — his first aboard a Ducati — but is never to be counted out.

Also on Sunday, the AMA Pro Daytona Sportbike and AMA Pro American Superbike races will be held, along with the FIM e-Power International Championship.

As is typical of Laguna's largest event of the year, multiple activities are slated all weekend, including fan parties, a free concert, autograph sessions and stunt shows. Numerous vendors sell their wares, ranging from motorcycle gear and equipment, to jewelry and accessories.

Even the means of getting to and from Mazda Raceway are diverse. Cars can park for free at the track Friday and Saturday, but must use lots at CSUMB and ride free shuttles on Sunday, while motorcyclists can park there for free all three days. Others take advantage of Monterey-Salinas Transit's free rides to the track (www.mst.org/about-mst/news/laguna-seca-race/). And for the adventurous and

Amid several controversies, Marina Coast will hire PR firm

By KELLY NIX

THE MARINA Coast Water District — which has taken a beating in recent weeks over several high-profile news stories — is looking for a little help in the public relations department.

According to a six-page notice sent to public relations firms July 7, the water district wants to hire a qualified PR outfit, in part, to “develop and implement media outreach strategies.”

Besides talking to reporters, it also wants the firm to write press releases, Op-Ed pieces and public service announcements, and “place, evaluate, track and monitor media placements and other outreach,” according to the bid request.

Marina Coast’s capital project manager Patrick Breen said the water district received four proposals, one of them from a local PR firm. Breen said a typical fee for PR services is from $150 to $250 per hour.

“We are using all the tools necessary for our district to provide information our ratepayers need,” Marina Coast general manager Jim Heitzman told The Pine Cone Thursday.

The selected PR firm will have its job cut out for it. The water agency, which serves 8,000 customers, has been in the news a lot lately.

A county report released in June alleged Heitzman asked a consulting firm under contract by the district to manage the sought-after regional desalination water project to hire former county water board director Steve Collins to work on the project. Collins has been accused of violating conflict-of-interest laws because of his dual role and could be prosecuted.

Heitzman has denied the allegations and Marina Coast later released its own report indicating Heitzman did not ask Collins to be a subcontractor with the consulting firm.

In May, Heitzman accused Marina water board director Jan Shriner of creating a hostile work environment by submitting numerous requests for information about Collins and the regional water project. Shriner’s fellow board members voted for an investigation, which found Shriner did nothing illegal.

Heitzman said the chosen PR firm will also inform ratepayers of important water district issues such as water conservation, the potential annexation of the former Fort Ord and recycled water projects the district is working on.

Breen emailed the request for bids to numerous local PR firms, including Armanasco Public Relations, Environmental Relations and Vince Guarino Public Relations.

Marina Coast asked applicants to provide references, qualifications, proposed billing rates and expenses and other criteria.

According to the bid request, the chosen firm must have $1 million in “errors and omissions” insurance, which is expected to protect the district “from claims based on alleged errors or negligent acts or omissions which may arise from the firm’s performance,” according to the bid request.

The public relations agency should also carry $2 million each in general liability and automobile liability insurance, according to the water district.

The deadline to submit bids was Wednesday. The district management began reviewing applications Thursday and will continue until July 25. Marina Coast will award the contract Aug. 9.

Photographer talks about whales

HUMPBAC WHALES are the subject of a slide show and talk presented by photographer Jodi Frediani Saturday, July 23 at the Big Sur Grange Hall.

Frediani has been photographing — as well as swimming with — the whales in the Silver Bank Marine Mammal Sanctuary since 2002. The sanctuary is located in the Atlantic Ocean, just north of the Dominican Republic.

The event will also feature a performance by a Big Sur vocal group, Rise Up Singing.

The event, which is presented by a Big Sur group called B-SAGE, starts at 5:30 p.m. Admission is free (as well as the popcorn), although donations will be accepted. The Big Sur Grange Hall is located just off Highway 1, about 25 miles south of Carmel. Look for a sign on the right just past the Roadhouse restaurant. C.V. businesses want better signs, say effort has been slowed by county business owners wants better signs along Carmel Valley Road. But they say the effort has been bogged down by the county's planning process.

By CHRIS COUNTS

A GROUP of Carmel Valley Village

Directional signs at six different locations — if they are ever installed — will point visitors to restaurants, galleries, shops and wineries located along Center Street, Pilot Road, Del Fino Place, Esquiline Road, Ford Road and Village Drive.

"Every business in the village will benefit from the signs," explained Elizabeth Vitarisi Suro, managing director of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, which is urging Monterey County officials to permit the signs.

The chamber will no doubt benefit from the signs as well — Vitarisi Suro said the group has "lost membership because some people feel the chamber hasn't done enough" to help get the signs up.

In addition to benefitting local businesses, the signs would help visitors find their way around Carmel Valley, which business owner Linda Jacobs said is essential. "It's a disservice to tourists when they come out here to visit the shops but they can't find them," said Jacobs, who owns Casa del Soul, a shop that specializes in women's apparel and accessories.

Vitarisi Suro insisted the chamber has done everything it can to get the signs approved. But now she said the project is stalled because county officials want precise measurements from the median of Carmel Valley Road to the proposed location of each sign. To accomplish the task, Vitarisi Suro said road closures will be necessary and an engineering firm will need to be paid

■ A380 first class offers plenty of peace and quiet — and your own closet — at 40,000 feet

By PAUL MILLER

THE NEW A380 superjumbo jet, which began flying into San Francisco International Airport May 10 with the launch of Lufthansa's daily service to Frankfurt, is a very big airplane.

Much larger than a 747, the A380 is 239 feet long and eight stories tall, weighs 1.2 million pounds and can carry up to 800 passengers. So big is it, the A380 has airports around the world widening runways, expanding baggage handling and adding size has turned out to be warranted, of course.

In April, an Air France A380 clipped the tail of a commuter jet in New York, flipping the smaller plane around like a toy.

And in 2008, an A380 scraped the tip of one of its massive wings against a building at Bangkok International.

There are also restrictions at many airports on which runways and taxiways the superheavy plane can use. At SFO, for example, only runway 28R is stout enough to handle the A380, according to Eckard Paluch, a Lufthansa captain.

But with all the attention focused on the plane's massive size, there's another side to flying the A380 from San Francisco to Europe, and on other long-haul routes to ing the eight seats in Lufthansa's first class cabin on the superjumbo flight to Frankfurt July 8. Behind them, 98 were in business class. And on the deck below, 420 were in coach. But they might just as well have been on a different airplane.

Of course, like passengers in premium classes on many flights, the A380's first class flyers get special check-in desks and security lanes. Those have been standard practice for years.

But with the A380's full-length, two-deck layout, most airlines are isolating first class at the front of the upper level. And most airports that handle the plane — including SFO — have built two-level departure gates, which means the first class passengers on the A380 wait for their plane in a small group, access it through an exclusive jetway and take their seats out of sight of the other passengers.

"Our research showed that our first class passengers really want privacy," said Amrit Giggia, a Lufthansa purser who supervises the cabin service on A380 flights for the German airline to San Francisco, China and Johannesburg.

There's a good reason for that, of course. First class passengers between San Francisco and Europe on the A380 pay $15,000, or even more, for a round-trip ticket. (Frequent flyer miles can cut the price a bit.) But apparently quite a few people feel they get their money's worth: Despite the worldwide economic slowdown, first class tickets on the A380 have been selling well, the airlines say.

Besides feeling as though they're the only passengers on board, the eight first-class flyers on Lufthansa's A380s gets huge seats that convert into full-length beds, complete with mattresses and downy comforters. They get individual 17-inch high-definition TVs showing the latest movies and features, not to mention a 3D animation of the plane's position and three live cameras showing views from the tail, the cockpit and straight down. The air is filtered and humidified, and the first class cabin is specially insulated to keep noise to a minimum. Privacy screens isolate seats from even the few people nearby. Electronic window shades offer two levels of protection from the high-altitude glare. The cuisine and service are superb, including plenty of caviar and champagne. Instead of the hated overhead bins that are ubiquitous on other flights, they each get their own private closet. And the bathrooms — one for every four passengers — are about the size of five or size regular airplane bathrooms. (Emirates airline even provides hot showers for its A380 first class guests.)

A trip from Frankfurt to San Francisco takes 11 hours. Well into the flight, with Greenland out the window and California still seven hours ahead, the passengers in coach are probably asking themselves, "When are we going to get there?"

But in an isolated cabin at the front of the upper deck, before they curl up for a sound sleep in their comfy beds, the first class passengers might be thinking, "Why does this flight ever have to end?"

special gates that can load the mega-plane's two decks simultaneously. It also has reporters searching for superlatives.

"This four-engined leviathan will become the flying flagship of the 21st century," enthused the Irish Times after the unveiling of the A380 at the Paris Air Show in 2005.

"The sheer size of this airplane inspires awe," said a reporter for the London Daily Telegraph on one of the plane's inaugural flights several years ago.

Even newspapers that haven't been very impressed with the superjumbo airplane have still been, well, impressed.

"The A380 is a gargantuan, double-deck plane dedicated to the principle that size matters," said the New York Times shortly before the plane started flying into Kennedy airport in 2008.

Some of the skepticism about the A380's

Asia, South Africa and the Middle East: If you're lucky enough to be in first class, flying the A380 is an experience that hasn't been available before — at least not in the jet age.

"The first thing that occurred to me when I got in the cabin was that I hadn't seen the other passengers," said Martin Adler, a Canadian businessman who flew first class from San Francisco to Frankfurt on Lufthansa's A380 service two weeks ago. "I understand there were 500 other people on the plane, but I wasn't aware of them at all."

"In first class, there's a splendid feeling of almost being by yourself," said Emma Petersen, a grandmother from Hamburg who was on her way home on Lufthansa's A380 after visiting family in California. "I've never been on a plane like it."

They were two of the lucky ones occupy-

Local authors showcased at Barnyard

By CHRIS COUNTS

DESPITE THE announcement this week that Borders — the second largest retail chain of bookstores in the United States — would close, Carmel author Flo Snyder is optimistic about the future of books. One of the organizers of Saturday's Local Authors Live! event at The Barnyard shopping center, Snyder said the event's popularity last year is proof there's still a place in our world for books.

"Last year's event was so successful it forced a second one on us," joked Snyder, the author of a baseball memoir, "Lady in the Locker Room."

While the popularity of electronic books helped put Borders out of business, Snyder said she believes that rumors of the traditional book's death have been greatly exaggerated. "People still like holding a book in their hands," she said.

"Local Authors Live!" will offer more than 70 local authors an opportunity to meet their readers. Among the writers participating in this year's event will be Valerie Ramsey, Phil Bowhay, Susan Cantrell, Douglas Steakley, Charles Page, Alexander Kerekes and Bob Muson.

For would-be writers, the event offers a chance ask questions about the business of books. "Aspiring authors can get first-hand information about how to put words to paper," Snyder said.

In addition to showcasing local authors, the event will feature live music (bluegrass from Sidesaddle and a cappella signing from the Bay Belles), entertainment, a raffle and free popcorn. For more information, visit www.centralcoastwriters.org.

"When I am traveling and tell someone where I live, I always get the same response: 'Wow, how did you pull that off?'" McKay said. "People aspire to be connected here in some way, and KRML.com through the theater of the mind is the best way to accomplish that."

He said the station, by reaching out to a worldwide audience via the Internet, can even help bring a lot more visitors to the area. He told The Pine Cone that KRML's principal studio would be located in one of the buildings at CVAC, and that it would unveil a new broadcasting lineup in the fall. He may also reopen a broadcasting studio in downtown Carmel.

While McKay has no background in radio, his vice president of business development, Alex Binneboese, does. And Binneboese is putting together the station's new lineup, McKay said.

His new endeavor has picked up the support of Eastwood, who said, "I am very excited Scot McKay has bought KRML and will keep it going. Carmel deserves to have this wonderful station that will continue to feature great music." According to McKay, he became interested in KRML in the spring of 2010 after a series of conversations with the famous Hollywood director.

He also thanked Monterey County Bank President Charles Chrietberg for helping keep KRML on the air and out of the hands of a "national country music syndicate."

And McKay promised the new KRML would be a top-notch operation.

"I don't like to do things that aren't done right," he said.

Memorial jam to pay tribute to musician and educator

By CHRIS COUNTS

AN ALL-STAR collection of local musical talent will pay tribute Saturday, July 23, to educator and musician Tim Culbertson, who passed away June 7 at 55.

Following a 9 a.m. memorial service for Culbertson at the First United Methodist Church in Pacific Grove, the Marina Lounge will host a musical celebration at 12:30 p.m. A virtual Who's Who of musicians — including Roger Eddy, Johnny Mirani, Laurie Hofer, David Kempton, Lee Durley, Andy Weis, Richard Bryant and Jason Slate — are scheduled to perform at the tribute.

Tim Culbertson

Culbertson had a lengthy and distinguished career as an educator, including stints as a principal and music teacher at Forest Grove Elementary School in Pacific Grove and as a vice principal at Pacific Grove High School and Pacific Grove Adult School.

Noted for his special touch with challenging students, Culbertson was the recipient of many awards and honors, including 2010 Education Administrator of the Year by the Association of California School Administrators.

Meanwhile, as a musician and a producer, Culbertson played an invaluable role in nurturing the careers of many local musicians, including the Medflies, the Young Presidents, singer-songwriter Alisa Fineman and Pat "The Singing Sheriff" Duval.

"His passion as both a musician and an educator brought people together and helped them to achieve more than they ever thought was possible," explained Matthew Schuss, who co-owned a recording studio with Culbertson.

Also, a memorial trust has been established for Culbertson's children, Chelsea and Kylie. If you would like to make a contribution, contact Chase Bank at San Carlos and Sixth in Carmel.

■ Neville brother returns to Big Sur

A founding member of the Neville Brothers, saxophonist Charles Neville returns Wednesday July 27 to the Big Sur Spirit Garden, where he will be joined by one of his favorite musical partners, Senegalese kora player Youssoupha Sidibe.

The second oldest of five Neville brothers, Charles has been performing jazz, rhythm and blues, bebop, pop and funk for more than half a century. In 1990, his song, "Healing Chant" earned the Neville Brothers a Grammy Award for Best Pop Instrumental Performance. Like the band he has performed with for more than three decades, he's a legend in his hometown of New Orleans.

"Charles loved coming here last year and he's bring his entire band this time," recalled Jayson Fann, owner of the Big

Plein aire painters live large; couple returns from children's art tour

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR ITS latest juried art show, the Monterey Bay Plein Aire Painters Association asked its members to think big.

One of four exhibits opening Friday, July 22, at the Pacific Grove Art Association, "Small to Large" includes more than 40 works created by mostly local plein aire painters.

For this show, the group's members were required to create a painting of a local scene outside — and then recreate it in the studio at precisely three times its original size. Plein aire painter Mark Farina will judge the exhibit.

According to a member of the painting group, Maria Biosvert, the exhibit "is unique because it shows at the same time what an artist can do on location and what they can do in the studio."

The painting group, which was formed seven years ago and now features more than 140 members, hosts regular outings throughout the county.

Also opening Friday at the P.G. Art Center are exhibits by painter Erin Lee Gaffill and photographer Tom Birmingham ("Championing the Arts Tour"), painter Cheryl Kampe ("Familiar Surroundings") and Sheila Delimont ("Cloudscapes").

"Garrapata Sunset," left, by Howard Perkins and "Bixby Bridge" by Barbara Kreitman are featured in an exhibit opening Friday in Pacific Grove.

Sur Spirit Garden.

Sidibe, meanwhile, plays a kora, which somewhat resembles a harp but produces an earthier sound. In addition to performing traditional African folk music, Sidibe has a great affection for reggae music. In fact, a reggae record he collaborated on, Hasidic reggae artist Matisyahu's "Youth," was nominated for a Grammy in 2007.

"The two of them together sound amazing," said Fann of Neville and Sidibe. "The saxophone is not something you typically hear with the kora, but it's a really beautiful combination."

The music starts at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $25.

Also performing this week at the Big Sur Spirit Garden is singer Maria de Barros of Cape Verde, who takes the stage Saturday at 8 p.m. "She's been called the Ella Fitzgerald of Cape Verde," Fann added.

The Spirit Garden is located on Highway 1 about 27 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 667-1300 or visit www.bigsurspiritgarden.com.

■ Play it again, Gordon

With memorable hits like "Sundown," "Carefree Highway" and "If You Could Read My Mind," singer-songwriter Gordon Lightfoot had a rich and distinctive voice that was a familiar sound on the radio in the early 1970s.

Robert Marcum, who owns the Works bookstore a coffeehouse in Pacific Grove, will present a concert of Lightfoot's music Saturday, July 23.

"He's a songwriter's songwriter," explained Marcum, who was a member of the original San Francisco cast of the musical, "Hair." "His songs are simple but effective and have great lyrics. His voice is unique and very beautiful. He can play it, he can write it and he can sing it."

The Works is located at 667 Lighthouse Ave. The music starts at 7:30 p.m. and there's a $10 cover. For more information, call (831) 372-2242 or visit www.theworkspg.com.

■ Jazz and blues in the Village

A fixture during Happy Hour at Plaza Linda restaurant, jazz and blues singer Dino Vera performs Friday night at the Carmel Valley Village eatery and music hub, where he'll be joined by Gary Muchado on drums and Tom Tessier on guitar. "You will hear nothing smoother than these groovers," suggested local music promoter Kiki Wow.

The show begins at 7 p.m., and a $10 donation is suggested. Plaza Linda is located at 9 Del Fino Place. For more information, call (831) 659-4229 or visit www.plazalinda.com.

Through photography and children's art, "Championing the Arts Tour" chronicles a series of workshops that Big Sur residents Gafill and Birmingham staged across the county over a six-month period.

Kampe's "Familiar Surroundings" illustrates how much her work has been influenced by the Monterey Peninsula's thriving community of plein aire painters. "I have always been a studio painter so working for the first time outdoors brings a wonderful challenge to translate the beauty that is before me," Kampe explained.

Delimont's "Cloudscapes," meanwhile, showcases her use of oil and pastels, and her affection for "the ever-changing nuances of the Western sky."

Sometimes the landscape is meditative, with soft morning light breaking through a cloud bank," Delimont offered. "At other times it is dramatic, with dark storm clouds lit by the passing sun."

The four exhibits will be on display until Sept. 1.

The art center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., will host a reception July 22 from 7 to 9 p.m. For more information, call (831) 375-2208 or visit www.pgartcenter.org.

Everyone needs more wine, calamari, tiki cocktails and haggis

By MARY SCHLEY

PLANS ARE afoot to bring another wine shop and tasting room to downtown Carmel — one that would showcase wineries too small to have tasting rooms of their own. Last week, property owner Constance Dudley asked planning commissioners for their feedback on her proposal to open a new business next to the popular Dametra Cafe on Ocean Avenue, where she is also the landlord.

“We want to create an atmosphere for wine tasting that mimics that atmosphere at Dametra,” she told the commission July 13. “I don’t think anyone walks into Dametra who doesn’t feel at home right way.”

She anticipated calling the shop the Vineyard Gateway and said it would feature mostly retail with a small area for tasting, including a couple of seats so people could sit while they sip.

Planning and building services manager Sean Conroy pointed out the “wine tasting policy” adopted by commissioners last month to help guide their consideration of such applications states a preference for tasting rooms featuring a single Monterey County winery.

“The commission should determine if the proposed concept of offering wines from several wine labels is appropriate,” he said in his report.

Commissioner Steve Hillyard suggested the storefront, which is located on the corner of Lincoln and Ocean, could be used as Dudley desires if she made it part of Dametra. A door in the wall joins the two spaces.

“If they wanted to amend the permit to add this to Dametra, they could do that,” Conroy said, just as the Georis brothers did when they expanded La Bicyclette into the former Wings America space next door.

Dudley told commissioners her new shop would be a good fit for Carmel, even if it did not focus on a single winery, because it would not be “trying to compete with Costco,” instead featuring boutique wines from Monterey County and other California grape-growing regions. She also proposed including small bites of food to complement the wines.

Carmel Residents Association member Roberta Miller said her concern was that the wine store and tasting room would seem more like a bar. (Dudley also leases space to Sade’s bar around the corner on Lincoln Street.)

Even though the wine-tasting policy is a guide and not law, Hillyard said the proposal would not be in accordance with it and reiterated his suggestion she open the wine sales area as an extension of Dametra. He mentioned Fifi’s in Pacific Grove as an example of a restaurant that also sells wine. Bouchée on Mission Street is a wine merchant, too, and Bistro Moulin in Monterey carries wine for sale as well.

“I think that would be a nice addition to our community if done nicely,” Hillyard said.

Commissioner Victoria Beach pointed out effective decorating could help create a distinctive ambiance for the wine area.

“I would encourage the concept of having special wines, unusual wines there,” added commissioner Keith Paterson.

Dudley thanked the planners for their thoughts and feedback, and said she would be working with Conroy to refine her application to incorporate them.

■ Abalonetti = calamari

Monterey Peninsula residents might stay away from Fisherman’s Wharf in droves during the summer months when tourists flock there, but the busy harbor, hustle and bustle of people, and expansive coastal views are compelling reasons to head there on a summer evening.

The locals’ specials at Abalonetti — a wharf institution for six decades — are another good reason, as are the 99 cent oysters offered all day long every Sunday. As managing partner Kevin Phillips likes to point out, “That’s less than a buck a shuck!”

On Monday, Phillips described a comprehensive facelift in store for the restaurant, which will be renamed Abalonetti Bar & Grill. He hopes to update its patio with heat lamps, a fire pit and an outdoor bar, and to rebuild the deli, among other changes.

He regularly scrutinizes the menu, putting each dish to the test, and while it offers a wide range of options, calamari is the restaurant's specialty. Most restaurants purchase Monterey Bay squid that has been treated with water and chemicals and cleaned in China before being shipped back to the states, but Abalonetti gets 1,000 pounds of whole squid directly from Monterey Fish Co. weekly and employs someone to process it in house.

That effort yields tender, flavorful calamari that hasn't been robbed of its fresh, subtle ocean flavors or its texture. The kitchen uses a flash-frying method, dipping the breaded squid in super hot oil for a brief moment to ensure crispy coating and tender meat. Since squid is 100 percent protein, Phillips said, it either has to be cooked fast and hot or slow and low. There's no happy medium.

And that explains why squid appears throughout the menu — as well as in the restaurant's name, which refers to preparing squid abalone style. House specials include appetizer calamari offered traditionally breaded and fried, Buffalo-style using a sauce recipe obtained from an eatery in the upstate New York city that made hot wings famous, and Baja style, with a spicy aioli and pico de gallo. A signature antipasti bar includes marinated squid, and among the main courses is the Marty Special, which uniquely combines breaded squid and Eggplant Parmesan.

Every day, the restaurant offers locals $8.95 lunches and dinners that can be turned into three-course prix fixe for $12.95 and complemented by a glass of house Chardonnay or Cabernet for another $2.99. Add to that two hours of free parking in the city lot, and it's a remarkably affordable night out.

All the details can be found at www.abalonettimonterey.com.

■ A fun way to dine

If you're fortunate enough to have found a restaurant featuring a menu full of items that please your palate, you might just ask your server to select a few for you, leaving the lineup a surprise.

That's how it went during a recent evening at Hula's on Lighthouse Avenue in Monterey, where one of the restaurant's charming and cheerful servers, Sunshine, selected appetizers and entrees for her guests to sample, along with a few of the specialty cocktails mixed by Hector at the bar.

If you favor bright, fresh, island-inspired flavors and seafood, this is your place. Among the appetizers ("pupus") she chose were finger-licking-good spicy edamame, wontons topped with seared ahi and wasabi-ginger cream sauce, tender Hawaiian ceviche with citrus juice and coconut milk, and Island poke of ahi tuna and avocado with macadamia nuts and onions in soy sauce and sesame oil.

While those were all very good, her main-course choice of perfectly cooked butterfish encrusted in lemongrass and topped with lime-ginger sauce blew everything else away.

And what would a tropical night out be without a tiki cocktail? Hula's is known for them — the mai tai and lilikoi margarita, which includes passionfruit puree, are particularly popular — but the show stopper Tuesday night (which features Happy Hour specials all night, by the way) was the Dark & Stormy — ginger beer with a float of Whaler's dark rum over ice, served with a wedge of lime: subtle, not too sweet, effervescent and just a little smoky.

To learn more about Hula's, go to www.hulastiki.com — or just drop in and have someone order for you.

■ Bistro's nightly specials

Bistro 211 in the Crossroads shopping center in Carmel continues offering nightly specials from 5 p.m. onward for $20 per person, or $26 if paired with the evening's featured wine.

This week's lineup featured pork loin with Merlot and sun-dried fruit sauce paired with Shiraz on Monday, grilled seafood with moqueca sauce paired with Chardonnay on Tuesday, sand dabs with lemon caper sauce paired with Pinot Grigio on Wednesday, butternut squash ravioli with sun-dried tomato sauce paired with Pinot Noir on Thursday, pan-seared sea bass with balsamic reduction paired with Sauvignon Blanc on Friday, and Bistro 211's signature meatloaf paired with Merlot on Saturday.

For more information, call (831) 625-3030 or visit www.bistro211.com.

■ Friends with farms

Baum & Blume in Carmel Valley Village is capitalizing on the area's organic offerings by creating a new Friends with Farms menu. Chef/owner Deric Wenzler "is on speed dial of clients and friends wanting his help to gather their abundance of ripe produce," which is augmented by his own romaine and escarole, and he uses the bounty in a wide range of dishes at lunch and dinner.

Eat in or take out at Baum & Blume Wednesday through Saturday. To hear each week's FWF menu or reserve a spot at the communal table, call (831) 659-0400.

■ Here comes the haggis

Organizers are promising "an especially great lineup of special Scottish, Irish and British delicacies" for the 44th Monterey Scottish Games & Celtic Festival set for Aug. 6-7, including steak and mushroom pies, shepherd's pies with mashed potato topping, chicken pot pies, and bangers and mash, not to mention haggis (which fortunately can be washed down with Guinness).

Sweets will include strawberry shortcake, Brown's English toffee, McLaren's shortbread and Welsh cakes.

The games and fest will be held at Toro Park, 501 Highway 68 between Monterey and Salinas, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The cost to attend is $15 for one day and $20 for both days. For more information on the festival and its numerous activities, package deals and other details, visit www.montereyscotgames.com or call (831) 682-2022.

■ Panini Month

August is National Panini Month. At least, that's what TusCA chef Johnny DeVivo says, and he's adding a special sandwich to the lunch menu to celebrate. The panino is a traditional Italian recipe, but Americans have been putting their twists on it at delis and cafes throughout the country.

At TusCA, located in the Hyatt Regency Monterey, DeVivo offers a few versions of the tasty grilled sandwich on his menu. Throughout August, he'll serve one more: a prosciutto and fig panino with gorgonzola cheese and arugula.

TusCA is located at 1 Old Golf Course Road in Monterey.

FILM SPOTLIGHT ON ORSON WELLES

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE CHERRY Center for the Arts' annual "Backstory" series — which offers an in-depth look at classic movies — continues Thursday, July 28, with a screening of Orson Welles' 1958 film noir classic, "Touch of Evil."

This year's series focuses on the work of Welles, the legendary Hollywood actor, director, screenwriter and producer.

Starring Welles (who also served as screenwriter and director), Charlton Heston, Janet Leigh and Marlene Dietrich — and set on the border between California and Mexico — "Touch of Evil" is a sordid tale of murder and corruption that features one of the most remarkable opening scenes in the history of cinema. Beautifully choreographed, the riveting scene was made possible by a single camera sequence that lasts over three minutes.

Sadly, "Touch of Evil" was destined for B-movie status when it was re-edited and partly re-shot by Universal Studios before its release. But the film was re-edited again in 1998 — using Welles' extensive notes — and restored to Welles' vision of it.

"Touch of Evil" is the second installment in the Backstory series, which concludes Aug. 4 with a screening of Welles' "The Trial." Each film will be accompanied by commentary from local film authorities, lecturers and writers.

The event starts at 7 p.m. A $10 donation is suggested. The Cherry Center is located at Fourth and Guadalupe. For more information, call (831) 624-7491 or visit www.carlcherrycenter.org.

Movies outside the box and under the stars

While Carmel and Big Sur have no conventional movie theaters, two local nonprofit groups have done a remarkable job of bringing world class films to our community.

Presented by the Forest Theater Guild, the annual "Films in the Forest" series ends this week at the Outdoor Forest Theater. The final week's offerings include "Being There" (Sunday, July 24); "My Big Fat Greek Wedding" (Tuesday, July 26); "E.T." (Wednesday, July 27); and "Rango" (Thursday, July 28).

Tickets are $6. The films begin just after sunset, which will occur at about 8:30 p.m. this week. Moviegoers are encouraged to dress warmly. Food and refreshments will be served. Proceeds from the series benefit the group's youth scholarship and mentorship programs.

The theater is located at Mountain View and Santa Rita. For more information, call (831) 626-1681 or visit www.foresttheaterguild.org.

The Henry Miller Library's annual International Short Film Screening Series, meanwhile, continues Thursday, July 28 with screenings of "Sing Me to Sleep by Magnus Arnesen" (Norway); "Two Men, Two Cows, Two Guns" (United States); "Catharsis" (France) and "From the Stars" (Norway).

The series continues through Aug. 18. A Series Gala Finale will be presented Aug. 28.

Admission is free, although donations are accepted. Showtime is when the sun goes down, which is about 8:30 p.m. Moviegoers are encouraged to dress warmly.

The library is located on Highway 1 about 28 miles south of Carmel. For more information, call (831) 667-2574 or visit www.henrymiller.org.

cil after it OK'd a $24,000 contract with Peckham to conduct the search, the ideal city administrator "will be comfortable working with an actively engaged citizenry that is accustomed to high standards," "will explain, interpret and propose new approaches and decisions in a professional manner," and "will be unflappable and calm under pressure and stand firm on city principles."

The town's top manager should also be a strategic thinker, sensitive, thorough, creative, a proven leader, politically astute while remaining apolitical, an effective listener and skilled communicator, highly ethical, genuine, respectful, energetic, unifying, well organized, consistent, calm, funny, visible, accessible, active in the community, experienced with finance and labor negotiations, and well educated, according to the job description.

After receiving the completed questionnaires, Peckham said she would interview the semifinalists either face to face or over the phone, and then cut the group in half.

A crowd of applicants are hoping to be the successor to interim city administrator John Goss, who took over from Rich Guillen in April.

"I will meet with council at 9 a.m. Aug. 2 to review a recommendation of leading candidates for your consideration," she said in her update to the city.

From that group, Peckham plans to select six to eight finalists, who will be interviewed by the full council in closed session the following week.

McCloud said those meetings will be done behind closed doors in order to protect candidates whose employers might not know they are looking for jobs elsewhere.

"We really have to do them in closed session until we get down to where we make a final offer, because oftentimes people have not told their current employer they are interviewing," she said.

Discussions away from the public eye also allow for negotiating contract terms, McCloud pointed out. Former Carmel city administrator Rich Guillen, who retired in March following the $600,000 settlement of a sexual harassment lawsuit filed by ex-human resources manager Jane Miller, was paid $150,000 in salary and $47,923.28 in benefits in 2010.

commission.
 Bay Bikes, the Barnyard shop owned by Carmel residents Devin and Stacy Meheen, helped return them to working order, replacing old and rusted parts, mounting new tires and making other necessary repairs.
 Johnson found one other officer to join him in the effort. "Because I'm in charge of the program, I put it out to all the guys in the department, but Joe Boucher was the only one who stepped up and showed interest," he said.

 They signed up for a 24-hour bike-patrol class offered by Monterey P.D. and took the first session on the older bicycles.
 "And then when Augustina came up and donated that money, it was a great opportunity to get new bikes," Johnson said.
 Bay Bikes sold the department a pair of Specialized Stumpjumper Elite mountain bikes at wholesale prices and outfitted them with all of the necessary police equipment: red and blue flashing lights, sirens and gear bags.
 "They're sturdy and able to withstand the torture we can put our bikes through, with full suspension and still being extremely lightweight, and the gear ratios we need for our hills," he said. "With all the equipment on our new bikes, they still weigh less than our old bikes completely empty."

 As a sponsor of the CPD bike patrol, Bay Bikes is also servicing them for free.
 "The only cost is the actual equipment," said Johnson, who put the total purchase at just under $4,000. "We got a huge deal."
 Devin Meheen said he decided to sponsor the CPD bicycle patrol because he's passionate about the sport and thinks bicycles are an ideal means of transportation.
 "We wanted to be helpful in that regard, because it's better than driving and parking every block," he said. "I grew up in Carmel and know Chris really well, and when he told me they were trying to get it done, I jumped on board and wanted to do what I could do to see that happen."

UNDERCOVER

numerous "naturist" websites as a clothing-optional or nude beach.
 Apart from nakedness, there have also been reports of people doing "inappropriate things with pornography on the beach" and beachgoers having sex, though rangers haven't caught anybody in the act, yet.
 "There have been sex acts on the beach," said Eric Sturm, state parks lifeguard supervisor. "That is not a family value the park service embraces."
 Sturm said there have been no arrests, and those cited have been charged with an infraction — a crime less severe than a misdemeanor that can be resolved by paying a fine. Officials are hoping the word will get out it's not OK to shed your clothes at Garrapata or any other state beach.
 "We are doing multiple patrols at Garrapata a day," he explained. "Sometimes I'm sending the officers down in full uniform. The other half the time, I am sending officers undercover so members of the public wouldn't know who they are."

 Most of the nude sunbathers cited have been at the north end of the beach, an area more secluded and distant from the beach's main parking area.
 One website indicates Garrapata is "considered by some to be the best nude beach in NorCal partly because of the beauty of its setting."
 It goes on to say that because weekends draw more families to the beach, "a little more circumspection might be in order on the weekends."
 One nude man Sturm confronted at Garrapata asked whether he was going to be arrested. When Sturm asked, "Should I arrest you?" the man said, "I'm on probation for sex crimes." A background check, however, revealed the man had fulfilled the terms of his probation, and he was cited and released.
 While looking for nudies, rangers and lifeguards have also stumbled across people committing other minor offenses, such as smoking pot.
 "Most of the citations we have written were for state park code for nudity," Jones said. "But there have also been a couple of tickets written for illegal substances."
 There are four men for every woman cited for nudity, Sturm said.
 Handing out tickets to nude sunbathers is especially taxing at a time when budget cuts have reduced the local state parks office from a previous staff of 14 park rangers and lifeguards to just five.
 "It's been a real challenge," according to Sturm, who said there were two ocean rescues in other local state beaches Tuesday.
 Despite the overload, Sturm encouraged beachgoers to report nudity or any other illegal activity at local state parks and beaches.
 "Our goal in all of this is to get the beach back to a family beach so people aren't embarrassed by things going on there," he said.

Bay Bikes is treating the CPD program the way it treats its racing team, providing equipment at low cost and service as needed. While the racing team has Bay Bikes logos emblazoned on jerseys and bikes so the shop gets publicity when its riders end up on the podium, Meheen wasn't looking for publicity from CPD — though the department did allow the shop's stickers on the bicycles.
Riding staircases
 In the course led by MPD, officers learned how to patrol on bicycles, including going up and down stairs, navigating through crowds and riding effectively while wearing a bullet-proof vest and 35 pounds of gear.
 "By the time we were done, I think our biggest staircase had 18 steps," Johnson said. "Now, there aren't that many staircases I would look at and think, 'I would never go down those with a bike.'"
 And with full suspension, steps are hardly noticeable anyway.
 They also learned techniques for dealing with suspects, including "how to dismount a bike in a safe and quick way and get your hands on an offender," Johnson said.
 He and Boucher (who was sidelined by a calf injury he sustained during the annual kickball game with kids at Junipero Serra School but should be back pedaling in time for Concours Week) have yet to complete a final session with MPD on law enforcement, but Johnson has already been out on the bicycle and is enjoying riding through town and chatting with business people, residents and visitors.
 "The thing I love most is getting out and talking to people," he said. "One kid asked yesterday, 'Where do you put the person you arrest?'"
 Because they are quiet, bicycles are also useful for crime prevention. If residential or commercial break-ins are proliferating in a certain part of town, for example, Johnson and Boucher can patrol on two wheels without being heard or seen, especially at night.
 "We're able to sneak up on a lot of people doing bad things," he said.
 And, of course, cycling cuts gas use and reduces wear and tear on patrol cars. It also helps keep the officers physically fit.
 Johnson said he's eager to incorporate bike patrols into his regular police work.
 "I'm excited to get out there," he said. "I think it should be a great program, and we're going to be able to do a lot of great things with it."

"We were told they voted more than once, twice, three times," he said. "But that is what this county does. We have elections every four years. We change our minds."

But there was also deep skepticism among several speakers and water district directors about the proposal.

Carmel Valley resident Roger Dolan said the district should focus on developing a new water supply project before it worries about public ownership of Cal Am.

"The problem we face in water is not the ownership of Cal Am, it's that we don't have a water supply," Dolan said. "I see this as a terrible distraction."

Andy Clarke said he didn't believe taxpayer dollars should be spent on a study he said would likely find Cal Am's worth is a lot more than $100 million.

"We need to be very cautious with these numbers," he said.

Water district director Dave Potter said he has concerns about structure and governance of the proposed public agency, among other issues.

"My underlying concern about cost is not just the cost to the district, but the cost to the public," he said.

Though she said she didn't fully reject the idea of taking over Cal Am, director Regina Doyle said the district needs to provide a lot more information before the WaterPlus' proposal can be seriously considered.

"What would this publicly owned company look like?" she asked. "That is really an important thing for me. I don't want to just assume we will save money and there will be efficiencies."

Doyle also questioned the idea that having a public water provider would save money for customers.

"I have seen studies that show public ownership doesn't see any savings," she said.

Directors Judi Lehman and Kristi Markey, who of the seven directors expressed the most interest in Weitzman's idea, pushed for the formation of a subcommittee to discuss the issue, including what would happen with the contracts Cal Am has forged with other water agencies for the regional water project if the company was made public.

"We are not at that crossroads to say if it's a good idea or a bad idea," Lehman said.

"I applaud the people who put [the takeover proposal] together," Markey said.

If Cal Am refuses to sell, the government could probably take the water company over via eminent domain — a process Weitzman said wouldn't cost too much.

Eminent domain court proceedings would cost ratepayers $300,000 in attorneys fees and $100,000 for an appraisal, he maintained.

"As far as money is concerned," Weitzman said, "there is no reason to fear eminent domain."

However, WaterPlus treasurer George Schroeder said there is a monetary risk if the group loses the court battle.

"At the end of the trial," Schroeder said, "if the offer made by the public agency is considered by the court to be unreasonable, then the court has the discretion to charge [the group] litigation fees, too."

MPWMD general manager Darby Fuerst said the subcommittee would be more like a citizens' advisory committee made up mostly of director-appointed public representatives and maybe a couple of water district directors.

Directors would discuss the makeup of the committee at the water district's Aug. 15 meeting, Fuerst said.

Hello from the Road...

by Jasper Ngo

My name is Jasper Ngo. I am the Travelin' and Eatin' Dog. Ricky Nelson could have written a song about me.

In my 15.5 years, I have lived in three states (VA, CA and FL) and visited AZ, NM, TX, LO, MS and AL. I have flown across the country. I have taken 6 road trips between CA and FL. I have seen Route 66 and stood on a corner in Winslow, AZ. I went to many beaches, mountains, deserts, countless towns and cities. I traveled so much, I had my own suitcase. I got really excited when it came out because it meant Adventure Time was here. My favorite beach is Carmel Beach where I can run. My favorite town is, of course, Carmel-by-the-sea and eating at the Tuck Box or The Forge in the Forest or Casanova or getting a drink from a silver bucket at Porta Bella. It was also a lot of fun spending a weekend at the Happy Landing Inn or having Afternoon Tea at the Cypress Inn. Although I liked Carmel, going on long weekends to San Simeon, having lunch at the Main Street Grill with my Mommy and Daddy gave me lots of fun memories. The irony in my life was, I lived by the sea but I was not fond of the water or the swimming pool. I have been to Yosemite Park and walked up to Bridal Veil Falls under the admiring eyes of the many tourists. My favorite desert is the Mojave desert, where I stood facing into the cool desert wind inhaling all the sweeping scents as if I was reading a doggy world newspaper.

Since I never bark, I have successfully sneaked in and out of many motels but never made a single mistake in them!

I am pretty sure, I have seen more places and traveled more than some people.

As for food, I have snacked (now a verb) my way through life. I have loved eating with my family even though I am sure that, at times, they would have preferred not to share their food. I became a Master at "Sad Eyes" when it came to food. Just to let you know, the family phrase "Daddy does not share food!" did not apply to me, that's how good I was. Since I was never quite sure if it was easier with Mommy or Daddy, I got food from both! My favorite foods? Pizza, Cheerios, Hot Dogs (National Hebrew), Marshmallows, Daddy's Special BBQ Ribs, Lucky Dog Bakery Cookies and the occasional popcorn.

I have indulged my Mommy with her hat fetish. So many embarrassing pictures of me in hats for various occasions. One of the best is winning a trophy in the very First Reindoggy Parade held in Carmel in Dec 2005. At least in that contest, Mommy and Daddy had to wear silly hats as well.

Let's not forget that I am famous. I was featured in the Carmel Pine Cone newspaper in October 2008! I was "interviewed" for the Sandy Claws column by Margot Nichols after my Mommy figured out who we needed to meet to get interviewed!

So you see, I have led a life full of love and fun adventures. I made a lot of memories with my little family.

Alas, all things do come to a close, always too early, even after many years of a good life. I am thankful to have had a wonderful, happy, long healthy life with my Mommy and Daddy. Together, we grew, we walked, we played ball, we played the "slippers" game, we went to work together, we went for car rides, we traveled, we ate good food, we laughed, we explored, we had fun quiet times and most importantly we LOVE each other. Together, I was never afraid of Life and learned that Adventure is out there. They were my little family and I was their World. For over 15 years life was a wonderful adventure, now it is time for them to have their own adventures and me to have mine... It will be very hard but they gave me the courage to do so, I will always carry their love and a part of them in my heart where ever I go... I know they will do the same.

With unending love for my Mommy and Daddy and until we meet again.

- Jasper

Editorial

What would they gain?

IN THE suspenseful movie, "Unknown," Liam Neeson confronts an unfathomable mystery. After several days in a coma, he awakes to find that his wife doesn't know him and that another man has taken his place, not only as a husband, but as a noted research scientist.

Seeking help from a private investigator, Neeson is told that a central question must be answered before the mystery can be solved: What could his wife and the other man hope to gain by pretending Neeson doesn't exist?

The circumstances are a bit less dire, but the same type of question presents itself in the controversy over Steve Collins and his roles both as a member of a county water agency and as a paid consultant to a firm trying to win a lucrative water contract. The dual roles created a serious conflict of interest which has become a major impediment to progress on the Monterey Peninsula's new water supply and is being investigated by the Monterey County District Attorney.

Collins admits being paid $160,000 in less than a year by the water company, RMC Consulting. And he also says he was aware of the potential conflict of interest the arrangement created with his official capacity on the Monterey County Water Resources Agency.

But Collins also maintains that he was urged by Monterey County Supervisors Lou Calcagno and Dave Potter to take the position with RMC, and was even advised by the Monterey County Counsel's office that the arrangement created no conflict.

Apparently Collins has no documents or other hard evidence to back up this story; last weekend, his lawyer, Michael Lawrence, in an unusual "guest commentary" printed in The Monterey County Herald, offered the results of a lie detector test to bolster Collins' story. It seems obvious Collins would never have gone so far as to take a lie detector test if he had an easier (and more credible) way to prove his case.

Meanwhile, as we reported on our front page last week, Calcagno and Potter adamantly deny urging Collins to go to work for RMC, and they both say they would never have made such a recommendation because of the conflict it would create.

Who's telling the truth? We don't know. But Collins has a tougher row to hoe, because while he had an obvious personal motive for taking the RMC consulting job (money), it's much harder to understand why Calcagno and Potter would have done what Collins says they did.

For one thing, while Monterey County supervisors have taken a few modest steps to get a new water supply for the Monterey Peninsula, they haven't exactly made it a top priority. We wish they were pushing harder, but considering the measured approach they've taken all these years, it's hard to believe Potter and Calcagno saw an urgent need for the regional water project to suddenly be catapulted toward completion.

Even less credible is the idea that, if they did see completing the water project as a top priority, Potter and Calcagno would consider Collins' participation some kind of elixir. Sure, Collins has been a competent member of the county water resources agency board. And he has ties to the ag community that might help overcome objections to wells being drilled on ag land. But the guy is no magician.

We think the story being told by Calcagno and Potter has the ring of truth, while Collins' version is hard to swallow. Can somebody prove otherwise?

Meanwhile, the whole episode is a regrettable distraction from what really matters, and that is getting an adequate water supply for this community — one that eliminates overpumping from the Carmel River, protects against drought and provides enough new water for the small amount of growth the Monterey Peninsula needs.

Can't help laughing Dear Editor,

I cannot help but laugh when I read some of what is written by others in the Pine Cone. It is clear Mayor Sue McCloud's camp is already in a panic and has already started the mudslinging. Since Jason Burnett pledged in 2010 that he would serve out all four years in his current city council seat and committed he would not run for Congress or mayor until 2014, the McCloud folks are starting their attack on Adam Moniz, who is the obvious choice for 2012. Folks, the election is not until next year. Relax!

Beth Reimers,
Carmel

'Leave the unemployed alone' Dear Editor,

Cisco is laying off 6,500 workers. Borders is closing its doors and 11,000 are now out of work. Job fairs attract thousands of job seekers for dozens of jobs. San Francisco Superior Court is laying off 40 percent of its staff. The unemployment rate is 9.2 percent, but many economists believe the real number is 16 percent, which means one in six Americans has no job. While the unemployment dilemma grips the nation, our fearless editor at The Pine Cone has been preoccupied with unemployment graft. Certainly there are some of the unemployed who are gaming the system. Just as GE gamed the system by not paying income tax on profits of $14 billion last year. We should no more tolerate unemployed dead beats than a tax system that allows hedge fund managers to pay a 15 percent tax rate while their secretaries pay 33 percent.

The way you fix unemployment is by creating jobs. As long as consumers refuse to spend and businesses refuse to hire, the unemployment situation will not improve. The Pine Cone's solution of rewarding those few who find jobs while penalizing the others is not only mean-spirited but misdirected. Extending unemployment benefits is a means of getting cash into consumers' pockets. I suppose some see the vast majority of the unemployed as gaming the system. I see the vast majority as good, decent Americans willing to work if given the chance. Come on, Pine Cone, leave the poor unemployed alone and return to blasting the people who really are making our lives miserable — the coastal commission.

between $3,000 and $5,000.

The chamber director, meanwhile, said she is convinced the county already has the information it's asking for. "Public Works is out there every week at the same corners," she observed. "Why can't they take a quick measurement?"

When asked why she doesn't simply measure the distances in the middle of the night with a tape measure, Vitarisi Suro responded, "We want to play by the rules."

So what's the delay?

In response to Vitarisi Suro's insistence that the chamber has done everything it can to get the signs approved, Monterey County ombudsman Beth Shirk said the application for the project is "too general and doesn't offer enough specifics." Shirk, who has worked with the applicants for three years, said she hasn't heard from them since February.

Regarding Vitarisi Suro's concerns about the expense of paying an engineering firm to take precise measurements, Monterey County Public Works director Yazdan Emrani said his agency is willing to accept estimated measurements in this case. "We just want to make sure the signs are not a visual obstruction to motorists," Emrani said.

Emrani said once he can verify that the application for the project is complete, he will review it in an "expedited manner." If the application isn't complete, he said he will let the applicants know as soon as possible where the project stands. "In terms of moving this forward, [the chamber and business owners] deserve to know what our answer is."

If the signs get approved, Vitarisi Suro said her group will ask students at Rancho Cielo to make them. Rancho Cielo is a 100-acre property located east of Salinas that hosts vocational training programs for at-risk youth.

The wooden signs will be patterned after similar signs in Healdsburg and Sonoma — two upscale resort towns in California's wine country.

ings in August.

His five-year contract sets an initial base salary of $155,000 per year, plus other benefits, including a deferred compensation plan, a $400-per-month automobile allowance, a company vehicle for business and nonbusiness use, and reimbursement for mileage for travels outside the area.

Stoldt is also eligible for full medical, dental and vision benefits and life insurance and short- and long-term disability insurance benefits.

The water district will reimburse Stoldt as much as $15,000 for relocation costs, temporary housing expenses and travel costs until he finds permanent housing in the area.

Stoldt's base salary, considering merit adjustments, won't exceed $175,000 before Aug. 31, 2014, according to his contract.

Details of Stoldt's contract are on the district website at: www.mpwmd.dst.ca.us/asd/board/boardpacket/2011/20110718/07/item7.htm.

Meanwhile, looking back at the quarter century he's worked at the district, Fuerst said he's proud of the water supply projects the district has implemented, including the aquifer storage and recovery facilities in Seaside and the Pebble Beach reclamation project.

"I'm also pleased with the water conservation we helped to accomplish in the community," Fuerst said. "We are the lowest water-using community in California."

Under Fuerst's direction, the district improved steelhead habitat in the Carmel River, including the riparian vegetation along the river.

Fuerst, who lives with his wife in Pacific Grove, said he doesn't have any immediate plans to take on a post-retirement job. But he will soon be able to fulfill a longtime quest.

"My first big plan is I'm going to raft the Colorado River," he said.

"It's a 16-day trip through the canyon. I have always wanted do that."

Ann Anderson

August 27, 1927 - July 10, 2011

Cecelia Ann Anderson, 83, died Sunday, July 10, 2011 of respiratory complications at the Carmel Hills Care Center in Monterey.

Ann was a local Carmelite since 1967. She was born on August 27, 1927 in Minot, ND to Charles and Mary Evanson and was one of six children. She moved to Oakland CA in the 1940s and graduated from Presentation High School in 1945. She married William A. Noble in 1947 and began a family shortly thereafter in Walnut Creek, CA. Along with raising a family, Ann worked at Marshall Steele. As a hobby she acted in the local little theatre and was active in her local Catholic church. Upon divorcing, she moved to Carmel, CA along with two of her sons, where she lived the rest of her life.

At the time Ann was employed at Carmel Candies in the Doud Arcade on Ocean Avenue in Carmel. She married her second husband, L.R. "Andy" Anderson in 1969. They remained together until his death in 1999. Many locals remember Ann & Andy from the business that they owned and operated together for over 20 years, Deal Direct, a for sale by owner car lot located in downtown Monterey. Thousands of cars were sold locally through their service and their business became a hangout as well as a source for friends and car enthusiasts alike, local and distant. The atmosphere was warm and friendly, and many were welcomed daily to visit and view cars from the exotic to the ordinary. Ann was a big part of the homey atmosphere, informative and friendly and was loved by many. Their business was built on integrity and was successful until Ann & Andy closed its doors in 1997.

Ann is survived by sons John Noble of Atlanta GA, Edward Noble of Scotts Valley CA, Daniel Anderson of Anacortes WA, David Anderson of Salinas CA and daughters Suzanne Meier of Pioneer CA and Judy Crommie of Antioch, CA. She had 14 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren.

She was predeceased by her husband Andy in 1999 and her son Daniel Noble in 1992.

Family services will be private. A Mass will be said for her at Carmel Mission Basilica on Monday August 22nd at 12:00 in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel. Donations can be made in her name to the UCSF Willed Body Program, Dept of Anatomy School of Medicine, AC 14, San Francisco, Ca. 94143-0902.

City of Carmel-by-the-Sea 2011 Board & Commission Vacancies

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is soliciting applications to fill six vacancies on City Boards & Commissions for terms ending on September 30, 2011.

COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES AND CULTURAL COMMISSION: One (1) vacancy.

The Community Activities and Cultural Commission consists of five members. A two-thirds majority of the Commission must reside in the City, and the remainder may be residents of the City's Sphere of Influence. Applicants should have an interest in, or familiarity with, the creative or performing arts and those who have an interest in, or familiarity with, the City's park and recreational programs and in the various City park facilities.

POLICE LOG

revealed that his license was suspended. The driver was cited and the vehicle was towed.

Big Sur: Following a road rage incident, two drivers collided with one another. One driver proceeded to ram the other's vehicle. Shortly thereafter, the second driver exited his vehicle, picked up a large stone, and threw it at the first driver. The rock missed its mark and instead struck the pillar that separates the driver's door and windshield.

Big Sur: Reporting party lost GPS tracking signal with a hiker in Big Sur and became concerned. A state parks officer found the hiker, who had just arrived back to her car.

Carmel Valley: Man reported several items were taken from his home about a year ago, while his apartment unit was being renovated.

Carmel Valley: Resident reported an unknown juvenile tried to open his front door. The juvenile advised he was looking for a friend's home.

Carmel Valley: Juvenile was counseled for his disrespectful attitude toward his mother.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CPD units assisted in locating a vehicle which was parked in the business district (bank parking lot).

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance dispatched to Flanders Drive for a male who had fallen and had right hip pain. Patient transported Code 2 to CHOMP.

Pacific Grove: City employee reported suspected marijuana plant near a bench along the recreation trail. When police arrived, they found a 4.5-foot-tall suspected marijuana plant lying on its side beneath a bench. The plant was transported to the police department, cut from the root base and then placed into evidence drying locker for dehydration and destruction.

Pacific Grove: Male sent $600 to a female in Ukraine. Apparent Internet scam.

Carmel Valley: Woman reported an argument with her son. No crime occurred.

Carmel Valley: Resident requested a welfare check on her neighbor. Deputies found the subject was not suicidal, and no crime occurred.

Big Sur: Two cousins were involved in a physical altercation.

THURSDAY, JULY 7

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person found a wallet on the onramp of Highway 1 at Munras Avenue. The wallet was brought to Carmel PD for safe-keeping pending owner notification. PGPD was contacted to attempt to locate owner of the wallet, who was a Pacific Grove resident. At approximately 1514 hours, owner of the lost property came in to claim the said property. Property returned to its rightful owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suspect attempted to pass a forged and fraudulent check. Tellers noted the forgery and contacted the police. The suspect fled but left his ID behind.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported a problem with a neighbor's dog on Santa Rita. Approximately a week ago, the dog escaped from the owner's yard and ended up at the resident's front gate barking at her. This incident was not reported. Recently, a second incident occurred in which the same dog escaped from the owner's yard and came up to the resident while she was in her parked vehicle. The resident is concerned that the dog may bite her and would like the dog owner contacted. The dog owner was later contacted and advised of the incident, and a warning was given.

Pebble Beach: Ambulance dispatched to Portola Road for a male with difficulty breathing, with complaint of chest pain. Patient transported Code 2 to CHOMP.

Pacific Grove: Items of jewelry stolen from a safe at a residential care home on Sinex. Case pending further investigation.

Pacific Grove: Resident returned home to see an old white truck leaving her driveway with two unknown males inside. When she went inside her house, she noticed it was ransacked. Area checked with negative results. Property taken estimated at $16,000.

Pacific Grove: Parking enforcement officer was flagged down on Lighthouse and 19th. Officer advised of U.S. currency on the ground. U.S. currency brought to station.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to a verbal dispute where parties were separated. When officers arrived to Ninth Street, both males said they had gotten into a verbal argument that turned physical when one pulled a toy gun out on the other. Both parties declined medical, and neither wanted to press charges on the other. Toy gun collected and placed into evidence.

Carmel Valley: Juvenile reported being touched inappropriately by another juvenile. Case under investigation.

FRIDAY, JULY 8

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported receiving calls from a blocked number to her cell phone. Today she inadvertently answered a call from a blocked number, and the male caller asked when they could meet. The caller did not identify himself to the owner of the phone. Coincidentally, a male subject was parked in the area where she was walking; the male subject appeared to be talking on his phone. It is unknown if the male in the vehicle was the caller on the person's phone.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man reported to have purchased nine gift cards from an Ocean Avenue business in the amount of $499. He also purchased several gift cards from Northridge Mall earlier in day. He was contacted by Capitola Police at determined to be unemployed and using several credit cards in his name to purchase gift cards and thereby obtain the 5 percent cash-back reward from the purchases because both he and his wife were currently unemployed. There is no victim of any crime at this time. Even though the activity is odd and suspicious, there is no crime at this time.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man was concerned his estranged wife may leave the country with their two children without obtaining prior written permission per their civil child custody court order. A welfare check was conducted, and all parties were accounted for.

Pacific Grove: Forest Park Court homeowners reported their house was egged overnight, resulting in a broken window. No suspects.

Pacific Grove: Victim on Grove Acre reported her vehicle moonroof window had been smashed. No other damage and no sign of attempted entry to vehicle.

Pacific Grove: Grove Acre resident contacted officer to report an attempted burglary of her apartment that occurred about one month ago. A tool/pry mark was noted on the front door and door jamb. Victim did not originally report attempted break-in because nothing was taken, but then changed her mind.

Pacific Grove: Resident on Laurel Avenue reported unknown persons took construction tools and a bicycle.

Pacific Grove: Unknown male called female and made explicit comments. Phone trap requested.

Pacific Grove: Pine Avenue resident reported her grandson failed to return. After contacting several of his friends, he called his grandmother and gave his location of where to pick him up.

Carmel Valley: Person requested a welfare check on an elderly person at Via Petra/Carmel Valley Road. Person suspected possible elder abuse. Elder person appeared to be in good physical health.

Pebble Beach: A contractor hired to cut the brush along Shepherds Knoll and Scenic Drive in Pebble Beach located nine potted marijuana plants. The plants were confiscated for destruction.

Pebble Beach: The victim reported her residence at Mission Road and Sloat had been burglarized. The suspects took several small electronic items and jewelry.

Carmel area: Person reported that a business check in the amount of $9,795 that was sent to Canada was intercepted via U.S. Mail. The check was altered and cashed in another state.

SATURDAY, JULY 9

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Responded to a Dolores Street resident who has seen a small cat around her home during the past two months. The cat also attempted to jump into an open window. Based on the information, the cat was caught and scanned for a microchip. It was soon transported to MCAS. Later, an owner was located, and the cat was returned.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer responded to a report of a dog continuously barking. Upon arrival, officer heard and located three dogs in a fenced yard. Officer stood by in the area and witnessed a violation from just one of the dogs. No one was at the residence and a courtesy notice was left at the front gate. A neighbor contacted the officer and advised that there are normally two dogs at the residence, and they do not bark. Later, it was learned that a family member was visiting with his dog, and a warning was given.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A part-time resident on Lincoln Street reported a raccoon attack against his two dogs. On July 7 at approximately 0530 hours the resident allowed his two dogs to go outside into the backyard. With the resident present, a large raccoon jumped onto one of the dogs. The owner separated the raccoon and sustained a scratch. The raccoon then attacked the second dog. The resident separated the raccoon from the second dog and was then able to take his dogs inside his home. The attacking raccoon remained on scene, and a younger raccoon was later seen in a tree. The dogs were taken to a veterinarian for care and will be quarantined at his primary home. The dog owner contacted a wildlife service to check the yard, and wildlife preventative information was provided to him.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two dogs were involved in an altercation. One dog suffered an approximate 2-inch cut on its neck. Dog taken to local vet for care. Owner reported bite. Skin not broken and only small mark seen.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: And employee was terminated from the business and then made a verbal threat. Documentation for information purposes only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: An off-duty police officer was chased by a dog while riding his bike on Ridgewood. The dog was not under voice command from the owner. The owner had been previously warned numerous times for the same issue. The owner was cited per appropriate municipal code.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subsequent to a traffic stop on Junipero, a 26-year-old male driver was found to be DUI and was arrested. He provided a breath sample and was lodged at MPD until sober.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CPD unit responded to a report of a deceased cat. The cat was located off the shoulder of the roadway; cause of death unknown. Owner information acquired via microchip.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine received a phone call for a dog bite at the parking lot Ocean and Scenic. Firefighters radioed FireComm while responding about the call. Arrived on scene and found the patient with a police officer.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A police officer came to fire station with the information for a lift assist on Casanova. Responded Code 2. The front of the house was locked; entry made into the house by a back door. CPD arrived with a key just after firefighters had made entry into the home. The woman was sitting next to her bed. She had no complaint of pain other than being an "old woman." Crews did a secondary survey and found no injuries. The woman was lifted to her feet, and she climbed into bed. She soon got out of her bed and started walking around her home with no problems. The woman signed a medical release saying she did not believe that a medical problem existed. Secured the door and returned to quarters.

Pacific Grove: Man claimed son assaulted him. He wanted son placed on 5150 hold. Son did not meet criteria. Son's doctor later placed hold on him, and was transported to the hospital.

Pacific Grove: A 44-year-old male driver was contacted on David Avenue during a traffic enforcement stop. Driver was found to be intoxicated and was arrested. Driver posted bail and was released.

Pacific Grove: A 29-year-old male driver was contacted during a traffic enforcement stop on Prescott. Driver found to be intoxicated and was arrested. Driver was booked and released after posting bail.

Pacific Grove: A 21-year-old male suspect stole food from a store at Country Club Gate, ran from police and resisted arrest. He was booked for burglary and resisting arrest, and was transported to county jail on $10,000 bail.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to unlawful fishing on Ocean View Boulevard. Four males, ages 39, 59, 40 and 38, cited and provided informational fliers regarding the marine pre-

Where are the jobs?

Dear Editor,

Who knew the persistent unemployment problem could so easily be solved by just short sheeting unemployment checks? I totally get your logic (editorial, July 15) that when the money runs out people will run after the money, no matter how little it is. And boredom is such a great motivator to get a low-paying job. After all, most people's criteria for a job are just to have a place to go each day and park their car. Never mind that the job doesn't pay for gas or pay their rent or pay their mortgage or pay their health insurance or pay for their food or pay for their kids' education.

After all, that's why people go on unemployment, because what they're really looking for is a way to move down in the job market. Those lower-paying unemployment checks are just the first step in the process of getting used to making less. It makes perfect sense that they don't want to let boredom derail that financial opportunity.

Thanks for revealing how to get America back to work. But I do have one big question: Where are all those jobs?

Michael LePage, Carmel

Stop the transit center

Dear Editor,

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted 4-1 (Jane Parker dissenting) to allow the cutting of 4,000 oaks and the destruction of acres of wildlife habitat on Fort Ord land zoned open space so that development can take place there. This would call for spot zoning — a practice frowned on by responsible governmental agencies. There is an alternate site for MST to build its transit yard. It is a "shovel ready" site at the Marina airport. Infrastructure is already in place at this location. Petitions are being circulated to force a referendum on this unfortunate decision. If readers need information about where to sign the petition, they can call me at (831) 626-1610 or go to www.foru.us. Readers are encouraged to take action today.

A 'scary dilemma'

Dear Editor,

An article by Kelly Nix in the July 15 Pine Cone correctly stated that the Pacific Grove Citizens' Pension Reform Initiative limits the city's contribution to 10 percent of an employee's salary.

However, more importantly, it also limits the city's liability to that 10 percent. If money is lost by CalPERS, the city does not bear the loss.

Pacific Grove's pension fund should have about $100 million to be fully funded. Since 2002, CalPERS has lost about $50 million of that sum, and $35 million of that deficit compounds at 7.75 percent annually, forever. The city attorney and the city manager don't have a clue about how to advise the council, and my suggestions scare the heck out of them. It is, in fact, a scary dilemma.

John M. Moore, Pacific Grove

My furry friend

Dear Editor,

Kee, a white calico cat, came to my garden every day, for about 3 years.

She would take walks with me on Line Road in Pacific Grove. I thought she was from the neighborhood and on her own. There were several stray cats up and down the Line.

Kee and I moved to Carmel, off Carpenter, about two montes ago. Last Friday night, the police found her body. She had been hit by a car. I had put up signs and called the police station.

The important part of this story is that I was then told that she had a microchip. I was very surprised, as I did not know that she had been owned by someone in P.G. The only way I could have known was to have her scanned by the veterinarian or by the police. I would not have moved her from Pacific Grove if I had known to check. I did try to contact the person on the microchip, but the number had been disconnected, and when I went to the house, it looked empty. I will also try the post office to see if the person has moved. I feel bad that I did not know, because I would not want someone else to go through wondering what happened to Kee. I am sharing this information in hopes that we can make sure that our special furry friends are considered, for they may have more history than we know.

I am grateful that Kee chose me to enjoy the wonderful time we had together.

Cris Morgan, Carmel
