CHS faces Palma in football game for the ages

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE HIGH-Flying Carmel High School football team takes on Salinas powerhouse Palma School Saturday at Monterey Peninsula College for the Central Coast Section Division IV championship.

With anticipation building for the big game, Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud and Salinas Mayor Dennis Donohue met in Devendorf Park Thursday, where they traded friendly barbs and challenged each other to make a wager on the game.

If Palma loses, McCloud suggested that Donohue dress up as Carmel High's mascot, "Padre Bob," at the next Salinas City Council meeting.

Instead of asking McCloud, a Carmel High graduate, what she would be willing to do if the Padres lose, Donohue upped the ante.

"We are prepared, in the event that the unthinkable happens and Palma doesn't prevail, to fly the Carmel High flag at Salinas City Hall — below, the American flag, which will be flown at half mast," joked Donohue,

Collins pleads not guilty to all charges

■ He's struggling to pay for legal defense, attorney says

By KELLY NIX

THE FORMER county water board director charged with violating state conflict-of-interest laws for his involvement in the $400 million regional water project, and with cheating an employer by submitting phony bills, pleaded not guilty to more than 30 felonies Wednesday in a Salinas courtroom.

Steve Collins is charged with two felonies for allegedly accepting about $160,000 as a consultant for the water project the same time he was on the board of directors of the Monterey County Water Resources Agency, one of the project's partners. Collins is also facing 31 counts of felony grand theft for billing Ocean Mist Farms for advisory work he didn't perform.

After the brief court hearing Wednesday, in which Collins' attorney, Michael Lawrence, entered the not-guilty plea for his client, Lawrence told The Pine Cone outside the courtroom that Collins, an accountant, is "struggling mightily" to pay for his defense.

"He is moving forward as best he can," he said. "But it's a tremendous weight to bear to support his wife and family."

Though Collins is working on various projects — which Lawrence noted have nothing to do with water or agriculture — Lawrence said all of Collins' jobs are based out of the area. His local business has dried up.

Accused snail poachers say they didn't do it

By KELLY NIX

TWO WOMEN who were cited by Pacific Grove police and later charged with illegally taking more than 1,000 sea snails from P.G. tide pools appeared in a Salinas courtroom this week.

Yanli Li and Jing Yang, both from Fremont, were ticketed in May by Pacific Grove Police Sgt. Jeff Fenton for taking up to 40 pounds of black turban snails after he found the mollusks stuffed in buckets inside their van.

"They were going to eat them," Fenton told The Pine Cone. "The preferred method is boiling them with salt."

Though the quarter-size, algae-eating snails are considered a delicacy in certain parts of Asia, it's a misdemeanor to take them from protected areas within the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary.

After being cited, the women were charged in July by the Monterey County District Attorney's Office for snail thievery. Li was charged with two misdemeanors involving illegal possession of marine life and Yang was charged with four misdemeanors related to the unlawful taking of marine life, according to assistant district attorney, Terry Spitz.

Highlands condo catches fire

By MARY SCHLEY

THE ROOF of a pricey condo at the Highlands Inn caught fire Wednesday night, but firefighters managed to confine the blaze before it spread enough to cause extensive damage, Cal Fire Operations Chief Jude Acosta told The Pine Cone.

A neighbor in the area of Highlands Drive and Pine Way saw the flames and smoke coming from the nearby wood-shake rooftop at around 8 p.m. Nov. 30 and dialed 911. With a station just down the road, the Carmel Highlands Fire engine was the first to arrive and discovered a 10-foot-by-10-foot patch of roof burning adjacent to a chimney, according to Acosta, who was the incident commander.

Ten condos evacuated

Some 25 firefighters from the Highlands and neighboring fire departments attacked the blaze from the roof of the 18,000-square-foot condo complex and inside the burning unit, where they broke through sheetrock in the ceiling to reach flames in the attic. Monterey County Sheriff's deputies evacuated tenants from the 10 neighboring condominiums,

WITH A front row seat to one of rock 'n' roll's defining moments — the Monterey Pop Festival of 1967 — Tom O'Neal picked the perfect time and place to launch a career as a fine art photographer.

O'Neal, a Carmel Valley resident whose candid black and white images offer a fascinating look at the faces behind the soundtrack to the Summer of Love, unveils a collection of his work Saturday, Dec. 3, at Mountainsong Galleries.

"I was just a young photographer caught up in the music," said O'Neal of the unique opportunity he had. "It was an incredibly fresh and exciting time."

In the year that preceded the festival, San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury neighborhood became the epicenter of a countercultural explosion that transformed popular music. After two years of the British Invasion and the legions of mop-tops it inspired, the world was ready for

Judge doesn't see 'irreparable harm' in one night of dinners

■ Allows P.G. golf course clubhouse to launch extended hours

By KELLY NIX and PAUL MILLER

A PACIFIC Grove resident vehemently opposed to keeping the Pacific Grove golf course restaurant open until 10 p.m. has filed a lawsuit to prevent the city from extending the hours, and even asked for an emergency restraining order to prevent dinner from being served at the clubhouse one night this week.

In a suit filed Monday, John Troth contends the city violated its own laws, the existing permit for the clubhouse and the California Environmental Quality Act when the council voted Nov. 16 to allow the Pt. Pinos Grill to remain open into the evening during a 120-day test period.

The city contends the extended hours — until 10 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, from a previous closing time of sunset — would allow it to determine the impacts of keeping the grill open at night.

But even on a temporary basis, the expanded hours are illegal, said Troth's attorney, David C. Sweigert, at a hearing Wednesday. The restaurant was scheduled to begin the later hours Dec. 1, but Sweigert asked the judge to forbid the restaurant to stay open until 10 p.m. for even one night, and he expressed contempt for the city's argument that expanding the clubhouse hours for a few months was a legitimate way to find out what harm it might do.

"The idea that this is for testing purposes is a com-

Artful Dogger

WHEN HIS daughter decided he needed a dog, he agreed, as long as she found one "as old and as tired as he is."

Artie is a mixture of Pomeranian and something precious, which makes him look like a little fox. At 14, he likes to sleep away the day. But he also perks up with the kind of personality that suggests he can be quite entertaining.

Artie once tried out for a part in Peter Pan, playing at Carmel's Forest Theater. But by all reports, he had a "lousy audition." Captain Hook was supposed to have a darling little dog lounging in his lap. Perhaps it was the hook or maybe the crocodile reclining just out of reach, but Artie wanted no part of it.

Although he lost his chance for stardom, Artie does write a monthly column in the Doggy Gazette. Called "Show Biz," it features whatever is up and coming in local theater, from a pup's perspective.

And he does have his own dramatic tale. A rescue out of the San Francisco Bay Area, Artie came to Carmel after his elderly master tumbled down a flight of stairs. The little dog ended up at the SPCA until a Pomeranian rescue organization pulled him out and promoted him online, where his person's daughter discovered him.

A rather mellow fellow, Artie remains cool and calm as long as his schedule stays the same. Otherwise, he is liable to whine. The day dawns with a simple breakfast, continues with cuddling on the couch and ends with his daily constitutional. He enjoys the beach, as long as he can see it from a distance, preferably from the path on Scenic Road. He seems intrigued by the ocean but doesn't like the sensation of sand beneath his feet. Artie may not perform onstage, but he is definitely a diva.

WTC steel en route for 9/11 memorial

By MARY SCHLEY

AFTER LEARNING chunks of steel from the World Trade Center were available to towns across the country — and then hearing that Carmel had missed its chance to get one — a local woman decided to take on the task herself, and has apparently succeeded.

Lifelong Carmel resident CarrieAnn (who only uses one name), said she has often wanted a place in town to honor the events of that day.

Six weeks ago, she began writing letters to New York officials and other contacts in an effort to claim a 1-foot-by-1-foot piece of steel that could serve as a memorial. Initially, she was told it was too late, as the allocations had already been made.

"Then I got a call from New York on my cell phone," she recalled. "And he said, 'I don't know who you talked to, but we got a call from the N.Y. Fire commissioner himself that we're supposed to give you your steel.'"

The call from Lee Lelpi, a retired FDNY firefighter whose son, Jonathan, was also a firefighter and died in the World Trade Center attacks, moved her to tears, she said. She learned another FDNY man, Cark Scheetz, would be cutting the piece of steel that will make its way from New York City to Carmel.

The journey

Details of how the steel will get to Carmel, and where and how it will be displayed once it's here, are still up in the air, but CarrieAnn is hoping for a process that will in itself be significant. She would like to have the piece encased with a GPS and handed off from fire department to fire department and police department to police department during the 3,000-mile trip across the country, so people can log onto a website to track its progress and she can document the trip in a book. She has selected a site, www.carmel911memorial.us, which is under construction.

CarrieAnn envisions the steel sitting on a base made out of Carmel stone or granite that represents the two towers, which were by far the most striking part of the Manhattan skyline during the roughly three decades between their construction and destruction.

"This is about the remembrance, and it's going to be a teaching tool," she said. "It's not going to be a war memorial."

It might involve some sort of sculpture, too.

"I want to make this a beautiful, positive, historical thing. It's a national honor to have this," she said. Some have suggested holding contests for school kids to write a poem that could be read at the dedication, and she's considering holding a competition among Carmel artists for a bronze sculpture that could "hold the precious steel on the memorial."

"We have options, and I look forward to watching the progress," she said. "It's something that needs to be treated with honor and respect. I want it placed within a loving environment where anyone who wants to feel this and touch it and get resolution can do so."

Several other California cities have memorials in recognition of 9/11, and CarrieAnn said it's appropriate for Carmel, as well. The city is home to members of the military, and everyone's lives were irreversibly changed that day.

"This is not only for Carmel, but for our hundreds of thousands of visitors each year — it will be a destination," she said. "I am only sad that it has taken over 10 years to start, but good things are worth waiting for."

She encouraged anyone interested in participating in the effort to email info@carmel911memorial.us.

FIRE THAT DESTROYED JACKS PEAK HOME BLAMED ON FAULTY HEATER

By MARY SCHLEY

WHEN VIEJO Road resident Donna Reid ran out of her burning home the evening of Nov. 21, she was surprised to find she was still holding the plate containing her dinner. Fortunately, she had grabbed her cell phone and purse, too.

"I looked at my hand, and I still had my plate of food. I thought, 'What the hell is this?' I think there were two spare ribs on it," recalled Reid, whose family home burned to the ground in the quick-burning blaze now being blamed on a faulty propane heater. "And I had a rug over my arm. God knows why I did that."

Staying in a Monterey hotel this week, Reid shared her account of the tragedy.

"I came home and turned on the heater," she said. "I never leave the heater on when I'm not home — I don't think that's prudent."

She then went into the kitchen, where she spent about 10 minutes heating her food before returning to the room where the heater was located. At that moment, she said, "I heard a 'poof,' and the fire was pouring out of the front of the propane heater. I threw a blanket over the vent, and it just went, 'whoosh,' so I grabbed my cell phone and my purse."

A defect in a propane heater is suspected of causing the fire that destroyed this Viejo Road home last week.

Safely outside, she dialed 911. Her neighbor, George, who had installed the heater for her in April and therefore knew where the connection to the propane was located some distance from the home, rushed to turn it off, according to Reid.

While he was out of sight, she walked around the front of the home, just as it burst into flames.

"I thought, 'Holy st, I hope George isn't dead!'" she remembered. But he reappeared unharmed — and then he urged her to walk up her long driveway to the road to make sure the fire engines could find them.

Reid speculated the fire crews summoned from Cypress Fire Protection District, Monterey Airport and the City of Monterey could never have gotten there in time to save the house, even if the driveway had been shorter and the nearest hydrant hadn't been 2,000 feet away — both issues cited by firefighters as hampering their efforts to get the blaze quenched quickly.

More than two dozen firefighters worked to keep the blaze from spreading, while deputies from the Monterey County Sheriff's Office evacuated nearby homes. They got the fire out in about an hour and then spent another five or six salvaging what they could, surveying the damage, cleaning up, investigating and ensuring no spot fires had reignited.

The house, which had been built more than 60 years ago, was a total loss.

"It was a pretty bad tragedy, because that home was built for my grandparents," Reid said.

The property was insured through Matt Little at Carmel Insurance (a firm she said she was "very proud and very happy" to have working on her behalf), and the cause has been identified as "a manufacturer's defect" in the heater, according to Reid. Cal Fire investigator Richard Lopez is handling the incident.

There are only 22 more real estate shopping days 'til Christmas, and we don't care if you've been naughty or nice.

Police seeking leads in Coach break-in

By MARY SCHLEY

A CRIME lab is still processing fingerprints taken off a window at the Coach store on Ocean Avenue that was burglarized three weeks ago, and Carmel police are also waiting to learn exactly what was taken during the nighttime break in — and how much it was worth — Sgt. Paul Tomasi said Wednesday.

During a brazen and quick burglary just after 11:30 p.m. Nov. 9, someone broke the glass in a door on the store's San Carlos Street side and walked in.

"It's a glass door, a wood frame with glass, so they just shattered it and walked right through the hole," Tomasi explained. "We don't know how they shattered it; we didn't see anything that would let us know how it was broken."

They burglarized the store even as pedestrians walked in the area and police had stopped a driver feet away just moments earlier, according to Tomasi.

"People were still out and around," he said. "And it's very strange, because we were on a traffic stop minutes before right there at Ocean and San Carlos."

The break-in triggered a silent alarm, but while the alarm company was notifying the police department of the activation, and the dispatcher was sending officers to investigate, "they just swooped in and stole some stuff," he said.

By the time the cops arrived, the thieves were gone.

While the initial report indicated only three handbags worth a total of about $1,000 were stolen, further investigation revealed 18 items were in fact taken, but detailed descriptions and values have yet to be provided by officials at the store, according to Tomasi.

As for the fingerprints, they are at the crime lab awaiting processing.

"They were on one of the windows," he said. "We don't know if they belong to the suspects or not."

More protests planned for Pine Inn over health premiums

By MARY SCHLEY

THE HOTEL workers union will hold another protest in downtown Carmel Friday, Dec. 9, at 4:30 p.m. The housekeepers, laundresses, bellhops and receptionists from the Pine Inn and nearby Tally-Ho Inn, who are represented by UNITE HERE Local 483, are protesting the loss of free health-insurance coverage for the 28 employees and their families, union spokesman Mark Weller said.

The inns' owner, Richard Gunner, has been paying the full cost of insurance, without any employee contributions, but their contract expired Dec. 31, 2010, and negotiations for a new agreement have stalled over the issue of medical coverage. While they are without a contract, Gunner is required to honor the provisions of the prior agreement, and is therefore continuing to pay for all medical coverage.

Hotel general manager John Lloyd has said workers need to start contributing for their own health insurance for the inns to remain competitive, and he pointed out they are the only hotels in town with union representation. He has said the offered contract "provides for better benefits and conditions of employment than those received by any other hotel employees in Carmel."

Weller said workers are not striking — instead, they are using their off-work hours to carry picket signs outside the inns, both of which are located in the area of Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde. "The Pine Inn workers continue to work and protest in the form of leafleting, picketing and marching only when off work, at this point," he said.

Heritage society hosts annual inns tour

THE CARMEL Heritage Society will present its annual Inns of Distinction Tour Sunday, Dec. 4, when eight of the city's most beautiful lodging places, bedecked in holiday decorations, will open their doors to the public for perusal of guest rooms and grounds while tempting their taste buds with food and wine.

Each venue will host a winery and a restaurant. This year's lineup is:

- Carmel Country Inn with Figge Cellars and PortaBella;
- the Vagabonds House Inn with Christopher's on Lincoln and J. Lohr;
- The Carriage House with Mundaka and Aiena Wines;
- the Wayside with The Grill on Ocean Avenue and Cima Collina;
- the Cypress Inn with its own Terry's

- Lounge and Heller Estate Wines;
- the Pine Inn with its own Il Fornaio and Southern Latitudes wine shop;
- the Carmel Tradewinds with Bruno's Deli and Ventana wines; and
- the Horizon Inn with Flaherty's and Chateau Julien.

For the ticket price of $25 in advance or $30 the day of the tour, each guest will have the opportunity to win an overnight stay and dinner for two at each location. Drawings will be done at the end of the tour. Winners need not be present.

The tour serves as a major fundraiser for the Carmel Heritage Society, which is "dedicated to the preservation of Carmel's rich cultural heritage." For information and tickets, call (831) 624-4447 or visit www.carmelheritage.org.

P.G. mayor running for Assembly; councilman will try to succeed her

By KELLY NIX

AFTER TWO years as mayor of Pacific Grove, Carmelita Garcia this week announced her candidacy for the California Assembly in 2012.

Garcia, a Democrat, said she has filed paperwork for her bid for the 29th Assembly District, a redrawn area that encompasses most of Santa Cruz County, coastal Monterey County and parts of Santa Clara County, including the cities of Carmel and Monterey.

Bill Monning, who represents the Monterey Peninsula in the Assembly now, is running for the State Senate.

Meanwhile, the mayoral seat Garcia will vacate in November 2012 has already drawn interest; Pacific Grove City Councilman Dan Miller told The Pine Cone Wednesday he'll run for the spot.

In announcing her candidacy, Garcia said,

Carolina Garcia

"It's time for a new leadership and an honest discussion of our state's priorities." Among her concerns is the state's education system, which has seen drastic cuts.

"Without a new direction," she said, "California's public education system will continue to head for serious problems at all levels, as evidenced by repeated cuts to K-12 and skyrocketing UC and CSU tuition. We must invest in education, and we must do it now."

Garcia, a paralegal who has served as Pacific Grove mayor since 2009, said her "candidacy is about fixing problems and getting results."

"I have experience as a mayor cleaning up a budget and returning it to good fiscal health," she said. "In Sacramento, I would bring real-world values to solve the state's problems."

Garcia took over as mayor after after winning a coin toss when the six-member city council couldn't come up with the four required votes to select a mayor after Dan Cort resigned. The coin flip occurred at Pacific Grove City Hall after the council was split 3-3 between her and councilman Bill Kampe.

If elected to Assembly, Garcia, who supports term limits for politicians in Sacramento, said she would limit her stay in the Legislature to no more than three terms.

"I want to bring resolution to real problems in Sacramento, versus spending my time there scheming to move up the political ladder," she said.

Garcia's announcement comes on the heels of another by Santa Cruz County Supervisor and California Coastal Commissioner Mark Stone, who announced Nov. 21 he would run for Assembly.

Also this week, Miller said he would run

City tree to be lit Friday, open houses before and after

By MARY SCHLEY

AN ABUNDANCE of holiday celebrations will begin at Sunset Center Friday, Dec. 2, when it hosts an open house at 2 p.m., complete with food, drink and activities for kids. The Park Branch of Harrison Memorial Library will also welcome patrons at 3 p.m. for holiday treats.

The crowds will then gather at Devendorf Park for the city's traditional tree-lighting ceremony at 4:30 p.m.

That event will begin with Santa Claus arriving on a Carmel fire engine, and the Carmel Middle School Chorus, Junipero Serra School Kids, Jacqui Hope and Myles Williams will all perform carols and music.

Pacific Repertory Theatre executive director Stephen Moorer will recite "Twas the Night Before Christmas," and the Monterey Bay Area Chapter of the American Red Cross will provide treats and drinks.

Mayor Sue McCloud will light the tree at approximately 5:30 p.m.

But it won't end there, as the party will move to Carmel Plaza, which will host its annual holiday open house from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Steve Ezzo and Neal Banks will play live tunes, and Bistro Beaujolais and Carmel Coffee & Cocoa Bar will provide food and drink. Santa will be there, too. Plaza management is requesting guests bring nonperishable items to donate to the Food Bank for Monterey County at the Plaza, located across Ocean Avenue from Devendorf Park.

Also following the tree lighting, Carmel Presbyterian Church will present its Living Nativity, an annual live presentation of the infant Jesus in the manger, being adored by his parents, angels, wise men and shepherds. Church members and their families take turns dressing and acting in the nativity scene.

"The parents who don these costumes are usually very happy that the scene has no speaking parts," said Helen d'Oliveira. "They are also usually quite surprised at how spiritually moving the experience has been for them and their family."

Church volunteers will provide hot cider, home-baked cookies and appetizers, and the choir will be singing carols in the sanctuary.

Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth, Harrison Memorial Library is at Mission and Sixth and Devendorf Park, Carmel Plaza and Carmel Presbyterian Church are all located at Junipero and Ocean.

Barnyard's tree lighting, festival Dec. 3

THE BARNYARD shopping center will host its annual Holiday Festival and Tree Lighting Saturday, Dec. 3, from 3 to 6 p.m. In addition to providing free fun for the family, the event will benefit the Food Bank for Monterey County via a food drive and silent auction.

Throughout the afternoon and early evening, Barnyard restaurants will provide small bites and warm drinks, and chef Andre Lengacher of Lugano Swiss Bistro will present a cooking demonstration. Santa will be there to listen to kids' wish lists and pose for photos, while the crew of Cypress Fire Protection District's Rio Road station will allow them to explore a fire engine. Local choirs will sing holiday carols beginning at 3:30.

Merchants in the center will also showcase arts and crafts, and will participate in a holiday window contest in which attendees will vote for their favorites. The winning store will receive a party at Allegro's gourmet pizzeria.

The festivities will conclude with the lighting of the tree — and the rest of the Barnyard — and organizers hope most people will stick around for dinner in one of the shopping center's many restaurants.

For more information, call Brian Martini at (831) 624-8886 or visit www.thebarnyard.com.

Big Sur history focus of foundation talk Dec. 7

AUTHOR PETER Gray Scott and Rebecca Post will discuss "Where the Road Begins: The Saga of Big Sur's Pioneer Families," at The Carmel Foundation Wednesday, Dec. 7, at 2:30 p.m. in Diment Hall at Eighth and Lincoln.

"There are many books written about Big Sur, but none covers the history of its landscape and community like Scott's," according to organizers.

The book contemplates Big Sur's transition from a remote, rugged area populated by homesteaders, to a top tourist destination made accessible by coastal Highway 1, which was built in the 1930s.

The story is told through the history of the Post family, from the first ancestor who immigrated to North America in 1634, through Bill Post's generation.

The result of 15 years of research, interviews and exploration conducted by Scott, the book covers the Puritan and Esselen cultures, the California Missions, historic Monterey, road and highway construction, the hippie invasion, the coastal commission, the politics of the '70s, and current challenges facing the coast. Photos from the family archives illustrate much of the book.

For more information about the foundation, which provides low-cost meals, low-cost housing, classes, transportation and other services to members age 55 and older, contact development director Linda Lee at (831) 620-8701. www.carmelfoundation.org

SPCA sets record for adoptions

THE SPCA for Monterey County set new local records when it found new homes for 86 animals during its Black Friday adoption special last week.

From Nov. 25 to 27, the SPCA found homes for 31 dogs, 19 cats, 18 kittens, seven puppies, six rabbits, three exotic birds and two chickens. Salinas Animal Services, which participated in the event, adopted 10 pets.

On Monday, Salinas Animal Service called the SPCA with news that a Salinas resident had to surrender 26 dogs and puppies and that it didn't have the space. But because of the weekend's adoption event, the SPCA was able to take the Chihuahua, terrier and Yorkie dogs and puppies, which range from 3 weeks old to 3 years old. Fourteen of the dogs are now available for adoption.

The SPCA is at 1002 Monterey-Salinas Highway, across from Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca. Call (831) 373-2631 or go to www.spcamc.org.

which Cal Fire spokesman Jonathan Pangburn said have a total value of more than $12 million.

Crews extinguished the fire by 8:20 p.m., and the flames and smoke caused an estimated $20,000 in damage to the roof, ceiling and wall of the condo, according to Acosta, but there wasn't much in the way of water damage. The building contains fire sprinklers, but they did not activate, since the fire and smoke remained above them.

While the damaged condo was not habitable, other tenants were allowed back into their units about an hour later, according to Acosta. No one was injured.

"There were no complications, and everyone worked well together, so it was a good, quick knockdown," he said, adding that the fire hydrant they used was nearby and reliable.

He attributed the successful outcome to the time of evening and the observant neighbor who alerted authorities to the blaze.

"If it had been at 3 a.m., it would have been a whole different story," he said.

The cause of the fire remains under investigation, but Acosta speculated a burning object might have come out of the chimney and ignited the wood shakes adjacent to it. The condo units share chimneys, and one of the tenants had a fire burning that night.

Cops, firefighters collect toys

THE CRIME Prevention Officers Association of Monterey County and Monterey County Regional Fire District are collecting toys for needy kids again this holiday season.

Last year, donors to the CPOAMC's drive ensured more than 1,200 kids received toys at Christmastime, and organizers hope to top that number this year.

New, unwrapped toys can be donated at Seaside P.D., 400 Harcourt Ave.; PGPD, 580 Pine Ave.; Sand City P.D., 1 Sylvan Park.; Carmel P.D., Junipero and Fourth.; Monterey P.D., 351 Madison St.; Del Rey Oaks P.D., 650 Canyon del Rey.; and Walgreen's at 416 Alvarado St. in Monterey and 1055 Fremont Blvd. in Seaside.

And in Carmel Valley, the Monterey County Regional Fire District is attempting to collect as many toys and donations as possible for the Kinship Center, a foster care and adoption agency in Salinas.

To contribute to the MCRFD drive, drop off new, unwrapped toys through Dec. 24 at the station at 26 Via Contenta in Carmel Valley Village, the mid-valley station at 8455 Carmel Valley Road or the station at the base of Los Laureles Grade at Highway 68.

LEGENDS

something new — and that turned out to be a hybrid of rock 'n' roll that was louder, longer and more colorful than anything that preceded it.

Just 24 at the time, O'Neal was drawn to the new sound and traveled north to San Francisco to watch the Jefferson Airplane, Janis Joplin, the Grateful Dead and others perform at Bill Graham's legendary Fillmore Auditorium.

And then, shortly before the Monterey Pop Festival, O'Neal visited a record shop in Carmel. While thumbing through its merchandise, he looked at an album cover by the Mamas and the Papas and saw his future.

"This is what I'm going to do," O'Neal said to himself. "I'm going to make album covers."

When the three-day festival arrived in Monterey, O'Neal was there with his camera. And while he captured striking images of the Airplane, Joplin, the Dead and others, he missed out on taking what could have been his most famous photograph.

"I was so shocked when Jimi Hendrix set his guitar on fire that I missed taking a photo of it," O'Neal conceded. "I didn't have the killer instinct."

But while 'rock 'n' roll' immortality may have eluded O'Neal in 1967, who was known as Tom Gundelfinger at the time, it crossed his path again two years later when he was offered an opportunity to shoot an album cover for a new group called Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young.

"Stephen Stills had always been interested in the Civil War era," O'Neal explained. "He loved tintypes, and he wanted me to create one."

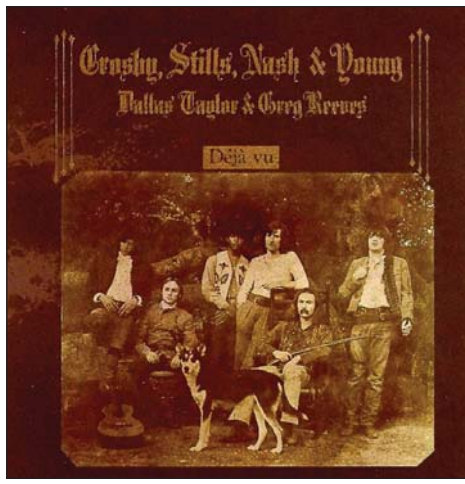

The photograph that landed on the cover of the landmark "Dejá Vu" record was shot beneath the spreading branches of an oak tree in the yard of a house David Crosby was renting in Marin County. O'Neal assembled the musicians, who had to remain motionless for two minutes while he created the "antique" image. Despite the effort, he couldn't get the contrast he needed.

Thankfully, O'Neal took a few shots with his 35mm camera as a backup plan. Using a photographic technique from the 1850s, he was able to print the negative onto a piece of fiber board, which he later exposed to the sun. The trick worked — and "Dejá Vu" had its famous cover photo.

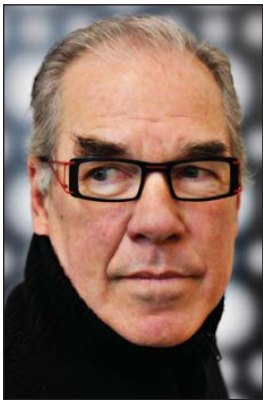

"I'm immensely proud of being part of the album," O'Neal said. "It's an iconic album that represents that era in such a beautiful way."

In addition to creating the cover art for "Dejá Vu," O'Neal worked for many other aspiring musical acts from 1967 to 1974. He created artwork for more than 80 album covers and took countless publicity stills. While many of his subjects barely dented the pop charts, others were just beginning their ascents to pop stardom. One such act was a singer-songwriter named Joni Mitchell.

"I met her at [Ventana Inn founder] Larry Spector's house in Coldwater Canyon," O'Neal recalled. "She had pretty much finished recording her first album, but nobody knew who she was. After the photo session, she asked me if I'd like to hear her new record. We sat in the living room, and she sang me the entire album. By the second song, I put the camera down and tears were streaming down my face. Talk about an 'Oh, God,' moment. I was transfixed. I felt like I was a boy and she was an old soul. I never met anyone like her."

O'Neal photographed many musical legends during the era, including Mick Jagger ("We met one-on-one"), B.B. King ("He was the perfect Southern gentleman") and Jim Morrison, the unpredictable Doors singer, whom O'Neal described as "courteous" and "down to earth." Meanwhile, the photographer's confidence in working with rock superstars was growing.

"They are putting themselves in your hands," added O'Neal, who recently opened a studio in Monterey's Ryan Ranch. "They're putting their trust in you. If you're intimidated, you're going to lose that trust. You have to own the moment."

Mountainsong Galleries hosts a public reception for O'Neal at 7 p.m. Two private receptions will be held at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. For more details, call (831) 626-0600. The gallery is located on the south side of Ocean between Mission and San Carlos. For more information, visit www.mountainsongalleries.com.

SMUIN BALLET IS BACK WITH ANOTHER WILD TAKE ON CHRISTMAS

By CHRIS COUNTS

PAYING TRIBUTE to the holiday season and offering its usual array of surprises, Smuin Ballet returns to Sunset Center Dec. 2-3.

The unconventional San Francisco-based dance company — which debuted in 1994 — presents its annual Christmas ballet, which this year features world premieres from Smuin Ballet's choreographer-in-residence Amy Seiwert and Emmy Award-winning choreographer Robert Sund.

The first part of the evening's festivities, "Classical Christmas," showcases several favorites from the late choreographer Michael Smuin, including a solo piece set to a traditional song from Spain, "La Virgen Lava Pañales." The founder of Smuin Ballet, he died in 2007.

"Classical Christmas" will also include Seiwert's new piece, which is set to Mannheim Steamroller's medley of "Patapan/God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," two more Seiwert originals (set to "Carol of the Bells" and "Sleigh Ride"), as well as a klezmer dance that features a pretty maiden "courted by leaping yarmulke-capped suitors."

The second half of the ballet, "Cool Christmas," offers a more unrestrained take on the holidays and features a serenade by Elvis, "Sugar Rum Cherries," dancing Christmas trees, a getaway to "Christmas Island" and the debut of Sund's new work, which is set to gospel singer Mahalia Jackson's recording of "Oh, Holy Night."

The staging of its yearly Christmas Ballet is a highlight for its members.

"One of my favorite times of the year is getting together with the team to decide what to include in each year's Christmas ballet," said Celia Fushille, who serves as Smuin Ballet's executive and artist director. "Everyone — the dancers, the staff, the audience, — has his or her favorites and we love revisiting all the wonderful dances Michael created. Additionally, I'm thrilled to introduce new work in 'the Christmas ballet.' It's like adding new ornaments to the tree. This year it has been an honor and a treat to work with Robert Sund again, who has created a gospel-flavored world premiere for us, and our own Amy Seiwert has developed a gorgeous solo piece as well."

Friday's performance starts at 8 p.m., while Saturday's show begins at 2 p.m. Tickets are $55 to $65. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For more information, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

Donors who bring a new, unwrapped toy to the box office will receive 25 percent off every ticket purchased for the Dec. 2 performance by Smuin Ballet. Santa Claus, meanwhile, will make an appearance in the Sunset Center lobby following the Dec. 3 show.

Famous for stretching the boundaries of its genre, Smuin Ballet returns to Sunset Center Dec. 2-3.

Wake the Dead pays tribute to Jerry Garcia — with a Celtic twist

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE MUSIC of the Emerald Isle meets the psychedelic '60s when Wake the Dead performs Sunday, Dec. 4, at Chautauqua Hall in Pacific Grove.

The band — which bills itself as the world's only "Celtic All-Star Grateful Dead Jam Band" — features Danny Carnahan on vocals, fiddle and octave mandolin, Sylvia Herold on vocals and guitar, Sylvia Herold on vocals and guitar, Paul Kotapish on vocals and mandolin, Kevin Carr on uilleann pipes and fiddle, Cindy Browne on bass, Maureen Brennan on Irish harp and Brian Rice on percussion.

Wake the Dead got its start 12 years ago in Berkeley when three musical friends — Carnahan, Kotapish and Brennan — got together and realized that each had experimented with playing Celtic-inspired versions of the Grateful Dead's music.

"We sat around one Saturday night and played," Carnahan recalled. "After about two hours, we had enough material for an album."

After inviting a couple friends to join the new band, they dashed off a demo to Arista Records.

"Two days later, we got a call saying they wanted to put us on the label and warm up for [Grateful Dead vocalist] Bob Weir," Carnahan continued. "I said, 'We better start learning this stuff.'"

Over the next 12 years, Wake the Dead not only recorded three albums of Grateful Dead covers, but they got a chance to meet most of their musical heroes. "We ended up playing with just about everybody in the band," Carnahan said. "They were unbelievably kind and welcoming to us. We even played at the wedding of Bob Weir's daughter, Cassidy."

Sadly, though, guitarist and vocalist Jerry Garcia passed away four years before Wake the Dead ever played a note. "I think Jerry would have liked what we do," Carnahan added.

In addition to playing the music of the Grateful Dead, the band covers a mix of material from the late 1960s, including songs by the Jefferson Airplane ("White Rabbit"), Buffalo Springfield ("Bluebird"), the Youngbloods ("Get Together") and other bands of the era.

Chautauqua Hall is located at 162 16th St. Tickets are $20 in advance and $22 at the Green in the kitchen, gingerbread and grapevines, truffle treats and hog heaven

By MARY SCHLEY

FRUITS, VEGETABLES and flowers flourish in nutrient-rich soil, and Preferred Properties owner Carol Crandall has started a new side business focusing on two ways people can ensure their gardens are healthy and their kitchens scraps aren't going to the landfill: vermiculture and composting.

Awhile back, she met a woman who used worm castings in her garden, much to the benefit of the vegetables and flowers growing there, and Crandall decided to give it a try, so she bought a worm bin, order some worms from an online supplier, and started feeding the earthworms the odds and ends she accumulated during cooking.

"When I got home, I purchased a bin and became addicted to the concept: Feed your leftovers to the worms, and they give you really expensive organic fertilizer — free!" she reported. "It is amazing what I don't throw away. There is something satisfying about feeding the worms rather than putting unused food in the trash."

The square worm bins, which have stackable plastic perforated trays and a drain at the bottom, don't take up much space in a shady spot in the garden, and worms thrive in their moist environment, slowly feeding off of fruit and vegetable scraps, used coffee filters, shredded newspaper and other organic matter. They are very low maintenance, needing food every week or two.

Crandall also endorses Bokashi composting, which involves breaking down organic waste, even bones and meats, through fast fermentation in a closed container.

"Both of them don't smell, need little maintenance and don't attract raccoons or rodents," she said. "It is a great gift for gardeners, the green conscious or kids, especially since it is also educational for them."

She became so enthralled that she launched a website, www.wormgals.com, extolling the virtues of vermiculture and Bokashi composting, and offering information and products for both — including live earthworms.

baked salmon with dijon aioli, seasonal vegetables, prime rib and ham, and Bananas Foster flambé. Local vineyards will donate the wine.

"The people who come to this dinner are local chefs, MPC students, Rancho Cielo students, and purveyors who sell us food — friends of our organization," explained Paul Lee, an MPC culinary teacher and ACF member who is heading the effort.

Because Rancho Cielo serves kids who are often entangled in the criminal justice system or are disadvantaged, guests with more financial resources are asked to consider sponsoring their attendance that night. Rancho Cielo, located in the Salinas Valley, has a culinary school called the Drummond Academy, which seeks to teach students marketable skills in the hospitality industry, and the ACF and chef Bert Cutino are strong supporters of its programs.

"They don't exactly have a lot of experience being diners, so we want them to experience this," Lee said. "They get to work at plenty of events throughout the course of the year, but that's not the focus of this one."

To learn more, including how to sponsor a student for the $35-per-person dinner, visit www.montereybaychef.org. Late RSVPs can be made to Lee until Dec. 4 by calling (831) 915-9357.

Wild Thyme to go

Terry Teplitzky's Wild Thyme Deli and Café in Marina has jumped on the gourmet-holiday-meals-to-go bandwagon by offering a wide range of dishes for small gatherings and crowds, alike.

Christmas dinner for a party of 10, at $350 plus tax, or dinner for two at $68 plus tax, would include a Salinas Valley greens salad with spiced pecans, dried cranberries, bleu cheese crumbles and orange balsamic vinaigrette; herb-encrusted prime rib of beef with horseradish crème and jus; rosemary-garlic bread pudding, au gratin potatoes and traditional green bean casserole topped with crispy onions; fresh rolls; and gingerbread trifle with mascarpone cream, candied cranberries and kumquats.

A similar feast featuring pineapple-mustard-glazed ham instead of prime rib is $240 for 10 or $50 for two, plus tax.

To order by Dec. 22, call (831) 884-2414. Wild Thyme Deli and Café is located at 445 Reservation Road in Marina. www.wildthymedeli.com

Truffle treasures

Marinus Restaurant at Bernardus Lodge will be the site of the 15th annual Truffle Dinner — an indulgent, decadent culinary homage to the coveted black and white truffles of Italy and France — when chef Cal Stamenov teams up with chef Levi Mezick of Restaurant 1833 Friday, Dec. 9.

Stamenov, a creative and precise chef, combines local ingredients with the exotic truffles in every course, starting with hors d'oeuvres and his famous black truffle martini. Each year, he invites a worthy chef to partner with him for the truffle dinner, and past efforts have included David Kinch of Manresa, Douglas Keane of Cyrus, Traci des Jardines of Jardiniere and Nancy Oakes of Boulevard, among others. Before coming to work for the Coastal Luxury Management team at its newest venture in Monterey, Mezick worked for some of the country's biggest names in the restaurant world: Daniel Boulud, Thomas Keller and Michel Richard.

The evening will begin with a 6:30 reception, followed by a six-course dinner, with wine, at 7. The cost to attend is $500 per person, plus tax and tip. Bernardus Lodge is located at 415 Carmel Valley Road at Los Laureles Grade. Call (831) 658-3550.

More pig worship

The tribute to pork continues, Italian style, at Cantinetta Luca on Dolores south of Ocean Friday, Dec. 9. Chef/partner Jason Balestrieri will present La Maialata: Celebration of the Pig by offering a hog-centric menu of antipasti, soups, sides, first courses and entrées.

Antipasti, for instance, will incorporate various types of sausage and cured meats, while onion soup will include smoked ham, a warm spinach salad will be dressed with pancetta vinaigrette, and pizzas will be topped with pepperoni, salami, prosciutto and guanciale.

In addition to Spaghetti alla Carbonara, pasta offerings will be ravioli with braised pork cheek and chanterelle mushrooms, chestnut rigatoni with wild boar sausage and porcini mushrooms, and risotto with black truffle and Cotechnio sausage, to name a few.

Pork chops, roasted pork loin and belly, breaded pork cutlets, pork Porterhouse steaks and braised pork shoulder will appear in main dishes that night, and pig will even appear in contorni — side dishes — like Brussels sprouts (with pancetta), roasted potatoes (with cracklings), polenta (with mortadella al tartufo) and broccolini (with Calabrese salami).

Everything is priced a la carte. For reservations or information, call (831) 625-6500.

Pint-sized paintings, religious art and C.V. fair

By CHRIS COUNTS

JUST IN time for gift-giving season, the Carmel Art Association unveils its annual Miniature & Small Painting show Saturday, Dec. 3.

A tradition at the CAA since 1927, the fundraising exhibit will showcase hundreds of pieces of art created in a wide variety of mediums, styles and subject matter.

For CAA member Stan Robbins, the exhibit allows him to flex his creative muscles.

"It's a relaxed, end-of-the-year thing," said Robbins of opportunity to place his work in the exhibit. "I pump out a bunch of things I've been mulling about all year. It's a chance to test out ideas."

In contrast to some local miniature shows, the work in the CAA exhibit can be gift-wrapped at a moment's notice.

"There's no bidding or raffle," member CAA Pamela Takagawa explained. "When you see something you like, you can take it with you. There's no waiting, no guessing and no hoping. There's only instant gratification."

Robbins, meanwhile, marveled at the talent on display in the show. "We have maybe the best gallery for local artists in the country," he added.

Also, The Salvation Army will be accepting toys (new and unwrapped), clothing (sweaters and jackets for children of all ages) and non-perishable food items at the gallery through Dec. 15.

The CAA will present a reception and a Holiday Open House Saturday from 6 to 8 p.m. The exhibit will be on display until Jan. 3. The gallery is located on the west side of Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. For more information, call (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmelart.org.

Religious images inspire art show

An exhibit of reverse glass paintings by artist Katherine Moore will open Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Butterfly and Lantern Gallery in Pacific Grove.

"The reverse glass process is mysterious and yields results that are often surprising to me," explains Moore, who lives in Monterey. "I am fascinated with the question, 'What makes an image sacred, and how do we identify an image as spiritual or religious?' I started with butterflies and hummingbirds, which are sacred to me, and that somehow led me to images of Krishna, Mary, and Jesus."

Rick Chelew, Kevin Gould and Elise Leavy will play music at the reception, which begins at 7 p.m. Chelew and Gould are members of the Cachagua Playboys, while Leavy was recently featured as part of the Pacific Grove Art Center's "Wine, Women and Song" benefit concert.

The gallery is located across the street from Grove Market at 225 Forest Ave. The exhibit will be on display until Christmas. For more information, call (831) 655-0303.

C.V. community center offers art fair

The Artisans' Marketplace returns to the Carmel Valley Community Center Saturday, Dec. 3, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., offering holiday gift buyers a bounty of possibilities.

"This is our third year, and we have a great group of artists," said Sally Snyder. "We are looking forward to another fun and festive event."

The display will feature paintings, jewelry, wearable art, alpaca products and more. Vendors include Carmel Lavender Company, Lyn Whiting, Ron Rice, Sally Snyder and Joe Snyder. The park is located at 24 Ford Road about 12 miles east of Highway 1.

Spa unveils group exhibit

Aqua Wellness Day Spa in Pacific Grove, which offers massages, body scrubs, facials and a host of other services, is getting in the gallery business.

The day spa presents a reception Saturday, Dec 3, from 6 to 9 p.m. for the opening of a group exhibit by three local artists — painter Nonae, photographer Miriam Grebe and multimedia artist Sophie Stewart.

"We've only been open two months," spa owner Patricia Branum said. "I saw Nonae's work and said, 'That would look great in our space.'"

One thing led to another, and Branum is now launching her first art exhibit.

The spa is located at 1199 Forest Ave. For more information, call (831) 643-2782 or visit www.aquawellness-dayspa.com.

CHAMPIONSHIP

who was flanked by the school's honorary bagpiper.

And to commemorate Salinas Valley's reputation as "The Salad Bowl of America," Donohue said he's also willing to toss in a salad — for every Carmel resident.

After the summit in the park, McCloud was asked what Carmel is willing to give up if the Padres lose Saturday.

"Mayor Donohue needs to come up with a suggestion," said McCloud, who was sporting a 1957 CHS letterman's sweater and accompanied by several Carmel High cheerleaders. "We came up with 'Padre Bob.' The onus is on him."

It was pointed out to McCloud that the bet was never finalized. "In typical political fashion, a lot is unclear," she slyly added.

While McCloud played coy, Camille Kolles, the outgoing executive director of the Bach Festival, offered up a prize for the winning team: a chance to hear its school song conveyed by at next year's Bach Festival.

To get to the title game, Carmel High (12-0) used a fourth quarter surge last Friday to knock Monte Vista Christian School (10-2) out of the playoffs. The game was played at Pacific Grove High School.

Monte Vista Christian, which is located in Watsonville, jumped out to a lead when quarterback Taylor Cohan hit Austin Daich for a 78-yard touchdown just 12 seconds into the game. The Mustangs made the 2-point conversion as well.

The Padres quickly battled back. Capping an 11-play drive, quarterback Devin Pearson threw the first of his three touchdown passes on the night, and a see-saw battle began.

Coming into the final quarter, Carmel High held a 31-21 lead. Not ready to surrender, the Mustangs offense reached the end zone twice in the fourth period, but the Padres kicked their offense into overdrive and put an astonishing 28 points on the scoreboard to seal the win and advance to the title game.

Against a solid Monte Vista Christian team, Pearson had one of the most impressive games of his memorable Carmel High career. In addition to throwing for three scores, he ran for three touchdowns. The Mission Trail Athletic League's Most Valuable Player, Pearson gained 201 yards in the air and 138 yards on the ground.

In 2009, the Padres won their first Central Coast Section Division IV crown by defeating Menlo School 56-35. Last year, Carmel High lost to Scared Heart School of Atherton, 39-32, in the championship game.

Against Palma (10-1-1) — which they haven't faced since 1997 — the Padres will have their hands full. The Chieftains easily dispatched their opponent in the semi-final game, Sacred Heart School, 34-7. Since 1989, Palma has won 10 CCS titles.

"It will take our best performance of the year," said CHS head coach Golden Anderson of his team's chances. "This is the time of year when all the teams are playing extremely well. It will come down to which team executes better over 48 minutes."

The game was originally scheduled in Pacific Grove High's recently renovated stadium but was moved to MPC's 4,000-seat stadium to accommodate a larger crowd. Advance tickets are sold out, but some will be sold at the gate.

The game starts at 7 p.m.

Nonagenarian victim of robbery

A MUGGER pushed a 93-year-old Carmel Valley woman to the ground and stole her purse Tuesday night as she looked for her dentist's office on Carmel Rancho Boulevard, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Cmdr. Lisa Nash.

Carol Honeyman, who lives at Carmel Valley Manor, had decided to find out where the office was in advance of an upcoming appointment, Nash said. She found it and had just gotten out of her car when two men, whom the victim described as white, thin in build and in their 20s, confronted her.

"One of the males shoved her and took her purse," she said. Instead of notifying authorities then, she drove home and called her son. Medical staff at the manor checked her out, according to Nash, who reported she had a scraped leg and complaints of pain.

The crime wasn't reported to the sheriff's office until just before 9 a.m. Nov. 30, and there are no leads in the case, yet. The purse-snatchers got the woman's credit cards, driver's license and $150 in cash.

Condor researcher dies when tree falls

A WILDLIFE biologist who worked with condors, Mike Tyner, was killed in Big Sur Nov. 30 when high winds caused a tree to fall on him. Tyner served as field supervisor for the Ventana Wilderness Society's condor recovery program.

"This loss is catastrophic, heartbreaking, and painful," said Kelly Sorenson, the executive director for the VWS. "As our staff mourns the passing of a remarkable friend, our hearts go out to his family."

"Over and over, our staff here just kept saying what a terrific person Mike was," recalled Jesse Grantham, Condor Recovery Program Coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Mike will be dearly missed by all who knew him and his positive impacts on Big Sur's natural beauty will live on through the condors," added Joe Burnett, the condor project coordinator for the VWS. "I'm almost sure he's up there soaring with them now."

"Having lived in Pacific Grove my entire life and having served on the planning commission and city council," Miller said, "I believe I am qualified and know the issues."

Miller, the brother of Monterey County Sheriff Scott Miller, said he wants to tackle the longterm financial health of the city by finding ways to cut costs and increase revenue. "Under the current system, every county, city and even the state will find itself flirting with bankruptcy," Miller said.

SNAILS

Both women, who pleaded not guilty to the charges in September, were in a Salinas courtroom Wednesday for routine procedures related to the case. They have yet to go to trial.

Operation Stolen Snails unfolded May 30 at about 5:30 p.m. when Fenton was dispatched to a report of people taking marine life from tide pools in the area of Ocean View and Asilomar boulevards. When he arrived, a motorist flagged him down and pointed to a van parked in a turnout.

As soon as Fenton pulled up to the vehicle, one of the women closed the back of the van.

"So I walk over and let them know why I'm contacting them," Fenton recalled. "And they are dead quiet. They don't say a word."

After Fenton asked to take a look in their vehicle, a male who was with the women began speaking to them in a mix of English and Chinese. Li and Yang eventually opened up the van, Fenton said.

"And I look in, and I can see pounds and pounds of snails," he recalled. "They had them in plastic bags inside buckets."

Though Fenton said the California Department of Fish and Game usually handles cases where marine life has been taken, local fish and game officers that day were unavailable. Fenton took the case, which included tallying how many snails were in the buckets. "I estimated there were 20 to 40 pounds — over 1,000 snails," he said.

When the women started talking, Fenton said, one admitted to taking the snails while the other said she didn't understand her Miranda Rights.

In the end, Fenton said both women were cited. Before they were released, both of them denied knowing it was wrong to take sea life from tide pools.

"They claimed the didn't know it was illegal," he said. "They were 10 feet away from the [warning] signs that says they can't take anything."

The man with them maintained he wasn't involved at all. "He claimed he didn't do anything and was listening to music in the car," Fenton said.

The Pacific Grove Marine Gardens State Conservation Area — where the women were cited — is one of four small protected areas on the Peninsula. In that area, fish and game only allows taking fin fish with a hook and line for recreational uses.

"There are so many different violations for taking marine life," Fenton explained. "Each part of the sanctuary has a different name and different fish and game code that protects it."

After he was done citing the women, Fenton said he returned the snails to nearby tide pools. "I don't know how many survived and how many didn't," he said.

The snails were turban snails (tegula funebris), which resemble the headwear of their name and are found on the Pacific Coast from British Columbia to Baja. Hermit crabs often occupy the shells of dead turban snails, which can live up to 25 years.

Spitz said the penalty for fish and game violations range from six to 12 months in county jail, but defendants usually end up paying a large fine and avoid time behind bars.

Editorial

Here we go again

CARMEL HAS Melanie Billig, and now Pacific Grove has John Troth — two people intent on imposing their will on their neighbors, democracy be damned.

Billig's contempt for majority rule is famous, of course. She's determined to stop the City of Carmel from selling Flanders Mansion, no matter how many times the city council and the citizenry vote to get rid of it.

Thanks to utterly misguided state laws, any individual, if he's determined enough and can hire enough lawyers, has the ability to thwart decisions of local government that don't suit him. Billig has exploited this power to the max, leaving anger and frustration in her wake, not to mention big legal bills for taxpayers as they try to implement ordinary and reasonable decisions about what should be done with their own unused property.

As regular readers of this newspaper are aware, Billig has resorted to ridiculous and self-contradictory arguments to get her way — first demanding an election to determine the fate of Flanders Mansion, and then insisting the election be ignored because it didn't turn out the way she wanted it to.

Instead of condemning this sort of contemptuous behavior, the courts actually encourage it. So it's easy to see why Troth's lawyer didn't feel the slightest bit of embarrassment at making a ridiculous argument in court Wednesday.

The Pacific Grove City Council voted 5-2 a couple of weeks ago to let the restaurant at the city's golf course stay open until 10 p.m. three days a week on a temporary basis to see if the extended hours are a good idea, or whether they'll disrupt the neighborhood with noise, traffic and drunken revelry.

Troth, who owns a home across the street, wants the clubhouse to close at dusk, as it has done for years. Being opposed to the extended hours — even on a temporary basis — he hired lawyers to make his case to the city council, which is the appropriate venue. But when Troth lost, he sued, arguing that the city council's decision was illegal. That suit should never have been filed, of course. Golf course clubhouse hours are a purely local matter; unless he can prove gross malfeasance, nobody should ask the courts to overturn a city council's determination about what they should be. In fact, you shouldn't be allowed in the front door of the courthouse seeking to overturn any decision reached by a majority vote of elected officials just because you disagree with it.

But Troth doesn't see things that way. To him, as with many activists, the courts are simply another inviting place to make a stand. And since they're billing $300 an hour or so, attorneys are always happy to encourage them.

Thus, David Sweigert, representing Troth, stood in front of a Monterey County Superior Court judge this week and very earnestly presented an argument that the P.G. golf course clubhouse mustn't be allowed to stay open until 10 p.m. for even one night because Troth would be "irreparably harmed" if it were. And when the judge, instead of laughing out loud, asked him what that damage might be, Sweigert answered, "the community's faith in the government."

We'll tell you what erodes the community's faith in their government: When the courts are used for laughably ridiculous purposes.

Troth, and Sweigert, should feel ashamed.

To a very callous person

Dear Editor,

To the person who hit my car on Junipero between Fourth and Fifth, around Nov. 21 or 22, I guess you didn't have paper or a pen/pencil to leave me a note. I also guess that since it was a nice car (2000 Audi A4), you thought I was rich and had insurance (you probably don't have any), and that it wouldn't be a big deal for me to get the damage repaired.

Well, here's a news flash ... I work really, really hard and save my money. It took me a long time to save for that car, so, no, I'm not rich.

Another news flash: The ABS system in the car is in need of replacement ($700); the catalytic converter is also in need of repair ($800); one of the rear windows is broken and I can't lower it, which also needs to be repaired ($300). I've got a $1,000 deductible for insurance, which I wasn't saving for.

So, Mr./Mrs./Ms., go ahead and hit a car and don't leave a note or consider what other people are going through to make ends meet. Merry Christmas.

Cindi Lopez-Frincke, Carmel

And to a really generous one

Dear Editor,

At this time of year, when giving is such an integral part of our American culture, I would like to give thanks and acknowledge one of Carmel's biggest givers, someone who gives without asking for anything in return.

Linda Perry from the Carmel Coffee House donates coffee and all the accoutrements to Carmel High School on a weekly basis so special education students can sell the coffee to teachers at our school.

The students are learning important life skills, such as how to greet and treat customers, how to count money and give change, and how to run a business.

Linda was made aware of the program from her husband, Don Perry, who is a campus supervisor and advocate for all students. Without hesitating, Linda asked what she could do to help the students out.

Last year, six enterprising students made enough money during "Math and Physics Day" to take a trip to Great America. The students enjoyed a fun-filled day with admission and all meals paid for from the proceeds of the Coffee Club.

The "Math and Physics Day" is an annual

■ Choral group turns 30

Led by Sal Ferrantelli — who has served as conductor for the chorus since its inception — i Cantori di Carmel celebrates its 30th anniversary Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3-4, with a concert at the Carmel Mission Basilica. The theme of the concert, “Come Let Us Unite in Song,” is the title of a composition written by Ferrantelli to commemorate the occasion. The event will also pay tribute to him.

“Sal knows that educating also needs moments of comic relief, so in between serious stretches of rehearsing pitch, diction, meter and musicianship, he will often tell hilarious stories involving his Uncle Vinnie or his piano-bar entertainer days,” said Elizabeth Behrans-Nagle, a longtime member of the chorus. “He is a kick, but he is also totally devoted to the music.”

The evening’s program includes music by Vivaldi, Bach, Brahms, Handel and 20th century composer, John Rutter. A selection of medieval Christmas carols will also be sung.

The concert starts at 6 p.m. and a reception follows the performance. Tickets are $20 for general admission and $25 for reserved seating in the first eight rows. Tickets are available at Pilgrim’s Way bookstore (on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth), the Bookmark (307 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove) and Luminata Books and Gifts (631 Cass St. in Monterey). Tickets are also available online at www.icantori.com and may be available at the door as well. For more information, call (831) 644-8012.

■ Piano trio pays tribute to trio of composers

The works of Haydn, Dvorak and Beethoven will be featured when one of the world’s most acclaimed piano trios, the Gryphon Trio, takes the stage Friday, Dec. 2, at All Saints ’Church.

Formed in 1993, the Toronto, Canada, ensemble includes Annalee Patipatanon on violin, Roman Borys on cello and Jamie Parker on piano.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. The church is located at Dolores and Ninth. Tickets are $30 for adults and $10 for students. For more information, call (831) 625-9938 or visit www.carmelmusic.org.

CLUBHOUSE

plete fabrication,” Sweigert told Monterey County Superior Court Judge Kay Kingsley. “It is a ruse that somebody came up with to circumvent the legally required procedures.”

He said the idea of launching a project on a temporary basis to test its environmental impacts was “audacious” and compared it to building a oil refinery and operating it for 120 days without a permit to see what happened.

Troth owns a house on Asilomar Boulevard across the street from the clubhouse parking lot. While he and his wife, Linda, no longer live in the home, they are concerned that a bunch of late-night noise and traffic will diminish property values and harm the neighborhood.

“He has always been concerned about the impacts of the clubhouse expansion, and relied on the permit conditions that its hours would be limited to golf-related events during golfing hours,” said John Bridges, who is also representing Troth.

But Pacific Grove city attorney David Laredo said the city was making every effort to prevent the later golf-course hours from being a disruption.

“The concern at the city council was, ‘How could the impacts be assessed without real-time data,’” Laredo said in court. “The council looked at this as a test.”

He also told Kingsley that the legal requirement for issuing an emergency order blocking the extended hours from going into effect was that not doing so would result in “irreparable harm” to Troth that could not be compensated later by monetary damages. And while he did not see how Troth could claim to suffer such harm from one night of people enjoying themselves across the street from his house, he said the operator of the restaurant, Dory Ford, would be directly harmed if he were forced to cancel.

“Reservations have been made and food has been prepared,” Laredo said. “There would be a loss [by Ford] if the order were granted today.”

Kingsley seemed to agree, noting that the clubhouse is already open until 8 p.m. in the summer months.

“You could have a Christmas party in the neighborhood that would have the same magnitude of harm to the plaintiff,” she told Sweigert. “Do we really need to stop what’s happening tomorrow?”

“One could argue that we should let one night of activity go forward,” Sweigert acknowledged. “But, apart from the harm that will result in a general trend of disturbance in the neighborhood, what’s at stake is a larger irreparable harm in the community’s faith in government.”

“I’m not denying that you haven’t raised some issues,” Kingsley responded. “But I don’t go along with the idea that letting one night of dinners go forward will cause irreparable harm to the plaintiff.”

She allowed the later hours to go into effect and scheduled another hearing for Friday at 1:30 p.m. to determine if a second night of dinners, and subsequent nights, will be allowed.

‘Immediate economic benefit’

According to Troth’s suit, the City of Pacific Grove adopted the urgency ordinance letting the clubhouse hours be extended “without complying with the legally required procedures for amending conditions of conditional use permits or for otherwise allowing changes in use on the property.”

Troth furthermore alleged in his complaint that the city’s “actual purpose” to extend the restaurant’s hours was a pretext for the “immediate economic benefit of the city” and Ford, owner of Aqua Terra Culinary.

“Simply stated, the current litigation is premature,” Laredo said. “It is unfortunate that an individual — who describes himself in his [lawsuit] as a person ‘who owns and intermittently occupies’ property in Pacific Grove — has chosen such an expensive process to attempt to impose his will upon the community.”

The restaurant has received favorable reviews under Ford. But a few months ago, he declined to sign an extended lease over concerns the restaurant couldn’t be open late enough for him to turn a profit since the business wasn’t permitted to be open for dinner and events such as wedding receptions.

The city’s idea to extend the hours, it maintains, is to determine patterns of use, patron preferences and impacts to the neighborhood so the data can be reviewed by the city’s planning commission, which is set to consider amending the grill’s use permit in February 2012.

Because of the later hours, though, Troth contends he and others will be “adversely affected” and “will suffer the adverse environmental effects,” including “an increase in noise, traffic, disturbances to wildlife, and litter.”

At the Nov. 16 meeting, Sweigert sent a six-page letter to the council arguing the then-proposed ordinance didn’t qualify as an emergency and would violate CEQA. Sweigert claimed such an ordinance “would not survive a legal challenge.” However, Laredo assured the council it had the power to approve the ordinance, which he said is considered “minor temporary activity” similarly afforded to other city events such as Good Old Days, the Big Sur Half Marathon and the Monday farmers’ market.

Rain: Nature’s sprinkler system.

Let the savings rain down.

Shorter days, cooler temperatures, and the rainy season decrease the amount of water your plants need. Take this opportunity to look at where you can save a little more by limiting water use outside of the home. One of the best ways to reduce water usage in the fall is to limit watering in your yard. Turn off your sprinklers and use a hose with a nozzle to water your yard during warmer weather. You’ll save money and save water, while keeping your plants healthy and green.

California American Water is here to help you conserve. We offer free water saving devices to use in your yard, including hose nozzles, at our office at 511 Forest Lodge Road, Suite 100, Pacific Grove, CA 93950 or the MPWMD office at 5 Harris Court, Building G, Monterey, CA 93940.

Una de las mejores formas de reducir el consumo de agua en el otoño es limitar el riego en su jardín. Apague sus aspersores y utilice una manguera con boquilla para regar su jardín durante los días más calurosos.

As the weather changes, we can all do a little more to change the way we use water.

COLLINS

"His client base has been reduced to zero as a result of all the publicity," Lawrence said.

Lawrence also reiterated Collins' contention that county officials, including supervisors Dave Potter, Lou Calcagno and former county water agency GM Curtis Weeks, urged him to take on the dual role of water board director and consultant and assured him there would be no conflict — a charge the Fair Political Practices Commission is also investigating.

"Mr. Collins was recruited by government officials to be a paid consultant for the regional project, and he was assured by them he had no conflict," Lawrence said. "And we know this is true because he passed a poly-graph" test.

Lawrence maintained the truth would come out during the trial and that those same officials would not be able "to hide behind confidentiality clauses or claims of government privilege."

During his client's trial, Lawrence also said he plans to tell jurors about Collins' long-standing relationship with Ocean Mist, which began when Collins was working for a large Salinas Valley accounting firm.

"He was assigned to Ocean Mist, and they liked him so much, they kept him on," Lawrence explained. "Within the course of a very few years, he was up to the No. 2 position in the [Ocean Mist] organization as chief financial officer."

About 10 years ago, though, Collins opted to resign as CFO, since there was little possibility for further advancement in the family-run company, Lawrence said.

"They didn't want to lose him," he explained, "so they said, 'OK, but we would like you to stay on as a consultant.'"

Ocean Mist hired Collins, insisting he work from an office in the company building. The Castroville-based company also asked Collins to agree to not work for any of its competitors.

"Until earlier this year, he still had an office there and was consulting," Lawrence said.

Prosecutors have also charged Collins with six misdemeanors, alleging he billed Ocean Mist for attending a half-dozen meetings that he did not attend or that never occurred.

If he's convicted of the charges, Collins, who his attorneys say has no previous criminal record and a history of community service, could spend years in prison.

However, Lawrence said Collins, who is free on his own recognizance, remains optimistic he will be vindicated.

"He is pretty confident about the eventual outcome of this case," Lawrence said, "but it's going to be a long, hard struggle."

Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"

There's an old joke in real estate which says the three most important things are: location, location, location. Actually there's a fourth: timing. That's where one of Carmel's earliest entrepreneurs blew it. He was about 100 years ahead of his time, at least 50. His name was S.J. DUCK-WORTH; he was 23 years old, operated a real estate agency in Monterey; and he had a vision! Observing the success of Pacific Grove in selling lots for Protestant camp meetings, he reasoned that he could create a Catholic resort in Carmel near The Mission. So in 1886 he bought 234 acres on the northern slope of Carmel from Honore Escolle (an earlier and more timely investor), and in 1888 issued a brochure promoting his property. " Near Mission" in south, 1st St. on the north, Monterey St. on the east and "Broadway" on the west. The Latter later became Junipero! He predicted that Southern Pacific would extend its line from P.G. to Pebble Beach to the Mission within 2 Years. This didn't happen (still hasn't), so although he sold some lots (at $25 for a corner, $20 for an inside lot), the project languished and he had to sell out to others. Too much, too soon. Just unlucky. Do you realize we might be living in "Duckworth Shores"?

CBDMR launches toy drive

COLDWELL BANKER Del Monte Realty has kicked off its annual drive to support the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve's Toys for Tots program.

Founded in 1947, Toys for Tots has evolved from a small Los Angeles-area project to a nationwide campaign. Over the past 64 years, Marines have distributed more than 400 million toys to some 188 million needy children across the nation.

"We are looking forward to another wonderful year supporting the Toys for Tots program," said Rita Lewis, vice president and managing broker of Coldwell Banker Del Monte Realty. "It has been incredibly rewarding to help bring smiles to the faces of so many children over the past 25 years and we hope to continue this holiday tradition for many more to come."

Individuals interested in donating a new, unwrapped toy to the Toys for Tots program may do so at one of the following local Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage offices:

- Junipero near Fifth in downtown Carmel-by-the-Sea;
- 3775 Via Nona Marie at the mouth of Carmel Valley;
- The Lodge at Pebble Beach, and
- 501 Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove.

Donations will be accepted until Dec. 16. Members of the United States Marine Corps Reserve will pick up the toys from each CBDMR collection center and deliver them to charitable organizations and social welfare agencies in the area just in time for the holidays.

Office Exclusive...

Iconic. Maybe Carmel's largest home. Maybe not. But it's certainly in the running. "Beachside" elegance. Stops traffic. Three bedrooms.... or more. En suite baths and more. Room for a crowd. Man-cave to swoon over. NE corner Carmelo & 13th. 11,000 sf parcel. Wine cellar. Foodie kitchen. Historically significant. $7,995,000.
