Water district protest notices drawing fire

By KELLY NIX

A MAILING sent last week to local property owners laid out the procedure for objecting to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's proposed user fee, leading critics of the fee to complain the district is making it too difficult to register a protest.

The fee, which would be about $50 a year for a typical single-family home — but much more for businesses and apartment buildings — will go into effect unless more than 50 percent of property owners protest it by June 12.

"They have intentionally made it difficult for you to respond to their proposed tax, which they are calling a 'fee,'" says an ad the Monterey County Association of Realtors ran this week in The Pine Cone and the Monterey County Herald.

To protest the fee, a property owner must write his own letter and include a protest statement, his name, the street address or assessor's parcel number of his property, an original signature and "legibly printed" name of the owner who is submitting the protest. He may also have to prove he owns

Lots of competition for Burnett's council seat

By MARY SCHLEY

TEN PEOPLE — many of them familiar to those who frequent city hall — applied to fill the city council vacancy left by Jason Burnett when he was sworn in as mayor last month. In cover letters and resumes, they argued why the mayor and three council members should choose them to serve the remaining two years of Burnett's council term.

Those hoping for the appointment — which the council is next set to discuss at a special meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday, May 8 — include Carmel Residents Association members Kristy Downing and Carolyn Hardy, planning commissioner Steve Hillyard, former design review board member and unsuccessful 2008 council candidate Michael LePage, recent council candidates Tom Leverone and Bob Profeta, former mayoral candidate Rich Pepe, Carmel Innkeepers Association head and hotel owner Carrie Theis, retired San Bernardino County Superior Court Judge Linda Wilde and travel agent Harrison Shields.

Downing

In her three-page letter, which was accompanied by a six-page resume that also listed the numerous medical and scientific articles she has authored, Downing, a financial advisor with Smith Barney who holds advanced biochemistry degrees from the University of Oxford, expressed "intense interest" in joining the council. She said her "dream was realized" when she moved here permanently with her husband and three kids in 2005.

Her extensive community involvement in the CRA, Friends of the Carmel Unified School District, Carmel Public Library Foundation, Friends of Carmel Forest and other groups, as well as "the breadth of my awareness of city concerns," several of which she went on to list, qualify her for the job, she argued.

"I enjoy nothing more than being part of a hard-working and collaborative group, and now that I have the unique opportunity to see the team I may have a chance to join, I am compelled to make this application to be appointed to the council," she concluded. "I believe that my unique education, experience, skills and desire to serve make me a very highly qualified applicant for this position, and I am grateful for

NPS professor runs for P.G. City Council

By KELLY NIX

A NAVAL Postgraduate School professor with an impressive career that's taken her around the world is running for a seat on the Pacific Grove City Council.

Casey Lucius, 35, a four-year resident of P.G., would be quite a change for the council, which is now dominated by men who are at least 20 years older than she is. But Lucius is using her age as a selling point.

Casey Lucius

"I want to provide some representation for young families and working people," Lucius told The Pine Cone, "which I think is a demographic that is lacking representation in Pacific Grove right now."

Although four P.G. council seats will be up for grabs in November, at least three incumbents won't be seeking the spots. Mayor Carmelita Garcia is running for county supervisor, and councilmen Bill Kampe and Dan Miller are running for mayor. Robert Huitt's term is also expiring, and he may be seeking reelection.

Lucius is also promoting her relatively short stay in the city as a benefit to the council, which is composed of six men

WOMAN USES FAKE ID TO STEAL $10K ROLEX

By MARY SCHLEY

A WOMAN used a forged driver's license matching the name on a stolen credit card to bilk an Ocean Avenue jeweler out of a high-priced Rolex in a fraudulent deal that wasn't detected until weeks after the transaction took place.

"This occurred back on March 10. A male and female walked into Fourtane and were making various inquiries about the watches on hand," Carmel Police Sgt. Mel Mukai explained.

The woman decided on a men's Rolex Datejust 2, a stainless steel watch with white gold accents that retails for $10,350.

"They went through the proper steps, as far as authenticating the purchaser and calling the bank, and everything checked out," Mukai said. "But apparently, the suspect had a

OCTOGENARIAN MID-VALLEY resident Jack Anderson was engaging in his usual Friday-night pastime — dancing to live jazz with good-looking women in the lounge at the Highlands Inn — when he collapsed into a chair, his head lolling back.

"It was Friday the 13th," said Anderson, who doesn't remember much of the ordeal or the several days in the ICU that followed.

"I was dancing. Fortunately, I had finished the dance before I collapsed. Apparently I was halfway through a margarita," he said. "I don't remember a thing, short of arriving at the Highlands Inn. I don't even remember the dance I had

Garden club to overhaul city hall landscaping in memory of Connie Ridder

By MARY SCHLEY

A CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Garden Club member who died of cancer last summer will be memorialized by a new garden in front of city hall, the city council decided Tuesday. Her widower and his friends raised $175,000 for the project, and the council unanimously voted to OK the revamp of the bedraggled and decaying grounds — and to contribute up to $25,000 in taxpayer funds toward the project.

"Last summer, our club lost a valued member, Connie Ridder, to cancer," garden club member Sarah Brown told the council May 1. A few months later, her husband, Tony Ridder, former chairman of the Knight Ridder publishing company, approached the club "and expressed a wish to create a garden in memory of Connie."

He asked the club to find a site, and its members decided city hall was the best candidate, considering the beauty of the building and the lackluster gardens surrounding it.

Big baby

CASEY GOT the chance to join his family when a space opened up in their hearts after Samantha, their beloved Dalmatian, died. They contacted a Dalmatian rescue organization in the Central Valley, which said they had a puppy available.

More specifically, they said they had a “big dufus of a puppy,” of indeterminate age. They said he behaved like he was around 5 months old, but he was so big, they couldn’t be sure.

As Casey, now nearly 2 years old, has grown into his full size, it has become apparent that, somewhere along the line, a Great Dane entered his heritage. His face is long and angular, with juicy jowls and, at 90 pounds, he is way too big to be pure Dalmatian.

Casey attended and even graduated from obedience school, but his family doesn’t consider him well trained. “On occasion,” says his person, “we think Casey might be smart. But if we catch him doing something he shouldn’t, and we try to get him to stop, he looks at us with a big ‘Huh?’ expression, something like a cow looking at a passing train.”

Casey loves to play and is fascinated with a pull toy but tends to ignore a flying Frisbee or a bouncing ball. He takes a long rural walk in the morning and a shorter one in the evening, and mostly hangs out in between. He has never been to the beach. His family imagines he would love a romp by the shore, and they consider Carmel quite dog friendly. But they also believe Casey could use a little more socializing before he hits the sand.

“Casey loves people and is desperate to be included,” says his person. “Yet we can just see calling to him before he bothers someone and getting one of his ‘Huh?’ looks.”

Bitter neighbor dispute resolved out of court

By KELLY NIX

A FEUD that prompted a Carmel man to file a lawsuit against his neighbors two years ago, claiming they intentionally blocked his ocean view and installed a surveillance camera to look onto his property, has been settled out of court.

In October 2010, Dwight G. Nelson filed suit against his San Antonio Avenue neighbors, Kathleen Correia and Stephen Evans, alleging they refused to trim their trees and blocked his ocean view, and later erected a "spite fence."

The couple, Nelson also alleged, defamed him by making false statements to their friends and installed power lines under his house without his permission.

But the case won't go before a judge or jury. Documents filed in court April 13 show the case was settled and dismissed with prejudice, which means Nelson can't sue Correia and Evans over the same claim.

Like most cases resolved outside a courtroom, the terms of the settlement were not disclosed, and attorneys for the parties didn't respond to messages from The Pine Cone.

In his lawsuit, Nelson claimed Correia and Evans' actions were intentional and malicious, and that he suffered humiliation, anxiety, severe emotional distress and other medical problems, which have required him to seek treatment.

Nelson alleged breach of contract, erection of a spite fence, nuisance, defamation, invasion of privacy, and intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress.

The dispute began, according to Nelson's claim, not long after he and his wife met Correia in June 2009 and told her they were considering purchasing the home behind, or east, of her house.

During the meeting, Correia told the Nelsons she would make sure that the trees on her property that were partially blocking ocean views from their potential home would not be allowed to grow taller, Nelson's suit alleged.

But the next month, after the Nelsons bought the house for $2.5 million, the relationship with his neighbors soured. Nelson claimed Correia didn't trim the trees for more than a year and planted about 20 fast-growing trees to intentionally block the view.

The relationship further deteriorated when Correia screamed at Nelson because his gardener mistakenly chopped down a holly tree on another neighbor's property, Nelson alleged in his lawsuit.

He also alleged Correia and Evans defamed him when they told several people that Nelson had either cut down or trimmed more than 20 trees on their property and other land, including property owned by the Pebble Beach Company — claims he denied.

Furthermore, Nelson alleged Correia and Evans made a false police report when they said he had flooded their garden, and they installed a video camera to look onto his property.

BURGLARS HIT TWO RESTAURANTS

By MARY SCHLEY

BURGLARS STOLE money, checks and gift certificates from two Pacific Grove restaurants during nighttime break-ins last week. Thieves broke into Joe Rombi's La Mia Cucina and the 17th Street Grille, which are just a few doors away from each other, sometime the night of April 25 or early in the morning April 26, according to PGPD Cmdr. John Nyunt.

"At 6 a.m., they discovered someone had broken the window on north side of the building and used a ladder to go through it," he said of the incident at Joe Rombi's.

The burglars took the cash drawer out of the register and fled with "mostly change and some checks." The total loss came to about $200.

A few hours later, staff at the 17th Street Grille, located a half block away at the corner of Lighthouse and 17th, discovered a window on the southeast side of the building off the restaurant's courtyard had been smashed.

"It's associated," Nyunt said. "It's the same thing: They broke the window and stole about $2,000 worth of cash and gift certificates. They were taken from the register."

Further linking the crimes was the register drawer from Joe Rombi's that officers found discarded in the grille's outdoor dining area while investigating the break-in there.

Police are pursuing a few leads, including fingerprints taken at Joe Rombi's, "but we're not sure if they're any good," Nyunt said.

A third incident reported that morning could also be related, though it differed from the others beyond the timeframe in which it occurred, according to Nyunt. Someone attempted to break the lock on the front door of a Grand Avenue business but didn't get in. The damage was discovered at around 10:30 a.m. April 26.

Suspected pizza robber arrested

By MARY SCHLEY

A PHOTO lineup of Norteño gang members led to the arrest of a 19-year-old Seaside man for the March armed robbery of a Domino's Pizza deliveryman in Pacific Grove, PGPD Cmdr. John Nyunt told The Pine Cone Monday.

Police arrested Uriel Ruvalcaba at his house on Judson Street at 10:15 a.m. April 17 after Pacific Grove P.D. detective Meghan Bliss tracked him down with the help of the victim, Sergio Torres.

The robbery occurred shortly after midnight March 16, when Torres went to deliver pizzas to a Piedmont Avenue residence. As he was walking toward the home, four men stopped him. One, later allegedly identified as Ruvalcaba, pointed a small, metal-plated handgun at Torres and told him to hand over whatever money he was carrying, as well as the pizzas, Nyunt reported at the time. Torres obeyed, putting the pizzas on the ground and giving his $50 or $60 in cash and iPhone to the armed man. He then went back to the Country Club Gate pizza restaurant to call police.

During the following weeks, PGPD and Seaside P.D. officers worked together to help identify the suspect in that robbery, according to Nyunt, as they were also working to crack a string of robberies in Seaside.

"We spoke to their gang investigator, Sgt. Bruno Dias, and he's familiar with the Norteño gang members and was able to get some photos for us," Nyunt said. "And we were able to do some photo lineups."

From the photographs, Torres reportedly pinpointed Ruvalcaba as the man who robbed him that night.

Mayor: First council workshop shows spirit of compromise

By MARY SCHLEY

ONE OF the first changes newly elected Mayor Jason Burnett made at city hall was scheduling council workshops, where decisions wouldn't be made and ideas would be bandied about in a casual setting, separate from regular council meetings. The first of these, held April 30, focused on new ways to raise money and apparently went just as he hoped.

"It felt like a number of people came with an unexpected compromise in order to address the city's revenue challenges," he said Wednesday. "I thought that spirit of compromise was really good — and I think it helps to have the kind of discussion that you literally have around a round table."

He cited several examples:

Local innkeepers suggested creating a sort of business improvement district that would generate money for upgrades — and that would require some outlay on their part.

■ Carmel Chamber of Commerce CEO Monta Potter said a sales tax increase could generate another $1.8 million annually for the city.

■ Barbara Brooks proposed a version of paid parking that wouldn't require meters but would allow people to pay for the privilege of staying longer than the allotted two hours in spaces downtown.

■ Former councilwoman and Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston "recognized the importance of having boutique conferences and the need to get that going, which is not something I've heard from her," Burnett said.

■ Furthermore, former Mayor Jean Grace agreed with councilwoman Paula Hazdovac that the city should take another look at its ban on short-term rentals, "and she was mayor when the ban went into effect," he said.

"I thought all of those were examples of people being willing to compromise and maybe sacrifice in the interest of the community as a whole," he said.

Burnett said the magnitude of the city's financial challenges, with expenses increasingly outpacing revenues, demands a certain willingness to compromise, "and for people to not take hardline positions."

"I think that that meeting was a really positive step in that direction," he said.

New councilwoman Victoria Beach also pronounced the workshop a success, as it included "people from all walks of Carmel: business, chamber and residents," was "very constructive, friendly, relaxed, respectful, even funny," and included new ideas for revenue, as well as "ideas championed by unexpected people who had opposed them before."

"There was lots of acknowledgment about what a great conversation it was," she said. "Definitely the best meeting I've ever seen in Carmel."

The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. The total amount of the unpaid balance with interest thereon of the obligation secured by the property to be sold plus reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is $2,005,666.84. It is possible that at the time of sale the opening bid may be less than the total indebtedness due. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept cashier's checks drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state. Said sale will be made, in an "AS IS" condition, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, advances thereunder, with interest as provided, and the unpaid principal of the Note secured by said Deed of Trust with interest thereon as provided in said Note, plus fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. County Recorder's Office. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on a property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 1-800-281-8219 or visit this Internet Web site www.reconstrustco.com, using the file number assigned to this case 12-0003622. Cal Am files suit over land where desal plant wells would be located

Needs to study plant that only blooms at the end of May

By KELLY NIX

CALIFORNIA AMERICAN Water has filed a lawsuit against one of the world's largest cement producers over access to land in Marina where facilities for the water company's proposed new desal plant would be located.

In the suit filed April 27, Cal Am threatens to use eminent domain — a power granted to public utilities by state law — unless Cemex, a huge cement producer and building materials supplier, allows access to the property, where Cal Am wants to install its intake wells for its newly unveiled Monterey Peninsula Water Supply Project.

Cinco de Mayo DUIs

IF YOU'RE planning on going out Saturday night — and are behind the wheel when you do — you better make that margarita a virgin. Cops will blanket the Monterey Peninsula during one of the biggest party weekends of the year, Cinco de Mayo. The extra enforcement efforts by the California Highway Patrol and Salinas P.D. are funded with state and federal tax dollars, and they target major holiday periods during which people tend to celebrate by drinking alcohol. They'll next ramp up enforcement efforts during the Memorial Day and Independence Day weekends.

The petition wants a judge to compel Cemex to allow Cal Am and workers with the California Public Utilities Commission access to land so they can perform biological studies necessary for the supplemental environmental impact report needed for the desal plant.

And timing is paramount in order to survey what Cal Am calls a "key plant" it says only blooms at the end of May.

If the company can't access the property by then, it will have to wait until 2013 when the unnamed plant blooms again, the company contends.

"Without immediate access," according to Cal Am's petition, "it is very likely Cal Am will be unable to complete the EIR in time to obtain approval necessary for the project."

On Wednesday, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Lydia Villarreal set May 11 to hear the matter. However, Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Bowie told The Pine Cone that the matter could be resolved before the hearing.

"Since we have initiated this process, Cemex has been working with us very cooperatively," Bowie said Thursday. "We hope to reach an agreement with them to gain access to the property in a timely manner."

Cemex operates a sand mining facility on the property, which spans 400 acres, from Lapis Road to Monterey Bay.

Crews need probably one day to perform surveys, photographs and other activities, according to the lawsuit, filed for Cal Am by land use attorney Tony Lombardo.

"If the project is approved," Lombardo said, "Cal Am expects to acquire the portion of Cemex property necessary for the wells by exercising its power of eminent domain, if a negotiated acquisition cannot be achieved."

Though eminent domain is usually used by government to acquire private property, private companies that operate public utilities are also afforded the legal authority, Bowie said.

Big flap over viewing deck at Monarch Sanctuary in Pacific Grove

By KELLY NIX

A PROPOSED viewing platform in the Pacific Grove monarch sanctuary that would allow visitors to get a closer look at of the insects during their annual migration to the city is drawing a flutter of opposition.

According to the city, a private donor has offered to pay for a platform that would offer monarch enthusiasts an overall better viewing experience.

But those opposed to the idea say it could mean a whole host of problems, from drawing too many visitors to the sanctuary, to upsetting the insects' habitat. The deck could also be slated for an area in the sanctuary where the insects don't usually cluster.

"One problem is that the monarchs typically don't roost where they could be seen from the proposed platform," said Esther Trosow of the Pacific Grove Monarch Conservancy. "So the visitor experience would actually suffer."

This year, monarchs clustered primarily on cypress trees over a parking lot next to the sanctuary, which Trosow said was a fluke, possibly due to the weather, the removal of some trees or other changes, including the city's demolition of Brokaw Hall, an abandoned building at the sanctuary.

Also, a platform could mean more traffic in the area, which could have detrimental impacts, Trosow argues.

"The increase in visitors could hugely impact the neighborhood," she said. "It has always been difficult balancing the needs of the neighborhood and the needs of the tourists."

Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History director Lori Mannel told The Pine Cone she briefly saw a preliminary rendering of the proposed platform, which she said was circular and would be constructed of wood.

Mannel said besides the platform, the proposal involves the installation of a new facility to replace the portable toilet the city places in the sanctuary during the monarch overwintering season.

City manager Tom Frutche announced the city was exploring the idea of a platform at a museum community day April 28. Though he didn't identify the donor, several people told The Pine Cone it's monarch enthusiast Helen Johnson, who has donated generously to programs benefitting monarchs.

Monarch activist Bob Pacelli said putting a platform in the sanctuary could disrupt its fragile microclimate and possibly steer the butterflies away. "There isn't anybody in the world who would think this is a good idea if they had any knowledge about monarchs," Pacelli told The Pine Cone.

Natural resources committee member Frances Grate sent an email message Monday to butterfly aficionados encouraging them to contact the state's wildlife conservation board — an agency within the department of fish and game — to oppose the deck.

In a May 1 letter to the state agency discouraging approval of the platform, former monarch docent Sharon Blaziek criticized the city for not consulting with Stuart Weiss, the scientist who drew up a detailed management plan for the P.G. monarch sanctuary.

Professor and respected longtime monarch researcher Lincoln Brower, who called the viewing platform "unnecessary and a waste of finances," echoed Trosow's thoughts that the structure would be "useless because the positions of the clusters are not predictable."

Trosow said that the city has pursued the viewing platform idea despite rejection of the concept at several public meetings.

Besides getting permission from the state for the deck, the city would have to get the go-ahead from the Pacific Grove City Council.

Man files lawsuit after dumbbell lands on foot

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A MAN who suffered a fractured big toe after a weight fell on his foot has filed a lawsuit against Monterey Peninsula College alleging the mishap was the college's fault.

In a lawsuit filed April 27, MPC student C.J. Veloz alleges he was working out in the weight room at the college when the painful accident happened.

"As he was in the process of removing a 25-pound weight from the weight rack," according to Veloz's claim, "a 10-pound weight, unknowingly and negligently attached to the 25-pound weight, fell from the rack onto the plaintiff's left big toe, fracturing it." The damage from the weight left Veloz with a permanently "destroyed" nail bed in his big left toe, according to the suit, filed by Monterey attorney Kenneth Kroopf.

MPC was "careless and negligent," according to Veloz, and his suit alleges premises liability and product liability. He is not suing the company that made the weight.

Because of the accident, Veloz had "shock and injury to his nervous system" which have caused "great mental, physical and nervous pain and suffering," his suit says.

Veloz is seeking more than $25,000 in damages from MPC for wage loss, hospital and medical expenses and loss of earning capacity.

Veloz was in the news two years ago after he hosted a party at his parents' P.G. house on Feb. 21, 2010, hours before driver Aaron Corn crashed an SUV in Skyline Forest. Corn and four passengers were seriously injured, including Chelsie Hill, who was paralyzed.

Agha and P.G. council clash over desal contract

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

DISAGREEMENTS BETWEEN Pacific Grove and developer Nader Agha over a proposed desalination plant in Moss Landing have halted plans for a contract between the parties.

On Wednesday, the council could have entered into a contract with Agha to spell out their relationship, including the financial details of Agha's proposed $128 million desal operation in Moss Landing. The council on April 18 voted 6-1 to study the idea of becoming the lead public agency for the project. But the city and Agha failed to agree on some points of the contract.

A subcommittee composed of councilmen Dan Miller and Rudy Fischer will talk to the businessman in hopes of meeting Agha eye to eye. "The subcommittee is going to meet with Nader to see if we can iron out the differences," Miller told The Pine Cone Thursday.

The council, which voted 5-2 to move forward on the project, will then hold a special meeting Thursday, May 10, at 6 p.m. in P.G. City Hall when the public can weigh in on the agreement. Councilmen Robert Huitt and Bill Kampe voted against the idea.

Every dog gets a day

CINCO DE Mayo has always been a festive day — and now man's best friend is getting in on the action.

The Pacific Grove Middle School Athletic Field will be the site of Saturday's first Fiesta Del Perro — or Festival of Dogs. The event will feature two parades (at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.), raffles, competitions, demonstrations, live music by The Wharf Rats, a children's art show and refreshments.

Judges will award prizes in a variety of categories, including Cutest Dog, Ugliest Dog, Best Costume, Best Trick and Owner Look-Alike. The Animal Friends Rescue Project, meanwhile, will have dogs available for adoption.

The event is free for people and their dogs, although there is a $5 registration fee to enter pooches in any of the contests.

The fun starts at 10 a.m. Preceding the festival, Friday evening at 5:30 p.m., will be a special VIP event for people who buy four $25 raffle tickets. The winner will go home with the original painting that was used for the event's poster art, which was created by Will Bullas, a member of the Carmel Art Association. The piece is valued at $3,500.

If you're interested in purchasing raffle tickets for Friday's VIP event, or if you want more information about Saturday's festivities, call (831) 649-0657 or (831) 333-0491.

FROM DOORMAT TO DOMINANCE, CHS WINS FIRST LEAGUE LACROSSE TITLE

By CHRIS COUNTS

DOWN BY a score of 6-5 after two quarters, the Carmel High School lacrosse team — boosted by Brendan Phinny's dazzling offensive performance — dominated the second half to defeat rival and host Pacific Grove High, 12-7, and clinch its first-ever league title in the sport.

Phinny had a hand in 10 of the Padres' 12 goals, scoring seven goals and assisting on three others. He was particularly effective in the second half against Pacific Grove's tiring defense.

"He was unstoppable," Carmel coach Phil Keebler said. "They didn't have an answer for him. Brendan's been our leader all year long. He could not have come up with a bigger game at a bigger time."

On the other side of the field, Carmel High's stingy defense — aided by goalie John Wood's 11 saves — shut down on the Breaker's leading scorers to seal the win.

Despite being down at the half, first year Carmel coach Phil Keebler wasn't worried about the game's outcome.

"In the locker room, I told them we were fine," Keebler said. "I told them to stay focused and make smart plays. We just needed to stay confident and stay together."

The league title represents a remarkable turnaround for the Padres. The team won just four games last year, and they were winless a season earlier. "The history of the lacrosse program at Carmel High, since its inception in 2003, has been one of futility," Keebler said.

For Keebler, watching the team's turnaround has been particularly satisfying.

"I've seen this program at its lowest point, when no one even knew what lacrosse was," he recalled. "I am so proud of the kids. You've got to give them credit. They were extremely dedicated. They got better every day."

The Padres go into Friday's season finale against Watsonville High with a 13-2 record. The home game starts at 4:30 p.m.

■ CMS wrestler shines

Carmel Middle School wrestler Jack Maughan capped off a remarkable season April 26 by finishing first in his weight class at Mission Trail Junior Athletic League finals at Gonzales High School. He finished the year with 20-0 record and 16 pins.

After coming in second place at last year's tournament as a 7th grader, Maughan was determined to improve.

"Jack made a goal after that match to win the championship in his eighth grade year," said Russ Shugars, the CMS wrestling coach. "When the season began, Jack was in such great shape that most of his opponents this year could not even come close to his physical abilities. Jack is so strong forged driver's license with the cardholder's name and information."

It turned out the cardholder, who lives in Los Gatos, had her credit card and other personal items stolen from her purse a few weeks prior. "So, one thing led to another," Mukai said, and the watch thieves managed to use the fraudulent credit card and forged license to make the purchase.

"The suspect is long gone," he said, though police possess an image of the fake license showing the thief's photo.

"We have a picture of the suspect on that fraudulent driver's license," Mukai said. "But we don't know who she is."

The fraudulent purchase was discovered April 18, after the credit card company notified the Los Gatos resident, who in turn contacted Los Gatos P.D., which then called Fourtane, which is located at Ocean and Lincoln in downtown Carmel.

"Fourtane is out the product right now, and the cardholder would be credited," Mukai said.

Normally, if a card is swiped when it's used for a fraudulent purchase, the credit card company covers the loss, whereas if a credit card number is used for a fake phone or Internet sale, the merchant gets hit for the full amount. Mukai couldn't confirm what would happen in this case.

"That's a civil issue," he explained.

"The victim ID'd the suspect, and we were able to obtain a search warrant," Nyunt said, and investigators reportedly found stolen property at his Seaside home.

Officers arrested Ruvalcaba without incident at 10:15 a.m. April 17 on charges of second degree robbery, conspiracy to commit crime (with a higher degree of severity due to his gang affiliation), and possession of stolen property.

"Detective Bliss gets the props on this," Nyunt said. "She did this case on her own with Seaside P.D."

The other men involved in the March 16 robbery, one of whom was reportedly carrying a metal bat, remain unidentified. "The three other guys are still outstanding, so we're still working on them," he said.

that he could easily pin most of his opponents, but instead of quickly ending the match he would use the live match situation to improve his technique."

Shugars said he looks forward to coaching Maughan at Carmel High School. "He listens to his coaches, is a great student, has a tremendous work ethic, and has the ability to set long term goals and the determination to see them through," he added.

Also excelling at the last Saturday's tournament were Rostin Ahmadi and Hayden Stachele, who finished first in their weight classes; William Georis, who came in second; Antonio Magana, who placed third; and Stephen Willis, who finished fourth.

Baseball team pounds P.G.

Playing on its home field, the Carmel High baseball team cruised to a 14-4 win over rival Pacific Grove in a game that was dominated by the Padres' offense.

Trey Coppinger led Carmel High with a home run, three hits, two runs and three RBIs. He got help from Devin Pearson, who had three walks, a double and three RBIs; Dominic Bifano, who recorded three hits and scored two runs; Matt Rudolph, who had two hits and drew two walks; and Marcus Lund, who had a pair of hits.

Going the distance on the mound for the Padres — and recording the win — was Tyler Knight, who gave up five hits, five walks and three earned runs while striking five batters.

Two days later and again playing at home, Carmel High downed King City High 5-1. Filippo Talucci looked sharp on the mound for the Padres, going seven inning and giving up just five hits, one walk and one earned run. He struck out three batters. Pearson and Bifano, meanwhile, blasted home runs for Carmel High.

The Padres now have a 13-2 league record and a 15-8 overall mark. They play Friday, May 4, on the road against Greenfield High. The game starts at 4 p.m.

Padres' softball team wins

The Carmel High School softball team won a nail-biter May 1, when the Padres scored a run in the bottom of the 8th inning to defeat rival and host Pacific Grove High 3-2.

Alexandra Franklin sparked the Carmel High offense with a pair of hits, including a double. Nicole Caoli and Lilly Young, meanwhile, each singled and drove in a run.

Brittany File pitched the first three innings for the Padres, while Brianna Harris tossed the final five frames and picked up the win. The duo combined to strike out 11 Pacific Grove High batters while surrendering five hits and three walks.

The Padres now have an 8-1 mark in league play and a 16-6 overall record. They play Monterey High Saturday, May 5, at Carmel Middle School. The non-league game starts at noon.

For Plaza Linda, the show must go on — but where?

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE SHE isn't sure where she will be booking music at this time next month, local music promoter Kiki Wow is planning to go out with a bang at Plaza Linda restaurant in Carmel Valley Village, which needs to find a new home by June 1.

Multi-instrumentalist Martin Sheers takes the stage Friday, May 4. A resident of Carmel Valley, Sheers was once the lead singer for the Scones, a Phoenix band that billed itself as "the best goddamn band that never made it to the big time." The music starts at 7 p.m.

LINDSEY BUCKINGHAM

"Martin is one of the most outstanding musicians I've heard perform here on the Monterey Peninsula," Wow said. "He's a one-man band."

The Dani Page Dance Band performs Cinco de Mayo. The show begins at 7 p.m.

"This is the first time they've played here," Wow continued. "They're a very accomplished Santa Cruz group that's opened for Los Lobos, George Thorogood and Leon Russell."

Eddie Gutierrez plays Sunday, May 6, at Plaza Linda. The music starts at 5 p.m.

"He'll be playing acoustic guitar and performing original songs and covers," Wow said of Gutierrez. "He's masterful on the 12-string guitar. It comes alive in his hands."

Wow, meanwhile, is working hard to find Plaza Linda a new home.

"We're looking for a place where there's parking and we won't bother the neighbors," she said.

Despite the challenges of locating a venue, Wow said she's confident the show will go on.

"Like Kiki Dee, I've got the music in me — and it's going to go wherever I go," she added. "I'd like to stay in Carmel Valley because it's my home. But if not, I'll have to expand my horizons."

There's $10 cover for all shows at Plaza Linda, which is located at 9 Del Fino Place. Call (831) 659-4229 or visit www.plazalinda.com.

NEW EXHIBIT A MATCH MADE IN ARTISTIC HEAVEN

By CHRIS COUNTS

THERE'S NO evidence that art is the secret to marital success, but it seems to work for Chris and Robin Sawyer.

An exhibit showcasing Chris Sawyer's sculpture and his wife Robin Sawyer's paintings opens Saturday, May 5, at Masaoka Design Gallery in Carmel Valley Village.

Gallery owner Alan Masaoka had originally planned to present a display of Chris' sculpture. But after seeing Robin's paintings, he couldn't resist staging a rare husband-wife show.

"They are interesting people who do interesting artwork," Masaoka told The Pine Cone. "Their work is very complementary. I'm always amazed how talented people are. It's going to be an outstanding show."

Longtime residents of Carmel Valley, Chris works in stone, steel, wood and bronze, while Robin works in oils. The for-

Party marks 50 years since Jeffers' death

By CHRIS COUNTS

ONE OF Carmel's most distinctive landmarks will be the site of a tribute Sunday to the city's greatest literary figure.

A half century after the death of poet Robinson Jeffers, his former home — Tor House — hosts the annual Spring Garden Party.

Performing at the May 6 event will be bagpiper Ed Jarvis, flutist Marc Rush and harpist Liyanna Sadowsky. Meanwhile, a group of local plein air artists — Patty Biederman, Cornelia Emery, Sibyl Johnson, and Pat Huber — will create paintings of the Tor House and its gardens. The paintings will be for sale and a portion of the proceeds will benefit the nonprofit Tor House Foundation, which works to not only maintain and preserve the historic home, but continues to promote Jeffers' contributions as a poet and a philosopher.

The yearly event includes a fundraising auction, which features art, books and photographs and other unique items. It also marks the only day of the year when photography is permitted on-site.

"The Tor House Garden Party is an annual celebration that reminds us of what one man can accomplish in a lifetime," explained Alan Stacy, a docent at the Tor House. "Robinson Jeffers not only wrote monumental poems of human tragedy and the 'divinely superfluous beauty' of the world around us, but left the rich architectural treasure called Tor House as a reminder to future generations of his life here in Carmel."

The event also marks the 50th anniversary of Jeffers' death.

The celebration starts at 2 p.m. Admission is $15 and children must be at least 12 to attend. Pets are prohibited. Tor House is located at 26304 Ocean View Ave. Call (831) 624-1813 or visit www.torhouse.org.

Foundation's new cafe, Pt. Pinos goodness, Village wine news and springtime lamb

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CARMEL Foundation has a new hangout.

"People now meet their friends for coffee — that's the way people are socializing," commented foundation CEO Jill Sheffield, so, with a bit of remodeling and new furniture, the nonprofit turned an underused lounge into a much busier cafe. "We did it for a variety of reasons, partly to make ourselves relevant for a younger population that's coming to us."

With part of its mission being to provide a place for people age 55 and older to socialize, the foundation converted a room used mostly for bridge games and jigsaw puzzles into a place to find fresh coffee, a few snacks — and friends.

"A contractor took out the carpeting and put in a new floor and paint," she said. "We hired a decorator to help us make it right." The construction occurred in January, and the furniture, including small tables and chairs, as well as more comfortable pieces, arrived in March.

The new cafe seats about 18 people, according to Sheffield, and carries Colombian and Italian roast coffees that sell for $1 per cup. Monterey-based Estate Coffee & Tea — which was recently purchased by Carmel Valley Coffee Roasting Co. — provides the beans.

"We now have muffins in there, because people requested them, but there's not much food other than that at this point, because we don't want to compete with our lunch," Sheffield said, referring to the low-cost hot lunches the foundation serves to members four days a week.

"Some of the seniors don't really want a hot lunch, though," she observed. "We do have a changing dynamic," and the cafe's offerings could soon fulfill those needs.

"So far, we've been very happy with the usage of the cafe," Sheffield said. "People are meeting there, having coffee, meeting with friends or reading a book, and there's wifi. It's doing everything we wanted it to do."

The new cafe is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and is staffed with a volunteer.

■ Pt. Pinos Grill updates

With the culinary team at Pt. Pinos Grill hitting its stride under the guidance of executive chef/Aqua Terra Culinary owner Dory Ford, and much of its permit fight behind it (despite pending lawsuits), the restaurant at the P.G. Golf Links announced new summer hours, early bird specials and Family Nights on Sundays.

Dinner is now being served Wednesday through Sunday from 5 p.m. until closing, with the last seating at 8:45. A recent sampling from the menu revealed several highlights, among them the duck confit spring rolls and roasted baby beet salad for starters, and for dinner, the succulent pan-seared duck breast with crisp and light "fries" made of panisse (chickpea flour), red wine soubise, baby turnip and tart cherry demi-glace; and the sweet white shrimp and grits with Andouille sausage, yellow corn mascarpone grits, Holy Trinity vegetables, okra and tomatoes. Anyone craving sheer comfort food should consider the pork schnitzel with caraway spaetzle, braised red cabbage, roasted apple and mascarpone mustard sauce.

Also during dinner hours, for the first 90 minutes of service, an early bird option offers soup or salad, entrée and dessert for $16.95. House wine is available for $5 per glass.

On Sundays only, a casual, family-style service from 5 to 7 p.m. features salad and entrée for the table for $15 per person, plus tax and tip. The menu changes weekly.

Wine fans should check out the grill for its list, which is well endowed with interesting bottles at reasonable prices. Because most of his food is on the lighter side, flavor wise, Ford said he does not offer a lot of heavier reds, with just one or two Cabernet Sauvignons included. He enjoys featuring wines from near and far, particularly smaller producers that offer good values — and which many of his customers may not have encountered before.

For more information about Pt. Pinos Grill, which is located in the clubhouse on Asilomar Boulevard, call (831) 648-5774 or visit www.ptpinosgrill.com.

■ Cima Collina touts local

When it opens its new tasting room in the Old Del Monte Milk Barn in Carmel Valley Village, Cima Collina plans to offer locally grown food, vintage wines and gifts, too. The food will reflect the same philosophy as the wine: "insistence on quality and consistency."

As a result, the tasting room will carry canned and jarred items from Happy Girl Kitchen in Pacific Grove and Salinas-based Schoch dairy cheeses (look for Monterey Jack, East of Edam, Monterey County Gouda and Salinas Valley Swiss, which is called Junipero).

In addition, Cima Collina will be pouring at the Castroville Artichoke Festival May 19-20, an event that highlights local farmers and the myriad ways to prepare an artichoke: fried, sautéed, grilled, marinated, pickled, fresh and creamed in soup.

To learn more about the winery, visit www.cimacollina.com. For more about the festival, go to www.artichoke-festival.org.

■ Lamb at Luca

Claiming that "springtime lamb is a culinary tradition dating back to the beginning of civilization," Cantinetta Luca is holding a Spring Lamb Dinner Thursday, May 10, at 7 p.m., when chef Jason Balestrieri will feature small-farm, artisan lamb prepared in multiple ways.

The four-course meal will begin with antipasti of tartare and salami, followed by Ravioli Verde with lamb shoulder, fava beans and pistachio. The main course will be Roman-style lamb roast, and dessert will be Crostata di Fruta.

The dinner and wine will cost $65 per person, plus tax and tip. Cantinetta Luca is located on Dolores Street south of Ocean next to Piccadilly Park. For tickets and information, visit www.cantinettaluca.com.

■ Chesebro releases rosé

Chesebro Wines will release its 2011 Rosé while honoring the work of eight local artists in its new Carmel Valley Village tasting room Friday, May 11. Owner and winemaker Mark Chesebro's rosé is a blend of Grenache, Viognier and Albariño.

Along with the wine, a range of artwork — painting and textiles, photography and prints — will be displayed in the gallery. A reception for the artists will be held "after hours" from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Light refreshments will be served.

The tasting room is located at 19 East Carmel Valley Road and is open from noon to 5 p.m. Friday through Monday. For

■ Tea in the garden

The arrival of a little springtime warmth has brought out the blooms in the abundant gardens at Bernardus Lodge, which is hosting its annual Afternoon Tea in the Wedding Garden Saturday, May 12.

Savory accompaniments will include cucumber-mint tea sandwiches, flatbreads with house-smoked salmon, prosciutto-wrapped breadsticks and other bites. Pastry chef Ben Spungin will present an array of his signature desserts — preserves, vanilla shortcakes, warm Madeleines and chocolates — which are as beautiful to look at as they are delicious to eat. The garden's bounty will also appear in herbal teas, and Brandon Swanson will be playing acoustic guitar.

The tea will be held from 2 to 4 p.m., and the cost to attend is $75 per person, including tax and tip. Bernardus Lodge is located at 415 Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley. Reservations are required. Call (831) 658-3550.

■ A multitude of Mother's Days

Sons and daughters will have no shortage of ways to honor and celebrate their moms on May 13, considering the abundant offerings at Monterey Peninsula restaurants.

At Edgar's at Quail Lodge, for instance, brunch from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. will include Kenwood Sparkling Bellinis, poached eggs on smoked salmon toast, Eggs Benedict, steak and eggs, Bananas Foster waffles, coconut prawns, crab cakes, prosciutto burger and a number of other dishes, including small plates for the kids. To reserve, call (831) 620-8910 or visit www.quaillodge.com.

At Aubergine in L'Auberge Carmel at Monte Verde and Seventh, under the guidance of executive chef Justin Cogley, Mother's Day brunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. ($75 for adults; $32 for kids 12 and under) will begin with hors d'oeuvres served buffet style, followed by main courses at the table, and finished with delectable desserts by executive pastry chef Ron Mendoza. Entrées will be brioche French toast, soft shell crab, L'Auberge omelet, halibut and ribeye (with a sunny-side-up egg). To reserve, call (831) 624-8578.

At Pt. Pinos Grill, moms will be celebrated and fed from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for $29.95, plus tax and tip, with $5 more for a mimosa. The buffet will feature breads and pastries, salads, charcuterie and cheese, chilled seafood, an omelette and egg station, a carving station with beef and pork loin, biscuits and gravy, Eggs Benedict, pancakes and waffles, and other popular breakfast items. Options will turn lunchy after noon, with dishes like Belizean stewed chicken (inspired by chef Dory Ford and the Aqua Terra team's March trip to Belize), seared wild salmon and spiced lamb. Kids' dishes will also be available. For more information, call (831)648-5774 or visit www.ptpinosgrill.com.

MUSIC

■ Concert to benefit library

Like Plaza Linda, the Henry Miller Library has emerged in recent years as a hub for live music. But in November, Magnus Toren was informed by county officials that the library needs to upgrade its restroom facilities and be more accessible for disabled visitors if it continues to host events.

Toren told The Pine Cone this week that officials are willing to allow the library to continue staging events — as long as progress is being made toward the completion of the upgrades, which Toren estimates will cost about $140,000.

In response, the library is launching its first fundraising campaign. And as part of the effort, the library will present a fundraising concert Monday, June 25, at the Golden State Theatre in Monterey. Performing will be composer and pianist Philip Glass, singer and harpist Joanna Newsom, and violinist Tim Fain. Tickets for the concert go on sale sometime next week.

Also, tickets are now on sale for a Friday, June 29, performance at the library by Grammy Award-winning singer-songwriter Lucinda Williams. She was called “America’s best songwriter” by Time Magazine in 2002. For ticket information, visit www.henrymillerlibrary.org.

■ Fleetwood Mac soloist

Tickets are still available to singer-songwriter Lindsey Buckingham’s performance Thursday, May 10, at Sunset Center. The lead guitarist for Fleetwood Mac during its heyday in the mid-1970s, Buckingham was honored by Rolling Stone Magazine as one of “The 100 Greatest Guitarists of All Time.” He also penned one of the band’s biggest hits, “Don’t Go Your Own Way.”

“He’s going to be performing a solo acoustic concert,” explained Sunset Center spokeswoman Natalie Hall. “It’s going to be a very intimate show that’s perfect for fans of classic rock.”

The concert starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $58 to $78. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For tickets, call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

■ Who’s next?

The next generation of local homegrown musical talent will be showcased Friday when the Pacific Grove Performing Arts Center hosts the second annual Battle of the Bands and Soloists/Duets Competition.

Featuring students from local high schools, The Absent, Appalachia, Mozzo Kush and The So – Delights will vie for first prize in the Battle of the Bands contest. Felipe Navarro, Kane Suga (of Carmel High School), Vera Paci and Vincent Randazzo will participate in the Soloists/Duets contest.

In addition to receiving cash prizes and recording studio time, the winners will play live at this summer’s Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix Moto GP at Mazda Laguna Seca Raceway.

The event starts at 7 p.m. Tickets are $10 for general admission and $5 for students. The performing arts center is located 835 Forest Ave. Call (831) 655-5432.

■ Classic soft rock at Bistro 211

One of the Monterey Peninsula’s most enduring — and hardworking — musical performers, singer and guitarist Bryan Diamond, plays Friday, May 4, at the Bistro 211.

A virtual human jukebox of classic soft rock, Diamond has recently made a name for himself performing tribute concerts dedicated to the music of singer-songwriter Cat Stevens. Bistro 211 is located in the Crossroads Shopping Center. For dinner reservations, call (831) 625-3030.

GARDEN

"The garden club was thrilled," she said. "Not only would we have the opportunity to memorialize Connie, who was special to all of us, but we get to do a garden without having to fundraise for it."

The club hired landscape designer Michelle Comeau, who also created the overhaul of the Ocean Avenue medians.

The changes were approved by the forest and beach commission and the planning commission last month, and planning and building services manager Sean Conroy recommended the council OK the proposal, along with a memorial plaque for Ridder.

Comeau said the project involves much more than installing new plants, considering that the existing garden has splintering hand rails, a deteriorating handicapped walkway, rotting wood retaining walls, erosion and a lack of an irrigation system.

She told the council the plans include solutions that are "environmental, functional and aesthetic." The handicapped ramp will be made of sand-finished concrete that looks like decomposed granite and will not require retaining walls. It will be lit.

A new drainage system will direct runoff to the south, while the new irrigation system will have a rainwater-sensing controller.

Many of the native plants growing there now will remain or be transplanted, and new ones will be native or at least drought tolerant. The patio and benches will boast more colorful plants and a cluster of pots.

The most discussed aspect of the proposal was the iron railing created by Carmel artist Robert Signorella to be reminiscent of leafless tree trunks and branches. She said his "sculptures reside in art collections worldwide, from Dolly Parton to the lobby of the Pentagon." The railings would also meet handicapped-access requirements.

But Carmel Residents Association member Kristy Downing said it seemed "a little bit of a departure from the traditional arts and crafts design" of city hall, while Dick Dalsemer said it seemed "very inappropriate for city hall."

Architect Richard Barrett, however, called the railing "brilliant."

"It definitely fits in with the garden, and it's taking art to facilitate a utilitarian purpose — and that's very much a part of the English arts and crafts movement," he said.

City administrator Jason Stilwell said the city is excited to work with the garden club on the makeover, especially since it will address deferred maintenance. He also said the city could provide manpower.

The council voted 4-0 to accept the donation, approve the plan and memorial plaque, and allocate up to $25,000 toward it.

just finished.”

Some friends of Anderson’s noticed he “didn’t look right,” as did a couple of doctors at a nearby table, and the rush to save him began. The inn’s location just a short distance from the Carmel Highlands Fire station meant paramedics and firefighters were on scene “in record time,” Anderson said.

He had experienced ventricular fibrillation, according to longtime friend Debi Cassan, a nurse. When Anderson’s heart became arrhythmic, it stopped pumping blood to his body, resulting in his collapse and unconsciousness.

Lifesaving efforts, principally CPR and defibrillation, took 49 minutes, but the medics were eventually able to get his heart back into rhythm.

“Apparently they shocked him five times and got a heart rate once or twice, and in the hospital, they got a heart rate again,” she said. “It’s incredible.”

In ICU at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, Anderson was kept on a cooling regimen to minimize damage and was under heavy sedation, she said. He was also placed on a ventilator.

For the first few days, he was unresponsive. “It didn’t seem like he was going to come back,” she said.

Three days after his arrival in an ambulance, unconscious and near death, Anderson finally stirred. He spent five days in ICU and was then moved to the main pavilion, where Cassan said he started to go a bit stir crazy.

“He really turned around and was anxious to get out of there,” she said. “He was chomping at the bit. He did six or eight loops around the nurse’s station, and the doctor said, ‘OK, you’re ready to go.’”

Anderson walked out of the hospital on Saturday, April 28, and reported he didn’t even have to undergo rehab. He plans to meet his rescuers from the Highlands Fire station and Cal Fire later this month, so he can thank them in person.

Fit as a fiddle

Cassan attributed his full recovery — including no loss of brain function — not just to the quick emergency medical response and treatment, but to his excellent level of fitness.

“Even though he’s 83 years old, he’s very fit,” she said. “I think that’s why he was able to survive.”

Anderson agreed.

“The recovery rate under circumstances like this is less than 7 percent, and I understand very few people walk away without injury to some part of the brain,” he said.

As for being in shape, Anderson said, “I play tennis Monday, Wednesday and Friday; golf Tuesday and Thursday; and dance on the weekends.”

He lives in mid-valley and is a widower. “Otherwise, I wouldn’t be allowed to go out!” he observed.

Cassan said Anderson’s former wife, who died 20 years ago, was her first friend on the Monterey Peninsula. They met Anderson when he built their home in the Highlands.

“We’ve been friends with Jack for 25 years, now. He’s built a lot of beautiful homes around the Highlands and Carmel,” she said. “He’s a wonderful guy.”

She also couldn’t resist mentioning his sense of humor, as exhibited by a conversation they had soon after he regained consciousness.

“When he came to, the first thing he said was, ‘What happened?’ And we said, ‘You were at the Highlands Inn, and you were dancing,’ she recalled. “And he said, ‘Were they pretty ladies?’ We said, ‘Yes,’ and he said, ‘What a way to go!’” mer has an affection for animal and abstract shapes, while the latter offers up a new series of paintings that draw inspiration from reflections found in ponds and lakes.

The gallery, which will host a reception 5 to 7 p.m., is located at 13766 Center Street. Tree Top Flyer will play “hot Gypsy jazz” at the event.

The exhibit will be on display through June 24. Call (831) 659-4953 or visit www.masaokaglassdesign.com.

■ New shows open at CAA

In an exhibit opening Saturday, May 5, at the Carmel Art Association, a quartet of local artists — Mark Farina, Ron Grauer, Stan Robbins and Andy Williams — present “Four Views” of using oils to paint landscapes and seascapes in Monterey County.

The region’s dramatic topography and stunning coastline provide a fountain of inspiration for any artist.

“I’m fascinated with the conflict of rock and water,” said Robbins, who lives near the coast in Pacific Grove. “Water will ultimately win, but in the meantime, they put on a splendid display.”

While Robbins is mesmerized by the awesome power of nature, Grauer is simply happy to be doing what he loves.

“One of the virtues of growing older is to simply paint for the sheer joy of painting,” offered Grauer, a one-time Pacific Grove resident who now lives in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

Also opening May 5 at the CAA are exhibits by Dick Crispo — who presents a new series of acrylics on canvas paintings — and watercolorist Alicia Meheen.

The gallery, which is located on Dolores between 5th & 6th, will host a reception at 6 p.m.

■ Art festival unveils poster art

A stunning oil painting of Point Lobos by Joaquin Turner will grace the commemorative poster of the 19th annual Carmel Art Festival, which is scheduled for May 17-20. The painting won first prize for “People’s Choice” at last year’s festival.

Turner, who boasts that he was born “among the gnarled cypress trees and windswept dunes of Fort Ord,” spent much of his childhood in Europe, where he was “profoundly influenced by the old masters’ works.”

The four-day festival will feature a plein aire contest, a sculpture exhibit in Devendorf Park, a silent auction, a live auction, activities for children and live music. Proceeds from the nonprofit festival benefit local youth art programs.

FEE

the property.

To make it easier for property owners, the realtors association ad includes a protest form that can be filled out by property owners and mailed or dropped off at the water district’s office in Ryan Ranch.

Water district general manager Dave Stoldt — who said the district needs the fee to raise $3.7 million per year to pay for new water projects — told the Pacific Grove City Council Wednesday that the proposed fee has “created quite a stir.”

He also said the district would cut property owners some slack. For instance, if some information is omitted on a protest notice, the district will do its best to resolve the discrepancy by contacting the property owner or by other means.

Stoldt will personally count the protest notices, but more than one staff member will verify his count, according to water district spokeswoman Rachel Martinez.

Stoldt declined to say how many protest notices the district has received since they were mailed out last week. But after a protest letter has been tabulated, Martinez said, it will become public record.

Mark Morgan of Seaside distributed his own protest letter at the P.G. council meeting Wednesday. He said he didn’t trust the district or its board of directors.

“If you have to lay off people or take a cut in pay yourself,” Morgan wrote, “so be it. Show us a sustainable water supply.”

The fee, according to Stoldt, is essential for the district to pursue two water projects for the Peninsula, including a groundwater replenishment project with the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency which will turn wastewater into drinking water. The other project is an aquifer storage and recovery system the district is partnering with California American Water.

“Hopefully we will not need to raise user fees,” Stoldt told the city council.

The amount of the annual fee for each parcel would be determined under a complicated set of criteria that involves the type of business, water usage and/or size of a property’s water meter. For instance, it would be about $39.06 a year for a small house and up $175 for a large home, the district’s mailing said. A bakery would pay about $150 a year, restaurants that serve three meals a day and have a bar would pay $9.71 per year per seat plus a meter charge, and large businesses could pay thousands of dollars per year.

Editorial

Give the seat to somebody who ran

THE AVALANCHE of people seeking appointment to Jason Burnett's council seat is an interesting phenomenon. If all those people want to be on the council, why didn't they run?

For most of them, the answer is probably that being a candidate for office is too much trouble.

But serving as a council member, if you do the job right, is also a lot of work and requires a lot of diligence — much more so, in fact, than running for office.

Because all the candidates who presented themselves in the last election amply demonstrated the intelligence and willingness to work that would make them good members of the city council, we believe the council should definitely pick one of them for the vacancy created when Burnett became mayor.

Unfathomable

We have already expressed an opinion about the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's proposed user fee. The manner chosen by the district to implement the fee — as an attachment to property tax bills, which can only be overturned if 50 percent of water customers formally protest it — shows that the district knows very well its constituents wouldn't approve the fee if they had a chance to vote on it. That, by itself, is reason enough for the people who would have to pay the fee to reject it.

The water district's long and sorry history of impeding progress toward an adequate water supply, instead of vigorously pursuing one, as it was created to do, is also reason enough to oppose the new fee.

And so is the fact that, after an advisory vote in 2002 that the water district should be dissolved, it plowed right ahead trying to prevent a water project from coming to fruition, as if the vote never happened.

But if you take a close look at the mailer sent to property owners last week explaining the fee and laying out the (rather complicated) procedure for protesting it, you'll be confronted with the most powerful reason why we'd all be better off if the water district disappeared: The way it does business makes no sense whatsoever.

We're all familiar with the foolishness of restricting water fixtures instead of water use. And the same twisted logic that led to the banning of new toilets, sinks and so forth, while letting people use as much water as they like with their existing ones, practically screams from the tables that show how the new user fee is to be calculated.

A few shining examples of the annual fees to be imposed: A movie theater, $109.24 "per screen;" a business with 21 to 30 employees, $158.40 "per location;" a gym, $52.80 per 500 members; a dental office, $61.09 "per licensed dentist;" etc., etc. And then all these establishments will have to pay additional yearly fees based on the size of the pipes leading to their water meters, plus $52.80 a year "per every 10 employees." The complexity is ridiculous. No one in his right mind would even conceive of it.

The water board is too burdened by its past misconduct to be rehabilitated. And, despite their protestations to the contrary, the mailer sent out last week shows the members of the board and their staff haven't reformed in any meaningful way. The water board should go away.

Letters to the Editor

Leverone deserves seat

Dear Editor

Jason Burnett, elected as our new mayor, and a fine man by all accounts, now finds himself in the unique position of being able to appoint a resident of Carmel to the city council position he has vacated.

By our city charter this is permissible. By the standards of previous elections, and in a sense of fairness for all citizens of our town who voted for Tom Leverone, there are solid reasons to take the honorable path for our new mayor and appoint Leverone to fill Burnett's vacant seat.

While Leverone did not capture enough votes to win outright, he did garner the third-greatest number of votes. This demonstrates that voters preferred Leverone to have a seat on the council to the other candidate. To ignore the significance of that vote seems inappropriate and contrary to the wishes of many of the electorate.

Mr. Mayor, please consider that Tom Leverone took the time to campaign, to obtain a significant vote representative of a vast number of citizens, must certainly have the interests of our city as his main concern, and by these measures alone decidedly deserves a seat on the city council. We'd like to think that if the roles were reversed Leverone would have selected you to fill the vacant position, with the understanding that you are a decent, fair, civic-minded individual — just as he is.

Balanced McCloud coverage

Dear Editor,

The most recent issues of The Carmel Pine Cone have featured articles entitled "Poetry, jokes and accolades at swearing in" and "McCloud looks back at 12 eventful years."

Balanced coverage of McCloud's legacy should include the $35 million CalPERS pension fund liability uncovered during her last term, the $6 million "side fund" which really is another debt, the total of $1.1 million in sexual harassment settlements plus substantial legal fees, the deterioration of the city's reserve fund and the lack of action to identify and initiate significant new revenue sources.

The deplorable state of the city's finances is best exemplified by the deferred street maintenance that is readily visible to every resident and visitor. Based upon the above negative performance, McCloud should have been impeached and recalled rather than being allowed to complete her last term in office.

One way to minimize this potential liability would be a referendum to eliminate direct election of the mayor, to have five council members elected on staggered four-year terms, to have a two term limit and to have the position of mayor rotate among the five council members each year.

Coming up at 10: Quality information about somebody somewhere

WE ARE your emerging local news leader, especially if your idea of news is a series of random images accompanied by a string of nouns, verbs and puerile exclamations.

My name is Joe, and I will be your guide during the next hallucinatory half hour of news.

Tonight's top story comes from our Investigation Team. Remember, our Investigation Team is the biggest, most aggressive investigative unit on the Central Coast. We investigate so you don't have to.

Tonight, our crack team found this press release from the Seaside Police Department, which reported that a Seaside man has been arrested on charges that he killed at least six cats in his neighborhood over the course of three months. (Cue booking mugshot of Burton Samson.) This man, Frank Miller, is accused of the wanton slaughter of kittens. (Cue video of a random unidentified person who tells correspondent what he would like to do to a cat killer if he ever met one.)

Still on the crime watch, we have this exclusive report (Cue booking mugshot of Frank Miller): This brazen shoplifter is in jail tonight after he was caught by a video monitor stealing a pack of chewing gum from a convenience store. And we have the exclusive video, exclusively. Check this out! (Cue blurry video of someone stealing gum.) Police say they expect to file charges against Burton Samson tomorrow.

And if it's 10:03, it must be time for Scumbag Sunday. As you know, Scumbag Sunday is your chance to help local police root out the most wretched criminals still running loose in Monterey County. Our law-enforcement partners for Scumbag Sunday include police departments in Salinas, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Greenfield and Santa Lechuga.

Our first scumbag is this skank (cue booking mugshot of a toothless woman), who you can see on your screen. Check her out: She is wanted by authorities for violating misdemeanor probation for pandering. If you know this woman, be sure to rat her out to authorities immediately.

Now we have this man (cue booking mugshot of a toothless man), who Santa Lechuga police say failed to appear in court to face charges that he ran a stoplight.

And we are proud that Scumbag Sunday continues its success in taking notorious criminals off the streets. Just last week, this woman (cue booking mugshot of grandmotherly woman in a bad wig) turned herself in to Monterey County Jail after seeing herself on Scumbag Sunday last month. She was wanted by police for a hit-and-run incident in which she fled the scene after her vehicle struck a light pole while backing out of a parking space. Police say the community is much safer today with this woman off the streets.

Meanwhile, in Santa Maria, activists in the Central Coast city are protesting a new sign ordinance that would allow huge billboards along the highway. (Cue detailed, five-minute report about an issue important only to residents in a city 160 miles away.)

And you don't want to miss this. Check this out. A man in Wisconsin lost control of his car, and it landed in a river. (Cue video of a random vehicle in a random river.)

And from Waco, Texas, here's video of a heroic effort by three men to pull a horse out of a mud pit. (Cue video of a horse flailing about in a mud pit.)

And we have dramatic video of a penguin that was lifted from its enclosure by a tornado in Wichita this morning and dropped on a farm two miles away. (Cue video of a drone strike in Afghanistan.) Zoo officials say the penguin emerged from his ordeal without a scratch. Emergency workers say 162 people were killed during the tornado.

And if you heard a huge explosion last night, you weren't alone. Police agencies around the Central Coast reported that dozens of people called to report what sounded like a sonic boom. Or it could have been meteors. Or an alien spacecraft.

And speaking of mysterious meteorological phenomena, it's time for the friendliest weatherman on the Central Coast. So tell us, Cliff, will this fog ever lift? (Cue detailed, five-minute report about how a low-pressure system aloft will impact coastal fog.) Bottom line, we may or may not have fog tomorrow morning. Temperatures along the Central Coast will range from the low 60s to the high 90s.

And we wrap up tonight's newscast with a shot of this cute polar bear kicking a large plastic ball around his zoo enclosure. We're happy to report that the polar bear was apparently not affected by today's devastating tornado.

Sonja Thiene

1923-2012

A celebration of her life is planned for Sea Ranch resident Sonja Thiene, 88, who died April 8, 2012 at a Santa Rosa hospital.

Born Sonja Navall on July 18, 1923 in Alberta, Canada, she immigrated to the United States as a child when her father took a position teaching at Antioch college in Ohio.

The family would move again, this time to the orange groves of Altadena where both her parents taught at nearby colleges. A figure skater, when she was 18 Sonja moved to New York city where she skated with the Ice Capades for two years.

After hanging up her skates, Sonja returned to California where she earned a teaching degree from Claremont College.

In 1946, she married Paul Thiene, a research physicist. They started their lives together in Pasadena, raised a family in Laguna Beach and retired to Carmel before moving to The Sea Ranch in 2000.

While raising her three daughters in Laguna Beach, Sonja worked for the school district, primarily as an administrative assistant, to be close to her children.

After 58 years together, Paul died of cancer in 2004. About two years later, she started a new chapter in her life when she met and fell in love with Randy Owings.

Together, they traveled the world and lived on The Sea Ranch where her family said she loved the ocean and the beauty of the nature.

Always active in her community, Sonja was a volunteer at the Dolphin Gallery in Gualala and at the Point Arena Lighthouse.

"She was a nurturing and giving person, open to like and loving her family and friends," said Sonja's daughter, Kristin Thiene.

"Her youthful spirit shone brightly and she was filled with spunk, humor, intelligence, open-mindedness, curiosity, kindness, sensitivity and optimism. she was always open to the next adventure, a truly beautiful woman who made the world a better place."

Besides Randy, and Kristin and her husband, Curt Johnson, Sonja is survived by daughters Pamela Thiene, and Maya Redwitz and husband Tom Redwitz; grandson Garret Tesman; granddaughter, Natalie Redwitz; and sisters Gundula Simpson and Maya MacKenzie.

She also leaves her cat, Leia, who the family plans to take to Redwood Coast Humane Society in hopes someone will adopt her.

Friends and family are invited to celebrate the life of Sonja Thiene on May 12, 2012 at the Sea Ranch, CA. Donations in Sonja's memory may be made to the Redwood Coast Humane Society, P.O. Box 1072, Gualala, CA 95445.

Music was boring, until it came alive

ARTHUR CONAN Doyle, speaking of Darwin and music, said, "He claims that the power of producing and appreciating it existed among the human race long before the power of speech was arrived at. Perhaps that is why we are so subtly influenced by it. There are vague memories in our souls of those misty centuries when the world was in its childhood."

The truth of that observation is alive and singing at the Monterey Symphony, where Max Bragado-Darman has held sway as the music director and conductor since 2004. Born and raised in Spain, he has conducted orchestras throughout Europe and the United States and has worked with some of the finest artists in the world.

Great Lives

By TONY SETON

"My parents wanted me to study, at a very early age, what we call solfège, which is the grammar, the syntax, of music," he said, recalling his class at the Conservatoire of Madrid. "I was years old, and I had a very poor teacher, and in Spain, we had three years of this before you could even take an instrument."

He hated the class so much he flunked and was humiliated for it in a very public ceremony. With much pomp, the three judges said to young Max, "Why don't you tell your parents to take you out of music? You are never going to contribute anything to it. That's a fact."

At first, the setback made Max very happy. "Now I could go to the park and play soccer," he said.

But it happened that a student at the German school in Madrid where Max was enrolled invited him to attend a rehearsal where his father worked. Max didn't even know what a rehearsal was and so showed no interest. "One day, somehow, he twisted my arm, and we went to a rehearsal that happened to be the National Orchestra of Spain, whose conductor, my friend's father, was the finest ever produced by Spain."

It was Ataulfo Argenta. "That day, for the first time, I saw as they rehearsed the Emperor Concerto of Beethoven, and I saw for the first time, the concert grand piano in its magnificence. The orchestra sweating, rehearsing, repeating, doing it again. I said, 'God what is this? This is a miracle!' And I told the conductor, 'I want to conduct. I want to conduct the orchestra. And I want to study with you.' A 9-year-old kid."

The conductor replied that the boy would have to learn the piano, and counterpoints and harmony and composition and all the disciplines that go with it. And Max replied, "OK, OK, whom do I have to study with?" That was on a Thursday. On the following Monday, Argenta had made arrangements with Max's parents for the appropriate teacher. "From that moment, the sublimity has never left me."

Max plays the piano, but not as much as he used to. "For me, the piano is a vehicle to study scores." When he takes up a new piece of music, he reads the score first and then listens to it. It's a laborious process. "I like to say that I undress the score, and dress it back. If I'm going to conduct anything by heart, for example, I have to know every note of that score. Of every musician. I have to know exactly what they are doing."

He loves to share what he learns. "In music, as in everything else, you have to be taken by the hand and shown the intricacies, and why it is good, and listen to these pieces. It's like everything else. You have to develop a taste. The ear is the most retrograde, or stubborn, of all of our senses. It knows perfectly what it likes and doesn't. And to train it takes much more than the eyes or the nose or the palate."

He understands that people go to concerts to be entertained. But he says there's a higher purpose, as well: "We are dealing, in classical music, with statements of the highest achievement of the human soul. There is a big extra message that words cannot say."

Does he like other music? "Of course. Good jazz, Coltrane. I like to dance. I love the Beatles. The poetry, the melodies, the harmonies ... very pleasing to my ears. Freddie Mercury of Queen was phenomenal. I guess that I am traditional in my approach to music, but things have to have logic, and I see in those songs a lot of logic."

Max is headed for Spain in two weeks but will be back to get ready for an extraordinary new series for the Monterey Symphony, Season of Piano. "I love this orchestra. I think it is second to none. This is my orchestra, and I'm interested in building it. I really think that the potential of this area is exemplary."

Friends of the Monterey Symphony will hold its Derby Day extravaganza fundraiser Saturday afternoon, May 5, at Carmel Valley Ranch. A few seats are still available. Please call (831) 646-8511 and one woman, most of them longtime city residents.

"I'm a newcomer to Pacific Grove," said Lucius, who has a Ph.D in political science from NPS, "but I think that has afforded me the opportunity to bring some fresh ideas."

Among them is to make the city more "vibrant" by continuing to make sure the library and parks and recreation department, for instance, don't face any further big cuts. Lucius also envisions a downtown P.G. where businesses stay open later.

"Having businesses and coffee houses open later will help attract younger people," she said.

Lucius, who teaches national-security decision making at NPS, has a very interesting resume. She joined the Navy in February 1998 and, after graduating from Officer Candidate School in Pensacola, Fla., she attended intelligence training school in Virginia Beach, Va., before moving to San Diego, where she served on an aircraft carrier for two years.

During her assignment in the Navy, Lucius traveled to the Persian Gulf, where she worked with Navy Seals to halt the export of illegal oil from Iraq in support of the United Nations' Oil-for-Food program.

Lucius moved to Monterey in 2000 and obtained her master's degree from NPS in national security affairs focusing on Chinese foreign policy. For the next nine years, her assignments ranged from working as an intelligence briefer for a Navy commander in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to being an assistant for the U.S. Ambassador in Vietnam.

"These exchanges demonstrated to me the importance of open communication and collaboration at all levels of government," according to Lucius, who since 2009 has worked as an associate professor at NPS.

Lucius said she believes her career background and understanding of political decision making will help her lead Pacific Grove to develop a 10-year plan.

Lucius, who is married and has a young son, has attended many P.G. City Council meetings in the past three years and familiarized herself with the city's myriad issues.

One thing Lucius she said she's learned is that the meetings can be excruciatingly long, something she said she would try to change. (The April 18 meeting lasted more than five hours.)

"I want to try to see more efficient use of time," Lucius said. "I think it's really a disservice to the public to have meetings that go on to 11 at night."

So far, Lucius said she's gotten lots of support from those who have learned of her council bid. At the Good Old Days event in April, Lucius, her husband, Bob, and their 2-year-old son wore yellow T-shirts that said, "Casey for Council."

"Even though I'm new to Pacific Grove," she said, "the people I've met have been encouraging and really supportive."

your consideration and the potential opportunity to serve our community.”

Hardy

A frequent critic of city hall, particularly regarding management of the fire department by the City of Monterey, Hardy said her “knowledge, experience, skills and qualifications would complement the various talents of the other city council members.”

Hardy, who has been a full-time resident for 26 years, highlighted her “institutional knowledge of Carmel” and familiarity with the issues. “Although most of my appearances before the city council have been as an advocate, I view the council position as a collaborative one — one which is needed to reach decisions that are good for the entire community,” she wrote. “I have proven leadership skills with experience in building consensus,” including serving as the Monterey County Civil Grand Jury foreperson.

She described herself as “fair and open minded,” pragmatic and clear thinking, analytical and reasoned, detail oriented, hardworking, studious and tenacious, as well as humorous.

Hardy ran for city council in 1998 and has served on the community and cultural commission, the Carmel Public Library Foundation and the CRA. She also helped raise grant money for Sunset Center.

Hillyard

Hillyard, who has lived in Carmel since 2002, and whose mother moved here in 1965, pointed to his “considerable experience with public policy,” as one of the reasons for selecting him to finish Burnett’s council term. Hillyard joined the planning commission in 2007.

In his letter, he said he understands the legislative process and has been involved in local civic and charitable work, including as a member of the Carmel Valley Association’s water committee. As a planning commissioner, he’s become familiar with the general plan, goals, design guidelines and ordinances that pertain to development and planning in town.

Furthermore, Hillyard served as foreman of the 2004 Monterey County Civil Grand Jury and was a member of the board of Sunset Cultural Center.

LePage

LePage, who works in general construction and served several years on the since-disbanded design review board, has lived in Carmel for almost 40 years.

“I believe that I can bring a unique balance of experience and perspective to the city council,” he wrote. “As a longtime resident, I understand the concerns of the residents, and as a longtime business owner, I also understand the concerns of the business community.”

His years on the DRB taught him about the public-hearing process and how to lead meetings, as well as the value of input and participation from residents and other affected parties, he said. LePage pledged to be open to all points of view and weigh decisions “in the context of preserving and protecting our village character and its special environment.”

He also noted he joined the Carmel Residents Association in 2010 and the Carmel Chamber of Commerce this year.

Leverone

Having finished third in the April 10 election, Leverone, a semi-retired physician and chairman of the forest and beach commission, was identified by many at an April 24 council meeting as the logical choice to fill the fifth seat.

Since the council decided to solicit applications, Leverone submitted his letter alongside the others.

“My qualifications for sitting on the council are many and varied,” he wrote, among them the extensive education in liberal arts and science that allow him “to rapidly comprehend presentations in virtually any subject the council is charged with overseeing,” and his ability to think outside the box.

Leverone said life experiences have taught him to “combine pragmatism, logic and common sense.”

“I also tend to be a ‘can do’ type of thinker, and more importantly a ‘get the job done’ type of worker,” he wrote, and working in the medical field taught him the importance of quick thinking and how to handle contracts and budgets.

Leverone went on to describe his charitable support of local nonprofits and his volunteer work for the Carmel Youth Center and the Concours-on-the-Avenue, and to state his desire to serve on the council — as indicated by his willingness to run for office. “I do not tailor my thoughts toward any political faction or association, but always remain independent, fair and impartial,” he said.

Pepe

The only challenger to Burnett’s mayoral bid, Pepe highlighted his years of experience as a downtown business owner as a reason the council should appoint him.

“I am one of the largest employers in town, with between 60 and 100 employees, depending on the season, and I have been consistently in the top 10 sales tax generators for many years,” he wrote. Familiar with the city’s laws and guidelines, he said he could “contribute business-minded expertise with regards to our budget goals and objectives.”

Pepe went on to say he has the time, passion and ability to take on the city’s most challenging issues, as well as the managerial experience and leadership qualities to do so.

“My appointment to the council will show our community that the current mayor and council truly care about the downtown district,” he wrote, “and my appointment will be the first step to bring about a greater harmony between the residents and the business owners.”

Profeta

Also a longtime downtown business owner, Profeta, who ran for council this year, said he would “make the commitment to contribute my management and practical background to the knowledge and skills of other council members to cooperatively reach solutions to the financial as well as other issues that now confront Carmel and will do so in the future.”

He already has experience as a council member, having been appointed to the Morgan Hill City Council in 1987.

“My service in Morgan Hill, before moving to Carmel, gave me a great respect for the legislative process and responsibility of local government, as there I confronted many of the issues that Carmel now faces and will surely encounter,” he wrote.

Preserving the city and securing its economic future will require collaboration by residents and business people, and Profeta said he would “have the credibility and ability to reach out to those who do business in Carmel, as well as those who live here. I know that I can help bring these two communities together for the betterment of Carmel.”

Theis

Theis arrived in Carmel 11 years ago to manage the Hofsas House hotel her grandmother started 65 years ago, and as a child, she spent many summers in town, learning the family trade. Now, she is heavily involved in the business community and often speaks on behalf of the Carmel Innkeepers Association during public meetings.

“I have been a member of many local boards and am a regular attendee and contributor to the monthly city council and budget meetings, so I understand the process and respect the procedures,” she wrote. Her participation demonstrates she knows “how to deal with contentious issues in a civil and courteous manner, always respecting people’s opinions.”

Her education in science and knowledge of computerized accounting, as well as her participation in community groups, would also contribute to her value on the council.

“I feel that this council will make a big impact on the future of Carmel,” she concluded. “I believe my style, background and experience will complement the city council and will help lead this community into the future.”

Shields

A resident of Carmel since moving here from Detroit 1975, Shields was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1934 and has worked in the travel business since 1958.

He said he is active in the local theater community, is a member of All Saints’ Episcopal Church and part of its vestry, and belongs to The Carmel Foundation. He lives in the nonprofit’s senior housing at Norton Court.

Homescapes Carmel opened in 1999 selling art, gifts, plants and orchids combined with furnishings and accessories from around the world. In 2010, Homescapes Carmel expanded into a 12,000 sq. ft anchor location in Carmel Plaza, adding to its mix with an Assouline Corner Book Boutique.

“Beginning with our first store in Pacific Grove in 1996, Monterey County Bank has been the go-to community bank for Homescapes Carmel’s financial needs. With understanding towards our business and belief in investing in the community, Monterey County Bank made our expansion in Carmel Plaza a reality.”

charm for citizens as well as the world to enjoy," he wrote. "Although a registered Republican, I am more of an independent voter in local and national elections."

His references included Anne Albano from the Carmel Foundation, Lisa Hollo from Bob McGinnis Travel and Denny LeVett, a "personal friend."

Wilde

As a Superior Court judge for 17 years, Wilde said she handled many different types of cases, including the mediation of the decommission of a large Air Force base — a case she described as "one of the largest, most prolonged and costly litigations known in our country." She said she managed to determine what each party "truly wanted, rather than what they portrayed in their posturing," and settle the dispute.

"My negotiating skills and the skills I have in bringing people together are very valuable skills which are always important to a city council," she wrote.

She further cited her interest in policy making and public matters, and her experience with financial matters, principally as the head of a multinational nonprofit. Finally, she pointed to her bridge-building temperament and integrity.

Wilde bought her home in Carmel in 2004 and moved here permanently in 2009 after becoming disabled. While working on her physical recovery, she has provided online tutoring to law students taking the bar exam.

Decision process

Burnett told The Pine Cone Wednesday that he and councilwoman Paula Hazdovac have nearly completed interviewing all the candidates and will make their recommendation of the top one or two contenders at the May 8 special meeting for consideration by the full council.

He said a written report detailing the best prospects for the job, as well as questions asked of them during the interviews, will probably be available to the public on Monday.

BY AL SMITH

(PART TWO) For more than 50 years (1930-80) Nielson Brothers Market occupied their original location on Dolores near 8th, expanding from one building to another, with uneven floors, nooks and crannies for gourmet foodstuffs, a confusing but always orderly display of quality foods. Competition disappeared over the years and, by great good fortune, Carmel laws prevented the entrance of "chain stores." In 1959 a new generation entered the picture in the person of MERV SUTTON, who married WALTER'S daughter, Nancie, the happy ending of a Carmel High School romance. He began to take over some of the duties of "Mr. Inside," (WALTER), making sure customers had what they wanted, supervising service in-store and out; and "Mr. Outside," (HAROLD), establishing sources of quality meats, produce and wines, soliciting long term customers, representing the store in community activities. In 1980, having acquired Harold's share in 1962 and a few years later Walter's as well Merv moved the store from Dolores Street to a new building at San Carlos and 7th. He added a much-needed parking garage, erected a valued (and funny) Carmel map designed by Bill Bates and Carol Minou, and created an unassailable new slogan: "The super nonsupermarket." With these dramatic changes, some equally dramatic shifts occurred. For instance, 80% of volume comes now from walk-in traffic, as compared to 30-40% in earlier years. The earliest and best fruits and vegetables, and the finest meats, are still found at NIELSEN'S; the broadest selection of wines, cheeses, snacks and staples. HAROLD has passed on, but WALTER still appears almost every day. You'll forgive us for a little special pride in this "legend." It is truly vintage Carmel!

POTENTIAL BIDDERS If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale.
