Deetjen's buys off-road vehicle so employees stranded on Partington Ridge can get to work

By CHRIS COUNTS

GETTING TO work each day is no small challenge for those who live on Big Sur's Partington Ridge, which was transformed into an island Dec. 24, 2012, when its access road was buried by a massive rock slide.

But the commute for three residents who work at Deetjen's Big Sur Inn has been eased by the generosity of their employer, which recently purchased an $11,000 Polaris all-terrain vehicle.

Thanks to the "quad," residents can now save valuable time and energy as they negotiate a network of steep, rugged and unpaved private roads that lead on and off the ridge.

Deetjen's general manager Torrey Waag decided to buy the vehicle shortly after seeing the magnitude of the slide and realizing how long it would take to repair — and how difficult it would be for the employees to get to work on foot.

After first looking at a used vehicle and determining that "people really abuse their quads," Waag decided it made more sense to get a new one. "My idea was that if we bought this, and we only used it for four months before we resold it, it would still be a cheap investment," he reasoned.

The quad has also come in handy at the inn, where it's been used to carry everything from laundry to firewood.

Disclosure forms open window on officials' conflicts of interest

By MARY SCHLEY

CITY ATTORNEY Don Freeman owns rental property in Seaside, a law firm in Carmel and a one-eighth share of the building it's in, along with a myriad of Wall Street investments. Mayor Jason Burnett owns a lot of stock, including shares of McDonald's, Coca-Cola and, of course, Hewlett-Packard. Police Chief Mike Calhoun has a painting business, and his wife works for the Diocese of Monterey. City councilman Steve Hillyard owns stock in Chevron, while planning commissioner Steve Dallas has several rental properties in town.

These are among the facts gleaned from "statements of economic interests" which California requires public officials to disclose. In order to guard against high-level officials making decisions for their own economic benefit, the California Fair Political Practices Commission requires they file statements each year declaring their investments, properties, gifts and other assets that could influence them.

While the governor and his cabinet, assemblymen, senators and judges all have to file the statements, so do local officials, including mayors and city council members, the county board of supervisors, county and city planning commissioners, treasurers, the district attorney, city managers, city attorneys and high-ranking law-enforcement officers, as well as anyone else entrusted with the investment of public funds.

Judge says Sierra Club, steelhead group won't get attorney's fees

By KELLY NIX

A SANTA Clara judge has refused to order the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and California American Water to pay more than $250,000 to the Sierra Club and a local steelhead group after the water board and Cal Am delayed a lawsuit challenging the State Water Resources Control Board's order that Monterey Peninsula residents drastically curtail their use of water from the Carmel River.

In the decision, Judge Peter H. Kirwan denied the Dec. 4, 2012, reimbursement request by the Sierra Club and the Carmel River Steelhead Association. Attorney Laurens Silver, who intervened in the suit to defend the cutback order, told The Pine Cone he's appealed the case to the 6th District Court of Appeals.

Silver said his efforts encouraged Cal Am and the MPWMD to drop their suit, and told Kirwan his fees came to $256,934.

MPWMD attorney Heidi Quinn told The Pine Cone Kirwan issued the decision Dec. 18, 2012, but that her office only received notice of it last week. Quinn called the groups' filing a "needless drain on public resources."

In October 2009, the SWRCB imposed the cutback order, which requires Cal Am to reduce the amount of water it takes from the river by 70 percent, beginning in 2017. A week later, Cal Am and the water district filed suit, seeking to overturn the order. The Sierra Club and the steelhead group were "parties in interest" in the case, fighting to preserve the cutback order.

The case was dropped in August 2012, when Cal Am and the MPWMD decided they would rather concentrate their

P.G. sues school board, AT&T over cell tower removal

By KELLY NIX

THE CITY of Pacific Grove has filed a lawsuit against the Pacific Grove Unified School District and AT&T to prevent them from shutting down a cellular phone tower officials say is crucial for firefighters, police and paramedics to respond quickly to emergencies.

For the past two years, the school district has had a contract with AT&T to operate a cell tower at the P.G. adult school on Lighthouse Avenue. But on Jan. 14, AT&T was set to turn off the tower's power after expiration of its contract with PGUSD.

Decommissioning the tower, the city contends in its com-

'Not guilty' plea from Collins to all charges

By KELLY NIX

AS HE has maintained since being charged in fall 2011, former county water board director Steve Collins told a judge last week he is not guilty of dozens of felony and misdemeanor charges.

Collins on Jan. 11 pleaded not guilty before Monterey County Superior Court Judge Pamela Butler, who ruled in November 2012 that prosecutors had presented sufficient grounds for him to stand trial on charges he submitted fake invoices to a consulting client and broke state conflict-of-interest laws when he lobbied for an engineering firm to get a contract to run a new regional desal plant even while he served in an official capacity with authority over the $400 million plant.

County prosecutors contend Collins — who declined to comment after his arraignment — committed fraud against Ocean Mist Farms by charging too much and submitting invoices for meetings he never attended.

He is also charged with receiving $160,000 from RMC Water and Environment — the consulting company that won a $28 million contract to manage the now-defunct regional desalination project — as he was lobbying for the plant to be plaint filed Jan. 10 in Monterey County Superior Court, would be dangerous for residents and public safety workers.

"City residents and visitors rely on the regular and emergency phone coverage provided by the cell site," according to the city. "Without cellular 911 coverage provided by the cell site, emergency response to fire, medical or criminal activity shall be impaired."

In a declaration supporting the city's claim, Monterey Fire Chief Andrew Miller said the loss of the tower would be a

1.6-gallon toilets no longer good enough

By KELLY NIX

ALONG WITH roughly 800 new state laws in California this year, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District has its own new rule requiring that homeowners and business owners start switching to "high-efficiency" toilets, which use a meager 1.28 gallons of water per flush.

"We are requiring the high efficiency toilets for new construction, remodels and replacement of old toilets," and when houses are sold, Stephanie Pintar, water demand manager for the MPWMD, told The Pine Cone.

But the water district — which is calling for the 1.28-gallon toilets instead of the previously mandated 1.6-gallon variety — is offering cash for some of those who retrofit their bathrooms with the new toilets.

"We will give up to $200 dollars for voluntarily replacing an older toilet with a high-efficiency one," Pintar said.

Businesses can receive rebates for up to 20 toilets.

In the late 1990s, the water district board passed an ordinance requiring all "visitor-serving" business, such as hotels, restaurants and gas stations, to install 1.6-gal-

Something about springers

HAVING LOST her English springer spaniel only two months before, she wasn't quite ready for another dog. But when Hurricane Katrina hit, she heard about the many families who had made the terrible choice to leave the family dog behind to save themselves. So she decided to adopt, and contacted a Santa Cruz animal shelter that had received funding from Doris Day to fly lost dogs out of Louisiana. While that didn't work out, it made her realize she had been looking forward to getting a dog.

She contacted a local animal shelter and learned about a 1-year-old springer spaniel found wandering the foothills in the rain. Days later, she brought home Roxy, who joined a long lineage of springers in the family.

"Springers are happiness dogs," says her person. "My parents always had springers, and we inherited one when I lived in South America as a child. I had him 'til my senior year of college. I also got a springer with each marriage; after the third one, I decided to get the spaniel without the wedding."

Now 8, Roxy still goes to the beach a few times a week. There, she plays with a pack of dogs but tends to turn her attention to the water birds. Bred for flushing out and retrieving game, she chases them down the sand but, more enamored of the birds than the water; she gives up at the shoreline. Land birds don't do it for her. She ignores the doves that coo in her yard.

"Roxy is a good companion and a character," her person says. "She loves Ocean Avenue, where she can meet and greet people on the sidewalks or sneak into stores, and slip behind the counter to sleuth out snacks. She has a little separation anxiety, so whenever she has to wait outside and I take too long, she starts singing."

Chamber offers chance to travel the world

A MAIDEN voyage to China in 2007 spawned a foray into the travel business for the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, which is organizing a record four trips abroad this year. Among the offerings is an unprecedented journey to Cuba in May, with trips to "Bohemia," the South of France and Germany also planned.

Starting at $3,599, including airfare from Miami, "Discover Cuba" runs from May 10 to May 18, with all seven nights in Havana. "The Bohemian" runs June 21 to 30, visiting Prague, Budapest and Vienna. Prices start at $2,250, not including airline tickets. The fall trip, "Colors of Provence," departs Oct. 19 and returns Oct. 28, stopping in Arles, Avignon, Gordes and Nice. Prices start at $4,449, including airfare. Finally, the "Winter Wonderland with Christmas Markets" trip departs Dec. 1 and returns Dec. 10, traveling through Frankfurt, Munich, Innsbruck and Heidelberg. Prices for that trip begin at $2,106, not including air travel.

BAILEY

The Braddock family would like to announce the passing of their beloved yellow Labrador; Bailey Braemar Braddock.

Bailey was born in Santa Rosa, California on October 16, 1998. At only eight weeks of age, he moved south to Monterey where he enrolled at Suzi Bluford's Puppy Training Academy in Carmel to pursue his studies. Following a rocky start, he eventually earned a degree with honors.

While a student and throughout his younger years, Bailey was a regular "player" on Carmel beach. His love for the ocean and every stretch of dog-friendly beach on the Monterey Peninsula knew no bounds other than his euphoric ones. Bailey greeted each and every day with excitement and passion. He never took a moment of his life or surroundings for granted. To watch Bailey on Carmel beach was to witness pure joy. As soon as he set paw to sand, Bailey would race full speed for the water. Then, at the last minute, he would veer left, running parallel to the ocean in the wet sand and surf until he reached the Frank Lloyd Wright property. There, he would reverse direction and race back to his parents with eyes blazing, tongue flapping in the wind, and an unmistakable smile on his face.

Bailey was truly a gorgeous physical specimen, even in his final days. Standing tall at 36 inches and weighing roughly 90 pounds, he was large for a Labrador Retriever but fit. He maintained an active outdoor lifestyle and enjoyed long walks, playing catch, running and swimming. But he was always happiest on the beach. It was as if he was born to gallop in the surf and leap through the waves. Bailey's joy was so palpable that tourists on the beach would often stop to watch him and compliment his beauty and exuberance.

When it came to fetching, Bailey's physical attributes were on full display. He could collect and carry three tennis balls at a time and, thanks to his speed and athleticism, frequently did regardless of whether they belonged to him or not. He loved a spirited game of catch-me-if-you-can and keep-away and considered Carmel beach his "home turf".

Eventually age caught up with Bailey and his desire to play exceeded his physical ability to do so. Visits to the beach left him exhausted to the point of trembling and, thus, became fewer and further between. He relinquished the pounding surf to younger souls, spending more time at home by the fireplace or in the garden.

Sadly, dogs live an abbreviated life. With his spirit and appearance still youthful, Bailey passed on January 10, 2013. It was an honor to have him as part of our family and he will always be in our hearts and minds. He will be missed.

Breast cancer group helps women pay rent

■ And finds cheaper rent for itself on Rio Road

By MARY SCHLEY

A SMALL nonprofit with a big mission is moving from Pacific Grove to a small office on Rio Road, where it will undertake the big job of helping women deal with the diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer. The Breast Cancer Assistance Group, run by women who are battling or have survived the disease, helps others tackle the daunting costs of treatment.

Board vice president Susan Greenbaum, who was diagnosed on Jan. 13, 2005, and was declared healthy after a year of surgeries and chemotherapy, joined the board about five years ago and is constantly reminded of the devastation of the illness that afflicts one in seven women, and the important help the group provides.

"We've lost some of our board members to breast cancer — it's been really hard," she said. "It's never far away from us. We have one in the hospital right now."

Although Greenbaum was fortunate enough to have "decent insurance," her medical bills were considerable. "The cost is just astronomical," she said. "I was paying off bills to the hospital for a long time."

Some of the women who contact the group are women with no insurance and low incomes, and the group provides them information on the various social service agencies that might help.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Squirrel causes more trouble

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

.NEW YEAR'S DAY

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A car window was smashed out and a purse was taken on Rio Road. A witness observed the occurrence but was unable to provide any details.

Pacific Grove: Report of a municipal code violation at a party on Ocean View Boulevard.

Pacific Grove: Woman on Eardley reported she quarrelled with her husband.

Pacific Grove: Woman requested ex-boyfriend be admonished regarding annoying/harassing phone calls and text messages. Ex-boyfriend was contacted via telephone and admonished.

Pacific Grove: Male reported theft of skateboard he left unattended on the sidewalk on Junipero.

Carmel area: Male arrested for disorderly conduct and for possessing marijuana.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic accident on private property on Guadalupe Street. Vehicle was drivable.

Pacific Grove: Civil issues raised over deceased person's property on 17th Street.

Pacific Grove: Report of annoying/harassing phone calls on Ninth Street. Unfounded due to lack of elements of crime.

Pacific Grove: Seventeenth Street resident reported receiving a phone call from an unknown male approximately one week prior. The male advised he was from a nursing group and was supposed to visit her that day but would have to reschedule for the following week. Resident said the male never showed, so the nursing group was contacted. They advised the resident they had no male nurses.

Pacific Grove: Credit card information used to make a fraudulent online purchase. Reported at a Lighthouse Avenue location.

Pacific Grove: Austin Avenue resident reported a possible mountain lion. Woman stated while out for a walk she heard a loud "growling" sound and then what she believed to be a large animal jumping a fence. She stated the animal then crossed the roadway and entered into the forest area. Woman stated she shined her light toward the animal and saw a pair of green eyes but could not see the body of the animal. She believed that due to the height of the eyes, the animal may have been a mountain lion. Information only.

Pacific Grove: Person reported females crying outside of a residence. Contacted three juveniles on the front porch of a Hillcrest Avenue residence. They reported that their family members had been involved in a verbal altercation. All three juveniles said that the dispute did not become physical. Both parties were contacted. They advised that it was verbal only. No signs of a physical altercation seen. Subjects agreed that the arguing was done for the evening.

Pacific Grove: Woman in the Country Club Gate area advised dispatch she saw a missing person who is the subject of an alert. She advised the possible sighting had occurred at approximately 1800 hours. Area check was conducted with negative results. Information provided to Marina P.D. Info only.

P.G. City Council to discuss role in Moss Landing desal

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE PACIFIC Grove City Council this weekend will discuss the increasingly confusing prospect of the city becoming the public agency for a proposed Moss Landing desal operation.

At a council workshop at the P.G. museum Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., council members will discuss several city issues, including the city's involvement in a desal operation proposed by Nader Agha, Mayor Bill Kampe told The Pine Cone.

Earlier this year, the city voted to explore becoming the public partner for the project.

But questions have loomed about the city's role in the plan after San Francisco Bay Area businessman Don Lew suddenly announced in December that Agha was no longer involved and that he had taken over interest of the operation. Lew even renamed the project.

Complicating matters was a statement by city manager Tom Frutchey at Wednesday's council meeting indicating Lew hadn't actually finalized a deal with Agha. Frutchey, however, said Agha had fulfilled his terms with the city and that his attorney was drafting a formal agreement between he and P.G.

To help make sense of it all, the city is encouraging the public to attend the meeting at the museum, 165 Forest Ave.

We have such an uncanny ability to find the perfect house, some clients call us the house-whisperers.

CITY JOINS MONTEREY PENINSULA GANG AND DRUG TASK FORCE

By MARY SCHLEY

POLICE OFFICER Jeff Watkins will spend part of his time working for the Peninsula Regional Violence and Narcotics Team — a task force incorporating officers from local cities, the state and the county district attorney's office. The Carmel City Council last week approved a resolution to enter into an agreement with the other members of PRVNT, committing cash and work hours.

"The primary purpose of the task force is to enforce federal, state and local controlled substances laws and to prevent and control violent crime on the Monterey Peninsula," police Chief Mike Calhoun told the council in his Jan. 8 report. "PRVNT also will seek to diminish the availability and use of illegal drugs among the boundaries of the participating local agencies and to apprehend the responsible offenders, thereby increasing public safety."

The use and sale of drugs pose "serious cross-jurisdictional law enforcement problems in Monterey County," according to Calhoun.

"Violent crime is associated with illegal drug use, and both have increased dramatically within the past few years. The Monterey Peninsula police chiefs recognize the importance of collaborating with the area agencies to reduce crime and diminish the availability of illegal drugs."

Via the task force, agencies will better share information about the illegal production, distribution, transportation and use of drugs, and increase the effectiveness of their investigations of street-level drug dealers and violent crime, according to Calhoun.

According to the agreement, each city is contributing $1,500 to the task force, as well as work hours, and the City of Monterey will also provide office space and utilities. MPD is assigning two officers and a supervisor, while the Seaside P.D. is providing two officers and one mid-manager. Marina, the California Highway Patrol and Pacific Grove agreed to provide one officer, and Carmel and Sand City are offering the services of an officer part-time. California State University Monterey Bay will provide one on a seasonal basis, when school is in session, and the Monterey County District Attorney's Office "shall provide an appropriate number of deputy district attorneys for the necessary legal support."

The man for the job

This week, Calhoun told The Pine Cone the member agencies are putting candidates for the task force through testing in order to decide which officers should serve on it, except Carmel, which is assigning Watkins to PRVNT without subjecting him to testing. That's because Seaside P.D. and others have already worked with Watkins on gang matters, according to Calhoun.

"When Seaside was going through some of their gang activity, they sent out a mutual-aid assistance request from all the different agencies, and it just happened that I sent over Jeff Watkins, and he did an outstanding job working with the command staff over there and received praise from the chief," he said. "Normally, we would have testing, but by him going over there, they really certified his position. The commander for Seaside came up to me and was very appreciative of Jeff and his initiative and wanting to learn more. He really showed that, and I was proud of him the way he represented our department."

Watkins is also a member of the regional special response unit, "so there's already a team-working relationship."

Calhoun plans to rotate other CPD officers through the assignment, probably yearly, but says he wants to see "how it works out."

Watkins will be trained in writing and implementing search warrants relating to narcotics and gang activity, drug recognition and enforcement, and the laws of asset seizure and forfeiture, according to Calhoun.

The group will get most of its money through the illegally acquired assets of the drug dealers and other criminals it catches and prosecutes, according to the contract. If other agencies are working with the task force when the assets are seized, the proceeds will be divided "to reflect the proportionate contribution of resources from each agency dedicated to the investigation."

Sixty-five percent of the task force money will be used for drug-abuse and gang-diversion programs, as determined by a panel consisting of the Monterey County Sheriff, a police chief, the Monterey County District Attorney and the Monterey County Chief Probation Officer, with the remainder "allocated to the task force to be used for general operation and investigation costs until the task force council determines otherwise."

If there is any money left over, it will be divided among the member agencies. "Each department is covering the general overtime costs, if there are any, and with Jeff Watkins moving into this position, it will be under his regular patrol, so there won't be overtime costs," Calhoun said this week. "But the whole idea is part of the asset forfeitures is to go back into the program and then reimburse what the agencies have paid. It's anticipated that we'll have enough."

PRVNT will also have a commander to lead it, along with directors who will meet in open session monthly to report the task force's business, according to the agreement.

Comedian sells out, tickets still left for country music star

TICKETS ARE sold out for comedian Lily Tomlin's performance Friday at Sunset Center. But there are still seats available for country music star Clint Black's Jan. 28 concert. And tickets go on sale Friday for two new shows at Sunset.

Part-time musician Jeff Bridges — whose role in the movie, "Crazy Heart," earned him an Academy Award for Best Actor — performs Wednesday, April 3. He'll be backed by the Abiders Band. "He'll play music he's written, as well as some songs from 'Crazy Heart,'" explained Sunset Center's Natalie Hall. Tickets range from $55 to $75.

Also playing at Sunset Center is Medeski, Martin and Wood. They'll take the stage Thursday, April 25. "They're a funk trio that's been around for ages," Hall added. Tickets are $35 to $55.

The shows begin at 8 p.m. Call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

PARK DISTRICT ADDS ANOTHER JEWEL TO ITS CROWN

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

ONCE PROPERTY that belonged to A.M. Allan — who is credited with saving Point Lobos from development in the late 19th century — the 317-acre Whisler-Wilson Ranch has been sold by the Big Sur Land Trust to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District for $4 million.

The ranch will be incorporated into 4,300-acre Palo Corona Regional Park.

"Our intent in conserving this ranch is to create the opportunity for the public to experience, enjoy and learn from this exquisite landscape," said Bill Leahy, executive director of The Big Sur Land Trust. "The property's location adjacent to Palo Corona Regional Park will finally connect these properties and develop a vision for managed public access, trails, resource conservation and education programs that will serve to integrate the property into the larger parklands landscape."

According to Leahy, hikers one day will be able to access the property along the same trail that leads to a popular local day-hike destination, Inspiration Point. But first, money will need to be raised to pay for the work, and any project will need to go through the planning process.

Located on the property is a century-old hunting cabin that the land trust's director of community stewardship Lana Weeks described as "funky," "charming," and "gorgeous." She said the cabin could eventually be used for educational programs.

Using taxpayers' money, the transaction was paid for with $3 million of Proposition 117 funds and a $1 million grant from the California Coastal Conservancy.

CPD, sheriff invest in new wheels

■ Ford vs. Dodge

By MARY SCHLEY

YOU MIGHT think police officers covering a one-square-mile town wouldn't be that hard on their patrol cars. But Carmel's stop signs and narrow, sometimes nonsensical streets are actually pretty hard on police vehicles, requiring that they be replaced before they reach 100,000 miles, according to Carmel Police officer Chris Johnson. He oversees the department's fleet and recently purchased two new Dodge Chargers — an unmarked car for Chief Mike Calhoun and a marked car for patrol.

And the Monterey County Sheriff's Office, which covers a vastly larger territory and takes its vehicles out of full-time duty at about 120,000 miles, is in the midst of ordering almost two dozen new Ford SUVs, as well as a few other specialized vehicles, according to Sgt. Denis Greathead, who manages the agency's 190-vehicle fleet.

"With the constant stop-and-go driving here in town, when we get rid of our cars, that's 90,000 miles of Carmel driving," Johnson said. "That's not 90,000 miles of freeway driving. It's amazing how much that takes a toll on a car."

For decades, Ford's Crown Victoria was the mainstay for law enforcement agencies everywhere, but the company stopped building that model, replacing it with a new sedan based on the Taurus and a new SUV based on the Explorer, both specially designed for police use. Chevrolet offers a law-enforcement version of its Caprice, and Dodge markets the Charger.

The California Highway Patrol decided to purchase 1,800 Ford Interceptor SUVs over a two-year period, and the sheriff's office is buying 19 of the same to replace some of the agency's older Crown Vics, according to Greathead.

"We did a lot of research between the Dodge Charger and the Chevy Caprice, but when the CHP selected the Ford, that made us rethink it," he said. "They did a lot of testing with them. We read their report, and that made us lean more toward the Ford SUV."

The SUV also holds more gear than the sedans, none of which reportedly met the CHP's payload requirements.

"You can get the sedan in all-wheel-drive, but we thought for our needs, the SUV was better," Greathead said. "It has off-road capability and space for carrying all our gear. The guys carry a lot of stuff — it's their office for 12 hours."

The base price of the Ford Interceptor sedan is $23,242 and the SUV is $25,578, according to a state contract with Folsom Ford, but the Monterey County Sheriff's Office is paying $28,915 for the SUV's it's buying from Salinas Ford, according to Greathead. It costs about $20,000 more per car to fully equip each vehicle for patrol duty.

The sheriff's office is also buying three Chevrolet Tahoe PPVs from MY Chevrolet in Salinas for CSI vehicles and two BMW dual-sport motorcycles from a Ventura dealership for covering areas like Laguna Seca

Carmel police officers will be fully up-to-date, and look very cool, patrolling the town in this new Dodge Charger patrol car.

CONFLICTS

According to the FPPC, the statements, known as Form 700s, “are an important means for the official that files them, the media and the public to help gauge where potential conflicts of interest may exist.” The officials don’t have to disclose their primary residences but must include information about their income sources, investments, business positions, real estate holdings and any gifts they received that were worth more than $50.

“Merely reporting an economic interest is not a conflict in itself; a conflict arises when an official governmental decision, made by the official, impacts his economic interests,” according to the FPPC.

Carmel deputy city clerk Molly Laughlin provided the paperwork for elected and appointed officials, contractors and employees in 2011, as well as the forms of those who took office in 2012, and said the forms for 2012 are due in April.

Lots of stock

Hired more than a year ago, city administrator Jason Stilwell moved to Carmel from Santa Barbara and has “no reportable financial interests,” according to his disclosure form. Neither does city councilwoman Victoria Beach, her form says, while Hillyard said his investment in Chevron stock is worth between $10,001 and $100,000, and councilman Ken Talmage reported that his water filtration company, which is based in Manteca, is valued at more than $1 million. He earns more than $100,000 in salary as its chairman.

Burnett declared that he is the beneficiary of an individual trust which holds stock in Agilent Technologies worth $100,001 to $1 million, as well as a marital trust, which is much smaller, he said. He also owns a company that arranges financing for green energy projects. The company, Burnett EcoEnergy LLC, is valued between $10,001 and $100,000, he said, but he did not report receiving a salary from it. Burnett’s largest investments, worth $100,001 to $1 million, are in Old Westbury Private Equity Fund IX and Hewlett-Packard, of which his grandfather, David Packard, was a founder. Burnett’s other stock holdings worth $10,001 to $100,000 included Baxter International healthcare, Cisco Systems, McDonald’s and Wells Fargo, while stocks valued between $2,000 and $10,000 included Berkshire Hathaway, Coca-Cola, Discover Financial Services, Morgan Stanley and HSBC Holdings.

Calhoun listed his painting business, Finishes by Calhoun, and stated earnings at $10,001 to $100,000, as well as income in the same range earned by his wife, who is a teacher’s assistant at Junipero Serra School in the Carmel Mission.

Freeman, who also works as city attorney for Seaside, disclosed that he owns a home in Pacific Grove, a rental property in Seaside, his law firm and part of the building it occupies on San Carlos Street. His retirement plan through the City of Seaside is worth $100,001 to $1 million, he said. He also has investments held by UBS valued between $100,001 and $1 million and others held by Regal Discount Securities worth $10,001 to $100,000. Freeman’s individual stock holdings include Apple, Southwest Airlines, Mesa Air,

Johnson & Johnson, Walgreen Co., Time Warner, Philip Morris, Motorola, Symantec, AOL, Kraft Foods, Kansas City Southern, GE, Dow Chemical and others. As legal counsel for Carmel, Seaside and the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments, he earns between $10,001 and $100,000 from each in salary. (His contract with the City of Carmel is for $7,500 per month.)

Dallas, meanwhile, reported owning five properties in Carmel, all of which he rents out. Four brought in between $10,001 and $100,000 in 2011, while the fifth generated between $1,001 and $10,000.

Commissioners Keith Paterson and Don Goodhue said they have “no reportable interests,” while commissioner Jan Reimers said she’s an owner of the Stonehouse Terrace complex on San Carlos Street south of Seventh, which includes an apartment, shops, offices and a restaurant. She reported the value of the complex exceeds $1 million and that she earned between $10,001 and $100,000 from it in 2011.

Questions lead to corrections

Councilwoman Carrie Theis filed her Form 700 with the city in September 2012 indicating she had no financial interests that met the criteria for being reported, as did planning commissioner Michael LePage in June 2012. Although their signatures at the bottom of the page follow the declaration, “I certify under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct,” both failed to mention the businesses they operate in the city.

Following inquiries with the city about the missing information, Theis and LePage filed amended Form 700s.

As CFO and general manager of the Hofsas House hotel, of which she is also an owner, Theis reported the business is worth more than $1 million, she earned more than $100,000 from it in 2011, and that a house on the hotel property valued between $100,001 and $1 million generates annual rent between $10,001 and $100,000.

LePage’s amended form disclosed that he owns the general contracting business, LePage Construction, and said he earned $200,000 on construction projects in the city in 2011.

Elected officials have fun with gifts

By KELLY NIX

LAVISH DINNERS, free cases of wine, $10,000 trips to Ireland and rodeo tickets are all job perks if you’re an elected official.

From the governor on down to city council members and county supervisors, they all get free stuff for simply being who they are.

Elected officials are required to declare gifts on a Form 700 — a “statement of economic interest” that indicates what they received, whom they got it from and how much it’s worth.

The California Fair Political Practices Commission keeps tabs on the documents — which contain officials’ incomes, investments, property holdings and gifts — so the public and the press can identify potential conflicts of interest.

Meals, trips and flowers

According to the Form 700 filed by former Assemblyman Bill Monning, who was elected to the State Senate last November, from April 14 to April 23, 2011, while he was an assemblyman, he went to the United Kingdom and Ireland courtesy of the California Foundation on the Environment and the Economy.

The mission of the group — which ponied up $9,728.66 for Monning’s meals, transportation and hotel costs — is to “bring together business, labor, community, and environmental leadership with legislative and regulatory officials and expert academicians, in forums designed to address fundamental environmental and economic infrastructure issues.”

Some of the other freebies Monning received in 2011 included a $292 case of wine from Heller Estates Organic Winery in Carmel Valley; a $84.30 jacket from the John Perez for Assembly 2012 campaign; a $30 football from Monterey resident Timothy Barrett; a $90 tie from Bill Nye; and a $32.89 gift box from the California Rice Commission.

Monning attended numerous luncheons and dinners (some valued at hundreds of dollars each) sponsored by pharmaceutical companies, the California Democratic Party, and interest groups involving florists, car dealers, dentists and others.

Rodeos too

Like Monning, Assemblyman Luis Alejo — who represents the 30th Assembly District which includes the Salinas Valley — also traveled abroad. Alejo went to Israel courtesy of the Washington, D.C.-based American Israeli Education Foundation, which forked over $8,926 for the weeklong “educational tour.”

Apart from receiving the same $84.30 jacket Monning got, Alejo got two sets of boxing match tickets totaling $260 from Garcia Boxing in Salinas; a $170 ticket from the Pebble Beach Co. to attend the 2011 Concours d’Elegance; tickets valued at $155 from UC Berkeley to attend a Cal football game; and $100 tickets to the Salinas Rodeo.

Alejo also attended pricey dinners sponsored by organizations and businesses such as the California Democratic Party, Barona Band of Mission Indians, Mi Puebla Foods, California Correctional Peace Officers Association and the Tijuana-based LA Cetto Winery.

Members of boards of supervisors are also required to declare freebies.

District 2 Monterey County Supervisor Lou Calcagno listed only two gifts in 2011 — a pair of tickets to a Pebble Beach Co. luncheon valued at $150 and four tickets to the Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix motorcycle races at Laguna Seca.

Among the stock Calcagno holds are Green Mountain Coffee Roasters; Granite Construction; Bank of America; and Dairy Farmers of America, where he has checked the box noting the value of the stock ranges from $100,001 to $1 million.

Unlike many other local elected officials, Calcagno also has numerous investments to report. He said his company, Moonglow Dairy, is worth more than $1 million. He also has an ownership interest in the Moss Landing Heritage and History Center worth $100,001 to $1 million. And he lists about a dozen properties he owns in Monterey and Santa Cruz counties and Washington state worth millions of dollars.

On his disclosure form, 5th District County Supervisor Dave Potter said he had no assets to report except his company, Potter Construction, and not much in the way of gifts. He said he received tickets and lunch at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro Am, valued at $100; a $150 ticket to the Concours d’Elegance; and $130 in flowers from the Cannery Row Company on three separate occasions and a few other fee things.

Potter also said his outside income in 2011, derived from his company, was no more than $100,000.

Third District supervisor Simon Salinas said he owned two homes in Salinas and one in Texas. He disclosed no outside income and said he received only small gifts, such as tickets to Laguna Seca and the Concours. Disclosure forms filed by 4th District supervisor Jane Parker said she owns a home in Seaside but had no other assets or income to report. She also reported receiving no gifts in 2011. First district supervisor Fernando Armenta listed no outside income, assets or gifts.

CODE ENFORCEMENT RILES RENTAL OWNER, BUT COUNCIL LIKES IT

By MARY SCHLEY

EFFORTS TO make people comply with city laws continued apace last month and into early January, city administrator Jason Stilwell told the Carmel City Council last week.

Encroachments in the public right of way in the neighborhoods, illegal short-term rentals and business signs topped the list of priorities for code enforcement officer Margi Perotti and part-time code-compliance officer Al Fasulo, who is working on an hourly basis for the city. Stilwell said they are also working to remind people about the ban on plastic bags that takes effect next month.

"We are focusing on residential neighborhoods, with construction issues, and in commercial areas, and will continue to report back," Stilwell said.

Mayor Jason Burnett commented that code enforcement "flows from the overarching goal of community character that the council focused on as a goal for last year," and trying to bring about compliance "ensures everyone is following the same set of rules."

The crackdown on short-term rentals — those of spans shorter than 30 days — raised the ire of at least one homeowner, Southern California resident Amy Ward, who attended the meeting Jan. 8 to ask the city council to consider changing the law to allow people to rent out their homes to visitors for less than a month. She has garnered some support among other out-of-town property owners but after the meeting said she felt the council wasn't receptive to her pleas, and she has decided to sell the Carpenter Street house she had been illegally renting out for more than two years.

"None of the forward-thinking city officials, who are more progressive and realistic about what's good for the city of Carmel as a whole, will speak out for what's right," she said in an email. "They told me I was wasting my time, as they had been trying to make the city government see reason for years, and nothing ever changes. Now I've seen it first hand."

Ward said others are also selling their rental properties and predicted the city would lose a lot of money from the lost sales tax and business brought by the people who have been renting homes in town for a week or two. According to Ward, some 150 property owners have been using their houses for short-term rentals, in violation of the Carmel Municipal Code.

At last month's council meeting, Stilwell explained the philosophy of getting people to follow the rules "is really code compliance, rather than code enforcement, so we do a lot of counseling."

He explained that contact from Fasulo or Perotti usually follows a citizen complaint or an inquiry from a city worker "or from someone else who maybe raises the issue and gives us the heads-up to be able to follow up on it."

A site inspection determines if there's a violation, and citations and even revocation of a business permit can follow if the person doesn't obey.

"We've had our additional person for a little over a month, now," he said at the Dec. 4, 2012, council meeting. "That has allowed us to tackle some of these issues that require more time, like short-term rentals and right-of-way encroachment."

Councilman Steve Hillyard said he's glad to see progress on those fronts. "At the planning commission, we had to say, 'We're making these rules, and nobody's following them,' but this is really great progress," he said.

Point Lobos offers day of displays, talks

SHOWCASING THE portion of the park that lies beneath the waves, Point Lobos State Reserve celebrates Underwater Parks Day Saturday, Jan. 19, with a series of exhibits and talks. At the Whalers Cove parking lot from 10:30 a.m. to noon, divers from the Bay Area Underwater Explorers will talk about local marine invertebrates and the equipment they use. At Whalers Cabin from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., a series of marine environmentalists and filmmakers will talk about the world that exists just offshore from Point Lobos. And at the park's Whaling Station, a collection of underwater photographs will be displayed.

The public is invited to attend the festivities free of charge, although it costs $10 a car to enter the park. Visit www.pointlobos.org.

Gone but not forgotten, coach Ables praised by students, parents

By CHRIS COUNTS

HIS IMPRESSIVE tenure as a track coach at Carmel High School may be over, but John Ables continues to inspire a generation of students who ran for him.

After serving for 20 years as a track and cross-country coach at Carmel High, Ables, 74, was recently told by school officials that the job is no longer his. Many of those he coached aren't happy with the decision. School officials did not say why the coach was let go.

Under Ables' guidance, the Carmel High track program achieved tremendous success. The teams he coached — which included the boys and girls track teams as well as the boys and girls cross-country teams — combined for 58 league championships. At one point, the girls track team won 136 straight Thursday meets. The boys and girls cross-country teams each won three Central Coast Section titles. And the boys cross-country team won a state championship in 2003.

But perhaps more enduring than the glittering hardware that sits behind glass at Carmel High is the impact Ables, 74, had on those he coached.

A 2000 Carmel High graduate and former track team member, Jon Jonsson, told The Pine Cone that Ables utilized an approach that was positive and effective.

"He had very precise training programs for everyone on the team and was extraordinarily dedicated to improving the team as a whole," said Jonsson, who works as a patent attorney. "He had a tremendous skill in getting the best out of each individual."

Never one to focus on the individual laurels, Ables emphasized the importance of teamwork.

"His only demand was that Carmel High athletes cheer for each other during each event," Jonsson continued.

"Anyone viewing a track meet at Carmel High would have quickly noted that the track was lined with red uniforms cheering on their teammates. I think he understood that the most effective encouragement an athlete could get was from his teammates. The result was that everyone came out of it feeling as though they had been a part of something great," he said.

Another former track team member, Andreas Baer, called Ables a "hero" and "more than just a sports coach."

"He had a distinct ability of reaching out to each and every member of his team," said Baer, a 2000 Carmel High graduate and mechanical engineer who works for the City of Monterey.

"He would pick out the quietest students and integrate them into the sport. He would make these students important to all of their peers, and important to the team. He would do this by giving each student a nickname, by highlighting the small victories in a track meet, and ignoring the large victories. Every member of coach's team knew that they had a role on the team, felt included, felt important and learned something."

Those who posted comments online in response to a Monterey County Herald article echoed Jonsson's and Baer's sentiments.

A former track team member called Ables "one of the best human beings I have ever met — he was much more than a coach. Twenty years, later I still hear his words, 'Quitting is easy, fighting is hard.'"

A parent, meanwhile, observed that Ables' impact on students went far beyond the boundaries of the athletic field. "Three of my children were mentored by Coach Ables all through their time at Carmel High, and they all came away from that experience better human beings."

Ables declined to comment on the details of his dismissal. Instead, he summarized his coaching philosophy and his feelings about the students he mentored.

"It's not about winning — it's about becoming a better person," Ables told The Pine Cone. "I really love every kid I've ever coached. Every kid has given me back something far more than I've given him or her."

A website, www.johnables.com, is dedicated to the former Carmel High coach.

Longtime Carmel track and cross-country coach John Ables (center) won't be back in 2013. But some of the former students who ran for him are trying to keep his legacy alive.

But most of the assistance the group offers is monetary — everything from money for rent and utilities, to gas cards to help defray the costs of driving to and from medical appointments. Sometimes women with breast cancer have to stop working while undergoing treatment, and Greenbaum said she is seeing more cases of younger women, as well as those with no family history of cancer, being diagnosed.

"We get applications from women in their 20s and single parents with young children," Greenbaum said. "Our average grants are not that big, but at least we can get them through their transition periods. First of all, the diagnosis just knocks you off your feet, and then these bills start piling up, and it's overwhelming."

Mission born of experience

The Breast Cancer Assistance Group was founded in 1997 by four women who were struggling with the disease and "felt that this community's assistance to women with breast cancer could be broader and more thoughtfully conceived."

They developed a simple mission statement: "We want to help other women with this disease as we would want to be helped ourselves."

They accomplished that through the counseling that led to the development of the Patient Navigator Program, now run by Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula's Comprehensive Cancer Center and the American Cancer Society, which matches newly diagnosed women with survivors for one-on-one mentoring.

The nonprofit raises funds through its annual Bowl-a-Thon, this year set for March 16, and the support of local community organizations and businesses, including Carmel Valley Ranch Women's Golf Association, Oya Salon of Monterey, California Rodeo Salinas, Yellow Brick Road, The Community Foundation for Monterey County and the Monterey Peninsula Foundation help with administrative expenses.

"Every once in a while, somebody else pops up with a big check," she added.

Since the board is all volunteers and the BCAG has no paid staff, all of the donations go directly to the women in need. The board awards grants after reviewing applications, interviewing applicants and talking with their physicians.

The group will be installed in its new office in the Rio Road Professional Building by Feb. 1, and Greenbaum said it will hold its monthly board meetings and store its files there. She struck a deal with the building's management for a five-year lease with affordable rent, and the underground garage is far more convenient than the metered parking surrounding its former office in Pacific Grove.

"Four of us who are on the board live in Carmel, so we're very excited about having the office closer by," she said. "And the building — it's a nicer building, with a conference room and full kitchen. It's nicer, all around."

lon toilets by Dec. 30, 2000.

While those businesses are not being told to retrofit their toilets, non-visitor serving business such as banks and retail stores that were not required in 2000 to update their toilets are now required to install the 1.28-gallon version.

"We don't know how many businesses that will affect on the Peninsula," Pintar said.

Retrofits by non-residential customers will save approximately 160-acre feet of water per year, Pintar said.

She said the district is one step ahead of a requirement by the state, which in 2014 will require that only 1.28-gallon toilets be available for sale.

High efficiency toilets are readily available and stores have already been phasing out the old 1.6-gallon versions. Of the more than 30 different types of toilets Home Depot in Seaside offers, all but one is of the high efficiency variety, according to Pintar.

Some residential and commercial water users who install high efficiency toilets and other devices such as shower heads, faucets and clothes washers may be eligible for rebates and water credits.

Forest friends host tree giveaway

THE FRIENDS of Carmel Forest will hold its annual tree giveaway in the post office parking lot at Fifth and Dolores Saturday, Jan. 26, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. (The rain date is Feb. 2.)

Aimed solely at Carmel residents, the giveaway provides Monterey pines and California coastal live oaks for free, and experts on site offer advice for planting, watering and maintaining the young trees, too. Raised from local, disease-resistant stock, the Monterey pines and oaks are cared for, in part, by students at the Hilton Bialek habitat project at Carmel Middle School.

Carmel High girls basketball team downs rival P.G.

By LILY PATTERSON

THOUGH IT may not have all the hoopla of football season's "Shoe Game," any Carmel vs. Pacific Grove matchup promises nothing but the trademark intensity of a classic local rivalry. To echo fall's Shoe victory, the Carmel girls' basketball team beat P.G. 47-36 Sunday, January 5.

Coach Jeff Nakamura emphasized his team's defensive work, calling it "very crisp" in the face of the offensive challenge put up by P.G.'s Jessica Matthews, Vanessa Villarreal and Sabrina Riffle, who put up 11, 7 and 5 points, respectively.

Nakamura was also quick to commend Carmel's efforts on offense. "Kayce Stachelek had an awesome game with 16 points and 16 rebounds." Despite this outstanding individual showing, "we were very balanced." Holly Whittaker put up 9 points, flanked by Yui Lee and Josie Odello with 8 each. Odello sank two 3-pointers.

Carmel headed into their January 9 home game against Catalina with a 5-4 record, 1-0 in the MTAL. Defending MTAL champ Catalina took the win 30-22, despite another solid performance from Stachelek, who offered 12 points and 16 rebounds.

Carmel's January 11 home game against Pacific Collegiate School was postponed.

The team did not play again until Wednesday, January 16, in an away game against Stevenson that Carmel stole 39-21. To counter Stevenson's Jill Corliss with 9 points, Lee and Whittaker netted 8 points each, and Whittaker provided 3 assists. Stachelek scored 7, and Odello snatched 11 rebounds to round out another balanced showing across the board.

Out of its three MTAL games, Carmel now has a 2-1 record, and a 6-5 overall mark. The team will compete again on Friday, January 18 in a home game against Gonzales.

Local actresses honor 'Out of Africa' author

By CHRIS COUNTS

A TRIO of Monterey Peninsula actresses — Julie Hughett, Susan Keenan, and Anne Mitchell — portray late Danish travel writer Isak Dineson and read selections of her work Sunday, Jan. 20, and Monday, Jan. 21, at the Indoor Forest Theater.

Dineson — whose real name was Karen von Blixen-Finecke — is best known for writing "Out of Africa." Published in 1937 and set in what is now Kenya, the book recalls the author's life on a coffee plantation in the early part of the century.

Dineson is also the author of "Babette's Feast." Both "Out of Africa" and "Babette's Feast" were later made into Academy Award-winning films.

The event is presented by Pacific Repertory Theatre's School of Dramatic Arts. The event is the latest offering in its Words on Stage series.

Sunday's performance begins at 2 p.m., while Monday's show starts at 7:30 p.m. The theater is located at Santa Rita and Mountain View. Visit www.schoolofdramaticarts.org.

Road Signs Going Up

The erection, by the California State Auto Association, of the three hundred and seventy-five road signs throughout Monterey county is proceeding rapidly.

A representative of the association has been out in a motor truck placing the yellow and black signs at points north of Salinas, and it is expected that shortly the signs will be put up on the highway between Salinas and Monterey and Carmel.

300 Petitioners Urge Council to Act on Forest Theater

Prospects of the city council appropriating $2800 or any amount approaching that size for restoration of the Forest Theater appeared extremely remote after Wednesday evening's council meeting. The council was not unimpressed by the 297 names signed to petitions and small printed slips praying the appropriation, but their answer was that the council does not expect to have the money available this year.

At the end of considerable discussion, a motion was passed to appropriate $100 for a plan for restoring the theater; a plan which could be used perhaps next year if nothing could be done this year. As no one was at hand, despite all the petition signatures, to talk for the theater, the matter rested with that.

Horse Stables To Remain

Not in the immediate future, at least, will Lynn Hodges' stable be demolished to make way for a superservice station. When the city council convened to sit as a board of review on the matter of rezoning the northeast corner of Ocean and Junipero, C.H. Grimshaw, the petitioner, executed a surprise move by withdrawing his request.

Mr. Grimshaw's explanation was that while negotiations leading to the rezoning were carried on, the time for which he had an option on the property, owned by Mrs. Mary A. Goold, was running shorter and shorter. Having, one might assume, assurance that the option would not be renewed, he was withdrawing his request.

It is understood that Grimshaw was negotiating with General Petroleum, Associated Oil Company and Richfield Oil Company in his plan to build a $10,000 service station.

We Are Bigger

Tuesday, voters in the down-coast Palo Colorado School District voted 35 to 5 to join the Carmel Unified School District. Together with the Captain Cooper district further south, which had voted on 8 January 76 to 4 to join Carmel, the two districts will add approximately 80 elementary and 20 high school and junior high school students to the unified district.

Discount Rumors

Rumors of a discount house operation opening in Carmel have rumbled around the streets for the past several weeks. They [locals] are concerned with the implications of a little cardboard sign hanging in a door on 6th Avenue west of Mission, which says "United Factors, Inc."

At present, the business is only selling supplies for architects, but co-owner Dave Wald has said that it will soon expand into an import department store operation.

"It will be sort of like San Francisco's Cost-Plus operation," Wald has declared. This means a carefully accentuated warehouse-cum-market-stall environment for the sale of patio furniture, household goods, gift items, and possibly clothing and food.

Issuance of business licenses is being held up pending approval by Building Inspector Floyd Adams of improvements being made to the area which, on the Ocean Avenue side, is above the Sprouse-Reitz store.

Supes make it official in opposing offshore oil drilling

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors continued its support of coastal counties statewide this week, with a resolution opposing any oil and gas development off Humboldt and Mendocino counties.

"The counties have to get together and speak with one voice," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strausser Kauffman, who introduced Tuesday's resolution to the board.

"The threat of an oil spill would be potential to all of us," said Strausser Kauffman, who is only too aware of the odds of a catastrophe coming to pass. "At the very beginning, we have to say it's not appropriate to drill."

Valley master plan will be put to the test

The 130-page Draft Subsequent Environmental Impact Report for the Quail Meadows Subdivision is currently available for perusal and comment at the Harrison Memorial Library and the county branch office in Carmel Valley Village.

The master plan states that a total of 1,310 legal lots of record can be built upon during the next 20 years in the valley.

After receiving public comments on the EIR, the county planning department has two weeks to forward those to the EIR consultant, who then has three weeks to review the critiques.

and the lakes in South County.

Carmel's Chargers

Johnson, meanwhile, favored the Charger for CPD, citing its size and history with law enforcement agencies. While Dodge has been producing Chargers for police for nine years, Ford's latest Police Interceptor SUV and sedan are new, and the Caprice might be phased out, he said.

He also said Carmel officers liked the way the Charger felt, compared with the others, and said the prices were competitive.

"A couple of us have driven a combination of all the vehicles that are out there, and it came down to cost," he said. "The Charger is a less expensive vehicle than the others, and it has been around — it's tried and true."

The basic Charger V8 patrol car cost $26,780, with another er $14,499 added for equipment, including LED lights, the prisoner cage, plastic seats, spotlight, sirens and the $5,273 mobile data terminals that allow officers to file reports, run license plate numbers and take care of other business in the field.

Calhoun's Charger, which is grey and has emergency lights embedded in it, rather than located in a light bar on the roof, was $25,265, plus $4,176 to equip it.

"The exterior and interior look exactly like a passenger vehicle — you really couldn't tell it's a police vehicle without looking closer," Johnson said. It also has a V6 engine rather than a V8, because, though he could be, the chief's not normally involved in pursuits.

"His driving is a lot more highway driving — to meetings, conferences, that kind of stuff," Johnson said.

The city bought the Chargers from Pete's Dodge in Anaheim, and both cars were equipped by Lehr Automotive in Sacramento.

"Right now, I'm starting the process again to get all the dollar amounts figured to get another one in July, because we have a car that's pushing just shy of 80,000 miles starting to get into maintenance problems," he said.

threat to the public and "directly restrict the ability of the fire department to rapidly respond to 911-related emergency incidents."

In the suit, the city asked a judge to issue an injunction to force the school district and AT&T — which the city said jointly operated the tower — to keep it active.

However, city manager Tom Frutchey told The Pine Cone Wednesday that a temporary agreement was reached before that could happen.

"The city's sole interest in this matter," Frutchey said, "is to ensure uninterrupted cell phone coverage — especially 911 calls — for the areas of the city that fall within this tower's coverage zone."

According to the deal, the district will continue operating the tower at the adult school through Jan. 28. In exchange, AT&T will pay the school district $9,984 in fees.

After Jan. 28, the tower will be relocated next to the maintenance building at El Carmelo Cemetery.

The city also contended in its suit that decommissioning or removing the cell tower from the adult school would amount to a violation of the California Environmental Quality Act since removing it would constitute a "project" under CEQA law.

"PGUSD has failed to consider the environmental consequences of this action," according to the city.

This AT&T cell tower at the Pacific Grove adult school has caused a bit of ruckus. The city filed a lawsuit to keep it operating.

Dueling pianists offer free concert

By CHRIS COUNTS

A CONCERT in Pacific Grove Friday, Jan. 18, presents two pianists for the price of none.

Michael Martinez and Joe Bongiorno present free solo concerts at the Canterbury Woods Auditorium in Pacific Grove.

A 2008 graduate of Pacific Grove High School, the 22-year-old Martinez last year released his debut recording, "Big Sur Reminiscence." Last month, the young pianist entertained holiday shoppers with a surprise performance at Bruno's Market.

"We're going to be playing a lot of original music," said Martinez, who plays a grand piano alongside landmark Bixby Bridge at the annual Big Sur International Marathon.

Like Martinez, Bongiorno is a gifted instrumentalist whose influences span the musical spectrum, from classical and jazz, to pop and beyond.

The concert starts at 6:30 p.m. Canterbury Woods is located at 651 Sinex Ave. Visit www.michaelmartinezmusic.com or www.joebongiorno.com.

■ Duo pays tribute to songwriters

Pianist Dick Whittington and bass player Robb Fisher pay tribute to a quartet of songwriters from the golden age of jazz Saturday, Jan. 19, at Cypress Inn.

"We're playing a group of music by Cole Porter, Rodgers and Hart, Irving Berlin, and Harold Arlen," Whittington said.

Whittington offered a peek at the evening's set list — included will be standards from the Great American Songbook like Porter's "Easy to Love," Rodgers and Hart's "Most Beautiful Girl in the World," Irving Berlin's "How Deep is the Ocean," and Arlen's "Come Rain or Come Shine."

The show starts at 7 p.m., there's no cover, and well behaved pets are welcome. The Cypress Inn is located at Lincoln and Seventh. Call (831) 624-3871 or visit www.cypress-inn.com.

■ In the mood for accordion?

Accordion wizard Joe Domitrowich kicks off this year's music schedule at Lugano Swiss Bistro when he plays Friday, Jan. 18.

Showcasing his mastery of the accordion, Domitrowich covers a vast range of musical genres — his set list includes Glenn Miller's "In the Mood," Santana's "Oyo Como Va," Dave Brubeck's "Take Five," and the Beatles' "Ob-La-Di, Ob-La-Da."

The music starts at 6:30 p.m. and there's no cover. Lugano Swiss Bistro is located in The Barnyard shopping center. Call (831) 626-3779 or visit www.swissbistro.com.

■ Who's playing where this week

Pianist Madeline Edstrom leads a sing-along of jazz and pop tunes Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 18-20, at the Mission Ranch restaurant. And Monday through Thursday,

Retired journalist shows off her creative side

By CHRIS COUNTS

A NEW exhibit at the Carmel Valley library showcases the work of a local plein aire painter who spent much of her life working as a journalist.

The library hosts a reception for Isabelle Hall Saturday, Jan. 19.

After working for many years with United Press International in Toronto, Boston, New York and Washington, D.C., Hall and her late husband, Stan, edited and published the Carmel Valley Sun newspaper.

After taking up painting in 1994, Hall has traveled the west in search of inspiration for her work. She moved to Scottsdale, Ariz., in 1998.

This "painting" was created with fabric by Carmel Valley artist Mireille Barman, who presents a demonstration of her technique Saturday, Jan. 19, at the Carmel Valley Art Association.

"I paint on oiled linen on birch boards that fit into my portable pouchade box with my palette, brushes and paints," Hall explained. "All I need to paint a landscape takes just a few minutes to set up and everything weighs less than 12 pounds." The reception starts at 2 p.m. The exhibit will be on display through Feb. 28. The library is located at 65 W. Carmel Valley Road. (831) 659-2377.

Anton & Michel makeover, workers' lunch, and Tuesdays for locals

By MARY SCHLEY

AN INSTITUTION when it comes to French food in Carmel-by-the-Sea, Anton & Michel in the Court of the Fountains has closed for a major renovation. The restaurant is slated to reopen Feb. 1, just in time to greet the crowds arriving for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Upon completion of the first overhaul since Tony Salameh opened the restaurant in 1980, the dining room and lounge will boast an entirely new look and feel while maintaining their elegance. Salameh is working with his longtime friend, designer Nashwan Hamza of Hamza Design & Construction, on the "transformation" — Hamza's first restaurant redo, according to spokeswoman Liz Manning. Architect Adrian Lopez of ArchiLink Design Studio is another key player.

The redesign capitalizes on the light and airy feel of the dining room, which looks out on the picturesque courtyard and fountain. The color palette for the project includes tones of grey and white, as well as quite a bit of rustic masonry, which is being hand set throughout the interior, particularly around the fireplaces and the niches in the bar that will hold large-format bottles from Anton & Michel's prodigious cellar. The bar and lounge will be inviting, casual and comfortable, while affording views through the dining room to the fountains beyond.

The menu will undergo changes, too, while preserving some of the classics that have engendered a loyal following over the years, according to Manning. Along with the new bar will come an array of small bites upon which longtime Anton & Michel chef Mark Simpson is consulting with Quail chef and former Fishwife owner Julio Ramirez. The lunch menu will feature lighter fare, like salads, and a few new dishes will appear on the dinner menu, too.

For more information, or to reserve a place at the table after the reopening, call (831) 624-2406, email anton@carmelsbest.com or go to www.antonandmichel.com. The restaurant is located on Mission Street just north of Seventh Avenue.

Pranzo di Lavoro

Or, in English, Lunch for the Workers, will be launched Monday, Jan. 21, at Il Vecchio Italian restaurant at 110 Central Ave. in Pacific Grove. Available Monday through Friday from noon to 1:30 p.m., the workers' lunch will cost $9 per person, plus tax and tip.

The Pranzo di Lavoro will include a green salad and two pasta dishes of the chef's choosing, all served family style at the table.

Il Vecchio will not accept reservations for parties of fewer than six people for lunch, and no substitutions are allowed. Call (831) 324-4282 for more information.

New year, budget wines

To help those whose New Year's resolutions include spending less money — as well as to assist people who are simply looking for good wines at decent prices — Vince Ciolino and Bill Sites at Zeph's One Stop will host their annual tasting of value wines Thursday, Jan. 24, at 5:30 p.m. in their store and cafe at 1366 South Main St. in Salinas.

"We know the holidays are over, but are you really going to just drink water?" they asked in their announcement of the tasting. "Of course not."

The tasting will highlight wines that represent good quality for the price, and Zeph's will offer specials that night, as well as music and food. The tasting costs $20 in advance or $25 at the door. Call (831) 757-3947 for more information.

In Holman's backyard

The In Your Backyard Series returns for 2013 with a visit from baker and chef Elena Saucedo to the tasting room at Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley Village Thursday, Jan. 24, at 6 p.m. The series highlights local purveyors and artisans, and Saucedo, who owns and operates Sweet Elena's in Sand City, is well known for her sweet and savory creations.

During the course of the evening, she will demonstrate her craft and discuss wine pairings. She will focus on cooking with products from the farmers market to create the traditional Brazilian fish stew known as moqueca.

Reservations are required for the event, which costs $25 per person, a portion of which will benefit the Alzheimer's Association. To make reservations, call (831) 659-2640. The Holman Ranch tasting room is located at 19 East Carmel Valley Road.

Tuesdays are for locals

Cantinetta Luca and 400 Degrees restaurants offer 15 percent off for locals every Tuesday. Present ID to get a discount on Luca's wood-fired pizzas, pastas and other Italian delectables, and gourmet burgers and fries a few blocks away at 400 Degrees. The Tuesday deal runs through March 31.

Cantinetta Luca is located on Dolores south of Ocean and can be reached by calling (831) 625-6500 or visiting www.cantinetaluca.com, and 400 Degrees is at the corner of Mission and Seventh and can be contacted at (831) 244-0040 or www.400degrees.com.

that includes a hands-on bartending session, a cruise along Pebble Beach's scenic 17 Mile Drive, flights of classic cocktails, deluxe accommodations, breakfast and a silver martini shaker, complete with logo.

The 45-minute mixology session allows guests to take a crack at crafting the perfect Sazerac, French 75 or Clover Club, or the less conventional Sidecar cousin, Between the Sheets. The Classic Cocktail Flight for two ensures a bit of liquid indulgence, and the occasion is to be remembered by a logo'd silver cocktail shaker to take home. Mixology lessons are available Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, and advance reservations are required.

The 17 Mile Drive tour constitutes an hour-long ride in a chauffeured vintage car with stops at Ghost Tree and the iconic Lone Cypress in Del Monte Forest.

Stays start at $220 per night, double occupancy, with a two-night minimum based on availability. Owned by Doris Day and Denny LeVett, the Cypress Inn is located on Lincoln Street at Seventh Avenue. For reservations, go to www.cypress-inn.com.

■ January's to-go Tuesdays

Wild Thyme deli announced its options for this month's ToGo Tuesday Dinners, which can be picked up at Fresh From D'Vine Produce in Salinas, Cima Collina Winery in Carmel Valley and Wild Thyme in Marina every Tuesday, from 3 p.m. until closing. The meals, which cost $22 and provide enough food for two people, are designed to be reheated and assembled at home.

Offerings for Jan. 22 include pappardelle with lamb sugo, greens and pecorino; Grandma Claire's buttermilk fried chicken and mashed potatoes with peas and biscuits; winter squash ravioli with pancetta and sage cream sauce, and braised Brussels sprouts; and minestrone soup.

For Jan. 29, choices include turkey breast piperade with a pepper and onion sauté, and mashed potatoes; braised brisket with vegetable gravy and potato pancakes; ricotta-stuffed portabella with vegetable marinara; and French onion soup.

Each meal comes with a house salad and bread.

Order by Monday at noon at (831) 884-2410 or www.wildthymedeli.com/togo.php. Pickup locations are Fresh From D'Vine Market at 115 Monterey/Salinas Highway in Salinas, Cima Collina Winery at 19 A East Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley Village, and Wild Thyme Deli and Cafe at 445 Reservation Road in Marina.

■ Wine and chocolate

The Dawn's Dream Winery tasting room in Carmel Valley will celebrate "the perfect marriage" — wine and chocolate — during a special tasting Friday, Feb. 1, from 4 to 7 p.m. The event will showcase the sweet treats of Marich Confectionery Co.

Located in Hollister and specializing in handmade chocolates, jellies, caramel, taffy, nougat, gum, mints, licorice and other candies, Marich was founded in 1983 by Marinus van Dam.

Tickets are $10 ($5 for wine club members), and reservations are recommended. Call (831) 659-2649.

■ Ag Against Hunger wants birdies

Ag Against Hunger, which collaborates with farmers to provide surplus fresh produce to food pantries, soup kitchens and other organizations, is seeking donations through the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am's Birdies for Charity program. During Birdies for Charity, the Monterey Peninsula Foundation, which hosts the program, matches up to 20 percent of participating charities' fundraising. In the five years since it was implemented here, Birdies for Charity has raised more than $1.2 million for local nonprofits.

According to AAH, the money raised will help the group to collect more surplus vegetables and fruits for the homeless, the working poor and others who find feeding themselves or their families a challenge.

Donations can be flat gifts or based on the number of birdies the pros make during the course of the AT&T Pro-Am, which will take place at the Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Monterey Peninsula Country Club golf courses Feb. 7-10. To contribute, visit www.attpbgolf.com/charity/birdies-for-charity/participating-charities.

■ Augustina's fundraiser

Upscale Augustina Leathers will hold a fundraising shopping event from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 5, benefitting the Central Coast Wine Classic. The store, located on Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets, will donate 5 percent of the evening's sales to the Central Coast Wine Classic, which was selected by Wine Spectator as one of the Top 10 Charity Auctions in America. The auction of rare wines, "lifestyle packages" and fine art raises money for charitable projects in San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties in the healing, performing and studio arts.

The fundraiser will include trunk shows of Michael Toschi's golf and driving shoes, and Comstock Heritage's designer silver buckles, as well as a raffle for a $250 Augustina gift certificate and other prizes.

Admission is free, but space is limited to 150 guests, so an RSVP is required to Marci Bracco at (831) 747-7455 or marci@chatterboxpublications.com. To learn more about the store and its offerings, call (831) 624-2403 or visit www.augustinaleathers.com.

■ Lugano's guest chef

Swiss Chef Christian Sprecher of Country Club Caterers will make an appearance at Lugano Swiss Bistro in the Barnyard shopping center Friday, Jan. 25, at 6:30 p.m., when he'll prepare a five-course prix fixe dinner paired with wines from Bernardus.

Priced at $55 per person, the menu features porcini crostini with 2010 Carmel Valley Chardonnay; butternut squash bisque, cumin pastry twist and Napa cabbage salad with 2009 Pinot Noir; Dijon and herb-encrusted roasted rack of lamb with pomegranate demi glaze, savoyard potatoes with spinach eggplant rotini and tomato concasse paired with 2006 Marinus; and bread pudding with vanilla bean crème Anglaise.

To reserve, call (831) 626-3779 or email lugano@swissbistro.com.

■ L'Auberge reopens

L'Auberge Carmel and its restaurant, Aubergine, have reopened following an extensive remodel. A design team led by decorator Kathleen Fink oversaw the interior improvements, including new furnishings, fabrics, carpeting, paint, artwork and finishes in the guest rooms, plus new bedding, enhanced showers and bathrooms, and eco-friendly bath products and linens.

Aubergine, meanwhile, reflects "a chic contemporary sophistication," with new carpeting, fabrics, lighting, chairs and artwork. A custom-built cheese cave in the restaurant's dining room is particularly pleasing to executive chef Justin Cogley, and a fish tank carries stocks of live spot prawns, sea cucumbers and abalone for him to cook.

L'Auberge is located on Monte Verde Street at Seventh Avenue in downtown Carmel. To learn more, go to www.lauberge-carmel.com.

■ Wood is people's choice

At the inaugural Foragers Festival in Big Sur last weekend, Carmel Valley Ranch chef Tim Wood was named People's Choice during the Fungus Face-Off cooking demo. The two-day festival benefited the Big Sur Health Center.

Wood's dish, which was also awarded the Best Use of Wine by a three-judge panel, was matsutake-braised beef ragout, roasted garlic, mizuna, Carmel Valley Ranch salt and shaved black truffles on crostini.

Judges Jim Dodge, Michael Bauer and Wendy Brodie also awarded:

■ Most Inventive Use — Mark Marron and Sherry Gladstone of Big Sur Affair Catering, for their chanterelle-infused vodka martini paired with dungeness crab cake with chanterelle poblano sauté, wild mushroom saffron risotto and pecorino cheese;

■ Most Unusual/Unique Creative Dish — Carl Shadwell of Ripplewood, for his pate choux puff with chanterelle, Meyer lemon, lavender and honey ice cream;

■ Best Table Display — Enrique Esparza and Steve Mayer of the Big Sur Taphouse, for their French dip with chanterelle jus with black sage and specialty salts of black sage, Meyer lemon, chanterelle and oyster mushrooms;

■ Most Artistic Presentation — Tim Tavadara of Nepenthe and Douglas Bush from The Cultured Abalone Farm, for their abalone porcini fritter with pickleweed and red seaweed;

■ Most Easily Adapted to Home Cooking

— Scott McMullen of Fernwood, for his mushroom, banana squash and goat cheese bread pudding with pistachio pesto;

■ Most Nutritious/Healthy — Matt Farmer of Coast Gallery, for his chanterelle and roasted garlic bisque (made using no cream; thickened with rice); and

■ Best Vegetarian Dish — Philip Wojtowicz of Big Sur Bakery, for his gougere filled with chanterelle mousse.

Pairings for the face-off included the wines of Baker and Brain, Calcareous, Comanche Cellars, Chappellet, Chesebro Wines, Mesa del Sol, McIntyre Vineyards, Morgan Winery, Pessagno Wines, Silvestri and Scheid.

Carmel Valley Art Association.

Born in France and raised in Switzerland, Barman now lives in Carmel Valley, where she finds inspiration in the landscapes — and colors — that surround her.

"Color is like music and sunshine," Barman explained. "We are surrounded by color the minute we get up. Sadly a lot of people don't see it."

Gallery owner Shelley Aliotti called Barman's work "impeccable." "Everyone is so intrigued with her work when they realize every piece of fabric is sewn into place," she added.

Meeting Malcolm at the movies

LOCAL FILM buff Malcolm Weintraub kicks off a new series, "Meet Malcolm at the Movies," Wednesday, Jan. 23, at the Cherry Center for the Arts.

According to Weintraub, the series offers an opportunity discover or rediscover historically important and wildly entertaining films, "which you might have missed from genres and filmmakers you might have thought you knew."

For the series' first installment, Weintraub looks at John Huston's 1950 landmark crime film, "Asphalt Jungle." Starring Sterling Hayden and Jean Hagen, the film features a cameo by a previously-unknown actress, Marilyn Monroe.

Hosted by Weintraub, the monthly series will examine a diverse collection of films from the United States, Italy, Sweden, France and Spain. The subject matter ranges from drama and suspense, to action and comedy.

Showtime is 7 p.m. Tickets are $10. Call (831) 624-7491 or visit www.carlcherrycenter.org.

The latest and greatest thing you have to do for your own good

ONE THING about the government: You can always count on it to come up with plenty of new things for people to be required to do. Some of these rules are actually good ideas and go to government's most basic purposes, such as making the streets safe and protecting individual liberty.

And then there's the 1.28-gallon toilet.

Not too long ago, faced with an intractable water shortage that threatened the health and safety of the people of the Monterey Peninsula, the local water district went deep into its well of wisdom and started requiring people to get rid of the four- or five-gallon-per-flush toilets that had been around since the toilet was invented, and replace them with new, eco-friendly 1.6-gallon per flush models. Over the years, tens of thousands of local homeowners and businesses have complied at great expense. The new toilets work poorly, make a lot of noise and constantly have to be double-flushed and cleaned, but, hey, we've gotten used to them. The water shortage is an emergency, right? So who's going to complain about spending a few hundred bucks and going to quite a bit of inconvenience when there's an emergency to be alleviated?

Truly, we've all been indoctrinated with the idea that never hosing off a sidewalk, installing low-flow showerheads, faucets and toilets, planting drought-tolerant landscapes, and instituting a host of other water-saving measures are practically moral obligations, and requiring universal compliance with such precepts is one of the essential achievements of modern law and environmental conscientiousness. Hooray for the 1.6-gallon toilet.

Unfortunately, as with most environmental issues, yesterday's triumph of green thinking and technology is today's wasteful capitulation to consumerism and capitalistic excess.

Thus, just as suddenly as pretty much everybody got through installing and learning to live with the 1.6-gallon toilet, voilà!, it's no longer good enough. You must switch to the latest and greatest 1.28-gallon model.

Of course, you're being offered a "rebate" to make the switch. But the rebate is with your money. BFD, as they say on the Internet.

When programs such as this come along, you have to wonder if the toilet-manufacturing lobby is behind the change. Remember when GFI outlets became required for every outlet in new homes and remodels? You can be sure the people who make those expensive outlets were the proponents of the rule. And when carbon-monoxide detectors were suddenly required in every single-family home, the smart money would have invested a year or two ago in the companies that manufacture those detectors and the retailers that sell them. Radon detectors aren't required in every living room yet? Somewhere, somebody is working on the campaign to convince Congress and state legislatures that people all over this great nation are dying horrible deaths that would be prevented ... if only every family were required to spend $100.

And somewhere else, the half-gallon-per-flush toilet is being developed, and after that the waterless model. (Oh, wait. They already have that. It's called an outhouse.)

Keep working, folks, because you're going to need a lot of money to buy things you don't yet realize you can't be allowed to live without.

Anti-party law a good idea

Dear Editor,

I must compliment Heath Rocha, student services director for the Carmel School District, for taking a strong stand against underage alcohol consumption by encouraging the Carmel City Council to adopt a "Social Hosting Ordinance" (Pine Cone, January 11). I believe this ordinance will be an effective tool to protect teens and give law enforcement officers the ability to more effectively intervene when parents permit teen drinking at parties as well as require parents maintain responsibility for supervision of teen gatherings.

Having seen firsthand the tragic consequences of teen drinking in our community over the years, I applaud the efforts of Rocha and the parents at Carmel High and encourage Police Chief Mike Calhoun to promote this ordinance and the city council to enact it.

More details about Flavin death

Dear Editor,

Your weekly excerpting of past issues ("A century of Pine Cones") is a very interesting project.

You should know the following about the Jan. 4 entry, [which recalled the death of Sarah Keese Flavin, who drowned at Yankee Point in December 1937 while taking photographs of the beach, according to a report in The Pine Cone at the time].

Sarah Flavin was the wife of a famous Highlands resident: Martin Flavin.

He was a prolific, successful and Pulitzer prize-winning author and playwright.

He is also known for having Charles Sumner Greene make many design changes to his home (which still stands strong) on Spindrift.

I had no idea that his wife had died in this tragic manner. He later married and died at Spindrift in 1967.

A family that's famous for cars also specializes in the arts

YOU MAY know the name, Lucas, because Sally's husband, Don, founded the Lucas Group of auto dealerships. Anyone who watched television or listened to the radio around San Francisco Bay would have seen or heard commercials for the Lucas Dealership empire. It began in the early 1960s and grew for several decades.

Sally and Don met while in college at San Jose State. They married shortly thereafter and started a life together.

"I was teaching in grammar school, and he sold cars from our apartment. He also bought a few and fixed them up and sold them, and that's how he started. It was the right place to be," Sally says.

After a lifetime as one of the nation's most successful car dealers, Don had to close 50 new car stores in California and Hawaii and was the biggest Honda dealer in the world.

But this is about Sally. She opened up a design business — what she called, "design, interiors, use of space, commercial, residential." They stayed in Saratoga for 45 years. They still have a little house in Los Gatos but have set their roots in Pebble Beach and have become actively involved in Monterey Peninsula life.

They have contributed to The First Tee and helped to start Hospice of Monterey County, which was the first one in California.

"We are major supporters of Community Hospital. My husband serves on its foundation board," Sally says. "I also support the Monterey Museum of Art, in a small way."

About seven years ago, he got out of the car business, and Don made a $10 million contribution to the San Jose State Business School.

For Sally, the critical issue has always been the arts. Recently, she contributed a similar sum to Montalvo Art Center in Saratoga to kick off a $50 million endowment campaign. "I went to work for Montalvo. That's been a big passion of mine, and I've been very involved in it. We built an artist's residence center. We've had over 300 artists from all around the world come for one to three months at no charge. We usually have 10 artists from all genres — writers, choreographers, visual artists, chefs."

She bemoans the fact there isn't more focus on the arts down here and attributes it to the fact so many of the residents are part-timers who are divided in their loyalties, for instance with the San Francisco cultural world.

"I grew up in Southern California. We went to everything — the Pasadena Playhouse, the Greek Theater, the Philharmonic, the Laguna Playhouse, whatever it was. My family loved all of that. They loved to travel and were interested in history and art and education," she said.

Her upbringing helped her out as a teacher, too.

"I learned when I was teaching that no matter the child and no matter how uninterested they are in school, you can engage them through some creative process. You know, you turn math into some kind of a creative game, then all of a sudden you might get their attention. It's just ideas and the creative process," she said.

Her passion came out, "It's not just painting, it's creative writing. Children do all that stuff naturally. You just have to sort of encourage it."

Sally and Don were recognized last year by the Silicon Valley Community Foundation as Philanthropists of the Year. "We were the only arts people involved. They don't give to any arts organizations."

She's not happy with the educational system. "I was teaching when the teachers in Northern California decided to unionize, and I thought that was so terrible, because I thought it was so greedy. Because, if you're hired, after two years, you had a job for life.

"My grandkids got some of those teachers who had jobs for life who should never have been teachers. Our youngest grandson goes to boarding school now, because he just quit going to school in about sixth grade, and he's a really smart kid." He told his grandmother that his teacher hated him. She went to see for herself and found it was true. The teacher hated teaching, and the students were bearing the brunt of it.

She worries about the direction of education today, and scoffed at the new UC logo design. "I was astonished that anyone had the guts to take it out into the light. That was stunning to me."

I asked her about the Alisal school trustees deciding to name a new school after a thief and murderer. "I don't understand what their logic is. When I first saw it, I thought they must want attention."

While she has focused on arts education in school, Sally Lucas knows that the seed of creativity is best sewn at home in the early years. "Maybe kids have so many other things to do that there's no incentive. But they have to get involved in it, when they're younger."

District explains pine's disappearance

PEOPLE NOTICING a lot more sky in the Carmel High School parking lot have been asking why the Carmel Unified School District decided to remove a towering Monterey pine that had stood for decades between the lot and the school library, according to Kris Stanga, director of human resources for the district.

Late last year, the district "began the task of felling the stately Monterey pine tree," after personnel noticed it was leaning and had been dropping an inordinate number of pine cones. Worried it was sick or dying, district officials hired an arborist, who "determined that the tree was indeed dead and in imminent danger of falling, and advised the district to immediately remove it, as it posed a safety concern."

District officials are determining how best to use the space opened by the tree's removal, according to Stanga.

Lacrosse team shines at tourney in Golden Gate Park

By CHRIS COUNTS

OUTSCORING THEIR opponents 57-25, a team of local youth lacrosse players won a prestigious tournament last weekend in Golden Gate Park.

Showcased at the inaugural King's Showcase Tournament were the talents of two Carmel High School lacrosse players, sophomore goalie John Wood and freshman attacker Morgan Koucky. In the six-game, 24-team tournament, Wood made 17 saves and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

"We call him 'Woody,'" coach Mario Enea told The Pine Cone. "He was terrific."

Koucky tied for the team lead with 11 goals. "This was his first high school tournament," Enea added.

Composed mostly of players from Carmel High, Pacific Grove High, Stevenson School, York School and Palma School, Tribe 831 opened the tournament by defeating Golden Gate, 9-6. In the next two matches, the Monterey County youngsters trounced Golden Gate and Booth, winning 11-2 each time. Next up, the locals outlasted an East Bay team, "925," 11-8.

In a semi-final matchup, Tribe 831 downed Booth 6-4. In the championship game, the locals whipped the NorCal Braves, 9-3.

While Enea said he was impressed by the boys' performance, he wasn't completely surprised by it.

"We were a little bigger and more physical than anybody we played," said Enea, who coaches for Palma School. "Everybody knew their role and finished strong. I couldn't be prouder of them."

Also excelling for Tribe 831 were Nicholas Wameling of Aptos High, who tallied 11 goals; Alec Negri of Pacific Grove High, who scored four goals in Sunday's final; Ryan Galloway of York School, who recorded six goals and three assists; and Austin Lord, Jr., of Pacific Grove High, who added seven goals.

When he's not coaching at Palma School, Enea's owns and operates a new lacrosse training facility, Braveheart Lacrosse (1157 Forest Ave. Suite B), in Pacific Grove.

Enea's assistant coach for the tournament was Nick O'Conner, who takes over as Carmel High's lacrosse coach this season.

Mandatory reading before you make up your mind about gun control

IT'S A slippery slope. Oh, yes it is.

When the government comes around to take my assault rifle, what's going to stop them from sending me to the neighborhood death camp?

And when they force me to register my arsenal, who's going to keep them from allowing me to exercise my First Amendment right to scream into a YouTube video that I'm going to kill anyone who comes for my guns?

And when they start limiting my cartridges, how does government expect me to blast the bejabbers out of those wily little dinner rabbits who are such difficult targets because they hop around so much?

It's a slippery slope, I say.

Because when the commies and the socialists and the government bureaucrats storm Carmel Plaza with their military arsenal, you'll thank your lucky stars that the security guard is packing heat.

And when the anarchists and the fascists and the zombies have surrounded Carmel High, you'll curse the day you thought that arming the drama teacher was a horrible idea.

And when they pry my H&K MP5-A2 submachine gun from my cold dead fingers, you'll know that the end is at hand because our freedoms have been destroyed, once and for all.

A slippery slope.

The bleeding-heart libtards question what need I could possibly have for my G3A4 assault rifle, with the 90-round magazine and the retractable butt.

Well, for starters, it's a great conversation piece, perfect for those awkward moments, like those parent-teacher conferences when the teacher is looking at you with those weird eyes and trying to figure out what she's going to say and how she's going to say it.

My assault rifle also guards against wretched terrorists who are constantly threatening my family. You can never be too careful, not when it comes to those terrorists. Several years ago, for instance, I ran into Osama bin Laden at the Northridge Mall. I swear to God it was him, but by the time I could retrieve the assault rifle from my pickup, the slithery devil went back into hiding.

The assault rifle is particularly useful during embarrassing situations, like the time I was surrounded by panicky security guards at the Northridge Mall.

Also, some of us get real bored with the "challenge" of taking target practice with the measly single-shot .410. Sometimes it's a lot more fun to blast away the beer can, the wooden post the beer can is sitting on, and all the flora and fauna within range.

Blasting away with my assault rifle helps take the edge off, and I've been real edgy these days, what with Obama trying to eliminate my freedoms.

It's a slippery slope, indeed.

Workshop attracts dozens to weigh in on beach trees

By MARY SCHLEY

'WAY MORE' people than usually attend meetings of the Carmel Forest and Beach Commission gathered at city hall Monday afternoon for an informal workshop about the trees on the sand dunes just north of Ocean Avenue along San Antonio, and whether they should stay or go, according to city forester Mike Branson.

Some argue the Monterey cypress and pines should be removed in order to return the dunes to their more natural state of mostly barren sand, while others claim the trees are an essential part of the "urban forest" that is an important aspect of Carmel's beauty and charm.

Branson presented the history of the area and outlined the various city laws that seem to apply, before soliciting comments from commissioners and the public.

"People on both sides had reasonable arguments for the whole thing, and we'll see where it goes from there," he said.

The forest and beach commission will have to decide the trees' fate, although it's unclear when the issue will be placed on the commission's agenda. When it is, Branson will present a packet of information that includes comments made at the workshop, as well as those made during a meeting last September, and emails sent by those who couldn't attend.

"Basically, it comes down to how the city wants to manage that area," he said, adding that he might seek followup comments from the consultant who recommended that the trees be cut down, or at least not replaced.

"In her report, she talks about removing trees [on the dunes] now, or removing them when they die," Branson said, in contrast to the city's general plan, which calls for replacing all trees on public property as they die.

Council tours will now begin at 4 p.m.

THE CARMEL City Council needs more time for business on the Monday afternoons preceding its regular meetings each month, so members voted last week to move the time of their monthly tour of inspection to 4 p.m. from 4:30 p.m.

The change will give council members more time to visit sites they are planning to discuss, such as Flanders Mansion or home projects being subjected to appeal, before they begin their customary closed-session business and then host the 5:30 p.m. workshops that Mayor Jason Burnett implemented after he was elected last April.

"The council has determined that it is in its best interest to have an additional 30 minutes in which to conduct necessary business, which frequently includes holding a closed session meeting that same day, before adjourning to the monthly public workshop at 5:30 p.m.," the council said.

The change will take effect next month.

BLANKET EFFORT TO WARM THE HOMELESS

By KELLY NIX

MONTEREY PENINSULA residents are being asked to do their part to make sure homeless people in Salinas keep warm during winter.

Kayla Kennedy, who lives in Dallas but has a home in Carmel, began the drive after seeing a KSBW-TV report about a woman in Salinas who had collected blankets for the homeless, only to have them disappear when someone stole her truck.

The temperatures in Monterey County have dipped below freezing in the past week, making it especially difficult for those without shelter.

"We have so much, and these people have nothing," Kennedy said. "I thought that surely people who are so affluent would want to help."

And people did. Kennedy, with lots of help from friend Darran Ross, also of Carmel, reached out to hotels for blankets. One of those glad to donate was David Lambert, general manager for the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Monterey. "He was in the process of getting rid of 500 or 600 blankets," said Kennedy.

After that, Cypress Inn general manager Fiona Ayers, and Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley also donated blankets. La Playa Hotel has expressed interest in donating to the cause, she said.

Kennedy said she and Ross have arranged for individuals to make donations of blankets and other cold-weather items to the homeless. "The fire departments here in and mid-valley said they would be happy to accept donations from anyone," she said.

Apart from blankets, homeless people in Salinas also need coats, mittens, socks and other warm items.

Kennedy said everything donated would be given to Dorothy's Place, a nonprofit on Soledad Street in Salinas, for distribution to the homeless.

Gregory John Danelz

Greg was born in Minnesota and moved to Carmel with his family in the mid 1940's. He was a 1955 graduate of Carmel High School, and devoted his life to education, first in Colorado and California, and later was a teacher and County Superintendent in the the Bitter-root valley of Montana. He passed away in late November at his home in Seal Rock, Ore, at the age of 75.

Greg was a great lover of the out-of-doors, and shared a lifetime of camping and hiking with his friends and family. He was a great admirer of President Teddy Roosevelt, and held a special place in his heart for bears of all kinds.

Greg is survived by Joanne, his wife of 55 years. His sister, Marcia Lyon Carmel, sons Craig, Steve, and Jeff, and by 5 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

A family gathering in his memory will be held this spring in the mountains of the Sierra Nevada.

HOTLY DEBATED CUSTODY CASE BACK IN COURT

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

ACCUSED OF kidnapping her own son, Eva Ruiz Gomez is scheduled to return Jan. 25 to the Monterey County courthouse in Salinas, where her attorney will ask the judge to dismiss the charges against her.

Her supporters say Gomez is a devoted and hardworking mother who has never broken the law. But the father of her 14-year-old son claims she is a kidnapper who fled to Mexico to evade authorities.

If the judge dismisses the charges against Gomez, the Monterey County District Attorney's Office could appeal the ruling, prosecutor Todd Hornik told The Pine Cone. If the judge decides not to dismiss the charges, the case could go to a jury trial.

Now a Pacific Grove resident, Gomez was living in Big Sur when she was arrested in 2010 and charged with a felony for depriving the father of her child, Ramón Muñoz, of his custody and visitation rights. The arrest came shortly after Gomez returned to the United States after living in Mexico for seven years. Gomez insists she left the country with full legal custody of her son.

Ruiz's attorney said she's been to court more than 60 times over the past three years.

The case has attracted the attention of the Mexican Consulate, which sent a representative, Salinas attorney Blanca Zarazua, to Ruiz's last hearing Jan. 11.

Supporters of Ruiz have created a blog about her case: www.friendsofeva.org.

The hearing is scheduled for 9 a.m.

COLLINS

approved and participating in meetings to decide whether it should be.

Also at the court hearing last week, the judge appointed a public defender to represent Collins, who had previously been represented by Michael Lawrence and Juliet Peck.

During his preliminary hearing in November, Butler said "there is sufficient cause to believe [Collins] is guilty" and ordered him to stand trial.

Collins has long maintained he did nothing wrong and said he never over billed Ocean Mist. He also said numerous county officials, including County Counsel Charles McKee and former county water board general manager Curtis Weeks, knew of his dual roles in the regional desal plant and told him there was no conflict.

Collins, who has no prior criminal record, could spend numerous years in prison if found guilty of the charges.

Another hearing on the matter has been set for Feb. 2 in a Salinas courtroom.

Linda Rowland-Jones and facilities manager Martin "Hubbs" Hubback — the quad has been a godsend.

"It makes a huge difference," Rowland-Jones said. "It's a good walk up the ridge [two or three miles uphill], but you don't want to be carrying your groceries. Also, we're able to use the quad to help others on the ridge."

On her blog (<http://survision-bigsur.blogspot.com>) Rowland-Jones is keeping the outside world informed about life on "Partington Island."

"Partington Island may become a real 'eco-resort,' where we pack everything in and out on foot or on 4-wheel drive quad vehicles," Rowland-Jones wrote this week. "As a friend of mine coined it, we could become 'Quadlandia' and remain tranquil in the stillness of nature. Everything is somehow smaller and closer as we reach out to our neighbors to arrange rides, share supplies and drink wine together. We solve each problem the lack of road creates step by step, and build consensus over the best course of action for rebuilding it."

The main road to Partington Ridge remains impassable and could take several months to repair. An estimated 40 people — about half over 60 — are currently living on the ridge.

efforts on developing a new water supply. But they asked the judge to let them revive the suit later if need be, and the SWRCB agreed that they could.

Because the suit wasn't decided in anyone's favor, Kirwan found that the Sierra Club and the steelhead group were not prevailing or "successful" parties in the lawsuit, which Quinn said they needed to prove in order to justify the reimbursement of attorney costs.

POLICE LOG

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed from Mountain View per section 22651(o) CVC — expired registration.

Pacific Grove: Man advised dispatch he saw a reported missing person on Lighthouse Avenue who is the subject of an alert. He advised the possible sighting occurred at approximately 0930 hours on Jan. 2, the day prior. No further information could be provided. Information was forwarded to Marina P.D.

Pacific Grove: Damage from attempted forced entry on Central Avenue. Nothing discovered missing. No suspect information.

Big Sur: Woman reported accidentally leaving her iPhone 4 at a business. When she returned, it could not be located.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 4

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report that a woman south of 10th Avenue on Scenic Road was trimming her hedge. City forester is aware of it.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on San Carlos Street. Property damage only.

Pebble Beach: Report on Club Drive that a juvenile stole a $14,000 golf cart from a local golf course. The cart has been recovered, and the juvenile has been identified. Case continues pending further investigation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person called to report two suspicious subjects in a business on Lincoln Street. The subjects were gone prior to CPD arrival, but a license plate of the suspects' vehicle was obtained. Through further research, CPD was able to locate identification of one of the subjects, and he was positively identified by the business staff. There was no crime, and this information case is for information only.

Pacific Grove: Report that a homeless man entered a movie theater on Lighthouse Avenue during a movie. Customer reporting the homeless person said he was unable to locate any employees at the end of a film for assistance. He felt employees should be watching the front entrance of the theater for safety reasons. A movie-theater representative said due to limited staffing, employees are not always available after the end of a film. Representative also said a "homeless" male frequents the theater and is a paying customer.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle 1 struck the rear of vehicle 2 on Pine Avenue. Neither party injured.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE T.S. No. 1368843-42 APN: 012-663-007-000 TRA: LOAN NO. XXXXX7226 REF: Gaskins, Delois Marjorie IMPORTANT NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED April 22, 2008, UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. On January 24, 2013, at 10:00am, Cal-Western Reconveyance Corporation, as duly appointed trustee under and pursuant to Deed of Trust recorded April 29, 2008, as Inst. No. 2008026769 in book XX, page XX of Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of Monterey County, State of California, executed by Delois Marjorie Gaskins, Trustee of Trust Dated March 22, 2004, will sell at public auction to highest bidder for cash, cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings bank specified in section 5102 of the financial code and authorized to do business in this state: At the main entrance to the county administration building, 168 W. Alisal Street Salinas, California, all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State described as: Completely described in said deed of trust: The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 1606 Marietta Street Seaside, CA 93955 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be held, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, condition or encumbrances, including fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to pay the remaining principal sums of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $402,701.46. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and

Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (619)590-1221 or visit the internet website www.rppsales.com, using the file number assigned to this case 1368843-42. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web Site. NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE File No. 7301.29512 Title Order No. 7013925 MIN No. 100031800630050965 APN 103-091-023-000 YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST, DATED 07/19/04. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. A public auction sale to the highest bidder for cash, cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, check drawn by state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings association, or savings bank specified in §5102 of the Financial code and authorized to do business in this state, will be held by duly appointed trustee. The sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. Trustor(s): THOMAS P. BRADLEY, A MARRIED MAN Recorded: 07/27/04, as Instrument No. 2004077859 of Official Records of MONTEREY County, California. If the sale is set aside for any reason, the purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the deposit paid, plus interest. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the beneficiary, the Trustor or the trustee. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. LOG

SATURDAY, JANUARY 5

Pacific Grove: Burglary of a home on Sloat Avenue. Suspect fled on foot while being chased by the victim.

Pebble Beach: Person on 17 Mile Drive stated a teenager exposed himself to the person's 5-year-old son approximately six months ago. Case continues.

Pebble Beach: A tenant at a Spanish Bay Circle residence reportedly vandalized and stole expensive appliances from a rental unit before the tenant was evicted.

Carmel area: Camino del Monte resident found her 74-year-old neighbor deceased in her neighbor's home. The cause of death appears to be natural.

Big Sur: Welfare check on an employee at Plaskett Creek Campground.

Big Sur: Subject arrested for possession of stolen property at the a business on Highway 1.

Pacific Grove: Woman came to the station with her friend and her sister. All three had been crying and appeared distraught. Alice Street resident reported she had been assaulted and raped by her live-in boyfriend. She advised this occurred in Monterey at the time. MPD was dispatched for the primary. SART was later activated by MPD. The 25-year-old male suspect was arrested.

Pacific Grove: Anonymous report of a garage sale on Marino Pines Road with no permit on file. Contacted subject at the residence and advised a permit was needed. Sale shut down.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle 1 struck Vehicle 2 (parked) on Forest Avenue and left scene.

Pacific Grove: Subject contacted while lying on the ground on Arkwright Court. Unknown length of time the subject was down. Subject had dried blood on the face. Subject transported to CHOMP.

Pacific Grove: Monarch Lane resident reported his girlfriend missing when she did not call him to check in.

Pebble Beach: A nurse at CHOMP reported an elderly patient might have been sexually assaulted in the area of the Holman Highway and Highway 1. Upon further investigation, the deputy investigating the case determined the sexual assault never occurred. Case closed.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 6

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported the loss of a ring set while on Carmel Beach on Jan. 2.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 70-year-old male was stopped on Torres Street and cited for driving without a license.

Pacific Grove: A 21-year-old male sprayed pepper spray on another party while they were arguing in their Ransford Avenue residence. Suspect arrested, booked at PGPD and released on bail.

Pacific Grove: Water runoff was creating a hazardous condition on Buena Vista Avenue.

Pacific Grove: Report of child neglect and malnutrition at a Lincoln Avenue residence. Investigation revealed complaint was unfounded.

Pacific Grove: Report of a male driving under the influence. The 73-year-old was contacted on Pine Avenue and found to be driving under the influence and on a suspended driver's license. Suspect arrested, booked and released on citation.

Pacific Grove: Noise disturbance on Second Street. Daughter refused to go home with father.

Carmel Valley: A male was arrested on Carmel Valley Road by CHP for DUI.

MONDAY, JANUARY 7

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Cellular phone found on the roadway on Dolores Street in the commercial district. Owner is unknown. Held at CPD for safekeeping.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: While backing out of a parking stall on Eighth Avenue, driver backed into another vehicle, causing minor damage to the grill of the parked vehicle. No injuries.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Purchases from various retailers found abandoned at a store on Ocean Avenue during December were turned over to CPD for safekeeping or return to owner.

Pacific Grove: Conducted security checks at school campuses.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to a report of a male who fell while riding his bike on Ocean View. Male claimed that falling off bike was due to poorly maintained roadway and that he planned on suing the city for damages. Subject declined medical attention. The roadway, bike and abrasion on knee were photographed. Information only.

Pacific Grove: Responded with Monterey Fire and ambulance to a child who was bitten by a squirrel on Ocean View Boulevard. Father stated that they were playing in the park, and his son was standing still when a squirrel walked up to him and bit him on the left pointer finger. Family stated that no one was feeding the squirrels, just looking at them when one must have mistaken his son's finger for a peanut. Fire and ambulance treated the child on scene. Nothing further.

Pacific Grove: Hit-and-run at Country Club Gate. No leads.

Pacific Grove: Husband, age 27, pushed wife during an argument on Lincoln Avenue and threatened her. Husband then restrained his wife when she tried to exit their vehicle. Husband arrested and booked at PGPD before transport to county jail.

Carmel area: Victim reported the theft of jewelry from his home on Seventh Avenue.

NOTICE TO READERS: California law requires that contractors taking jobs that total $500 or more (labor or materials) be licensed by the Contractors State License Board. State law also requires that contractors include their license number on all advertising. You can check the status of your licensed contractor at www.cslb.ca.gov or 1-800-321-CSLB. Unlicensed contractors taking jobs that total less than $500 must state in their advertisements that they are not licensed by the Contractors State License Board. The PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION requires household movers to include their PUC license number in their ads. Contact the PUC at (800) 877-8867.
