Backcountry hikers rescued by CHP helicopter

By CHRIS COUNTS

A PAIR of hikers were rescued by a California Highway Patrol helicopter April 26 in Big Sur after a couple living nearby heard them calling out in distress.

"We live in the last house on Partington Ridge," resident Jim Merz reported. "My wife, Heidi, heard cries for help from somewhere to the east of us. It was hard for us to hear them, but we realized somebody needed help, so we called 911."

Merz said Monterey County Sheriff's deputy Don Smyth and CHP officer Peli Miro "quickly responded to our house" after he called the emergency hotline.

CHP spokesman Robert Lehman told The Pine Cone the two hikers were located on a steep, brushy ridge above the Partington Ridge residential community.

"They got up there [on the ridge], but they couldn't get back down," Lehman said. "We hoisted them out and transported them back to their car."

Merz identified the hikers as Thela Darrah and Jim Atkinson. Lehman said they were uninjured.

The hikers began their odyssey April 25 when they parked their car along Highway 1 and walked up the Tanbark Trail, which travels from Partington Cove to a scenic vista adjacent to the Tin House

Tenants locked out in fight over Ocean Ave. building

By MARY SCHLEY

ONE OF town's busiest restaurants was shut down, locks were changed and a security guard was stationed outside the building at Lincoln and Ocean Wednesday as a long-simmering legal battle came to a head after a Monterey County Superior Court judge issued an order allowing a trust to seize control of the building from Constance Dudley.

The lockout came a month-and-a-half after Monterey County Superior Court Judge Kay Kingsley found Dudley in contempt of court for refusing to follow a 2007 order giving control of the complex to a trust that includes attorney Andy Swartz, Breck Tostevin and Dudley's ex-husband, Paul Laub. That order demanded she relinquish control of all rents, assets and management of the building, which includes Dametra Cafe and Constance Wine Bar, to the Lincoln Trust.

Big Sur man accused of stabbing cab driver

By CHRIS COUNTS

JUST MINUTES after a cab driver was stabbed to death in Monterey Wednesday, police arrested a 20-year-old Big Sur man, Joshua Kannon Claypole, on suspicion of murder.

The victim, 44-year-old Daniel Garcia Huerta of Salinas, was found suffering from multiple stab wounds at Enterprise Rent-A-Car in Monterey. The incident happened at about 1 p.m.

Police at first believed the suspect had barricaded himself inside the business, but efforts to find him were unsuccessful. After CPR was administered on Huerta, he was pronounced dead at the scene.

Shortly after responding to the incident, police received a 911 call from a woman who said her red Ford F150 truck was carjacked. The man who stole the vehicle — and threatened her with a knife — matched the description of the assailant who stabbed Huerta.

The stolen truck was sighted near Del Monte and

Carmel Sands Lodge has new owners

■ P.B. Co. V.P. and innkeeper spouse

By MARY SCHLEY

TRADEWINDS INN owner Susan Stilwell and her husband, Pebble Beach Company executive vice president Mark Stilwell, bought the Carmel Sands Lodge from Wells Fargo Bank for $6.5 million last week. They will not pursue plans to build a new hotel in its place, they said.

Susan Stilwell, who has turned the Tradewinds into one of Carmel's most honored luxury hotels, said she was eager to take on another project in town.

"I was looking for the right opportunity to buy another hotel in Carmel, and Carmel Lodge fit the bill perfectly," she told The Pine Cone Wednesday. "It's a great location and just a block-and-a-half from Tradewinds, so it's very convenient for me."

The motel stretches the entire block of Fifth Avenue and about half a block on San Carlos Street, and includes a restaurant. Former owner David How had planned to demolish it and build an upscale boutique hotel designed by Pacific Grove architect Eric Miller, but those plans were never implemented because of the recession, and Stilwell said she plans to update the existing hotel rather than scrap it.

"I'm going to keep it running and gradually upgrade it to make it a very nice property," she said. (Her husband, Mark, "is not involved at all and doesn't have the time to be involved, frankly," she said.)

Beyond knowing she will beautify and improve the lodge, Stilwell hasn't had much time to figure out the specifics, such as what sort of establishment will open in the space that for years housed Simpson's restaurant, followed by Kurt's

Bobcats on the prowl

YOUNG BOBCATS taking advantage of spring's bounty have been hunting rodents in Gerhard Bensberg's backyard adjacent to Mission Trail Nature Preserve, coming within 10 feet of his home. "They are great gopher hunters, and I have seen them catch at least two gophers in my yard," he reported. "The ones I saw were a pair and seemed to be young. They are quite cute to look at."

SEABORN BEING SOUGHT IN ANOTHER DUI CASE

■ Bail bondsman is looking for him, too

By MARY SCHLEY

CHARLES SEABORN, the former Carmel Highlands man who went to prison for killing bicyclist Daniel Vasquez on Highway 1 near Point Lobos in 2007, is on the lam after failing to appear in Santa Clara County Court in February, according to an investigator working for the bondsman who fronted Seaborn's $110,000 bail.

Seaborn, who has been living in a Gilroy apartment on Monterey Road, was stopped by a California Highway Patrol officer Dec. 12, 2012, on a highway offramp after a motorist alerted authorities that a van matching his was speeding, according to "Kara," who would not provide her last name but said she is an investigator searching for Seaborn on behalf of Gilbert Ramirez of Ramirez Bail Bonds.

When he was stopped, Seaborn refused to undergo a breathalyzer test and was booked on charges of felony DUI, refusing to submit to chemical testing and driving without proof of insurance, according to Kara.

"Thankfully, this time no one was killed or injured," she said. "He knew that this was a violation of his parole."

He made the $110,000 bail with help from Ramirez, but after his parole officer learned of the new arrest and

Good morning, Mr. Wilson

THE MOST entertaining thing about Mr. Wilson is the person who raised him – the woman who shares stories about her beloved Blockhead as if she were doing stand up on stage. Meanwhile, Mr. Wilson, a 100-pound Blockhead English Labrador retriever, snoozes through her show as if it has nothing to do with him.

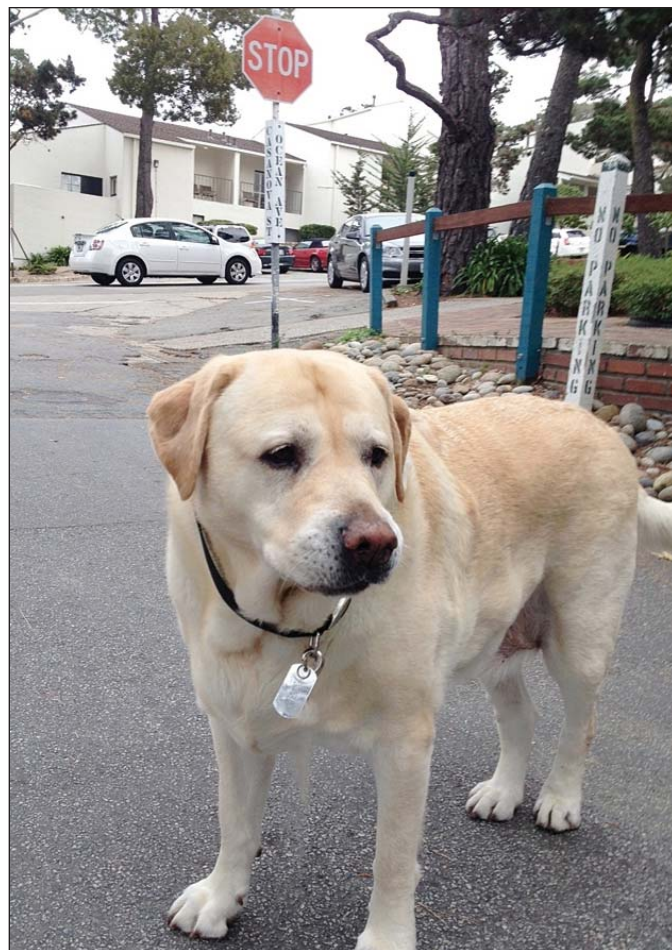

When he arrived from Kansas at the Monterey Airport, the 8-week-old puppy rolled out of his crate looking like a grumpy old man. So she named him "Mr. Wilson," after the neighbor in "Dennis the Menace." She thought about renaming her cat Dennis, but Susie stuck. So did Mr. Wilson, who has since grown into his name.

Now nearly 10, Mr. Wilson spends a lot of time stretched out on the floor, but if anyone mentions treats, he will thump his tail. Once.

Raised on Scenic Road, he meets a lot of people on the path overlooking Carmel Beach, and even more among those waving from windows as he passes by. But his most social stretch is Ocean Avenue, where he has become a true tourist attraction, as he is known for toting his own treats.

"I work at a clothing store," his person says. "As long as I put a treat in the bottom of the bag, Mr. Wilson will carry customers' purchases to their car, making him the most photographed dog in town."

Mr. Wilson loves nothing better than the beach. Once he hits the sand, he comes to life, hurtling himself toward the shore. There's no stopping to sniff seaweed, no hello to other dogs; it's straight into the surf. And it's always a three-towel trip.

Every morning when she awakens, his person says, "Good morning Mr. Wilson, I miss you when you're sleeping," which elicits another tail thump.

Security company owner pleads not guilty to tax evasion, other charges

By MARY SCHLEY

ANTHONY PEREZ — owner of Salinas-based private security company ESA International — entered not-guilty pleas in Monterey County Superior Court Tuesday afternoon to felony and misdemeanor charges of tax evasion, failing to pay payroll taxes and not providing workers' compensation insurance. A preliminary hearing has been set in his case for May 23.

Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Carol Reed said Perez, who also goes by the name, Tony Vincent, is accused of not reporting employee wages, not registering as an employer, tax evasion, and not paying the taxes he was legally required to collect for employees, such as SDI.

The company provided security services at the Barnyard shopping center, Rabobank in Salinas, and other local businesses.

"Employers have to pay taxes for all of their employees," she explained. "There are different types of taxes they are responsible for paying," as well as for withholding employees' taxes and paying them to the state.

Reed couldn't say how much money Perez allegedly shirked the state, but the details will come out in the case, if it proceeds to trial. The four counts are being levied against him via the state Employment Development Department, which enforces the Unemployment Insurance Code, according to Reed, and one is a felony, while three others are "wobblers," meaning they could be charged as misdemeanors or felonies, depending on the judge's choice.

If Perez is charged with felonies, each carries a maximum penalty of $20,000 in fines and up to three years in prison, which would be served in the Monterey County Jail, due to state prisoner realignment laws, Reed said.

Perez was also charged with two misdemeanor counts under the Labor Code for not providing workers' compensation insurance for employees and not posting information about workers' comp. The penalties for those crimes include $10,000 in fines or double the premiums he would have paid — whichever is higher — and up to a year in Monterey County Jail.

Represented by defense attorney Andrew Liu, who used to work for the district attorney's office, Perez entered not-guilty pleas to all the charges in court April 30, and he is set to appear in a Salinas courtroom again Tuesday, May 21, when it will be determined whether both sides are ready to proceed to the preliminary hearing May 23. At that hearing, the prosecution will present its case, including possible testimony from law enforcement, and Monterey County Superior Court Judge Julie Culver will determine whether sufficient evidence exists to take the case to trial.

Anthony Perez

Meanwhile, since the news broke that Perez was suspected of workers' compensation fraud and tax evasion, he has newly incorporated his business with himself as manager/president and established a new license with the state Bureau of Security and Investigative Services. He has also revived his website, which was defunct for a while.

While Perez' company no longer has security guards at Rabobank, the National Steinbeck Center or the Barnyard, the Oldtown Salinas Association is continuing to honor its contract with ESA until it expires in June, when the business organization will seek new bids and grant the contract to the firm that offers the best price, according to KION.

School district seeks new board member

■ Mat Fuzie leaving for state parks post

By MARY SCHLEY

CARMEL UNIFIED School District board member Mat Fuzie is moving to Sacramento after being appointed deputy director for state park operations by Gov. Jerry Brown, and the district is looking for someone to replace him. Fuzie, who was the local district superintendent for California State Parks and joined the board in 2009, is now in charge of running all of the state parks and their support services — a job that requires him to relocate to the state capital as soon as his daughter, Emma, graduates from Carmel High School.

"I took the job on March 18, and I was asked two months prior to that to consider it," he said this week. "I've been spending partial weeks up there and working out in the field. A lot of it is getting around the state and problem solving."

Much of that problem solving includes how best to spend public dollars in state parks, a task not dissimilar to the work he did as a member of the CUSD board of education. Over the years, Fuzie said he has learned a lot about the district — including how the state budget affects actual learning.

"Carmel Unified is a wonderful school district, and it's run really well," he said. "The fiscal and financial management really have been phenomenal." In particular, regarding the district's use of millions of dollars in local bond funds, he said administrators and the board "leveraged those school bonds many times over to get the facilities they have."

"I hope the parents and people in the Carmel Unified School District continue to support their schools," he said. "They're really vital to the community."

The search is under way for the right person to finish out the remaining six months of Fuzie's term, and applications, which are available at www.carmelunified.org or at the office near Carmel Middle School, are due by 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 21. Interviews will be conducted by the board a week later, and the appointee will have the option of stepping down at the end of the term or running for election on the Nov. 5 ballot.

CUSD Superintendent Marvin Biasotti praised Fuzie for his work on the board and his "genuine commitment to civic service." He said Fuzie has a talent for getting to the core of each issue, "asks discerning questions and is particularly astute in understanding the impact of the board's decisions on students." He also mentioned Fuzie's sincerity and sense of humor.

And Edmund Gross, chief academic officer for the district, said he was fortunate to have worked with Fuzie when he was president of the parent-teacher organization at Carmel Middle School, where Gross was principal at the time.

"I fondly remember his position statement as the middle school's PTO president," Gross recalled. "He unequivocally stated that he had no agenda. He was there to do whatever was needed to help improve conditions for students, teachers and the school."

Longtime board member Annette Yee Steck said Fuzie was "a fine board member and excellent board president." She said his job as an administrator informed his perspective as a board member, and therefore helped the board stay on track, stick to its priorities and work more effectively with the district's administration.

Anyone interested in applying to fill Fuzie's vacancy must live within the district boundaries and must not otherwise be disqualified from holding civil office. (Those convicted of a felony, for instance, are ineligible.) Candidates will be interviewed by the board during its May 28 meeting in the Carmel Middle School library, and members of the public can provide input either in writing or in person at the meeting.

BURN BAN IN EFFECT FOR SUMMER

CAL FIRE suspended all open burning within the areas it covers in Monterey County, in order to reduce fire risk in light of this year's infrequent rains, low humidity and parched vegetation.

Wildfires are already burning out of control in some parts of the state.

The state fire agency will allow burning for agriculture, land management, fire training and other industrial uses only after the burn site is inspected and a special permit is issued.

Chicken law, music law, hospitality fee and garbage hauling on council agenda

By MARY SCHLEY

FINAL ADOPTION of the ordinances allowing live music in bars and chickens in yards, as well as a possible request for proposals from trash haulers and updates on the hospitality improvement district and impending water projects, are on the agenda for discussion and action by the Carmel City Council Tuesday, May 7.

A look at lease proposals for Flanders Mansion, however, is not part of the lineup for the meeting, which will begin at 4:30 p.m. in city hall on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean.

The ordinances, both of which were adopted at their first readings last month, call for renewing the provision allowing live music to be offered in venues selling alcohol, and for permitting residents to keep up to two chicken hens in their yards, as long as their pens are not a nuisance to the public.

While the live-music law was loosened to not require the expiration of use permits every three years, and to not require renewal of the ordinance itself every three years, the council last month tightened the chicken ordinance to provide a maximum of five permits, total, to be issued for the keeping of hens on residential property. Roosters are not allowed. If adopted, each ordinance will take effect in early June.

Also set for discussion are Mayor Jason Burnett's update on water supply projects and the California Public Utilities Commission process, as Burnett holds a key position on the mayors' water group and has been testifying before the PUC; the review and approval of the annual $1-per-room-night Hospitality Improvement District assessment and report; and a draft of a request for proposals for solid waste, recycling and organics collections — services long provided by Waste Management, Inc. — and related comments that will be provided to the Monterey Regional Waste Management District.

When he speaks at the beginning of the meeting, city administrator Jason Stilwell will update the council and the public on code-compliance efforts and the work to recruit a new community planning and building director. He'll also give a quarterly report on city finances and present the proposed 2013/2014 budget, which will be discussed during special meetings next month.

Following Stilwell's reports and the public-comment segment of the meeting, the council will vote on its consent calendar, the list of routine items that includes last month's check register, past meeting minutes, monthly fire and ambulance reports, and other noncontroversial matters.

Additional items on consent for the May 7 meeting include the acceptance of $3,000 from the Barnet Segal Charitable Trust for Ocean Avenue landscaping and Devendorf Park improvements, a proposal to change the pay of the paramedic/firefighters who work on the city ambulance, audited financial statements for the 2011/2012 fiscal year, and amendments to the council's policy on the public display of banners for community events.

The council is also set to vote on an agreement with Walker Parking Consultants to update a parking study conducted for the city 13 years ago and a contract with Monterey County Free Libraries to offer literacy services at Harrison Memorial Library.

Actor finds condor nest, worries about military helicopters

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR THE folks at the Ventana Wildlife Society — which successfully reintroduced the California condor to central California — the recent discovery of a nesting pair of condors in a remote part of southern Monterey County was a cause for celebration.

“It’s very important,” declared Kelly Sorenson, executive director of the Salinas-based nonprofit. “We’ve found a total of eight nests on the Central Coast this year, and that’s the most we’ve ever found.”

Two decades ago, the condor was nearly wiped out in California, and today there are only 67 condors living in the wild in Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties, and only 232 in the Northern Hemisphere.

The nest — which is located on U.S. Forest Service land — was sighted by actor Timothy Bottoms, who owns a ranch nearby. “When I first met Tim 17 years ago, he predicted condors would one day nest in the area,” Sorenson said.

In a post he made April 27 on the Pelican Network — which provides a forum for local and regional environmental issues — Bottoms said he’s worried military aircraft are “harassing” condors, as well as creating a nuisance over his ranch. He identified the culprits as “United States Army Cobra attack helicopters” and suggested they had strayed from Fort Hunter Liggett.

Fort Hunter Liggett spokeswoman Susan Clizby told The Pine Cone the helicopters actually belong to the Marine Corps. When asked if it is possible to have them avoid the condor nesting area, she said, “I spent all day yesterday trying to answer that question.”

According to Clizby, Fort Hunter Liggett only has jurisdiction over the 24,000 vertical feet above the base’s 165,000 acres. So if aircraft stray beyond those boundaries, complaints need to be addressed to the pilots’ commanders. She said she’s trying to do just that.

Clizby insisted officials at Fort Hunter Liggett are com-

VILLAGE GROUP NEEDS HELP KEEPING SHERIFF'S FIELD OFFICE OPEN

By MARY SCHLEY

THE COMMUNITY field office next to Kathy's Little Kitchen in Carmel Valley Village helps keep the Monterey County Sheriff's Office connected with the community — and serves as a useful place for interviewing suspects and victims of crimes in the area — according to Sheriff Scott Miller. But the Carmel Valley Village Improvement Committee, a group of residents and business people who work to keep the neighborhoods clean and undertake other local projects, is having a hard time raising the $8,400 needed to pay the CFO's annual rent.

"It's a nice community tie between law enforcement and the Village, and we enjoy that relationship, but we understand there's a cost associated with it," Miller said. "We appreciate their efforts to keep it going."

Looking for contributions

CVVIC secured the storefront on Carmel Valley Road and has been covering the rent since 2009, sometimes having to use money intended for other projects — such as pedestrian pathways in the Village — to keep the office open. The group is looking for more contributions to continue running a law-enforcement outpost its members, as well as people involved in the Carmel Valley Association, the Tularcitos School PTA and other groups, find valuable.

Miller said deputies who work on the Peninsula and in the valley, including the far reaches of Cachagua, use the office as a base of operations. The convenient location allows them to remain the Village, rather than having to make the hour-long round-trip drive to the station at the Monterey courthouse or the CFO at the Crossroads shopping center in order to file reports or conduct interviews. The community field office is secure and contains a computer that deputies in the field can use to access the countywide system enabling them to collect and distribute sensitive and crucial information.

"It does give us an opportunity to meet with people locally, take reports and interview in an office setting," Miller said.

Furthermore, he said, the presence of deputies in the area may help curb crime there, and their use of the office enables them to respond more quickly to incidents and emergencies in the valley.

"We'd like to think it helps mitigate those issues," Miller said. "Of course, we are sensitive to the fact that it costs money and understand there might be other things people would rather spend their money on. We really appreciate the relationship we have with CVVIC and appreciate the opportunity to have the office and want to maintain it."

Formed in 1978, CVVIC is a nonprofit, volunteer-run group of residents and businesses "dedicated to preserving the rural lifestyle of the Village while making improvements for the enjoyment of both residents and visitors." In addition to funding the CFO, the group's key projects have included undergrounding power lines, purchasing park land, creating the "welcome park" and sign at the entrance to the Village, keeping public grounds landscaped and beautiful, and constructing walkways to make the Village more friendly to pedestrians.

Tax deductible donations can be mailed to CVVIC, P.O. Box 2001, Carmel Valley, CA 93924. Indicate in the memo field whether the money should be used for the Monterey County Sheriff's Community Field Office or for the general improvement fund.

MOST P.G. SHOP OWNERS DON'T WANT PLASTIC BAG BAN, SURVEY SAYS

MOST BUSINESS owners in Pacific Grove don't want a ban on plastic bags, according to a survey conducted by the city. In a "face-to-face" survey of 51 businesses, 64 percent asked said they are not in favor of a plastic bag ban that would also require patrons to buy a paper bag. But 75 percent of shop owners said they wouldn't mind a ban on plastic bags if customers didn't have to pay for a paper bag to replace it.

The owners and managers of retail stores, grocery stores, restaurants and gas station shops took part in the survey, which was performed at the request of the Pacific Grove City Council.

In April, the city's public works intern, Polly Perkins, walked door to door asking shops what they thought of a ban. If an owner or manager of a store wasn't available when Perkins went to the store, a written survey was left at the door with a flier and a prepaid envelope.

Of the shops surveyed, 44 percent said they distribute plastic bags to their customers. Of those, 22 percent said they use recycled bags donated by customers and other organizations. Finally, 67 percent of businesses said they "would be willing" to voluntarily stop distributing plastic bags.

Monterey has a plastic bag ban that requires customers buy paper bags. Carmel's a ban took effect in February, but the city does not require patrons to pay for the alternative bags.

A more comprehensive report of the survey results will be presented to the city council, the city said.

inside the boundaries of Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

At some point, the couple accidentally veered off on a deer trail and didn't realize their mistake until they were lost. They spent the night in a clearing, and the next day they continued on, hoping they would either meet the trail again or cross a road.

Nearly out of water, the hikers were feeling the effects of dehydration and fatigue when their cries for help were heard. They credited Merz and his wife — as well the rescue workers — with saving their lives.

"We would still be there if not for your keen hearing and the help of the wonderful rescue team," Darrah posted on a social media website. "We're both so grateful to be alive today."

While the rescue cost thousands of dollars, the hikers probably won't be required to pay for it.

"We want people to be responsible, but we're not going to leave anybody stranded," Lehman explained. "We help them the best we can and make sure they get back safely."

Partington Ridge is located about 32 miles south of Carmel.

LOCKOUT

order,” Kingsley wrote in her March ruling, because she had the ability to comply with the order but willfully disobeyed it.

“In that judgment, she made it clear that Ms. Dudley is an income beneficiary of this trust,” said the trust’s attorney, Tom Griffin, but she is not a trustee. “The trust has the Lincoln Building and responsibility for management of that building; Ms. Dudley doesn’t. She has really struggled accepting the determination of the court that she doesn’t get to control that building.”

Supreme Court said no

Since the 2007 order was issued, Dudley has fought it in a legal battle that took years to come to resolution, due to her also filing bankruptcy, relinquishing her trusteeship and recording deeds attempting to transfer ownership of the Lincoln and Ocean building. After failing on appeal, she took the order to the California Supreme Court, which refused to hear it, according to Griffin.

The building belongs to the trust, with the income shared among the trustees and beneficiaries, but “in her mind, she got the building as a part of the divorce,” Griffin said. “And it probably felt like it was hers.”

But when Kingsley issued her judgment this year, Dudley “was ordered to comply with the new judgment and allow the new trustees to take it over,” he said. “And she has been unwilling to do that.”

As a result, the court issued another order this week allowing the sheriff’s office to seize control of the building for the trust.

“You basically do that by changing the locks and asking people to leave, and then they can come back with the permission of the trustees,” Griffin explained.

Caught in the fight are Bashar Sneeh and Faisal Nimri, operators of the perpetually busy Dametra Cafe. Sneeh said they arrived to work Wednesday to find themselves and their employees locked out, with no idea when they might be able to reopen. “We’re kind of caught in the middle,” he said. “But it’s a good thing they see the value in our business.”

He’s somewhat concerned about the loss of perishable items waiting in the kitchen to be cooked that will have to be thrown out, but more so about not being able to employ his workers and disappointing his customers, especially those with reservations that can’t be honored.

‘If she could see the forest for the trees’

“Basically, we are really wanting to be back in business — we want to serve our customers — and we also want to show people how much we feel for not being open for our customers who have reservations,” Sneeh said. “And that we are very sorry, but we are in a situation that we are very unfortunate to have. We would love for the city to be on our side and for the locals to do whatever they can to help us, basically.”

Griffin said the trustees also want the profitable restaurant running, not sitting empty, just as the wine tasting room next door is also dark.

“The sad part is the trustees really just want to operate the business and give Ms. Dudley the income they can from the business,” he said. “If she could see the forest for the trees, she’d recognize that’s a resolution that’s consistent with her interests, but I think it’s hard for her to give up the control.”

As for Dametra, Griffin said the trustees are trying to work on getting it open as soon as possible.

“It’s in everybody’s interest to have a successful business operating in that space,” he said.

Garden show brings flowers, food and fun to Carmel Valley

CELEBRATING ONE Of nature’s greatest creations and raising money for charity, the 44th annual Carmel Valley Garden Show will be presented Saturday and Sunday, May 4-5, at Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Gardeners and flower arrangers compete for prizes in a variety of categories, while experts talk about daffodils, growing and cooking tomatoes, raising bees and farming lavender.

A fundraising silent auction features vintage garden items, paintings, restaurant certificates, wine and more. Last year’s auction raised $11,000 for Hidden Valley, the Friends of Carmel Valley Library, the Carmel Valley Civic Improvement Committee, the Carmel Valley Youth Center and the Carmel Valley Historic Society.

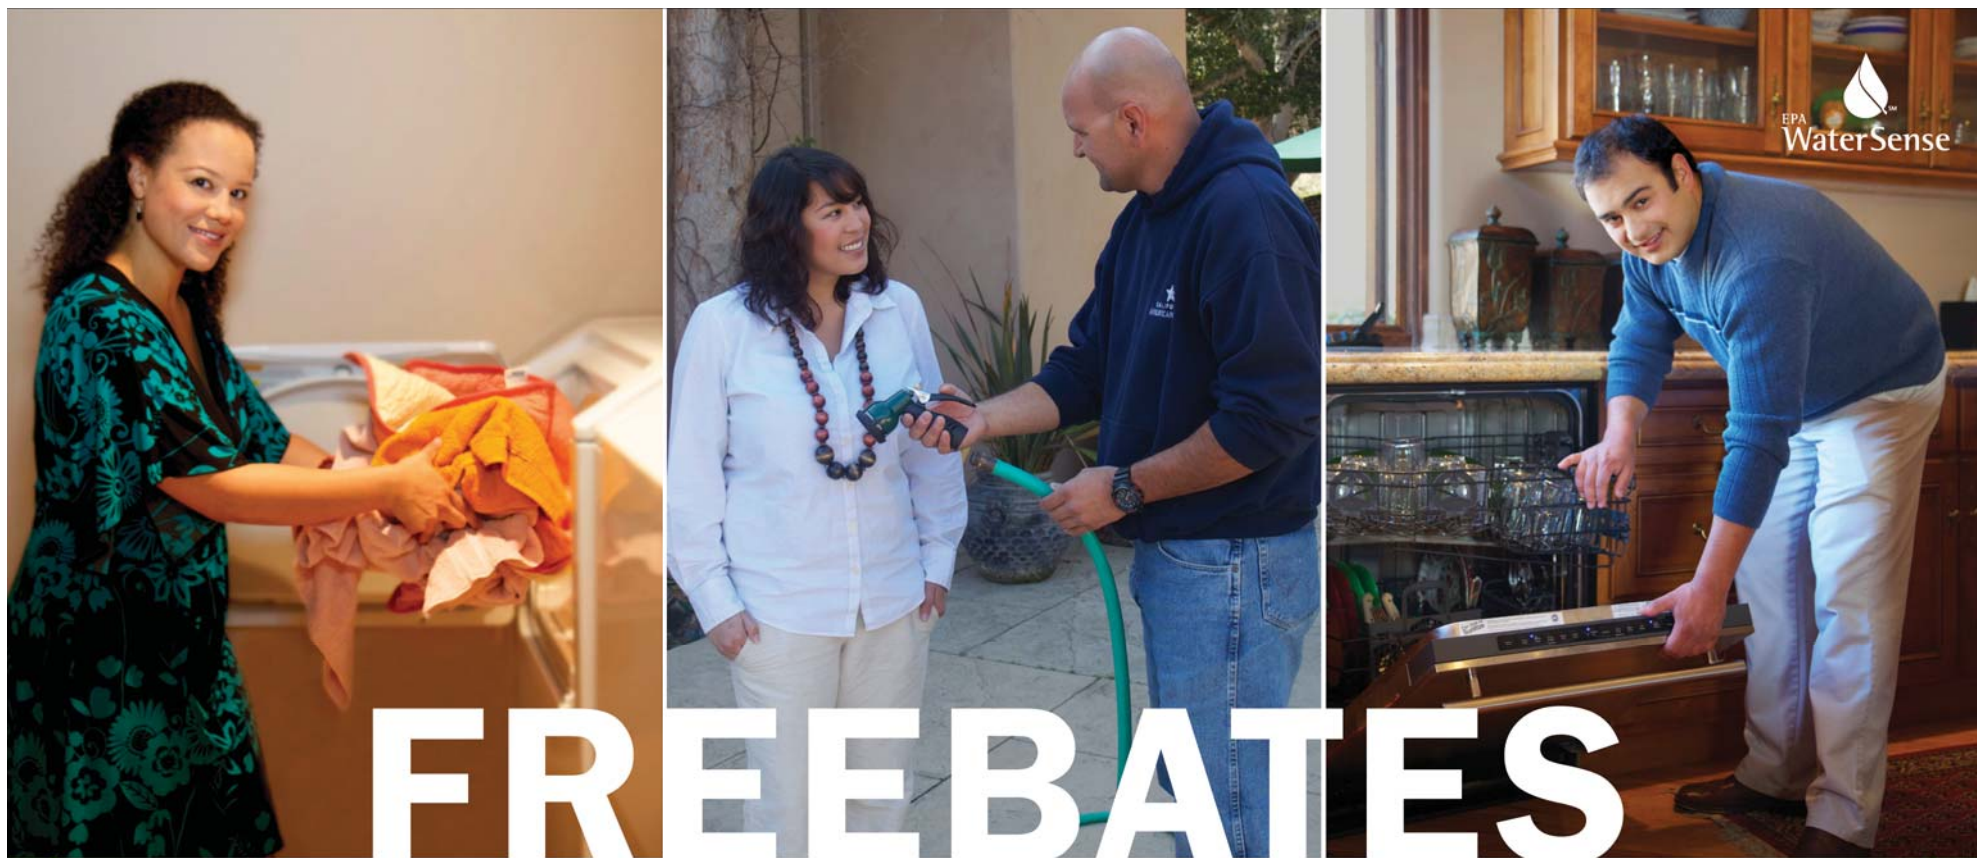

Sponsored by the Carmel Valley Gardening Association, the event also includes an extensive plant sale, live music, activities for children and an elaborate garden filled with “painted flowers.”

The Hidden Valley Cafe, a wine and beer bar, and a Garden Snack Bar offer a bounty of culinary options and refreshments.

The garden show starts at 9 a.m. each day and is free.

Hidden Valley hosts a Garden Gala with food, wine and entertainment Saturday at 6 p.m. Tickets are $20 in advance and $25 at the door.

The site is located at 88 W. Carmel Valley Road. Call (831) 659-3115 or visit www.cvgardenclub.org.

SEABORN

at his sentencing in February intended to request Seaborn be subjected to GPS monitoring, according to Kara, "He failed to appear on his court date and has been eluding law enforcement ever since."

As a result, a Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge issued a $500,000 warrant for his arrest, and he's being sought by his parole agent, local police and the bail bondsman, among others.

"Every police department in Monterey County has a copy of his warrant and a photo," she said.

To help track Seaborn down, a reward is being offered for tips leading to his arrest, but Kara would not say how much money is on offer or what the criteria are for claiming it.

"I'm surprised Charles would drink and drive after being released from prison," she commented, adding that such an action, if true, "shows very little concern for his past mishap," the DUI collision that cost a cyclist his life.

In that crash, Vasquez, 48, had been riding his bicycle from Monterey to his Carmel Highlands home in the early morning hours on Feb. 9, 2007, when Seaborn ran into him and then continued driving to his own house in the Yankee Point area. Motorists reported seeing the victim's body on the side of the highway around 7 a.m., and Seaborn called 911 later that morning to report he had struck something on Highway 1, though he wasn't sure what. When California Highway Patrol officers arrived at his house, they discovered Vasquez' bicycle was still attached to the SUV, along with other forensic evidence.

Seaborn pleaded guilty to vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated and hit-and-run in March 2009 and was sentenced the following May to five years in prison. He served 27 months and, after he was released, moved into the Gilroy apartment, but now, "he's likely living in his van," described as a silver 2003 Dodge Caravan, license plate No. 5ACR187, Kara said, and has "limited cash."

She reported he has been spotted on Lighthouse Avenue in Monterey, and in the Cannery Row area. "That vicinity has been hit heavily with wanted posters. He could be in one of the many parks," she said. "As you know, he's smart. Hunting Seaborn has been unlike hunting anyone else."

Anyone who sees Seaborn should call police. Tips can be called in to (209) 533-3381.

Council defers action on pension initiative

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE PACIFIC Grove City Council deferred action Wednesday on a citizen's initiative to roll back a sizable increase in the city's employee pension plan enacted in 2001.

"We'll be retaining a lawyer who hasn't done any other work for the city to assess what our options are with it," said Mayor Bill Kampe.

"The wording in the initiative is extremely vague and gives us very little indication how it would be implemented," said council member Casey Lucius. "For example, would the city try to take away all the benefits that have been earned by public safety employees since 2001, and if so, how would the city recover that money?"

According to Kampe, state law could prohibit the city from rolling back any pension benefit for police officers or other municipal employees — and, if the 2001 pension increase is to be rescinded, it may have to be done judicially, and not by the council or the voters.

The pension rollback initiative was certified by the county elections office two weeks ago. The attorney's report about it is due May 15, Kampe said.

Broadway in Seaside at about 1:30 p.m. Police pulled it over and arrested Claypole, who was driving it.

Claypole was booked into Monterey City Jail on murder and carjacking charges. His bail is set at $1,100,000.

Detectives are still trying to determine a motive for the stabbing. Huerta had picked up Claypole at the Wells Fargo Bank in the Crossroads shopping center. "While the attack appears to be random and unprovoked, robbery has not been ruled out," reported Lt. Leslie Sonne of the Monterey Police Department.

A native of Buenos Aires, Argentina, Claypole grew up in Big Sur. He attended Gazebo School at Esalen Institute and later Carmel High School, although it is not known if he graduated.

"He really lost his way to drugs," a former Carmel High classmate said. "I remember he was passionate about wanting to study music and being an actor. I care about him as a person, and I feel bad I wasn't able to be there for him. He wanted to make something for himself in life, but he was going down the wrong path."

Joshua Claypole

Monterey County deputy district attorney Terry Spitz said Claypole was arrested last year for possession of a controlled substance and placed in a diversionary program in December.

Michael Cardinalli, the co-owner of Huerta's employer, Yellow Cab, told The Pine Cone he was shocked by the cab driver's death.

"He was kind and hard-working," Cardinalli said. "He left behind a wife and three kids."

Cardinalli has started a drive to help raise money for Huerta's widow and children. If you're interested in making a donation, you can send a check in Huerta's name to P.O. Box 1234, Salinas, CA 93902.

mitted to protecting condors and other endangered species, as well as the property's cultural resources, such as Native American sites. She noted that the reservation is home to the state's second largest elk herd, and lead bullets for hunting purposes — the greatest threat to condors, Sorenson observed — are banned.

"We really care about the environment," she said. "We want to be a good neighbor."

Sorenson agreed Fort Hunter Liggett has been a good neighbor, and given his group's mission, he should know.

"Our job is to closely monitor those nests and help them succeed," he explained. "When they fail, we try to find out why and solve the problem."

According to Sorenson, by far the greatest threat condors face is lead bullets, not military aircraft. "No pilot wants to go anywhere near a 10-foot bird."

Meanwhile, Sorenson is thrilled about the nest Bottoms found.

"We're confident there's either an egg or a chick in the nest," he added. "We think an egg hatched within the last week or two. The two condors are acting like a couple who's egg just hatched."

Chop House.

"We've only owned it for a week, but I've already had a lot of inquiries," she said. "I don't know what we'll be doing with the restaurant, but we will be having a restaurant there in the near future."

The hotel's name may change, too.

"I grew up with it being Carmel Sands Lodge, but in the last few years, they changed the name to Carmel Lodge," she said, adding that she hasn't decided what name to use.

Stilwell doesn't know whether she'll take advantage of any of the plans drawn by Miller, or the permits, which were approved by the city after a protracted battle and were most recently extended last November at the request of the bank, which was still searching for a buyer at that time.

"I haven't even looked at them," Stilwell said of the approved plans, which call for the demolition of the old motel and construction of a four-building complex containing 42 rooms, an interior courtyard, two retail spaces, a restaurant, a 64-space underground garage and a day spa. Approved by the council in 2010 and extended by the planning commission last November, the permits will expire in November 2014.

Overall, she's thrilled with the prospect of turning a languishing property into an exceptional place, much as she has with Tradewinds, located a few blocks away at Mission and Third.

"I'm very excited, because I love projects. The bottom line is I'm very passionate about this business, and about talking to guests and telling them about Carmel," said Stilwell, who was born and raised here, and whose father, Richard Catlin, had a successful real estate firm in town. "I have a wonderful staff whom I work with, and I'm already developing relationships with the employees at Carmel Lodge. We will be creating some special things there."

The owners of the Tradewinds, Mark and Susan Stilwell, purchased the former Carmel Sands Lodge for $6.5 million and plan on making it a successful and beautiful hotel.

Sportswriter appears at Sunset Center to $$ for library

By CHRIS COUNTS

KNOWN FOR his sharp wit and insightful commentary as a sportswriter, Rick Reilly takes the stage at Sunset Center Thursday, May 9. The event is a fundraiser for the Carmel Public Library Foundation.

As a back-page columnist for Sports Illustrated and ESPN magazine, Reilly has sounded off on a wide range of sports-related topics, finding humor in the seriousness of competition, illuminating the human side of athletes and offering no quarter to those who use performance-enhancing drugs.

Reilly's colleagues have voted him National Sportswriter of the Year 11 times, second only to the late Jim Murray of the Los Angeles Times.

In addition to his work as a sportswriter, Reilly has drawn praise for his charitable efforts. Using his column as a pulpit, he urged readers in 2006 to support efforts to buy anti-malaria nets for African children. His campaign led to the creation of the Nothing But Nets Foundation, which has partnered with the United Nations to raise more than $24 million for the cause.

Reilly is also a strong advocate for libraries, as the folks at the Carmel Public Library Foundation have discovered.

"Leslie Snorf, the president of the Carmel Public Library Foundation, attended Rick's talk at the Sun Valley Writers' Conference," explained Cheryl Carter, who organized the fundraising show.

"She was so overwhelmed by how funny and entertaining he was, she immediately made contact with his manager to see if he would come and speak here for the library foundation. Rick's wife, Cynthia, is also his manager. She readily agreed to come because they love the Monterey Peninsula and are strong supporters of libraries," Carter added.

A wine tasting event starts at 6 p.m. and Reilly's performance begins at 7 p.m.

Tickets are $55, which includes wine tasting. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

Museum hosts reception for Pebble Beach author

AUTHOR J.W. Winslow signs copies of the third book in her "Mystic Adventures in Big Sur" trilogy Sunday, May 5, at the Museum of Monterey. The series follows the adventures of screenwriter Dyanna Falconer as she travels between Paris, Sicily, Los Angeles, New York and Big Sur.

"Everything is not what it seems in my books," explained Winslow, who lives in Pebble Beach. "I tackle some lofty subjects: love and war between the sexes and the eternal struggle for power between men and women; money as an aphrodisiac and tool in business and love; the power of sex and the influence of beauty on others, and the surprises of death and the power of loss."

The event begins at 1 p.m. The museum is located at 5 Custom House Plaza. Call (831) 372-2608.

Tor House party toasts poet's anniversary

CELEBRATING THE 100th wedding anniversary of one of Carmel's most famous couples — poet Robinson Jeffers and his wife, Una — the Tor House hosts its annual Garden Party Sunday, May 5, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Married in 1913, the poet and his bride moved to Carmel the following year — three years before the town was incorporated. Over the next decade, Jeffers constructed the Tor House and its distinctive tower, using boulders he gathered from along the shoreline near Carmel Point. Later, he and his wife raised a family in the house. She died in 1950, while he passed away in 1962.

"Jeffers and Una, married 100 years ago, remind us of what two people can create together: an architecturally unique monument to a man's skill and determination, and the muse who inspired him to create a rich treasure of poetry," explained Alan Stacy, the Tor House Foundation's photographic archivist.

With musicians playing in its garden and plein air painters capturing the scene on their canvases, Sunday's festivities will showcase a unique property and honor one of Carmel's creative giants. Docents will be available to answer questions about Jeffers and the home. Admission is $15. Proceeds benefit the foundation. The Tor House is located at 26304 Ocean View Ave. Call (831) 624-1813 or visit www.torhouse.org.

Henry Miller Library next stop for 'Van Sessions' songstress

By CHRIS COUNTS

RECORDED ON the road between gigs, Nicki Bluhm's album, "Van Sessions" has turned her into an Internet sensation and she performs Thursday, May 9, at the Henry Miller Library in Big Sur.

While she and her band, The Gramblers, ramble across American in a tour van, they frequently record "unplugged" versions of popular songs and post the results online.

Her cover of Hall and Oates', "I Can't Go For That," has tallied more than 2 million hits on YouTube. The lighthearted and spontaneous singalongs conjure up memories of a family road trip.

When she's not covering other artists' music, Bluhm serves up a smart blend of original rock, soul, alt-country and folk that gives Sheryl Crow a run for her money. Check out her YouTube video of "Jetplane."

The concert, which will be staged under the redwoods in the library's garden, starts at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $43. The library is located on Highway 1 28 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-2574 or visit www.eventbrite.com.

Sculpture, succulents at Johnny's Garden

By CHRIS COUNTS

A ONCE-THRIVING corner of creativity in The Barnyard shopping center comes back to life Saturday, May 4, when Johnny's Garden hosts its grand opening.

Showcasing the many talents of Carmel artist John Chappell, the gallery is adorned with his sculptures, fountains, pottery and lamps. Made of stone, steel, ceramic, cement and glass, Chappell's work employs a natural and earthy style.

The gallery is located in part of the former Viking Forge, which for many years displayed sculpture and metalwork by Chris Axelsson.

"It's a fabulous space and my inventory really fills it up neatly," Chappell told The Pine Cone.

Also featured in the gallery are paintings by Bobbe Kirsch of Carmel Valley, sculpture by Lynne Cook and Milt Jines of Carmel, and a garden filled with succulents. Not only do the plants complement the artwork, but they fill a void in the shopping center that's been there since Succulent Gardens and Gifts closed four years ago. "People come by here and ask what ever became of the succulent garden, and I tell them it's over at Johnny's now," Chappell explained.

Blues guitarist Stu Heydon performs at the reception, which begins at 2 p.m. The gallery is open Wednesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call (831) 236-2503 or visit www.johnchappelldesign.com.

Shunning the conventional format of a photographic exhibit, a new show opening Saturday, May 4, at the Center for Photographic Art looks at the medium of photography from the perspective of Brooks Jensen, the editor of LensWork magazine.

"If we decide to look for alternatives and break from framed prints on the wall, we find a world of creative possibilities," explained Jensen, who curated the display,

A love story — and cheese, a busy Thursday, and the almighty artichoke

CARMEL IS the ideal place to shoot a fairytale-like short film about an Italian cheesemonger and a florist, writer/director Darren Darnborough discovered during a visit to town a couple of months ago. So, this week, he brought a crew of a few dozen people to Carmel from Los Angeles to film scenes for “Stefano Formaggio,” the movie he hopes will make the rounds and capture critics’ hearts on the film-festival circuit later this year.

The story focuses on handsome Stefano, “the producer and merchant of the finest cheese in the village,” and Jasmine, “an equally stunning but shy florist who has long admired him from afar.” Jasmine finally gets the date she has dreamed of with the much loved and adored Stefano, “and the birth of a relationship that we hope, for her sake, doesn’t happen,” according to the summary on the movie’s website.

“Perfection is deceptive,” the description concludes — but not the perfection of Carmel, according to Darnborough, who lives in Los Angeles but is from London and had originally intended to set the film in Greenwich when he wrote it several years ago.

But, in fact, “the story is set in Carmel, and I never even knew it,” he said. “I wrote about this town before I ever even saw it. It’s that great serendipity, and if I hadn’t done that trip, this never would have happened.”

Darnborough, who is also a travel writer, made the connection when he was invited by Chatterbox Public Relations and Carmel City Councilwoman Carrie Theis to stay at the Hofsas House and explore the town and its restaurants for a possible story. They own the Hofsas House and works with Chatterbox to bring travel writers to town.

“I thought immediately this was the location for our film — we couldn’t get it out of our heads,” Darnborough told The Pine Cone this week. “And then I found Kent at the Cheese Shop — our story is about an Italian cheesemonger. Everything said we had to shoot here.”

Kent Torrey, owner of the Cheese Shop in the Carmel Plaza, has a lot of experience setting up displays and agreed to share his talents, as well as his products, with Darnborough for the filming in a San Carlos Street courtyard May 1. Torrey said he arrived with an SUV full of cheese at 6 a.m. for the shooting and arranged it according to plans he and Darnborough had developed together. He wasn’t at all concerned about the thousands of dollars’ worth of wheels, blocks and wedges suffering from exposure, remarking that cheese has been made for thousands of years and withstands the elements without constant refrigeration.

Torrey and Basil restaurant chef/owner Soerke Peters, who gave up a day of regular business to accommodate the cast and crew during Wednesday’s filming, are prime examples of the downtown warmth Darnborough appreciated.

“The hospitality in the town is second to none,” he observed. “The people are so friendly. And the fact this town has a history of film, with Clint Eastwood and Doris Day, is magical to me.”

Darnborough said it was tough to convince his producers they should spend a chunk of the film’s small budget on shooting on location in Carmel, rather than using Universal Studios backlots, but after he convinced them to visit the city with him, they were hooked even before they got to breakfast on their first morning here.

Now that the artichoke has been declared the official state vegetable, a Salinas business group is selling T-shirts and stickers with its special rendition of the California flag.

“I said, ‘When you go to Carmel, you’ll understand,’” he said — and they did.

Theis is thrilled Darnborough discovered Carmel and said such attention is great for the city.

“We invited him up here, and he spent two days up here and absolutely fell in love with Carmel, which is really our goal,” she said. “We’ve got the Cheese Shop, the beach and cute little cottages, so he changed his location based on the trip to Carmel.”

While Darnborough has great confidence in his team, which includes an Emmy-winning editor, Sundance winners,

Seasonal markets opening

Monterey Bay Certified Farmers Markets, which operates the always busy farmers market at Monterey Peninsula College on Fridays, announced its seasonal markets at the Barnyard shopping center and Del Monte Center will be opening soon.

At the Barnyard, where the market is celebrating its 10th anniversary, shoppers will find fresh produce, live plants, flowers, tea, meats, seafood, eggs, honey, baked goods and other necessities starting on Tuesday, May 7, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Parking is abundant and adjacent to the market, which takes up part of the parking lot on the south side of the shopping center, near Allegro pizzeria. New this year, Restoration Edge will provide professional sharpening services weekly.

And starting Sunday, May 12, the market held in the parking lot next to Whole Foods Market at the Del Monte Shopping Center will be open weekly from 8 a.m. to noon.

Free tote bags will be available to customers while they last. See www.montereybayfarmers.org for all the market locations, maps, a list of vendors and other information.

Supper Club

Cima Collina's May Supper Club, set for Thursday, May 9, in its tasting room in Carmel Valley Village, will feature chef Rima Mazzeo Crow, known locally for her organic and sustainable cooking. Crow worked as a personal chef in France and Italy before returning to the Peninsula, where she has catered for more than 30 years.

Cima Collina is holding Supper Club Dinners the second Thursday of each month, showcasing the culinary skills of a different chef every time. At this month's dinner, Cima Collina's wines from small, local vineyards will be paired with asparagus soup with St. George breadsticks and salad, dungeness crab cake on slivered daikon with mizuna and fennel, grilled loin of lamb with cherry Cabernet sauce, and lemon soufflé cake with berries and cream. Winemaker Annette Hoff Danzer will join Crow to discuss her wines.

The dinner will start at 6:30 p.m. and will cost $75 per person for wine club members, and $110 for the general public, plus tax. Cima Collina is located at 19 E. Carmel Valley Road in the Village. www.cimacollina.com

Spring lamb at Luca

Also on Thursday, May 9, Cantinetta Luca on Dolores Street south of Ocean Avenue in Carmel will host its annual Spring Lamb dinner at 7 p.m. Executive chef Jason Balestrieri will prepare small-farm, artisan lamb in a variety of ways, including a salad of lamb carpaccio, rucola, artichoke, parmesan cheese and lemon; crepes filled with braised lamb, Taggiasca olive and mint; Roman-style lamb roast with potatoes and broccolini; and torta di frutta with Averna gelato.

The cost is $85 per person, plus tax and service, and includes wine pairings.

The following month, on Thursday, June 13, Balestrieri and general manager Giuseppe Panzuto will create dishes inspired by their travels to Italy and paired with Italian wines. The cost of that dinner is $105 per person, plus tax and tip, including wine.

Reservations are required. Call (831) 625-6500 or visit www.cantinetaluca.com.

Joseph Swan at Pacific's Edge

And, in yet another offering Thursday, May 9, Pacific's Edge restaurant at the Hyatt Carmel Highlands will showcase the wines of Joseph Swan in its penultimate dinner in this year's Winemaker Series in the beautiful wine room at the restaurant.

Joseph Swan Vineyards, a small family-owned winery located in Sonoma County, specialized in vineyard-designated Pinot Noir and old-vine Zinfandel, as well as small lots of Rhone-style wines, Pinot Gris and Chardonnay.

The menu created by executive chef Matt Bolton to accompany the wines is set to include ahi, scallop kampachi, cured ocean trout, uni and wakame with 2010 Saralee's Vineyard Roussanne-Marsanne; Monterey Bay Red Abalone paella with Carnaroli rice and chorizo leon with 2011 Ritchie Vineyard Chardonnay; wild boar chop from Broken Arrow Ranch with English peas and shoots, morels and thyme jus with 2009 Saralee's Vineyard Pinot Noir; Sonoma duck confit with pomme ancienne and bing cherry jus, paired with 2010 Trenton Estate Vineyard Pinot Noir; and charcuterie of bresaola, speck, duck prosciutto, coppa, burrata, picoline, shaved fennel served with 2007 Mancini Ranch Zinfandel, Russian River Valley.

Dinner will begin at 6 p.m. and will cost $125 per person, plus tax and gratuity. Reservations are required by calling (831) 622-5445.

Tourism and Visitors Bureau saw the declaration as cause for celebration, going so far as to create a rendition of the California state flag that includes an artichoke field. The SVTVB has made decals, postcards and T-shirts available online at www.svtvb.org.

Meanwhile, the declaration also inspired Dr. Stephen Brabeck, owner of the Quail & Olive in Carmel Valley Village, to offer a recipe for delicious artichokes.

"I recommend starting with a peppery oil, such as a Tuscan Blend or Koroneiki. Snip off the tip of the artichoke, tuck garlic cloves in at intervals, drizzle with the olive oil and fresh lemon juice, and then steam until done over water with black pepper and lemon zest mixed in. When done, dip in our lemon flavored oil — fabulous!"

■ New McIntyre wines

McIntyre Vineyards announced new wines available this week: Its 2012 Pinot Noir Rosé — described as "a pale as the dawn beauty that captures the essence of fruit picked around Champagne-levels of ripeness, quite tangy and very lively in the glass" — and, from Kim and Steve McIntyre's library, the 2006 Estate Reserve Pinot Noir from the Santa Lucia Highlands, the first Pinot Noir made under the McIntyre label.

For a Mother's Day special, or as a nice gift for any wine lover, the winery is offering signed bottles in a wooden two-pack gift box for $69. For more information or to order, call (831) 649-9463 or visit www.mcintyrevineyards.com. McIntyre's tasting room landscaping. Additional conservation plans took effect after the 2009 cease and desist order that mandated major water-sourcing cutbacks by December 2016. Properties now use efficient dishwashers, low-flow fixtures and waterless urinals that save up to 40,000 gallons of water each — that's nearly half a million gallons saved annually at some local full-service hotels, just from new urinals alone. Golf courses have recorded a 30 percent water savings from smart irrigation systems that assess weather and course conditions and replace only minimal amounts of water. And, Pebble Beach Company invested $67 million in a wastewater reclamation project that meets 100 percent of golf course irrigation needs in the Del Monte Forest with treated wastewater. That project has saved more than 4 billion gallons of potable water to date.

Without a reliable water supply project that meets current and future needs, hotels will close. Jobs will disappear, as will the revenue and taxes generated by tourism in Monterey County. Please join the MCHA in supporting the responsible water solution, Cal Am's desalination project.

The other cost of desal

Dear Editor,

In your story, "Funding for desal plant discussed" (April 26), you reported that local officials and members of the public met last week to discuss the monetary costs of California American Water's proposed desalination facility; however, I'm left wondering if they failed to take into account the environmental toll such a plant would have on the Monterey Bay marine ecosystem.

The benefit of a desalination plant is evident: a virtually limitless supply of fresh water for public use. Unfortunately, behind such a promise lurks an ugly truth.

A modern desalination plant can put out hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of gallons of fresh water each day. At the same time, however, it is also pumping harmful chemicals and waste products back into the ocean at alarming rates. Among these waste products are chlorine, acids, an assortment of heavy metals, and the all-inclusive brine.

In the oceans, brine is a naturally occurring solution which has a high concentration of salt. After the desalination process, however, it is reintroduced into the ocean along with the aforementioned waste products and more.

As found on desalalternatives.org, Carol Reeb, a fisheries geneticist at Stanford's Hopkins Marine Station, said that "the Monterey Bay is a semi-enclosed system which means it is protected from large offshore currents which could flush away brine waste. Coupled with the ebb and flow of tides and eddy-like circulation, this could allow brine plumes to entrain and accumulate along our coastline over the course of years."

Although studies showing the effects of desalination plants on local ecosystems are few and far between, it is imperative that we also take into account the environmental costs of this type of facility when making monetary decisions regarding its construction.

Safety at public events

Dear Editor,

The simple fact that there was a Big Sur marathon being held at all, after the horrific events that took place in Boston not so long ago, is surprising to say the least.

The Boston marathon bombings, the most devastating terrorist attack on U.S. soil since 9/11, happened a little too recently to act like it didn't happen. Although I'm sure most people who attended the Big Sur event had their thoughts directed toward those affected in the Boston bombings, the crowds still cheered at the event like there was nothing to darken the mood.

More than anything, I think the Boston bombings should be a wakeup call for all large outdoor events with massive amounts of people to tighten security and make sure the necessary changes are in place to ensure the safety of the public. Especially due to the fact that more than 400 people participated in the Boston to Big Sur special event. The most serious and dedicated contenders completed this special portion of the event. This turnout suggests that there will be no hiding or fears associated with the Boston bombings. America was built with a strong mentality and that is what continues to help us as a nation to overcome any obstacle.

Surf tale inspired

Dear Editor,

I have really been inspired after reading Ray Patterson's article: "Surf's up this great summer in the greatest classroom in the world" (April 26).

What Abraham and his two sons, Paul and J.P., are doing is truly an amazing thing. I appreciate that they are willing to share their own skills and valuable tips. This helps those interested in surfing become better and braver.

Many children have fear about the water; I know I did. Coaches like the Abrahams help children overcome these fears. We have something very special here, and I hope people know what kind of excitement and fun await them. They should definitely take advantage of this opportunity.

Trending in California: Looney politicians who think they're mistreated

JOSE CASTANEDA from Salinas, please introduce yourself to Joong Kim of Calexico.

Mr. Kim, meet Mr. Castaneda.

You guys were meant for each other. You have a lot in common.

Now that you've been properly introduced, all that is missing the angry white television guy with the shellacked hair who can hyperventilate with righteous indignation in a splendid explanation of why you are both idiots.

As every sentient being in Monterey County knows by now, Jose Castaneda is the comic megalomaniac from East Salinas who got elected to the Salinas City Council while he was still a member of the Alisal Union School District. He doesn't want to leave either of the esteemed bodies, and now the rest of the city council is all flummoxed because his role is clearly a conflict of interest.

Adding more comic fuel to the fire, the general manager of one of the local television stations has apparently made it his solemn mission to excoriate Castaneda with a vengeance we haven't witnessed since the Watergate hearings.

Castaneda is an easy target, of course, inasmuch as he's a powerless soul with little evident intelligence. With a wide cast of local politicians similarly endowed, the television guy seems to get his jaundice flowing over Castaneda in particular, as though he's never encountered another case of political conflict in his career.

Anyway, if you've never seen the television guy spit fire about Castaneda, you're missing some great TV, ranking up there with Ned Flanders' irritation with Homer.

He'd have a great time with Joong Kim.

Down in the border city of Calexico, the slap-happy Kim is a comic megalomaniac who got himself elected to both the Calexico City Council and the Calexico school district. And he refuses to step down from either. What a loser, right?

Just last week, other trustees from the Calexico Unified School District secured permission from state Attorney General Kamala Harris to file a suit against Kim. Even with the full force of an Attorney General's office against him, Kim told the Calexico Chronicle that he's not leaving either political body, at least not on his own accord, and he'll fight any lawsuit.

He's been holding fundraisers lately to help pay his attorneys.

"The district keeps spending money on lawyers to get me out of the board instead of using the money for the benefit of the children," Kim told The Calexico Chronicle.

Unlike Castaneda, who carries himself with the bearing of a man lugging huge chips on his shoulder, Kim seems like a very chipper fellow. He even issued a communiqué on his "Vote Joong Kim" Facebook page on March 31 that wished a "Happy Easter to every people!!"

Kim is such a helpful gentleman that he apparently offered assistance to a fellow school board member recently. After she complained that she was feeling ill, Kim told her that he could lend a healing hand, placed directly on her abdomen. She said no, but he insisted, and so the sick and ungrateful board member filed a harassment charge against Kim.

Castaneda has done some dopey stuff lately — famously denying that he was Jose Castaneda to a process server moments before taking his seat at a city council meeting. But at least he hasn't yet been accused of harassing a colleague.

Other than that, Kim's situation is virtually identical to Castaneda's, but lacks only the forceful analysis from a qualified TV commentator to deliver his comeuppance.

Television is rather bland in Calexico.

most of its water from the Carmel River. Without a sustainable water supply project to offset those cutbacks, area restaurants, hotels and hospitality businesses may be forced to close.

Monterey County's $2.1 billion tourism industry, second only to agriculture, could take a $1 billion hit from planned water cutbacks. Now is the time to address this — and, by extension, to protect 22,000 tourism jobs and $55 million in annual local tax revenues. The Monterey County Hospitality Association, the trade group providing advocacy, education and employee recognition programs for local tourism, supports Cal Am's proposed desalination project.

Some critics suggest that water conservation is the better alternative. This is certainly important, but it is not the only answer. From a conservation standpoint, and a financial one, additional measures would yield little significant return on investment.

The fact is, the hospitality industry has already realized substantial water savings. Monterey Peninsula businesses began taking aggressive conservation measures in the 1990s, when Cal Am was first directed to source less water from the Carmel River. Just 10 years later, hotels had slashed water use by an average of 38 percent (and up to 50 percent at some properties) by installing low-flow toilets and shower heads. Restaurants invested in restricted-rate faucets; golf courses upgraded irrigation systems and began reclaiming water for spent my time watching the news and reading the papers thinking that, because Tsarnaev was a citizen, the United States was required by law to Mirandize him. Makes me question the credibility of the ACLU, which called it un-American to withhold his Miranda rights before questioning. Even if we lawfully had to Mirandize him before his questioning — American citizen or not — this guy ruined hundreds of lives. He affected everyone in America and should be tried as an enemy combatant. I understand the need for Miranda rights, but it is frustrating when someone can admit to a crime before being Mirandized and have that impermissible in court. Like as you mentioned the Americans spying for the USSR, the FBI knew beyond a reasonable doubt that they were guilty, but the evidence wasn't admissible since no Miranda was given. The same thing happens every day with attorney-client privilege. I thank you for your truthful editorial that not only opened my eyes, but hopefully those of others, as well.

ROBERT E. KOHN

September 21, 1920 – April 23, 2013

Carmel-by-the-Sea

Robert "Bob" Kohn, 92, passed away peacefully at his home on April 23 from heart disease.

Rather than relaxing in retirement, Bob took community service very seriously. He was inspired by Pierre Delfausse and the late Stanley Page to volunteer at CHOMP. Years later, he was honored by CHOMP CEO Dr. Packer for his 5,000 hours of volunteering at the hospital. As a field representative for the American Red Cross nationwide, he was sent to help with recovery efforts of the hurricane in Hawaii, the flood in St. Louis and the earthquake in Southern California. For 24 years, Bob was a precinct poll worker/inspector for Carmel elections, where his loyal team of Darlene, Jonnie and Karen were always the first in the county to report election results. Mayor Ken White appointed Bob to the Forest and Beach Commission, where he served three four-year terms, with a stint as chair. For twelve years, he was an elected director of the Carmel Area Waste Water District, including serving as chair, and greatly enjoyed working with the board, staff and employees. The Carmel Residents Association honored him for his years of service, naming him the 1995 Citizen of the Year.

Bob was a member of many environmental groups, including the Big Sur Land Trust and the Sierra Club. He loved the forest, the ocean, the rivers and the hills of this magnificent county. Bob was a modest, kind man with a droll, wry sense of humor. A compassionate person, he always believed in giving to the less fortunate.

Bob retired as co-owner of a small luggage manufacturing company in 1976 and came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1978 when he and Barbara Livingston built a house in the upper Carmel Valley. They moved to Carmel in 1987 to a lovely old home on San Carlos Street. Bob indoctrinated Barbara into his love for non-luxury adventure travel and together they explored many fascinating parts of the U.S. and the world.

Born and raised in Los Angeles, Bob graduated from Hollywood High. With his school buddy, Bob Zilz, he spent happy years organizing younger boys into after-school basketball and volleyball teams. In 1942, Bob earned his B.S. degree from the University of California, Berkeley, where he lettered in handball.

The day he graduated, Bob enlisted in the U.S. Army. A 2nd Lieutenant, he served in Europe with a combat infantry rifle company, receiving a battlefield promotion to company commander and the rank of Captain. Following victory in Europe, Bob was en route with his division to invade Japan when his troop ship was diverted to the Philippines after the Japanese surrendered. He was discharged in 1946. Bob declined a personal request in 1947 to train Israeli infantry troops who would defend the country when it was given statehood. In 1950, he was called back to serve in the Korean War. Bob was proud of his military experience and many medals, particularly the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantry Badge, but only talked about it with friends who were seriously interested in knowing more about World War II. Also, he maintained a close connection with retired Judge Bill Huber, who was Bob's Lieutenant during the war in Europe.

After his military service, Bob married Ida, the mother of his three children. He was pre-deceased by Ida and his son, Kenneth. He is survived by his son, Eugene (Linda); widowed daughter-in-law, Esperanza; daughter, Karen (Jim Weir); grandsons, Aaron, Evan, Jason and Jeffrey; his wife, Barbara and her family, Michael (Laurie Foster), Brian (Elaine) and grandchildren, Shayla, Ryan, Zoe, Rory and Alix.

Bob loved his friends! Boris, Paul, Howard, Dick, Roy and Joe were his High Sierra hiking and poker buddies for over a half a century. The Kou family, Vicky, Jonathan, Megan and Henry, and his longtime pals Bob and Nora Zilz and Boris and Marilyn Wolper meant the world to him. Also bringing him joy were his lunchtime pals, Greg, Gunnar, Mark and Margi, as well as the countless women and men whom he charmed over the years. He also loved the home he shared with Barbara, especially the beautiful gardens, his dog, Buddy and his cat, Callie. His family thanks Loretta, Judy, Carny, Kira, Bonny, John, Nora, Robbie, Suzanne and Linda for their support of Bob during his illness.

The family is also deeply grateful to the many wonderful men and women of the Hospice of the Central Coast, to his devoted, extraordinary caregiver, Christine, and to Drs. Jill Tiongco and Harry Jang for their professional, compassionate and loving care of Bob.

A small gathering of friends and family will take place at Barbara and Bob's home, "Green Gardens," sometime in the summer. Donations in Bob's memory would be gratefully accepted by Dorothy's Kitchen, P.O. Box 2027, Salinas, CA, 93902; Planned Parenthood Mar Monte, 316 N. Main St., Salinas, CA, 93901; or Hospice of the Central Coast, 2 Upper Ragsdale Drive, Monterey, CA, 93940. Which she then did at Chico State, graduating in three-and-a half years with a degree in sociology. She started on a master's degree but then learned of an opportunity to work as a student intern at IBM in Silicon Valley. Not long thereafter, she landed a job as a recruiter for Big Blue. Then, while it normally took 10 years to make management, she was startled to be offered a position in seven months.

"Years later, reflecting on it, my focus was just the work. I was so into it. It wasn't ambition. I simply found it fascinating. I had learned to work at an early age, and I understood what it was about."

Sheila was with IBM for 12 years, but then they wanted her to move to the main office in Armonk, N.Y. She tried it for two years and decided it was time to leave. "I really knew somehow inside me I had more to give than I could create in their world of human potential and organization and growth and development."

So she went to work for Tandem Computers in Cupertino, which was then bought by Compaq, and subsequently by Hewlett-Packard. Next she went to The Learning Company, an extraordinarily successful company, but she resigned not much was old-school and unhappy with his wife's independent notions. "I can remember my father being so upset when Mom bought her own car."

Her parents divorced, and when Sheila was 15, her mother decided to move herself and her daughter to Spokane, Wash., where her family was. "That was my junior year in high school, and it was a really big and difficult transition for me because I was very close to my brothers and sisters, all of whom were still in California."

But a year later, her mother let Sheila move back to the San Francisco Bay Area, where she moved in with one of her sisters and her husband. "It was really one of the greatest and probably, as I think of it now, courageous things that my mother could have done, which was to realize that I was not thriving and to let me go back to my friends and my family. I was 16 and it was, 'Oh, thank God I get to get out of here.' But I reflect on it now and think, gosh, last of nine out of the nest. That was a hard thing to do."

Because she had lived out of state for a year, after finishing high school, Sheila was unable to go to college unless she paid out-of-state tuition, which she couldn't afford. Despite appeals to the chancellor's office, noting that she lived in California virtually her whole life, the answer was, "No."

We Should Have Closer Business Relations With the Valley

There should be an end of a state of affairs which has long prevailed in regard to the lack of business intercourse between the farmers and fruit-growers of Carmel Valley and the business concerns and residents of Carmel and vicinity.

The business thread which holds the affairs of these sections together is very slender indeed. Carmel needs these Valley people and the business they could bring, and they need us and the business we could give them. It is true that the Valley farmer and fruit-grower finds a larger market for the disposal of his products in Monterey than in Carmel with its limited consuming capacity, but at the same time there is no good reason why more Valley products should not be purchased here.

Bank of Carmel Takes Over Leidig Store Lot

The Bank of Carmel is prepared to complete plans for its new building at the corner of Dolores and Ocean avenue, a few doors west of the location it has occupied since the bank pioneered in Carmel in 1923.

The new site is that occupied for several years by the grocery store operated by Mrs. Florence Leidig, who this week began moving to temporary quarters, open this weekend, on the east side of Dolores street at Seventh. Present plans for the Leidig store indicate that Mrs. Leidig may open a large drive-in market with a full line of grocery, meat, fish and other items. Mrs. Leidig's lease ran until May 1 although the bank purchased the site last year.

Interior plans for the new bank building have been completed by the architect, C.J. Ryland of Carmel, and first step in the construction of the new building, originally scheduled to start May 1, will be the razing of the old store building there and digging of a full basement, according to bank officials. Plans for the building, it was believed, would be in keeping with the Carmel atmosphere and of early California style as handled so well in other buildings designed by Architect Ryland.

Sea Otters Number 120 As More Animals Found

From where no man knows, the sea otters on the Point Sur coast are gathering in greater numbers than previously reported, and this week fish and game officers guarding the main herd just north of Bixby creek and stragglers further southward along the surf-lashed rocks had counted at least 120 animals basking and rolling in the breakers.

Various reports from the lower coast indicated that the total number of these mink-like animals might reach a figure close to 400. Within recent years only a few pairs had been reported as surviving at any place along the California shore, so that the present increase in the numbers ranks with the first discovery that there was a pack of sea otters enjoying play and hunting in the not distant kelp beds.

Fire Guts Scout House

Tuesday night the hottest drum in town burned down the Girl Scout house. A roaring, malevolent fire which completely gutted the interior of the old structure at Lincoln and Sixth was apparently born when a bongo drum standing alongside a floor furnace in the west end of the auditorium toppled — or was knocked over — onto the furnace grate.

For perhaps five hours the wicked fire crept stealthily and unnoticed, broiling up a fierce heat which the old stuccoed-over board and bat building finally found unendurable. At about 1:30 a.m., it blew its top, burst its windows, and disgorged its broiling burden of flame through the roof, out the doors and from every shattered window.

The building was insured, perhaps "adequately." But furniture, personal items and treasure beyond value was lost. "It hurts," remarked Mrs. Lee Chamberlain of district Girl Scout headquarters.

Whitaker Out; Spencer Is In

A complex, contradictory and stubborn blacksmith crossed the California border into Nevada last Monday, and thereafter solemnly noted the fact and the time of the fact in a letter addressed to the City Council which was received yesterday. The time he noted was 6:35 p.m.

ry. All of a sudden things started coming back. I started rediscovering who I really was from a spiritual point of view and began the process of integrating all that into this human form and what I was here to be doing."

Sheila went independent and has spent most of the past 15 years as a leadership coach, working privately with some of the top executives in Silicon Valley. She is particularly excited about working with her young clients — people in their early 20s.

"What I find is that they are open to coaching. They want it. They need it. They are demanding it in the workplace. And it's a two-way street. They teach me a ton about where they are and how they are thinking about things. It's really fun."

Sheila and her husband and two dogs live in Pebble Beach.

It was the conclusion of this blacksmith, Francis Whitaker, that he had thereby and at that time relinquished his post on the Council, which he has held for the last three and one-half years. He relinquished it by leaving Carmel on the previous Saturday, with a stated intent to take up residence elsewhere. It so happens that he is destined to become a resident of Aspen, Colorado, where he will continue to pursue his art of smithing, a field in which he excells.

Whitaker never did resign. He simply departed, concluding that this act automatically deprived him of his seat, leaving "nothing from which I can resign." Today, the City Council will meet at 4:30 p.m. to select a successor. They will appoint Mr. Robert Spencer, whom they had selected some time ago in anticipation of Whitaker's eventually vacating his seat.

Father Junipero Serra to be beatified in September

Father Junipero Serra moved a step closer to sainthood this week when the Vatican announced that the 18th century missionary would be beatified by Pope John Paul II on Sept. 25 at St. Peter's Basilica in Rome. The beatification ceremony, which usually takes about 20 minutes and is done as part of a Mass, will be attended by Bishop Thaddeus Shubsda of the Monterey Diocese, who will be joined by about 20 of the state's bishops, Elisee said.

The move came after church officials made a positive identification of Serra's 200-year-old remains, which were exhumed last November from his burial site at the Carmel Mission Basilica, according to Diocese spokesman Ted Elisee. Serra, who founded the Carmel mission in 1771 and died there in 1784, was declared "venerable" — the first of three steps to sainthood — by Pope John Paul II in 1985. Many expected the pope to beatify Serra — known as the "Apostle of California" — during his visit to the peninsula last Sept. 17, but shortly before leaving for the United States, the Vatican announced that the Congregation for the Causes of Saints had been unable to complete the investigation of Serra's "cause." It is unclear why the Vatican felt the need to re-examine Serra's remains, which were first exhumed in 1943 and found to be genuine.

City council will stay away from 'home'... for now

About two years ago, after the election of Mayor Clint Eastwood, the council opted to move its meetings to the Carmel Woman's Club — which can seat more than 200 people — because of increased crowds. Now, the councilmen want to go home.

Currently, the city council chambers holds only 55 people because of the plush chairs that were installed about three years ago. And while the council decides if it wants to move the large seats from the chambers to another city building and replace those with smaller, and possibly less comfortable ones, the beat goes on at the Carmel Woman's Club to the tune of $500 a meeting. That figure encompasses both the room rental ($250) and the P.A. system charge. At that rate the city has paid about $12,000 over the past two years to hold its monthly meetings.

(Study Results Available)

and OPPORTUNITY for a PUBLIC HEARING

Do you want a public hearing on changes made to State Route 1?

Dani Creek Slide Permanent Restoration on State Route 1

WHAT HAS HAPPENED?

Caltrans (California Department of Transportation), under an Emergency Restoration Project, has constructed an 825-foot long retaining wall along the outside shoulder of the southbound lane of State Route 1 in Monterey County. An aesthetically treated barrier and bicycle railing have been constructed on top of the wall and metal beam guardrail was installed approaching the wall. Both the northbound and southbound lanes have been restored and reconstructed to the standard 12-foot width with four foot shoulders.

The project is located in Monterey County between post miles 22.5 and 22.9. In order to fulfill requirements under CEQA and the Coastal Act, Caltrans is making available for public review the Initial Study with Proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration.

WHY THIS PUBLIC NOTICE?

As part of the coastal permitting process, Caltrans agreed to the preparation of a follow-up Initial Study with proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration. Caltrans has studied the effects this project had on the environment, which show it did not significantly affect the quality of the environment. The Initial Study with a proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration has been prepared and is available upon request. This notice also serves to offer the opportunity for a public hearing.

WHERE DO YOU COME IN?

Do you have any comments about processing the project with a Mitigated Negative Declaration and Initial Study? Do you disagree with the findings of our study? Do you have any other comments on the project? Would you like Caltrans to hold a public hearing? Please submit your comments or request for public hearing in writing no later than June 6, 2013 to Matt Fowler, Caltrans, 50 Higuera, San Luis Obispo, 93401, Attn: Dani Creek Slide Restoration Project (email: matt.c.fowler@dot.ca.gov). If there are no major comments, Caltrans will proceed with the approval of the Mitigated Negative Declaration as proposed and complete the Coastal Development Permit coordination with the County of Monterey.

WHAT'S AVAILABLE?

The public comment period begins May 5, 2013. Maps for the proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration and Initial Study and other project information will be available for review and copying at the Caltrans District Office, 50 Higuera, San Luis Obispo on weekdays from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration and Initial Study will also be available at the Henry Miller Memorial Library, 48603 Highway 1, Big Sur; and at <http://www.dot.ca.gov/dist05/projects>.

It was an "existential crisis." She had achieved the "success" that everybody thinks is important — big job, big title, big salary — but she was just miserable. "Simultaneous to that, I was realizing that I had lost myself. I had been a musician my whole earlier life. I hadn't written any music. I hadn't prayed. All of a sudden I thought, 'God, I'm an extra in all these other people's lives. But who am I? What do I want to be doing? What does success mean for me?'"

BY AL SMITH

"CARMEL LEGENDS"

It would have been funny if it hadn't happened so often. Upon being introduced to somebody new, FRANK LLOYD would hear, "Oh, so you're Frank Lloyd, right?" "No," Frank would replay wearily, "Wrong! Mr. Wright makes buildings, I make words." And make words he did for more than 50 years, many of which have been preserved in the archives of Carmel. His father was Chairman of the Botany Department at McGill University in Montreal, and his first exposure to Carmel came at age four when the senior Lloyd accepted an assignment here for the Smithsonian Institution. Later Frank attended McGill and in 1933 became a sports reporter on the Monterey Gazette. During the next few years he alternated between Montreal and Carmel, finally settling here in '35. For a time he was a contractor, building 12 cottages in Carmel. Then he bought a fishing boat and became a commercial fisherman. Next he was Editor of The Pine Cone for 5 years; then an electrician in the shipyards of Sausalito; sports editor of the Santa Cruz Sentinel; proprietor of an electrical business in Cannery Row; and founder of a weekly paper in Watsonville. In the 70's he became an outstanding member of the City Council, where he stood for the traditions and ideals that made this little town famous. Today there's a quiet bench overlooking the sea at the corner of Scenic Drive and Santa Lucia, and on it is a small plaque that says this is the "FRANK LLOYD BENCH." Walk around Scenic some day soon, sit on that bench, look out across the Bay, and reflect on the career of this Renaissance Man. Less than 100 yards to the south is the only seaside house designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. The two are still inseparable.

A name on the house, a fire in the hearth and a gargoyle on the roof

I WOULD need a calculator with at least a 10 digit read-out to add up the house numbers of all the places I've lived. That should tell you that I've lived in a lot of houses with some five-digit street addresses. Had I lived in Carmel-by-the-Sea, and made as many moves as I did, all those addresses might have added up to zero. Anyone interested in the pursuit of things trivial knows that most homes in the zip code 93921 have no numbers and do not receive mail delivery.

tem of house naming, but it can be confusing to transplants. The first time I was invited to someone's home in Carmel for a dinner party I was given the directions "Ocean, four east of Mountain View," which sounded to me like something Sacajawea would have said to Lewis and Clark when they asked her where the Pacific was. Then my hostess asked if I wanted to know the name of her house. The rest of the conversation was right out of an Abbott and Costello routine.

"What?"

"No, what is my neighbor's house?"

"Who?"

"No, Who's on First, two east of Carpenter?"

Well, you get the picture. That night I discovered Carmel's two other bits of quirkiness — no street lights and no sidewalks. For several moments before arriving, I was desperately seeking Sacajawea to guide me.

Some of the homes with names are simply family names. At least 76 named houses have one other house elsewhere in the city with the same name. The most duplicated house name is Garden House (four). Names beginning with "Sea" lead the list (27), with 12 more having "sea" in the name, such as Seahorse.

Barbara Livingston, president of the Carmel Residents Association, lives at Green Gardens. It is an appropriate name because when you open the gate to her house, you walk into a lovely garden. It reminded me of when Dorothy landed in Munchkin Land and everything went from black and white to color.

Carmel resident CarrieAnn lives in the Nut House. "When you raise five kids, things can get a little crazy," she said.

"'Tickety-boo' is a New Zealand term that means 'everything is looking up,'" Monte Miller told me. He and his wife, Roberta, named their home that in 1999. "Our daughter married a Kiwi," Miller said. "Our son-in-law is in the construction business. When things are going good, New Zealanders say, 'Tickety-boo.'" The term actually appears in the Oxford English Dictionary. That venerable reference says the name may have a Hindustani origin meaning, "all right."

Residents can be creative when naming their homes. "Thisisit," and "Thisisn't" are next to each other on Mission. There's a Camelot and a Carmelot. There's a Bread Box on Dolores and The Tee Pot on Santa Rita. The name that really caught my eye, though, is on a house on 10th named "Nothing Happened Here in 1936." The name screams for an explanation. Besides, that's my birth year, so I know something happened in 1936.

Many of Carmel's cottages are named, and most need no explanation. But some, such as the sign on 10th Avenue guest house (above, left) leave you utterly scratching your head. The gargoyle on the roof of the adjoining house also generates a lot of comments — and even some controversy.

Buck Brieholz answered my knock on the door. He called his wife, Sylvia, to tell me the story about the house. Sylvia told me the original owners built the house in 1933. They added a guest house in 1936. When she and Buck bought the house about eight years ago, they did some extensive remodeling, including a passageway connecting the two structures.

"My daughter named our house B By the Sea, the B standing for our name. When we decided to name the guest house, too, I learned the year it was built and that there was absolutely nothing of historical significance connected to it. So we decided on the name: Nothing Happened Here in 1936."

Then her story took a different turn. Back in 2006, Buck and Sylvia decided to add a gargoyle to decorate their chimney. Someone complained, which landed the Brieholzs in front of the planning commission. The commission chairman thought that the dragon on the roof was too ostentatious. Fortunately, in the name of whimsy, the vote went in favor of the gargoyle, so it still decorates the chimney. The incident prompted a Pine Cone cartoon from Bill Bates that depicted a large sign reading: "Welcome to Carmel/Home of Robinson Jeffers/Edward Weston/and one awesome gargoyle."

Getting back to that dinner party years ago, my hostess asked what I would name a house if I lived in Carmel.

"Oh, I don't know," I said.

"I don't know is on Third," she replied.
