News blackout on wedding at Ventana

■ Confidentiality agreements in effect

By KELLY NIX

NEWS OF Facebook mogul Sean Parker's snags with Monterey County and the California Coastal Commission over his June 1 wedding in Big Sur is all over the Internet now, but he's doing a pretty good job of keeping details of the celebration under wraps.

Monterey County planning department officials told The Pine Cone last week that agency and the coastal commission were investigating whether construction on Ventana Campgrounds in preparation for the wedding requires building and other permits.

The elaborate June 1 wedding, at Ventana's 40-acre campground, is slated to feature a temporary movie-set-like backdrop that includes waterfalls, bridges, ruins and ponds, according to the New York Post. The wedding is estimated to cost $10 million.

While the wedding of Parker to Alexandra Lenas, who gave birth to their first child January 6, is all the buzz around town, those actually working on the ceremony are keeping mum.

American International Transportation Services, Inc. in Monterey was hired to shuttle guests to and from the wedding in limousines and other vehicles. At the request of Parker, its drivers are even slated to be fitted with special costumes for the wedding, a source told The Pine Cone.

However, AITS general manager Dawn Fisher said

New bridge at Rocky Creek

A HUGE rockslide that carried away a big section of Highway 1 in Big Sur, and tied up traffic for more than two years, took a big step toward finally being repaired last week when an expensive new viaduct opened at Rocky Creek. While the inland lane is still closed, and the entire project won't be completed until October, motorists are now being routed along the new outside lane. The project site, which is located 12 miles from Carmel, has been restricted to one-way traffic since March 2011, when a 50-foot section of pavement collapsed between the landmark Rocky Creek and Bixby bridges. To rebuild the outside lane, the project's contractor, Golden State Bridge Inc., dug deep footings and constructed 600 feet of low bridge on top of the damaged pavement. When finished, the project is expected to have cost $11 million.

Herald selling printing plant and relocating

■ Yet another round of downsizing

By KELLY NIX

IN A move that didn't surprise longtime employees, the Monterey County Herald announced this week the newspaper is laying off more workers, getting rid of its printing press, selling its Ryan Ranch office building and moving its remaining operations to an undisclosed site.

In an email message to Herald employees Wednesday, Herald publisher Gary Omernick said the changes will result in the paper being printed somewhere in the San Francisco Bay Area.

"There is an industry-wide effort to relocate newspaper operations into facilities that better suit our needs, and this is part of our ongoing digital strategy," according to Omernick, in a press release printed in the Herald Thursday. Nationwide, newspapers have seen sharp declines in revenue and readership and have been forced to make significant cutbacks.

While they knew something was up, most employees didn't know exactly what the newspaper's latest move to save money would be until they received Omernick's email message at the end of Wednesday's work day. Press workers were also called saying they would be laid off in about a month.

"All of (press) production got laid off yesterday," according to an employee, who said workers were notified they would be out of a job by the end of June.

A steep decline

Omernick said there's no timetable for the move, and tried to put a good face on things by claiming the changes will allow the Herald's "content, advertising and business operations to relocate into office space with easy access for employees and customers."

The publisher also stressed the changes would "not affect the content or delivery of the newspaper" and that moving print operations "will improve color quality and color capacity."

"Our focus remains meeting the needs of our audience and our customers," Omernick said.

The Herald will begin "staging down production" in

Dog training center in C.V. could be open by July

■ Still needs county approval

By CHRIS COUNTS

MOVE OVER Carmel Beach, the Cypress Inn and Garland Regional Park — there's a new dog-friendly amenity coming to town.

Located just across the road from Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley, the 45-acre Carmel Canine Sports Center hopes to celebrate its grand opening Sunday, July 14. The venture, though, still needs to be approved by Monterey County.

It shouldn't have too much trouble, though. The owner of the business is a county planning commissioner.

Martha Diehl and two partners — her husband, Ken Ecklund and Ernie Mill — recently signed a 10-year lease to rent the property, which is owned by the Walter family and has been used as farmland since the 1940s.

At the center, she plans to offer training and agility facilities, a "safe and stress-free" place to let dogs walk or run off their leashes, and a social hub for their owners to meet, Diehl told The Pine Cone. A pond — which includes a "shallow end" for puppies — will offer pooches a place for a refreshing dip on a sunny summer day. The property would also be the site of special

Avid knitter leaves behind a huge collection of yarn

BY ALL accounts, Linda Jacobs was well liked. During her 40-year career at Alpha Stationers on Forest Avenue, she had many loyal clients.

On January 21, however, Jacobs — Alpha's store manager and buyer — passed away after losing a three-year fight with ovarian cancer, saddening her friends and dozens of customers.

But the longtime P.G. resident left behind something to remember her by. Jacobs, a highly accomplished knitter, had — over decades — amassed 100 sweaters Jacobs intricately hand knitted and 30 more that she never had a chance to finish.

"Essentially, there is a yarn store's worth of yarn," said Ann Pettit, who knew Jacobs and is one of several St. Mary's thousands of balls of high quality yarn and dozens of hand-knit sweaters.

"She was a master knitter," Alpha Stationers owner and Jacobs' close friend Doug De Young told The Pine Cone. "As a result, she accumulated this huge collection of yarn."

De Young found so much yarn in Jacobs' Sunset Drive house that he arranged with parishioners of St. Mary's by-the-Sea Episcopal Church to sort through the material. Also found was

POLICE UNION WINS SUIT OVER PENSION CUTS

By KELLY NIX

A JUDGE Friday ruled in favor of a Pacific Grove police union over a lawsuit it filed in November 2010 alleging the city violated labor laws when it capped the contributions to police officers' pensions.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Thomas Wills ruled that the pension plan, which was adopted by the city council after voters approved a similar measure, is unconstitutional, a point the police union had argued in its lawsuit.

The council's ordinance had capped the city's contribution to an employee's pension plan at 10 percent of workers' salaries. The city had contributed 19 percent for police officers into the CalPERS retirement plan.

"We are happy that the judge agreed with our stance on the illegality of Measure R," Pacific Grove Police Officers Association president Jeff Fenton told The Pine Cone Monday. "We look forward to being able to set this aside and move forward."

The PGPOA's 26-page lawsuit, which named city manager Tom Frutchey and the 2010 city council,

Cleo the Clown

WHAT SHE really wanted was a cat. But her husband had an Akita that would kill cats for sport, if allowed. So she didn't dare tempt fate. After the Akita died, she went right down to the SPCA to adopt her cat but fell in love with Buddy Boy, an 8-week-old Border Collie.

Thirteen years later, Buddy Boy was diagnosed with leukemia and died six weeks after. The only way to heal her heart, said her friend, was to adopt another dog. Which is how she came up with Cleo.

"We thought Cleo was another Border Collie," her person says, "but we weren't sure, so we had her DNA tested. She has eight different breeds in her and, ironically, the most dominant is Akita. She's also part Wheaten terrier, chow chow, German shepherd. What she really is, is a clown."

Cleo is also agile and athletic. She loves to play Frisbee at the beach, and chase tirelessly after a ball or anything else that catches her attention along the shore.

"I can't let Cleo off leash at the beach," her person says, "because she gets so distracted; it's hard to get her to focus back on me. She'll end up in the water or take off. Still a puppy at 2, she can get pretty wiggy, so we have some work to do."

While she represents food and exercise to Cleo, her husband is all about comfort. As soon as he sits down, she snuggles in close and hangs out with him all evening.

"Cleo's full of spunk and is so much fun, a real sweetheart," her person says. "Are we weird to be so crazy about a dog? Not in this town. I make no apologies for it; I just am."

So much for the cat.

Mysterious box helps supply important data about Carmel River

By KELLY NIX

A CURIOUS steel box the size of a large microwave on a bridge in Carmel Valley's Garland Regional Park often attracts the attention of passersby.

Though it seems out of place, the "graphic recorder box" is in the perfect location. The device, at the Don Juan Bridge, constantly measures the Carmel River's depth, which provides valuable Carmel River data to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

"The common question is, 'what is it used for and why is it necessary,'" Greg James, a hydrologist with the water district told The Pine Cone.

Placed there in 1992, the device helps monitor the amount of water is being taken from the river, and helps warns when it's flooding.

The gauge operates on solar power and works with the help of a float within a corrugated, cigar-like metal probe about 5 inches long that descends into the river. The float rises and falls with changes in river level. A transmission cable connects the probe to the graphic recorder, which draws a continuous trace of river-level changes.

The device is one of 15 the water district has positioned in the Carmel River. Unique about the Garland Park gauge is that it's located in a section of the river that has never gone dry, James said.

It's also the only gauge featuring a plexiglas front and in a conspicuous location, unlike the others that are housed in steel boxes.

James checks the gauge periodically, and uses the information to calculate the river's width and the relationship between its depth and rate of flow.

The device — which the State Water Resources Control Board since 2002 has required the water district to operate and maintain — is also used to stop California American Water from pumping from wells in the upper Carmel River when the river flow at the Garland Park bridge is too low.

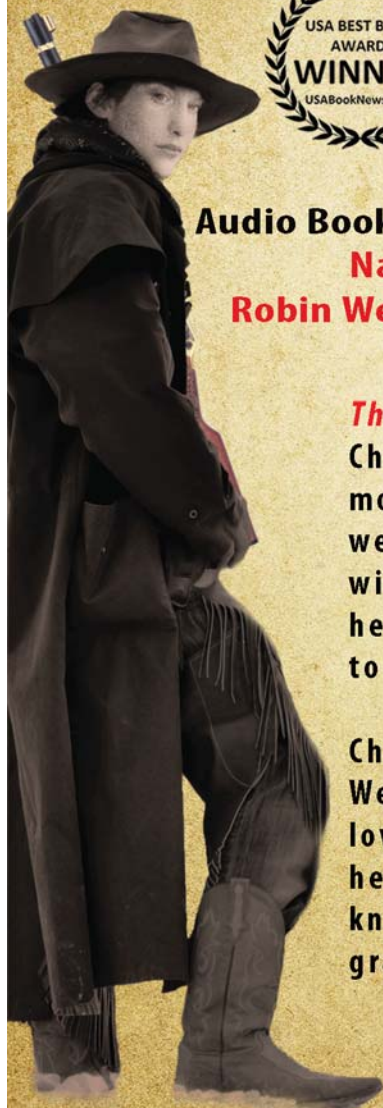

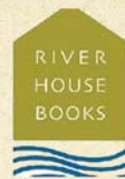

And checking the data from the gauge is easy since telecommunications technology allows James or others to access it remotely using a computer.

"I look at the flows a couple of times a week and post them on our website," he said.

To view the data, go to www.mpwmd.dst.ca.us and click on "Carmel River flows."

The Whip is inspired by the true story of a woman, Charlotte "Charley" Parkhurst (1812-1879) who lived most of her extraordinary life as a man in the old west. As a young woman in Rhode Island, she fell in love with a runaway slave and had his child. The destruction of her family drove her west to California, dressed as a man, to track the killer.

Charley became a renowned stagecoach driver for Wells Fargo. She killed a famous outlaw, had a secret love affair, and lived with a housekeeper who, unaware of her true sex, fell in love with her. Charley was the first known woman to vote in America in 1868 (as a man). Her grave lies in Watsonville, California.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to a report of trespassing on Ocean View. Resident said she would like the woman to leave and advised not to come back or she will be arrested for trespassing. Officer made contact with the woman; she seemed to be transient. Officer asked her to leave the property and to not come back, or she will be arrested for trespassing. The suspect advised she did not want to be arrested and left.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to Forest Avenue on a report of possible trespassing. Man advised he is the store manager. He asked an individual who was collecting signatures for a petition outside the store to leave the premises. He stated the subject refused, citing his rights to free speech. Man stated the subject had left the property but would like him to be admonished and removed if he returns. He provided a copy of the store's no-solicitation policy, which cites his authority to have the subject removed from private property with the assistance of local police.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to a report of petty theft and contacted the victim on Ninth Street. The person was agitated and uncooperative with the officer. While attempting to take a report for the theft, the person advanced on the officer in an aggressive and hostile manner. When the officer retreated to the porch, the resident yelled, "Get the f*@k back into my house!" and began yelling other profanities, demanding the officer take a report and screaming. The resident was then advised to contact PGPD at a later time to finish making the report when he was able to collect himself. Other on-duty officers were advised of the incident and officer safety concerns. Info only at this time.

HIKER SERIOUSLY INJURED CLIMBING ROCKS AT WATERFALL NEAR GORDA

By CHRIS COUNTS

A SERIOUSLY injured hiker was airlifted to a hospital May 15 after he tried to climb steep rocks adjacent to the Salmon Creek waterfall in Big Sur.

A seasonal firefighter based out of Cambria, Tyler Davis told The Pine Cone he and a fellow firefighter carried a young man from the base of the falls to an ambulance about a quarter-mile away.

“He appeared to be climbing the rocks near the waterfall,” Davis explained. “He fell down a rock face and landed between two rocks.”

Davis said the injured man was driven four miles south to Ragged Point, where he was transported by helicopter about 25 miles to a medical facility in Templeton.

Accompanied by her husband, another hiker, Debbie Tassell, helped lead rescuers to the injured man, whom she knew only as Joe.

“We were finishing up our hike when we crossed paths with the hiker’s mom in a panic,” Tassell wrote on an Internet blog. “She told us what had happened, and we went to find him as she drove back to Ragged Point to get cell service and call 911. My husband and two other hikers stayed with him, and kept him alert and comfortable.”

Tassell said Joe ended up with a broken left wrist, a broken hip, a dislocated and broken knee, two broken tibias, two broken fibias and two broken ankles.

Located about 70 miles south of Carmel and just north of the San Luis Obispo county line, the roughly 100-foot waterfall is visible from Highway 1. A well marked — and hence, popular — trailhead makes access relatively easy, but dangerous.

“Be careful,” warned John Rogers, who works at the front desk of nearby Gorda Springs Resort. “People have died falling off of there.”

The incident happened at about 11 a.m. Also responding to the scene were members of the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade and Cambria Ambulance, who arrived first, Davis said.

Good Samaritan saves fisherman

A man who was fishing off rocks near Rocky Point restaurant fell into the ocean May 12, but was saved by a bystander.

“A Good Samaritan jumped in the water and pulled him to the shore,” reported Sgt. Joe Moses of the Monterey County Sheriff’s Search and Rescue team. “We set up a rope system to bring him up and airlift him to a hospital in San Jose.

The incident happened at about 10 a.m. Also responding were members of the California Highway Patrol and Cal Fire, as well as an AMR ambulance.

December 25, 1941 ~ May 24, 2006

Sometimes, on waking, she would close her eyes
For a last look at that white house she knew
In sleep alone, and held no title to,
And had not entered yet, for all her sighs.

What did she tell me of that house of hers?
White gatepost; terrace; fanlight of the door;
A widow's walk above the bouldered shore;
Salt winds that ruffle the surrounding firs.

Is she now there, wherever there may be?
Only a foolish man would hope to find
That haven fashioned by her dreaming mind.
Night after night, my love, I put to sea.

UNION

alleged the city violated labor laws when it capped the contributions and gave voters and the council the right to regulate retirement benefits without consulting the police union beforehand.

The complaint was filed by Sacramento attorney Christopher Miller on behalf of more than two dozen officers and other police employees. The P.G. Police Management Association, also a plaintiff in the suit, represented the police chief and its commanders.

The backers of Measure R argued the measure was necessary to help control skyrocketing pension costs, which have strained city resources.

"The city has spent over $100,000 defending the police law suit and the city will probably pay more than that for the police attorneys," said resident John Moore, who contributed to the initiative. "But that is peanuts compared to the millions it will cost in future pension by losing a case that could not be lost."

Initiative proponents file suit

Meanwhile, the authors of the latest ballot initiative to cut pension costs in Pacific Grove filed a lawsuit this week to force the city council to put it to voters.

In legal documents filed May 21 in Monterey County Superior Court, residents Sally Aberg, Dan Davis and Frances Grate ask a judge to compel the city to set an election to let voters to decide whether to enact an ordinance that would void a generous 2002 pension plan for police and firefighters.

The group contends the council violated the California Elections Code when it voted May 15 to have a judge review the initiative to determine its legality instead of enacting it or putting it on the ballot.

This suit, which names the City of Pacific Grove, its clerk and the city council as defendants, argues the council only had two choices and the one it selected last week wasn't a legal one.

"It's a certified initiative," Davis told The Pine Cone Tuesday. "The council had only two options — put it on the ballot or enact it."

It also notes that city attorney David Laredo did not object to the measure until after the group had collected enough signatures to put it on a ballot.

"We filed our intent to circulate the petition," Davis said. "At that point, the city attorney, if he thought it was an illegal initiative, could have gone to a judge and declared it illegal. He didn't do that."

On Oct. 1, 2012, the group notified the city of its intent to circulate the petition. On Oct. 12, the backers received a title and summary of the initiative (dated Oct. 5) from Laredo and it was published in a newspaper on Nov. 2.

The group collected 1,195 signatures that were certified by the Monterey County Elections Office April 18.

"Now after we have gone and collected all these signatures and done all of this work, they are saying it's illegal?" Davis questioned.

The initiative asks voters to void a 2002 plan that boosted the CalPERS pension plan for public safety workers to "3 percent at 50," allowing employees at least 50 years old to retire with pay equal to 3 percent of their highest year's compensation for every year they worked, to a maximum of 90 percent of their highest pay level.

The 2002 council's decision to adopt the plan was unlawful because a public hearing was never held and crucial financial information on how much the increase would actually cost the city was not disclosed to the council and the public, according to Aberg, Davis and Grate.

mid-June and will complete the transition by the end of that month, Omernick said.

One former Herald employee described Omernick's message as "sugarcoated" and described it as another example of a what happens when a local publication gets taken over by a large, out-of-town corporation.

"What we are seeing is another step in the continuing dismantling of a once pretty good newspaper," the former employee told The Pine Cone.

In November 2011, the Herald laid off employees in the ad production department and outsourced that work to India, where it is now done. Over the last decade, and especially since the economy nosedived in 2006, the paper has eliminated jobs in management, the newsroom and the advertising department and imposed furloughs on remaining employees. The print circulation has declined by almost half, bylined stories on the front page are frequently written by unpaid interns, freelance columnists have been told they'd have to start working for nothing, and the front page — formerly off-limits to advertising — routinely carries large ads.

'Saw it coming a long time ago'

Another former Herald employee, who didn't want to be named because he didn't want to jeopardize any possible future employment there, said the paper's move "follows the trend" in downsizing.

"Nobody is ever surprised by anything that happens anymore," the former worker said. "It's more like, 'What's going to happen next?'"

Several other Herald workers also told The Pine Cone that Omernick's announcement is not stunning.

One of them is former Herald printer and graphic artist Larry Ellis, who worked at the newspaper for 52 years before being laid off last year when it outsourced his work to lower-paid workers in India.

"I saw it coming a long time ago," he told The Pine Cone Thursday.

Ellis, 71, said about a half-dozen people work in the press room. He figures the paper will have its printing done at the San Jose Mercury News, which also has put its large building up for sale.

'Way too much space'

Another employee said the Herald's fewer than 100 workers, in a building that not too long ago housed more than 200, don't begin to fill the large Ryan Ranch complex — which mostly does not have open windows or a working air conditioning system, and becomes sweltering on warmer days.

"If you've walked through the building lately, there are big open areas and open desks," he said. "So obviously there is way too much space for the people working there."

While the worker said he didn't believe quality of the Herald's journalism would suffer with the reorganization, he said it's possible deadlines for reporters would be earlier with the printing no longer in house.

Lewis Leader, who worked at the Herald as a reporter and editor for 18 years, and later at the LA Times as a regional editor, told The Pine Cone that an employee he spoke to last night was still trying to make sense of the announcement.

"This is a sad day," Leader said. "I remember the great excitement and optimism when the Herald completed its move from downtown Monterey to Ryan Ranch in 1990."

Some have suggested that the Scotts Valley-based Santa Cruz Sentinel and the Herald — both owned by MediaNews and managed by a company called Digital First Media — could merge, while another said it would be logistically too difficult for employees for both newspapers.

In an April interview with John Paton, CEO of Digital First Media, Paton said he didn't think news organizations were dying but that newspapers "are going to stop running in print."

"Newspapers in print are clearly going away," Paton told journalist Matthew Ingram. "I think you're an idiot if you think that's not happening."

But he said print advertising at the company has fallen dramatically, and revenue from online operations hasn't come close to making up the difference.

Omernick reiterated the company's focus on the Internet in his email to employees, saying, "Monetizing real estate and right-sizing office space to fit our digitally focused strategy is something [Digital First Media] is doing — and has done — across the organization."

However, from a reader's perspective, the Herald has done little to improve its website, which is bogged down with irritating pop-up advertisements.

Editorial errors, such as name misspellings, are usually left unchanged on the site, which is often filled with links to generic news stories that are not pertinent to Monterey County.

On the leading edge?

One Herald employee said the idea of replacing dollars the Herald has earned in print with digital advertising cash doesn't make a lot of sense.

"They think they are somehow on the leading edge of digital news," he said. "But in order to make that work you have to have an established name. It works for the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times, but these guys [the Herald] doesn't have a national reputation, and there is no reason for anyone to depend on them."

While Omernick directed questions about the Herald's changes to New York-based Digital First Media spokesman Jonathan Cooper, Cooper did not return several phone and email messages left by The Pine Cone.

Stranded and Dangerous

By JODIE SHERRILL

APRIL AND May are pupping seasons for sea lions, elephant seals and harbor seals along the Monterey Bay coastline. Walking the rec trail through Pacific Grove over the next few weeks will essentially ensure a glimpse of a shiny, silver, caterpillar-shaped harbor seal newborn pup, about the size of a healthy adult cocker spaniel. Pretty cute.

However, as nature would have it, some of these babies won't make it, whether due to genetic issues, mom issues, or an infectious agent (virus, bacteria, parasite). A walk on one of our beaches might lead to an encounter with a stranded dead pup or adult seal. Very sad when that happens.

At the annual International Association of Aquatic Animal Medicine conference, held in Sausalito a few weeks ago, I attended a lecture on the dangers that lurk within some of the stranded marine mammals along the California coast, particularly where we live, that pose a threat to people handling these ill-fated sick or dead animals. The lecturer listed some scary zoonotic diseases that can manifest in these cases.

Zoonotic diseases are ones that can spread between and among people and animals, including through vectors such as ticks or rodents.

In the case of marine mammals on our shores, human contact might lead to some very serious infections that you do not want: Brucellosis, Leptospirosis, pandemic H1N1 influenza virus, Toxoplasmosis, Giardia, Cryptosporidia and more. These are nasty bacteria, viruses, and parasites that can infect through contact with animal fluids on human skin, mucous membranes (eyes, mouth), or by inhalation. The lecturer made her point by showing pictures of hapless children smiling at the camera while standing on a dead whale, sitting on a beached dolphin, leaning up against a sea lion carcass, or worse, touching almost dead marine mammals.

So what can the average beachgoer here do to protect himself? Respecting the Marine Mammal Protection Act is step one. This law prohibits coming within 500 feet of any marine mammal, including stranded ones, dead or alive. Apart from not breaking the law, it is also completely unwise for anyone to handle, touch, try to rescue, or contact the body fluids of any marine mammal that is sick enough to be dying or dead on the shore.

This may sound alarmist, but you shouldn't discount it: Of 43 marine mammal workers in the stranding industry that the Center for Disease Control blood-tested for exposure to marine Brucella bacteria (which can lead to abortions, brain and bone infections, pneumonia, and worse in humans), 19, or almost half of them, had to undergo post-exposure prophylaxis by using two different harsh antibiotics for three weeks. The National Marine Fisheries Service has been screening coastal species of cetaceans since 2011, and sadly, Pacific bottlenose dolphins commonly tested positive for marine Brucella.

Because our town is so dog-friendly, perhaps you need to be reminded to keep your dog from sniffing or contacting beached marine mammals.

I remember seeing a pair of Vizslas on Carmel beach who were having a vigorous sea lion carcass snack — hopefully without their owner's blessing. No doubt they subsequently ended up in the veterinary emergency room with vomiting and diarrhea from what we veterinarians fondly call "dietary indiscretion." Or worse, they could have contracted Leptospirosis and ended up in kidney failure from infection with the leptospire bacteria that more than 80 percent of stranded California sea lions are treated for (unsuccessfully) at the Marine Mammal Center in Sausalito. Beach dogs should get vaccinated against Leptospirosis annually.

So is it likely that a Carmel beach walk that includes an encounter with a stranded marine mammal will turn out to be a hazardous affair? If common sense and proper protocols are followed, everything should be okay. We are fortunate in our town to have a network of marine mammal stranding professionals, and they are the people who should be dealing with beached seals, sea lions, dolphins or whales.

Harbor seals and their pups are irresistibly cute, but you should never approach one, not only for their health, but for yours.

So give them a call and steer clear. Leash your dogs and as always, wash your hands!

Jodie Sherrill is a Carmel veterinarian who specializes in marine mammals.

CONCERT SHOWCASES HIGH SCHOOL VIOLINIST; RAINBOW GIRLS ROCK BIG SUR'S FERNWOOD

By CHRIS COUNTS

CARMEL HIGH School junior Peter Mellinger will be featured as a soloist on violin when the Monterey Peninsula College Orchestra performs Monday, May 27, in its Music Hall.

"We have some really great young violinists around here," said David Dally, a Carmel Valley resident who will conduct the orchestra. "What's extraordinary about Peter is that he's doing so many styles of music. He's playing with adults and he feels comfortable performing classical music, fiddle music and jazz."

The winner of the Youth Music Monterey's 2012-13 Honors Orchestra Concerto Competition and a member of the Carmel High Jazz Trio, the 17-year-old Mellinger will perform Max Bruch's Violin Concerto.

Also featured as a soloist will be 17-year-old Madeline Anderson, who will play the first movement of Grieg's Piano Concerto.

Rehearsing Monday nights, the orchestra's 45 members range from teenagers to octogenarians, including Carmel and Carmel Valley residents Margie Dally, Patricia Dally and Vernon Brown on cello, Karen King and Nancy Fowler on flute, Don Roseff on bass, Joe Laurence on violin and Kevin Jordan on trumpet.

The concert starts at 7 p.m. and is free. The college is located at 980 Fremont St. in Monterey.

■ A stompin' good time

Playing what they describe as "Gypsy-Americana, rock 'n' roll, stomp folk," The Rainbow Girls of Santa Barbara liven things up Saturday, May 25, when they play at Fernwood Resort in Big Sur.

Caitlin Gowdey, Erin Chapin, Cheyenne Methmann, Vanessa May, Savannah Hughes and Hannah Jewell bring together an eclectic mix of instruments ranging from a ukelele and a "banjolele," to a washboard and a kazoo.

Also performing Saturday at Fernwood are The Perpetual Drifters. Featuring Garrett Gray on vocals, Nolan Ford on lead guitar, Evan McPherson on bass, Justin Wood on drums and Jack Knight on keyboards. The band offers a fresh mix of alt-country, folk and rock.

The music begins at 9 p.m. and there's no cover. Fernwood is located on Highway 1 about 25 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-2422.

■ Happenings all over town

Pianist Gennady Loktionov and singer Debbie Davis present a cabaret show Friday and Saturday in Terry's Lounge at Cypress Inn (7 p.m.). Classical guitarist Richard Devinck plays Sunday (5 p.m.). Singers Lee Durley and Ray Paul perform Thursday (7 p.m.). There's no cover for any of the shows. Terry's Lounge is located at Lincoln and Seventh.

Short recently wrote on her blog. "Like the tortoise, I will beat the hare."

At the heart of Short's display are 40 6-inch-by-6-inch images "inspired by nature, people, and places" captured with her iPhone. Hung with painted binder clips, the photos were taken in Big Sur, Carmel and Carmel Valley. "This was an experiment with not framing anything," she said.

Two years after a car accident left her paralyzed, photographer and gallery co-owner Rachael Short works out six days a week in an effort to improve her mobility.

Before her accident, Short avoided digital photography, preferring a traditional film camera. But confined to a wheelchair, she discovered she was able to use the iPhone's camera — thanks to an app called Hipstamatic — despite having limited use of her hands.

"The iPhone is now my best friend," said Short, who graduated from Carmel High School in 2000. "It gives me the freedom to take pictures on my own. I can do everything myself and email them to people. It's so easy."

With her black Lab, Devo, sprawled out of the floor of her pint-sized downtown gallery, Short offered The Pine Cone a peek of the show — and a demonstration of her shooting technique. Cupping the camera in her hands, she touched a "button" on the phone's screen with the tip of her tongue, snapping a photo.

"Don't touch my phone," she cautioned before flashing a smile. "It has germs all over it."

She looked at the display with a sense of pride. "I was afraid I wasn't going to be able to fill the gallery," she said.

While the exhibit marks a milestone for Short, she's not quite ready to contemplate her next creative project. "I'm just taking it one day at a time," she added.

Short's digital camera odyssey takes another step forward June 23 when she teaches her first iPhone workshop at Garland Regional Park. The event is featured in the Monterey Regional Park District's "Let's Go Outdoors" catalog. A second workshop is scheduled July 21.

The opening of Short's show comes a month after three relay teams — composed of 15 local runners — raised $9,800 for her at this year's Big Sur International Marathon. The annual "Relay for Rachael" has now raised over $30,000. The money helps to pay for the cost of her rehabilitation.

The gallery, which hosts a reception from 5 to 8 p.m., is located in the Carmel Square courtyard on the east side of San Carlos between Nielsen Brothers Market and Wells Fargo bank. Call (831) 238-0127 or visit www.galleryexposed.com.

Mary Schley's food column, "Soup to Nuts," will be back next week.

YARN

parishioners to sort through the yarn. "I tell people it's a lot of yarn ... but you really have to see it."

The yarn and accessories, including dozens of books, magazines, knitting needles and other items, filled up a large room at St. Mary's. A presale of Jacobs' collection held for members of St. Mary's last weekend netted $1,000, "and we didn't make a dent," Pettit said.

On June 8 from noon to 4 p.m. at St Mary's at 146 12th Street there will be a public sale of the yarn, which includes imported mohair, alpaca, Cashmere, Shetland and Merino wool that Jacobs had neatly stored in closets and file boxes in her two-bedroom home. Most of the yarn balls, or skeins, will be priced at $2.

"It's not garage sale material," Pettit said of the yarn which comes in colors of the rainbow. "We expect to have something of a feeding frenzy."

Before she got sick three years ago, Jacobs spent a lot of time on her craft, and Pettit and De Young said Jacobs was so knowledgeable that she often gave others advice.

"She really enjoyed doing fine work," De Young said of her knitting hobby. "And the more intricate the pattern, the more challenged she was, the more she enjoyed it."

"She was one of the most experienced and accomplished knitters I knew," Pettit said. "She was very particular about the patterns she used. And she bought the nicest yarn. She went to a lot of trouble to buy the yarn, from England, Australia, New Zealand, Norway and Scotland."

Pettit said the sale is a fitting tribute since Jacobs liked to share her love of knitting with others.

"Linda had a vision," Pettit said, "and we are helping her share that vision."

Jacobs' other lifelong pursuit was her job at Alpha Stationers. De Young and his wife, Beverly Allen, were Jacobs' close friends, spending every holiday with the couple. De Young said Jacobs had extremely devoted customers.

"When I was at the store and she was off, [customers] would ask if she was here," De Young said, "I would say 'No,' and they would say 'Oh, OK. I'll come back tomorrow.' She was the favorite of a lot of clients."

De Young also called Jacobs, who had a bachelor's degree in English Literature from UC Davis and a graduate degree in library science from UC Berkeley, a "genius," and said she was a wealth of knowledge.

"I have never met a more intelligent and well-read person," De Young said of Jacobs, an only child who doesn't have any close surviving family members. "If there was something I didn't know, all I did was ask her. She was truly loved by the community."

events and competitions.

"There's nothing quite like it," Diehl said. "We've taken bits and pieces of other [facilities and parks] and put them together."

Using a business model like a tennis or golf club, the center is offering memberships options that range from a $300 annual fee with monthly payments of $68 to 10-year memberships with a one-time $10,000 charge. So far, 35 annual memberships have been sold, while two 10-year deals have been signed.

Originally, Diehl had hoped to make the canine sports center a nonprofit, but wasn't able to get it off the ground, so she decided to launch it as a profit-making business. While Diehl, a former captain in the merchant marines, lacks formal business experience, she's confident the venture is viable from a financial standpoint.

"I've never owned a business before," conceded Diehl, who lives with her husband and three border collies on the Big Sur Coast. "We could lose our shirts. But we did our homework and looked for the appropriate property. The present site is the nicest place you could imagine. The timing was perfect." They signed the lease April 15.

The proposal is still working its way through the county planning process. Two Pine Cone readers have suggested Diehl has or will receive favoritism because of her role as planning commissioner.

One asked why Diehl would sign a 10-year lease without any guarantees her project would be approved. "We couldn't go to the county before we signed the lease," she countered.

Another reader argued the project deserves more scrutiny. But Diehl insisted she will be subject to the same oversight as anybody else.

While some people have expressed concerns about the center, Diehl said the vast majority have offered positive feedback.

"Our first order of business was to talk to the neighbors, which we've diligently pursued," she said. "We have a lot of local support."

Diehl said the property — which will feature an assortment of fenced-in areas — is bordered mostly by a golf course and farmland, and very little infrastructure will need to be built.

"We're not asking for much," she explained. "The owner retains an option to turn it back into farmland after 10 years. Everything we build will have to be easy to move."

This week, Diehl and her partners were busy planting grass seed and irrigating the property. She said the water use isn't an issue. The property has its own wells into the Carmel River aquifer and has been using them for two lettuce crops a year, she explained.

Diehl, who will be the facility's general manager, said she believes the center is a great fit for Carmel Valley.

"I've been dreaming that this is something the neighborhood can welcome and be proud of," she added. "I think we can benefit the community. I'm betting there are enough people in the area who see this the way I do."

Water district will spend 8 percent more next year

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District's 2013/2014 budget increased by a little more than $1 million over last year's budget, according to a report released this week.

"It's a balanced budget," water district general manager Dave Stoldt said.

The biggest expense in the $15,319,714 budget will be for projects to store more water underground, which is an important part of the effort to reduce pumping from the Carmel River during the summer and may also be used to hold excess water from the proposed desal plant, water officials say. Altogether, the various groundwater replenishment and aquifer storage projects will cost about $6.6 million.

Another big outlay will be for the district's 26 employees and some retirees, who will receive a total of $3,249,150, including $2,149,700 in salary, $500,600 for insurance and $450,000 in retirement expenses.

Other significant expenses including $500,000 for planning an alternate desal project, $400,000 for auditing landscape irrigation by Monterey Peninsula residents, $168,300 to operate the Sleepy Hollow fish rearing facility and other fish rescue activities, $78,900 for monitoring the Carmel River lagoon, $150,000 to install low-flow water fixtures in schools and $750,000 for the district's water conservation rebates.

The cost of hiring attorneys is budgeted at $400,000, the same amount as last year, although Stoldt said it appears that number will likely be more in the range of $350,000. The money goes to water district attorney David Laredo and various outside counsel.

Revenue for the district includes an estimated $4.8 million added to local property tax bills, $5.8 million from Cal Am (which the company adds to water bills), $1.3 million in grants (from state and federal taxpayers) and $1.5 million borrowed from Rabobank. Only a tiny portion, $175,000, is expected to come from letting people make new connections for water service, and just $231,000 from issuing permits.

A summary of the budget can be found at <http://www.mpwmd.dst.ca.us/asd/board/boardpacket/2013/20130520/ppt/20.pdf>.

WEDDING

she was prohibited from talking about the services her company was providing for the party because she signed a confidentiality agreement.

"I signed a non disclosure [form] so I can't talk about," Fisher said Wednesday.

Jan de Luz, who owns a high-end interior decorator showroom of the same name in Carmel Valley that sold Parker items for the wedding, said he didn't sign such an agreement, which are common in celebrity weddings.

"I didn't sign it," he told The Pine Cone, "but I don't want to talk about it."

Monterey attorney Aengus Jeffers, who is reportedly working for Parker, wouldn't confirm or deny he is associated with the wedding, much less provide any information about its permit problems.

While coastal commission enforcement program supervisor Nancy Cave told The Pine Cone her office is investigating Ventana Inn for possible violations, she declined to provide specifics as to the nature of the investigation or whether it will be wrapped up before Parker's nuptials.

Ventana Inn's general manager also isn't talking.

Parker, who also co-founded file-sharing website Napster and several other websites, wrote on Facebook in April that he hired Lord of the Rings costume designer Ngila Dickson to design custom-made outfits for the wedding's 300 guests.

He said the outfits would have some "Victorian flair and whimsy" and would be based on "modern suits and dresses."

But Parker denied early media reports that he was having a "theme wedding," shooting that down in April on Twitter saying it was not a theme wedding and there would be "no swords or chain mail."

Gateway Center partners with Mexican restaurant for fundraiser

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

GATEWAY CENTER in Pacific Grove is holding a fundraising event at a Monterey Mexican restaurant at the end of this month.

On May 31, Lopez Restaurant in Monterey will donate a chunk of its sales from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. to the P.G.-based nonprofit that provides care to adults with developmental disabilities.

"They will donate 20 percent of all proceeds made during business hours to Gateway," Gateway Center Melissa Walchli said of the restaurant at 635 Cass Street. "So bring your friends/family/distant relatives and come on out and enjoy the food/drinks while supporting this great nonprofit."

Those who eat at Lopez on May 31 are asked to tell their server they're dining out for the Gateway Center fundraiser.

A defender of capitalism and the sad story of his downsizing

ACROSS THE great Central Coast, in every parlor where the defenders of righteousness convene, a great hue and cry has emerged in furious defense of a fellow traveler.

It doesn't seem right that, at a time like this, when that sumbitch Obama is drowning in scandal, that corporate scoundrels would pull the plug on Mark Carbonaro.

Yes, it's true. KION radio has replaced Carbonaro's local morning show with a couple of syndicated loudmouths.

This creates a sad irony for free-marketeters of Carbonaro's stripe.

Clear Channel Communications, the embodiment of the aforementioned scoundrels, is a money-making enterprise that wishes to remain unencumbered by government dictate, mandate and regulation, which happen to be the guiding principles for Carbonaro and his local followers.

Clear Channel should be free to make business decisions that its team of executive scoundrels deem appropriate in furtherance of their primary mission — to increase profits — without interference from jack-booted government regulators or even from Clear Channel's recumbent listeners.

If Clear Channel has determined that it must yank Carbonaro because it can minimize local expenses by replacing him with a couple of blathering kooks in syndication, well, that's Clear Channel's business.

In a free market in which collectivist enterprises are considered "citizens," corporations should be free to do whatever they wish. That's the definition of liberty.

If anything, Carbonaro's followers should celebrate Clear Channel's objectivist Randian proclivities. If you are not happy with what Clear Channel has done with Carbonaro, perhaps you should work to create a reality — independent of the actions and reactions of others — that guarantees your own happiness.

If production is the noblest activity of the truly moral life, why are you wasting productive time listening to talk radio anyway?

Certainly, we can feel badly for Carbonaro, who seems like a decent fellow and who drew among his listeners an amusing mélange of like-minded souls who professed an affinity to libertarian causes. (Okay, perhaps "mélange" is the wrong word, in this context; "gallimaufrey" might better describe his collection of listeners.)

He gave voice to their politics, their concerns and their paranoia.

If Carbonaro harbored dreams of professional advancement in the prattling orbit of conservative talk-shot hosts, of reaching a broader audience, he seems to have undermined his potential for promotion with his unfortunate proclivity for study. That's like the kiss of death in the Radio Talk industry.

During his broadcasts, Carbonaro gave listeners the impression that he occupied much of his free time reading and analyzing wonkish volumes produced by lesser-known conservative academicians who have not yet been discredited, as opposed to the Coulterish screeds now in vogue among the nitwit classes.

Carbonaro was the sort of radio guy capable of offering a calm argument against the excess of federal aid to the hurricane-ravaged eastern seaboard, while mounting a rational defense for disaster funding to Oklahoma.

He could present a studied analysis of the recent scandals that now trip up the Obama administration without blowing a gasket.

Having Carbonaro in our midst was like commuting with Glen Beck's tranquil and bookish subordinate.

More important, at least for the local yokels, Carbonaro is a local guy and he dedicated a significant amount of his air time to local issues, which made him a local folk hero among the peculiar species of citizens who while away their idle time and passions in the misapplied and regular pursuit of badgering local officials at city council meetings.

Whether you listened to him or not, whether you agreed or disagreed with his point of view, guys like Carbonaro provide a unique public voice to the local social and political landscape, and his absence creates a void within the void.

It's a shame to lose him.

But that's business, and that's the main thing.

beyond the realm

By JOE LIVERNOIS

According to www.distraction.gov, a driver is 23 times more likely to become involved in an accident if driving while texting. Pew Research found that 40 percent of American teens say they have been in a car when the driver used a cell phone in a way that put people in danger. Sending or receiving a text takes a driver's eyes from the road for an average of 4.6 seconds — the equivalent, at 55 mph, of driving the length of an entire football field blind. Research by Carnegie Mellon University found that driving while using a cell phone reduces the amount of brain activity associated with driving by 37 percent.

Texting while driving is highly irresponsible and more dangerous than drunk driving, and terribly misguided to state otherwise.

It's dangerous to promote that dangerous, false idea. And made me wonder if some fact checker was off on vacation last week.

June Feeney

1932 – 2013

CARMEL VALLEY - June was delivered to the Lord on April 24, 2013.

Born Florence June Updike in Lusk, Wyoming on June 1, 1932 to Benjamin and Florence Updike. June would marry Walt Feeney in 1952 and together, they would create a wonderful family.

June was a mother of 8, a Grandmother of 14, a Great Grandmother of 8 and an Aunt of 4. All of which, were her pride and joy!

June went to Robert Down Elementary School in Pacific Grove. She was in the first graduating class at Junipero Serra (Carmel Mission) in 1946 and graduated as one of The Sister's of Notre Dame, California Province. She graduated from Carmel High School in 1950.

June was very competitive and an exceptional athlete in school. She excelled in numerous sports and studies. June was extremely popular among her peers and was touted by her long time friend, Joan Vandervort, as "a friend for life".

June was very passionate about family. Whether it being together on holidays and special events or just coming over to visit with Grandma. She was a very religious and spiritual soul, who loved to cook and read. June was an avid sports fan and it was not uncommon to walk into her room while she was engaged in a sporting event on T.V.

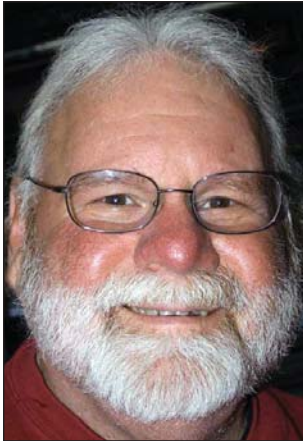

June's wish to donate her body to science was accepted. She hoped that a cure could be found so that others would not suffer from the debilitating arthritic condition that she struggled with.

June was predeceased by parents Ben and Florence Updike, husband Walt Feeney, sister Benita Updike Conlan, son Benjamin Feeney and daughter Marguerite Feeney. She is survived by brother Robert Updike, children Michael, Colleen, Timothy and Sean Feeney, Therese (Feeney) Yee, Robert Olivio, and companion of 45 years, Frank Olivio.

A celebration of Life Service will be held on June 2, 2013 from 12 to 4 P.M. at the Carmel Valley Community Center, 25 Ford Road, Carmel Valley.

The best at everything, including running his own business

ANTHONY COSTANZA is old-school Monterey. Born and raised there, he attended Thomas O. Larkin Grammar School, Walter Colton Middle School, and graduated from Monterey High. "I took one class at MPC, but dropped out. Music appreciation was too hard."

Anthony Costanza

That's a good joke, since he owns Duplication Connection and the Franklin Street Studio — businesses which have done recording and copying for some of the top people in the music industry.

Anthony is a bear of man, someone you would presume would have been a lineman on the high school football team. But he didn't play sports at Monterey High. "No. My father died when I was 11, and I had to support the family."

How did he do that? "I was working for the Monterey Peninsula Herald, because in those days it was in downtown Monterey on Jefferson Street, and I grew up on Van Buren. I started out as a paperboy at 8. I can't talk about that too much because that's illegal. You are not allowed to have a paper route until 10."

Despite his tender age, he made a great impression on the newspaper's management, and at the ripe old age of 15 he got a promotion.

"They called me a fly boy, which meant that I was taking papers off the press, grabbing 25 copies and giving 'em to the tie boy. Then I was a tie boy, which meant I was wrapping wire around the papers so they could go out to the carriers. Everybody got 50 or 100 papers, and I had to tie 'em up."

Continuing his move up the printing ladder, he was made an apprentice in the press room, which meant he got handed all the dirty jobs: changing inks, washing the rollers and oiling the machinery. And then he reached the top, in a position called "journeyman pressman," which made him responsible for preparing the plates and making sure the newspapers were being printed properly.

But then life stepped in. "I crushed a disk in my back and figured out I didn't want to do any more heavy lifting, so I became a restaurateur." He opened a sandwich shop at Del Monte and Figeroa. That lasted a couple of years.

"Then I went from there directly to Don Anthony's House of Rock, which was the craziest bar Monterey ever had. If you'd knock on the door, there were naked women at the bar," he said. Those scandalous days were short-lived, however, because Bank of America wanted to build on the site.

"I knew when I signed the lease that Bank of America wanted it, but we figured there were seven years on the lease," he recalled. "The bank wanted it after a year and a half."

So after Don Anthony's was forced to close, Costanza kept moving around.

"I opened up a bar for three months called C.C. Herkimer & Company. My partner snorted up the bar. He is dead now." There was then a hiatus that we can't discuss at this time, but in 1980, "I needed to get back in the workforce, so started pumping gas. Then I became a courier, working for United Courier, picking up the bank bags all over."

That lasted a month. "And then I moved up to Santa Clara and I went to sound school, the California Professional Music Business Academy, and I didn't learn anything. I was there about two weeks, and the bosses pulled me into the office and said, "We need someone to run the plant and you are the best by far." They wanted me to run the school and I told them no. Because I knew that the school wasn't going to make it, so I didn't want to be part of it. It was being run wrong. I thought it was too late to turn around."

Then Anthony went into sales. First it was electronics for a company that became Western Appliance — "I was their best salesman for a long time." — and then for Royal Foods where he sold produce for six months. He even sold vacuum cleaners for awhile, but hated it.

Finally, he took a job for a music duplication company, where he says he boosted sales by more than 250 percent in his first month. But he clashed with the owner and went out on his own, opening the Duplication Connection in 1985.

"I had a bank of 50 cassette decks. And then cassettes died and it cost me 75-grand to get into CDs because of all the new equipment, and then another 50-grand to get into DVDs. Thank god the media hasn't changed for a while because I am still making it all back."

His client base is "everybody from the Aquarium to country singer Durwood Erwin." His big time is Christmas: "People are still doing a lot of memories. I just had a lady whose house caught fire and almost everything burned. She brought in these videotapes that still stunk of smoke. We had to pull them all apart and then put them in new shells. Every one of them worked."

Aside from his work, Anthony Costanza is also known for his generosity. He has helped many people get over the humps in life, often without so much as a handshake or expectation of repayment. He's that kind of guy.

He and his son live in Seaside.

Scholar on Steinbeck, Ricketts and Campbell

AS PART of a month-long celebration of Joseph Campbell's life and work, scholar Dr. Susan Shillinglaw presents a talk about the writer's friendships with John Steinbeck and Ed "Doc" Ricketts Friday, May 24, at the Cherry Center.

In the early 1930s — long before he became one of the world's leading authorities on the subject of mythology — Campbell lived on the Monterey Peninsula, where he became friends with Steinbeck and Ricketts. Living next door to Ricketts, he often accompanied the marine biologist on his specimen-collecting ventures.

A leading Steinbeck researcher, Shillinglaw has been a scholar-in-residence at the National Steinbeck Center in Salinas since 2005.

The event starts at 7 p.m. Admission is $15. The Cherry Center is located at Fourth and Guadalupe.

Donna "Meme" Woods

On Wednesday, April 3, 2013, Donna "Meme" Woods passed peacefully in her home in Carmel Valley at the age of 92. She joins her high school sweetheart and husband of 71 years (Roy) who passed last year, April 5, 2012. She was a mother, grandmother, great grandmother and beloved friend.

Donna was born Jan 17, 1921 in San Mateo, CA, the only child of Ruth and John Sowden. Her early years were spent between Hawaii (where her grandfather was the Hawaiian Territorial Governor) and Southern California (where her father was a set designer and her mother, a hat designer for the motion picture industry). It was at San Fernando High School where she met her husband-to-be, Roy. He went on to play football for USC and Donna went on to UCLA. They married in 1942. After the war they started their family in Hollister, ultimately settling in Pebble Beach.

Together, they lived very "Carpe Diem" and indulged in an interesting and varied life that took them all over the world before retiring in Carmel Valley. They were blessed with three daughters (Leslie Nelson, Donna Woods, and Katie Ewen), two granddaughters (Kelly Ewen Schindler, Molly Ewen), two great grandsons (Nathan and Ian Schindler), all of whom Donna referred to as "the essence, color, music and central miracle of life." Donna saw life as great theater, and enjoyed Jazz music, art, books, and magazine clippings. She never stopped smiling. Remember Donna on a beautiful sunset evening at the beach.

Postal Savings Business By Mail

In accordance with regulations recently put into effect by the post office department, deposits and withdrawals of postal savings may now be made by mail. Under the plan adopted for the opening of accounts by mail, an intending depositor, residing where there is no savings bank connected with the post office, may apply to the postmaster for the preparation of identification data.

In this manner the residents of Pebble Beach and Big Sur may transact business with the Carmel post office.

Work of Carmel's Bird Club

Last December a few bird lovers of Carmel met at the home of Miss Louise Hutchinson to discuss the feasibility of organizing a Branch Society of the State Audubon Society.

At a meeting held in January the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Ellen S. White; Sec.-Treas., Miss E. B. Adams; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Ruth Rice. The Constitution and By-Laws were framed and adopted at the next meeting when the purpose of the society was defined.

"To gain a knowledge of the bird-life around us. To study birds with respect to their economic value to mankind so that we may take means to aid in their preservation."

New Avenue Plan May Be Solution

A new Ocean avenue plan was formulated this week when Carmel's council and business people got together, strung a tape across a side street and agreed that it would be possible to retain diagonal parking on Ocean avenue, thus pleasing the merchants, and do away with center parking, thus pleasing many of the residents who wish to see Carmel beautified.

A surprise meeting between the Carmel Business Association's committee of five and the council Monday morning — a meeting which threatened to remain deadlocked after more than an hour of discussion — finally moved out to the street to consider a compromise of the so-called "Bechdolt plan," which would not only remove the center diagonal parking on Ocean avenue, as Police Commissioner Frederick R. Bechdolt demanded, but would retain the diagonal parking, which would replace parallel parking at the curb.

Valentine Porter Scores

One of Carmel's most beautiful young ladies was complimented this week with Vogue's Prix de Paris, which will take her to Paris for six months. Valentine Porter, daughter of Mrs. Susan Mott Porter and niece of Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams, who graduates shortly from Radcliffe College at Cambridge, Mass., was recently the successful candidate among students of graduating classes at 252 American colleges throughout the country.

With the Prix de Paris goes a job with Vogue, for six months in the Vogue office in Paris, and six months more in the Vogue office in New York. The prix is decided in the magazine's annual fashion contest and is open to college women considering fashions as a career.

Fight Looms Over Knapp Mill Lease

The 977 Corporation has negotiated a lease with the M.J. Murphy Corp. for the 50-year-old lumber yard on San Carlos south of Ocean Avenue, on which the Knapp Mill & Cabinet Co. has operated for the past ten years.

Warren Knapp, who has operated the company since the death of his late father, George, was stunned by the news. According to Knapp, his lease contained clauses giving him the right of first refusal on a renewal. Knapp's attorney, George Walker, has said, "We are considering an action against the Murphy Corporation for a breach of lease."

The 977 Corporation, originally organized by attorney Lewis Fenton of Monterey and Edwin D. Jones of San Jose, was recently acquired by other interests. "Bud" Clark, as spokesman, has declined to identify the new owners of the corporation besides himself, other than to say that "they are all old-time Carmelites." Clark says there are no immediate plans for the property, and the corporation would be glad to have Knapp remain as a tenant.

William Thomas Powell

William Thomas Powell left the world Tuesday, May 7, 2013 with the dignity that characterized his entire life and with loved ones at his side. Bill was born in Ogdensburg New York, the second child of Albert and Mary

Powell. He was active in athletics and excelled at tennis, competing at the state level. After high school, he worked at the local hospital where he met the love of his life, Margie Koster. They were married on June 14, 1942. He served in the United States Army from March 1942-September 1945. He fought in the Battle of the Bulge (106 Div., Regiment 422, Co. D), was captured and interred at Bad Orb prison camp in Germany. On Easter Sunday 1945, a Red Cross volunteer was allowed to take a small group of the sickest prisoners to a hospital in France; Bill was one of those men. He weighed 95 lbs. and required several months of rehabilitation in a Paris hospital before returning to Ogdensburg and his beloved Margie and their two children Sherry and Bill, Jr. (two more children Tamia and Paul would later be born to the couple.) He entered Clarkson College in Potsdam, New York, on the G.I Bill where he managed to graduate in 3 years with high marks and a B.A. in Business. In December of 1949 he was hired by the Internal Revenue Service where he worked as an agent. In 1952 he transferred to the Department of U.S. Customs, quickly rising through the ranks, and was promoted to the directorship of the Port Authority of Rochester, New York, where he completed a distinguished career in Federal Service. He retired after 30 years to be with Margie when she was diagnosed with breast cancer. For the next 17 years Bill devoted himself to his wife and, during periods of remission in her illness, they enjoyed swimming, cross country skiing, trips to the local library, gardening and the friendship of their neighbors. They traveled extensively in their beloved Adirondack Mountains, visiting their childhood homes, family and friends. They took many trips to California, Texas, Massachusetts and Colorado to see children and grandchildren and had three memorable trips to Europe and the British Isles. Margie ultimately succumbed to breast cancer in 1994 and Bill remained in their home in Rochester, New York, becoming a surrogate grandfather, friend and wise counselor to many families in his neighborhood and nieces and nephews near and far. He was deeply respected and loved by all of them. In 1999, at the age of 80, after undergoing cancer surgery, he chose to leave his native New York State, which he loved, and came to Carmel to be close to his eldest daughter and her husband. He made a remarkable transition for one transplanted so late in life and thrived in Carmel. He rented a lovely cottage overlooking the glen at 4th and Lincoln where Mary Austin had her wickiup and got on with his new life. He enjoyed walks to the library and the beach and helping his daughter with her garden. He cut a distinguished figure and turned heads as he strolled Carmel with his neatly trimmed beard, English cap, and, latterly, his unique cane. He remained a wise counselor and life guide to his four children, 11 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren. He made many new friends in his adopted Carmel who respected and benefited from his wisdom, modesty, understated elegance, and compassion for the human condition. His witty sense of humor cheered everyone. He is survived by his daughter Sherry Shollenbarger (David), son William, Jr.(Phyllis) daughter Tamia Louka (Momtaz) son Paul (Veronica), sister-in law Audrey Hathway, 11 grandchildren, 9 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. May you rest in peace, Dad, and know that you were loved by many. Family and friends will have a celebration of Bill's life in Rochester, New York .

decide on June 3 whether or not to support the use of radar to curb speeding on Carmel Valley Road. If the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association agrees to purchase radar equipment, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors must then approve its use by the California Highway Patrol.

Association President Dick Nimmons said the majority of Carmel Valley residents he has spoken with clearly support the use of radar on Carmel Valley Road. The CVPOA has already received $2,000 in donations toward the $4,000 cost of buying two radar units.

The CVPOA held public forums on April 6 and May 12 to let Carmel Valley residents voice their concerns about the issue. The CVPOA then conducted a survey of its nearly 1,000 members through its membership bulletin. The association has received responses from 103 members supporting radar and 43 members opposed to it.

Friends and foes of the skateboard seek ways to co-exist

Skateboard-toting teenagers and young adults crammed into Carmel City Hall May 18 to defend their right to have fun and stay mobile in the manner they choose. Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Ken White, the city council-appointed Skateboard Committee, had called the meeting to discuss skateboarding's future on the streets of Carmel.

"Every kid here wants to be able to skateboard without the cops coming and picking them up or giving them a ticket," was how one young skateboarder summed up his and others' feelings.

"How many kids under 16 (years of age) are there in Carmel?" one anti-skateboarding gentleman queried. "This is a senior citizen community, a retirement community."

One woman stated that kids are at her home "a lot" and everyone thinks of Carmel as "both for children and adults. We consider Carmel our city also."

The meeting was triggered by a proposed ordinance banning skateboards on Scenic Road. At its May meeting the council conducted a lengthy discussion about not only prohibiting the boards on Scenic Road, but throughout Carmel. They are already outlawed in the commercial district. The ordinance and other actions will be discussed again at the council's June meeting.

Donald McGee Scanlon

January 16, 1930 ~ May 6, 2013

CARMEL - Donald "Don" McGee Scanlon, 83, passed away on May 6, 2013 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula (CHOMP) with family and close friends around him.

Don was born January 16, 1930 in Pasadena, CA to Wilko Gruver and Frederika McGee Scanlon. He followed in his father's footsteps in choosing a career as a medical doctor and graduated from Stanford University School of Medicine in 1955. He went on to do his internship and residency in San Francisco. From 1957 to 1960, Don served as a medic on an army base in Nürnberg, Germany. He moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1961 with his wife, Ruth Minor Scanlon, and five daughters. Don bought his home in Carmel shortly thereafter and resided in this same home for the last 52 years.

with his enthusiasm for being in nature. On one special adventure in the early 1970s, he hiked to the base of Mount Everest.

Don practiced internal medicine with a specialty in Cardiology and had a private practice on Lincoln and Seventh in Carmel for many years. He was Chief of staff at CHOMP from 1975-1976

In 1976, a bicycle accident left Don quadriplegic. That is when his second life began. He embarked in a new direction in his medical career as Director of Cardiology Services from 1976-2001. In 1980, he married Marjorie Thornburg. In those days, he could often be seen charging along scenic drive enjoying the sea breeze and beauty of Carmel beach. Don was a bit of a daredevil in his wheelchair heading off down the dirt pathways of the mission trails and steep roadways of Carmel, occasionally rescued by kind passerbys. He still spent time in the cabin he built in Mammoth Lakes and adapted his camera so he could continue photographing nature and family. Don and Marge traveled in America and abroad. Ever the optimist with enthusiasm for life, Don's love of nature and learning never wavered. He received the Laureate Award from the College of Physicians in 1991. He worked as Continuing Medical Education Director from 2001 until 2005 when he retired. His last years were spent in the company of his devoted friends and family. Don's interests turned to the study of Shakespeare, Jane Austin, Robinson Jeffers and Sudoku among other things. His ability to stay active, positive and hopeful in the face of physical challenges was truly inspiring. His family and friends will miss him and his joyful determination to live a full life.

Don is survived by his four daughters, Jenn Vahdati of Berkeley CA, Sari Scanlon of Albion CA, Katie Scanlon of Morgan Hill CA, and Sioban Scanlon of San Anselmo CA; his sister, Sarah Scanlon Signer of Pacific Grove CA and seven grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his daughters, Susie and Nancy.

His family would like to gratefully acknowledge CHOMP and the communities of the Monterey Peninsula for the many ways in which they sustained Don through the years.

A Celebration of Don's Life will be held at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel on Saturday, May 25. Donations in Don's name can be made to his beloved Community Hospital Foundation, PO Box HH, Monterey, CA 93942, Attn: Maria in Development.

Memorial Day observed in Devendorf park

THE CITY of Carmel and American Legion Post 512 will hold a Memorial Day ceremony in Devendorf Park at Junipero and Ocean Monday, May 27.

The event will begin with the ringing of the World War I Memorial Bell in the median at Ocean and San Carlos at 11 a.m., followed by the ceremony in the park.

The Color Guard from the Monterey High Junior Navy ROTC Cadets program will mark the event, and local dignitaries will attend.

Following the ceremony, an open house will be held at the American Legion Post 512, located on Dolores between Eight and Ninth.

Bad voice but great fun, 'Glorious' opens May 24

A WOMAN with more musical ambition than talent is the inspiration behind the play, "Glorious," which opens Friday, May 24, at the Magic Circle Theatre in Carmel Valley Village. Written by Peter Quilter and directed by Laura Cote, "Glorious" is based on the story of Florence Foster Jenkins, an heiress who sought to become an opera star despite having an extraordinarily bad voice.

Virginia Bell, Richard Boynton, Faith Collins, Sherry Kefalas, Jon-Mark Hurley and Lyn Whiting star in the humorous play, which is set in New York during the 1940s.

"Glorious" continues through June 23. The theater is located at 8 El Caminito. Call (831) 659-7500.

Book and bake sales boost Big Sur charities

THE BIG Sur Library presents its 23rd annual Book and Bake Sale Saturday, Sunday and Monday, May 25-27 from 1 to 4 p.m. each day.

Beginning Saturday, book lovers can wade through thousands of secondhand treasures, which will be displayed on tables outside the library.

The books sale will help the library buy new books, while an accompanying bake sale will benefit the Big Sur Grange Hall.

The library, which is a branch of Monterey County Free Libraries, is located on Highway 1 and adjacent to the Ripplewood Resort and Cafe.

Safe at home — unless you just happen to be me

EVERY MAN'S home may be his castle, but as we know from medieval times, castles can be dangerous places. The statistics on accidents in the home are staggering — twenty thousand deaths a year, seven million disabling injuries, and twenty million hospital visits. Falls, poisoning, and fires are the top three causes of home injuries.

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

Television commercials advise us to drink responsibly. That caveat applies to me when using certain products. Warning labels are written with me in mind.

Picture the legal department of a large firm figuring how to protect the corporation against damages from the misuse of its product.

"I think we've got it covered," says the chief attorney. "Except for that writer-person in Carmel."

The story of my close call with becoming a statistic needs to be told backwards. "Never put polyurethane glue in a microwave," it reads in big red letters on the company's website. Now back up fifteen or twenty minutes.

I am a bundle of energy, multitasking my way through the morning by cleaning my bathtub, watching a golf tournament on television, and baking a pie.

The device I use on the bathtub has a telescoping handle with a sponge on the end. Suddenly half of the sponge comes loose and begins flapping at the end of the handle. Surely it can be glued back in place, I reason.

The polyurethane glue I have has hardened in the plastic container. Hmm. Probably can soften it in hot water, but that would take too long.

Ten or fifteen seconds in the microwave should make it flow again. So I zap it. I am distracted by Sergio Garcia hitting a great approach shot. How much time has passed? Can't be more than 20 seconds. I remove the glue container and twist the cap off. It explodes!

The glue covers my thumb and the area between my thumb and index finger, as well as the index finger and second finger on my left hand. Some has splattered on my face. A lot of it is on the left lens of my eye-glasses.

Strangely, there's a phrase that comes to my mind when I am faced with imminent danger: Roy Schneider in the movie, "Jaws," saying: "I think we need a bigger boat."

Polyurethane glue on your skin is one thing. Hot polyurethane glue is quite another. This is what napalm must feel like.

I quickly hold my hand under cold water. But wait. If this stuff hardens on my glasses I'll never get it off. So I hold the lens under hot water and scrape the glue with my finger nail.

Surprisingly, enough comes off so that I can see better. Hand back under cold water. DING! The oven timer goes off. The pie is done.

The sink is close enough to the oven so I can reach in with my right hand (wearing an oven mitt, I'm a klutz, not a super klutz) and remove the pie while keeping my left hand under cold water. How am I going to get this stuff off my skin? I go to my computer and Google the name of the glue product. That's when I see the warning about the glue and microwaves. Then I realize two of my fingers are stuck to the "w" and "a" keys on the keyboard. Another wild thought. I see myself driving to the Emergency Room. A policeman stops me. With a keyboard glued to my fingers there is no way I can convince him I'm not texting while driving.

Then I remember I have a gelatinized burn dressing that immediately stops the burning process, cools the burn, eases the pain, and protects against contamination. Pain relief came quickly. I needed to keep the dressing on my hand, so I decided to watch the golf tournament.

On my TV set a blue screen was flashing the words: "no signal."

Now for some good news. A technician fixed the TV problem over the phone. The pie was delicious. There was no blistering on my hands from the hot glue. Gently applying a pumice stone to my skin removed the glue within two days. People have stopped asking if I've had a chemical peel on my face. Steve Green, at Optique America on Lincoln near Sixth, got all the glue off my glasses without removing the protective coating. The bath tub sponger? There was a puddle of glue on the kitchen counter. I soaked it up with the loose sponge, adhering it back in place. It's working fine.

The bath tub is clean, but I'm having a grab bar installed to help me get in and out of it without falling ... considering my history, I can't be too careful.
