School district bans shirts displaying state flag

Danger from gangs cited

By KELLY NIX

MONTEREY KINDERGARTENERS attending the first day of school this week got a stern warning: The beloved California bear is strictly off limits. And the state's map? Forget about it.

A dress code policy handout, given to parents of students in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, says children aren't allowed to wear anything with the "California flag, map, star or bear" — a rule some parents think is absurd.

"That's going too far, don't you think?" said Irma Garcia, whose son attends third grade at Monte Vista Elementary School in Monterey, and who also works at The Pine Cone. "That's crazy!"

Written in English and Spanish, the MPUSD dress code includes a lengthy list of outlawed items, some that have been long associated with gangs, including NorCal and SoCal clothing, professional sports jerseys and bandanas.

Not surprisingly, see-through fabrics, short shorts and other sexually suggestive clothing are also not permitted.

But children, even kindergarteners, are now being told that a T-shirt with the outline of the California map and the California flag could be enough to incite gang violence. Lawsuit: Former P.G. mayor killed by drug

By KELLY NIX

THE HUSBAND of former Pacific Grove Mayor Sandy Koffman, who died last year, has filed a wrongful death lawsuit in federal court against two large drug companies claiming a diabetes drug they made caused the pancreatic cancer that killed her.

In a complaint filed July 22 in federal court, Danny Koffman alleges the Type 2 diabetes injectable prescription drug Byetta, which was produced, marketed and sold by Amylin Pharmaceuticals and Eli Lilly and Company, was the reason she got pancreatic cancer. Sandy Koffman, who was 60 when she died, was mayor of P.G. from 1994 to 2002.

The 30-page lawsuit contends that while Amylin and Eli Lilly knew or disregarded the fact there was a possible link between Byetta and pancreatic cancer, the companies disseminated false claims of safety "with the intention to deceive physicians and their patients, and to induce physicians to prescribe the drug."

In early 2008, Sandy Koffman, who used Byetta from 2007 to 2011, began having what she believed was severe indigestion. After being diagnosed with cancer in early 2012,

MISSION JUMPS ON CONCOURS BANDWAGON

By MARY SCHLEY

THE INAUGURAL Carmel Mission Concours Car Show & Blessing of the Automobiles, presented by the Knights of Columbus Wednesday, Aug. 14, from noon to 5 p.m., is a positive that sprung from a negative.

"It's a tale of two car shows," explained organizer Frank DiPaola. "A friend of mine who's a Knight of Columbus in New York decided to have a blessing of the cars show, and I went there to help him. He had a heart attack while I was there, and he looked at me and said, 'You and your wife are going to have to do the show.""

That experience inspired him to approach Bishop Richard Garcia about the possibility of staging a similar concours and car blessing in the courtyard of the historic Carmel Mission during the Monterey Peninsula's world-famous Concours Week. The event would raise money for the Knights of Columbus — the largest fraternal order in the Catholic church — and the Carmel Mission Foundation, which is undertaking the extensive seismic upgrade and renovation of the Mission.

Building official fired after weeks of paid leave

Also retiring from U.S. Army reserve

By MARY SCHLEY

 ${f B}$ UILDING OFFICIAL and reserve Carmel Police officer John Hanson was called in to the police station and fired Monday, just a few days after he returned from his final round of active training with the U.S. Army National Guard at Camp Roberts.

Hanson, a city employee for 26 years who had worked his way up through facilities maintenance to take over as building official after Tim Meroney retired in 2007, was placed on administrative leave more than two months ago, pending an investigation about which city officials refused to provide any details.

This week, city administrator Jason Stilwell wouldn't say why he fired Hanson, and Hanson did not want to comment about anything having to do with the city or his termination, which was done in the presence of CPD Chief Mike Calhoun.

But he did talk about his years with the military — which included tours in Iraq and Afghanistan, cleanup in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, airport security after 9/11 and

China was unlikely haven for Holocaust refugees

By CHRIS COUNTS

A REMARKABLE journey comes full circle next week when Pebble Beach resident Harry Katz travels to Chicago to meet eight survivors of Shanghai's Ghetto - 74 years after his Jewish family fled the Holocaust in Nazi Germany.

"It just made sense," DiPaola, a car guy himself, said. "We contacted Bishop Garcia, and he said he'd love to do it."

In the latest addition to Concours Week festivities, a car show and car blessing are set for the Mission courtyard Wednesday

Now 80, Katz was born in Berlin in 1933, the same year Adolf Hitler and the Nazis came to power. Although he remembers few details of his early childhood, he recalls the day when he was 5 years old and soldiers from the Gestapo told his family they had one hour to pack a few suitcases and leave their home. "I heard their footsteps coming up the staircase," Katz said.

He told The Pine Cone his family lived above a Gestapo station, and his father, Julius, a veteran of the German army in World War I, believed his family would be safe — despite the rising tide of anti-semitism prevalent in Germany on the eve of World War II.

"He was friends with some of the Gestapo and played cards with them," Katz recalled. "He thought we were OK."

After being kicked out of their apartment, over the next five months the Katz family desperately sought a way to leave Germany. Like many Jews in Germany in 1939, the family had few options, because very few countries would accept them. While Katz had trouble comprehending the

Water baby

He WAS fishing from his Albin boat in Fort Bragg, a coastal community north of Mendocino, when a boat came into the harbor, carrying two Portuguese water dogs. Having recently lost Serra, a 10-year-old companion of the same breed, he paid attention to the two wavy-haired working dogs. He also noticed that one of them, named Schooner, was expecting puppies, so he quickly reserved the pick of the litter. For 12 weeks he saw Schooner every day, waiting and watching, until finally the pup he was waiting for was born on a misty morning aboard a boat in Fort Bragg.

True to her heritage, Misty, now 7, is a water baby who loves to go to the beach, where she swims easily and efficiently with her webbed feet, or runs through the surf along the shore. Because the sugar-fine sand settles deep into her hair, her family limits her visits, taking her to the beach every two weeks, just before bath time.

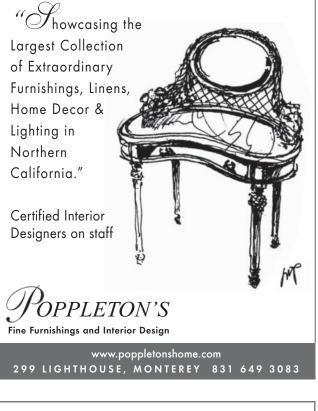

Bred to work in the water, Portuguese water dogs were trained to usher fish into fishing nets, retrieve broken tackle, and move easily among bobbing trawlers in the warm waters off the coast of Portugal, and all the way to the frigid fishing waters of Iceland. While Misty's predecessor, Serra, was an expert swimmer in the icy waters of Lake Tahoe, where her family spent their winters, Misty stays close to shore in the coastal waters of Carmel.

More often, she is seen with her person, trekking up Ocean Avenue to Carmel Plaza for coffee, followed by a visit to Tiffany, where she helps herself to cookies. Trained with hand signals, she knows not to bark but to wait patiently for her treats. After slipping into a few more storefronts for handouts, Misty finishes her outing with a stroll along Scenic Road, overlooking her beloved beach.

New planning and building director to start Aug. 26

By MARY SCHLEY

THE COMMUNITY planning director for the City of Ojai will arrive in Carmel later this month to become its new planning and building director — a position last filled in 2003. Rob Mullane was the top candidate among the nearly 80 who applied for the job during a rigorous recruiting effort, according to city administrator Jason Stilwell, who didn't meet him until he was one of three remaining finalists several weeks ago.

After two panels met for a full day in Sunset Center to thin the group of six top contenders to three, Stilwell said members reported Mullane "really fit the community - he understood how to balance small-town charm and high standards for development with the demand for service that developers in this town expect."

We're dealing with a lot of relatively complicated issues, but it's complicated on an individual-parcel basis, and he has experience," he told The Pine Cone Wednesday, after announcing Mullane's hiring at the Aug. 6 city council meeting.

With a degree in geology focusing on the coastal zone, Mullane has been involved in planning since 1996, including positions with the City of Goleta, the County of Santa Barbara and the University of Hawaii. He has also been a contract planner for the City of Guadalupe.

Stilwell said Mullane's work in coastal communities where contending with the California Coastal Commission and battles over precious seaside properties and resources are the norm — and in the private sector made him a strong candidate for the Carmel job.

"He understands time is money, and he had some thoughts to keep the rigor of our planning standards but not run developers through the ringer," he said. "You don't want to spend a lot of money on the process if you do not have a reasonable expectation of being approved.'

Among his ideas is having the heads of the various departments that deal with planning issues, such as public works and forestry, involved in discussions about major projects at the start, "so applicants can understand the challenges," Stilwell said. "It's how to keep it efficient but recognize our standards."

Rigorous process

The city hired Teri Black & Co., which had been paid $9,860.56 as of the end of May, to take on the recruitment effort that saw 79 people apply. The recruiter winnowed that number to six finalists, who were interviewed by two committees — a technical panel that included planning directors from other cities, a Monterey architect, a human resources director and the former city manager of Ventura - and a community panel comprising planning commission chairman Keith Paterson, historic resources board chair Erik Dyar, architect Brian Congleton, Carmel Chamber of Commerce CEO Monta Potter, former councilwoman and Carmel Residents Association board member Barbara Livingston and architect Eric Miller.

The first group scrutinized applicants to determine if they had the technical skills and could do the job, and the second judged whether they "had experience sufficient to meet our high expectations for planning and land use in this town," Stilwell said.

After spending a day interviewing the candidates at Sunset Center in late June, the panels further narrowed the group to three top choices, and Stilwell met with each in subsequent interviews.

"It was clear why they had those top three, given the fit and experience," he said. Stilwell was particularly impressed with Mullane's specific and well organized answers to challenging questions, including how he felt the department of planning and building could effectively work with code enforcement.

"He outlined precisely how those programs could meet the expectations of the community and our code requirements," Stilwell said. "He understood conceptually and had practical experience.'

Mullane will earn between $127,320 and $154,752 per year, according to the salary range approved by the city council.

Union Bank® started out nearly 150 years ago when banks were expected to be pillars of the community. We see no reason why things should be different now.

That's why, on average, we invest proportionally more in our communities than any major bank on the West Coastdonating almost $100 million to local nonprofits in the last ten years, with more on the way.

It's also why we're on track to exceed our 5-year plan to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 9 percent. It's why our employees contributed over 75,000 hours of community service to all kinds of worthy causes. It's why we doubled our lending to local small businesses two years ago-and nearly doubled it again last year.

The way we see it, doing what's right for communities makes for long-lasting relationships. And that's just good business.

Waitresses arrested for embezzling

By MARY SCHLEY

TAKING ADVANTAGE of a loophole in the restaurant's computerized cash register system, two servers at Little Napoli stole almost $17,000 over an 18-month period before they were suspected and fired, according to Carmel Police detective Rachelle Lightfoot.

Following a lengthy investigation, Lightfoot said the women - 44-year-old Monterey resident Laura Brown and 30year-old Carmel Valley resident Jennifer Menke — were ordered to report to the police department for booking on embezzlement charges and were arrested July 15 and July 29, respectively.

Lightfoot explained how they allegedly manipulated the restaurant's point-of-sale system to hide cash transactions so they could pocket the money, leaving the owners none the wiser.

"When they had cash sales, they would close them out and send them to a remote file in the point-of-sale system that was never checked, so they would not appear on the server report," Lightfoot said. "They were pocketing their cash sales."

Restaurant owner Sandra Pepe became suspicious when she was looking at the bookkeeping and noticed one of the women had "almost zero cash sales" - an unusual occurrence in the restaurant business, according to Lightfoot.

"That was weird, and she was trying to figure out what was going on," she said. "So she contacted someone with the computer system and they did a little forensic work.'

Summer items are up to 60% off

The women allegedly embezzled the money between January 2011 and June 2012, after which they were fired, and Pepe contacted police about the crimes a few months later.

"They suspected, but they had to gather more information," she explained.

After finishing her investigation, Lightfoot sent a report to the district attorney's office, which scrutinized the information and concluded it was sufficient to arrest and charge the women. The court issued letters to both demanding they turn themselves in at Carmel P.D. or the sheriff's office to be booked. Brown appeared first, followed by Menke, and both were released with orders to appear in court.

Lightfoot said she has yet to determine which was the instigator and how they came to both be stealing from Little Napoli.

"Neither one is talking," she said. Lightfoot also learned the nefarious use of the loophole is common, and she wanted

Meanwhile, a civil suit in which the Pepes sued the servers over the stolen money was settled out of court and dismissed in June.

Council OKs stiffer penalties for illegal cigarette sales

By MARY SCHLEY

IN A town where it was once easy for teenagers to buy cigarettes, the Carmel City Council voted 3-1 Tuesday night to require anyone who sells tobacco to get a license. The new law also ups the penalties for selling to minors.

The idea is to curb youth smoking, Gonzalo Coronado of the Monterey County Health Department told the council Aug. 6. His turn at the podium came almost five hours into the meeting, with his topic at the end of a record-setting 610page council packet. "Tobacco is the No. 1 preventable cause of death in the United States," he said, adding that even though overall tobacco use has dropped during the past few decades, youth smoking has steadily increased over the last four or five years. "If kids do not start smoking before they are 18, the chance of becoming addicted is diminished."

The county passed the law — which requires smoke shops, liquor stores, drugstores and other places that sell tobacco products to obtain an annual license from the county for $286 — in May 2012 and soon after requested cities follow suit.

"One of the primary issues under current tobacco licensing requirements [in the city] is that the penalties are relatively minor and do not go far enough to prevent retailers from selling to youths," senior planner Marc Wiener told the council. The county law "increases the penalties with larger fines and possible revocation of the license," while the fee covers its administration and enforcement.

"It pays for itself," Coronado said. "And it has enough penalties to make retailers think twice." Fines begin at $1,000, and license suspensions begin at 60 days. Whether a violation would constitute an infraction or a misdemeanor would be up to the sheriff's office and the district attorney.

Coronado said a study conducted before the county passed the law revealed retailers sold tobacco to underage customers 114 times out of 443 attempts, or about 33 percent of the time.

Because the city would be adopting the county's law, it would be administered by the county health department — which would issue the permits — and enforced by the Monterey County Sheriff's Office, including through the use of underage decoys. Carmel P.D. Cmdr Paul Tomasi said his department would work with the sheriff's office when deputies come into town.

The planning commission considered the ordinance last month and recommended the council adopt it, but councilman Steve Hillyard wasn't convinced the problem exists in Carmel, where nine businesses would have to apply for the license under the new ordinance.

"Carmel is sufficiently different than the rest of Monterey County that we can rely on our retailers to not break the law," he said. "They're fine, upstanding people, and I don't think we should require them to go through another licensing process that would be redundant in many ways."

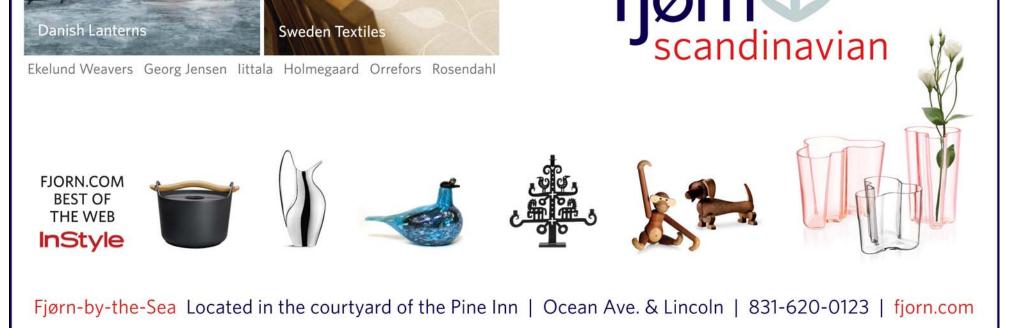

He said the data aren't available to suggest stores in Carmel are selling cigarettes to minors.

But the city's polished image and affluent demographic do not mean teen smoking is not a problem here, according to Coronado.

County: EIR required before home above 17 Mile Drive can be torn down

By KELLY NIX

THE OWNER of a mid-century modern home in Pebble Beach who has proposed demolishing it and replacing it with a house nearly three times as big will need to submit to an exhaustive environmental review before that can be considered, county planners said.

Massy Mehdipour has proposed razing her 4,124-square-foot home at 1170 Signal Hill Road - designed by celebrated architect Richard Neutra - so she can build a 11,933-square-foot, three-story home in its place.

But senior Monterey County planner Delinda Robinson informed Mehdipour that the county will require an environmental impact report before it considers demolition of the home. The residence, built in 1958, is known as the Connell House for its first owners.

"We believe that an EIR is the appropriate CEQA document to prepare for your project," Robinson wrote to Mehdipour, the CEO of Menlo Park-based high tech company, Skire, Inc.

Mehdipour's plans have faced opposition from a group who contend the home needs to be preserved because it's a classic example of modernist architecture and exemplifies the highly influential Neutra's approach to design. Mehdipour did not respond to a message left by The Pine Cone this week.

Included in those who don't want the house demolished are Neutra's sons, Raymond and Dion Neutra, and Sand Citybased Jerry Lomax, 84, a highly respected mid-century architect. They began a group to gather signatures for a petition campaign to

New gate at entrance to Lodge is just for welcoming, P.B. Co. says

By KELLY NIX

VISITORS TO the Lodge at Pebble Beach will soon be greeted by attendants at an "arrival pavilion."

When construction is complete in a few weeks, the new gate on Palmero Way in front of the tennis center will be staffed from 6:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. by guest service employees from the Lodge, unlike the entrance gates to Del Monte Forest, which are manned by P.B. Co. security department employees who collect a $9.75-per-car gate fee.

The idea of the 64-square-foot kiosk is to help visitors to the area find their way around

The pavilion "is to meet and greet visitors and direct them to where they are going," said Mark Stilwell, Pebble Beach Co. executive vice president of real estate.

Apart from unaware tourists getting lost, Stilwell said that drivers of commercial trucks often don't know where they're going and end up trying to turn their rigs around on the narrow streets at the Lodge area.

Those manning the pavilion will give visitors directions and tell them where to park.

"We have tourists that look for the Lone Cypress down there," said Stilwell of the iconic tree that's off 17 Mile Drive and not near the Lodge.

The gate was recently approved by Monterey County planners. The California Coastal Commission's staff, which, among other things, regulates access to the coast, also said it was fine.

"I had a conversation with them to tell them what it was," Stilwell said, "and they didn't have an issue with it."

Construction on the kiosk began July 8, and Stilwell said it's scheduled to open during the first week of September. Crews will take a break during the Concours d'Elegance.

The Pebble Beach Co. mailed notices of the new kiosk to all residents in Del Monte Forest, Stilwell said.

Paving underway Thursday at the new "arrival pavillon" on the road leading to the Pebble Beach Lodge, Casa Palmero, and the Beach and Tennis Club.

PACIFIC GROVE police are warning residents to be on the lookout for a young coyote that's been seen in George Washington Park.

The animal has been seen several times in relatively close proximity to people walking dogs, according to the P.G. Police Department. Coyotes are not unusual in Pacific Grove and elsewhere on the Peninsula, where they're sometimes seen walking down residential streets.

Though coyotes largely avoid humans, they have been known to attack people and pets if they feel threatened or are trying to protect food.

On July 23, a 2-year-old girl in Orange County was bitten and dragged by a coyote at the Forest Lawn Memorial Park cemetery in Cypress. The girl was released by the coyote after the girl's mom screamed and lunged at the animal. The toddler was was given a rabies shot and treated for a small gash on her calf, according to the Orange County Register.

According to the P.G. police, the animals play an important role in the city's ecosystem by helping to control the rodent population, such as rats and mice and small animals. But coyotes, which are typically nocturnal, are also opportunistic hunters and may prey on small pets, eat pet food that's been left outdoors or dig in the garbage.

The police department recommends residents don't feed coyotes, keep pets in at night, secure trash containers, and carry an "animal deterrent spray" with a citronella base.

If approached by a coyote, according to the police department, "it may be possible to chase it away by shouting, waving your arms or making loud noises. If this fails, throw sticks or rocks in the animal's general direction."

'Predatory' attacks most common

According to the Cook County Coyote Project, from 1985 to 2006, coyotes have attacked 159 people in 14 states. Nearly half of the attacks occurred in California.

Most of the attacks were "predatory," meaning the coyote "directly and aggressively pursued and bit the victim." These attacks resulted in the most serious injuries, according to the coyote project.

Only 4 percent of the documented attacks fell into the "defensive" category, where a coyote "felt threatened and was defending itself, pups or a den."

Agha proposes scaled-back version of Holman hotel project

By KELLY NIX

IN HOPES his effort to renovate the decrepit Holman Building in Pacific Grove will finally succeed, owner Nader Agha is proposing a scaled back hotel that includes far fewer rooms and no retail stores on the ground floor.

The new, more modest proposal includes a partnership with Carmel-based architect Safwat Malek but will proceed without Texas hotel developer Drake Leddy, according to sources. Agha brought Leddy onboard with much fanfare in 2012.

The proposal is Agha's latest effort to transform the nearly 90-year-old building at 542 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove into a hotel, which, if successful, would bring much-needed business and tax revenue to the city. Agha runs an antique business in a portion of the building.

The business owner and developer had many snags in trying to build a hotel on the site, most recently the Nov. 6, 2012, rejection by voters to change the zoning rules that would have allowed an increase of the height of the building to 75 feet and 100 percent lot coverage for a large hotel.

A much small design

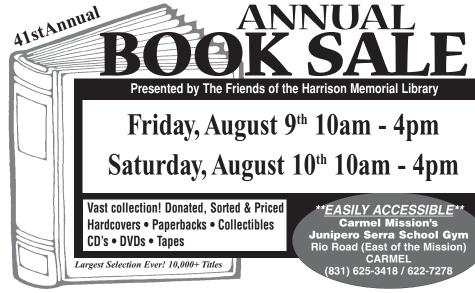

While Agha had previously proposed a seven-story, 200-plus room building with shops on the ground floor and one level of underground parking, he's now looking toward a much smaller design, according to P.G. City Councilman Dan Miller, a friend of Agha's. No formal proposal has been submitted to city hall.

"The conclusion is that the new project will stay below the height of the current building," Miller told The Pine Cone. "And, of course, there will be a cutback in the number of rooms."

Miller said he's been told that Agha and

Katharine (Heidi England) Reiff May 20, 1961 – August 2, 2013

Katharine (Heidi England) Reiff, graced our world with her light and love, leaving the world a better place from May 20, 1961 until August 2, 2013. Truth, beauty, and wisdom defined her life, as she possessed the characteristics of an athlete: self-discipline, strength, determination, and focus. From early on Katherine demonstrated her athletic capabilities at Carmel High School where she set the 2 mile record in 1979. She also competed on the tennis team and was a cheerleader. Later she ran the Boston Marathon and with her family relayed the Big Sur Marathon. Her final marathon was fueled by her fierce love for her children and husband where she chose to endure incredible obstacles with colon cancer and radiation in order to have more time in her earthly body with them. In return, Katharine's family steadfastly held her, nurturing and supporting her, keeping their family bond sacred.

As a team, they valiantly moved forward finding joy in simple moments. Whether watching her daughter dance the Nutcracker, or cheering her son to the finish line, Katherine's eyes sparkled when with her children. She taught others by example, softly leading with wisdom and depth rarely found. An avid gardener, skilled psychotherapist, counselor, runner, dancer, and Hatha Yogi, Katharine exuded love, sincerity and joy. To be in her presence was to appreciate the moment, observing grace in action.

Katharine received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Boston College, and after earning her master's degree practiced as a psychotherapist for over 20 years. Katharine enjoyed a private practice in San Francisco and later, Petaluma, and was a counselor at River School in Napa. She was active in the Petaluma School of Ballet and served on the board of the Petaluma City Ballet as a member and as President.

Katharine is survived by her beloved husband of 21 years, Chris, children Jax (18) and Cassidy (16), her mother, Jennie England and mother-in-law, Barbara Reiff, both of Carmel, sister, Kim England and brother, Chris England of Monterey, brothers-in-law Greg (Lou) and John (Linda) Reiff, nephew Brandon, nieces Jennifer and Ajla, and a circle of friends who all loved her beyond words. All who love her know that with brave wings she flies.

The family expresses deep gratitude for the help given by so many with dinners, garden care, love and other support during this 7-year challenge. The family requests that in lieu of flowers, a donation be made to your favorite charity in Katharine's honor.

mation — said the department's school resources officer said there is some association with the state's iconic flag and gangs.

"The bear and the flag have sadly been adopted by both Norteño and Sureño gang members," said Sonné, referring to the names of the gang rivals. Gang activity in Monterey, however, is minimal.

The MPUSD dress code goes even further. If a kid wants to wear a shirt with the words "Monterey," "Carmel" — or "Bel Air" or "Turlock," for that matter — they're not allowed. The MPUSD figures "specific California cities and geographic areas" could incite gang violence, according to the dress code policy.

The mother of a 16-year-old girl who is a fan of Hollister brand clothing ran into that problem when the MPUSD first adopted the rules.

"Hollister is a brand, but it's also a place," said the mom, who declined to be identified. "But you are not allowed to wear it [Hollister clothing] because it's a place. When they enacted that one, it eliminated all but about 5 percent of my daughter's wardrobe."

The MPUSD dress code policy, however, has no issue with children wearing clothing or accessories with the names of other U.S. states or cities. And if a sophomore at Monterey High, for instance, wants to wear a shirt with a flag of Mexico, Ireland or Russia, that's fine, too.

There seems to be plenty of ambiguity in the policy — which is similar to one adopted by the Salinas Union High School District. While the dress code states that school spirit wear is allowed, some schools, such as Carmel High School, sell clothing (usually in school colors) that is printed only with the name of the city for which the school is named. Under the MPUSD rules, though, that type of clothing is prohibited.

And the policy also allow students to wear college spirit wear even though gangs long ago adopted certain college teams as a representation of their gang.

Less confusing dress codes

Carmel River School, which has a different demographic than MPUSD elementary schools, has a brief, simple and commonsense dress code policy that's devoid of gang references. "Children should be clothed appropriately and respectfully for school," the 24-word policy states. "In particular, students should not wear sandals, cowboy type boots, or shoes with slippery soles." Items with specific California cities, geographic areas, area codes such as 831 and 408. Clothing with reference to SO CAL, NOR CAL, CEN CAL, Cali Life Style, Bay Area. 187 Inc., South Pole, Famous brand clothing. Items with a reference to the California flag, map, star or bear. Items with reference to North, South, West or East Side. All bandannas or clothing that resembles a bandanna, regardless of color. Belt buckles with any letters or numbers.

Gloves of any color. During cold weather, gloves (other than red or blue) may be worn outdoors.

An excerpt from the list of banned items in the new MPUSD dress code.

Robert H. Down Elementary School in Pacific Grove is similar, but goes further by prohibiting "inappropriate words" and "bare midriffs, sagging pants and exposed underwear." It also does not mention gangs.

Some California school districts — especially those in areas plagued by gang violence — argue that instituting a stringent dress code policy reduces the number of gang-related incidents.

But Garcia said there's a simple solution to eliminate any question of students' attire: MPUSD should require students to wear traditional school uniforms.

"I don't think the California flag has anything to do with gangs," she said. "But it would be a lot simpler to use school uniforms. It would be a lot more practical and less expensive, too."

Speaking about dress code enforcement, the mother of the 16-year-old girl in the Monterey school district said that "teachers break the dress code all the time," by wearing clothing prohibited by MPUSD.

Extraordinary.

And, she asked somewhat facetiously, if California flag and map clothing could incite gang violence, where's the stopping point?

"Are we endangering our tourists by offering things like that?" she said. "If it's truly an issue, should that clothing be sold at all?"

The MPUSD also prohibits bare midriffs, low-cut tops, and skirts or shorts shorter than mid thigh, pajama bottoms, belt buckles with letters or numbers, and any other clothing that might be associated with gangs. And students can't wear "I (heart) Boobies" Tshirts — sold by a breast cancer awareness group. A federal appeals court this week ruled that a Pennsylvania school district could not ban children from wearing "I (heart) Boobies" clothing and bracelets.

Children who violate the MPUSD dress code policy will have the clothing confiscated and/or will be required to change their attire. Continued violations will result in "progressive disciplinary action," according to the district.

magnitude of the events swirling around him, he was aware nobody bothered celebrating his sixth birthday.

Katz's oldest brother, 16-year-old Hans, set out for Palestine in April 1939. His 13-year-old brother, Horst, embarked for England to stay with relatives.

Harry, meanwhile, traveled by boat with his father; his mother, Frieda and his sister, Ilse, to an unlikely haven, China.

'Shanghai was the only place we could go that didn't require an entrance visa," explained Katz, who said he was seasick much of the way.

After a lengthy voyage, Katz and his three family members eventually made it to Shanghai, where from 1933 to 1941, more than 18,000 Jews from Europe and the Middle East settled. Neither of Katz's brothers arrived at their destinations. Horst, having a change of heart, decided to join his family in China and somehow successfully made the trip there on his own, although he contracted polio along the way.

Harry Katz

Sadly, Hans was apprehended by Nazi authorities before making it out of Germany and died in the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Living in the ghetto

In Shanghai, the Katz family lived in the poorest part of the city and faced difficult, crowded conditions where food was scarce. At one point, the family shared a room with 30 other families. Living spaces were separated only by bed sheets and table clothes. "That was our idea of privacy," Katz said.

Despite the challenges they faced, Katz and his sister somehow continued their education - and filled their bellies.

"We would walk about a mile-and-a-half each morning to get to school," he explained. "And we would get a little bit of money for lunch. Chinese vendors would put coal in the bottom of 55-gallon drums and cook sweet potatoes. We would buy two sweet potatoes and put them in our pockets to keep our hands warm while we walked. When we got to school we'd eat the sweet potatoes."

While the Jews lived in squalor, so did the Chinese who surrounded them. Yet they were surprisingly tolerant of the refugees.

"The Chinese were very accepting of us," Katz remembered. "If it wasn't for them, I wouldn't be here."

When the Katz family arrived in Shanghai, the city was occupied by the Japanese army. Four years later, the refugees faced even greater difficulties when they were forced to move to a one-square-mile area in the city.

While it had no walls or barbed wire, the area was patrolled by Japanese soldiers, and a strict curfew was enforced.

"As long as you obeyed their rules, you were OK," Katz said. "But if you didn't, they treated you harshly."

The Japanese could hardly be described as genial hosts, but they protected the Jews from a far worse fate. Despite the pressure they faced from Nazi Germany, they refused to hand over the refugees to their military ally, which sought to bring the "Final Solution" to China.

'Land of milk and honey'

While living conditions improved after the war ended, the family waited four more years before they were permitted to immigrate to the United States. Along the way, Harry had his first taste of American food. One day, he and friend visited a United States Naval ship that was docked nearby.

"The sailors invited us on board," he recalled. "I got a bad stomach ache from all the ice cream I ate."

Katz' father died in 1946. The following year, Horst gained entry into the United States.

Two years later - and just days before Shanghai fell to the communists in 1949 — Harry, his mother and his sister finally boarded a ship bound for San Francisco.

"We got on the last boat out of Shanghai before the communists took over," he explained.

In contrast to the harrowing voyage that brought the family to Shanghai a decade earlier, the trip across the Pacific Ocean on the USS President Wilson was like a fairy tale. The family feasted like it never had before.

"My mother gained 20 pounds on the boat," Katz recalled. "We thought we were going to the land of milk and honey."

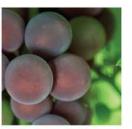

Compared to Berlin before the war and Shanghai in the 1940s, Katz's new home truly was the place of abundance he imagined it to be. Over the next half century, he graduated from high school, served as a paratrooper in the Korean War, married and achieved considerable success in the business world before retiring in 1999 — exactly 50 years after landing in the United States.

Katz first came to Monterey County in 1952 when he made a brief stop at Fort Ord on his way to Korea.

Later, Carmel became a favored vacation destination for him and his wife. Audrey. Shortly after retiring, the couple visited Pebble Beach and never really left.

They soon bought a house near Spanish Bay, where they still live. "I tell everybody it would be a shame if I don't get to heaven, because I'm so well prepared for it," he said, comparing his retirement home to an earthly paradise.

While Katz has displayed a lifetime of determination and resiliency to get where he is now, he attributed at least some of his fortune to simple chance.

"I consider myself a very lucky survivor," he added.

fighting California wildfires - and his decision to end his service this year. Hanson will be honored in San Diego at a change-of-command ceremony this weekend.

"I did my last active training this summer and got back about three days ago," he said Monday afternoon, a few hours after being summoned to CPD. "We did a lot of training: setting up an operations center, weapons training and flight training. We spent 13 days out in the field, and our operations center is fully capable. We can talk to anybody in the United States or the world — it's very high tech, very cool stuff."

He decided to retire from the U.S. Army National Guard at the rank of First Sergeant to make way for younger reservists - and because it was time. "I've served my 20 years," he said.

"It has given me such great pride to see what dedication and sense of service John has given both to his military career and his personal career," said his wife, Annette.

A trained tank commander who spent a year patrolling in Southern Iraq in an armored Humvee in 2004, Hanson returned home in late February 2005. During the mission, he witnessed the milestone national election there, among many other changes, and a lot of fighting. In an interview at the time, he said how grateful he was to be back.

"It's such a different world — it's so green here, and so nice," he said. "Simple things - we all take them for granted. Over there, every day is such a struggle for [the Iraqis]. If they do the wrong thing, they are afraid someone's going to kill them."

In late fall 2005, he accompanied fellow guardsmen to help rebuild a high school in New Orleans in the wake of Hurricane Katrina - a campus he discovered was neglected and damaged long before the storm struck.

"The mission affected me more, emotionally, than my whole trip to Iraq — as a parent, as a citizen of the United States, as a taxpayer, and as a soldier and a guardsman," he said after he returned home from the month-long effort that left the school sparkling.

In September 2009, he was deployed to Afghanistan's Kunar Province with the 40th Infantry Division Agribusiness Development Team, which offered free clinics to vaccinate, treat and care for animals in an impoverished area where many rely on their livestock not just for livelihood, but for survival. The ADT built infrastructure from practically nothing and helped villagers learn to care for their animals themselves, all while coping with the corruption, thievery and violence of a war-torn nation.

"It was a good mission. It was very hard, very difficult, but we accomplished what we needed to accomplish," he said after returning home in late August 2010. "The greatest success was that nobody got killed."

This week, Hanson said the Afghanistan mission was the best of his career as a soldier, and his wife said she has many reasons to be proud of his work.

"One of the best examples is his sense of caring for the soldiers he was responsible for during his last deployment, to Afghanistan. I had asked him what his highest priority was to accomplish on this mission, and his reply was that everyone makes it out alive," she said this week. "They all did. John made sure that all his soldiers were trained, efficient and knew how to work as a team."

She described him as "very vocal," but "beneath that gruff exterior was someone who cared and held you to high standards - someone to stand beside you and have your back as a soldier in any war."

As for firefighting, protecting airports and the other work he did without leaving the state, he said, "that's why we're here."

Medals he's received include the Bronze Star, and Hanson said he was proud to have reached the rank of First Sergeant, just one rank below the highest level an enlisted soldier can achieve.

"That was one of my goals — I'm happy to achieve that being treated like a professional by my peers," he said. "I'm very proud of my service. I got to do everything I ever wanted to do as a solder."

During many of his missions, Hanson received care packages from residents, friends and family members, as well as assurance his job would be waiting for him when he returned, and ongoing pay and benefits while he was gone.

The success of any endeavor is only as good as the legs it stands on. John and our family felt the love and support from the Carmel citizens and our Carmel employee family during his 26 years of service," Annette Hanson said.

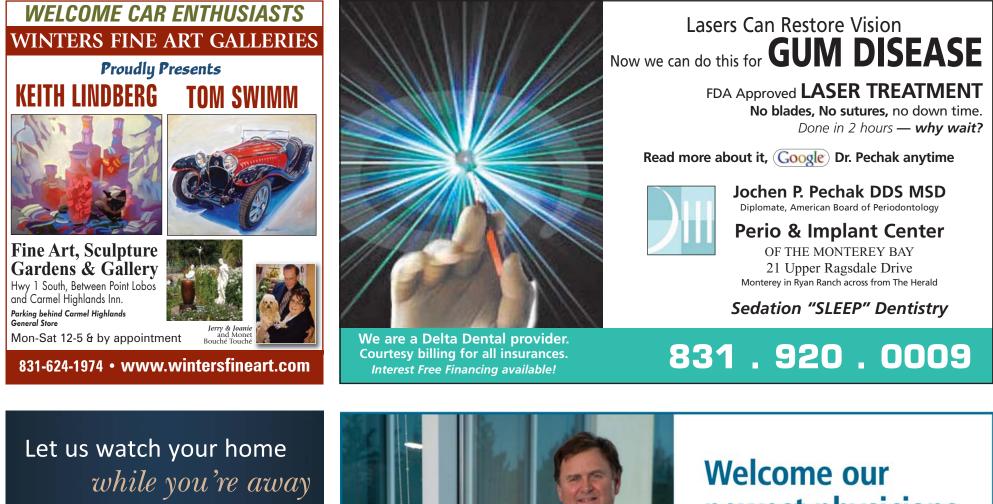

She also said his dedication to both careers "shows his values of human rights, dedication to community and country, family and friends.'

"He will fight to protect what is right and fair," she said, adding that he has served as an "amazing role model" for their kids. "The success and strength of our children is hugely because of their father."

At the ceremony in San Diego Aug. 10, Hanson will receive a special honor.

"They put me up for the Legion of Merit medal," he said. "They don't give that out very often. I'm very happy with that very satisfied."

The City of Carmel, however, fired him, and nobody will say why.

dain for both Pine Cone readers and editorial staff with his repeated juvenile crudity in his less than subtle take on George Zimmerman.

Livernois' racial beliefs evidently remain in a state of arrested development between potty training and the influence of that onedimensional TV miniseries from the 1970s, "Roots," where all the blacks are portrayed as innocent victims and all the whites are portrayed as evil racists, manipulators or craven weaklings.

We know from his incredibly boring, and seemingly endless story of his own pathetic family history imposed on Peninsula readers last year or the year before, that this is a scarred person.

He is so typical of those aging white liberals who, having missed out on being civil rights heroes in the past, seek to find any cause, no matter how tenuous, to redeem themselves. Livernois is certainly not someone for a reputable publication to trot out as some sort of social authority.

Misses fireworks Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter to address a serious lack of fireworks this 4th of July. I can understand the outlawing of an M80 or a cherry bomb, for the simple reason that they could cause great harm if improperly or maliciously used.

But it has gotten to the point where there's a $1,000 fine for lighting sparklers on the beach. Is it just me, or is this a bit of an overreaction?

Only a small minority of those who left Egypt after liberation from 400 years of slavery were allowed into the Promised Land after a ruthless military campaign against the original occupants under General Joshua to empty the lands (ethnic cleansing sanctioned by God somewhat akin to what the Europeans immigrants did to the native Americans here in North America). Most of them died of natural causes or curses (in the desert) because of their toxic attitude of complaining and rebelling in the desert and not as a "punishment" from God. They were punished enough with 400 years of slavery.

Vet responds about cat food Dear Editor,

Dan Reznik (Letters, Aug. 2) would do well to leave his snarky comments at the door and leave science-based pet nutrition to the experts. My name is Doctor Marcus for a reason (I haven't been a "Ms." for over 25 vears) and, even though I apparently don't meet Dan's criteria for being a "notable" veterinarian, I would be happy to have an intelligent discussion on the complexity of feline diets and interpreting food labels with him.

I don't rely on the latest cliche pet diet that is marketed to a vulnerable public and I am here to provide valuable education to my clients who want the best for their cats.

Kathleen Marcus DVM, Purrfurably Cats of Monterey

Correction: Due to a proofreading error, a sentence in a letter to the editor from Dan Reznick about cat diets was misprinted last week. The sentence should have been as follows: "Eating a mouse might provide some actual grain if any is left in its stomach, but that's hardly the equivalent of the grain content in one of her favorite brands, Purina, which, in their Cat Chow formula, list grains as the five main ingredients following 'poultry by-products,' whatever that is."

she underwent 16 different medical procedures within two weeks to stabilize her digestive system. She died at her home in Camano Island, Wash., after a nearly six-month battle with the disease. "We had no idea, of course, of the danger of the drug," Koffman told The Pine Cone this week.

The pharmaceutical companies — which have since dissolved their business partnership over Byetta - placed profits ahead of patients' safety, the suit contends.

They "intentionally concealed or recklessly failed to disclose to the public the potentially life-threatening side effects to ensure their continued and increased sales," according to the suit, filed in the U.S. District Court in San Diego.

Byetta, designed to help control blood sugar levels, is one of the top selling drugs in the country with sales predicted to reach $1 billion by 2015 and $1.28 billion by 2021. The drug is derived from the saliva of the Gila monster, a venomous lizard found in the Western United States, including California. The medicine helps the pancreas produce insulin which controls the body's blood sugar levels - more effectively.

Sandy Koffman was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer March 14, 2012, and died from the disease on Aug. 3, 2012. Prior to her death, according to her husband, she had severe mental and physical pain as a result of using Byetta, including intense abdominal pain, nausea and vomiting. Though she used drugs such as Prilosec to help her stomach problems, they were ineffective.

"What she thought it was, and what it was described as, was indigestion," he explained. "Two-plus years before her diagnosis, we were trying to put out a forest fire with a Kleenex.'

Though the Food and Drug Administration approved Byetta in 2005, in 2010 the agency issued warnings about its possible link to pancreatic cancer. In February 2010, an article about diabetes indicated a link between Byetta and cancer, saying there is "preliminary evidence to suggest the potential risks of asymptomatic chronic pancreatitis and, with time, pancreatic cancer."

Even though there had been warnings about the drug, Amylin and Eli Lilly failed to warn consumers and physicians of the risk, according to the lawsuit, filed by Koffman's Denver attorney, John M. Restaino, Jr.

Restaino, who was a podiatric surgeon and epidemiologist before he became an attorney, has filed other lawsuits on behalf of patients who were prescribed Byetta.

Ken Dominski, a spokesman for Bristol-Myers Squibb, York company that acquired Amylin the New Pharmaceuticals in 2012, said the company doesn't comment on ongoing litigation. Eli Lilly spokeswoman Kelley Murphy also declined to comment, citing the same reason.

Koffman is accusing the drug companies of negligence, products liability, negligent misrepresentation, fraudulent concealment and other charges. He is seeking an unspecified amount in damages, including punitive damages.

But Koffman says his real hope is that the lawsuit will raise a "higher level of consciousness - about needed caution and awareness about our ever-increasing pharmaceutical usage — that can save others pain and suffering, and even death."

Pacific Grove Mayor Bill Kampe, P.G. councilman Alan Cohen and city manager Tom Frutchey met with Agha and Malek a couple of weeks ago about the new hotel idea. Kampe, who called the meeting "exploratory at best," was also tight-lipped and wouldn't provide details about the new proposal.

However, he did say that Agha and Malek intend to hire a professional in the hotel industry to work alongside them on the project.

Councilwoman Victoria Beach observed that if the council decided the law was a bad idea, it could revoke it later. said. "I don't think I ought to be saying who at this point. Nader would like to go straight to the council.'

And Miller said Leddy, with Presidian Hotels & Resorts of San Antonio, is no longer involved on the project.

"He's pulled out of it," he said.

On Wednesday night, the council, at Agha's request, voted unanimously to form a subcommittee composed of Kampe and Cohen "to provide a timely connection to a project for a hotel on the Holman site.'

In 2009, both men were on another subcommittee that reviewed the potential of a hotel at the Holman building site.

According to a report by Kampe given to the council, the subcommittee will provide a sounding board for the project proponents on the project application, consult with city staff and the project backers on specific aspects of the project, keep the council informed and request council guidance where appropriate.

stop the demolition of the home.

In her letter, Robinson told Mehdipour "there is a fair argument that the demolition of the existing residence on your property could cause a substantial adverse change in the significance of a historical resource.'

In a July 30 written response to Robinson's letter, attorney Dale Ellis, who opposes the home's demolition, said there is a "substantial body of evidence" supporting the home's significance.

Santa Cruz consultant Anthony Kirk, whom Mehdipour hired in 2011 to perform an analysis of the home, found that it appeared to be historic. Neutra's sons and a UCLA professor who's an expert on Neutra have also said it needs to be protected.

Supporting Kirk is a conclusion by the Monterey County Historic Resources Review Board, which in August 2011 concurred with Kirk and said an EIR should be required before demolition of the home is considered.

However, Mehdipour hired another historic property expert who said he found flaws in Kirk's analysis and determined the Connell home is not historically important.

A Silicon Valley CEO is facing opposition from local architects posal to tear down this mid-century modern home in Pebble Beach and replace it with a much larger house

Mehdipour's options include paying for an initial study to determine if the project will have a significant impact on the environment and define the scope of an EIR, or move directly to an EIR - a move Robinson said would save time and money.

However, Mehdipour has not submitted a revised application to county planners.

"A significant question still to be answered is, What is the project?" Ellis wrote. "This application started with the demolition of the Connell House so Ms. Mehdipour could build a new, massive house.'

The house is named after Arthur and Kathleen Connell, who commissioned Neutra to design it. Neutra's legacy was immortalized long before his death in 1970 when he was featured on the cover of the Aug. 15, 1949, edition of Time Magazine.

The home was sold to another couple in 1985 after the Connells owned it. Mehdipour purchased it in 2004.

How newspapers can stop committing suicide

THIS WEEK, we learned that two of the nation's most respected newspapers have been sold for prices that very recently would have been considered impossibly low.

The Boston Globe and several subsidiary publications went for $70 million, after being acquired by the New York Times for more than $1.4 billion in the early 1990s. That's a collapse in value of 95 percent.

And the Washington Post was sold for $250 million, a small fraction of its value, which had to be at least $2 billion not very long ago.

Meanwhile, hundreds of other newspapers around the country - our own Monterey County Herald being an outstanding example — are mere shadows of what they once were.

The standard explanation is that these newspapers' fates were inevitable, in the same way the whaling industry was doomed after petroleum was turned into a viable commercial product, Pullman cars disappeared after the airplane was invented, and the fax machines all went to the landfill in favor of email.

In other words, newspapers are losing value, if not disappearing, because they are obsolete, having been replaced by a superior medium, the Internet. But that explanation is wrong.

To understand what really happened to newspapers, and what can be done to save them, it helps to look at the speculation about what Jeff Bezos will do with his new acquisition, the Washington Post. Pretty much everybody has the same outlook, summed up nicely in a Tuesday column in the very newspaper Bezos is buying:

"Technology analysts said that the kind of predictive analytics perfected by Amazon could be used to provide Post subscribers with personalized news feeds based on where they live and what they have read before. People browsing The Post's Web site or tablet app could be served ads tailored to their past purchases, and then could buy products with a single click, media industry experts said. Reader voices could be integrated into online storytelling, with the community voting on the most valuable comments," wrote Matea Gold in the Washington Post.

To which we say, "What the hell are you talking about?"

Bezos made his fortune selling books, not reinventing the book. Ebooks, for all their success, have remained basically the same as their printed counterparts, and nobody nowhere is calling for the latest frightening crime thriller, bodice-ripping romance or engaging historical biography to include "personalized feeds," "tailored ads," and "reader voices integrated into online storytelling." Those things would get in the way of enjoying a good book, for Pete's sake.

Bezos also sells movies. But online movies are still the same as the ones you see in movie theaters, and nobody that we're aware of is saying that when you watch the next version of "Gone With the Wind," "West Side Story" or "Star Wars," that it'll have to be deconstructed into a online community version, full of twitter feeds, ads based on your shopping history, and comments from some jerk who happens to be watching at the same time you are. All those things would ruin a good movie.

Likewise music. Amazon.com sells lots of music, and most music is delivered online these days, but listening to it is still the same experience it has been forever, and nobody is demanding that the pop song, the symphony and the opera to be reinvented just because everybody has a smart phone.

Among the world's intellectual endeavors, all of have moved online, but only the news business is supposedly required to reinvent itself to survive on the Internet.

But why should that be? The experience of reading a newspaper — holding something in your hand, scanning page after page of headlines, photos, captions, stories and advertisements, focusing on what interests you and finding much of what you expect, but also a lot that you don't — is an experience that has made humans happy for hundreds of years. Is it really dead?

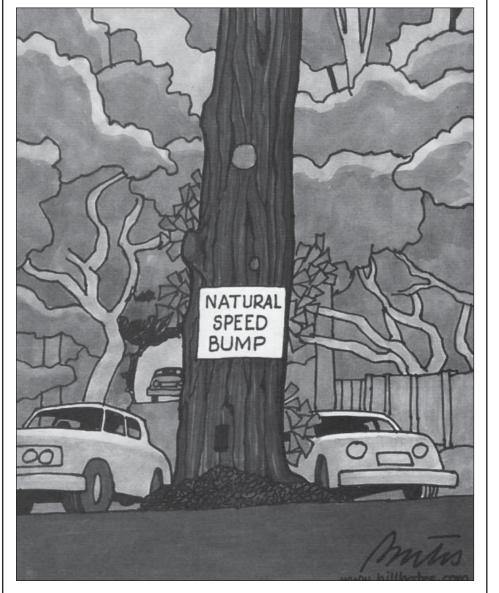

We say, "No."

From its infancy, the Internet lured even this country's most experienced newspaper companies down a self-destructive path, but there's no reason why they can't get off it now. It was dumb beyond belief for them to think they could put all their content online for free, update it constantly - with hardly any advertising - and still expect their profitable, $1-per-copy, ad-filled print versions to survive. They tried it, but it didn't work, and obviously wasn't going to.

Here's what Bezos should do: Return the Washington Post to what it was 25 years ago by investing heavily in reporting. Distribute it once a day with identical editions in print and online in PDF or other electronic format. He can go ahead and charge for the print edition, if he feels he must, but the PDF one should be free. And that's it. Make the darn thing so good that everybody will want to read it, and they will. And the advertising will follow.

Will books, movies and music exist in 100 years? We think they will. And so can newspapers. Of course, they'll be delivered electronically, just like everything else that can be turned into binary code. But there's no reason why newspapers have to be turned into a bunch of online gobbledygook, instead of the well loved, and highly profitable, entities they've been since the printing press was invented.

New wires not needed to protect condors Dear Editor,

We appreciated your July 26 coverage of PG&E's proposed "tree wire" installation in Partington Canyon. However, the article's headline was misleading. If the current wires are conclusively deemed to be a danger to condors, residents want to find workable solutions other than big black plastic wires which will, because of their weight, swoop down through the broad canvon.

Readers need to understand a couple of things. Partington Canyon is beautiful and pristine; its views are enjoyed not just by residents but by hikers on the Tan Bark Trail, tourists going down into Partington Cove and by motorists on Highway 1 motorists. On any given day of the week, dozens of cars can usually be found parked along the highway in front of the canyon.

and two chicks were successfully fledged there. A condor has never been killed by collision with wires in Partington Canyon. All of Big Sur's expansive wiring is successfully navigated by condors without incident. The deadly collisions to which your paper referred were at Anderson and the adjacent McWay canyons. We don't know why that particular location was so deadly, but it seems that those incidents were localized and should be treated as such until demonstrated otherwise.

Partington residents have watched the condors maneuver through the canyon for years. We don't feel that an adequate case has been made to bisect the canyon with obtrusive power lines because a condor "almost collided" with one of the existing wires — it didn't collide and that's the point. Bisecting their current flight path with new wire, even big and black, does not guarantee safety; in fact, changing the environment to which they have adapted seems to us a greater risk to all birds and a disservice to the people who enjoy them. Our recommendation? Leave well enough alone until a better plan is designed.

The Carmel Pine Cone

was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 35759, July 3, 1952

Protecting the sanctity of the ballot box, no matter what

WELL, YOU'VE gone and done it, Carmel.

Rumors have spread across the city that someone might have cast an illegal vote during a recent municipal election.

As the rumor goes, a person living at the Charming Sea View del Mar Vista Encantador home is rumored to be a registered voter at each of his four other homes in four different states, but is rumored to have cast a vote in a rumored Carmel mayoral election.

beyond the realm

By JOE LIVERNOIS

Obviously, a democracy of our stature should not have to tolerate rumors of this sort.

So we're going to have to fix this.

In keeping with appropriate voter-suppression laws now sweeping the country, we must immediately implement a wide range of new voting policies and restrictions so that honest rumor-mongering citizens can feel 110 percent confident that rumors of voting fraud are squelched in Carmel.

Also, we don't trust that the person living at the Charming Sea View del Mar Vista Encantador home is capable of making informed voting decisions.

The new requirements will not be an issue for any Carmel resident who fully embraces the fundamental principle that our republic will only remain strong as long as a bunch of fulminating paranoids can create ridiculous obstacles to your ability to cast ballots.

August 9, 2013

If you believe in a strong republic and wish to continue to vote in Carmel, please take note of the following new policies and restrictions:

■ To be eligible to cast ballots in any election, potential voters must first register by appearing at the Registrar of Voters Office in Salinas between the hours of 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Fridays. Potential voters must be able to enter the building without assistance from an able-bodied person or any mechanical contrivance. (Please note that the office is closed for lunch between noon and 1 p.m.)

■ All potential voters wishing to apply for registration must present at least four forms of valid identification, including a driver's license, a birth certificate, proof of citizenship from the U.S. Citizenship Service and a baptismal certificate issued by an accredited Christian church. (See list in Registrar's office for qualifying Christian denominations.)

■ A simple English-language test and an American civics quiz shall be administered to all voter-registration applicants. (Please schedule five hours to complete test and quiz.)

Experienced deputy registrars must collect thumbprints, blood tests and urine samples from all voter-registration applicants.

Please allow six to eight months for processing of your registration application.

■ Notification of your eligibility will be posted in the Registrar's office. If the Board of Registration Inquiry has determined that you are qualified to vote, you must secure a valid voter card with your notarized signature from the office in Salinas. Notary services are available in the Registrar's office for a $75 fee. (Please note that voter cards will not be mailed to eligible voters. No exceptions. Our experienced deputy registrars have been trained to ignore your whiny "hardship" sob story.)

■ To avoid possible voter fraud, the Registrar's office no longer answers questions by telephone. All inquiries must be made in person at the Salinas office.

■ Absentee voting has been abolished in Carmel. Voters who are suspected of attempting to vote by mail shall have their postal privileges revoked, shall be excommunicated from their church, and shall face deportation from Carmel.

■ Qualified voters will be informed of their polling place locations, election dates and candidates only if they schedule an appointment with an experienced deputy registrar in Salinas at least two weeks prior to all elections.

■ Polling places will be open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on scheduled election days.

■ Before casting votes, any voter appearing at a polling place must submit a thumbprint, a urine sample and a blood test, as well as his voter card and the aforementioned forms of identification.

Important note: Until rumors of voting fraud in Carmel have been eliminated completely, each vote cast by a Carmel resident will only count as a three-fifths vote.

Happy voting!

MARY CHAMBERLIN is known worldwide for her scrumptious book, "The Traveling Soup Pot." Now in its third edition, it features 111 recipes from 26 countries, and Michel Escoffier, the great grandson of Auguste, who wrote the foreword. Among the contributors in this new issue are other familiar names.

"I've taken from very impressive chefs, for instance,

Food and Wine magazine best chef, and from Bert Cutino, whom I call, 'A great gentleman who has more accolades than a bowl of Italian beans," Mary said. "Also, I brought in Percy Whatley of the Ahwahnee. He started out flipping hamburgers in the Yosemite Village and went on to College of the Redwoods and the Culinary Institute of America, and he now runs the whole operation for all of Yosemite and Sequoia."

Justin Cogley who is a 2013

Mary Chamberlin

What are the roots of her success? "I was born on the farm in Illinois in Wellington, Lovejoy County. It's between Hoopeston and Watseka. My twin and I were born on Aug. 24, in the summer. I won't tell you the year; however, it was very hot. As it turned out, my twin brother came first, and I came six hours later, and I was a blue baby.'

She was blue from a lack of oxygen, and she was lucky she wasn't born in a hospital, because at that time they would give pure oxygen to blue babies, and it blinded them.

The fear was that Mary might have suffered brain damage from the lack of oxygen. Far from it. Years later she happened to pick up a book that reported that a lack of oxygen to the brain — as in the case of a stroke — could result in a highly acute olfactory sense.

"I said 'Ha!' Because from the time that I was a child, I was so aware of taste and flavor, and it's always been very accentualized for me. And, even to this day, I'm very particular. I can taste something and know what is in it and what is wrong with it, you could say. I think it's a blessing."

Her culinary career began after a terrible car accident in France. "I ended up in a French hospital for three months. I was unconscious for 10 days. I had my right arm almost severed, and in my left hand all the tendons and nerves were severed." Even after she returned to the United States, she was "in and out of hospitals for two years having repairs done."

Mary had been an executive secretary before the accident, but she lost her ability to type. This was before people thought about rehabilitation, so what to do? Friends had long asked her how she made this dish or why something she served tasted so good, so, "I said, 'I'm going to go to school and take up restaurant and catering and hospitality."

She completed studies at West Valley College and then decided, "Because I loved catering, I would open a delicatessen and catering business. Simple." She found the per-

Gallery presents 'Concours d'Eleglass'

One of Carmel's newest galleries, Theresa Buccola Stained Glass, presents a "Concours d'Eleglass" reception Thursday, Aug. 15, from 5 to 8 p.m.

"I recently moved my gallery and studio into a wonderful space next to Mundaka restaurant, and I plan to have an opening reception in the fall," Buccola explained. "But I wanted to do something fun for the Concours week, so I'm inviting people to come by Thursday and check my new gallery, enjoy some good company and see what I've created here. Think of this as sort of a pre-opening celebration."

fect site: an old grocery store in San Jose. "It still had the meat cases in it and everything."

Mary didn't have any money, but she had a small disability income. "I said, 'I'm not going to sit and hide behind a disability income, because I'm not disabled.' So I went to the head of the insurance company, and told them I wanted a payout. They gave me $10,000, and I put the money in the bank. And then I went to the banker and asked him to finance my business, and he did. This was back when the bank managers could make the decisions."

Her humble enterprise started with three employees and evolved into Mission Delicatessen and Catering, and Mission Gourmet Cooking School. "When I sold the company about 20 years later, I had 80 employees and almost $2 million a year in catering sales." Her catering clients included Kaiser hospital, PacBell and AT&T.

The secret of her success? "We roasted all our meat. Every salad was homemade. I ran two shifts. I did all kinds of interesting dishes, like Scotch eggs. The other thing is that I personally went out on every job. I would always put in an appearance, and I always made sure everything was right."

In the late 1990s, she and her late husband, Roy, moved down to Carmel where she continued to let shine her culinary talents through the American Institute of Wine and Food, Escoffier, and the Drummond Culinary Academy at Rancho Cielo. Her forte is producing fundraising events featuring brilliantly designed dinners, many in her own home. Her parties are renowned from California to Paris.

Yes, Mary is at the top of the food profession and later this month she will be recognized by the AIWF and Les Dames D'Escoffier at a gala at the Beach Club.

She lives in Carmel Knolls.

Rock, soul, food and wine come together at plaza

By CHRIS COUNTS

SERVING UP a hybrid of contemporary rock and classic soul, The Dani Paige Band will be featured Friday, Aug. 9, in the latest installment of Carmel Plaza's summertime live music series.

"It's Joss Stone meets Grace Potter and the Nocturnals," said guitarist Jesse DeCarlo, describing the band's sound. "Like Janis Joplin, Dani has a soulful, raspy voice."

The comparisons to powerhouse vocalists like Stone, Potter and Joplin are well deserved. While Paige is small in stature, the lead singer's voice — as well as her stage presence — pack a mighty punch.

Formed six years ago, the Monterey Bay-based band also features Nat Shuirman on bass and Keith Wieland on drums. They've recorded a pair of CDs and opened concerts for an impressive roster of recording artists, including Los Lobos, Jonny Lang, Leon Russell, George Thorogood and Pat Benatar.

In addition to playing a generous selection of music from their two recordings, DeCarlo and his cohorts plan to toss in a mix of their favorite covers, which span a wide range of musical influences and include "Oh Mama" by Etta James, "Raspberry Beret" by Prince, "Runaway Baby" by Bruno Mars, "Fool for You" by Otis Redding and "Come Together" by the Beatles.

In addition to the music, Cantinetta Luca will serve appetizers while Carmel Road and La Crema will offer wine. Carmel Plaza's weekly summer music series continues Fridays through Sept. 6.

The music, which starts at 5 p.m., is free. Food and drink packages are $15. Carmel Plaza is located at Junipero and Ocean.

Cancer research benefit, reception for car artist

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH CAR aficionados pouring into town for the Concours d'Elegance, Carmel Valley automotive artist Thierry Thompson exhibits his latest creations and raises money for a good cause.

The Light+Shadow Fine Art Gallery — which is on Sixth Avenue and owned by Thompson and his wife, Beverly --hosts a reception Thursday, Aug. 15, for the artist's new exhibit. The same afternoon, the gallery presents a silent auction to benefit the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society showcasing the artwork of an 8-year-old painter and Leukemia patient, Cooper Bonessa.

A onetime builder of race cars, Thompson now uses his creative talent to paint them. He sees much in common between the two disciplines.

"Motor racing and painting require amazing concentration and hand-eye coordination," Thompson explained. "They both require the neurons to fire quickly and the concentration required to do either well is very addictive."

Thompson inherited his love of automobiles from his father.

"My first memory of a motor-racing event — and perhaps

Where to buy wine, honey at the Ranch, and tasty Monterey

WHEN IT comes to buying wine on the Monterey Peninsula, many people turn to the new BevMo or the Safeway at the Crossroads shopping center, but overlook local gems like the Pebble Beach Market in Del Monte Forest. The shop boasts an intriguing and diverse inventory, as well as articulate and passionate buyers who procure the best bottles and help guide customers toward their ideal purchases.

"It's important to have everyone walk out of the store with something delicious," said Kimberly Perricelli, recently hired as wine manager at the market.

Born in the Boston area, Perricelli came to P.B. Resorts five years ago after obtaining a degree in anthropology and spending more than a dozen years in the aviation industry. After 9/11, she decided to pursue her true love — working in food and wine — and enrolled in the Culinary Institute of America at Greystone in St. Helena.

"I knew it would be a good foundation for whatever I did," she said.

When she came to work in the kitchens at P.B., Perricelli said she had to start at the bottom. "It was a humbling experience, getting paid $11 an hour and being yelled at all the time," she said. "It can get pretty salty back there. You can't rely on your resume — nobody cares I went to Notre Dame — you have to rely on your ability."

She survived and thrived, taking advantage of her upbringing in a food-oriented family and her inclination toward discipline and precision to help guide her actions and decisions.

soup to nuts

By MARY SCHLEY

"My family is Sicilian — we measure time in terms of meals — and atmosphere is a lot about what you eat and drink," she said. "People could have some outrageously delicious experiences if they would open themselves up."

The market carries wines spanning nations and budgets, from value wines under $20, to the hard-to-find cult wines that P.B. muscle can sometimes help an eager client obtain. Fifty to 60 percent of P.B. Market customers live outside the area and have wine shipped to them or shop when they're in town, but Perricelli would like to see more locals walk through the doors.

To that end, she has been organizing special tastings for customers to drop in and try new wines, and she also offered advice on bottles that would be good to pick up and experiment with at home.

Cade, a sister winery of Plumpjack Estate, produced a 2009 Howell Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon that Perricelli said "exhibits layers of dark fruit, licorice, mint and new leather. We are won over by the fact that the wine is at once powerful and elegant."

Another Cab, a 2010 vintage made by Stanton, is "plush and ripe, but not overly so; and balanced with good structure and minerality."

For anyone seeking white, she suggested The Calling, a 2010 Jewel Vineyard Chardonnay that imparts "notes of lemon tart, fresh pear, crème brûlée and a hint of minerality," while being rich but boasting bright acidity that provides balance.

She also mentioned local favorite ROAR, the 2011 Pinot

Noir from the Santa Lucia Highlands, which offers "black cherry and rhubarb balanced with bright acidity and firm tannins; earthy finish."

Last, but certainly not least, she suggested the nonvintage

J. Lassalle Brut Rose, 1er Cru, which is "concentrated, yet elegant; rich, with a touch of strawberry," and has a "long, fresh finish." Perricelli described this particular grower Champagne as "mouthwatering and beautiful in the glass."

The market, located across from the Pebble Beach post office on 17 Mile Drive, is open daily and also includes a great deli, gifts and other goodies. Be sure to check it out — especially when in search of wine.

Wharf Marketplace to open soon

The old Southern Pacific railroad station on Figueroa Street near Wharf No. 2 in Monterey is under renovation and slated to open this month as the Wharf Marketplace, operated by Salinas Valley produce giant Tanimura & Antle. Monterey architecture firm Wald, Ruhnke & Dost — which also handled several projects for the Carmel Unified School District — is overseeing the overhaul, and management is accepting applications for prospective employees and vendors.

Set to celebrate its grand opening in September, the marketplace is being billed as "Monterey County's first fresh food hall," and reportedly is taking inspiration from San Francisco's famed Ferry Building market.

When it opens, the Wharf Marketplace, headed by former Sardine Factory executive chef Brant Good, will include local produce, cheese, wine, seafood, meats, flowers, bakery items and a grab-and-go café. Several local vendors, like Acme Coffee in Seaside and Schoch Dairy in Salinas, have already signed on to sell their wares there.

■ PigWizard shop jumps first hurdle

PigWizard — aka Jonathan Roberts — is one step closer to opening a shop at The Kitchen, chef Todd Fisher's commercial kitchen on Orange Avenue in Sand City. With assurance that matters of parking and trash would be addressed, the Sand City council voted Tuesday night to adopt a resolution approving a use permit authorizing a sandwich sales counter to operate Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Roberts still has to acquire approval from the health department to open the counter, where he'll sell his signature sausages like orange poppyseed, regular and hot Sicilian, and chicken with artichoke and Manchego — and other goodies to go, but he's well on his way to making his legion of pig-loving fans even happier.

■ Q&O and Dino

The Quail & Olive shop at 3 Pilot Road in Carmel Valley Village will host Jazz On The Patio from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10, when Dino Vera will delight music fans and food lovers.

In addition to dancing and merriment, the afternoon will include olive-oil tastings, Mediterranean treats and light summer refreshments. The party is free. Check out www.quailandolive.com to learn more.

Taste of Monterey gets tastier

Finally fulfilling a longstanding need for munchies to pair with Monterey County wines, management at the Taste of Monterey on Cannery Row teamed up with chef Dory Ford and his Aqua Terra Culinary team to launch lunch and dinner offerings a couple of months ago.

Presided over by chef Adam Foster, the new kitchen beside the tasting room on the top floor at 700 Cannery Row in Monterey turns out a strong and diverse menu that nicely pairs with the wines sold onsite, whether consumed in a tasting flight, by the glass or by the bottle.

Highlights include delicious baconwrapped, bleu-cheese-stuffed dates; a flatbread with PigWizard fennel sausage, mushrooms, roasted peppers and toma cheese; the Atom Salad of little gem lettuce, Baker's Bacon, avocado, artichokes, tomatoes, egg, Schoch cheese and roasted garlic vinaigrette; and nachos with spicy goat meat, black beans, Oaxaca cheese, guacamole and other garnishes. Foster said he wanted dishes that could satisfy more adventurous diners, as well as those less willing to branch out, and the balance is nicely struck.

And, of course, local cheeses figure prominently, too, with selections of Cypress Grove Humboldt Fog, Schoch Family Junipero, Vella Cheese Co. Bear Flag and Fiscalini Purple Moon on offer, as well as products from farther afield.

Even customers less enamored of wine can find something to sip at the Taste of Monterey, now that a couple of Marinabased English Ales beers are available on tap there, too.

Lunch is served from noon to 4 p.m. daily, and dinner is offered from 4 to 7 Sunday through Wednesday and 4 to 8 Thursday through Sunday. Favaloro's re-opening Favaloro's Big Night Bistro on Lighthouse Avenue reopened this week after a year-and-a-half-long closure following an electrical fire that badly damaged the Lighthouse Avenue restaurant. The Favaloro family plans on providing its signature Southern Italian specialties — much of the menu is unchanged — such as spaghetti and meatballs, eggplant parmesan, tortellini Antonino, veal scaloppini and seafood.

Favaloro's Big Night Bistro will be open Tuesday through Saturday from 5 to 9 p.m.

The family's Cafe Ariana next door will continue serving pizzas, panini, salads, soups and sweets, including gelato, Tuesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Peter B's in bottles

Under the guidance of brewmaster Kevin Clark, Peter B's Brewpub in the Portola

Hotel & Spa has started bottling and selling its award-winning beers, including Belly Up Blonde Ale, Legend of Laguna IPA and Fort Ord Wheat. Until now, those brews were only available at the brewpub and adjacent Jacks Restaurant in the hotel at the foot of Alvarado Street, though Peter B's beers occasionally show up elsewhere.

The 22-ounce bottles can be found at Bottle N Bins on Lighthouse Avenue in Monterey, Cork N Bottle on Fremont Street in Monterey, Corral de Tierra Market at Corral de Tierra and Highway 68, and Star Market on South Main Street at Blanco in Salinas.

Chock Rock open house

Chock Rock Vineyard and winery at 42875 East Carmel Valley Road, presided over by winemaker Dan Karlsen, will hold an open house Saturday, Aug. 24, from noon to 5 p.m., offering people a rare chance to check out the winemaking operations in person. Chock Rock sells its wines at a tasting room in Carmel Valley Village.

The cost to attend the winery open house — which will include food, wine and vineyard tours — is $20 per person ($15 for wine club members), and can be purchased online at www.chockrockvineyard.eventbrite.com, at the tasting room or at the event.

AAH gets grant

The Community Foundation for Monterey County gave $20,500 to Ag Against Hunger for its new pilot program, Partners in Produce, which seeks to boost the amount and variety of healthy food given to the 87,700 people served by the Food Bank for Monterey County by trading locally grown produce for food grown or made elsewhere in the state.

Founded by area grower-shippers, the nonprofit AAH focuses on providing fresh donated produce to food banks in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties. Since 1990, local ag companies have donated more than 210 million pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables to help feed those in need.

A century of Pine Cones

■ 98 years ago — Aug. 4, 1915

Veritable Land of Heart's Desire

1914 was the banner year in the development of Carmelby-the-Sea. Many high-class homes were built for permanent residents and the year of 1915 bids fair to outstrip all former years in building operations. Many homes are now in the course of construction, and we are justly proud of the class of residents coming to us: artists, writers, college men and women, and many of national reputation.

During the past year, the people of Monterey County voted $570,000 for good roads; most of this sum will be of direct benefit to Carmel-by-the-Sea; $30,000 to be used in building a wide macadamized road from the Monterey city limits into and through Carmel to the old Carmel mission, which is located one mile from the center of town. This work will be done during the coming fall and early winter.

A portion of this bond money will also be used in building a wide boulevard from Monterey to Castroville, thus giving Carmel a direct outlet to Santa Cruz and San Francisco along Monterey bay and the ocean shoreline.

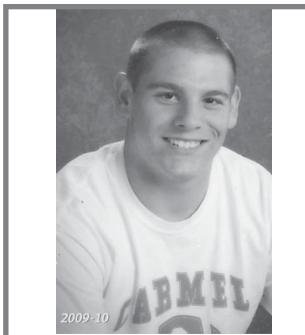

Another portion of this road fund will be used in building a macadamized road from Monterey to Salinas to connect with the state highway at that place; thus, Carmel-by-the-Sea will be the natural terminus of the finest system of scenic roads in the world, and in the glorious climate of California these roads can be enjoyed nearly every day of the year by autoists and pleasure seekers.

Annie Laurie, the well known literary woman of California, for she belongs to the whole state and is honored by all for her championship and defense of every good cause, writes of Carmel on her first visit here as follows:

"You waken in the morning and lean from your lattice and see the azure water, the snow sand, the melancholy cypress — and all the country hazed over with the blue smoke of the wild lilac, and at their feet the leaping flame of the California poppies, color perfume, air, sky, the singing sea, the crescent of the wondrous beach, the winding roads and the enchanted fields."

"The roads of ten thousand wonders" shall be the name of all these splendid highways diverging from the Carmel-bythe-Sea, and how fitting that beautiful Carmel should be the terminus.

Benjamin Fay Mills, the noted lecturer and pulpit orator, writes of Carmel-by-the-Sea as follows: "In my opinion, Carmel-by-the-Sea surpasses in natural attractiveness any sea shore resort in America. Mountains, bluffs, woods, dune, beach, sand, flowers, climate, the ante-American romantic aroma and the good-natured pioneers, all need more than superlatives to describe them. Here Nature speaks with positive energy and if she has not done her best, it can only be because the best is yet to come."

City Assessment Shows Property Value Advance To Total of $3,685,155

The total assessed value of real estate, improvements and personal property within the city limits of Carmel increased to $3,685,155 this year, according to the assessment roll for 1938 completed this week by City Clerk Saidee Van Brower. The net gain this year over 1937 amounted to $105,970, although a considerable advance in the value of improvements was indicated, but offset in considerable part by depreciation on old buildings. City taxes will be levied on property assessed at $3,611,510, when exemptions of $73,645 have been allowed.

Sea Otters Safe, Wardens Advise

Valero II, Oil Tycoon G. Allan Hancock's million-dollar plaything, a huge and handsome Diesel yacht in which Hancock parades as a patron of science, paid a brief visit to Carmel Bay on Tuesday of this week. Asserted reason for Valero's call here was to obtain, alive, one of the sea otters in the rare herd down the coast below Yankee Point. An early report had it that Hancock had obtained a California Fish and Game Division permit for this purpose.

On learning of Valero's presumed mission here, local biologists and nature lovers were irked and immediately got in touch with Fish and Game officers to check up on Valero's actions in these waters. A Fish and Game officer was quoted as having said that no such permit had been issued, on written advice from headquarters, and that none was likely to be issued.

Hancock visited Carmel this spring to show moving pictures of his expeditions in the Valero to the Galapagos and Lower California and brought with him a chamber orchestra group. His moving pictures were well received, but, it was suggested, a return visit if he ever touched "our" sea otters would get "another kind of reception."

WHAT HAPPENS when you show up at the airport without your ID?

I thought I knew the answer to that question: You can't fly. And since I'm such an experienced traveler — with at least 100 transcontinental flights under my belt, dozens of capitals visited, and all sorts of Byzantine security clearances obtained in countries much stricter than the United States — I was sure I knew what was going to happen when my son, Eli, showed up at the San Francisco airport a few weeks ago for a flight to San Diego without his driver's license.

When I picked him up early that morning at his apartment, I had the feeling he'd just gotten out of bed, so I prodded him in a fatherly way: "Do you have your ID?"

He answered, "Yes," with the utmost confidence, and patted his wallet, so I didn't want to be a know-it-all and ask him to show it to me. He's 21 years old, after all.

So off we went, arriving at the airport in plenty of time, but not with hours to spare. At the check-in counter, when he was asked for his photo ID, my son immediately got a stricken look on his face when he pulled out his wallet and saw that the place where he usually keeps his driver's license was empty.

"Uh oh," he said. "I don't have it."

He had left his driver's license, he realized, on his bedside table.

Mind you, this was a trip we were both looking forward to. He's been talking about moving to San Diego after he finishes school, there was a baseball game we both wanted to see, I'm always interested in the situation at the border, and the Gaslamp District can't be beat for nightlife.

There definitely wasn't time to drive back to his apartment to fetch the license. I was annoyed, and really disappointed, that my son wouldn't be able to go.

"You're going to have to stay home," I said, speaking with the voice of authority and experience.

But he had other ideas.

"I'm pretty sure I saw a TV show about how you can still fly even if you don't have ID," Eli said.

Sure enough, he was right. The United ticket agent sent him to the TSA checkpoint, where he was referred to a supervisor, who took him aside and sternly asked him why he didn't have the required government-issued photo ID.

"Because I'm an idiot," Eli said. Humility turned out to be the right approach.

After taking a look at his boarding pass and a couple of credit cards Eli had in his wallet, and asking a few innocuous questions, the TSA supervisor told him he could still board his flight after going through extra security checks.

"They took a long time searching my bag, swabbed everything for explosives, and patted me down more thoroughly than normal," Eli said.

And then, miracle of miracles, a few minutes later we were at the gate, waiting for our flight, like nothing unusual had happened at all.

On the plane to San Diego, I looked at my son and thought about all the lessons he still needed to learn, and congratulated myself on being so much wiser than he is. After all, I've been everywhere and done everything.

That's what I thought. And then, just a few weeks later, I Valere. The man who says he paints under the name Valere does not look like anyone who would cause such a turmoil. A slight, graying Frenchman with glasses and a happy smile, Valere faced the media on Aug. 5, answering questions through an interpreter.

The name Valere created a nationwide stir when Simic Galleries, which sells Valere paintings, filed a restraining order in May against the FBI, aimed at the FBI's probe into allegations that the French country chateau paintings signed "Paul Valere" were not done by a single artist but a group of artists who created "manufactured art." The galleries had sold Valere's works for about eight years and have had an exclusive contract for the works since 1985. The paintings sell for $2,000 to $18,000.

The FBI requested that its office in Paris make inquiries based on biographical information contained in a Simic Galleries brochure. The FBI's Paris attache answered that they could not find any reference to an artist named Valere in that country and some of the awards listed in the gallery's brochure did not exist. The gallery maintained that Valere is a French artist's pseudonym and his activities were listed under his real name. Later, much of the brochure's information was proven to be incorrect and Simic Galleries issued an apology. In the meantime, a federal grand jury in San Jose began an inquiry into Simic Galleries' operation. That inquiry continues, despite the arrival of Valere in the United States.

Valere still wishes to retain the secrecy of his true identity and location of his home, but readily answered the questions about his background. He is now dealing directly with Simic Galleries and appears very happy.

went to France and left my passport on a train.

It happened on the Eurostar from London to Lille, where I was planning to join my brother, David, on a tour of World War I battlefields.

When I boarded the train at St. Pancras station in London, I had my passport in my hand, and then casually put it in the seat pocket as I got settled, intending to stow it safely in my briefcase, where it belongs, in a moment or two. In fact, as I stuffed it in the seat pocket, I had a little argument with myself.

'You'd better not put your passport in there. You're going to forget it," Self No. 1 said.

But Self No. 2 was sure he wouldn't forget it. Sadly, he won the argument, and he was wrong.

I fell asleep as we passed through the Chunnel and didn't wake up until the train about to stop at the Lille was station. Hurriedly, I gathered my things and disembarked, and as soon as I reached the terminal, I realized I had left my passport behind. Glancing back, I could see the train start moving on its way to its next stop, Brussels. Uh oh. Why do European trains always have to be in such a hurry?

Panicking a little and trying to decide what to do next, I went to the Avis counter, where I inquired whether I would need my passport to pick up the rent-a-car that was to be an essential part of our tour.

"No, just your driver's license and credit card, but if you left your passport on the train, you'd better report it right away," the counterman said.

He directed me to one of those ubiquitous information desks you see in airports and train stations, and instructed me to ask for help.

"I just left my passport on the train from London, train 9132, car 8 seat 41," I said to the woman behind the glass. My next words were a perfect echo of my son's confession at the San Francisco airport: "I'm sorry to be such an idiot."

She asked me for my cell phone number and said she would try to contact the train manager. Other than that, there was nothing for me to do but go on my way, she said.

I thanked her profusely for her help, and she said, "I hope we can find it before somebody steals it."

Obviously, I would need my passport to fly home — and that was just three days away. But the European Union has made it unnecessary to have a passport to cross the border between France and Belgium, so I was able to continue with my immediate plan to drive 45 minutes to the town of Ypres (EEH-pruh) to meet my brother.

We had a nice dinner in the shadow of the Cloth Tower, which was famously destroyed by German artillery during what was then called The Great War. Ypres was the epicenter of the trench warfare that killed an appalling number of British, French and German soldiers from August 1914 right up until the end of the war in November 1918. Not a single building in the town escaped destruction during the war, and the shadows of the dead are still everywhere.

But the town has also been lovingly and artfully rebuilt, and the weather was perfect, so my brother and I had a fine time catching up on family gossip, discussing our plans for visiting sites along the Western Front over the next two days, and laughing at my ineptitude.

Several hours later, my phone rang, and the same woman who took my information at the train station in Lille said my passport had been found and returned to Lille. Speaking in French to my brother, she asked us to come back to the station that very evening to pick it up.

"She's worried someone will take it?" I asked David.

"No, I got the feeling this is the most exciting thing that's happened to them in a while," he said.

When we arrived at the station, we were taken deep inside the building to some kind of security office, where 10 or 15 people were looking at computer monitors and TV screens. As soon as I walked into the room, a woman smiled, stood up and handed me my passport.

The security people even gave a little round of applause to me - another dumb American who can't keep track of his important documents.

But it's not really my fault. It must be genetic. At least, I passed the trait on to my

Tres Paraguas: a one-of-a-kind home at the top of Jacks Peak

WHEN OSCAR Hammerstein wrote the lyrics to The Folks Who Live on the Hill he could have been rhapsodizing about Tres Paraguas, a unique new home on Jacks Peak. This stunning dwelling swells to the top of Gentry Hill like it was deposited there by some universal force. That force is the creative mind of noted designer, Ron Mann, who has a passion for living environments.

Nothing Mann does is ordinary. He designs from the ground up, using environmentally sustainable building practices while working with recycled woods, locally harvested stone, and natural materials.

For Tres Paraguas, Mann mapped out and built a complex of five houses around a half acre of enclosed courtyard with a pool, cantina and spa. The name, Tres Paraguas, is Spanish for three umbrellas. Three giant roofs of rust colored, weathered corten steel float free over the five buildings below.

Mann, in his seventies, is ruggedly handsome with a weathered sun-bronzed face that could have been hammered out of that same corten steel. Energy flows out of him until it infuses the wood, steel, glass, and concrete of this architectural wonder.

A living space so huge, open, and free, could look slightly intimidating to the casual observer. Yet, by making space user-friendly rather than unapproachable, Mann has created a private world very amenable to all the various functions of living. The huge kitchen can accommodate a hundred people cooking and interacting while standing on the hot pink plank floor. Yet two people noshing over scrambled eggs while leaning on the stone counters can feel secluded as they view Monterey Bay from the same kitchen. Deep colors throughout add warmth. Floors inlaid with Douglas fir tiles and satin stone beg for bare-footed padding across the rooms. There is a secret room, a spiral staircase, and there are swiveling bean bag chairs. The bed in the master suite has a sandblasted Douglas fir frame with a basket-woven Belgian linen coverlet. Instead of incompatibility and coldness there is intimacy and an inwardness that holds back the outside world even though it is steps away through massive glass sliding doors.

Mann says he's had the design for Tres Paraguas in his head for fifty years. His idea was to create a living compound separated into various structures. He got his chance when a Carmel couple, Bob and Aime Carroll, called him in 2004. The Carrolls wanted to create a one-of-a-kind living environment. They had the perfect property at the top of Gentry Hill with Jacks Peak as the backdrop on the land side and a panoramic view on the ocean side.

"Aime and I already had plans ready for approval but they just didn't seem right for the vision we had so we scrapped them. We wanted something open and free" says Bob Carroll.

The Carrolls had known Mann for a long time. They had visited his showroom in San Francisco and seen his books on design so they were familiar with his work.

ERVASE "We tried to give him specifics but he had his vision so we simply let him run with it. Now every time I see Tres Paraguas in its finished form I'm glad we did." Carroll says.

They were not hesitant to experiment and, in selecting Mann as their designer, they got someone who loves to experiment. Mann designed all aspects of the house, inside and out, including the furniture.

"I design volume and placement of space," Mann says. "People can have a greater volume of space than they realize by not limiting their perspectives." He doesn't dissect space or coop it up. Mann lets it run free until it is the boundless three-dimensional entity it is intended to be. He minimizes decorations and embellishments. He believes that the designer works best when he is given free rein.

"Then my only restriction is myself," he says.

If Mann's designs are unconventional, his designing methods defy convention, too. For his "hands on" method of design he walks around wearing two rolls of blue painter's tape on his left wrist. Watching him suddenly fall to his knees and tear off strips of tape to outline where a piece of furniture will go or where a wall should fall in place is like watching a cattleman put his brand on some steers. And perhaps that is exactly what he is doing – putting his unique brand on his projects.

"The most important fact about me for people to remember is that I always follow my instincts and never ignore my passion for design. When given the opportunity I simply turn my intention and passion loose," Mann says.

With a shrugging gesture of humility Mann says he designs by the seat of his pants. He welcomes a design challenge and the freedom to execute a new vision. Mann is extremely enthusiastic about new technology. Designs that used to take enormous amounts of time can be visualized concepts before anything is even built.

"This makes a customer feel more secure. Then designers can do what they really do best: create wonderful places to live. I can accomplish all the details of the project with the tape. I constantly make sketches, then

Concours Week grows again, offering something for everyone

By MARY SCHLEY

THE MONTEREY Peninsula transforms into a car-lover's paradise for a couple of weeks each August, when fans, connoisseurs and collectors from around the world arrive at one of the most beautiful places on the planet to admire, purchase, drive, covet and compete in rare, exquisite and compelling automobiles.

From vintage races and rallies, to auctions, parties and exhibitions, the Peninsula offers something for everyone, including still more new events. This year's lineup starts with a new downtown Monterey car show Aug. 9 and concludes Aug. 18 with the famed Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance and accompanying Gooding & Co. auction.

Sandwiched in between are celebrations of vehicular genius; eclectic sales of old cars, new cars, rare cars, motorcycles, memorabilia and jewelry; rallies and tours all over the Peninsula; a decadent day of wining and dining among notable racing and collector cars; a film festival celebrating the objects of our desire — and even an exhibition of everyone's favorite clunkers. The events range in price from free to if-you-have-toask-you-can't afford it, ensuring no one is left out. Here, we summarize each for your planning pleasure.

Downtown Race Car Show Alvarado Street, Monterey Friday, Aug. 9, 5 to 7 p.m.

Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca will turn downtown Monterey into an outdoor motorsports museum when more than 20 historic race cars line Alvarado Street to help kick off this year's Concours Week festivities. Escorted by the California Highway Patrol, a select group of classic race cars — including Corvettes, Porsches, Maseratis and Jaguars will travel from the race track, down Highway 68 and into downtown Monterey. The show is free and will also feature fantastic raffle prizes and music. www.mazdaraceway.com

CONCOURS WEEK

Simplex: The big, the bold and the simply beautiful

By LISA CRAWFORD WATSON

OU CAN tell a lot about a person by his car. Back in the day, circa 1909 to 1915, if you pulled up to the country club in a Simplex, you needed no other introduction. People understood your class, your credentials and your capital.

The car's 598-cubic-inch, fourcylinder engine, with a double-chaindrive chassis under a custom-built light-roadster body, was a paradox of size and speed — a big ol' brute that became one of the fastest cars on the market. A prestigious car, built without concern for cost, it was priced high to ensure elite ownership. And yet, by 1920, the Simplex had slipped into obscurity.

Monterey native Johnny Crowell has owned two Simplexes. The first, acquired in the early 1970s, burned up in a fire. The second, a 1914 50 HP Holbrook Seven-Passenger Touring car, took 10 years to track down. He's already driven it in the Pebble Beach Motoring Classic, which starts in Seattle, climbs Mt. Hood, and motors down the coast of California to the Concours d'Elegance. And Crowell is bringing it to be presented, among seven other Simplexes, at this year's 63rd annual automotive beauty pageant. Because Simplex never built a body, no two cars looked the same, Crowell points out. But other traits they all had in common.

"With that big engine, they were notoriously fast, quite expensive, and a handful to drive — not for the faint of heart," Crowell said. "They go like heck but stop poorly, which can be exhausting but a lot of fun. They were extraordinarily heavy but extremely fast for the day. I have a number of early cars, but these are the best."

Crowell finally found his latest Simplex on the East Coast, with a provenance of only three previous owners. Considering the age of car, he found this unusual.

Crowell's car will be joined at the Concours by a 1912 Simplex 50 HP Holbrook-bodied Toy Tonneau Tourabout, which Thomas L. Powels encountered in the early 1940s and purchased in 1973. It has remained in the Powels family ever since.

"My Simplex was originally a $5,000 graduation gift for a student at Yale," says Crowell, "which is equivalent to a $250,000 car today."

The student shipped it to Europe, where it was used heavily until the beginning of World War II, when it was shipped back to the United

Concorso Italiano – A car show about la bella vita

By LISA CRAWFORD WATSON

T THE climax of the classic 1968 movie, "The Love Bug," protagonist Herbie, a beloved VW Bug, participates in a gamechanging race. His rival is an Apollo GT Thorndike Special. As legions of Love Bug fans remember, Herbie wins the race.

Forty-five years later, the Thorndike Special will have its day in the sun. In honor of the 50th anniversary of Apollo automobiles, the car, fully restored, will roll onto the green to take its place among 16 other Apollos at the 28th annual Concorso Italiano. In "The Love Bug," the Thorndike Special competes in a faux Monterey Grand Prix, filmed at Laguna Seca Raceway. Since 2009, Concorso Italiano has been staged at neighboring Laguna Seca Golf Ranch, which brings the story full circle.

The Apollo project actually was the brainchild of automobile designer Milt Brown, who was looking to create the American version of the European GTs, such as the Aston Martin DB4 and the Ferrari coupes. Brown struck a deal with Intermeccanica out of Turin, Italy, which handbuilt the bodies and then sent them to Oakland to be assembled by Brown and Company. The result was a sleek Italian design with an American V8 drive train.

The Apollo automobile company, which had various owners from 1963 to 1971, never quite got its wheels under it. Only 88 of the company's high-performance automobiles were made, 50 of which still exist.

"Concorso Italiano has become one of the most respected gatherings of Italian marques and all things Italian around the world, in one of the most amazing settings," says David von Gompertz, car collector and automobile aficionado. "Yet I am particularly looking forward to seeing the Apollos.

Local charities hitch a ride at the Concours d'Elegance

By ELAINE HESSER

■HE SLEEK lines of classic autos and stunning backdrop of Pebble Beach seem farremoved from the life of a middle-school student who needs a tutor, a patient at Natividad Medical Center who needs someone to interpret her native Triqui, or a homeless puppy with a wounded paw. Through its many nonprofit partners, however, the Concours d'Elegance reaches all of these — and more.

Each year, the Concours raises money for the Pebble Beach Foundation and the recently established Phil Hill Scholarship program. In addition, the Concours d'Elegance assists local charities by providing luxury cars for raffles and contracting with nonprofits that provide groups of volunteers for various jobs in return for donations. A wide range of organizations reap the benefits. For instance, that middle school student struggling with homework can find help at the Boys and Girls Clubs of Monterey County through its afterschool tutoring program. The Boys & Girls Clubs received more than $100,000 last year, including a generous gift from auto aficionado Jay Leno, who sold tours of his collection for the cause. The money goes mainly to support academic programs for kids ages 6 to 18. According to president and CEO Donna Ferraro, many of the clubs' nearly 4,000 members also receive school supplies and participate in family literacy programs. And, over the summer, children who might otherwise miss meals because school is not in session can receive free breakfasts and lunches at various locations throughout the county.

Young clients at Monterey County Kinship Center also share in the Concours d'Elegance wealth. These children have often been exposed to violence and abuse from an early age, and need counseling while they seek new permanent homes.

To that end, the center is using some of the $60,000 it received last year to open mental health clinics for children and their families. One opened this past March in North Salinas; another is planned for King City. Spokesman Bill Lutz says, "These kids have dealt with a lot of trauma in early childhood. Our expertise is in working with traumatized kids over the last 29 years."

Medical care for children and adults alike is enhanced by donations to the foundations supporting Natividad Medical Center and Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. According to Linda Ford, president and CEO of Natividad's foundation, the nearly $80,000 it received last year went in part toward purchasing new equipment and hiring medical interpreters. More than half of the hospital's patients speak only Spanish; in addition, Natividad serves a

Golden State Theatre hosts inaugural automotive film festival

By KELLY NIX

1903 drive across the United States on a $50 bet, the "most famous rivalry in racing history," and a peek into the glamour and danger of Formula 1 are among the topics explored at the inaugural Automotive Film & Arts Festival in Monterey Aug. 15-17.

The festival at the Golden State Theatre — which coincides with the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance and other Concours Week events will offer full length and short films chronicling milestones in automotive history, including two exclusive screenings.

"We have all experienced a film, or maybe even a single scene, that evokes a common pull at a heartstrings moment that we share," said Fred LoBianco, president of festival sponsor World Class Motoring. "We developed this festival in the spirit of capturing and preserving that moment."

Formula 1 racing fans will be especially elated with the Saturday, Aug. 17 screening of "1," a film narrated by actor Michael Fassbender that brings the golden age of Formula 1 and all its glamour, speed and danger to the big screen.

Told by legendary Formula 1 drivers Nigel Mansell, Jackie Stewart,

Michael Schumacher and others, the film depicts the story of the golden age of Formula 1, "when the sport became terrifyingly dangerous and the drivers were like rock stars with charisma and raw talent, but with many of them paying the ultimate price."

The evening's screening of the film will be highlighted with a special appearance by "1" director Paul Crowder and Writer/Producer Mark Monroe.

On Thursday, Aug. 15, festivalgoers will be treated to the exclusive showing "Snake & Mongoose," the story of Southern California drag racers Don "The Snake" Prudhomme and Tom "The Mongoose" McEwen" and how they developed "the most famous rivalry in racing history."

On hand at the festival to offer insight and answer questions about the film will be producer Robin Broidy. The Entertainment Universe/Rhino Films production is scheduled to open in theaters nationwide Sept. 6.

One of the most celebrated automotive movies in history, the 1971 "Le Mans," will also be a feature of the film festival. Starring Steve McQueen, "Le Mans" profiles the 1970 24 Hours of Le Mans — a race first held in 1923 near Le Mans, France.

McQueen, with competitor Erich Stahler, played by actor Siegfried Rauch.

The film, which shows Aug. 17, will be joined by "Behind LeMans," a behind-the-scenes view of the 1970 competition that offers three perspectives, including an overview of the actual race, using stills and footage; a 15-minute documentary showing insight into the production of the film; and a mixture of still photographs and film focusing on the major players and their roles in the production.

Also on Aug. 15, the festival will screen the movie, "Horatio's Drive; America's First Road Trip," by Emmy Award-winning director Ken Burns, which documents the journey of Dr. Horatio Nelson Jackson as he becomes the first person to drive an automobile from San Francisco to New York City in 1903. He undertook the journey on a $50 bet.

Also on Thursday's program is "32 Hours 7 Minutes — An Outlaw Race," a documentary that takes its title from the U.S. transcontinental speed record set during the 1983 U.S. Express — a secretive race from New York to California.

In a successor to the famous Cannonball races, drivers essentially broke the law nonstop, driving as fast as they could to cross the United States. More than two decades later, when suspicion arose about the legitimacy of that record, movie director Cory Welles climbed into the backseat of Alex Roy's infamous BMW M5, attempting to break the record of 32 hours and 7 minutes.

On Friday, Aug. 16, there will be a tribute to legendary racing driver, John Fitch. "A Gullwing at Twilight -The Bonneville Ride of John Fitch" explores 87-year-old Fitch's last attempt at the Bonneville Salt Flats to set a speed record in his signature Mercedes 300 SL Gullwing - a car he raced successfully in Europe a half-century prior. "The power of this film lies not in reliving the past, but rather its focus on Fitch continually challenging himself, and our outdated notions of what elderly persons can accomplish," according to AutoWeek.

Also on Friday, the documentary "Lime Rock Park — the Secret Valley of Racing," captures the essence of automobile racing using New England's Lime Rock Park as a backdrop, while "The Quest" documents Chip Miller's personal goal of finding a class-winning Corvette, acquiring and restoring it, all with the goal of returning it to Le Mans in 2010 with Fitch as one of its drivers.

On hand to discuss their works will be filmmakers Chris Szwedo ("A Gullwing at Twilight" and "LimeRock Park: The Secret Valley of Racing"); Cory Welles, the man behind "32 Hours 7 Minutes," and Michael Brown, who produced and directed "The Quest."

There will also be an automotive fine art exhibit presented by World Class Motoring and Carat, Inc., featuring works by Lynn Masters, Harold Cleworth, Ken Eberts, Charles Maher, Robert Carter and others. There will be original automotive books from Auto Aero Books.

The festival will help generate proceeds for the Monterey County Pops, a symphony dedicated to bringing pops and patriotic orchestral music to the community, while providing musical support to local arts organizations.

A highlight of the week is the Concours Tour d'Elegance, which starts early Thursday morning at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center (above). 'Sophistication with a dash of fun' is the motto of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Concours on the Avenue, which draws many unusual entries (below).

day both days, with practice in the morning and racing in the afternoon. Racers prepping for the major Rolex Monterey Motorsports Reunion, use the opportunity to test their machines and warm up their skills, and while crowds pack the track during the Reunion, Pre-Reunion days offer upclose and personal looks at the cars, as well as chats with the owners and drivers. A must for any vintage racing fan. www.mazdaraceway.com or (800) 327-7322

Carmel-by-the-Sea Concours on the Avenue Ocean Avenue and side streets, Carmel-by-the-Sea Tuesday, Aug. 13, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Under the guidance of consummate car couple Doug and Genie Freedman, the Concours on the Avenue — with its mission of "sophistication with a dash of fun, where authenticity, originality and preservation are the things that matter, all in a welcoming atmosphere" - showcases an eclectic and diverse collection of a couple hundred cars, motorcycles, trucks and other mechanized contraptions built between 1940 and 1973 — as well as Porsches and Ferraris through 1989. The showpieces line Ocean Avenue and side streets in a judged concours, with awards bestowed on a stage on Ocean Avenue at Lincoln Street in the afternoon. And during a week where event tickets can cost several hundred dollars, the Carmel show is free and open to everyone who wants to spend a couple of hours perusing rare, beloved, beautiful and unusual vehicles. www.motorclubevents.com.

Founded by a Carmel Valley enthusiast who calls his event, "the serious collector's candy store," Automobilia Monterey is purportedly the largest sale in the country of genuine car-related collectibles, and Tony Singer holds fast to his "no reproductions will be sold" rule. More than 45 sellers from Europe, the United States and South America will offer original posters, photos, signs, rallye plates, badges and pins, models, literature and books, scarves and more in the hotel ballroom. Automobilia Monterey also hosts a great silent auction, and Singer welcomes all car buffs and other collectors to his event, which raises money for the Monterey Rape Crisis Center. "It is the mission of this event to enable each enthusiast to buy the best from the best. Automobilia Monterey is unique in the auto world by being a focused event in a relaxed, indoor setting, and not an adjunct to a car show or race; it is devoted to only original vintage automobilia. Having onpremises professional pack-and-ship facilities contributes to the genuine ease of doing business for all involved." Admission is $15 for a single day or $20 for both days. www.AutomobiliaMonterey.com, (831) 659-5335 or tony@automobiliamonterey.com. people's imagination, and the car world is no exception. Marina Motorsports will present its fourth annual display and rally of "vehicles that were manufactured as fuel-sipping commuter transportation; utilitarian, space-saving work vehicles; and even highly competitive sports cars," this year focusing on "the small vehicles of France." Set in downtown Pacific Grove, the event invites spectators to look, but also to watch their step, lest they inadvertently trip over one. Some 100 machines — electric vehicles as well as those with engines of 1,601cc or smaller — will line the street. Trophies will be given for longest distance traveled to Pacific Grove, Most Smiles Per Mile, top choice of the P.G. City Council, merchants' favorites, and others. Music will be provided by Dick Robbin's Ragtime Stompers. After the show, participants will cruise along Ocean View Boulevard to Asilomar. Admission is free. In addition to the Pacific Grove Library and Youth Center, the event will also benefit the Veterans Transition Center. For more information, visit www.marinamotorsports.org.

Carmel Mission Concours Car Show & Blessing of the Automobiles Carmel Mission courtyard, Rio Road

Wednesday, Aug. 14, noon to 5 p.m.

New this year, members of the Knights of Columbus are holding a car show and blessing of the automobiles at the historic Carmel Mission, one of the most important buildings in the state. "Combining the passion of fine automobiles with the faith and the palate," organizers are offering wine tasting and car ogling for $25 per person, the proceeds of which benefit the KOC and other selected charities, like the nonprofit Carmel Mission Foundation that has been raising money and overseeing the Mission's extensive seismic upgrade and restoration.

McCall's Motorworks Revival Monterey Jet Center, Monterey Wednesday, Aug. 14, 5 to 10 p.m.

What began as a casual get-together around a hibachi has grown into an extravagant celebration of fascinating cars and aircraft — including the ultra-rare and iconic Curtiss P-40C "Tomahawk." "We've got great companies we're working with, like Gulfstream and Aston Martin, and this year's going to have a more intimate feel to it," founder Gordon McCall said. "After all, it is just a party it's not a car show or a sale. And with the full Bernardus buy-in, it's kind of a foodie thing, too." Vintage racers, luxurious tourers and the latest innovations in winged and wheeled vehicles cover the tarmac at this annual party, which this year will fill two hangars at the jet center.

Motorworks guests won't go hungry or thirsty, as Bernardus, Roederer and Mendocino Brewing Co. will keep glasses filled, and a catering team overseen by Bernardus executive chef Cal Stamenov will ensure delectable bites all night. Tickets are $325 in advance or $395 the night of the party, and attendees must be 21 or older. Proceeds benefit the California Highway Patrol's 11-99 Foundation. The jet center is located at 100 Sky Park Way off Garden Road in Monterey. www.mccallevents.com

■ Dine in Di-Vine Classic Car Event Chateau Julien Wine Estate, Carmel Valley Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 14-15

The menu is set to include items like Pizza Margherita, warm crab and artichoke spread, shrimp and calamari ceviche, mixed green salad, Chicken Saltimbocca, herb-crusted Monterey rock fish, butternut squash ravioli, and flourless chocolate cake. The cost to attend is $105 per person ($95 for club members), and reservations must be made by Aug. 10. Chateau Julien is located at 8940 Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley. roads during the annual Tour d'Elegance. Many of the world's rarest automobiles will take the drive from Pebble Beach out Highway 68 to Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca — where, for the first time in the Tour's history, they will take a few laps around the historic racetrack — and then cruise over Los Laureles Grade, east on Carmel Valley Road and down Highway 1 to Ripplewood Resort in Big Sur, where they'll turn around and head for downtown Carmel. Car buffs gather at strategic points along the route to witness "the elegance of the automobile in motion" before participants leave their treasures on Ocean Avenue in downtown Carmel-by-the-Sea while they enjoy a catered lunch in Devendorf Park. The cars remain motionless for a couple of hours, allowing spectators to ogle up close without paying a penny. Drivers will gather in Pebble Beach starting at 7 a.m. and depart around 8. It's anticipated they will begin arriving in Carmel around 11 a.m. — one of

Russo & Steele's

13th annual Monterey Sports and Muscle Monterey Auction on the Waterfront Del Monte Ave. and in the city lots at Wharf No. 2, Monterey

Thursday through Saturday, Aug. 15-17, 5 to 10 p.m. (Previews begin at 10 a.m. Aug. 14-17.)

Organized "for enthusiasts by enthusiasts," Russo & Steele's uniquely casual and lively sale expanded to three nights a few years ago and relocated to the Monterey waterfront last year. The company holds "auctions in the round," wherein the buyers are on the floor with the automobiles, and everything happens on a sunken stage surrounded by 360-degree seating.

"The three-evening event will auction over 250 automobiles in its highly interactive, visceral ground level auction arena that provides cars with no separation from the buyers," according to organizers Drew and Josephine Alcazar, who also began webcasting auctions - adding to their speed and liveliness - and introduced an all reserve, all the time format, to ensure a better offering collector cars.

"The combination of higher caliber automobiles and the intense excitement found on Russo and Steele's auction block make this auction event an unforgettable experience; no other auction event can compare to the electric and exciting atmosphere of Russo and Steele," they say.

Tickets are $20 per day or $55 for all three. R&S's auctions will take place in the city lots at Del Monte Avenue and Wharf No. 2. www.russoandsteele.com or (602) 252-2697.

They have inherently gorgeous Italian lines and rich leather interiors. They're fast, they sound good and they're rarely seen. It's nice to see something other than the big three — Lamborghini, Maserati, Ferrari."

In addition to the Apollo anniversary, the Concorso will celebrate the 50th anniversary of Lamborghini by bringing out one of nearly every production model to the show field. "People imagine we have about a 40percent share of the Ferraris on the planet because we present so many each year," says publicist Jim Tinsley, "but we also highlight other amazing automobiles. I am always so impressed by the beauty of all these vehicles, both the elite and the entrant cars."

In celebration of all things Italian, the Concorso will feature 1,000 vehicles on the show field, 800 of which are Italian designs. The other 200 automobiles will be presented in a "non-Italian corral," as an increasing number of entrants are interested in exhibiting their own classic cars, such as Aston Martin, Rolls Royce, Lotus or Porsche.

To enter a car in the Concorso Italiano, says Tinsley, participants simply register online, pay the fee, and bring their cars to the event. Officials review every entry to make sure it's appropriate but actually deny very few. Typically, people who apply own classic cars spectators would want to see. The elite centerpiece cars are by invitation, with more rigorous qualifications.

As a convivium of Italian culture and style, the festival incorporates music and art, fashion and food. Models, wearing designer apparel presented by local fashion houses Anubee, Patrick James, Romanoos, Suixtil, Sylvie and Tommy Bahama, strut the same stage where the classic cars come in. And Italian cuisine will be provided by Allegro Gourmet Balesteri's Catering, Pizzeria, Bratwurst USA and Euro Snack, among others.

"With all the food, fashion, culture and cars, it's really a fun event," says Tinsley. "But what really makes the day is all the people, strolling around, looking at cars, and setting up their picnics. Many do tailgate parties, a throwback to an earlier era when people picnicked right out the back of the car with food and wine."

It's difficult to glimpse something more tantalizing than a technicolor array of Lamborghinis – always worth a gander at Concorso Italiano, where they assemble at Laguna Seca Golf Ranch every year.

States and put on display in a museum on the East Coast."

"Once the owner returned from Europe, he found the owner of the museum no longer had room for it. He planned to preserve it in tar and use it as a sign for the museum. Offended by the offer, the owner sold it for $1. It was restored, and then a neighbor bought it."

Once he heard about the car, Crowell was determined to buy it and made multiple trips to the East Coast, "pleading on bended knee" to buy it. Once he prevailed, he has kept the car for 10 years, during which he has driven it thousands upon thousands of miles. Although he considers it a bear to drive, he believes he has shown the Simplex who's boss.

"The Simplex is probably the best of American automobiles," says Crowell. "I'm thrilled we are going to show them this year. This probably will be the largest gathering of Simplex automobiles in 75 years. Because of their value, the cars tend to get put away in museums. It is a phenomenal thing for these cars to be recognized and to have them there at Pebble Beach."

Warren G. Kraft isn't leaving his Long Island home to attend the Concours d'Elegance this year, but the vice president and secretary of the Simplex Automobile Club is excited to know that Simplex is a featured marque — almost as excited as he is to own one.

"If you owned a Simplex, people knew you were either very wealthy, a real daredevil, or both," says Kraft, who has been involved in the club since its founding in the mid 1950s. "These cars were more than a luxury. They were fine performers with speed and power to spare. I consider myself lucky to have one. It's exciting to own, but a thrill to drive."

The Simplex automobile is among the rarest of early 20th century marques. Some 1,600 were built before the company merged with Crane in 1915, yet only 46 are believed to endure. The eight cars featured on the Concours show field will range from a sporting 75 HP Speedster, to Crowell's road-worthy 1914 Simplex 50 HP Holbrook Seven Passenger Touring car.

"The sportiest racecars of the pre-1910 era, the Simplex automobiles were probably the biggest and baddest of the American cars," says Colin Feichtmeir, Concours class leader for Simplex. "They were about as close as you could get to a racecar with fenders and a back seat."

Community Hospital put the almost $30,000 it received last year to good use, too. Mary Castagna, president of CHOMP's Auxiliary, said the hospital used the money to help operate the Carol Hatton Breast Care Center, the hospital's stroke care program and its diabetes initiative. She notes that CHOMP's relationship with the Concours d'Elegance dates to the 1950s and that past events helped pay for the hospital's Bloodmobile.

Animal Friends Rescue Project deals with medical and social issues of the four-legged sort. Executive director Kelly Lehrian said that the $24,050 raised in 2012 was used for "basic animal care — veterinary care, medicine, surgery — getting animals ready for their new homes." AFRP works with a lot of hard-to-place pets that are older, ailing or have behavioral problems. In addition to providing veterinary care, AFRP also gets the animals into foster care until

One of AFRP's recent rescues is Angel, a Yorkie-shihtzu mix that Lehrian estimates is just about a year old. She came to AFRP with a broken leg, most likely after being hit by a car. After surgery to reconstruct the leg and help it mend properly, Angel went to a foster home where she is recuperating nicely.

More than 30 additional nonprofits receive help from the Concours through the United Way of Monterey County. According to United Way executive director Mary Ford, not only do the United Way's partners benefit, but the organization's own community service efforts such as 2-1-1 reap rewards as well. 2-1-1 is an informational phone service established in 2009 that provides free referrals to callers who need community services. Ford gives a hypothetical example: An elderly mother moves in with her son and his family — the son can call 2-1-1 and receive assistance in locating activities for seniors, medical care and other resources. The United Way also offers a tax preparation service called "Earn It! Keep It! Save It!" for lowerincome families.

All of the nonprofits contacted for this story expressed warm gratitude for the generosity of the Concours d'Elegance, and the Pebble Beach Co., which stages it. It's nice to know that beneath the glamorous exterior of this annual event there's a heart that beats for the community.

Selected for their historical significance, authenticity and period-correctness, the 533 entrants this year are divided into 16 classes, based on type of car, displacement and era of origin.

The 28th Concorso Italiano will characteristically celebrate "everything great from Italy, including cars, fashion, food and wine in an elegant setting on the greens at the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch." Among the planned celebrations this year are recognition of 50 years of Lamborghini, the largest ever gathering of Apollos — including the Thorndyke Special Apollo 5000 GT V8 — and a display of fine Italian bicycles.

In addition to the spectacular cars and exhibitions, local wine and continental cuisine will be on offer, as will Concorso's traditional midday fashion show, which is always a huge hit.

"Take everything ever made in Italy, from fashion to Ferraris, sprinkle it with some red wine, slather it in sunshine, and top it with elegance and fun, and you have Concorso Italiano," organizers say. Admission is $150.

The 63rd annual Concours d'Elegance — which began as a small collection of cars exhibited in conjunction with the Pebble Beach Road Races is considered the premier collector-car show in one of the most scenic places on the planet. Contestants are invited to participate and must pass stringent evaluations in order to land spots on the grass, ensuring every vehicle at the Concours is rare and special, if not unique. Stunning coastline, Champagne and cigars, parties, fine food, celebrities and period costumes complement the cars. Judges examine specimens polished to perfection and lovingly restored or meticulously maintained in a contest of historical accuracy, technical merit and style. Featured categories this year include four full classes of Lincolns with custom coachwork; unique cars like the 1950 Lincoln Presidential Limousine Dietrich Convertible that served as the presidential car to Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy; and an array of Ford family cars, as well as Simplex, Vanvooren Coachwork, Aston Martin, Lamborghini, Porsche 911, BMW 507 and French Motorcycles. This year's Concours will benefit the United Way of Monterey County, the Pebble Beach Company Foundation and Boys & Girls Clubs of Monterey County and other charities. The $225 advanced ticket ($275 the day of the show) includes a program, parking and a shuttle ride to the main gate. Kids under 12 are free with a paying adult. ■ Automotive Fine Arts Society exhibit 18th Fairway of the Pebble Beach Golf Links during the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance

Sunday, Aug. 18, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

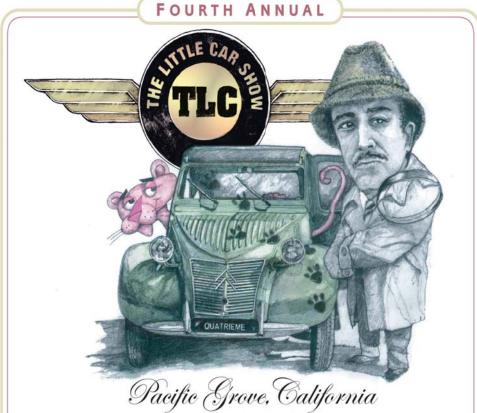

Held alongside the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance each year, the Automotive Fine Arts Society show features highly sought pieces by world-famous artists in many different mediums. According to Concours organizers, "The automobile changed the whole of our culture almost immediately upon its introduction; it was more than transportation, it served as a status symbol, it was a matter of style. But it took some time for the art world to view the automobile as an appropriate subject of fine art."

Established in 1983 by six artists dedicated to elevating the understanding and acknowledgment of automotive art, the AFAS seeks to exhibit members' works, promote and publicize them, raise the standards of automotive art to a level of acceptance as serious fine art from the point of view of collectors and critics, and provide "a practical means to form enduring friendships, exchange ideas and build fellowship among automotive fine artists and enthusiasts."

The 27th annual display will include pieces by some of the society's 32 sculptors and painters, in watercolor, acrylic, oil, wood and various metals. The Lincoln division of Ford Motor Co. will sponsor the Pebble Beach AFAS exhibit, as it has done since 1996. Admission to the show is free to Concours ticket holders. www.autoartgallery.com/afas
