C.V. swimmer, 10, makes dash from Alcatraz to S.F.

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE YOUNGEST in a field of about 350 competitors, 10-year-old Kai Garren of Carmel Valley, swam 1.5 miles in chilly waters from Alcatraz Island to San Francisco Sept. 28 to complete the 11th annual Alcatraz Classic.

Joining Garren on his swim was 11-year-old Sam Albano of Monterey. They were accompanied by an adult, Greg Knowles. A Carmel resident and member of a local swim club, the Kelp Krawlers, Knowles helped train the youngsters in Monterey Bay.

Officially, only swimmers over 14 are allowed to participate in the race. But event officials made an exception for Garren and Albano as long as Knowles joined them.

Once the site of a famously difficult-to-escape prison that housed Al Capone and many other notorious criminals, Alcatraz Island was designated a National Recreation Area in 1972. Since then, it's become a popular starting point for open water swimmers.

Wearing wetsuits, the three swimmers took a ferry from San Francisco and waited just offshore of Alcatraz for the race to begin. According to Kai's father, Ron Gerren, the conditions were ideal. "It was a beautiful day

Neighbors express more anger over P.B. affordable housing

By KELLY NIX

RESIDENTS OF Pacific Grove and Del Monte Forest continued to express their dismay over an affordable housing complex proposed by the Pebble Beach Company at a public hearing Thursday afternoon.

At a Pebble Beach Land Use Advisory Committee that spilled outside because so many people showed up, residents mostly spoke against the project, which Monterey County required the company to build as part of its long-sought final development plan.

The $7 million housing project at the intersection of Congress Road and S.F.B. Morse Drive would include 24 two- and three-bedroom rental units intended for P.B. Company employees. The county urged the company to build the inclusionary units inside the forest and said it would require the company to pay a $5 million fee if it couldn't find a suitable site.

But residents whose homes adjoin the site the company chose for the project aren't pleased, contending the four apartment buildings will cause an array of problems, ranging from noise and environmental damage, to invasions of privacy. Thursday's meeting was a continuation of one held Sept. 5.

Pacific Grove resident James McClure told the LUAC he figures his house is the closest to the development and that the apartments will generally be a nuisance.

"Right now," McClure said, "I have the smell of pines in the morning and [it's] quiet. I'm going to have cars parked at my back fence, it's going to smell like a meth lab and be as noisy as a drag strip."

While McClure also contended the P.B. Co. wouldn't be able to "cherry pick" who lives there, resulting in some undesirable residents, Monterey County housing programs coor-

SOLEDAD THUG CONVICTED OF BRUTAL P.G. MURDER

By MARY SCHLEY

A JURY on Wednesday convicted 34-year-old Jacobo Ruelas — arrested seven years ago after a palm print identified him as the man who stabbed Monterey High School student Kris Olinger to death along the Pacific Grove shoreline in 1997 — of first-degree murder with special circumstances, as well as kidnapping for carjacking and kidnapping for robbery. He is set to be sentenced Oct. 30, and will probably get life in prison without the possibility of parole.

His younger brother, Angel Ruelas, pleaded guilty to the same charges in April and was sentenced to life in prison without parole in July.

Olinger was on a class assignment one night in September 1997, photographing the Point Pinos Lighthouse on Sunset Drive, when the Ruelas brothers attacked him, stabbing him 29 times before stealing his car. The 17-year-old was still alive when they then threw him over a cliff, and he managed to crawl back up, only to die in a dirt turnout.

The two brothers and two accomplices set out that night with the intention of robbing someone and beating him up, Monterey County deputy district attorney Jeannine Pacioni told The Pine Cone Thursday.

"The four of them had talked about robbing somebody and beating somebody up," she said. "Angel and Jacobo ratcheted it up to murder when they went to attack Kris."

The crime shocked the quiet community of Pacific Grove, where murders, and especially gang murders, are rare.

Burnett, Panetta say donations for veterans cemetery are needed now

U.S. taxpayers kicking in $6.7 million

By KELLY NIX

AS THE deadline looms to raise more than $600,000 in local contributions for the Central Coast Veterans Cemetery at Fort Ord, Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett and Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Jimmy Panetta are making a strong push for the effort.

The proposed cemetery project got a big boost Tuesday when the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs granted $6.7 million for the first construction phase of the project. But the state won't accept the federal funds unless the remainder of the project's costs — which Burnett and Panetta said is $617,000 — is collected via local donations by Oct. 15.

Redwoods suffer bigger wildfire losses due to Sudden Oak Death

By CHRIS COUNTS

CALIFORNIA'S MAJESTIC coast redwoods are known for their ability to survive wildfires because of their tough bark and their height. But the trees took a beating in the 2008 Basin Complex Fire — in large part because of the presence of a disease, Sudden Oak Death, which has ravaged the tanbark oak population along the coast.

"Coast redwoods are nearly four times more likely to die during forest fires in Sudden Oak Death-infested forests than in non-infested forests," reported UC Davis researcher Kerri Frangioso, who lives in Big Sur.

While redwoods aren't directly killed by the disease like tanbark oaks — and to a lesser degree, live oaks — they can be killed when a wildfire burns too hot. And that's what happened during the Basin Complex Fire, which scorched more than 160,000 acres.

It's amazing what you can learn when authors are tossing out ideas

By JERRY GERVAISE

THIS WAS the first year the distinguished speakers at the Pebble Beach Authors and Ideas Festival had serious competition for the attention of the attendees. At the festival last weekend, their competition didn't come from other speakers, it came from the venue itself. No one can deny the genius of the speakers, but Jim McGillen displayed a stroke of genius when he selected the campus of Stevenson School for this year's festival.

Listening to lectures outdoors under a bright blue sky was a throwback to those balmy fall days when professors took their students out on the campus lawn to take advantage of the weather. Casually taking the short walks to various buildings, guided by polite Stevenson students, easily carried one back to those university days. The festival's attendees — adults, and mostly seniors — only needed white bucks and Pendleton skirts to look like they were on their way to an English 101 class. It was fitting that the ideas of the authors were presented in an academic setting.

"Do you get a chance to play golf while you're out here?" I asked New York Times columnist, David Brooks.

Pampered Poodles

WHEN HE was a child, his first family dog was a German shepherd, and he absolutely loved that guy. But his sister did not, because she was allergic to fur. So their father went in search of something that wouldn't shed.

Had he first found a schnauzer, this would have become the family favorite. Instead, he purchased a poodle. By the time his son left home, the family had pampered a total of six toy poodles.

Following his family's poodle preference, he too, had raised six. For his next pair, he sought and found a breeder, just outside of Reno, who does not dock tails. "People don't even realize poodles naturally come with long tails," he says. "I have no plans to show my dogs, so why chop off a body part just to suit a standard?"

Born just six months ago, Hugo is a black miniature poodle, whose coat is already fading to a soft brown. His companion, Sydney, born 15 months prior, is also a miniature poodle, with an apricot coat quickly fading to cream. "Poodles come in a variety of colors," their person said, "but it's silly that people get obsessed with color since eventually they all fade. They would be better off looking at other traits, like personality."

Like most poodles, Sydney and Hugo, says their person, are emotionally very complicated. "They're not happy go lucky like Labradors," he says, "who seem content all the time. Poodles are very reactive to our moods, and they have their own little moods. The things they don't like, they really don't like. But they're also very sweet."

Sydney and Hugo go to the beach every morning, where they routinely chase a ball, before they become bored and resort to covorting with kelp or chasing each other.

Get in on the poodle mania during Carmel's Poodle Day Oct. 5, an annual event that pairs poodles and people in celebration of the curly-haired canine. Sydney and Hugo particularly enjoy the beach romp at the end of the day. Visit poodleday.com to learn about day-to-evening events throughout a town that caters to canines, on a day dedicated to pampering poodles. Proceeds benefit NorCal Poodle Rescue.

Big Sur clinic hosts open house Oct. 8

OFFERING A wide range of free services for the day, the Big Sur Health Center presents its annual fall celebration Tuesday, Oct. 8, from noon to 5 p.m.

Complimentary services include acupuncture, asthma screening, blood pressure checks, cholesterol and blood sugar testing, dental exams, flu shots, vision and hearing screenings, violence prevention counseling, yoga demonstrations and much more.

County representatives will be available to answer questions about statewide and federal changes to health insurance and how they will affect local residents.

Healthy snacks and refreshments will be served.

Mary Ann Vasconcellos, the president of the health center's board of directors, invited residents to visit the clinic.

"I encourage all Big Sur and Monterey Peninsula residents to take advantage of this unusual yearly opportunity," Vasconcellos said. "Take the day to focus on your personal health and the health of your family."

Founded in 1979, the health center is the only medical facility between the Monterey Peninsula and Cambria — a distance of about 100 miles. A vital resource in the Big Sur community, the facility offers its services to residents and visitors alike, regardless of their ability to pay.

The clinic is located on Highway 1 about 24 miles south of Carmel, and a short distance south of the Big Sur River Inn. Call (831) 667-2580.

Big Band that played Golden State theater says, 'We weren't paid'

By KELLY NIX

THE PRODUCERS of a Big Band-era orchestra that performed at Monterey's Golden State Theatre earlier this year are suing the venue's former management company for not paying them more than $30,000 in ticket sales they claim they're owed.

In a lawsuit filed Sept. 17, Seattle-based Artbeat contends that Golden State Theatre Partners LLC did not pay $33,622.81 for tickets sold for the two "In Your Mood" shows that featured a 13-piece orchestra at the theater.

Per the agreement, according to the lawsuit, Golden State Theatre Partners, run by Scott Grover, was to receive $1,000, fees for expenses and $1 for each ticket sold at the roughly 1,000-seat venue on Alvarado Street.

"The two shows were successful, even though Golden State's ticketing system crashed," according to the lawsuit, filed for Artbeat by Oakland-based attorney Andrew K. Jacobsen. "Golden State represented that 870 tickets were sold, totaling a revenue of $39,856."

Grover had managed the theater until early June when theater owner Warren Dewey evicted him. Dewey, who is not a target of the Artbeat lawsuit, told The Pine Cone he was not involved in the shows in question.

While the lawsuit says the former theater tenant was supposed to pay Artbeat within 10 business days, Artbeat said it never got the money.

Despite agreeing to pay, according to Artbeat, Golden State Theatre Partners "have failed and refused to pay any part of the outstanding invoice of $33,622.81."

The lawsuit was filed the same day Monterey Mayor Chuck Della Sala formed a subcommittee to look at the possibility of the city purchasing the 87-year-old theater, which is for sale for $4,990,000.

The "In the Mood" production features the String of Pearls Big Band Orchestra, which plays authentic arrangements of swing era favorites by Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Artie Shaw, the Andrew Sisters and others, according to the lawsuit.

And, the revue has a "team of young, athletic dancers who recreate waltzes, foxtrots and jitterbugs that represent what audiences added to the music in its heyday."

Kinship fundraiser in P.B.

A STUNNING home overlooking Stillwater Cove is the location of a fundraiser this month that will benefit children and their foster and adoptive families.

Kinship Center's annual fall fundraiser will take place Saturday, Oct. 19, at 6 p.m.

The event is "an opportunity for our community to support an organization close to many of our hearts," said Jeff Davi, event chair and longtime Kinship Center Board member. "Kinship Center is helping kids for whom there is no alternative. Those kids have suffered all sorts of trauma, and Kinship Center offers them a second chance."

Tickets are $150 and can be purchased online at www.kinshipcenter.org or by phone. For more information, ticket purchases or table sponsorships please call Bill Lutz at (831) 455-4723.

Woman airlifted after Carmel Valley crash

By MARY SCHLEY

A 26-YEAR-OLD woman was flown by helicopter to a trauma center last Wednesday night after crashing her Jeep into a fence on El Caminito in Carmel Valley Village. California Highway Patrol officers don't know why Kellys Panno ran off the road, according to public information officer Jaime Rios.

"When officers arrived, she was having a seizure, and she was incoherent," Rios said of Panno, who had been driving southbound on El Caminito at an estimated speed of 45 mph when "she allowed her vehicle to turn off the direct course of travel," shortly before 7 p.m. Sept. 25.

But the officer was unable to obtain an explanation for the crash, due to the driver's state.

"There were witnesses saying there were deer on the road prior to the crash, so maybe she swerved for an animal," Rios said.

Paradise Catering owners Nancy Rohan and Jon Kasky own the home where Panno crashed and said they found her in the car, contorted in seizure and unable to respond. The airbag in the 2007 Jeep Compass did not deploy.

An ambulance and fire engine arrived about nine minutes after the crash and removed the woman from the Jeep for transport to the former Carmel Valley airport, where she was picked up by a CALSTAR helicopter and flown to the Regional Medical Center of San Jose.

This week, Rios had no further information on Panno's

Woman who abused her own mother gets probation, suspended sentence

By MARY SCHLEY

PACIFIC GROVE resident Patricia Conklin, 47, was sentenced Friday to four years' probation — a violation of which would send her to prison for eight years — for abusing her mother.

Patricia Conklin

Convicted by a jury in August, Conklin abused her mother on at least two separate occasions, the first of which involved an argument in the home they shared. During that altercation, Conklin pushed her mother, who fell and was injured, and then dialed 911 and reported her mother had slipped.

"Her mother could be heard yelling that she had been thrown down," reported Monterey County deputy district attorney David Rabow. "She told the officers and paramedics that she was pushed as well."

The older woman, whose name Rabow did not want to release, suffered multiple fractures that required surgery, including metal implants in her bones, and the jury determined Conklin was guilty of personally inflicting great bodily injury on a person over 70 years old.

Conklin also endangered her mother in March, when she went to the skilled nursing facility where her mother was recovering from the surgery and demanded her release, accusing the staff of wanting her mother's money. She also threatened the workers, according to Rabow. She then took her mother home, even though her residence was not equipped for the older, infirm woman.

"What made all of this even more egregious was that Conklin knew that earlier that week, a court had appointed a conservator for her mother, and she had no authority to remove her mother from the nursing facility," he said.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Pamela Butler presided over the trial and announced the sentence Sept. 27 after Conklin delivered a lengthy statement "in which she failed to take responsibility for her actions," he said.

"The judge asked her, 'Do you think you did anything wrong?' And Ms. Conklin kept trying to dodge the question," Rabow told The Pine Cone. "She ultimately said, 'Maybe there's something I could have done differently.'"

Although Rabow initially agreed with the probation and suspended sentence, in part because he wasn't sure it would help the victim to see her only daughter go to prison, Conklin's testimony caused him to change his mind in court and request she be put in prison.

"I don't think I've ever in my whole career done this," he said, referring to changing his mind about the sentence after reading the probation report and hearing the suspect speak in court. "I felt that she so lacked insight into her own behavior that I felt like she is still a danger to her mother, so I asked for prison time."

But Butler "obviously disagreed and chose to give her a chance to comply with the probation terms," including paying fees and fines, being subject to searches, obeying all laws, not being in contact with her mother without approved supervision, not working in a caregiving capacity or in any position that would be conducive to elder abuse, not holding a position of trust for elders such as power of attorney, not possessing firearms, not drinking or using illegal drugs, taking required psychotropic drugs, not possessing any of her mother's financial documents, not committing identity fraud, maintaining employment and completing 40 hours of community service. She must also stay away from the skilled nursing facility where she had caused a disturbance while removing her mother.

Pasadera golf club gets new name: Nicklaus Club — Monterey

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

PASADERA COUNTRY Club, the golf and social club within the housing development off of Highway 68, has been rebranded as the Nicklaus Club — Monterey. And not just because the golf legend designed the course: His company, Nicklaus Design, is taking over management of the club.

"The new branding reflects the ongoing involvement of the most iconic champion in the history of the game, and one of the most respected brands in golf," the club's director of sales, Robin Shelton, said.

"Jack Nicklaus has always been proud of his design work at Pasadera," Shelton added, "and now he strengthens his connection to the club by bringing in his company's management services and years of experience."

Jack Nicklaus will be at the club for a relaunch party — open to club members and invited guests — on Friday, Oct. 11, at 6 p.m.

Homeless for 424 days!

Rhyo is a GREAT dog. He has been looking for a home for 424 days! He is a playful, 10-year-old, 15-pound Corgi Mix with a big smile. He is crate trained, enjoys walking politely on a leash, and gets along very well with other dogs.

He is calm much of the time, but he has spurts of energy throughout the day in which he loves to play ball.

If you want more fun in your life, Rhyo may be the dog for you!

Council to hear three appeals, consider adding stop signs

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CARMEL City Council will hold a workshop Monday seeking community members' input on public rights of way and encroachment, and will then tackle several appeals and a request for more stop signs during its regular monthly meeting Tuesday.

Set to begin at 5:30 p.m. Oct. 7, the workshop will focus on illegal encroachments into the right of way, such as gravel or paving on roadway shoulders, as well as the installation of landscaping, boulders, steps, walls and fences on public land adjacent to private property.

City business set for the Oct. 8 meeting that starts at 4:30 p.m. includes receiving reports on fire and ambulance responses, code compliance, media calls and Public Records Act requests, and an update on the weekly farmers market held Thursdays at Sunset Center.

Public hearings will focus on a presentation of the survey submitted to residents by Waste Management, the city's garbage hauler, followed by three appeals filed by applicants who oppose the planning commission's decisions regarding their projects.

Vesuvio Restaurant owner Rich Pepe is objecting to the denial of a rooftop trellis he wants on top of his building at Junipero and Sixth; David Goldenson is hoping the council will give him permission to use composition shingles when he re-roofs his home on Dolores south of 10th Avenue; and 10th Avenue property owners Steve and Peter Boutin want council members to overturn the planning commission's approval of a substantial remodel next door on the northeast corner of San Antonio and 10th.

After the appeals, the council will move on to consider whether to install more stop signs at the intersection of Dolores and Ninth near All Saints' Church, so that traffic heading northbound and southbound is forced to stop, as drivers heading eastbound and westbound already are.

Finally, members will ratify appointments and reappointments to the city's boards and commissions, and will vote on an ordinance to adopt the state's building, residential, energy, fire, mechanical, plumbing, electrical and green codes, with amendments

For the full agenda and other details, visit ci.carmel.ca.us. City hall is located on Monte Verde south of Ocean.

Displaced by flooding, house sitter seeks a helping hand

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

AFTER FLOODING destroyed most of her belongings, a Colorado woman who was visiting in the Carmel area when disaster struck her home state has decided there's no point in moving back.

A professional housesitter, Susan Woodcock put most of her belongings into a storage unit before driving to California for a vacation. But while she was away, heavy rains devastated the Boulder area where she was living and soaked the storage facility.

Accompanied by her dog, a 9 pound Chihuahua-Jack Russell mix named Jake, Woodcock is now living in her car at the Saddle Mountain Ranch campground in Carmel Valley.

The woman told The Pine Cone she and her dog would prefer to stay on the Monterey Peninsula instead of moving back to Colorado. "I feel like I belong here," she explained.

But Woodcock said she can't afford to stay at the campground indefinitely. "They charge $35 a night, which comes to $1,000 a month," said the woman, who is a painter, a writer and a fine art photographer.

Woodcock is looking for housesitting jobs in the Carmel area. "I have great references, I'm self-reliant, and I can pay some money" she said.

While Woodcock conceded she's in a tight spot, she's optimistic things will work out. "I'm nervous and I'm scared, but I'm trying to stay positive," she added. "I'm in one of the prettiest places in the world. I'm not asking for a handout. I'm asking for a 'hand-up.' I am not a homeless person — I'm just in a homeless situation."

Woodcock can be reached at (303) 253-4218.

Bollywood parties to help fund neonatal health care in India

By MARY SCHLEY

CULTURAL COMMISSIONER Kristy Downing has taken on the health and welfare of mothers, babies — and tigers — by presenting two Bollywood films during fundraisers to help support a Carmel Valley Rotary Club grant to outfit a brand new women's birthing unit and neonatal intensive care unit in a hospital in rural India. The equipment will help save the lives of mothers and infants, according to Downing, which, in turn, benefits the Bengal tigers whose habitat is immediately surrounded by a population of 1.3 million.

A Carmel Residents Association member who has been active on the city's community activities and cultural commission, and who has also worked to help transform the former bank building at Dolores and Seventh into an event center, Downing came up with the idea for an International Rotary Project Grant after traveling to India in February. In Rajasthan, she visited the Ranthambhore

Eleven days later, on Sept. 30, officers found Olinger's vehicle in San Jose, but they had no leads or suspects in the case, and it went cold. Several years later, California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger offered a $50,000 reward in the case, but it wasn't a tip that led to the break. Instead, in 2005, investigators received information through the California Department of Justice Automated Palm Print System that prints recovered from the car matched those of the Ruelas brothers.

Pacioni said Angel Ruelas had ditched Olinger's car in San Jose after he drove it up there with his girlfriend and younger brother, Abraham, for an oldies concert the day after he stabbed Olinger to death.

"They went to the concert and left the car abandoned up in Willow Glen, and then rode down with his girlfriend's sister the following day," she said.

When authorities identified the Ruelas brothers as suspects, Angel Ruelas was already in custody in Tulare County — serving a 15-year sentence in Corcoran Prison for an armed robbery and carjacking he committed in 1998 — and was brought to Monterey County to face the new charges. Police had a harder time tracking down Jacobo Ruelas, who avoided arrest for the first few days after he was identified but was eventually tracked to his family's property in rural Bradley, where members of the Monterey County Sheriff's Office SWAT team, county park rangers, a California Highway Patrol helicopter, CHP officers and P.G. police collaborated to take Ruelas into custody the night of May 13, 2006. He has been in jail ever since.

Detectives also found eye witnesses to the murder, according to Pacioni, and in August 2006, the Grand Jury of Monterey County indicted the Ruelas brothers on charges of special circumstance murder, carjacking and kidnapping.

Pacioni worked as the prosecutor in both cases for the past two years, and Angel Ruelas, 33, pleaded guilty to special circumstances murder, kidnapping and carjacking with gang and weapon enhancements on April 24, at the start of his jury trial. He was sentenced in July by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Mark Hood to life without possibility of parole.

Jacobo Ruelas, 34, insisted his case go to trial, and jury selection began Sept. 9, with opening arguments held a week later. The jury deliberated for two days before reaching its verdict Wednesday.

Stepbrother continues the fight

The convictions of the Ruelas brothers came too late for Olinger's grieving mother, Shell Phillips, and father, Loren Phillips. Shell Phillips tirelessly sought her son's killers but died of cancer in 2003 at the age of 48. Loren Phillips continued to work with police — as well as advocate for victims of violent crime and the parents of murdered children — but died in August 2008.

Monterey County D.A. Dean Flippo commended the family for remaining steadfast during the long wait for the murderers to be found, and thanked Shell and Loren's son, Travis, who "has been committed to seeing that justice was done and was an inspiration to the prosecution team by his unwavering support in our efforts to bring the defendants to trial."

He also praised Pacioni for her work and "determination to keep the trials on track to end the many delays that had occurred since 2006."

Ruelas initially won the right to represent himself but then requested an attorney, and when he later sought permission to represent himself again, Hood wouldn't let him. Defense attorney Andrew Liu was appointed to represent the killer at taxpayers' expense.

"We're pleased the defendant is going to be held accountable for his crimes," Pacioni said, adding that all three of the Ruelas brothers are in jail or prison. Abraham, the youngest, is serving time for narcotics-related offenses.

and there was not much chop on the water," he told The Pine Cone.

Once the race was under way, the two youngsters' enthusiasm was evident. "They streaked out ahead of everybody," Gerren recalled.

The swimmers wore timing chips on their ankles. Together, they reached the shore in 44 minutes.

A student at All Saints' Episcopal Day School, Kai has been swimming since he was 4. His father encouraged him to swim at an early age, not because of his own affinity for the sport, but because the local obstetrician who delivered Kai, Dr. Brad Keith, recommended it.

"He said we should get all our kids swimming," Gerren said. "They'll hang out with kids who are healthy, they'll learn discipline and they'll do better academically. Plus, they won't have time to hang out at the mall."

Kai has embraced swimming. He swims with the Monterey Bay Swim Club, and he can be found in the pool at Monterey Peninsula College five days a week. Sam, who attends San Carlos School in Monterey, also swims five days a week.

The proceeds from the Alcatraz Classic benefit the National Breast Cancer Foundation; a nonprofit pollution watchdog group, San Francisco Baykeeper; and the Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy.

Carmel reads The Pine Cone

Dogs and cats to benefit from two fundraisers

By KELLY NIX

TWO EVENTS this month will benefit several important animal welfare organizations that work tirelessly to find loving homes for scores of dogs and cats every year.

Sunday, Oct. 6, the 5th Annual Party for the Paws will be held at Embassy Suites in Seaside to raise money for the Animal Friends Rescue Project, Peace of Mind Dog Rescue, and the City of Salinas and Monterey County animal shelters. "The event will raise funds for very worthy animal organizations that struggle to keep up with the demand of providing home for dogs and cats," said Karen Sonne, founder of the annual event.

Chefs with the Rio Grill, Taste of Elegance Catering, La Crème Monterey, Coastal Luxury Management, Mrs.

Delish's Cupcakes, Esteban and others will be creating food for the event, which also features live music. The $40 admission price includes food, wine — provided by Bernardus, Scheid and Ventana — and entertainment.

"And dogs will be on hand to adopt," Sonne said.

There will also be raffle items and a large number of silent auction items from retailers, services, theaters, restaurants, artists, galleries and other businesses, including an ocean-view, balcony room from the Monterey Plaza Hotel, artwork, and jewelry from Ramanoos Fine Art & Jewelry in Carmel.

Tickets for the event, from 4 to 6:30 p.m., can be purchased at www.partyforthepaws.com or at Embassy Suites, 1441 Canyon Del Rey Blvd., the night of the fundraiser. Separate contributions can also be made at the partyforthepaws website.

■ Unique doghouses

On Sunday, Oct. 13, the 4th Annual Dance for the Rescues from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. will be held at Custom House Plaza in Monterey to raise money for AFRP, Peace of Mind Dog Rescue and other groups. The event is free. Peace of Mind executive director Carie Broecker said Dance for the Rescues is the biggest fundraiser of the year for the organization and is "a unique event in that it combines the zumba, dance and health community with the animal rescue community."

One of the event's organizers, Bob Lucius, said this year the four military service detachments at the Defense Language Institute's Foreign Language Centers will compete to build upscale doghouses, which will be offered to the highest bidder. The personnel with the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines who are building the houses have until the morning of the event to finish them. A Best in Show winner will be selected before they're offered via a silent auction.

The property heretofore described is being sold "as is". The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 1203 LINCOLN AVE, PACIFIC GROVE, CA 93950. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $508,110.29 (Estimated), provided, however, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said sale may include all or part of said amount. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the California Financial Code and authorized to do business in California, or other such funds as may be acceptable to the Trustee. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. PUBLIC NOTICE

The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea will conduct a public workshop on October 7, 2013, in City Hall located on the east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean and 7th Avenues. The Public Workshop begins at 5:30 p.m. or as soon thereafter as the agenda permits. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the issue of Right-of-Way (ROW) encroachments such as placement of gravel or additional paving on the road shoulder, and installation of landscaping, boulders, steps, walls, and fences in the public ROW. Another objective of the workshop is to gather input from the public and the City Council on ways that certain ROW encroachments could be addressed or restored. Persons interested in this topic are encouraged to attend the meeting to allow the City Council to hear from you and consider your input. The City anticipates that this topic would be of interest to Carmel's residents as well as professionals that are involved in residential properties such as real estate agents, contractors, and landscaping professionals.

Topic: Discussion of a proposal by the City of Carmel to improve efforts to address unpermitted encroachments in the public ROW. City staff will discuss the various types of encroachment that exist, the extent of the issue, and current options the City has to address encroachments. The Council will also discuss whether a more proactive approach tied to the City's roadway overlay program should be initiated.

Affected Properties: All residential properties within the City of Carmel. The City is considering a new proactive effort to address ROW encroachments on a street segment by street segment approach tied to the City's roadway overlay program. As each street segment is repaved, ROW encroachments would be assessed and addressed. Certain encroachments that were installed by the adjacent property owner, including additional paving and gravel for street parking, boulders, non-compliant landscaping, walls, and the like may be removed, and the area restored. This approach would be considered for ten residential road segments that are a part of the City's roadway repaving program for Fiscal Year 2013-2014 (see the included map on reverse side of this notice). Other street segments would be assessed in subsequent years of the repaving program.

The project proposal materials are available for review at the Department of Community Planning and Building at City Hall. For more information, please see the City's website (<http://ci.carmel.ca.us>), or contact Community Planning and Building Director Rob Mullane at (831) 620-2010, or via email at: rmullane@ci.carmel.ca.us.

Festival celebrates the art of independent film

By CHRIS COUNTS

BRINGING THE world of cinema to town — and screening more than 100 films — the Carmel Art and Film Festival returns for its sixth year, Thursday through Sunday, Oct. 10-13.

An eclectic lineup of feature-length and short independent films will be presented at four sites — Sunset Center, the Cherry Center for the Arts, the Carmel Youth Center and Lighthouse Cinemas in Pacific Grove.

The screenings begin Thursday at 10 a.m. when “16 Acres,” a documentary examining the engineering and political challenges of rebuilding the World Trade Center in New York City, will be shown at the Cherry Center. At the same time, a collection of eight short films will be offered at the Carmel Youth Center.

A film offering an intimate look at the Hammond B3 organ, “Killer B3,” will be presented at Sunset Center’s Adobe Theater at 1 p.m. Across town at the Cherry Center at 1 p.m., “The Desert House” pays tribute to a distinguished architect and mid-century homes.

“50 Year Old Freshman,” which will be presented at the Cherry Center at 4 p.m., profiles an unlikely and inspirational college athlete. At Sunset Center’s Adobe Theater at 4 p.m., “A Barefoot Artist” looks at the power of creativity.

The Audience Award Winner at the 2013 Toronto International Film Festival, “The Square” screens in the Sunset Center’s Main Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The documentary, which filmmaker Jehane Noujaim and her crew risked their lives to make, offers a candid look at the Egyptian revolution.

Also at 7:30 p.m., “Like Father, Like Son” will be shown at Lighthouse Cinemas. The film, which won the Jury Prize at this year’s Cannes Film Festival, tells the story of a family who receives the wrong baby from the hospital.

The Carmel Youth Center will continue to screen short films throughout the day and early evening.

A busy schedule of films continues through Sunday. A wide variety of ticket packages are offered, and based on availability, individual tickets will be sold for $10 at the door. Visit www.carmelartandfilm.com for showtimes and locations.

In addition to its lineup of films, the festival features receptions, parties, dinners, panel discussions, workshops and musical performances. The schedule of events kicks off Wednesday, Oct. 9, with an awards dinner at Bernardus Lodge. For more information about ticket packages and the schedule, call (831) 625-3700 or visit information booths set up at Sunset Center and Devendorf Park during the festival.

Poodles to take over town Saturday

By MARY SCHLEY

THE FOURTH Annual Poodle Day will see a pack of the curly-haired pooches descend on Carmel Oct. 5 for a day of dog-oriented events for the distinctive canines and their fans. Regularly ranking as one of Dog Fancy’s Top 10 Most Dog-Friendly Cities in America, the town is the perfect destination for Poodle Day, according to organizer Sue Rose.

Poodle Day kicks off with a parade for dogs and people that’s followed by talks and services intended to be informative and interesting, including free, non-invasive heart screenings by veterinary cardiologists Dr. Sonya Gordon and Dr. Lori Drourr, from Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences’ Small Animal Hospital. Dr. Julie Miller from Pet’s Friend Animal Clinic will offer a presentation on general poodle health, and Dr. Andy Staatz of Sage Centers for Veterinary Specialty and Emergency Care will discuss bloat and knee disorders.

On the fun side, poodles will get together for “organized play” at Carmel Beach, and five well attended cocktail parties will have the dogs lounging in style alongside their

COMPOSER'S FESTIVAL OFFERS CONCERTS AND FREE FILMS AT SUNSET CENTER

By CHRIS COUNTS

OFFERING AN eclectic lineup of music and film events, the Days and Night Festival returns to Carmel and Big Sur Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 4-6.

The festival was launched three years ago by three-time Academy Award-nominated composer Philip Glass, who is seeking permission to create a retreat center and think tank at the Brazil Ranch in Big Sur.

A string quintet featuring Maria Bachmann and Jesse Mills on violin, David Harding on viola, Matt Haimovitz on cello and Jon Klibonoff on piano performs Friday at 8 p.m. at Sunset Center. In addition to playing the music of Glass, the five musicians will perform compositions by Franz Schubert, Robert Schumann, Nico Muhly and Bryce Dessner. "They are very successful solo artists with busy careers who only come together here just for the festival," explained Jim Woodward, the festival's managing director.

The music starts at 8 p.m. and tickets range from $50 to $70. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth.

Friday's concert will be preceded by the screening of three free films. "Rebels with a Cause," a documentary about the effort to prohibit development along the coastlines of Marin and Sonoma counties, starts at 1 p.m. A pair of short films, "Ahco on the Road" and "Silencio," begin at 3 p.m. Both were created by Monterey filmmakers.

Accompanied by the string quartet, singer Tara Hugo takes the stage Saturday at Sunset Center. As she did on a CD she released last year, Hugo will perform music written by Glass. "Phil first worked with Tara six years ago and fell in love with her voice," Woodward explained. "They've been friends ever since."

Shakespeare Festival continues with 'A Midsummer Night's Dream'

OBERON AND Puck time travel to London in the swingin' '60s in a mod version of William Shakespeare's romantic comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which opens Friday, Oct. 4, at the Forest Theater.

Stephen Massott plays Oberon, the fairy king, while Avery Yeatman portrays Puck, the high-flying fairy, in the PacRep Theatre production, which is directed by Stephen Moorer. The cast also includes Jennifer LeBlanc, Gary Martinez, Christopher Sullinger, Scott McQuiston, Katie Kreuger and Rebecca Pengree.

The soundtrack features music by the Beatles and Sonny and Cher. The play is the second installment in PacRep's 24th annual Carmel Shakespeare Festival.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" continues Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Oct. 27. Performances begin at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 to $35. The theater is located at Santa Rita and Mountain View. Call (831) 622-0100.

Monterey ~ Prof. Paul R. Milch, who taught at the Naval Postgraduate School for a long time, died of Parkinson's Disease on September 12. Private services were held.

Ilona, his wife of fifty-two years, and his family suggest that donations be sent to the Michael J. Fox Foundation for Parkinson's Research, Grand Central Station, PO Box 4771, New York, New York, 10163.

Arrangements directed by The Paul Mortuary.

The concert begins at 8 p.m.

Before Saturday's concert, 18 short films by students, many of them local, will be shown. Topics range from making lightbulbs from plastic bottles in Bangladesh, to Chemistry Club students in Watsonville making hip-hop music. The event starts at 1 p.m. and is free.

Also showing Saturday is a film, "William and the Windmill," which tells the story of a 14-year-old African boy who successfully builds a power-generating windmill from junk parts. The documentary begins at 3 p.m. and is free.

The festival closes Sunday with a sold-out performance by Glass at the Henry Miller Library in Big Sur.

For a complete schedule and ticket information, visit www.daysandnightsfestival.com.

Glass Center still in the works

When Glass kicked off the Days and Night Festival three years ago, he announced plans to create what he called, the Philip Glass Center for the Arts, Science and the Environment. The facility would be located at the Brazil Ranch, the former home of late "Candid Camera" creator Allen Funt. The property is now owned by the United States Forest Service.

Woodward told The Pine Cone this week that Glass still hopes to one day open the center, but the project is progressing slowly. "We're still patiently working with the forest service," he said.

If all goes according to plan, the center will mostly use existing structures on the former ranch and about 35 of its 1,600 acres. Its layout would be based loosely on the model of Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley. Woodward wouldn't say how much the rent will be, but he said they're hoping to sign a lease of 40 or 50 years. "Phil wants to create something that will outlive us," he explained.

Forest service officials couldn't be reached this week for an update on the project. "We are on a furlough due to a lapse in government funding," announced a recorded voice on the message machine at the King City forest service office.

Young musician raising money online for first album

By LISA CRAWFORD WATSON

THE WAY Bennett Jackson tells it, their musical relationship developed on a lark. The guitarist/songwriter, 25, was looking for a drummer for his summer concerts — someone with a jazz background. His father, jazz flautist and artistic director for the Monterey Jazz Festival, Tim Jackson, recommended Dylan Aiello, who happened to be home for the summer.

Four years ago, the honor student graduated from Carmel High with accolades in art, academics and music, and headed to Berklee College of Music in Boston to turn his passion into a career. After that first summer concert series, whenever he came back from Berklee, Aiello performed with Jackson, often playing duo shows, mixing his songs with Jackson's music.

"The more we played," says Jackson, "the better I understood the breadth of Dylan's music. He is so multi-talented. I learned he is a songwriter and a talented guitar player, and he's great on background vocals because his harmony is so tight. The last big project we did together, I flew Dylan out to Texas for my tour. He went on the road with me for three weeks, playing four hours a night in all these honky-tonks. It was then that Dylan started talking about putting out a new record."

What Aiello learned during his time at Berklee, both in the classroom and from his immersion in the culture of the college, was that his horizons are broader than he had imagined. And his biggest take-away from his experience was his passion for and commitment to songwriting. The results are coming together in "Twinfold," the soulful two-part album he wrote from his heart and engaged Jackson to help him produce.

When Aiello was first accepted to Berklee, he knew he had everything he needed to be successful at the prestigious school of music, except the money to pay for it. Undaunted, he fundraised his way to Boston, playing concerts and accepting the generosity of the people of the Monterey Peninsula. Now, his supporters will have the chance to hear the benefits of their investment and even get involved again.

"My expression is so diverse," says Aiello, 22. "It is tough for me to put my music into one genre, which is why I'm doing an album with two stories, two different styles of music. One part will be acoustic, with a little bit of Dylan Aiello is taking the stage name Dylan Stokes as he prepares to cut his first CD.

Americana, a tiny bit of bluegrass and maybe some Folk music. The other side will be more pop-rock oriented. It's ambitious, but after a year of writing and refining songs, it's the best I've written yet, and I want to share it all."

To get his album into production and out to his audience, Aiello has launched a Kickstarter campaign, an online funding platform designed to help raise money for creative projects. After setting a funding goal of $5,000, Aiello created a website presenting and explaining his project. People who like his music and want to support him can pledge money to help. But, according to Kickstarter rules, if he doesn't reach the goal he sets at the outset, the campaign is cancelled and the pledges aren't collected. In other words, he really needs help to make sure he meets his goal.

"I think Dylan is one who can pull this off," says Jackson. "He has such a clear vision of what he wants this project to sound like."

Aiello is also using this opportunity to unveil his new stage name, Dylan Stokes. With all due respect to his parents, the rhythm is right, the spelling is simpler, and it is both lyrical and percussive. Besides, he says, few people seem to be able to pronounce Aiello. But Stokes just may become a household name.

Anniversary tour brings Celtic rockers to town

By CHRIS COUNTS

THIRTY YEARS after launching The Waterboys, singer-songwriter Mike Scott and his band make their Monterey Peninsula debut Tuesday, Oct. 8, at Sunset Center. Over the past three decades, more than 70 musicians have performed with the Waterboys. But Scott, who founded the band, remains its leader and focal point. In the early 1980s, the Waterboys recorded sweeping rock anthems like “This is the Sea,” “Don’t Bang the Drum” and “The Whole of the Moon,” earning critical praise and modest commercial success in England. The Scottish band — which biggest stateside success in 1988 with the release of the recording, “Fisherman’s Blues.” The album put a dent in the Billboard Charts and drew considerable acclaim from music writers. A quarter century later, Scott continues to seek out common ground between rock ’n’ roll and Celtic music. On the band’s most recent recording, “An Appointment with Mr. Yeats,” the Waterboys set to music the words of the great Irish poet W.B. Yeats. “I saw the way his songs sat on the page and I said, ‘They look like lyrics,’” Scott added. “I wondered for a long time what they would sound like if we put them to music.”

later relocated to Ireland — drew comparisons to a pair of the Emerald Isle’s greatest musical exports, Van Morrison and U2. Like Morrison, the Waterboys initially embraced American music, only to later discover the treasure trove of Celtic music that existed back home. “I was raised on rock ’n’ roll,” Scott told The Pine Cone. “I thought [Celtic music] was square.” But one of his most trusted sidemen, fiddler Steve Wickham, started playing Celtic music at rehearsals, and soon Scott was hooked. “I began to be intrigued and explored the music deeper,” he explained. Today he calls the genre, “the shining jewel-encrusted music of the ages that speaks directly to people’s hearts and feet.” Infused with a “new” traditional sound, the band has its

TURN 12 OPENS, MARKETPLACE CELEBRATES, AND TEQUILA GETS LAUDED

TURN 12 Bar and Grill waved the green flag this week, quietly opening to show off its long bar imprinted with tire tracks, well stocked shelves of libation, modern and sporty interior — and a staff that includes Eli Severson as general manager and Miguel Cuevas as chef. Severson has been on the local restaurant scene, including as bartender simple food, you'll be pleased with the menu (think Caesar salad, braised short ribs with mashed potatoes, and grilled herb-marinated salmon with mushroom risotto), but the restaurant also offers a few interesting twists, such as the Corkscrew burger which comes adorned with onion compote, bleu and Swiss cheeses, arugula and lemon aioli. Brunch includes egg-and-bacon pizzas, a fried egg sandwich, polenta and chorizo, and omelets, scrambles and morning cocktails.

Turn 12 is located at Tyler and Franklin in downtown Monterey.

at the Rio Grill, for a while, and Cuevas is the brother of Mauro, head chef at Baja Cantina. Pat and Gina Phinny, who own Baja Cantina, also own Turn 12, named as a nod to the 11-turn Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca (similar to those golf-course towns with pubs called The 19th Hole).

The expansive restaurant — which replaces the former Luxe Lounge, Habañero's and a small pizzeria following an extensive remodel that took several months — offers brunch, lunch and dinner, mostly American cuisine with a bit of flair, as well as a decent wine list and various cocktails.

The bar shows a lot of promise, offering tasty items like Tank 7 ale that aren't found at many establishments. The Moscow Mule, made with Russian Standard Vodka, ginger beer and lime, comes in a classic copper cup. (No, you don't get to keep it.) Wines are predominantly from Monterey County, augmented by several value wines from the Southern Hemisphere, Spain, France and Italy. The most expensive is the 2009 Pio Cesare Barbaresco at $108.

Lunch includes starters, salads, four different burgers, five pizzas, pastas and entrees, while dinner offers more main dishes, but only one burger. If you're a fan of

Marketplace grand opening

Tanimura & Antle's Wharf Marketplace, touted as "Monterey County's first fresh food hall," offering produce, cheese, wine, flowers, seafood, meats, baked goods and a grab-and-go café, will hold a grand opening celebration Oct. 5-6, with tastings, wine, entertainment and a cook-off. The marketplace opened in August, and operators are hoping the grand opening will acquaint locals with its fresh and local offerings in a convenient location on the Monterey Bay Coastal Recreation Trail.

From 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. each day, the marketplace will provide free samples of fresh fruits and veggies, face painting and a photo booth from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., a corn roast from noon to 5 p.m., and wine tasting from various Monterey County wineries between 1 and 4 p.m. Random Stranger will perform live from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday, and on Sunday, Mike Marotta, Dave Dally and Friends will perform during the same hours.

The celebration will culminate in the inaugural Chefs Battle of the Wharf, when chef Jason Giles of the Portola Hotel and chef Marc Jones of Bill Lee's new restaurant

Sal Valley F&W

Organizers of the Salinas Valley Food & Wine Festival announced they have a few tickets left for the fest's kickoff wine dinner at the National Steinbeck Center Saturday, Oct. 5, at 6:30 p.m. Featuring local art, food, wine and entertainment, the Purple Crush Winemaker Dinner will star Mark Manzoni and chef Terry Teplitzky. Guests will stroll among the exhibits at the Steinbeck Center while grazing on hors d'oeuvres and listening to songwriter Dan Beck before taking in a meal of "incredible food displayed as art paired perfectly with Manzoni's best local vintages celebrating Steinbeck Country." Afterward, DJ Raven will spin for dancing.

The cost is $95 per person, and tickets can be found at www.salinasvalleyfoodandwine.com.

The Fest itself will be held Saturday, Oct. 19, from noon to 5 p.m., and is free, with hundreds of vendors, a classic car show, activities for kids, food tastings and four stages. Adult guests can purchase tickets for $35 in advance (also on the website) or $45 the day of for sampling from nearly 50 wineries and breweries.

Taking place on seven city blocks and in its third year, the fest's mission is "to foster local celebration of fantastic food and wine while highlighting the growing cultural, arts and culinary communities in the Salinas Valley," according to organizer Steve McShane.

Rio adds brunch items

Rio Grill chef Cy Yontz has added three dishes to his brunch menu. This year celebrating its 30th birthday, the Rio has always boasted Southwestern zest, and Yontz, with his affection for New Mexico, frequently conjures up new concoctions to reflect that style and taste.

His latest additions to the brunch menu offered on Sundays from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. are:

■ a buttermilk-herb waffle sandwich with egg over easy, smoked ham, prosciutto, pepper Havarti and wild arugula;

■ short rib sweet potato hash with poached eggs and red chile;

■ breakfast quesadilla with double-smoked bacon, scrambled eggs, skillet hash browns, Jack, cheddar and tomatillo-arbol salsa; and

■ dungeness crab Eggs Benedict with Hatch green chile hollandaise.

For more information or reservations, call (831) 625-5436 or visit www.riogrill.com. The restaurant is located at the Crossroads shopping center and is open daily at 11:30 a.m. for lunch and dinner.

■ National Pizza Month

National Pizza Month, also known as October, is here again, and TusCA Ristorante in the Hyatt Regency Monterey is honoring it by way of its yearly tradition of serving a special pizza each week. Available only at lunchtime, the pizzas are handmade and cooked in the wood-fired stove, and sell for $15 apiece. A glass of house wine can be added for $5.

This week, the featured pizza is a Margherita, with house-cured tomatoes, fresh basil, Bel Paese and tomato sauce. The week of Oct. 7 features foraged mushrooms, Alfredo, sage, hazelnuts and truffle oil, while the week of Oct. 14 will showcase sopressata salami, Italian sausage and pepperoncini. Finally, from Oct. 21 through the end of the month, the featured pizza will contain chicken and bacon, pesto cream sauce and artichokes.

TusCA Ristorante is located in the Hyatt Regency Monterey at 1 Old Golf Course Road in Monterey. Call (831) 657-6675 for more information.

■ Mondays still marvelous

Montrio Bistro's Marvelous Mondays continue this month, with Rewards Cards customers (get yours at any of Downtown Dining's three restaurants — the Rio Grill, Tarry's or Montrio — and register it online at www.downtowndining.com) getting tasty deals at the downtown Monterey restaurant the first day of each work week.

This month's bennies include calamari and a pint for $7 Oct. 7, bubbles and truffle fries for $6 Oct. 14, Oatmeal-crusted Brie, bacon-wrapped prawns and mushrooms for $7 Oct. 21, and 50 percent off any specialty cocktail Oct. 28.

Montrio is located at 414 Calle Principal in Monterey.

■ Quail & Olive is 1

The Quail & Olive, the Carmel Valley Village shop specializing in olive oils and vinegars, is celebrating its first anniversary Saturday, Oct. 12, with music by Dino Vera, food pairings, local wines, and oil and vinegar tastings. The party is free and will take place in the shop at 3 Pilot Road from noon to 5 p.m.

Since its opening, the store has grown to carry several varieties of California-grown extra virgin olive oils and specialty oils, as well as balsamic vinegars made by Chapparral Gardens, as well as private-label pastas and marinara sauce. The tasting room also launched the quarterly members-only Covey Club, offering a newsletter, recipes and other perks.

The Quail & Olive is open Wednesday through Monday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call (831) 659-4288 or visit www.quailandolive.com to learn more.

■ Tequila and Mezcal Expo

The Museum of Monterey will serve as the venue for this year's Monterey Tequila & Mezcal Expo Saturday, Oct. 12, presented by CYO Events. The MTME showcases some of the world's finest brands of the traditional liquors.

Organizers claim tequila "is one of the hottest trends of the spirits world," with celebrity brands produced by Sammy Hagar, George Clooney, Justin Timberlake, Carlos Santana and NBA legend Bill Walton, but they also aim to "share the rich, vibrant tradition that's so integral to tequila through education," particularly encouraging people to see the spirit not as party booze but as an important part of Hispanic culture and tradition.

Celebrating its fifth year, the expo will feature brand experts, food and entertainment.

Event highlights include a tour at D'Arrigo followed by lunch with a local chef and award-winning Alderete Tequila, and the Agave Awards presented to the winners of a blind tasting, both on Friday, Oct. 11.

The expo begins at 4 p.m. Oct. 12 in the Museum of Monterey with the Tequila 101 for the Try-Curious VIP class and tasting. The main tasting will run from 5 to 8 p.m., when guests can sample from more than 60 varietals of world-glass and rare tequilas and mezcals. An after party will take place from 9 p.m. to midnight at the Blue Fin on Cannery Row.

Tickets are $65 for general admission, $85 for VIP and $130 for All Access. Visit www.montereytequilaexpo.com to learn more.

■ Columbus Day at the Wharf

Monterey's Old Fisherman's Wharf Association is trying to liven things up by offering a new event: The Columbus Day Weekend Celebration Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 12-13, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. with historical reenactments, local performers and entertainment, live music, games and Italian small bites available at the Wharf's restaurants.

Available for $3 to $5, the treats include meatball sliders at Café Fina, cannoli at Fisherman's Grotto, bruschetta at Paluca Trattoria and arancini at Isabella's.

To learn more, go to www.montereywharf.com or call (831) 238-0777.

test in June]. Not only was he praised for his outstanding technique, but also for his artistry. The reviewers loved him.”

Kholodenko will open Sunday's program with Rachmaninoff's Sonata No. 1 in D Minor, Op. 28.

“It's the most difficult work in the piano repertoire,” Tuff explained. “Many people have never heard it performed live because because it's so hard to play.”

The event will be preceded by a talk at 2 p.m. and followed by a gala dinner at the Pine Inn.

The concert begins at 3 p.m. Tickets are $40 to $55 with discounts available for students. Tickets to the gala are $150. The Pine Inn is located on Ocean between Lincoln and Monte Verde. Call (831) 625-9938.

■ UK country trio returns

Natives of Liverpool, England, The Good Intentions sound more like they come from Nashville, Tenn. — the country music capital — than the birthplace of the British Invasion.

Serving up sweet three-part harmonies, R. Peter Davies, Gabrielle Monk and Francesco Roskell return Saturday, Oct. 5, to Plaza Linda restaurant in Carmel Valley Village. They made their local debut at Plaza Linda last year.

Named Best Americana Act at the 2011 British Country Music Awards, the Good Intentions bring together a surprisingly authentic mix of acoustic country, bluegrass and Americana.

Opening the show is Southern California singer-songwriter and finger-style guitarist Dafni, whose distinctive mix of pop, country and jazz makes her performance alone worth the price of admission.

Also performing at Plaza Linda are singer John Michael and pianist Tom Lawson, who play Friday at 7 p.m. There's a $10 cover. The restaurant is located at 27 E. Carmel Valley Road. Call (831) 659-4229.

■ From deep in the heart of Texas

Just a week after a fellow Texan singer-songwriter, Robert Earl Keen, performed at Fernwood Resort in Big Sur, Grammy Award-winning roots rocker Steve Earle plays there Tuesday, Oct. 8.

A singer-songwriter, guitarist, record producer, author and actor, Earle brings together country, folk, rock and Americana. When he visits Big Sur this week, he'll be joined by his longtime backing band, The Dukes.

Earle earned Grammys in 1996, 2004 and 2009 for Best Contemporary Folk Album, and he's a master storyteller whose music has been recorded by Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson, Emmylou Harris, Waylon Jennings and many others.

The music starts at 9 p.m. The resort located on Highway 1 about 25 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-2422.

■ Legendary piper visits P.G.

In the 1970s, the Bothy Band took the world of traditional Irish music by storm, giving the genre a fresh burst of rock

'n' roll energy while retaining its deep links to the past. One of the Bothy Band's founders and key members, uilleann piper Paddy Keenan plays Sunday, Oct. 6, at St. Mary's-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove.

“The Bothy Band really created a resurgence of interest in Celtic music,” said Carmel Valley fiddler Jackie Pierce, who helps organize concert's at St. Mary's. “Paddy has been performing up and down the California coast, and we're really happy he's included us on his tour.”

Known as “Jimi Hendrix of the pipes,” Keenan will be joined by San Francisco Bay Area guitarist Richard Mandel.

The show begins at 3 p.m. Tickets are $15 for adults and $8 for children under 12. The church is located at 146 12th St. Call (831) 224-3819.

■ One more Sunday by the river

A familiar face in Carmel Valley Village, singer-songwriter Rose Merrill takes the stage Sunday, Oct. 6, at the Big Sur River Inn.

Merrill told The Pine Cone she'll be joined by “Hank on bass and vocals, Lance on lead guitar and vocals and Jac on drums.” Together, they're planning to play “an eclectic mix of blues, classic rock and country.”

The performance marks the final installment in this year's Sunday afternoon music series at the inn, and your last chance to listen to music while sitting on the grass by the river and enjoying a BBQ feast, until late next spring.

The music starts at 1 p.m. The inn is located on Highway 1 about 24 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-2700.

■ Live Music Oct. 4-10

Terry's Lounge at Cypress Inn — pianist Gennady Loktionov and singer Breanna Eddy (Friday at 7 p.m.), pianist Dick Whittington and bassist Frank Tusa (Saturday at 7 p.m.), singer Andrea Carter (Sunday at 11 a.m.) classical guitarist Richard Devinck (Sunday at 5 p.m.), and singers Lee Durley and Ray Paul (Thursday at 6 p.m.). Lincoln and Seventh, (831) 624-3871.

Mission Ranch — singer and pianist Madeline Edstrom (Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 7 p.m.); and pianist Gennady Loktionov (Monday through Thursday at 7 p.m.). 26270 Dolores St., (831) 625-9040.

Mundaka — singer-songwriter Nico Georis (Sunday at 7:30 p.m.); classical guitarist Peter Evans (Monday at 7 p.m.); and guitarist Rick Chelew and accordionist Elise Levy (Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.). San Carlos and Seventh, (831) 624-7400.

broad brushstrokes to render abstracted views of the Central California landscape, while Bradford employs a palette knife to add a distinctive texture to her paintings of local scenes.

Titled "Three Dimensions," the exhibit by Smith and Bradford will also include work by bronze sculptor Gustavo Torres. Along with art association members Melissa Lofton, Jeffrey Becom and Pamela Takigawa, Torres created, installed and decorated an elaborate "Day of the Dead" altar in the gallery.

The gallery, which hosts a reception for the three artists from 5 to 7 p.m., is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. The show will continue through Nov. 5. Call (831) 624-6176.

Also commemorating the "Day of the Dead," Artisana Gallery in Pacific Grove will be the site a reception Friday, Oct. 4, for the opening of an exhibit, "Honoring Seven Generations." The show, which features artwork by Adrienne Jonson, Heather Gallery, Sherri Nelson, Heidi Moss and others, will be on display through Nov. 2. A "Day of the Dead" altar has also been installed in the gallery.

The event begins at 5 p.m. The gallery, which is located at 612 Lighthouse Ave., is just one of many galleries and businesses staying open late for downtown Pacific Grove's monthly First Friday celebration. Call (831) 655-9775.

Gallery owner goes solo

Nearly 10 years after opening Gallery North, its founder, painter Barbara Kreitman, is having her first solo exhibit, which opens Sunday, Oct. 6. The show is titled, "Pure Energy."

An abstract expressionist with an affection for bold colors, Kreitman uses a palette knife to apply thick layers of oil paint to her canvases. She recently traveled to Spain, and the country's culture and character is reflected in her most recent work.

The gallery, which hosts a reception from 1 to 3 p.m., is located on the northwest corner of Dolores and Fifth. The show will be on display through Nov. 5. Call (831) 620-1987.

Hall hosts annual art gathering

One of Pacific Grove's most historic buildings, Chautauqua Hall, hosts its 11th annual "Artists in Chautauqua" festival Sunday, Oct. 6, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The event provides a marketplace for local artisans, and features food, live music and a silent auction. Proceeds benefit the The Heritage Society of Pacific Grove.

Chautauqua Hall is located at 16th and Central.

When a Touch of Elegance Matters

The Fine Art of Bespoke Design

Creativity takes courage -Henri Matisse

When we all think alike, then no one is thinking -Walter Lippman

Difficulties mastered are opportunities won -Winston Churchill

These inspirational quotes on life and business are just a few of the enlightening thoughts by others that artist Anne Thull routinely reflects upon to feed her soul as she creates bespoke products for her clients.

"Our creativity, imagination, problem solving skills and attitude toward change are the factors that make the difference" Anne explains "Art is key when developing handsome, functional products that are timeless."

Anne Thull designs and supplies bespoke products for residential, commercial and hospitality projects. She focuses on creating one-of-a-kind and limited edition products that add value to the client's property investment or collection.

Anne's bespoke products include:

Architectural Art- Millwork, Cabinetry, Wine Pantries, Fireplace Surrounds

Functional Art- Furniture, Light Fixtures, Candle Sleeves

Fine Art- Sculptures, Paintings, Murals

and much more

Anne's work has been showcased at Pebble Beach Food and Wine, Lightfair International and many other premier events. Visit her Design Studio Galleries at the San Francisco Design Center and in Carmel, CA.

"As you continue to walk your own path you focus on what others can not yet see" -Anne Thull ing issues that are plaguing the city of Carmel, I suspect there are many folks who voted to incorporate Carmel Valley that now are glad it did not go through. If you are one of those individuals, maybe thank someone you know that voted "no" on incorporation.

Measure M and traffic

Dear Editor,

If you ever drive from Salinas to the Monterey Peninsula in the morning or from the Peninsula to Salinas in the afternoon, you know how awful the traffic is on Highway 68. Highway 1 mornings and evenings is no better. We are fast approaching gridlock on these roads. The East Side Parkway planned for the Fort Ord land would relieve the pressure on those highways. The informational study done for Seaside reported that 7,600 trips would shift to the East Side Parkway when built. I recently learned what is obviously a little known fact to commuters — the Measure M initiative completely eliminates the East Side Parkway. I recommend that we commuters all come together to defeat Measure M in November. I for one would like to spend less time in bumper to bumper traffic and more time with my family.

Maureen Rock,
Carmel Valley

Veterans being used? Hardly

Dear Editor,

Recent letters asserting that the veterans are being "used" by developers is at once amusing and ludicrous. Veterans are men and women who have survived military training, military service, and often life-threatening combat. Many of them, after their military service, went on to second careers. Their lives are framed by discipline, hard work and danger. Does anyone really believe this group could be "used" by someone, anyone, for any purpose? It takes more imagination than this writer possesses.

On the Secure the Promise website, there are endorsements for Measure K from nine separate American Legion Posts or Auxiliaries, the American Legion Riders Department of California and Chapter 694, the American Legion Women's Auxiliary Unit 589, the Disabled American Veterans of California and Chapter 65 of Monterey, the United Veterans Council of Monterey County, the Veterans of Foreign Wars

District 12 (counties of San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey) and three Veterans of Foreign Wars groups.

All those veterans fooled by one developer? All those disciplined, hard-working, brave men and women, many of whom have seen combat, being "used?" I don't think so. The veterans groups are clear: Vote NO on M, Yes on K.

Heather Lichtenegger,
Carmel

Dog-friendly beach?

Dear Editor,

Yesterday, walking on the beach at sunset, a man with a dog threw a ball toward me, and the dog following grazed my knees as it raced by. I asked the man not to throw the ball toward people and he answered defiantly, "This is a dog-friendly beach."

"Dog friendly" means dogs are welcome and permitted on the beach. It doesn't mean dogs have superior rights over people. People have the right to be safe on the beach, free from nuisances, and those rights are superior to an owner's right to let his dogs run free. "Share the Road" highway signs tell drivers to be careful of bicycles on the side of the road; it doesn't say that bicycles can do anything they want on the highway.

Dogs on the streets of Carmel are required to be leashed. Why are they permitted to be unleashed on the beach? Families and children are the main users of the beach, and presumably deserve to be safe from dogs on the beach just as they are on the city's streets.

In last week's Pine Cone there was an article about a young boy bitten by a dog in the face while he was surfing. Many people who throw balls to their dogs, throw them toward the water, challenging their dogs to display their prowess in the waves. Not only is that a danger to surfers and swimmers, it's a danger to wildlife. I have often seen people throw balls toward otters close to shore, encouraging their dogs to chase them.

The problem of dogs chasing balls and threatening wildlife and people can be solved by simply requiring dogs to be on leash. Pit bulls are very popular trophy dogs at the moment and they especially should never be off leash. The problem of dogs urinating and defecating on the beach, in the same places children play, is even more insidious than the first, since parents are usually unaware of what's been playing in the sand before them. Dogs are not allowed in the city's parks, where children play. Why are they allowed on the beach?

Robert Wrubel,
Carmel

An urgent plea for contributions to Ft. Ord veterans cemetery

By JASON BURNETT and JIMMY PANETTA

WHEN FORT Ord closed two decades ago, the community promised veterans and their families that it would build a final resting place to honor their achievements and sacrifices on behalf of our nation — a veterans cemetery.

It is time we made good on that promise.

More than 1.5 million dedicated men and women in uniform trained and served on the Central Coast at the former Fort Ord, the Presidio, the Naval Postgraduate School, Defense Language Institute, and other world-renowned military facilities in Monterey County. But the closest veterans cemetery is located hours away in the Central Valley. We promised veterans and their families that they would not need to drive so far to visit the graves of fellow veterans and loved ones. Hearing this promise, many families of veterans have kept the remains of loved ones for the day when there is a veterans cemetery in the former Fort Ord.

At times, local, state and federal governments have made slow progress — painfully slow for those waiting with a loved one's remains in limbo. The federal government's slow pace has been because rules limit where national veterans cemeteries can be located. The state government will build and run a state veterans cemetery, but only after the local community demonstrates financial support for the project. Monterey County and the City of Seaside control the land and are willing to give it to the state only if the state uses it for a veterans cemetery.

To complicate matters further, ballot measures K and M reference the cemetery. However, a careful reading reveals that they focus on the land around the veterans cemetery. We are focused on the cemetery itself and plan to move forward regardless of what happens with the ballot measures.

Last year, several local, state and federal leaders made a commitment not to allow bureaucratic barriers or the controversy over the surrounding land to stand in the way of getting a veterans cemetery built. Our goal is to begin the project as soon as possible. To get progress under way, the City of Seaside and County of Monterey agreed to transfer the designated land to the state. Meanwhile, the state has agreed to pursue construction provided that the funds are available.

The price tag to start the project is $9,414,000. On Oct. 1, Congressman Sam Farr was successful in securing $6,797,000 from the federal government. Sen. Bill Monning and Assembly member Mark Stone helped pass legislation which will provide $1 million in state funds for the cemetery. We have a solid prospect for another $1 million.

That leaves $617,000 to be raised locally. The state tells us it won't accept the federal grant unless we have this local contribution raised by mid-October. With little or none of the state and federal money, it is likely the cemetery will be delayed again and again to the detriment of those families who have waited so long. We realize that this is a tough challenge, but not as difficult as the sacrifice made by our veterans and their families.

The Monterey Peninsula community is generous, and we need you to continue with your generosity as soon as possible — remember the deadline is mid-October. This is our chance to thank those who were willing to put their lives on the line for us.

Now is the time for all of us to fulfill the promise to those who have given so much for our country and made the Central Coast what it is today. A veterans cemetery in our area will be a lasting memorial of which we can all be proud.

Please visit www.ccveteranscemetery.org to make a donation.

Media orthodoxy

IF YOU pay attention to the national news media, you know that the coverage you find on the various outlets is remarkably similar. On all of them, except for Fox News, the stories that are reported, and how they are reported, are practically identical.

This is certainly true among the prominent broadcast and cable news channels (ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN, MSNBC and PBS), but it is perhaps even more true with the big city newspapers (New York Times, Washington Post, Los Angeles Times, San Francisco Chronicle, etc., etc.) The faces and the bylines may be different, but what they have to say is the same.

One outstanding example of this is going on right now: The House of Representatives is at odds with the president and the Senate over funding the government. The House wants to fund everything but Obamacare, and the other two bodies insist on including Obamacare in any funding package. Whose fault is the stalemate? According to all the national news media, it's the House, and specifically the Republicans there.

The representatives who don't want Obamacare to be implemented may all be duly elected and doing exactly what the Constitution authorizes them to do, not to mention what millions of Americans and most of their constituents want them to; nevertheless, if you pick up practically any newspaper or turn on any news channel, you'll only be told that the Republicans in the House are acting like idiots or traitors. Their side of the story is barely mentioned anywhere in the news, except in the context of, "Can you believe what simpletons they are?"

The same thing happens with every story that involves the federal government increasing entitlement programs and giving away things. It doesn't matter whether you're watching CBS, listening to NPR or reading the Boston Globe: Every federal program, no matter how counterproductive or unnecessary it is, how much money it wastes, or how little the country can afford it, must be constantly expanded, and every new program that involves taking from the rich and giving to the poor must always be approved. And anyone who says, "Hold on ... will this work?" or suggests that the recipients of federal largesse might be better served by being encouraged to stand on their own two feet instead of relying on others for food, clothing, housing, medical care, higher education, etc., is to be derided and mocked.

And this phenomenon of media unanimity at the national level filters down to local news outlets, too. The Monterey County Herald may have a few local stories you won't find in a national newspaper, but when it comes to the slant on national and international stories, the Herald is in synch with everybody else. Likewise Monterey County Weekly, KSBW, KION and so forth.

In some cases, even the local stories are reported in conformance to the national left-wing orthodoxy.

For example, illegal immigrants are a legitimate national controversy, with well meaning, intelligent people on both sides. One point of view, held by tens of millions of Americans, sees the need for border enforcement and wants illegal immigrants to have to get in line behind legal immigrants when it comes to eventual U.S. citizenship; the other, which also has millions of adherents, advocates open borders and amnesty. Both sides deserve respectful coverage in local and national news media. But only one side is treated with any credibility, and we don't have to tell you which one that is — and that's true whether it's a story in the San Francisco Chronicle about policy debates in Washington and Sacramento, or a story in the Herald or the Weekly about the supposedly miserable and abused lives led by illegal immigrants in this county.

Reporters claim to be skeptics and pretend to believe in speaking "truth to power." But what they really do is behave like mindless sycophants when it comes to toeing the liberal line.

So if you just manage to pick up one newspaper, watch one TV broadcast, or spend a few minutes looking at just one national news website a day, don't worry. You haven't missed anything. With very few exceptions, they're saying exactly the same thing. If you want independent thinking and critical analysis, you have to do it yourself.

'Many-headed Hydra'

Dear Editor,

Why all the concern over the government shutdown? Proposition: the In-group (politicians, bureaucrats, media) are afraid that the public will find out how much of the government is non-critical and how little the work is missed. Of course, the administration will turn the klieg lights onto the services whose loss will generate the most headlines. The media like nothing more than hand-wringing and chances to pontificate.

The issue is to determine what functions are essential for the government to perform and what are not. Recall two things: money not sucked into the government is available for use in the private sector, and that we borrow 40 percent to pay for our spending. I am sure that neither the shutdown nor the budget issues will diminish Michelle's vacation plans or entourage of attendants or interfere with Barack's golf game.

It is old news, but this nation has a spending problem with many manifestations, like the many-headed Hydra of ancient myths. Obamacare is just one head, albeit a really big one. We need elected representatives who attend to the cause of problem not the symptoms. Ultimately the fault resides with the voters.

Michael Addison, Carmel

Important to have 'clarity'

Dear Editor,

I am writing because I think you should expand on your recent editorial on the new Affordable Healthcare Act, also called Obamacare.

It is a a greater-than-1,000-page bit of legislation and has not been acknowledged by anyone as perfect and is confusing to many. I think you will find greater clarity at the Kaiser Family Foundation Website. The Kaiser system and the Leadership Council of Women Religious have studied the law and its implementation thoroughly and have presented the most lucid summaries of its impact. Here's a link that is helpful: <http://kff.org/health-reform/faq/health-reform-frequently-asked-questions>.

The majority of your readers have Medicare and are not affected by the law. Nevertheless, it is important to have clarity on this issue.

Live music is the most fun when somebody else pays the tab

CALL ME a radical, but when push comes to shove, I prefer my music live, lively and free.

Why spend the equivalent of a week's pay to see the haggard remains of the Rolling Stones playing their greatest hits when there's intriguing free stuff all over the place?

Because, deep down, music is like love: If you have to pay for it, you're missing the heart of the matter.

That's why I admire Monterey County Pops, formerly Monterey Bay Symphony, a professional orchestra that actually bold-faces "free of charge" in its organizational mission statement.

Its Memorial Day Concert at the Naval Postgraduate School is always a hoot and an inspiration. Unfortunately, this year's event was cancelled after dimwits in Congress sequestered federal spending, proving once again that while good music can be free, bad government comes at a cost.

Credit is also due to KRML-FM, which has been hosting a series of free pop-up concerts, usually on a day or two's notice, at sublime locations throughout the Monterey

And lovers of free music can't go wrong with the Monterey County Gospel Community Choir, which did a free gig at the First Presbyterian Church last week that brought the roof down. You'd have to be the most heartless atheist or the devil incarnate not to dance at the altar of John Nash, the musical director.

I'm aware, of course, that free music isn't actually free. Somebody pays. The Monterey County Arts Council and a battery of local foundations and donors underwrite performances for the Pops orchestra and the gospel choir.

In the case of the gospel choir, audience donations are encouraged but not required. Even then, it feels somehow appropriate. After all, what's an appearance in church without someone passing the plate?

But the granddaddy of free music starts today, in the redwoods and the pastures of Golden Gate Park in San Francisco.

The three-day event is known as Hardly Strictly Bluegrass. It attracts about three-quarters of a million people who are literally treated to a full spectrum of rock, country, punk, rhythm and blues, soul, folk and world music.

Oh yeah, and bluegrass. I once suspected that Hardly Strictly impresario Warren Hellman kept "bluegrass" in the event as a way to minimize the crowds, since nothing drives away a music snob more effectively than the stench of a banjo. But it turns out that Hellman played the banjo.

beyond the realm

Until his death two years ago, Hellman was a billionaire private equity investor who, despite his capitalist proclivities, believed that music is meant to be free. So in 2001 he established Hardly Strictly, plowing a significant percentage of his personal wealth into a three-day party in one of the world's most sublime locations.

For the next decade, he footed the bill for rental of the park, the pay and transportation of musicians, equipment, security, and every other nagging expense a festival promoter

Certificate Of Authority #082

Instead of a baseball diamond, his office was the sea

IT WAS happenstance that I hooked up with Jack Gelke only two days after the murderous rampage at the Navy Yard in Washington, D.C. Jack had once been with the Navy, doing a stint for the Office of Naval Intelligence, and he had been through the Navy Yard on occasion. He was also well aware of how security there worked ... or sometimes didn't. But that's just a small part of his story.

Born in 1933, Jack was brought up in Queens, N.Y., in a very different time. His home was near what would be the 1939 World's Fairgrounds. It was mostly farmland then, and he could see the Empire State Building from where he lived. He went to high school in the Bronx at All Hallows, taught by the same Christian Brothers (of Ireland) who teach at the Palma School in Salinas.

Then he went to St. John's University for a year on a baseball scholarship and then transferred to the Merchant Marine Academy at King's Point on the Long Island Sound where he played baseball and football.

Today people don't realize what a critical role the Merchant Mariners played during the second World War. These were the men who sailed the cargo ships to Europe, with little protection from German planes and U-boats. Jack noted, "The Merchant Mariners had the highest rate of fatalities of any of the services."

In 1991, Jack was inducted into the Merchant Marine Hall of Fame for his athletic prowess. He lettered four times as a tackle in football and three as a catcher in baseball. (Today he is a recruiter for the Academy and is on Congressman Sam Farr's committee to screen applicants to the military academies.)

He was such a skilled athlete that the New York Giants tried him out as catcher and offered Jack a contract. He remembers it being for $2,500. "But the problem was that I wasn't graduating from the Academy until the next week so I told them I wouldn't sign anything until I graduated. But the day I graduated, I got my draft notice and had to go on active duty in the Navy."

This was 1955. No hot wars, but a big cold one with the Soviet Union heating up.

When he finished his active duty, Jack went back to the Merchant Marine Academy for a couple of years before becoming a special agent doing criminal investigations for the Office of Naval Intelligence working out of Charleston, S.C.; like the TV program NCIS. He also did background investigations, but, he notes, "They're all contracted out now."

Jack went back on active duty for the Navy in 1960, going to sea and progressing up the chain of command.

When he returned to shore, he had been commander of a destroyer squadron as a captain.

"I was in command of Destroyer Squadron 5 out of San Diego, and I was out in the Indian Ocean during the time of the rescue of the hostages in Iran in 1980." He was also a student at the Naval Postgraduate School twice, and at the Naval War College and the National War College.

"I liked the Navy because I liked to go to sea. So I was a sailor. Sailors belong in ships. Ships belong at sea." He retired from the Navy in 1984 and went to work for a division of the Singer company that pioneered flight simulators.

Jack got involved with a program that worked on the design of simulators for police to teach them how to drive during high-speed chases.

He came back to the Monterey area and got involved in helping military and NASA employees transition to civilian life. "I taught them how to get a job. I did seminars and workshops for how to do resumes and interviews." He ran a transition center at Fort Ord for three years starting in 1989. It was some of his favorite work.

"The key to it is that most military guys do not know how much they have to offer. I'd ask if they knew how to operate computers. 'Oh yeah.' Have they been in charge of people? 'Oh yeah.' Did you write efficiency reports? 'Oh yeah, all the time.'" They had the experience and the credentials and Jack helped them translate that into jobs.

Great Lives

By TONY SETON

In the early 1990s, Jack was the executive director of the Alliance on Aging of Monterey County for two years. Then later in the decade, he decided to go into real estate, working with Alain Pinel. In 2000, he made headlines selling a home in Pebble Beach for a then-record price of $23.5 million.

Jack met his wife, Peggy, when he was attending the Naval Postgraduate School. She is from the Monterey Peninsula, and in fact, back in the late 1930s and early 1940s had sold copies of The Pine Cone on Ocean Avenue, making a few pennies apiece. The couple lives in Carmel.

can face. He underwrote the entire thing, and his trustees have vowed to keep it going for at least another 15 years.

Better yet, Hellman and his successors have been militant in keeping corporate weasels away from the party. Hardly Strictly is his bash and he didn't need Budweiser and Verizon mucking it up with their cynical marketing ploys.

In fact, any salesmanship at the park is underground and at the perimeter, and it's a good idea to inquire about the brownies' ingredients before purchase. It's all medicinal anyway, so what the hell.

This year's festival includes 87 different acts, on five stages, ranging from soul rocker Bettye LaVette to gypsy punksters Gogol Bordello to Emmylou Harris. And it's all free.

Compare that to Outside Lands, another annual three-day festival held at Golden Gate Park, where full-event tickets range from $250 to $550. The more expensive tickets at Outside Lands this year ensured a clear view of the haggard remains of Paul McCartney while he performed his greatest hits.

Somewhere in heaven, Warren Hellman is reserving a place for John Nash, the folks from the Pops orchestra, the Monterey County Arts Council and KRML.

“No,” he said. “I gave up golf to write books.”

And we are the better for it. If I were the manager of a baseball team and Brooks was a team member, I don't know where I would let him hit. He could be both a lead-off hitter, or a cleanup hitter. Skipper McGillen wisely had Brooks hit first. Brooks embodies the theme of the festival — he is an author who discusses big ideas. He wondered if great ideas are registering with today's college students. He believes they are more into data, rather than ideas — what's going to work for them to further their careers. It's what Brooks labels, “the priority of self.” In 1950, 12 percent of college students surveyed thought that they were important. In 2004, 80 percent thought they were.

Brooks was followed by Cliff Stoll. You would need a new vocabulary to try to describe Stoll — or just picture your vision of a mad scientist. Trying to follow Stoll bouncing around the stage was like trying to follow the bouncing ball to “Sing Along with Mitch.” Stoll is an American astronomer and author. He is best known for his pursuit of hacker Markus Hess in 1986 and the subsequent book, “The Cuckoo's Egg.” He advised us to treat computer passwords like your toothbrush — don't let anybody use it and get a new one every six months.

Artistic director of the Carmel Bach Festival Paul Goodwin taught us the fundamentals of directing a concert orchestra. He prepares the orchestra the way a football coach prepares a team. His job is to get the members of the orchestra to do what he wants them to do rather than what they want to do. Then he introduced 4-year-old violin prodigy, Nicholas Brady, who performed Brahms' “Hungarian Dance,” accompanied on the piano by Lucy Faridany. Everyone in the audience suddenly had cold feet as young master Brady charmed the socks off us.

It is difficult to hit the highlights of the weekend because there were no low-lights. On successive days, without checking each other's notes, novelists Jonathan Evison and Jane Smiley discussed how literature develops empathy. Evison described empathy as living inside someone else's point of view. Smiley defined empathy as seeing the world through someone else's view. Using different examples and different approaches, both said a novel encourages you to have an inner life.

Former four-time Ambassador Christopher Hill told us that the relationship between the United States and China is too big to fail because the futures of the two countries are irrevocably tied together.

Geneticist Stuart K. Kim told us about the oldest living animal on earth. I was much relieved when he didn't point at me. Turned out it was a 550-year-old Scandinavian clam.

Dr. John Arquilla works with the commander of the United States Cyber Command on issues of cyber security and cyber warfare. He had, perhaps, the scariest presentation. He said that on a scale of one to 10, this country's cyber security is at a three. In mentioning storing data in the “cloud,” he advised everyone to have an encryption bubble, because “data at rest is data at risk.”

Trish Tillman, the director of artistic learning at California Shakespeare Theater, has worked with more than 2,000 students to get them interested in Shakespeare. In her presentation “Shakespeare in 32 seconds,” she broke down the entire play, “Romeo and Juliet,” to one page, then had 10 students, all taking various roles, perform it. They did it in 33 seconds, and it was hilarious.

In the Rosen Family Student Center, where many of the weekend's presentations were held, there is a Robert Louis Stevenson quote engraved above the massive stone fireplace: “We admire splendid views, and great pictures, and yet what is truly admirable is rather the mind within us, that gathers together the scattered details for its delight.” Each speaker at the festival, in his or her own way, got us to delve into the mind within us to view those scattered details for our personal delight.

Jerry Gervase offers his unique perspectives on life in the Monterey Peninsula in his weekly column, “Scenic Views,” which appears in the real estate section.

JEAN LITTLEPAGE

Jean was born Etta Jean Johnston in Poland, Ohio to James Julian and Helen Richards Johnston. She died in Monterey, California at age 95, surrounded by her family and friends.

Jean graduated from Kent State University in 1940 with a bachelor's degree in education with a teaching credential. She continued her education at Oklahoma College for Women, University of the Pacific, San Jose State University, and University of California at Berkeley. She taught primary, pre-school and kindergarten in Ohio, and kindergarten through 5th grade in California for 36 years. She was a much loved teacher, ally, and friend to her students.

She married Norris Littlepage at the Poland Presbyterian Church in Ohio in 1942. After living in Oklahoma where Norris was stationed at Fort Sill, they traveled to California in 1945, and settled first in Pacific Grove, then lived happily until his passing in 2009 in the home that Norris designed for the family in Monterey.

Jean leaves their two daughters Layne Littlepage and Janni Littlepage, who loved her very much and were loved by her in return. She is also survived by nieces Janice Sewell, Kelly Johnston Roach, nephew James Johnston, many cousins including the Smiths, Barrons, Johnstons and Littlepages, step-grandchildren Jonathan Milne and Wyatt Milne, step-niece Lila Rose Milne, honorary granddaughter Donna Shlaimon, and many beloved friends and neighbors.

Jean will be lovingly remembered for her wonderful sense of humor and for her keen wit and inquisitive mind, which continued to be active at age 95. She was a voracious reader who kept up with world events with subscriptions to numerous magazines and journals. She enjoyed dining in the fine restaurants on the Monterey Peninsula, and loved holiday dinners with family and friends in her house in Monterey.

She belonged to numerous educational organizations, including Delta Kappa Gamma International Reading Association and the California Young Reader Medal Council. During her many years of teaching, she read or told stories daily from world literature/folklore to encourage children to experience the richness of world cultures and the joys of reading. She was instrumental in helping to establish a library and reading room at Juan Cabrillo Elementary School in Seaside, California, where she taught for the last 15 years of her career.

Donations in her name are welcome to be made to the Monterey County Library.

Pine Inn Management to be Changed

Carmel's oldest and best-known hostelry, Pine Inn, is in the hands of Mr. F.M. McAuliffe, who came down from San Francisco on Sunday to look over the property. For several weeks the hotel has been under the management of Mr. George Shields, but on Saturday last papers were drawn transferring the property to Mr. McAuliffe. It is the intention of the new holder to place the hotel in the hands of an experienced hotel man or woman. It is stated that Mrs. Dora Wingate, who formerly conducted Pine Inn, and made it the social center of Carmel, will be offered an opportunity to again assume its management.

Once Again That Billboard Zoning Question!

Repeatedly in the past Carmel has taken a firm stand against sign boards on our highways. Again it is time to protest the relaxing of our zoning ordinance permitting the placing of billboards. Commercially-minded gentry have lobbied unceasingly for a let-down on the bars. That they deface our beauty and spoil scenery concerns them not the least.

Now we find that these advocates of billboards have been able to reach the board of supervisors through the county planning commission. The supervisors have gone ahead and amended the zoning laws, removing restrictions so that all that is now necessary is to obtain a permit from the supervisors themselves. That the supervisors say they will be careful doesn't mean a thing.

The planning commission recommended to the supervisors that there should be sign boards on our highways and the county supervisors rubber-stamped the recommendations without determining the temper of the people.

Our representative, Andy Jacobsen, went on to tell us that the supervisors had nothing to do with the change in the ordinance, the recommendations having come from the planning commission, and went on to say that if the supervisors did not accept the wishes of the commission, what is the use of having the planning commission. Jacobsen, however, sounded one ray of hope. “If the people do not like this action that we have taken I will be the first to see that we satisfy them.”

Carmel must and Carmel will go to bat and use every endeavor to make the supervisors amend their action or else get those in office who will.

Supes approve radar use on Carmel Valley Road

Sometime around the first of the year, highway patrols in Carmel Valley will realize a distinct advantage over speeders — radar. Earlier this week the Monterey County Board of Supervisors (4-1) adopted a resolution allowing the California Highway Patrol to use radar exclusively on Carmel Valley Road.

The resolution, a subject of fierce debate in Carmel Valley last spring, calls for a group of valley residents, known as Citizens for Radar, to fund the measure. “Valley citizens are putting their money where their belief is . . . on a totally voluntary basis,” said Dick Nimmons, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA). He added that pledges currently total $4,000. That money will be turned over to the county Department of Public Works, which will then buy the radar guns to be used by the CHP.

“I personally anticipate a reduction of traffic collisions and a reduction of speed on Carmel Valley Road,” said CHP Captain Jim Munson. — Compiled by Lily Patterson

Sevika Hospital in Sawai Madhopur, outside a national park founded by Fateh Singh Rathore to save Bengal tigers from extinction. The hospital's director, Dr. Goverdhan Rathore, is the son of Fateh Rathore, one of the most noted tiger conservationists in history, according to Downing.

When he started the national park in the 1970s, Fateh Rathore suffered the wrath of the inhabitants after he relocated 19 villages outside its boundaries, Downing explains in a YouTube video produced by LMA Productions and its founder, David Liskin. As villagers lost their homes, as well as their grazing and hunting lands, they fought back, at one point beating Fateh Rathore and leaving him for dead. That experience taught him that “in order for the tigers and the villagers to peacefully coexist, and to discourage tiger poaching, he needed to give them something in exchange,” she explains.

The answer was better education and health care for the human communities.

“The only logical solution was to work with the local communities to make them less dependent on the natural resources of the park,” Dr. Goverdhan Rathore also comments in the video.

The Rathores originally provided health care using mobile services. A small hospital followed and has since been replaced by a newer, larger facility to support the population. But the hospital lacks the high-tech equipment needed to help reduce the high levels of infant mortality suffered in the poorer regions of India, according to Downing, where infants are born malnourished and underweight.

Some 70 neonates die per 1,000 births, compared to six per 1,000 in the United States, she said. And 40 out of every 10,000 mothers in India die in childbirth, compared with two out of every 10,000 in this country.

The $36,500 grant sponsored by the Carmel Valley Rotary Club will provide everything needed for a completely up-to-date birthing center, including state-of-the-art Fowler beds for women in labor, and a neonatal ICU with incubators, warming tables and lights for every bed, according to Downing. In particular, the specialized equipment will help physicians treat jaundice.

“This grant will provide everything that is needed for safe, happy, healthy births and recoveries to untold numbers of women and children in the area around Ranthambhore and Sawai Madhopur,” she said. C.V. Rotary is tasked with raising $11,500 to match the grant.

On Thursday, Oct. 24, at Hidden Valley on Carmel Valley Road at Ford Road in the C.V. Village, a screening of “The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel” at 7 p.m. will be preceded at 5:30 by a reception catered by Michael Jones of A Moveable Feast. The cost to attend is $30 for adults and $15 for students.

And on Saturday, Oct. 26, Eddison and Melrose will cater a reception at 6 p.m. in the Carmel High School performing arts center that will be followed by a screening of “Life of Pi” at 7. The cost is $25 for adults and $15 for students.

CEMETERY

“The governor’s office has said it’s important for the local community to demonstrate its financial commitment” to the cemetery, Burnett told The Pine Cone Tuesday. “The challenge is the time frame. We have two weeks.”

Burnett and Panetta have launched a campaign asking Monterey County residents to donate to the fundraising effort. The Community Foundation for Monterey County has also established the Central Coast Veterans Cemetery Fund to facilitate the campaign for the project’s first phase.

“We have come to a point where this is the closest in 20 years ... to shovels hitting the dirt,” said Panetta, a veteran of the Afghanistan War who is on the board of the Central Coast Veterans Cemetery Foundation.

The David and Lucile Packard Foundation has also stepped in to help with the offer of a $100,000 grant and a bridge loan to the Fort Ord Reuse Authority in the amount of $350,000, which the agency would repay at a low, 1 percent interest rate.

“The $350,000 bridge loan would be repaid over the course of a year,” Burnett said. “It will give us up to a year to complete the fundraising although I don’t think we’ll need that long.”

At a FORA executive session Wednesday afternoon, a special meeting was set for Friday, Oct. 4 for the board to consider the

Last year, organizers turned away about 45 curly-coated canines after closing registration at 450 poodles, and this year, Rose expected to exceed 500 dogs, thanks to an increased number of volunteers.

“We are almost sold out at the five locations in town for the cocktail parties, and we understand that most of the dog-friendly hotels are sold out again this year,” she reported.

condition.

“It’s very difficult for us to say what type of condition she is now, besides what we saw at the scene and what the paramedics might tell us,” he said. “When the officer arrived, the paramedics were already treating her injuries.”

A call to the trauma center confirmed she is no longer a patient there.

in places like the Willow Creek and Plaskett Creek watersheds, where the Basin Complex Fire didn’t reach — but Sudden Oak Death has — are particularly at risk.

To arrive at their conclusions, researchers like Frangioso have been monitoring 280 plots of land scattered across 200,000 acres in Big Sur.

Caused by a non-native fungal-like pathogen, Phytophthora ramorum, Sudden Oak Death first surfaced in Santa Cruz County and was likely introduced through commercial nurseries. It can now be found in from Southern Oregon to Santa Barbara County.

Frangioso said the disease is most easily spread by wind-driven springs rains. It can also travel in shoes and tires.

When buying plants from a nursery, Frangioso recommended asking staff if they test their plants for Sudden Oak Death. She identified rhododendrons, camellias and roses as common hosts plants for the pathogen. If you’re not sure if a plant is safe, she suggested not planting it for eight weeks and checking its foliage for spots or discoloring. A quick Google search will show what they look like.

Jim Hemphill, a real estate broker who, with his wife, lives on Congress Road in Pacific Grove, said he’s concerned about the density of the units in the neighborhood, which he said only has 28 houses within the one-mile stretch where he lives.

“Adding 24 apartments in a small two-and-a-half acre [area] is a tremendous change in the character of a neighborhood,” Hemphill said. “One of the primary things is not to change the character of a neighborhood, and this is what this proposal is about.”

Hemphill also told The Pine Cone the P.B. Co. should have selected its corporation yard as the location for the project.

Pebble Beach Company vice president of real estate, Mark Stilwell, said at the request of the LUAC, the company placed stakes and flags in the ground where the development is proposed.

However, the same night, Stilwell said, vandals tore many of them down.

The LUAC was expected to make an advisory decision about the housing project Thursday. However, the meeting went past The Pine Cone’s deadline.

idea. Assuming the board approves the grant and loan, that would leave a balance of $167,000 of the $617,000 that needs to be raised through local contributions by Oct. 15.

The two men stressed the importance of raising the money in a co-authored Op-Ed piece that ran in local news publications, including The Pine Cone (see page 26A.)

“The Central Coast community is generous and we need you to continue with that generosity as soon as possible — remember the deadline is mid-October,” they wrote. “This is our chance to thank those who were willing to put their lives on the line for us.”

The cost of the cemetery is estimated to be $9,414,000. Most of the funds will come from the $6.7 million grant Congressman Sam Farr helped secure and $1 million from a bill sponsored by Senator Bill Monning and Assemblyman Mark Stone. Additionally, Panetta and Burnett said there is a “solid prospect” for another $1 million from an unidentified source, leaving a difference of $617,000.

The funds Farr secured will cover all construction costs associated with building Phase 1, which includes the cemetery’s entrance, a plaza and 5,000 niches in a columbaria. Phase 2 will include in-ground burial sites.

The cemetery is to be on 78.7 acres of land at the intersection of Normandy and Parker Flats roads, and will serve the burial needs of area veterans for the next 100 years.

Also, according to the plans, an avenue intersecting the cemetery’s memorial plaza will connect the plaza with several columbaria-lined courts. A committal shelter will provide a covered area for final ceremonies prior to interment. An avenue of flags with a center median flanked by American flags flown on 12-foot flagpoles will provide access to memorials and columbaria.

Monning and Stone’s Senate Bill SB232, which would provide $1 million to an endowment fund for the cemetery project, passed the Senate and the Assembly in September with bipartisan support. The bill is awaiting action by Governor Jerry Brown.

However, the cemetery project is at the center of a land-use struggle that will go before voters on Nov. 5. While Measure M seeks to protect and preserve about 540 acres of open space and habitat on the former military base, Measure K seeks to enforce parts of the Fort Ord Reuse Plan, preserve several acres of open space and “protect the establishment” of the cemetery.

However, both measures focus on land around the veterans cemetery, not the cemetery parcel.

“We are focused on the cemetery itself and plan to move forward regardless of what happens with the ballot measures,” according to Burnett and Panetta.

As for donations, Burnett said that 100 percent of the proceeds will go toward the cemetery. He and his wife, Mel, donated $25,000 to cover contribution processing costs to make that possible. The City of Carmel allocated $15,000 for the cemetery in its 2013/2014 budget.

“It is high time to make good on this promise” to build the cemetery, Burnett said. “This is a 20-year promise.”

He and Panetta pointed to the 1.5 million service personnel who trained at Fort Ord, and the tens of thousands who studied and trained at the Naval Postgraduate School, the Defense Language Institute and other military facilities.

“We have had people talk to us whose loved ones [remains] are being held in hopes the cemetery will be built,” said Burnett, who sits on the Fort Ord Reuse Authority board, representing Carmel.

The nearest veterans cemetery is the San Joaquin Valley National Cemetery in Santa Nella — an 85-mile drive from the Monterey Peninsula and farther for other Monterey County residents.

A cemetery for local veterans and their families is long overdue, Panetta said.

“I’m a veteran,” he said. “The people who motivated me to serve my country want to be buried there. This could be one of the crown jewels of our community.”

REDWOODS

Countless thousands of dead tanbark oaks provided a surplus of fuel for the fire. As a result, the fire became so hot that it damaged the roots of many redwoods. “Redwoods have really shallow roots systems that are vulnerable to fire,” Frangioso said. Because tanbark oaks grow relatively close to many redwoods — and because many of the dead trees were still standing when the lightning-ignited fire struck — they not only provided extra fuel, but were ladders for the fire to climb, increasing its intensity and impact on redwoods’ branches and needles.

The biggest and oldest redwoods survived, but many of those in the mid-sized range died. Frangioso said trees with trunks ranging from 20 to 50 centimeters in diameter were hit particularly hard by the fire.

While many thousands of dead tanbarks were turned to ashes by the fire, a vast number — dead and alive — still exist. As a result, redwoods will be vulnerable to wild-fires for years to come. Redwoods that exist dinator Jane Barr said the company would, in fact, be allowed to do that since the project wouldn’t rely on public funding.

The project is part of the P.B. Co.’s final build-out plan that includes a new hotel, spa, meeting rooms, parking spaces. The plan, approved in May 2012, also preserves 635 acres of Monterey Pine forest as open space.

Jon Pariser, who grew up in the Bronx before moving to Del Monte Park in Pacific Grove in 1981, pointed to the rich variety of fauna, deer, raccoon, opossum, skunk, coyote and other animals that would be displaced by the project.

“What do we want to do with them,” Pariser said, “take away their homes?”

He also said he doesn’t want his children and grandchildren to experience the concrete, city environment he grew up in.

“I believe the Pebble Beach [Company] has the humanity to stop this project from happening and causing a new urban environment, another New York City” he said.

If you had frequented the corner of 6th and San Carlos Streets twenty years ago or so you might have seen the subject of this week's legend. Louise Asmussen was an unusual lady. Notwithstanding her advancing age, she wore only the most current fashion for the times ... black leather "go-go" boots, a very short skirt, of times a fur jacket, and carefully coiffed blond hair. Most notable, however, was her pet pidgeon ... which traveled along with her on a small basket. We can't recall if it had a name ... but we do remember that Jim Bannerman who ran the 76 station on the present site of Cottage Row loved to call out from his office, "Is that squab ready for the oven yet?!", which would always elicit a lively response. Mrs. Asmussen, together with her husband, operated an antique business above the Hog's Breath for many years. They have both passed from this scene, along with the pidgeon, and somehow that corner has never seemed the same since!

Pebble Beach outpaced Carmel in the third quarter, with Pebble's sales rising relative to last quarter and at a pace likely to match or surpass 2012 sales for the year. Carmel Point is set to break all records this year with 21 closed sales and 5 pending – and zero listings under $2M. Pebble Beach is on pace to match last year's 136 sales with continued strength in the under-$1.5M bracket. The $6-8M bracket is the softest in Pebble, with no sales last quarter and nothing currently in escrow. Supply continues to tighten across both Pebble Beach and Carmel with no listings under $1M in Carmel and just 10 in all of Pebble Beach.

A Cornerstone in Luxury Real Estate for 100 Years

Carmelish — A language that wasn't written — until now

ON THE Internet, you can find a table of translations that sheds light on how difficult it can be for a foreigner to understand what the British say and what they really mean. Here are some examples:

What the British say:
I hear what you say
 What the British mean:
I disagree and do not want to discuss it further
 What outsiders hear:
He accepts my point of view

What the British say:
With the greatest respect
 What the British mean:
You are an idiot
 What outsiders hear:
He is listening to me

I've often felt the same way about what Carmel residents say, what they actually mean, and what outsiders think they are saying.

 To prove my point, I spent years eavesdropping on all sorts of interesting conversations at various coffee houses and drinking establishments in town.
 I also hacked into the NSA's trove of illic-

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

it wiretaps and email intercepts in the 93921.
 And then I retired to the patio at Mission Ranch, where I turned the whole thing into a database so impressive, it's sure to earn me a Ph.D. from MPC in Cultural Anthropology, or at least being nosey.
 And you, dear readers, are the first to be presented with the results of my definitive study of Carmelish — a language so subtle in its nuances, only a local could begin to master it.

What Carmelites say	What they really mean	What visitors understand
Our town is very proud of its trees	Cut one down and go right to jail	We can't see the beach from our hotel
It's a real fixer-upper	Bring a wrecking ball	I just hope it can pass inspection
You can take a dog anywhere	My Shih Tzu is a service dog	Look what I stepped in.
People come from all over the world for Concours Week	The auctions are exciting	You paid what for a 1958 Datsun?
Ocean view!	If you climb the chimney	Is that water or fog?
Galleries galore!	Another painting of that damn cypress	Who buys all those blue dogs?
"Unique, trendy stores"	We shop at Costco	Raise the limit on our Visa
We don't have street lights	Locals carry flashlights	Batteries not included
There are no sidewalks	You're crazy if you wear high heels	Nothing to roll up at night
We don't allow franchises	Wish we had an In-N-Out	I can't get an In-N-Out
Council meetings are open to all	3-minute nap for council members	Fast forward through the replay
Our famous plein air festival	Tripping over dogs and easels	I think it means painting the outside of the house
Clint Eastwood was our mayor	Now he's a Republican	Can I see him at the Hog's Breath?
A world famous Bach Festival	Another week of this?	zzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzz
Scenic golf courses	Anyone can play Pebble	My golf clubs didn't cost that much
"Sorry, no water credit for a half bath"	Keep watering those greens	Our sheets didn't get washed last night
Devendorf Park is a jewel of open green space	We could put two restaurants and a couple more galleries there	"Finally, a place that's dog free!"
Mission Ranch has a great piano bar	We call it Carmel Karaoke	They loved me ... I may try out for American Idol
The house is in the Golden Rectangle	Do the math — it's unaffordable	Rectangle? Triangle? From any angle, we can't afford it
Our houses don't have numbers	"That wasn't an invite, we were just being polite"	I tried finding you but ended up at the Mission
Consider what you're getting for $10 million	Maybe they should look in Spreckels	Maybe we should look in Spreckels
We rent out house out for 10 grand during the AT&T	It's how we pay our Cal Am bill	For 10 grand you'd think there would be 2 bdrms
Our evenings are quiet and sedate	The village closes at 7 p.m.	Where is everybody?
Barking dog awakens neighbors	Two squad cars respond	What a quaint police log
Visit our historic places!	Don't expect us to drive you anywhere	What does "Tor" mean?
