Sick or not, you, too, can start using medical marijuana

By PAUL MILLER

VENICE — WHEN VOTERS approved Prop 215 in 1996, the idea was to make marijuana available for medicinal purposes to “seriously ill Californians.”

That’s what the text of the measure promised, and in the last 17 years, it has certainly delivered, with cancer and surgery patients turning to marijuana for relief of pain and other symptoms.

But in this proudly grungy, beachfront neighborhood of Los Angeles, the evidence is overwhelming that medical marijuana licenses are being issued in large numbers by private clinics to people who are barely sick, if at all. And the purpose seems to be to make money for the doctors who own the clinics, as much as it is to let tens of thousands of Californians get high without being harassed by cops.

Venice has a string of clinics that exist for the sole purpose of issuing medical marijuana licenses, along with a network of stores to sell pot to the people who have them.

Many of the clinics are right on the boardwalk, where the passing mobs of tourists, beachgoers, derelicts and hustlers offer up plenty of potential customers.

Outside the clinics, hawkers dressed in surgical garb the color of marijuana work the crowd, proudly display signs promising “Marijuana Evaluation — $40” and “Doctor on

After undergoing a perfunctory medical exam and handing over $365, clients of a Venice marijuana “clinic” can receive a certificate (left) enabling them to buy pot for a year and a card (upper right) identifying them as legal users of medical marijuana. And they get a free pipe.

Duty,” and encouraging people to get their medical marijuana license.

“Cancer! AIDS! Headaches! High blood pressure! Insomnia!” they cry. “Come on in and get your card!”

Over the years, I’d heard endless stories about how easy it was to get a medical marijuana card, and after seeing the circus-like atmosphere at the marijuana clinics in Venice, I decided to find out for myself.

I’m basically in very good health but have several minor

Cal Am begins process of selecting desal builder

■ Mayors will have say in interviews

By KELLY NIX

EXECUTIVES WITH California American Water next week will begin interviewing the five construction firms vying for the chance to build the water provider’s proposed desalination plant in North Marina.

As part of that process, set to happen Nov. 5 and 6, Cal Am has agreed that an engineer selected by the six Peninsula mayors can participate in the interview process for the multimillion dollar contract and provide feedback to the group.

The Monterey Peninsula Regional Water Authority — composed of the mayors — voted 5-0 Thursday morning at a meeting at Monterey City Hall to approve a $36,000 contract with vice president of Separation Processes Inc. Alex Wesner to oversee the Cal Am interview process. Seaside Mayor Ralph Rubio was absent.

“It’s a pretty big deal for Cal Am to allow that kind of level of involvement,” Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett told The Pine Cone.

According to the agreement with Separation Processes Inc., Wesner will “regularly update and solicit feedback from Burnett and [Monterey Peninsula Water Management District executive director] David Stoldt throughout the interview and negotiation process, and as instructed by either of them, communicate questions and recommendations to Cal Am.”

The five firms Cal Am will interview next week are Black & Veatch Construction, Inc., CDM Constructors, Inc., CH2M Hill Engineers, Inc., Kiewit Infrastructure West Co., and MWH Constructors, Inc.

The contract with SPI is $36,000, with the cost to be split equally between the mayors’ group, Monterey County and the water district. While the other two public agencies haven’t yet paid their share, which drew concern from Sand City Mayor Dave Pendergrass, the consensus was that the agencies would eventually commit to the funding.

And Burnett said the $12,000 from the water authority is worth the expenditure.

“This is potentially a $200 million decision,” Burnett said. “$12,000 either way is not the issue. The issue is whether we want to take Cal Am up on this opportunity, and I feel quite strongly that we do.”

In the end, Pendergrass recommended approving the contract with SPI.

Separation Processes Inc. was the same firm that more than a year ago conducted analyses of the three proposed water projects for the Peninsula and concluded Cal Am’s was

Agha helping bankroll water co. takeover bid

By KELLY NIX

REAL ESTATE investor and would-be desal developer Nader Agha has been the biggest contributor to the new activist group that’s seeking the public takeover of the Peninsula’s privately owned water provider, according to county elections office records.

Agha and one of his companies, HMBY Limited, have donated a total of $5,000 to Ron Cohen’s group Public Water Now, which received $15,768 in contributions and another $14,100 in loans from April 1 to Aug. 31, according to campaign disclosure statements filed with Monterey County Elections in September.

Public Water Now is collecting signatures for a June 2014 ballot measure that will ask voters if they want to take over California American Water and make it a public entity — a move backers say would save ratepayers money but others say would be a distraction from the Peninsula’s long-sought and expensive quest for a new water supply.

Though many in local water politics have speculated that Agha was helping fund Public Water Now, its members have kept quiet about his involvement with the group. Agha has also been tied to WaterPlus, a group that preceded Public Water Now that tried unsuccessfully to take over Cal Am.

Two more city hall employees placed on leave; assistant city admin resigns

■ Quits over secrecy at city hall

By MARY SCHLEY

ASSISTANT CITY administrator Heidi Burch resigned and cleaned out her office in Carmel City Hall this week, and city administrator Jason Stilwell placed two more longtime employees on paid leave, apparently pending investigation into alleged misconduct.

Burch, who became city clerk in 2005 and took over assistant city administrator duties a few years later, told The Pine Cone Thursday she decided to leave the post after city officials redacted dozens of emails requested by the newspaper and said they were being provided under her authority.

“I have been informed that city officials are reporting that I left my position as a result of my recent marriage. That is categorically untrue,” Burch said. “There are many reasons for my resignation. The final determination to leave was after I became aware that documents sent in response to a Public Records Act request had been redacted and sent out under my name, without my review, approval or my ability to send them to the city attorney for legal review, as is current city policy.”

She was speaking of the more than 75 emails between former city councilwoman and Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston and Stilwell, as well as emails between Livingston and Mayor Jason Burnett.

She declined to say more but urged The Pine Cone “to request a copy of my letter of resignation from the city.” The request has been submitted but generated no response from city hall.

Burch, whose exit interview was conducted by Stilwell and Police Chief Mike Calhoun Oct. 29, is on vacation and will then be on call to assist with city business as needed.

Former city councilwoman Paula Hazdovac noted Burch was named the city’s Employee of the Year a few years back

Department heads have generous pay, leave

By MARY SCHLEY

THE FIVE city directors introduced by city administrator Jason Stilwell and Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett at a reception last month to show city hall “has management in place to make the community’s priorities a reality,” and “even more effectively serve the village,” represent 5.5 percent of the city’s workforce and receive 14.2 percent of the salary expenses in the 2013/2014 budget, according to a review of their contracts.

Those managers include longtime city employees Mike Calhoun (public safety) and Janet Cabbage (library), and newcomers Rob Mullane (community planning and building), Sharon Friedrichsen (public services) and Susan Paul (administrative services).

Paul, who oversees human resources, information technology and finance, joined the city Jan. 15 and is the highest paid of the five directors. While she was hired at a

Inseparable

BECAUSE THEY'RE twin sisters, you could say they've been close since before they were born. And since then, they've irrevocably bonded.

At just 8 weeks, Phoebe and Lilith were adopted together and raised to be inseparable. They sleep together, eat together, play together, and have developed a little happy dance, which they perform together when loved ones come home at the end of the day.

They've even been known to perform in public.

"I used to eat at a Mexican restaurant in the Barnyard Shopping Center on Tuesday nights," says their person. "I'd bring the dogs along and, after dinner, we'd go outside to listen to an open-mic session. Sometimes a siren would go off, and my dogs would howl. The guy at the mic asked if I could get my dogs to howl while he played the accordion. I started howling, and my girls joined right in. People are still talking about it."

Phoebe and Lilith love go on runs with their person which often continue past nightfall. As he runs along the edge of Rancho Cañada golf course, he can see the glow of two pair of eyes belonging to his dogs, plus up to five more sets of yellow eyes belonging to the coyotes. Everyone keeps a watchful, yet respectful, distance.

Sometimes Phoebe and Lilith pile into their person's Isuzu Trooper and head down to Carmel Beach, where the identical pair's particular personalities emerge. Lilith chases a kite on the wind, while Phoebe hangs back, worried. Lilith runs into the water after a ball, while Phoebe runs up to the edge and waits. Lilith joins a pack of pups along the shore, while Phoebe scales the bank, scanning for squirrels.

Mostly they prefer to play with each other.

Author risked life to write about opium trade, child brides

By CHRIS COUNTS

IT'S HARD to imagine a country more dangerous for a woman to live — or a journalist to work — than Afghanistan. Fariba Nawa has done both, and she'll talk about it Tuesday, Nov. 5, at All Saints Church.

The author of "Opium Nation: Child Brides, Drug Lords and One Woman's Journey through Afghanistan," Nawa fled the country with her family when she was 9. After growing up in the San Francisco Bay Area and pursuing a career as a journalist, she returned to a Taliban-controlled Afghanistan in 2000 — a year before the war in Afghanistan began. To get there, Nawa had to sneak across the border from Iran.

From 2002 to 2007, Nawa lived in Afghanistan, where she wrote about the war, the country's opium industry, and the impact of Islamic fundamentalism on women. In "Opium Nation," the writer risked her life to interview the subjects she profiled. One of the book's most startling chapters tells the story of a 12-year-old girl who is married to a 46-year-old man so her father can pay off his opium debts.

In addition to writing "Opium Nation," which came out in 2011, Nawa has worked for Mother Jones, the Village Voice, the San Francisco Chronicle, the Christian Science Monitor and other publications.

Nawa's talk is presented by the Carmel Public Library Foundation. The president of its board, Leslie Snorf, said she and her colleagues were impressed with a talk the writer gave in Monterey this past spring.

"She's a riveting speaker," Snorf said. "We are so delighted she accepted our invitation. She is highly intelligent, very articulate, and she talks with passion about her country."

The talk starts at 7 p.m. and is free. The church's Seccomb Community Room will be the site of the event, which is the latest installment in the foundation's Community Night with the Library series. The church is located at Lincoln and Ninth. Call (831) 624-2811.

Second Ruelas brother also gets life without parole

By MARY SCHLEY

JOINING HIS brother, 34-year-old Jacobo Ruelas was sentenced by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Mark Hood Wednesday to life in prison without the possibility of parole for murdering Monterey High School student Kris Olinger in Pacific Grove in 1997. While Angel Ruelas pleaded guilty to murder last spring, Jacobo Ruelas' case finally went to trial in September, more than seven years after his arrest, with a jury finding him guilty Oct. 2 of first-degree murder with special circumstances, carjacking, and kidnaping for robbery.

Ruelas' sentencing marks the end to an ordeal that began in September 1997, when Olinger was killed while taking photographs of the Point Pinos Lighthouse in Pacific Grove for a school assignment. The Ruelas brothers and two accomplices set out that same night to rob somebody and beat him up, prosecutor Jeannine Pacioni told The Pine Cone after Jacobo Ruelas' conviction, but the two men for some reason decided to kill Olinger, stabbing him 29 times before tossing him off a bluff on Sunset Drive and stealing his car.

Olinger managed to pull himself back up to the dirt turnout, where he died, and police later found his car where Angel Ruelas had abandoned it when he attended a concert in San Jose with his girlfriend the day after stabbing Olinger to death. When they found the car 11 days after the murder, detectives had no known suspects and few leads.

But in 2005, Pacific Grove Cmdr. Tom Uretsky — now retired — received information through the California Department of Justice Automated Palm Print System that prints found on Olinger's vehicle matched those of the Ruelas brothers, and investigation led to the identification of eye witnesses. Angel Ruelas was already in prison in Tulare County for an armed robbery and carjacking he committed in 1998, but police had to track down his brother at their family property in Bradley, where they found and arrested Jacobo Ruelas on May 13, 2006.

In August of that year, the Monterey County Grand Jury indicted the men on charges of special circumstance murder, carjacking, and kidnaping, and Angel Ruelas pleaded guilty to special circumstances murder, kidnaping and carjacking with gang and weapon enhancements on April 24, at the start of his jury trial. A few months later, he was sentenced to life without parole.

According to Pacioni, Monterey County District Attorney Dean Flippo acknowledged the struggles of Olinger's family and the perseverance of his stepbrother, Travis Phillips, who carried on the family's efforts to see the murderers caught and convicted. Olinger's mom, Shell, died of cancer in 2003 at the age of 48, and his dad, Loren, died in August 2008. Both were devoted to the cause, as well as to helping other parents who had suffered similar losses, before they died.

"Kris' stepbrother, Travis Phillips, has been committed to seeing that justice was done and was an inspiration to the prosecution team by his unwavering support in our efforts to bring the defendants to trial," Pacioni said.

Flippo also commended P.G. police officers for their work and the "outstanding assistance" of the DA investigators.

Appellate judges hear wealthy Pebble Beach woman's elder abuse case

By KELLY NIX

THE FATE of a Pebble Beach woman who in 2011 was found to have committed financial elder abuse against her husband after she spent millions of dollars of his money on expensive trips and posh jewelry is in the hands of three judges, who recently heard her case on appeal in Salinas.

On Oct. 18, judges with the 6th District Court of Appeal heard oral arguments related to an appeal by Lynne Lintz, who on Aug. 12, 2011, was found liable by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Thomas Wills for taking advantage of her 81-year-old husband, Robert Lintz, who was in declining mental and physical health.

The case stems from a 2009 lawsuit against Lintz by Robert Lintz' adult children, James and Susan Lintz, who alleged their stepmother spent as much as $100,000 per month and used undue influence to control their father's finances.

Lintz, a real estate developer, died in October 2009, four-and-a-half-years after the couple was married.

After Wills' 2011 judgment, Lintz appealed the civil case, and attorneys for both sides argued before the appellate judges at the Monterey County Board of Supervisors chambers. The panel was composed of Presiding Justice Conrad Rushing and associate justices Miguel Marquez and Adrienne Grover, a former Monterey County Superior Court judge.

Though Carmel attorneys Frank Hesse and Al Nicora are representing Robert Lintz's family, they hired San Francisco attorney James Wagstaffe — who specializes in appellate-court cases — to argue their clients' case before the judges at the Oct. 18 hearing.

"We essentially argued that the ruling of Judge Wills was correct," Hesse told The Pine Cone, "and that the court of appeal should uphold the decision of Judge Wills, who found Lynne Lintz had committed undue influence and financial abuse over Bob Lintz."

The judges' decision should be issued within a couple of weeks, Hesse said.

San Francisco attorney Nicholas Emanuel, who presented an argument in defense of Lintz, said "marriage is a fundamental right" and that "married couples have the right to be left alone, and to be free from unwarranted governmental interference into their private affairs."

Spent lots

Lynne Lintz's spending spree, according to the lawsuit, included a $60,000 cruise to New Zealand, $23,800 trip to Africa and other vacations to Australia and Vail, Colorado.

In 2008, the much younger Lintz allegedly spent more than $860,000 using two separate American Express cards. She also spent more than $500,000 of her husband's funds. Her purchases included more than $74,000 in TV shopping, $94,000 in jewelry, $59,000 in clothing and $400,000 for various vehicles, the lawsuit alleged.

The jewelry she purchased included a $10,675 ring she bought in San Francisco, a $4,004 gold bracelet she pur-

P.G. employees to wage campaign against outsourcing of city services

By KELLY NIX

THE PRESIDENT of the Pacific Grove employees union said this week that the city's workers will wage a campaign to oppose the plan to outsource some of the services the P.G. provides to residents, a move he said will also cost more than two dozen jobs.

In a letter distributed to the city's employees, P.G. Employees Association president John Goss said that workers will be going door to door, handing out fliers to warn residents that hiring private companies to perform traditional city services — a possibility outlined earlier this month by city manager Tom Frutchey — will mean the loss of municipal jobs, even though the work would still be done by somebody with a job.

"The result of the proposal will be a reduction of services," Goss wrote, "and the loss of many jobs — possibly 25 or more full- and part-time positions."

In a letter Oct. 18, Frutchey outlined the possibility of privatizing some services, including janitorial services, sewer maintenance, street striping, tree trimming and some golf links services, which could save taxpayers' money. Goss, who is a public works employee, said the city is also considering outsourcing El Carmelo Cemetery services.

To protest the possible privatization, Goss said some city workers will launch a campaign, which will take shape in letters of protest mailed to city hall and council members.

They will also post notices at the post office and some local stores. Yard signs protesting the possibility of outsourcing services will also be available, he said.

In his Oct. 18 letter, Frutchey pointed to the decline in golf play at the city's publicly-owned, city-run links as one of the reasons to consider privatization — which would first involve the city putting the services out to bid.

Behind closed doors?

While the council is set to begin a public discussion on the topic at its Nov. 6 meeting — a conversation that would likely last for several more meetings — Goss accused the city of not being transparent and said none of the council members directed Frutchey to look into the idea.

"So the assumption can be made that the city council is making decision about the city's largest assets and some of the city's most important services behind closed doors," Goss said, "or the city manager is promoting his own agenda [privatization] without council direction."

Pacific Grove Mayor Bill Kampe denied this week that council members were meeting secretly to go over details of the possibility.

"We cannot discuss matters that would affect conditions of employment unless we meet with the employees," said Kampe, referring to the Meyers-Milius-Brown Act requirement that cities negotiate with employee union representatives regarding wages, hours or other employment conditions.

By outsourcing some city services, Kampe estimates that the equivalent of 15 full-time city positions would be replaced with private sector workers. More than 9 part-time positions would also be privatized, he said.

Kampe denied Goss' contention that the city's cemetery's services would be privatized, and said the public would be fully involved.

"The cemetery is not on the list," Kampe said. "We will absolutely have the key discussions both prior to the [putting the city's services out to bid] and there will be a lot of time for public input."

Kampe is one of the authors of the proposed Pension Reform Act of 2014 a proposed ballot measure that seeks to give government agencies authority to change employees' pension and health benefits in order to reduce skyrocketing costs. The other mayors who are backing the proposed measure are San Jose Mayor Chuck Reed, Santa Ana Mayor Miguel Pulido, Anaheim Mayor Tom Tait and San Bernardino Mayor Pat Morris.

Some golfers have said that Pacific Grove should lease out the pro shop operations to a private concessionaire, which had been done for years until 2006 when the city took over the operations in order to make more of a profit.

However, the number of golf rounds played and shop sales have dwindled since then.

Goss urged residents to attend the Nov. 6 council meeting at city hall, 300 Forest Ave., where council members will weigh in on the idea.

Lion munches deer, buzzards line up for feast

By CHRIS COUNTS

ALTHOUGH THEY didn't know it at the time, a Carmel couple was awakened Oct. 26 by the sound of a mountain lion attacking a deer in their neighborhood.

The incident happened on Upper Trail, a short distance from where Valley Way meets Carpenter.

Paul Askounis and Marilyn Francesco heard a "a galloping noise" in their backyard at about 4 a.m., but they had no idea what kind of animal was making it.

"There seemed to be something going back and forth in the dim moonlight," Askounis recalled. "We heard a sort of bleating noise and then turned on a light, but could not see anything. The next morning we saw agitated leaves and pine needles in the backyard but did not notice anything more."

Later the same day, the couple noticed turkey vultures circling nearby.

"We took a closer look and noticed a dead adult female deer in the backyard of the adjacent house," Askounis explained. "The doe had a wound on the throat and had been opened up with ribs exposed and entrails pulled out. It had been attacked by something in the night and killed."

The couple reported the incident that day to the Monterey County Sheriff and were told the deer's carcass would likely be removed Monday. Meanwhile, it appeared the mountain lion revisited the carcass the following night.

"On Sunday morning, the carcass had been moved about 12 feet away overnight and more had been eaten," Askounis explained. "Whatever it was, it came back, which was kind of disturbing."

Another neighbor, Jon Glades, had no doubt it was a mountain lion that killed the deer.

"It had to be," Glades surmised. "It was a very quick kill. A big chunk of its abdomen was missing. It had to be a pretty good sized animal."

Glades said the kill attracted quite a flock of turkey vultures.

"I counted 11 of them," he reported. "They were perched like sentinels on treetops and utility poles, and they took turns working on the carcass. It was obviously a team effort."

The neighborhood's thriving population of crows, meanwhile, laid low. Glades suggested they had been "routed" by the arrival of so many turkey vultures.

While the neighborhood looks like a pretty civilized place, Glades pointed out that there are ample greenbelts nearby for wildlife like mountain lions to thrive.

"We think we live in a peaceful, idyllic neighborhood," he added. "But my dogs look at me and say, 'It's a jungle out there.'"

DA launches medical fraud unit

THE MONTEREY County District Attorney's Office is receiving tax money from the California Department of Insurance to investigate and prosecute disability and health-care fraud via a prosecution team specifically focused on that particularly specialized and complicated area of criminal law, according to District Attorney Dean Flippo.

The money will cover salaries for a senior prosecutor and an investigator who will work closely with CDI and other state agencies — including the California Medical Board, the Department of Justice, the Employment Development Department and the California Department of Health Services — to investigate and prosecute cases involving use of false identity to secure healthcare benefits, embezzlement, unlawful solicitations/referrals, fraudulent billing, inflated or falsified pharmacy billings, prescription fraud and abuse, outpatient surgery center fraud, Medi-Cal fraud and fraudulent disability claims.

Deputy District Attorney Amy Patterson, who has been prosecuting domestic violence and other felony cases since 2006, was selected as the prosecutor for the new Disability and Healthcare Fraud unit. In that role, she'll develop an outreach program to inform the public, medical providers, insurance companies and law enforcement agencies about preventing and investigating fraud. An investigator will be assigned to the unit soon.

Because of the difficulty of investigating such cases, California's code allows an extended statute of limitations for medical fraud, and provides for a maximum punishment of five years in state prison, as well as substantial fines for various felony counts.

The family of Shirley C. Paul is sad to announce her passing on October 21, 2013. Shirley courageously and with dignity and grace fought a valiant battle with MS and Cancer.

Shirley was born in Canada where she spent her youth. She moved to California and fell in love with it, living the rest of her life here. She earned her BA in Anthropology and Art at U of C Santa Barbara.

She will be missed, and always be remembered for her adventurous spirit, creativity and her love of nature, art and learning.

Shirley was predeceased by her father, John Pearce, mother Anne Pearce, and sister Ann Russell. She is survived, and will be missed by her brother, John Pearce, brother-in-law Richard Russell, nieces Stacey Robinson, Kristen Russell, and Carolyne Rickett, nephew Mathew Rickett, and their families, as well as many other family members, and wonderful friends, whom she considered family.

At Shirley's request there was no formal memorial. Should anyone wish, a contribution to their favorite charity may be made in lieu of flowers.

Registrar says just one house in P.B. received wrong voter guide

By KELLY NIX

MONTEREY COUNTY'S acting registrar of voters said he is confident that only one household in Pebble Beach received sample ballots containing incorrect voter information.

A Del Monte Forest couple that lives on the border of the Carmel Unified and Monterey Peninsula Unified school districts — but are legally within Carmel Unified School District boundaries — received two voter guides that incorrectly gave them the option of voting for Monterey Peninsula Unified School District trustee candidates. The guides contain information about candidates and ballot measures, and include a sample ballot.

But registrar Claudio Valenzuela told The Pine Cone Tuesday that he believes the husband and wife are the only voters in Del Monte Forest who were mailed the wrong voter guides. Each Monterey County voter guide contains a sample ballot.

He blamed the error on non-sequential numerical addresses on the street where the couple lives.

"From time to time, this thing happens," Valenzuela said, "especially when there are addresses out of sequence."

One of the residents, who didn't want to be identified, told The Pine Cone that he was surprised when he and his wife, both retirees, noticed that they had the option of voting for three MPUSD trustee candidates.

"We have no connection to Monterey Peninsula Unified, as far as I can tell," he told The Pine Cone before receiving confirmation that the elections office mailed him the wrong voter guide.

The house off of Sunridge Road where the couple lives is steps away from the border of the CUSD and MPUSD boundaries in that part of Pebble Beach. Their neighbors received correct voter guides, Valenzuela said. Depending on the address, Del Monte Forest residents lie within either MPUSD, CUSD or Pacific Grove Unified School District boundaries.

Still, Valenzuela has directed elections office staff to double check to make sure correct voter guides were mailed to other residents who live near the couple who got the wrong guide.

"I asked my [information technology worker] to check all the addresses in the area to make sure," Valenzuela said.

He called the oversight a "very unique case" that seldom occurs and phoned the residents early Wednesday.

"I offered to deliver a new voter guide, but they didn't want one," Valenzuela said. "They will go to the same polling place as always, and they will be voting on the correct ballot."

Election day is Tuesday, Nov. 5. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. In addition to the school board elections, voters throughout the county will have a chance to help determine the future of Fort Ord by voting on Measures K and M; in P.G., voters will decide on Measure G, a technological school bond to benefit the Pacific Grove Unified School District.

Mo is a 55 pound, 10-year-old Shepherd mix. He is great with other dogs big and small. Once he gets to know you, he is very playful. He greets people he knows with a bounce in his step and a play bow. He walks nicely on a leash and rides well in the car. He is house trained. He can probably be trained to live with a kitty. Chapter Ten

The Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (SOX) was enacted in response to major corporate, legal, and accounting scandals related to companies like Enron, Tyco, Adelphia, Peregrine, and WorldCom. As a result of SOX, top management, including legal and accounting, must certify that they have supplied complete and accurate information in their public reports. Penalties are severe.

Pacific Grove and other cities and counties need a SOX that applies to PERS, union officials, managers, attorneys, and department heads. In my view, if a SOX had been in place for PERS in 1999, when it defrauded the legislature into approving a 50% retroactive pension increase, the responsible PERS officials would still be in jail.

In my opinion, every incident that I have described in this series occurred because of intentional and grossly negligent conduct by some or all of the PG agencies involved, and of course by PERS. Many of my readers believe that the city councils should have seen through the flawed presentations, but I disagree. Must it be necessary for the council to distrust city staff? They deserve help.

As an example, consider the 2002 adoption of the illegal pension increase for police and fire. My 40 years of experience as a trial attorney enabled me to pursue missing documents. One of those documents was the actuary report describing the cost of the new benefit: it was required to be in the hands of the council before it could adopt the 2002 pension increase, but had been intentionally hidden from them. The report meant little to me. But when I showed it to a member of that 2002 council (a Ph.D. in math from Caltech), he immediately realized that the council had been flagrantly defrauded into approving the massive pension increase.

A real problem in city government (since the legalization of public unions) is that there is no trained advocate for truth in government decision making. The present system has the unions and city management on the same side, both in favor of unconscionable salaries and pensions. It has created a runaway train-like effect for city and county finances. That has been accomplished by control of truth (or not), including the purchase of biased and "as requested" studies and legal opinions. Every city in Monterey County has an uncontrollable pension deficit, sparked by a system of raising salaries and benefits to the highest of any surrounding city (in total defiance of the laws of supply and demand). PG is worse off than surrounding cities because management took higher risks in a city with a low tax base. Greed has had no limits in PG.

I would like to see the PG charter amended to provide for a "Citizens' Advocate" elected every two years, to fully advise the council and citizens and to represent the city in collective bargaining. The advocate would be a contract auditor of the truth and completeness of staff proposals, and completely independent of staff.

In PG, and in many other cities and counties, staff and legislative bodies act as if the destruction of its financial condition just happened and that no entity or officer was at fault. It is time to make PG government responsible to its citizens. Reform is in order. The status quo is not an option. If not now, when? And of course electing qualified citizens to the council is key. Why won't they run?

CHS grad getting a kick out of college

By CHRIS COUNTS

IF HE graduates from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., with a degree in biomedical engineering, Andrew Franks will have many options in life. But his powerful right foot could potentially launch him on a very different path.

A kicker and punter for Rensselaer football team, Franks recently made a 67-yard field goal in practice. To put the distance of his kick in perspective, the NFL record for a field goal is 63 yards.

A member of the Carmel High School football team that won the Central Coast Section title in 2009, Franks attends a college better known for its academic reputation than its gridiron prowess.

Considered America's oldest technological research university, the school takes studying seriously. Its football team — which plays in the Division III Liberty League — even goes by the bookish nickname of the Engineers.

As a sophomore last season, Franks was named as a kicker to the All-East Region first team and the All-Liberty League first team. He made eight of 14 field goal attempts and 31 of 34 extra point tries. This year, he's made eight of 10 field goal attempts and 14 of 16 extra point tries.

Perhaps most impressive, 13 of Franks' kickoffs this season have been touchbacks. The rest of the kickers in the league have totaled just 15.

For the Padres, Franks not only kicked and punted, but played wide receiver, line-backer and defensive back. He was named by the Salinas Californian and the Monterey County Herald to the All Monterey County Football Team in 2009 and 2010.

After showing off his versatility at Carmel High, Franks is focusing on kicking and punting at Rensselaer, which is just fine by first-year coach Ralph Isernia.

"In my opinion, he's the best kicker in our league," Isernia told The Pine Cone. "He's a valuable weapon."

Isernia said he isn't surprised by Frank's success.

"He stayed here [in Troy] last summer and practiced virtually every day," the coach recalled. "He's talented, he's strong and he has an amazing work ethic. He's a tremendous talent who works hard, and he's an even better person. He's a leader on our football team."

Is he good enough to play in the NFL? Isernia didn't rule it out. "He may have the potential to play at the next level," he added.

Franks conceded the thought of playing on football's biggest stage "crosses my mind every now and then."

"But it's still a ways away," he cautioned. "If I improve, it's something I would like to entertain."

For now, the Carmel High graduate is focused on getting a biomedical engineering degree, which would offer him a pretty secure backup plan to being a pro football player. "Either route I choose, I'll be happy," Franks added.

Flood project could push back grand opening of Palo Corona park

By CHRIS COUNTS

OFFERING STUNNING vistas and miles of trails — yet located just minutes from the heart of Carmel — 4,300-acre Palo Corona Regional Park would likely be a magnet for hikers if it only had a parking lot.

But until it gets one, it seems destined to be one of the Monterey Peninsula's best kept secrets.

Park officials want to build a 50-vehicle parking area just inside the park's main entrance, which is located east of Highway 1 and less than a mile south of Rio Road. But the project's fate could be tied to an ambitious flood-control project, potentially delaying it for years.

For now, the park is open to the public on a limited, reservation-only basis.

Tim Jensen of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District told The Pine Cone last week that before the parking lot is opened to the public, a left hand turn lane would need to be created for motorists traveling south along Highway 1. That would seem like an easy task, but state and county officials would like the construction of the turn lane to coincide with construction on the Carmel River Causeway Project, which among its many features, would raise Highway 1 and reduce the flood risk of nearby homes. It would also require a do-over of the left-turn lane project.

In a best-case scenario, county planning official Carl Holm said the causeway project will take about two years to complete. Most likely it would require three years to finish, and possibly longer if there are delays.

According to Jensen, the park district three options: it can build the parking lot and keep it closed for two years or longer; delay building the parking lot and risk losing $250,000 in funding, or build the parking lot and ask the California Department of Transportation to permit — on a temporary basis — the restriping of Highway 1 and the widening of its shoulder to accommodate motorists turning left into the park.

While the third option would seem ideal, Jensen said Caltrans would need to approve it, and liability issues would need to be resolved.

"We don't want them to feel vulnerable," Jensen said.

Palo Corona Park, which overlooks Carmel Point and Carmel River State Beach, is beautiful, but there has to be parking before the public can fully access it.

Award-winning guitarist writes music, talks to burros, in Big Sur

By CHRIS COUNTS

LIKE MANY before him, Grammy Award-winning jazz artist Bill Frisell has searched for creative inspiration in the solitude of Big Sur.

The guitarist — who plays Wednesday, Nov. 6, at Sunset Center — stayed for 10 days in the summer of 2012 at the Glen Devin Ranch. Owned by the Big Sur Land Trust, the 860-acre property is located in the hills above Rocky Point, about 12 miles south of Carmel.

Arranged by the land trust and the Monterey Jazz Festival, Frisell's Big Sur sojourn proved to be a fruitful time for him creatively. At the Glen Devin Ranch, Frisell wrote the music for his latest recording, appropriately titled, "Big Sur."

From the titles of the record's songs — "Highway 1," "Hawks" and "A Beautiful View" — it's clear the guitarist was affected by his surroundings. The day after he arrived, he sent Lana Weeks of the Big Sur Land Trust and Tim Jackson of the jazz festival a text message saying so. "When you said, 'big landscape,' I had no idea how big you meant," Frisell wrote.

Accompanied by his guitar, a pencil and a paper, Frisell immersed himself in his music.

At one point during the stay, having gone a week without human contact, the guitarist found himself talking to the burros who live on the ranch. He was startled by the sound of his own voice.

"He loved it here," Weeks told The Pine Cone. "He said he hadn't had such wonderful time with his guitar in decades. His music really flowed."

Weeks suggested Frisell carry a walking stick — not just for support on hikes around the ranch, but also as a deterrent in case he

Master painter offers glimpse of iconic landscape show

By CHRIS COUNTS

SETTING THE stage for a larger exhibit opening later this month at the Museum of Monterey, painter David Ligare unveils a display of his work Saturday, Nov. 2, at Winfield Gallery.

Titled, "River/Mountain/Sea," the museum show opens Nov. 20. The focus of it will be three large landscapes — each 60-inches-by-90-inches — depicting familiar Monterey County scenes. In each painting, Ligare attempts to capture "the essence of this celebrated land." He presents those same iconic scenes in the Winfield Gallery exhibit.

Taking a classical approach to painting, Ligare has long been fascinated by the myths of ancient Greece and Rome. He's also drawn to the Mediterranean landscape — and he sees it mirrored in golden rolling hills of the Central California Coast. "Much of the county does in fact resemble Greece and Italy," Ligare observed. "Where we live, Corral de Tierra, the landscape looks remarkably like parts of Tuscany and Umbria."

Winfield calls Ligare's new work "a mediation on Monterey."

"He a master painter," Winfield said. "There's a clarity to his work. He uses the afternoon light in everything he does. It's very much the California light. He really nails it."

The show continues through Nov. 30. The gallery is located on the east side of Dolores near Ocean. Call (831) 624-3369.

Ratatouille school, Tannenbaum lighting, wine blending and chocolate pairing

WITH THEIR containers of freshly cut produce marked in French and their teacher walking around the well lit classroom and kitchen at the MEarth Habitat, Carmel Middle School eighth graders taking French 2 engaged in an "Iron Chef"-like cooking competition Tuesday afternoon, all in pursuit of improving their foreign-language skills.

Their task: Create a ratatouille — the traditional Provençal stew of tomatoes, egg-plant, summer squash, bell peppers and herbs — that would provide the best overall flavor, presentation and plating, and creativity.

Feverishly tending to pots atop single burners, four different teams of students combined their culinary efforts with produce they picked from the MEarth organic garden and a few "secret ingredients" to come up with the dish they hoped would win.

Each team had a name — Team Ignite, Je T'aime, The French-Mexican War and The Master Chef Juniors — and they prepared their plates to deliver to the judges for consideration as everyone in the room counted down the final seconds. In French, of course.

The results were impressive, from the ratatouille wrap (created by The French-Mexican War team) and the neatly arranged stew with warmed bread and cherry tomatoes (The Master Chef Juniors), to the more traditional dishes garnished with flowers and herbs, and nicely plated. Je T'aime won for presentation, while the Master Chef Juniors took the prize for flavor.

The pursuit was just one example of how the nonprofit MEarth, also known as the Hilton Bialek Biological Sciences Habitat Project, is used not just to teach kids about growing fruits and veggies, and about biology and science, but about language, history and cooking, as well.

The habitat hosts lessons daily and holds special events throughout the year, including pop-up dinners with notable local chefs, plant sales and other gatherings.

■ Holiday wine pairing

A holiday-themed demonstration on how to develop wine pairings will be led by Kathleen and Gus Gustat in the De Tierra tasting room in downtown Carmel Thursday, Nov. 7, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Robison and Gustat will guide guests through three De Tierra wines, showing how to develop pairings for holiday feasts and parties. Customers will taste and evaluate the 2010 Sargenti Chardonnay, 2008 Silacci Pinot Noir and 2008 Estate Merlot for pairing potential and then learn how to build recipes to highlight their best attributes.

The cost is $45 per person, and the group is limited to 20 participants, so advance ticket purchase is required by visiting www.detierra.com/Wine/Event-Tickets. The De Tierra Vineyards Tasting Room is located at Mission and Fifth.

■ Blending Galante

Galante Vineyards is holding its annual Blending Bash at the winery in Cachagua Saturday, Nov. 9, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The $500-per-person price includes "a fabulous lunch prepared by Jack Galante himself, all the wine you could ever hope to taste," and a seminar on wine blending, after which participants create their own blends. When their work is done, attendees will take part in a blind tasting competition, and each Master

For reservations for either event, call (831) 624-3800.

■ The Lighting of the Tannenbaum

Baum & Blume and The Carriage House in Carmel Valley will hold its annual holiday open house, this year themed Dreaming of Winterland, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 9-10, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

"We have transformed our store and pantry into a holiday extravaganza — snowflakes and stars abound," said owner Deb Wenzler, and trees full of ornaments, unique gifts, holiday cards, fashionable clothes and hats, and other items complement the handmade fruitcakes, preserves and gourmet goodies.

During the open house, six guest wineries will be on hand to offer samples of their latest vintages, including Mercy Vineyards, Seebass Family Wines from Ukiah, Refugio Ranch from Los Olivos, Petroni Vineyards from Sonoma, and DFV Wines of Monterey County. Hors d'oeuvres will be served all day from the B&B kitchen to pair nicely with the wines, and Chef Deric will show how to make duck prosciutto. Live music, a talk on Christmas tree care by nurseryman Steve McShane, hourly door prizes, and a painting demonstration will take place, too. Attendance is free.

Baum & Blume is located at 4 El Caminito in Carmel Valley Village, near the Bernardus Tasting Room.

■ A backroom dinner

Cantinetta Luca will hold a one-night Cioppino Backroom Dinner Wednesday, Nov. 13, offering open seating between 5 and 10 p.m.

For $23.95 pre-sale, or $28.95 at the door, guests will get their fill of cioppino, a small salad and garlic bread. Draft beer, as well as house red and house white, will go for an additional $5 per glass.

No reservations will be taken for the backroom dinner, but tickets can be purchased at lucacioppino.brownpapertickets.com. Cantinetta Luca is located on the west side of Dolores Street south of Ocean Avenue. Call (831) 625-6500 for more information, or visit cantinettaluca.com.

■ Rio turns 30

The Rio Grill will celebrate its 30th anniversary with a fundraiser for the Food Bank of Monterey County Thursday, Nov. 14, from 6 to 9 p.m., with all of the $30-per-person ticket price benefiting the food bank, which provides for the needy through soup kitchens, food pantries and other outreach efforts. The Rio Grill, its vendors and partners are donating the entire party, so every dollar can be used for eradicating hunger.

The party will include "flavors and memories from the 1980s, '90s and '00s," allowing longtime customers and fans a walk down the Rio's culinary memory lane. The only way to find out what that entails is to show up ready to eat and drink — and ready to help raise $10,000 for the food bank.

For more information and tickets, visit riogrillanniversarybenefit.eventbrite.com. The restaurant is located in the Crossroads shopping center at Highway 1 and Rio Road.

■ Holiday party at Galeria Dos

The Haute Enchilada's Galeria Dos in Moss Landing will present a Holiday Party Saturday, Nov. 2, also benefiting the Food Bank for Monterey County, with 10 percent of the proceeds that afternoon going to the nonprofit that seeks to end hunger. The Pankind Calypso Jazz band will play while guests sip holiday cocktails and nibble on hors d'oeuvres from the Haute Enchilada, which turns out great cuisine like tamales, roasted Brussels sprouts salad, Cuban pork with eggs, sand dabs and other delights. Food donations will be accepted, too.

The restaurant also announced its new Happy Hour Monday through Friday from 4 to 6 p.m., when patrons can get $5 house wine, $3 draft beers and $5 margaritas. (No mention of the Pisco Sours, but even if they are full price, they're worth it.)

The Haute Enchilada Cafe and Galeria Dos are located at 7902 Moss Landing Road. Call (831) 633-5843 or visit www.hauteenchilada.com to learn more.

■ Trio celebrates fall

Crisp, sunny days, chilly nights and the abundance of harvest mark the arrival of fall, and Trio Carmel, the olive oil and vinegar shop on Dolores Street owned by Karl and Charlotte Empey, will hold its Fall Celebration Friday, Nov. 15, from 6 to 8 p.m. Chris Weidemann of Pelerin Wines will team up with executive chef Brad Briske of La Balena for the party, and the Andino Duo from Columbia will perform.

Since opening a year ago under the ownership of Emanuele and Anna Bartolini, La Balena on Junipero Street has become a local favorite, and Pelerin wines have a large fan base, as well — and are offered for sale at Trio.

Trio Carmel combines art, wine and olive oil (as well as balsamic vinegar) in its well lit store south of Ocean Avenue, and also offers accouterments for food-and-wine aficionados, from salts and cutting boards, to special vessels for oils and vinegars. Customers are invited to taste the oils and vinegars, and to sample some of the wines offered for sale there, too, as Trio is the exclusive tasting room for Pelerin Wines, Ian Brand & Family Winery, and Mesa Del Sol Vineyards.

The cost to attend the Fall Celebration is $40 per person

($35 for Trio club members), and reservations are required. For further information and to reserve, call (831) 250-7714 or email events@triocarmel.com. Visit www.triocarmel.com to learn more.

■ Celebrating P.G. chefs

The Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce will celebrate Pacific Grove chefs during its inaugural Grand Tasting Saturday, Nov. 16, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. But the P.G.-oriented event will not take place in Pacific Grove, instead being held in the Inn at Spanish Bay.

More than a dozen local notables have signed up to prepare hors d'oeuvres, among them Ted Walter of Passionfish, Pierre Bain from Fandango, Jeff Weiss from the new Jeninni Kitchen and Wine Bar Dory Ford of AquaTerra Culinary, Briana Summut and Guillaume D'Angio from The Beach House Restaurant, Tamie Aceves from Crema, Dean and Debbie Young of Classic Catering, Danny Abbruzzese from Asilomar Conference Grounds, Robert Kershner from Canterbury Woods and Mark Davis of Vivolo's Chowder House. Their creations will be accompanied by local wines.

Music by the Money Band, and silent and live auctions, will round out the evening. The cost is $40 per person in advance and $50 at the door. For more information and to buy tickets, go to www.pacificgrove.org or call (831) 373-3304.

ran into a mountain lion. "He took it with him everywhere," she said.

While the ranch was a pleasant surprise for Frisell, so too was the guitarist's new CD for Weeks. She was driving on Highway 1 in Big Sur one day listening to KUSP when the DJ played a selection from the record. Excited, Weeks pulled off the road to listen to it. When the song was over, the DJ told listeners the track was called "Song for Lana Weeks."

"I almost fell out of my truck," she recalled. "I couldn't believe it."

A year after his stay on the ranch, Frisell returns to play the record he composed there at Sunset Center. Like much of the guitarist's work, "Big Sur" strays far from the confines of jazz. The record is infused with country, rock, chamber music, Americana and even surf guitar.

For Weeks and the land trust, Frisell's stay at the ranch — and the CD it helped spawn — showcase the value of preserving open space, which is the mission of the nonprofit land conservation group.

"We wanted to bring a musician out here and let nature inspire him," Weeks added. "It was very cool to give an artist that opportunity. Bill was a perfect fit."

The concert starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $29 to $80. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 620-2040.

Counter service, composite shingles and garbage fees on council agenda

By MARY SCHLEY

TWO APPEALS, financial reports, job descriptions and salaries, a trash-hauling rate increase and another attempt to approve new building codes are among the items of business the Carmel City Council is set to consider at its regular meeting Tuesday, Nov. 5, starting at 4:30 p.m. in city hall.

After receiving a quarterly financial report, the council will hear from Dolores Street property owner David Goldenson, who wants the council to overturn the planning commission's denial of his request to replace the wood shingles on his roof with composition shingles.

The council will then determine whether Carmel Belle, the restaurant located in the Doud Arcade at San Carlos and Ocean, can continue to take orders and payment from customers at the walk-up counter before the patrons sit down at their tables. When owners Jay and Chloe Dolata recently received approval to add seats to their busy eating establishment, the planning commission told them they had to stop taking payment at the counter because the municipal code doesn't allow it, even though the restaurant has operated that way for decades.

The code defines a full-line restaurant as one in which patrons sit and receive table service, and pay for their meals after eating, and since an expansion can not allow a non-conformity to increase, the commission had to require the practice be stopped in order to approve the additional seats. At the Sept. 11 planning commission meeting, new planning and building services director Rob Mullane suggested the council take on that particular requirement on appeal by the Dolatas.

Next, Waste Management will propose a rate increase, and members will weigh in on the city's proposed IT plan. They'll also take another crack at adopting the 2013 California Building, Residential, Energy, Fire, Mechanical, Plumbing, Electrical, and California Green codes with amendments.

Items on the council's consent calendar — which can be approved in one fell swoop without discussion unless a council person or member of the public requests to talk about a particular proposal — include adoption of the job description and salary range for a senior human resources analyst, and salaries for the building official, city clerk and deputy city clerk; a resolution calling for the April 8, 2014, election for two council positions and the mayor's seat; establishment of a building permit fee for state-mandated weekly construction inspections when it rains; a resolution authorizing certain people to examine sales and use tax records; and budget adjustments.

Earlier in the meeting, before the public hearings begin, presentations will be made on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, an agenda forecast, the Conde Nast readers choice award the city received, and a summary of Monday's workshop on parking.

That workshop will be held Nov. 4, also in city hall, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., and will involve an informal discussion of parking issues in town, including current conditions and recommendations for improving them. City officials and a consultant will take part in the talks about parking management, one of the priorities the council set for this year.

City hall is located on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean. For more information or a complete agenda packet, visit the city's website at ci.carmel.ca.us.

ART

Grove Art Center.

A display of the artist's work, "From the Ridiculous to the Sublime," continues through Dec. 12.

"Guests can view Cirimele's fascinating current show and drop by to ask him questions about the work and his creative process," art center director Alana Puryear said.

In addition to Cirimele's exhibit, the gallery presents its annual fundraising Patrons' Show, which showcases a wealth of local artistic talent. Raffle tickets equal to the number of pieces in the display will be sold, and a drawing Dec. 8 will determine what order the pieces will be selected by ticket holders.

Tickets are $40 for art center members and $75 for non-members. Proceeds benefit the art center.

Also featured at the art center are exhibits by Ruben Cipriano Martin ("The Art of Impermanence") and ceramic artist Mark Tanous ("Reckless & Vain: Wrestling with the Classics").

The talk begins at 1 p.m. The gallery is located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. Call (831) 375-2208.

■ Boutique welcomes painter

The work of Southern California painter Patricia Gonzalez is featured in a show opening Saturday, Nov. 2, at Chartreuse.

Titled "Things the Bind Us," the display presents "exotic landscapes infused with color and consuming vegetation" that "explore imagined and magical worlds."

The reception, which features music by guitarist Jxel Rachjenberg, begins at 6 p.m. The exhibit continues through the end of the month. A shop specializing in textiles, clothing and accessories, Chartreuse is located in Carmel Plaza. Call (831) 622-9933.

and also observed that the City of Carmel won the Golden Pine Cone for the Best Place to Work in 2010. Stilwell became city administrator the next year.

Since his arrival in September 2011, at least a dozen employees have either retired, quit, been fired or been placed on paid administrative leave. The latest to join that last group are administrative coordinators Leslie Fenton and Margi Perotti, both longtime city employees, who on Tuesday were placed on paid leave pending investigations into alleged misconduct. Other recently ousted workers quickly heard about and disseminated the news.

Neither Fenton nor Perotti is an at-will employee, and they can seek help from a lawyer via their union.

Their removal from city hall puts them in a growing group that includes former building official John Hanson, who was fired this summer for unknown reasons, and IT manager Steve McInchak and his assistant, Rose Franzen, who were placed on leave in June.

Police also searched McInchak's home in Carmel Valley on allegations of computer hacking, but so far no reports have been submitted to the Monterey County District Attorney's Office for possible filing of criminal charges.

Big Sur Half Marathon Nov. 17

THOUSANDS OF runners, walkers and other athletes will converge on the Monterey Peninsula for the Big Sur Half Marathon and related events the weekend of Nov. 15-17. Jack R. Morley

November 23, 1925-October 17, 2013

CARMEL, CA - Jack R. Morley, who was chairman of FinanceAmerica Corp., formerly a wholly owned subsidiary of the Bank of America Corp., and who led many of the bank's businesses, later serving as chairman of Northern California Presbyterian Homes & Services, has died. He was 87.

Morley passed away, surrounded by his wife, Dona, and family, at Community Hospital of Monterey Peninsula, from pneumonia and leukemia, Oct. 17. He was a resident of Carmel, CA.

Morley joined the Bank of America management training program in 1948, serving as lending officer, assistant manager, and as the bank's youngest manager at 29, at various Southern California branches. In 1960, he joined the bank's National Division as assistant vice president and then vice president in corporate finance.

In 1964, Morley became president of the new Heritage National Bank, in Westwood, CA. He led the acquisition of Wilshire Bank, forming Heritage Wilshire National Bank, and the acquisition by First National Bank of San Diego, which became Southern California First National Bank.

Morley returned to Bank of America as vice president, heading the Southern California office of its Small Business Enterprises Company, in 1969. In 1970, he joined the Bank of America Corp. in San Francisco, as senior vice president, leading the BA Mortgage Company and the acquisition of 13 financial subsidiaries, including GAC Finance, renamed FinanceAmerica, in Allentown, PA. He was named chairman of FinanceAmerica in 1976. In 1979, Morley became president and CEO of BA Insurance Company and BA Insurance Agency, retiring in 1983.

In 1986, he began serving Northern California Presbyterian Homes & Services in various capacities, including as treasurer and chairman, over 16 years.

Born in Kansas City, MO, Morley was raised in San Marino, CA, graduating from South Pasadena High School, where he was on the track and basketball teams. He is in the South Pasadena High School Hall of Fame. During World War II, he was in the U.S. Navy's V-12 officer training program and the Navy ROTC, becoming Lieutenant Junior Grade. He earned a bachelor of science degree in engineering and a bachelor of arts degree in business administration from the University of Southern California (USC) in 1945 and 1947, respectively.

Morley played basketball and ran track for USC, and he was treasurer and president of Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity. He was an officer on a small patrol craft in the Pacific in 1945 and 1946, before receiving his master's degree in business administration from USC in 1949.

Morley was active in the California Institute for Cancer Research and American Red Cross, among others. He was a lay leader in the San Marino Community Church, and he was an elder at First Presbyterian Church of Burlingame and First Presbyterian Church of Monterey. He was active in many sports, including tennis.

He lived in Hillsborough, CA, for 32 years, before moving to Carmel, CA, in 2002. His parents were Fred and Grace (Morgan) Morley. He was married for 63 years to Dona Morley (nee Hickman), raising four children: Cathy Morley Foster (Scott, deceased 2007), Bob Morley (Peggy), Judith Callen (Chris), and John Morley (Alma); 11 grandchildren; and one great-granddaughter. He also leaves his brother, Sam Morley (Toni), and five nephews and their families.

Services will be at First Presbyterian Church of Monterey Saturday, Nov. 9, 12 noon. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Leukemia & Lymphoma Society, Alzheimer's Foundation of America, First Presbyterian Church of Monterey, and First Presbyterian Church of Burlingame.

Well known longtime builder Chris Tescher lamented the changes in a city hall with which he deals on almost a daily basis.

"Carmel used to be a small town where you knew the cop on the street, where when public servants left there was always a celebration at city hall, and there was a sense of familiarity between city government and the citizens," he said. "Now the long-term employees of an entire department have been removed without a word and have been replaced by a service from another town. This reflects the working of corporate America, not a quaint village by the sea as Barbara Livingston so often calls Carmel. If the 'bottom line' is the 'only line,' then life as we know it in Carmel will never be the same."

The Sept. 18 campaign statement released by the county elections office shows that Agha gave $3,000 to Public Water Now on June 6, less than two months after his Monterey-based HMBY Limited gave the group $2,000. Agha lists 449 Alvarado Street – his Monterey coin and antique shop — as his address on the disclosure forms. Last week, Agha sold a large piece of land he owned outside Soledad for $6.7 million.

He also owns the former National Refractories site in Moss Landing, and he has long promised to build an inexpensive desal plant there. His plan, which he calls the People's Water Project, is competing against Cal Am and another water company, DeepWater Desal, LLC, to supply the Peninsula with water, though Cal Am's project is furthest along in the process.

Nader Agha

Other large donations to Public Water Now include $1,500 from Claude Keyzers, $1,000 from Thomas MacDonald, $500 each from Timothy Cass and Cohen, $740 from George Riley, and $200 from Safwat Malek's architectural firm, Enviro International.

Loans to the group include $2,500 each from Cohen, MacDonald, Douglas Wilhelm and Keyzers; $1,000 each from Harvey Billig, Riley and Richard Rotter; $850 from Dan Presser and $250 from Malek.

The group, registered as a nonprofit, 501(c)(4), also reported $16,868 in expenditures and a cash balance of $13,000.

Although prior efforts to take over Cal Am have failed — including a rejection by voters in 2005 to approve a $550,000 study to look at the possibility making Cal Am public — Cohen has said he believes the time is right to ask voters, who are facing increasing water rates, the question again.

If Public Water Now collects the necessary 5,400 certified signatures for the ballot and voters approve the plan, it would spark the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District to launch a feasibility analysis and acquisition plan, which skeptics warn would be costly.

salary $145,000, she received a new contract July 1 that calls for annual pay of $155,450. She also gets a monthly car allowance of $484 and $700 per month in deferred compensation. She receives 85 percent of the cost of her medical benefits, dental and vision care, and accrues eight hours of sick time — standard benefits for all the city's department heads. She earns up to 192 hours (almost five weeks) of vacation time per year, at a rate of 16 hours per month, and is also entitled to 80 hours (two weeks) of management leave per year. Along with the city's holidays, that means she gets about nine weeks off a year. Finally, she can claim up to $5,000 to cover the costs of moving here from Redondo Beach, as well as $1,000 annually in tuition reimbursement, should she seek a bachelor's or master's degree.

Calhoun, who joined Carmel Police Department in 1984 and became chief after George Rawson retired in late 2010, receives slightly less than Paul, at $154,752, according to his new contract, which took effect Sept. 16. He oversees police, ambulance and fire, and is paid $500 per month toward his deferred compensation account, as well as a $900 annual allowance for uniform cleaning and replacement. He can claim up to $1,000 in tuition reimbursement and has a city-owned car 24/7, "given the potential for 24-hour emergency response." He receives 176 hours (4.5 weeks) of vacation time per year, can use up to 80 hours of management leave during the course of a year and receives the standard medical, vision, dental and sick time.

Mullane, the newest of the directors, started running the community planning and building department for the city Aug. 26 and receives an annual salary of $148,000, as well as a $400 monthly car allowance. His medical, dental and vision coverage, as well as accrual of sick time, are the same as the other directors', while he can accumulate up to 156 hours of vacation time per year at a rate of 13 hours per month. Mullane is entitled to up to 100 hours of management leave per year — 20 more hours than any of the other directors. His deferred compensation contributions total $340 per month, and he receives another $150 per month "for technical equipment such as a cell phone or tablet." He can also claim $1,000 in tuition reimbursement (though he already holds advanced degrees and is therefore unlikely to) and $5,000 for moving here from Southern California.

Friedrichsen worked as an independent contractor for several months last year before being hired as the full-time public services director on Jan. 29, and she is responsible for public works, facilities maintenance, and the forest, parks and beach department. She receives $127,500 in annual pay, a $350 monthly car stipend and $200 per month toward deferred compensation. Her contract allows her to accumulate 120 hours of vacation time per year, while her medical, vision, dental and sick leave accrual are the same as the other directors'. She can use up to 80 hours of management leave during the year and is not eligible for tuition reimbursement but could claim up to $5,000 to move here from Ventura.

Finally, Cabbage, a longtime library employee, became director after Margaret Pelikan retired in 2007. Cabbage's salary is $101,892, she can use a city vehicle or get mileage reimbursement as needed, and she is entitled to 160 hours per year of vacation time. Her medical, vision and dental, and sick time accrual are identical to the other directors', but she is not promised any tuition reimbursement.

According to the 2013/2014 budget, which totaled roughly $18 million, $4,858,529 was allocated to salaries, with the total, including retirement contributions, deferred compensation and other costs and payouts, reaching $7,344,067 for 90 employees.

the most viable.

The agreement requires Wesner, Burnett and Stoldt to sign nondisclosure agreements in order to prevent the five construction firms from learning anything about the other bids. The confidential agreements would expire after Cal Am selects the firm for the job.

And to prevent the water authority, Monterey County and the water district from being held open to litigation in the event one or more of the firms files suit, water authority attorney Don Freeman said Cal Am obtained permission from the prospective firms to allow Wesner to take part in the interview process.

"If something goes south," Freeman said, "we want to make sure the three agencies are protected."

and residents, and the right to petition your government for grievances without fear of repercussions. It, like all laws, is open to interpretation. The outside law firm appears to have worked to explain why the city could withhold information rather than work to explain why the city could release information. This stance to construe the act to withhold information was inconsistent with city council policy that the act be "construed broadly in favor of public disclosure." Just because something is legal doesn't mean it is right.

Furthermore, even if their position is legal, they failed to cite relevant legal authority for each redaction. If information is withheld, the public deserves to know under what legal authority and why that particular legal authority applies. This outside law firm will no longer be doing Public Records Act work for Carmel.

Freeman will personally handle this particular records request and will provide a response by early next week. Stilwell and Freeman are already working together to find a new firm to handle future requests, will instruct the firm that they are to honor the city council's policy that the Public Records Act be "construed broadly in favor of public disclosure" and will ask that any legally required redactions be accompanied by a citation to the relevant legal authority and an explanation of why that authority applies.

I am also fully aware that "justice delayed is justice denied." The delay in providing information may have inhibited or slowed The Pine Cone's ability to report stories they feel the public needs and wants to read. I apologize that Carmel did not get this right the first time.

The Public Records Act gives the public an important window into their city hall and enables voters to hold us, your elected representatives, accountable. It also actually makes our jobs easier in two ways. First, we want to know that our policies are being followed and to be able to take action if they are not (as happened in this case). Second, the Public Records Act enables us to not only rely on the questions we ask of city staff but also the good, probing questions from the public.

Pine Cone columnist blows lid off Carmel's deepest secrets

Editor's note: The article published below is based on thousands of Carmel city government cables, emails, electronic documents and daily reports from the field intended only for the eyes of city officials.

The Joe Livernois Column and a number of publications in Europe were given access to the sensitive material several weeks ago.

beyond the realm

By JOE LIVERNOIS

The documents were originally obtained from Wikileaks, an organization devoted to nosing around in places it shouldn't be and releasing embarrassing secret government operations.

Julian Assange, the founder of Wikileaks who now suffers from a chronic and congestive Martyr Complex, said in a communiqué that his organization has exhausted the supply of secrets from international superpowers. As a result, he has now turned his attention to the deepest, darkest clandestine documents of the most super-secret local agencies in the world.

He announced he would soon release millions of documents from Monterey County government.

The Carmel city documents were made available by a source who insisted on anonymity. The source is allegedly a disenchanted, low-level city intelligence analyst who exploited a security loophole to gain access to a trove of conspiracies and secret snark. The analyst has since fled Carmel and is now seeking asylum in the Seaside City Hall Rotunda.

The decision to publish these documents does not come lightly, nor does it come heavily. Editors at The Joe Livernois Column try to balance the value of the material to the public interest against their potential comedic value.

As a general rule we withhold secret information that would expose confidential sources to reprisals or that would reveal operational intelligence that might be useful to adversaries. In the interest of fairness, editors excised material that they believed might compromise Carmel's intelligence-gathering programs aimed at hostile cities and dangerous Carmel citizens.

On the other hand, editors are less likely to censor candid remarks simply because they might make city officials seem like jackasses.

Some of the information released includes hyper-secret and nuanced documents among city employees relating to the day-to-day operations of the municipality containing information that average bumpkin citizens would be too stupid to understand.

It also includes communications between city administrators and residents who remain "inside the loop" and who are mature enough to handle sensitive information.

The Joe Livernois Column believes that the documents serve an important public interest, illuminating the goals, successes, compromises and frustrations of Carmel city officials in a way that other accounts cannot match. Also, they are pretty damned entertaining.

City officials contend that disclosure of their confidential conversations could endanger the city's interest by making them all look foolish. They also believe that release of the documents will establish a dangerous precedent, since the public will naturally insist that all future government operations be conducted in the clear light of day.

City administrators also argue that release of the documents will inhibit the public's cooperation with the city in any future endeavors, up to and including the protection of the city against terrorists.

Obviously, The Joe Livernois Column is unable to print each of the documents it has received. Space is at a premium and we cannot afford the newsprint. In fact, The Joe Livernois Column has nearly reached the end of its allotted space with publication of its Editor's Note.

However, we have spent many hours poring over the purloined documents and we have prepared an objective analysis of their contents.

Also, we have posted a selection of the documents at www.carmeljackasses.com.

Readers might ask why The Joe Livernois

Column decided to run this story, inasmuch as it has the potential of igniting a strain in Carmel's relationship with its allies, its enemies and its citizens.

We believe that to ignore this material would be to deny its own readers the careful reporting and thoughtful analysis they expect from The Joe Livernois Column when this kind of information becomes public.

As daunting as it is to publish such material over official objections, it would be silly to assume that Carmel residents have no right to know what is being done in their name.

The Joe Livernois Column appears to be nearing the end of its allotted space. Without further explanation and delay, we present the following careful reporting and thoughtful analysis of the documents we have obtained:

Your Future Is Secure With Us

Succeeding in a man's world — and being glad it's no big deal

LOOKING BACK just a half century, before the Civil Rights and Women's Liberation movements, our world was different. And today we are not one, but two, generations removed from that more primitive time.

This came to light in an interview with Rachele Lightfoot, an officer with the Carmel Police Department. An 11-year vet-time she did, Rachele let it go. She enjoyed answering people's questions and helping tourists. She was less of a ticket writer and more of an ambassador.

"I always toyed with the thought of becoming a police officer. Obviously I was working with police officers in a non-sworn capacity. I was interested in what they did." She agreed to be a prostitution decoy for two Monterey Police detectives working vice. They had her walk on Fremont Street in front of Nu Art Theater. She wore a wire, and there were several officers close by.

"I was immediately solicited. You get the elements of the crime, the price, an act, and then they follow you into the room," she said. "They had a nearby motel room all set up. Then I would go straight to the bathroom, put on a bullet-proof vest, hide in the corner, and they would take care of the rest. I would come out when it was safe. We ended up getting about 10 people within a two-hour period. The cars were packed. It was a 'Cops' moment. Really should have been on TV. It was amazing."

Her next step was to take the test to become a police officer, and that opportunity came up when there were 11 open positions on the Salinas force. She passed the test, was offered a job, trained at the academy, and, at 36, she became a Salinas police officer.

The training was tough. "The Red Man" — someone in heavy red padding — attacks. "The first time I was hit, I was just trying to talk and, boom, the gal hit me. I had a mask on, head gear, head protection. Boy, my neck snapped back, and I looked at her and I was like Whoa! She came at me again, and that time I moved and I ended up getting her controlled. But it took a minute, and that minute could cost you your life on the streets."

She described the training as "a great time in my life, and it was a horrible time." She graduated in the upper class and went to work for the Salinas P.D. "Salinas was not a good fit for me. It was fun. There was a lot of action. I learned a lot in the time that I was there. But Monterey, it's just a different culture than Salinas. And I constantly had to push myself to be a person that I wasn't."

Then she heard that there was job opening in Carmel and she was able to transfer. That was 10 years ago. "It was a perfect fit when I came here. It's a tourist town, customer service. This was a piece of cake for me. I just meshed well. I liked the philosophy that the city had."

Rachele has just finished a stint as the Carmel P.D.'s investigations officer. "I hit the ground running. We had some huge cases," she said, including the arrest of a major car thief.

"I was on fire then. I was, like, Oh my gosh! I was born to investigate. I put in a lot of my own time, too. I was on vacation, going out of town with family. I would slide into the judge's chambers on Christmas Eve, or the day before Thanksgiving, to get these warrants signed, just by the skin of my teeth," she said. "But I was successful. We were able to get the property back or solve the crime for the victims. If I would have waited until I came back, the trail would have gone cold."

By the way, Rachele was named Carmel P.D. Officer of the Year in 2007, 2011 and 2012 by her fellow officers. She is also past president of the Monterey County Police Officer's Association.

When she's not working, she loves to ride her horse. She's been riding since she was 16 and finds being on the back of a horse gives her peace of mind. "It's therapy."

Rachele lives in Prunedale with her husband and her horse.

eran of law enforcement, she came in not as a "first woman," but after the ice was already broken, and that has made for her a very different path. She wasn't watched to see if women police officers were to be a failed experiment. That question was clearly answered years ago.

"The other officers don't care about race or gender. They just want to make sure I can protect their back," she said.

chased at a New Zealand airport, and a $9,188 watch and a $10,800 pair of earrings from a store in Carmel, according to the suit.

In his 2011 ruling, Judge Wills invalidated a series of trusts Lintz modified so she had nearly complete control of her husband's estate while cutting out Robert's children. Instead, Wills ruled the court would recognize a 2005 trust, which allows about 50 percent of the estate to go to Lintz and the other half to Robert's children and grandchildren.

The end result was Lois Lynne Lintz received about half of her husband's estate, which was worth about $15 million, Hesper said.

Though the lawsuit against Lintz contended Robert Lintz had Alzheimer's disease and dementia, and that he did not sign the trust amendments of his own free will, Emanuel said there is no evidence to support that and that the lower court shouldn't have interfered with the trusts.

However, Nicora said Wills' decision "was based on a clear and substantial showing" of long-term financial elder abuse and undue influence.

In August 2012, Lintz's former Monterey attorney, Larry Lichtenberger, sued her, alleging she owed him nearly $1.2 million for legal work he performed for her.

The case is still going through the legal process.

Burnett explains what went wrong with city's PRA policy

By JASON BURNETT, Mayor, Carmel-by-the-Sea

ON OCT. 10, the Carmel City Council reaffirmed “the city’s policy and practice that the Public Records Act be construed broadly in favor of public disclosure consistent with the law and the rights of our employees,” so it was disappointing to learn that a mere five days later the city’s outside law firm withheld information from The Carmel Pine Cone that should have been made public. I am sorry that this has happened and we are taking corrective action. That law firm will no longer do Public Records Act business for Carmel and we have taken other steps to ensure the policy direction of the City Council is properly implemented.

In mid-September the city received a request from the Carmel Pine Cone for certain recent emails. All emails that might have been responsive were forwarded to our outside law firm. We had the expectation they would redact (black out) any information we are not permitted to share (such as home addresses, medical information, social security numbers and the like) or that would do other serious harm to the public process. The law firm was to provide an explanation for any redacted information, and the remaining information was to be made public as soon as possible.

That was the last I thought about the issue until we received an email from Paul Miller early last week saying they had not received the information they had expected. We immediately reached out to City Attorney Don Freeman since the interpretation of the Public Records Act is a legal matter and Freeman is charged with managing and advising on all legal matters for the city. Unfortunately he was on travel so we could not meet before The Carmel Pine Cone went to press last week.

Freeman, City Administrator Jason Stilwell, and I met early this week to determine what went wrong and what can be done to fix the situation. The Public Records Act involves the balancing of various factors such as the public’s right to know, the privacy rights of our employees, businesses and medical problems typical for a man in his 50s with a very stressful job: Elevated blood pressure, joint pain when I walk or work out too much, and trouble sleeping because my brain is so busy all the time. I also have tinnitus left over from a parasite infection I got in Mexico seven years ago.

Would those symptoms qualify me to start using marijuana legally?

The answer would only be available if I made myself a client, so I walked up to a clinic on the Venice boardwalk last Sunday. The setting certainly didn’t look much like a doctor’s office — on one side was a piercing parlor, and on the other, a store seemed to mainly be selling slutty bikinis.

“I’d like to get a medical marijuana card,” I said to one of the hawkers outside the marijuana clinic.

“You have ID? OK, come inside,” he said, leading me to a waiting room, where five or six people drowsily waited on decrepit folding chairs. A woman, also dressed in a green surgical outfit, was seated at a computer and seemed to be in charge.

Without looking up, she took my drivers license and handed me a clipboard with a complicated form on it.

“Be sure to fill out both sides,” she said.

So far, the procedure was similar to a real doctor’s office. But the decor sure wasn’t.

The tiny room was maybe 10 feet by 10 feet, with multiple layers of peeling paint, dingy light fixtures, crumbling linoleum tile and a pervasive aroma of old dog. Curling posters on the walls showed various types of marijuana and described what they would do. A rickety metal bookcase contained piles of nondescript vinyl bags.

The form asked me the usual questions: Name, address, birthdate and so forth.

And then it got down to business.

“List medical complaints relieved by cannabis,” it said. I wasn’t sure how to answer that, so I just hurriedly wrote “hypertension” and “arthritis.”

And then it asked whether I currently used marijuana (no) or drank alcohol (yes), and whether I’d ever had heart disease, lung disease, kidney disease, brain disease (no, no, no and no) or glaucoma (yes, but I don’t have it any more).

On the back, a string of disclaimers long enough to make a lawyer’s mother proud basically said the clinic wasn’t making me any promises or agreeing to be held liable for anything that happened if I started using pot. I accepted all of them.

And then I waited my turn. But for what?

The people who were already in the waiting room when I got there were being called, one by one, into a room to my right. The door had no knob and only stayed closed because it stuck to the jamb, and through the hole where the knob was supposed to be, I could hear murmured conversation. But I couldn’t quite make out what was being said.

First Abdul went through the door, and then a man with lengthy Rasta hair, and then a seriously overweight Hispanic man whose name was Norman. All of them were at least 25 years younger than me and dressed in shabby clothes. Their expressionless faces gave no clue as to what they expected, or what was happening. And no matter how hard I tried to act like them, it was obvious I didn’t belong.

“Paul,” the woman in charge said, motioning for me to go through the door just as Norman was leaving.

The next room was just as shabby as the first one, but much smaller — barely big enough for a desk and two chairs. On the far side of the desk, a very elderly man smiled and said his name. He was a doctor, he said, and he had a stethoscope around his neck to prove it.

I sat down as he began to study my forms.

“How often do you see your doctor?” he asked. “A couple of times a year,” I replied. “He’s got me on medication for high blood pressure, but it’s not working the way I’d like it to.”

The medicine I was taking was called Edarbi, I told the doctor. “Have you heard of it?” I asked. “No,” he said, and scribbled something on my form.

“I also have joint pain when I walk too much, and tinnitus,” I said. “And every night I’m awake for two or three hours.”

“The marijuana will help with the pain,” he said. “The other things, you can try it and see if it helps.” More scribbling.

He wanted to take my blood pressure, but the machine on his desk wasn’t working, though his stethoscope was.

“Both very good,” he said, after he listened to my heart and lungs.

And then he said, “You’re from Pacific Grove? Isn’t that by Pebble Beach?”

“It sure is — right next door,” I said.

“You play golf?” he wanted to know. “No,” I said.

And that was it. He signed a form approving me for medical marijuana and told me to see the woman outside.

I figured she’d hand me my completed certificate, return my drivers license and collect my $40, and I’d be out of there. Instead, Norman and I were taken by one of the surgical-garb guys on a six-block walk through Venice, passing building after building where people were obviously busy smoking pot, to what he said would be “the office” where I’d get all signed up and receive my card.

“We have five clinics in Venice, but they send everybody to the office to get their certificates when they’re done,” he said.

A free pipe

Inside the marijuana office, a man named Ziggy led us to a waiting room, where more medical marijuana customers waited. After a few minutes, I was led to a small room where a Russian woman sat at a desk with piles of forms. A beat-up ATM was in the corner.

Very quickly and professionally, she explained that I could now buy marijuana in 14 states, and that I could “possess half a pound and 12 plants,” and that I could use it anywhere in California, “except 1,000 feet from a park, school or church.” She said I could smoke it, eat it, take it in pill form or use a vaporizer, “That’s the best, because with a vaporizer, you can be using right next to somebody, and they can’t tell,” she said.

Because of my visit, she told me I would get a free pipe, and could buy any of their extensive offerings of bongos, hookahs and vaporizers with a 50 percent discount. She gave me a complete rundown on the marijuana stores nearby, and told me I could access a nationwide directory of marijuana stores by going to thcfinder.com.

And then she got to the real point.

“The evaluation was $40, but the card will be $45,” she said. “And the certificate, which is what you need to buy pot, is $200 for three months, $300 for six months, and $400 for a year.”

Wow. I’d never heard of a prescription with an expiration date based on how much you paid. Plus, I was expecting the whole thing to be $40, the way it was advertised.

But could I let my readers down? Of course not. I wanted the license, but I decided to economize by just paying for three months.

Like any good salesman, she was ready for that answer: “If you take six months, I’ll give you the next six months free.”

How could I resist? I took the one-year deal, which meant my price for the evaluation, the card and a one-year certificate would be $385.

“We’ll make it $365,” she said. Somehow I wasn’t surprised when she added that they only took cash.

While I withdrew money from the ATM, I asked her how many people would come through there on a busy day. “If it’s sunny and warm outside, maybe 100 or 150, but if it’s cold, not so much,” she said.

And that was it. Ziggy took my money and tried to talk me into buying a hookah. But I was ready to head out the door.

On my way out, I bumped into another customer I’d seen in the waiting room with his dog. “What’d you think about the prices?” I asked.

“What a ripoff,” he said. But he was smiling.

“What did you say is wrong with you?” I wanted to know.

“My hand hurts,” he said, showing it to me. It looked fine, but who cared, really?

Outside, another hawker tried to lure me to a nearby marijuana shop.

“You’ll get two free joints, so you might as well take it,” he said, handing me a slick brochure.

" C A R M E L L E G E N D S "

There are certain sacred cows in the history of Carmel who had long been praised for pioneering the artistic reputation of this extraordinary place. Oddly enough, we find it difficult to express much admiration or reverence for them, and we will probably be roundly criticized for lumping them all together as a pretty irresponsible lot. The ring leader was GEORGE STERLING, a dilettante of the early 1900's, poet by his own definition, who guided this group ne'er-do-wells through a series of revelries which would get them jailed today. One of his many buddies was AMBROSE BIERCE, a San Francisco cynic who disappeared, in 1916 or so, in Mexico. Sterling himself committed suicide at the Bohemian Club in 1926. In fact, a number of the so-called Bohemians of Carmel met similarly self-induced ends. It's a puzzlement: they partied, they picnicked, they talked and sang and drank. And they wrote: poems, short stories, plays, novels. Not one of them - STERLING, MARY, AUSTIN, JIMMY HOPPER, even SINCLAIR LEWIS was content to live an uninvolved life. They created, they invented, they revolted, they enjoyed the remarkable gift of nature which came to be called "Carmel-by-the-Sea." Disillusioned as most of them came to be, they are the fabric on which this remarkable place is woven. And we'll hear more about them in subsequent legends.

October sales slipped a bit with 16 closed sales across Pebble Beach(10) and Carmel(6), down from 21 in October last year. Pebble Beach also saw 5 new sales set to close by year-end. The low-water mark continues to rise in Pebble with the lowest price paid in all of 2013 being $550K, almost double the $399.5K in 2012. The prime parts of Carmel had 8 new sales in October; of particular note in Carmel has been the surge in Scenic Rd sales this year, with 8 closed sales and 1 more in escrow - the highest annual sales on Scenic on record.

Taelen Thomas: Carmel's master of the oral tradition

I WISH my column had sound. Then you would be able to hear the remarkable wolf call that local actor/ historian Taelen Thomas makes. It is a long, drawn out, "Hooooooooooooooooooooo," that seemingly goes on forever. It is not a spine-tingling call but rather, to paraphrase Jack London, a call that sounds the deeps of a wolf's nature, and the parts of his nature that were deeper than he, going back into the womb of time.

"Somebody timed me once. It went on for two minutes and thirty-eight seconds without a break," Taelen says.

Another reason I'd like my column to have sound is simply so you could hear Taelen's voice. It is the voice I wish came out of my mouth when I speak. It is the kind of voice that had Taelen auditioned for "Star Wars," he would have would have beat out James Earl Jones to play Darth Vader.

Thomas is well known in this area for portraying a variety of literary personalities. He was Ogden Nash at the recent Authors and Ideas Festival in Pebble Beach. He has been Mark Twain, John Steinbeck, Jack London, Teddy Roosevelt, and Daniel Boone. Though he may appear in outfits that are apropos to the characters he portrays, he doesn't try to look like them. Perhaps the strength and success of his portrayals is in not imitating them.

A straight imitation of the characters would be doing a disservice to his audience. Rather he inhabits their spirit through the recitation of their words, becoming them while not losing sight of who he is in the performance. He is able to share the wit and wisdom of his characters because of his own waggishness and intelligence. He loves a live audience and his undeniable gift is his ability to communicate with the audience. He does not simply quote verbatim the words of his characters, he performs biographical dramas that give us a look into the character's nature, just as his wolf call delves into the depth of that creature. And he doesn't try to capture their whole lives. He gives us a particular moment or event in their lives.

Naturally, Thomas researches his characters. He seems to pick people to portray who spoke plainly and spoke the truth. That may be why his performances are so popular. His characters have relevance today.

Who is Taelen Thomas when he is not one of his characters? His close friends call him Lefty. There is picture of him on the back of his poetry book, "Inside a Galloping Buffalo," with the caption, "Taelen Thomas, The Lingo Kid."

Basically he is a story teller. He loves poetry. Yeats, Hart Crane, Edna St. Vincent Millay and Ogden Nash are among his favorites. Performing poetry is what got him started.

"I did it for the fun of it," he says. "It was exciting to be out there without a safety net."

Thomas drove up to our meeting in an automobile, but I wouldn't have been surprised if he showed up on a raft. He definitely has that "Call of The Wild" look about him. He hails from Lake Bellaire, Mich., in Antrim County, one of the loveliest spots in Michigan's lower peninsula. He drove an old Chevy to California to attend Stanford. He originally began studying health and chemistry. He switched to philosophy because, "chemistry had a six-hour lab on Friday. Philosophy didn't even have classes on Friday." So he earned a degree in philosophy, then followed it up with a Masters Degree from the University of Hawaii.

One of his father's boyhood heroes was Stanley Ketchel, a popular boxer from Grand Rapids in the early 1900's, known as the Michigan Assassin. Ketchel was a Middleweight who often took on fighters much bigger and heavier than he was. His life ended tragically when he was shot to death when he was 34 years old. Thomas wrote and performed a play about Ketchel. That got him recognition which led to some corporate gigs. A friend asked him to do Robert Burns at a dinner. Burns led to Steinbeck, Steinbeck to Jack London, until he expanded his repertoire into the very personal art form that keeps him busy on a regular basis.

But, you know, it all goes back to the voice and wishing there was a way to add stereo speakers to my column so you can hear Taelen reading from something he wrote. I would pick a line from his poem, "Eight Short Takes," that sums up his joy of living: This day is already more than ever I ask or bargain for.

Jerry Gervase can be reached at jerry@gerrygervase.com.

Well known around the Monterey Peninsula for portraying Mark Twain, John Steinbeck and others literary figures, Taelen Thomas is a commanding stage presence with an unforgettable voice.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, this information can be obtained from one of the following three companies: LPS Agency Sales & Posting at (714) 730-2727, or visit the Internet Web site www.lpsasap.com (Registration required to search for sale information) or Priority Posting & Publishing at (714) 573-1965 or visit the Internet Web site www.priorityposting.com (Click on the link for "Advanced Search" to search for sale information), or auction.com at 1-800-280-2832 or visit the Internet Web site www.auction.com, using the Trustee Sale No. shown above. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. P1065166 10/25, 11/1, 11/08/2013 Publication dates: Oct. 25, Nov. 1, 8, 2013. (PC 1019)
