EYESORE ON LINCOLN TO BE DEMOLISHED

■ Oak in way of proposed new home

By MARY SCHLEY

ONE OF the few truly dilapidated homes in Carmel — the large house at Lincoln and Third that was declared uninhabitable in September 2012 and subsequently emptied of numerous pests and 10 dumpsters' worth of debris, and then boarded up — is finally in the works to be demolished and replaced with a new residence, which the planning commission discussed Feb. 11.

Cal and Carol Daks, who live just down the street from the eyesore, bought it from longtime resident Norbert Kammer in July 2012 for $725,000, and their architect, Terry Latasa, took their initial plans to the planning commission for feedback. He proposed a two-story, 2,458-square-foot, "Eclectic Tudor" house with steeply pitched cedar-shake roofs and gables, a stuccoed exterior and wood windows. The house would also incorporate redwood saved from the old home, and would have a rooftop deck and a one-car garage. The dimensions would be the same as or less than what the city code requires for setbacks, heights, volume, floor area and site coverage.

The 6,000-square-foot corner lot contains 15 trees, five of which are considered "significant," according to planner T.J. Wiseman, and Latasa said he would not be removing any of them. But a sprawling oak tree located in the area of the proposed garage became a potential problem after the staking of the new home indi-

Watchdog group criticizes city for hiding salary data

By MARY SCHLEY

A STATE public interest group that monitors government salaries and pensions is accusing the City of Carmel of "stalling" in providing information about the city's payroll and has launched an Internet campaign to get the city to start complying with public records laws.

Transparent California, which publishes fiscal information for most of California's cities and counties, requested Carmel's salary records last June but is still waiting for the data, according to its website, www.transparent-california.com.

Though most agencies complied with the group's request for information, a few either refused to disclose the data or are stalling — including Carmel, the group says. In those cases, the site encourages users to contact the government official responsible.

"Please help us procure these records for Transparent California by respectfully requesting that government officials fully comply with California's Public Records Law and

Agha sues Armanasco for $10M, alleges 'theft' of desal 'secrets'

By KELLY NIX

HIS FULSOME promises of inexpensive water for "the people" have become a familiar refrain during the debate over a possible desal plant for the Monterey Peninsula, but now developer Nader Agha is blaming public relations man David Armanasco for failing to do enough to promote one of his desal proposals, and of secretly trying to get a competing desal project approved.

In the suit, filed Feb. 19, Agha says he paid Armanasco Public Relations $159,411.98 to promote a proposed desal operation on his 200-acre Moss Landing Commercial Park off of Highway 1 next to the Moss Landing power plant.

But instead of promoting his desal scheme, Agha alleges, Armanasco used information he got from Agha to help launch the competing DeepWater Desal, a company that is also proposing a desal operation in Moss Landing.

"The actions of Armanasco amounted to a theft of trade secrets and knowledge which Agha had expended a substan-

BIG SUR CANYON BATTLES MUD, EYES STORM

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH AS much as six inches of rain on the way, and mud already having closed their road after a storm Feb. 6, residents of Sycamore Canyon Road in Big Sur were bracing themselves Thursday for the possibility of more mudslides.

In an effort to divert runoff, the Don Chapin Company was busy Feb. 27 installing K-rail at four locations.

The homes along the road are particularly vulnerable to mudslides because so much erosion-controlling vegetation was lost in last December's Pfeiffer Fire. Pfeiffer Ridge looms high above the canyon, which is about 27 miles south of Carmel.

The president of the Coast Property Owners Association, Butch Kronlund told The Pine Cone the project was made possible in part because California State Parks donated the K-rail. "It was left over from the Basin Complex Fire in 2008," Kronlund explained.

Also aiding the project was emergency watershed protection funding the county received from the federal government after the Natural Resources Conservation Service determined residents were facing significant risks. The project is estimated to cost $150,000, and federal taxpayers are picking up three-quarters of the tab. Using money collected from donors after the Pfeiffer Fire, the CPOA is paying for the balance.

Kronlund praised local and federal officials for making the project possible. "There was a remarkable amount of cooperation between Supervisor Dave Potter's office, Monterey County Public Works and the NRCS," he said.

Kronlund also said Chapin deserves credit for the efforts of his crew.

"The contractor is moving mountains to make this happen," Kronlund added. "[The company] is trying to cram a week's worth of work into one day."

Resident Karin Cumming is keeping a watchful eye on the creek behind her Sycamore canyon home. "Right now it's just trickling, but tomorrow it could be gushing," she said.

A veteran of many Big Sur natural disasters, Cumming is

Canine center seeks $$$ for permit, legal fees

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE OPPONENTS of the proposed Carmel Canine Sports Center in Carmel Valley rally against it, its owners are turning to the Internet for support.

A crowd funding campaign for the dog center was launched Feb. 25 at www.indiegogo.com/projects/carmel-canine-sports-center.

"Hey everyone," reads a post on the dog center's Facebook page. "If you would like to help us with our unimaginable legal and permitting fees, we're trying an online fundraising campaign."

The dog center's owners — Martha Diehl, her husband, Ken Ekelund, and Ernie Mill — want to create a dog training facility on 45 acres at 8100 Valley Greens Drive. Diehl was reapointed this week as a Monterey County planning commissioner.

Diehl, Ekelund and Mill have a month to raise their goal of $17,000. After two days, they'd raised $1,250.

Donors are offered a variety of perks — depending on how much they spend. A $10 gift earns an invitation

Teacher admits felony animal cruelty in dognap case

By KELLY NIX

THE MONTEREY man who twice dognapped a neighbor's Labrador and left it to fend for itself in the Carmel Highlands — where it probably died — pleaded no contest to the charges this week. The plea is essentially the same as a guilty plea.

On Tuesday, Greg Perkins entered the plea to one misdemeanor count of theft of a dog and one felony count of animal cruelty related to two incidents, one in summer 2012 and the other in summer 2013, when Perkins stole his neighbor's dog and dumped it about eight miles away from their house off of Soledad Drive.

The 4-year-old white Lab named Candy Cane, which was owned by Melissa Dalton and her family, was recovered the first time but remains missing after the July 2013 dognapping. Perkins lives catty-corner to the Daltons.

Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Gary Thelander told The Pine Cone that Perkins faces a maximum of four years in prison. However, Perkins, a Hartnell College math teacher, will likely receive only felony probation, not significant time behind bars. Perkins is scheduled to be sentenced in April.

The misdemeanor count Perkins pleaded to stems from the August 2012 theft, while the felony animal cruelty charge is related to the 2013 dognapping.

The more serious felony charge is justified in view "of the totality of the circumstances, being that [Perkins took the dog] twice," Thelander said.

The district attorney's office had originally charged Perkins with four felony counts but struck two of them in the plea agreement.

Perkins, who was reportedly upset with Candy Cane's barking, did not deny taking the dog when interviewed by Monterey Police

Mush

DESPITE, OR maybe because of, a military career that keeps him on the move, he wanted a dog. After two tours in Afghanistan, he moved from Orange County to Carmel via Pennsylvania. Planning to remain in one place for a couple of years while his wife worked in Philadelphia, he set out on a mission to get a dog.

He wanted a companion that could keep up with him in his exercise and activities. He wanted a dog that could push and pull him to be better, stronger, faster. He wanted a husky.

He brought home his Siberian husky from a breeder in Bakersfield on what, he learned, would have been the late Lucille Ball's 100th birthday. In honor of the occasion, he looked into his puppy's blue eyes and thought, "I love Lucy."

"As Lucy got older," her person says, "her mischievous nature came out. We knew we'd given her the right name. She always has some 'splain-in to do."

Lucy, now 2, spends her days hanging out in her yard, watching kids and cars go by. But she does get in a regular run with her person, and has proved the perfect partner for an extreme athlete and outdoor enthusiast.

"When I ran my first marathon, I trained with Lucy up to eight miles," he says, "and then went the distance on my own. I think she could have gone all 26 miles, but I would have built myself a monster."

Once she gets her winter coat, Lucy loves to go cross country skiing. She gets hooked her up to a harness, her person straps on his skis, and she pulls him around the mountain. She also takes him to Carmel Beach, but always on a leash. Deeply bonded to her boy, she just doesn't want him to get away.

Council to vote on Wonderspace, fire, marketing contracts

By MARY SCHLEY

A REPORT on the fire services contract with the City of Monterey — and a related $118,000 budget adjustment — as well as a new $180,000 contract with Burghardt+Dore for destination marketing and another $55,000 for Richard Tavener of Wonderspace are on the agenda for the March 4 Carmel City Council meeting.

The city began contracting with Monterey to operate its fire department two years ago, and on Tuesday, the council will consider changes that will "more fairly share in joint costs and improve the ability to budget accurately."

As for destination marketing, Jeff Burghardt's firm, which has held the contract with the city for several years, is up for renewal at a cost of $180,000, and Tavener — who has already received $25,000 for his Wonderspace project, as well as $20,820 for "event reimbursement" — is now being proposed as a "special events coordinator and liaison." He would be paid $55,000 for "enhancing/expanding the cultural and educational tourism aspects of city events," and developing "high quality cultural and education tourism packages."

Other items on the agenda include an ordinance amending the muni code on appeals, a use permit for a multi-family building on Mission between Seventh and Eighth and a $92,000 contract with 4Leaf Inc "for continued contract permit technical services." The council meeting will begin at 4:30 p.m. March 4 at city hall. On March 3, at 5:30 p.m., the council will hold a workshop on the city's facilities use plan. Terrific Terrier

Rusty is an 18 pound, 9 year old, wire haired Terrier mix. He is a friendly, happy, confident dog who seems to do well with people and other dogs. Rusty is a little vision impaired, but it doesn't slow him down.

He was picked up as a stray and taken to Salinas Animal Services. He had a microchip, but the phone number was disconnected. We don't know why his guardians didn't come looking for him.

Garage fire destroys two cars but spares house

By MARY SCHLEY

A FIRE incinerated a garage, along with the BMW and the Toyota Highlander parked inside it, but firefighters kept it from spreading to the rest of a home on Mesa Court Sunday night. Cal Fire Capt. Catey Trenner, who investigated the blaze, said the damage was too extensive to determine what started it.

“The three-car detached garage was fully involved when fire crews arrived, and there was already too much damage to make a specific cause determination,” she told the Pine Cone.

Cal Fire Battalion Chief Buddy Bloxham said either a resident or a neighbor dialed 911 at around 8:40 p.m. Feb. 23, and by the time fire crews arrived moments later, the glow of the blaze was visible from nearby Highway 1, and the residents had already gotten out of the house.

“Units arrived to find the garage fully involved and starting to extend to the main house,” he said. “They did a really good knockdown to keep it from spreading to the main house.”

A total of 19 firefighters from Cal Fire stations in Carmel and at the Highlands, as well as Monterey Fire Department, helped put out the blaze, which left only the walls standing.

“The roof collapsed just after we arrived, so the fire had probably been burning for a while,” Bloxham said.

The arbor connecting the garage to the main home also suffered damage, according to Bloxham, and the residents’ two vehicles were destroyed, as were some resin sculptures.

Monterey County Sheriff’s deputy Joe Crivello helped with traffic and crowd control while crews worked to contain

Police & Sheriff's Log

Nude man acting strangely

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 7

Pebble Beach: Two intoxicated family members were involved in a physical shoving match at the Pro-Am golf tournament and had to be escorted out.

Pacific Grove: Driver was trying to pick up an overloaded dumpster with his vehicle's rear forklift. The dumpster came off and started rolling down the hill. Driver exited the vehicle but put the vehicle in reverse instead of park. The vehicle began backing, and the driver jumped into the vehicle to step on the brake, but hit the gas pedal, colliding into a house and several parked cars.

Carmel area: A subject was making threats at local businesses. It was determined she was a danger to others, and she was placed on a 5150 hold.

Pebble Beach: An unknown person stole a wallet.

Pacific Grove: Entry made into an orthodontics suite on Central Avenue overnight. Video surveillance showed a Hispanic male suspect enter the property but quickly leave. No items noticed stolen at this time.

Pacific Grove: Truck on Central Avenue struck a parked school bus. No children on board or present; no injuries.

Pacific Grove: Front door damaged on an 11th Street residence. Residence currently unoccupied.

Pacific Grove: PGPD received a fax regarding a report of an unprovoked cat bite. Person was bit in the right forearm by a black feral male cat.

Pacific Grove: Driver made an illegal U-turn across a double-yellow line in the 2000 block of Sunset. Suspect was found to be driving on a suspended license and did not have proof of insurance. Suspect was identified by her California ID card and was issued a citation. Vehicle was left parked at the scene for the registered owner.

Pacific Grove: Single round of ammo turned in for destruction.

Pacific Grove: An unknown perpetrator used a resident's credit card to make purchases online in excess of $950.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8

Carmel-by-the-Sea: While on patrol at 0018 hours, located three juveniles on Torres Street who were out after curfew and intoxicated after leaving a party in the area. Two juveniles were taken home and turned over to their parents, and the other was taken to the station and later turned over to his parents.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person walked into the lobby to turn in a cell phone she found lying in the roadway on Dolores Street near Carmel River School. She said she did not notice anyone in the area looking for a cell phone and did not know whom the phone belonged to. She did not wish to claim the property. In examining the cell phone, the officer was able to make contact with the owner. The cell phone was later returned to the owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle on Camino Real towed per section 22651(o) CVC [expired registration].

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Items were shoplifted from a retail store on Ocean Avenue. The perpetrator was located, and the property was recovered. The victim declined to press charges.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At about 1748 hours, a concerned citizen brought a dog she found wandering in the roadway on San Antonio Avenue. The dog was found to have a tag and collar.

The owner of the dog was contacted and later came to the station and retrieved the dog. All kennel fees have been collected.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed from San Carlos Street for obstructing traffic.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Resident mailed a package that never reached its destination.

Carmel area: Report of embezzlement by an employee at a golf club. Investigation continues.

Carmel area: Resident was discovered deceased in his apartment. Taken to the sheriff's coroner's division for an autopsy.

Carmel area: Resident reported being victim of a phone scam where she transferred $9,500 to a Mexican bank after believing her grandson had been jailed in Mexico. She later learned her grandson was never in Mexico.

Big Sur: Deputies were dispatched to the Esalen Institute for a report of a person acting strangely and taking his clothes off during a class at the institute. Deputies arrived on scene to investigate, and the suspect became uncooperative and combative, using miscellaneous items (hard rubber ball, bluetooth speaker box, glass bottle). Deputies deployed taser and pepper spray, and ultimately took the suspect, a 48-year-old male Oak View resident, into custody. Suspect was arrested and booked into county jail for indecent exposure and resisting officers.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to theft of alcohol reported at a business in Country Club Gate. Security cameras captured images of thieves and their vehicle.

Pacific Grove: Officers were dispatched to a hotel on Lighthouse Avenue to investigate a possible domestic disturbance. Upon arrival, it was discovered that the couple in the room in question were only listening to a loud television and speaking loudly.

Pacific Grove: Moreland resident wanted to report she heard someone banging on her front door, but no one was seen. A few minutes later, she heard the banging noise again, and a male claimed to be a delivery pizza man, but she did not order a pizza. Prior to making contact with the resident, the officer had contacted a male subject who was lost and was delivering pizza. Officer described the male to the resident, and it matched the description. Nothing further.

Pacific Grove: Woman on 16th Street called and stated she heard a male outside yelling at her and saying he had a gun. She was and found to be under stress and taking numerous medications. Neighbors contacted; none heard anything out of ordinary and did not see anybody suspicious.

Theis leads in election campaign contributions

By MARY SCHLEY

WITH THE municipal election just five weeks away, city council incumbent Carrie Theis has collected the most campaign contributions this year, according to reports the candidates filed at city hall this week, followed by council challenger Steve Dallas and incumbent Mayor Jason Burnett.

Council candidate Lucas Austin's forms were not available.

From Jan. 1 to Feb. 22, Theis — who owns and operates the Hofsas House hotel and serves on the board of the Carmel Innkeepers Association — collected $5,257 in cash and $1,915.88 in non-monetary donations, for a total of $7,172.88. Her top donors included Inns by the Sea ($1,000), and La Playa Carmel owner John Grossman and CEO Matt Crow ($500 apiece), followed by several supporters who contributed $100 to $200. Donation amounts of less than $100 do not need to be itemized, and Theis documented receiving $2,059 in unitemized gifts.

Her campaign also got $1,663.88 from La Playa and $252 from Hofsas House in non-monetary donations for fundraising events.

She spent $965.53 on web hosting, campaign materials, literature and filing fees, and still owes $1,341.03 for literature, fundraising events and campaign expenses. Theis started the year with $2,549 in cash and ended the reporting period with $6,840.47.

Dallas reported collecting $4,324 in cash and $1,808 in non-monetary gifts between Jan. 1 and Feb. 22, for a total of $6,132. He received $500 from Scheid Vineyards; $250 from Salinas Valley Ford auto dealer R.W. Frieberg; $150 each from Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston and CRA members Roberta and Monte Miller, and $100 from Carolyn Hardy.

Dallas took in $3,024 in unitemized gifts, as well as $873 in food from the Cypress Inn, and $450 and $485 worth of wine from Galante Vineyards and Dawn's Dream Winery, respectively.

He spent $1,271 on web hosting, mugs, buttons, envelopes and rack cards, and business cards, and still owes $385 for his filing fee. All told, Dallas started the year with $450 in the bank and ended the period with $3,503 in cash.

Of the three, Burnett raised the least between Jan. 1 and Feb. 22, collecting $3,598 in cash donations. The largest gift was from Sharon Meresman, who donated $1,000, followed by $500 from Scheid Vineyards, and $250 gifts from several supporters, including Carmel Belle and Monterey County Supervisor Jane Parker. A few others made gifts in the $100-to-$200 range, and Burnett also recorded $448 in unitemized contributions.

He paid $5,134.56 in bills to Sunset Center, Constant Contact, his accountant, his assistant, the credit card company and The Pine Cone, as well as his filing fee to the city, and reported one unpaid bill of $1,275 to his assistant.

Burnett could spend more than he collected because he started the year off with a very strong campaign fund balance of $28,938.06, and he closed the reporting period with $27,401.50. Theis, Dallas and Austin are competing for two city council seats. Burnett has no opposition on the ballot, although gallery owner Vincenzo Damico is trying to unseat him as a write-in candidate.

Chamber hosts candidates forum

THE CARMEL Chamber of Commerce will hold an informational forum for voters in the city's April 8 municipal election Thursday, March 6, from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

Residents will be electing their mayor and two council members, and the forum will feature all the candidates. So far, the list includes incumbent Mayor Jason Burnett and council candidates Steve Dallas (a planning commissioner), incumbent Carrie Theis and Mail Mart owner Lucas Austin. If he succeeds in getting enough signatures, Vincenzo D'Amico plans to run for mayor as a write-in candidate.

The forum will be held in Carlson Hall at the Church of the Wayfarer, located at Lincoln and Seventh, and attendance is free.

Correction

LAST WEEK'S story about Ed Mitchell running for supervisor contained two errors. Monterey County Supervisor Lou Calcagno is not endorsing anyone in the election to replace him. Also, taxpayers did not pay for North Salinas Valley Fund for Responsible Growth's settlement agreement in which it received $600,000. The group settled with a developer.

CPD searching for new officers

By MARY SCHLEY

THE POLICE department is advertising for new sergeants — a position that pays $6,722 to $8,848 per month — to replace Brian Pon, who was let go one month shy of the end of his 18-month probationary period, and in anticipation of the retirement of Sgt. Mel Mukai later this year, according to Cmdr. Paul Tomasi.

“We’re hoping to get two qualified applicants so that when Mel retires, we’ll have someone,” he said this week.

While Mukai has been part of CPD for decades, Pon was hired in September 2012. Tomasi said he simply “didn’t meet our qualifications,” and after months of trying to make things mesh, the department released Pon on Jan. 29.

“It just didn’t work for him,” said Tomasi, who knows Pon from their time working together in Citrus Heights and admitted having to terminate him was tough.

“We go back to my old agency,” he said. “But sometimes you have to make decisions that are best for the organization.”

It’s not a fun thing to go through.”

Looking forward, Tomasi said he hopes to draw strong candidates for the supervisory positions. Promoting from within is ideal, he said, but with Rachelle Lightfoot and Ken Shen being elevated to the position of corporal just a few months ago, Tomasi isn’t certain anyone is prepared to make the leap.

“We’re going to open it up to people who are qualified internally and see how they do as well, but is anybody really ready? We don’t know,” he said. “Part of the reason we have the corporal position now is to bridge some of the gap between officer and sergeant, because it’s a pretty big jump.”

But he said the department hopes to make this the last time it has to hire someone from elsewhere for a management position.

“When you go outside, you don’t know exactly what you’re getting,” he said. “We made it clear this is the last time

Motorcycle patrol job is dream come true for Rana's replacement

By MARY SCHLEY

EVER SINCE he came to work for Carmel P.D. in 2006, officer Joe Boucher has wanted the job of motor officer, patrolling on the department's BMW motorcycle. But that role was occupied by a veteran officer, Cpl. Steve Rana, so Boucher knew he had to bide his time. With Rana's retirement late last year, Boucher applied for and got the new assignment, and he's been patrolling on two wheels since last month.

"I've waited for eight years to get on the bike here — I knew he was going to be on it until he retired," Boucher said. "Every time I had the opportunity to learn something from him, I did. I always made sure to show interest in it, because I knew I would have the opportunity to try for it."

Boucher has big boots to fill, as Rana was a longtime presence on the force whose reputation was widely known. He'd ridden the department's motorcycles for years and was also key in keeping the city's multiple major events, such as the multitude of car shows and rallies during Concours Week, operating smoothly. Boucher said he knew special events would be part of the job and has studied up on those, too.

Although he'd ridden a street bike for a decade, Boucher gave up his personal motorcycle when his son, Colton, now 3, was born. He's thrilled to be back on a bike — especially one with CPD emblems on its sides.

"I love riding. I rode with my dad, though he's more of a Harley guy, and I was a sport-bike guy," he said. "My dad raced, and I've always grown up around speed and racing and being competitive."

After successfully applying for the position, Boucher attended a two-week motor school at the Alameda Sheriff's training facility last month.

"The first week was really stressful, because you're riding old '70s and '80s police bikes that have been dropped a bunch of times," he said. Most of the exercises ‘Chimneys’ provide much better cell-phone signal in P.G.

By KELLY NIX

IF YOU'RE an AT&T cell phone customer in Pacific Grove who's noticed a significantly better signal in the past week, you can thank a pair of cell antennas that were installed near Lighthouse Avenue and 17 Mile Drive.

But if you pass by the area, you won't see the new, 27-foot antennas, which have been inconspicuously hidden inside two faux chimneys at each end of The Wilkie's Inn at 1038 Lighthouse Ave.

Mayor Bill Kampe, an AT&T cell phone customer who lives a few blocks from the new antennas, said he, like other AT&T customers in Pacific Grove, received a text message late last week from AT&T about the new cell site and improved service.

"I think I'm getting an extra bar [indicating cell-phone signal strength] in my house, and I can conduct a cell phone conversation from all parts of my house, not just the front two rooms like before," he told The Pine Cone.

AT&T has had a challenge finding a permanent location for new antennas. Temporary antennas were set up across the street from the Wilkie's Inn at Pacific Grove Adult Education and El Carmelo Cemetery.

When the new Wilkie's Inn antennas were announced last summer, residents at a city council meeting praised them for improving cell service, including emergency calls to 911. However, some activists spoke against the antennas, arguing that radio frequency electromagnetic fields emitted from the towers will harm not only people, but the monarchs that gather at the city's butterfly sanctuary every fall and winter.

Last year, the activists launched an online petition against the towers which by August 2013 had collected about 400 signatures from people from all over the world, but their drive has only collected about 60 more in the six months since then.

"I feel sorry for the butterflies," wrote Augustina Ursino, who began the petition.

The opposition took issue with a city planning commis-

Back on his feet, injured bicyclist eyes marathon, firefighting

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHILE DAVE Clark of Sacramento has much to be thankful for today, the outlook for him looked bleak 17 months ago after a bicycle accident in Big Sur left him partially paralyzed and suffering from brain damage.

After spending the night at Kirk Creek Campground about 53 miles south of Carmel, Clark was traveling southbound along Highway 1 on the morning of Sept. 13, 2012, when he stopped at Gorda for coffee and a bagel. Soon he was back on the pavement and excited to enjoy another day of riding along one of the most famous scenic routes on earth. But then his memory went blank. The next thing he knew, he was waking up in a hospital more than three weeks later.

It turned out that Clark had hit a rough patch of road and crashed his bicycle. "I lost control and was propelled forward over the handlebars," he told The Pine Cone. "I struck my head on the road."

When he woke up in the hospital, his wife, Taige, was sitting next to him. And so was a fellow firefighter. In fact, for weeks, a steady stream of firefighters — some he didn't even know — took shifts alongside his bed. "Even if my wife took a break, there was always someone there," he said.

Doctors explained to Clark he was suffering from a torn spleen and a traumatic brain injury that caused paralysis on the left side of his body. While he was in bad shape, it might have been worse had he not been wearing a safety helmet.

"I would have been dead," suggested Clark, who worked as a firefighter for CAL FIRE before the mishap. "It's so important to wear a helmet."

After regaining consciousness, Clark began an arduous journey to regain his health.

"I had to retrain by brain and relearn everything, such as how to eat, how to dress myself and how to walk again," he said.

Shakeup at Monterey Elks Lodge leads to slander, discrimination lawsuit

■ Carmel businessman launched investigation into the allegations

By KELLY NIX

A GROUP of mostly Italian Monterey Elks Lodge members known as the “Spaghetti Hill Crew” who say they were wrongfully accused of stealing from the organization, and were referred to as “Monterey Mafia” and “thief Italians,” have filed a lawsuit against numerous top-level

Elks officers alleging libel, slander and violation of the state’s civil rights act.

In a 27-page lawsuit filed Feb. 14, John and Angela Cardinalli, Joseph Guerra and John Mulchaey allege that nine Elks Lodge officials falsely accused them of stealing money and kitchen equipment, and fixing an Elks election, before expelling them from the organization in April 2013.

Carmel businessman Beau Finklang, “exalted ruler” of the Monterey Lodge from 2012 to 2013, investigated the allegations against the four and found in February 2013 there was no evidence to support any of them. Despite being cleared, the group was expelled about two months later.

The four members, who also allege one Elk used derogatory terms to describe them, say there is a long history of discrimination against Italian members of the Monterey Elks Lodge located at 150 Mar Vista Drive.

“Plaintiffs believe that they were expelled from membership in the [Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks] based on their Italian Sicilian heritage and their contact and connection with other Italian and Sicilian members,” according to the lawsuit filed in Monterey County Superior Court.

The four members, who are being represented by Monterey attorney Kari D. Rawlings, say the derogatory words and comments spread about them in the community have damaged their reputation and have caused humiliation, and severe emotional and physical distress.

Many sued

Most of the defendants in the lawsuit are high-level Elks Lodge officials, including former Grand Exalted Ruler Thomas S. Brazier — who held the highest position in the nationwide organization — and current and former Elks officers including Louis Grillo, Carroll Hall, Jimmy Hancock, Anthony Mauro, Steven Mayne, Randy McClellan and Kenneth Moore. Former Monterey Elks Lodge secretary Jacqueline Busby-Phillips is also a defendant as is the organization itself.

A call to the Monterey lodge seeking comment from Phillips and others was answered by a man identifying himself as the lodge’s secretary. Though he refused to provide his name, he called the lawsuit allegations “unverified” and “just claims,” and said the suit is being forwarded to the organization’s insurance companies. Michael Huff is listed online as the lodge’s secretary.

The Spaghetti Hill Crew members, who also allege intentional infliction of emotional distress, are seeking an undisclosed amount in damages, including punitive damages, which can be awarded in cases of malice, oppression or fraud.

The four are part of an informal group of Elks members who regularly volunteered to cook for fundraisers at the lodge and throughout the community, according to the suit. While most of the members are of Italian descent, it’s not a requirement, and Mulchaey isn’t Italian.

“The Spaghetti Hill Crew has received numerous ‘thank yous’ from community organizations that it has assisted through the years,” the suit says.

The crew members allege that despite their good work, a number of Elks officials wanted them out of the Monterey Elks Lodge to “prevent the Italians from taking over.”

The four members say longtime lodge secretary Phillips told people that they stole food, knives, pots and pans and cash from the lodge and called them “those thief Italians,” “Monterey Mafia” and “criminals and crooks,” words that were slanderous because they accused the Cardinallis, Guerra and Mulchaey of theft, dishonesty and part of organized crime, according to the lawsuit.

Many people heard Phillips make the comments, and the rumors about the four Spaghetti Hill Crew members were perpetuated inside the Lodge and in the “greater Monterey community,” the suit says.

The claim also alleges that two of the Elks leaders told members the four had “fixed” a February 2013 election in which Phillips was voted out and replaced. Mulchaey was also accused in March 2013 of threatening a caterer, according to the lawsuit.

Internal investigation

As the allegations against the Cardinallis, Mulchaey and Guerra mounted, Finklang, who held the top level position at the Monterey Lodge, investigated the allegations but found they were “completely false” and that there was no evidence any of the four members had stolen anything.

In a Feb. 13, 2013, report exonerating the four, Finklang — co-owner of Homescapes Carmel — said the “malicious rumors and comments” had been circulated “outside the confines of our lodge so that not only fellow members, but residents of the community were hearing these stories.”

The members, he said were “shocked,” “devastated,” and “embarrassed” by the accusations.

Finklang pointed to the Spaghetti Hill Crew’s volunteer efforts through the years in raising tens of thousands of dollars for local schools, veterans programs and other events. He also credited the group for drastically upping the attendance of its Wednesday Night Dinners from 40 diners to more than 120.

John Henry Robbins 1925 - 2014

John Henry Robbins passed away peacefully early on the morning of Monday, February 10, 2014. He joins his beloved wife Norma. Born March 9, 1925, he was one month away from his 89th birthday.

John grew up in Palo Alto, attended Palo Alto High and earned his bachelors degree from San Jose State University after having served in the Army during World War II. He and his family resided in Los Altos, Rio Del Mar and the Monterey Peninsula before moving to the Napa Valley in 1996.

John married his sweetheart Norma (Nonie) in 1947, and they were happily married for 64 years until she passed away in 2012.

John is survived by sons, Stephen (Kathi) and Marcus (Wayne); granddaughters, Alyssa (Jeff) and Rebecca (Eric); sister in law, Lou Ann Collier; nephew, Todd Collier; and many Napa Valley cousins as well as three grand-puppies, Jasper, Flyer and Cody.

John lived a very good life, loved his family and friends and took great delight in having a chat and a laugh over a very dry martini. We are comforted to know he has gone to join our mom, whom he loved and missed very much.

A CARMEL ROMANCE

John Lloyd
2014 Board Co-Chair

Carmel has been named the third most romantic city in the world by Travel+Leisure magazine right behind Paris and Venice.

Let that sink in for just a moment - #3 in the world. The readers of Travel+Leisure chose Carmel because of our quaint shops, cottages, art galleries, restaurants and wine tasting rooms. Truly, our little village has obtained major status along with bragging rights. To be sure, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Chamber will leverage this prestigious award to the fullest. We should all be very proud of this achievement. On behalf of the Chamber and the City, thank you for all you do to make this city and surrounding area what it is today.

Now that we all have that feel-good feeling, think about what else we can do to support our community. Perhaps volunteering for a local non-profit or volunteering to be on one of the Chamber's committees. In all cases, your participation will be (is) greatly appreciated.

On a final note, the Chamber will be having a candidate forum on March 6th. The time and location are noted in this issue. Please attend. It is a great way to learn about local issues and the candidate's viewpoints.

Until next time...stay busy.

John Lloyd is General Manager of The Pine Inn and Tally Ho Inn.

cated it would be severely impacted by the planned garage, commissioners learned at the hearing. Initially, Latasa and the Dakses believed only one limb would have to be removed, but the staking revealed a more significant impact on the oak, which has low, sprawling branches.

“We were not aware until the story poles went up of the significance of the modifications the tree in front of the house would have to undergo,” Wiseman told commissioners. “The applicant will work with [city forester] Mike Branson and take a proposal to the forest and beach commission to modify the tree, move the tree or modify the design of the house.”

Latasa said the Dakses plan to have the tree moved six feet and slightly rotated, which would avoid most of the significant limb removal.

“We’ve worked hard to create a house that responds to this site,” Latasa said.

Several nearby residents testified they like the project.

John and Marcia Nagel, who live next door to the Dakses, said they “fully support what they are seeking to accomplish, and the style with which they want to accomplish it.” The couple encouraged commissioners to move forward, not just for the owners’ benefit, “but for the benefit of the entire neighborhood.”

Another couple living directly across the street from the proposed home said they “also feel it would be a very complementary addition to the architecture in the neighborhood,” and other residents in the area voiced similar opinions.

While commissioners thanked them for their feedback, they said they couldn’t make a decision on the design without knowing if the planned relocation of the oak tree would be approved by the forest and beach commission, which is set to discuss it March 6, Latasa said.

“I think the whole project depends on whether the tree can be moved,” said commissioner Keith Paterson. “I think it’s a good project, and well designed, but I need to know if it can be moved.”

Commissioner Michael LePage acknowledged the neighbors’ support and observed the house on that corner “has really been a blight to that neighborhood.”

He also suggested the roofline be simplified. “There’s a lot going on here, and conceptually, it’s a nice design, but I think the designer could simplify it a little bit and make it look more cohesive,” he said.

After commissioner Jan Reimers also commented she liked the proposed materials and the design in general, the commission unanimously voted to continue the application until the forest and beach commission has a chance to weigh in on the fate of the oak tree.

Meg's HEALTH NOTES

Recently there was an article in the Carmel Pine Cone about a home care company that I previously owned that has a caregiver who was arrested for stealing from one of their clients. Although they are now a competitor of my VISIONARY HOME CARE company, I felt nothing but sad that the incident occurred.

So my message today is a simple one: PLEASE make sure anyone who works in or outside of your home is well-screened. ANYONE can be at risk for elder abuse whether it is financial, emotional, or physical.

At VISIONARY HOME CARE, all of our caregivers are fully screened, fingerprinted, and background checked – not only through the state but additionally screened through the FBI and Department of Justice databases. We take every step to ensure that we are providing the best caregivers and the best quality of care. If you use an agency that provides caregivers, make sure you KNOW they are screening in the same manner. If you hire a private caregiver, screen them thoroughly. Call references and make sure you are actually talking to a valid reference and not just a friend or a relative playing a role. Dig into the background. The vulnerability of an elderly person alone at home is HUGE and you can never be too careful.

provide Transparent California with the requested records in an Excel-compatible format," the website reads. "Every citizen has a right to know how government is spending his or her money, and you have a right to respectfully request that this government abide by the law and allow you to see how your money is being spent."

The administrator of the site encourages people to directly email administrative services director Susan Paul at spaul@ci.carmel.ca.us, or to send an email via the Transparent California website.

Meanwhile, city administrator Jason Stilwell says he has consolidated the city's procedures for handling requests for information into a single document, which he issued as a memo Feb. 6.

"With the volume of Public Records Act requests the city continues to receive, it is important we maintain a consistency in the process," begins the letter to the city clerk, department directors and a Santa Barbara law firm. "This memo is to serve as guidance and direction in processing the city's Public Records Act responses."

Stilwell told The Pine Cone this week the procedures for handling requests for information from the public are not new, and that he summarized them in order to "have the information in one document and to reaffirm the process."

But the first point in the memo mandates that "any request for information received by any employee or official of the city should be forwarded to the city clerk's office" — which is a departure from past practices, when members of the media and the public could request and receive information from the most appropriate official to provide it.

Prior to Stilwell's arrival in September 2011, inquiries were handled rather casually, and almost always on a timely basis, but Stilwell has since implemented practices that involve legal review, sometimes resulting in extensive redactions and considerable delays.

The Pine Cone is also being required, for the first time, to pay for copies of documents it receives, and often to pick them up on paper from city hall rather than receive them electronically.

Some of the redactions and delays were so bad that last year, the city terminated the law firm handling them, and the process has somewhat improved in the last few months.

In his memo, Stilwell says the city clerk maintains a log of inquiries, tracks the requests and refers them to the appropriate departments.

Department directors, meanwhile are "responsible for compiling the records and the substance of the request, meeting deadlines, and requesting legal review to assure that produced documents comply with legal requirements of disclosure."

The Southern California law office of Stradling Yocca Carlson & Rauth serves as the city's PRA legal adviser and reviews the documents and provides advice, according to Stilwell.

"When redactions are permitted, they should be precise (individual words or clauses versus sentences or paragraphs when possible)," he states, before going on to explain how information that's blocked out has to include the legal authority for the redaction and why it applies in each particular case, "as would be required if the redactions were challenged in court."

Each request includes a form letter basically acknowledging the inquiry and describing whether the city has anything to provide in response, as well as any required payments. The letter also includes the "specific knowledge" paragraph, stating the city has made every effort to fulfill the request, and the "legal authority" paragraph, which reads, "If you are aware of any legal authority that would require disclosure of documents in addition to those identified above, please advise the undersigned and the city will reconsider its position accordingly."

Finally, he notes, the log of media and record requests is provided to the city council at its regular monthly meeting and includes time and cost estimates.

"Although the memo is recent, I articulated the processes in 2011 and in a number of subsequent emails, but we didn't have staff who were able to execute the process," Stilwell said this week. "Information is more available to the public on council agendas, at council meetings and workshops, on the city's website (with more to come), and as we have rebuilt the city's records and abilities to access records."

When Stilwell began noting the amount of time and cost equivalent of processing

PRA requests in the log, the information raised questions, including from attorney Neil Shapiro, who questioned in a Pine Cone column how the city could claim handling the requests for documents costs an average of almost $400 per hour — even when identical requests are processed for different people.

The one-page resignation letter of former assistant city administrator Heidi Burch cost $579 for the city to provide to The Pine Cone, Stilwell told the council, and then another $579 to provide to the Monterey County Weekly, and yet another $579 to give to activist L.A. Paterson.

At the Feb. 4 council meeting, Mayor Jason Burnett said costs like those would decrease over time.

"It's worth noting that the expense of processing those has received some attention, and in talking with Jason Stilwell, the first time a type of request goes through this process, it likely does go through more review," he said. "And over time, we expect those costs to go down very significantly."

Stradling Yocca Carlson & Rauth was paid $12,166 by the city in December 2013 for legal service

SUPES SEND CRITICIZED ORDINANCE ON PRIVATE ROADS BACK TO STAFF

By CHRIS COUNTS

AFTER LISTENING to commentary from supporters and opponents of the proposed Proof of Access Ordinance, the Monterey County Supervisors voted unanimously Feb. 25 to delay making a decision on whether to implement it.

The ordinance would require that anyone seeking "an intensified use" of a property located on a private road notify neighbors of the plans and show evidence that it would be allowed by an existing road agreement. If such an agreement doesn't exist, an applicant would need all neighbors to sign off on a project or activity.

According to county staff, the ordinance would help keep the county out of disputes among neighbors on private roads. But opponents insist it would create more problems than it would solve. "The county could find itself named in a greater number of lawsuits," suggested Kim DiBenedetto, who represented Monterey County Association of Realtors.

DiBenedetto also worries neighbors will have too much say in how a property is used. "It's conceivable that this ordinance would be abused, resulting in dissatisfied neighbors taking advantage of the system and ultimately establishing land use policy," she said.

Representing the Coast Property Owners Association, architect Rob Carver echoed DiBenedetto's concerns about empowering neighbors.

"We feel [the ordinance] is fatally flawed," Carver said. "The idea of one person being able to undo something when a property is zoned for a certain use, I think that's giving too much power to one neighbor."

Before criticizing it, attorney Brian Finegan told supervisors the ordinance would boost his business and increase lawsuits against the county.

"I should be celebrating this ordinance because, as an attorney, it's clear it will generate a lot of litigation," Finegan said. "There are people out there that make a living out of suing the county and getting big attorney's fees, and this is only going to enhance that."

But others took a different view. Representing the Carmel Valley Association, Mibs McCarthy asked supervisors to approve the ordinance. McCarthy noted that "almost 60 percent of the roads in Carmel Valley are totally or partially private," and such an ordinance is needed to address the many issues that arise as a result.

"The current rules involving development that intensifies the use of private roads are confusing at best and often chaotic," McCarthy explained. "This is a common-sense ordinance that benefits both developers and residents, and will simplify the permit process, putting the horse before the cart where it belongs."

Carmel Valley resident Margaret Robbins told supervisors she has worked almost 10 years to get the ordinance passed

Unlike some crowd funding campaigns, the dog center will receive all the money the campaign raises even if it doesn't reach its goal of $17,000.

While the dog center has numerous critics in Carmel Valley, it clearly has supporters online — the Facebook page has 1,151 "likes."

Opponents, though, have also discovered the Facebook page. The thread about the crowd funding campaign reads like the minutes of a Carmel Valley Land Use Advisory Committee meeting.

"It's a great idea that would benefit the dog people in the area," Valerie Newman posted. "How can green grass be such a problem?"

officers. Perkins also never called police to complain about the dog nor tell the Daltons he was annoyed by its barking, even though he was friendly with the family.

Dalton didn't attend Tuesday's brief court hearing, but she plans to be at Perkins' sentencing in April to tell the judge how the loss of Candy Cane has affected her family, particularly her two young children, who played with Perkins' kids before he admitted to police to twice taking the dog.

Dalton said that while she's glad Perkins has been held responsible for the crimes, and she's received a lot of support from other dog owners, her family still wants to know what happened to Candy Cane.

"If we knew truly what happened to her, we would have more closure," she said. "The kids still miss her."

Dalton said just before Christmas, her family adopted two Shih Tzu-mix dogs from the SPCA for Monterey County.

"Get a clue," countered Frank Salcido, who presumably lives nearby. "We don't want you anywhere near us."

Also chiming in was Ekelund, who defended the project. "If there is one thing we actually need around here, it is a safe place to play with our dogs," he wrote.

Opponents have been critical of the dog center's plan to host 24 special events a year, which could bring as many as 70 RVs at a time — as well as a maximum of 250 people — to the site.

The project includes the installation of an 800 square-foot modular office trailer, a 600 square-foot restroom trailer, a 600 square-foot clubhouse trailer and a 400 square-foot electrical room. The owners also want to create a 1.2-acre pond; and they want to add 200 parking spaces.

keeping the situation in perspective.

"I'm praying the debris stays on the hillside," she said. "But it's fabulous we're getting some rain. We really need it."

The National Weather Service is predicting as much as six inches of rain could fall by Saturday afternoon. High winds are also expected.

Anticipating the rough weather, Friday's Multi-Agency Council meeting at the Big Sur Lodge Conference Center in Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park has been postponed until March 7. The meeting will start at 10 a.m.

Small band with big sound brings back swing era

By CHRIS COUNTS

OFFERING AN intimate club atmosphere, Sunset Center's Studio 105 hosts its third show of the season Friday, Feb. 28, when Steve Lucky and the Rhumba Bums serve up a sizzling blend of jump-blues, '40s and '50s R&B, and swing.

"This one's going to be really fun," said Natalie Hall of Sunset Center. "They're known as the 'Littlest Big Band in the Bay Area.' We're going to make some room for a dance floor. This one is going to be a hoot. Where else can you go in Carmel, have a glass of wine and dance to a live band?"

The Rhumba Bums feature Scott Petersen, Matt Cowan and Doug Rowan on saxophones, Brian Fishler on drums, and Lukas Vesely on bass. Joining them on stage is Miss Carmen Getit, who's best known for her tight dresses, power-packed vocals and mean blues guitar.

"She and Steve have great chemistry," Hall added.

The show starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are $35 to $49, with drinks also available.

Studio 105 is just steps away from the main auditorium at Sunset Center, which is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For ticket information, call (831) 620-2048.

Ensemble celebrates Bach

Featuring a collection on world class baroque musicians, the Musica Pacifica Baroque Ensemble pays tribute Sunday, March 2, at Sunset Center, to the namesake of Carmel's annual Bach Festival.

Founded in the San Francisco Bay Area nearly a quarter-century ago, the ensemble features Judith Linsenberg on recorder, Elizabeth Blumenstock on violin, Charles Sherman on the harpsichord and Josh Lee on viola da gamba.

The quartet's program includes Johann Sebastian Bach's Concerto in F Major; Brandenburg Concerto V in D Major; and Violin Concerto in A minor.

Also featured will be Johann Christian Bach's Andante from Trio Sonata no. IV in A Major; Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach's Andante from Trio Sonata in A Major; Johann Christoph Friedrich Bach's Allegretto from Trio Sonata in A Major; and Georg Philipp Telemann's Concerto for flute and recorder in E Minor.

Presented by the Carmel Music Society, the concert begins at 3 p.m. David Gordon offers a free pre-concert lecture at 2 p.m. in Studio 105. Tickets are $40 to $55. Call (831) 625-9938.

Also worth checking out

Sharing an affection for laid-back folk-rock, Sparrow's Gate and Assateague take the stage Friday, Feb. 28, at High Tide.

Perhaps reflecting the band's small town Central California roots, the sound of Sparrow's Gate leans toward the country side of the musical spectrum, while the songs of the San Francisco-based Assateague strike a balance between traditional and contemporary folk.

The music starts at 8 p.m. and there's no cover. High Tide is located next to Mundaka restaurant, which is on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel Square. Call (831) 624-7400.

This week's Live Music rundown is on page 23A

Film festival opens at Golden Bough

By CHRIS COUNTS

BACK FOR its fourth year, the Carmel Jewish Film Festival kicks off Saturday, March 1, at the Golden Bough Playhouse with a screening of the 2010 French comedy, "Le Concert."

Featuring a lineup of seven award-winning films from the United States, France, Czechoslovakia, Argentina and Lebanon, the festival continues through March 9.

The Golden Bough event marks the first time part of the festival has been staged outside of Congregation Beth Israel in Carmel Valley. Also joining the list of venues is the Monterey Institute of International Studies,

Anton & Michel gets new look, a yard sale for chefs, and Easter tips

By MARY SCHLEY

TONY SALAMEH can update the outside of his long-time Carmel restaurant, Anton & Michel, the planning commission decided earlier this month, when it approved his remodel plans. Commissioners considered Salameh's application in January and asked his designer, Nashwan Hamza to make some changes, which they accepted at a hearing Feb. 21.

The plans call for a more contemporary look to match the restaurant's interior remodel completed early last year: a painted black metal and frosted plexiglass awning, double glass doors with metal frames, plaster keystone around the entry doors to match the corners of the building, framed menu boxes, and two metal signs to replace the existing wood signs — though the commission debated whether the restaurant should be limited to one.

"We went through these five elements and adjusted them per your recommendations — we like them as well," Hamza said. "Regarding one vs. two signs, we strongly feel the two-sign option is the way to go," because that's what the restaurant has had for years, and the two signs balance each other out.

Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston generally disliked the idea of modernizing the restaurant's exterior.

"Gone is the day of the charming Carmel village with wood signs and all natural materials, including canvas awnings," she said. "Gone, gone are those days, so I'm going to have to give it up. Thank you."

Commissioner Michael LePage said he appreciated the work on the redesign and said Salameh and Hamza "listened to all of our suggestions and came back with an improved design."

But considering the rules on signs basically dictate one per entry, LePage said he couldn't support the idea of having one on each side of the front doors.

"I don't think that's appropriate or speaks to our sign ordinances as they are today," he said. "When an applicant comes in and makes significant changes, he should be held to the current municipal code."

Planning director Rob Mullane noted the commission can approve more than one sign when there are unusual circumstances.

Commissioner Keith Paterson said he found the two signs provided balance and suggested they be allowed to stay, since the restaurant has had them for decades already.

"Signs are a challenge for staff — I'm sure they're a challenge for the commission, too," Mullane commented.

But commissioners split on the sign issue, voting 2-2 on a motion approving design plans that included them, so they OK'd a design with one sign, allowing Salameh to proceed with the remodel.

■ 'Yard sale' at WFM

Whole Foods Market in Del Monte Center in Monterey will hold a Yard Sale Saturday, March 1, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., offering used equipment and appliances that could be just the ticket for someone running a small culinary business.

"Most of the items are in great condition (some brand new), and others need minor repairs or can be used for parts,"

Jane Cobb Langhorne

1918 - 2014

Jane Cobb Langhorne, 95, a resident of The Manor in Carmel Valley, died on February 4, 2014, having suffered a stroke two days earlier.

Born in Philadelphia on April 14, 1918, she was the only child of Emily Ruth Terry and Henry Quigg Cobb. Her parents divorced, after which she moved with her mother to Greenhill Farm in Overbrook, on the Pennsylvania Main Line. There she attended Friends Central School, and graduated from the Harcum School in 1937. She went on to study chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, but left the university after two years to marry jazz musician Andrew P. Skillern. That marriage ended tragically a year later with his death from an accidental fall.

Moving to Clewiston, Florida, she worked at the Blood Bank as a Medical Technician and an assistant to Dr. Strumia in developing the freeze drying of plasma. She also acquired her pilot's license. Through aviation, she met William Keene Langhorne of Charlottesville, Virginia, who was serving as a flight instructor for Royal Air Force cadets. They were married in 1943 and lived first in Miami, where Jane Langhorne gave birth to her two eldest daughters, then to Brazil where her youngest daughter was born.

Keene Langhorne's work as a pilot and later Captain for Pan American World Airways gave the couple the opportunity to travel widely and live abroad for extended periods. Establishing a home base in Atherton, California, they also lived in Germany and Hong Kong. While in Atherton she was a founding member of the Menlo-Atherton League of Women Voters and the Committee for Foreign Students at Stanford University. She also studied psychology at Stanford and San Jose State University. While in Hong Kong she studied Acupuncture and became adept at painting in the traditional Chinese manner.

Avid skiers, she and Keene began visiting Sun Valley in 1960 and established a second residence there in 1969. She last competed in the Bradford Slalom Cup in 1998, where she took first place in her age group. Combining culture with her love of skiing, she was instrumental in bringing opera to the Sun Valley Opera House.

When their children had all left home, the Langhornes moved to Portola Valley, where Jane continued to tend a large garden and pursued her various cultural, social, and political interests. Following Keene's death in 2000, she moved to Carmel, where she volunteered at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She met her partner of 11 years, Alonzo Parsons. Together they shared family gatherings with not only her birth daughters but also his daughters: Jody Parsons, Susan Parsons, and Julie Meinike who graciously took her into their family.

Jane Langhorne will long be remembered for her timeless beauty, unending curiosity and immense vitality.

She is survived by her daughters Terry Morawitz of Half Moon Bay, CA; Dana Howell (Gregory) of Ketchum, Idaho; and Julie Langhorne (Peter Schlenzka) of Tahoe City, CA, as well as grandchildren Werner Morawitz (Laura) of Ketchum, ID; Dana Morawitz of Marin, CA; Emily Howell Thomsen (Ian) of Missoula, Montana; Alexander Schlenzka of San Francisco, CA; Priya Schlenzka of Charleston, South Carolina; and great-grandchildren Keene Morawitz, Peter Morawitz, Audrey Morawitz, and Elsie Thomsen.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to www.populationconnection.org (formerly Zero Population Growth).

Condolences may be sent to Langhorne, 191 Del Mesa Carmel, Carmel, CA 93923.

A memorial service will be celebrated on April 12, 2014, at 3pm at The Manor, 8545 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

tial amount of time and money developing,” according to the lawsuit, which doesn’t specify the nature of the secrets Armanasco is alleged to have taken.

Agha, who also claims breach of contract and fraud, is seeking at least $10 million in damages from Armanasco.

“I have yet to be served” with the lawsuit, Armanasco told the Pine Cone Thursday morning. “But I can assure you that I will defend myself vigorously. My initial impression is that there is absolutely no merit to this suit.”

In an interview late last year with Pine Cone freelancer Tony Seton, Agha talked about his reputation for suing people and being sued.

“If they try to hurt you, you sue them,” Agha told Seton. “And I have not sued anybody more than two or three times.”

Armanasco advertised and promoted the benefits of DeepWater Desal’s operation at the same time he was ostensibly performing the same services for Agha, according to the lawsuit filed in Monterey County Superior Court.

DeepWater Desal is proposing a desalination operation not far from Agha’s property. Brent Constantz is the company’s manager and CEO. A third project, proposed by California American Water, is the front runner to be built for the Peninsula.

The lawsuit also alleges that Armanasco didn’t do enough to properly promote and brand Agha’s companies, Desal USA and Desal America, which offered mobile desalination units, and that Armanasco failed to educate the public about the purported benefits of the project. Agha has since proposed a different operation dubbed “The People’s Moss Landing Water Desal Project.”

Included in Agha’s legal filing with the court is an April 12, 2010, contract for public relations services and a Feb. 22, 2010, confidentiality and non-disclosure agreement signed by Armanasco that was to be in effect for one year.

A snapshot of the fee agreement per the 2010 contract indicates Agha was to pay Armanasco at least $15,000 in April, May and June of 2010, and $10,000 per month for July, August and September 2010. The total paid to Armanasco under two separate contracts, one dating to 2003, was almost $160,000, the lawsuit claims.

Though Agha has spent a lot of money to promote his desal proposal, he said the project hasn’t received the backing he was hoping for and has lost “future market value” and potential profits. His desal plans have garnered little support and haven’t been taken seriously by most government agencies. Agha tried to get the City of Pacific Grove to be the public agency behind his “People’s Project,” but the city wouldn’t commit.

“Agha has been challenged in obtaining public and governmental support of the [desal project] due to a cloud being created over the project as a result of Armanasco’s use of confidential information in developing” DeepWater Desal, according to the suit.

Furthermore, Agha claims Armanasco’s “conspiratorial actions” resulted in “confusion” by the public and government agencies as to the identity and commercial viability of his own Moss Landing desal project.

New Miller Maelstrom sweeps through Monterey County

THE MILLER Vortex clobbered Monterey County with dramatic vengeance on Tuesday when a mob of Millers converged for one big Miller Fest.

As readers might recall, the Joe Livernois Column last week did its level best to describe the riot of Millers who mill around the county with high-profile eminence.

On the journalism side, we tried to explain Don Miller at the Herald, Paul Miller at The Pine Cone and Tom Miller at KSBW. Then there was Sheriff Scott Miller, Pacific Grove Councilman Dan Miller, Monterey County Auditor-Controller Mike Miller, and Monterey Airport Commissioner Carl Miller. We couldn't forget Susan Miller, formerly the Herald's publisher. There were a couple of John Millers from Pacific Grove and a Jane Miller in Carmel. And, of course, Monterey County was once home to Henry Miller, the noted author and ping pong player.

The list went on and on.

But apparently the Joe Livernois Column had not been inclusive enough. The column last week was only the tip of the Millerberg. And, as we now know after following the stunning events in King City this week, there's a convoluted muddle of Millers in South Monterey County that we completely overlooked.

In fact, in a public declaration that underscores the state of our Miller Nation, King City Manager Michael Powers proclaimed on Tuesday that there are simply "too many Millers."

He actually said that. "Too many Millers."

Because, as we learned on Tuesday, it is virtually impossible these days to get seven random guys into the same room without at least one of them being named Miller.

Now it's time to hold on to your hats, because the following summary of Tuesday's events is certain to yank your Miller. (Or maybe it will mill your yanker; I'm too confused to know the difference anymore.)

Here's how the latest Miller Maelstrom came down:

Bruce Miller, the acting police chief in King City who thought he'd spend Tuesday hanging out with an assemblage of police chiefs at a convention in Monterey, was instead arrested on various corruption charges. The timing was perfect, inasmuch as it gave the assemblage in Monterey something to gossip about.

The charges apparently have something to do with the fact that Bruce Miller's brother, Brian Miller, owned a towing company in town called Miller Towing.

According to the Monterey County District Attorney, who is somehow not named Miller, an inordinate number of vehicles impounded by King City officers were taken by Brian Miller's towing firm, allegedly for some financial consideration.

Also arrested were Brian Miller, four other officers, and the former police chief, the guy Bruce Miller was replacing on an acting basis. (Two officers were arrested on charges separate from the towing scheme.)

With the King City Police Department in disarray, Powers felt inclined to call a press conference Tuesday afternoon to assure citizens that the city was still protected after 35 percent of its police force had been hauled off to county jail.

Tom Miller, the KSBW reporter, was among the reporters who covered the press conference. But you probably already figured that out.

Anyway, Powers explained that he had spoken to one of the other law-enforcement officers in the county named Miller about providing backup police coverage to his city. He left it unclear whether he had conversed with Sheriff Scott Miller or the chief of police in nearby Gonzales.

beyond the realm

By JOE LIVERNOIS

Because, as we should have expected, the chief of police in Gonzales is named Paul Miller.

It was after confused reporters asked Powers to elaborate on which Miller he meant that he uttered his "too-many-Millers" statement. Powers' declaration will long be remembered as the most astute observation ever made by a city administrator.

It should also be noted that Powers' Millerific statement was recorded for posterity by Phil Molnar, the ace Herald reporter who was dispatched to cover the press conference.

We have since learned that the name "Mólnar," translated from the Hungarian, is Miller.

Of course it is.

MOTORCYCLE

involve slow-speed maneuvers in tight spaces.

While maneuvering a fairly heavy and sometimes unwieldy police bike requires physical strength, balance and coordination, Boucher said often it's the mind that gets in the way.

"Most of the time, you're your own worst enemy, because you're really hard on yourself. The instructors tell us it's not that hard, and you psych yourself out — you think about it too much," he said.

The mean streets of Carmel

Boucher graduated Jan. 17 and has been honing his skills in and around town since, patrolling on the bike five days a week.

"Every day, I try to practice something different. The thing now is getting used to doing a traffic stop on a bike vs. in a car," he said. Carmel has some steep, gravelly roads and shoulders that present no problem for a car but can be tricky on a motorcycle.

"It's all about surface appraisal," he said. "You try to plan out where you're going to do a traffic stop, but it never works out that way."

Boucher said he's already had his "Aha" moment, too.

"There were not a lot of people in town, and I thought it was kind of weird, so I ended up riding down to the beach," he said. "And there was this gorgeous sunset going down over the ocean."

Cmdr. Paul Tomasi said Boucher is the perfect guy for the job.

"Joe is doing absolutely fantastic. He's very excited and loves the position — and it's a challenging position, because it's fun to ride a bike, but a lot of what you're doing is not popular with the public," he said. "His personality is great for it, because he's a low-key guy. He's totally motivated, totally happy, and comes to work excited to be here every day, so we're happy to have him."

we want to even look outside for these positions."

The department recently brought in an entry-level officer with the arrival of Michael Bruno, who was a reserve for just three weeks before being hired as a full-time cop. Bruno, 24 and a member of a longtime Peninsula family, has trained with officer Chris Johnson and is now riding with Lightfoot on the night shift. Soon, he will be out with Shen during the daytime and said he's really enjoying the new job.

Tomasi said he's a good fit.

"He just finished his first month of training, and they're saying he's really a sharp kid who's comfortable with the public, comfortable in his uniform and really doing well," he said. "I'm hearing things that are actually surprising me how well he's doing. He's not afraid to go hands-on if needed and contact people. I've never heard that before, and I've been around a lot of new trainees."

Bruno will be finished with training by the end of May, and Tomasi said he'd like to have a new sergeant in place by June.

According to the ad, sergeants "oversee and participate in all work activities related to the enforcement of laws, the prevention of crimes, general investigations of crimes, accidents and cases; coordinate investigations with other agencies; perform a variety of technical tasks relative to assigned areas of responsibility and administrative tasks in support of the police department."

Although Tomasi said he would prefer candidates to have a college degree, the minimum requirements are a high school diploma or GED, possession of a California Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training Basic Law Enforcement certificate and possession of a valid California Driver's License. Applicants should email scarey-lang@ci.carmel.ca.us.

the fire. Bloxham said the California Highway Patrol also assisted by closing Mesa at its north and south ends.

"That really helped with traffic issues," he said. "At that time of night, I'm surprised we didn't have a lot of traffic coming off Mesa to see what was going on."

Bloxham said the residents were able to stay home that night, despite the destruction to the garage, which he roughly estimated at $100,000, including the cars.

(Bloxham did not know their names but said he believes they own the home. According to the Monterey County Recorder's office, the residence is owned by Edward Drapkin and Natalia Lipkina.)

Trenner spent much of Monday and Tuesday combing through the wreckage to see if she could determine what sparked the fire, but ultimately, the destruction was too extensive to yield any clues, she said.

"The investigation was concluded this afternoon," she said Feb. 25. "The cause was undetermined, due to excessive fire damage."

'Eat cheese, drink wine and live life happy!' says Kent Torrey

WHEN ASKED how he decided to become a cheesemonger, Kent Torrey likes to say he was "born to it." According to the Chinese calendar, Torrey was born during the Year of the Rat; he quips, "What better place for a rat than a cheese shop?"

Great Lives

By LILY PATTERSON

Locals will recognize Torrey as the owner of The Cheese Shop, leading a charge of around 20 staff members from the helm of the small but mighty emporium located in Carmel Plaza, which contains a selection of more than 200 cheeses on an average business day, according to Torrey.

Despite his strong ties to town, Torrey spent his childhood in Honolulu, Hawaii, where he and his sister lived with their internationally-minded professor parents. It also explains why he answers the telephone by saying, "Mahalo," and "Aloha."

Torrey says that his parents befriended other professors from all over the world while taking sabbaticals, and that these friends often came to visit his family in Hawaii, bringing along their distinct cultural practices. Because of this early education, augmented by the influence of his "gourmand" mother, Honolulu is where Torrey discovered his passion for food and drink.

But passion doesn't necessarily translate into success in business. After college at the University of Puget Sound, Torrey travelled through Europe after a short stay in Monterey working at a liquor store. When he returned to the Monterey Peninsula in 1986, he saw an advertisement for employment at The Cheese Shop. He interviewed and was offered the position by then-owners John and Nancy McCormack. He says his best education came from working in the store.

"My former bosses and colleagues taught me everything about this job," Torrey says. And one of the most important pieces of wisdom he has given his own staff does not concern cheese aging or wine pairing. He makes it clear that "the first thing that I have passed along to my staff is that we greet customers with a smile, warm "hello," and a taste of cheese! It's our best business card."

Even while Torrey and his staff are in the midst of preparing for festivals and special events – the next being a celebration of the store's 41st year in May – The Cheese Shop's day-to-day operations reflect the phrase that Torrey frequently uses as his personal motto: "Eat cheese, drink wine, live life happy!"

When asked just how he and his staff create the shop's famously cheerful atmosphere, Torrey says he has his father to thank for that. He has adopted his father's emphasis on hands-on experience by encouraging immersion in the products by both customers and staff members. His staff has tasted every cheese, meat and wine in the shop, ensuring that they are knowledgeable about and interested in the products they sell.

Torrey asks, with more than a hint of incredulity, "How can we not be full of joy doing what we love, and sharing with everyone? And we get paid to do this, too?"

His philosophy is that food and drink are cultural bridges, and while cheese is common around the world, tasting one that comes from a different region or that is produced in a different way speaks to the unique features of the people and culture that produces it. While Torrey has traveled and discovered new products himself, he says that the longevity and quality of The Cheese Shop has garnered an excellent reputation for the humble store, so producers now come to him with their best offerings.

And while the store's smiles and bites of cheese are the main things that make customers so happy, a cheesy joke or two can't hurt. Torrey's favorite cheese is Brie – simply because of the versatility in preparing it – so one of his classic lines is "To Brie or not to Brie." He also favors Gouda jokes. "The Dutch cheese Gouda is correctly pronounced How'Duh. No matter how'duh you say it, it's Gouda tasting!"

It seems as long as Kent Torrey is in charge, The Cheese Shop will see neither a shortage of cheese nor good-humored fun.

ELKS

He also found that those responsible for the rumors "violated some, if not all" of the Elks' cardinal principles and apologized to the crew and their families for "the wrongful accusations."

Expelled from lodge

Even after Finklang released the results of the investigation, the rumors persisted. In April 2013, Brazier — at the urging of several high-level officers — sent a letter to the four members ordering them to attend an April 8, 2013 meeting to allow them to show why they shouldn't be suspended or expelled from the lodge, the suit contends.

However, the meeting lasted less than 10 minutes and the four Spaghetti Hill Crew members were not allowed to speak in their defense, according to the suit. Brazier referred to the four members as "those people" and "your ilk" during the meeting, comments that the suit says referred to them and other people of Italian heritage.

Four days later, the Cardinallis and Guerra received letters informing them of their expulsion, which, among other things, accused them of disrupting the "harmony of the lodge." As a result, many members of the lodge were "heard repeating the statements and adding that [the four] must be guilty because they were expelled from membership," the lawsuit says.

However, on Oct. 24, 2013, Millard Pickering, a new grand exalted ruler who took over Brazier's spot, issued an executive order reinstating full membership to the Cardinallis, Guerra and Mulchaey.

But the lawsuit says the name-calling didn't stop. On January 31 of this year, the four members volunteered at a lodge dinner, which marked the first event they'd assisted with since being wrongfully expelled. The dinner was called "Steal Night," a name the lawsuit contends refers to the four and is therefore libelous.

Not only have the four members suffered a loss of their reputation and shame, the Cardinallis and Guerra have seen a decline in their businesses since the rumors began. The Cardinallis' son and nephew, both local businessmen, share the same John Cardinalli name.

"Their businesses have likewise seen a decline due to the malicious defamation of John Cardinalli," according to the lawsuit.

The four members of the crew are still active in the Monterey Elks Lodge.

No longer taking his health for granted, Clark ramped up his workout routine. He's also learned to be careful about what he eats.

"Now I really take care of myself," Clark explained. "I work out harder now than I did before the accident. I really watch my diet."

Clark's recovery was aided by his faith that his condition was going to improve. "You have to keep a positive attitude and believe that things are going to get better," he suggested.

Today, Clark considers himself about 85 percent recovered.

"I've ridden a bike, but long-distance trips are out of the question," said the soon-to-be 41-year-old, who is the father of an 8-year-old son, Jackson. "I play baseball and football with my son."

Clark hopes to one day be able run long distance, which is difficult right now because he doesn't have all of his balance back. He ran marathons before the accident, and he hopes to complete in one again.

What Clark really wants, though, is to be a fireman again. "I want to be able to help other people," he added.

Unjust and Decidedly Unbusiness-like

"They take all they can get from us, but leave nothing with us." The foregoing is the substance of a complaint frequently voiced in Carmel with regard to public service corporations operating here, and of professional men and others doing business here. From the three public-service concerns — the Telephone, the Water, and the Electric Light companies — Carmel gets nothing in return — service excepted — for the $600 paid out monthly.

Not a single person of the operating and maintenance force of any of the concerns mentioned resides in Carmel. Therefore, not a single penny of the money obtained here in payment for service is spent here for food, fuel or shelter. Not one of these dividend-paying corporations had responded to repeated requests of this paper for advertising. This state of affairs is not only an injustice to Carmel; it is not good business.

Horses on Beach Bring Protests

In a letter to the city council, Mrs. Grace Flanders, as chairman of the parks and playgrounds commission, protests against permitting horses on the beach. Horses are now permitted on the entire beach during winter months, only as far south as the foot of Ocean avenue in summer.

Mayor Herbert Heron explained that polo playing on the beach was reason enough for banning horses; Councilman Everett Smith that manure in the sand dunes, where swimmers sun bathe, was another objection; Council Frederick R. Bechdolt, supported by Mrs. Mary Goold, asserted that harm was done to the horses by riding them on the sand.

Sunset School Purchase To Go on April 14 Ballot

Carmel's city council last night moved to bring the voters of Carmel at the April 14 election the question of whether or not they want to acquire the Sunset School for a community and cultural center. After receiving, and adopting, the favorable report of the firm of financial consultants assigned to study the matter, the move to take the question to the voters was made, on finding that the city can acquire the property without any increase in taxes.

Mayor Eben Whittlesey stated that the chance to acquire the site was "A challenge and an opportunity for the city. This is the first and necessary step in implementing the city's master plan as it applies to a community center."

Councilman Frank Putnam asserted, "This is the greatest thing that has ever happened to Carmel, and all of the parliamentary maneuvering was to insure that the matter will be adopted by the voters of the city on April 14."

School officials hope for relief at polls March 7

Carmel Unified School District officials are gearing up for next Tuesday's special election, where a parcel tax measure, if approved, could spell relief for the district's run-down schools and equipment. Known formally as Measure A, the ballot measure calls for each parcel within the district to be levied with an annual tax of $80 for the next four years. CUSD has estimated that the measure would generate about $880,000 between March 8, 1989 and March 7, 1993. If passed, the money will be used solely for capital improvements, of which the list is quite extensive.

Among items in disrepair are: buildings in need of structural repair and painting, older buildings containing potentially harmful levels of asbestos which must be removed, walkways with dangerous cracks and eruptions caused by tree roots, and perhaps most importantly, a fleet of school buses that have travelled in excess of 400,000 miles each. The reason for the current problem is simple: changes in school funding brought about by Proposition 13 and a state Supreme Court decision, have reduced the amount of funding to schools, and forced the school board to direct finances to the district's instructional program rather than to capital improvements.

CHS's rare triple play: three valedictorians

Commencement might take a few minutes longer at Carmel High School this June, what with three valedictorians sharing the bill. For seniors Jason Lande, 18, Heather Arnold, 18, and Cindy Nishigushi, 17, the road through high school has been paved with straight As. "I'm proud of them," said CUSD Supt. Bob Infelise. "Carmel maintains a tradition of high academic standards and these three young people epitomize those standards."

"It took a lot of work," said Lande, who plans to attend the University of California at San Diego next fall. "I just kind of got in a groove and started doing it." "I like the fact that all three of us are doing it (straight As), because it's something new and exciting," said Arnold, adding that she plans to attend UC Berkeley with an undeclared major. Nishigushi said she plans to attend Pomona College. While Arnold enjoys history and English, both Lande and Nishigushi go in more for mathematics, physics and calculus.

Just in case there are any younger students interested in achieving the ultimate in academic success, this year's valedictorians offered some sage advice. "It's important to work hard from the beginning," Lande said. "Because if you fall behind it's hard to catch up." Nishigushi added that straight As is an affair of the heart. "You have to want it for yourself; you can't do it for anybody else." Arnold said it's good to keep an eye toward the future. "Certainly if they work hard now, it will be easier later and they'll get a lot of benefits."

sion report that found the cell towers would not cause significant impacts to people and the environment, though the report did not mention the monarch butterfly sanctuary. The group also contends an environmental impact report should have been prepared.

In August 2013, the P.G. City Council voted 5-1 to reject a request by activist Nina Beety to continue a public hearing on an appeal of the planning commission's approval of the antennas. Councilman Dan Miller dissented while councilman Ken Cuneo recused himself because he said he owns AT&T stock.

A "Save P.G. Butterflies" Facebook page that has 75 supporters was also established to help spread the word but has only had a few posts since November 2013.

— and she urged them to vote on enacting it.

"This ordinance is fair to developers planning projects on private roads and to the people who live on those private roads," Robbins said. "This ordinance has been rewritten and rewritten and rewritten, and some people are never going to be happy with it. Please act on it today."

County counsel Wendy Strimling suggested disputes over projects and activities along private roads may end in court regardless of whether it is adopted. "Only a court can resolve these things in the end," she said.

Supervisor Simon Salinas shared his doubts about the ordinance. "The current process works out okay," Salinas said. "If folks can't agree, we make a decision and they go to court if they can't resolve it. [This ordinance] could delay the process, which is already lengthy enough."

Supervisor Dave Potter — in whose district most of the speakers reside — said that ordinance "started out very well intended, but seems to have become very complicated."

Potter said he's still open to supporting the ordinance, but he gave staff and supporters a time limit to come up with one that the board will support.

"I'm willing to extend this a little longer, but not another year," Potter added. "Let's try to get some sense of closure on this."

CARMEL, CA - Richard M. Hardin, 81, passed away peacefully on Tuesday, February 18, 2014 at home surrounded by family after a courageous battle with metastatic prostate cancer.

Richard was born in Hollister, CA to A. Marshall Hardin and Viella C. Butterfield in 1932. After serving in the Army during the Korean Conflict and attending college, Richard owned and operated the Carmel Pipe Shop for over 43 years. He always loved the opportunity the shop gave him to visit with old friends and meet new friends from around the world.

He was a member of the Carmel Kiwanis Club and Carmel Business Association for many years. Richard also enjoyed serving as an usher at Carmel Presbyterian Church. His favorite pastime was walking the Carmel beach path with his wife.

Richard is survived by his loving wife of 48 years, Juliette Hardin; son, John M. (Kelley) Hardin of Pacific Grove; daughters, Natalie Hardin of Carmel, Nancy (Richard) Temple of Pleasanton, CA; three grandchildren, Wesley, Grace, Christopher; and a brother, John A. Hardin of Hollister, CA.

A private service will be held in Hollister.

MARKET UPDATE

The market continues at a slow and steady pace through February with 15 sales across Pebble Beach and the main parts of Carmel. We're currently on pace to surpass the first quarter of last year when 30 deals closed because March is historically the best month of the year. Pebble Beach had 10 new sales and 10 closed escrows in February. Sales below $2M continued at a strong pace in Pebble with 9 of the 10 closed escrows coming in that bracket, driven primarily by the demand around MPCC. Carmel had 4 news sales and 5 closed escrows in February with Carmel Point driving activity and rising prices. Contemporary homes continue to be in very high demand across all areas with one on Bay View closing this month at $3.685M after just 36 days on the market.

Dr. Richard Conklin: This optometrist is really on a roll

VAUDEVILLE ROUTINE: A guy goes into see his eye doctor. “Doctor,” he says, “ever since I bought this red sweater, I see red all the time. What should I do?”

And the doctor says: “Pull the sweater all the way over your head.” – ba-dum-bum-CHING.”

That last part is called a drum roll and a rimshot, used by old-school comedians after a joke’s punch line. Ba-dum-bum is the drum roll. CHING is the cymbal.

I use this showbiz metaphor because I’ve just spent a delightful morning with Richard Conklin, OD, in his office on Mission between Fourth and Fifth. Richard has been practicing optometry in Carmel since 1970. He’s also an active and enthusiastic percussionist, who plays frequently in a variety of venues around the peninsula.

“Please pardon me if the phone rings,” he told me as we sat in his comfortable office. “I’ll need to answer it.” Of course, the phone did ring, and he answered it, figuratively donning his receptionist’s hat, booking an appointment with a patient. Then a delivery man came in to leave a package, which he accepted personally. His office may be the last one-man operation in the county. Richard is as laid back as his practice. And he intentionally runs it that way.

“My dad was an osteopathic physician back in Oklahoma. A real old-fashioned country doc. Seems like he was on-call all the time. That’s part of the reason I didn’t become a medical doctor. I wanted to have time to do other things than practice medicine.”

As a young man he spent some time with a local optometrist in his home town, recog-time to spend with my family and have fun playing drums.”

Many of his cohorts think he’s retired. Patients have learned that if they just drop by the office in the afternoon he might not be there.

“Probably because I often take a two-hour lunch break, then pick-up the kids from school and take them to their music and dance lessons.”

At an age when most men are grandfathers, Richard has two young children. His daughter, Quincy, attends Carmel Middle School. She is an accomplished cellist, and she is studying ballet. Noah is at All Saints’ Day School. He plays bass guitar, and according to his father, “really rocks.”

Richard has been a student of music all nizing that the OD had a much more relaxed practice than Richard’s dad did. So off he went to optometry school in Houston.

“Optometry allows me to do something that is tremendously fulfilling. I can help people with their vision problems and get immediate, positive results. Yet, I’m finished at the end of the day, giving me plenty of his life, and he is a self-taught drummer. In 1978, before he had his own drums, he borrowed a set to play in a production of "Bye, Bye Birdie" in Knight Hall at the Naval Postgraduate School.

He received his first set of drums as a divorce present. Yes, you read that correctly.

"It was a most amicable divorce," Richard told me. "We are still good friends. She recognized my interest in music and thought a set of drums would be a nice present for me.

That got my avocation off to a good start. I played some gigs at the Hyatt, and at the old Barnyard Theater. Since then I've played in more than 130 musical productions."

Surprisingly, he does not consider himself to be a good drummer. He says he is not a "show-off" soloist, so music directors trust his interpretation.

"I just seem to have a sense of what the performers need, whether they are vocalists or dancers. Once I played a show at Monterey Peninsula College with no rehearsal. I ad-libbed a 'kick' that surprised the dancers, but they asked me to keep doing it, as it was just what they needed."

In April, Richard will be playing in two shows concurrently: "Peter Pan" at Santa Catalina School, and "The Music Man" at All Saints' Day School. He also is the drummer for Infittee and the Jazz Cats, a group that often plays at Plaza Linda.

I asked him if there is any correlation between his profession of optometry and his avocation as a drummer. He admitted that in some ways there is.

"Both require a tremendous amount of concentration, and both provide me with a sense of satisfaction from the results."

Richard Conklin instinctively knows what performers need on stage. He also knows exactly what his patients need in his office — a great combo that can't be beat. Ba-dum-bum-CHING."
