Friends of Spike get OK to dedicate bench

By MARY SCHLEY

CARMEL IS world famous for being friendly to dogs, but isn't exactly hostile to cats.

The city's planning commission unanimously voted Tuesday to allow a group of residents to dedicate a bench on the Lincoln Street footbridge to a cat named Spike who had made the bridge his home for several years before he died in a nearby home in 2012. The 6-by-8-inch bronze plaque will be etched with an image of the cat and read, "In Memory of Spike, 1996-2012, A legend in his own time ... The neatest, best-est, coolest, brightest, sweetest, most savvy and friendly cat ever ... who lived at the footbridge 2007-2009 and befriended everyone who crossed it."

According to Linda Smith, one of the group of more than 30 Friends of Spike and the woman with whom he took up residence when he began feeling his age, the cat started hanging out around the bench on the footbridge between Third and Fourth avenues after his family moved downtown in 2007. Carmel police identified the apparently stray cat's owners and returned him, but he repeatedly escaped, preferring to live in "the semi wild and magical environs of the footbridge, a place more in tune with his Spike (left) moved away from his home in 2007, preferring to live in the semi-wild environs of the Lincoln Street bridge, where he captured the hearts of many. His fans are dedicating a bench to him.

Woman arrested for killing friend in DUI collision

By MARY SCHLEY

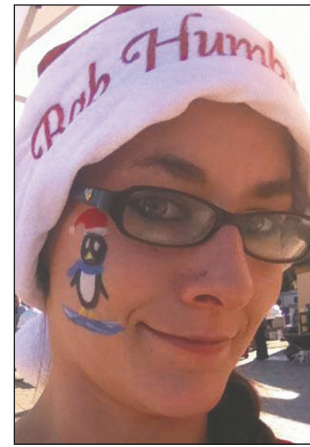

A CARMEL Valley woman was arrested early Saturday morning on suspicion of driving drunk and hitting and killing 25-year-old Kate Thomas, who was walking home on Esquiline Road after the two were drinking alongside others at the Running Iron in Carmel Valley Village.

Police suspect Breezie Anne Snyder, 28, was intoxicated when she struck Thomas with her Toyota Highlander at around 2 a.m. March 8.

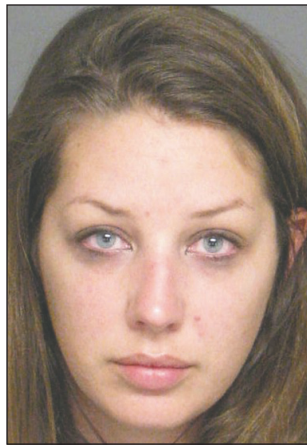

The victim, known to many as the cheerful, bespectacled woman who worked at the Carmel Valley Market and Grove Market in Pacific Grove, died at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula at 2 a.m.

"I can't confirm it, but somebody told one of the investigating officers that they did know each other. They were both coming from the Running Iron," California Highway Patrol public information officer Jaime Rios told The Pine Cone.

City finance specialist guilty of food stamp fraud, has three bankruptcies

■ Stilwell says reporting is 'bullying'

By MARY SCHLEY

DEANNA ALLEN, who was hired at city hall in 2010 and is in charge of Carmel's finance and payroll departments, was convicted last year of fraudulently receiving almost $5,000 in food stamps. She has also filed for bankruptcy three times — in 1997, 2008 and 2011 — according to court records.

City administrator Jason Stilwell defended Allen, saying he can assure taxpayers that her crime and bankruptcies have not "impacted her ability to serve the city and its citizens honestly."

Mayor Jason Burnett also came to her defense and said he was glad she worked at city hall.

"If the biggest mistake that somebody has made involves working to get food on your kids' table, frankly that's the sort of employee that we want," Burnett said. "I'm obviously not condoning any particular activity, but you need to look at the specifics, and a lot of people were in really tough situations during the Great Recession, and a lot of people got themselves in situations that in hindsight they wish they had not entered into, but I think people deserve a second chance provided they have handled the situation after the fact."

According to prosecutors, however, Allen and her husband, Wayne, committed fraud to obtain public funds from November 2009 to March 2011 — starting just before she

Family to file suit against man who took their dog

■ One last search for Candy Cane

By KELLY NIX

THE MONTEREY family whose Labrador retriever was stolen and left for dead in the Carmel Highlands is in the process of filing a civil lawsuit against the neighbor who took the animal.

Melissa Dalton's Lab, Candy Cane, was twice taken by neighbor Gregory Perkins and dropped off in the Carmel Highlands, about eight miles away from their house, according to police. The first time, in summer 2012, the dog was found a week later. But the dog remains missing after the second time she was stolen in August 2013.

Perkins, a Hartnell College math teacher, was charged with the crimes and in February pleaded no contest (which is the same as a guilty plea) to one felony count of animal cruelty and a misdemeanor count of theft of a dog. He is scheduled to be sentenced in April.

In the meantime, the Daltons' Carmel attorney, Lyn Woodward, told The Pine Cone she's preparing to file suit against Perkins to seek monetary and non-monetary damages for the loss of the beloved family dog. She is seeking more than $25,000.

"The reason for the lawsuit is that the restitution in the criminal case is much more narrow than what [the Daltons] could get in civil court," Woodward explained.

$24,000 water bill cut to just $100

By KELLY NIX

WHEN MONTEREY resident Gervaise Davis got a California American Water bill for a staggering $24,000, he was stunned, to say the least.

"My wife handed it to me and said 'Oh my goodness, we must have a problem,'" Davis, a semi-retired attorney, told The Pine Cone. "And I said, 'Yes, I think so.'"

Davis, whose water bills typically run from a low of $30 to a high of $180, depending on his landscaping needs in a particular month, immediately contacted Cal Am to find out the problem. His bill reflected that he used almost 229,000 gallons.

"You would have to have the equivalent of a miniature Niagara Falls in your backyard," Davis said.

Davis acknowledged he discovered a "significant" leak from an irrigation line in his backyard on Christmas Day and that his son-in-law cut and capped the line to stop the flow. While he's not sure how long the leak existed, he scoffed at the amount his meter showed he used.

"That is absurd," he said.

However, an underground break in a water supply line can easily leak that much without showing any evidence on the

For the love of Kramer

AFTER THE loss of their Standard Poodle, Yoshi, their grief made them believe they didn't want another dog, until they realized the painful silence, hanging like a shroud throughout the house, was prolonging their sadness.

At first, they weren't sure what to do with the adorable puffball they brought home, a little Labradoodle they could cup in their hands, who seemed sweet and shy and all about affection. Yet, as he grew and grew and grew, they watched the little dog who they imagined would stay sorta small develop the awkward, long limbs and exuberant energy of an oversized adolescent.

Now 98 pounds, he races into rooms at break-neck speeds, careening around corners and crashing into walls. Then he straightens himself up and slides into place like curly-haired Kramer from, "Seinfeld." Which is exactly where he got his name.

Kramer, now 5, loves the kids in his family, both of whom have moved away from home. When they visit, he hangs out in the hallway between their bedrooms, and waits for them to wake up, and then gets so sad when they leave, he lies on one of their beds with his head on the pillow.

"Kramer loves the beach," says his person, "but he doesn't get there often. It's a real commitment to take a 98-pound white Labradoodle to the beach. It takes planning – and a big bathtub."

Kramer also loves to watch TV. He is particularly attracted to animal shows. Once he viewed almost an entire documentary on sea lions and wept as he watched. His family had to turn off the Westminster Dog Show; he was beside himself. He just couldn't take all the emotion.

Kramer's also loves the lady who delivers newspapers in the neighborhood. She doesn't stop at his house, but she gets an exuberant greeting every time she drives by.

MPC play brings together Shakespeare and Prohibition

REIMAGINED AS a "brawling, boozy Prohibition era comedy," William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" opens Friday, March 14, on the Morgan Stock Stage at Monterey Peninsula College.

Director Gary Bolen of the MPC Theatre Company said it was surprisingly easy to set Shakespeare's spoof on the battle of the sexes in an early 1930s speakeasy.

"As I was reading it over again, it struck me how so many of those characters paralleled the era of the speakeasy and Prohibition, and how neatly they fit into the roles," Bolton said.

"I had some family members who were, let's just say 'involved' in not exactly legal activities during that time and really related to it. I just thought it would be a kick to see them come to life in this way."

The cast includes Christopher Deacon, Ayanna Blount, James Brady, Amanda Schemmel, Daniel Lucido, Matt Pavellas, Roland Shorter, and many others. Barney Hulse is the music director, while Sherri Beck is the choreographer.

Tickets are $25 for adults, $22 for seniors, $15 for young adults and active military, and $10 for anyone under 15.

The play continues Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through March 30. Friday and Saturday performances start at 7:30 p.m., while Sunday matinees begin at 2 p.m. MPC is located at 980 Fremont St. Call (831) 646-4213.

Tasting room debate gets contentious

By MARY SCHLEY

AT ITS meeting Tuesday night, the planning commission turned down Tudor Wines' proposal for a tasting room on Mission Street but decided not to rescind the approval it gave Feb. 11 for restaurateur Firok Shield to open a tasting room on San Carlos Street. The hot-button issue of too many tasting rooms in town now goes to the city council, since the planning commission's OK of Shield's proposal has been appealed by a dozen other tasting rooms in town.

The commission denied Tudor's application to sell his wines in the small gazebo in the Court of the Fountains currently occupied by artist and mayoral hopeful Vincenzo D'Amico because, while they contain Monterey County grapes, they are made in Paso Robles.

While restaurateur and hotel owner David Fink sent a letter encouraging the city to approve Tudor's application, Scott Caraccioli, who has a tasting room on Dolores Street and represents the dozen wine-tasting rooms involved in the Carmel Wine Walk by-the-Sea, objected, saying that Tudor poured and sold his wines in a Mission Street restaurant for a couple of years without holding a license or paying taxes to the city. (Tudor and the Wine Walk group are also battling in court over ownership of the Wine Walk name and concept.)

"Although his wines are made with Monterey County grapes, that could change at any time," Caraccioli said. "He doesn't own a winery."

Commission chairman Steve Dallas pointed out there is no assurance Tudor's wines will contain Monterey County grapes in the future.

"The intent of the wine-tasting policies is to strongly encourage Monterey County wines," commissioner Michael LePage added. "So I think this application fails on that count."

Permit headed to city council

Commissioners struggled with Shield's application when they considered it during previous hearings. As with Tudor Wines, a major issue was whether tasting rooms should be required to offer wines produced in Monterey County: Shield's Da Giovanni wines are made in Sonoma, and the other brand he proposed to sell, Marie Antoinette Wines, is made with mostly Monterey County grapes but bottled at a winery in Morgan Hill.

After the initial approval, planning commissioner Don Goodhue brought the issue up for reconsideration.

At the meeting, winemaker Mark Manzoni, who also operates a tasting room on San Carlos Street, encouraged the city to be a focal point for promoting the local wine industry.

"The wines poured and sold should contain Monterey County grapes," Manzoni said, and be "produced and bottled in Monterey County." Conversely, labels that produce wines outside the county are not supporting the local industry "and should not be able to open tasting rooms in Carmel."

The dozen tasting rooms, whose Wine Walk by-the-Sea is sponsored by the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, have worked hard to promote local wines and to make Carmel a destination for tasting them.

"We want to keep that — want to stay local," Manzoni said. "We don't want to see wineries coming into Carmel and diluting that."

The group suggested a moratorium be imposed until the policies are revised. "It will be a chance to create and adopt a consistent tasting policy," he said.

Shield, who owns Da Giovanni, Bistro Giovanni and Bistro Beaujolais restaurants, defended his application, along with his contributions to town.

"I cater to locals as well as to tourists, and

Police & Sheriff's Log

Man stuck with fake bill

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 18

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Barking dog complaint on Camino Real. The dog owner returned home shortly after an officer's arrival to investigate. The dog owner was advised of the complaint.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A female entered a business on Ocean Avenue and made suspicious and alarming comments which frightened employees. Employees called their manager for guidance, and the manager called the police. Upon police arrival, the female was gone, but management asked police to give her a trespass warning. An area check was conducted but was met with negative results.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Boyfriend and girlfriend involved in a dispute on San Carlos Street. No physical violence. Both parties counseled.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a found cell phone near the Normandy Inn on Casanova and forwarded to the P.D. for safe-keeping.

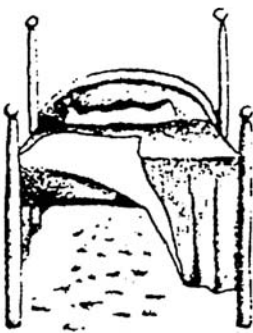

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a dog biting a person on Dolores Street. Medical attention wasn't desired by victim.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A patrol unit responded to a complaint of a barking dog on Camino Real. Two dogs found in yard, and a courtesy notice left at the front door. The next day, animal control officer attempted contact with the dog owner.

Pacific Grove: Possible fraud on Lighthouse Avenue.

Pacific Grove: Resident withdrew a substantial amount of money from a bank at Country Club Gate center. Within the stack of money, there was a fake $100 bill. When the resident went back to the bank, the manager informed him the bank could not accept the money back and to go to the police.

Pacific Grove: Wallet taken from a woman's purse while she waited in line at a Forest Avenue store. No suspect.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 19

Carmel-by-the-Sea: California Driver's License and credit card in the street. At 1455 hours, owner of CDL and card came into the station to claim them.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Car on Fourth Avenue repossessed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen witnessed what she thought was a possible hit-and-run to a parked vehicle on Ocean Avenue. Upon further followup with the owner of the parked vehicle, there was no damage as initially thought. No further action.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Police units responded to a report of a battery on a person in the downtown business district on San Carlos Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A physical domestic disturbance occurred between a husband and his wife who are currently separated. The individuals' two children were present during the disturbance, but did not witness the assault. The husband left the location and his wife did not have any visible injuries.

Carmel Valley: Welfare check on two children at Princess Camp at the request of CPS.

Pacific Grove: Officers were dispatched to a bank on Lighthouse Avenue. The bank manager reported that an elderly patron was attempting to withdraw her entire savings account because she received a call telling her that she had won a Publisher's Clearinghouse sweepstakes. The caller told the woman she needed to send money via Western Union in order to receive her winnings. The individual who made the call was spoken to by officers and invited the woman to call an 866 number to confirm his identity. However, officers conducted a Google search of the phone number and found many results for Publisher's Clearinghouse scams using the number. The woman told the caller not to call her any more and hung up the phone.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed from Junipero Street for blocking a driveway.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person on Fifth Avenue reported a verbal altercation between two taxi companies over a fare.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported losing a bracelet between Feb. 15 and 16 somewhere in the City of Carmel.

Carmel area: An administrator of a Carmel care facility reported one of her residents as a missing person at risk.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to an ongoing neighbor dispute on Union Avenue. One neighbor was outside cleaning his yard while the other neighbor decided to use a leaf blower.

Pacific Grove: Suspicious circumstances on Seventh Street.

Wildlife experts use shell game to aid condor recovery

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH SEVEN nesting pairs of condors active in the Big Sur area, the staff at the Ventana Wildlife Society is doing everything in its power to increase the population of the endangered bird — even if that means engaging in a little deception.

Nesting attempts by condors often fail because the shells of their eggs are too thin. In response, researchers are replacing wild condor eggs with artificial eggs, which are later swapped for captive condor eggs that are ready to hatch.

The strategy worked like a charm last year on female condor No.171, who laid an egg that was crushed due to thinning. VWS staff quickly replaced the crushed egg with a fake one. The female condor didn't seem to mind, and two months later, the artificial egg was swapped for a captive egg that soon hatched, resulting in the birth of a condor chick which the female was willing to care for.

In the battle against malaria, yellow fever and other insect-borne illnesses, DDT was widely used during World War II and the decades that followed, but decimated bald eagle and peregrine falcon populations in the 1960s and 1970s. After the insecticide was banned in 1972, those birds recovered. So why are condors still apparently being affected by DDT?

It turns out that the condors in Big Sur commonly feed on the carcasses of sea lions, which is precisely what they're supposed to do. But sea lions spend at least part of their lives near the Palos Verdes Shelf Superfund Site off the Southern California coast, where an estimated 1,500 metric tons of DDT was dumped over three decades.

The DDT moves its way up the food chain and eventually accumulates in the fatty tissue of sea lions and other marine mammals, which become food for condors. Unlike condors, bald eagles and peregrine falcons very rarely eat food with high levels of DDT, which likely explains why their population numbers have rebounded so well.

Because they dine on marine mammals and their inland counterparts don't, the coastal condors are far more vulnerable to the impacts of DDT. "We found that condor eggshells in Big Sur averaged 34 percent thinner than eggshells from

MBARI will let Phil's Fish Market stay put at least three years

By KELLY NIX

PHIL'S FISH Market in Moss Landing will be allowed to stay in its current location until the summer of 2017, the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute's board of directors decided in February when it extended the lease agreement for the landmark restaurant.

Phil's owner Phil DiGirolamo had been in talks with MBARI — which owns the land the eatery sits on — to extend his lease so he could find a new location to operate. The institute plans to demolish the Phil's Fish Market building on Sandholdt Road and expand its research facilities there.

DiGirolamo and his attorney, Anthony Davi, asked MBARI to extend the lease, which was set to expire in February 2015, so they could find a new location to put the eatery. At a Feb. 25 meeting, the board granted the extension until June 30, 2017, Davi said.

"I think the idea is this will give us time to move, wherever we end up," Davi told The Pine Cone Wednesday.

However, at the same meeting, the MBARI board rejected a DiGirolamo's proposal to purchase a parcel of land the institute owns just north of the location where the restaurant and fish processing facility have been since the early 1990s so he can build a new Phil's.

And, Davi said, the lease extension hasn't been finalized in writing.

But DiGirolamo's proposal that Davi submitted to the MBARI board — whose members include aquarium executive director Julie Packard — was "very specific" and Davi said he wasn't shocked the board turned it down.

The institute has retained Monterey attorney Nolan Kennedy to negotiate with DiGirolamo, and Davi said he's hopeful they'll be able to finalize the lease extension and reach a purchase agreement.

"If I'm optimistic," Davi said, "we are still conversing about occupying the land that MBARI owns even though they rejected my very specific proposal."

MBARI has long planned to build a research facility on the Phil's Fish Market spot, and informed DiGirolamo about five years ago that he had to vacate the property by February 2015.

While MBARI CEO Chris Scholin was unavailable for comment this week, the institute's spokesman, Kim Fulton-Bennett, said "We're continuing to work with Phil and look forward to reaching an agreement that works for both parties."

Davi said he learned of the results of the February meeting from MBARI's corporate attorney but hopes to discuss the issues with Kennedy soon.

Scholin told The Pine Cone in January that the vacant waterfront parcel on Sandholdt was set to be used to build a warehouse to store equipment, but that the property became available in December 2013 when the California Coastal Commission decided the land wasn't suitable for the building because Monterey spineflower plants would be impacted. A new restaurant would work on the land since its footprint isn't as big as the warehouse.

The new facility MBARI plans to build on the restaurant site, which has been in the Moss Landing community plan for many years and draws crowds to the gritty, isolated street along the town's beach, will develop ocean sensors and systems that are similar to "ocean-going drones," Scholin said.

"Because of the real limitations associated with accessing the ocean using ships," Scholin told The Pine Cone in January, "we are very interested in pursuing new devices that can operate without a human presence in the ocean for extended periods and return data."

P.G. council will wait for judge to weigh legality of pension initiative

■ City has spent $600K defending generous employee pension law

By KELLY NIX

A JUDGE should determine the legality of a citizens' initiative that seeks to void a 2002 pension deal for Pacific Grove police and firefighters before the city council can decide whether to put the item on the November ballot, council members said Wednesday night.

In a 5-2 vote, the council said Monterey County Superior Court Judge Thomas Wills should make a finding about the legality of the initiative, which asks voters to repeal the plan that allows public safety workers as young as 50 to retire with a generous pension.

In May 2013, Sally Aberg, Dan Davis and Frances Grate filed suit against the city to compel the court to set an election on the pension deal after the city council earlier that month refused to enact the initiative. In response, the city filed a countersuit against the citizens challenging the initiative's legality, which Wills will weigh during a June 26 hearing.

The council had the option of dismissing the city's countersuit and to allow the initiative to appear on the Nov. 4 ballot. However, councilwoman Casey Lucius said there are several issues that need to be cleared up before the council can decide that.

"My preference is to continue with the cross complaint until we have resolved the issue in its entirety," she said.

Councilman Robert Huitt, who, along with councilman Dan Miller, dissented, said that while he thinks the initiative is "terrible" and an "irresponsible" piece of legislation that would invite "endless litigation," it should go before voters.

"I think it's extremely important to have this matter settled at the ballot box," Huitt said.

Miller, who has long been critical of the pension deal, called for the city to drop its cross complaint against the three initiative proponents, and he urged it be placed on the ballot so it could be "argued and debated."

"I think when you start suing the people of the city," Miller said, "it sets a very bad precedent."

Margaret Thum, the citizens' attorney, told The Pine Cone she's deposed the CalPers actuary who issued the financial report on the 2002 pension plan, Barbara Ware. She's also deposed Huitt, who was also on the council that voted for the plan, and Miller.

The proponents contend that before the 2002 P.G. City Council adopted the pension ordinance, it was not given the information required by law to make an informed decision, including how much it would cost taxpayers years down the road.

Pension reform activist John Moore alleges the then city manager "hid the actuary from the council" so as not to disclose the costs of the initiative, which the report indicated exceeded $800,000 per year.

Commenting on the 2002 council's approval of the plan, Mayor Bill Kampe said, "Nobody claims it was a wise decision, but it happened 12 years ago." Several hundred cities in California — when state and city coffers were flush — adopted the same plan.

Kampe also said that "the proponents have been rather vague on what could be done to turn this into a benefit."

Wills, in an order that was drafted in February but released this week, calls for Pacific Grove to reimburse Aberg, Davis and Grate for their attorney's fees, which Thum told The Pine Cone were in the tens of thousands of dollars, and pay for the costs of the election, estimated to be $45,000.

Several of the roughly 20 people in the audience snickered when City manager Tom Frutchet told the council that since

Burnett for Carmel

Forward Together

It has been an honor to serve as your Mayor and to work with our City Council and staff. We have made substantial progress and have often found broad consensus:

- We put a over $1 million budget surplus into reserves for the future, maintained our AA+ credit and refinanced debt, saving $4 million,
- The voters overwhelmingly approved a sales tax measure, that will help ensure Carmel's quality of life, and,
- We are investing in improvements to Carmel-by-the-Sea's streets, parks, facilities and the beach.

Regionally, I have helped oversee the water supply projects and successfully negotiated substantial savings for ratepayers. I also helped complete fundraising for the Veterans Cemetery at Fort Ord.

Our goals for 2014 include active parking management, investments in beach, forest, trail, and park improvements, development of a Sunset Center campus plan, and maintaining excellent public safety service and response times.

As your Mayor, I will continue to promote the energy and creativity of our citizens who make our community and our economy so vibrant, protect our village's character and natural beauty, tackle the tough issues in an open, honest manner, and respect all points of view.

With your support and vote, I look forward to serving our home, Carmel-by-the-Sea.

SLO rancher donates $$$ to veterans cemetery

By KELLY NIX

A SAN Luis Obispo County man who hosts a program to help military veterans recover from combat trauma has given a sizable donation to the Central Coast Veterans Cemetery project.

B. Wayne Hughes, Jr., who owns Sky Rose Ranch in San Miguel, donated an undisclosed amount of money to the long-sought cemetery in Fort Ord that will provide thousands of gravesites for war veterans.

According to the group raising money for the veterans cemetery, Hughes' contribution was the largest donation by an individual except for $100,000 contributions from actor Clint Eastwood and Pebble Beach residents Denise Foderaro and Frank Quattrone.

Congressman Sam Farr secured nearly $6.8 million in federal taxpayer funds for the cemetery, while State Sen. Bill Monning and Assemblyman Mark Stone were able to secure $1 million from state taxpayers through Senate Bill 232. State Assembly Speaker John A. Pérez also contributed $1 million of his constituents' money.

Numerous other organizations, companies and individuals have donated to the fund, including The Pebble Beach Co. Foundation and the company itself with a combined total of with $70,000, and the Monterey Peninsula Foundation with $100,000.

Jimmy Panetta, an Afghanistan War veteran and co-chair of the capital campaign for the cemetery, told The Pine Cone that Hughes "cares about veterans as demonstrated not only through his donation, but by what he does at Sky Rose Ranch."

Panetta said he's hopeful that groundbreaking on the cemetery will be in November.

The program Hughes hosts on his ranch through his foundation, Serving California, is Roever Foundation's Mighty Oaks Warrior Training, a program to help veterans learn "new coping skills and renew their purpose in life."

In a prepared statement, Hughes said he's passionate about serving the country's troops and considered it an honor to contribute to the cemetery.

"I have deep respect for the men and women who have served our great country for the cause of freedom," he said, "and want to do my part to help those who are working diligently to provide for our veterans so that they may find a final resting place near their loved ones."

The first phase of the 78.7-acre cemetery, at the intersection of Normandy and Parker Flats roads includes 5,000 niches in a columbarium and will cost $9,414,000 — money that has already been raised. The second phase is estimated to cost $15 million and includes in-ground burial sites.

JUDGE TOSSES ALLEGED FINANCIAL ELDER ABUSE CASE

By KELLY NIX

A JUDGE has dismissed a lawsuit a Carmel couple filed against two Monterey attorneys last fall alleging financial elder abuse and other claims.

In November 2013, John and Mary D'Attilio filed suit against Monterey lawyers Jeannette Witten and Amy June alleging financial elder abuse, civil conspiracy, breach of fiduciary duty and misrepresentation.

On Jan. 31, however, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Kay Kingsley granted a motion by Witten and June's attorneys to dismiss the lawsuit. The judge's order also calls for the D'Attilios to pay about $6,500 in attorney's fees and other costs to the defendants.

Kingsley decided the lawsuit was a "Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation" [SLAPP], which state law regards as suits intended to stifle free speech, and authorizes judges to swiftly dismiss such complaints.

The Carmel couple alleged the Monterey attorneys were involved in a scheme to control their estate so three of the couple's adult children could file suit against another sibling over two failed business ventures, one of which was the would-be purchase of the Carmel Sands Lodge. The D'Attilios invested $2.5 million in the ventures.

In her response to Kingsley's decision, Witten said it was unfortunate that the D'Attilios opted to file suit against her and June instead of "going after the person who caused the loss," referring to one of the couple's sons who took their investment money.

"The court concluded that the complaint was a SLAPP that was designed to chill the valid exercise of constitutional rights, and that the plaintiffs had no probability of prevailing," Witten said. "Our Legislature has established these anti-SLAPP laws to protect individuals and our court system from getting harmed and bogged down in frivolous complaints."

The D'Attilios' Carmel-based attorney, Michael Lykken, responded to the judge's decision, saying the judge tossed the suit based on "intentional and groundless misstatements of fact by Ms. Witten."

"This dismissal does not, however, mean that Ms. Witten acted ethically," Lykken told The Pine Cone. "We consulted with several experts and, while my clients have clear grounds for a successful appeal, the toll that the litigation was taking on my clients' relationship with their children did not merit appealing a clearly erroneous decision by the court."

The lawsuit had also named a Sebastopol financial advisor, but Lykken said his clients will no longer pursue that case.

Council to meet on explosion, Wonderspace, budget

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CARMEL City Council will hold a special meeting in city hall at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 18, to receive the five-year financial forecast from city administrator Jason Stilwell, review the capital improvement plan and citywide performance measures for 2014/2015, and get an update from PG&E on the March 3 explosion that destroyed a house at Guadalupe and Third.

The council is also set to receive an update regarding the city's destination marketing plan and approve a new $180,000 contract with Burghardt + Doré, which has provided marketing services to the city for several years. Lumped in with that item is a proposal to sign a $55,000 contract with Richard Tavener, who has already received $25,000 in tax dollars for his Wonderspace Carmel project and another $21,000 in reimbursement for the costs incurred in organizing a related event in January.

The destination marketing item was originally scheduled for discussion at the regular meeting March 4, but Mayor Jason Burnett and the council decided to postpone it in order to lighten the load that evening, in hopes of avoiding another marathon meeting like January's eight-hour session.

In anticipation of the Tavener contract, Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston distributed a letter at the March 4 meeting stating the group's opposition to it.

"Foremost, your fiduciary responsibility to the citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea demands that you predetermine a statement of purpose with clear measurable outcomes and then identify the need for a contractor to achieve them," she said, and then request proposals from viable candidates.

Further, she noted, the proposed contract indicates Stilwell "can unilaterally add work and funding to the contract." She said the CRA would rather see those funds spent on the beach, forest and other projects contributing to the city's beauty and natural environment.

The meeting will be held in council chambers at city hall on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean Avenue. For more information, visit www.ci.carmel.ca.us.

If you're interested in volunteering for the park district, call Debbie Wyatt at (831) 659-6065.

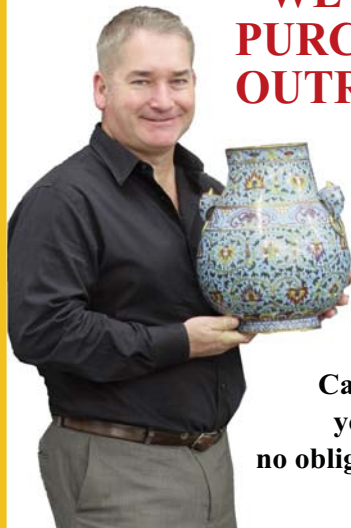

Also, last week we reported that the Monterey County District Attorney's Office ordered Crystal Kisicki, who pleaded guilty to a criminal charge of mistreating animals, to pay $300,000 in civil penalties. A judge who hears the civil case against her will make a decision whether that penalty will actually be imposed.

Volunteers sign up to help protect archaeological treasures

By CHRIS COUNTS

BEST KNOWN for its efforts to maintain and improve hiking trails within the Santa Lucia Mountains, the Ventana Wilderness Alliance is now working to protect some of the region's little known treasures: its archaeological and historical sites.

The Santa Cruz-based organization recently donated $5,000 to fund a training program for volunteer "site stewards," whose tasks will include monitoring sites that bear evidence of the Esselen and Salinan tribes who inhabited the local mountains before the arrival of Europeans in the 18th century. The volunteers will be supervised by the United States Forest Service.

The sites are located throughout the 325,000 acres that encompass the Monterey Ranger District of Los Padres National Forest. Because Monterey County's early human inhabitants were a stone age culture, they left little behind. Most striking among their artifacts are the hand prints they painted on the walls of caves.

To protect the sites, forest service officials won't say where they are located. Volunteers will be required to sign nondisclosure agreements.

The looting of archaeological and historical sites on federal land is a problem, particularly in the eastern United States, where the population density is greater and sites are more accessible. Often looking for ancient pottery, the bandits are known as "pot hunters."

Among the objects that looters might seek locally are shell beads, stone mortars for grinding acorns and baskets so well made they could hold water.

Officials concede some local sites have been disturbed — and they believe a monitoring program will help deter future incidents. "The sites could get pilfered if nobody's minding the store," VWA director Mike Splain told The Pine Cone.

The supervisor of the stewardship program, forest service archaeologist Bob Strickland, said it's essential to care for archaeological and historical sites.

"Some natural resources are renewable, but with archaeological resources, once they are disturbed, they'll never be the same again," Strickland explained.

The volunteers must agree to working an average of 10 or more hours a month. The commitment doesn't include travel time, and the volunteers must pay for all their expenses.

Nevertheless, VWA vice president Dennis Palm said the response to the call for volunteers has been encouraging. Palm expects an April 5-6 training for site stewards to reach its capacity of 25 people. "The applicants we've received so far have been pretty impressive," he reported.

Included among the applicants are 10 members of the Esselen and Salinan tribes.

While a site steward program once existed for the Los Padres National Forest, budget constraints and staff cuts have made it impossible to train new volunteers — an essential part of maintaining the program.

By funding the program, the VWA has once again come to the aid of the forest service. "Without them, we'd be in desperate straights," Strickland added.

If you're interested in applying to become a site steward, call (831) 385-5434. The deadline is Monday, March 17.

Group wants to keep butts off beach

By KELLY NIX

A CONSERVATION group whose members picked up more than 77,000 discarded cigarette butts from beaches and other areas on the Monterey Peninsula in 2013 is petitioning California State Parks to install cigarette receptacles at Asilomar State Beach.

In a letter to state parks Asilomar superintendent Eric Abma, Marine Life Studies — which collected 27,000 butts just from the dunes and beach at Asilomar from April to December 2013 — requested that the state install butt containers at Asilomar in Pacific Grove.

"Asilomar is not the only place on the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary with a cigarette problem," according to the letter signed by Marine Life Studies' executive director, Peggy Stap, "but it would be great if Asilomar took the lead by installing [receptacles] as an example for the rest of the community."

According to the Moss Landing-based Marine Life Studies, which is "committed to protecting our oceans, whales, dolphins and other marine wildlife," cigarette butts are the No. 1 garbage item in the world collected during beach cleanups.

The nonprofit organization has a weekly cleanup program to pick up trash along the Monterey Coastal Trail from Old Fisherman's Wharf to Asilomar, as well as the streets of Pacific Grove, Monterey, Seaside and other areas, before it reaches storm drains, waterways and, of course, the Monterey Bay.

Cigarettes are a menace to the environment because they leach chemicals and heavy metals that are toxic to fish, not to mention children. Most cigarettes are made of cellulose acetate, a plastic that is slow to degrade.

Teardown OK'd for wreck of a house at Lincoln and Third

By MARY SCHLEY

WITH REVISED plans that save a sprawling oak tree and simplify the design of a proposed house at Lincoln and Third, the Carmel Planning Commission unanimously approved Cal and Carol Daks' application to demolish the dilapidated home on the corner and replace it with a brand-new residence designed by architect Terry Latasa.

The two-story "Eclectic Tudor" home will be 2,458 square feet and finished in stucco and redwood board and batten siding saved from the residence being demolished, with a cedar-shake roof and wood windows. Commissioners first reviewed the design last month but asked Latasa to make changes to simplify the roofline and accommodate an oak that would have been too close to the house in the original design.

Just as they did last month, neighbors in the area articulated their support for the new house, which would replace an eyesore on a prominent lot and match the character of the area while also respecting the privacy of adjacent homes.

Commissioner Michael LePage thanked Latasa for his thoughtful redesign and willingness to act on the commission's feedback. The revisions "speak highly of the process," he said, and "the talent of the architect to be able to take our comments and come back with a much improved project."

Chairman Steve Dallas commended the neighbors for getting together to appear and voice their support, and the commission voted unanimously to approve the proposal.

C.V. subdivision appealed to supes

THE OWNER of 103 acres in Carmel Valley is asking the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to loosen restrictions placed on his plan to subdivide his existing three lots into four lots.

The Monterey County Planning Commission approved Jeff Taylor's plan in January, but inserted conditions requiring development be limited to areas that minimize grading and tree removal, and limit its visibility. According to the staff report, the applicant wants prospective buyers "to have more flexibility in choosing the location of home sites" and equestrian infrastructure like barns and stable.

The item is on the agenda for the Tuesday, March 18, supervisors meeting.

After proposing to subdivide his property into 10 parcels in 2006, Taylor revised his plan after learning that only one additional market rate unit remained to be allocated as part of the Santa Lucia Preserve buildout. Taylor's land is located inside the preserve's boundaries.

The properties are located on the south side of the Carmel River and west of Rancho San Carlos Road.

Padres kick off softball season with easy win

By CHRIS COUNTS

STARTING OFF the 2014 season on a winning note, the Carmel High School softball team cruised to a 13-3 win Feb. 25 over Alvarez High of Salinas in a non-league game.

Playing on their home field, the Padres were paced on offense by shortstop Angie Savoldi, who had four hits and scored four runs, and centerfielder Lauren Salvati, who added two hits and three runs.

"The field looked great, everybody was excited and lots of people were there," coach Mike Odello told The Pine Cone.

Pitcher Maddi Randazzo earned the win for Carmel High. Randazzo is one of four pitchers trying to fill the void left by ace Brittany File's graduation last June. Joining her in the Padres' rotation are Quinn Bernal, Mari Fletcher and Danielle Coaili.

Carmel High picked up its second win of the season

March 4, defeating North Monterey County High of Castroville, 7-1, in a non-league game on the road.

Striking out 10 Condors and yielding just one hit, Bernal picked up the win for the Padres. She also aided her own cause with a triple and an RBI. She got help from Brooke Vierra, who went two-for-three, and Salvoldi, who had two hits including a double, and scored two runs.

Bouncing back

After losing a pair of close games on the road to Aptos High (5-4 on March 7) and North Salinas High (6-5 on March 11), Carmel High bounced back at home March 12 against Watsonville High, winning 6-2.

The Padres (3-2) play their first league game Tuesday, March 18, at rival Pacific Grove High. The contest starts at 6:30 p.m. Two days later — Thursday, March 20 — the team faces Gonzales High at Carmel Middle School. The game begins at 4:30 p.m.

CHS talks explore teen drug use, parenting skills

By MARY SCHLEY

"SIGNS AND Symptoms of Drug Use in Students" will be the first presentation in the 2nd Annual Parenting Series to be held in the new performing arts center at Carmel High School. And according to organizer Heath Rocha, a director in charge of special education and child development for the school district, it's a discussion critical to the health and welfare of local teens.

"This is what I want to do — educating the parents and giving them better knowledge to ask the right questions," Rocha explained. "The people who push this stuff are always ahead of law enforcement."

At the symposium to be held March 18 from 5:30 to 8 p.m., organizers will set up an exhibit of various items of drug paraphernalia for parents to examine, so they can know what to look for in their own homes. A presentation by Diane Baker, a counselor with Redlands Unified School District for 12 years and a specialist in youth drug and alcohol abuse, will begin at 6, followed by a question-and-answer session with a panel of law enforcement officers, attorneys, counselors and other experts.

"While we have made great strides in reducing alcohol and drug use for our seventh and ninth graders, use by 11th graders is still high," Rocha said. "Research tells us that if we can prolong the age of onset, which we are seeing in the data from last year's seventh and ninth graders, they are much more likely to abstain."

The second lecture in the parenting symposium will focus on "How to Raise Emotionally Healthy Children," led by licensed psychotherapist W. Robert Brunson Wednesday, April 23, from 6 to 8 p.m. "Failure to meet the emotional needs of our children is one of the most serious and under-recognized problems facing our society," according to organizers, and Brunson's talk will discuss the importance of meeting a child's five "critical emotional needs" — to feel important, respected, included, accepted and secure.

Finally, a two-part series by counselor Wendy Zito, "Choosing a Parenting Style that Fits Your Child's Personality," will be held May 19 and 27 from 6 to 8 p.m.

"I feel like we don't do enough on parenting," Rocha said, explaining the need for the symposium, which is also sponsored by the Padre Parents and Carmel CARES, a group aimed at fighting drug and alcohol abuse, and encouraging students to participate in random drug testing.

FRAUD

took a job at city hall, and continuing while she earned a salary and benefits of more than $75,000 a year.

The Allens "did willfully and unlawfully and by means of false statement, representation, impersonation and other fraudulent device, obtain and retain aid for himself or herself and for a child not in fact entitled," according to the case filed against them by the Monterey County District Attorney's Office on Dec. 7, 2012. They were also accused of felony perjury.

She began working for the City of Carmel in 2010, according to Stilwell, during the time the crime was occurring, and on Feb. 1, 2013, Allen and her husband pleaded no contest — which is the same as guilty — to the fraud charge, which was reduced to a misdemeanor after they repaid the state $4,774, while the perjury charges were dropped. As a result, Allen was placed on three years' probation and given a suspended jail sentence of 40 days that will be imposed if she violates her probation. She also had to pay a $670 fine and other fees, and her probation includes that she be required to submit to search and seizure by any peace officer, even when he has no search warrant or probable cause.

Also since becoming employed by the City of Carmel, Allen filed for bankruptcy with her husband in 2011, to avoid paying $44,910 they owed to creditors, including debts for their cars, department stores and shops, Doctors on Duty, a law group and banks. At that time, she was being paid $4,590 per month by the city, while her husband, a carpenter, was receiving unemployment benefits of $1,420 per month.

"Deanna Allen has proven herself to be a reliable and effective employee for the city," said Stilwell, who did not answer questions about when he learned of Allen's criminal record. "We have discussed her legal issue and concluded that she has addressed it in an acceptable manner."

The 2011 bankruptcy filing came after another bankruptcy in 2008, before she worked for the city, when Allen and her husband defaulted on their Seaside home's $481,000 mortgage and a $26,000 loan on a 2005 Honda Accord, and said they could not make good on numerous other debts. At the time, Deanna Allen was claiming $1,616 in unemployment, while her husband was working for $4,420 per month.

Allen also filed personal bankruptcy in 1997 and was convicted of misdemeanor harassment in 1993, when she was 19 or 20.

"When Deanna was hired in 2010, a document was prepared that included her history. The history was public record. While she was hired by the previous city administrator, I am happy she was, as she is a good employee and has received numerous awards for her dedication," Stilwell said.

However, since she was still fraudulently obtaining government aid when she got the job at city hall, continued doing so for months afterward and wasn't charged until December 2012, it is hard to see how the food-stamp fraud could have been disclosed when she was hired.

'I have made mistakes'

Allen said she regrets her past mistakes and is grateful for her position in city hall.

"I have made mistakes in my life, I regret each one. Every day, I am thankful for my job at the city and work hard for the residents and to earn the respect of those I work with," she said. "The last thing I want is for my past mistakes to embarrass my coworkers. The city was aware of my past mistakes when I was hired. That is all I can say."

Stilwell said he is "just sorry The Pine Cone has found it necessary to do this to her and her family."

"Publishing a story about anyone's past mistakes and difficult years, going back to 18 years old and without cause, is bullying," he said. "The impact these types of stories have on families, in this case without cause, is devastating."

Pine Cone publisher Paul Miller said Stilwell's accusations against the newspaper were "ridiculous" and said there are many questions remaining to be answered.

"Instead of covering up the situation and then attacking us for reporting it, you'd think he'd want to reassure the public that steps are being taken to ensure Allen doesn't misuse funds at city hall," he said. "With her record of financial irresponsibility and dishonesty, it's an issue that obviously presents itself."

Under Stilwell's leadership, while Allen has kept her job, numerous other city hall employees have been placed on administrative leave or fired pending investigations into "misconduct" in the workplace, and one of them, IT manager Steve McInchak, had his home searched and personal computer

"The driver obviously was drinking. Her chemical test results, we don't have them just yet, but the officer formed the opinion that she was under the influence and placed her under arrest."

Officers don't know yet if Thomas was drunk, since her toxicology results have yet to be returned by the coroner's office.

"Witnesses have stated they were there and they did have a few drinks," Rios said. "But until we get the results back from the lab, we won't know."

He said the investigating officer is trying to determine whether Snyder let her SUV drift off the road to hit Thomas, or if Thomas was walking in the middle of the street.

"There are a lot of different factors that will come into play," he said, including lighting conditions and the visibility of the clothing the victim was wearing. There were no signs of heavy braking on the road, according to Rios.

Another investigator will also inspect the vehicle, which is being held as evidence, to determine whether any mechanical failures played a role in the collision.

"We want to rule everything out before we submit our final report," he said. "Generally these investigations can take anywhere from two to three months."

Also arrested that night at the scene, though he wasn't involved in the fatal crash, was 21-year-old Carmel Valley resident Wesley Skinner, who stopped to talk to officers.

"He rolled up to the collision scene and knew one of the persons involved, either the victim or the suspect, so he contacted one of the deputies at the collision scene," Rios said.

"And the deputy smelled alcohol on him equipment seized, though more than eight months later, he still has not been charged with any crime.

McInchak and former building official John Hanson, who was fired last year, have both said they intend to sue the city. Administrative coordinators Margi Perotti and Leslie Fenton were also put on leave pending investigations in October 2013, and their jobs remain in limbo, as they continue to collect paychecks but are not being allowed to work.

and turned him over to one of the CHP officers, who determined he was DUI."

Snyder and Skinner were taken to Monterey County Jail, where she was booked on charges of DUI and vehicular manslaughter, and he was booked on suspicion of drunken driving and driving on a suspended license. Each is set to appear in Monterey County Superior Court March 18.

Thomas mourned

Meanwhile, friends, family and market customers are in mourning. Thomas, a Carmel High School graduate, was a familiar sight at the markets in Carmel Valley Village and on Forest Avenue in Pacific Grove. She married Jacob Thomas in August 2008 and worked at Grove Market for eight years.

"She had a passion for the outdoors, her dogs, and life itself," read her obituary.

Carmel Towing owner Andy Hill said he had known Thomas for years.

"My heart goes out to Jacob Thomas for that horrible tragedy," he said. "She was cute, wonderful and vibrant."

Hill, who lives in the Village with his wife and daughters, recalled chatting with her in town or at or at the Running Iron. "I used to call her 'Cute' instead of 'Kate,'" he said. "And the frames she chose for her glasses — that was so her."

Dozens of people posted comments about Thomas and words of comfort and support for her family on her online obituary page.

"Kate made a big difference in many lives and our communities. Such a generous, individual with a never-ending loving spirit," wrote Teresa Costen of Pacific Grove. "For the short time on this earth, she gave so much of herself each and every day. It was an honor and a privilege to have known her."

A memorial service is planned for Saturday, March 15, at noon at the Carmel Valley Community Center on Ford Road in the Village.

Case against Tehama golf head proceeding

CITING THE fact it is still a “very active” investigation, Monterey County Sheriff’s Sgt. Keith Wingo divulged little last week about the charges against Tehama golf manager Neal Morton, who was arrested Feb. 15 on multiple felony counts of embezzlement, grand theft and forgery. The 48-year-old Salinas resident is suspected of stealing at least $33,600 from the exclusive club owned by Clint Eastwood, but investigators are not revealing how he managed to steal the money, or even over what length of time the alleged embezzlement and other crimes occurred.

Neal Morton

“The person had been working there for several years,” Wingo said this week. “Some money came up missing, and the head of the company did an audit on some funds and determined that a certain amount was missing.”

Morton had access to the club’s accounts, and therefore the means to steal the money, Wingo pointed out, though he wouldn’t say how Morton managed to take more than $30,000.

“This case is very active — it’s being worked on as we speak — so there isn’t much I can release, because of that,” he said. Morton’s boss had reportedly noticed the funds were missing and initiated the audit that traced the disappearing money back to the golf club manager.

“Tehama is the only victim,” Wingo said.

The Monterey County District Attorney’s Office has not yet opened a case against Morton.

44K more people flew out of MRY last year

By KELLY NIX

THE NUMBER of passengers flying in and out of Monterey Regional Airport soared in 2013, according to airport officials.

The airport last year served 409,997 arriving and departing passengers, nearly 44,000 more than in 2011, according to airport spokeswoman Jennifer Hickerson.

The increase is good news to airport officials, who say the number of passengers declined each year from 2009 to 2011 before finally increasing in 2012.

Hickerson told The Pine Cone that about half the increase was due to passengers flying Alaska Airlines' daily nonstop flight to San Diego. The airline began the service in 2012 with a 76-passenger Bombardier Q400, an airplane with an interior similar to a 737.

"We are hoping that the trend continues, and that we can add more flights," Hickerson said.

The other half may be a result of the improvement in the economy after its nosedive about six years ago.

The number of passengers flying into or out of the Monterey airport increased to 427,542 in 2008 before declining to 366,201 in 2011. In 2012, the number climbed again to 393,585.

Hickerson said the various airlines are constantly watching the trends at the airport, and if the increase in passengers continues, it's possible airlines could hire more staff. Alaska Airlines, Allegiant Air, American Airlines, United Airlines and U.S. Airways offer service from Monterey.

Nonstop destinations from the airport currently include San Francisco, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Denver, San Diego and Las Vegas.

Airport general manager Tom Greer thanked customers for supporting the local airport and helping to achieve the upward trend in passenger growth during 2013.

"We are grateful to have so many supportive partners: our airlines, residents and businesses, public-private partnerships and our employees," he said.

Rodrigue retrospective

THREE MONTHS after artist George Rodrigue of "Blue Dog" fame died, a memorial retrospective of his work opens Saturday, March 15, at his gallery on Dolores Street, Rodrigue Studio Carmel.

Rodrigue, who split his time between Carmel and his native Louisiana, passed away Dec. 14 after a long battle with cancer.

"Dad always said that when he was in art school in Los Angeles in the 1960s, he dreamed of opening a gallery in Carmel," said the painter's son, Jacques Rodrigue. "He realized his dream over 20 years ago, and he loved to live and paint at his home in Carmel Valley."

The memorial display is curated by the Rodrigue family and E. John Bullard, the director emeritus of the New Orleans Museum of Art.

The gallery, which hosts a reception from 1 to 3 p.m., is located on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh. The exhibit will be on display through the end of the year. Call (831) 626-4444.

The Solution is Now in Sight

A New Water Supply for the Monterey Peninsula

California American Water cares for the communities on the Monterey Peninsula. We are hard at work, developing new water sources with the Monterey Peninsula Water Supply Project.

A three-part solution will supply water to all the communities on the Monterey Peninsula, protecting the natural resources of the Carmel River and providing future protection from drought.

- ✓ A desalination plant located in Marina, will provide water for residents on the Monterey Peninsula.
- ✓ Expanded underground water storage will keep excess winter water underground. This reserve will act as an additional source for our communities.
- ✓ A replenished groundwater supply with highly treated recycled water will make even more water available for residents and businesses.

Irish music galore on St. Paddy's Day

By CHRIS COUNTS

ALONG WITH corned beef, cabbage and green beer, no St. Patrick's Day celebration is complete without a few jigs, reels and ballads.

Throughout the Monterey Peninsula, musicians honor the memory of Ireland's patron saint this week with the rhythms and melodies of Ireland, which for centuries have uplifted the people of the Emerald Isle through challenging times.

"Regardless of the troubles in Ireland, there has always been this underlying joy in the music," explained Colen Rainey, the singer of the traditional Irish music trio, Story Road.

The fun starts Friday, March 14, when singer and multi-instrumentalist Dave Holodiloff introduces his new recording, "Beloved Songs of Ireland," with a CD release party at the Bay Of Pines Restaurant in Monterey.

Holodiloff will be backed by a talented ensemble of local musicians, including Peter Mellinger on fiddle, Steve Uccello on bass and Gene Mason on vocals, banjo and guitar.

The show starts at 8 p.m. and there's no cover. The restaurant is located at 150 Del Monte Ave. Call (831) 920-3563.

The next day — Saturday, March 15 — Reel Deal plays a free concert on the lower level of Carmel Plaza at 1 p.m. The Monterey Peninsula-based acoustic ensemble performs traditional Celtic music from Ireland, Scotland and Nova Scotia. Carmel Plaza is located at Junipero and Ocean.

The same night, Bog Iron takes the stage at Flanagan's Irish-American Pub. Led by singer John Michael and guitarist Patrick Golden, the five-piece band brings together traditional Celtic music and hard rock.

The music starts at 9 p.m. and there's no cover. The pub is located in The Barnyard shopping center above Allegro Pizza. Call (831) 625-5500.

Next up, Story Road performs Sunday, March 16, at St. Mary's by the Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove. In addition to Rainey, who lives in Portland, Or., the trio features guitarist Stuart Mason and Carmel Valley fiddler John Weed — both members of one of California's premier Celtic music ensembles, Molly's Revenge.

The Rosemary Turco Irish Dancers also perform at the event.

The music starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $20 for adults and $5 for children under 12. The church is located at 146 12th St. Call (831) 224-3819.

The festivities continue on St. Patrick's Day when Reel Deal plays at Flanagan's. The fun starts at 4 p.m. and there's no cover.

Also performing Monday are Holodiloff and friends, who take the stage at the London

Renowned sculptor at CAA fundraiser

A part-time Carmel resident, Albert Paley has earned international acclaim for his steel sculpture. He is featured March 15 at a fundraiser for the Carmel Art Association.

Albert Paley, fresh from Park Avenue triumph

By CHRIS COUNTS

EIGHT MONTHS after making headlines with his display of 13 massive abstract steel sculptures along Park Avenue in New York City, Albert Paley presents a fundraising talk about his work Saturday, March 15, at the Carmel Art Association.

Paley worked on the Park Avenue show for more than two years before unveiling it in June. Standing up to 20 feet high and weighing as much as 7.5 tons, the sculptures were built at Paley's 50,000-square-foot studio, which occupies a former automobile parts factory in Rochester, N.Y. From there, they were hauled on flatbed trucks to the outskirts of New York City and assembled over the course of two nights before being delivered to Manhattan. "It was the most expansive art display ever done on Park Avenue," Paley told The Pine Cone. "It was an ordeal."

The hard work paid off — not only did the exhibit receive international attention, but Paley sold nine of the 13 pieces. "It was a great opportunity," said the sculptor, who lives in Carmel part-time with his wife, Francis.

One of the pieces was bought by a Carmel couple who plan to bring it here. How they manage to do so will no doubt be worthy of a story in The Pine Cone.

While Paley's work requires him to spend much of his time in upstate New York or on the road, he's always thrilled to return to the Carmel area, which he discovered three decades ago.

"In 1984, we took a drive up the coast and became enchanted with Big Sur and the Monterey Peninsula," he recalled. "In 1989, I bought a small building in Sand City as a

Spring at Sierra Mar, St. Pat's in the Village, and tasting at Chalone

By MARY SCHLEY

SPRING HAS sprung in the stunning environs of the Post Ranch Inn, where its Sierra Mar restaurant is capitalizing more and more on its onsite garden, tended by Fiona Bond. This week, Bond and executive chef John Cox talked about what's growing in their garden — including a flock of new hens — and the revamp of the Big Sur restaurant's lunch lineup.

"You hear a lot about chef/restaurant gardens, but the reality is it takes a lot of land to supply a kitchen," Cox said. "So we're focusing on rare plants and homestead fruits and bringing them back to the Big Sur Coast," such as edible flowers, herbs like Vietnamese coriander, and fruit trees from old homestead properties in the area.

Garden manager Fiona Bond and chef John Cox grow unusual herbs, edible flowers and other rare plants in their kitchen garden at the Post Ranch Inn in Big Sur.

The new hens, meanwhile, not only produce tasty eggs — though not enough to supply a hotel kitchen and restaurant — but help with pest control and composting, nibbling bugs on the undersides of cabbage and chard leaves to interrupt the bugs' life cycles, Bond said.

Hives nearby have bees gathering pollen from trees and plants in the garden, yielding honey that can be harvested onsite, and Bond is planting flowers so the hotel and restaurant won't have to order from a florist in the future. "Why ship flowers in when we can grow them?" she asked. "The garden ties everything together. It feels very holistic."

The duo is working to create as many connections to the property as possible, including making pottery onsite to use in the restaurant and hotel. When it's stormy or she can't be in the garden, Bond sits at a potting wheel in a storage shed and creates flower vases, plates and other dishes. Two other local artists have been enlisted to help create custom dishes for the restaurant, too. "It's amazing how excited the chefs are getting about plates!" Cox commented.

At lunchtime in his restaurant, Cox continues offering a three-course prix fix for $50, with wine pairings for an additional $29, and the lineup is bursting with spring flavors, colors and textures. Among the first-course options, for instance, is olive oil-cured steelhead trout with spring herbs and fingerling potatoes, a beautiful, tender and flavorful dish, and alongside the signature Wagyu burger for second-course choices is pan-roasted black cod with local artichokes, spring vegetables and white beans in a light broth. The third course includes two sweets, as well as Gabilan cheese from Schoch Dairy in Salinas.

To see (and taste) what Cox is up to, make a reservation for lunch or dinner at Sierra Mar by visiting the Post Ranch Inn's website at www.postranchinn.com.

■ St. Pat's at B&B

Deborah Wenzler is getting in touch with her Morgan Clan roots to create a St. Patrick's Day feast for Baum & Blume in Carmel Valley Village, offering items like whole wheat soda bread, creamy cauliflower soup from a recipe used at the Ballymaloe Cooking School in Ireland, lean corned beef round with housemade red wine mustard, "Champ" baked mashed potatoes with scallions, Irish apple pie, and even the traditional "Irish potatoes" that are in fact homemade candies. Other goodies include Dubliner beer cheese, mussels Filey Bay and "Devil-May-Kerry" eggs.

Wenzler said "the works" is available for $24.95 per person, while other items are available a la carte for $6.95 to $14.95. "It's always a lot of fun and great food," she said.

The feast will be available between noon and 8 p.m. Monday, March 17, with a communal table and patio dining available, and takeout, too. The best "wearer" o' the green" wins a prize. Baum & Blume is located at 4 El Caminito in Carmel Valley Village.

Delicate pan-roasted black cod is tender and succulent in a light broth with thinly sliced spring vegetables, local artichokes, herbs and white beans. The dish is on the lunch menu at Sierra Mar.

■ Chalone TR reopening

Chalone Vineyards at the foot of the west side of the Pinnacles is reopening its tasting room — good news for anyone who is a fan of winemaker Robert Cook's creations and has been missing being able to taste them before buying. The tasting room will reopen Saturday, March 22, at 11:30 a.m., and will operate on weekends between the hours of 11:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., with tastings available by appointment Monday through Friday.

"We'll be having a more special Grand Reopening event on Saturday April 26, with food served throughout the day and vineyard tours and potential wildflower walks, weather permitting," Cook said. "We're also looking to open up some older library selections."

Chalone occupies a small appellation on the northeast side of the Salinas Valley and also boasts the oldest vineyard in Monterey County, with Chenin Blanc planted in 1919. Recently, California's Historic Vineyard Society awarded Chalone Historic Vineyard status, and Cook said the vineyard is one of the older plantings of Chenin in the world.

According to the HVS, the grapes were planted by Frenchman Charles Tamm when his family became home-stealers on the Gavilan Range.

"The soils of the land, composed of limestone and calcium carbonate under volcanic deposits left by prehistoric eruptions of the Pinnacles volcano, bear a remarkable resemblance to the soils of Burgundy. It is very likely that it was the recognition of these soils, by either Charles Tamm or his father, Jean-Auguste, that attracted them to the site," accord-

■ Mayors on Wheels

Meals on Wheels of the Monterey Peninsula, Inc., is kicking off its spring fundraising efforts with Mayors for Meals Wednesday, March 19, when city leaders will get behind the wheel to help deliver hot meals to seniors and shut-ins. Mayors for Meals is a national campaign held each March “to raise awareness about senior hunger and to encourage action on the part of local communities.”

The fundraiser gives civic leaders a chance to meet some of their senior and disabled constituents while also confirming their support for nutritional programs for the homebound, according to local MOW executive director Viveca Lohr, “Peninsula clients count on us, but we need the community to help us by volunteering and donating to support the home-delivered meal programs,” she said. “The participation of civic leaders in 2014 will help to raise awareness about the plight of homebound adults on the Peninsula.”

Also, the Beach House at Lovers Point is donating part of its proceeds some evenings to MOW, and the effort kicked off Thursday, Feb. 27, with a packed house. On upcoming first Thursdays in April and May, the restaurant will give 20 percent of its food and alcohol purchases those evening to the nonprofit.

“The dinner was wonderful in every way, and it was made even tastier knowing that so many will benefit from the efforts of your team at the Beach House,” Dorothy Maras told Kevin Phillips and others after the Feb. 27 dinner. “My own 20-year affiliation with MOW began because we were ‘neighbors’ while I was at the Old Bath House. It has been a long and rewarding relationship. Here’s to the Beach House being a great ‘new neighbor’ in feeding those who cannot feed themselves.”

Last year, Meals on Wheels of the Monterey Peninsula made more than 54,000 deliveries of 2.5 meals per day, five days a week, to 420 seniors and disabled adults. In their 41-year history, the two Meals on Wheels organizations in Monterey County have never had a waiting list for services and have never turned away a client due to financial hardship. Meals on Wheels is located in the Sally Griffin Active Living Center, 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove. For more information, visit www.mowmp.org.

■ Girl Scout cookie season

Taking their sales efforts to a new level, members of Carmel Girl Scout troops 32040 and 30221 also worked toward their Marketing and Think Big badges by learning “to set goals, connect with a target audience, and sell a product — skills that will last a lifetime,” according to Tracy Hopper.

“The girls worked on tag lines, banners, point of sale signage, bundling best sellers, mobile marketing, setting goals for future funds, and ways to get around ‘No,’” she reported. “This year, they even stitched together their own cookie costumes — the dancing cookie mascot helped draw more attention to their booths.”

Girl Scouting emphasizes those and other skills, and supporters like to point out that of the 20 women in the Senate, 70 percent were Girl Scouts, and a total of 60 percent of the female members of Congress were Scouts.

Cookie sales are among their best known efforts and learning experiences, and Hopper reminded residents, “There are still ways to get your cookie fix, but hurry, sales end March 16, and you won’t see the green tablecloths, dancing cookies or find the big smiles greeting you for another year.”

■ Bourbon & Bone

Cypress Inn is known far and wide for accommodating canine guests at tea and in the bar, and Terry’s Lounge is honoring co-owner Doris Day’s 90th birthday (April 3) with a special cocktail that’s for dog fans in particular. The inn is also holding a fundraiser for the Doris Day Animal Foundation. Available April 1-30, the Bourbon & Bone cocktail will be available for $9.99, with proceeds going to the DDAF.

The cocktail features 2 oz. Bulleit Bourbon or a similar high quality bourbon, a half ounce of Amaretto, three-fourths ounce of Cherry Heering and half an ounce of fresh lemon juice. The blend is stirred and poured over ice in a tall glass, then splashed with ginger ale, and garnished with candied ginger and a cherry. The “bone chaser” comes in the form of a “natural or rawhide dog bone for [your four-legged] sidekick.”

The Cypress Inn is located at Lincoln and Seventh in downtown Carmel. www.cypress-inn.com.

■ SLH gala

The Santa Lucia Highlands’ Wine Artisans group is hosting its eighth annual SLH Gala at Mer Soleil Winery

Saturday, May 17, from 1 to 4 p.m., and tickets are on sale now. More than 30 wineries either located in the famed Santa Lucia Highlands AVA or using grapes grown there will pour during the event, which will take place in the barrel cellar of Mer Soleil.

The cellar is not typically open to the public, and there, guests will have the chance to taste rare vintages and visit with the winemakers themselves. Those expected to attend include August West, Belle Glos, Bernardus, Boekenooogen, Hahn, Hope & Grace, J. Lohr — Highlands Bench, Kori, La Rochelle, Loring, Lucienne, Mansfield - Dunne, Manzoni, McFarland, McIntyre, Mer Soleil, Miura, Mooney, Morgan, Novy, Paraiso, Pelerin, Pessagno, Pisoni / Lucia, Poppy, Puma Road, Roar, Scheid, Siduri, Testarossa, Tondre, Tudor and Wrath. Three new SLH members will be there: Black Kite, Cattleya and Hawks View.

According to organizers, the gala represents the only public tasting of the year for many of the participating wineries. The party will also offer food, live music, and a silent auction featuring big bottles.

And, new this year, guests can sign up for vineyard tours and discussions at Hahn Estate, Puma Road’s Apex property and Morgan’s Double L Vineyard, as well as a discussion of

■ Dinner with Morgan

Opting to showcase local wineries in its Winemaker Series this year, Pacific's Edge at the Hyatt Carmel Highlands will host a dinner featuring Morgan Thursday, March 20, with winemaker Dan Lee.

Executive chef Matt Bolton created the menu for the evening, beginning with hors d'oeuvres of Hawaiian Kampachi with yuzu and lotus root, and arancini with Parmigiano Reggiano, paired with 2012 Sauvignon Blanc. The first course will be John Dory with hearts of palm, bok choy, lobster and curry emulsion, served with 2011 Double L Vineyard Chardonnay, followed by Bandera quail with Anson Mills polenta, hedgehog mushroom and cherry jus, paired with 2012 Twelve Clones Pinot Noir. For the entrée, Bolton will prepare Colorado Lamb with black trumpet mushrooms, pomme Dauphine and sauce au poivre, to be served with 2011 Double L Vineyard Syrah.

And finally, for dessert, Asian pear tart with graham and honey-lavender ice cream will be served with 2012 Double L Vineyards Riesling.

The winemaker dinner costs $95 per person, including tax and tip, and begins at 6 p.m. Reservations are required. Pacific's Edge is located in the Hyatt Carmel Highlands. Visit <http://www.hyattcarmel-highlands.com>.

studio, and in 2000, we purchased a home here."

Once Paley and his wife experienced a winter in Carmel, they were hooked.

"Every time I call somebody [in Rochester], they tell me it's below zero," he observed. "This place is Nirvana."

Sally Aberg of the Carmel Art Association approached Paley with the idea of doing a fundraising event, and the sculptor was happy to oblige.

"It was incredibly generous of Albert to do this," she said. "He is well aware of the history of the Carmel Art Association [as the town's oldest gallery] and the impact it has had on California art history."

Aberg is also looking forward to seeing many of her friends meet the down-to-earth Paley, whom she has known for many years. "If you met Albert at a beach party in Carmel, you would think he's a just a regular guy, despite the awards he has received," she added.

At the fundraiser, the sculptor will sign copies of his new book, "Paley on Park Avenue."

Locally, Paley's work has been displayed at the Hawthorne Gallery in Big Sur since it opened in 1995.

The event starts at 6 p.m. Tickets are $55 for members and $65 for non-members. All proceeds benefit the nonprofit gallery, which is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Call (831) 624-6176.

■ Painting village for charity

Providing a friendly competition and raising money for a good cause, the Arts Council for Monterey County presents "Paint the Village: A Plein Air Paint Out" Saturday, March 22, in Carmel Valley.

From 10 a.m. to 2:45 p.m., participants will set up their easels and paint scenes throughout the village and valley. They'll meet at the Quail and Olive at 3 p.m., where Carmel Art Association President Will Bullas will judge the work and pick the winners, and a reception and awards ceremony will follow.

Proceeds benefit the arts council's Professional Artists in the Schools program. According to Jaqui Hope of the arts council, the program "creates more opportunities for arts education in our community." "All students deserve vibrant, inspiring arts education," Hope said.

The entry fee is $35. The deadline for signing up is Monday, March 17. The Quail and Olive is located at 3 Pilot Road. Call (831) 622-9060 ext.103.

■ Dinner with Galante

At Il Fornaio restaurant in the Pine Inn at Monte Verde and Ocean in Carmel, also on March 20, Jack and Dawn Galante will host a dinner featuring their wines — Galante Vineyards and Dawn's Dream — during a multi-course dinner that starts at 6 p.m.

The cost to attend is $70 per person, including tax and tip, and reservations are required. Call (831) 622-5100.

nature and where he had enlisted a host of caregivers and had become a regular socialite," she wrote in a letter to Mayor Jason Burnett and the rest of the city council last December, requesting permission to install a plaque on Spike's bench.

His former owner knew his whereabouts and visited him at the bridge, too. Spike lived there until late fall 2009, when a cold snap and deteriorating health drove him to the warmth of Smith's garage. Nonetheless, he "continued, loyally, to visit his bench and footbridge, and his many friends continued to keep in touch with him."

"Spike's personality was grand, and his power of gratitude touched everyone who helped him. Literally scores and scores of people got to know him, as he offered his head to scratch or insisted on a few moments of lap time on the bench," Spike's friends wrote. "One cannot estimate how much love and charm were experienced down in Spike's Hollow on Spike's Bench. It was a magical experience for us all, and one right out of the Old Carmel Soul."

In fact, they credited Spike with bringing people in the neighborhood together who might not have met otherwise, and when he went to live with Smith, one of his fans submitted a Letter to the Editor to The Pine Cone wondering where he'd gone. His new hosts — Linda and her husband, Jackson — responded a week later to let people know he was safe with them.

"The other day I found him back down at the footpath on the railing, so don't be surprised if, as the weather improves, he reappears more often there to see his old friends again," she wrote in her subsequent letter to The Pine Cone.

When he died in 2012, the Friends of Spike held a memorial for him at the base of the bridge.

"As silly as it might sound to those of you not involved in our neighborhood or not giving a cat a second thought, to us, this is not at all silly, nor is Spike just a cat. Spike epitomizes the compassion, caring and the purpose of our community, our dear Carmel, its residents and the importance of bringing people together," wrote Katherine Shaw. "Spike did that for a huge group of people that now have a common bond and might have otherwise missed the opportunity."

Planner T.J. Wiseman recommended at the March 11 meeting that the planning commission approve the plaque, given Spike's impact on his adopted neighborhood. "This dedication is to one cat by a group of residents," she wrote. "Similar to the Garden Club and other groups who have dedicated benches in the city, The Friends of Spike is a group united around a common interest and one that wishes to contribute to the city by means of a bench dedication."

Carol Daks, who lives near the bench, told commissioners, "I'm for it. I'm for Spike, and I knew Spike and he warmed my heart, and I think it will be wonderful for people to see this."

Commissioners were moved by the application, too. "We spend a few hours reading these packets, and when I read this, I had to smile," said commissioner Jan Reimers.

Commissioner Don Goodhue observed it was an "only-in-Carmel" request, and commissioner Keith Paterson said the commission really had no choice but to say "OK."

"I think it will bring a lot of pleasure to a lot of people," he added.

The commission unanimously approved Spike's plaque, which the group plans to install on his bench and dedicate at a celebration in the not-too-distant future.

VISIONARY HEALTH CARE SERVICES

Meg's HEALTH NOTES

Recently there was an article in the Carmel Pine Cone about a home care company that I previously owned that has a caregiver who was arrested for stealing from one of their clients. Although they are now a competitor of my VISIONARY HOME CARE company, I felt nothing but sad that the incident occurred.

So my message today is a simple one: PLEASE make sure anyone who works in or outside of your home is well-screened. ANYONE can be at risk for elder abuse whether it is financial, emotional, or physical.

At VISIONARY HOME CARE, all of our caregivers are fully screened, fingerprinted, and background checked — not only through the state but additionally screened through the FBI and Department of Justice databases. We take every step to ensure that we are providing the best caregivers and the best quality of care. If you use an agency that provides caregivers, make sure you KNOW they are screening in the same manner. If you hire a private caregiver, screen them thoroughly. Call references and make sure you are actually talking to a valid reference and not just a friend or a relative playing a role. Dig into the background. The vulnerability of an elderly person alone at home is HUGE and you can never be too careful.

CONDORS

the inland population," VWS researcher Joe Burnett reported.

The "snatch and switch" technique employed by VWS staff is just one way researchers are combating the effects of DDT on condors. Also benefitting recovery efforts is the passage of time. "The upside is that DDT is declining even faster than expected," explained Kelly Sorenson, executive director of the VWS. "We know it's going away."

Despite the risks of laying eggs that easily break, Sorenson said he'd rather condors feed along the coast than inland, where they are more likely to eat carrion that's been tainted by lead bullets. "The coast is critically important to the wild condors because of the low lead exposure," he said.

Burnett, too, is more worried about lead poisoning than eggs that are too thin. "The problems condors face with lead poisoning far outweigh the problems we're seeing from thin-shelled eggs."

Yet Sorenson is optimistic that even lead poisoning one day will cease to threaten condors. He pointed to the recent passage of Assembly Bill 711, which requires that lead bullets be phased out in California by 2019. "We're on track to resolve the lead bullet issue," he added.

There are about 230 condors living in the wild throughout California. In 1987, only 27 were alive — all in captivity.

PENSIONS

2008, Pacific Grove has spent about $600,000 in attorneys' fees and election costs in trying to oppose three pension-reform measures.

The city has retained the law firm of Colantuono & Levin to fight the most recent initiative.

However, Miller criticized attorney Michael Colantuono for not being aware of, or not disclosing, some of the terms of Wills' order, including that the city file a notice that it has complied with the order by July 31.

"I kind of expect the attorney to know that beforehand," Miller said. "We have spent a lot of money on this — way too much money — to not have that clearly stated."

POLICE LOG

Resident advised that she received a phone call from a nonprofit organization requesting a telephonic donation. Resident has contributed in the past and gave the company her credit card number. She thought the phone conversation was odd and contacted someone at the company headquarters who advised they do not typically solicit over the phone. She advised no unauthorized transactions took place, and she did not give them any personal information. She preemptively canceled her credit card.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 21

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At approximately 1352 hours, a pine tree approximately 50 feet tall fell on two homes on Second Avenue, causing damage. A tree service company was contacted by the property manager.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Resident on Santa Rita reported that while she was moving, her cell phone was taken. She suspects it was taken by one of two men who were in the home collecting recyclables she wanted taken away. Resident followed up with recycle service, but her efforts were met with negative results. Resident has since obtained a new phone through insurance and canceled the account for the old one. The phone's memory was also wiped by resident. No further investigation required.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male came into the station lobby to report that he lost his wallet in the area on Scenic Road.

Carmel area: Resident reported fraudulent activity in his credit profile. He has contacted credit agencies and his account holders to prevent future fraudulent activity to his credit profile. He also requested a case number for documentation purposes.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man on Mission Street reported someone copied his business website and put their own phone number on it for contact.

Pebble Beach: U.S. currency located at an abandoned homeless camp on private property. Bill was collected and placed into evidence.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to speak with a resident regarding a loud leaf blower early in the mornings in the area of Country Club Gate. Officer advised the resident that, since this an ongoing problem, he should contact the police while the noise is happening. Further, the officer told the man he should be willing to sign a ticket, which is a complaint against the business or the one who is creating the unreasonable noise.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to contact the manager of a Pacific Grove Lane apartment complex. She advised earlier in the day, an unknown female wearing a business suit knocked on the door of an elderly resident and stated she was from the Internal Revenue Service. The woman entered the residence, began to look around and told the elderly woman she was going to stop by the complex twice a month for the next several months. She stated she made contact with her residents through texting and emails about the incident. A male resident told her that an unknown male came to his residence and said he was from the IRS. The male resident did not answer the door. Manager stated she wanted this documented in case they were to come back to the property again.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to reported battery at a care facility on Congress. One resident reportedly hit a caregiver and another resident. No one wanted to press criminal charges.

Pacific Grove: Officers were dispatched to a Crocker Avenue address because of a noise complaint. Officers arrived on scene and contacted the property owner, who said he had friends over earlier but they had all gone home.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a loud music/party coming from an apartment on Lincoln Street at 0250 hours. Party host was contacted and agreed to end the party.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person found an unattended makeup bag in front of Casanova Restaurant. Examined the makeup bag and noticed there was a library card with a name on it. Made contact with the owner's son, who later responded to the station to pick up the bag. There was nothing of value inside the makeup bag. Nothing further.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person found an unattended cell phone near the stairs on Scenic Road. Examined the cell phone and noticed a home number in the contacts. Made contact with the owner of the phone who later retrieved the phone from the station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Driver stopped on San Carlos Street for failure to come to a complete stop at stop sign and found to be DUI. Subject, a 51-year-old male was arrested, chose a blood test and was later released from Monterey jail with a promise to appear.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded to a family dispute. A Temporary Emergency Protective Order was secured and served upon one of the involved parties.

Pacific Grove: Officers were dispatched to a suspicious vehicle in a parking lot on Lighthouse Avenue. PGPD officers made contact with the individuals and found marijuana and a syringe. All occupants were let go, and items collected were placed into evidence for destruction.

Pacific Grove: A citizen approached an officer in a parking lot and on Ocean View and reported that she found a bullet in the street near her residence. The bullet looked as though it had been run over or crushed with pliers. It was booked into property and placed in a bin with other seized ammunition and fireworks pending destruction.

Pacific Grove: An anonymous person called in and complained that a neighboring tenant on Arkwright Court was hammering on the adjacent wall at 2217 hours. The resident requested officers contact the tenant and advise her to stop. The tenant was contacted and apologized for the noise. She stated she had just moved in and was hanging some items on the wall. Subject was advised to resume her activities the following day.

Pacific Grove: Subject called in stating he heard a female yelling, "Stop, please don't!" on Lighthouse Avenue. Officers responded to the apartment complex and identified Apartment 1 as the source of the complaint. The male subject had gone for a walk and was subsequently contacted by an officer. He stated after he and his fiancée got into a verbal argument, he went for a walk. The female subject initially refused to come to the door; however, after her fiancé returned home, she came to the door and verified that she was OK. Both parties apologized for their actions.

Christina Judson

Christina Hannah Judson, a resident of Carmel for over 30 years, passed away on February 2, 2014, at the age of 92. The cause of death was congestive heart failure.

Born in Southampton, New York, on October 17, 1921, to Englishman George Rust and Scot Margaret Rust, she was raised in England for much of her childhood then moved after the stock market crash to Flushing, New York, where she met her future husband, Howard William Judson at Public School 20. She graduated as salutatorian from Flushing High School with Howard being the valedictorian. She won the prizes for English, French, history, and Latin, while he earned the rest of the prizes in math and sciences. While majoring in foreign languages at Queens College, she continued to date Howard, which sometimes meant dancing at a spaghetti house in Manhattan after working a 12-hour Saturday shift in high heels at a dress shop. Her study of modern dance led to her being selected to leap over the camera for a film about Queens College.

She graduated from college at age 20 as the salutatorian and they married on October 18, 1943. During the war Christina initially worked as a translating accountant in French and Spanish for the Grace Line (known at that time as part of the War Shipping Administration). She followed Howard to training camp, where he was pulled out at the last moment before being shipped to fight in Italy where many of his regiment died. The Army transferred Howard (and Christina) to Ohio to tap his engineering background. There they welcomed twins Carole and Ron into their lives. After the war, they drove back to Port Washington, on Long Island, where their second daughter, Jeanne, was born five years after the twins.

Two years later they began their frequent moves as Howard climbed the corporate ladder of Shell Oil Company. Every two to three years they uprooted--first to Louisiana then to Michigan, New York, British Columbia, California, New Jersey, California again, England, Texas, then finally to Carmel where they retired to a house they designed and built on the piece of property they bought before Howard was transferred to London to head consulting services for Shell International. During that favorite assignment, Christina would accompany her husband to countries such as Brazil, Japan, and France where she would act as an unofficial interpreter for him and his team on social occasions and venture out on her own to explore new cultures while the team worked on their assignments.

Christina devoted most of her time to being a homemaker in every sense of the word. A devoted mother, she enjoyed sewing clothes and home furnishings, cooking, and transforming gardens in a variety of Hardiness Zones into showcases of beautiful blooms. She painted and wallpapered, and tried numerous crafts as outlets for her prodigious creative energy, and was always available to help her children with their toughest homework, decades after she had studied the subjects herself. She fit in working for The Nashley Service, posing as a shopper at exclusive New York City department stores then reporting her evaluations of the service she received. She also volunteered for church jumble sales, and pastoral support assignments. She was a lifelong learner, keeping up with the news, the financial world, and even learning some Armenian to surprise her grandson (a foreign service officer) in her final months.

Christina is survived by her three children: Ron Alan Judson of Lafayette, CA, Carole Judson Foxley of New York City, and Jeanne Maria Judson Fredericks of New Canaan, CT. She is also survived by eight grandchildren (David and Jeff Judson and Amy Saunders; Christina and Griff Foxley, and Pamela Arifian; and Carolyn and Wesley Fredericks), as well as eleven great grandchildren.

A Celebration of Life Service will be held at The Little Chapel-by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove at 11 A.M. on March 22, 2014. Following the service, her ashes will be scattered at sea by Point Lobos where her husband's ashes were scattered 27 years ago. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests a donation to Yellow Brick Road of Carmel (a favorite charity of hers) or to The Carmel Foundation, which provided transportation and other important services to Christina in her later years.

DOG

The suit, she said, will seek damages for time spent searching for the dog, and non-monetary damages such as emotional distress. Even though the Lab has been gone about six months, Dalton told The Pine Cone her two children still miss her.

"The little girl still talks about the dog," Woodward said. "It seems to be still very fresh in her mind."

The monetary damages the Daltons will seek, Woodward said, also includes money spent on a vacation to Disneyland in which they had to abruptly cancel to return home when the dog went missing the first time.

Perkins told police that he had a problem with Candy Cane's barking although he never made a complaint to officers or the Daltons.

Though the law considers pets property, juries have been known to award monetary damages as a result of emotional distress from the loss of an animal.

In 2008, KCBA and KION anchorwoman Olga Ospina sued the owner of a Labrador that attacked and killed her Maltese in front of the Pacific Grove Post Office. Two years later, a jury awarded Ospina about $87,000 in damages, including $15,000 for pain and suffering, $7,500 for future mental suffering and about $29,000 for expenses.

Should he be fired?

Perkins' crimes have sparked strong emotional responses from Pine Cone readers, several of whom are calling for the math teacher to be fired from his position at Hartnell College in Salinas.

One of them is Carmel Highlands resident Mel Kleb, who told The Pine Cone he called Hartnell to ask about Perkins' employment but that he received little response, other than finding out the math teacher is tenured.

"There is a lot of research showing that when men and women are abusive to animals, it can lead, and often does lead, to abuse of human beings," Kleb said.

Another reader from Carmel Valley told The Pine Cone that she wanted to start a petition calling for Perkins' dismissal, while a YouTube user posted a video also calling for the teacher to be fired.

"How do you do that to a dog, someone's family pet?" asked the man, who goes by the YouTube user name "TheKaffeeKlatsch."

Despite the outrage, there is no state law compelling Hartnell to fire Perkins, and dog theft and animal cruelty don't rise to the threshold of "serious" or "violent" felonies listed in the California Education Code that can trigger revocation of a teacher's credentials.

Esmeralda Montenegro, Hartnell College's spokeswoman, would not comment on Perkins' employment. Perkins did not respond to a Pine Cone interview request this week.

In response to the YouTube video, two people identifying themselves as Perkins' students called the teacher an "outstanding man" and "a compassionate, kind individual, who has a great empathy for other people."

Final search for Candy Cane

Kleb, an animal lover who has offered to help the Daltons, said he soon wants to conduct a final search for the Labrador in the Carmel Highlands and Big Sur. Kleb, who has a problematic hip, is trying to enlist others to help with the search.

Apart from posting fliers around the Highlands, Kleb said he hopes to go door-to-door to ask homeowners if they've seen the dog.

He believes it's possible someone found Candy Cane on the road and picked her up and took her home.

"If I can get enough volunteers, we will knock on doors," he said.

Anyone interested in helping with the search is asked to call Mel Kleb at (831) 622-9331.

■ Eclectic quartet at Sunset

Offering a fresh take on classical music, The Catalyst

Quartet performs Friday, March 14, at Sunset Center. The event is presented by Chamber Music Monterey Bay.

The quartet features Karla Donehew-Perez and Jessie Montgomery on violin, Paul Laraia on viola and Karlos Rodriguez on cello. All four are alumni of the nonprofit Sphinx Organization, which mentors Hispanic and African-American music students.

Dana Werdmuller and Amy Anderson of Chamber Music Monterey Bay watched the quartet play in New York City and were impressed. "We were struck by their talent, their passion and their eclectic repertoire," said Werdmuller, executive director of the local nonprofit.

Friday's programs includes Jessie Montgomery's Strum; Oswaldo Golijov's Tenebrae; Samuel Barber's String Quartet Op. 11; George Walker's Lyric for Strings; and Johannes Brahms' Quartet in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. Kai Christiansen presents a free pre-concert talk at 7 p.m. Tickets are $15 to $46. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 625-2212.

■ Still swingin'

The most famous of all big bands during the genre's heyday in the late 1930s and early 1940s, The Glenn Miller Orchestra returns Sunday to the Pacific Grove Performing Arts Center.

The band achieved unprecedented chart success during the swing era with hits such as, "In the Mood," "Chattanooga Choo Choo," "When You Wish Upon A Star," "Tuxedo Junction" and "Moonlight Serenade."

Twelve years after Miller died in a 1944 airplane accident, the orchestra reformed and, through various personnel changes, has been touring ever since.

The March 16 concert starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $25. The Pacific Grove Performing Arts Center is located at 835 Forest Ave. Call (831) 655-5432.

■ A cappella with a view

The Purdue University Glee Club makes a "surprise" visit to Big Sur when it sings a cappella Tuesday, March 18, on the terrace at Nepenthe restaurant.

Carmel resident Donald Decker, a Purdue graduate, came up with the idea for the performance.

"We are delighted to provide them with a 'theater' — weather permitting — and as many Ambrosia burgers as they can eat," Erin Gafill of Nepenthe told The Pine Cone. "There are 52 of them, so it will be quite a scene!"

The event begins at 2 p.m. Nepenthe is located on Highway 1 about 28 miles south Carmel. (831) 667-2345.

■ A long way from home

A native of Denmark who grew up in Greenland, singer-songwriter Simon Lyng plays Friday at the Henry Miller Library in Big Sur (7:30 p.m., $15 cover) and Saturday at Chateau Sinnet in Carmel Valley (7 p.m., $10 cover).

Lyng toured Europe three years ago with Grammy Award-winning singer-songwriter Emmylou Harris. His 2010 debut album, "The Future," topped the U.K. Rock charts when it was released.

The library is located on Highway about 28 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-2574. Chateau Sinnet is located at 13746 Center St. Call (831) 659-2244.

BILL

surface.

Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Stedman provided an example:

“A quarter-inch hole in an irrigation line can pump 9.17 gallons per minute, and that adds up to about 550 gallons of water leaked per hour,” she said. “Multiply 550 gallons by 24 hours, and the amount of water leaked is 13,200 gallons. If the leak occurs for five days, it’s wasted 66,000 gallons of water.”

In any case, Davis called Cal Am a day after opening the bill in late February. He was eventually transferred to the company’s newly appointed customer service supervisor, Anthony Lopez, who reduced the $24,000 bill to a mere $100.

“I got the revised bill and it shows $100 and $200 for two months,” he said.

Sensational headlines

The Monterey Herald and the local TV news stations have run numerous sensational stories profiling customers like Davis who have had high water bills, all the while suggesting that Cal Am is to blame and quickly discounting the company’s contention that customer leaks and a tiered-rate structure that purposely penalize high water use to encourage conservation are the actual reasons for the shockingly inflated invoices.

Though Cal Am conceded there have been human errors in reading customers’ meters, there hasn’t been a single instance where a water meter has erroneously inflated a customer’s usage, Stedman said.

Apart from being a headache to customers, steep water bills are also a public relations nightmare for Cal Am, which is in the midst of trying to counter an activist group’s campaign to publicly take over the private water company.

“We do understand how disconcerting these bills can be for customers,” she said, “and that is why we are so committed to working with them to provide an adjustment we are happy with and the customer is happy with.”

If a water customer has a hardship in paying — even after the company adjusts the bill — Stedman said Cal Am will further reduce the charges.

While some customers, including Davis, speculated that Cal Am may be overcharging customers deliberately, Stedman said that can’t be further from the truth.

The steep water rate tiers, which mean a customer using little water will pay a smaller amount per gallon, but those who use a lot will pay a premium per gallon, were set in order to restrict water use, not to increase the company’s profits.

“The rates are not designed to benefit our company, they are designed to drive extreme water conservation practices which are needed because of the cutbacks that have been imposed on our water supply,” she said.

Cal Am, which is limited to a fixed revenue amount set by the state, isn’t allowed to profit from the high water prices in the top tier, Stedman said.

Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett said he generally supports the tiered rate structure but recommended that the calculation of the tier one be made over a longer period of time.

“For example, rather than calculating what tier you are in each month,” he said, “it would be better to calculate it each quarter, every six months or each year. This would still capture the so-called water wasters but wouldn’t penalize someone for having guests in town or some other short-term reason why water might have increased.”

He also said Cal Am should provide “immediate feedback if water usage far exceeds the historical average.”

Stedman urged those who have a billing issue to call Cal Am.

“We hope everyone understands that if they have a leak and receive a high bill, they should contact us and we will take care of the problem,” she said.

WHEN THERE'S A REVOLUTION, IT'S NOT EASY TO DECIDE WHICH SIDE YOU'RE ON

LET US pretend, for the sake of simple fantasy, that a gabble of insurrectionists have shown up at the Monterey County Courthouse in Salinas.

They're riled up about something, and they consider themselves a freedom-loving bunch.

They've got the standard laundry list of grudges. Most of beyond the realm

By JOE LIVERNOIS

their grudges include freedom-hating laws and decrees handed down by the state of California: taxation, regulation, the encouragement of diversity, lax immigration, gun control, gay marriage, water, the infernal Coastal Commission, etc.

Their encampment at the courthouse begins to attract larger crowds, though the majority of Monterey County residents suspect that they're simply a bunch of kooks.

Nevertheless, the folks at the courthouse stage a coup and secede from the state of California. They establish a provisional state government, install a provisional governor and create a provisional legislature.

City gets award for budget

'FOR THE first time in the city's history, the Government Finance Officers' Association has awarded Carmel-by-the-Sea the Distinguished Budget Presentation Award," city administrator Jason Stilwell announced this week. "The award is the highest form of recognition in governmental budgeting." The honor marks a significant achievement for the city and "would not have been possible without the professional dedication and work" of administrative services director Susan Paul, CPA Paul Wood and finance specialist Deanna Allen, he said.

According to the GFOA, the award reflects the commitment of a winning city to "meeting the highest principles of governmental budgeting." To win, a city's budget must be rated "proficient" as a policy document, a financial plan, an operations guide and a communications device. Mayor Jason Burnett commended Stilwell and his staff. "We've often talked about how much improved the budget is over previous years, and it is good to have this recognition," he said.

Of course, the governor of California is on high alert. He declares that the ethnic and native Californians in Monterey County are worried for their safety, so he dispatches troops from the National Guard to Aromas, from where sabers are rattled.

The episode captures the imagination of the governor of Wisconsin. After a stinging rebuke from a state senator in Wisconsin, in which he is called a "lily-livered, weak-kneed leader" because he allowed the California governor to respond with a heavy hand, the Wisconsin governor insinuates himself into the disagreement. He imposes economic sanctions against California. In a strongly worded speech, he hints that he might send his own militia into Monterey County.

No one understands why the governor of North Carolina should give a damn.

Pretending is fun! Let's try another one:

Whipped up by hysterical interpretations of various current events generated by a television news channel that caters exclusively to old people, the wingnut residents of Florida declare their independence from the rest of the United States.

Naturally, the legislature in Florida formalizes its "more perfect union." It immediately nationalizes all newspapers and television stations. Troops seize all U.S. federal buildings; federal employees are arrested and held until they are willing to pledge allegiance to their new minders.

A constitutional convention is scheduled to draft a new and better constitution, or at least a charter without any of the pesky provisions requiring equal rights under the law. The national capital is located in Tallahassee. Residents are required to carry firearms. Jeb Bush is elected president.

Of course, the president of the United States is on high alert. While he publicly expresses support for human dignity and the right of self-determination, he declares that ethnic Americans in Florida are concerned for their safety because of the regime change. He dispatches ground troops into Florida to throttle the insurrection.

The crisis escalates when the wingnut residents of Florida, armed to the teeth and riding their electric mobility scooters, confront the American troops in a bloody skirmish that will be forever remembered as The Battle of Flamingo Park.

As an anxious world watches, the president of Portugal insinuates himself into the pending civil war on American soil. (Extra points to all readers who can name the Portuguese president!) He imposes economic sanctions against the United States and threatens to send the Portuguese Army into the fray.

The Portuguese president is goaded by the wingnut element within his own country. A leading Portuguese senator declares that the skirmish in Florida is the direct result of "feckless" leadership displayed by the Portuguese president.

No one is certain why the Portuguese president should give a damn.

Gosh, but these pretend scenarios are a hoot. Let's try one more:

Some people in Ukraine assert their independence from Russia ...

You can't stop the music, and you can't stop Todd Samra from talking about it

IT'S HARD not to smile when someone describes an upcoming symphony performance by saying, "It's going to be light and refreshing, like fish with a little butter and steamed vegetables."

That's Todd Samra, though. Since spring of 2011, the energetic musician and musicologist has given pre-concert lectures for the Monterey Symphony Orchestra, where he serves as the education/outreach representa-for performers (he plays the piano and sings professionally) as well as patrons of the arts. Then, as if all that weren't enough, he added that he's organizing a professional choir.

"It's called Methystikos," he chuckled, explaining that the Greek word means "intoxication" (which we presume refers metaphorically to the desired effect of their performances). He expects that the nine or ten professional singers he's gathering together will perform in eight-part harmony, unaccompanied.

I nearly made a faux-pas by referring to the choir as "a cappella," but he set me straight:

"A cappella means that a musical instrument can double for a human voice, if necessary, while 'unaccompanied' means no musical instruments are used," he said, channeling some long ago musicology lesson.

He clearly enjoys educating others about his passion; he's held teaching positions in places ranging from St. Joseph's College in Indiana, to CSUMB's Osher Lifelong Learning Institute.

He also lectures at the Carmel Bach Festival and the Gentrain Society. It's hard to believe he's done so much since moving to Monterey just three years ago. As his job at St. Joseph's was ending, he cast a broad net for something new, ending up with offers in Delaware and Arkansas, and one at All Saints' Episcopal Church. The other two jobs were collegiate teaching positions, and the idea of being music director for the church appealed to him — he'd enjoyed working at other churches in the past. Of course, the natural beauty and rich arts scene here didn't hurt.

The job with the symphony followed shortly after Samra arrived, when David Gordon, who'd been doing the pre-concert lectures, had to bow out because of family obligations. Gordon gave the symphony Samra's name based solely on his reputation, something Samra still considers a great compliment.

He left the full-time job at All Saints' last October, because he said it was "hard to balance with all the other projects." That list currently includes accompanying the Hartnell Community Choir, jamming with local rock cover band Tommy Moon, and playing once a month at St. James Episcopal Church and St. John's Chapel in Monterey.

He also plays for residents at Forest Hill Manor twice a month, a gig he clearly enjoys. He laughed, "I'll shout out the name of a tune from the 1940s and they'll yell, 'No! That's too new!'"

Samra's also really excited about the upcoming Monterey Symphony performances March 21-23 — the aforementioned "fish and steamed vegetables." In addition to selections by Ravel and Mozart, they'll be playing Beethoven's Fourth Symphony, which Samra characterizes as "very interesting and overlooked."

He continues, "It's one of Beethoven's most joyous works, very uplifting and masterful." He jokes that, because it's not as dramatic or well known as the Third and Fifth symphonies, it "doesn't sell tickets." But he knows that this audience will love the refreshing spring "meal" of music: "The people here are going to eat it up!"

To suggest someone for this column, email emgiuliano@gmail.com.

Great Lives

By ELAINE HESSER

Samra, who holds a master's of music in choral conducting from the University of Missouri and a doctor of arts in music from Ball State in Indiana, loves telling the stories of the pieces the audience will be enjoying. The intriguing and often humorous lectures are free of charge, open to the public, and begin an hour before each performance.

Samra loves Sunset Center audiences. "They're questioning and they're cultured," he says. "The arts are very valued and important here."

He fairly gushes about the Monterey Peninsula's seemingly endless opportunities

WINE

I have succeeded where many others have failed, because I deliver high quality meals, as well as outstanding service, and I do it with the help of my family and staff, some 42 in number, all of whom are residents of the Central Coast, and all of whom care deeply about this area," he said.

He pointed out the commission approved his permit, and he wondered why he was back before it.

"Because a 'walking tour' guide and group of my would-be competitors, most of whom live outside Carmel, have combined an ill-conceived effort to keep me from opening a wine-tasting business which features wine made outside of Monterey County," he said.

A resident supported Shield, calling him a "standup member of the community" and saying everything Shield produces and pursues is "first class."

"I believe he's being alienated and used an example of something that's not quite fair," he said.

"The proliferation of tasting rooms in Carmel is a great concern for residents," countered Carmel Residents Association board president Barbara Livingston, who suggested controlling the number by requiring Monterey County wines with the appropriate ABC licenses. She also encouraged the commission to impose a moratorium on tasting rooms while it sorts out its policies.

"This is not anything about eliminating competition," she said. "It's just about what's the right thing for the city."

Former city councilwoman Karen Sharp, however, lamented government's tendency to change the rules mid-stream, a scenario that makes it difficult for applicants.

"We have a group of people who like to come and tell us what village character is," she observed. "Village character is the people who come here" and enjoy all the city has to offer, including restaurants like Shield's. She encouraged the commission to let him open his tasting room.

Commissioner Janet Reimers said she thought it would be unfair to impose a moratorium on tasting rooms, with so many applications already in process — including Shield's, which was submitted last September.

"I think anyone in this room would find it a very, very difficult situation to be in," she said. "So I'm very, very opposed to recommending a moratorium. And very often, the marketplace will take care of the number of businesses you have of any type."

She also pointed out Shield's business is viable and is proposed for an area that has few existing tasting rooms.

"We have a flurry of these applications coming in. It's giving us real problems," argued Goodhue, who requested the reconsideration. "This was a very confusing application at the last meeting and is even less clear today."

While other commissioners also had issues with Shield's application, they ultimately decided not to reconsider the approval, letting it stand, since its appeal before the city council is already in the works.

"I don't think I can support a reconsideration at this time," said LePage. "There will be a lot of discussion of this — it's going to be appealed to the council, so this will not be the last time."

The decision not to reconsider the permit passed 3-2, with Goodhue and commissioner Keith Paterson dissenting.

The Wine Walk by-the-Sea members appealing Shield's approval say it should be overturned because the "concept, licensing and representation are too muddled and sketchy."

"We do not want to undermine the experience of tasting Monterey County wines," they wrote in a letter to the city, observing that city officials and other organizations "have worked diligently in creating a destination marketing program to bring in quality visitors and appeal to the Carmel locals in order to regulate and responsibly represent Monterey County and our local growers vintners."

"It is important to note that there is no condition that would prevent a large Napa, Sonoma or other winery coming to Carmel-by-the-Sea and pouring their wines," they contended.

BUTTS

are thinner than sewing thread, white and tightly packed together to create a filter that can look like and be mistaken for food by both terrestrial and marine wildlife," Stap said.

In other areas where butt receptacles were placed, the number of cigarettes that were discarded into the environment was drastically reduced.

For example, an Alameda beach where three receptacles were placed along a 2.5-mile stretch, cut down the number of butts collected from 2,850 to 917, according to Stap.

A Duty to Your Town

Do not fail to vote next Monday. It is a public duty. Two members of the Carmel Sanitary Board are to be elected, as well as a Sanitary District Assessor. Messrs. Fraser and Cherington, whose terms will soon expire, will not be candidates for re-election. You may vote for your own candidate.

There is no lack of candidates for the position of Sanitary District Assessor. Philip Wilson announced his candidacy some time ago, and during the week Miss Helen W. Parkes and H.L. Warren have cast their sombreros in the ring.

This is the total amount subscribed to date toward the $100 fund being raised to properly equip our volunteer fire department. Not a cent was paid in by permanent residents during the past week, but an "absentee landlord" sent in a five-dollar check.

As the summer approaches, the need for adequate protection from fire grows more imperative. Only the pressing need for additional fire-fighting apparatus and an alarm signal prompts the repeated and persistent publication of an article on this subject.

More Regular School Attendance Urged

The apportionment of funds for the maintenance of primary and grammar schools in California is based upon attendance. At county headquarters attendance records are computed very closely. Suppose, for instance, a pupil is tardy five minutes on six occasions during the term — that makes half an hour. If ten children are similarly late — and this does occur — that is nearly a school day lost.

Because of the decreased attendance, the money allowed for maintenance is cut down. At a recent meeting of the Carmel school board, while the matter of finances was under discussion, the question of the need of better attendance was referred to. Parents are urged to see that children attending the local school be as regular and prompt as possible.

Quarantine For Rabies Possible

That the state board of health would place a quarantine on dogs and cats on the peninsula because of a rabies outbreak appeared probable following a meeting yesterday presided over by Drs. John Sharpe and Dwight M. Bissell, county health officers.

The last time a quarantine was placed on the peninsula only four cases had been reported. Already 17 human beings have been under treatment and a dozen cases of animal rabies in every part of the peninsula with the exception of Carmel have been reported.

Both dogs and cats would be required to be kept at home and all strays picked up under a state quarantine. Dr. Bissell quoted research on vaccination of dogs and cats for protection against rabies and stated that this had proven comparatively worthless.

Blood Transfusion Service Innovation By Red Cross

Would you give your blood to save a life? If so, and you are between the ages of 18 and 40 and in good health, you can register for the new volunteer blood transfusion service now being established by Carmel Red Cross chapter. The service will be conducted through the medium of the Peninsula

Community hospital where records will be kept under the supervision of the Red Cross committee.

This service is only a recent development as a Red Cross project in this country. However, it is being taken up by a large number of chapters with enthusiasm and is receiving the cordial approval of the medical profession and hospital authorities.

Council 'Unfriendly' Towards Cutting of Lower Eighth Avenue

The city council "smelled a rat" at Wednesday afternoon's meeting when it examined names of signers of a petition, presumably circulated by Percy Parkes, requesting the opening of lower Eighth avenue between San Antonio street and Scenic Drive. It was immediately pointed out that the names on the petition failed to include property owners of the immediate area, but did include signatures of non-residents, non-property owners, non-citizens, non-taxpayers, and many who probably haven't been near San Antonio and Scenic within the last twelvemonth. Small wonder then that the council appeared "unfriendly" toward the petition which contained a mere 76 names, only 37 of the names of Carmel taxpayers.

Miss Clara Kellogg, street commissioner, declared that there were no funds available for the grading, surfacing and oiling of lower Eighth street. Scenic drive has no outlet between Ocean Avenue and Thirteenth, has houses on only one side of the street, and is used only by traffic immediately to those houses or to view the scenery of beach and bay. The absence of intersections contributes to the safety of this traffic. The steep grade of Ocean avenue was regarded as a possible hazard. The petition was tabled.

Carmel's "Bundling" Play Given Cold Shoulder By Pacific Grove Moralists

Carmel is a crack-pot Bohemian town again — in the eyes of officials in Pacific Grove who decided this week not to sponsor the Carmel Players' "bundling" play, "Pursuit of Happiness," in a presentation in that fair city. Perhaps the spicy lines and frivolous scenes were too much for Pacific Grove officials.

"Pursuit of Happiness" was to have been given this weekend at Pacific Grove High School under auspices of the Monterey Junior Chamber of Commerce. The nature of the play, however, was not a happy one for a Pacific Grove showing, it was finally decided. Another stage is being sought for the play by Cliff Jones of the Junior chamber.

Parcel tax measure fails to get enough votes

Carmel school buses will have to keep on rolling and asbestos remain in school walls as the Carmel Unified School District's Measure A parcel tax initiative failed Tuesday to gain the necessary two-thirds vote for passage. With only 27.6 percent of the 17,408 district voters going to the polls, Measure A managed to muster up 2,840 yes votes, or 59.1%, to 1,960, or 40.8 percent, no votes.

If approved, the measure would have levied a special tax of $80 a year for a maximum of four years on each assessor's parcel within the district for asbestos removal; school buses and other service vehicles; school building maintenance, repair and replacement of obsolete heating, plumbing and lighting systems; and replacement of outdoor play and indoor classroom equipment and grounds improvement.

"What can I say? We're back to the drawing board tomorrow morning," a visibly disappointed Dr. Robert Infelise, Carmel schools superintendent, told a hushed crowd at the Carmel Middle School library shortly after the final vote was drawn on a chalkboard. "How can you say it's a lack of support when we got almost 60 percent of the vote?" he continued. "I think 59 percent says, 'Yes, we want to support our schools.' We just didn't get enough to make it legal."

Water board falls short on rationing decisions

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board struggled with a decision on a 40 percent rationing plan Monday night, eventually putting many of the hard choices on hold. The board did agree that there should be a per-person ration for residents and a sliding scale for commercial uses. It was unable to reach a consensus, however, on such items as a water connection moratorium or the specifics of the commercial sliding scale. The debate on those issues is still open and the board will conduct a special public hearing on rationing March 27 at Monterey City Council Chambers. After that meeting, the board is scheduled to consider an urgency rationing ordinance at its April 10 meeting. That ordinance will take effect May 1 and should increase the required cutback by a currently unspecified amount.

Currently the peninsula is in 20 percent mandatory rationing. The water situation remains very serious and rainfall and runoff still well behind normal. Though the March rains appear to have greater runoff than expected, February runoff was 88 percent below what is normal. Systemwide, usable storage equaled 19,164 acre-feet, or 57 percent of capacity at the end of February.

Supes impose height limits in Carmel Meadows

County supervisors on Tuesday unanimously forwarded to the state Coastal Commission a resolution limiting residential height in Carmel Meadows to 18 feet. The resolution, which scales down the height limit by 6 feet, will be heard by the Coastal Commission during the next "few months," according to county planning staff. The resolution will not affect the Claude Keyzers project, which was approved by the Monterey County Planning Commission and has been appealed to the board by a Carmel Meadows neighbor. The height of that project is close to 24 feet.

This week's action by the board brings Carmel Meadows in line with Carmel Point, which last year put an 18-foot height limit on buildings. The board this week responded to increased fears by Carmel Meadows neighbors who believe the area was in danger of losing its coastal character. "You've got to stop it (taller residences) sometime," said William Herbert. "It's better to stop it now, not later. We're trying to protect the public viewshed."

If adopted by the Coastal Commission, the resolution will affect both the 10 vacant lots in the subdivision and all remodels in the future. If adopted, the resolution will not affect those who already hold permits.

Hospice accepts Pebble Beach Co. offer of land

Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula announced it has accepted a gift of 3.5 acres of land at the Old Capitol Site from the Pebble Beach Co. and is now ready to move ahead with its plans to build a 24-bed inpatient care center at the site by 1991. Off Highway 1, across from the Del Monte Shopping Center, the site is in a secluded box canyon, described by Hospice officials as "ideally suited for a care center of this type."

At the same time, Hospice Capital Campaign Committee Chairman J. Daniel Tibbitts revealed that Hospice has obtained an additional million dollars in the form of two anonymous gifts of one half million each. This brings the amount pledged thus far to $2.4 million toward the $5 million dollar Capital Campaign goal. "This will allow us to proceed with our plans to construct a centrally located, economically efficient facility, with a pediatric unit. We are enormously pleased," Tibbitts said.

The real narrative of wounded knee, or take my patella, please

*I shall not be here
I shall rise and pass
Bury my heart at Wounded Knee*

— Steven Vincent Benet

WOUNDED KNEE, South Dakota, was the location of the last major confrontation between the U.S. Army and American Indians.

My Scenic View this particular Monday morning is from flat on my back, being rolled down a corridor at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. I am on a gurney being wheeled into the operating room. The ceiling lights roll by as the gurney traverses the short distance from Pre-Op to the OR. Two orderlies and an OR nurse are propelling and steering the gurney. The nurse is my very own daughter, Christy.

“We’ve assembled the dream team to operate on your knee,” my daughter says to me through her surgical mask. She is trying to assuage any jitters I have while facing knee replacement surgery. Astute father that I am, I recognize the statement for what it is. It is payback for all those times I took her to the dentist when she was a little girl, telling her “this won’t hurt a bit.” Also, the role reversal is not lost on me. Suddenly she is the parent and I am the child

Besides, I know it isn’t true. Dream team, indeed. How could she possibly assemble Jane Seymour and Cate Blanchett on such short notice?

This little father/daughter drama began several months before when some debilitating knee pain convinced me to see my favorite orthopedic surgeon, Christopher Clevenger, MD. His prediction that one day I would have trouble with my left knee had come true. Even with my untrained eye I could see what the X-Ray picture was showing. There was no cartilage remaining in the knee.

“You are bone on bone,” the good doctor said. The workings of my rather skewed brain even amaze me sometimes. Years ago, an ophthalmologist told me I had a pterygium in my eye. No big deal. The spelling of the word was more threatening than the actual condition. However, it was the very spelling that made my brain see, and my ears hear, pterodactyl. What! I had a large prehistoric bird flying around in my eye? This time the “12 days of Christmas” song popped into my head: “and no cartilage in a bare knee.”

I peered at the black and white X-Ray images posted on the light board in his office. The X-Ray pictures looked like aerial views of Monterey Bay. Dr. Clevenger used a pencil to point out the defective part of my knee. If I were to believe him, I had a definite problem somewhere between El Torito and Bubba Gump’s. I wondered if instead of having knee surgery he could have replaced the missing cartilage with a fish taco.

There really was no explanation as to why the cartilage was worn away. I never played any sports that might result in serious knee injuries such as football or curling. I decided it was from all those years as an altar boy. I thought of contacting Rome to see if I had a claim. Dear Pope Francis, Hey, you wanna talk about cover-ups? How about all that kneeling and genuflecting?

Back in the OR my daughter said: “Sit up. A doctor is going to give you a small injection in your back.” That’s the last thing I remember.

Several hours later someone was prodding me awake. My eyes were having trouble focusing but Christy had spoken the truth. Cate Blanchett was asking, “How are you doing?” I remember thinking: Cate, what are you doing here? You should be preparing your acceptance speech for the Academy

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

Awards. (I was sure she was going to win for “Blue Jasmine.”) And Cate, why are you wearing that shapeless green uniform?

Then Jane Seymour was telling me I had to get up and go for a short walk. A short walk? Jane are you sniffing the linseed oil from your tubes of paints?

Ten days later, after three days at CHOMP and a week at a skilled nursing center, I was home, able to get in and out of a car, walk with a cane, climb stairs, get into the shower, and sleep in a comfortable position.

At home I received excellent care from my daughter who, because she has her own family to care for, was replaced by a lady much more lovelier than either Jane or Cate. She is ministering to me with copious amounts of chicken soup and TLC. I haven’t told her how good I feel because I want to milk this for all it’s worth. Please don’t say anything to her because if she finds out she’ll bury my butt at Wounded Knee.

savings bank and loan association, or savings bank as specified in section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state) all that right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State to wit: Those certain Timeshare Interval as shown on Exhibit "A", within the timeshare project located at 120 Highlands Drive, Suite A, Carmel, CA 93923. The legal descriptions on the recorded Deed(s) of Trust shown on Exhibit "A," are incorporated by this reference. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein.
Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, as to title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the unpaid balance due on the note or notes secured by said Deed(s) of Trust, as shown on Exhibit "A", plus accrued interest thereon, the estimated costs, expenses and advances if any at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale, as shown on Exhibit "A".
Accrued Interest and additional advances, if any, will increase this figure prior to sale. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 714-573-1965 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site www.priorityposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case

Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. PUBLISH: 02/28/14, 03/07/14, 03/14/14

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JOHN WILKERSON HEARD, III Case Number MP 21430
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JOHN WILKERSON HEARD, III.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by LINDA BRANDES INGRAM in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.
The Petition for Probate requests that LINDA BRANDES INGRAM be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
Date: May 7, 2014
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Dept.: 16
Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Agujaito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Accrued Interest and additional advances, if any, will increase this figure prior to sale. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 714-573-1965 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site www.priorityposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case

Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site.
