Thrill-seeking fireman swims with hammerheads

By CHRIS COUNTS

WHEN HE'S not putting out fires, Chris Hartzell pursues another adrenaline-pumping activity — swimming with sharks.

A captain for Cal Fire who works at the Carmel Hill Fire Station, Hartzell is a shark enthusiast who's traveled to seven countries to study the fearsome creatures, and he's swum with 17 different species. But nothing he's seen compares to what he encountered last month when he and his wife, nurse Ame Wells, visited the Bahamas.

Hartzell's friend, underwater filmmaker Joe Romeiro, invited the couple to join him for a diving trip off the coast of Bimini Island in the Bahamas, where they swam with great hammerhead sharks.

The largest species of hammerhead, the sharks can reach 20 feet in length and are dangerous to humans, though such attacks are rare. Instead, the massive sharks eat a varied diet of sea life — and have a particular fondness for sting rays.

Knowing what they like to eat, Hartzell wasn't too worried about becoming a meal for a hammerhead. But he was concerned about getting hit by its unusually hard and wide head.

"Hammerheads can turn on a dime," explained Hartzell, who lives in Monterey. "With tiger sharks, once they go past you, you can stop watching them. But with hammerheads, if you take your eyes off them, they can turn 180 degrees in a split second."

To reach the hammerheads, Hartzell and his wife dived

Candidates count down days until city election

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CONTENTENDERS in the election for mayor and two city council seats are just a little more than a week away from their moment of truth April 8, as they make their last few appearances outside the Fifth Avenue post office and send out their final mailings, seeking to draw support from their constituents.

"It's sort of like marking the days until Christmas off on the calendar," commented council incumbent Carrie Theis.

■ Mayor's race

Jason Burnett, who took office as mayor two years ago after serving two years on the council and is seeking a second term, said he hopes voters will choose him because he's shown himself "as someone who's willing to take on the tough challenges," including finances, water and parking.

"I take on the tough issues and I follow through, and I make good on the commitments I've made," he said. "I think people know what they're getting if they choose me to be their mayor in the next two years, and I'll work to make good on my previous commitments and will continue to work on the roadmap that we've worked out."

He'd like to serve another term because he wants to continue building on the progress made over the past two years. "We now have the resources to deliver the quality projects and quality services to the community," he said. "We've made progress on issues that people thought were intractable. I want to continue that work."

And while the past couple of years have been focused on reorganizing inside city hall by establishing new management positions and "bringing in a whole senior leadership team," Burnett said, "during the next two years, you're going to see a lot of improvement out in the community," including street and sidewalk repairs and other capital projects.

"It will be a shift from getting our internal house in order, to putting resources to good use for the community," he said.

For his top five priorities, Burnett selected from the 10 key initiatives he and the council adopted for the year, focusing on parking, water (including the allocation from Clint Eastwood), the IT plan, the facility use plan and necessary improvements (particularly to the public works building and the police station), and Sunset Center. "I'm really excited about the strategic plan that the Sunset Center board has embarked upon," he said.

Commission: Moratorium on tasting rooms needed

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CITY should stop approving new wine-tasting rooms in downtown Carmel until the planning commission can develop a reliable and logical set of guidelines for evaluating proposals, the planning commission decided at a special meeting Tuesday. Commissioners voted to recommend the city council adopt an emergency ordinance that would suspend hearings on tasting rooms, a growing business in town, and residents and business people alike supported the break.

"I don't hear anybody saying, 'Let's not take a time out,'" commissioner Steve Dallas said. "It's nice to see the businesses and the residents working together, and we need to see more of that in this town."

Since the commission adopted its policy on wine-tasting rooms in 2011, 18 applications have been submitted, and 11 approved. Five of those applications have come in this year, "and over the last few months, the city has received an uptick in inquiries regarding potential new establishments," senior planner Marc Wiener said in his report. Dangerous but unarmed fugitive shot in Big Sur

By CHRIS COUNTS

A MAN who was sought by police was shot and killed by sheriff's deputies March 20 in Palo Colorado Canyon after the U-Haul truck he was driving collided with a patrol car.

The suspect was identified as 40-year-old Hector Chairez of Selma. Chairez was traveling with a 29-year-old woman, Amber Dawn Barnett, who fled and hid from police but was later located by a K-9 unit and arrested on suspicion of burglary. According to court records, Chairez was convicted in 1992 for intimidating a witness, in 1999 for robbery, and had been charged with other felonies.

Law enforcement officials provided few details about the shooting last Thursday, because it's under investigation by the Monterey County District Attorney's Office. While local TV stations reported that two deputies involved in the shooting were placed on leave while the investigation continues, the sheriff's office did not confirm it.

Assistant district attorney Berkley Brannon said Chairez was not carrying a gun when he died.

But according to Sgt. Brandon Hayward of the Union City Police Department, the suspect was a parolee and considered dangerous.

According to www.fugitive.com, in February Chairez "kidnapped and physically assaulted his girlfriend." After escaping from him, she said he was armed with a shotgun during the kidnapping, and "made threats to shoot it out with the police if contacted." He was sought by police for possible charges of making criminal threats, spousal battery, kidnapping and being a felon in possession of a firearm.

Hayward confirmed the charges. "We knew there was a very good potential for a violent encounter if we located him," he said.

The shooting happened just east of Highway 1 along Palo Colorado Road in the late afternoon March 20.

Because police aren't commenting, it's unclear what triggered it. Media reports offer conflicting explanations. One report said Chairez was identified by deputies while driving along Highway 1 and led them on a high-speed chase, while another said police were responding to a call about an attempted burglary in the canyon.

Shortly before the shooting, canyon residents said the truck Chairez was driving was sighted along Garrapatos Road near the Glen Deven Ranch, about two miles from Highway 1.

Two canyon residents had conversations with Chairez

Pro-takeover ballot arguments mislead public, lawsuit says

■ Judge may order changes to ballot

By KELLY NIX

THE ACTIVIST group, Public Water Now, used "false and misleading" statements — including a promise that publicly owned water would be cheaper — in support of its June 3 ballot measure aimed at taking over California American Water, according to a lawsuit filed Monday by a local anti-tax advocate who is opposing the measure.

In the suit filed in Monterey County Superior Court, Rick Heuer contends Public Water Now is trying to mislead the public in the ballot arguments it submitted to the Monterey County Elections Office in favor of Measure O, and he wants a judge to stop county registrar Claudio Valenzuela from placing the information on the June ballot.

Heuer is a member of the "A Risk We Cannot Afford, Vote No on O" campaign.

Spirited setters

When they walk, their sleek, silky coats shimmer in the sunlight and their feathering ripples softly in the breeze. One moves slowly, smoothly, her steps measured, even. The other jumps and frolics, straining against his lead like a racehorse at the gate. Winnie, nearly 8, and her companion, Calder, just over a year old, are English Setters, who enchant their neighborhood with their beauty.

Winnie was lonely until Calder came along, but as he pulled and pawed, jumped and climbed all over her, she may have wondered when he was leaving. A year later, the pair is practically family, somewhere between siblings and parent-child. But they are decidedly different.

Winnie, short for Wynnavere, is regal and wise and infinitely patient. "Winnie would probably get the Mother Teresa award for dogs," her person says. "She has always been a balanced, harmonious dog. We never really had to train her. It's like she understands English. She's probably the sweetest and smartest of all the Setters we've had."

Calder, on the other hand, is a goofball, known for his playfulness and sense of humor. "Calder," says his person, "sits and watches the bird shows on television. He's just mesmerized by them. One time the vultures flew off screen, and he jumped off the couch, ran behind the TV and into the kitchen, looking for them."

Winnie and Calder love to go to Carmel Beach, yet while she is somewhat cautious, he gallops along the shoreline like a stallion. Still, his energy, it seems, is inspiring. When Calder met Winnie, she was a little dull and listless, having let her spirit slip away with the passing of Asher, a senior Setter. Yet ever since Calder came home, his youthful exuberance and energy seems to have revived her.

Cleanup week March 31-April 4

CITY RESIDENTS can kick off their spring cleaning by getting rid of all sorts of unwanted items during cleanup week, when each household is allowed up to seven 32-gallon bags of trash, yard waste or recycling, as long as they are placed curbside by 6 a.m. the morning of the scheduled route day.

Bulky or hazardous items such as furniture, appliances and electronics are not accepted, and yard waste must be placed in paper bags from home improvement centers. (Yard waste placed in plastic bags will not be collected.) Recyclables may be placed in clear bags.

Items not allowed include construction or demolition debris, dirt, bricks, rock, concrete, electronic waste, hazardous materials, items over 75 pounds, loose items and medical waste.

Fashion show aids scholarships, nonprofits

THE CARMEL Valley Women's Club celebrates its 65th anniversary Wednesday, April 2, with a fundraising Luncheon and Fashion Show at the Inn at Spanish Bay in Pebble Beach.

Eighteen models will walk the runway during the fashion show, which showcases the latest casual, informal and formal wear from Casa del Soul, Stephan Cori, Patrick James and other retailers.

A live auction includes a two-night's stay in a Carmel Valley "tree house," and a four-course dinner for a party of eight at a private home.

A silent auction features over 100 items, including lodging, dining, golf packages, massages, spa treatments, gift baskets and more.

Proceeds from the event fund college scholarships and benefit local nonprofit groups.

The event starts at noon. Tickets are $70. The inn is located at 2700 17-Mile Drive. Call (831) 298-7127.

Three men in jewelry store robbery face trial

By MARY SCHLEY

THE ARMED robbery of a downtown jewelry store last November was a gang crime that was supposed to not only help finance the gang's criminal operations, but to gain respect and status for the perpetrators, according to evidence presented to Monterey County Superior Court Judge Carrie Panetta in a hearing leading up to a trial for the three men accused of the robbery. But in court March 13, defendants Miguel Jimenez, Leonel Ramirez and Omar Vasquez pleaded not-guilty to armed robbery, kidnapping, weapons charges, gang crimes and other allegations.

According to testimony delivered during a preliminary hearing Feb. 27, the frightening incident began on the morning of Nov. 6, 2013, when the three men were driving around Carmel in a Chevy Blazer before deciding to walk downtown — and, ultimately, to rob La Renaissance Jewellery, where the owner and an employee were helping a female customer at the time the men entered the store.

Jimenez went to a display case and pretended to be ring shopping for his girlfriend, while the other two followed. One of the men held a revolver, while another carried a semiautomatic handgun later discovered to be an Airsoft pellet gun, according to testimony.

Carmel P.D. detective Greg Johnson testified that, under questioning, Ramirez said he had missed the bus to school that morning and called his cousin, Vasquez, for a ride.

"He showed up with Mr. Jimenez in a Chevy Blazer," and the two asked him to ditch school and hang out for the day, he said. "They then drove around for a while, ended up in the city of Carmel, parked near the downtown area and walked around for a short period of time" before entering La Renaissance at around 11:15 a.m. Ramirez said he had been handed a gun that he believed was real, and he told Johnson he watched as the other two men herded the victims into the back room and robbed them.

Carmel Police officer Chris Johnson interviewed the store employee, who told him Jimenez "kind of put his arm around him, almost like a bear hug, and shoved a semiautomatic handgun into what he described as his solar plexus. He then said the other two people that came in also had a gun, and that all three of them were handing the gun around."

They led the three people into a back room of the store,

FOR CARMEL CITY COUNCIL

What others are saying about Steve Dallas, candidate for Carmel City Council:

"Steve Dallas has demonstrated his commitment to championing Carmel's character, preserving her heritage and protecting her future... His interest in eradicating Mission Trail Nature Preserve of non-native invasive species, and restoring Carmel Beach's pristine white sands are both laudable goals."
- Cindy Lloyd (The Carmel Pine Cone, March 21st)

"He has the qualifications, enthusiasm and experience that will serve us well... Steve Dallas will listen respectfully, be fair and make the tough decisions that respond to the needs of our residents, business community and visitors."
- Lillian Hazdovac and Paula Hazdovac (The Carmel Pine Cone, March 21st)

"He's committed to good stewardship through fiscal responsibility, and since Carmel has been spending money recently like there is no tomorrow, we need Steve on the Council to see that money is spent more prudently and wisely. He also believes there is a need for greater transparency at City Hall."
- Carolyn Hardy (The Monterey Herald, March 19th)

"When I attended the CRA Candidates' Forum, I waited to hear which of the three council candidates mentioned "residents" first and most often. It was STEVE DALLAS."

- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fall on city property on Lincoln Street.
- Pacific Grove: Driver was over the posted speed limit on Lighthouse between Wood and Grand Avenue. The driver was pulled over for the purpose of issuing a citation for speeding and

- was found to be under the influence of alcohol, and had no driver licensed. The 28-year-old male refused FST, blood and/or breath test. Suspect cited for noted offenses.
- Pacific Grove: Citizen turned in some old ammo for destruction found while metal detecting on Alder Street.
- Pacific Grove: Male called regarding a 45-year-old female who was unwanted at his house on Olmstead Avenue. Upon arrival, the female had shattered several potted plants. Victim requested vandalism charges. Female was cited and released.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12

- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a stolen vehicle. Turned out vehicle was misplaced. Located on Casanova Street.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ongoing harassment on Junipero Street. Case for information only and forwarded to the probation department.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Multiple business owners report possible fraud on Ocean Avenue.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman called to report losing her bangle bracelet somewhere near the children's library. She provided a description of the bracelet. She wished to make a report in case the bracelet was found and turned in to the department.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a non-injury traffic collision involving a vehicle into a building on Dolores Street.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: An unattended DeWalt power tool was found lying in the middle of the roadway on San Carlos Street.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Complaint of a youth group causing a peace disturbance on the property on Mountain View during business hours. Area check was conducted; units noted the children had returned inside the building to continue their program.

- The youth group director was contacted on scene and advised of the noise complaint.
- Pacific Grove: Resident was at home on Locust Street asleep with his wife and their daughter when his brother-in-law came home intoxicated. The brother-in-law accused the resident of being lazy and not working. The resident is on disability. A fight ensued, and the resident's wife stopped her brother and her husband from fighting with one another. Both parties had injuries.
- Pacific Grove: Vehicle failed to yield at a stop sign at Country Club Gate and drove on the opposite side of road. The 23-year-old male driver was found to be driving under influence of alcohol at 0111 hours.

Pacific Grove: Observed four coyotes in the Crespi Pond turnout at 0200 hours. Information only.

- Pacific Grove: Driver was contacted during a traffic stop on Asilomar. Subject was determined to be under the influence of alcohol. The 57-year-old driver was transported to the police department, where he was booked, cited and released.
- Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to a burglary on Lighthouse Avenue. Woman stated someone tried to enter her apartment. There was nothing taken from the residence.
- Carmel area: Burglary in the 8000 block of River Place.
- Pacific Grove: Female reported her vehicle was burglarized while it was parked at Holman Highway and Hall Road as she was hiking. Deputies investigated the case and later arrested a male suspect for the burglary.
- Carmel Valley: Woman reported an unknown male had come into her residence in the 5000 block of Carmel Valley Road. Male claimed to be an employee of Life Alert. No items were taken.

THURSDAY, MARCH 13

- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman walked into the CPD lobby to report a hit-and-run of her vehicle when it was parked on Dolores Street. She has no suspect information.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person walked into the CPD lobby to turn in an unattended cell phone and case. Officer noticed the case also contained a Nevada driver license and credit cards. Officer contacted a subject who said he was a good friend to the owner of the phone. The subject who was contacted said he would get ahold of the owner to have her come pick up the property. At 1216 hours, the owner came to the station to pick up her phone.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: San Carlos Street resident reported an irate man kicking her door and throwing water on her windows. The subject was gone on arrival, and officers were unable to locate him.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Non-injury accident involving a parked vehicle at Lincoln and Seventh.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Perry Newberry resident reported a plumbing company entered her property and her garage to use electricity. The company was subcontracted for another company and supposed to be on the property, but had not notified the homeowner. Both parties counseled and assistance provided to establish a better time to complete the project.
- Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man called to report leaving his cell phone in the bathroom near Piccadilly Park. A brief description

JACK LYNN NIELSEN

CARMEL VALLEY, CA - Jack Lynn Nielsen passed away on March 9th, 2014 at the Monterey Pines Nursing Facility at the age of 94.

Jack is survived by his four children: Gordon Nielsen and his wife Olga of Redding, CA, Geoffrey Nielsen of Portland, OR, George Brent Nielsen and his wife Sheila of Lafayette, LA and Laurie Carey and her husband Randy of Portland, OR. Jack had ten grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.

Jack was born to Peter and Clara Nielsen in Portland, OR. The family moved to Monterey County in 1926 where he has resided these 88 years. Jack attended Hartnell College, met and married Joyce Whitcomb of Carmel in 1941. Jack enlisted in the service, where he was stationed at Salinas Air Base. Jack was an accomplished photographer, photographing such notables as, Elizabeth Taylor. His talents included prize winning landscapes as well. Upon completion of his service in the Army in 1945; Jack joined up with his father-in-law, George Whitcomb, well known builder in Carmel and Big Sur, as a carpenter. Jack later became a printer and lithographer retiring from the CARMEL VALLEY PINE CONE. Jack continued to reside in Carmel Valley with his second wife until his passing.

Jack was an extremely talented individual, and had a passion for golf and continued playing into his late 80's, joined by his beloved friends. Many laughs and good times were spent on the Rancho Canadas golf course where Jack acquired his first two hole-in-ones in his lifetime In February, 2000.

Jack will be deeply missed by his family and all that knew him. He made the world a better place and we are thankful to God for him. His legacy will continue through all generations for those of us that knew and loved him for the wonderful person he was.

Judy Murray Allrich

Judy was born in Pittsburg in 1951 to Eileen and James G. Murray Jr. She was the fifth of six siblings, five of whom were sisters. Early on, her mischievous tomboy spirit endeared Judy to her beloved brother Jerry.

The Murray family moved to Rome, Italy in 1957. Judy attended school at Trinita dei Monti and Marymount becoming fluent in Italian and French. In 1966, the Murray family returned to the States, settling in Carmel, where Judy attended Santa Catalina School.

She graduated from USC in 1974, then earned her masters degree from Thunderbird School of International Business in Arizona. She moved to Caracas, Venezuela pursuing a career in brand management.

In 1979, Judy married Joe Allrich and together they raised two beautiful daughters, Helen and Christin. They first lived in Chicago, then Southern California, Wisconsin, and in 1996, they finally settled in Carmel.

Judy played competitive tennis and was a devoted member of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club winning many prestigious awards for her floral arrangements. Judy was also an artist who loved color, working with her hands, painting and creating whimsical sculpture. She also loved to travel with friends and family.

Judy is survived by her daughter Helen McClenahan and husband, Tyler of Seattle and grandsons, Cade, Max and Oakes, also her daughter Christin Hunt and husband David of Santa Barbara, brother James G. Murray III and his wife Esther of Palm Beach, sister Patricia Huse of Hawaii, best friend Susan Thacker of Carmel, and many nieces and nephews.

Judy died peacefully in her sleep March 19, 2014. In lieu of flowers, contributions to Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club, P.O. Box 1972, Carmel, California 93921 would be greatly appreciated.

Judy will be deeply missed by everyone who knew her.

Neighbors appeal OK of Jacks Peak lot line adjustment, want EIR

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE OWNERS of a property in the unincorporated area of Carmel want a lot line adjustment and the Monterey County Planning Commission voted unanimously Dec. 11 to approve the request, and also decided it didn't need an environmental impact report.

But a group of neighbors contend the lot line adjustment will be the first step in creating a building site that should never be approved — and they are appealing the decision to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

The 8.9-acre property is located at 570 Aguajito Road. Owned by Gordon and Sandra Steuck since 1986, it has two legal lots of record — a 4.6-acre “northerly” parcel with a single-family home and an undeveloped 4.3-acre “southerly” parcel. The Steucks want to create 4.6-acre “westerly” parcel with the house and an undeveloped 4.3 acre “easterly” property.

Opponents of the lot line adjustment include Frank Chiorazzi, Eric and Theresa Del Piero, the Aguajito Property Owners Association and a group called Save Aguajito Forever.

Opponents say the initial environmental study was inadequate because it didn't consider future development. They would like to see the applicant pay for an EIR.

“It's creating a likelihood of development,” insisted attorney Michael Stamp, who is representing Save Aguajito Forever. “The whole effort is to create something that can and will be developed.”

But the county contends development issues will be addressed in the future if a permit is submitted.

“The construction of a home would be subject to review as well,” countered planner Luke Connolly. “If an application to develop the property existed, we would be looking at it. But we can't get into the business of speculation.”

The appellants insist grading and site disturbance issues remain on the site due to work performed without a permit by the property owner in the late 1980s. Representing the Del Piers, attorney Tony Lombardo said there's long history of rooms operate in the city now, and Wiener said the city has applications for eight more in the pipeline, including two that are being appealed to the city council April 1: Tudor Wines, which the planning commission rejected earlier this month, and Da Giovanni, which it approved.

Guidelines confusing

In the past several months, commissioners have struggled with the criteria they want tasting rooms to meet, including which Alcoholic Beverage Control Board licenses should be required, whether they should be required to feature “Monterey County” wines and what that term should mean, how to avoid having tasting rooms looking and operating like wine bars, and other issues.

According to the policy, tasting rooms are intended to encourage people to buy wine and take it home, not drink it on site, and limiting a tasting area to 30 percent of the floor area of the retail space is supposed to “avoid the appearance of a bar.” But Wiener said many of the tasting rooms still look like bars, partly because the owners are disinclined toward putting a large amount of their inventory — wine — out on the sales floor, where it can be subjected to the light and temperature fluctuations that will damage it. He suggested seating areas could be limited or banned altogether.

Another guideline limits the number of tasting rooms to no more than five per block, in order to maintain diversity in the commercial district, but Wiener said that still means a fairly high density in the shorter blocks that run east-west. He suggested an overall numerical cap on tasting rooms in the city might be justified. The city already bans fast food and limits souvenirs shops and art galleries.

Tasting rooms are allowed to operate until 10 p.m. under current guidelines, but Wiener proposed setting an earlier closing time at 7 or 8 p.m., further ensuring they don’t operate like bars.

Regarding the preference for Monterey County wines, Wiener said the commission should decide how to define that — specifically, whether wines made from local grapes but produced in facilities outside the county would qualify. The guideline could instead state that “wineries located in Monterey County that source their grapes from Monterey County vineyards and locate their off-site tasting rooms in Carmel are desired and strongly encouraged.” He also said the commission could require wineries to have the specific ABC license allowing them to operate tasting room away from their winemaking facilities, which would “prevent the proliferation of a large number of wine establishments with no affiliation to a specific winery.”

Finally, Wiener suggested the commission could discourage mixing wine-tasting with businesses unrelated to food or wine, such as art galleries.

Operators weigh in Several tasting-room operators emphasized the impor-

ance of having chairs and barstools for people to use while they sample wines, which can take more than an hour.

“Seating is really important, because when we have guests come in, they might not be comfortable standing for 45 minutes discussing wine with us,” said Anna Russell from De Tierra, located at Mission and Fifth. “We don’t want them to feel rushed.”

“When you come to my tasting room, the experience will last an hour-and-a-half,” commented Jeffrey Blair, whose tasting room is located on San Carlos Street north of Seventh. “Chairs do not make people become intoxicated.”

Jack Galante, who opened the first tasting room in town in 2003, asked the commission to maintain its 10 p.m. max on closing time, so people who want to taste or shop after dinner can be accommodated.

Representing the Carmel Wine Walk by-the-Sea, Celeste White favored a local emphasis. Otherwise, she said, “someone from Sonoma or Napa could decide to open a tasting room here.”

“We want to preserve that Monterey County wine experience,” she said.

Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Livingston said her group “is very concerned about the proliferation of wine tasting rooms, and the obviousness of some of them becoming wine bars.”

“We definitely think you need a moratorium,” she said. “We must not approve any more tasting rooms until you get this policy firmly in hand.”

Rich Pepe, owner of Vino Napoli at Dolores and Seventh, noted that for perhaps the first time, ever, he agreed with Livingston, in calling for a moratorium. He also said wine tasting should not take place in non-wine- and non-food-oriented businesses.

“A wine tasting room should be a stand alone,” he said. “It shouldn’t be in a shoe store, an art gallery or a furniture store.”

Carmel Chamber of Commerce CEO Monta Potter said she didn’t think a numerical cap was necessary, though it could be in the future, and she suggested tightening the rules to make getting a permit more difficult.

“Having tasting rooms in Carmel has been fantastic for business — that’s why so many people are applying,” she said, adding that people who visit tasting rooms also shop at other stores.

As for a moratorium, she said, “It might be worth it if you could get a policy in place relatively quickly.”

Attorney Jim Heisinger, representing applicant Windy Oaks, requested that applications submitted under the existing rules be allowed to proceed.

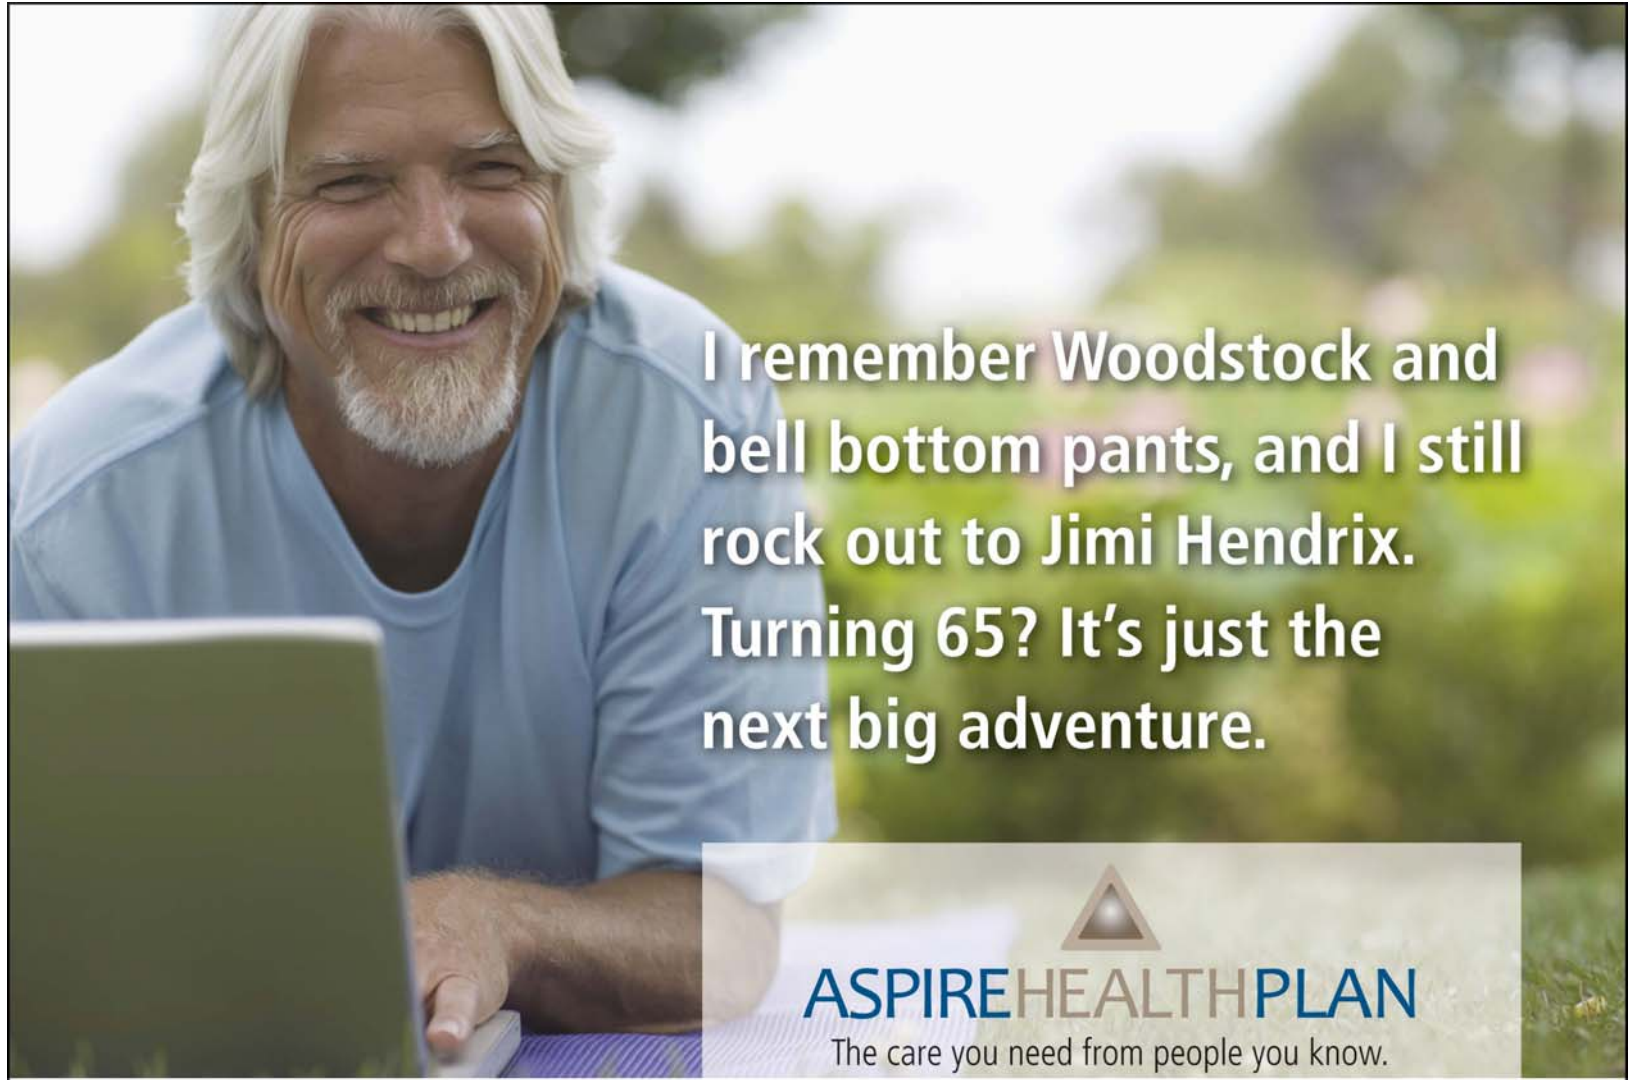

“They have the premises and have spent substantial sums of money preparing to come to the commission,” he noted.

Wiener said his application, as well as Surf N’ Sand’s, and possibly the Wyland Gallery’s, would be processed, since they are already considered complete.

“We’re going to be overwhelmed with these things if we don’t establish the policies firmly,” commissioner Don Goodhue said, while commissioner Michael LePage noted, “The devil is really in the details — and there are a lot of details.”

“We have reached a stage now where a temporary moratorium is very necessary,” commissioner Keith Paterson said, and the rest of the commissioners agreed, deciding to recommend the city council impose one. Commissioner Jan Reimers stepped down, due to a conflict of interest.

The council is set to consider the commission’s recommendations for a moratorium on tasting rooms when it meets Tuesday, April 1, at 4:30 p.m. in city hall.

SEE OUR PROGRESS

IN THE CENTRAL COAST REGION

"I've lived in this area for over fifty years, and I love being a part of this community. At PG&E, we work hard to ensure a safe and reliable system so no customer has to be without power. We are committed to making sure this community continues to be a great place to live and work."

—RON GARNETT
Electric Crew Foreman

Our customers are our neighbors. The communities we serve as PG&E employees are where we live and work too. That's why we're investing $4.5 billion every year to enhance pipeline safety and strengthen our gas and electric infrastructure across northern and central California. We want to tell you more about our activities right here in your community.

Throughout the Central Coast region, PG&E is making progress every day. We have pressure-tested nearly 50 miles of gas transmission pipeline; invested more than $190 million into electrical improvements; and installed smart grid technology on more than 60 electrical circuits benefiting more than 240,000 customers in the Central Coast region. In the event of an outage, this "self-healing" technology minimizes the amount of customers who are without power for an extended period of time.

Together, we are working to enhance pipeline safety and strengthen our gas and electric infrastructure—for your family and ours.

MARKETING CARMEL

Lisa Dias
2014 Board Co-Chair

As we wrap up this first quarter of 2014, in the business community we should be celebrating our successes, evaluating our plans and determining where our focus and efforts are best placed in the next few months.

Our successes can be seen in the news, for instance:

- March, 2014 - "Carmel by the Sea emerges as Prime Culinary Destination" (Travel Video News)
- March, 2014 - "Carmel Beach - Best Beach 2014" Monterey County Weekly
- February, 2014 - rated #3 in "World's best cities for Romance" CNN Travel

Let's not forget Monterey County being rated a top wine destination by Wine Enthusiast for 2013. Staying relevant and news-worthy is an important part of our continued success. We didn't make it on 2014's list, but our "Wine Walk by the Sea™" continues to grow and gain exposure.

Our focus needs to be on sharing the wonderful attributes of our community with the world so that we can continue to grow our local economy. Our Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the City of Carmel seeks to do just that. Our focus, through efforts of our marketing committee, is to build market share for our business community. With the support of the City, we will move ahead with a strategic approach toward supplementing and enhancing those efforts already in place.

I thank you for your support and participation. We would love your feedback and suggestions. We will be most successful as a cohesive community.

Until next month...

Lisa Dias is Chief Operating Officer at Mirabel Hotel & Restaurant Group.

Council to ponder wine appeals and moratorium, parking, HID

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CARMEL City Council will hear two appeals involving wine-tasting rooms, as well as an emergency ordinance imposing a moratorium on approving more of them, at its regular meeting in city hall Tuesday, April 1, at 4:30 p.m.

The appeals were filed by Dan Tudor, whose application for a tasting room on Mission Street was denied by the planning commission, and a group of wineries in the Carmel Wine Walk by-the-Sea, which opposes the commission's OK of restaurateur Firok Shield's proposed tasting room.

A temporary halt to approving more tasting rooms is also being recommended by the planning commission while it sorts out its policies for approving such establishments. An emergency ordinance would take effect immediately and last 45 days, after which it could be extended for up to a maximum of two years.

Also on the agenda for April 1, the council will consider a parking plan and ways to alleviate congestion downtown, according to Mayor Jason Burnett.

The Hospitality Improvement District will get its annual review, and on the consent calendar, the council is set to accept a $150,000 grant from the Coastal Conservancy to help pay for permanent restrooms on Scenic Road.

At councilman Steve Hillyard's request, the council will receive a report on lighting policies, particularly with regards to the fairy lights in the median that have garnered a few complaints. "I asked him what he wanted to accomplish before he leaves office, and that's what he identified," Burnett said. (Hillyard is not running for reelection, so April 1 will be his last meeting.)

The day before the meeting, at 5:30 p.m., the council will hold a workshop on the options offered by GreenWaste, the company that will replace Waste Management in providing garbage service. It's been reported that the new contract could increase residents' trash bills by 29 percent. Waste Management was deemed unresponsive to the city's request for bids, so GreenWaste is the only contender, according to Burnett.

For more information on the council meeting, visit www.ci.carmel.ca.us. City hall is located on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean Avenue.

Peggy (Alexandra) Porter Morrow

April 28, 1914- March 7, 2014

Peggy (Alexandra) Porter Morrow passed away in Lahaina, Maui, her longtime home, on Friday March 7th, just short of her 100th birthday.

Peggy was born in Salinas in 1914 to Monterey Peninsula business and real estate developers Frank P. Porter and Jet L. Porter, who developed the Maple Park neighborhood in Salinas, Robles Del Rio Carmelo Subdivision (Robles Del Rio) and Robles Del Rio Lodge in Carmel Valley.

While growing up her family maintained homes in Maple Park and in Carmel Valley. In High School Peggy was named Queen of the California Rodeo. Following graduation from Salinas High, Peggy enrolled at the University of California Los Angeles, where she would meet future husband Milton A. Marquard on a blind date. She later transferred to UC Berkeley. After their wedding the couple resided and had their two sons in Oakland, CA where Milton started his career with the Henry J. Kaiser Co.

In the 1940's Peggy commenced her long career in real estate, originally associated with Town Realty. In 1948 the family moved to Carmel Valley where the senior Porters, Peggy and her brother, Paul F. Porter purchased 1000 acres from Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps which included the Phelps Ranch home and stables (now Los Laureles Lodge) and the Historic Boronda Adobe. This area was developed as the Rancho Del Monte Subdivisions, and a summer resort, the Rancho Del Monte Country Club.

Peggy and her brother established and ran the family real estate business Porter-Marquard Realty. Later developments included Carmel Valley's Brookdale Drive area (Rancho Canada), Rancho Tierra Grande and Sleepy Hollow developments. Peggy was very active in the Carmel Valley community, co-founding the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce and organizing the first Carmel Valley Fiesta and art show. She was one of the early recipients of the "Good Egg Award".

In 1958, with her second husband, Robert Hartman, Peggy pursued a long standing dream to move to the warmth of Maui, in pursuit of her spiritual and artistic endeavors.

She envisioned what Lahaina and Maui would become long before the development of the island's first resort area - Ka'anapali and started to acquire commercial and residential real estate in Lahaina. She created and for years operated the White Butterfly Boutique. Her third marriage to retired Chicago advertising executive Tim Morrow led to worldwide travels where they purchased jade and oriental antiquities for their shop, The Gallery, also located on Front Street in Lahaina.

While at home on Maui, Alexandra, the name by which she preferred to be known, pursued her love of the arts and painting. She was the founder of the Lahaina Art Society. Her home was filled with her art work. She was a beloved Lahaina town "Kama'aina" known for her warmth, creative spirit, and boundless generosity.

Nine years ago Michael D. Marquard, one of her four grandchildren, moved his family to Lahaina so he could oversee Alexandra's care as she became affected by dementia. He provided years of loving care and support while raising his family. Our family is deeply indebted to Noelle Rodriguez Furtado who provided loving care at her home during Alexandra's final two years.

In remembrance of Alexandra, her granddaughter Pamela Donnellan captures what she meant to her family in writing: "My beautiful and extraordinary grandmother Alexandra Morrow passed on today. She graced my life with so very much. She shared with me a love of beauty, art, travel and so many other of the best things in life. She never saw a sunset she didn't appreciate or a cloud that didn't conjure up an image."

She leaves behind two sons, Milton "Skip" Marquard Jr. (Lynne) of Carmel Valley and Michael P. Marquard (Diane) of Carmel Valley, Cool, CA, and Dubois Wyoming; nieces Nancy and Patricia Porter of Carmel Valley; grandchildren Pamela Donnellan (Scott) of Mill Valley, CA; Michael D. Marquard (Jennifer) of Lahaina and Sebastopol, CA; Michelle Singh (Gaurav) of Rocklin, CA; William E. Marquard (Brianna) of Beaverton OR, and five great grandchildren.

PGHS student in state poetry contest

By KELLY NIX

RECITING POET Samuel Taylor Coleridge's "Kubla Khan" in front of friends and family isn't exactly every high school student's idea of having a blast. But it was for Pacific Grove High School senior Haley Walker, who can now claim bragging rights because of it.

Walker, 18, was the first runner up in the illustrious California Arts Council's Poetry Out Loud state finals that were held March 23 in Sacramento. She impressed judges not only with "Kubla Khan," but for her emotive recitations of "An Arundel Tomb" by Philip Larkin and "Abandoned Farmhouse" by Ted Kooser.

"You are judged on your articulation, whether you get all the words correct, and your dramatic performance of the poem," Walker told The Pine Cone Tuesday, "and how well you can convey the poet's meaning."

The 1797 "Kubla Khan," a complex poem that Coleridge was said to have written in an opium-induced haze, was the most challenging of the three pieces to recite, according to Walker.

"It takes a lot of emotional range to deliver the poem," she explained. "And it takes a about four to five minutes to recite."

Walker had to beat numerous other high-school students on the Peninsula and in the county before she could compete at the state level.

CHOMP to take over Monterey heart clinic

By KELLY NIX

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL of the Monterey Peninsula is in the process of acquiring a large Monterey heart clinic, a move hospital officials say is aimed at meeting the growing needs for medical specialists on the Peninsula.

Community Hospital Foundation, which owns and operates CHOMP, is finalizing an agreement with Cardio-Pulmonary Associates on Garden Court, where many doctors at the popular clinic will agree to be a part of Peninsula Primary Care, the name of CHOMP's satellite clinics already established in Carmel and Marina.

"The building will be leased and the cardiologists retained," CHOMP spokeswoman Brenda Moore told The Pine Cone.

Per the deal, Cardio-Pulmonary Associates will be renamed Peninsula Primary Care, and CHOMP will purchase equipment from Cardio-Pulmonary Associates for the new operation.

"Though Peninsula Primary Care was originally intended to help fill a primary care physician shortage," Moore said, "there is also a growing need to recruit and retain specialists, so we are doing both."

Late last year, the hospital hired seven new doctors at its primary care centers in Carmel and Marina, which opened in 2009 and 2011, respectively. The clinics were opened to serve patients of all ages, but particularly those on Medicare, which some doctors won't accept due to low reimbursement rates.

CHOMP also has plans to further expand with a new Peninsula Primary Care clinic at Carmel Hill Professional Center, which is next door to CHOMP. Moore said the hospital will also rename Peninsula Primary Care later this year "to reflect that it has grown to include specialists."

"Carmel and Marina now have more than 20 doctors, including primary care physicians, neurologists, urologists, a psychiatrist, a physical medicine/rehabilitation specialist and an obstetrician/gynecologist," according to Moore.

Retired P.G. workers sue new golf course operator over “free golf”

By KELLY NIX

A GROUP of Pacific Grove golfers fuming over the end of the free-golf-for-life policy they say the city promised them years ago are suing the company that manages the course for implementing the change.

The 11-page lawsuit filed by 12 men and one woman contends that the Petaluma company, CourseCo Inc., in its March contract with the city to operate and maintain the course, has abandoned their unlimited golf privileges in favor of one 18-hole round of golf per person, per month. In 1981, the city established a policy giving certain retired city employees and others unlimited tee times.

The golfers request in the suit that a judge issue an injunction preventing CourseCo from changing the policy that has allowed them — in some cases for decades — to play unlimited rounds of “courtesy golf.”

The suit, which alleges interference with a contract and violation of the city’s policy, also seeks monetary damages, including punitive damages, which can be awarded in cases of fraud, malice or oppression.

“They just want what they are entitled to and what they were promised,” the golfers’ attorney Bob Rosenthal, told The Pine Cone this week.

The workers, all retired part- and full-time city employees, contend that unlimited free golf was a retirement benefit given to them for their many years of service to Pacific Grove.

And at no time since the city adopted policy in 1981, the suit alleges, were the golfers told their privileges were subject to rescission or expiration.

“There is a contractual agreement, and these employees accepted it,” Rosenthal said. “They have been using it since retirement.”

A message left with a CourseCo secretary Thursday morning for the company’s chief operating officer, Michael Sharp, was not returned.

The golfers revealed their frustrations at a March 19 city council meeting. Darian Houde, one of the suit’s plaintiffs and a retired captain with the P.G. volunteer fire department, said he and other employees were promised free golf or tennis for at least 20 years of service.

“We got up at 3 in the morning to go to your house and give your wife CPR,” Houde said. “We got up in the middle of the night to put out fires. We did that for 35 years, and now you want to take that [courtesy golf] away? No, I don’t think so.”

Houde’s city-issued golf card indicates his “complimentary use” of the golf course “never expires.”

City manager Tom Frutchey recommended the council delete the courtesy golf policy. The council approved the lease agreement with CourseCo on March 2.

While the city acknowledges that courtesy golf was designed to “recognize and reward” certain groups of people, it contends the course has “underperformed” over the years and the golf fund has lost money in four of eight years.

Furthermore, a joint analysis of the golf

Fix Your Leaks

Fix a Leak Week

March 17–23, 2014

Save Water and Money Every Day

Each March the EPA celebrates National Fix a Leak Week, but customers on the Monterey Peninsula know leak detection is valuable every day. Routinely check household appliances and irrigation systems for leaks and fix them immediately.

We are all too aware of how water waste can affect a water bill and are hopeful that finding unidentified leaks or unexpected water use will help to avoid a high bill.

Leaks are silent water wasters and fixing them saves water and money. A showerhead leak at 10 drips per minute wastes more than 40 gallons of water per month. A leaky showerhead can be fixed by ensuring a tight connection using pipe tape and a wrench.

Find a Leak, Make a Fix – We’re Here to Help

To avoid unpleasant surprises on your water bill -- find a leak and make a fix. Watch our leak detection videos on the California American Water YouTube channel or download a free leak detection kit at www.californiaamwater.com.

Marzo 17-23 de 2014 es la semana para arreglar escapes. Acuérdesse de revisar con frecuencia las instalaciones y los sistemas de irrigación de su casa para ver si hay algún escape. Puede conseguir equipos gratuitos de detección de escapes en www.californiaamwater.com o llamando al (888) 237-1333.

We care for our customers by always providing high-quality water service – one drop at a time.

California American Water cares for our customers on the Monterey Peninsula. We are working diligently to deliver the most cost-effective, reliable water service. From helping control water costs through education, to financial support with our low income assistance program, H2O Help to Others, we are dedicated to serving our customers now and well into the future.

Reunion for former employees of Holman's and Ford's stores

By KELLY NIX

WHEN LARRY Esquivel worked at Holman's Department Store in Pacific Grove nearly five decades ago, minimum wage in California was $1.30 per hour, gasoline was 31 cents a gallon and a house cost a mere 20 grand.

The year was 1965, and Esquivel, a Pacific Grove High School student, needed a part-time job to earn a little cash. He applied for a job at the department store on Lighthouse Avenue and was hired by dinnerware manager Darlene London. He worked there until 1967.

"I worked in toys, dinnerware and in sporting goods back then," Esquivel, 66, of Pebble Beach, told The Pine Cone this week. "I stocked for the different departments."

Next week, during the 57th Annual Good Old Days celebration in Pacific Grove, Esquivel and other former employees of Holman's and Ford's department store, the business that took over the building in the 1980s, will share stories of their time working in the Lighthouse Avenue building during a reunion sponsored by the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce.

"The purpose of this reunion is to celebrate Pacific Grove's history and culture and to connect the former employees that worked at the department stores," chamber president Moe Ammar said.

The gathering will be April 5 from 1 to 3 p.m. at Jameson's Classic Motorcycle Museum, 305 Forest Ave. Refreshments will be served, and guests are encouraged to bring pictures and memorabilia.

"So far 21 people have called and said they will be there," Ammar told The Pine Cone.

Esquivel, who owns a successful plumbing business, said he has fond memories of his teenage job at Holman's Department Store, which was built in 1924.

"I know every inch of that building," said Esquivel, whose father also worked at the store's plumbing shop long before his employment there.

Esquivel also recalls the eclectic merchandise, from ties, to chicken wire, to silverware, that Holman's sold, largely eliminating the need to travel outside the city to other stores. Many longtime residents remember that era as, truly, the Good Old Days.

The store also had a rooftop restaurant with a fabulous view of Monterey Bay.

"If you needed something," Esquivel said, "you could find it at Holman's. You didn't have to go anywhere except Pacific Grove because they had everything there."

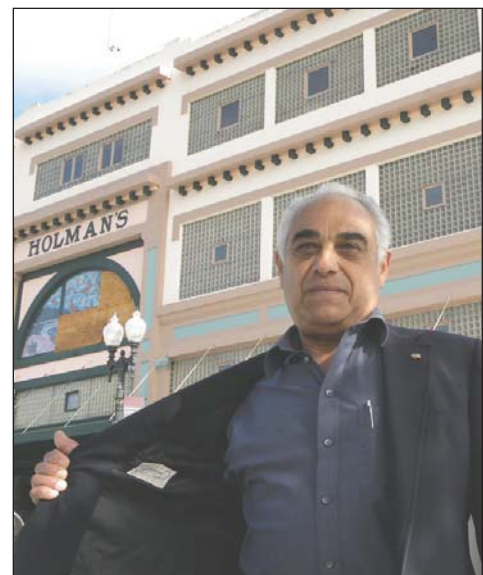

Esquivel recalls store owner Mr. Holman — as everyone called him — as a friendly man who drove a baby blue Ford Falcon and dressed unapologetically ordinary.

"He was a nice person, he didn't talk much," he recalled. "He would come into the store, walk around, do what he needed to do, then walk out. I don't think he was a conversational man, really."

On the day of next week's reunion, Esquivel will be working as a reserve officer with the Pacific Grove Police Department for Good Old Days, but he plans to stop by in hopes of seeing some of his former coworkers.

On Tuesday, while standing in front of the Holman building wearing a Holman-tagged blue blazer he bought from the department store in the early 1970s, Esquivel said he believes that the dilapidated building, which currently houses an antique business, a paint store and a restaurant but is largely empty on its upper floors, should be transformed into a nice hotel.

"It might as well be something that can attract people to Pacific Grove," he said.

Pebble Beach resident Larry Esquivel, a Holman's Department Store worker in the 1960s, shows off a blazer he bought there in about 1971. Esquivel and nearly two dozen other former employees of Holman's are attending a reunion April 5.

■ Harmony Out of Sight

Last week the head-line read "Harmony in Sight" but one can never tell what seven days may bring forth. Despite determined efforts on the part of some of the officers and members of the Forest Theatre Society and the Western Drama Society to bring about a union of the two organizations, they appear to be further apart than ever.

Following the receipt by the latter body of a letter requesting a conference, a committee consisting of Miss H. Parkes, Dr. E. L. Williamson, Herbert Heron and Theodore Criley was appointed to meet with a committee of the Forest Theatre Society. The Western Drama Committee was without power to act, but instead came to the meeting with a list of the conditions under which it would amalgamate with the parent society. Many of these conditions the Forest Theatre Society could not see its way clear to grant and as a result negotiations are off — for the present.

The community as a whole is disappointed. Many had hoped that this year Carmel might present a united front in matters theatrical. They care nothing about the friction of the two societies. They maintain that both the aims and ideals of both are identical. What they want is united action.

■ Building Telephone Toll Line to Big Sur

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraphy Company is starting construction on a telephone line extension designed to provide a public telephone toll station at Big Sur, 28 miles south of Carmel, it was announced today by L.M. Stromberg, district manager for the company. The project will entail an expenditure of $8000 for an extension of the Carmel-Bixby Creek Bridge toll line south into Big Sur, a rapidly developing recreational and summer home area located in Pfeiffer State Park and opened to the public by the completion of the Carmel-San Simeon highway.

Heron's Town Meeting Idea Is Shouted Down

Mayor Herbert Heron is not the mildest, meekest mayor at all times, but he certainly is the most democratic. His democracy springs from an old tradition of New England and the town meeting idea is one that especially appeals to the poet-mayor. However, when he brought up the question of holding a big public meeting at Sunset auditorium, the council went into a fit. Said Everett Smith, ex-mayor: "I think that would be asking them (the citizens) to do our business for us."

There will be no town meeting.

City Seeks Historian

Last night the city council, upon a suggestion from the Pine Cone, agreed to seek a person who would be interested in recording the history of this city. It was decided that it should probably be an older resident of the city, who might have personal knowledge of the events that occurred and recognize their significance. Following is the letter from the Pine Cone which initiated the action:

Gentlemen: As most of you are probably aware, the Carmel Pine Cone has in its offices a complete set of bound volumes containing every issue of the paper since it was begun over 49 years ago on February 3, 1915. These volumes contain a record of most of the happenings that occurred during those years, so important in the formation of our city as it now exists. It would be a great tragedy and an irreplaceable loss to future residents of our community if this valuable record were lost. For this reason, I humbly request that the governing body of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea appoint a city historian who will record for future generations the important information which may be gleaned from the files of this paper, together with whatever other sources are available.

Big Sur painter turns to 'Shadows on the Land' for inspiration

By CHRIS COUNTS

CAPTURING THE wide open spaces and spectacular scenery that surrounds her longtime Big Sur home — as well as the animals she lives alongside — painter Lygia Chappellet unveils an exhibit, "Shadows on the Land," Thursday, April 3, at the Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center.

Chappellet described herself as a frustrated musician turned painter. "The canvas is really a song I am singing or listening to, translated visually," she explained.

The painter is the granddaughter of Syril Chappellet, who cofounded the aerospace company, Lockheed Corporation, while Her parents, Donn and Molly, founded Chappellet Winery in Napa Valley. The family's wine will be poured at the reception.

The gallery hosts a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. The show will be on display through the end of the month. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 620-2040.

Gallery welcomes trio

The Carmel Valley Art Association introduces three new artists when it presents its annual Spring Reception Saturday, March 29, from 4 to 7 p.m., in the Village.

The event showcases the work of painters Kathryn Greenwald and Bruce Riker, and sculptor Michele Alcantara.

JAZZ FESTIVAL PROVIDES STAGE FOR NEXT GENERATION

By CHRIS COUNTS

OFFERING A glimpse into the future of jazz, the annual Next Generation Jazz Festival returns Friday through Sunday, March 28-30, to the Monterey Conference Center.

First staged in 1971 by the Monterey Jazz Festival as the California High School Jazz Band Competition, the event showcases some of the country's finest middle school, high school and college musicians. Student ensembles will compete against each other, and the winners will earn a chance to perform at this year's 57th annual jazz festival Sept. 19-21.

"The festival is a measure of the jazz to come in the world," said jazz festival spokesman Tim Orr, who cited saxophonists Josh Redman, Eric Marienthal and Dave Koz, and trumpeter Ambrose Akinmusire as four notable jazz musicians who performed at the festival when they were students. "A lot of people have come through this program," he said

From Friday at 7:30 p.m. to Sunday at 5 p.m., the conference center's Serra Ballroom and Steinbeck Forum will provide a stage for 77 student jazz ensembles.

"It's a smorgasbord of music," Orr added. "It happens continuously throughout the weekend. It's pretty amazing. And it's also completely free."

The conference center is located at 1 Portola Plaza. Visit: www.montereyjazzfestival.org.

Church concert marks homecoming

A native of Carmel who now lives in the city of Sonoma, soprano Morgan Harrington returns to her hometown Sunday when she performs at the Unitarian Universalist Church of the Monterey Peninsula.

The event marks the first time Harrington has played in Carmel since she graduated four years ago from Indiana University and launched her career as a professional opera singer.

Harrington, 28, is the granddaughter of the highly regarded fine art photographer Wynn Bullock. A longtime Monterey Peninsula resident who passed away in 1975, Bullock was once a concert tenor.

Harrington's aunt, Barbara Bullock-Wilson, is thrilled her niece will perform at the church, which is located just across Highway 1 from Community Hospital, where the young singer was born. "It's been a longstanding dream of mine to get her to perform down here," Bullock-Wilson told The Pine Cone.

Harrington will share the stage with baritone Peter Tuff, the former executive director of the Carmel Music Society, and pianist Lucy Faridany. David Gordon will narrate the program, which includes Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," George Bizet's "Carmen," Giacomo Puccini's "La Boheme," Giuseppe Verdi's "La Traviata," Wagner's "Tannhauser" and Cole Porter's "Kiss Me, Kate."

The concert starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $20 for general admission, and $15 for students and seniors. The church is located at 490 Aguajito Road. Call (831) 624-7404.

The north parking lot at Sunset Center is transformed into an event space for GourmetFest, which debuts this weekend, with lunches, dinners, cooking demos, excursions and tastings.

Sunset tent for $195 per person, the California Meets Germany lunch will have R&C Grand Chefs Joachim Splichal of Patina Restaurant in Los Angeles and William Bradley of Addison in San Diego preparing courses to complement the wines of Calera Wine Co. owner Josh Jensen, Helmut Dönnhoff from the Nahe Valley and Gunter Künstler from the Rheingau. Big Sur Bakery will provide the breads.

Wrapping up the festival on Sunday will be the $175-per-person Seafood Grill in the Sunset tent from noon to 3 p.m. Chefs signed on to participate include Jason Bangerter of Langdon Hall, Justin Cogley of Aubergine in Carmel, Robert Curry of Auberge du Soleil, Jacob Leatherman from Triple Creek Ranch, Jonathon Perkins of Chateau du Sureau, Aubergine pastry chef Ron Mendoza and Derek Poirier from Valrhona. They'll be working their magic with seafood provided by several purveyors, including Monterey Abalone Company, Taylor Shellfish Farms and Fisherman's Choice Seafood. Some two dozen wineries, several of them local, will pour throughout the afternoon.

sale to benefit Dorothy's Place, which serves the homeless and hungry, will be held Saturday, March 29, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Northminster Presbyterian Church, 315 East Alvin Drive in Salinas. For $10, the BBQ dish will include a quarter chicken with salad, beans and bread.

Anyone who wants to donate for the rummage sale or make goodies for the bake sale can bring them to the church Friday between 3:30 and 9 p.m. or Saturday after 7 a.m.

Advance sales for the BBQ are appreciated but not required, and reservations may be made by emailing Ronnie Thompson at ronnie@pim4u.com. Dorothy's Place, located on Soledad Street in Salinas, is run by the Franciscan Workers of Junipero Serra.

■ CYC Garden Party

The nonprofit Carmel Youth Center, which provides after-school and summer programs for Monterey Peninsula kids, will hold its annual Garden Party Sunday, April 6, from noon to 4 p.m.

Participating restaurants include Forge in the Forest, Vesuvio and Little Napoli, Le St. Tropez, Lugano, Flanagan's, Starbucks, Village Corner and Plaza Linda, with wine from Big Sur Vineyards and Cima Collina, and desserts by Nothing Bundt Cakes.

Guests are encouraged to don their fanciest hats and join the celebration for live music, indoor bocce, food and wine, and a silent auction to benefit the youth center.

Tickets are $45 per person, and all proceeds will go toward CYC programs. The center, opened by Bing Crosby more than 60 years ago and the only one remaining of the more than 200 he launched, is located next to the police station at Torres and Fourth. The nonprofit receives no public funds, instead relying on donations to operate.

■ Jacks' Local's Menu

Jacks Restaurant in the Portola Hotel & Spa at the foot of Alvarado Street in Monterey has launched a three-course Local's Menu — the latest element in food and beverage director Sonny Petersson's efforts to draw more Peninsula residents to the hotel and its restaurants.

First was complimentary parking, followed by a 15 percent local discount and the lounge's Wine Down Happy Hour. The three-course prix fixe specially created for area residents is available from 5 to 10 p.m. seven days a week for $24.99 per person, not including tax and tip.

Changes to the menu are seasonal and include fresh and sustainable ingredients, with dishes like first-course options of the daily soup or a Salinas iceberg salad; main courses of seared local sand dabs with whipped potatoes and green bean Almandine, grilled bavette steak with pepper sauce and roasted potatoes, or Chicken Saltimbocca with prosciutto, and French green beans; and dessert of rich chocolate ice cream with salted caramel sauce.

Culinary, the grill opens for lunch daily at 11:30 a.m. and is seating diners until 8 p.m. The menu, created by head chef Shane Griffin with Ford and chef de cuisine Estevan Jimenez, includes tested favorites and three new entrees: Southern fried game hen with house-made biscuits, succotash and brown gravy; marinated achiote bistro steak and papas empanada tower with fried chorizo and corn flautas and Salinas greens; and pan-seared wild salmon with farmers market vegetables, paella sauce and artichoke chips. Stop by the grill for wine, dinner and some of the most scenic views on the Peninsula. The restaurant is located in the clubhouse at 79 Asilomar Blvd. Call (831) 648-5774 or visit pointpinosgrill.com.

At one of the highest points at Chalone Vineyard, winemaker Robert Cook jokes that he can see whatever his workers are doing in any of the 250 acres of vineyards below. At left, French oak barrels hold some of the winery's white wines as they age.

Chalone reopens tasting room

After almost four years, Chalone Vineyard at the foot of the Pinnacles has reopened its tasting room, where guests can sample estate wines and other special offerings on weekends between 11:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. A grand opening celebration is set for Saturday, April 26, with food, vineyard tours, wildflower walks — and wine, of course.

Chalone's wines are distinctive for multiple reasons. Its Chenin Blanc, for instance, is made from the oldest vineyard in the county, planted in 1919 by Lucien Charles Tam. The 3.79-acre vineyard, with its thick, gnarled vines, recently achieved Historic Vineyard Status, and the wine made from it is rich and complex, but with the bright fruit characteristic of the grape.

The estate-grown Pinot Blanc is one of winemaker Robert Cook's favorites, showing layered fruit and some toasty hazelnut aromas far more pronounced than the varietal's often lean traits. That wine is created from grapes planted in a 12-acre vineyard in 1991 that used budwood from the winery's first planting of Pinot Blanc in 1946.

Chalone has 250 acres of grapes separated into distinct vineyard blocks planted at different times, from 1946, throughout the 1970s and into the '80s.

Chardonnay dominates the property, but the limestone soil is also prime for Burgundian-style Pinot Noir, and its Grenache and Syrah are remarkable, as well, with spice and minerality.

The reopening of the tasting room creates a nice scenario for wine-loving hikers, who can explore the stunning Pinnacles National Park, then take the dirt driveway off Highway 146 to go taste some impressive wines at Chalone, which is located at 32020 Stonewall Canyon Road in Soledad. For more, visit www.chalonevineyard.com.

PBF&W wine raffle

A compelling raffle benefiting the Pebble Beach Company Foundation, which helps fund programs and create opportunities for local kids, is being held in conjunction with the upcoming Pebble Beach Food & Wine April 10-13.

The grand prize, worth more than $10,000, is an impressive collection of 46 wines from California, Italy and France — among them bottles of Screaming Eagle, Krug, Harlan, Kosta Browne and Joseph Phelps — complete with a Jenn-Air wine cellar to store them. Second prize is three bottles from Far Niente and tastings for four at each of its two Napa wineries.

Tickets are $100 apiece, or six for $500, and the drawing will be held during Sunday's Grand Tasting. People can purchase tickets at the event or beforehand by calling (831) 625-8456 or emailing pbcfoundation@pebble-beach.com, and they must be at least 21 years old but don't have to be present to win. All of the proceeds benefit the foundation's programs and services.

MUSIC

■ Dave Matthews meets Cat Stevens

Singer-songwriter Ryan David Orr returns Sunday to Carmel Visual Arts, where he offers a free concert.

"He's my cousin's son," explained David Brimer, who owns Carmel Visual Arts. "This is the second time he's played here. He used to live in Monterey, and he has a good local following."

An Ashland, Oregon, native who now lives high in the mountains of Arizona, Orr is a familiar face and voice on the acoustic music circuit.

"He's got a Dave-Matthews-meets-Cat Stevens vibe," Brimer suggested. "His lyrics are poetic and packed with intelligence. He's fantastic."

The music starts at 6:30 p.m. Carmel Visual Arts is located above the Carmel Valley Coffee Roasting Company in The Barnyard shopping center. Call (831) 620-2955.

■ Youth center rocks again

An all-ages music venue that made its debut last month in the Carmel Youth Center, Carmel Live! hosts performances Friday by four local musical acts, Strawberry Girls, Hawk Jones, Earnest and Pipsqueak.

The all-male Strawberry Girls describe their progressive rock sound as "crazy, aggressive, groovy and melodic." Hawk Jones serves up "a multi-layered, math-rock musical journey." Earnest brings together indie rock and folk. And Pipsqueak plays raw, loud and catchy rock 'n' roll.

The music starts 7 p.m. and there's a $6 cover. The youth center is located at Fourth and Torres. Call (831) 235-8427.

■ Live music March 28-April 3

■ Painting contest aids schools

A fundraising plein aire competition in Carmel Valley March 22 raised $3,000 for a local arts education program.

Hosted by the Quail and the Olive, a shop in the Village that specializes in olive oil products, the event benefited the Arts Council for Monterey County's Professional Artists in the Schools program, which brings painters, sculptors and other artists into classrooms. With Carmel Art Association president Will Bullas serving as judge, Julia Seelos, Paul Fortis and Kathy Sharp won prizes for their work.

POETRY

Warner of Marin is unable to attend the national finals in April, Walker will go in her place.

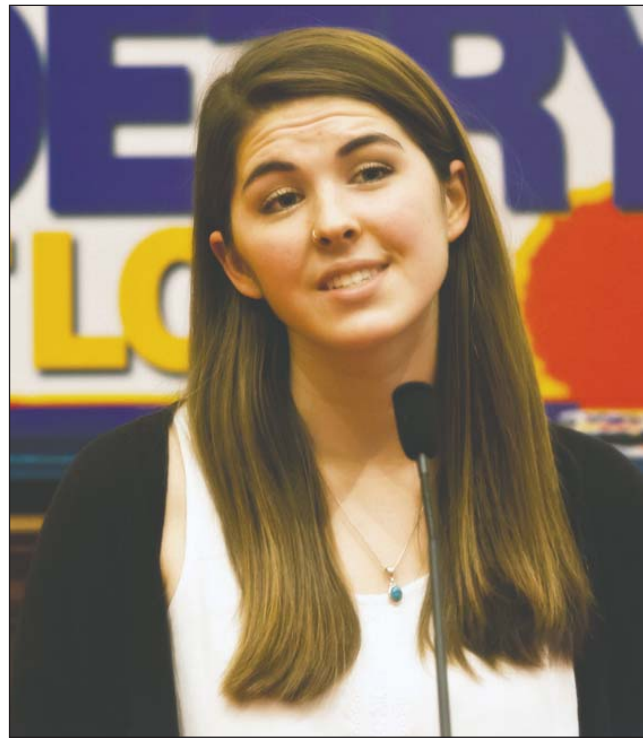

To prepare for last week's competition in Sacramento, Walker said she recited poetry in front of those she was closest to. "My friends and family were very supportive of it and they all thought it was very cool, so that helped me," she said.

Surprisingly, remembering the pieces wasn't the difficult part, Walker said. "I don't have to try that hard to remember poems," she said. "But it takes longer to analyze the meaning and correctly convey the poet's original message."

She credits P.G. High English teacher Larry Haggquist for helping her with that. Haggquist received the Poetry Out Loud competition Hero Award for his "extraordinary coaching and cultivation" of poets at P.G. High.

"He helped me a lot with analyzing the poems and figuring out the performance," she said. "He was a great coach."

As the competition's runner up, Walker got $100 from the National Endowment of the Arts and $200 for books. To watch Walker's performances of "Abandoned Farmhouse" and "An Arundel Tomb" on YouTube, search for Haley Walker and Poetry Out Loud.

Haley Walker recited by memory three lengthy poems to get runner up in the 2014 California Arts Council's Poetry Out Loud competition that was held March 23 in Sacramento.

Paul Andrew

Paul Andrew, known to his friends as "Boomer", passed away peacefully on 3/23/2014 at the age 85. Paul was born in San Francisco in 1929, and spent his entire life living in Northern California.

A graduate of the University of California, Paul played football as one of "Pappy's Boys" and was a starting defensive end for the 1951 Cal Rose Bowl team.

As a proud Marine, Paul served in the Korean War. Paul also was heavily involved with the sport of rugby, was founder of the Monterey National Rugby Tournament which ran for thirty-two years on the Monterey Peninsula.

An entrepreneur, Paul owned several San Francisco based companies including Briggs, Andrew, Pope, and Andrew Associates. In later years, he managed the Crossroads Shopping Center.

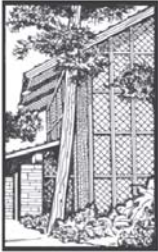

A memorial service at Piedmont Community Church will be held at 4pm on Friday April 4, 2014 followed by a reception at Piedmont Community Center.

and/or misleading statements, all of which should be stricken," according to the complaint.

Cal Am spokesman Kevin Tilden told The Pine Cone the company is funding the lawsuit, however, Heuer filed the petition since state law prohibits companies and campaigns from filing such suits. Cal Am has largely funded the No on O campaign.

The defendants listed in the lawsuit — the signatories of the ballot arguments — are Public Water Now head Ron Cohen, League of Women Voters of Monterey County president Beverly Bean, Monterey City Councilman Alan Haffa, Priscilla Helm Walton and Pacific Grove resident Richard Stilwell.

Cohen told The Pine Cone this week he thought the lawsuit was a dirty trick used by desperate campaigns. "Clearly, this is a frivolous lawsuit from Cal Am in an attempt to stop voters from being informed that public ownership will result in lower rates and local control," Cohen said.

The activist group wants to replace Cal Am, a private company, with a publicly operated local water supply, which it contends would mean lower rates to customers, a claim disputed by Measure O opponents.

Judge hears case

On Wednesday afternoon, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Thomas W. Wills heard an overview of the lawsuit from attorneys Tony Lombardo and Los Angeles-based Stuart Leviton, who are representing Heuer.

"Since the filing of the petition, [Yes on Measure O] rebuttal arguments have come out," Leviton told Wills. "And my client intends to challenge the rebuttal arguments as well."

But Wills said it was impossible to decide the issue immediately, and postponed it until March 28.

"Part of the problem is, we don't have all of the parties before the court," Wills said at Wednesday's hearing. "That is very bothersome to me."

Cohen hired attorney Mark Wolfe to represent him Wednesday, but Wolfe said he would not be filing a response to the suit since he's leaving town for one week and that another lawyer would handle the case.

There's a tight schedule to resolve the lawsuit, since March 31 is a court holiday and noon on Friday, April 4, is the deadline for the elections office to print the June ballots, according to Kay Reimann, an attorney with Monterey County Counsel representing Valenzuela, who is also named in the suit.

In reference to the timeline, Wills said, "I don't know how we are going to get this all done."

Misleading statements?

Heuer's petition cites 16 statements in Public Water Now's ballot arguments it contends are false or misleading. For instance the activist group claims that a "Yes" vote on Measure O will mean "lower rates" and "public ownership."

"The ballot argument repeatedly suggests that Measure O will automatically result in public ownership of the assets of California American Water," according to the petition. "The suggestion is false and misleading. Measure O, which calls for a study, does not mandate public ownership. It is false and misleading to suggest that it does."

Public Water Now's Measure O calls for a study to determine the financial feasibility of acquiring Cal Am's local water system. If the analysis shows the move is beneficial to water customers, it would direct the Monterey Peninsula

Water Management District, a public agency, to acquire Cal Am's assets, which it would likely have to do via eminent domain.

Heuer said he filed the petition so voters could make a decision based "on facts, not opinion," and contends that the anti-Cal Am group also erroneously claims that a Yes vote on Measure O will result in water costing "25 percent cheaper."

"This statement is false because Measure O has nothing to do with profit and it does not eliminate it," according to the petition.

The lawsuit also takes issue with the Public Water Now's statement that "Cal Am admits its rates will triple over six years." In summer 2013, Cal Am told The Pine Cone that customers could expect their water rates to increase 41 percent but adamantly denied Public Water Now's contention that rates would triple.

And the petition alleges that Public Water Now's claim that "Measure O would bring additional jobs to the Peninsula" is untrue.

"Measure O does not create jobs and does not provide for any funding for any jobs," according to the filing.

The lawsuit tackles other points by the activist group, including that the money it says will be saved from passage of Measure O will "boost our economy," and that a Yes vote will mean "immediate savings" even though Measure O only calls for a study, which opponents say could cost as much as $1 million.

"Measure O will achieve no "immediate" savings, and in fact, will cost money," the suit says.

Measure O has faced heavy opposition, not only from the Peninsula's six mayors, but several groups and organizations, including the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association, Monterey County Association of Realtors and the Coalition of Peninsula Businesses, which includes hotels and restaurants and Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Backers of Measure O point to the thousands of signatures they collected for the ballot initiative as support for making the local water system public. The League of Women Voters of Monterey County offered its backing of Measure O this week when Bean wrote commentaries for the Herald and Weekly newspapers.

Ursula Annelore (Pairan) Meidenbauer

8 October 1930 – 10 March 2014

Born in Osterod, East Prussia, and twenty five year part time resident of Pebble Beach/Carmel, died of cancer after a short illness in Baden Baden, Germany. Ursula was pre-deceased by husband George and daughter Eva but will be remembered by many close friends on the Monterey Peninsula. A memorial service will be held at The Church in the Forest, Pebble Beach on Thursday 3 April at 2 PM. Contributions in Ursula's memory may be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

ROBBERY

various agencies stationed themselves at key intersections along Highway 1 in hopes of catching the three. Less than 15 minutes after the initial 911 call, Seaside officers saw them northbound on Highway 1, called for additional units and ordered them out of the Blazer, with guns drawn, at the Imjin Parkway exit in Marina.

At the hearing, Chris Johnson testified the store employee "identified all three suspects at the scene of a traffic stop that was conducted by Seaside P.D." He also reported police found "a large amount of jewelry, cash, and what appeared to be a semiautomatic handgun, a loaded revolver, a number of zip ties, and, I believe, business cards from the business were in the vehicle as well."

Gang ties

Also at the Feb. 27 hearing, Carmel Police officer Jeff Watkins, who represents the city on the Peninsula Regional Violence and Narcotics Team, was deemed an "expert" by the court. He testified about gang initiation and membership, and why he believes the men are affiliated with the Norteño gang.

"They committed the crime for the benefit of the criminal street gang," he said, adding that the money would have paid for drugs, weapons and gang attire, while the robbery itself created "fear in the community."

"By committing a crime of that nature with weapons and taking over a jewelry store, they would be creating fear in the community," Watkins said. "That fear would allow that gang to continue to do more crimes within the community, because the community would be in fear of retaliation."

Further, he said, the men who committed the crimes "would gain respect in their gang."

He said Jimenez is an established Norteño with a moniker, "Chino," that allowed him to keep his identity secret, and he has been housed in the K-pod at the Monterey County Jail. "If you're not a Norteño and you're placed in that pod, you'll either get dealt with or asked to move out," Watkins explained, adding that Jimenez also has "North" tattooed on his right hand.

Ramirez, he said, is called "Negro" and is working to "come up" in the gang. "The more violent the act, the more respect you get in the gang, the more status you get, and you won't be, say, just a soldier. You'd be more of a shot caller. You'll have more clout."

A search warrant served at Vasquez' house on Nov. 7 revealed clothing affiliated with the Norteño gang, according to Watkins, and drawings of the Mayan figures for the number 14, a symbol used by its members.

Defense attorneys for the men challenged the gang affiliation, as well as the kidnapping charge. Surveillance footage entered into evidence at the hearing depicts four different camera angles of the showroom and back office, and shows the armed men inside, along with the victims, according to court testimony.

"The video doesn't show that any of these people were forced into the back room," argued Steven Rease, representing Jimenez. He also questioned the employee's account of having a gun shoved in his abdomen. "Fortunately, the reality is that we have the incident on film. But you don't see the bear hug. And you certainly don't see a firearm shoved into that individual's stomach area."

He also argued that while the victims were "directed into the back room," and he acknowledged the two men were tied up, he "could not find any case that said that fact alone would necessarily establish the element of a substantial risk of increase of harm" — one of the requirements for the kidnapping charge.

Cristina Biegel, representing Ramirez, said prosecutor Rolando Mazariegos provided enough evidence for the robbery charge, but she also questioned the kidnapping allegations and the gang terms.

"It seems to me that he is certainly on the fringe of flirting with disaster," she said of her client, but she claimed his involvement in the robbery was peripheral. She also said he didn't have any proven gang ties.

Panetta was not swayed by the defense and ruled that the defendants should face trial on all the charges filed against them.

"The video made it clear to the court," she said, that the victims' being ordered into the back room, where they were out of sight of people passing by on the sidewalk, "substantially increased the risk of harm to these individuals, psychologically and physically."

"The court's view is that physical force was used to move the individuals into the back," she said.

Jimenez' bail is $6,580,000, while Ramirez' and Vasquez' are $8,180,000 each.

They are next set to appear in court in April for pre-trial hearings.

illegal grading that's been done on the property and it's never been adequately restored to its original condition. "This is a perfect example of 'if you break the law long enough, you can get away with it,'" Lombardo said.

County staff acknowledges that the original work was done without a permit, but they say the grading violations were addressed, and none currently exist on the property.

The appellants argue the lot line adjustment will create a new lot, but staff asserts the parcels are two independent lots.

The appellants also say there is no proof of access or water, but staff contends neither is required for a lot line adjustment. The supervisors are scheduled to consider the appeal at their next meeting Tuesday, April 1.

GOLF

course operations concluded that the 1981 courtesy golf policy “requires change” and that it is “out of date, inaccurate and is no longer needed,” according to the proposed resolution to delete the policy.

The lawsuit’s other plaintiffs are former employees Paula D. Fry, Thomas L. Gunter, Michael Consiglio, Lawrence D. Esquivel, Walter L. Matteson, Harold Rick Bitter, Al Borges, James S. Gunter, Daniel McKay, Kirk E. Napier, James S. Peterson and Andrew Miller, the city’s fire chief who retired in 2013.

Retirees eligible under the 1981 policy are all part-time public safety workers including police officers and firefighters who had a minimum of 20 years of continuous service, and all regular full-time city workers who had a minimum of 10 years of continuous employment.

The city also allows courtesy golf to active duty members of the Coast Guard.

The only limitation for those eligible for courtesy golf privileges is a prohibition from playing Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Rosenthal said about 50 retired employees have courtesy golf privileges and they play a combined 625 rounds per year.

“That is less than two rounds per day,” Rosenthal said. “What does that mean in terms of dollars and cents? It means nothing.”

In 2006, Rosenthal represented former P.G. Mayor Morrie Fisher, who sued the city after the 2005 city council voted to end courtesy golf for council members and members of committees and boards. Fisher, who had been allowed to play for free when he left the council in 1991, entered into a settlement agreement with the city in 2007 that allowed him to play golf for drastically reduced fees.

At the March 19 council meeting, Mayor Bill Kampe said “unbounded courtesy golf” struck him as “excessive” and he suggested deleting the 1981 policy.

But he also said the city should discuss with CourseCo the possibility of allowing the retirees to be able to play more golf, such as one round per week.

In the end, the council voted to continue its discussion of the contract with CourseCo and bring it back to a future council meeting.

Rosenthal said he also intends to issue a written claim to the City of Pacific Grove, the first step before a lawsuit can proceed against a government entity.

Doris Day on reaching 90: don't send cards, help animals

AMERICA’S SWEETHEART, Doris Day, turns 90 April 3, and has a request of her fans: Instead of sending gifts and cards, she is asking them to support her animal welfare foundation.

“Turning 90 is a milestone, for me and for the foundation, and we’re setting a goal of $90,000 in donations,” said Day, who lives in Carmel Valley. “There is so much work still to do to rescue animals, and to inform people about the importance of spaying and neutering their pets. We’ve made lots of progress, but there’s never an end to our work, and every little bit helps.”

To commemorate her birthday — and raise money for her foundation — the Cypress Inn is hosting a fundraising celebration April 3, which is sold out.

But if you want to support the effort, and say, “Happy Birthday,” to her, you can make a donation to the Doris Day Animal Foundation at www.ddaf. The foundation is also presenting an online auction for those unable to attend the Cypress Inn fundraiser.

Josephine “Jo” Kale

Educator

Josephine “Jo” Kale, 84, of Carmel-by-the-Sea, died March 14, 2014 at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula (CHOMP). She was born in Stockton, California on August 22, 1929. She was a graduate of University of the Pacific, earning her bachelor’s degree in Education in 1961. She pursued a teaching career, largely in elementary education, for over 15 years in the Central Valley. She also taught at Carmel Mission when her family took up residence in Pacific Grove in the late 1960’s. Jo was a member of the California Teachers Association, Stockton Beautiful, the Stockton Opera Association, the Haggin Museum, Shrine of St. Jude, and the Heritage Foundation.

Josephine and her husband of 53 years, Darrell Edward Kale, made Carmel their permanent residence in 2001 where she lived since that time. Jo was a member of the Carmel Woman’s Club and a long-time member of the Monterey Peninsula Republican Women Federated for which she served for a time on the Program Committee. Jo was a member of the Oriental Art Society of the Monterey Peninsula and enjoyed attending dinners, bus trips, and lectures. Over the years, she was also a member of the Monterey Aquarium, the Carmel Foundation, and a benefactor of CHOMP.

Jo was also a member of the California Writer’s Club. Her work has been published in the New Yorker and the American Red Cross Youth News which later narrated her short story on LP for the blind.

Survivors: her son, Mark Kale of Escalon, and her daughter, Lois Kale Hazard of Monterey. Grandchildren: Kurt Kale, Danielle Berchtold, and Wendy Houglund of Escalon; Ross Hazard of San Luis Obispo; and Laurel Hazard of Oklahoma City. Great-grandchildren: Brenden and Devin Berchtold.

Services: Private. Josephine will be laid to rest with her husband, Darrell, at the El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove. Memorials: The family suggests that any memorial contributions be made to the Darrell and Josephine Kale Scholarship at Holy Names University, 3500 Mountain Blvd., Oakland, CA 94619. Please contact the Advancement Office at 510-436-1245.

Editorial

'They must be corrupt,' Part 2

LAST WEEK, we asked the backers of the Cal Am takeover ballot measure to stop saying people who don't agree with them must be dishonest or stupid.

Just about the time we wrote that one, a letter to the editor arrived from an outspoken man who lives in Pebble Beach and who vehemently opposes the Pebble Beach Company's plan for affordable housing on a piece of company-owned land next door to the rather downscale Pacific Grove neighborhood of Del Monte Park. The man's bombastic comments and over-the-top attacks on people who don't agree with him make the pro-Cal Am-takeover crowd seem like shrinking violets.

First of all, he lit into LandWatch, the League of Women Voters and the group called Monterey Pine Forest Watch for supporting the affordable housing plan. Why do they support it? According to our author, it's not because they've considered its pros (badly needed housing for the middle class near their jobs, less traffic because they won't have to commute so far, and an increase in adjacent property values because the new housing will be nicer than much of what's nearby) versus the cons (a few trees removed and a bit more traffic on the streets leading to the new housing). No, they did it because they've received contributions from the P.B. Co. In other words, for all their longstanding advocacy of environmentalist and left-wing causes, those groups are available to be bribed, and have been. That's what our letter-writer claimed, anyway.

Next, he tried to deal with Monterey County Weekly, which has strongly endorsed the affordable housing plan. Why did the newspaper take this stand? According to the rabble rouser from Pebble Beach, it was because the wife of an editor "makes a lot of money 'greenwashing' PBC." So, over at the Weekly, they'll also ignore the facts and print something they don't really believe, and you don't even have to bribe them directly to achieve the favorable coverage you're looking for; all you have to do is pay their spouses. That's what our Inquisitor claims, anyway.

And then he also wrote off the endorsements and favorable coverage of the P.B. project that have appeared in this newspaper and the Monterey County Herald, claiming that we, too, have betrayed our beliefs and backed the affordable housing plan because "pressure has been exerted by PBC" on us, too.

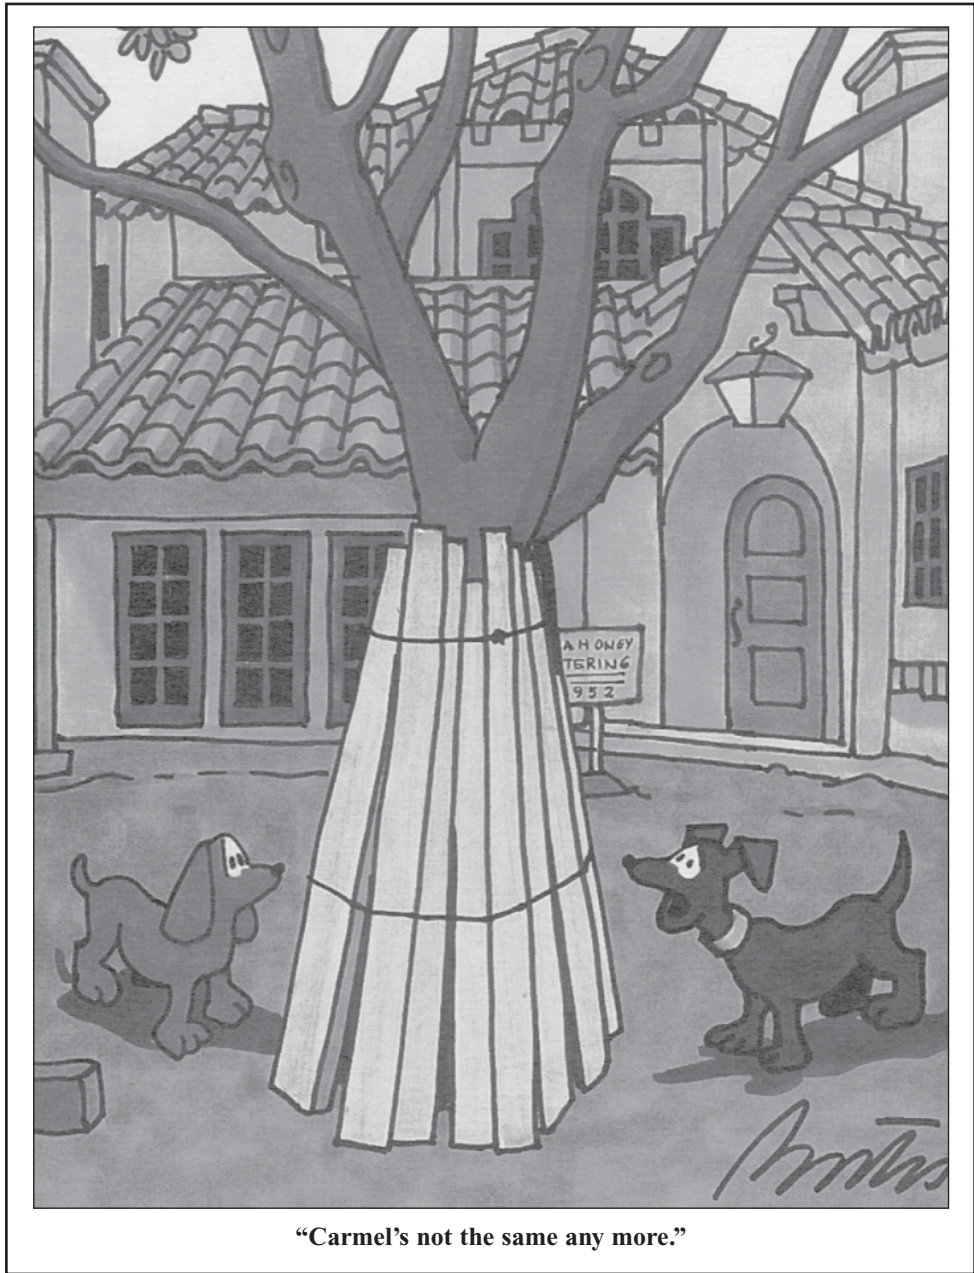

Finally, he implied that supervisors Dave Potter and Jane Parker intend to "ram this project" through the permit process, as if such a thing is even possible in the CEQA era. So they're no good, either.

We wouldn't be surprised if the next thing we hear from this man is that God Himself instructed him to oppose the P.B. Co's affordable housing project. That would make it even easier for this man to condemn anyone who opposed him.

Here at The Pine Cone, we have had many disagreements with the policies and positions of LandWatch and the League of Women Voters. We frequently disagree with editorials and other stories in Monterey County Weekly and the Monterey County Herald. And we certainly don't think Jane Parker and Dave Potter are right all the time. But it is bizarre to claim that any of these organizations or individuals lie about what they're up to because they've been paid off or pressured, and to accuse them of that is nonsense.

When someone shows so little sense and a complete lack of common courtesy, you wonder if they ever had a mother. And why do people like that write so many letters to the editor? Because the nutcases in this community are also usually narcissists, that's why.

LePage endorses Dallas

Dear Editor,

For the past two years I have had the privilege to serve on the Carmel Planning Commission with my fellow commissioner Steve Dallas. When you have the opportunity to spend this amount of time working with someone you just naturally get to know their perspective and skills. You learn first hand how they handle the decision making process and how they help make and direct policies.

What I've learned is that Dallas brings a continuing attitude of enthusiasm and commitment to the work. He is always well prepared and knows and understands the issues, guidelines and municipal codes. As the current chairman of the planning commission, he has provided strong leadership to our commission and has always endeavored to make sure everyone has the opportunity to express their views during the public hearing process.

Commissioner Dallas is a vigilant voice for the character of our village and its environment. He understands the importance of keeping our forest and beach healthy. He also understands that consistent code compliance benefits our village as a whole by protecting its unique character and promoting fairness.

A position on the council requires an individual with the resume of experience that Dallas has worked hard to achieve. I strongly encourage you to join me in voting for Steve Dallas for Carmel-by-the Sea City Council.

Michael LePage, Carmel Planning Commissioner

Reimers does, too

Dear Editor,

For several years, Steve Dallas has been an effective and conscientious member of the planning commission. He will be greatly missed on the commission and still, I encourage a vote for Dallas for city council. One of his greatest attributes is his willingness to ask the questions needed to get to the best decisions for Carmel.

Vote for Steve.

Janet Reimers, Carmel Planning Commissioner

And so does Tescher

Dear Editor,

With the departure of Steve Hillyard, the lone dissenting vote on the council has left.

Cesar Chavez, patron saint of farm workers, is hot again

ALL HAIL CESAR.

Hollywood has released a biopic that, according to the reviews, tells us a lot about what Chavez did but little about who he really was. A new biography is coincidentally now in circulation, and I'm grateful that the author, Miriam Pawel, has presented a more complete account of the icon.

I'll hail Cesar. I'll always hail Cesar, even if the public now knows that he was an imperfect man, paranoid and dictatorial.

It's complicated, this thing with Cesar Chavez and the labor union and the fight in the fields. Labor issues are always more complicated than they seem on the surface.

I got caught up in it, down there in the battlefield that was the Imperial Valley in 1979.

I was a week into my first newspaper job, fresh out of college. The Imperial Valley Press hired me on. I was a local kid, raised in the desert sump of Southeastern California.

I was hired to cover agriculture, and I spent my first week writing yawning stories about nematodes, crop yields and innovative irrigation techniques. As I was finishing my first week on a Friday evening, I got a call from Cesar Chavez.

"No, who is this really?" I asked, suspecting a prank perpetrated by an old college friend.

"Cesar Chavez of the United Farm Workers."

I laughed and hung up on him.

He called back. Said he wanted to introduce himself, that he'd be in town for a while.

I followed him around for the next two years, through a nasty strike. There were lots of speeches, lots of arrests, lots of passion, lots of tear gas. There were strategy sessions, including millionaires and much courtroom activity. Motley contingents of communists and Klansmen showed up to offer support for the union and the farmers, respectively.

It was complicated.

On the one hand, the United Farm Workers union had gone after several of the most prominent farmers in town. Being a local kid in a small community, I knew a couple of the farmers, had gone to school with their kids.

One of them had been particularly kind to my family during a rough patch.

On the other hand, I already had some experience with sensitive labor issues. While still in high school, the local manager of a bottling company hired me and several other students to load soda-delivery trucks. The regular employees there were stirring up trouble, organizing for a vote to unionize, and I was hired specifically to vote against the union.

Over time, however, I got to know the regular employees, working stiffs struggling to support their families. They showed me their paychecks, invited me to their barbecues. When it came time to vote, the union challenged the ballots cast by the high-school kids. The National Labor Relations Board sided with the union, so my ballot was destroyed. I regret that no one ever knew how I cast my vote.

As the agricultural reporter for the Imperial Valley Press in 1979, it was my job to be unbiased, an objective observer of the unfolding drama.

It was complicated.

I know I disappointed the farmers who assumed that the Anglo valley boy would naturally accept their rhetoric as fact, who assumed that I would disregard Chavez' rhetoric forthwith.

I know I was disappointed when Chavez asserted that the farmers I knew were cruel and heartless heathens.

More speeches, more arrests, escalating passions, more tear gas, and at least one high-profile funeral for a striking farm worker killed on the picket line.

That's what turned it for me: Rufino Contreras, a 28-year-old working stiff struggling to support his family, was shot dead along a lettuce field. More than a dozen shots had been fired at the strikers. Three foremen for one of the local farmers were arrested, but they were never brought to trial.

The deck was stacked against Chavez in 1979, and he did become increasingly paranoid and dictatorial. Many of his most talented and loyal attorneys and organizers were driven from his organizations. It was messy. Complicated.

But Chavez represented hope and, in the end, he improved conditions for those who work the fields. More important, he imparted leadership skills to a generation of folks who do significant work in the quest for justice.

And while unanimity is nice, I feel it is more important to have a range of opinions and ideas to make the council reflex our community. Steve Dallas has shown that he can be independent and vote in the minority if need be. But more than just being independent, Dallas has obtained valuable experience from his tenure on the planning commission to understand the particulars of city government. And, although he has shown he can disagree, he is rarely disagreeable, which is why he has the endorsement of both residents and business leaders.

This is important because with city hall in a constant state of combat it is important that we get back to just being Carmel. This is why I am voting for Steve Dallas.

Chris Tescher, Carmel

He'll be hard-working, neighbor says

Dear Editor,

I have a terrific neighbor in Carmel who happens to be running for City Council. His name is Steve Dallas. Steve is very attentive to the safety and concerns of his neighbors and the community, getting involved wherever he can help. Steve is a third generation Carmelite who understands that Carmel is not just a place to live, work, and raise a family. It's also a unique corner of the world that needs to be embraced and nourished for future generations to appreciate. I applaud Steve's dedication, knowledge and enthusiasm for the past, present and future of Carmel-by-the-Sea. If elected, I know Dallas will be a hard working city council member.

Julie Wendt, Carmel

Editor's note: The reason we are only printing letters to the editor endorsing Steve Dallas is that we haven't received any in favor of other candidates.

Charity should go to the poor

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to Mary Schley for a fine investigative article about Carmel's city's financial specialist who was found guilty of food stamp fraud. Deanna Allen, who is still in charge of Carmel's finance and payroll departments, was convicted last year of receiving almost $5,000 in food stamps even though she had a salary of $75,000. With additional money coming from her husband, her family income was almost $100,000.

For me, the most disturbing aspect to this story is: How are upper middle class citizens able to get food stamps? Maybe this answers the question of why the poor get very little of the safety-net benefits.

In his book, "Running on Empty," Peter G. Peterson revealed that in 2002, for instance, the poor only received 12 percent of the $1.2 trillion dollars earmarked for the poor by federal, state and local governments.

Peterson suggested that those who were not entitled to the money get the biggest share of the welfare tax dollars, along with the bureaucracy. Is this any way to run a poverty program? Government has failed again to keep its promises.

Lawrence Samuels, Carmel

Something missing in 'No on O' campaign

Dear Editor,

With all due respect to the six mayors and their protagonists something is missing in both the mayor's decision to oppose Measure O and the Pine Cone's editorial against it.

Measure O gives Peninsula ratepayers a probable once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to replace Cal Am, a private, profit-motivated corporation, with a non profit public water utility. There are several very persuasive reasons for doing so. Cal Am's profitability is the first reason. The second reason is that 86 percent of the nation's water companies are publicly owned; if their owners, the public, are not reasonably satisfied with this widely accepted arrangement they would have long since sold them off to a private operator.

The chief argument against public ownership that I have heard is, "governments are not good at running anything." There may be some merit to that, but if the ratepayers are not happy with a public utility, they can change management. Historically they have not been happy with Cal Am, but there is nothing they can do about it ... until now. I can give anyone in opposition to Measure O 15 million reasons to change their minds. Cal Am's profit sent to its parent, American Water Company, approaches $15 million, and it is rising with rates projected to increase 40 percent near-term. In a reasonably managed public utility, that $15 million would go to the ratepayers' in the form of lower water bills. The argument that Cal Am can bring us desalinated water in the shortest time frame can be refuted categorically.

With more time, I can give more good reasons to vote yes on Measure O, but I fear length in this reply to the mayors and to The Pine Cone March 21 editorial will only reduce the odds of this letter reaching print.

Roland Martin, Carmel Valley

'Strong support' in community

Dear Editor,

I attended the last mayor's water meeting and by my accounting, at 9 p.m., when I had to leave, there had been 18 speakers, 14 of whom were in support of the Public Water Now Initiative. The other 4 speakers were a taxpayer association representative, a Cal-Am worker, and two other glib speakers. I feel this showed very strong support within our community that the mayors unanimously and unapologetically overlooked.

To live the 'Swette' life, you have to create opportunities

BRIAN SWETTE likes to say that he is "60 years young." Considering that his schedule has only intensified since his first job out of college as a brand manager at Procter & Gamble, this positive outlook seems to be the reason for his remarkable success, both personal and professional. Indeed, his best advice stems from the belief that "You're defined by how you handle adversity and how you handle opportunity."

Swette was able to recount and describe in detail nearly 40 years' worth of executive and entrepreneurial work without referencing a single note (or his extensive LinkedIn page). Surely, this is a testament to how integral his career path is to where he stands today. Speaking to his work at Procter & Gamble in his early 20s, "I got a big break when P&G decided to take a gamble and hired undergraduates."

Swette had recently graduated summa cum laude from Arizona State University, holding a bachelor's degree in economics. While at Procter & Gamble, he worked alongside some of today's tech business titans, including Meg Whitman of HP, Jeff Immelt of GE, former Microsoft executive Steve Ballmer, Scott Cook of Intuit, and Steve Case, formerly of AOL — all of whom were starting up as well.

Swette is not lacking the drive that these figures possess: "One of my rules is to create opportunity. I fix myself on a path that creates opportunities. You also have to be willing to take risks."

And risks he took. When he was 25 years old, Pepsi Co. came forward and asked if he would be willing to market their brand in Brazil. "I didn't speak the language, and I was responsible for communication!" Swette laughed. He did eventually learn Portuguese and was soon promoted to country manager, then vice president for northern Latin America. Pepsi brought him back to headquarters and made him chief marketing officer in 1990. "I did all those Super Bowl commercials with Cindy Crawford, Shaquille O'Neal, you name it," he adds. And in just two years, Swette and a team of five developed several market hits, including Lipton Tea, Aquafina water, and the Starbucks Frappuccino.

But after 17 years at Pepsi, Swette wanted a change. "I decided to go and work for this little flea market with 40 employees in California — it was called eBay." He spent four years as chief operating officer, and oversaw the rapid expansion and internationalization of what had previously been a humble e-commerce startup. Following his work at eBay, Swette became the non-executive Chairman for Burger King.

Today, Swette is happy to work as the president and co-founder — with his wife, Kelly Swette — of Sweet Earth Natural Foods, a vegetarian food company based in Moss Landing. He also serves on the board of directors for Shutterfly, Jamba Juice and Care.com. What motivated the transition from soda and fast food to health-focused enterprises like Jamba Juice and Sweet Earth? While Swette says he wanted to try his hand at local business, he also cited his "personal interest in sustainability, and recognition that if we move toward a greater plant-based diet, we could conserve water and energy and increase the health of the planet" as the main reasons for his decision. (Coincidentally, we spoke over the phone while he was driving to a hot yoga class, so his determination to transform human health is not lost on himself.) He says his wife's "food knowledge and engineering capability, combined with his own experience," makes for a successful executive combination at Sweet Earth.

Brian Swette

Great Lives

By LILY PATTERSON

Swette says that while he was living here part-time from 1998 to 2002, something that helped him to decompress was the first sight of Monterey Bay while driving south along Highway 1. An affinity for small-town life and the California coast, as well as what he calls "his only addiction" (golf), are what persuaded him to settle down on the Peninsula. Now he and his family live full-time in Pebble Beach.

When asked if he wanted to add anything else to his story, Swette offered his philosophy not on professional success, but on success in life: "When it's all said and done, we're defined by our families. I'm blessed to have five great kids, and an all-star wife who is a true companion." A positive — and very grateful — outlook, it is.

Not among his Top 5 is Flanders Mansion, which the city bought in 1972 but has never managed to use, but Burnett said a longterm solution must be developed.

"I'm not interested in it distracting from staff's work and the council's work," he said. "It is one of a number of facilities that we need to be looking out for. If we can find a longterm lease or other arrangement that takes this off of our hands, that would be great, but on the other hand, it doesn't keep me up at night."

In order to rejuvenate during his free time, Burnett likes to take his wife and son down to Big Sur, where being on the remote family property demands he disconnect from all technology and take a break.

Burnett's only challenger is artist Vincenzo D'Amico, who has embarked on a write-in campaign for mayor.

■ Council candidate Theis

Theis, who was appointed to the council after longtime councilwoman Paula Hazdovac resigned in 2012, said she's enjoyed her first campaign, especially going door to door, but she's ready for it to be Election Day. "It's still a lot of work, especially when you're also trying to run a business," she said, referring to Hofsas House, the hotel on San Carlos Street her family owns. "I'm looking forward to the result and then doing what I need to do."

Theis believes voters should elect her for a four-year term because she has "a pragmatic approach" and is "more of a listener than a talker." Her master's degree in biology and marine science helps her understand issues related to the beach and water, and she pointed out she's the only council member who operates a tourist-serving business.

"And my family does have a rich history here, so I understand the traditions and inherent beauty of the town," said Theis.

She also said she's willing to take a leadership role "and hopefully bring all sides together to make decisions to better the community."

When asked about the most pressing issue in city hall, Theis said there are "a lot of pressing issues," but she wanted to focus on the positive work the council has accomplished, including better financial health with the passage of a 1 percent sales tax increase in November 2012, and therefore being able to undertake some $2.7 million in capital projects this coming fiscal year.

"I'm hoping people notice the $700,000 in repairs to our streets and sidewalks," she said. "We're in good fiscal shape, so we have some money to start implementing some of the plans that we've been working on but that have become stagnant."

Among her top priorities are water — "because it affects both businesses and residents" — and the beach, forest, parks and trails. "Parking management is something we need to address," she said, as are Flanders Mansion and the historic Forest Theater. She also said the IT plan being implemented now "will solve some of the problems of transparency and make information easier to get."

Regarding the disposition of Flanders, Theis said she favors a longterm lease with a curator to work on the property, or having a caretaker maintain it and keep people from vandalizing the historic house, which needs substantial improvements in order to be livable.

After the election, Theis said she's "going to get back to my golf game."

"I do enjoy traveling and scuba diving in warm climates," she added. "And I love hiking and biking in the area. I do just really enjoy living here. I'm blessed."

■ Challenger Lucas Austin

Lucas Austin, who owns Mail Mart on Dolores Street with his wife, Li, said voters should elect him because he's new and different.

"I am coming into the council unbiased and doing what a council member or city employee should do, listening to the people's concerns and addressing them quickly and in a way that represents their voice," he said.

Conversely, he said, politicians ignore the will of residents. He cited last week's 4-1 city council approval of Richard Tavener's $55,000 marketing contract in which outgoing councilman Steve Hillyard was the lone dissenter.

"This measure was one that had already been financed to the maximum amount allowed without council approval, and when brought to the council was pushed back, reworded and lumped together with other items on the agenda in hopes it could be passed without protest," he said. "That is not acting as a voice for the residents; that is actively and intentionally ignoring their concerns."

Austin said he wants to be on the council, despite the fact he only recently moved to town and has never been on any other city commission or committee, because he served his country in the Army and now wants to serve his community.

"I want to ensure that Carmel-by-the-Sea continues to be a place my family is proud to call home for generations to come," he said.

He pinpointed "the lack of accountability and transparency in city hall itself" as the most pressing issue facing the city, and he mentioned the firings and suspensions of "multiple longterm employees, stating wrongdoing without any form of explanation whatsoever."

"Then, months later, without any charges being pressed against the terminated employees, it comes out that an employee specifically handling finance has been committing fraud while employed by the city, but instead of reprimanding her, the mayor and city administrator state their full support for her," he said. "I don't think I'm unjustified in saying this is unacceptable, and we should expect more from our city's leaders."

Austin also said all public requests for information should be answered quickly and completely, as long as they comply with the law.

Changes he'd like to see while in office include greater public accessibility of elected officials, more productivity and efficiency on the council, and revitalization of the city's parks, forests and beaches.

"I believe the first step to that is to rebuild our forestry division and reinvigorate community volunteers," he said. "I believe the council, at no cost to the city, has the power to motivate our youngest residents to contribute to the beautification of the city by simply making an effort to recognize the young leaders in these efforts."

Austin's top five priorities include: an increase in accountability; revitalization of parks and beaches, and road repairs; ensuring reserve funds "are invested in secure instruments that outgrow inflation and ensure our financial future;" a solution to parking that meets the needs of residents, employees and tourists; and the creation of "a regular forum for property owners, business owners and residents, where they can collaborate on the realities and necessities of doing business in Carmel."

Regarding Flanders Mansion, Austin said the council should make "an honest attempt to lease the property."

"I think it's fair to say that neither any sitting council member nor myself is seasoned enough in real estate or historic sites to truly take an unbiased look and decision on lease proposals," he said, adding that the city should hire a national leasing company with experience in securing deals for historic properties.

When he's not running for office and running the family business, he spends time with his wife and preschool-aged daughter — and their pets, a growing menagerie of adoptees from the SPCA for Monterey County that includes two cats (Myshta and Bushka), a brand new puppy named Khaleesi, and a rat their daughter named Fluffy.

"It's been a source of endless amusement and joy watching our daughter introduce the puppy to the beach and ocean," he said.

■ Challenger Steve Dallas

Planning commission chair Steve Dallas said voters should elect him for his experience in the travel and home-building industries, on the planning commission and as a third-generation resident. Combined, he said, they put him "in a position to be a valuable contributor on the city council."

"I have a proven record on the planning commission of finding solutions to problems, working hard, listening attentively and respectfully to all views expressed, working well with others, and working to preserve the best of Carmel," he said.

Serving on the commission has helped him learn how to make land-use decisions and uphold codes, ordinances and design guidelines, and has deepened his connection to the town's history, traditions and character.

Dallas said he's running for council because he cares about Carmel's future and wants to preserve and protect the town for his daughter and future generations.

"I want to help foster the decisions that are made now in a way that frames what Carmel should and will look like in the next 100 years," he said, including investing in the city's natural resources and economic vitality.

He identified the budget as the most pressing issue in city hall. "I believe that investing in our natural resources and infrastructure are good investments for both residents and visitors," he said.

Dallas favors more open government and better communication with residents and businesses. "I also want to see more transparency at city hall," he said. "And I want to see that our planning department is fully staffed."

Dallas' top five priorities include longterm fixes and improvements for the beach, parks and forest, as well as infrastructure and neglected city buildings. "Adequately fund the maintenance needed to preserve those investments," he said. And "see that our different plans are updated and that the planning department is fully staffed to handle the workload generated by council's goals and initiatives."

He also wants to bring about solutions to relieve parking congestion downtown, resolve the issue of employees on paid administrative leave, and address code compliance in order to preserve community character.

"We have good plans in place — we just need to implement and reinforce what we already have," he said.

Dallas did not want to opine on how to handle Flanders Mansion without knowing "what failed and what didn't work with the lease options that were negotiated." He said any and all options should be on the table.

He has accumulated an impressive list of endorsements, including former Carmel mayors Charlotte Townsend, Clint Eastwood, Jean Grace, Ken White and Sue McCloud; former council members Barbara Brooks, Mike Cunningham, Dick Ely, Paula Hazdovac, Elinor Laiolo, Barbara Livingston, Gerard Rose and Karen Sharp; current council members Victoria Beach, Steve Hillyard and Carrie Theis; and several community leaders, including 5th District Monterey County Supervisor Dave Potter. After the hubbub of the election is over and the pressure of his first run for elective office is over, Dallas said, "I am considering going to Chicago for the Cubs' 100th year celebration for Wrigley Field! That would be fun!"

shortly before he died and shared their stories with The Pine Cone.

Lee Falkenberg had a brief encounter with Chairez and Barnett shortly before Chairez was shot.

"He was nice guy," Falkenberg told The Pine Cone. "He was polite. He asked me if I had any gas, and when I told him I didn't, he asked me where he could get some."

After Falkenberg suggested he drive north toward Carmel to get gas, Chairez mentioned he was in some sort of trouble. "He said, 'I have three strikes against me and I'm not going back to prison,'" Falkenberg added.

Chairez also met Jeremiah Slate. "The guy flagged me down in the canyon and asked me if I had any gas," Slate posted on Facebook. "I told him I was on empty. He was too. His girlfriend smiled and then he told me the cops were after him for some outstanding tickets. I told him to head to the Carmel Highlands and wished him good luck ... 10 minutes later the cops killed him. He seemed like a nice enough guy ... you never know."

The shooting occurred on Palo Colorado Road just east of Highway 1. The road, which is located 11 miles south of Carmel, was closed until nearly midnight while police investigated the incident.

As a result, some residents — unable to go home after leaving the canyon during the day — slept in their cars nearby, one resident reported.

SHARKS

about 25 to 45 feet in waters about 200 to 300 yards from shore. They dived during the day and at night.

For shark-loving thrill seekers like Hartzell, the diving trip was a rare treat. He attributed his luck to the location, a place where he speculated the giant sharks gathered to mate. That could explain why the typically elusive sharks were less skittish. "They were more inquisitive and curious" than he expected.

Hartzell also suspects they are smarter than most people realize.

"They seem to be intelligent," he suggested. "They really pay attention to you."

The great hammerhead is listed as an endangered species by the International Union for Conservation of Nature, in large part because of overfishing. Hartzell said even conservation efforts are adversely impacting the sharks. With money available for shark research, he said they are often tagged — and injured in the process. On his recent diving adventure, he observed multiple tags on the same sharks. "One shark had five tags," he recalled.

While many people can say they've swam with sharks, few can tell people they've dived with great hammerheads.

"There have been more people who have gone into space than done what we just did," Hartzell told The Pine Cone. They don't like divers and they don't like other sharks. They're like the unicorns of the sea."

A Cornerstone in Luxury Real Estate for over 100 Years

A funny thing happened on my way downtown: I saw a painter painting

I'M WALKING up Fifth Street towards the post office. At Dolores, I stop at the corner because I see something I haven't seen since wending my way down a winding, lemon-scented street in Sorrento, Italy, several years ago.

Fifth Street rises up to meet Dolores, so I am looking down through a large window at a man in an art gallery sitting at an easel, painting. I cannot count the number of Carmel galleries I've been in. This is the first time I've seen someone brushing paint on a canvas.

The sign over the entrance on Dolores reads: "Nicholas Boghosian — Fine Arts — Atelier." And why "Atelier?" The very definition of the word is a studio or workshop where an artist works.

"This is my working studio," Boghosian told me as we sat in his comfortable workshop surrounded by oils and watercolors of everything from portraits to golfers. "Knowing that I can create beauty that adds joy to another's life is an incredible feeling. Life doesn't get much better."

Life for Nicholas Boghosian, a Fresno native, wasn't always as good. Oh, he was successful all right, having held several responsible positions in Agribusiness. As managing director of a firm's export sales, he travelled extensively throughout Europe and Asia. During these travels he observed the cultural values of the people in the countries he visited and came to understand how these values often produced a better quality of life than many of us enjoy in the United States. "It's a whole different artistic structure in Europe. People there are just as at ease in a museum as they are in a soccer stadium."

But, even as he observed what obviously seemed like a better way to live, his own life was arduous, with a tremendous amount of pressure due to his travel and responsibilities.

"Five years ago I discovered that my blood pressure was out of control," he said. "I had to decide if I wanted more material success or a better quality of life. I'm happy

Five years ago, that belief, and a decision to choose quality of life over a big salary, caused him to leave Fresno and move to the artistic atmosphere of Carmel.

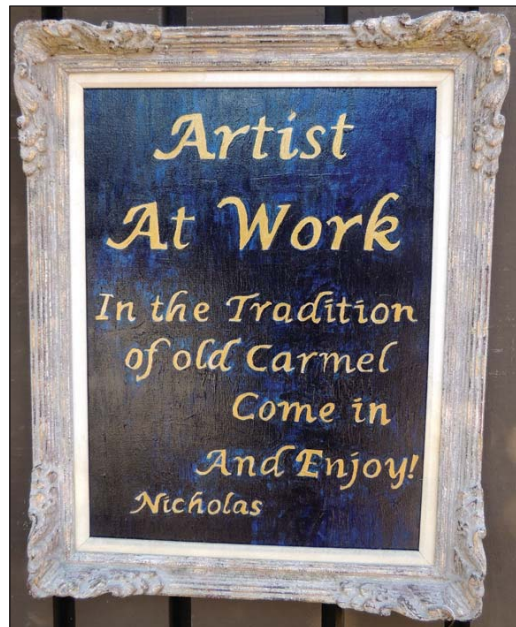

"I decided I just wasn't going to be one of those guys stuck in a job he didn't want to be doing, and then when it was too late, wake up and realize I was trapped. Life is too precious and short. When we follow our hearts and act on our passions, happiness, peace, and contentment will always be with us."

Now, Nicholas is a long way from being trapped. A man sitting at an easel and actually creating art is a sure way to draw passers-by into his studio. He loves to have people come in, browse, ask questions, and simply inhale the essence of being among finished paintings, paintings in process, sketches, and all the accoutrements of a working art studio.

It is difficult for an amateur like me to pinpoint what kind of an artist he is. Nicholas thinks he tends towards impressionism. I think he's a genius at portraiture. He has a book of photos of people he's painted. On one page is the actual photograph. On the facing page is a photo of the portrait. The camera photo is flat. The painting has character and captures the essence of the subject. It has life without being lifelike.

"Every one of my paintings has a story that goes with it," he said. "And I have been there. If it moves me, I paint it and it is pure joy."

It is also pure joy to watch this artist at work. It is exciting to see his brush drinking deep from the palette's fountains of color and hovering over the canvas, and seeing the spark move from the mind to the eye, and from the eye to the hand, until his vision explodes on the canvas in amaranth, cobalt, cinnabar, sorrel and raven into an illusion streaked with wind and fire, a kaleidoscope of light and truth.

Nicholas Boghosian has brought a European flavor to the southwest corner of Fifth and Dolores. Come by, look in the window. Then go in and see for yourself.

est when I am painting, so I know I made the right decision."

Nicholas had begun painting as a young boy. After a few private lessons, his art instructor said that he didn't need lessons. She felt that the principles of design and the laws of light were intrinsic in him. She told him he had a special gift — he was a natural colorist.

"Throughout my business career I never lost my passion for art. One day in 1978, I was visiting the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. I was studying the brush strokes of a Monet with my nose so close to the canvas that I got an, "ahem," from a guard. But I came away with a belief that I could do that."

The following statements; NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS AND NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER are statutory notices for all one to four single family residences and a court-tesy notice for all other types of properties. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call Priority Posting & Publishing at (714) 573-1965 or visit this Internet Web site www.priorityposting.com using the file number assigned to this case 201-065690. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Avenue who was causing a peace disturbance and threatening others was placed on a 5150 W&I hold.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to a possible hit-and-run to a vehicle on Forest Avenue. Victim stated she left her vehicle in the parking lot of her place of employment. When she came back outside, there was major damage to the vehicle. There were no witnesses, and woman did not hear the crash. She only wanted an informational for her insurance company.

Pacific Grove: Officers were dispatched to a Lighthouse Avenue residence to assist the Presidio of Monterey Police Department with checking the welfare of a military member who had texted threats to her chain of command saying that she had attempted to commit suicide and was dying. Forced entry was made to the residence, but there was no one home.

Pacific Grove: Officers were dispatched to a Ransford Avenue residence because of a disturbance involving a male subject who no longer wanted his son-in-law to live with him and his family. Both subjects were given information about the eviction process.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to a physical altercation in progress with an open line at a Presidio Boulevard residence. The person who reported it was PGPD records personnel. He stated a female dialed the police department, and there was an open line, and he could hear a physical altercation with a female yelling for help. After a few seconds, the phone line disconnected.

Pacific Grove: Woman requested officers to check on the welfare of her son who had a methamphetamine addiction. The subject had gone to rehab; however, he relapsed and became paranoid, stating the (Navy) SEALS and others were out to get him. Woman advised officers that her son's caretaker/roommate could provide additional information. Upon contacting him, he stated the subject was paranoid and acting delusional. The roommate let police go inside the home, where an officer made contact with the subject. The subject admitted he had a relapse and stated he was going to go to bed. No further action taken at this time.

Carmel area: Subject taken into custody and booked into Monterey County Jail for violation of a restraining order.

Carmel area: An unknown person smashed into a vehicle while it was parked on Highway

1 at Garrapata Beach and took items.

SATURDAY, MARCH 15

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog found on Mission Street and later returned to owner after kennel fees were paid.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A female entered a restaurant on Dolores Street and stole the reservation book from the reception area. Investigation continues.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: The bartender of an establishment on Dolores Street reported an angry patron throwing bottles inside the bar. Upon contact, it was learned that the bartender and the patron got into an argument over the bartender's attitude toward the patron's wife. The patron felt the bartender was drunk and did not like him cussing at his wife. During the altercation, beer was spilled on the bartender. The patron was asked to leave the bar and complied. No one was injured and nothing was damaged during the altercation.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to verbal quarrel over storage cans. Person removed several storage cans that were left unattended on the side of the highway in a dumping/free wood area. The subject asked several individuals there if they belonged to anyone, and all said "No." Person took the cans but was followed by a male to his residence. The subject and the male have a history of disagreements. Male claimed the cans were his, and the person gave the cans back. Male became upset and slapped at the person's phone as he recorded the incident. The phone fell to the ground and broke. The person declined to press charges, and the male had his cans returned to him. Nothing further.

SUNDAY, MARCH 16

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A professional chef's knife set and carrying case were found on Mission Street and turned over to the police department for safekeeping.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A person found a wallet on Lincoln Street and brought it to the police department for safekeeping. Owner was identified as being out of town, and an attempt to contact was initiated to locate the owner. Owner of the wallet called in, and arrangements were made to have the wallet returned to its rightful owner.
