Metered parking to go live Dec. 1

By MARY SCHLEY

THE 10 paid-parking kiosks installed on Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Monte Verde streets in the core commercial district last weekend are set to go live Monday, Dec. 1, city administrator Doug Schmitz announced Friday. The meters, which are a six-month experiment in the city's efforts to ease parking congestion downtown, will cost $2 per hour between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. daily, and max out after four hours. They can be paid by coins, credit or debit card, or via a cell phone app called Parkmobile.

Schmitz said Carmel Police Chief Mike Calhoun contacted Monta Potter, CEO of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce, "to ascertain whether initiating paid parking at the commencement of the holiday shopping season might be detrimental to our shopkeepers." She reportedly told him she didn't think it would be bad for downtown businesses, so the program is a go.

To help visitors and locals learn how to use the kiosks — which require entering the vehicle's license plate number but do not necessitate placing a receipt on the dash — National Parking & Valet, the company the city hired to administer the paid-parking program, will provide "parking ambassadors" to answer questions and provide directions.

Carmel P.D. community services officers will enforce the paid parking in the 90 affected spots by using technology that reads license plates to determine if the cars are legally parked and whether they have exceeded their time limits.

According to figures provided by Calhoun to the city council earlier this month, the total revenues expected during the six-month peri-

John Hanson gets his job back

By MARY SCHLEY

MORE THAN a year after he was fired by Jason Stilwell, building official John Hanson was reinstated as a city employee Tuesday night when the council met in closed session to approve a settlement agreement with him.

Immediately after the announcement was made public, city administrator Doug Schmitz called Hanson to give him the news and ask when he wanted to come back to work.

"My family and I are so happy," Hanson told The Pine Cone later that night. "I'm coming back to work on Monday."

Hanson first joined the city's workforce in 1988 and took a job in the building department in 1997. He became chief building official a decade later and held that job until he was fired on Aug. 5, 2013.

A retired first sergeant of the U.S. Army National Guard who served in Iraq and Afghanistan, Hanson, who is in his mid-50s, was also a reserve officer for Carmel P.D. for eight years and said he hopes to talk to police Chief Mike Calhoun about regaining that status.

The council's vote Tuesday night marked the end of the lawsuit Hanson filed last summer claiming wrongful termination, violation of due process, disclosure of confidential personnel information, defamation, deprivation of his property interest and breach of contract, among other charges. As part of his agreement with the city, Hanson will withdraw the suit.

According to the document approved Tuesday, Hanson will receive back pay and benefits of about $134,000, and damages and expense reimbursement of $100,000. His attorney, Michael Stamp, will be paid $105,000.

The payout is covered by the city's insurance, minus its

Marina asks judge to block test well permit

By KELLY NIX

THE GOVERNMENT agency that supplies water to Marina and Fort Ord filed a lawsuit this week against the California Coastal Commission, seeking to overturn the commission's approval of Cal Am's desalination test well.

In the suit filed Nov. 25, Marina Coast Water District seeks a court order compelling the coastal commission to set aside its decision granting California American Water a development permit for the test well, and an injunction preventing the agency from issuing the permit. The test well, to be drilled on property in Marina, is intended to provide water-quality and other data for Cal Am's full-scale desal plant, which is also proposed for Marina.

The complaint also seeks an order prohibiting Cal Am — named as a party of interest in the lawsuit — from beginning construction on the test well, which is expected to operate for up to two years. Cal Am was set to begin drilling the well in December.

"Unless this court stays the project," said Marina Coast's attorney, Howard F. Wilkins III, who filed the complaint in Sacramento Superior Court, "the imminent project construction will destroy rare coastal sand dunes, which have been found to be environmentally sensitive habitat areas by the

HELPING PETS FIND HOMES WITH A BACKDROP AND AN UMBRELLA LIGHT

By LISA CRAWFORD WATSON

HE NEVER imagined that making a donation to the SPCA for Monterey County would lead to the development of The Shelter Art Foundation, a nonprofit dedicated to presenting animals in the best light — literally.

But standing at the reception counter at the SPCA off Highway 68 between Monterey and Salinas, Steve Sloop saw a list of job openings at the organization. Having recently retired from a Forrest Gump-like career that included portrait photography, filmmaking, television, teaching, being a pilot for the U.S. Air Force and an airline, and serving as a U.S. Marshall in the Virgin Islands, he had moved with his wife to Monterey.

"Nobody wanted an old pilot," says Sloop, "but my wife wanted me out, working. One of the jobs available at the SPCA was animal care technician. I thought, 'I can do that; I can come in and love on the animals.' But it turned out the job was much more difficult than it sounded. One of my tasks was to do animal intakes. This is the worst day in the life of these animals. We poke and prod and give shots and test tem-

On the Hunt

As THE story goes, in the early 1900s, Edward Donald Malcolm, 16th Laird of Poltalloch, had a tradition of releasing his terriers on the west highlands of Scotland to hunt foxes. Tragically, because the little dogs, with their rusty-brown coats, rather resembled the foxes, a guest on the hunt took out a terrier instead. Devastated by the loss, Malcolm dedicated his life to developing a white terrier.

Crossing a Cairn with a Scottish terrier, Malcolm finally got a white one. The result was a fiercely independent, sturdy little dog full of energy, and usually on high alert for small prey. After naming it the Poltalloch terrier, Malcolm opted for anonymity and renamed it the West Highland terrier.

Pima and Valentine, a pair of white Westies who patrol their Carmel property for squirrels and any other critters that come across their path, are true to their heritage. They even made the police log, following a high-speed chase and excessive barking on behalf of several squirrels who were teasing them incessantly. The squirrels, scampering from oak tree to pine, were left unscathed.

"We were newcomers to Carmel," says their person, "and here came the police, with their holsters and their guns, all for Pima and Valentine. I do take the dogs to the beach, but there are no squirrels in the sand, so they prefer their wooded Carmel yard. Despite all the commotion, they have never been successful with the squirrels."

The more loving and outgoing of the pair, Valentine, 5, wags her tail and offers kisses in greeting guests. Pima, 14, was born in Pima County, but the softer, mellower of the pair was really named for Pima cotton. Although both were born in Arizona, only Valentine learned to howl like a coyote, by standing on the end of the bed and returning the call into the night, a tradition she carried to Carmel.

Pair nabbed in August burglaries unable to make bail and remain in jail

More charges revealed

By MARY SCHLEY

THE COUPLE arrested for burglarizing a couple of homes near the Carmel Mission and another in the Highlands are still in county jail, and are being held on numerous felony charges. According to court files, Ryley Chaffeur, 25, and Arianna Culberson, 26, waived their preliminary hearings — during which the prosecution would have explained the evidence showing why they should be tried on the charges — and pretrial conferences have been set for both on Dec. 17.

In August, the two transients were caught by Carmel police officer Chris Johnson in nearby Larson Field after a Ladera Drive resident noticed them and their U-Haul outside a neighbor's house and phoned police. An inspection of the truck revealed a large amount of stolen property, including wallets, jewelry, silverware, purses, a garage door opener and other items, as well as drugs and paraphernalia: glass pipes used for smoking methamphetamine, pills, marijuana pipes and a pot grinder. The man and woman had apparently been living in the truck, and the neighbor on Ladera had seen them when they returned to one of the houses they had burglarized to retrieve the backpack Chaffeur had left there, police said at the time.

Chaffeur is facing trial on three counts of felony burglary — two filed by Carmel P.D. and one filed by the Monterey County Sheriff's Office — with the enhancements of committing a felony while being out on bail on another felony. He is also charged with possession of stolen property, drug paraphernalia and burglary tools.

The felonies he was out on bail for at the time of the burglary were both filed by Salinas Police Department in June, and include allegations of car theft and burglary. Earlier, he was also charged with possession of stolen property.

He failed to appear in court Aug. 6 on the Salinas P.D. cases, forfeiting his $75,000 bail, and the judge issued a warrant for his arrest. In court Oct. 10, he pleaded not guilty to the charges. Chaffeur remains in jail, pending his next court date.

Culberson, meanwhile, was held on charges of burglary and possession of stolen property filed by the sheriff's office, and on allegations in the Carmel P.D. case: two counts of felony burglary, felony possession of narcotics, and misdemeanor possession of paraphernalia and burglary tools. She also pleaded not guilty at her Oct. 10 hearing and is set to be in court again in December, as well. Culberson remains in custody, too.

HEALTH
NOTES

*There was a printing error last week.
Here is my article, in its entirety:*

HERE'S TO HEALTHIER HOLIDAYS!

The holidays are a great time of year, but they can bring short and long-term problems as well. It is easy to overeat due to the overabundance of readily accessible foods and also easy to gain weight because of the high caloric content of those foods. Cookies, pies, stuffing, mashed potatoes, candies, oh my! Just being around all of this yummy food is hard enough, but if you are anything like me, I find it hard to say no because I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings.

Another factor in all of this is stress. I don't know anyone who would deny the holidays, as fun as they are, bring on a great deal of stress. On a biological level, stress makes us crave sugar and fatty foods because they flood the body with cortisol. Stress weakens our ability to make good choices even when we have every intention of not overeating.

With this in mind, here are a few suggestions for this Thanksgiving:

- 1) Don't keep candy, cookies, pastries etc. in your home. Make your home your "GOODIE FREE" zone. Enjoy one piece of candy and then take the rest to your office, a retirement facility or any place where it can be shared with multitudes of people. I know for me, once the offending goodies hit the privacy of my own home all bets are off!!
- 2) Try to give non-edible holiday gifts or healthy food gifts like scented candles, tree decorations, and cheese and fruit baskets. You might be surprised at how appreciative people are!
- 3) Do your best to continue or even increase your exercise regime. Boost your metabolism! Burn those calories while reducing your stress levels!!

With the holidays upon us, I send my best wishes to you all. I hope a little of my advice hits home and helps make your Thanksgiving fit beautifully into your health and wellness vision.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed for blocking a driveway on Dolores Street.

Pacific Grove: Report of a bat and machete lying on the ground on the railway trail near Pico Avenue. Located bat and rusty machete; both items taken to yard and destroyed.

Carmel Valley: Two CPS referrals for the same child at a Cachagua Road residence were investigated and unfounded.

Big Sur: Palo Colorado resident reported an issue regarding checks.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported being raped and robbed at gunpoint in a hotel on San Carlos Street. She was uncooperative and had very little suspect information. She also did not want to press charges.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported overdue from a Santa Rita residence. Later found to be in custody at sheriff's department.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to possibly intoxicated male in the bushes on Cedar Street. Arrived on scene and observed fire personnel attending to a 16-year-old juvenile who was seated on the ground and apparently intoxicated. Juvenile admitted to intoxication. Juvenile exhibited the objective signs and symptoms of alcohol intoxication. Juvenile was taken to guardians' residence and options were provided to the juvenile's legal guardians regarding his behavior. Informational report only. Request report be attached/forwarded to Monterey County Juvenile Probation department. Nothing further.

Carmel Valley: Responded to Carmel Valley Road to investigate vandalism.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 14

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Casanova Street resident said someone was taking rocks from her yard. She said four river rocks she had for years suddenly disappeared on Nov. 10. On Nov. 12, she bought four decorative bricks to replace the rocks, and this morning they were gone. She thinks nearby hotel workers might be taking them.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A female unsuccessfully attempted to make a fraudulent credit card transaction at a retail business on Ocean Avenue. She fled prior to arrival of police.

Pacific Grove: Grave-shift and dayshift officers attempted to serve a restraining order on a Lighthouse Avenue resident. Both times, officers left messages with the landlord. Additional attempts will be made at later times.

Carmel Valley: A Carmel Valley man walked into a campsite to confront the five campers, three males and two females, ranging in age from 34 to 49, regarding the use of a drone in the area. One of the campers believed he was a threat to their immediate safety and tossed him down to the ground. Suspects were identified as a 40-year-old male and a 49-year-old male. The case will be submitted to the district attorney for review.

Big Sur: A suspect forced entry into the victim's home on Palo Colorado Road. Entry was made, but no items appeared missing.

And as soon as they got there, Clayton and Linda Anderson got 7" of snow

■ Burnett gives mayor of Boise, Idaho, a heads up about his new constituents

By MARY SCHLEY

"I WRITE to you with sad news for Carmel-by-the-Sea and great news for Boise," Mayor Jason Burnett said in a letter to David Bieter, mayor of Boise, Idaho. "Two of Carmel's most generous, engaged and helpful citizens — Linda and Clayton Anderson — are moving to Boise to be nearer to their family. Carmel's loss is Boise's gain, and I wanted to tell you a little about the Andersons in the hopes that your community will benefit in some of the same ways that the Carmel community has benefited from the Andersons over the years."

Burnett read the letter during this month's city council meeting, when the Andersons were honored for their contributions to the city.

"The Andersons have an unlimited spirit of volunteerism, dedication to community, and willingness to take on causes or jobs that needed a sturdy back, a smart mind, a little boost of support and a welcoming smile," Burnett said.

Linda Anderson first came to Carmel in 1977, she told The Pine Cone. She moved to town from Marin County with her first husband, who brought them south when he took a job as president of a shellfish company in Moss Landing, and they lived on Scenic Road.

But it wasn't until Clayton Anderson came along that she began to make her mark in town.

"I didn't get very involved with the city until Clayton ran for mayor in 1988, when I was assistant to the president at MIIS and director of personnel," she recalled. "It was nonstop after that. It's been fun trying to advocate for the forest and the beach. It was fun to do our part, and there are a lot of other people doing more than we do."

The Andersons are well known for their involvement in the Carmel Residents Association, each serving as board president at one time or another, and also being named CRA Citizen of the Year at separate times. Clayton Anderson founded the Friends of Carmel Forest, and they started the monthly Carmel Beach cleanup, among other community-based endeavors. Linda served on the cultural commission, while Clayton was on the forest and beach commission.

"What few people know is that hospitality was the name of their game," said CRA President and longtime friend Barbara Livingston. "Everywhere they walked, they would engage visitors in conversation, often ending in invitations to their home for drinks and or dinner. When new residents moved into their northeast neighborhood, they would invite them over to meet neighbors and to welcome them into the village."

Linda said their decision to move was somewhat sudden, after visiting their kids in October and buying a condo outside downtown not much later.

"It sure is sudden," she said. "But it feels like the right decision. I'm not second-guessing it."

She said the condo, which was built in 2009, is in a flat area near downtown where they can walk to restaurants, coffee, the farmers market and the park, and it's close to their children's homes.

"We will be happy to capture some of the vanishing childhood of our grandchildren — Maya's dance recitals and violin playing; Anna's Opera Idaho chorus, trumpet, piano and lacrosse; Connor's sax and drum gigs and lacrosse games, and Christopher playing lead guitar and singing in his Boise Rock School group," she said in an email to friends that also acknowledged they feel the city is in good hands with the return of Doug Schmitz as city administrator.

Livingston said she will miss them and their presence.

"It is hard to lose such vibrant members of our community who contributed so much to the fabric of our great life in this village in a forest by the sea," she said.

At the Nov. 4 council meeting where he honored them, Burnett said the city would miss them, too.

"In honor of your many years of residency, active civic engagement, and of work on behalf of many Carmel organizations," he said, the city will plant a tree in their honor at the Forest Theater after its renovation is complete next summer, "and a plaque acknowledging your service to our community will be installed at its base."

"Thanks to both of you for making this such a better community by your selfless giving of yourselves," he said.

Linda Anderson said she was "blown away" by the gift of the tree.

"It's really hard to leave this wonderful place and all of you," she told the council and those in the audience. "Boise is a wonderful, exciting, vibrant community, and we will love to be with our family. Even though Boise will be our home, a lot of our heart will remain in Carmel."

This week, Linda Anderson reported they received seven inches of new snow right after they moved in.

"It was truly a winter wonderland! Our little dog bounds through deep snow like a jackrabbit," she said. "The whole thing is a big adventure!"

Tree removal for Highway 1/68 roundabout to begin next week

By KELLY NIX

PRELIMINARY WORK on the roundabout to be built near the entrance of the Highway 1 Pebble Beach gate is set to begin Monday, when crews will start cutting down a lot of trees, according to the Transportation Agency for Monterey County.

On Dec. 1 through the end of the month, crews will remove dozens of trees to prepare for construction and for the relocation of utility lines near the intersection of Highway 1 and Highway 68. The work is set to occur Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. While there won't be any road closures, TAMC said the work will be noisy.

The $8 million Holman Highway roundabout is designed to relieve congestion near the entrance to Pebble Beach, Community Hospital and the Highway 68/Highway 1 intersection.

Traffic on Highway 68 in the eastbound direction to Highway 1 and Pebble Beach regularly backs up to one mile in the mornings and afternoons, and the roundabout is expected to cut down that queue to about 300 feet, Monterey traffic engineer Rich Diehl said in September.

It will mean a safer intersection, according to TAMC, because vehicle speeds will be reduced. Less engine idling will mean less air pollution. And surrounding neighborhoods that have been used by motorists to bypass parts of Highway 68 — such as Skyline Forest — will also get some relief from the roundabout.

But motorists who use the busy intersection will have to wait for about a year until the construction is complete.

It's also expected that the intersection will be completely closed for several days during the project.

The project is being funded through a public-private partnership between the City of Monterey ($500,000), TAMC ($3.2 million), Pebble Beach Company ($4 million), Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District ($384,000), Caltrans and Monterey County.

Final design of the project is expected to be completed by June 2015, with construction beginning in the months after that.

RENDERING/CITY OF MONTEREY

John Lawrence Love

1927 – 2014

Pebble Beach, California- John passed away at home with his loving son and caregiver at his side on November 16, 2014.

Born in Brighton, Sussex, England, John was fully educated in England, joined the Royal Marines (1945 – 1949) and was appointed to The Gordon Highlanders with a rank of Captain.

John held many positions in the hospitality industry with the Jackson Lake Lodge in Grand Teton National Park and the Arizona Biltmore, Phoenix, Arizona among his favorites.

His passions were golf, horses, fly-fishing, and yes, needlepoint, all of which brought him tremendous pleasure. But his true passion was Nancy, his loving wife of 51 years. John was a member of the Cypress Point Golf Club in Pebble Beach since 1972 and was president from 1991 through 1997. He was also president of the United States Pony Club.

He and wife Nancy opened up the J Bar L Dude Ranch in Jackson Hole, Wyoming and later owned the Lobos Lodge in Carmel, California.

Survived by loving wife Nancy; sons Scott Love and Pete (Jeanne) Horner; nieces Jane Tasse, Ann Thompson Hill, Sara Gay, Mary Ann Macalpine, Virginia Brown, Elisabeth Richardson and Franchesca Wheller and nephew Simon Love.

Per John's wishes there will be no service but the family would appreciate any donations to the charity of your choice.

FINE, INVESTIGATION OF PG&E 'A SIGNIFICANT STEP FORWARD,' MAYOR SAYS

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CALIFORNIA Public Utilities Commission's decision last week to fine PG&E almost $11 million for blowing up a house in Carmel last March, and to launch a formal investigation into the causes of the incident, are "a vindication of what Carmel has been saying for a number of months: that PG&E violated the law," both in the company's actions leading up to the work on the gas main that started the leak, and in its response immediately following, Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett said Wednesday.

"And perhaps even more significantly, the opening of the formal investigation into PG&E's records reflects the systemic problem that PG&E has had with their records, and the need to get to the bottom of the situation to protect Carmel and other communities from this sort of thing happening again," he said.

On Nov. 20, the CPUC Safety and Enforcement Division announced it had issued a $10.85 million citation to PG&E "for the utility's failure to take the necessary steps to make safe the area in Carmel-by-the-Sea where planned work was under way on March 3, 2014, and failure to adequately equip the construction crew with the tools necessary to stop the uncontrolled flow of natural gas, leading to the explosion of an unoccupied home."

According to the PUC, the company broke federal and state laws requiring it to conduct its work safely and to provide proper equipment and training for its workers in the field. Neither happened when a crew cut into a steel line without knowing it contained a plastic insert (allowing gas to migrate between the pipe and the insert into the home at Guadalupe and Third, where it accumulated until a pilot light ignited the gas and destroyed the house, as well as damaging three others nearby), nor when it lacked the equipment to stop the leak.

"I have no doubt PG&E will be paying for his new house," Burnett said of the homeowner. "Our interest will be to ensure that the community as a whole is taken care of, and to protect against this happening again."

That will in part come about as the state reviews the company's record-keeping practices, according to Burnett.

"There are a number of similar incidents of PG&E's inaccurate records leading to similar problems or near misses," he said. "There are five identified just in recent years, including one just a few days before the Carmel incident, so this is not an academic point about needing to correct this before PG&E blows up a house in some other community. It's a very real risk, and if we can contribute to improving the safety of the utility, that will be a big step forward."

MARINA

The suit stems from the coastal commission’s unanimous approval of the test well after the Marina City Council rejected Cal Am’s request to drill it. Though the Ag Land Trust also opposes the well, Marina Coast’s is the first legal challenge.

Marina Coast contends the coastal commission violated the California Environmental Quality Act because the agency’s approval of the test well allows construction to begin without ensuring “all required approvals are in place,” including a lease from the State Lands Commission.

The commission also failed to provide an accurate project description, consider a reasonable range of alternatives, and comply with CEQA’s mandatory public comment and review period and its own regulations to provide “reasonable notice,” the suit says.

Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Stedman called Marina Coast’s legal arguments “baseless.”

“We’re disappointed but not surprised by Marina Coast’s actions,” Stedman told The Pine Cone. “They continue to do all they can to delay a project that is meant simply to determine the feasibility of a water solution for the Peninsula.”

In addition, according to Marina Coast’s suit, the coastal commission did not disclose all of the project’s potential impacts, including effects on the threatened snowy plover and water supply and water quality, and failed to adopt “legally adequate mitigation for the project.” And it did not, the suit alleges, adequately disclose and respond to public comments.

Though the Coastal Act allows for appeal of a denial of major public works projects — which Cal Am’s project is considered — Marina Coast argues that the commission can only hear such appeals “in very limited circumstances.”

“After certification of a [city’s] Local Coastal Program, issuance of coastal development permits is the purview of the local government, not the coastal commission,” according to Marina Coast’s suit, citing a ruling from a 2012 lawsuit the city of Malibu filed against the coastal commission.

Marina obtained a certified Local Coastal Program from the coastal commission in 1982, according to the lawsuit.

The claim also argues that the commission violated the Coastal Act by “usurping” the City of Marina’s authority, authorizing a project that impacts environmentally sensitive habitat areas and “failing to provide the fullest reasonable opportunity for public participation.”

For example, Marina Coast complains, the coastal commission did not consider two letters of opposition to the test well submitted to the agency several days before the Nov. 12 meeting in Half Moon Bay, and its representatives were not given enough time to speak at the meeting. “The commission’s process for the project was grossly unfair and [was] a substantial deprivation of public and [Marina Coast Water District’s] rights,” according to the lawsuit.

On Nov. 24, Wilkins sent a letter to coastal commission executive director Charles Lester and the agency’s deputy chief counsel indicating Marina Coast intended to sue the coastal agency. Marina Coast is also seeking attorneys’ fees for its work on the lawsuit.

Stedman said Marina Coast’s actions are impeding Cal Am’s ability to comply with a 2009 State Water Resources Control Board cutback order that compels it to develop a new water supply to replace the water from the Carmel River, which the desal plant is intended to do. Cal Am officials have informed the state water board’s enforcement branch of Marina Coast’s lawsuit, Stedman said.

A hearing on the suit is set for Dec. 5 in Sacramento Superior Court.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS!

Lisa Dias
2014 Board Co-Chair

It's hard to believe 2014 is nearing its end. It has been both a successful and a challenging year for Carmel and we will look forward to a smoother road in 2015. Our goal is to help to smooth the way for business and residential life success in the future. As a chamber member, I can summarize that we want to help Carmel to be relevant today and in the future.

This is a multi-fold goal that includes:

Building a strong residential community that is open to new generations that want to live in Carmel-by-the-Sea full-time and raise their families here.

Encouraging businesses that thrive because of the special charm, exquisite natural beauty and relevant offerings to present and future generations.

Both a strong residential community and business community will help to support the city's efforts through tax revenues at maintaining and building the natural beauty and generational relevance.

I hope everyone can remain steadfast in working toward these goals and be supportive of our new city manager as he works toward rebuilding the city's personnel structure toward effectively meeting these goals as well. The most important and difficult goals are often those most worth working toward!

I wish everyone a very happy holiday season and on to a prosperous and happy new year!

peraments and take their picture. Usually, the pictures are a good portrayal of trauma but a pretty poor representation of the animal.”

During his career, when Sloop took portfolio pictures for Los Angeles models, he was keen on highlighting their finest features, portraying them in their best light, and presenting a stellar image. When photographing animals at the shelter, he found himself too busy to focus on special features, and no one else had the time, the training or the equipment to get glamour shots.

“But I knew I could do better using the same techniques I had used with celebrities in L.A.,” says Sloop. “Since I also was volunteering as an assistant for a photographer in town, I borrowed equipment so I could take better pictures of the animals. Still, there was never enough time. And it takes more than one person to make a good picture of an animal. You need the picture taker behind the camera, the wrangler working with the animal, and, in a perfect world, the jester standing behind the photographer, getting the animal’s attention.”

Sloop offered to volunteer on the weekends, when he had time to take quality photographs of the animals, but policy kept him from putting in volunteer hours to do something that was already part of his job description. So he quit his job on behalf of someone else who might need the work, and became a volunteer photographer for the SPCA.

“It’s all about image,” says Sloop. “Just like it does for celebrities, a good picture will create a better image of the animals. So I gathered some other volunteers, and trained them to use a plain white background, and more complex lighting system. We took wonderful pictures of the animals but quickly realized it would have been pretty expensive to duplicate the effort in other shelters. So, I came up with an even better system, which was simpler and less expensive, and began introducing it to other animal shelters and rescue organizations.”

The system, described at www.shelterart-foundation.org, was such a hit, it led Sloop to create his nonprofit, which enables him to teach other shelter staff how to turn homeless animals into sought-after celebrities. The system describes, in detail, the required photo team, a digital camera with a bracket on top to hold attachments, a durable white backdrop, a light stand and photo umbrella, a rolling chair for the photographer, and considerable advice.

“I funded a couple sets of equipment,” says Sloop, “and then went out to other organizations, taught them how to use it, and lent it to them for up to six months, while they gathered donors to help them get their own. It took about a year to get our nonprofit started but, by the end of 2010, we were up and running, reaching shelters across the country.”

Soon, shelters began contacting Sloop, saying their new photographs were making a huge difference in their rate of adoption. One organization reported that three months after implementing the new pictures, they had become a non-kill shelter.

“About 12 shelters later, near the end of 2012,” says Sloop, “I got a call from Purina. They said, ‘We like what you’re doing. If we help fund you, could you help more shelters?’ Absolutely. One organization to which a lot of shelter managers belong put us in their newsletter, which goes out to 1,500 shelters in California. We have now taught and lent equipment to 70 shelters.”

Sloop has finally found his way to get out of the house. He hops into his motor home and visits shelters, big and small, for a few days or a week, helping them set up their photo studio, and working with their photography staff and volunteers.

“It’s a wonderful feel-good experience for everybody,” says Sloop, “and the animals get adopted. One photographer told me about a dog she had taken photos of, the most wonderful dog. A couple had been on the fence about adopting and would not have gone into the shelter, but they saw the beautiful picture of this dog and just had to go in and get him.”

If folks get involved by, say, volunteering to walk shelter dogs, says Sloop, it's a wonderful thing. But then the shelter puts them back in their crate. When photo teams come in and take beautiful photos of the animals, it changes the life of the photographer and team, it changes the life of the animals, and it changes the life of the people who adopt them.

“Sometimes we see the media portraying shelter animals as pitiful sympathy things,” says Sloop. “That's the opposite of our philosophy. These guys are stars; they just happen to be waiting for their big break, their next major role as a companion for someone or the new member of a family. When people see the glamour shots of these animals, they think, ‘That's a friendly, happy animal; the shelter is really taking care of it.’ This changes way people look at the shelter and the way they see the animal. How can you not feel good about that?”

Shelter Art Foundation recently began working with the Jason Debus Heigl Foundation, a nonprofit organization founded by Nancy Heigl and her daughter, actress Katherine Heigl.

Their shared goal is to explore more ways to work together to help animals find homes. As we hurry into the holiday season and turn our attention to hope and expectation, to giving and receiving, a welcome place to receive our gifts is Shelter Art Foundation, an organization that gives hope to homeless animals all year.

Council to consider hiring preference for veterans, sign appeal

By MARY SCHLEY

WHEN THE Carmel City Council meets Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 4:30 p.m., it will consider approving a new job position and a policy giving veterans hiring preference, as part of its consent calendar.

The new job, special projects manager, would be a flexible position allowing employees of various levels to be assigned to it, so city administrator Doug Schmitz “will be able to assign staff with expertise in certain areas, or for purposes of employee growth.”

Acting on a request repeatedly made by resident Monte Miller, the council will also consider a resolution authorizing Schmitz to execute a veterans' preference hiring policy.

Contracts proposed for approval include amending one with marketing consultant Burghardt+Dore for $53,313 for six months, and a year-long contract with Al Fasulo for code enforcement totaling $79,200.

During public hearings, council members will consider a Mills Act Contract for the preservation of an historic home at Ocean and Forest, and an appeal of the planning commission's denial of a business sign at the new event center at Dolores and Seventh.

The night before, Monday, Dec. 1, at 5:30 p.m., the council will also meet to hold a workshop on reducing its goals and objectives for this year.

City hall is located on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean Avenue. For more information, visit www.ci.carmel.ca.us.

Local jeweler gets big commission from zombie-killing TV star

THANKS TO an unexpected commission from one of his favorite television characters, Paxton Mobley of Seaside can add another creative accomplishment to resume — zombie art.

A one time painter and sculptor who now specializes in making jewelry and buckles, Mobley designed a commemorative belt buckle for the cast and crew of “The Walking Dead,” the popular television series about a zombie apocalypse.

Mobley and his wife, Marne, are big fans of “The Walking Dead.” So it came as quite a surprise when he received an email from one of the show’s crew members.

“It was from Matthew Goodwin,” Mobley told The Pine Cone. “He’s the second assistant director on the show. He said Andrew Lincoln — who plays [series star] Rick Grimes — had come across my website and wanted me to create a belt buckle for him.”

At first, Mobley was skeptical of the commission.

“It seemed unbelievable,” he said. “I told my wife and her eyes lit up. We Googled Matthew’s name to make sure he was real.”

Lincoln, it turned out, didn’t just want a belt buckle — he wanted 290 of them. He planned to give one to each of the show’s cast and crew members of Season 5.

Evidently, Lincoln was surfing the Internet and looked at many custom belt buckles online before deciding he liked Mobley’s work the best. “That was such good compliment,” the jeweler said.

Using the traditional skull and crossbones of pirate lore for inspiration, Mobley quickly came up with a design that

Jazz singer, brass ensemble join in on Black Friday fun

THE LEAD singer of the trio, Andrea’s Fault, and a regular at Cypress Inn on Sunday mornings, singer and guitarist Andrea Carter plays Friday and Saturday, Nov. 28-29, from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., at Jolie, a women’s clothing boutique.

A familiar face wherever music is played locally, Carter will serve up what she calls a mix of “swinging jazz, rockin’ blues and and popular standards.”

“Jolie is having a post-Thanksgiving shopping event at her store, with me on guitar and other surprises,” Carter said. “Music and fashion — sounds like heaven to me.”

Jolie, which specializes in “distinct, unique and chic clothing for women,” is located on Lincoln next to the Cypress Inn. Call (831) 622-0906.

Playing holiday favorites on the busiest shopping day of the year, Youth Music Monterey County’s Honors Brass Ensemble performs Friday, Nov. 28, in the Carmel Plaza shopping center.

The ensemble features some of the top high school brass players in the area, including George Haugen and Hunter Wenglikowski on trumpet, India Maaske on horn, Felix Diaz-Contrera on trombone and Javan Flinn on tuba. The musicians rehearse once a week with professional musician and brass coach Alex Bedner.

The free concert starts at noon. The shopping center is located on Ocean between Junipero and Mission. visit www.carmelplaza.com

‘The Full Monty’ bares it all at the Golden Bough

By CHRIS COUNTS

BRINGING TOGETHER music, laughs and the spectacle of ordinary men showing their private parts, “The Full Monty” is back at the Golden Bough Playhouse.

Based on the hit film of the same name, the musical tells the funny and heartwarming story of six unemployed steel workers who create a strip tease act. Not only was “Full Monty” a hit on Broadway, but a PacRep Theatre production did well at the box office in 2006 and 2007.

“It’s been the most requested show ever for us to bring back,” PacRep’s executive director, Stephen Moorer, told The Pine Cone.

Most of the original cast returns, including John Farmanesh-Bocca as Jerry, Michael D. Jacobs as Harold, Lydia Lyons as Vicki, John Bridges as Malcolm and Pete Russell as Horse. New to the cast are Stephen Poletti, who plays Dave, Mikey Perdue, who portrays Ethan, and Donna Fredrico, who takes on the role of the piano player, Jeanette.

Moorer directs the musical, while Don Dally serves as musical director and Susan Cable as choreographer.

Because “The Full Monty” was such a success the last time it played in town, Moorer said he and his colleagues are resisting the urge to make too many changes to it.

“When you bring back show that was a big hit, you don’t want to screw it up too much,” he explained.

Because of the racy subject matter, Moorer said the musical isn’t suitable for pre-teens. “There’s some pretty spicy language and some limited male nudity,” he said. “It’s all handled very delicately, but it’s probably not for toddlers.”

Most audiences, though, will be unable to resist the musical’s charms.

“It’s got everything,” Moorer added. “It’s hilarious, it has great songs and there’s outrageous dancing. And it’s all wrapped around some really lovable and believable characters everyone can relate to.”

“The Full Monty,” which opened last week, continues Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Dec. 19. All shows start at 7:30 p.m. except Sunday matinees, which begin at 2 p.m. Tickets are $35 for general admission, $26 for seniors, and $15 for students and active military. The theater is located on Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth. Call (831) 622-0100.

One-man show opens Dec. 2

In town for “The Full Monty,” Faramanesh-Bocca will also star in “Oh Wonderful Life,” his own adaptation of Frank Capra’s “It’s a Wonderful Life.” The one-man play, which the actor is directing as well, opens Tuesday, Dec. 2, at the Circle

Alvarado's brews, tea with Santa, and wine at Point Pinos

SINCE IT opened in May, Alvarado Street Brewery and Grill has enjoyed busy afternoons and nights in the bustling space that for years was downtown Monterey's Regency Theater, with head brewer J.C. Hill constantly bringing out new beers and the kitchen turning out innovative dishes to match. The brewery also recently launched its spirits program and is now offering cocktails alongside its craft brews.

"Honest Plates & Honest Pints" is the restaurant's motto, and Hill loves what he does. A few in his lineup this week included Monterey Common, a toasty and tasty beer fermented at ambient temperature with lager yeast — but which has much more character than a typical lager. According to Hill, it's a remake of regional classic known as a California Common, and the state's only commercial brewery to produce one is Anchor Brewing in San Francisco. Hill credited Anchor with preserving the style.

He has also made mango habañero Citraveza, a single-hop Mexican-style lager with citrus and heat; and The Pumpkin King, brewed with more than 50 pounds of organic pumpkins and warm spices. Tuesday night, Hill said he also appreciates being able to collaborate with other brewers, like Kevin Clark at nearby Peter B's, in making beer and said craft brewers are supportive of each other, overall.

In the kitchen, meanwhile, new seasonal dishes have been added to the menu, which still lists many tried and true favorites. The market fish this week was a crab risotto interestingly (and surprisingly effectively) garnished with pomegranate seeds, and the Brussels sprouts are flash fried to create crispy exterior leaves, and flavored with cheddar, lemon and sea salt for a perfect fall side. The grill also turns out great flatbreads.

Its new cocktails divide into classics and signature drinks, with a Sazerac, Negroni and others in the lineup alongside The Regency (Vodka, Falernum, Aperol, lemon and cherry bitters) and the Fernet Flip (Fernet, barrel-aged bitters, egg and cracked pepper).

Also to note: the brewery and grill supports the Monterey Public Library by donating part of its proceeds on the last Wednesday of each month. In Brews for Books, $1 from each house draft beer sold is donated to the library.

For more information on what's happening at Alvarado Street, or to make reservations, call (831) 655-2337 or visit www.alvaradostreetbrewery.com.

■ Beach House still supporting MOW

proceeds during one night each month. The next benefit evening is Thursday, Dec. 4, from 6 to 10 p.m.

During those hours, $1 from every entrée purchased will go to Meals on Wheels, which gives nutritious meals to the homebound and offers food for their pets, too. The program provides home-delivered meals five days per week, with an optional meal for the weekend, to frail, elderly and disabled adults, 80 percent of whom are low-income. Meanwhile, its group dining offers lunches for the able-bodied at sites in Marina, Seaside, Monterey and Pacific Grove.

The Beach House Restaurant at Lovers Point is at 620 Ocean View Blvd., in Pacific Grove. For reservations, call (831) 375-2345.

■ TusCA supports Hope Center

From Thanksgiving through New Year's, part of the wine sales at TusCA Ristorante in the Hyatt Regency Monterey will benefit the Hope Center, a Monterey-based food pantry started by five moms who saw need in their community and wanted to do something about it. The Hope Center also allows kids to give back, and the pantry collects food and supplies for needy pets, too.

In addition to hosting events to benefit the center, management at TusCA and Hyatt has committed to donating $1 per each bottle of wine sold in the restaurant between now and the end of the year. Organizers hope to collect at least $1,000 for the grassroots nonprofit.

The restaurant is located in the hotel at 1 Old Golf Course Road in Monterey. For information, call (831) 372-1234 or visit www.hyattregencymonterey.com.

■ Also helping Hope

KRML radio and other local businesses are joining forces to help the Hope Center, too, with a "massive food drive" and live broadcast as part of the station's quarterly KRML Cares. For the holiday season, the station has identified the Hope Center as its favored charity.

Sponsored by Holman Ranch, Will's Fargo restaurant, Downtown Dining (Montrio, the Rio Grill and Tarp's Roadhouse) and Rich Pepe's restaurants, the effort includes daily on-air rallying cries from program director Jeff White.

Throughout the season, bins for donations of non-perishable foods will be set up at Will's Fargo in Carmel Valley Village, as well as at Peter B's Brewpub on Wednesday afternoons during KRML's live program, "Pub Talk." The drive ends Saturday, Dec. 20, with collections from noon to 3 p.m. in front of the Rio Grill in the Crossroads shopping center, where KRML will also broadcast live. Prizes will be given for the most generous community donations.

■ Tea tasting and Santa visit

After he's finished with his appearance at the tree lighting in Carmel-by-the-Sea, Santa Claus will head over to the Eddison & Melrose Tea Room at 25 Soledad Drive in Monterey Friday, Dec. 5. Owned by Karen Anne Murray, the tea room is hosting a tea tasting, toy drive and holiday bazaar from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., with photos with Santa available, too.

Tea expert Wendy Fields will offer sips of peach, Lung Ching green and cinnamon Lapsong Suchong for tasting, while Eddison & Melrose will serve its popular tea blends. Premiere Designs & Thirty One Gifts will offer their wares, too, and clients can custom build tea-themed gift baskets. Hors d'oeuvres and Murray's popular cupcakes and cream cheese frostings will be available, too.

ner prepared by head chef Shane Griffin at Point Pinos Grill Thursday, Dec. 4, starting with a reception at 6:30 p.m. The cost to attend is $65 per person, including tax and tip.

Hors d'oeuvres of salsify wrapped in phyllo with parmesan and prosciutto, and baguette stuffed with Italian sausage and mustard thyme sauce will be passed during the reception, which will feature Sauvignon Blanc from Monterey County.

Dinner, set to begin at 7, will start with crab and artichoke salad with new potatoes, lemon aioli, blood orange citronette and fine herbs, paired with Santa Barbara County Chardonnay. The second course will be anise-spiced duck breast with shaved Brussels sprouts, braised duck legs with olives and pan jus, served with Pinot Noir from the Fiddlestix vineyard in Santa Barbara County. That will be followed by seared beef rib cap with potato fondue, toy box carrots, baby turnips, brown butter, hazelnuts and crispy parsnips, paired with the Trio Rhone Blend from Santa Barbara County. Finally, for dessert, Santa Barbara Orange Muscat will be sipped alongside quince compote and honey ice cream.

Guests are also encouraged to bring food to donate to the grill's holiday drive. Reservations are required by calling Point Pinos at (831) 648-5774. The restaurant is located in the clubhouse at the P.G. Golf Links at 79 Asilomar Blvd.

National Repeal Day

When the federal government imposed Prohibition via the Volstead Act on Oct. 28, 1919, oenophiles grieved, and drinking went underground. But the passage of the 21st Amendment on Dec. 5, 1933, allowed them to return to their practices of sipping and savoring in public without fear of arrest.

In honor of that important change, Holman Ranch Tasting Room is celebrating National Prohibition Repeal Day by inviting fans to come by and enjoy some wine. The tasting room is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. and is located in the row of tasting rooms at 19 E. Carmel Valley Road in the Village. Visit www.holmanranch.com for more information.

Gingerbread season is here

Hofsas House Hotel will host its third annual gingerbread-house building to benefit the Carmel Public Library Foundation Saturday, Dec. 6, with two sessions — one at 10:30 a.m. and another at 1:30 p.m.

During the gatherings, participants will create gingerbread houses they can take home and enjoy throughout the season. For a $20 donation, kids will get a gingerbread kit, hot cider and cookie, while adults will receive wine, cheese and fruit for a $15 donation, with additional glasses of wine available for $5 apiece. The proceeds will benefit the nonprofit CPLF, which pays for programs, materials and services in the city's libraries, with the goal of ensuring they remain free and open to the public.

Owned and managed by Carmel City Councilwoman Carrie Theis, Hofsas House is located at San Carlos and Fourth. For reservations, call (831) 624-2745.

Get cheerful at Chesebro

Chesebro Wines will offer a little holiday cheer in its Carmel Valley Village tasting room Saturday, Dec. 13, from 1 to 4 p.m., with wine, food, live music, ornaments and holiday décor.

Pat Clark of the Cachagua Playboys will be joined by a special guest musician, and Kathy Smith will present her Christmas ornaments and jewelry. Michael Jones of A Moveable Feast will provide plenty of edible treats.

And last but not least, Chesebro will serve tastes of 2012 Mission Ranch Pinot and 2012 Late Harvest Sauvignon Blanc, among other wines, and will offer big discounts on some of its bottlings.

The cost to attend is $5 for club members and $10 for everyone else. For more information, call (831) 659-2125 or visit www.chesebrowines.com. The tasting room is located at 19 E. Carmel Valley Road in the Village.

Appetizer Party at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Beach House in Pebble Beach Sunday, Dec. 14, from 1 to 4 p.m. MPCC chef Colin Moody will offer a cooking demonstration as guests sip Bernardus, Otter Cove and Georis wines. Musicians Schwartz and Harris will perform a piano/violin duet, and a silent auction will raise additional funds for the nonprofit, which helps find homes and care for older shelter dogs, as well as for dogs whose owners are too infirm or elderly to continue taking care of them. Door prizes will be given, too — and adoptable dogs will attend, in hopes of finding the perfect families to take them home.

The cost is $100 per person. For more information or to RSVP, visit www.peaceofminddogrescue.org or call (831) 718-9122.

■ Inaugural Trio at Rio

The Rio Grill restaurant in the Crossroads shopping center will present its inaugural Trio at Rio Thursday, Dec. 18, from 4 to 6 p.m., with Caraccioli Cellars premium bubbly, and Pessagno Vineyards and De Tierra wines, all paired with appetizers from chef Cy Yontz. The cost is $20 per person, and attendees can purchase wine at a special holiday prices that day. Reservations are required by calling (831) 625-5436.

■ Chalone at Smithsonian

Chalone Vineyard, which owns a Chenin Blanc vineyard that holds historic status for being planted in 1919, has an esteemed history in the state. So it comes as no surprise that its articulate, passionate and talented winemaker, Robert Cook, was invited to participate in the Wine History Program at the Smithsonian Institute. Held last month in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, the event highlighted vintners and members of winemaking families also celebrating the half-century mark.

The Smithsonian event included a tour of the FOOD: Transforming the American Table 1950-2000 exhibition, which includes Julia Child's Massachusetts kitchen and André Tchelistcheff's colorimeter and laboratory timer; a panel discussion with museum curator Paula Johnson and Washington Post wine writer Dave McIntyre; and the third annual winemaker dinner in the Smithsonian Castle, where Washington, D.C., chef Ris Lacoste designed each course to pair with each vintner's selected wine. Cook brought his delicious 2012 Chalone Estate Chenin Blanc, of course, which was paired with bouillabaisse.

Others in attendance were Kathleen Heitz Myers of Heitz Wine Cellars, whose family bottled the first vineyard-designated Cabernet Sauvignon in Napa Valley; Jeffrey Patterson of Mount Eden Vineyards in the Santa Cruz Mountains; Jason Lett of Eyrie Vineyards in Oregon, whose father was the first to plant Pinot Noir in the Willamette Valley; and Frederick Frank of Dr. Konstantin Frank Wine Cellars in New York, whose grandfather brought Vitis vinifera to the Finger Lakes district. Each participant recorded an oral history to complement the wine history panel discussion, all of which will be preserved in the museum.

■ Shakes' new restaurant

Sabu and Chris Shake's Restaurant Pacific Group plans to open Scales Seafood and Steaks, a new restaurant on Fisherman's Wharf, next spring. The complete remodel and renovation will include a large upstairs banquet facility with indoor and outdoor seating, glass doors and seamless windows along the front entrance and bay side of the restaurant, an expansive dining room with an oyster bar and cocktail lounge, and outdoor dining available on the wharf in front of the restaurant.

The Shakes also plan to open the Scales Deli Market for salads, sandwiches, pizzas and desserts to be enjoyed al fresco, and Scales To-Go, a walk-up counter offering hot food to take away.

Wald, Ruhnke and Dost Architects of Monterey designed the renovation, and Dry Creek Construction of Seaside will do the work, which should take about five months.

■ 'Anything Goes' in Monterey

Showcasing the words and music of composer Cole Porter, the musical "Anything Goes" plays Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29-30, at the Golden State Theatre in Monterey.

Presented by Broadway-by-the-Bay, a theater company based in Redwood City, "Anything Goes" tells the lighthearted story of a stowaway who boards an ocean liner and falls in love with an heiress. Featuring songs like "I Get A Kick Out of You," "You're the Top" and "It's De-Lovely," the musical was a hit on Broadway when it debuted in 1934.

The cast of "Anything Goes" includes Devin Adler, a Monterey resident who teaches dance and musical theater. Broadway-by-the-Bay is the resident musical theatre company of the historic Fox Theatre in downtown Redwood City, which is owned by Lori and Eric Lochtefeld, the new owners of the Golden State Theatre.

Vintage cocktails will be served, and prizes will be awarded for the Best 1930s Attire.

Saturday's show starts at 8 p.m., while Sunday's matinee begins at 2 p.m. Tickets are $39 to $59. The theater is located at 417 Alvarado St. Call (831) 649-1070 or visit www.goldenstatetheatre.com.

A century of Pine Cones

■ 98 Years Ago —
Nov. 29, 1916

Pine Needles

Carmel friends of author Jack London were shocked on hearing of his death. He was so full of life and vigor and plans for the future that his friends cannot realize that the genial Jack has passed over.

Criticizing the Editor

No editor is beyond criticism, nor does he expect or desire to be. To issue a journal that will please every reader is quite impossible. No sane person would endeavor to accomplish such a feat. Editors of some journals have ideals. Most editors have a fairly accurate knowledge of the character of the community they serve. There is news and there is news — news that is fit to publish, and news that is much better left unprinted. At times it has seemed right to the editor of this paper to omit mention of certain events, especially when publication could serve no good purpose, and perhaps cause someone to suffer. Regardless of criticism, the Pine Cone, in this manner, will continue as in the past. Reports of crime and scandal will find no place in its columns. We know the people of the community will help us to maintain our ideals.

■ 75 Years Ago —

Strong Protests on Assessments

“A strong protest” is promised by Carmel business property owners, backed by sympathetic residential property owners, on the sanitary assessment of $62,730 to pay for the new sewage treatment works. This opposition will be expressed at the hearing called last week for 7:45 p.m., Monday, Dec. 11. As spokesman for the protesting business zone property owners, Fred Leidig, pioneer and member of a family with large business interests in Carmel, declared that the protesters were prepared to offer stern opposition to the manner in which the assessments were distributed, but that legal action was not being considered at this time. Leidig indicated that a peaceable solution of the problem could probably be reached when the board next meets at the office of Assessor Bernard Rowntree in the Sundial Court on Dec. 11. Many property owners were under the impression that they would get bills for $15 or $20 per lot, regardless of the value of their property. Rowntree explained this erroneous impression by declaring that he had estimated at the time the assessment question had first come up that the sewage plant would cost the owners an “average of $15 a lot.” “Actually we have come out at an average figure lower than $15 per lot,” he pointed out. The total expense of $113,980 for this job, which includes incidental expenses of $13,572.59 in addition to the contract cost of $100,407.41, is borne in part by the WPA grant of $47,250 and by $4,000 of the funds which the board already had on hand.

Sunset Surprise Fire Drill

The Carmel fire department staged a surprise fire drill at Sunset school and cleared the classrooms and halls of the school in 45 seconds flat. Inspector B.W. Adams directed the drill and, without warning, entered the school and sounded the fire bells early Monday morning. Fireman Irwin Foster and Volunteer Jack Jordan timed the result. The only fire in the whole two blocks on which the school is situated was in the incinerator.

Fire Protection is Main Topic

Establishment of county service areas to provide more adequate fire protection for subdivisions in the unincorporated area on the periphery of Carmel was the main subject discussed Monday night by 17 persons who attended the Suburban Council meeting in the Carmel Rancho Community Room. Also discussed was an erroneous report that these same areas were protected only by one state division of forestry truck when fires raged in various parts of California during October. At the request of Chairman John S. Coates of Carmel Woods, John J. Walsh of Carmel Point reported on the number, type and location of hydrants located in the peripheral areas. The number of hydrants varied from 21 on Carmel Point, which has a county fire protection service area, to Mission Fields, which has no service area and only one hydrant. Mr. Walsh stated that residents of the areas inadequately supplied with hydrants “should do something immediately.”

Renderings of Kennedy Grave

On exhibition in the National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C. is the design by Architect John Carl Warnecke for the late President John F. Kennedy’s grave.

incorporated a zombie with an eye patch and several of the weapons used to combat zombies in the show. With a few minor modifications, the design was approved by Lincoln.

While Mobley was excited to get the commission, he was nervous as well. Lincoln needed the buckles in less than a month. “I was worried we weren’t going to get them done in time,” he conceded.

But with his wife’s help (“this is a two-person operation,” he said of his business, Paxton Jewelry and Buckles), Mobley met the deadline — and got a thank-you call from Lincoln.

“He talked about how much he loved the buckles and how everything worked out great,” he said. “It really validated me as an artist.”

With the publicity Mobley has received from the commission, he’s expanded the “zombie” side of his business. On his website, he’s added a tab for “zombie wear,” and he now offers zombie pendants, lapel pins, brooches, charms, earrings, key chains and more. He’s hoping they’ll be a hit during the holiday season. For more information, visit www.paxtonfinebuckles.com.

■ Crafts fair in 34th year

Carrying on a creative legacy that has long been part of life down the coast, the Big Sur Grange Hall hosts the 34th annual Fall Harvest Crafts Fair Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29-30.

A fundraiser for the historic Grange Hall, the event features a marketplace of handmade items created by more than 30 local artisans, many of them Big Sur residents. Featured this year will be beadwork and yoga clothing by Rachel Moody, soap by Sheila Hillman, paintings by Erlinda Hiscock and Lorena Del Campo, hand-carved wooden bowls by Steve Trapkus, body oils by Shannon McCarthy, needlepoint by Lacey Sutton and much more.

If you’re looking for a one-of-a-kind gift, the fair offers a bounty of possibilities.

The exhibition comprises two models, seven photographs, 23 drawings and examples of the lettering to be used. A scale model showing the entire site including the Custis-Lee Mansion is the principal exhibit. Eighteen framed renderings of the project by Architect Olof Dahlstrand of Carmel are also shown. Nine of the renderings, 20 by 30 inches each, illustrate progressively what the visitor to the grave will see, from the entrance to the cemetery, past the circular grass fore-space and the elliptical overlook platform, to the grave terrace and the plot itself. The other nine are smaller sketch impressions.

— Compiled by Christopher Good

“It’s a really cool event,” said Jenny Buckland, one of its organizers. “It’s really neat to see how much talent we have here.”

The Grange Hall is located just off Highway 1, about 24 miles south of Carmel. If you’re driving south, look for the turnoff on the right, just past the Roadhouse restaurant.

■ Meet Nancy’s artists

Ten Artists will greet guests and present demonstrations of their work Saturday, Nov. 29, when the Nancy Dodds Gallery hosts its a Holiday Open House.

“Instead of our tradition miniatures show, we’re doing something different,” Gallery owner Nancy Dodds said. “This is such a busy weekend, and I thought, ‘Wouldn’t it be great to introduce everybody to our artists.’”

Planning to attend the event are painters Randall Sexton, Lesley Rich, Leslie Toms, Carolyn Lord, Cornelia Emery, Patty Biederman, Richard Tette, and Theresa Onoda, printmaker Stephanie Martin and sculptor Kristine Taylor.

The gallery, which hosts a reception from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., is located at Seventh and San Carlos. Call (831) 624-0346.

■ Erin and Tom open studio

Big Sur painter Erin Gafill and her husband, photographer Tom Birmingham, host an open house Friday and Saturday, Nov. 28-29, at Studio One in Big Sur.

Often on the road, the talented couple is happy to be back home in Big Sur.

“After four years of teaching and touring across the country, we are thrilled to share our new space with you, show you new works small and large, and chat about upcoming workshops, special projects, and our vision for creating arts and cultural offerings for our community here in Big Sur,” reads the invitation to the reception.

Homemade toast and jam will be served each day at 11 a.m., while cookies and hot cider will be offered each day at 3 p.m. The studio is located in the Village Shops, next to the Big Sur River Inn and about 24 miles south of Carmel. www.eringafill.com

HANSON

$10,000 deductible.

On the morning of Dec. 1, he'll walk into city hall and sit down with Schmitz to figure out the best role for him now. According to the settlement, he's promised a full-time job as building official at the top salary level of $100,752 per year — or another job with equivalent pay.

The eight-page deal explicitly states there is no gag order, so people involved on either side can speak with whomever they wish about the agreement and its circumstances.

Righting wrongs

"I'm just appreciative that we were able to resolve this and to welcome John back," Mayor Jason Burnett said Wednesday. "It's the right thing to do, and it's certainly in the community's best interest and in the city organization's best interest to have John back and serving the community."

Burnett, who participated in the meeting Tuesday by telephone while vacationing out of state, said he was glad the conflict could be resolved.

"He has touched the lives of so many people in our community, and I'm sad that we had to go through what we've gone through but appreciative we could work out a mutually agreeable solution," he said. "It's one of the first things we asked Doug to work on, upon his returning to the city, and one of Doug's real strengths is drawing the best out of people."

Finding the right fit for workers and ensuring they thrive are now top priorities in a city government ravaged by multiple firings of longtime employees and other upheaval, and Schmitz has proved one of his talents is enabling his employees to give back to the community, according to Burnett.

"One of the reasons that we brought Doug back was to accomplish this healing and rebuilding," he said.

Burnett also recalled his own experience with Hanson when he was remodeling his house in town.

"He pulled me aside after he'd done an inspection, and as a father to a father, he pointed out some ways we could make our house safer for having a newborn baby," he said. "We took his advice, and I'm really glad we did. That's the thing about John: He thinks about things on a human level, and there are hundreds of stories across the community about how John has made people's lives better and safer and more comfortable."

That, Burnett said, is one of the reasons he's glad to be able to bring Hanson back.

"Because he's been a great employee and will continue to be a great asset for the city," he said.

"I'm ready to come back to Carmel and do good things," Hanson said. "You want such a unique, beautiful place; sometimes it takes unique people to make that happen."

Waiting in the wings

Two other fired employees, former administrative coordinators Leslie Fenton and Margi Perotti, are also negotiating with the city about their futures. The two, who both worked in planning and building, with Perotti also serving in code enforcement, were placed on paid leave pending investigations in October 2013 and fired in March by Stilwell and his second-in-command, Sue Paul, amidst allegations of wrongdoing.

But the state began providing the women unemployment benefits after administrative law judges found no evidence they did anything wrong.

Fenton also appealed her firing and had a hearing, with Stilwell presiding, several months ago, but a decision was never made, and Perotti has yet to have her appeal heard.

Schmitz, who has petitioned to take over as hearing officer in their cases, said both were also set to be on the agenda at Tuesday's closed session, but the women's attorneys brought forward additional issues that needed to be addressed before those discussions could take place.

Burnett said he hopes to have their cases resolved soon, too.

Museum seeks a tenant with a love of history or art — and a good business plan

By CHRIS COUNTS

DOWNTOWN MONTEREY'S Stanton Center is blessed with a prime location just steps away from Fisherman's Wharf and more than 15,000 square feet of gallery and exhibit space. Now all it needs is a tenant with a focus on history or art — and a plan to make it work financially.

The nonprofit group that manages the center for the City of Monterey, the Monterey History and Art Association, is seeking a long-term tenant, or possibly several tenants, for the building, which features galleries, office space, a conference room, retail space and a theater.

The center opened in 1992, becoming the home of the Monterey Maritime Museum and History Center. The museum closed in 2010 and reopened after renovations 18 months later under the banner of the Museum of Monterey.

But the new venture, which offered both a maritime history display and gallery space for other exhibits like tribute to the Summer of Love, soon ran into financial trouble.

Today, the museum has a staff of only two part-time employees.

Part of the challenge of operating the museum has been its high overhead. The president of the MHAA, Eric Sand, told The Pine Cone its expenses range from $7,000 to $8,000 each month, including $2,300 for insurance, $1,600 to $1,800 for electricity, and as much as $3,000 for water. Much of the water usage, Sand explained, comes from a public restroom adjacent to the Monterey Bay Recreation Trail.

Although the museum once had an endowment of about $2 million, its coffers have dwindled to $437,000, a number Sand said he is determined to maintain. "I have made the decision not to allow funds to be moved from the endowment," he said.

By taking a hard line on the finances, Sand and the board are under the gun to come up with a business plan that works for the museum. "Time is of the essence," he said. "We're living on fumes."

Despite the challenges he and the board face, Sand is convinced they can find the right tenant — or tenants. "We are going to make it," he predicted.

The board is soliciting letters of interest for leasing part, or all, of the center. Applicants will need to show their plan is financially viable and is compatible with the museum's mission. "We need to be involved in endeavors that promote California history, maritime history and art," explained Sand, who is offering tours of the center Monday, Dec. 8, at 11 a.m., and Saturday, Dec. 13, at 10 a.m.

If you're interested in submitting a letter of interest, you can send an email to president@montereyhistory.org.

Festival founder and others named Champions of the Arts

THREE YEARS after the inaugural Days and Nights Festival was staged, its founder, composer Philip Glass, was named a Champion of the Arts by the Carmel-based Arts Council for Monterey County.

A three-time Academy Award nominee, Glass won of a Golden Globe Award in 1999 for Best Original Score. The Days and Nights Festival brings an eclectic lineup of musical and stage performers to Carmel and Big Sur.

Glass will be honored at a gala in January with the arts council's Lifetime Achievement Award. Others "Champions" include music writer Mac McDonald (Luminary Award), The Monterey Bay Plein Air Painters Association (Nonprofit Award), Nancy Ausinio (Philanthropist Award), dancer Pilar Mendoza (Professional Artist Award), saxophonist Paul Contos (Educator Award) and Steve Vagnini (Volunteer Leader Award).

The gala is scheduled Saturday, Jan. 17, at the Portola Hotel and Spa in Monterey. Call (831) 622-9060 or visit www.arts4mc.org.

The utility company must submit a report within 30 days contesting any facts asserted by the PUC's safety enforcement division in its reports, and it had 10 days from the date of the fine to either pay it or contest it. The fine is supposed to be paid from the company's profits, not added to customers' bills.

Last week, PG&E spokesman Donald Cutler issued a statement on behalf of the company.

"The safety of our customers, employees and the communities we serve is always our top priority, and we are pleased that the CPUC allowed us to get back to the important natural gas safety work in Carmel," he said. "We have just received the citation and notification of the formal case and are reviewing them. We have made significant enhancements to our protocols to address public concerns and CPUC recommendations."

od, based on the maximum of $22 daily for 90 parking spots, over the course of 181 days, is $304,623. Of that, National would receive $76,156. Transaction costs would total $45,612, with another $18,900 for the parking ambassadors, and $21,320 for maintenance, consultants, miscellaneous expenses and digital technology, bringing the total net revenues for the city to $142,635. The city council made solving the parking problem one of its priorities this year, and the 2014/2015 budget allocated $474,000 for developing and implementing of a parking-management program. After their installation, the meters elicited various comments from Ocean Avenue workers and city residents. Some criticized them for being unattractive and out of place in a town with no street addresses or stoplights, while others accepted their installation as a means of encouraging parking turnover and keeping employees from filling valuable spots in the core of the business district. One longtime downtown shop manager suggested adorning them with twinkly lights in honor of the holidays — or perhaps surrounding them by the red carpets that caused such a stir during Concours Week.

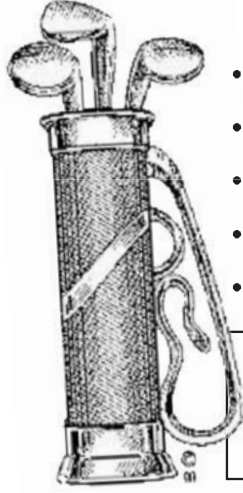

"Living Life in Full Bloom" by Elizabeth Murray and "My So-Called Ruined Life" by Melanie Bishop (above) will be showcased — along with their authors — at a day-long event Saturday at Pilgrim's Way bookstore. Bishop will sign copies of her work at 3 p.m., and Murray will follow her at 4 p.m.

Give the kiosks a chance

BEFORE ANYBODY goes jumping to conclusions about how ugly the new parking kiosks are, we'd like to urge a little patience.

Some people hate anything new, especially in a unique place such as Carmel. So if you're against the parking kiosks, maybe that's really what bugs you about them — simply that they weren't there two weeks ago.

Other people don't want to have to pay to park downtown, but so as not to appear selfish, will be tempted to say they're offended by the aesthetics of the kiosks, rather than just admit they don't want to have to pay $2. If you're against the kiosks, could that be why?

Still others will seize this opportunity to criticize a new initiative — any new initiative — by the city council that handled the Jason Stilwell crisis so woefully. So if you don't like the kiosks, maybe it's not because you really object to paid parking per se, or even to the physical appearance of the kiosks, but plan to speak out against them because Jason Burnett et al. decided to put them in. Could that be it?

We think paid parking on Ocean Avenue is a good idea, because it will discourage downtown workers from taking up all the parking that's needed by customers. This is especially so since the city council has provided plenty of new opportunities for the workers to park for free.

We also think that a bit of change is OK even in Carmel which has, after all, been different every year than it was the year before. Some years, the changes have been great — such as throughout the 1920s and 1950s, when lots of homes were built — while in other epochs — such as the present — change has come very slowly. But it has still been there and produced the lovely town we have today. Does anybody really wish Main Street had never been paved?

And this council, for all its faults, is still perfectly capable of good work.

Which leaves just one thing: The kiosks seem intrusive and have a high-tech appearance which can be a bit jarring at first.

However, the shock factor — just as with street lights, cell phone antennas, cable TV amplifiers, smart meters, and many of the other paraphernalia of modern life — fades with time, and pretty soon something that was intrusive recedes into the background and you hardly notice it at all.

Give the kiosks some time, folks. In a few weeks you'll probably forget what all the hubbub was about.

Questions remain

Speaking of the council doing good work, it was very heartening to see John Hanson get his old job back. Thank you, city council, for doing that.

Now we have a question: What reasons did Jason Stilwell claim he had to fire him? The citizenry deserves to know the whole story.

Of course, city officials may feel compelled to keep Hanson's personnel file secret, as required by state law.

However, Hanson can waive that, and he should. He deserves his job back and the money he'll be getting, but the people he'll be working for and who will be paying him deserve something, too. They deserve answers.

Homescapes owners and their contributions to community

Dear Editor,

I was very sad to read of the financial problems that Thompson Lange and Beau Finklang, owners of Homescapes, are experiencing. They have been enthusiastic and selfless supporters of our community's non-profits and businesses in ways too numerous to mention in this letter, giving tirelessly of their time, resources and considerable talents. I served on the board of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce with Thompson and he was an invaluable asset as a board member and later as president of the chamber.

It is disappointing that your article was focused entirely on the closing of their store and the minute details of their personal finances (including the cash Thompson had in his wallet) with no mention whatever of all the good the brothers have done in our community. Perhaps a followup article will include a more complete and balanced picture.

I'm sure I am not alone in wishing them a sound and speedy recovery from these problems and in thanking them for all they have done for so many in our community.

Janet Reilly,
Carmel

Nix Ocean Avenue parking meters

Dear Editor,

Wrong, wrong, wrong! That was my thought as I looked in dismay at the unsightly parking meter structures clearly out of character for world-renowned Carmel-by-the-Sea. Besides being huge and ugly, they are blocking prime storefront windows up and down our beloved Ocean Avenue, possibly the most famous avenue in the country. In a span of five gorgeous blocks are these unsightly meters — blocks now ruined by those that decided this could "fix" a deemed parking problem. Forget testing them. To retain the character of Carmel, they should be removed. They even propel me to suggest we petition their removal immediately. And, I would suggest to former Mayor Clint Eastwood, that they are similar to not being able to eat ice cream on the streets of Carmel. Help!

For a town that doesn't have addresses or street lights, it is just wrong for anyone, particularly when Carmel is world-renowned and 98 years old, to decide such a thing. Please, keep Carmel's character and remove the meters immediately!

Judy Tollner,

Maria Matias heeds a higher calling

SHE BREEZES into the room with a purposeful stride, her wild chestnut mane flying. At her throat is a diamond-encrusted cross, and around her wrists and fingers wrap layers of jewelry, each piece significant to her. At first she doesn't remove her dark glasses, creating equal parts mystery and intensity. Yet the first time she really wants to make a point in the conversation, she lifts the black lenses from her face, revealing eyes that sparkle like she has a secret. Except Maria Matias isn't really interested in hiding anything.

She is equal parts street and sophistication, spiritual and sassy, all of which contribute to the way she runs her business, Maria Matias Music. She likes the alliteration, but it's also who she is — highly recognizable in the industry and deeply devoted to music — making it, hearing it, promoting it.

A Carmel-based talent agent who established her business in 2006, Matias was 7 calls her "start," when she was hired to work for Monterey Peninsula Artists, now known as Paradigm Talent Agency, which represented, among others, Dave Matthews, Fiona Apple, Nora Jones and Bonnie Raitt.

"MPA had offices elsewhere, but Monterey was the mother ship," Matias says. "I started in the front office and, after seven years, became a talent agent for seven more years. It was a tremendous experience, but then the time came to leave. They were selling the business, which meant a changing of the guard, so I took a leap of faith and struck out on my own. People thought I was nuts. I had grown up in that company, working with some of the top agents in the world. But I was ready. I had things to bring to the table."

As an independent agent, Matias makes a personal commitment to be in direct contact with her artists, and to escort them along their journey as they develop their music and their career.

"I have a lot of passion for what I represent today. When you work for a big agency, your focus gets pulled in a lot of different directions. I find I can give my artists one-on-one attention, which is more rewarding," says Matias, who travels regularly in support of her clients. "I get to witness what comes together for the artist. I get to spend more time with the artist, becoming intimate with their vision."

What Matias looks for in an artist is a uniqueness and an integrity to the music. The artist needs to have a bigger vision that goes beyond himself, she says, and to be willing to work hard at it.

"I like to work with people who say, 'Maria, let's work together and see what we can do.' It's a collaborative process," she says. "But I never want their music to be over produced or finished, so the musicians can no longer hear themselves in it."

At least half of the musicians Matias represents produce Latin music.

"I appreciate a wide diversity of music," says Matias. "But having been the Latin in an Anglo agency, I found they were always steering me toward opening up that sector of the business. 'Oh, Maria; she speaks my language.' But I can tell the difference between a folk act, a salsa band, a Latin indie rock-band, or a Latin jazz act, and I enjoy it all. I like musicians who are real, who have integrity, are bold, and speak their truth. I admire people who do what they do, and that's all they do."

Lately, Matias has been making time for her own music; writing, singing and producing what she calls "soulful rock," with a melodic yet very rhythmic vibe.

"Some people say the writing is very Chrissie Hynde," Matias says, "and the vocals are pretty Grace Slick or Billie Holiday. Someone even said, k.d. Lang. I think I just sound like me, which is my goal. It's actually what I look for in all my musicians. To be, first and foremost, themselves."

People watching just for laughs

THE HOLIDAY shopping frenzy is heating up. As a humorist, this is my favorite time of year. One of the things I love most is to go out among the shoppers and just observe what's going on. Forget eggnog. People watching is the best way to lift your Yuletide spirits.

I noticed a guy shopping in a chic Carmel women's clothing store. He walked in, grabbed a blue dress, paid for it and was on his way out the door in under 10 minutes. I asked if he had a holiday shopping strategy. He said, "I found out a long time ago that if you want to please a woman, buy anything marked 'petite' and keep the receipt."

Women seem to put more thought into finding the right gift. A lady shopping at Carmel's beloved kid's store, Thinker Toys, asked if they had any electric trains for advanced children. The salesman said, "What do you consider advanced?"

She said, "He's 47."

Mary and I solved the problem of gift-giving for each other. After 41 years of marriage there's nothing left to buy. And besides, we're too tired to mess around with returns. So instead, we treat ourselves to a little getaway. The money we save on giftwrap alone practically pays for the trip.

My longtime friend, Lloyd, and I used to enjoy an annual outing in Beverly Hills the week before Christmas. People watching on Rodeo Drive is an art form. Lloyd was a big exec at ABC network. But I knew him as an inveterate practical joker with an offbeat, and often mischievous, sense of humor. Just the kind of best friend who can get you into hot water.

years old when she made her music debut. She got up in front of the entire school and sang, Doris Day's "Qué Será, Será." A year later, she picked up the guitar and taught herself, "This Little Light of Mine," which she performed for her class. It was then that she began to envision becoming the singer-songwriter that led to her current career, yet she didn't actually pick up the guitar again until she was in her early 20s.

"I had no specific idea what I'd do when I grew up," Matias says, "but God gave me the ear for music, and I trusted He would direct me along that path. I had a local band for a while, and Barbra Streisand was my inspiration. Her range, attitude, brilliance, power and voice were intoxicating. I listened to her a lot. I wrote and recorded my own music, not with any intention of releasing it, but to be able to return to it. What I really wanted to do, I discovered, was help other people release theirs."

First, she had to learn how. For four years, she served as an events coordinator for Luciano Pavarotti in the Monterey Peninsula office of Tibor Rudas, who was Pavarotti's manager. Within a few months, she started accompanying the legendary opera singer on tour.

"Pavarotti was bigger than life," Matias says. "He had tremendous presence. Yet there was something humble, almost child-like about him. He was someone who played to the masses."

Although she enjoyed her experience on the road, once Matias had a child, she sought work that would help her progress along her career path but also keep her closer to home in Carmel.

Twenty-six years ago, she got what she

Trail running film festival comes to P.G.

BRINGING ATTENTION to an exhilarating but exhausting sport — and raising money for a local nonprofit group — the inaugural Trail Running Film Festival comes to Lighthouse Cinemas in Pacific Grove Thursday, Dec. 4.

Sponsored by Carmel's Treadmill running store, the one-night festival benefits the nonprofit Ventana Wilderness Alliance, whose volunteers have donated countless hours improving the trails in Big Sur.

The feature film of the evening is "Running the Edge," which chronicles ultra-marathon runner Scott Jaime's attempt to record the fastest known time on the 486-mile Colorado Trail.

Preceding "Running the Edge" will be four short films: "The Crossing," "Around Patagonia," "100 Miles High" and "Depressions."

Several trailers and highlights from recent trail-running events will also be screened during the evening.

Presented by Rainshadow Running — a group that organizes trail races throughout the Northwest — the film festival debuted in March.

Showtime is 6 p.m. Tickets are $20. The theater is located at 525 Lighthouse Ave. www.trailfilmfest.com

Beach. Fans may recall that Lemmon never made the cut. He also never wore a lavender cashmere pullover. And here's why:

One year Lloyd and I were making our annual pre-Christmas rounds in Beverly Hills, having some laughs. We wandered in to Dick Dorso, a fashionable men's clothier. Lloyd spotted actress Felicia Farr, (Mrs. Jack Lemmon). She was mulling over a lavender cashmere pullover. Lloyd knew her and stopped to talk.

"Are you buying that for Jack?" Lloyd asked.

"Yes I am," she said, holding up the sweater. "What do you think?"

"You shouldn't buy it," Lloyd said.

"Why not?" she asked.

"Because an hour ago I saw Jack down the street at Carroll's buying that exact sweater." (Lloyd had seen no such thing).

"Why, that S.O.B.!" she said. "He knows perfectly well I was getting him this sweater for Christmas!"

We could only imagine the fireworks that may have ensued in the Lemmon household on Christmas morning. Later, Lloyd heard through the grapevine that the day after Christmas, Jack went to Dorso and bought the sweater. That afternoon, Felicia Farr also went to Dorso and picked out the sweater. The salesman asked her if it was for Jack. "Yes, why?" she asked.

"Because he bought the same one earlier today."

"That's it!" she said. "From now on he can buy his own damned presents."

Here's the upshot. Weeks later, Lloyd ran in to Lemmon at a party. In the course of conversation, he asked Jack about the lavender sweater from Dorso. Lemmon's eyes narrowed. "You knew about that? I took the damned thing back. That sweater was more trouble than it was worth."

Lloyd eliminated any gift-giving problems between the two of us.

For Christmas one year, I bought him a gentleman's manicure kit from Neiman-Marcus. Something for the man who has everything, including hangnails. The handsome leather case contained assorted clippers and nippers, handy for grooming, and even handier for puncturing detergent boxes and slicing through shrink-wrap. The gift was wrapped in signature N-M paper.

The following year, he gave me a present in the same N-M paper, a little rumples. Inside was the very manicure set I'd given him the year before. When I reminded him of that fact, we had a good laugh.

The next year I re-wrapped the same manicure set, attached the same card with my name crossed out, and gave it back to him.

The following year, he gave it back to me. It became a running joke. This endless gift loop went on more than 20 years, ending only when he left this earth, far too soon. In the end, Lloyd had the last laugh. He gave me the manicure set again. He left it to me in his will.

Every time I use it, I think of my fun-loving friend and have another laugh.

They say the best presents, are those you'd like to keep yourself. That manicure set is one of the handiest gifts I ever got. If we bought our own presents we could eliminate the middleman. But I hope that never catches on. It would spoil all the fun of holiday people watching.

Taking responsibility

Dear Editor,

Most of us learned before age 5 that poor choices usually have undesirable consequences. Is it now the job of government to protect us from those consequences?

On the national front ... those who enter, work and stay in this country illegally choose to bypass the legal immigration process and deliberately break the law. They know that as a consequence of their choices, not any alleged heartlessness on the part of anyone else, their children have no legal right to be or stay here either. The president's argument that "they broke the law because they just want a better life for themselves" could be applied to anyone who robs banks, steals cars, shoplifts, burglarizes home. Should we just ignore those laws too and pardon all lawbreakers?

Closer to home ... a taxpayer-funded study confirmed what everyone already knew; namely, that the lack of convenient available parking in the heart of Carmel-by-the-Sea for visitors, shoppers, diners and clients of local businesses is largely due to business owners and their employees who would rather inconvenience their prospective patrons than themselves.

Instead of business owners taking personal responsibility for the problem by making it a condition of employment that their employees park at Sunset Center or on upper Junipero while at work in order to free up more convenient spaces, we now have local government leaders trying to fix the problem by proposing to charge everyone to park — not only changing the welcoming character and charm of the village, but also creating a new incentive for people to shop, dine and do business elsewhere. Time will tell if this proposed government solution to a lack of common sense and personal responsibility will fix or exacerbate the problem, but it certainly appears to be a classic case of cutting off your nose to spite your face.

Is a modicum of personal responsibility for the consequences of one's choices too much to hope for anymore?

Irene Desmond Long, Carmel

'You should be embarrassed'

Dear Editor,

You should be totally embarrassed by either writing or allowing the Nov. 21 editorial to be published. It blatantly provides totally inaccurate statements that are ridiculously inflammatory. It is simply an ignorant editorial.

1. Nothing the president announced has anything to do with amnesty.

2. The overwhelming majority of Americans want immigration reform.

3. Other than the ultra-right-wing Fox News, no analysis of the midterms indicated that immigration reform was even a major issue in the elections. And if you think having about 19 percent of eligible voters voting for Republican candidates is some sort of a referendum on where all of America is on public policy, then you are delusional!

4. You stated the folks positively affected by the president's executive action should be back at the end of the line when it comes to applying for citizenship. That's precisely what the action requires.

5. In your introductory comments, you again write a completely untrue statement. In the five years since the ACA was passed and started to be implemented, rate of cost growth for all of healthcare in the U.S. has grown at the lowest rate of any five-year period over the past 35 years! How can you allow your inaccurate statements to make it into the publication?

The do-nothing Republican party in the House has refused to allow voting on numerous bills that have to support of majority of Americans. And if they allowed the vote in the House, they would have PASSED!!!

These include an assault weapons ban, universal background checks for guns, raising the minimum wage, passing unemployment insurance expansion and, of course, the Senate's immigration bill.

Every one of the above measures would have passed the House if they were allowed to vote.

You should be ashamed for this trash that you allowed in print last Friday!!

Just recently, you were justifiably proud of how you helped to ferret out the truth of what was going on Carmel city administration. You have totally sullied that work with this editorial. You are entitled to your opinion on the subject of the president's immigration action, but you do not have the right to use totally false statements to justify your opinion.

Peter Boulais, Pebble Beach

'American in everything but a passport'

Dear Editor,

I found your Nov. 21 editorial to be sensible in a nation filled with people who are not sensible on this issue. Two things: Where has the House of Representatives been in the last four years? A bi-partisan law is waiting for action and nothing has been proposed by them, because the leadership is being held hostage by Tea Party Republicans. Secondly, you cannot send kids, especially teenagers, back to a country to which they have no connections. They are Americans in everything but a passport. I've worked with these kids. They are smart, articulate (usually in two or three languages, but some only know English), and have a huge amount of street smarts and unbounded energy. To me, they are part of the future for this country. They will be new doctors, engineers and scientists just as immigrants in the past have done. They need some method of becoming citizens of the only country they know. It doesn't matter how long it takes, just so they don't have to live in fear of being deported to a foreign country. To do so would be immeasurably cruel and do great harm to a better future for this country.

Liquor sales will ruin quiet neighborhood

Dear Editor,

Many people on the Monterey Peninsula regard Pacific Grove's open space on the headlands of Pt. Pinos with respect and reverence. It is an area of incomparable beauty, quiet serenity and splendid natural resources, including the great tidepools made famous by John Steinbeck and deer birthing thicket where wildlife roam freely. Adding to the grandeur and solemnity of the area is the historic Pt. Pinos lighthouse and El Carmelo Cemetery with its small religious chapel.

On Nov. 5, the city council majority amended the Pt. Pinos Grill's conditional use permit to allow a full liquor license, if approved by the Alcoholic Beverage Control board. Many residents recall when the new golf clubhouse was built in 2004, the grill's use permit allowed only beer and wine. Neighbors were promised this condition would remain into perpetuity. So much for promises!

The grill's use permit had already been amended twice, in 2007 and 2012, but apparently changing the conditions didn't bring in enough revenue, so the council majority, councilman Dan Miller dissenting, encouraged by the business community, voted to allow full liquor service, a bar if you will, right across the street from a quiet residential neighborhood

P.G.'s chamber of commerce president, Mo Ammar, told the council that more than 100 business owners supported the full liquor service at the Pt. Pinos Grill. Apparently that was the convincing argument for council to amend the use permit.

In 1986 the voters of Pacific Grove passed a ballot measure to protect open space in Pacific Grove from being rezoned without a vote of the people. This is exactly what they wanted to prevent, the intrusion of commercialism into a special zone that needed to be protected and preserved for future generations.

History will record that the council of Bill Kampe, Ken Cuneo, Rudy Fischer, Casey Lucius, Alan Cohen and Robert Huit was the one to allow the Pt. Pinos headlands to be changed to commercialized area of enterprise. It is simply a matter of doing business, as usual!

Boat parade lights up Cannery Row with a sense of adventure

By ELAINE HESSER

WHETHER IT'S Christmas or Hanukkah you're observing this winter, chances are you'll be lighting candles or hanging strings of lights. Besides being traditional, it's comforting to brighten the long nights with light.

Along the California coast, there's also a popular custom of lighted boat parades — more than 20 will take place this holiday season. Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club holds one such event and, according to Joe Headley, parade coordinator, the Monterey Bay parade is unique and challenging because it isn't confined to protected harbors or waterways, but takes place on the open sea along Cannery Row.

From a landlubber's point of view, sailing along in front of the Monterey Plaza and the Aquarium wouldn't seem to be all that daunting, but Headley — a longtime sailor — said it's really quite an adventure for the 20 or so boaters who participate. For starters, decorating the boats with hundreds or even thousands of lights is nothing like decorating your house. "Imagine you're decorating your car, and it's got poles sticking out all over, and it's moving," Headley said.

Also, once the parade exits the harbor, the skippers have trouble seeing where they're going, because all those lights on their boats make it hard to see what's happening in the distance.

And then there's the unpredictable Monterey Peninsula weather. Some years, the parade has been cancelled or postponed because conditions weren't suitable. Of course, there's no way to keep someone from going out if he's determined to do so — though Headley learned the hard way not to buck the system.

(Before continuing, Headley would want you to know that like all sea stories, this one is best experienced accompanied by an adult beverage or two.)

"My first foray," he began, "I decorated my boat, but the organizers with their experience and wisdom cancelled the parade because of a storm." Undaunted, he quickly rigged up a cover to keep the rain off the helm, took on some passengers who immediately and wisely went below deck, and headed out with two crewmembers — one on either side of him. As he rounded the first turn, an 8-to-10-foot wave broke over the deck, and a hard wind tore off his rain cover, but Headley kept going. "I was like Captain Ahab in pursuit of Moby Dick," he laughed, "I thought I'd just push through." When the second 8-footer broke, he and the crew decided it was time to end the one-boat parade. They turned around and made for the harbor.

Drama can also occur if a boat's lights suddenly blink out — as far as the other sailors are concerned, it's invisible until its emergency lights come on. Because of the hazards, Headley said communication is the key to successfully and safely completing the parade. "It's one of the most terrifying things I do all year," he said.

So why do it?

In spite of the potential danger, most years the skippers, their crews and their passengers have a lot of fun. And for the last 18 years, it's been something the non-profit club has enjoyed doing for the community. Headley explained that while the history's not been closely tracked, members agree that the lighted boat parade began as part of the Feast of Lanterns. It later was suggested it might be a great way to bring more holiday cheer to the waterfront. Originally, the parade went all the way to Lovers Point before turning around, but a nighttime journey that long was just too arduous.

Holiday boat parades take place in quite a few coastal towns, but organizers said Monterey's is different because its route includes the open sea. Above, a decorated yacht prepares to leave the Monterey harbor.

This year, at 3 p.m. on Dec. 7, the skippers will hold their traditional meeting to make a final decision on whether the seas are safe enough to proceed that evening at 5:30. Rain does not postpone or cancel the parade by itself; sometimes a light rain is accompanied by balmy weather and calm water.

Assuming the parade proceeds as planned, the boats will leave the harbor and pass the Coast Guard Pier a little after 6 p.m. They will sail down to the Aquarium, turn around and make a second pass by the judges' station at Massaro and Santos restaurant. This year's judges include KSBW anchors Dan Green and Erin Clark. According to Headley, the judging categories are a closely guarded secret — although efforts to ply judges with tequila are not uncommon. Decorations are often elaborate and themed to the boats' names or skippers. There's usually a "Best in Show," but Headley said judges let the boats suggest other categories. One year, a last-minute entry with a single string of LED lights was voted "Most Energy Efficient." Prizes are donated by waterfront businesses, and according to Headley, "The boaters are very grateful."

"It's a fantastic event," said Headley. "We hope that people will come out and support the restaurants along Cannery Row to watch." Sounds like a lovely way to spend a winter's Sunday evening.

More than 200 cast members, a variety of musical groups and a host of live animals bring history to life as they transform the streets of Salinas into the streets of Bethlehem.

■ Dec. 4 Pacific Grove Holiday Parade of Lights

584 Central Avenue, Pacific Grove
6 to 9 p.m.
(831) 373-3304

An annual “hometown” tradition, the Parade of Lights features marching bands, holiday floats, dance teams, equestrian groups and, for the grand finale, Santa Claus. After the parade, carolers stroll the streets in song, and stores remain open for holiday shopping.

■ Dec. 4 — Monterey’s Annual Tree Lighting Celebration

Colton Hall
570 Pacific St., Monterey
4 to 7:30 p.m.

Wear something warm and join the throngs in Historic Downtown Monterey for the traditional lighting of the grand Christmas Tree at Colton Hall. As the tree lights the night, the festive evening includes carols, candles, cookies, cider and good cheer.

Carmel Christmas
Tree Lighting Celebration

Devendorf Park
Ocean Avenue & Junipero Street, Carmel-by-the-Sea
4:30 p.m., festivities begin; 5:45 p.m., tree lighting

Wear warm clothes to this Carmel-by-the-Sea tradition. Festivities begin with music and entertainment, including performances by the Carmel Middle School Chorus, Junipero Serra School kids and other singers, and a reading of "Twas the Night Before Christmas" by Stephen Moorer. Refreshments will be provided by the Monterey Bay Area Chapter of the American Red Cross, with Sunset Center supplying candy canes for Santa to pass out. At nightfall, Mayor Jason Burnett will flip the switch to bring the tree to life against the dark sky. After the "oooooh" moment, spectators will be invited to attend the Carmel Plaza Holiday Open House for live music, free food, family fun and the chance for a word with Santa.

Another traditional favorite is the living nativity at Carmel Presbyterian, which take place right after the town's tree is lit. You can join the angels, shepherds and wise men — not to mention Mary, Joseph and the baby Jesus — at the manger scene while listening to carols performed by the choir and played by an instrumental ensemble. Cider and Christmas treats will be served, and you'll also have a chance to make a Christmas wreath.

Admission: adult $25, children 6-17 $2, children free, www.mshpa.org

Step back into Monterey's past during Christmas in the Adobes. Experience the historic adobes by candlelight, and enjoy refreshments and live performances as volunteers in period attire welcome you into historic homes decorated in style. The 19th-century adobes (20 in all) will be lit by luminarios and enhanced with traditional decorations, and will be within an easy walk of each other. Docents and volunteers share the story of each of the adobe dwellings, many of which are

■ Dec. 7 — Brighten the Harbor

Monterey Yacht Club
Monterey Bay Harbor
5:30 to 8 p.m.

By land, the lights are bright; by sea, they're positively resplendent against a night sky reflected in dark waters. The boats on Monterey Bay deck the hulls as they sail from the Coast Guard Pier past Cannery Row to the Aquarium and back, with crafts competing to win the highly coveted award for Best Decorations from the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club by the end of the evening. The boats, which illuminate the coastline from Monterey to Pacific Grove, are quite a sight on a silent night.

■ Dec. 9 — Cougar Cub Holiday Band and Orchestra Concert

Carmel Middle School Small Theater
4380 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley
7 p.m.

Carmel Middle School's 6th-grade band and orchestra students, known as the Cougar Club, will present a heartfelt instrumental holiday concert.

■ Dec. 12 — Seaside's Winter Wonderland

440 Harcourt Ave., Seaside
4:30 to 9 p.m.

Enjoy the season during Seaside's Winter Wonderland Celebration. Participate in arts and crafts, hay rides, ice skating and, as the sun sets on the scene, watch the official tree lighting, followed by a visit from Santa Claus.

■ Dec. 13 — Jingle Bell Run/Walk

Lovers Point Park, Pacific Grove
8 to 11 a.m.
(831) 620-1699

The Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce and the Arthritis Foundation present their annual 5K run or walk at Lovers Point Park. Participants are invited to wear holiday attire and tie jingle bells to their shoes to create a spirited run along the coast as they help raise funds to support the Arthritis Foundation. Santa sightings are anticipated within the crowd.

■ Dec. 13 — 56th Annual Santa's Fly-In

Carmel Valley Village Airfield & Carmel Valley Youth Center
25 Ford Road, Carmel Valley
10:30 a.m.

Santa and Mrs. Claus fly in by helicopter direct from the North Pole and land on the Carmel Valley Village Airfield, where they board their sleigh and lead a parade through the streets of the Carmel Valley Village. The parade includes horses, the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club train, unusual automobiles and festive revelers, and is followed by a concert and photo opp at Santa's Workshop in the Carmel Valley Youth Center.

Carmel High School's Winter Concert will celebrate the spirit of the season, featuring the high school's outstanding array of large ensembles — Concert Choir, Chamber Singers, Concert Band, String Orchestra and Jazz Ensemble — in a festive concert combining holiday music and other repertoire.

■ Dec. 31 — First Night Monterey

Historic Downtown Monterey

*2 p.m. to midnight
Admission: adults $24, youth $15, children 5 and under free www.firstnightmonterey.org.*

This family celebration of New Year's Eve through the arts features more than 30 venues with music, dance, poetry, special art installations and exhibits, both indoors and outside throughout historic downtown Monterey.

This year's artistic theme on which the visual program is designed is, "Sea Changes, The Seaquel." The goal of First Night is to provide an alcohol-free event suitable for the entire family. Near midnight, participants converge at Custom House Plaza to ring in the New Year.

■ Jan 1 — Rio Grill's Resolution Run

*Rio Grill Restaurant
101 Crossroads Blvd., Carmel
Cost: $40-$45 for adults, $25-$30 for kids 12 and under Race-day registration 7 a.m. to 8:45 a.m.; Race begins 9 a.m.
www.riogrillsresolutionrun.com*

Those who moderate their New Year's Eve celebrations in anticipation of the run, and some who don't, convene at Rio Grill Restaurant in the Crossroads Shopping Village at the dawn of the New Year to run up hill, down dale and along the coastline to the Carmel Mission.

Among the more scenic race courses, the Resolution Run requires resolve and a willingness to pause and enjoy the view along the 6.2-mile or 3.1-mile trek. Participants cross the finish line at Junipero Serra School and then walk back down Rio Road to the Crossroads for brunch, awards and prize drawings.

On Dec. 5, after the Carmel-by-the-Sea tree lighting ceremony, the festivities continue with a Living Nativity (top) at Carmel Presbyterian Church, and then an open house at Carmel Plaza.

"CARMEL LEGENDS"

We have lately (and temporarily) come into possession of a copy of the TELEPHONE DIRECTORY for Monterey and San Benito Counties dated February, 1930. It's a little larger than a Reader's Digest, a bit tattered, stained in places by wine and tomato sauce, and runs to about 100 pages. The Carmel section is 7 pages and lists numbers like 352-W, 44 and 2-J-5. Fairy Lee Byrd, for example, is 841, the Fire Department is 100, and Miss Eliza Clevenger is 1-J-3. Robinson Jeffers is not listed because he didn't believe in telephones. Edward Weston (782) and Hazel Watrous (361) did. The yellow pages are not yellow at all, run to 51 indexed pages and are called "Buyer's Guide." 94 restaurants are listed (9 in Carmel), and only 1 of the Carmel restaurants survives today. There were 42 physicians in 1930, more like 242 today. Real estate offices (may their tribe decrease) add up to 77, of which 3 are still extant in some form; but remember, this covers 2 counties. There were 82 hotels (some duplication), no motels. Ice business was big; 9 outlets. Travelling through this list of 57 years ago is fascinating ... and more than slightly disconcerting. Do you suppose that somebody in the year 2044 will be equally enchanted with our telephone book?

Stuffing 101: how to explain stuffing a turkey to a bachelor

MY FAVORITE nephew is single, has Tom Cruise good looks and lives in Carlsbad in what could only be called a perpetual light-beer commercial. He is not much of a cook, but he decided to entertain guests for Thanksgiving.

He loves my stuffing, so I was honored when he emailed me for the recipe. I can follow a recipe, but I've never tried to explain some basic cooking concepts to someone with a smaller culinary comfort zone than my own — and who only understands several dialects of Bimbo-ese. I knew I had my work cut out for me when in his e-mail he asked if he should remove the dressing mix from the box before he put it in the turkey. I decided to approach the project by explaining things in sports metaphors that I knew he would be able to interpret.

These were my instructions:

■ Buy two bags of stuffing mix. Make sure it has sage flavoring. It comes loose the way you like to crumple saltines in your tomato soup, or it comes in little cubes. Stick with the cubes. How big a bag? Depends on the size of your bird, but the bags should be the size of one of those models in Victoria's Secret commercials. (He'll know what I mean).

■ Next get two packages of premium pork sausage. It comes in a silver wrapper and it is close to the size of a toilet paper roll with about 50 sheets of paper still on it. Make sure it says "sage" under "premium," with "Our Special Recipe" in red letters. Look in the meat case near hot dogs.

■ You'll need two or three cans of chicken broth. Not big cans like Quaker Oats boxes, but small ones about the size of tomato soup cans. A stalk of celery. It's green with a leafy top that looks like Bart Simpson's head. And two onions the size of tennis balls after the Williams sisters have been beating on them for nine games.

■ Chop the onions and celery. Get one of those inexpensive choppers that you pound on like you're dribbling a basketball. Do the onions first then chop an amount of celery equal to the onions — about a cup's worth (better make that a C-cup's worth.)

Oh, don't forget to cut off Barts hair, and use just the stalks — except for the white-ish part at the bottom.

■ Now sauté ... (Hmm, I don't he'll he understand "sauté.") OK. Melt about a half of a quarter stick of butter in a fry pan — low heat so it doesn't burn. When it's melted, add the chopped celery (now turn the heat back up). Handicap the onions by giving the celery about a three-minute head start; the onions will catch up soon enough.

Cook the onions until they are the color of the hair of that third Laker Girl from the left.

it get too moist since it will pick up moisture from the turkey while it's cooking.

■ Will he know about salmonella? Don't forget to wash the turkey. Not with soap, just cold water. Pat it dry with a soft dish towel — gently, almost caressing it. How gently? Remember how you fantasized about that Laker Girl?

Jerry Gervase can be contacted at jerry@gervase.com

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

You know, the one we always zeroed in on with the binoculars during halftime at the Staples Center. In fact you can use her to reference the size of the stuffing mix bags.

The celery is done when it's the color of the beat-up tennis balls. Turn the heat off and set aside the onions and celery.

■ Slit the sausage package down the middle lengthwise like they do autopsies on that crime show "CSI." Turn the package inside out and push the meat out the way your Grandpa used to turn out his suspenders.

Push the meat into another fry pan. Brown the sausage, mashing it down with a fork the way you used to try to destroy green beans on your plate, thinking they would magically disappear.

■ Mix the onions, celery and sausage in a large pot. Add about half a can of chicken broth, then half a package of stuffing until it is the consistency of the stones and glop you would take out of your rock polisher after it ran for a week. Continue to add a little stuffing mix with a little chicken broth. Don't let

Carmel Valley: An adult missing person was reported on Village Drive.

Carmel area: An unknown suspect entered the Safeway supermarket at the Crossroads shopping center and walked out with several items, for which he had not paid. A 33-year-old male was arrested.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female on Perry Newberry Way stated a friend of her boyfriend grabbed her arm and leg. She called 911 but did not wish prosecution.

Pacific Grove: Visitor reported that a man claiming to be a P.G. vacation-home owner had advertised the home on Craigslist. Visitor sent money to rent the home via wire transfer. When the victim showed up to stay in the vacation home on Sinex and could not get in, the victim contacted the real owner.

Pacific Grove: Person called requesting a welfare check because his elderly father had allowed a transient woman to stay at the father's residence on Fountain Avenue. The woman had been displaying signs of mental illness and started to make the father uncomfortable. When police arrived to check on the elderly man, the man said he wanted the woman to leave. The woman voluntarily packed her bags and left the house without incident. Officers explained landlord-tenant issues that could arise because the woman had been staying with him for over a month.

Pacific Grove: At 1747 hours, a woman brought a money clip to the lobby. She did not want to give her name and could not remember where she picked up the item.

Pacific Grove: Juvenile female, age 16, was observed intoxicated and staggering in the roadway on Sunset. Issued a citation and transported the juvenile to her residence. Released to mother's care.

Big Sur: Person met some people in the woods while hiking off of Highway 1 in Big Sur.

Carmel area: Vehicle was parked at a scenic spot along Highway 1 near the 62 mile marker. While the 31-year-old male victim was away from his vehicle, someone broke into it and stole various items.

Carmel area: Two 35-year-old females reported their vehicle had been broken into and a purse was stolen while it was parked on Highway 1 at mile marker 63.

Carmel area: A CSUMB student reported being sexually assaulted at a residence on Escolle Way. The case was investigated and was found to have occurred in the City of Carmel. It was also found to not be what was originally reported. The student later requested not to have further investigation.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 16

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Unattended cellular phone located in the residential area of Carpenter Street was turned over for safekeeping pending return to owner. Property returned to owner at 1245 hours.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported loss of a Bluetooth device for his cellular phone.

POLICE

Item last seen while in the commercial district

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog found running loose in the area of Torres and Fourth; captured and turned over to police department for safekeeping pending owner notification. At 1900, owner contacted police, kennel fee was paid, and the dog was returned to its rightful owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Owner of an inn on San Antonio Avenue received suspicious calls from a subject claiming to be calling from Fort Worth, but calls were from a pay phone in Coalinga. Caller requested reservations for dates in December. Person advised to screen calls to prevent any further contact from caller.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Unattended cellular phone found on 15th Avenue and turned in to police for safekeeping. Beat deputy extended on other calls. Property held at CPD pending identification and return to owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: After a traffic stop on Highway 1, a 19-year-old male driver was found to be in possession of a controlled substance for sale. The driver admitted to swallowing a plastic bag containing heroin. The driver was transported to the hospital and lodged into county jail.

Pacific Grove: Reserve officers provided traffic, crowd and race control for a running event. Assisted with one medical call at Lovers Point. Multiple contacts with spectators and race crew regarding safety of citizens and those involved in the race. Also helped set up and tear down the course as needed.

Pacific Grove: Someone broke into a vehicle on Chestnut Street, took several items, and left behind sunglasses. Upon doing an area check, it was discovered a motion light located behind the victim's vehicle was broken. No witnesses and no suspect information.

Carmel Valley: Three males caused a disturbance at a tasting room on East Carmel Valley Road at 0118 hours. They challenged others to fight, and one of them brandished a firearm at a 25-year-old male.

Pebble Beach: New York resident, a 54-year-old female, reported losing her ID somewhere in Pebble Beach along 17 Mile Drive.

Carmel Valley: Male reported that his adult mother on East Carmel Valley Road intentionally took several prescribed pills in an attempt to overdose.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 17

Branch by the owner on Saturday, Nov. 15. Camera turned over to CPD for safekeeping pending return to owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog captured in the commercial district on Torres Street. Dog returned to owner at 1150 hours at CPD.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 61-year-old male was stopped for a variety of CVC violations and subsequently arrested for DUI.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Second Avenue resident came into the station to report the loss of his German shepherd. At 2127 hours, he called back to advise that the dog had returned back to the residence.

Pacific Grove: Observed two people having an argument on Lighthouse Avenue. Couple had a minor argument regarding breakfast. Male wanted an apology from the female. No physical altercation.

Pacific Grove: Driver was traveling over the posted speed limit on Pine. He claimed he saw an animal that ran across the road and swerved to avoid hitting it. Driver hit a raised curb and overturned his vehicle. No one else was involved in the accident, and he did not sustain any injuries.

Pebble Beach: Pebble Beach resident, a 61-year-old male who lives on Larkin, reported receiving threatening phone calls from his estranged son, age 28.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of JOHN FAIA, JR. Case Number MP 21726

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JOHN FAIA, JR.,

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JOHN FAIA, III in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that JOHN FAIA, III be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held on in this court as follows:
Date: January 28, 2015
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Dept.: 16

Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
