Settlement ends fight over CLM restaurant

By KELLY NIX

AN UGLY lawsuit over control of a trendy Los Angeles restaurant has been settled after a March 20 meeting between David Bernahl and his partners in the business, Jeff and Cindy Troesh, according to Bernahl's attorney.

"At this time, I can only say that the parties have amicably resolved their dispute," attorney Scott Vick said Monday.

The resolution leaves Bernahl in control of Faith & Flower restaurant, but his culinary empire still faces mounting legal problems. At one time, Bernahl and his former partner, Rob Weakley, and their company, Coastal Luxury Management, owned Pebble Beach Food & Wine, Los Angeles Food & Wine and two Monterey restaurants, and operated a chic Las Vegas nightclub, but last year Weakley left the company. His departure was followed by a series of lawsuits and countersuits alleging fraud, conspiracy and other serious misdeeds.

Among them was a suit filed late last year by the Troeshes against Bernahl, accusing him of embezzling money for personal use and defaulting on Faith & Flower's $20,000-per-month rent, claims Bernahl has strongly denied.

In turn, Bernahl filed a Dec. 9, 2014, countersuit in Los Angeles County Superior Court claiming Weakley and the Troeshes tried to seize the restaurant by crafting a fake promissory note. Weakley and the Troeshes, through their respective attorneys, have denied that charge.

Those lawsuits have both been settled now, according to Vick.

City fees for car events put them in jeopardy

■ P.G. Auto Rally says 'no thanks' to $12K charge, Tour d'Elegance will have to pay even more

By MARY SCHLEY

AFTER TWO decades of making its annual cruise through town during Concours Week, the Pacific Grove Auto Steep increases in city fees for special events could make scenes like this disappear. This week, the P.G. Auto Rally said it would no longer pass through town because its fee was increased to more than $12,000.

Rally will drop Carmel from its route this year, rather than pay thousands of dollars in fees and apply to the city for a permit for the brief use of the beach parking lot. The announcement of the cancellation was made by library and community services director Janet Bombard at this week's community activities and cultural commission meeting.

In the past, organizers of the P.G. rally — a charity event for the town's youth center — weren't charged anything for their trek through town, but made an annual donation to the Carmel Police Department's DARE program each year as a show of gratitude for being able to bring the rally to Carmel, where hundreds of spectators line Ocean Avenue to watch them drive by.

But last month, the cultural commission decided the P.G. rally should be charged the fees charged to all other events — including overtime for police officers, the placement of barricades and signs, and other expenses.

Bombard told The Pine Cone she advised Jeanne Byrne, longtime organizer of the P.G. rally, she would have to pay $155 for a permit, $1,340 for barricades and signs, $5,840 for street closures, $690 for 10 hours of public works overtime, plus overtime for seven police officers, at a cost of $3,094, among other fees. She was also told she'd have to apply for a Coastal Development Permit to take over the parking lot at the foot of Ocean Avenue for staging the cars after they exit Pebble Beach via the Carmel Gate. The application fee for that would be $361.65, and the permit would require a hearing by the planning commission. All told, the city fee estimate totaled $12,386.65.

At the March 24 meeting, Bombard updated the commis-

Judge: Grand jury will have to prove it needs records

By MARY SCHLEY

A MONTEREY County Superior Court Judge said Wednesday that she won't be able to decide whether the county's civil grand jury can have access to personnel files for Carmel employees until the grand jury explains why it wants them.

"The court must balance the constitutional privacy rights of the city employees against the right of the grand jury to investigate," Monterey County Superior Court Judge Lydia Villarreal wrote in her March 24 ruling on the City of Carmel's efforts to quash a Monterey County Civil Grand Jury subpoena demanding the records of 10 current and former city employees. The grand jury is seeking the files in its investigation of city operations under former city administrator Jason Stilwell.

To do so, Villarreal concluded, the grand jury must present evidence to the judge's chamber and show sufficient cause why it should have access to the documents. The meeting will be conducted in her chambers and will be held in camera, the judge said, which means "in secret."

The decision followed last week's court hearing, in which chief assistant county counsel Leslie Girard argued state law empowers the civil grand jury — which is obligated to keep confidential all its records and discussions, and is overseen by the presiding judge — to see any records it wants, while Carmel city attorney Don Freeman countered that the California Constitution guarantees the employees a right to privacy that cannot be violated by the civil grand jury.

In her ruling, Villarreal gives credibility to both sides.

Lawsuit filed because county says you can't have 499 roosters

By KELLY NIX

THREE MEN are crying foul over a Monterey County ordinance that limits the number of roosters county residents can have on their property.

In a lawsuit filed March 16, James Leahy, Heriberto Perez and Miguel Angel Reyes Robles challenge a Dec. 16, 2014, ordinance passed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors that decreases the number of roosters or "crowing fowl" one can have from 499 to only four.

The county contends the purpose of the law isn't to interfere with anybody's rights, or even to keep crowing to a tolerable level. Instead, it's to prevent the keeping of roosters for illegal cockfighting, to ensure their humane treatment and address "adverse effects" that unregulated rooster-keeping

Mystery solved: Carmel Valley 'ruins' identified as MJ Murphy's hideaway

By ELAINE HESSER

THE MYSTERY of the ruins at Peter Coniglio's Carmel Valley property — including some aging stone buildings, a large deck and a pool — has been solved.

After our story appeared in last week's In Your Dreams special section, several readers stepped up with information that the complex was built by and belonged to famed Carmel builder MJ Murphy.

His grandson, Tom Gladney, of MJ Murphy Lumber and Hardware in Carmel Valley, has many happy memories of weeks spent there. Gladney's family lived in northern California, but they'd make family visits to "Grandpa's grill" — or just "The Grill." Murphy lived at Ninth and Monte Verde, so the family piled into the car with plenty of food and headed for the secluded hillside spot.

Gladney said Murphy chose the location for privacy and that it took about five years to build the patio, kitchen and grill.

"It was something he enjoyed doing," said Gladney.

Just what she needed

SHE THOUGHT she had her hands full. Her dog had died, and she was care-taking her mom, whose prognosis was poor. Deciding a Golden Retriever puppy was just what they needed around the house to lift their spirits, she put her name on the waiting list with a prominent local breeder. She knew her life was changing. She just didn't know how much. And then she got the call.

A Golden Retriever, who had given birth while the family was away, had died, leaving six puppies in need of round-the-clock love, stimulation and bottle-feeding. She agreed to take them all.

For eight weeks, she and her mother, their neighbors and friends, took turns nurturing the newborns, each of whom she gave a name beginning with the letter J. In the end, only three survived, of which two, Jenny and Jeff. She kept, while Jack now lives with her sister on Whidbey Island, WA.

Now 9 years old, Jenny and Jeff still play like puppies at the beach, their antics somewhere between sibling rivalry and flirtation.

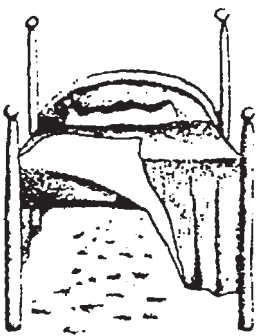

"Jeffrey won my heart," says his person, "with his mellow, easy-going personality. But it was watching him play with his sister that made me decide I couldn't separate them, so I kept Jenny, too."

She'd never had a female dog before, and having one convinces her of the differences between boys and girls.

"Jeffrey is totally a guy," she says. "He goes along the beach, chasing flies or his shadow or whatever. Jenny is an instigator. She crouches behind seaweed, trying to get Jeff to play with her. Once she gives up and finds someone else, then he joins in. They're classic."

The high cost of finding sanctuary for sexually violent predators

By KELLY NIX

IT COSTS state taxpayers more than $2.7 million a year to take care of serious sex offenders after they've served their time in prison and been confined in a state mental facility, according to the Department of State Hospitals.

A private company — Pennsylvania-based Liberty Healthcare Corp. — has a three-year, $8,283,036 contract to find homes for the state's scariest sex offenders once they're ready to be returned to the community.

In Monterey County, Liberty is in the midst of trying to find a home for Eldridge Lindsey Chaney Jr., who was convicted of several felony sex offenses against women and a teenage girl in Seaside in 1988. After serving more than two decades in prison, Chaney has been cleared for release from Coalinga State Hospital, where he was treated.

And taking care of Chaney and only 13 other sexually violent predators (including one woman) who are seeking release isn't cheap.

"For the current fiscal year," Ken August, assistant director of communications for the Department of State Hospitals, told The Pine Cone this week, "the budgeted average cost-per-patient of an individual in the

it's not clear how much it will be on the hook for involving Chaney's release, including services provided by the county district attorney's office and sheriff's office.

Monterey County spokeswoman Maia Carroll told The Pine Cone, "The district attorney is not anticipating any additional budgeting," since any work related to Chaney will be considered part of the DA's office workload.

Chaney was convicted of rape and assault with intent to commit rape on several women including a military wife and a 16-year-old girl. He used weapons to scare his victims. His first offense was in 1978 and his last in 1988.

Now in his 60s, Chaney spent more than 20 years in prison before being treated at state hospitals in Atascadero and Coalinga.

"Chaney has stated that he believed each of his victims had rejected him and mistreated him," according to a November 2013 Sixth District Court of Appeal document citing the psychiatrist. "As a result, he wanted revenge on them." In the mental health professional's opinion, though, therapy "had given Chaney a mechanism to identify and correct any such thoughts."

Individuals who have gone through the conditional release program have a 6 percent chance of reoffending, state figures show.

Harsh report released

Meanwhile, in a critical report released March 12, State Auditor Elaine M. Howle found that the Department of State Hospitals' evaluation of potential sexually violent predators was "inconsistent."

"Although state law requires that evaluators consider a number of factors about offenders, such as their criminal and psychosexual histories," Howle wrote, "we noted instances in which evaluators did not consider all relevant information."

The auditor found gaps in policies, supervision and training it says may have contributed to inconsistent evaluations.

Eldridge Chaney

Conditional Release Program is $200,012."

Since 1996, 32 SVPs have been reintroduced into society through the Conditional Release Program run by Liberty Healthcare. The program finds sexual deviants homes "once psychiatric symptoms have been stabilized and they are considered no longer to be a danger."

But Liberty's contract with the state requires it do more than just house-hunting.

"The contract covers treatment, monitoring and the supervision of treatment," according to DSH spokesman Ralph Montañó.

Company representatives travel up and down the state to attend court hearings, conduct therapy sessions and testing, and track the sex offenders after their release.

"Liberty gets the contract amount whether it has 10 SVPs on conditional release, or if there are 15 or 20," Montañó said about the contract.

Tax dollars are also spent on housing, personnel costs, psychiatric evaluations, lie-detector tests, GPS tracking of SVPs, and other case management services, including "penile plethysmography" — a test that determines predators' arousal to explicit images. (A psychiatrist who treated Chaney testified at a 2011 court hearing that it's possible for SVPs to "beat" such tests.)

Compensation for Liberty employees includes $130,588 for a program director and $128,062 for a clinical director.

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Potpourri not suitable for smoking

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

TUESDAY, MARCH 10

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported that while she was walking by the beach, she was flagged down by a male who pulled next to her in his vehicle and asked for directions. Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported encountering an old acquaintance on San Carlos north of Ocean over a five-year span. Each time, he met with verbal abuse over a perceived slight. He wanted it documented.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female at San Carlos and Fifth reported a verbal altercation with her business partner's wife. She reported her business partner's wife bumped into her. The female requested a report and information on how to obtain a restraining order.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a female removing plants from a business at Junipero and Ocean.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male reported his co-worker's ex-boyfriend showed up near their workplace at Ocean and Monte Verde and wanted to talk to his coworker. He reported a history of violence between the two and wanted to report the encounter to police. The female was contacted and said there was no physical altercation; verbal only. The female was advised on how to obtain a restraining order.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle was parked legally on Pine, and a palm tree leaf fell and damaged the top right portion of his vehicle. The damage consisted of a dent. Photographs were taken. A witness stated she heard the branch fall on the vehicle.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle fire in a carport on Lobos. Owner was pouring water over the engine upon arrival, but small flames continued to burn. Flames put out by fire extinguisher. Fire contained to engine area.

Pacific Grove: Vandalism on Locust. No leads.

Carmel Valley: Female on Cachagua Road stated her neighbor dug up some water pipes on her property without her permission.

Carmel Valley: Called to property line/easement and/or right-of-way dispute on Tassajara Road. One property owner was alleging violations, illegal grading and cutting of heritage oaks. Civil matter, and parties referred to their respective attorneys.

Carmel Valley: Driver left after giving a name and number but refusing to give insurance info at a Carmel Valley Road location where an accident occurred. Later, he advised it was a misunderstanding or miscommunication with an employee, and the matter was taken care of. Case closed.

Carmel area: A male was found deceased in his residence on Lorca Lane.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Santa Lucia resident reported an ex-roommate called her and made her feel uncomfortable. The ex-roommate stated he was going to come to her house, even though the female told him not to. The female was counseled and advised to call police if the male showed up to her residence.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A vehicle was taken from a driveway on March 11 between the hours of 0900 and 1000. The keys were in the vehicle. The vehicle was located the next day at Casanova and 11th. The suspect, a 24-year-old male, was identified and arrested.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Citizen reported finding a debit card in the street. No contact information for owner. Card destroyed.

School board picks new superintendent

By MARY SCHLEY

THE SEARCH for a new superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District yielded 28 applications, and after two full days of candidate interviews earlier this month, the board this week selected Scott Laurence as its top choice to replace superintendent Marvin Biasotti, who is retiring this year.

Laurence, 57, currently superintendent of San Mateo Union High School District, has also been a teacher, principal and administrator for the Palo Alto Unified School District. CUSD board president Rita Patel said his "experience and personal qualities are exactly what the board and our community stakeholders wanted to see in the next leader of Carmel Unified."

If contract negotiations with Laurence are successful, the school board is expected to vote on an employment offer to Laurence at its April 1 meeting, according to Patel.

She described Laurence as "an educational leader who has a passion for helping all students achieve their full potential," and said he has overseen educational reforms in San Mateo "that have made a positive difference in the lives of thousands of children, whether they are college bound or interested in immediate career opportunities."

Board members also determined he was the best overall candidate in terms of school leadership, including curriculum and instruction, as well as budgeting and fiscal oversight, facilities and human resources.

"He is well known and respected as a student-centered leader who is highly visible, approachable and accessible," Patel said. His salary will be "competitive with the market to attract highly qualified candidates," she added, and "a multi-year contract will be considered."

Laurence holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in history and economics, as well as a master's in education, from Stanford University, and started his career in education as a history and social studies teacher at Palo Alto High School. He taught there for 13 years before going on to become principal at Gunn High School, a position he later took at Palo Alto High School.

He moved to the superintendent's role in 2007, when he was named assistant superintendent at Palo Alto Unified, and then became superintendent of the San Mateo Union High School District in 2009.

He lives in San Martin with his wife, Kathie, who is assistant principal at Palo Alto High School, and they have two children, one working in special education, also at Palo Alto Unified, and the other studying computers at De Anza Community College.

Spring Fling is raffle this year

TULARCITOS SCHOOL'S PTO is forgoing the dinner part of its annual Spring Fling this year, instead focusing on a raffle of several elaborate prize packages to help raise money for the school.

The Spring Fling Raffle Roundup will be held Friday, March 27, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the Georis Tasting Room in Carmel Valley Village. And after the event, customers at the nearby Corkscrew Cafe and Valley Greens Gallery will be helping the school, too, since those venues have agreed to donate 20 percent of their proceeds to the PTO, "to enrich the education of all students at Tularcitos Elementary."

Raffle packages include a trip to Disneyland, being Principal for the Day, a dental cleaning and WaterPik, tickets to a San Francisco Giants game, a golf and spa package, a dedicated Tularcitos parking spot, and a Monterey Bay Staycation. Each ticket costs $10, or for six tickets for $50, and cash or checks are accepted. Tickets are available at the school office.

Too many tourists and not enough restrooms create mess in Big Sur

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH A growing number of visitors pouring down Highway 1 to see Monterey County's famous coastline, Big Sur's shortage of public restrooms is becoming more apparent, and unsightly, mainly because of the toilet paper and human waste that can be found near many turnouts.

To address the issue at two state parks down the coast, a plan is in the works to install what are known as "vault toilets" at four locations. But the project lacks much of the funding it needs.

And even if the plan does come to fruition, state parks official Mat Fuzie said the effort will only partly remedy the situation. Fuzie, who serves as Monterey district superintendent, said other agencies with bigger budgets will need to help solve the problem.

As anyone who drives Highway 1 frequently through Big Sur can attest, traffic has increased dramatically along the 60-mile scenic route in recent years. With few public restrooms available, it's not surprising that many visitors simply pull into a turnout when nature calls and duck behind a bush or tree. The evidence they leave behind is undeniable — and appalling.

"There's toilet paper in every turnout," said Mike Splain, the executive director of the nonprofit Ventana Wilderness Alliance. "It's disgusting."

"It's a serious health issue," offered Stan Russell, the executive director of the Big Sur Chamber of Commerce. "It breaks my heart to see it."

Orange County teen's off-trail adventure lands him in hospital

By CHRIS COUNTS

A YOUNG man discovered the hard way that Big Sur's steep terrain can be dangerous when he was injured while scampering up rocks along McWay Creek this week.

The 17-year-old from Fullerton was visiting Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park with his family March 23 when the accident occurred, reported Jon Knight, a captain with the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade.

"He decided to climb up a cliff next to a small waterfall," said Knight, who lives nearby and quickly responded to incident. "But unfortunately, he slipped and tumbled about 100 feet. I got the call at about 3:30 p.m."

Big Sur volunteers and state park workers used a rescue basket to carry the teen to Highway 1 where an ambulance was awaiting him. From there, he was driven a short distance north along the road to a scenic vista and turnout, where a helicopter transported him to the new trauma unit at Natividad Medical Center in Salinas.

The young man appeared to be OK, Knight said.

"He had some small lacerations, but he never lost consciousness," he added. "He was really lucky he wasn't seriously hurt. I've seen people fall 20 feet and suffer worse injuries."

Knight said the incident is another reminder that people need to be cautious when hiking in Big Sur, especially off-trail.

Revised parcel count in Carmel Valley leads to call for fewer new lots

By CHRIS COUNTS

LAND USE watchdogs are alarmed by a revision from Monterey County officials in the number of vacant lots that exist in Carmel Valley.

According to the county, there are 413 vacant parcels in Carmel Valley — 155 more than 258 vacant lots that were identified during the negotiations for the 2010 General Plan.

When that plan was adopted, county officials lifted a building moratorium and determined Carmel Valley could accommodate the creation of 266 new lots, on top of the 258 then said to exist. In 2013, as part of the settlement of a lawsuit that contended the county violated the California Environmental Quality Act by the way it conducted traffic studies along Carmel Valley Road, the cap on new units was reduced to 190.

It's unclear what impact the revised vacant lot count will have on new construction in Carmel Valley. State law and the U.S. Constitution make it very difficult to put existing lots off limits to development, and if it was up to the Carmel Valley Association, the cap on new lots would therefore be lowered.

"The county must now recognize that new development should be reduced based on new data," contend members Janet Brennan and Christine Williams in an article included in the most recent CVA newsletter.

Explaining why her group is concerned about the discovery of 155 additional vacant lots, outgoing CVA president Mibs McCarthy told The Pine Cone Carmel Valley simply can't handle the additional development.

"We don't want to widen Carmel Valley Road, we don't want stop lights through valley, and there's no water — in case you haven't heard," McCarthy said.

In response to the CVA's concerns, county planning official Carl Holm said not all of the 413 vacant lots are buildable. He also insisted the cap of 190 units was bargained "in good faith" and the county has no plans to reopen negotiations on the subject.

■ EIRs for two projects to be released

In other Carmel Valley land use news, the environmental impact report for the Carmel Canine Sports Center project is scheduled to be released next week. The proposal to establish a dog training facility on 45 acres at 8100 Valley Greens Dr. has been the subject of much contention — particularly a plan to host up to 24 special events per year and bring in as many as 70 RVs at a time.

While county planning official John Ford couldn't provide a date, he said the EIR for Ranch Canada Village subdivision will be likely be released "relatively soon." Alan Williams of the Carmel Development Company said he's anticipating the document will be available to the public in April. The project has been scaled back from 281 units to 130 units. The 130 units would count against the cap of 190 new lots.

Carmel High Mock Trial team wins sixth place at state finals

By CHRISTOPHER GOOD

ON MARCH 22, the Riverside Convention Center was filled with thunderous applause and smiling faces: after a weekend of stress, tears, and paperwork, the Carmel High School mock trial team had won sixth place at the California state finals.

After driving down to Riverside on March 19, the team competed in four different trials, each of which lasted hours (what coach Bill Schrier called "war by attrition"). However, the team overcame these challenges — and on Sunday, they learned they had placed within the top ten.

Yet, Carmel's success didn't end there: Out of thousands of the students involved in mock trial competition, the J. Skelly Wright Outstanding Pretrial Attorney Award was presented to Carmel sophomore Anna Gumberg. The announcement was met with cries of joy from Gumberg's teammates.

"The really incredible thing about this mock trial season is that we accomplished every single goal we set out to achieve," said club president Erika Depalatis. "I don't think we could have done so without the hours and hours we spent poring over case materials, practicing, and growing closer as a team," DePalatis added.

Carmel's achievement is something of a milestone — it is not only the best performance in the school's history, but the highest place ever scored by a Monterey County team. Furthermore, the victory coincides with the team's tenth anniversary.

Led by high-scoring junior, lacrosse team is on a roll

By CHRIS COUNTS

AFTER HIS team captured last year's Mission Trail Athletic League crown, Carmel High School lacrosse coach Max Murphy has set his sights on a bigger goal this season.

"We went out of our way to schedule as many tough opponents as possible so we can make a case that we're one of the better teams in California," Murphy told The Pine Cone.

The Padres are off to a great start this season. The team is 6-0 so far, and home wins last week against rivals Pacific Grove High (19-2) and Stevenson School (10-4) indicate just how well they are playing. The team also took home the top prize in last weekend's Play by the Bay Tournament in Aptos, winning all five of its games.

But Carmel High's biggest win came March 7 against San Francisco University High School, a lacrosse powerhouse. The Padres won a thrilling 13-12 game against a team that's ranked 12th in the state and 44th in the country. Carmel High is now ranked 14th in the state and 65th in the country.

Pacing Carmel High's offense is junior Morgan Koucky, who leads the 14-team Mission Trails Athletic Conference in scoring. Koucky has recorded 27 goals and added five assists so far this season.

Murphy said the youngster is worthy of being considered for All-American status as a high school player, even though only seniors are eligible for the honor.

"Morgan is making a very strong case to be an All-American," Murphy added. "He's drawing double-teams and triple-teams, and he's able to play through all that. He's a high-caliber student athlete who's a leader and a role model for the other guys on the team."

P.G. MAN FEEDS HOMELESS, SEEKS DONATIONS FOR EASTER BREAKFAST

By KELLY NIX

EVERY SUNDAY morning, about 50 people converge on a beach in Monterey to enjoy a tasty, hot-cooked meal. The unassuming chef is a 72-year-old Pacific Grove man who enjoys cooking for his patrons as much as they like eating his food.

On and off for about three years, Al Siekert has fed the needy and homeless at Monterey State Beach off of Del Monte Avenue, but for the past few months has tried to make it a weekly practice. He cooks up something he calls a country sausage pie — essentially a frittata — and serves it at 9:30 a.m. across the street from McDonald's on the benches at the beach.

"I really endeavor to make sure folks got a nutritious meal rather than coffee and donuts," Siekert told The Pine Cone this week.

It costs about $140 per week to buy ingredients for the food. Grove Market owner Charlie Higuera cuts him a break on the sausage while Troia's Market discounts cheese for the recipe.

"I do three sheet pans and three skillets," Siekert said. "I cook it early in the morning and at 8 a.m. it comes out of the oven, and then I take it down to the beach. I use all fresh ingredients — there is nothing canned."

He's seeking donations to prepare a meal for Easter Sunday.

"I want to do something special," he said.

While many of those he feeds are homeless, some are "just hungry and interested in what is going on," Siekert said, adding that his customers are young and old.

"You never know what age you're going to feed," he said. "I've seen infants in arms ... and you can certainly tell [their parents] are in need."

Though some of the people he feeds have substance abuse problems, Siekert doesn't inquire.

Long ago, he had his own problems.

"I've had those demons," Siekert said. "Thirty years ago I couldn't write my own name, I was too brain gone."

Siekert credits generous donors for making the weekly breakfasts possible. Last Friday, he went door-to-door in P.G. asking citizens for cash. More than a dozen people contributed.

"I collected $56 that day," he said. "I got $5 here, $20 there and $2 there. Somebody gave me some change."

Response to his meals, Siekert said, has been extraordinary. He has regulars. Some people ask for seconds.

"This is absolutely fantastic," one woman recently told filmmaker Bob Pacelli, who interviewed Siekert and his customers for a film entitled "Down but Not Out," premiering this fall at the Monarch Film Festival. "I don't even want to eat it, I want to save it."

To contact Siekert, call (831) 402-0820.

Stevenson junior accepted into prestigious science program

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A STEVENSON School junior has been accepted to a competitive summer science program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

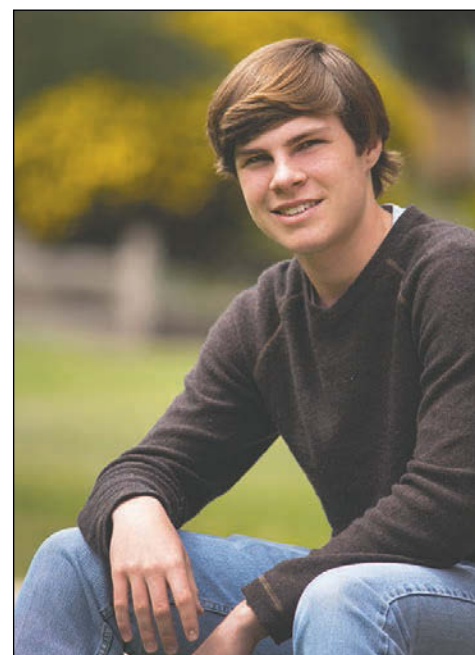

Chapman Caddell, 17, will attend MIT's Research Science Institute — an intensive six-week program intended to kick start jobs in science, mathematics, engineering and technological industries. Only one to three percent of the program's roughly 3,000 applicants are accepted.

"I am very excited to have this opportunity and look forward to a great summer at MIT," Caddell told The Pine Cone. "It's something I've wanted and worked toward for years."

The MIT program combines on-campus course work in scientific theory with off-campus work in science and technology research. Program scholars first participate in a week of intensive classes with accomplished professors.

The heart of RSI is the five-week research internship where students conduct individual projects under the tutelage of mentors who are experienced scientists and researchers. During the final week of RSI, students prepare written and oral presentations on their research projects.

GROWTH & GOOD TIMES!

Graeme Robertson
2015 Board Chair

It's hard to believe that the first quarter of 2015 is just about over. The overall feeling in town is that business conditions are good. There appears to be more activity in our member's businesses and the two key measurements for business activity are showing positive trends: TOT +3.98% and sales tax revenue +2.6%. The latest research by Visa-Vue indicates that our friends from China account for the largest percentage growth in spending in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Congratulations to the Carmel Pine Cone on their 100th anniversary. Paul Miller and his excellent team provide a critical service to our community every week by updating us on all the local news and events. We all look forward to the Thursday night email edition and the paper copy on Friday. Thanks to the entire team for the information you provide our community.

Please join us in welcoming our newest members to the Carmel Chamber of Commerce: Carrigg's of Carmel, Dolci di Carmel French Macarons, Exclusive Home Management, Fenton & Keller, Molly Doty Executive Coaching & Consulting, Mundaka, Stevenson School and Titus Contemporary Gallery.

We are looking forward to our next mixers at La Playa Carmel on April 8th and at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca on April 30. In May, the Monterey County Vintners' and Growers Association will host the annual Winemakers Celebration on Dolores Street. Last year's event was spectacular and we hope to see you on May 2.

As always, we welcome your participation, support, comments and feedback.

'Les Misérables' opens in Monterey

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE WILDLY successful musical adaptation of Victor Hugo's classic story of an ex-convict's quest for redemption, "Les Misérables," opens Saturday, March 28, at the Golden State Theatre in Monterey.

Acclaimed as one of the greatest novels of the 19th century, "Les Misérables" was first adapted to the stage in 1980, when a French-language musical opened. In 1987, an English-language version became a hit on Broadway.

Presented by the San Francisco-based Broadway by the Bay and directed by Jason Jeffrey, "Les Misérables" features a cast of more than 50 actors, including Adam Campbell as Valjean, Anthony Bernal as Javert and Samantha Cardenas as Cosette.

"It has a beautiful score and a host of talented actors and actresses," said Lori Lochtenfeld, co-owner of the theater.

The musical also plays Sunday, March 29, Saturday, April 4, and Sunday, April 5. Saturday performances start at 8 p.m., while Sunday matinees begin at 2 p.m.

the Golden State Theatre. Also featured will be "My Fair Lady" (June 27-July 5), "West Side Story" (September 5-13), and "Kiss Me Kate" (November 28-December 6).

The theater is located at 417 Alvarado St. Tickets are $39 to $59. Call (831) 649-1070.

■ 'Kill Your Darlings'

A theater teacher at Stevenson School, Mary Spence presents a staged reading of her dark comedy, "Kill Your Darlings," Friday and Saturday, March 27-28, at the Cherry Center for the Arts.

The one act play looks at the life of television writer-turned-playwright Sam Strauss "as he attempts to complete a project while battling alcoholism, muses, ghosts, greater playwrights, and, just possibly, murder."

"Mary is really quite remarkable," Cherry Center executive director Robert Reese told The Pine Cone. "She's a writer, a teacher, a director and an actress. She's a real Renaissance woman."

Showtime is 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10. The Cherry Center is located at Guadalupe and Fourth. Call (831) 624-7491.

"It's one big toilet down here," declared Martha Karstens, the chief of the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade.

"During the summer, it turns into 'Garrapopa,'" added Austin Keegan, a volunteer with the Friends of Garrapata, who pick up trash at the state park five miles south of Carmel.

A step up from portable toilets

In an effort to fix the shortage of restrooms at Garrapata and Julia Pfeiffer Burns state parks, Joan Carpenter, a state parks engineer, is working on a plan to install four vault toilets — basically, modern versions of outhouses, with no plumbing or power, and just a holding vault for the waste until it can be pumped out.

Two would be located at Garrapata — one just east of Highway 1 near the Soberanes Canyon trailhead and another west of the scenic route along the trail to south end of Garrapata Beach. Another two would be placed at Julia Pfeiffer Burns — one west of Highway 1 along the trail to Partington Cove and the other west of the scenic route near Big Sur's most famous waterfall.

Like the vault toilets in the parking lot at Fort Ord National Monument along Highway 68, the new facilities would be primitive, but still a big step up from the portable toilets near Soberanes Point. They will be prefabricated, permanent, easy to service and considerably more odor-free than the portable units. The "vaults" would be about nine feet deep, and the four units would cost taxpayers a total of about $550,000.

To address the need for restrooms to accommodate people who aren't visiting state parks, Fuzie told The Pine Cone he believes the remedy requires money from agencies other than the one he works for. While he agrees the need for more restrooms exists, he said his agency is hamstrung by budget limitations.

"We are by far the smallest state agency in the area," he said. "Everyone wants us to build more bathrooms, but we can't do it without additional funding. The solution has to include funding from other agencies."

Bernahl could sue each other. However, as The Pine Cone reported last week, besides the dispute over Faith & Flower, on March 2, Bernahl filed suit against his former long-time partner claiming he sabotaged the company after being fired.

Bernahl contends Weakley convinced a large business not to renew its corporate sponsorship of the PBF&W event, which cost CLM hundreds of thousands of dollars in sponsorship revenue. Weakley's Monterey attorney, Andy Swartz, rejected the allegations in an interview last week.

Bernahl's countersuit was in response to a Dec. 19, 2014, suit that Weakley filed against CLM and Charles Banks, a wine mogul he said failed to pay him for a portion of his ownership interest in CLM. In a separate legal battle, Banks is also being sued by longtime San Antonio Spurs basketball player Tim Duncan, who alleges Banks misled him over millions of dollars in investments, including wine investments, Reuters reported in February.

Meanwhile, Coastal Luxury Management is also no longer part of Rose.Rabbit.Lie, a Las Vegas restaurant and club at The Cosmopolitan Las Vegas that Bernahl and Weakley opened with great fanfare on New Year's Eve 2013.

In January, the Cosmopolitan issued a statement saying it was assuming management of the well-received restaurant beginning Feb. 1.

"We would like to thank Coastal Luxury Management for their partnership," according to the statement, "and look forward to continuing to offer an outstanding culinary and entertainment experience."

JUDGE

While the state code "on its face, authorizes the grand jury to examine city books and records without qualifications," and the civil grand jury has the authority "to investigate and report and make such recommendations as it may deem proper and fit," Villarreal said, the city "is correct that if the employees have a right to informational privacy under the California Constitution," and the grand jury's powers "must be examined in light of these constitutional rights."

The privacy right is part of the state Constitution "specifically because of concerns about government overreach into personal information," according to Villarreal. The city's personnel records contain documentation of past employment, job performance reports and disciplinary actions, references and recommendations, as well as psychological information and comments on personality traits, she noted.

"The court concludes that city employee personnel records are protected by the constitutional right to privacy," she wrote. "The expectation of privacy is reasonable, and disclosure would constitute a significant invasion of it."

However, Villarreal decided, the workers' privacy rights must be balanced against the civil grand jury's work as a government watchdog. While the city argued the grand jury failed to make any indication of why it wants the personnel files, the county countered that any balancing test "must be limited to the plain duty of the grand jury to investigate."

But, she wrote, the court can only balance the competing interests if the grand jury shows why it needs the documents to conduct its investigation.

As a result, she ordered the grand jury to show cause for obtaining the records, in private, and if the court orders the production of documents, those reviewing them will have to sign a protective order ensuring the records are returned to the city, and any copies are destroyed, as Freeman requested.

Galleries rally for Mario, Cara Weston adds to family legacy

By CHRIS COUNTS

MORE THAN a dozen artists have donated work to raise money for a colleague who is battling cancer.

For the past 15 years, Mario Alulan has delivered art to the clients of local galleries and installed it in their homes. But now he is facing a major health challenge and can't work.

"He has recently begun treatment for cancer and, while he has insurance coverage, we are trying to help him cover his living expenses while he undergoes treatment and through his recovery period," gallery owner Chris Winfield said. "We welcome any cash donations, but have also had a number of artists donate artwork that can be purchased

P.G. museum gets new director

THE PACIFIC Grove Museum of Natural History announced this week that its board of directors hired a new executive director.

Jeanette Kihs will replace previous director Lori Mannel, who left at the end of December 2014 to move to Texas with her family.

Prior to Kihs' new executive director role, she was the museum's development director. Now, Kihs will "direct the Museum's overall operations, including financial and long-range goals, and continue to fulfill the nonprofit's mission of inspiration, discovery, wonder, and stewardship of the natural world," according to a museum press release.

"The museum is a gem, rich with many scientific and cultural artifacts, which serve as wonderful examples of what makes the Central Coast so spectacular," Kihs said in a statement. "I am truly honored to serve as director and look forward to sharing the museum's work and vision for the future with the community."

Though The Pine Cone requested the amount of Kihs' salary, the museum didn't provide the information. Mannel made $74,904 in 2012, according to the museum's most recent tax forms available online.

The P.G. museum also announced that the late Helen Johnson, an advocate of monarch butterflies who died in April 2014, bequeathed $800,000 to the museum.

The money represents the largest gift to the nonprofit organization.

Dinnertime at PBF&W, rare coffee on Ocean, and marmalades galore

TWO WEEKS from now, the Monterey Peninsula will be awash in fans of the finer things in life — particularly, those of the culinary variety — when the eighth annual Pebble Beach Food & Wine kicks off with an opening night reception Thursday and car-has offered in the past. And, as its name suggests, it focuses on all things meat, whether porcine, bovine or piscine.

Set for Friday from 6:30 to 10 p.m., Meatopia is a stroll-and-nibble event, but participating chefs are serving larger than the usual small-bite portions, ensuring everyone will get plenty to eat, according to Maras. Participating chefs will be cooking their various meats over live fire pits, grills and other apparatus, and beer, wine, cocktail and dessert sta-

Its owners may be embroiled in a series of lawsuits, but the Pebble Beach Food & Wine is going ahead as scheduled April 9-12 and offers several new events in addition to the star-studded mainstays, such as the Grand Tasting, shown above in 2011.

ries on with dozens of cooking demonstrations, wine seminars, lunches, dinners, parties, grand tastings and other festivities before concluding Sunday afternoon. Each year, the festival strives to keep things new and exciting, while at the same time drawing some of the biggest names in the wine and restaurant scene, in order to draw hundreds of people from all over the world.

Key organizer and “chef whisperer” Dorothy Maras — always a great source for getting the inside scoop on the most exciting parts of the festival — this week highlighted a few intriguing dinners planned for Friday and Saturday nights, April 10 and 11.

Held on the sands of Monterey State Beach, complete with bonfires, strings of lights and live music, Meatopia is a more casual gathering than the upscale PBF&W tions will be well stocked.

“It’s more rustic and casual than anything we’ve done for Pebble,” she said. “Basically, it’s an upscale barbecue, which is something we haven’t done before.”

Ingredients she’s ordered so far include a large pig, goat, lamb and Monterey Bay spot prawns, which will be wrapped in lardo. “That can’t be bad,” she observed.

The weekend’s lineup of chefs is impressive, as usual, and this year’s boasts seasoned stars, like Daniel Boulud and Curtis Stone (who’s appearing for the first time) and new stars, like Kevin Nashon (Sidney Street Café in St. Louis) and Kevin Gillespie (Gunshow in Atlanta). Maras was particularly excited about Stone’s Friday-night dinner, An Evening with Maude, taking place in Casa Palmero for those who purchase certain ticket packages. That evening will have Stone and his entire crew from Maude, located in Los Angeles, recreating the restaurant in Pebble Beach.

“He’s closing his restaurant for three days and bringing his whole staff and recreating his whole restaurant,” Maras said. At Maude, named for his grandmother, Stone creates multi-course menus based around a single seasonal ingredient, like asparagus or strawberries. “It’s very personal and very intimate for the guests who get to go,” Maras said. “And for him to shut his whole place down for three days shows how legitimate he is. He’s not just a personality — he knows his stuff. And his staff is serious and professional. He’s bringing in the whole wine team — everyone.” Stone is also set to do a cooking demo Saturday morning.

Friday night’s New York, New York dinner features executive chefs from Danny Meyer’s iconic restaurants — Gramercy Tavern, Union Square Café, The Modern, Blue Smoke and North End Grill. “You get to go and sit down and have every one of Danny Meyer’s executive chefs cook for you,” Maras said. “That is unheard of! How cool is that?”

Sparked from an idea offered by a chef, Michelin 101 showcases talent from Silicon Valley, which is bisected by Highway 101. “There are places with Michelin stars there don’t get as much attention as those in San Francisco, so we’ll have one dinner that’s all Michelin-starred chefs in Silicon Valley, chefs who are in their 30s and 40s, and their menus are gorgeous,” she said. The Saturday-night dinner, also at Casa Palmero, will feature Peter Armellino from The Plumed Horse, Dmitry Elperin from The Village Pub, Jarad Gallagher from Chez TJ, Peter Rudolph from Madera Restaurant and William Werner from Craftsman and Wolves.

Beauties and Their Beasts has an all-female lineup, which Maras said organizers have tried to bring about before, but couldn’t manage until this year. “They’re doing some pretty cool stuff, and they’re all friends, which is neat,” she said. “I presented this idea to these ladies, and I asked, ‘Who would you like to play with?’ And, of course, we have the final say, but birds of a feather flock together." Held at the Inn at Spanish Bay Saturday night, the dinner will have Elizabeth Falkner, Stephanie Izzard, Anita Lo, Jenn Louis and Liza Shaw cooking together.

Dynamic Duos: Love in the Kitchen will have the best backstories of the weekend, since it features chef couples who met on the job — some decades ago, and others, much more recently. "Where else do you meet anybody when you work 16 hours a day?" Maras asked. Set for Saturday night at the Lodge at Pebble Beach, the dinner has an impressive lineup of "people who have come together and created duos that are twice as powerful as they are singularly," Maras said, from Lissa Doumani and Hiro Sone, whose love crossed the globe and a language barrier (he was in Tokyo, she was in America, he spoke no English, and she spoke no Japanese), to Greg and Gabi Quiñónez-Denton, who met while working for Doumani and Sone. "The backstories are amazing, and they will be told at the dinner, in some way," she said.

Maras said she feels this year's PBF&W has a very personal, human feel to it. "It's sort of evolved into a large, extended culinary family," she said. "Every year, we gather, like a reunion. In year eight, we're seeing guys who were sous chefs in year one and year two come back on their own. We're watching this evolution take place."

For more information, including a full lineup and prices, visit www.pbfw.com.

■ Rare coffee

Every once in a while, the Carmel Coffee House on Ocean Avenue roasts up a small batch of coffee beans grown on a one-acre plantation on Maui. Coffee shop co-owner Carolyn Grebing's dad, Warren McCord, grows the coffee in the Kula Botanical Garden, which he and his wife opened in 1969.

Part of the property contained a Christmas tree farm. McCord replaced an acre of it with coffee plants he got from another Maui farmer several years ago.

"That's important, because we think it is the highest-elevation coffee farm in the United States. There may be some in Kona, but I don't think so," Grebing said. "The plants just flourished in the volcanic soil over there."

She said the coffee is extremely smooth, and during a cupping (tasting) by Royal, the importer that supplies all the other beans roasted at Carmel Coffee House, people there pronounced it better than the highly sought Jamaican Blue Mountain.

One of the reasons it's so good is that McCord and his crew hand pick the coffee cherries when they're perfectly ripe, dry them in the Hawaiian sunshine and meticulously clean them of their papery skins.

"We've been bringing over the green beans and roasting them here, but only in 50-pound bags," she said. "We get it only when someone is flying over."

Here in town, the shop roasts the beans lightly in small batches, selling the Kula 3600 Estate for $29.95 per pound and occasionally brewing it so customers can try it out. The only other place in the world it's sold is at McCord's botanical gardens on Maui.

"My dad is aghast we're selling it so cheap," she said. "But we want people to try it."

The Carmel Coffee House is located on the south side of Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores streets, and is open daily at 7 a.m.

as featured in several different dishes.

“Join us for a grand tasting of marmalades all dressed up in many different ways,” owner Todd Champagne announced. “We will be serving many dishes featuring marmalades as an ingredient and marmalades on their own. It will be a social evening of tiny bites and big ideas!”

The menu will include fresh kale salad with Big Sur marmalade, rice pilaf with lime marmalade, roasted cannellini beans with orange rosemary marmalade, and goat-cheese crostini with Meyer lemon ginger marmalade, to name a few, as well as marmalade thumbprint cookies for dessert. And, of course, citrus shrub cocktails to sip.

■ Dawn’s guest bartender

To raise money for the nonprofit Voices for Children – CASA, which trains volunteers to advocate for foster kids as they navigate the court system and search for permanent homes, Dawn’s Dream Winery on San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue will host board member Ethan Hare as its first “guest bartender” Saturday, March 28, from 1 to 4 p.m.

“Come by to see how Ethan handles the pressure of pouring behind a busy bar, and be sure to tip him appropriately,” the folks at Dawn’s Dream urged, since all the tips he receives will be donated to Voices for Children of Monterey, along with a portion of the day’s proceeds. Wine flights and gourmet cheese plates will be available throughout the day. For more information, call Dawn’s Dream at (831) 659-2649.

■ Spring menu at Porter’s

Chef Johnny De Vivo at Porter’s in the Forest at Poppy Hills Golf Course has introduced some new dishes in honor of the arrival of spring.

In addition to his Monterey Bay calamari and Korean Philly cheesesteak sandwich, De Vivo has created menu items like roasted spring asparagus with quinoa and apple, Salmon Creek pulled pork lettuce wraps, Jidori chicken wings, and semolina and ricotta gnocchi with black trumpet mushrooms, peas, mint and smoked onion broth.

Porter’s serves breakfast, lunch and a special twilight menu, and often hosts special wine dinners and other culinary events. Porter’s is located in the clubhouse at Poppy Hills, 3200 Lopez Road in Pebble Beach. For more information, visit poppyhillsgolf.com.

■ Pasta & Prosecco

Cibo restaurant on Alvarado Street in Monterey is celebrating a quarter-century in business Thursday, April 2, with Pasta & Prosecco. Along with dinner and dancing with the Ben Herod Trio, Cibo will offer guests a free glass of bubbly Italian wine, and all pasta entrees will be 25 percent off in honor of its 25th anniversary.

Pasta dishes, including gluten-free noodles in some options, are Rigatoni di Giovanni, with tomato and ricotta, zita alla puttanesca with sweet red peppers and olives, spaghetti with oil and garlic, and pappardelle with house-made sausage, peas and saffron, just to name a few.

Owners Rosa and Mario Catalano are thrilled to be celebrating 25 years in business, and are looking forward to opening their new al fresco dining area soon.

Doris Day turns 91, Cypress Inn hosts birthday bash

TO CELEBRATE Doris Day’s 91st birthday, Cypress Inn presents a jazz concert in her honor Friday, April 3.

The lineup of performers include singers Laura Didier and Scott Dreier, and pianist Jim Martinez. The three musicians will play songs made famous by Day, and share stories about the woman known as “America’s Sweetheart.”

Considered by at least one survey to be the biggest female box office star of all-time, Day has lived in the Carmel area since 1981. The event is free. Shows start at 6 and 8:30 p.m. The Cypress Inn is located on the northeast corner of Lincoln and Seventh. Call (831) 624-3871.

Women’s Chorus offers free concert in Big Sur

BRINGING TOGETHER 50 voices, the Cornell University Women’s Chorus sings Wednesday, April 1, at the Big Sur River Inn.

Founded in 1921, the chorus boasts a repertoire of music “spanning eight centuries and 10 languages, including masses, motets, spirituals, folk songs, and a variety of classical and contemporary pieces.”

Three years ago, the Cornell University Glee Club performed at the River Inn. The Big Sur resort’s owner, Alan Perlmutter, is a graduate of the Ivy League college in Ithaca, New York.

The event is free. The music starts at 3:30 p.m. The River Inn is located on Highway 1 about 24 miles south of Carmel. Call (831) 667-2700.

sion on the fate of the rally.

"I received a call from Jeanne Byrne, and the P.G. Auto Rally will not be coming through Carmel this year," she reported.

"I received a phone call from her a week ago Monday," Bombard told The Pine Cone. "She said, 'We do not intend to pay for the use of the city for the Pacific Grove Auto Rally, and I'll send you an email confirming this.'"

More cops during Tour

Meanwhile, an even bigger event, the Pebble Beach Tour d'Elegance, which brings some of the world's most valuable classic cars to Ocean Avenue, will also have to start paying much higher fees, the city decided. At the March 24 meeting, cultural commissioners reviewed a report on the tour, including estimated fees of more than $16,000.

Set this year for Aug. 13, the tour entails shutting down a section of Ocean Avenue where drivers leave their rare and collectible cars for the public to ogle while participants lunch on the lawn in Devendorf Park. The parade includes nearly 200 vehicles escorted into town by California Highway Patrol motor officers, and takes place from around 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. The tour is part of the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance, one of the Monterey Peninsula's most important annual charity events.

For years, the tour has been charged for police overtime, including $2,124 last year, but that was much less than the actual cost to cover the 10 officers' 73 hours of directing traffic, monitoring intersections, enforcing parking and responding to calls during the event, according to Carmel Police Cmdr. Paul Tomasi.

Last year, the P.B. Concours was charged $7,109 for bringing its tour to town, but this year it will be charged $6,902 for seven officers working 58 hours of overtime at $119 per hour, and $960 for two parking officers working 12 hours of overtime at $80 per hour. It will also have to pay $1,006.59 for portable toilets, $1,460 for the closure of four streets, $1,188 for barricades, $750 no-parking signs, $1,250 for 50 A-frames, $150 for cones and $1,300 for using Devendorf Park for the drivers' picnic, plus assorted other things — for a total of $16,044.09.

All that police help is needed, Tomasi said. If the city assigned just two or three officers to the event, "We wouldn't be able to control the crowd, we wouldn't be able to control the intersections — you just couldn't have the event here, period," he explained.

As a result, the city has covered the overtime costs of providing adequate police coverage, according to Tomasi.

"Now, it's going to be the event" footing the bill, he said.

Commissioner Bobby Richards asked if there was any way to schedule officers so they wouldn't all be working overtime, but Tomasi said the police department doesn't have enough full-time officers, at 14, to cover it with regular shifts.

And, while P.B. provides volunteers, those people help within the event — not with traffic control or other duties performed by officers. CPD has a very small volunteer group but is looking to recruit and train more people to help, according to Tomasi.

Commissioners agreed with the recommendations, including the increase in fees, and voted to forward the report, event permit application and estimates to the council for consideration. No one from the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance or the Pebble Beach Company, which sponsors the event, was present at the meeting.

This 1934 Ford was part of the P.G. Auto Rally in 2012 and paraded, along with the event's other entries, along Ocean Avenue. Next summer's event will skip Carmel, its organizers announced this week.

RUINS

The pool was added later, in the 1930s. The gate to the property's Los Robles Road entrance was originally the only indication that there was anything there other than a field and a drop-off.

In its heyday, the location was used not only for family parties. The Carmel Rotary Club also met there, leading to some slightly incongruous photos of men in coats and ties mingling in the rustic surroundings, and so did a local businessmen's group, the Manzanita Club.

The kitchen was built into the side of the hill with plenty of room for storage, and the family kept rollaway beds handy for the kids — or the occasionally inebriated adults — to spend the night outside, under the stars, Gladney said.

Murphy's great-nephew, William Beckett

Jr., called to report he also had pleasant times there, including being the first to wade in the big swimming pool when it was filled for the first time.

In a serendipitous moment, the many emails sent back and forth about the property led Robin Aeschliman, a cousin of Beckett's, to locate and meet him for the first time. They spent an afternoon together, and Aeschliman said he was able to fill in some gaps in her research into the family history. She said she remembered being at "Uncle Mike's grill" a few times, and that it was also a place of special memories for her late mother.

When Murphy died in 1959, the beloved piece of family history was sold to help pay off the inheritance taxes.

Happily, whoever purchases the Coniglio property — which is listed for $2.495 million with Doug Steiny of Carmel Realty — will also know about the treasured piece of family history at the back of the lot, hidden on a hillside.

More examples of privacy you don't have

LAST WEEK, we noted the absurdity of the City of Carmel asserting that its employees have a privacy right to withhold their employment records from the Monterey County Civil Grand Jury, regardless of the importance of the grand jury's investigation of the scandals that spread through city hall during the Jason Stilwell era. The city council should be doing everything it can to get to the bottom of those scandals and reassure the public they won't happen again. Instead, it claims it can't even cooperate with the grand jury — whose deliberations are, themselves, secret — because its employees supposedly have an overriding right to privacy.

The assertion is absurd because every level of government usurps the privacy of the people its supposed to serve whenever it believes it has a good reason to.

This week, the judge in the case, Lydia Villarreal, came down firmly in favor of both sides in the personnel files case — ruling that the city's employees have a privacy right that protects their files, but also that the grand jury has the right to see them if it has a good enough reason to do so. Duh.

Meanwhile, two stories on our front page this week remind us again how flimsy the right to privacy is, and how easily it's overridden by government for pretty much any conceivable purpose.

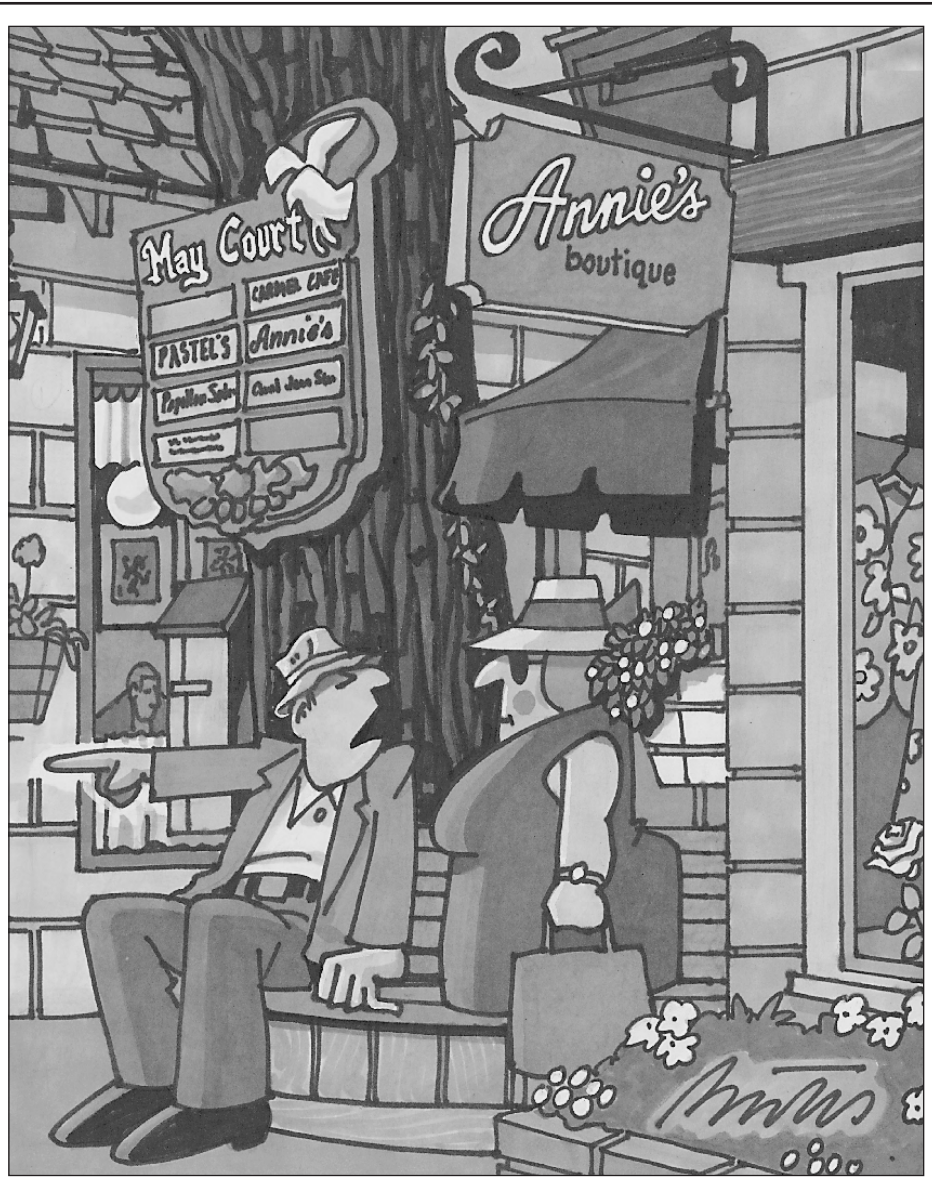

Exhibit A: Last December, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors decided that nobody who lives in the unincorporated part of the county could have more than four roosters, no matter how much land they have, or how little their roosters bother their neighbors. Of course, keeping animals — for pets or for any other legal purpose — is something that ordinarily would be considered a private matter for the people involved. On the other hand, if you keep animals in a way that created a public nuisance, whether because of noise, disease, waste, or any other cause, the government would obviously have a right to limit that activity to protect the community. But in the case of the roosters, the new county ordinance doesn't limit roosters only if they create a nuisance, it limits them — period. So much for the language in the state constitution guaranteeing every citizen's right to "acquire, possess and protect property" and to "pursue and obtain safety, happiness and privacy."

Exhibit B: David Bernahl and Rob Weakley have been engaged in a series of nasty court fights, full of sordid allegations of fraud, conspiracy and theft. Would these two businessmen prefer that their disputes be kept private? You bet they would. But their legal skirmishes are conducted in full public view because they are pursuing them by filing lawsuits, and the government long ago decided that (except for juvenile cases) what goes on in court must be public. If you file a lawsuit to settle a dispute with someone, that dispute will not be private, regardless of what the constitution says about anybody's "inalienable" right to privacy.

We cite these examples not because we necessarily disagree with either the rooster or the lawsuit exception to the constitutional right to privacy, but to point out the absurdity of the City of Carmel asserting a privacy right for its employees, regardless of how important it is for the public to gain a full understanding of what happened at city hall during the Stilwell administration.

Giving the personnel files to the grand jury would still keep them out of the public eye, but it would at least give the people of Carmel some reassurance that somebody was keeping an eye on their city hall besides the people who let everything go wrong there in the first place.

BEST of BATES

"City Hall? Yeah ... just go past where the Carmel Dairy used to be, cross the street and turn right where Orange Julius used to be, then keep walking past where Derek Rayne used to be, then turn left where Anything Goes used to be and you'll see it just the other side of where The Spinning Wheel used to be."

Promenade a bad idea

Dear Editor,

On your front page last week, you reported about an idea to convert part of Dolores Street into a "temporary" promenade.

As an architect living in the area for more than 20 years, I have to say this is a very bad idea from an urbanistic point of view.

This scheme is reminiscent of the "urban renewal" projects of the mid-1960's, when healthy, traditional, cities were disassembled to provide suburban "mall-like" pedestrian promenades through their cores. This proposal would deny the original function and intent of the 19th- and 20th-century planners. All of the buildings on Dolores were envisaged, by their builders, with their facades facing a formal public street. They were designed to have carriages, or later cars, stop to present a formal entry to a public building. By denying this ceremonial function we're forced to move toward the standard, suburban, satellite parking lot model. Here we lose any sense of urban hierarchy. The public/private division gets fuzzy. There is no longer the traditional sidewalk-to-building relationship that has been the cornerstone of urban vitality for centuries.

Furthermore, Dolores St will cease to function as a "working street" where business people, merchants, delivery trucks and tourists coexist. Instead, it will become yet another suburban mall with pedestrians, street furniture, bicycles, skateboards, etc., distributed evenly everywhere. How long before this "temporary" pedestrian mall becomes permanent and expands to other streets? Ten years from now the pedestrian "Disney-ification" of Carmel could be complete.

Stumps need to go

Dear Editor,

As one of the numerous Carmel People who walk to town every day, those ugly stumps have been stupefying me for quite some time. It is astonishing that those who hack down the trees leave towering trunks which could have been cut down to some reasonable level in the first place. To paraphrase a recent letter to the Pine Cone by Noelle Ballarini, when will the stumps be removed and the graveyard of dead tree

‘Entrepreneurship is a journey of personal growth and self discovery’

EVERY TIME Jane Deuber looks in the mirror, she remembers her father’s words from her teen years: “Sweetie, you’re getting better lookin’ every day, and today you’re looking like the day after tomorrow.”

It was the sense of unconditional love and endless possibility comments like that instilled in Deuber that became perhaps her biggest asset in business and in life.

She didn’t know exactly what she was going to do when she grew up, but she felt certain it was going to be big, she was going to “do good,” and it was going to be quite a ride.

Raised on an eight-acre farm in the small town of Centerville, Ohio, she spent her afternoons riding horses on the open trails, and yearning to do something out of the Ohio ordinary. The last time she rode horseback was in Ecuador at 2 o’clock in the morning. So there’s a good chance extraordinary came true.

“Going for what you wanted was a way of life in our family,” says Deuber. “From being selected for the Centerville High School drill team to getting my master’s in international business at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, it never occurred to me that I couldn’t make something happen if I wanted it badly enough and worked hard to get it. I remember my dad urging me to take risks, and applauding me when I went out on a limb where it was uncomfortable.”

Deuber earned her bachelor’s degree in East Asian Studies at Wittenberg University, a private liberal arts college in Springfield, Ohio.

A fascination for the Chinese language led her to even more study, including her master’s at MIIS.

At a party during her last year at MIIS, Deuber, then 26, met a soccer player who was waiting tables at a Monterey seafood restaurant. Scheduled to leave soon for Taiwan, where she had planned to build her business and her life with someone else, Deuber saw her life change in the eyes of the athlete, and initiated a change of plans.

Three months later, in March 1987, Mario Villacres dropped to one knee at Lovers Point in Pacific Grove, and asked Deuber to marry him.

“Instead of an engagement ring,” she says, “We took $5,000 and began a business together. Mario learned how to make jewelry, and I learned how to develop a direct-selling model, so we could teach other women in other places how to do this business. We called it ‘Latasia,’ from our affinities for Latin America and Asia. Thirteen years later, we decided we’d learned enough from the venture, and sold it for $3 million.”

One of Deuber’s biggest lessons was that the more zeros at the end of the decision, the more stressful business can become. She also learned that entrepreneurship is in her blood, and that this was the beginning of many more ventures to come.

Calling herself a business strategist and virtual training specialist, Deuber is currently at the helm of her Business Mastery Coaching Program, The Uncommon Business Summit, and The Virtual Training Academy, all designed to help people set and achieve their entrepreneurial goals.

“Entrepreneurship is, hands down, the single greatest journey of personal growth and self-discovery,” she said. “Over the years, Mario has turned into a tech expert, and I, says a dear friend, am a fire starter. I take an idea, ignite a spark, fan the flame, and help build it into a bonfire. I work with really remarkable people all over the world to help them take their ideas, their programs, their businesses, their books to a whole other level, leveraging their strengths and assets to get them all the way to their goals — and, sometimes, beyond.”

Deuber is a sunny person with a ready smile and a sparkle lighting her eyes like a secret. She credits her joy to understanding that her purpose on this planet is to lift people high enough to see what’s possible and reach for it, and to equip them to make something of it once they grab it. Mostly she credits her happiness to 30 years of marriage and entrepreneurship with Villacres, and the family they share.

Deuber’s own professional goal is to leave a legacy of work that enables her clients to live out their purpose through a business they love that creates the abundance they desire.

Her most personal and most important goal, she says, is to unconditionally love her family, friends, clients and herself.

Some 10 years into their marriage, Deuber and Villacres welcomed son Alex, now 17 and a senior in high school who plans to take a year off to see the world before starting college. She also showers love on stepdaughter Paola, her husband Steve, four grandchildren, and Boomer, her yellow Lab.

While she likes to focus on what’s possible and believes all things are, Deuber is not without her own fears; she simply uses them to her advantage.

“What I’ve come to believe about fear, is that it’s usually a sign I’m bumping up against the boundary of my comfort zone,” she says. “Yet 30 years of entrepreneurship teaches you that there is usually something pretty cool on the other side of the fear.”

April Fool’s Day not just for laughs

BEFORE I begin today’s column about the fine print of credit card privacy agreements, I must issue this reader advisory.

WARNING: Humor may be hazardous to what ails you.

I mention this because of an email I received from Bonnie, a Pine Cone reader extraordinaire. Her doctor told her the best

They had a good laugh — just what they needed. And the family’s been laughing about it ever since.

Which brings us to Norman Cousins, author, lecturer, philosopher and former editor of the “Saturday Review.” He said, “Humor is like a bulletproof vest that protects you against negative emotions.”

I had the idea for National Humor Month long before I met Cousins at a conference in the early 70s. He gave a talk that day about how laughter helped cure him of a life-threatening progressive illness. With the support of his doctors he added a daily dose of belly laughs to his medical regimen. Using every source of comedy from Marx Brothers movies to joke books (even some of mine), he began to recover.

The results were well documented. Lab tests provided quantifiable evidence that laughter promoted healing. His findings were published in the “New England Journal of Medicine.” Letters poured in from 3,000 doctors reporting similar experiences. Laughter is a good medicine — and with no bad side effects.

I had lunch with Cousins and told him my idea for National Humor Month to celebrate and promote the benefits of laughter. “Go for it, Larry!” he said. “And let me know how I can help.”

Believe it or not, some people don’t like to laugh. Everyone thinks they have a good sense of humor. But you can spot those who don’t. They roam the world spreading the opposite of joy faster than measles at Disneyland. Driving while angry, dishing out nastiness at work, raining on every parade, nitpicking humor to pieces.

Some people would rather die than laugh. And many do.

As for me, I’d rather die laughing (though I have no intention of going at all).

I know one thing. If every angry fanatic and self-righteous sourpuss claiming to have a ticket punched for heaven actually gets there, include me out.

My idea of heaven is expressed in the epitaph, “Gone to laugh in the company of friends.”

In the meantime, consider the words of the great American humorist, Will Rogers: “We’re all here for just a short spell. Get all the good laughs you can.”

Happy National Humor Month, everyone! And special good wishes to Bonnie.

Now back to our regularly scheduled column about the fine print on credit card privacy agreements ...

medicine to get her through a serious illness was laughter. She took his suggestion. And now, happily, she’s on the road to recovery.

I do not know Bonnie’s doctor. Nor am I paying him under the table to promote laughter as medicine — although that is one of the goals of National Humor Month which begins on April Fool’s Day (what else?). The idea is to spread laughter and awareness about the value of a good sense of humor.

In 1976 when I founded National Humor Month, it was a no-brainer. Which, apparently, is why it was left up to me.

I first realized the benefits of laughter as a 10-year-old nebbish (loose translation: annoying little twit).

Armed with a shoeshine box, one of my first customers was the Jersey City chief of police. I shined his white socks to match his black shoes. He could have charged me with being a public menace, but he let me off easy. I was not a licensed professional comedian at the time, so my jokes were not as funny as my shoe shines. But he laughed at my wisecracks and even gave me a nickel tip. Which was all the encouragement I needed to keep making jokes. Now you know who’s to blame for launching me on the road to comedy. Blame the Jersey City police chief.

As a grown up, I discovered that laughter can make you feel better about almost anything. Divorce? What a hoot! Financial setbacks? A regular knee-slapper! Disappointments? Ha! Laughing at myself meant I never ran out of comedy material.

We have to be able to laugh at everything. Especially ourselves. But no topic is off the table. Not even death.

A few years ago I spoke to an organization in Palm Desert about the benefits of laughter. Afterwards a woman came up and told me this story:

When her father passed away, all the relatives lined up at the gravesite to drop handfuls of dirt on the casket. One cousin leaned over the open grave, then sank to his knees and stayed there. Thinking he was overcome with grief, she went to help him. “I’m okay,” the cousin whispered. “Sorry to hold up the line, but I accidentally dropped my new iPhone into the hole.”

“Leave it there,” she told him. “Maybe Dad will give us a call.”

trunks replaced? Further, who is responsible for what appears to be the inefficiency of an incomplete job?

I find it interesting that homeowners are required to immediately replace a tree as soon as it is removed, and that's assuming they can even get past the red-tape-dispensing bureaucracy to remove an obviously dead tree! Carmel is fortunate to have a majority of homeowners who take great pride in their property, even maintaining the part of their lots which is actually city property. We should expect no less regarding the maintenance of our city's trees in the downtown and residential areas.

Incidentally, it would have been nice if the expense of installing/maintaining the twice-voted-down and equally ugly "stumpy" parking meters could have been better allocated towards our forest.

Wake up and smell the smoke

Dear Editor,

Almost every night, my wife and I put the top down and slowly cruise Scenic Road to enjoy the ocean, the moon, the stars and living in Carmel.

For the last year or so, we have often felt bad for the people living on a few blocks of Scenic who have to put up with the smoke from campfires on the beach.

Last weekend, there must have been dozens of fires, and from about Ninth Avenue, the smoke on Scenic was worse than we have ever experienced and spread for a dozen blocks, not just two or three. The smoke was so thick it was making us cough and got kind of scary. For the first time, we quickly drove away from the area, almost in a panic.

Why on earth do the residents there, our fellow citizens, have to tolerate this?

Now, it is obviously even a health hazard, not just a very real annoyance.

Why are we the only beach to allow fires? For whom exactly are we doing this? The tourists? Some older residents who fondly remember their youth by a fire at night when Carmel was not jammed with people year 'round?

The city council should immediately either ban fires or limit them to maybe three or four per night. Inaction is becoming immoral. The problem is now unbearable, unlivable and unsafe for residents — and even people like us, just walking or driving by.

Bicycles a major hazard

Dear Editor,

Have you driven on Highway 1 between Carmel and Big Sur lately? There has been a fairly sudden and very dramatic increase in bicyclists which it is plain to see is a tragedy in the making. I'm all for sharing the road, but there is not enough road to share, particularly when it comes to blind turns and oncoming traffic on this very narrow highway.

Someone at the local Caltrans office said that this stretch of highway was recently designated a scenic bike route, but I was not able to verify this with a senior Caltrans official, who was emphatic that such a designation would not have been made by Caltrans — or by any other sane person familiar with this stretch of highway, in my opinion.

The dramatic increase in visitors is already creating havoc at areas like Soberanes Point and Point Lobos as people struggle for parking, ingress and egress from the highway; then you add a few cycling clubs not riding single file and it is truly insane.

There is no bike lane. There is no room for a bike lane. Bicycles and highways are a terrible mix!!

Hopefully someone can investigate this potentially deadly situation and come up with some mitigation of the risks to all.

War on drugs 'an expensive failure'

Dear Editor,

Although Richard Tripps is a neighbor of mine, I don't know him and don't feel I should pass judgment on him until his case is adjudicated. In its lengthy story on his arrest, the March 20 Pine Cone had no such constraints. He was all but convicted in print without noting whether he is in jail, out on bail, and/or had conditions placed upon his release to prevent him from harming anyone (no direct harm was stated in the story).

It seemed no effort was exerted to get comment from him or his attorney, but you had no problem lecturing readers on the alleged harm his activities might have caused.

Countries that have legalized or decriminalized drug use have experienced dramatic declines in the crime and dysfunction that typically accompany drug abuse. The so-called war on drugs is widely regarded as an expensive failure. Criminalizing drug users, or gun owners for that matter, hasn't worked.

Gun owners have a lobby. Everyone else should have an unbiased press.

Chipping, mapping to cut fire risk

THE MONTEREY County Regional Fire District, which covers Carmel Valley, received a state-taxpayer-funded grant of $86,800 from Cal Fire to help pay for a residential chipping program and the development of "pre-planning maps," Chief Michael Urquides announced Monday.

"The project will reinforce Cal Fire and Monterey County Regional Fire District's ongoing efforts to address the risk and potential impacts of large, damaging wildfires to residential communities within the Carmel Valley, Highway 68 corridor and River Road areas," according to the fire district.

Smuin Ballet returns to Sunset with Gene Kelly tribute and more

IN SMUIN Ballet's latest program, "Untamed Dance Series" — which will be performed at Sunset Center Friday and Saturday, March 27-28 — the unconventional San Francisco ballet company honors the memory of dancer and actor Gene Kelly, who lit up the silver screen in the 1940s and 1950s.

Artistic Director Celia Fushille calls Michael Smuin's "Frankie and Johnny," an "tempestuous story ballet" and an "unabashed tribute" to Kelly. The ballet, choreographed by Smuin himself, is accompanied by a soundtrack of Latin jazz, while a noir-esque backdrop sets the mood.

Also on the program is choreographer-in-residence Amy Seiwert's "Objects of Curiosity," which is complemented by music from composers Philip Glass and Foday Musa Suso, and "Serenade for Strings," choreographer Garrett Ammon's interpretation of the Tchaikovsky score.

Saturday's show starts at 8 p.m., while Sunday's matinee begins at 2 p.m. Tickets are $56 to $73. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

ROOSTERS

operations have on environmental health and safety.

However, the three men contend that they've invested a lot of money into raising chickens for "hobby, pleasure, show, poultry and eggs," not cockfighting.

The men couldn't be reached and their Hayward attorney did not respond to a question about where in the county they reside.

"No public hearing"

While the new county law allows for someone to keep five or more roosters if they obtain a special permit, the men say the possibility of getting that approval is "illusory" and at the "complete arbitrary discretion of the authorizing agency without any objective guidelines established by the ordinance ... thereby allowing for a complete abuse of discretion."

The new law, they say, will make it impossible to maintain their business of raising roosters and will deprive them of their families' livelihood.

Leahy, Perez and Robles also take issue with the way the ordinance was put through. They allege that before the supervisors approved it, the county's planning commission failed

PREDATORS

The DSH standardized assessment protocol for evaluating potential SVPs "lacks adequate detail and direction" for workers "on how to perform evaluations," according to the report.

The agency, the report adds, also lacks a process of supervisory review of evaluators' work, has not consistently offered training to those employees, and did not provide SVP evaluators with any training between August 2012 and May 2014.

The report concludes that DSH must address its backlog of annual evaluations of SVPs at Coalinga State Hospital. By failing to do so, the state agency is unable to report whether the SVPs "continue to pose risks to the public."

In a series of responses, DSH said it would implement many of the changes recommended by the auditor.

to conduct a public hearing to consider whether or not to recommend adoption of the law, which they say violates due process.

"Instead," the complaint says, "'a community meeting of interested parties' took place, with the intent and foregone conclusion to rubber stamp" the ordinance."

The rule, the suit says, violates their rights under the Fourth, Fifth and 14th amendments of the U.S. Constitution.

"The plaintiffs have been deprived of their rights, liberty, freedoms, property, privileges and immunities secured to them under the Constitution of the United States," according to the complaint, "and laws enacted there under to secure procedural due process of public notice and adequate opportunity to be heard."

Cockfighting and raising birds for the blood sport, the men argue, is already illegal under state law, and limiting all rooster owners in the county is beyond the supervisors' juris-dition and violates the constitutional rights of "non-violating rooster owners."

Furthermore, the "ordinance makes plaintiffs immediate criminals under the law while in possession of their lawful personal property," the complaint says.

The men are seeking, among other things, a declaration that the county ordinance is invalid and unconstitutional, monetary damages, and injunctions preventing the county from threatening, annoying or harassing them over their crowing fowl.

The new law, according to the county, preserves opportunities for youth to engage in educational and agricultural programs such as the national Future Farmers of America and the 4-H youth development program.

County spokeswoman Maia Carroll told The Pine Cone that county counsel Charles McKee hadn't yet seen the lawsuit and therefore could not comment.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call or visit the Internet Web site, using the file number assigned to this case 14-001732. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. Pacific Grove: Ninth Street resident reported she thought a woman had broken into her home, but was unable to explain why doors and windows were still locked from the inside. Officer asked her to consider installing cameras to help her and police see if and when someone had actually been on the property. She said she would consider the added security. This resident had reported several similar incidents in the past, and all appeared to be unfounded.

Pacific Grove: Phone report of a dog locked in a car on 17th Street. Animal control officer responded and found a dog locked in a black Suzuki, and neighbors were knocking on doors trying to locate the dog owner. The dog did not appear to be in immediate distress. Dog owner was located and let the dog out of the car. A check of the interior temperature of the car revealed it to be approximately 98 degrees. Dog owner was sleeping and did not know how the dog ended up in the car. Dog appeared OK. Dog owner admonished about the dog being left in a hot car. Nothing further.

Pacific Grove: School resource officer was dispatched to a suspicious person in a vehicle on Fountain Avenue. Person stated the suspicious person was parked facing the children playing on the playground. Person stated when he saw the teacher, he left the area in a hurry. The vehicle was described as a white Mazda hatchback. The male was described as a white male adult, 30 to 40 years of age. Due to the time the incident occurred and the time it was reported, the officer was unable to make contact with the subject.

Pacific Grove: David Avenue resident reported a man with a foreign accent left a threatening phone message on her answering machine. He told her he was from the IRS and would arrest her if she did not call him back and make arrangements to pay penalties. The resident knew it was a scam, so she called police to provide the phone number left by the caller. The resident did not fall for the scam. Officer called the number, but there was no answer.

Pacific Grove: Fountain Avenue resident called police to report an injured feline. When the officer arrived to check on the cat, its owner was waiting for the officer. The owner said the cat's left eye has cancer, and the cat was seen by a veterinarian two months ago who prescribed ointment. But due to the severity of the wound, the officer will forward this report to the animal control officer for followup.

Carmel area: Deputies responded to a report of an intoxicated male on Carmel Rancho Boulevard. The 35-year-old male suspect was taken into custody for being under the influence of alcohol.

Coffee at Carmel Plaza with a visit from Mr. Manners

THIS PAST Monday I sat at the table outside one of my favorite coffee houses, the Carmel Coffee and Cocoa Bar in Carmel Plaza. I was in the company of four gentlemen friends, drinking coffee and enjoying the weather and the beauty of the locale.

One of the gentlemen asked me what my column was going to be about this week.

"I haven't a clue," I replied. They all laughed, not quite believing me. But I was telling the truth. I told them I had several ideas but nothing was coming together.

Our meeting was not by chance. We meet most Monday mornings, depending on weather and health. I mention

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

health, because our combined ages would surpass 400 years, so we are all subject to felonious ailments, which we hope we can plea bargain down to misdemeanors.

Our conversations cover a myriad of topics — local, international, historical, you name it. Whatever the conversations, though, the fact we are having them, and conducting them with civility is worth mentioning. If you subtracted our combined ages from the current year, 2015, you would place us in the 17th century.

This is important because a couple of columns ago I said: Social cultural critic, Steve Johnson, writes, "the English coffeehouse was crucial to the development and spread of one of the great intellectual flowerings of the last 500 years, what we now call the Enlightenment."

It is almost impossible for anyone who writes a column on a regular basis to resist the urge to moralize. The undeniable fact that most persons detest being preached to is a natural deterrent against giving in to the urge. One covers oneself by claiming to be an observer of the human condition, simply commenting on the failures and foibles of society by acting as a style guru — an arbiter of propriety.

Therefore, at the risk of sounding like Mr. Manners, today's lesson is on charm. Charm is an elusive quality that is difficult to define but is noticeably in short supply in our high-tech society. Charm has several synonyms, such as allure, charisma and magnetism, but none quite capture the essence of the word.

I like Sir James Barrie's definition: "Charm is that which, if a woman has it, she doesn't need anything else; and if she doesn't have it, nothing else helps."

I have always equated charm with impeccable manners, so I attribute the lack of charm in our world to the disintegration of good manners. I cannot pinpoint the exact date in history when good manners began their slide down the list of attributes desirable to possess. Perhaps it was August 1969, when half a million uninvited guests dropped in on a dairy farm near Woodstock, N.Y., introducing us to a counterculture that believed in "free everything," except the freedom to bathe.

Last week, Starbucks' CEO, Howard Schultz, asked baristas to write the words, "Race Together," on customers' coffee cups in the hopes of engendering conversations about race relations in the U.S.

Comedians, along with serious media outlets, treated Mr. Schultz in a most unmannerly way. He was criticized extensively. I believe Mr. Schultz had a good idea. Why not have coffee houses be the place where important issues are discussed with the same fervor they were in the 1650s?

Most baristas are way too busy to engage customers in anything more than friendly morning chitchat. Race relations are a difficult subject, but why can't customers who don't have to grab their java and run to their cars sit and talk to someone about something important?

If Starbucks' CEO wanted us to converse about important social issues while in one of his establishments, he should have done away with free WiFi, which would get customers talking to each other rather than having sitting there with their heads in their Apples.

There is no WiFi at the Carmel Coffee House and Cocoa Bar. People sit and talk to one another. They comport themselves in a mannerly fashion. The place is dripping with charm.

Barrie's definition was exemplified by a couple of movie actors of my era, Fred Astaire and Cary Grant. Charm seemed to emanate from Astaire as effortlessly as he glided across the floor when he was dancing. Even when he wasn't dancing his movements were so stylish that he made lighting a cigarette as graceful as a ballerina doing a port de bras. Cary Grant had an aura so pleasing that he was almost impossible to dislike. Both had that indefinable je ne sais quoi. Charm was so intrinsic in them that it never needed to be asserted.

There is not an Astaire or Grant among our little coffee klatch. (Ouch, I can hear them complaining now.) Yet all are interesting, affable, and able to converse in a mannerly and charming way about topics that can alter and illuminate our times. And they're pretty good at helping someone write a column, too.

Top achievers honored, big numbers tossed around and technology installed

MAJOR CONGRATULATIONS are in order for Tim Allen at Coldwell Banker Del Monte — he’s been named the top realtor in Northern California! Allen’s $157.6 million in sales for 2014 surpassed 3,900 other agents from Monterey to Lake Tahoe for the honor. The kudos didn’t stop there, either. Allen also ranked number three out of 86,000 agents for Coldwell Banker in this country and around the world. In

In addition to Allen’s honors, Porteous noted that the company has renovated its offices at 501 Lighthouse and had a ribbon cutting on March 10 to celebrate. Also, they’re moving from their Via Nona Marie office at the mouth of Carmel Valley to 126 Clock Tower Place — a location Porteous said was “gutted to the studs” and has undergone a major transformation with plenty of spiffy technology to support CBDMR’s more than 130 agents in the area.

They’re not the only agency with bragging rights this week, though. Sotheby’s is rightfully proud of its own Janet Reilly, who’s been promoted from brokerage manager to senior vice president of the firm’s four local offices. Reilly’s promotion came after she led her team to a 100 percent increase in closed sales since 2010. Sotheby’s said her leadership attracted numerous other agents, leading to a 37 percent increase overall. She was also credited with the acquisitions of Bratty & Bluhm and John Saar.

“Janet is a deeply respected and seasoned real estate professional with 35 years’ experience in the business,” said Frank Symons, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of the Western Region of Sotheby’s International Realty.

It’s great to see those high achievers being recognized for

fact, Allen has ranked among the top Coldwell Banker agents worldwide since 1997.

Coldwell Banker President Mike James called Allen, “one of the most talented and respected luxury real estate professionals in the industry,” and local manager Todd Porteous referred to him as “the ultimate professional.”

Allen was recognized at a company ceremony earlier this year and has been invited to attend the brokerage’s Top 1 Percent Retreat at Pelican Hill Resort in Newport Beach.

Coldwell Banker Del Monte’s office at 501 Lighthouse in downtown Pacific Grove (right) has been extensively renovated, even as the company prepares to relocate its Mouth of the Valley office to updated new digs at 126 Clock Tower Place.
