Goats wreak havoc inside P.B. home

By KELLY NIX

DOZENS OF naughty goats barged into the backyard of a Pebble Beach home last week, devouring most of a couple's lush garden before making their way inside the house, gnawing on plastic flowers, trampling carpet and leaving behind piles of poop.

Last Friday morning, Phoebe Croonquist, 90, was having breakfast in her home on Forest Lodge Road when she looked outside and saw dozens of goats in her backyard. Surprised, she yelled to her husband.

"There were about 70 of them," Paul Croonquist, 95, told The Pine Cone Wednesday. "I ran out there in my PJs and bare feet."

As the Croonquists tried to herd the goats from the garden back to the adjacent greenbelt where they had been dropped off to clear brush for fire prevention, dozens of the animals hastily munched the couple's hydrangeas, azaleas, roses, geranium and other plants. The goats stripped the Croonquists' rose bushes from the bottom up, sparing only the top flowers they were unable to reach. A potted lemon tree was left bare, and much of the vegetation that provided ground cover in the front yard was gone.

"They just went through that garden like Grant took Richmond," according to Croonquist, who said the animals got in

Mystery man inundates city with PRA requests

By MARY SCHLEY

A MAN identified only by an email address has requested voluminous records from the city under the California Public Records Act, including "the names of all vendors the city has done business with during the Burnett Era," as well as related contracts and bid documents, and correspondence between various city officials and The Pine Cone.

In the requests, which came by email, "Marshall Duncan" provided no contact information or clues to his identity. He also hasn't responded to emails from The Pine Cone asking who he is.

His first request for documents was received by city clerk Lee Price on May 9. In that email, Duncan demanded "electronic copies to this email address of the data used to compile the investigative report discussed at the city council meeting of May 7, 2015."

There was no council meeting on that day, a Thursday, and Price asked for clarification regarding the records Duncan wanted. He then told her he wanted copies of "all contracts, invoices, check registers and any and all financial

P.G. pump station will resume operation soon

By KELLY NIX

THE PUMP station in Pacific Grove that was ground zero for the accident that resulted in more than 200,000 gallons of sewage being discharged into the Pacific Ocean last week could be running again as early as Saturday.

On May 18, equipment failure at the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency's pump station at Ocean View and 15th Street led workers to divert the raw sewage into the ocean to prevent the pump station from being ruined. A total of 220,000 gallons went into Monterey Bay.

Bret Boatman, the MRWPCA's maintenance supervisor, told The Pine Cone Thursday the station could resume normal pumping of Pacific Grove's sewage to the agency's treatment plant north of Marina as early as this weekend. About one million gallons of sewage a day pass through the station. While the main pump is out of action, a bypass is being used to keep the sewage flowing.

The accident happened while upkeep was being done on a

Air district installs pollution monitor on Scenic

By MARY SCHLEY

AN EXPENSIVE gadget quietly installed on private property near Scenic Road and 13th Avenue has been collecting data regarding smoke from beach fires since late last week, according to Richard Stedman, air pollution control officer for the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District. The monitor tracks the number of tiny particles in the air, including spikes caused by beach fires, and was installed at the request of the city and several nearby residents who have complained about the smoke.

Meanwhile, the city's proposal to control the number of beach fires and get them up off the sand by installing fire rings is wending its way through the regulatory process. Approved by the city earlier this month, the pilot program was appealed by resident Alexis Delehanty to the California Coastal Commission this week, and it's unknown when the state agency will take up the matter.

The new monitor, called an E-BAM, has been placed "across from where a lot of fire pits are located," Stedman said, adding that the property owner volunteered to have the equipment installed there. "Over the holiday weekend, we saw several spikes" in the amount of particles smaller than 2.5 microns in the air.

Such fine particulate matter has been widely linked to adverse health effects, since it can be carried deep into the

VOLUNTEERS BATTLE STEEP TERRAIN, PAPERWORK TO INSTALL BACKCOUNTRY TOILETS

By CHRIS COUNTS

ADDRESSING A major sanitary problem that has plagued backpacking sites in the Ventana Wilderness along the Big Sur River in recent years, volunteers last week finished installing five new pit toilets and refurbishing another four existing toilets.

"At long last, there are nine wilderness toilets along the heavily used Pine Ridge Trail," announced trail crew chief Steve Benoit of the Ventana Wilderness Alliance.

The project was accomplished thanks to the efforts of about 40 volunteers, the generosity of a Santa Cruz County lumber company, and the cooperation of team of mules, but still took nearly two years — in part because of the difficulty of maintaining access to the site using trails that run along steep, forested and eroding slopes.

"It's been a long process," said Benoit of the project, which began in July 2013.

The five new toilets — each weighing about 75 pounds — were built from redwood and cedar by volunteer David Hirsch. The wood was purchased from Big Creek Lumber "at a vastly discounted price," Benoit said. But getting the toilets to the backpacking sites was no small challenge.

The plan was to use mules to pack in the disassembled toilet parts. A mule, Benoit explained, can carry about 100 pounds on its back. But downed trees along the trail hampered the effort. Volunteers used cross saws to remove about 50 of them, but two particularly large trees needed chain saws to be removed. And that required a lengthy permit process because power tools are prohibited in wilderness areas. "One big tree fell, and it took us two months to get permission to use a chain saw on it," Benoit said.

Eventually, the trail was made passable to Terrace Creek Camp, which is located about six miles along the trail — and nearly halfway between Highway 1 and Sykes Camp, where the famously overcrowded and overrated hot springs are located. From there, volunteers carried the parts to their destinations.

At each location, small pits were dug about five feet deep using rock picks and post-hole diggers. Benoit estimated

Lions to host Antiques & Collectibles Appraisal Day

By MARY SCHLEY

NOT SURE how much that silver teapot your great grandmother left you is worth? Or even exactly how old it is and what those odd little characters etched in the bottom of it mean? For those answers, and more, all you have to do is bring it to the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula in Carmel Valley on Saturday, May 30, and hand over $10. While that fee will go straight to the Mission Trail Lions of Carmel to help the blind and visually impaired, you will walk away with a bounty of new knowledge about your cherished collectible.

Five antiques experts will be on hand for the service organization's inaugural Antiques & Collectibles Appraisal Day: John Buonaguidi from All American Antiques, Terry Trotter from Trotter Galleries and Randy Reed from Antique Auto Restoration, as well as Joseph White (specializing in jewelry and cowboy memorabilia) and Rick Wilkerson (books).

"They're all antiques dealers, and they're going to volunteer their time for the afternoon," said Lions Club member and event organizer Pam Klaumann.

The Carmel Heritage Society used to offer an annual appraisal day as a fundraiser but gave it up several years ago, and Klaumann said her group hopes to make it a yearly affair.

"I just hope it really flies, because it's a really fun idea," she said, adding that the idea is to tap into the energy of "Antiques Roadshow."

"We did want the Keno brothers to come, but unfortunately they were unavailable," she added, referring to the popular show's appraisers. "Maybe next year, we'll have an actual emcee."

If the inaugural effort is a success, with lots of participants and spectators, the Lions will make it a yearly event.

"If it's well received, we want to do it annually," Klaumann said. "We just don't know what month we'll pick."

Anyone curious about curios and collectibles can bring up to three items for appraisal and analysis at the cost of $10 for one, $15 for two or $20 for three. All of the money will go Mission Trail Lions' programs, including assisting the Blind & Visually Impaired Center in Pacific Grove, and supporting the Carmel Youth Center and The Carmel Foundation. The event will take place in the spacious church at 4590 Carmel Valley Road (same driveway as Rancho Cañada) in Carmel Valley. For more information, call Klaumann at (831) 624-8759.

Heritage society launches centennial endowment fund

THE CARMEL Heritage Society has established an endowment fund through the Community Foundation of Monterey Country to coincide with the city's 100th birthday in 2016. According to the nonprofit, the fund "will insure the future survival of the organization and will allow an annual payout for operating funds."

Its foundation comprises a recent bequest and multiple donations, according to board president Dawn Dull, who said the group is "delighted to prepare for the future and maintain the financial stability of the Carmel Heritage Society."

For information on how to contribute, contact Carmel Heritage at (831) 624-4447 or the Community Foundation at (831) 375-9712 Ext. 126.

Oceans talk at Carmel Foundation

THE CARMEL Foundation will host Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute senior scientist Jim Barnes for a discussion on "ocean acidification, climate change, and the new ocean: What does it mean for organisms, ecosystems and society?" Wednesday, June 3, at 2:30 p.m. in Diment Hall at Lincoln and Eighth.

Barnes will provide an overview of the changing ocean conditions, discuss some of the challenges animals face in the future, and present examples of the research being done on these issues. It's free and open to the public. For more information, contact Anne Albano at (831) 620-8705 or email aalbano@carmelfoundation.org.

tucks in close, providing companionship, particularly when I feel vulnerable in public."

Because Abby's person was once a weightlifter, she remains fit and well muscled, which helps mask her affliction to those who don't know her. It also means, when she walks into local establishments with Abby, some people confront her for bringing a pet into a public place. This is why she now makes sure Abby's decked out in her service vest and ID tag before leaving home.

"At first, I didn't want Abby to wear a service vest," says her person, "because it was nice to keep my problems invisible. But it became essential. Abby is outgoing and affectionate, which attracts people to her. But I would like people to be aware of how important service dogs are, and not to approach with questions or touch the dog. She is on duty."

Abby loves Carmel Beach where, even off leash, she stays close. "As we make our way down the stairs," says her person, "she stops every few steps, turns, and waits for me, guiding me into the sand."

Secret service

ABBY IS a sweet, smart, social little thing, who loves treats and attention, and even her canary, Fig, who sings to her throughout the day. Some people might call this 2-year-old French bulldog spoiled, but she just thinks she's special. As a certified service dog, Abby is, indeed, special, particularly to her person.

After years of training police dogs, guide dogs and service dogs, Abby's person developed rheumatoid arthritis, and found she needed assistance, herself. So she brought home baby Abby from a local breeder, and trained her to suit her own needs.

"My arthritis is degenerative," says her person, "and my balance is bad, so Abby helps steady me. She knows when I'm about to fall, and guides me to a place where I can sit. She's quick and attentive, and picks up things I drop, like my phone. She always

BASEBALL PLAYER GETS NAILED IN THE NOGGIN, SUES LEAGUE, COACH

By KELLY NIX

A TEENAGE baseball player who says he was injured after being hit in the head with a ball while operating a pitching machine is suing the league, the coach and several others for monetary damages, according to a new complaint.

Tylor Saling, 17, of Marina, alleges that on Sept. 19, 2013, when he was 15, his coach, Joseph Russell, told him to operate the pitching machine at Marina Vista Elementary School while the coach “took a phone call.”

Though Saling alleges he asked about using a protective screen with the machine, he said Russell told him one wasn’t available and to operate the machine anyway.

Saling “did so, as specifically directed by the coach,” according to the suit filed in Monterey County Superior Court May 18. “Shortly thereafter, a line drive off the bat of a hitter hit Saling in the head.”

The teen received medical care after the accident. But the accident has caused him to suffer chronic headaches, vertigo, and vision impairment in his left eye, the lawsuit says.

Saling “has a permanent injury that will require future care and which will impact his ability to earn wages commensurate with his pre-injury ability,” according to the lawsuit, filed for Saling by Monterey attorney Terry G. Rockwood.

A protective screen is supposed to be used to shield the person operating the machine, which is positioned about 10 feet in front of the pitcher’s mound and pitches balls to batters. Hitters are taught to hit the baseball “squarely and hard into the field of play,” the suit says.

Saling alleges negligence and premises liability, and is seeking monetary damages for hospital and medical expenses and loss of earning capacity.

The direction “by a baseball coach to operate a pitching machine in the face of live batting practice, as occurred in this incident,” according to the suit, “is negligence that unnecessarily increases the inherent risks of the sport of baseball.”

Besides Russell, a volunteer coach, Saling names as defendants the Marina Pony Baseball Softball organization, its then president of the board, Felipe Sonny Riparip, secretary Lisa Sell, treasurer Eddie Lomboy, and Nick White. Email messages to Riparip, Sell and Lomboy sent through the league’s website were not returned. A league official said he couldn’t comment since he hadn’t yet seen the lawsuit. White and Russell could not be reached for comment.

The lawsuit follows a similar one filed last year by Saling against Russell and Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, which operates Marina Vista Elementary.

Film commission hosts fundraising ‘Candid Camera’ tribute

CALLING ATTENTION to the television show that elevated the practical joke to a high art form, the Monterey County Film Commission presents “Candid Camera’s Eight Decades of Smiles with Peter Funt,” Saturday, May 30, at the Performing Arts Center of Pacific Grove.

“Monterey has always been our show’s secret ingredient,” said Funt, whose father, Alan Funt, launched “Candid Camera” in 1948. “We’ve shot over 100 sequences here, so I’m grateful that the film commission is gathering friends and neighbors for a bit of a celebration.”

Offering “a behind-the-scenes peek” at the iconic show as it evolved over the decades, the event is a fundraiser for the nonprofit film group, which promotes Monterey County as a setting for movie and television productions.

Showtime is 7 p.m. Tickets are $30. The performing arts center is located at 835 Forest Ave. Call (831) 646-0910.

When he passed the citizen, his dog attacked the citizen's dog and knocked it off the trail. He pulled his dog off the Labrador. The young male said something similar to, "My dog doesn't do this," and continued jogging. The dog was described as a medium-sized reddish brown, black and white dog with a curled tail. # Council to discuss budget Monday, everything else on Tuesday

By MARY SCHLEY

THE PROPOSED 2015/2016 spending plan will be the main topic of discussion at a city council workshop Monday, June 1, at 5:30 p.m. in city hall. And the following day at 4:30 p.m., members will handle routine business, hear reports on water conservation and waste management, and vote on an appeal of a house approved by the planning commission.

During Monday's work-study session, the council will review, comment and provide direction on the proposed $32 million budget, which must be adopted by the end of the month. Topics for discussion include any errors in the draft released this month, council discretionary grants and subsidies, city administrator Doug Schmitz' "issues and options policy papers," responses to questions submitted by the council and the public, the three-year provisional capital improvements plan, and the new fee schedule for 2015/2016.

At its regular meeting June 2, the council is scheduled to receive a report from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District on new state water conservation rules, as well as get an update on the transition from Waste Management to GreenWaste Recovery as the city's new trash hauler. Councilwoman Victoria Beach is also set to report on attending a meeting in Philadelphia, Pa., on the safety of gas pipelines.

The only public hearing on Tuesday's agenda is an appeal of the planning commission's approval of a new single-family residence on San Antonio north of 13th. Neighbors Heather Ryan and David Dube are opposing the project, but planning staff is recommending the council deny their appeal and uphold the commission's approval.

Meanwhile, items on the consent calendar — which are adopted in one motion, unless a member of the council or the public asks to discuss a specific item — include approval of a $2,044 fee waiver for the Monterey Firefighters Association's showing of "Big Hero 6" in Devendorf Park this summer, a $705,232 contract with Monterey Peninsula Engineering for Phase II of the city's 2014 streets projects, and agreements to purchase a license-plate-recognition program for $62,802 and a wood chipper for $62,139.30.

City hall is located on Monte Verde south of Ocean Avenue. For more information and a complete agenda packet, as well as for copies of the proposed budget and capital spending plan, go to www.ci.carmel.ca.us.

Man to stand trial on attempted murder charge

By KELLY NIX

THE CARMEL Point man prosecutors say beat his landlady into a coma in January was ordered last week to stand trial on criminal charges stemming from the attack.

Marc Cross, 63, was arrested Jan. 24 after police said he beat Karen Jones, 62, in front of her house at 26256 El Camino, an area outside the city limits. At a hearing May 22, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Pamela L. Butler ordered Cross, who is in the county jail, to stand trial on attempted murder and other charges.

A neighbor of Jones' testified at the hearing, saying he heard an argument followed by three whacking noises. The details were similar to the 911 call obtained by The Pine Cone in which the neighbor said the noises sounded like "splitting wood."

"She was saying you know, 'you're insane, you're insane, you're crazy, don't, don't,'" the neighbor said to a 911 dispatcher. "And then I heard three whacks."

What is not clear is why Cross and Jones were arguing before the attack. After the hearing, though, Cross' attorney, Juliet Peck, told The Pine Cone about Cross' lack of history of violence, his days as a choir boy at the Carmel Mission, and his reputation for being "passive."

"Whatever happened that night, it was not an attempted murder — there was no premeditation and no deliberation," Peck said. "It was a tragedy that occurred in a home well known to law enforcement because of the turmoil, dissension and instability suffered by the homeowner as a result of her severe mental illness."

Jones is still in a hospital recovering from her injuries.

P.G. City Council dips into reserves to balance budget, councilman cries foul

By CHRIS COUNTS

AFTER A contentious debate on the subject, the Pacific Grove City Council voted this week to borrow $208,000 from its reserves to balance its $18 million 2015/2016 budget.

The action drew a sharp dissent from city councilman Dan Miller, who described it as “kicking the can down the road” and “a great disservice to the city.”

Instead of spending money from its reserves, Miller suggested trimming $200,000 from the budget. He cited the city’s natural history museum in particular as a candidate for receiving less money.

City councilwoman Casey Lucius, though, took a different view. “I can’t see where we can cut $200,000,” Lucius countered.

Mayor Bill Kampe also supported using the city’s reserves. “Our reserves are large, and our need is small,” Kampe said.

In a letter to the mayor and city council, city manager Tom Frutchey defended using the money from the city’s rainy-day fund.

“There is a cycle for reserves,” Frutchey wrote. “Some years they are added to; other years they are drawn from. For the past five years, we have been adding.”

Earlier in the meeting, while discussing the negative impact the California Public Employees’ Retirement System is having on the city’s finances, Miller pointed out that the city gave its employees raises in March. The salary increases were valued at $235,000 per year. “One way you can start addressing [the increased costs of CalPERS] is to stop giving raises,” he said.

But Frutchey told The Pine Cone the numbers don’t tell the entire story. He said much of the value of the increased salaries are in deferred compensation and medical benefits, and an agenda report projects only a $51,000 impact on the budget during the upcoming fiscal year, which begins in July.

Frutchey said the raises were intended to bring employees’ wages in line with comparable jobs in the private, public and nonprofit sectors.

While there was much disagreement at the May 28 meeting — where Miller and city councilman Bill Peake voted against the budget — the city council members found common ground on one topic: the devastating effect CalPERS is having on the city’s coffers, and the likelihood it will only get worse.

Miller, meanwhile, made a dire prediction. “We’re going to be a skeleton of what we used to be,” he warned.

In addition to voting on the budget and bemoaning the rising costs of CalPERS, the city council discussed ways of raising revenue to offset the town’s rising expenses. The ideas included increasing the transient occupancy tax, raising the business license tax, implementing a real estate transfer tax, or creating an admission tax on tickets — which would significantly impact the Monterey Bay Aquarium, which an average of 1.8 million people visit each year.

Perhaps because the city council was not taking action on any of the revenue-producing ideas, nobody from the public spoke for or against them.

Caltrans to remove trees on Highway 1

SECTIONS OF southbound Highway 1 will be blocked while Caltrans uses a crane to remove a dozen diseased pines from the side of the road next week, according to spokeswoman Susana Cruz. Crews will take out dying trees on a section of highway near the Atherton turnoff Monday, June 1, and will also cut pines on a quarter-mile stretch of highway near Point Lobos State reserve Tuesday through Thursday, June 2-4.

While crews are working on the trees, drivers will be subjected to one-way traffic control with flaggers from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. The roadwork is being performed by the Caltrans Monterey and Salinas maintenance crews as a safety precaution.

AFTER WINNING ANOTHER LACROSSE CROWN, PADRES' FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHT

By CHRIS COUNTS

LED BY a pair of high-scoring underclassmen, Morgan Koucky and Karter Ruiz, the Carmel High School lacrosse team trounced Scotts Valley High, 17-5, May 15 to capture the Mission Trail Athletic League championship.

While the Padres (13-0 in league, 17-2 overall) won the same crown last season, this year's win was extra special because the MTAL recently expanded from eight to 14 teams.

Koucky, a junior, scored six goals and dished out two assists in title game, which was played at Carmel High School.

"I regard him as the best player in our league, and he's received plenty of praise from the other coaches," CHS lacrosse coach Max Murphy told The Pine Cone. "They're astounded when they find out he's a junior who's young enough to be a sophomore."

Not only did Koucky lead the MTAL with 113 points scored (75 goals and 38 assists), but he ranked third in the state. And he accomplished this with two or three defenders often covering him.

"He can score against anybody," Murphy said. "But what's really remarkable is his ability to pass while receiving so much attention from the defense."

The coach also raved about the youngster's sportsmanship.

"He got beat on pretty hard by players bigger than him, and he was only called for one penalty all year, and that's when he accidentally tripped someone," Murphy recalled. "He has no problem taking the contact."

Last week, Koucky was named a high school All American — only the second Carmel High lacrosse player to earn the honor and the first junior from the MTAL to ever to be selected.

When opponents focused too much of their defensive effort on Koucky, Ruiz made them pay for it. Also a junior, Ruiz had four goals and four assists against Scotts Valley High, and he ranked in fifth in the state with 106 points (77 goals and 29 assists).

"I didn't expect that at the beginning of the season," Murphy conceded. "He is very quick, and he uses his smaller stature to get by opponents. He and Morgan are close friends, and they have great chemistry on the field — one is always looking for the other."

Kousky and Ruiz were named this week to the MTAL All-League First Team. Joining them were Emerson Hardy and John Wood. Darian Gagne, Dillon Staples, Bo Brothers and Jacob Johnsson were named to the All-

League Second Team, while Kenshi Husted, Kaden Coombs, Jimmy Thelen and Deric Beatty received honorable mention.

Murphy also cited Hardy as another key to the Padres' success this season. The sophomore established himself as a dominant defensive player.

"He was hands-down the best defender in

After defeating Scotts Valley High School May 15, the Carmel High lacrosse team celebrates defending its Mission Trails Athletic League crown. This year's squad only lost two games, both non-league contests against two of the San Francisco Bay Area's best teams.

CUSD schools reap awards

By MARY SCHLEY

CARMEL HIGH School won a gold medal in the U.S. News and World Report ranking of the best high schools in the country, moving up to the 33rd best high school in the state, and the 196th best in the country, out of more than 21,000 considered for the list, according to officials at the Carmel Unified School District. The publication stated the school's ranking was "based on their performance on state assessments and how well they prepare students for college," and it placed well into the top 1 percent in the nation.

The honor followed on the heels of Carmel Middle School's receipt of a major environmental award from the feds last month. The U.S. Department of Education named CMS a Green Ribbon School, making it one of only 58 schools in just 14 districts in the nation to be recognized for its "exemplary efforts to reduce environmental impact and utility costs, promote better health, and ensure effective environmental education, including civics and green career pathways," according to CUSD.

Christy Goldfuss, managing director of the White House Council on Environmental Quality, and U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan, announced the winners in Washington, D.C., in April.

"We believe we have an obligation to educate students beyond academics, the arts and athletics," commented Marvin Biasotti, the soon-to-be-retired superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District. "This award recognizes the district's efforts over many years to be environmentally responsible within the community and to promote eco-literacy among students."

CMS principal Ken Griest credited the award to the teachers and the neighboring MEarth habitat project, with its LEED-certified green classroom building, which "provides an amazing space and learning tool for teaching kids about green practices and sustainability while they study a variety of subjects."

The feds selected the winners from a pool of candidates nominated by 30 state education agencies. Carmel Middle, which California State Superintendent Tom Torlakson had chosen to compete for the award, was one of 19 middle schools to receive it. At that time, CMS was also named a Green Achiever, the highest honor in California's Green Ribbon Awards program.

Compromise sought to avoid general plan lawsuit

By CHRIS COUNTS

TWO WEEKS after the Monterey County Board of Supervisors rejected an offer to settle a pair of lawsuits by making amendments to the county's 2010 general plan, county counsel Les Girard said May 12 he is optimistic a compromise can be reached.

The lawsuits were filed five years ago by LandWatch Monterey County and the Open Monterey Project.

The changes would limit development in the Salinas Valley if a study shows there isn't as much water as the general plan anticipated, prohibit new agriculture on slopes greater than 25 percent, except along the wine corridor and in Cachagua, where it would be permitted on slopes up to 35 percent, require stand-alone inns and restaurants proposed along the wine corridor to go through the standard permit process, and strengthen language protecting wildlife corridors.

The county's planning staff had recommended the changes be made to the general plan.

But after hearing from a broad spectrum of residents and business interests along the wine corridor April 28, supervisors rejected the offer, fueling speculation the parties would end up in court.

But the supervisors also encouraged staff to continue negotiations with the plaintiffs, and the talks are showing progress, Girard reported. "We believe with hard work and diligence, we can reach a compromise," he said the May 12 hearing.

The supervisors agreed to continue the item until Sept. 25.

A century of Pine Cones

■ 98 Years Ago — May 31, 1917

A Remarkable Tree

Not far from Carmel-by-the-Sea, in the Monterey National Forest, there grows the Bristlecone or Santa Lucia fir. This tree is found nowhere in the world but in the Santa Lucia Mountains. Its dense crown, shaped like an Indian club, and often ending in a point or spire, its deep, lustrous, green foliage and its drooping tasseled branches are so distinctive that the tree can be recognized at a long distance. It is the only true fir in this region, although white fir is found both to the north and the south. It has been planted as an ornamental tree in Europe and in this country, but owing to the low germinating power and transient vitality of the seed, propagation is difficult. The number of trees in existence is about 3,000.

Carmel Children Interview New Mayor

Mayor Keith Evans likes his new job. He thinks it is a fine job and "lots of fun." He also thinks that the new high school is a fine thing for Carmel, something that it has needed for a long time, and will profit by having. The mayor responded with a broad smile when asked, "What do you think of the program that will be followed by the school next year?"

He said: "I do not know much about the next year's program, but whatever it is, it will be a good one, for they have some excellent teachers who will be taking care of it." — Phyllis Jones, 8th Grade.

Total Peace

As the fighting in Europe rolls along it becomes increasingly apparent that the nearer a nation's effort approaches the dimensions of "total war" the greater are its chances of victory.

Germany, which has been preparing industrially for war for the best part of a decade, is out in front today because she put her heart and soul first into the preparation and then into the employment of the things which she had got ready. If she loses it will be only because she tried to take on too much of the world. She has been brutal and ruthless, and if she does make good her promise to invade England she can only hope for success if she intensifies that ruthlessness and brutality. For a prerequisite of such an invasion is the total paralysis of her enemy by large scale bombings of an almost undreamed of intensity.

But war itself is brutal and ruthless, and since it is today waged not only with armies but with entire economies it would be illogical to follow any set rules of sportsmanship or decency. Sweetness and light have no place in a gang fight. The sweetness sours and the light goes out when the fighting starts. Indiscriminate bombings and burnings and machine gunnings are horrible and revolting, but they are not out of place in a horrible and revolting game.

It is too late to do anything about them now. The only course for the allies seems to be to meet total war with total war and trust to their own greater fortitude to offset the greater mechanical strength of the enemy. And that their fortitude is greater is indicated by the fact that Germany expects ruthlessness to demoralize them. To me that is evidence of a psychological vulnerability to ruthlessness on the part of the Germans themselves.

■ 50 Years Ago — June 3, 1965

Editor's Column

Air pollution is causing agricultural losses in California totaling $132 million annually, Dr. Ray C. Thompson, a scientist at the University of California at Riverside's air pollution research center recently told the Council of California Growers, according to a report sent to The Pine Cone by the growers' group. Another statistic presented to the growers by Dr. Thompson was that, among the 28 counties in California which show evidence of smog damage to crops, Monterey County has the least losses from this cause. This proves that Monterey County already has a smog condition. Should the Humble Oil Company be permitted to open a refinery at Moss Landing, this incidence would increase, also, once a precedent is established by allowing one refinery, the establishment of others will be much harder to control.

The Carmel City Council and planning commission are urging the county to consider carefully allowing this new industry to come to Moss Landing. Particularly, they are asking for a county ordinance with the strictest air pollution controls possible, whether or not Humble Oil is allowed to build a refinery at Moss Landing.

The Carmel Citizens Committee, the Carmel Motel Association and the Carmel Business Association are protesting the refinery. Earl Moser of Carmel, a former oil company executive, is the cochairman, with Charles Kramer of Pebble Beach, of the Committee for Clean Air which is circulating petitions opposing the granting of a special permit to Humble Oil by the county planning commission. Already over 5,000 have signed these petitions. More signatures are needed.

Builders Join to Save Pieces of History

On the corner of Santa Rita street and Third Avenue once stood the house that Charles built. Charles Sayers was a master carver, one of the breed of craftsmen and women who came to Carmel in its early days.

Sayers was a native of Scotland and found the windswept, rough coastline of Carmel a poignant reminder of his home. After a business trip to the California coast, he moved and literally made his home in Carmel. It was definitely a wood-carver's house and Sayers left his mark in every niche and outcropping: he carved the garage doors, carved the mantels, carved pieces of rock in the stone chimney. Sayers was and is well known in his field, and the front door he carved for the house is depicted in many books on woodcarving.

Another famous Carmel craftsman of the time and a good friend of Sayers, blacksmith and ironworker Francis Whittaker, put his touches in the house with his wrought iron chandeliers and wall sconces. Architect Julia Morgan, the architect for Hearst Castle, is thought to have designed the tiles that went up the stairs of a guest house on the double lot.

Sayers and his wife, Cecily, sold the house in 1945 to Julian and Dorothy von Meier, and over the years it became known as the von Meier house. Von Meier stayed in the house until her death in October last year, and her children, each with their own lives, reluctantly put the house on the market. Time had taken its toll on the structure, which did not have foundation.

Fred and Sharon Slabaugh bought the house on the condition that it could be torn down. And down it came, piece by piece. The Slabaughs hired master carpenter Charles Illg to take the house apart bit by bit, saving Sayers' and Whittaker's work as he progressed. "If the house couldn't be saved, at least pieces of it will live on," said Carmel Heritage president Roger Newell. "That is the best thing that can happen in such a circumstance."

Longtime firefighters honored

A PAIR of chiefs who've worked for Monterey Fire for a combined seven decades received the William E. Parker Award, named for Monterey's first fire chief, who served from 1890 to 1942, last month. The award is the highest level of recognition for Monterey firefighters, who also provide fire protection for Carmel and Pacific Grove, and only those who have worked at the department for at least a quarter century are eligible. Further, they must have demonstrated leadership by helping to improve the fire department while providing service to the community and other organizations.

Felix Colello and Stewart Roth received the award at a packed Monterey City Council meeting April 21.

Having been with Monterey Fire for nearly four decades, Colello has helped with Career Development Days at Monterey High and instructed a variety of rescue, auto extri-cation, and command skills courses. Roth, meanwhile, has worked for the department for more than 32 years, serving in communications, vehicle maintenance and equipment, technical rescue, urban search and rescue, and as an instructor on a wide range of topics. In his dozen-plus years as the division chief in charge of training, he assisted firefighters all over the state. Like Colello, he's part of the FEMA California Urban Search and Rescue Task Force 3.

The chief closed by saying the Parker Award "illustrates the long-standing commitment to our core organizational values of pride, professionalism, creativity, integrity, positive attitude, safety, cooperation, fiscal responsibility and personal accountability demonstrated by both of these officers," who "have inspired others to push themselves to contribute more to the Monterey Fire Department and our community."

AFRP: Kitten season is here

SPRINGTIME MEANS kitten time, and a lot of the little furballs don't have homes. So the Animal Friends Rescue Project in Pacific Grove is looking for friendly folks to foster baby kitties.

Fostering responsibilities range in demand and difficulty. Easiest is the mom-and-kittens combo, when momma cats "do most of the work by providing kittens food and guidance." Medium involves 4-week-old kittens that are eating on their own and use a litter box, and most advanced, but also very rewarding, are the tiny kittens that need bottle feeding every three to four hours for the first few weeks. "You get to experience a kitten's rapid progress and provide a safe haven for one of the most vulnerable of shelter animals," according to the AFRP, which provides all food, formula, litter, vet care, supplies, support and training. With any fostering, the humans "provide love, socialization and a safe place for the kittens to grow."

The nonprofit is also looking for kitten sponsors at a rate of $20 per month per kitten. The money helps pay for formula, wet and dry food, litter, vaccines, dewormer, spay/neuter, microchips and any other medical care to get them ready for adoption.

For more information on fostering, donating or adopting, visit www.animalfriendsrescue.org.

MARSHMALLOWS, S'MORES HIGHLIGHT REOPENING OF PARK CAMPFIRE CENTER

By CHRIS COUNTS

ONCE A hub of activity at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, the Campfire Center — established in 1937 but closed since 2008 — reopened two weeks ago to much fanfare.

About 150 people, including a couple dozen youngsters, attended a ribbon-cutting ceremony May 16 at the center, where they sang songs, enjoyed music played by park staff, watched a skit by Boy Scouts from Marina, listened to a talk about the park's history, roasted marshmallows and munched on s'mores.

For more than seven decades, the center was the site of campfire and junior ranger programs, and special events. Located next to the new entrance kiosk at the state park, it features a fire ring and seating for up to 300 people. But for the most part, it's been closed since September 2008.

As part of a $560,000 upgrade, which was paid for by taxpayers with Proposition 84 funds that were approved by voters in 2006, the center received new redwood benches, a new redwood podium, an improved electrical system, better lighting, and state-of-the-art audio and visual equipment.

"This is an example of why people need to vote for these bonds, and the good things we can do with bond money," Patricia Clark-Gray, a state parks interpretive specialist, told The Pine Cone.

At last week's ceremony, the park's acting chief of interpretation, Brian Cahill, called the center "a fantastic facility in a spectacular setting."

Not long after the state purchased 680 acres from John Pfeiffer in 1933 and created the park, the center was constructed by Civilian Conservation Corps workers, who used local redwood logs to build the benches. While those benches were replaced long ago, the new benches are also made from redwood logs. They were designed by architect Mike Zuccaro and built by contractor Martin Slanina. "They are truly works of art and built to last," Cahill added.

the backyard by knocking down a 4-foot-by-8-foot lattice panel that separates his property from the Pebble Beach Co. land.

To make things worse, when he went back into the house to call Pebble Beach security, he inadvertently left the front door ajar.

"When I was done making the phone call, the goats were all standing around in the living room," he said. "They were all pushing against the door and I was trying to get them out. We finally got some of them out."

Croonquist said one goat, the biggest of the bunch, was in the living room peering through a plate glass window at his cohorts in the backyard. The animal, not realizing he was looking through glass, backed up in preparation to charge through the glass. Croonquist yelled at him, and the animal scurried away.

But the goats also made their way into the kitchen and family and dining rooms, leaving droppings on floors and dirtying the white carpet. They knocked over a pot while trying to munch on what they believed was another meal.

"They tried to eat my artificial flowers," Phoebe Croonquist said.

Pebble Beach security and the fire department responded quickly to the house. With the help of the goat herder, they were able to corral the animals back to the greenbelt.

Not long after the incident, the Pebble Beach Community Services District sent out a gardener to replace many of the plants, flowers and bushes that were destroyed. He also took an estimate on the cost of replacing the remaining vegetation. The PBCSD also arranged for all of the carpets to be cleaned that same day.

"They were above and beyond nice," Phoebe Croonquist said. "They even offered to replace the carpet."

The couple also credited the firefighters from Cal Fire who stuck around to clean up the goat droppings in the house.

Despite the damage to their yard, Phoebe Croonquist said she sympathized with the goat herder.

"I felt so sorry for him," she said. "He just stood there and said, 'I'm sorry.'"

The Pebble Beach Co., the Pebble Beach Community Services District and the Del Monte Forest Conservancy jointly arrange for the goats to work their magic in Del Monte Forest, PBCSD general manager Mike Niccum told The Pine Cone. The animals are provided by Orinda-based Goats R Us, and currently about 350 of them are eating away at vegetation in Pebble Beach.

"Both the Pebble Beach Company and the fire department responded to help address the issues at the [Croonquists'] house," Niccum said. "All the costs are going to be paid for by the fire department."

Jennifer Valdez, fire captain with Cal Fire in Pebble Beach, said the goats are critical to the Del Monte Forest's "fire defense plan."

"Once in a while, the goats decide the grass is greener on the other side of the fence, and they snack on 'off limits' resident landscaping," Valdez said. "But that's not all that frequent, and when you compare the amount of hazardous fuel loading they are able to remove, we think the program is well worth it."

The incident came at an awkward time for the Croonquists, since that same night, they were planning on hosting their 21-year-old granddaughter's college graduation party in the backyard. By the time the party started, though, all had been cleaned up, and the celebration went off without a hitch.

"I never thought at 95 I would be a goat herder," Paul Croonquist said.

exchanged. The case was documented.

Carmel Valley: Jewelry was misplaced/lost at a Carmel Valley Road residence. Report requested for insurance purposes.

Pacific Grove: Conducted a patrol check of the Asilomar turnout between 2100 and 2200 hours and saw a black Dodge Ram van parked near the entrance closest to Asilomar Avenue and Ocean View Boulevard next to a picnic table and grill. Officer shined light on the van and area, and noticed the grill had an open flame but appeared it was being monitored by those present. At 2327 hours, the officer returned and found sheathing from a length of industrial-type electrical wire, which had been stripped of its copper. The sheathing was discarded on the ground and some of its insulation had been placed in a nearby trashcan. Officer subsequently contacted the subject in the van. He claimed he had found the sheathing on the beach off of Cannery Row, and a friend threw it out there.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle stopped on Forest Avenue for vehicle code violations. Driver, a 19-year-old male, was found to be under the influence of alcohol and marijuana. The driver was arrested, booked, cited and released. Nothing further.

Pacific Grove: School resource officer was contacted by a school administrator who said a student came to him and told him she was approached by a man whom she did not know. Officer went and spoke to the student, and she described the man as a male adult, brown hair, brown facial hair, 35-40 years old, wearing a hat and beige cargo pants. The student said he was not aggressive with her, but she felt it was very strange he was speaking to a young girl. The student at this time told the officer she walked away and texted her mother about what happened. The student was able to get on the bus and arrive to school safely. The student's mother arrived to make sure she was OK, and then they advised the school administration. Area check was conducted, and the male was gone.

Donald Slichter

Donald Allen ("Duke") Slichter passed away unexpectedly on April 8, 2015 while vacationing in Florence, Italy with his wife of 30 years, Victoria. Duke was given his nickname by his father with whom he shared a birthday. Born on February 18, 1932 in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Duke was raised in White Fish Bay and attended Milwaukee University School. Upon graduation, Duke proceeded on to Princeton University where he played football for his beloved Tigers, becoming a Life Member of the Princeton Football Association. He also became a member of Cannon Club and the Nassau Club. After graduating Cum Laude in 1954, he joined the U.S. Navy as an ensign, serving as a supply officer. Duke achieved the rank of Lieutenant before leaving the Navy in 1958.

Taking a cue from his father, Duke took a job in the steelmaking business and moved west in 1958 to join Pacific Alloy Engineering Corp. in San Diego. There he worked in business management and pursued his interest in public policy and politics, managing Lionel Van Deerlin's first Congressional campaign. Duke's interest in public policy led him to the University of Michigan School of Law where he served on the Board of Editors of the Michigan Law Review and was inducted into the Order of the Coif, the national law student honor society.

Duke joined the San Francisco law firm of Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe, LLP in 1961. Duke became a partner in 1968 and practiced corporate law. He served as Chairman of Orrick's Corporate Department during 1976-1980 and as a member of the firm's Executive Committee from 1978-1981. Duke's clients included technology-based investment banking firms Hambrecht & Quist and Robertson, Colman & Stephens. For many years Duke also represented Applied Materials, the world's largest semiconductor capital equipment company, served as Corporate Secretary of that company, and became a member of the American Society of Corporate Secretaries. Duke also had a large practice in the venture area representing both startups and venture capital firms. In the early '80's Duke led Orrick's entry into the Silicon Valley.

While working in San Francisco, Duke became a member of the University Club and Villa Taverna. He developed a strong interest in the California Golden Bears football program and became a member of the San Francisco Grid Club. Ever the optimist, Duke cheered on his adopted Cal Bears during even the most difficult seasons, which were many. He rarely missed a home game.

Duke retired in 1995 and contributed his time and efforts to his long standing passions for music, the arts, travel and Princeton. His love of classical music found its voice as a volunteer, donor and board member of the Carmel Bach Festival and enthusiastic supporter of Opera San Jose. His generosity and humor also found its outlet as pro bono advisor, donor and board member of the Cartoon Art Museum in San Francisco. Duke's enthusiasm for Princeton knew no bounds and he regularly traveled to attend Princeton football games and class reunions. In 2014, Duke walked Princeton's "P-rade" for his 60th reunion, a milestone he was determined to accomplish.

While Duke was working with Orrick, he and his wife Victoria lived in Los Altos. After retirement the pair spent more time at their vacation home in Moss Landing. As Duke's involvement in activities on the Monterey Peninsula increased, they shifted their main residence to their beach home. In 2013 Duke became a member of the Old Capital Club in Monterey.

Duke's ingratiating wit and easy laugh endeared him to one and all. Less well known was his terrific singing voice and when the occasion warranted he would sing Dean Martin's "Volare". His impromptu performances surprised and delighted friends and unsuspecting patrons at various establishments. Duke was also known for his wry humor and zest for irony. At ease speaking in front of groups, he loved to regale one and all with self-deprecating stories including his highlight football experience as a Princeton Tiger - being run over and getting yelled at during practice by Princeton's Heisman Trophy winner.

In addition to his wife Victoria, Duke is survived by his four children, KC (Ann), Katy (Steve McCormick), Mark (Emily Kingston) and Amy. He is also survived by eight grandchildren, Chloe, Read, Martha, Kelly, Hannah, Duncan, Graham and Erin.

A celebration of Duke's life will be held at 2:00 PM on June 25 at Los Altos Golf & Country Club. In lieu of flowers donations to an organization supporting one of Duke's interests would be greatly appreciated.

Garey Gordon, a long-time member of our Carmel Community and an ever present friend to all, died on Thursday, May 21, 2015.

A Memorial Service to celebrate Garey's life will be held at 2:00 p.m. on Monday, June 1, 2015, at Carmel Presbyterian Church, Ocean Avenue at Junipero, Carmel, CA.

Kathleen Isabelle (Nagle) Waggoner

On May 2, 2015, Kathleen Isabelle (Nagle) Waggoner left this world to join her beloved Bill. Kay was born on March 20, 1924, in Sacramento, CA, to Lesley (Grieg) and John L. Nagle. She was graduated from the Jokake School in Scottsdale, AZ, attended Stanford University, and studied drama. On April 8, 1944, she married William Waggoner of St. Louis, MO. They raised 3 sons, William (Karen) of Bethel, CT; Douglas (Debra) of Steamboat Springs, CO; and Scott (Jacque) of Peoria, AZ.

Kay was an active volunteer wherever she lived. She was a docent at the Monterey Aquarium, on the Board of the Monterey Symphony, and always available to arrange flowers anywhere. She had an amazing talent for knowing the perfect thing to say or do in any situation to make others comfortable.

She will be missed by her sons, her daughters-in-law, 19 grandchildren, and numerous great-grandchildren, as well as friends from coast to coast. There will be a gathering of family in 2016 to commit her ashes in Monterey Bay.

In lieu of flowers, donations to Cure GM1 Foundation, PO Box 6890, Albany, CA 94706 are requested.

Rising harpist at Sunset, duo revives folk romance

BY CHRIS COUNTS

GIFTED WITH musical ability that belies her 21 years, harpist Noel Wan performs Sunday, May 31, at Sunset Center.

The concert is presented by the nonprofit Carmel Music Society, which in 2014 awarded Wan with the top prize in its annual Instrumental Competition — the first time a harpist ever received the honor.

“She’s just incredible,” Ann Thorp of the Carmel Music

Society told The Pine Cone. “She comes across as very mature — you wouldn’t think she’s just 21. Her understanding of music is so advanced.”

A rising star among harpists, Wan is a San Jose native and Yale University graduate student who has already made her mark on the classical music world. At 16, she took first place in the Dutch Harp Festival Competition, and she placed second in the 2013 Nippon International Harp Competition and the 2015 Korea International Harp Competition.

At Sunset Center, Wan will not only play music by classical composers like Johann Sebastian Bach, but songs by harpists Henriette Renié, Félix Godefrid and Marcel Grandjany.

The concert starts at 3 p.m., and a kid-friendly reception follows. Tickets are $10. A limited number of tickets are available for students K-12 if accompanied by an adult. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 625-9938 or visit www.carmelmusic.org.

Joan & Bob together again

You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. color combinations and choices.”

As the title of the show implies, the two artists explore form and color. “The difference is that Nancy is making a conscious effort to put together different elements in her work, while I’m looking for them in found objects,” explained Hiller, who is well known in local art circles as the curator of the Jo Mora Trust Collection.

The similarities and differences between the two artists’ work make for a dynamic display, Hiller said.

“I think it’s going to be a very engaging exhibit,” he added. “It has a very harmonious feel to it, and there’s a lot of subtlety to the work.”

The center hosts a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. The artists also present a free talk about their work Saturday at 3 p.m. The show continues through July 10. The Cherry Center is located at Fourth and Guadalupe. Call (831) 624-7491.

The fine art of angels

Showcasing an artist whose muse is an angel, Gallery Elite hosts a reception Friday, May 29, from 4 to 7 p.m., for North Carolina painter Anne Neilson.

After running a successful pottery business for nearly a decade, Neilson took a break from her art to raise a family. By 2003, though, she was looking for a creative outlet.

“I wanted to do something that reflected my faith and who

I am,” Neilson explained. “I like to paint, and I came up with a very abstract angel. I sent it to my sister, and she said, ‘You have found your voice.’”

Neilson’s paintings of angels have become so popular that she has little time to explore other subjects with her brush and easel.

“The demand for the angels series is so high I don’t have time to do other work I like to do,” she explained. “Angels really resonate with people. They have such an emotional connection with them and are drawn to them on many different levels. It’s been such an amazing journey.”

In 2012, Neilson released her first book, “Angels In Our Midst,” a coffee table-sized production that combined her art-work with stories about angels. A second book with a similar theme, “Strokes of Compassion,” came out last year. Neilson will sign copies of both books Friday.

Gallery Elite is located on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth. Call (831) 625-2233.

‘Drifting in and out of reality’

On display in June at Sunset Center’s Marjorie Evans Gallery is an exhibit by Will Bullas, who is not only the past president of the Carmel Art Association and a man with an engaging wit, but an artist who is an accomplished illustrator.

Titled, “‘Til I Fall Off The Twig,” the show serves as an introduction to Bullas’ whimsical work, which often depicts animals engaging in human behaviors, such as a dog sipping a glass of wine, a gorilla trying on a pair of sunglasses, or a pig dressed in a Roman toga and presiding over the games in the Coliseum.

“I have 20 brand new pieces,” explained Bullas, who lives in Carmel Valley. “While I typically work in watercolors, I created these in acrylics, and each of the pieces is quite individual.”

Bullas describes his work as “drifting in and out of reality, which my therapist confirms is a darn good thing for me,” he added.

The gallery, which hosts a reception Thursday, June 4, from 5 to 7 p.m., is located at San Carlos and Ninth. The show will be on display through June 30.

Not-to-be-missed wine dinners, Monterey's birthday BBQ, and a great volunteer

TWO SPECIAL wine dinners are taking place in town next week: La Balena will present rare, hard-to-find Sardinian and Tuscan wines during a five-course feast Wednesday, June 3, and Grasing's will host an evening featuring storied Ruinart Champagne June 4.

Working with the unusual lineup of Italian wines, La Balena chef Brad Briske said Wednesday he's planning on making carpaccio, a pair of hearty pastas with different sauces and ingredients, and a whole animal for the main course.

"I'll do a veggie pasta and a meat pasta that focus on different sauces, and for the last course, some kind of big, roasty meat — more whole-animal cuts, more primal," he said, to go with the white wine and "three big reds."

An Evening with Sebastiano Rosa — featuring the Sardinian wines of Agricola Punica (a collaboration of a few major forces in the Italian winemaking world) and Marchese Ludovico Antinori's Tenuta di Biserno in Tuscany — promises to include some impressive offerings.

Anna Bartolini, who owns the small Junipero Street restaurant with her husband, Emanuele, said the white wine, a blend of Vermentino and Chardonnay, hasn't been released yet, and the lineup will also include Carignan-based blends. Marchese Lodovico Antinori, who sold his renowned estate, Tenuta dell'Ornellaia, in 2002, launched Tenuta di Biserno with his brother, Piero Antinori, in 2012. Il Pino and Biserno, two wines to be included at the June 3 dinner, are described as "unique Super Tuscan blends with depth, intensity, complexity and elegance."

The evening, which costs $105 per person, plus tax and tip, will also offer a preview of the cuisine Briske plans to offer at La Balena after its new sister restaurant, Il Grillo, opens soon in the former pastry shop at Mission and Fifth. While the pastas and other well known La Balena items will be moved there, more intricate, handmade dishes and whole-animal cooking will take place at La Balena.

"A lot of our classic stuff that we're known for here, we're going to serve up the street," he said, referring to Il Grillo. "And this place will focus on more intricate, hand-tended and smaller dishes."

Call (831) 250-6295 for more information or reservations. La Balena is located on the west side of Junipero north of Sixth.

The following night a couple of blocks away, Grasing's at Sixth and Mission will host Dom Ruinart winemaker Amelie Chatin and U.S. sales director Megan Gordon for an evening of celebrating bubbly. Founded in 1729 by Nicholas Ruinart, Ruinart is the oldest established Champagne house in France, and Chatin and Gordon will be sharing some of their very limited wines, according to sommelier Toby Rowland-Jones.

The lineup includes two vintage Champagnes: 2002 Blanc de Blancs and 2004 Rosé. Vintages in Champagne are unusual, as they are only made when the year's harvest is superlative enough to stand on its own, rather than requiring blending in wines from other, stronger years. Accompanying those will be the non-vintage Blanc de Blancs and Rosé poured from magnums, all paired with chef Kurt Grasing's cuisine, including abalone.

Tickets for the evening are $160, inclusive. For more information, call Grasing's at (831) 624-6562.

La Merienda preview

After 45 years, former Monterey Mayor Peter Coniglio is passing the tongs to restaurateur Chris Shake as he becomes chairman of the La Merienda BBQ Committee. La Merienda is the City of Monterey's birthday party, and the celebration is set for 11:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 6, at Custom House Plaza. The event marks the anniversary of the founding of Monterey in June 1770 by Junipero Serra and Capt. Gaspar de Portola.

The 84th Annual Monterey History & Art Association's La Merienda will include the special barbecue, mariachis, piñatas and the "Californio" party in the historic Memory Garden. "La Merienda" means "picnic" in Spanish, and the celebration centers around a barbecue prepared and served by community leaders and local chefs.

The menu includes a choice of tri-tip or chicken, salad, beans, garlic bread and dessert — a rose-adorned cake. La Merienda planning committee member Anne Burk said she will be preparing nine-layer dips in margarita glasses. "The kicker is that I use Gus Arriola's guacamole recipe that was printed in the 'Gordo' comic strip in newspapers circa 1961," she added.

MH&AA has hosted the party, which includes attendees in period costume, for the last 84 years, and all proceeds benefit Monterey's history and arts programs. For more information and to purchase tickets, visit www.museumofmonterey.org or call (831) 372-4445.

Chaney Volunteer of the Year

The Santa Lucia Highlands Wine Artisans selected Stefani Chaney of Scheid Vineyards to receive the inaugural Josh Lee Award for service to the group. The first Volunteer of the Year was named at the association's annual gala earlier this month, when board president Gary Francioni cited Chaney's efforts in promoting the AVA, which is best known for its Chardonnay and Pinot Noir.

Francioni credited her with sharing her time and knowledge, and her efforts to bring in local industry and restaurant partners to help with outreach. "She has helped to make our public and trade events successful, reflecting the association's values and the quality of our wines," he said. "Stefani is one of our group's most important ambassadors."

The award is named for the late son of Morgan Winery owner Dan Lee. Josh Lee died in January at the age of 19, and the award was created "to honor the memory of Mr. Lee's positive attitude and hardworking support of SLH Wine Artisans events."

The four-course progressive dinner will be enjoyed at three different locations — Peter B's, Alvarado Street Brewery and Montrio Bistro.

Peter B's will provide the first course: ale and fennel sausage-stuffed chicken wings, BLTs featuring Baker's Bacon and mini prawn tacos paired with 40 Acre Ale and Pacific Street Raspberry Wheat. Alvarado Street Brewery will present the second course of hoisin-braised short rib bahn mi and beer-battered zucchini fries paired with Minesweeper IPA and Greenhorn Kolsch, and the third course will be at Montrio, which will serve stuffed pork tenderloin wrapped in Baker's Bacon, with the Scotch Ale made by both breweries. Montrio will also provide dessert of compressed strawberries, brie de meaux brûlée, balsamic caramel and bitter chocolate cookie, paired with the Fruit Sour beer from Alvarado Street.

The dinner is part of Monterey Beer Week, and tickets cost $95 per person. They are available via www.eventbrite.com.

Do You Have Any of the Following Conditions?

- Arthritis
- Knee Pain
- Cartilage damage
- Bone-on-bone
- Tendonitis
- Bursitis
- Crunching & popping sounds

Living with knee pain can feel like a crippling experience. Let's face it, your knees aren't as young as you used to be, and playing with the kids or grandkids isn't any easier either. Maybe your knee pain keeps you from walking short distances or playing golf like you used to.

Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your knee hurts and the pain just won't go away!

My name is Dr. Susan White. Since I have been in practice nearly 15 years, we've seen many people with knee problems leave the office pain free.

If you're suffering from these conditions, a new breakthrough in medical technology may completely eliminate your pain and help restore normal function to your knees.

Finally, An Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery

The MLS Class IV Robotic Therapeutic Laser is an outpatient, non-surgical procedure, often used in physical therapy and sports medicine to accelerate the healing process. It offers non-invasive treatment to promote healing for those who suffer from pain in muscles, nerves, and joints, like that associated with chronic knee pain. Lasers such as this are used by professional sports teams including the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Bengals.

Promotes Rapid Healing Of The Injured Tissues.

This pain-free, non-surgical approach works by stimulating the body's natural healing processes, providing pain relief and reducing injury damage.

This leading edge technology has an impressive success rate of returning patients to work, sports and competitive activities, as well as everyday life.

Patients treated with the MLS-Laser often show a higher level of function, both during and after the treatment period. The therapeutic laser provides a tremendous alternative for those facing surgery.

Here's what to do now:

Due to the expected demand for this special offer, I urge you to call our office at once. The phone number is 831-684-7474. Call today and we can get started with your talk and exam as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is called Natural Foundations Healing Center and you can find us at 1010 Cass St. D3 in Monterey, CA. Tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Knee Evaluation.

Here's What Patients Say: In addition to being a former competitive athlete myself I train world level athletes in Karate. Ranking at #6 female official in the world I also have to be at the top of my game physically. The Dr. fixed my knee problems without surgery and allowed me to continue doing what I love and what I do for a living. I am so grateful that I found him. - Mary C.

Could This Non-Invasive, Natural Treatment Be The Answer To Your Knee Pain?

For the First 25 Callers Only, I'm running a very special offer where you can find out if you are a candidate for Cold Laser therapy.

What does this offer include? Everything I normally do in my "Knee Pain Evaluation". Just call and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your problem where I will listen...really listen...to the details of your case.
- A complete neuromuscular examination.
- You'll see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients.

The First 25 Callers Only can get everything I've listed here for only $60. The normal price for this type of evaluation $250, so you're saving a considerable amount by taking me up on this offer.

Remember what it was like before you had knee problems; when you were pain free and could enjoy everything life had to offer? It can be that way again. Don't neglect your problem any longer – don't wait until it's too late.

Yours in Health, Dr. Susan White D.C.

P.S. Now you might be wondering...

"Is this safe? Are there any side effects or dangers to this?"

The FDA cleared the first Cold Laser in 2002. This was after their study found 76% improvement in patients with pain. Their only warning – don't shine it in your eyes. Of course at our office, the laser is never anywhere near your eyes and we'll give you a comfortable pair of goggles for safety. Don't wait and let your knee problems get worse, disabling you for life. Take me up on my offer and call today 831-684-7474.

Why we hate the lottery

THIS WEEK the other newspapers in the county and all the TV stations eagerly reported that a Salinas man won $2.7 million in the California lottery.

We wish that gentleman well, but if you're a sharp-eyed reader of this newspaper, you'll not only notice that we haven't mentioned this local lottery story in our news pages, you'll also realize that we never report a single word about the lottery. In fact, while other news media are always getting all starry eyed over powerball this and scratcher that, gushing over the size of the newest jackpot, or bombarding you with the latest winning numbers, we act like the lottery doesn't exist. We ignore it because we hate it.

We don't hate it because we're against gambling. If you enjoy spending your money on a game you can't win, be our guest. At the very least, gambling generates a lot of jobs — as in, practically the whole State of Nevada.

We're also not against the lottery because the money it was supposed to provide for schools has simply been offset by reductions in budget allocations for the schools from the state Legislature.

Nor are we against it because people who buy lottery tickets are usually the people who can least afford them. Sure, it makes us uncomfortable to see people who are just one rung above homelessness waiting in lines at liquor stores and 7-Elevens to spend their scarce greenbacks on something that will never benefit them. Even the poor, we think, are entitled to exercise their own free will.

The reason we hate the lottery is that it's the worst form of gambling invented by man, with odds of winning that are far worse than anything in Las Vegas, or even anything that the most corrupt bookie ever tried to pawn off on his customers.

To understand why, consider roulette. It's a mindless form of gambling which involves no skill whatsoever. People who play it are 100 percent at the mercy of immutable principles of random chance and can do nothing to change them — but at least when they play it's obvious (or should be) what those odds are.

When the ball falls on a roulette wheel, there are 38 possible outcomes, and the payoff for picking the right one is 35 to 1. Because of the various types of bets available on roulette tables, overall payoffs are actually smaller, and it is well established that, over the long haul, winnings will average 95 percent of what is bet, while the house's take will be 5 percent (which may not seem like much, but it's enough to build all those hotels on The Strip). Put another way, if you spend your life playing the roulette, at the end you'll be left with 95 percent of whatever you bet, and so will everybody else.

This number, which is similar for most of the games in Las Vegas, tells all you really need to know about what to expect when you play roulette.

But what about the lottery? In California, about 35 percent of what's spent on lottery tickets goes to a fund for the public schools, and 15 percent goes for overhead and advertising. What's left — about 50 percent — is distributed as winnings, which means that if you play the lottery long enough, you can count on being left with 50 percent of whatever you bet.

Get the picture? The inevitable return from playing the lottery is just a little better than half of what you'll be left with if you spend your life playing roulette.

Nevertheless, the State of California is constantly bombarding its citizens with snappy ads that make it sound like the lottery is a great deal.

"You can't win if you don't play!" is a slogan we've all seen on billboards and heard on TV and radio at least a million times. "The California Lottery makes millionaires!" brags its website, alongside stories of people who have been rescued from their miseries thanks to the munificence of the wonderful lottery. The lottery website is replete with tips on how to play, constantly repeats the words "lucky" and "win," and offers a bevy of seductively named products for you to choose from.

All this PR is meant to lure you into spending your money by convincing you that winning is just around the corner — without mentioning that the odds of winning the lottery are far worse than any other form of gambling.

In other words, the lottery is based on a lie, and the government is telling it.

And that is why, no matter what the other media choose to do, you'll never see anything in The Carmel Pine Cone about the California lottery.

Snakes at city hall?

Dear Editor,

Too bad the police and animal control officer pictured on the front page last week could not take their wrangling skills to city hall and get rid of the snakes there. That would be far superior to having the taxpayers foot the bill for paying them to leave.

Peter Mathews, Pebble Beach

The importance of knowing what kind of snake it is

Dear Editor,

The front page photo of two Carmel police officers grappling with a large snake last week brought back vivid memories of my middle school science teaching days in the Berryessa School District. It was there I frequently took my students on nature walks in nearby Alum Rock Park.

Unfortunately, the photo failed to highlight this snake's markings and coloration, which would easily identify it as a harmless native reptile. As a naturalist, I believe every law enforcement agency in Monterey County should carry a couple of pocket-sized inexpensive reference books in their patrol cars. One is a handy reference authored by Arthur C. Smith entitled "The Natural History of the San Francisco Bay Region," and its companion book is "Reptiles and Amphibians of the San Francisco Bay Region," by Robert G. Stebbins. Both of these easily readable field guides have colored illustrations of most all of the common vertebrates found in central California.

The reptile in question in The Pine Cone article was no doubt a common gopher snake (Pituophis catenifer). According to Stebbins, it is one of our most beneficial snakes because it has a diet of undesirable rodents, including gophers. Gopher snakes are good snakes and should be highly protected. If a person unwittingly kills gopher snakes which coexist in the same habitat as rattlesnakes, he may be helping the rattlers because the two snakes eat and depend on the same types of food.

When disturbed, a gopher snake may vibrate the tip of its tail, especially in dry leaves making a sound that remotely resembles the rattle of a rattlesnake. It is best not to handle gopher snakes as they can bite, but they are not dangerous to humans, nor are they poisonous.

The Monterey Peninsula has a diversity of wildlife which should be appreciated, protected and preserved.

A family history that's really worth remembering

ERIC SAND hooks a leash to the narrow collar on his miniature poodle, who waits impatiently to head out on their morning walk along the trails outside their Carmel Valley home. As he looks up to the palisades dappled by early light, Sand remembers the many boyhood summers spent wandering the hills with his younger brother, Toland Sand, now one of the most innovative glass artists in the world. And he remembers how he reached his "holy grail" at age 12, when he and his brother finally blazed a trail up to the fire tower atop Garland Ranch. From there, he could see all the way to the ocean. It was then that he understood the concept of the "big picture."

Sand has always been a broad-view, forward thinking kind of guy; someone with ideas and aspirations, visions and plans. He spent his early years in Carmel, where he imagined he just might live out his life, but then his father, John Wright Sand, joined the Diplomatic Corps, and moved the family to Washington, D.C., followed by Taiwan and Greece.

After completing high school at the American Academy in Athens, Sand returned to the Monterey Peninsula, as he promised himself he would, and attended Monterey Peninsula College before going on to study computer science at UCLA. His career led him to Hewlett-Packard in Palo Alto as a software engineer. Yet his sights were, once again, set on returning to the Peninsula. A position at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, followed by his appointment as director of management information systems at the Monterey County Office of Education, brought him home.

After Sand's return to the place where four generations of Sands preceded him — beginning with family in Big Sur in the 1870s — coupled with a perspective that sharpens, he says, once you pass 50 or 60, the future-focused man has begun to look back on the lives of those who came to Carmel before him. His mother, Nancy Sand, is a Carmel sculptor. His maternal grandfather, Donald Hale, worked in real estate with his paternal grandfather, Harold Sand, who established H.O. Sand Realty in Carmel Valley Village in 1946. Eric continues to operate the company in the same building, as Eric H. Sand Real Estate.

Sand's great-grandfather, California journalist Frederick R. Bechdolt, who wrote for The Saturday Evening Post, later wrote fiction and non-fiction books with western themes, among them, "When the West was Young." After settling in Carmel in the early 1900s, he became active in the community as a member of the "Carmel Bunch" of writers.

"I only got this perspective on my local ancestors about 10 years ago," says Sand. "My mother was creating a family tree, and suddenly all this history came into my awareness. As the story goes, my great-grandfather Bechdolt used to charge at Carmel stores until he sold his next book and could pay everybody back. Another great-grandfather, Martin Hilby, developed Seaside in the 1920s. Great-grandfather Benjamin Wright was an early mayor of Monterey. And great grandfather Lester Hale was a Carmel cabinet maker and fine art painter. It's been fun to hear what was important to my ancestors and how their lives influenced this area I love."

Sand's passion for preserving the history and culture of this area has led him to a 30-year involvement with the Monterey History and Art Association, through which he serves as chairman of La Merienda. Now in its 84th year, this annual celebration of Monterey history, which means "picnic" in Spanish, will commemorate Monterey's 245th birthday with a party in the historic Memory Garden at Custom House Plaza on the first Saturday in June.

"La Merienda was founded by E. Charlton Fortune, Armin Hansen and others committed to honoring Monterey, and led to the establishment of the Monterey History and Art Association," Sand says. "Families have been coming for decades, and it brings out 450 to 600 participants. It is a wonderful celebration of Monterey — what it was and what it is, and those who have made it so."

Sand, whose five sons, including triplets, are grown, continues to live in Carmel Valley with his wife Patricia Sand, a librarian at Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel, and their poodle, Yoshi.

And when he isn't selling homes or honoring local heritage, Sand likes to ride his Ducati motorcycle out into the valley, or wander the same trails he traversed as a boy.

Drought forecast: Fat chance of showers

THANKS TO the water shortage, I'm bathing like royalty. I read that way back in the sixteenth century, Britain's first Queen Elizabeth took a bath only once a month. So if it was good enough for her, it ought to be good enough for me.

But these days, bathing once a month doesn't pass the smell test. So I'm reverting to my childhood. Back then we took a bath every Saturday whether we needed it or not.

Mom had her own grey water system. A wash tub. She heated water on the coal stove. One tub of water was good for all six of us. Grown-ups went first, then kids from oldest to youngest. When they said, "Don't throw the baby out with the bath water," they meant it. By the time it was my turn the bath water was murkier than the finances at Carmel City Hall.

I didn't put a toe in clear water until I joined the Marine Corps. Boot camp showers were shorter than the haircuts. Wet down, soap up, rinse off. Hup, tup, trip, finished.

My first rental in Manhattan was an efficiency apartment. No superfluous amenities such as hot water. I learned that the best thing about a cold shower is getting out of it.

When I finally moved up to hot, steamy showers you couldn't pry me out. That's when I realized I could sing like Caruso. Except when somebody flushed a toilet in another part of the house. Then I sang like Tiny Tim.

But my singing days are over. My latest bath was a tempest in a teapot. It's hard to work up a good Caruso in a cup of water with 8 cubic feet of bubbles. Still, a relaxing soak in an inch of water does wonders for the tension in your toenails.

Sponge baths remind me of my mother, who used to say, "Wash up as far as possible. Then wash down as far as possible. Then wash possible."

It also reminds me of my investment guy who keeps saying, "Buy stock in deodorant."

After years of water cutbacks, the Monterey Peninsula is used to scrimping on H<sub>2</sub>O. We use less per person than most areas of California. Our motto is: Conserve Water — Don't Wash.

Except in Carmel Valley Village. Their motto is: Conserve Water — Drink Wine. They're busy converting all the shower stalls in town into tasting rooms. Drinking enough wine takes your mind off the drought. Body odor is a question of mind over matter — if you don't mind, it doesn't matter.

The only people on the Peninsula who are truly clean are the tourists. Hotels have soaking tubs and rain showers for out-of-towners. They're the only ones whose aroma doesn't precede them.

Meanwhile, locals are starting to smell as ripe as last year's Roquefort. If you're a resident who doesn't think you're aromatic, it's because you're getting used to the odor. Or else you're cheating.

New water rules encourage people to turn in their neighbors for using too much water outdoors. But what about neighbors who smell shower fresh? This could be the new front in the coming water wars — reporting people who don't have body odor.

Some clever new drought-busting ideas might help. A waterless car wash just opened in Palo Alto. And a restaurant in Big Sur is blasting dirty dishes with an air hose. What we really need is an air hose that can blast away B.O.

Memo to Silicon Valley: Forget the fitness watches. How about an app for a waterless bath? (If you need venture capital I'll contribute the money I'm saving on soap and shampoo.) Until then, we'll have to take a tip from earlier generations. They knew how to create the illusion of hygiene.

Aristocrats in the court of Louis XIV were expert at masking honest odors. Dousing themselves with perfume. Waving around scented hankies. Burying their noses in little bunches of fragrant flowers called nosebags.

I realize that flowers won't help us because they need water. But why not repurpose those overpowering fragrance ads that perfumigate magazines? If you see me walking around town with a Macy's mailer under each arm you'll know why.

We jest, but the drought puts a strain on everybody.

Mary and I are planning a vacation. We'd like to go someplace where we can take a decent shower. The city of Bath, England sounds like a possibility.

A reader in Pacific Grove says she's so stressed out by water restrictions she bought a pet monkey to cheer herself up. Her husband wasn't thrilled. "What are we going to do with a monkey?" he asked.

"He'll make us laugh," she said. "We can dress him up and take him out for walks."

"But where's he going to sleep?" the husband asked.

"In bed with us," she told him.

"And what about the smell?"

She said, "If I can get used to it after all these years, so can the monkey."

CHS students win local film festival awards

FIVE CARMEL High School students were honored May 27 at the first-ever Monterey Peninsula Student Film Festival. Hosted by Carmel High, the contest featured entries from Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Marina high school students.

Thomas Jones received the Best Documentary prize for the film, "Making the Grade." Hans Vogeli's "My Watch is Off" was recognized as the Best Open Format Film. And Thomas Jones, Natascha Togan, and Noa Daniels, the creators of "Afterlife," took home the trophy for Best Narrative Film.

The films were by evaluated by independent professionals in the film industry.

each pit would fill up with human waste in about a year — as long as hikers don't dump their trash in them. After a year, each hole will be covered with earth and the toilet moved to another location nearby.

Three toilets are now located at Sykes Camp, two at Barlow Flat Camp (about eight miles in), two at Terrace Creek Camp and two at Ventana Camp (about four miles in).

Benoit told The Pine Cone he's thrilled the project is finally completed. "We're pretty happy," he said. "We hope the toilets will help reduce toilet paper and human waste in the camps, along the trail, and along the river. We're hoping this is going to make a difference."

In addition to VWA volunteers, installing the toilets also relied on about 25 volunteers from Cal State Monterey Bay and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo.

"They were a good bunch of kids," Benoit added. "They worked really hard and enjoyed themselves."

the league," the coach declared. "He's quicker than anybody he covers."

Nearly all of the team's top players are set to return next year, assuring that Carmel High's lacrosse team will remain competitive. It's unclear, though, if Murphy will be back, because of his commitment to the United States Navy. "I won't know for a few months," added Murphy, a lieutenant who works at the Naval Postgraduate School. "My future is in the air, but there's a chance I'll be coming back."

records reviewed in developing the investigative report” attorney Stephanie Atigh presented to the council on May 5 regarding contracts signed during former city administrator Jason Stilwell’s tenure.

He also requested “any and all interview notes and any and all materials that were reviewed in formulating the investigative report,” documentation of the qualifications of residents Carolina Bayne and Caroline Hardy to aid in the contract review, any reports or findings they generated, and correspondence between the investigator and the two women. Further, he wanted a list of individuals interviewed for Atigh’s report.

Then, on May 26, he sent another email containing 23 separate requests for additional records, including “all emails, text messages, fax messages and any and all other writings” between former interim city clerk Lori Frontella and Bayne, Hardy, Carmel Residents Association board president Barbara Livingston (misspelled “Livingstone”) and Mayor Jason Burnett between Aug. 1, 2014, and May 10.

He also added a request nobody seems to be able to figure out, stating that he “watched the city council meeting of May 5 and heard the mayor comment on the city administrator running business decisions by The Pine Cone newspaper reporter,” and asked for all written correspondence between city administrator Doug Schmitz (misspelled as “Schmidt”) and reporter Mary Schley and publisher Paul Miller “regarding city business” between Nov. 1, 2014, and May of this year.

However, neither Schmitz nor council members who responded to inquiries from The Pine Cone remember that comment being made, and it doesn’t make sense that it would be said, except in jest.

Nevertheless, Duncan asked for any correspondence between Schmitz and Burnett regarding supplying information to The Pine Cone and other newspapers, as well as “the rules adopted by the city council that allow the newspaper to weigh in or offer advice on the city’s operation.”

Then he requested the documents describing the roles and responsibilities of the city council, mayor, city administrator and city attorney.

Back on the subject of Atigh (which he misspelled, “Atig”), he demanded her resume or other documents describing her qualifications as an attorney and investigator, in addition to “documents that show the applications for employment, commission appointments or special task force/projects” submitted by Bayne and Hardy between June 2013 and May of this year.

“Please provide documents showing complaints made about Carolina Bayne and her requests for special mail delivery services over that last 15 years,” he continued, before then requesting “the names of all vendors the city has done business with during the Burnett Era. Please include the related contracts and bid documents.”

Duncan also asked for all correspondence between Burnett and “each member to the city council,” namely, Victoria Beach, Steve Dallas, Steve Hillyard (misspelled as “Hilliard”), Carrie Theis and Ken Talmage, and between Burnett and Stilwell, during the same period of time.

Then, he requested writings between Beach and former Mayor Sue McCloud (misspelled, “MacLoud”) “regarding city personnel Stilwell, director Paul, director Mullane, director Calhoun, director Friedrichsen, Deanna Allen and or Heidi Burch” between June 1, 2013, and this May.

Next, Duncan changed direction, asking for “documentation of the bid process for the centennial logo and the related contract,” regarding the 2016 city centennial being planned by McCloud, Livingston and retired businessman Merv Sutton, and for contracts with “Fire Protection Services, including the scope of work, deliverables, service providers and their rates, from July 1, 2003, through June 30, 2014,” as respiratory system, and has therefore been the target of air-quality monitoring for a number of years. State standards put the maximum annual average at 12 micrograms per cubic meter of air, while federal EPA standards are an annual average of 15 micrograms per cubic meter and a 24-hour average of 35 micrograms per cubic meter.

Stedman said the spikes in particles over the weekend didn’t amount to a violation, because they averaged out to lower than the threshold amount over a 24-hour period, but the summer might tell a different story.

“In the summer when the weather is still, I anticipate we’re going to see a serious problem there, to indicate that people living along there are probably experiencing unhealthy air,” he said. “We do know air quality degrades along Scenic due to beach fires.”

Testing will continue at least through the summer months, when beach use is at its highest and fires are numerous.

“It’s not surprising to me that there’s an issue down there, because we’ve received lots of complaints,” Stedman said. “And I’ve personally experienced it.”

Violating the federal standard would require installation of an EPA-approved monitor for longer-term testing and could cost the city local control of its beach, likely resulting in an outright ban on fires, city councilman Ken Talmage, who also serves on the air board, has said. With its pilot program, city officials have said they are hoping to mitigate the smoke factor enough to keep the area below that critical threshold.

well as any bid documents or request for quotes or proposals for fire protection and related inspection services.

Finally, he demanded all correspondence between recently retired public works superintendent Stu Ross and Schley and former building official Tim Meroney between Jan. 1, 2014, and May 9, 2015.

Price has been working to compile the documents he requested and offered to let Duncan review them in a room at city hall so he could indicate which ones he would like copied. Instead, he asked for all of them to be sent to him electronically. Schmitz said the city will track how many hours it takes for her to fulfill Duncan’s PRA requests.

SEWAGE

holding tank — called a “wet well” — where sewage collects while waiting to be forwarded to Marina. The maintenance involved applying a coating to the tank to prevent corrosion caused by the gases present in sewage.

“The pump station will not resume normal operation today or tomorrow because the wet well work is still in progress,” Boatman said. “The earliest we will have the wet well available for normal operation would be Saturday.”

Boatman also added more details to the explanation of how the spill happened.

“To accommodate work in the wet well, pumps were set up to pump around the station,” he said.

But a valve that was apparently not seated properly allowed sewage to flow backward to the main pipe, where it leaked because it was temporarily disconnected from the wet well.

The spill, the cleanup and subsequent work likely costs thousands of dollars; however, the MRWPCA is still tallying up the bill. Boatman also said the inquiry into the spill, called an incident review, has begun.

A TRIBUTE TO AL SMITH'S

"CARMEL LEGENDS"

Few artistic legacies are more interesting than that of Joseph Jacinto "Jo" Mora (1876-1947). Mora's artistic gifts range over a wide variety of mediums including drawing, painting, illustration, cartooning, sculpture, photography, mapmaking and writing; their diversity being an amazing accomplishment for one person. Mora was born in Uruguay on October 22, 1876, moved to the eastern United States when he was very young and then, after attending several art schools on the east coast and working as an illustrator and cartoonist in the Boston area, spent the rest of his adult life living and working in the western United States. He lived the last twenty-seven of his years in Carmel and Pebble Beach. In 1920 Mora found himself, along with his wife Grace and children Joey (who would eventually open a leather and silversmith shop in Carmel) and Patty, moving to Carmel from the bay area to work on what was to become his masterpiece - the Father Serra Cenotaph, located in the now Jo Mora Chapel in the Carmel Mission. Carmel priest Ramon Mestres, an admirer of Mora's work, commissioned Mora to create the bronze and travertine memorial, along with a cross and altar, that were dedicated during the Serra Pageant on October 12, 1924 at the mission.

Thomas Wolfe was right — and he wasn't even from Buffalo

THE EMAILS from readers I enjoy the most are from people who once called Carmel their home and use The Pine Cone, and even my column, to keep in touch with a place they love.

I did the same thing when I left Buffalo, N.Y. The Internet made it easy to get online editions of my hometown newspaper and it was always a kick to read about someone I knew who did something newsworthy. Like many of us of a certain age, I also checked the obituaries, and was saddened when I recognized a name.

When I moved to California in the 1980s, I figured I would never go back to the city where I was born. It was too far away and none of my immediate family remained.

Then an energetic cousin spearheaded a family reunion, and I was spirited back to a city I had not so much as visited in decades.

Unlike practically every street around here, I don't think there are any streets in Buffalo that include in their names prefixes such as El, or San, or Calle. Remarkably, however, there are several streets that are on a Monopoly game board.

I was not good at Monopoly. There is an intangible luck/skill ratio in the game that eluded me. Besides, I was too young to have the killer instinct. Plainly stated, the winner is the last player left in the game, having driven his opponents into bankruptcy.

When I played, it was always the same. While my two older brothers put up houses and hotels on that treacherous yellow/green corner between the B&O and Short Line Railroads, down to the dark purple of Park Place and Boardwalk, my meager holdings were always confined low-rent district of saddle brown Mediterranean and Baltic Avenues. Meanwhile, I always coveted the three yellow properties, Ventnor Avenue, Atlantic Avenue, and Marvin Gardens. My grade school was on Atlantic Avenue. Plus I loved the fashionable name, Marvin Gardens. It bespoke hanging plants and swimming pools with wrought iron gates and a uniformed doorman.

Yet, I always seemed to remain impoverished as my brothers rolled the dice, moved the pieces, and invariably sent me to Jail where I languished idly, content to play with my game piece — the top hat, which I wore on my pinkie finger while the action continued around me.

Two of the Monopoly streets were not far from where we lived. One end of our street intersected with Vermont (light blue), while Connecticut (also light blue) was about a mile away. Beyond that was Pennsylvania Avenue (green), where actual rents were quite a bit higher than on the Monopoly Board.

Virginia Avenue (pink) was also within walking distance of our house. I rode my one-speed bike, played touch football, kick-the-can, and capture the flag, and shoveled snow from the sidewalks of these streets while I was growing up.

In Buffalo, we had an Electric Company, of course, and a branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, originating in Philadelphia, and stopping in Buffalo before terminating in Chicago.

It is simplistically maudlin to think of those formative years as a board game, but one day a roll of the dice started me on my decades long journey west. There were stops in many places in Michigan until the day I passed "Go" for the last time and landed on a property in California.

When I finally returned to Buffalo, much had changed. Everything was smaller. It was as if I were looking down on the city through Google Earth. I could see it in its complexity, rather than in the segmented chapters that were my life while I lived there. The streets were still there, but it took very few strides to cross Pennsylvania Avenue, which as a child seemed wider than Interstate 5. There are three single-family dwellings where my grammar school was on Atlantic Avenue. The church I attended was demolished and replaced by a high-rise apartment building. My high school is a commercial warehouse.

By JERRY GERVASE

In essence, there was nothing of "me" there. Perhaps that is what Gertrude Stein meant when returning to Oakland she said, "there is no there there."

True aficionados of the game will tell you that the streets on the Monopoly board are named for streets in Atlantic City, N.J. — except one. There is no Marvin Gardens in Atlantic City. There is a Marven Gardens in Margate City, about five miles from Atlantic City. The game's originator misspelled the name as: Marvin Gardens.

Whatever I was searching for when I went back to my hometown wasn't there, either. I did not find the magic of the past. Was Thomas Wolfe right? You can't go home again. Perhaps, like Marvin Gardens, the magic only exists in games and fantasies. But maybe Carmel is more magical. I hope those who have moved away still find the magic when they return.
