Panetta announces congressional bid

By KELLY NIX

‘MY NAME is Jimmy Panetta, and I am here to tell you that I would like to represent all of you in our United States Congress.’

In a self-assured speech before 125 supporters outside the Custom House in Monterey Tuesday, that’s how Panetta, 46, announced his bid for the congressional seat that will be up for grabs when Congressman Sam Farr retires at the end of his term in January 2017.

With his mom Sylvia and father Leon — former CIA director, secretary of defense, and congressman who served from 1977 to 1993 — wife Carrie, and parents-in-law by his side, Panetta told supporters that, if elected, he would “fight” for the interests of the Central Coast.

“If I’m given the chance to serve you as your congressman, I will provide the leadership to fulfill the dream of my grandparents and my parents; the dream of giving back to our community and our country so that we can give our children a brighter future,” said Panetta, a Democrat and Monterey County Deputy District Attorney.

‘We darn well better give back’

During the 10-minute speech, Panetta talked about his close-knit family, which includes daughters Siri and Gia, and pointed to the values his parents and Italian immigrant grandparents instilled in him and his two brothers, Chris and Carmelo.

“Because we were allowed to live the reality of my grandparents’ dream, we darn well better give back to this country and community that gave us so much,” Panetta said they told him. “They made it clear that the torch of responsibility to our country must pass on to future generations.”

Though he’s never held an elected

Sheriff defends decision to cut overnight patrols

■ Bernal says running jail is his most important job

By MARY SCHLEY

MONTEREY COUNTY Sheriff Steve Bernal and his top brass called a town hall meeting at Carmel Middle School Tuesday night to explain why they cut patrols on the Monterey Peninsula during the early morning hours — and what he plans to do next.

“If it was my choice, we would have at least one deputy in every beat 24 hours a day,” he said, referring to the 16 different areas in the county where his officers patrol. But to get to the “ideal” level of staffing needed would cost $13.5 million, he said.

Bernal called the meeting in response to the outcry that followed his decision to cut coastal patrols during a time of day when few major crimes occur on the Peninsula so he could assign more people to work in the jail.

“I’ve gotten lots of emails,” he said. “I’ve read the papers, and I know how important this is.”

Bernal brought his top managers, including undersheriff Galen Bohner, chief deputies Tracy Brown and Mike Moore, who are in charge of enforcement operations and the jail, respectively, and Cmdr. Keith Wingo, who heads the department’s coastal station in Monterey.

Jail problems

He explained that his most important job as sheriff is to staff and run the jail, which is overcrowded with about 1,000 inmates, compared with its capacity of 825. Further complicating matters, the ACLU sued the county over conditions there. The overcrowding is in part due to a state law requiring local jails to house convicts that would have served their time in state prisons, according to Moore.

“The county jail was built to hold people convicted of misdemeanors and felonies of less than a year,” Moore said. “We’ve got people right now who are going to do 14 years in our jail.”

Mehdipour and county agree on mothball plan

By KELLY NIX

PEBBLE BEACH homeowner Massy Mehdipour and Monterey County officials have come to an agreement over a mothballing plan intended to protect her dilapidated ocean-front house from further damage, but the settlement is little comfort to the Silicon Valley entrepreneur, according to her son.

Under the agreement with the county, Mehdipour must withdraw her appeal of the county historical resources board’s Sept. 3 decision compelling her to perform a litany of measures to seal up the vacant house so it’s not further damaged by weather. In turn, the county will relax the scope of

Laub countersues over ownership of Dametra

By KELLY NIX

DAMETRA CAFÉ’S landlord, Connie Laub, has filed a $3.1 million countersuit against the restaurant’s operators claiming they breached the contract they had to run the restaurant and failed to pay her share of its profits, committing financial elder abuse in the process.

The complaint, filed Nov. 17 in Monterey County Superior Court, is the latest in the court battle over the ownership of Dametra that began earlier this year when Bashar al Sneeh and Faisal Nimri filed suit against Laub over control of the popular Carmel restaurant. They contend they own the restaurant, while Laub says she’s the true owner

Forest Theater completion delayed until early next year

By MARY SCHLEY

CONSTRUCTION WORK necessary to reopen the Forest Theater could extend into early next year, project manager Andy Vanderford said this week.

While contractor Otto Construction has been “diligent with their work,” and the “quality of workmanship and collaboration have been excellent,” Vanderford said, unforeseen circumstances, as well as the age and condition of the theater, have pushed the completion date past the original early-November target.

Those factors, as well as changes made to the plans after they were approved, resulted in a new estimated completion date of Dec. 3, he said. But “additional forthcoming change orders are in process, which I anticipate may extend the completion date into January.”

The theater was suddenly shut down in April 2014 due to health and safety hazards, causing havoc with the production schedules of local theater companies. Renovation plans approved by the city council earlier this year include handicap access via a ramp on the east side of the seating area, a resurfaced seating area, hand rails, handicap parking, and other structural, electrical and plumbing improvements to put the theater in compliance with the law.

But several subsequent changes added more work hours, including the terraced steps in the seating area that Pacific Repertory Theatre executive director Stephen Moorer wanted so cast members could continue their tradition of moving through the audience during performances, the placement of conduits under paths and driveways to accommodate future water and electrical lines, and the removal of “alcoves and niches” at the foot of

Getting Frank

THREE YEARS ago, after she had begun her freshman year at Stanislaus State, her family decided a little dog might be a good companion for her. She really wanted a French bulldog. She's not entirely sure what she actually got, except that he is definitely not a French bulldog.

"My dad told me I could get a dog for my birthday, but he suggested we pick out one at the SPCA," she said. "So I went online and saw this little thing with long black hair with white accents and eyebrows. He kind of looked like an old man. I was smitten. So after church, we went to the SPCA to find him."

She played with the little fellow for a few minutes, and then he crawled into her lap and fell asleep. That was it. Not French and not bulldog but, frankly, that was okay. He was hers.

She was thinking of naming him Mosely, but her dad thought the dog would catch on more quickly to a shorter name. She promised she'd keep that in mind, but she was determined to name him herself. Then, during an episode of "House of Cards" on TV, she noticed the character, Frank Underwood, was staring at the audience just the way her dog was staring at the TV.

So, Frank it was.

"He's about a year old, and he's a terrier mix, but I have no idea with what," she says, "Mostly, he's my study buddy; he just crawls in next to me and falls asleep. But he comes home with me during the holidays, and then he gets to go to the beach."

Frank loves the beach, and hits the sand running at full throttle. He gets a good workout and then, as usual, he falls right to sleep when he gets home.

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

The dust was not disturbed

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 1

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers responded to a verbal domestic dispute on Santa Lucia Avenue, possibly physical. Female and male parties contacted; both claimed verbal only. No obvious signs of injuries or an altercation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A witness reported observing a vehicle back into another on Ocean west of Mission. Information was exchanged between both vehicle owners.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Police units responded to suspicious circumstances regarding the discarded remnant of a spent firework at Guadalupe and Seventh. An area check was conducted for further investigative leads and/or vandalism to other property in the adjacent area, but met with negative results. Item collected, photographed and properly disposed.

Pacific Grove: Subjects involved in a battery inside a residence on 19th Street. One subject received a laceration to the hand and was transported to CHOMP for treatment.

Pacific Grove: Female returned to her parents' residence on Melrose in violation of a court order.

Pacific Grove: Citizen reported the loss or theft of personal property on Lighthouse Avenue. Phone remains outstanding.

Pacific Grove: Officer received a text message on the school resource officer phone containing several photographs of vandalism to a wall located on the track field of the school and said this might have occurred during Halloween. At this time, it is unknown who committed the vandalism.

Pebble Beach: Homeowner reported workers taking photographs of the inside of her residence on Venadero Road through the windows.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 47-year-old male who is a dishwasher and lives in Seaside was arrested at Junipero and Sixth at 1644 hours on two warrants, for DUI on drugs and petty theft, and for fresh charges of driving while suspended, possession of marijuana and methamphetamine, false tabs on the vehicle, and probation violation.

Carmel Valley: Subject on Carmel Valley Road reported losing her purse and cell phone.

Carmel Valley: Report of elderly male, age 82, and his daughter, 52, in physical altercation.

Pebble Beach: Indian Village Road resident wanted documentation of an argument and violation over child custody issues.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 2

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Due to storm conditions, a power line ignited a city owned tree in the area of Lincoln and Eighth. MFD and PG&E personnel responded.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of lost/stolen property in the area of San Carlos south of Seventh.

Mayors support Cal Am's request to extend Carmel River cutback order

By KELLY NIX

THE SIX mayors of the cities of the Monterey Peninsula last week approved a document asking the State Water Resources Control Board to extend a 1995 order that bars Cal Am from drawing most of its water from the Carmel River.

In a unanimous vote Nov. 12, the mayors approved sending a petition to the state water board supporting Cal Am's application to extend the deadline for the order from Dec. 31, 2016, to the end of 2020. The state water board's order compels Cal Am to cut about 70 percent of the water it draws from the river because of concerns for the steelhead trout and red-legged frog.

If the state water board refuses to extend the order and the cutback order is imposed, tourism and business officials say it would cripple the Peninsula's economy.

Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett told The Pine Cone the mayors are hoping to send the petition to the state board Friday. Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Stedman lauded the mayors' decision, which she said shows the community is united behind the need to delay imposition of the cutbacks, as well as the need to develop a replacement supply.

"The mayors' support is extremely important," Stedman told The Pine Cone.

The mayors' decision followed two years of talks between state water board staff and officials with Cal Am, the water district, and the mayors' water authority group.

In addition to seeking the 2020 deadline, Cal Am's application includes provisions that incremental water reductions would take place during the extension. There would also be penalties if the Monterey Peninsula fails to make progress toward a new supply, such as a desal plant, to replace the water that's not supposed to be taken from the river.

Concours raised nearly $2 million for charities

THE 65th Annual Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance in August raised $1.9 million for charity, according to organizers of the event.

"Our goal each year is to raise a substantial sum of money to help people in need," Bill Perocchi, CEO of Pebble Beach Company said, "and we are pleased and proud to, once again, raise a record amount for local charities."

The event raised precisely $1,900,461, according to the

P.B. Co.

The Concours has raised more than $21 million for charity over its 65-year history, making 2015 a milestone year for the internationally recognized event, according to the company.

The car event, which has become world famous, benefits nearly 100 local nonprofit programs, with a focus on youth education and literacy.

P.G. CITY MANAGER TO TAKE JOB IN PASO ROBLES, GETS BIG RAISE

By KELLY NIX

PACIFIC GROVE's city manager, Tom Frutchet, who was hired in 2009, will be leaving his post in January to take a new job in Paso Robles.

Frutchet, 65, will replace that city's manager, Jim App. The Paso Robles City Council voted Tuesday night to hire Frutchet, who in Pacific Grove earns a $178,000 salary plus benefits.

Frutchet told The Pine Cone that he decided to work in Paso Robles because it's a "great opportunity," and that "Paso, like P.G., is a great place to live and work."

But he is also getting paid a lot more. The Paso Robles Daily News reported Wednesday that Frutchet's salary in that city would be $201,000 plus benefits, including a $175 monthly car allowance and $10,000 in moving expenses.

Mayor Bill Kampe praised Frutchet, saying he "provided exceptional leadership." During his six years, according to Kampe, Pacific Grove made "significant progress in finances, services and operations."

"The city has achieved a budget surplus in each of the six years," Kampe told The Pine Cone. "Library hours increased. The city has increased street and sewer system maintenance. Both the library and museum facilities are being refreshed."

Frutchet said that during his tenure, which began when P.G. was reeling from impacts of the recession, the city "re-established a financial foundation, restored and upgraded needed services, made significant progress in preparing for the future — including the local water project and Project Bella, among others — and restored citizens' confidence that the city is an effective steward fully warranting their trust and confidence."

City Councilman Rudy Fischer said he believes Frutchet has done a "good job," but also said he "he had a lot of good guidance from a very active city council."

"Working together," Fischer said, "I think we got a lot done and I hold him in high regard, and I wish him well."

Councilman Dan Miller, however, said he resents Frutchet for not "tying up the loose ends," and that it is a "bad time for him to walk away."

"Despite the propaganda the mayor is releasing, this city is in a mess," Miller said. "The only reason there is a positive cash flow is we haven't been paying our bills."

Miller also chided Frutchet for asking for a raise and an extension to his contract "at the same time he was negotiating with Paso Robles."

"The council gave him both of his demands and then he leaves," Miller said.

Among the list of things Frutchet said he hoped to accomplish but couldn't include "greater progress at the state level to achieve meaningful CalPERS reform" and long-term fiscal stability.

Kampe said the city is looking for an interim and permanent city manager, and that Frutchet is "fully committed" to ensuring a smooth transition.

Guardsman sues CSUMB over military service

By KELLY NIX

A CALIFORNIA Army National guardsman who works at Cal State Monterey Bay as an electrician has filed a lawsuit against the university alleging his supervisors discriminated against him for taking time away from work to serve his country, including tours in Iraq and Afghanistan.

In a lawsuit filed Nov. 9, Capt. Lloyd Eads contends that CSUMB changed his work hours, passed him up for a key promotion and rejected requests for military leave, actions he said violated federal and state laws.

"From the start of his employment with CSUMB until March 2011," according to the lawsuit, Eads "would take military leave to perform inactive duty training" with the National Guard.

While Eads' first supervisor didn't have an issue with him taking time off to train, he said another supervisor in March 2011 told him he would no longer be allowed to use military leave for inactive duty training.

And when he returned to his electrician job in June 2014 after a one-year deployment in Afghanistan, his boss changed his work hours and hired another worker to be the temporary lead electrician, even though that position is usually given to workers with seniority, which would have been Eads, the suit says.

That led Eads to file a complaint about CSUMB's "discriminatory conduct" with a U.S. government committee that offers guidance and resolution between reserve National Guard personnel and their civilian employers, according to his suit, filed for him by San Diego attorney Brian J. Lawler.

But in May of this year, five days after interviewing for the permanent lead electrician job, Eads said he wasn't chosen for the position. When he asked CSUMB's director of facilities why another worker was selected over him, the director, Eads contends, "refused to discuss" it with him.

"Mr. Eads does still work at CSUMB as an electrician, and although he is listed as the lead electrician" on the CSUMB website, "he is not," Lawler told The Pine Cone.

Seeking jury trial

The university, Eads alleges, violated The Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act of 1994 — a federal law that establishes rights for uniformed service members and their civilian employers — which indicates that "discrimination against persons who serve in the uniformed services and acts of reprisal" are "prohibited."

CSUMB, he said, also violated the California Military and Veterans Code, which entitles public employees on leave for active military duty to the same rights and benefits as other public employees who take leave for non-military purposes.

CSUMB spokesman Joan Weiner told The Pine Cone that the university "has not seen the lawsuit" and therefore is "unable to provide any comment at this time."

Eads, who is seeking a jury trial, alleges he suffered "emotional distress including depression, frustration, anger, loss of self-worth and humiliation," as a result of the university's alleged discrimination. Apart from monetary damages, he is seeking lost wages, lost employee benefits and other damages.

Woman escapes from scary Big Sur car crash with hardly a scratch

By CHRIS COUNTS

DESPITE ROLLING her car down a steep embankment, a woman walked away from a one-car accident that happened Sunday morning just steps away from Deetjen's Big Sur Inn. Driving a 1997 Ford Explorer, the woman was heading south along Highway 1 when she passed Deetjen's and began to steer right across a bridge that spans Castro Creek. But she lost control, and the vehicle plowed through a guard rail before landing about 60 to 70 feet below the pavement.

Big Sur volunteer firefighter Marcus Foster told The Pine Cone he was the first on scene about three minutes after the crash. When Foster showed up and saw people looking over the edge of the east side of the road, his heart sank. "I feared the worst," Foster recalled.

But remarkably, the woman walked away from the accident and was climbing up the embankment to the highway when Foster arrived. "She was shaken up and sore, but she seemed to be uninjured," he said.

After surveying the scene, Foster tried to piece together the chain of events.

"The road was slick from rain, and it looked like she hydroplaned, hit the curb and launched right off of there," he speculated. "She appeared to hit an embankment about 25 to 30 feet down, then rolled another 30 feet down to the base of the bridge."

Surprisingly, the car landed right-side up. But it was missing a tire.

"When I showed up on scene, there was a wheel in the roadway," Foster recalled. "There was hardly any tread on it."

Tires need tread to maintain traction on wet roads.

Foster said Deetjen's employees brought her a blanket, and she waited for an ambulance to arrive. She later sipped a cup of tea inside the inn, which is typically a busy place for brunch on Sunday. "A medic evaluated her, and she didn't want to be taken to the hospital," he explained.

Foster said he was stunned the woman came out of the accident relatively unscathed. "It was an absolute miracle that she wasn't killed," he added. "It was her lucky day."

Don't let it fall on you, too!

Two dozen Cal Fire firefighters from the Pebble Beach, Carmel Highlands and Cypress stations trained last week on how to conduct trench rescues. The 24-hour class focused on safe rescues of people from collapsed trenches and took place in Pebble Beach near the Sygglass Hill Golf Course, according to Battalion Chief Buddy Bloxham.

County to Cima Collina: no big events until permit is issued

By CHRIS COUNTS

CALLING ATTENTION to an issue that's been overshadowed by the recent debate over vacation rentals in residential neighborhoods, a county planner has warned winemaker Cima Collina to stop hosting special events such as weddings on its Hilltop Ranch property in Carmel Valley because it is not zoned for commercial activities of that nature.

While officials are still working on a countywide policy regulating special events, county planner Elizabeth Gonzales said Cima Collina is seeking permission to allow events such as weddings and wine education dinners for up to 250 people to happen on the site by applying for an "assemblages of people" permit. But the application hasn't yet been approved.

"It has come to our attention that special events have been occurring" at the property, reads a Sept. 30 letter from Gonzales. "As you are aware, since August 2014, your application for a use permit to allow assemblages of people has been, and still is,

'incomplete,' and has not yet been approved. Therefore, you are in violation of holding special events without a permit."

In the letter, Gonzales offers Cima Collina two options: "Stop holding special events until you have a use permit from the county," or, "Stop holding special events altogether and withdraw your application from the county."

If the Hilltop Ranch continues to host special events, "we will have no choice but to take your project to hearing with a recommendation of denial," Gonzales added.

She said the "assemblages" permit hasn't yet been approved because there are traffic concerns that still need to be addressed.

If the "assemblages" permit is issued, Gonzales said the county will address noise concerns about special events by adding a stipulation limiting when music can be played and requiring that it be acoustic. The permit would also limit the number of events to 10 each year.

The Hilltop Ranch is one of eight properties the winemaker lists on its website as locations where it grows its grapes.

Wind claims a victim on Scenic

A cypress tree in front of the site of a soon-to-be-built home on Scenic Road fell during the high winds Sunday night, leaning dangerously over the roadway as crews prepared to remove it Monday morning. The winds, which followed the weekend's rainstorms, also caused a 25-foot tree limb to drop onto a car on San Antonio and pushed a tree onto a house at Scenic and Santa Lucia, damaging the roof and breaking some windows, according to police.

Chamber sells centennial lanterns to light up downtown

By MARY SCHLEY

IN CELEBRATION of the city's upcoming centennial — and to create a festive atmosphere that will draw more people downtown during a slow time of the year — the chamber of commerce is selling lanterns reminiscent of those carried by early Carmelites and hopes many residents and businesses will put them out for all to see, chamber CEO Monta Potter said this week.

And on Monday, La Playa Carmel hotel will host a kickoff party to promote the lanterns and celebrate the holidays.

Potter came up with the idea of selling the lanterns, which go for $35 apiece and include a flameless candle, after she saw a display of the vintage lights at the Carmel Heritage Society's museum in the First Murphy House a decade ago.

"They have some early lanterns, and I thought it would be cool to do some sort of a campaign with them," she said. "Then I read about them in a number of books about early Carmel, so we decided to do this project for the centennial."

One of her sources was Daisy Bostick's "Carmel at Work and Play," which included this description: "A Carmel lady of social disposition and inventive genius took an old tomato can, punched a hole in the side and pushed a candle through. Inside the can, the wick burned steadily, protected from wind; outside the can, the candle formed a handle by which to hold the lantern. Gleefully, other Carmel nocturnal ramblers seized upon this invention. They found it entirely efficient in guiding them safely over sprawling roots or around the holes which once trapped the unwary in front of the Carmel grocery. The next step in the progress of illumination was the more elaborate Carmel lantern made of a lamp chimney set over a candle on a small round disk and carried by the wire handle."

The Local History Room at the library also has some of the early lanterns, and Potter selected a model based on those. She had plaques put on them noting the centennial year, 2016.

"We wanted to participate in the 100th anniversary and also decorate Carmel," she explained.

Ideally, enough businesses will buy the lanterns and display them at their stores downtown that people will want to come to Carmel just to see them — and will stay to shop and dine.

Anyone interested in participating can purchase a lantern at the visitor center on San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues or order it online at www.carmelcalifornia.org and receive free attendance to the kickoff Light the Way Party at La Playa Nov. 23 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

"They're using it as their neighborhood Christmas party," Potter said, adding that hotel GM Mary Crowe is planning on decorating the hotel for the occasion, including using the lanterns. The display will remain in place for the Dec. 11 Carmel-by-the-Glass winetasting event. The hotel is located at Camino Real and Eighth.

Homecrafters' Marketplace Nov. 21

THE CITY of Carmel's 45th annual Homecrafters' Marketplace, with artists, craftspeople and other vendors from Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties, will be held in its new location in the North Lot at Sunset Center Saturday, Nov. 21, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Located at Mission and Eighth, the lot will be filled by some 80 vendors selling jewelry, soaps and lotions, textiles, art, photographs, wreaths and plants, ceramics, crafts, birdhouses, wood items and glass pieces, among other creations. Their wares must be of good quality and crafted by the sellers, according to the rules of the market.

The Carmel Host Lions Club will be there selling refreshments, too.

Parking will be available on the street and in the Sunset Center parking lots located on San Carlos Street between Ninth and 10th avenues, where the marketplace used to be held. It will take place rain or shine.

Woman's Club celebrates 90th birthday

By MARY SCHLEY

AN ORGANIZATION formed nine decades ago by 54 women who were responsible for naming the city's streets, maintaining the town's cleanliness, and helping with projects like building horse troughs and planting trees will celebrate its birthday with a party next month. The Carmel Woman's Club, with its headquarters at San Carlos and Ninth, seeks to "foster a community spirit, and to promote the civic, cultural, artistic and social ideals of the community," and it does so through hosting presentations and talks, and supporting other nonprofit organizations.

Since its founding in 1925, the club has hosted some 3,000 public meetings and welcomed more than 10,000 members, including men.

According to a timeline compiled by the organization's board in anticipation of its birthday, the woman's club led "a successful protest of objectionable signs on highways and buildings in and around Carmel" in 1928, used unemployed men to help beautify the streets in 1929, worked with the city council and The Pine Cone in 1931 to maintain the beach and install trashcans, supported war relief efforts and built the stone memorial in Devendorf Park to honor the lives of local servicemen who fought and died in World War II, built its clubhouse in 1948 — and burned the mortgage 10 years later — and, for the past 50 years, has "significantly expanded commitments to the betterment of the life of the Monterey

Since 2012, the group has partnered with the Community Foundation for Monterey County in the Carmel Woman's Club Endowment Fund, and has supported dozens of local charities.

Its birthday party will take place in the clubhouse across from Sunset Center from 2 to 5 p.m. Dec. 6. "We're the second oldest organization in Carmel — the Red Cross was the first," said board member Donna Jett. "We're celebrating with cake and coffee. It's very casual, and we'll have live music from throughout the ages."

HOMELESS MAN, CAPTURED NEAR CHS, FOUND GUILTY IN STABBING DEATH

By MARY SCHLEY

A TRANSIENT who fled the scene of a mid-night stabbing near the Monterey Library that resulted in the death of 40-year-old Scott Long — and who was arrested hiding in the bushes near Carmel High School less than 24 hours after the June 19 attack — was found guilty by a jury this week of first degree murder, as well as of the attempted manslaughter of 23-year-old Tyler Misamore, according to Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Doug Matheson.

Shortly after midnight June 19, as Jesse Quiming, 32, and several other transients prepared to camp in the back patio of the public library, Quiming began arguing with Long about his refusal to share his booze, according to Matheson.

During the two-week trial presided over by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Julie Culver, “A witness testified that Quiming appeared to be ‘brooding’ for about 10 minutes after being denied the alcohol,” Matheson said. “Without warning, Quiming walked over to where Long was seated and stabbed him four times, with one blow penetrating the heart. Misamore came to Long’s defense and grabbed Quiming, but he was too late.” Long died, and Misamore was stabbed four times, as well, but survived.

One of the other transients ran to the nearby police station to report what had happened, according to Matheson, and after getting rid of the knife and his blood-stained shirt, Quiming fled. But he left his backpack behind, enabling police to quickly identify him as their suspect.

At around 11:15 p.m. June 19, Monterey County Sheriff’s deputies who had stopped a car on Highway 1 near Ocean Avenue happened to see Quiming hiding in the bushes nearby, the sheriff’s department reported at the time.

They took him into custody without incident and turned him over to Monterey P.D. Officers later booked him into Monterey County Jail, where he was held on $1.5 million bail.

According to court records, Quiming has had multiple run-ins with the law over the past decade, resulting in several misdemeanor cases and another felony.

His jury trial ended with the two guilty verdicts Nov. 18, and Culver is set to sentence him on Jan. 21, 2016. He faces a penalty of 30 years to life, according to Matheson.

Woman arrested for injuring husband

By MARY SCHLEY

MAUREEN BERNAL, the 44-year-old spouse of Monterey County Sheriff Steve Bernal's brother, was arrested Friday night for trying to confine her husband in a room at their home, injuring him in the process.

Police arrived at the Bernals' home on Santa Fe near Third Avenue around 10:30 p.m. Nov. 13 after a neighbor reported hearing screaming and fighting, according to Carmel Police Cmdr. Paul Tomasi.

"Family friends were contacted outside and said an altercation was occurring inside the house," he said. The husband, identified by police as "John Doe," "was extremely intoxicated and causing a disturbance."

"The husband was really drunk and was basically in a verbal dispute with the daughter and saying things that were inappropriate," Tomasi said, referring to a conversation between the man and one of his teenage daughters, who was at the house with her sister and a boyfriend.

In response, Maureen Bernal "was trying to keep him in the bedroom, and it turned into a pushing match," he said. She resorted to using force, "and unfortunately, he sustained some injuries."

The husband received scratches and cuts on his face, but he declined medical treatment, according to Tomasi.

The officers on scene, Joe Boucher and Sgt. Ron Pflieger, requested backup from the Monterey County Sheriff's Office due to the number of people on scene, Tomasi said.

"There were a bunch of people there," he said. "That's why we called the sheriff's office, because we only had two officers, and there were people getting involved."

Ultimately, Bernal was arrested for spousal battery and false imprisonment, and was taken to Monterey County Jail.

Robert Pankonin

June 11, 1936 - November 13, 2015

Robert Allan Pankonin passed away from complications of lung cancer at his home in Carmel, CA on November 13, 2015. He was surrounded by his wife of 44 years, Mary Griffin Pankonin, son Eric Lane Pankonin of Oakland, CA and daughter Ingrid Bremer Pankonin of Berkeley, CA. In addition to his wife and children, Bob leaves three grandchildren, Eero, Esme and Freya (Eric Pankonin & Eleanor Wohlfeiler), sisters Karen Lee Boland of Bradenton, FL and Joanne Lambert (Richard) of Modesto, CA.

Bob (also known as RAPper) was born in Saginaw, MI and was graduated from Central Michigan University with a degree in Business Administration. Following a 4 year tour in the US Air Force, he began a career in information technology. It was on a ski trip in 1969 when he met Mary Griffin of Detroit, MI and slalomed his way into her heart. Following retirement, Bob volunteered with the Pt. Lobos State Reserve, Friends of Sunset Foundation, and the Carmel Red Cross. He later worked as Harbormaster at Stillwater Cove, and as a Test Examiner with the Defense Language Institute.

Bob fulfilled his passion for sailing with the family's Catalina 34 and by delivering sailboats up and down the West Coast as a licensed USCG Captain. He anticipates eventually meeting all of his friends on the Fiddler's Green. A celebration of life gathering will be announced at a future date. In lieu of flowers donations may be made to Hospice of the Central Coast or the Point Lobos Foundation.

C.V. COUPLE, CONGRESSMAN SOUND ALARM OVER NEW AIR TRAFFIC ROUTES

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE RECENT rerouting of commercial air traffic over Carmel Valley has shattered the peace and quiet they are accustomed to, two residents told The Pine Cone.

Echoing the concerns of the couple — who live in Los Tulares just east of Carmel Valley Village — the Carmel Valley Association called attention to the issue in a recent email bulletin.

“Soon after Labor Day, residents of the Los Tulares neighborhood suddenly noticed the emergence of a superhighway of airplane traffic flying over Carmel Valley,” the article reads.

According to Linda and Richard Cheatham, who live in Los Tulares, the trouble started when air traffic coming from Southern California — and headed to the San Francisco Bay Area — was rerouted over their neighborhood to save fuel and reduce emissions.

“It was incredibly quiet when we moved here two-and-a-half-years ago,” Richard Cheatham said. “Now flights come over the house every few minutes.”

Cheatham said the couple’s concerns have nothing to do with flights coming in and out of Monterey Airport. “This is a separate issue,” he insisted.

As irritating as the noise above his house can be, Cheatham said it’s much worse in places like Santa Cruz and San Mateo, where the same airplanes that are bothering him and his wife are now flying above neighborhoods they once avoided. And he said the issue isn’t limited to California. “This stuff is driving people crazy all over the country,” he said.

Linda Cheatham said the airplane noise has shattered the tranquility that once existed in their neighborhood. “When I used to go for walks around here, all I could hear were cows mooing and birds chirping,” she recalled.

The Cheathams conceded the issue might not gain much traction in Monterey County, where few people are affected. But it’s become a hot button topic in Santa Cruz County, where far more residents have been impacted since air traffic was rerouted over many neighborhoods in March 2015. “Areas which were previously pristine and dominated by natural sounds are now drowned out by the consistent noise of jet planes throughout the day,” a Santa Cruz-based group, Save Our Skies, declares on its website.

The complaints about noise from rerouted air traffic have reached the ears of Congressman Sam Farr. In a statement on his website, he attributes the noise to the Federal Aviation Administration’s air traffic control modernization program, and he says he’s not happy about its impacts on his constituents.

“Previously tranquil home life has been interrupted day and night by jet noise,” Farr writes. “My office has heard from many people about noise that can shake windows, wake children and drown out everyday conversation. I experienced this noise first hand and believe that this situation is unacceptable.”

In an effort to solve the problem, Farr has been in contact with FAA officials. He’s also a member of the Congressional Quiet Skies Caucus, which he says is dedicated to reshaping “the FAA’s approach to noise so that it actually considers the impacts to communities on the ground.”

the stage that were interfering with the new footings for the proscenium walls and were undermining the structural integrity of the towers, Vanderford said.

Meanwhile, proposed change orders that are still being negotiated or haven't yet been fully executed involve changing the driveway — specifically, removing a section of stone retaining wall, relocating lights and shifting the alignment — to guarantee the truck PacRep uses to transport props and scenery will fit, building one large dressing room rather than two smaller ones, increasing the size of the electrical closet, and changing light fixtures.

New surfacing and lights in the seating area, improvements to the stage and other work is being done so the theater, closed since April 2014, can reopen next year.

“Everything is going very well,” he said. “It’s been my pleasure to have the opportunity to be a part of this important project to a valuable asset. I think the community will be pleased with the results.”

While the final cost of the work won't be determined until it's complete, Vanderford said, “It looks like we will be at or slightly over” the $2 million earmarked for the project by the city council.

and the two men merely manage it. Laub's suit contends that Nimri and Sneeh have “failed and refused” to fully pay her money she said she's owed under a “management agreement” she said the men signed when they began operating the restaurant at Lincoln and Ocean.

The men “continue to manage the Dametra Café, collect revenues, and enjoy the use of all the assets and goodwill of Ms. Laub's business while paying no money whatsoever to Ms. Laub,” according to the lawsuit, filed for her by San Jose attorney Justin S. Draa.

Laub's lawsuit alleges that she's suffered financial losses of more than $3.1 million, including more than $600,000 from “past due payments of management fees over a period of years,” more than $1 million from loss of use permits and licenses, “which, otherwise, would have been transferable to other real property locations,” and more than $1.5 million in damages from the loss of value of her restaurant.

The suit also claims Nimri and Sneeh “converted” her personal property in the restaurant, including restaurant equipment, furnishings, fixtures, electronics, artwork and other personal property “belonging to Ms. Laub.”

Furthermore, Laub, who is more than 65 years old, said the men's actions constituted financial elder abuse.

They “knowingly preyed on the finances of the elderly Ms. Laub by intentionally misrepresenting the nature and effect of the Dametra management agreement to suggest that they, not Ms. Laub, are the owners of the business,” the suit says.

‘Defraud and embezzle’

Nimri and Sneeh's attorney, Crystal M. Gaudette, declined to respond to the allegations in Laub's countersuit.

“We do not intend to litigate this case in the newspapers,” she told The Pine Cone, “but based upon the court's rulings in the case to date, and based on the allegations in the cross-complaint, we feel confident that our client will prevail on all issues.”

The lawsuit also says Nimri and Sneeh took “malicious actions adverse to Ms. Laub's ownership rights,” thereby depriving her “property rights as an owner of the business and restaurant premises.”

The men's actions were intended to “defraud and embezzle from the elderly Laub by exercising undue influence” to “confuse, trick, and deceive her in order to facilitate the theft and embezzlement of her property,” her complaint alleges.

The lawsuit includes testimony she said was made by Sneeh in 2012 where he acknowledges Laub owns Dametra.

So far, though, Nimri and Sneeh have prevailed in court. In May, after they filed the lawsuit against her alleging she was trying to “abscond” with the restaurant, a judge granted them a temporary restraining order against her from interfering with the business.

The dispute came to a head when they hired 24-hour security guards to stand outside Dametra so Laub could not enter, change its locks and take control.

The men also allege in the complaint against Laub and business partner Mark Morris that they threatened to replace Dametra with another tenant if the men didn't match the terms of an outside offer to pay them $45,000 per month rent — paid six months in advance — and fork over about 70 percent of the restaurant's profits.

Apart from more than $3.1 million, Laub is seeking an unspecified amount in punitive damages.

Giving thanks for a low-fuss tabletop

By ELAINE HESSER

AFTER YEARS of table settings becoming so elaborate they were called “tablescapes,” this Thanksgiving, there’s a nationwide move to get back to tables topped with simple decorations and — surprise — your regular china.

Heather Thompson, general manager of Prim’s Hardware and Home in Carmel Rancho, said her store offers plenty of ways to jump on the “less is more” bandwagon.

She showed off tables topped with plates that could be used for any occasion, dressed up with rich harvest colors in napkins, tablecloths and simple accessories. Thompson pointed out one wine-themed table with deep burgundy hues and observed, “People around here like anything having to do with wine!”

The store used to stock a lot of fancy Thanksgiving décor, she said. “But it just doesn’t sell anymore.” Instead, people go for things like simple tea towels emblazoned with “Blessed” that could also be used as napkins, or using a pile of winter squash and small pumpkins with fairy lights as a centerpiece.

Of course, if you want turkeys on the table, either in the form of salt and pepper shakers or a big ceramic bird, they’ve got them. Lula’s Chocolates also has beautifully detailed milk- and dark-chocolate turkeys that double as dessert.

Another fun idea is to repurpose candlesticks by grouping several of different heights and topping them with individual apples, oranges, pomegranates or mini-pumpkins, then finishing with ribbons and bows to coordinate with your table’s color scheme.

Paying for a bundle of branches to use as decoration may seem a little silly — unless you’ve ever gathered your own, only to find out they tend to come with tiny, unwelcome inhabitants that march across the table at the most inopportune moments.

Thompson also has some take-and-bake foil containers with colorful lids that have a spot to write either the name of the person taking it or the contents — so much nicer than giving away your mismatched plastic containers!

And of course, the most beautiful thing you can bring to any Thanksgiving table is a heart full of gratitude for family — the one you’re born into or the one you make with people you love.

Simple white china, real or artificial pumpkins and apples, and a few holiday-themed accessories reflect the back-to-basics approach people are taking to this year’s Thanksgiving tables. It’s time once more to let the food be the star of the show!

Carmel Area Wastewater District
3945 Rio Road
Carmel, CA 93922
(831) 624-1248

NOTICE OF INCREASED CONSTRUCTION NOISE

To our Neighbors and Friends, notice is hereby given of pile driving activities at the Carmel Area Wastewater District - Wastewater Treatment Plant. Pile driving is necessary for structural stability of treatment process improvements being conducted as part of the Wastewater Treatment Plant Rehabilitation Project.

Pile Driving Activities are Scheduled to Occur:

- For a duration of three weeks between 11-30-15 and 12-18-15 (exact dates still TBD)
- Work will be conducted on weekdays between the hours of 8:00 am and 5:00 pm.
- There will be no construction activity on weekends, Thanksgiving Day, or the day after Thanksgiving.

Measures are being taken to mitigate the amount of noise, including pre-drilling pile holes, and use of sound dampening devices.

We appreciate your understanding during this process and encourage you to contact the District with any questions or concerns regarding the project.

work that needs to be performed. The county slapped Mehdi pour with a list of code violations related to the vacant house on Signal Hill Road that was built in 1958.

The Nov. 16 agreement is also an effort by the county to “avoid the potential expense of litigation to resolve this matter,” according to the five-page agreement signed by Mehdi pour, resource management agency director Carl Holm and others.

Despite the agreement, issues related to the house are long from being resolved, and the agreement is hardly satisfying to Mehdi pour, her son, Sateez Kadivar, told The Pine Cone.

“She feels like [the process is] utterly wasteful, but we thought it was best to move on and let them focus on the environmental impact report,” Kadivar said. “That is what should be happening here, not worrying about a pile of rubble.”

The environmental report, he said, will likely be released in the spring of 2016.

“The EIR has already been continuously delayed by the county,” Kadivar said. “All [Mehdi pour] is trying to do is replace an eyesore with a proper home — one that blends into the natural landscape.”

Mehdi pour, the owner of the venture capital firm Jotter, wants to tear down the crumbling house, designed by noted architect Richard Neutra, and replace it with a modern, 11,933-square-foot, two-story single-family home designed by the late Mexican architect Ricardo Legorreta. She purchased the house in 2004, and it was not considered historic at the time.

After she applied to tear it down, though, the home was designated historic at the state level and preservationists have called for it to be preserved. A neighbor, Sam Reeves, hired a prominent land-use attorney to fight construction of the new home. Further hampering Mehdi pour’s plans is the list of county code violations that she’s been ordered to correct.

The agreement with the county came a day before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors were set to hear Mehdi pour’s appeal of the September historic resources board decision. Planners had recommended the supervisors deny her appeal.

Mehdi pour says she has already spent $125,000 to shore up the house at the county’s behest, and Kadivar said another $50,000 would likely be spent on complying with the county’s mothballing plan and other costs.

The county has ordered her to fix the home’s roof and drainage system, repair stucco, abate mold, cover doors and windows with plywood, install a cross ventilation system, control pests, and do a weekly “drive-by” of the property and inspect it at least once a month.

But she’s no longer required to provide temporary power to the house, install mechanical ventilation systems to prevent the house from attracting more mold, and repair the deck, Kadivar said about the terms of the agreement.

Mehdi pour also agreed to install a security camera on the premises.

In February, Mehdi pour reported to Monterey County Sheriff’s Deputies that someone broke into the house and vandalized it. Supervisor Dave Potter called the damage intentional, and Reeves’ attorney, Tony Lombardo, accused Mehdi pour of intentionally doing the damage so she could get the permit to raze the home, a charge Mehdi pour and Kadivar have strongly denied.

RENDERING/RICARDO LEGORRETA

Win Griffith

1931 – 2015

Win Griffith, writer, father, appreciator died before dawn on November 4, 2015 on Deer Isle, Maine, his son beside him. He was 84. Of all the words, gratitude was his favorite. Here is why:

Dear people: Parents Evan and Florence of California. Siblings John, Jean and Tony. Son Kevin and his family-Natalie,Liam,Amelia,Charlotte. Daughter Christina and her family-Peter, Liam. His former wife with whom he shared an uncategorizable love, Patricia. Nephews and nieces Mark, Anne, Sarah, James, Peter, Robert, Adam. Later seasons’ Loves. Those who bagged his groceries, changed his oil, brought his mail. Caregivers. All within the penciled pages of his treasured blue, taped-together address book including kind sisters-in-law and cousins and childhood, Stanford, Carmel Valley and Vermont friends.

Cherished places: The Golden Gate Bridge. Nepenthe, Big Sur. Monhegan Island. Mt. Ascutney. Penobscot Bay. Montana. Oregon. Einstein Statue, D.C. Portofino, Italy. An oak called The Thinking Tree. Libraries. Protest lines. Newsrooms. His writing desk. Coffee shops. Cross-country drives, windows down, road unfolding.

Words: Steinbeck. Thoreau. Pink Floyd. The Declaration of Independence. Neruda. Pete Seeger singing Guantanamo. The Dictionary. Wendell Berry. Ecclesiastes 3:4. The Shaker Spiritual, “Tis the gift to be simple tis the gift to be free.” Letters. This sweetly spoken truth: “I love you granddad.” Any effort, by any person, to put life to words. His own block letter on yellow legal pad printed or Underwood then computer typed words: Hubert Humphrey, A Candid Biography, New York Times Magazine articles, Rutland Valley News columns, speeches, haiku, books in progress.

Resilient faith: Weston Priory. St. Dunstan’s Episcopal Church. Quaker Meetings. D.C. Baptist church choirs. Woods’ fallen log pews. Eucalyptus cathedrals. The sermons of shorelines.

And too: Welsh roots. Early mornings. Conviction. Daffodils. Aaron Copland. Making pesto. Cesar Chavez. Helen Caldicott. Serene Christmas scenes. Guinness. His rescue Bassett, Hopeful. The Treasure of The Sierra Madre. Political campaigns. Hysterical mishaps. Found rocks,sticks,shells. Compassion amid private struggles, painful choices. Belonging. Cheerful greetings. Gentle snowfall. Pie.

We know he appreciates how we remember him here. We know, too, that he is the one who steps from these words toward the company of those with whom he shares this page. He is introducing himself, asking their names. He is wanting to hear their stories. Genuinely, he is glad to meet them. This makes us smile, brings tears. This is why we will miss him.

But here’s what he would say: Feel. It’s okay. Now put your boots on and walk your sadness out under this day’s sky. See the newly open spaces between the leafless branches. Listen for the owl. Take your time along this trail. Smell the pines. Watch the squirrel gather what he needs. Let the sun warm your face. Greet the one who passes. Breathe deeply. Continue on along.

We will honor his request to scatter his ashes in a peaceful, loved Vermont spot. And in one of our final conversations, he hoped aloud that we would all “keep trying to better some little corner of the world.” In this spirit, donations may be sent to Island Nursing Home (587 N. Deer Isle Rd, Deer Isle, ME 04627-“Win Garden Gift”) for the tending of the beautiful garden where he often sat, and in his final days, just the thought of which brought comfort.

Condolences may be expressed at www.jordanfernald.com.

Pianist joins symphony at Sunset, singer-songwriter rocks Room 105

ACCOMPANIED BY a gifted young pianist, Orion Weiss, The Monterey Symphony presents its second concert of the season Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 21-22, at Sunset Center.

Named the Classical Recording Foundation's "Young Artist of the Year" in September 2010, the 34-year-old Weiss has shared the bill with some of America's finest orchestras, including the Chicago Symphony, Boston Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, and New York Philharmonic.

"He's out of this world," said musicologist Todd Samra, who will offer a free talk before the concert. "He's just an amazing player."

The program includes music by three American composers from the late 19th or early 20th century: Edward MacDowell's Piano Concerto No. 2 in D Minor, Op.23, Aaron Copland's Letter from Home and Charles Ives' Symphony No. 2.

Samra said the concerto by MacDowell is very reminiscent of the music of Franz Liszt, who deeply influenced the composer. "It's an American piece, but it's very European in style," Samra explained.

The Copland composition was written during World War II for American soldiers who were fighting overseas. "It's a short little piece of music that's warm and sentimental," Samra said. "He wrote it to remind the boys of being back home."

Written at the turn of the 20th century, Ives' Symphony No. 2 never saw the light of day until it was performed by the New York Philharmonic in 1951. Although the piece was well received, conductor Leonard Bernstein took many liberties with it. Samra said the symphony will play Ives' intended version.

"It's a very unusual piece of music," Samra added. "It's awkward, but it's very entertaining."

Saturday's concert starts at 8 p.m., while Sunday's matinee begins at 3 p.m. Tickets are $40 to $79. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 646-8511 or visit www.montereysymphony.org.

Headlining the 17th annual festival is Grammy Award nominee Michael Martin Murphey. Best known for his pop hit, "Wildfire," in 1975, Murphey has emerged as one of cowboy music's most respected songwriters and performers. In 1990, he became the first cowboy music artist to record a gold record ("Cowboy Songs") since Marty Robbins did it in 1959.

Also performing at the festival will be The Sons of the San Joaquin, Don Edwards, R.W. Hampton, Belinda Gail, Katy Moffat and many others. The local music scene will be represented by Mike Beck, a real life cowboy as well as one of the Monterey Peninsula most enduring musicians. Also on the bill is former Carmel Valley resident and gifted jazz guitarist Bruce Forman, who will be joined by Cow Bop.

TONS OF TURKEY DAY OPTIONS, HOLIDAY WINE SPECIALS, AND WINNING CHILI

THANKSGIVING — A day of food, family, friends, football and gratitude. Most of all, it's a food-centric holiday, and on the Monterey Peninsula, there all sorts of ways to celebrate it, from take-home turkeys, to abundant buffets and elaborate sit-down dinners.

To enjoy holiday fare while taking in a breathtaking view of Carmel Valley — and ervations, call (831) 626-2599.

The Ranch's Thanksgiving Complete Feasts To-Go, meanwhile, include chef Tim Wood's masterfully prepared turkey dinners ready to serve, with a 12-pound turkey serving four to six people priced at $250 plus tax, and a 24-pound turkey serving seven to 14 people for $450 plus tax. Club members, as usual, get 20 percent off.

To place an order, call (831) 626-2514.

For something on the creative side, head to Porters in the Forest in the clubhouse at Poppy Hills Golf Course in Pebble Beach, where chef

Johnny DeVivo is planning to offer a special menu on Thanksgiving Day from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. He'll prepare roasted turkey with sausage stuffing and fall vegetables au gratin ($32), garlic-studded prime rib with mashed potatoes and Brussels sprouts with bacon ($45), smoked pork loin with kabocha squash and charred kale ($33), "Louisiana favorite" Shrimp Masca roasted in cast iron with garlic and white wine, served with white cheddar grits and kale ($36), and several side dishes. Reservations are required.

Call (831) 622-8237. Poppy Hills is located at 3200 Lopez Road in P.B.

With a coastal view that's hard to beat, Pacific's Edge in the Hyatt Carmel Highlands will present Thanksgiving dinner from 4 to 8 p.m. for $95 per person, plus tax and 18 percent tip. The menu created by chefs Chad Minton and Alvaro Dalmau is set to include Parker House rolls with smoked butter and sea salt, and first-course choices of duck ravioli in parmesan broth with truffle oil, arugula salad with country bread croutons and roasted pear, farro salad with burrata mozzarella and golden raisins, and roasted squash with vanilla bean truffle honey and crushed almonds.

Options for main courses include slow-roasted all-natural turkey with buttermilk potato purée and sage stuffing, line-caught "true Chilean sea bass" with almond gazpacho and red grapes, dry-aged prime rib with white cheddar potato gratin and heirloom carrots, and butternut squash risotto with parmesan and Frangelico brown butter. For dessert, choose from traditional pumpkin pie, sweet potato tart, maple crème brulee, or chocolate peanut butter mousse cake. For reservations, call (831) 622-5445 or visit www.pacificsedg.com.

The restaurant is located in the hotel at 120 Highlands Drive off of Highway 1 south of Carmel.

For something new, fun and casual, check out Jacks Restaurant and Peter B's Brewpub, which are hoping to draw guests seeking a new Thanksgiving tradition of eating out with them rather than celebrating at home. At Jacks, the menu will include wild mushroom soup, a mixed lettuce salad with candied pecans and beets, whole roasted turkey carved tableside, gravy, stuffing, yams, green beans, potatoes, and cranberry sauce, all served family style, along with several desserts. The meal will be served between 1 and 7 p.m. at a cost of $54.95 per person, with discounts for seniors and kids. Reservations are required by calling (831) 649-7874. www.jacksrestaurantlounge.com.

At the more casual Peter B's Brewpub, the feast will be available starting at 11 a.m., with turkey and gravy, mashed potatoes, green beans, cranberry sauce, and a slice of pumpkin pie, all for $14.99 per person. www.peterbsbrewpub.com

The Portola Hotel & Spa is located in Monterey at the foot of Alvarado Street. www.portolahotel.com

A less new but not necessarily old tradition, Point Pinos Grill, under the guidance of chef Dory Ford, is once again serving its full Thanksgiving buffet — as well as catering anywhere celebrators want to be. Whether it's a full dinner, or individual items to round out a feast, the grill can get it ready for pickup or delivery. Call the office at (831) 657-9790 to order or to reserve a place at the table in the restaurant.

Down the coast, get a down-home Thanksgiving dinner at the rustic Big Sur Lodge in beautiful Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park between 2 and 8:30 p.m. Starters include soups, salads and assorted cheeses, followed by entrée choices of traditional roasted turkey with stuffing, boneless rib eye roast with wild mushrooms, roasted ham with pineapple glaze, grilled BBQ ribs and grilled salmon, with sides of mashed potatoes, sautéed veggies, corn on the cob and

For traditional with an upscale twist in a vineyard setting, and food prepared by an extremely talented chef, head to Bernardus Lodge's Lucia Restaurant in Carmel Valley. There, chef Cal Stamenov is offering two lineups for the holiday: a buffet from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., for $85 per person ($32 per child age 5 to 12), and a four-course tasting menu during the evening from 5 to 9 p.m. for $125 per person. The lodge is located at 415 West Carmel Valley Road at Los Laureles Grade. Visit www.bernarduslodge.com or call (831) 658-3595.

■ And holiday wine

Calvin Wilkes, owner of Fifi's Bistro Café in Pacific Grove, is selling select wines at special prices for Turkey Day revelry. Deals on his list include Alexander Valley Vineyards Merlot for $14, Chateau Puy-Marceau Bordeaux for $15, Hauner Carlo Hiera Terre Siciliane — "Italian wine from the island of Vulcano, which gave volcanoes their name" — for $15, Landmark Vineyards Overlook Champagne for $15, Lamarca Prosecco for $12, splits of Moët & Chandon Imperial Brut Champagne for $14 each, and Navarro Vineyards Pinot Noir grape juice — "all the heart benefits of Pinot Noir without the alcohol!"

For more information, call (831) 372-5325. Fifi's is located at 1188 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove. www.fifiscafe.com

Peter Figge, meanwhile, is offering great prices on his wines through the end of the year. River Road Chardonnay, Paraiso Pinot Noir and Sycamore Flat Syrah are each $28, while the Pelio Chardonnay and Pelio Pinot Noir are each $30. And, purchases of six bottles or more drop the per-bottle price to $25. Call (831) 384-4149 or email allen@figgecellars.com for more information or to purchase. The wines can also be found for tasting in the Winfield Gallery on Dolores Street in downtown Carmel.

■ And holiday farmers markets

The ever popular farmers market at Monterey Peninsula College that's typically held on Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. will take place the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, instead. That way, customers — both home cooks and professional chefs — can take advantage of its abundant, high-quality fruits, vegetables, herbs, meats, cheeses and other products just in time to prepare their holiday meals and treats.

For more information about the MPC market and other Monterey Bay Certified Farmers Markets, go to www.montereybayfarmers.com.

■ From Scratch chili wins

From Scratch Restaurant in the Barnyard shopping center at the mouth of Carmel Valley enjoyed major accolades when its recipe won the Grand Prize at the 2015 Grand Sierra Resort Amateur Chili Recipe Contest last month.

Held during the 49th Annual International Chili Society World's Championship Chili Cookoff in Reno, Nev., the amateur contest called for three finalists cooking for the judges on Oct. 17 during the championship's second day.

The victory isn't the restaurant's only claim to fame, either. It also appeared on Guy Fieri's "Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives," with special guest Robert Irvine.

Owned by the Grebing family (which also owns the Carmel Coffee House on Ocean Avenue, where it sells coffee from its tiny Kula Estate in Maui, as well as other organic roasts), From Scratch Restaurant is open daily from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

■ Pizza Night at Happy Girl

On Tuesday, Nov. 24, from 6 to 8 p.m., Happy Girl Kitchen on Central Avenue in Pacific Grove will host Pizza Night, when guests will gather to enjoy freshly made pies from the café's homemade dough and house-made sauce from local organic tomatoes. HGK's player piano will add to the ambiance — and guests can get some holiday shopping done there, too, for anyone on their lists who likes pickles, preserves and other culinary treats.

And down the coast Nov. 28-29, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Happy Girl will be selling all sorts of treats at the annual Big Sur Craftshow at the Grange Hall.

"This is one of our favorite holiday events of the year. Come enjoy the community of Big Sur nestled down in the redwoods alongside the river. See old friends, make new ones and support the local artists! Bring lots of cash. You will want it!" owners Todd and Jordan Champagne announced.

For more information on what's happening at Happy Girl, including a popup dinner next month, see www.happygirlkitchen.com.

■ Aquarium to honor Walters

Ted and Cindy Walter, chef/owners of Passionfish restaurant in Pacific Grove, will be honored alongside other local business people during the Monterey Bay Aquarium's annual Business Partner Reception Wednesday, Dec. 2.

They'll be recognized "for their commitment to the environment and ocean conservation." The event is always held in conjunction with Community Week, when residents of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties can visit the aquarium for free.

The Walters have been business members at the aquarium since 1997, and their restaurant was the first to partner with the aquarium's highly regarded Seafood Watch program, which helps consumers know which fish to choose when buying it to cook or while dining out. Passionfish was also the first restaurant in the county to be certified as a Green Business.

For more information and a complete listing of aquarium business partners, visit www.montereybayaquarium.org.business-partners.

■ Sip Champagne at Nielsen's

The popular bubbly tasting that drew crowds to the wine cellar at Nielsen Bros' Market last May will be repeated Thursday, Dec. 3, when Erin Holleran from Moët-Hennessy group will be pouring Moët Chandon, Veuve Cliquot and Domaine Chandon from 4 to 6 p.m.

With the holiday season in full swing — and recent news that drinking Champagne three times a week is a good way to fend off Alzheimer's — now is the perfect time for bubbles.

Various bottles are also available for purchase in the wine shop at the store, which is located on the corner of San Carlos and Seventh in downtown Carmel.

When controlling your pet can be a pain in the neck

By JOHANNA SHERRILL, DVM

IT'S ALWAYS fun to go to one of the cute and fancy pet shops downtown and look at the beautiful collars and leashes for sale. And with Dec. 25 approaching, many pet owners will undoubtedly be thinking of putting a new collar around Fido's neck come Christmas morning.

Any time of year, there's no doubt that adorning our doggies with bling, colorful patterns, or leather around their necks is not just fun, but part of the ritual of owning pets from the very beginning.

It's important, however, to warn owners about the hazards of leading their dogs around by their necks — especially if it's more like the dogs leading them around using their necks.

This can be explained by simple physics: dogs are on four legs, and their necks are the first part of their spine which is in a horizontal line, more or less. When we attach the leash to the clip on the collar around their necks and they start pulling in a direction forward or backward, to the side, or whatever they want, the result is unnecessary stress and strain on the vertebral column, especially the cervical or neck portion of that horizontal line.

Hang out on one of our local beaches and see what I mean. The dogs on leashes with neck collars are pulling and leaping against the restraint to chase a bird, investigate a fascinating smell, or just socialize. As they pull forward against the owner's strength, you can imagine the upward or vertical forces on the bony spine that is designed to be in an S-shaped elongated curve on a horizontal plane. Over time, something has to give, and it does, in some cases.

Some breeds are more affected by the upward, unnatural pull on their spines than others. Long-backed, short-legged dogs like dachshunds and Shih-tzus are definitely at risk. Dogs that love to jump on and down off of things are predisposed, too. Obese dogs are certainly operating at a disadvantage with regard to spinal alignment.

Persistent abnormal forces can lead to deformation of the discs that cushion the bony vertebrae of the spinal column. These changes can occur acutely or chronically, and will lead to a mandatory vet visit.

When a disc is squeezed or cycled out of its inter-vertebral space, it protrudes into the spinal cord and causes four levels of progressive symptoms: severe pain, loss of motor function, partial or full paralysis, and finally, a loss of deep pain sensation. These are in order of increasingly poor prognosis.

No matter what, disc problems are an emergency and can cost a lot to fix. I see a lot of these cases during a local veterinary ER shift. Most of the dogs are crying out in pain, have an arched, stiff gait, or are shaking in pain and panting. Their owners are stressed out — no one wants her pet in pain.

I'd use a harness on almost every dog, especially if they are "pullers." Training can help, too, if you can teach them not to pull. I have a hard time with the whole pinch collar thing. How can it be OK to pinch the neck and pull it in weird directions at the same time? The sliding chain collars just seem to cause choking and gagging — without correcting behavior.

Harnesses that are well designed, on the other hand, will distribute the pull in different and equal directions. Ideally, a harness will "self-correct" a pet's pulling tendencies.

Every corner in this town has a chiropractor or physical therapist. I'm guessing human spines are predisposed to getting out of whack. Probably because we all sit too much, push our calories, and don't get to our yoga classes. But dogs can be managed better than that, by using harnesses, training them, and keeping their weight in a normal range.

MUSIC

Besides music, the festival will provide a stage for some of the best known cowboy poets in the business, including Waddie Mitchell, Jim Ross and Karen Ross.

Ticket prices range from $20 for the Saturday Night dance to $310 for an all-event pass. The site is located at 2004 Fairground Road. Call (831) 649-6544 or visit www.montereycowboy.org.

■ 'A warm and cozy living room'

A husband and wife duo with an affection for traditional American music, Anne and Pete Sibley play Saturday, Nov. 21, at the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts.

With two small children in tow, Sibleys were on a cross-country tour when they visited the Monterey Peninsula four years ago. They liked the community so much they decided to move here from Jackson, Wyo. "We are so grateful to call this place home," Pete Sibley said.

Saturday's show marks the first time the couple has performed in the 50-seat Cherry Theater, an intimate space that Sibley compared to "a warm and cozy living room."

The Sibleys plan to play music from their 2014 recording, "Extraordinary Life," some new original songs, and perhaps, even a few holiday favorites.

The music starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $25. The Cherry Center is located at Guadalupe and Fourth. Call (831) 624-7491.

■ 'Even the kitchen sink'

Showcasing an emerging talent and an intimate setting for live music, Sunset Center hosts a concert by Mike Pinto Friday, Nov. 20, in Room 105. The show marks the singer-songwriter's first performance in Carmel.

Pinto's music is a melting pot of musical styles — the Pennsylvania native serves up an original mix of reggae, ska, surf music, rock "and the kitchen sink," he explained.

"I'm interested in many types of music," Pinto told The Pine Cone. "Different moods call for different genres. I don't understand why anyone would only want to play one style — it would be like having the same meal every day."

The performance begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are $15. Call (831) 620-2048.

■ Honeymooning duo back in P.G.

One of the Emerald Isle's most renowned fiddlers, Oisín Mac Diarmada, will share the stage with his wife, dancer/pianist Samantha Harvey, Sunday, Nov. 22, at St. Mary's By-The-Sea in Pacific Grove.

"Oisín comes from Sligo, Ireland, which has its own distinctive style, and he is the foremost representative of that style," Jackie Pierce of St. Mary's told The Pine Cone. "He and Samantha were married shortly after they played here last year. They make beautiful music together. This is going to be a good one."

The concert begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $20 for adults and $8 for kids under 12. The church is located at 12th and Central. Call (831) 224-3819.

on the subject of fine art photography.

"I am excited about the rich diversity of entries," CPA director Brian Taylor explained. "The exhibit spans every genre of fine art photography, from portraits and landscapes, to state-of-the-art digital images and traditional darkroom printing techniques. The show is a wonderful glimpse into all that is being explored in contemporary photography today."

Hirsch presents a talk at 4 p.m., and a reception will follow from 5 to 7 p.m.

Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 625-5181 or visit www.photography.org.

Local artists seek 'New Horizons'

Calling attention to the talents of 30 artists, the Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation Gallery unveils a show, "New Horizons," Saturday, Nov. 21, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Featured in the display are paintings, sculpture, ceramics, prints, greeting cards, silks, jewelry and handmade original Christmas ornaments.

The gallery is located at 425 Cannery Row. Call (831) 655-1267 or visit www.mpaf.org.

No computer tricks

The otherworldly images mixed media artist Trish McCann creates look like they've been rendered in Photoshop. But McCann doesn't employ any digital technology to make them.

"As I do not use a computer in my work, I have become a carpenter who builds from the ground up," explained McCann, who is displaying her work this month at The Carmel Foundation.

A resident of Monterey, McCann incorporates photography, line drawings, collage, sketching and painting into her pieces, which often reflect her fascination with architecture.

A nonprofit that offers a wide variety of programs and services for seniors, The Carmel Foundation is located at Eighth and Lincoln. Call (831) 624-1588.

CAA's 'Meet the Artist' series continues

In the latest installment of the Carmel Art Association's Meet the Artist series, painter Pamela Carroll will greet the public Sunday, Nov. 22, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the downtown gallery.

An exhibit of Carroll's work, "Real Life," is on display at the CAA through Dec. 1.

Influenced by Dutch masters and contemporary realists, Carroll draws inspiration from antique toys in her show.

The gallery is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Call (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmelart.org.

"Pop Top" by painter Pamela Carroll is on display at the Carmel Art Association. Carroll will greet guests Sunday at the gallery.

office in government, Panetta sounded at times like a seasoned politician.

"As an officer in the United States Navy Reserve who served in the mountains of Afghanistan, I fought to protect our country," he said. "As a prosecutor who served in the courtrooms of Oakland and Salinas, I fought to bring justice to victims and their families."

He called attention to his volunteer work, including helping veterans obtain housing, helping organize the Central Coast Veterans Cemetery at Fort Ord, and assisting in facilitating the purchase of the National Steinbeck Center by California State University Monterey Bay.

"And as a member of the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary advisory council, I have fought, and I will always fight, to protect the beautiful Monterey Bay," he said, drawing applause.

Panetta also outlined a handful of issues he would tackle if elected, including "protecting and defending America from our enemies," immigration reform, the economy, clean energy and education.

He said he supports a "disciplined budget with tax fairness" that also maintains "critical safety-net programs to provide health care and benefits to our veterans, our elderly and our needy."

Panetta proposed a "National Service Act" that he said would allow children to "get out from the classroom, get out from behind the computers and get in front of real people" to serve their communities and country while also receiving educational benefits.

Regarding the public's frustration with partisan gridlock in Washington D.C., Panetta said he would do all he could to strengthen the trust between voters and their elected representatives.

"I will do everything to renew the collaborative spirit that is necessary to get things done in the capital of this country," he said.

Family support

Though Panetta acknowledged it wasn't easy growing up a son of a politician, he said his wife Carrie, a Monterey County Superior Court judge, is wholly behind his decision to run.

"She understands patriotism," he said.

"She understands what it is to serve."

Leon and Sylvia, in a statement to the press, said Jimmy has their "full support and confidence."

"We have both dedicated our lives to public service," the elder Panettas said. "We believe that we are stronger as a nation when the responsibility of political leadership can be passed on to a new generation."

The Panetta name will undoubtedly go far in the election, and Panetta's bid for Congress is a big blow to anyone who has considered entering the race.

Lucius: 'Work even harder'

Pacific Grove City Councilwoman and republican Casey Lucius, 39, who announced in June that she was running for the seat, conceded Tuesday that Panetta's candidacy will mean she'll have to "work even harder" to get her name and ideas out to voters.

"But that's OK because people want someone who's willing to work hard," Lucius, who was a U.S. Navy lieutenant and Naval Postgraduate School professor, told The Pine Cone. "I think we are seeing a unique time in politics when people are looking for an outsider and looking for an independent thinker."

His father's legacy and popularity notwithstanding, Panetta said in no way does it guarantee he's the heir apparent.

"What it comes down to is that it is up to you to get your butt through the door," he told The Pine Cone in an interview following Tuesday's press conference.

The pieces of advice his dad has given him, Panetta said, include his frank opinion about the difficulty working with entrenched bureaucrats and politicians.

"My father basically said that in Washington, you are always going to deal with jerks," he said. "You are always going to deal with difficult people. That is the job. But you must deal with them, because that is how you are going to get things done."

When asked which members of the U.S. House of Representatives he admires, Panetta mentioned Eric Swalwell, a 35-year-old Democratic congressman from Alameda County who unseated 20-term Democrat Pete Stark in 2012. Swalwell — whom Panetta worked with as a prosecutor in Oakland — brings "young energy and a willingness to cooperate, collaborate and compromise with people to get things done," he said.

When asked which Republican representative he respects, Panetta pointed to Paul Ryan, the 45-year-old speaker of the House.

"I have not met him, but in watching Paul Ryan on '60 Minutes,' he seems to be someone we can work with," he said.

An intelligence analyst who was deployed to Afghanistan in support of Operation Enduring Freedom in 2007 — and was subsequently awarded the Bronze Star for tracking high-value al-Qaeda targets — Panetta said the United States must amplify its efforts to battle the terror organization, ISIS.

"I think more does need to be done in the sense of using our intelligence capabilities," he said. "But there also needs to be more determination and collaboration with the other countries involved. We don't necessarily have to have boots on the ground, but we have to utilize the means we have to eliminate their leaders."

As for the nearly $19 trillion national debt, Panetta said it is "incumbent upon us not to stick our children with the bill," and that "we should do everything we can to get that debt down."

Back to work

On Tuesday afternoon, Panetta told The Pine Cone that in the coming weeks he would reach out to supporters, including the roughly 100 people who signed an endorsement list Tuesday.

In the meantime, though, Panetta is preparing to prosecute gang member Bernardo Camacho, who is set to go to trial Nov. 30 for the March 23, 2010, killing of 6-year-old Azahel Cruz, a boy who was struck in the head by a bullet while in his family's East Salinas kitchen.

Actress, author Sylva Kelegian to sign books

SYLVA KELEGIAN, an actress who has appeared in movies like "Atlas Shrugged" and "Spider-Man," as well as television shows including "CSI" and "Cold Case," will sign her award-winning books at Diggidy Dog on Friday, November 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Kelegian is the niece of Julie Hansen of Pebble Beach and has many ties to this area.

She will sign her memoir, "God Spelled Backward" and her children's book, "The Dolphin Princess."

Succeeding Burnett

JASON BURNETT took the town by storm six years ago when he ran for council. With his local roots, youthful good looks, experience in Washington, unpretentious charm and wealthy, influential family background, he not only proved to be extremely popular with the voters, he also quickly took a leadership role among local politicians and civic leaders. At the time he announced his candidacy in early 2010, his name was unknown in local political circles, but it didn't take long for him to become a Peninsula-wide leader on all sorts of topics — a phenomenon that especially manifested itself when he became mayor in 2012.

Which isn't to say that Burnett's tenure was without its major controversies. We all remember very well how Burnett stuck by former city administrator Jason Stilwell far longer than he should have. However, even in that case, Burnett found a way to redeem himself by moving quickly to remove Stilwell as soon as he realized it had to be done, and to start repairing the damage of the Stilwell tenure as soon as he was out the door. Looking back, it's hard to conclude that the Stilwell era constitutes a major blemish on Burnett's record.

Another blip on the Burnett record is the interminable length of more than a few city council meetings while he's held the gavel. Leadership requires many things — and one of them is preventing people from hogging the dais and going on and on and on about nothing. So burdensome has the length of council meetings become, we believe it may actually be difficult to attract candidates for council in the upcoming election.

Nevertheless, no matter how serious you think the problems have been while Burnett has been mayor, it must be admitted that his successes have been much more significant. And one of them, in particular, stands out above everything else that's happened in the last six years: the progress Burnett has made helping solve our water supply problem.

Six years ago, the Monterey Peninsula was at a stalemate. Water cutbacks loomed as the state cracked down on illegal pumping from the Carmel River, yet seemingly nothing was being done to develop the necessary alternative supply.

Into the breach stepped Burnett, whose impeccable environmental credentials coexisted with a deeply held belief that water must not be used to control growth. Over the last 30 years, Burnett knew, every local jurisdiction had adopted a general plan that sharply limited growth. Once those plans were in place, it was obvious that amending them in the future to allow significant levels of development would be impossible under state environmental laws. Meanwhile, it was also inescapably true that the state's threatened water cutback order, if implemented, would cost many thousands of people their jobs, do untold damage to the local economy and seriously degrade everyone's quality of life. Meanwhile, Burnett realized that the business-as-usual water shortage in place since 1995 was an impediment to even the most essential government planning at the local level.

Thus, taking full advantage of his connections in Washington and Sacramento, and working with remarkable diligence and attention to detail, Burnett made it his personal mission to help solve our water problem. And, thanks to him, actual progress has been made. Today, we are much closer to getting a new water supply than anyone could have foreseen when Burnett emerged on the scene six years ago.

Last week, Burnett announced he'll be moving on to other pursuits — probably still in government, and probably still working on water policy. Wherever he goes, he'll be very much missed when it comes to getting our new water supply built and finally put into service. If the public and various other local officials maintain their focus, it can still be done, but without Burnett, it's going to be quite a bit harder.

BEST of BATES

"I wouldn't say Carmel is small, but for a thousand votes you could be mayor."

Letters to the Editor

Bordonaro a 'skilled contractor'

Dear Editor,

Your article last week regarding the P.G. couple suing their contractor lacked significantly in critical reporting. The Carmel Pine Cone once again produced an article that was gossip at best. Your disregard for investigative journalism is both personally bothersome and irresponsible to the community. You failed to report the larger part of the story.

I know Marc Bordonaro personally and professionally. He is a skilled contractor. His company has built million-dollar homes in Carmel for years. His work is respected and highly regarded.

I hope that The Carmel Pine Cone chooses to either retract or expand their reporting on this matter and report the entire story. Hopefully, The Pine Cone can redeem themselves so that I may in the future pick up your newspaper once again.

Melissa Rosenthal,
Carmel

Why bother?

Dear Editor,

I am a concerned citizen who happened to notice a major water leak at the corner of Highway 1 and Carpenter Thursday morning at 9:45 a.m. I drove down Carpenter to Serra Avenue, and noticed the water had been leaking so long it had run all the way downhill to the Serra statue.

I stopped at the police station and asked them how to report this; they told me it wasn't their jurisdiction, and to call the county. I called the county public works department to report the water leak. When I got to my office, I then called the watch commander at the police station and said, "As you are public servants, would it have been too much for your person to call the county, instead of relying on private citizens to care for our public works?" She defended her person for a moment and then agreed that as we are in a drought it is up to everyone to help conserve water.

At 11:30 a.m. I received a call from the county informing me they do not have a water line at Highway 1 and Carpenter, and that I should call Cal Am. I then said he was a public servant and why wouldn't he call Cal Am, and he said, "I could, but why don't you do it?" I said, "I have already had four crazy interactions about this and I am done."

This is the craziness that goes on in our society; no wonder the people are apathetic and nothing gets done. We can have a massive water leak and our public agencies are not customer-oriented and everyone points the finger at someone else. No one takes responsibility.

You can be sure I will close my eyes to the next water leak.

Great lives are obvious — unless you're living one

SHE KEPT saying that her life wasn't very interesting and suggesting other people who would be better for this column. But since she'd already also said she was a veteran who served at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, and that she was somewhat well acquainted with President Dwight Eisenhower when he was in office, the "not interesting" notion didn't fly.

Jean Hontalas' life began in Massachusetts, and there's still more than a trace of Boston in her accent. She graduated from college at Bouvé-Boston — part of Tufts University, just outside Boston — and landed a job teaching science to junior high students in New York.

If you've ever taught junior high, you know putting a brand-new teacher in that environment can be a bit like throwing raw meat to sharks, so it was unsurprising that Hontalas had some problems with classroom control. She found she didn't enjoy the work, so when a new opportunity presented itself, she was ready.

It came in the form of the Korean War and an unexpected shortage of healthcare workers. The Army offered teachers with science backgrounds, like Hontalas, a commission and pay to return to school and go into the medical profession. She was one of 16 selected to go to Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas — known colloquially in the military as "Fort Sam" — and train as a physical therapist.

She has a picture of her class, which included a very young Jocelyn Elders, who would go on to become surgeon general during the Clinton administration. After completing her training, Hontalas was assigned to Brooke Army Hospital at Fort Sam, where she worked in the burn unit. While she said she saw some truly horrific wounds, she also said she found a sense of fulfillment in helping the people who needed it most.

She also met and befriended a young officer named John Hontalas, and while he left the Army when his time was up and went back to being an accountant, she signed up for two more years and was transferred to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D.C.

John showed up one day and told her, "I'm here to ask you to marry me, and I'm not leaving until you say yes."

"He always said he thought we'd be good together," she remembered with a smile. They were married 44 years, until he died in 1999.

At Walter Reed, Hontalas worked with amputees and met President Eisenhower during the course of his many visits to the troops there. Hontalas said she appreciated Ike's low-key manner and the lack of fanfare surrounding his visits. She said that just like other D.C.-area veterans, he sometimes went to the open clinic at the hospital for treatment for minor aches and pains.

Eventually, she was invited to bring some friends to the White House for tea, and although the president didn't join them, he sent out autographed matchbooks as souvenirs. Hontalas still has hers.

She developed an interest in neurological disorders while at Walter Reed, and when she was transferred to Letterman Army Hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco, she worked with patients with "polio, strokes, multiple sclerosis — anything having to do with the central nervous system."

After six years of service she received an honorable discharge as a captain, took a job at UC San Francisco's hospital, and settled in to civilian life in Mill Valley. When John was offered an opportunity to work with a growers' co-op in Salinas and open his own practice, they decided that would be a good place to raise their two adopted children, Anthia and Ted.

She loved her new home and volunteered with many organizations. Once her kids were teenagers, she opened her own physical therapy practice. When she noticed she was seeing a lot of farmworkers with back injuries, she opened the Salinas Back School in her office and started teaching proper lifting mechanics and how to stretch before a long day in the field.

With a friend who had a child with multiple sclerosis, she started the first indepen-

After she retired and John died, the home they had shared seemed too large. She found the perfect little cottage on Fifth near Carpenter, which she shares with her dachshund, Jake and her cat, Esperanza.

But something nagged at her. She didn't like the way some people talked about her former home, especially since so many never even went "beyond the lettuce curtain" on Highway 68. When one acquaintance said she'd never heard of Rancho Cielo, Hontalas organized a bus trip and luncheon for a group to see — and support — the work being done there with young people who had run afoul of the law.

That was the catalyst for Hontalas to form the Octopus Club, with the goal of getting its charitable tentacles into non-profits both in the Peninsula and Salinas. The group follows

THINGS TO GIVE THANKS FOR

AFTER FAMILY, friends, world peace, good health, and Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream, the main thing I'm giving thanks for on Thanksgiving is humor. Without it, nobody would survive an entire day of being cooped up with a house full of relatives.

And nothing combats carb overload, sugar blues and a tryptophan coma better than a few good belly laughs.

I've lived through more turkey days than could be counted on the fingers of several hands. The holidays that stand out most are those that didn't exactly go as planned. Proving the axiom that tragedy plus time does indeed equal comedy.

The best thing about a big fat holiday disaster is the knowledge that someday it will be a rich source of hilarity. Whenever I need a good laugh, I think about the first Thanksgiving I ever spent on my own. I invited a couple of friends to my bachelor pad in New York City to share my first effort at cooking a turkey dinner. Unfortunately I roasted the bird in a brown paper bag, set the kitchen on fire, and ended up serving the edible remains of dinner to the firemen who put out the blaze.

Then there was the year Mary and I were invited to a pot luck dinner, referred to ever after as the No Luck Pot Luck. The hostess of that memorable meal was a newly converted carb-a-phobian. With a captive audience at her table, she lectured us on the perils of leaky guts and wheat allergies.

She was the original rootin' tootin' gluten Putin.

On the bright side, it was the least amount of food I ever ate on Thanksgiving.

For really big laughs it's hard to beat the time we were invited to the home of an L.A. costume designer who was cooking her first Thanksgiving dinner. Actually she was cooking her first meal ever.

The first hint that things were off the rails was when she answered the door dressed as Carmen Miranda complete with a towering headdress of fruit.

After serving her guests bottomless Cranaritas, she announced: "Eat the nuts and chips, everybody! I just took the turkey out of the freezer so it'll be a while before dinner."

May I say the Jumbo Jacks we snagged at the drive thru on the way home tasted especially good.

And I laugh now remembering the Thanksgiving we shared at the home of a couple and their three large poodles. As we were enjoying pre-dinner conversation in the living room with other guests, one of the dogs came tearing through the house with a large drumstick in his mouth. The host ran behind the pooch shouting, "Pierre, you naughty boy! Drop that turkey leg THIS MINUTE!"

None of the guests said a word as the host finally cornered the dog and retrieved the drumstick, then returned to the kitchen.

When we were finally called to the buffet, I noticed two turkey legs on the serving platter, one adorned with a large bouquet of parsley. I wasn't the only one who noticed the obvious attempt to hide a half-eaten drumstick. Everybody made beeline for the white meat.

We took our places at the dining table. Pierre the poodle sat down next to my chair. Every time I took a bite, he growled. Finally I whispered to the host, "Why does he keep growling at me like that?"

"Oh, don't mind him," the host replied. "He's just angry because you're eating out of his dish."

Since Thanksgiving is the only holiday devoted to gratitude, I made a list of some other things I'm giving thanks for this year:

■ Abe Lincoln for proclaiming the last Thursday in November Thanksgiving Day.

Wilde Times

By LARRY WILDE

The only break from shopping we get between Back-to-School and Easter.

■ Native Americans for not deporting illegal aliens.

■ Pilgrim fashions for going out of style 375 years ago. Otherwise we'd be loosening the belt buckles on our hats.

■ Traditional Thanksgiving dinner for not including such Pilgrim favorites as candied gristle, barley and bear grease mush, and the specialty of the time, suet surprise.

■ No longer having to eat my ex-mother-in-law's holiday meal which included candied gristle, barley and bear grease mush and suet surprise. All left over from the year before.

■ A house filled with the aroma of roast turkey and stuffing. Best perfume ever.

■ Only having to avoid pumpkin pie this one day a year.

■ Permission to eat all the gravy and whipped cream I want.

■ Having at least some vegetables that don't contain marshmallows.

■ Pants with stretchy waists, couches, and football.

■ Nobody gives you an ugly sweater.

■ No mountain of giftwrap to recycle.

To Pine Cone readers everywhere, I wish you huge helpings of humor and happiness on your holiday:

May your stuffing be scrumptious

May your turkey be plump

May your 'taters and gravy have nary a lump

May your guests be congenial,

May your pies take the prize,

And may each extra helping

Stay off of your thighs.

BERNAL

In order to cut overtime expenses that reached a staggering $250,000 per month, and to reduce fatigue, Bernal shifted a dozen-and-a-half officers from the street to the jail.

"Deputies were being held over working 16 hours just about every day," he said. They were also being called in on their days off and were getting injured, ill and fatigued.

"It just wasn't safe for the deputies, and if it's not safe for them, it's not safe for the inmates," said Bernal. But after the change, overtime dropped significantly.

While he's required to have a certain number of deputies working in the jail, Bernal said overtime accrued by deputies working on patrol is easier to control, because he has the discretion to reduce their number.

"Do I want to have more deputies on the streets? Yes, because you're my boss, and when I take deputies off the streets, I'm going to hear from all of you," he said to the audience, which he also repeatedly praised for caring enough to attend.

'A misnomer put out by the media'

Some residents worried help would not be there if they needed it during the early morning hours, when just five sheriff's cars are responsible for the entire county.

A Carmel Woods woman who encountered a burglar in her house around noon July 17 said she was "a little hot under the collar" after the man escaped while deputies were on their way to her house from other calls in Carmel Valley and Cachagua. "You can't get there in time," she said. "We are paying bloody hell taxes in this area, and we want service commensurate to our taxes."

She also said that, at age 76, she plans to get a gun and learn how to shoot it.

"I don't like guns, but I'm going to get one," she said.

Although no deputies are specifically assigned to patrol the Peninsula during the early morning hours, officers working out of the Salinas station are out on the road during their shifts and will respond to calls in Carmel, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and Big Sur when needed, Bernal said.

And in the more upscale coastal areas, he noted, "we get very few calls for service that are, say, life threatening, in the middle of the night."

Regardless, Bohner said, "It's rare that there's no one over here and someone has to respond from Salinas."

Bernal, meanwhile, said it was a "misnomer put out by the media that you have no coverage," and commented that a deputy could be "right around the corner or could be 45 minutes away" when someone needs help. He blamed news outlets for having an "agenda" in their reporting of the sheriff's cuts to patrols.

"If you have someone breaking into your house and you dial 911, and we can't respond," he added, officers from the closest police department would.

That reciprocation is common practice, with police from city departments responding to incidents in the sheriff's jurisdiction, and vice versa.

"We work very well with every police agency in Monterey County — whenever they need assistance, we're there," Bernal said.

He noted Carmel P.D. has "a square mile that they patrol, and I imagine that gets very boring. They were always happy to come out, and we were always happy to help."

But after then-city administrator Doug Schmitz sent an email to the sheriff several weeks ago advising him CPD officers could not pick up the slack and leave their own city uncovered while doing so, Bernal responded with an email that could be characterized as condescending and defensive, chastising Schmitz for his lack of understanding of how law enforcement works and pointing out the sheriff's office has assisted CPD on numerous occasions. Schmitz countered that the police department has helped the sheriff's office even more frequently.

"The lesson I learned was not responding in an email — I had no idea emails would ever hit the media," Bernal said.

He also said it was a "misconception that Carmel P.D. was responding to our calls in the county because we didn't have the staffing."

"We don't expect other departments to respond to calls," he added. "We have enough staff to respond to calls."

Soon to change

Bernal said he's working on hiring more people, including civilian positions to fulfill roles that are now being handled by deputies, and getting more recruits through the academy. Those efforts are under way, and as a result, he said, more officers should start patrolling next month.

"We're trying to hire good, qualified, hopefully local applicants," he said, though it's "hard to get locals to even want to be cops."

Nonetheless, he also explained his longer-range plans to add more deputies to the payroll by 2020, when a new, $82 million jail should be online. Overall, he wants to increase his staffing by 116 people across all the departments, including 50 more deputies to patrol the county and 24 more to work in the jail.

Asks for support

Doing so, of course, would require a significant increase to the department's $92 million budget, and he encouraged people to support his agency's efforts.

While Bernal initially recommended attendees email their county supervisor asking for more money for the sheriff's department, 5th District Monterey County Supervisor Dave Potter walked to the front of the room to advise them they don't need to, because he already agrees.

"We're aware of the problems," he said, adding that Bernal is the fifth sheriff he's worked with during his years as county supervisor. "But we don't run his department — we give him an allocation, and he spends it any way he wants."

Potter encouraged people to be patient while things improve — even if it takes longer than Bernal's first term as sheriff.

"Four-year terms don't necessarily create a successful operation," he said.

PacRep explores the secret life of 'Cats'

By CHRIS COUNTS

REVIVING THE Broadway hit that delved into the mysterious world of felines, PacRep Theatre presents "Cats." The musical opens Saturday, Nov. 21, at the Golden Bough Theatre.

Based on T.S. Eliot's "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats" and featuring music by Andrew Lloyd Webber, the musical earned a Tony Award for Best Musical in 1983 and now stands as the fourth longest-running show in Broadway history.

Directed and choreographed by Joe Niesen, the PacRep production of "Cats" stars John Daniel, Bri Slama, Jill Miller, Mikey Perdue, Katie Hazdovac, Nicole West, Scott McQuiston, Nico Abiera, Velvet Piini, Kitty Bloch and Pete Russell. Stephen Tosh serves as musical director.

"Cats" continues Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Dec. 20. There will be no performance on Thanksgiving — instead, a show has been added Wednesday, Nov. 25. All performances start at 7:30 p.m., except for Sunday matinees, which begin at 2 p.m.

The Golden Bough is located on Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth. Tickets are $8 to $42. "2-for-1" discounts are available on "Sweet Thursdays." Call (831) 622-0100.

Foundation hosts Annual Holiday Bazaar

THE NONPROFIT Carmel Foundation will present its yearly Holiday Bazaar in Diment Hall, located at Eighth and Lincoln, Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The sale will include books, plants, gift baskets, hand-knit items, jewelry, handcrafted cards, treats, and other gifts.

The foundation's needlecraft group, librarians, garden group and member artists will participate, and the senior organization's chefs will bake goodies for the sale. The library, meanwhile, "will have lots of very nice art, cookbooks, coffee-table books, biographies, and non-fiction beyond the usual mysteries and novels," and all paperbacks will sell for $1 apiece, while hardbacks will go for $2 each.

The Carmel Foundation serves members age 55 and older, providing them "an opportunity to live productive, enriching lives by offering a luncheon program, homebound meal delivery, free medical equipment loans, in-home services and respite grants, free lending library, Saturday movie, technology center, low-income housing, and more than 50 classes and activities each week."

Contemporary BIG BAY Views

Open Saturday & Sunday 1:00 - 3:00

861 Seapalm Ave, Pacific Grove

The reverse floorplan captures the BIG blue Bay views in the front and the golf course views in the back. There are 3 bedrooms and 1.5 baths downstairs with easy access to an entertainer's back yard and the oversize 2 car garage. Upstairs features an open floor plan, complete updated kitchen with Brazilian granite countertops, breakfast bar, and stainless appliances. The spacious dining area opens to the living room with dramatic open ceiling and fireplace adjacent to a convenient 1/2 bath. An oversize master suite with laundry closet and views out back across the golf course complete the picture inside. A Bay view deck with built in heaters in front and a semi-enclosed bbq porch in the back expand the living spaces. Very seldom anything on the market with so much to offer.

Offered at $1,925,000

LUXURY PORTFOLIO

When family is involved, the other side of the world seems a lot closer

I NEVER gave much thought to things I really want to do before my expiration date until I saw the movie, "The Bucket List," which presented some wish-fulfillment ideas to anyone keenly aware of his diminishing they did were the same three things I did when it occurred to me banks were no longer willing to offer me 30-year mortgages. I jumped out of an airplane that was flying along in perfectly good condition, drove a racecar, and got a tattoo.

Paris has always been on my bucket list. Haven't made it, though. Lisbon? Yes. Rome? Yes. Venice and Florence, definitely. Even a stopover in London. But never to the City of Light.

When my 20-year old granddaughter, Hannah Gordis, a student at UC Santa Barbara, had the opportunity to participate in the UC Education Abroad Program, I was thrilled for her. Four months in Paris studying French and French History, sharing an apartment with four other young ladies from UC schools. Does it get any better than that?

After she left in August, modern technology made it possible for Hannah to share her sojourn. I saw photos and videos she posted on Facebook within hours, or sometimes minutes, after she posted them.

Through her photos I toured the Louvre, Notre Dame, the Palace at Versailles and Chartres Cathedral. I followed her as she strolled the streets and went in and out of many charming shops and cafes. I was on board her boat as it glided down the Seine and sailed beneath the Pont Neuf.

During a week's break from classes she went to Budapest, Prague, Vienna, and Berlin, again sending back dozens of pictures taken with her iPhone — pictures that were remarkably clear and detailed. She wrote that St. Vitus Cathedral in Prague was more stunning than Chartres.

"Sorry, Chartres, you've been outdone," she posted.

And in the social media script of young people she wrote this about Prague:

"I'll be back for you #Prague #Czech Republic #I friggin' love you #cathedrals #castles #walls #canals."

Indeed, does it get any better than that? No, it doesn't, until Friday the 13th happened in Paris. Early details of the terror attack were sketchy. I heard reports that the attacks took place in the 10th and 11th arrondissements. I knew her apartment was in the 11th, but did not know how close it was to the stadium, concert hall, or any of the restaurants attacked. Funny how something happening more than 5,000 miles away can suddenly become very close. The feeling was like looking in one of those side-view mirrors that read: "Objects may be closer than they appear."

Again, social media came to the rescue as Hannah posted on Facebook that she was safe and secure. But there was much more to it than that. I'll let her tell it:

"My friends Emma, Cassidy, Danielle and I decided that we wanted to go to a bar and watch the France vs. Germany soccer match with everyone. It's something people get really into and they celebrate together. About an hour before the game started Emma said that we could get tickets to actually see the game.

I really wanted to but I'm currently locked in to the 'broke college kid' lifestyle, so we stuck with our original sports bar plan. Cassidy and Danielle came with us and we all headed to the Latin Quarter to an international bar I've been to once before.

Then Danielle got a phone call. I just watched as her eyes widened and her jaw drop and I immediately felt a pit in my stomach. She went outside so she could hear better. I kept my eye on her and when I noticed she was crying I went outside, too. That's when I found out what had just happened. We went back inside and the soccer game was changed to an emergency news broadcast: 'Attacks in Paris.'

Very soon after there was gunfire in a restaurant in the 10th Arrondissement and quickly a hostage situation developed at the Bataclan club in the 11th — which is where I live. I looked at the addresses of the attacks and one was on the street behind my apartment and the other was just a few blocks away.

I was in a different arrondissement and safe, but I don't think I've ever felt so scared in my life. We were getting different numbers of deaths, how many attackers, and I was very overwhelmed. My phone was buzzing nonstop and I'm sure I went way, way over my data allowance (sorry mom). All I could think was what if my friends are out there?"

Word came that the 11th Arrondissement was under lockdown, so Hannah and her friends couldn't get home. A young Frenchman who was with their party at the bar took the girls to his parents' home, where they were welcomed and given food and places to sleep. Hannah said that this kind of welcome sheltering took place all over Paris.

"It's terrifying being in this tragedy and the uncertainty of all the information doesn't help. However, after tragedy people come together. Everyone I know is standing with Paris. People across the globe are standing with Paris. I hope that I and everyone I know never have to experience this again, but I am glad I am here standing with Paris."

Naturally, I'm thankful that Hannah and her friends survived unscathed. I know she's determined not to let this horrendous incident negatively impact her remaining month in Paris. I can only echo her delight in standing with the people of Paris, and especially with the people who unselfishly offered her a safe harbor through a dark night.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A large tree limb located on private property broke away from the main body of a tree and partially landed on the rooftop of the residence on the same property on Vista south of Junipero at 0200 hours. Upon closer inspection of the tree limb, there appeared to be dry rot and live termite larvae located inside the broken portion of the tree limb. The resident (renter) stated he would contact his landlord regarding the possible removal of infected tree.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Doctor from CHOMP called to request welfare check of his patient, who was possibly suicidal. Contacted subject at the Crespi residence. Subject answered the door but refused to let police in. Subject would only answer basic questions and refused to provide identification. Subject did not meet requirements for 5150 and refused to go voluntarily. Subject refused to call the doctor back. The officer contacted doctor via telephone, and he stated the threats were vague and not specific. The officer attempted to contact the subject's mother, but the voicemail box was full.

Pacific Grove: License plate stolen from a car on Benito and replaced with another license plate. Replacement plate was taken from a similar vehicle stolen in Pacific Grove.

Pacific Grove: An unknown person stole a vehicle from Seaview.

Pacific Grove: Report of theft of hotel signage parts on Sunset.

Pacific Grove: Request to recover a reported stolen vehicle on Pacific Grove Lane. Vehicle was not stolen, just misplaced and recovered by the owner.

Carmel area: A 16-year-old male was taken into custody by the probation department and also cited during a probation search at his residence on Fawn Court.

Carmel area: Juvenile threatened to kill herself by suffocation. Juvenile was later transported via ambulance to nearby hospital for a mental evaluation.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A stolen vehicle was located via GPS at San Carlos and Seventh. Vehicle owner was contacted and picked up the vehicle. Personal items were held for safekeeping and later released to the owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person lost a wallet somewhere near the area of Nielsen's market at San Carlos and Seventh. He wished to make a report in case the wallet was found and turned over to the PD for safekeeping. A brief description of the wallet was provided.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male stated that while he was west-bound at the intersection of Guadalupe and Second, an unknown subject ran into the street and struck the front right corner of his vehicle. The driver stopped, got out of his vehicle and tried to talk with the subject, but the subject fled through the yards north-bound. There was no damage sustained to the vehicle, and dust was also undisturbed on the front right corner of the vehicle. An area check was conducted for the other party, but the subject was not located.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 26-year-old female was arrested at Mission and Sixth for forging business checks and cashing them. She was also found to have an outside warrant from Santa Clara County and was transferred to Monterey County Jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: An intoxicated subject was observed standing in front of a bar on Lincoln south of Ocean at 2234 hours. The cooperative subject was too intoxicated to care for himself. The intoxicated subject was released to a sober friend, and then they both got into a taxi and went home. The taxi driver called to confirm the subjects arrived safely at their residence.

Pacific Grove: Neighbor yelling at an exterminator and a citizen on Mermaid Avenue. Ongoing problem.

Pacific Grove: A wallet was left in the police department lobby. A controlled substance was found inside the wallet and was booked by an officer for destruction. The wallet was returned to the owner.

Pacific Grove: An unknown person stole a GPS device from a 21-foot boat near Asilomar.

Pacific Grove: Person A made contact with person B on Grove Acre Avenue in violation of a restraining order. He also left an empty beer can in the mailbox. Person B is undecided on whether or not to pursue a criminal complaint.

Pacific Grove: Female subject on Park Street was under the influence of alcohol and was unable to care for her safety.

Pebble Beach: A 56-year-old female reported that her boyfriend, age 58, pushed her and slapped her about the head while they were at a Cypress Drive location. She did not complain of any injuries or pain, and did not wish to press charges.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog running at large at Lincoln and First was brought to the station. Possible owner contacted. Follow-up: Animal control officer made an area check where the dog was found and located the dog sitter. Information obtained, and the dog was released to the owner's friend.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Local business on Ocean east of Lincoln found two pouches. Identification inside one of the pouches.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person reported an art gallery on San Carlos Street would not give them the last two paintings of 33 paintings on a consignment deal. Gallery was contacted and explained the last two paintings were sold on a payment plan, and the contract stated payment was due 30 days after the sale. At that time, they would mail the check. Person was advised. Any additional disagreements with the contract would be a civil issue. Both parties understood.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A citizen reported seeing a man walking his dog at Palou and Second without requirements that were placed on the dogs. Past incidents discussed with the citizen. Unable to locate the dog owner; however, contact was made via phone and regulations were discussed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person turned over a child's vest found on the beach at 13th Avenue.

Pacific Grove: Person on Junipero reported a domestic battery, with no injuries. Person was provided with domestic violence information. Other party, who was out of the area, was contacted via phone. Parties provided conflicting statements.

Pacific Grove: Officer dispatched to a vehicle burglary on Central Avenue. Owner left his vehicle doors unlocked and noticed someone went through his vehicle and took his property.

Carmel area: Dispatched to a Margarita Way residence for a welfare check of a female with a serious health condition, where a caregiver reported the patient issued non-specific intentions of suicide. The caregiver was also concerned about a gun in a nightstand. The woman denied any suicide intentions and the weapon, unloaded, was taken and secured by the husband on scene. Case closed.

Pebble Beach: Sawmill Gulch Road resident reported suspicious circumstances.

Carmel area: Hatton Road resident, a 65-year-old male, received a phone call from "Computer Tech," allowed remote access of a computer for a virus scan and provided credit card and driver's license information. This scam is common and never legitimate.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5

Carmel area: An elderly resident at a care facility on Carmel Rancho Boulevard reported the possible theft of money from her room.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Male was stopped on Junipero north of Sixth Avenue at 0136 hours for riding a bicycle without a light during darkness. The male claimed the bike was not his and that he found it abandoned in a parking lot in town. At the time, units were not able to verify if the bike was abandoned or not. Subject released; case filed with district attorney.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Non-injury accident reported in the business district of town on Dolores Street.

Pacific Grove: On the rec trail in the bushes, a deer carcass was found killed by a mountain lion.

Pacific Grove: Burglary from an unsecured garage on Pico. No leads at this time.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: During a test drive of a vehicle, the potential buyer left the sales rep at Sixth and Lincoln and drove off with the vehicle. Potential buyer, a 42-year-old transient, later returned the vehicle to the dealership. Owner requested prosecution for vehicle theft, a felony. The suspect was arrested and transferred to Monterey County Jail.

Pacific Grove: Resident on 18th Street was confronted by a friend's boyfriend while at home. The two began to fight, and the boyfriend left the scene.

Sixth reported losing a cell phone.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Purse found on Dolores south of Ocean. Owner contacted and will pick up at station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a verbal domestic with a 911 hang up on Lincoln north of Eighth. All parties were contacted, and the husband was found to have picked up his wife and placed her in an unwanted bear hug and removed the wife's cell phone from her hands while she called 911. The husband, a 33-year-old male, was arrested and taken to county jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Water main break on Torres south of Fourth.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person at Del Mar turned in credit card found on the beach. Unable to contact owners.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female had her hair pulled by another female in a bar fight on Lincoln south of Ocean. Victim desirous of charges.

Carmel area: Neighbors reported a suspicious male sleeping in an unknown vehicle, which was parked on their street on Pine Hills Drive. The male was contacted by sheriff's deputies and determined to be a parolee at large. The 37-year-old male was arrested and transported to the local jail.

Carmel area: Yankee Point Drive resident believed he saw a wanted suspect near his residence.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 8

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman believed she hit a parked vehicle in a private parking lot at Dolores and Seventh. She provided her information in case an involved party reported damage.

Pacific Grove: Melrose Place resident believes her neighbor is harassing her. The resident also said her own children are addicted to meth and have been told not to return to her house. She then said her neighbor installed surveillance cameras around his house and refuses to speak with her, and she believes he is rude and is trying to intimidate her. He also frequently drives by in his work vehicle and stares at her, and complains about her smoking out front and says the smoke goes into his infant's bedroom. The resident believed her neighbor's actions are inappropriate and wants them documented.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Wallet found at a store on San Carlos south of Ocean and was picked up by the officer and brought to the station for safekeeping.

Carmel area: An unknown perpetrator damaged the fuel nozzle on a gas pump at a station on Carmel Center Place.

Pacific Grove: Female reported that a male battered her boyfriend. Both parties were contacted. Matter was unfounded.

Trustee Sale No.: 00000005294376 Title Order No.: 8557359 FHA/VA/PMI No.: NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST, DATED 01/30/2009. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. BARRETT DAFFIN FRAPPIER TREDER & WEISS, LLP, as duly appointed Trustee under and pursuant to Deed of Trust Recorded on 02/09/2009 as Instrument No. 2009007326 of official records in the office of the County Recorder of MONTEREY County, State of CALIFORNIA. EXECUTED BY: JOHN J D'ATTILIO, MD AND MARY C. D'ATTILIO AS TRUSTEE(S) FOR THE JOHN J. AND MARY C. D'ATTILIO TRUST DATED JANUARY 21, 2005, WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH, CASHIER'S CHECK/CASH EQUIVALENT or other form of payment authorized by California Civil Code 2924h(b), (payable at time of sale in lawful money of the United States). DATE OF SALE: 12/15/2015 TIME OF SALE: 10:00 AM PLACE OF SALE: AT THE MAIN ENTRANCE TO THE COUNTY ADMINISTRATION BUILDING AT 168 W. ALISAL STREET, SALINAS, CA. STREET ADDRESS and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 25633 SHAFTER WAY, CARMEL, CALIFORNIA 93923 APN#: 009-241-002-000 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said note(s), advances, under the terms of said Deed of Trust, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is $889,140.32. The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site www.nationwideposting.com for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case 00000005294376. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
