Cemetery for veterans opens at Fort Ord

By KELLY NIX

AFTER MORE than a two-decade quest to create a cemetery for local military veterans and their families, the first phase of the Central Coast Veterans Cemetery at Fort Ord opened Tuesday.

The completed portion of the cemetery includes 5,000 columbaria niches on 17 acres. By the time it's finished, the cemetery will provide at least 11,500 gravesites, over the next 20 years, including in-ground plots.

Columbaria like these and gravesites at the newly opened Central Coast Veterans Cemetery on Fort Ord will hold the remains of more than 5,000 people who served in the military.

Congressional candidate Jimmy Panetta, who helped reinvigorate the drive to build the graveyard, said that commemorating the opening of the veterans' cemetery is also acknowledgment of the obligation the nation has to the men and women who served it.

"For too long, this cemetery was just a vision that was possessed by only a few veterans and their family members," said Panetta, who was in the United States Navy Reserves for eight years and served in Afghanistan in support of Operation Enduring Freedom. "Fortunately, those veterans utilized a quality that many of them learned through their training right here on the Former Fort Ord — that is, they never gave up."

Casey Lucius, a former Naval Postgraduate School professor and Navy veteran who ran an intelligence unit on the USS John C. Stennis in the Persian Gulf and is running against Panetta for the 20th Congressional District seat, also attended Tuesday's ceremony.

"It was a touching event," said Lucius, who is on the Fort Ord Reuse Authority board. "The first person who was interred was U.S. Army Maj. William Williams, who is one of the veterans who wanted to

First new house proposed with Malpasos water

By MARY SCHLEY

THE PLANNING commission this week reviewed the first application for a new home that can be built due to the water credits former Mayor Clint Eastwood is selling after transferring the old Odello artichoke fields to the Big Sur Land Trust for a flood-control project.

"As a result of the Malpasos water allocation, this is one of a number of applications you'll see in the coming months," architect Adam Jeselnick told the commission at its Oct. 12 meeting, when members considered his plans for a 2,100-square-foot house to be built on a vacant, 4,000-square-foot lot at the northeast corner of Ninth and Monte Verde.

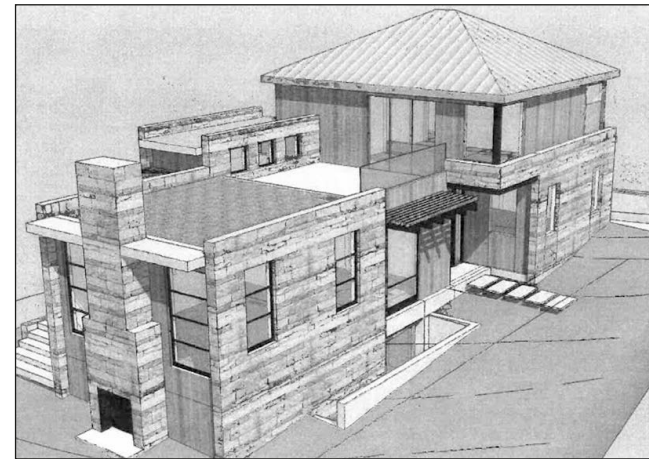

New water connections have been virtually impossible to obtain since the late 1980s because of political and environmental disputes over the Monterey Peninsula's water supply. Some cities have small allocations of water they are saving for important municipal projects, but the last time a residential property owner obtained a new hookup in the City of Carmel was in July 2000, according to Gabriela Ayala, a conservation specialist for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. At that time, .199 acre-feet of the city's allocation went for a new home at Carmelo and Second.

Most new users

But now, Eastwood is selling 82 acre-feet of water to property owners in the City of Carmel and in the Carmel River Watershed for $24,000 per tenth of an acre-foot, and so far, Ayala said, 42 people have recorded new allocations with the district, for a total of 7.48 acre-feet. Roughly 85 percent are within the city limits.

And of those, seven have made it through the planning process to obtain building and water permits, for a total of Water purchased from Clint Eastwood will make building a house at Monte Verde and Ninth a reality, though planning commissioners want a different design from architect Adam Jeselnick than this one.

Expensive, deadly Soberanes Fire is finally out

By MARY SCHLEY

AFTER NEARLY three months and $200 million, the Soberanes Fire is finally fully contained at 132,127 acres, representatives of Los Padres National Forest and the Central Coast Incident Management Team announced Wednesday night. Sparked by an illegal campfire in Garrapata State Park the morning of July 22, the blaze destroyed 57 homes and several other buildings in Palo Colorado Canyon, claimed the life of a bulldozer operator, and led to at least a dozen other serious injuries to firefighters, including the man who had to be airlifted after the water tanker he was driving rolled down a steep embankment.

Firefighting bulldozers damage native sites

By CHRIS COUNTS

BESIDES DESTROYING homes, vegetation and wildlife, wildfires also are capable of wreaking havoc on important Native American sites — but not because of their intense heat and flames, archaeologist Gary Breschini told The Pine Cone.

"The damage to archaeological sites doesn't come so much from fire, but from bulldozers," said Breschini, who will present a talk Thursday, Oct. 20, at the Carmel Valley History Center.

The impact of the Soberanes Fire on local archeological sites is among the topics he plans to discuss.

Specifically, Breschini noted that at least four local sites were disturbed by bulldozers during the recent blaze, which was started July 22 by an illegal campfire. The fire has burned more than 132,000 acres, destroyed 57 homes and caused one fatality. It is now fully contained.

Thankfully, while the sites were damaged, none were destroyed, the archaeologist explained.

At the Santa Lucia Preserve, 47 sites were flagged so firefighters and heavy equipment operators would know they

See DAMAGE page 17A

Investigators still don't know who started it, though they continue to pursue leads.

Even though the fire is now contained, it is not fully extinguished, and smoke plumes and hot spots will keep burning within the contained area until winter rains saturate it, officials speculated.

"The public should be aware that smoldering areas within the interior will continue to put up smoke," they said. "The fire will be determined completely controlled after a season-ending rain event occurs in the next two months."

With the fire burning in U.S. Forest Service and Cal Fire jurisdictions, federal and state agencies collaborated on trying to stop it from spreading. At the height of the fire, as it destroyed homes and threatened more in Carmel Highlands, Carmel Valley, Cachagua and Big Sur — leading to several evacuations — more than 5,000 firefighters from state, county and city fire departments, along with USFS fire crews, state prison inmate crews, members of the National Guard and other forces, came to help. Fire camps were set up in Toro Park, at Carmel Middle School, in Andrew Molera

TEACHER FILES SUIT, ALLEGES RACIST HISPANIC COWORKERS TARGETED WHITE COLLEAGUE

By KELLY NIX

A PRESCHOOL teacher has filed suit against the Monterey County Office of Education alleging she was retaliated against because she was friends with a white, Mormon employee who was the subject of ongoing racism and religious bigotry by her Hispanic coworkers.

In a complaint filed Oct. 5, Gladys Coria, who taught at Martin Luther King Center in Salinas, alleges that in 2010 when she realized that the school's director, Esther Hobbs, had become the object of contempt from other employees, she stepped in to defend Hobbs — whom she characterizes in the lawsuit as "reserved, white and a devout Mormon."

"Ms. Hobbs became an easy and frequent target for ridicule from the otherwise Hispanic staff, which engaged in daily racial and religious slurs toward Ms. Hobbs," according to the complaint. "Ms. Coria felt it was her duty as a Christian to defend her coworker."

Among the things the Hispanic teachers said about Hobbs, is, "You are not going to like [Hobbs]" ... "she is white," she is "white and racist," and, "The new employee is Mormon and Mormons are bad people," according to Coria's lawsuit, which says Hobbs was the only white employee at the school when she was hired in 2010.

The school's family services advocate "regularly remarked that all the MLK employees were Mexican, and that they shouldn't have a white woman as their boss," according to the 26-page complaint, filed for Coria by Sacramento attorney Lawrence A. Bohm.

However, Coria said that when she reported the "daily"

Double doodles

SHE REALLY didn't think she had time for a dog, because she was focused on her family, including caring for her mother. Her heart and her schedule were full – which is usually when more shows up.

That's when she received an email about a pair of Labradoodles from Fresno, year-old brothers, one black and one blond, in need of a loving home. A friend said, "If you've ever considered getting one, now's the time. You rarely find Labradoodles in a shelter – they're too popular."

But this wasn't one Labradoodle; it was two doodles.

And the shelter wasn't willing to split up the baby brothers. She was taken with the dogs, but she was torn. She wasn't sure she wanted one, let alone two. Then she got an idea.

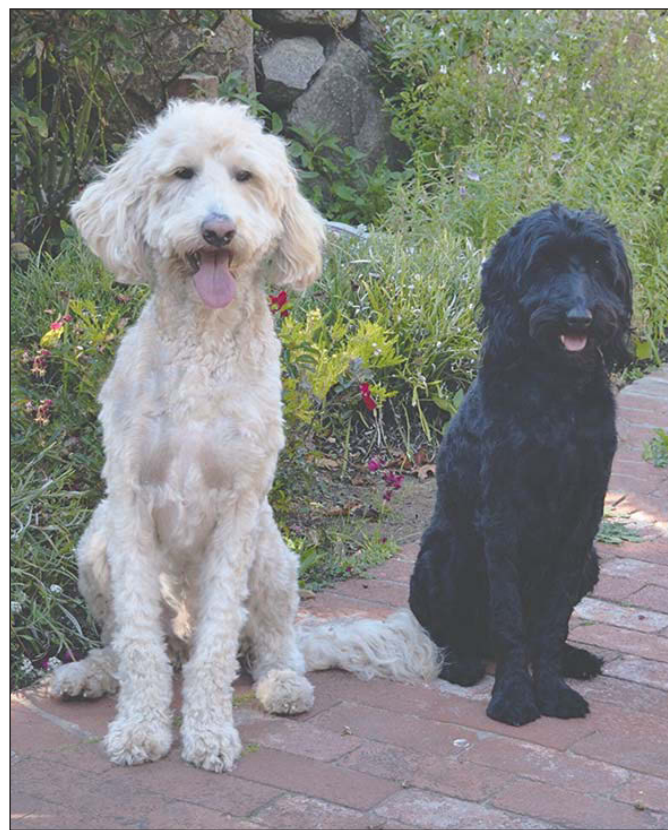

"I called my next-door neighbor to see if she wanted a Labradoodle," she said. "My friend said it was funny, because her family had just been talking about getting one. She wanted black, and I wanted blond." They had their doodle deal.

The Carmel Valley neighbors drove together to Fresno to fetch their dogs. There, they met the sweet-tempered Walter, who is blond, and his feistier Truman, whom the neighbors renamed Matisse.

"We built a gate in the fence between our homes, so the brothers can hang out in one yard or run back and forth," said Walter's person. "We take care of Matisse when his family travels, and they do the same for us."

Walter is still a sweet, loving dog, who closely follows his person around but seems to be bonded to both families. Both dogs have been to the beach with their own families, but not yet together.

"It's like having two wonderful dogs but only having to care for one," said Walter's person. "They have enriched our lives so much, and I didn't have to do anything but change my mind."

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Psychic reader demands payment

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Police officer found an unattended suitcase in the roadway at San Antonio and 13th. Police took custody of the suitcase as found property.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 24-year-old female was stopped on Mission south of Seventh for a traffic violation and had a $10,000 warrant for driving on a suspended license resulting from DUI. Transferred to county jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Wallet lost in the downtown area near Ocean and San Carlos.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Citizen turned in a dog for safekeeping. Dog was returned to its owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject arrested for shoplifting at San Carlos and Ocean, and released after paying the merchant.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Parked vehicle was towed from the Vista Lobos lot for displaying false tabs.

Pacific Grove: An unknown person stole items from a vehicle on Crocker.

Pacific Grove: Officer contacted a subject on Ocean View Boulevard and found he had contraband on his person. Property was confiscated for destruction, and the subject was released from the scene.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle check was conducted on Bentley Street for noise violations. Driver of the vehicle was on parole. Vehicle search uncovered heroin and heroin paraphernalia. Driver arrested, booked, and released on notice to appear. Nothing further.

Pebble Beach: Road-rage incident led to battery on a person on 17 Mile Drive. A 62-year-old male was cited and released at the scene.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Lost a bracelet downtown on Tuesday.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two credit cards were left at a local establishment at Ocean and Lincoln. One person was contacted and will pick up the card. No contact information on the second card. Card will be destroyed.

Nearly $240K in contracts signed for planning, PR, project management

By MARY SCHLEY

THE PLANNING department is still understaffed, building official Joe Headley retired earlier than expected, someone needs to oversee maintenance of the shoreline, someone else needs to handle city hall's PR, and the project manager left — all of which led city administrator Chip Rerig to hire outside contractors to keep projects and other city business on track. At their Oct. 4 meeting, council members authorized Rerig to sign $236,920 in contracts for various services.

The agreements include $49,920 to Michael Baker International, Inc. and $66,500 to Golden State Planning and Environmental Consulting Services for planning services; $37,400 to Wildan Engineering for building inspection and review services; $9,500 for a year's worth of public information services from Lewis Leader; $28,600 to David Shonman to help implement the projects he recommended for shoreline maintenance; and $45,000 to Eagle Project Management LLC for project and construction management.

Contract details

Budget and contracts director Sharon Friedrichsen explained in her report that the city routinely uses outside contractors when no one is available in-house to do a job.

While the positions of associate planner and senior planner were funded in the budget, they're still vacant, so contract planners from two firms have been helping out.

She recommended the contracts that expired Sept. 30 be extended so there's no gap in processing planning applications and permits while recruitment is underway. Michael Baker provides one planner three days a week, while Golden State provides one for four days a week.

After Headley's "unanticipated retirement," and the resulting immediate need to find someone else to do the job, the city hired Wildan Engineering on Aug. 8 to "perform plan checks and inspections, review discretionary applications for compliance with construction codes, and compile monthly reports to the state and other governmental agencies," Friedrichsen continued. The initial contract was for $23,500, and she recommended extending it for three more months to coincide with the recruitment for a new building official.

For public information services, which former journalist Lewis Leader has been providing since ex-city administrator Jason Stilwell hired him in 2013, Friedrichsen recommended signing another contract with him for "development and dissemination of press releases, public notices and flyers, among other tasks." His hourly rate is $125, and his previous contract was amended in June 2015 to not exceed $38,980.

The city chose Leader again after soliciting proposals for PIO services, and five people submitted bids with hourly rates ranging from $80 to $225, according to Friedrichsen. The proposals were so diverse that she said the city plans to contract with more than one, including Maria Sutherland, who got a $7,000 contract for "the development of public information and outreach materials pertaining to community beautification, natural resource protection/preservation and other infrastructure improvement projects; development of graphics and layout for annual reports and/or brochures; and technical assistance on advising city on content layout and design pertaining to the development of a new website." Her billing rate is $80 per hour.

Steakhouse OK'd despite concerns about 'hamburgers in paper'

By MARY SCHLEY

IN THE latest twist for the modern-style former bank building at Dolores and Seventh, the planning commission decided Wednesday night that it can become a steakhouse. After fielding a couple of other proposals, including a fresh market and a different restaurant concept — and having those rejected by the city council for various reasons — owners Fred Kern and Jeff Peterson submitted a new plan, which received approval by a 4-1 vote Oct. 12.

The Seventh & Dolores Steakhouse would be open from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, offering appetizers, salads, prime steaks and chops, poultry, pasta and seafood, as well as desserts and side dishes. It would have 100 seats inside, including seven at a wine bar and seven at a cheese counter, and 42 outside. The necessary water credits to accommodate that many diners are being acquired from Clint Eastwood's Malpas Water Co.

Customers would order from iPads or from menus provided at the tables and the two bars. No walk-up ordering at counters or ready-to-go food would be offered, and guests would pay after they've eaten — factors that put the proposal more in line with the city's definition of a full-line restaurant.

Peterson and Kern also asked that the restaurant be allowed to close for four private events a year during the AT&T Pebble Beach golf tournament, the Pebble Beach Food & Wine festival, Concours Week and the Carmel film festival.

Planning director Marc Wiener recommended approval and reiterated some of the points the city council made when it considered the previous application in August and

DRAWING/ADAM JESEINICK

A floorplan for the Seventh & Dolores Steakhouse, which was approved Wednesday, calls for 100 interior seats and 42 outside. An opponent alleged the outdoor area would be used by people eating fast food.

Council OKs four-way stop at San Carlos and First

Renewed demands for similar at Mission and Eighth

By MARY SCHLEY

A GROUP of parents and kids reiterated their requests for a four-way stop at the busy intersection of Mission and Eighth last week, when the council OK'd new stop signs at San Carlos and First.

Considering that approval followed a request from a single letter writer, former councilwoman Victoria Beach asked the council to take into consideration the many more emails and drawings submitted by adults and children asking for a similar change at Mission and Eighth.

"You now have 20 letters and some very cute drawings — one of them shows a flat kid, I think it was done by a 2-year-old," she said at the Oct. 4 meeting. "There's been a lot done on this, probably much more than at that other intersection," and she suggested it be next on the list.

The new four-way stop at San Carlos and First, where only a yield sign had existed on San Carlos before, was approved after resident Matt Little Jr. complained in May about increased traffic through the intersection as more people use it as a way into and out of town, especially during morning and afternoon hours when nearby Stevenson Lower School is in session.

Little also described a crash there that totaled both vehicles. "Clearly, the current situation allows for drivers to go faster than neighborhood conditions with small streets should allow," he wrote.

According to the report submitted to the council by Police Chief Mike Calhoun and Cmdr. Paul Tomasi, the wreck "was the result of neither driver having a clear view of oncoming traffic, and also neither being required to stop at the intersection." They said three collisions have occurred there during the past six years, with two taking place in the past six months, one of them resulting in injuries.

Beverly Borgman, who lives outside the city but drives through that area often, wrote to complain that shrubbery at the northwest corner made it difficult to see through the intersection.

"Yielding is of little use if the southbound driver cannot see who or what is heading east on First," she noted, suggesting the city or the property owner trim the vegetation so drivers can see each other.

The traffic safety committee comprising Calhoun, public works director Rob Mullane and planning director Marc Wiener discussed the potential four-way stop at a July 20 meeting, and at last Tuesday's council meeting, Calhoun and Tomasi recommended adding the stop signs to "increase both pedestrian and motorist safety."

Council members agreed. The last time the council approved new stop signs was in October 2013, at Dolores and Ninth.

Kampe declines to answer chamber's questions about issues

By KELLY NIX

AMID CRITICISM from his challenger, Pacific Grove Mayor Bill Kampe this week defended his refusal to answer a series of questions on key city issues that the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce said were intended to offer voters a snapshot of each of the eight city council candidates ahead of the Nov. 8 election.

The P.G. chamber crafted seven questions and asked the six candidates for city council and two for mayor, including Kampe, to respond last week with brief answers. All of them answered the questions except Kampe, who is facing off against Dan Miller in the Nov. 8 election.

Miller, a city councilman, criticized Kampe's decision to not respond to the questions.

"It makes me wonder what he's hiding," Miller told The Pine Cone. "How do you vote for someone who is unwilling to tell you how he stands?"

The questionnaire asked, among other things, the candidates' positions on a proposed admissions tax, parking meters, short-term rentals, California American Water's proposed water project, and raising the city's business license and transient occupancy taxes.

While all of those topics have been discussed at length at Pacific Grove City Council meetings — and Kampe has taken a stance on many of them — Kampe told The Pine Cone this week that he opted not to respond because he viewed the questions "as an especially narrow attempt to lobby" for the chamber's "interests."

"I consider my superseding allegiance to the citizens and City of Pacific Grove," he said. "I have declined to fill out questionnaires from a number of organizations that have presented litmus-test questions for their own narrow interests or requests for pledges of allegiance to the goals of the organization. I believe that creates a conflict of interest."

Like Miller, city council candidate Jenny McAdams was also critical of Kampe's decision not to fill out the questionnaire.

"Sure, some topics are controversial, and not everyone is going to agree with your viewpoints, but to not provide any answers is a disservice to me as a voter, the chamber, and Pacific Grove residents," McAdams said in a letter to The Pine Cone.

However, Kampe said he's filled out questionnaires for other organizations and received their endorsements, including the Monterey Bay Action Committee (hospitality and business), Monterey County Association of Realtors, and Monterey County Democrats.

"For these organizations, the questions were very different," and included queries such as "Why are you running? What makes you qualified? What have you achieved? What are your priorities for the future?" Kampe said.

Furthermore, Kampe said that while he's been "very candid" with the public "on every issue that has come before the council,"

Lucius threatened on Twitter, signs defaced

By KELLY NIX

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE
Casey Lucius vowed this week not be intimidated after vandals wrote sexist and anti-Semitic language on two large campaign signs and someone on Twitter threatened to assault her.

Sometime in the past two weeks, vandals in Hollister targeted a 4-foot-by-8-foot Casey Lucius for Congress sign by spray-painting breasts and male genitalia and the word "whore." Lucius, a Republican, is running against Democrat Jimmy Panetta for the seat to be vacated by longtime Congressman Sam Farr.

On an identical campaign sign in Santa Cruz — where Lucius said other signs have been vandalized — someone used a black ink pen to write an Adolf Hitler-style mustache, an eye patch and a swastika on her photograph. The vandals also split the sign in two.

"I do want to have a fair shake and I also want to be treated respectfully," Lucius told The Pine Cone Tuesday. "There are certain things that women have to put up with that men don't. Nobody is putting 'whore' on Jimmy's signs. It's just unfortunate that women are treated differently."

More disturbing, though, are threats Lucius received from a Twitter user who on Oct. 2 sent her three private messages via the social media site.

The messages "generally talked about raping me," she said. "What it said was, 'Muslim men would like to rape girls,' like me."

A fake user

Lucius did not respond to the Twitter user — who created an account using a false name — but reported the messages to the Pacific Grove Police Department.

"There is an investigation into the case that you are referring to, but like all open investigations, the police department respectfully declines to comment," PGPD Cmdr. Rory Lakind told The Pine Cone.

Lucius, who lives in Pacific Grove and is a city councilwoman there, said officers told her they would work with Twitter to try to track down the suspect's IP address.

Lucius said she's also received hateful comments on that site and Facebook. And her car was keyed from front to back, which Lucius said she suspects is related to her campaign, and not a random act, because her vehicle has Casey for Congress magnets.

"The signs are really unfortunate because that is a public display," she said. "But it's all of these other things behind the scenes that people don't realize. I quit my job to run for office and I believe this is an important race and there are issues to solve in this district. Then to get this kind of pushback ... it is surprising and disappointing."

In a press release regarding her signs being defaced, Lucius said "The bullying, sexism, and vandalism tactics being played out on the national level for president have come here to our local Congressional race on the Central Coast."

She called on her supporters to "remain professional and civil in this election" and asked her opponent to condemn the acts.

On Tuesday afternoon, Panetta did that, saying the vandalism to Lucius' signs and the threats against her have no place in the campaign.

"As a prosecutor, this is a crime and people should be prosecuted and arrested," said Panetta, who added that he also has had campaign signs taken down. "It is too bad people will stoop to those types of messages online."

Ansel Adams' son to speak at library

THE SON of legendary photographer Ansel Adams will speak about his late father at the Pacific Grove Public Library next week.

The Oct. 21 event, "Ansel Adams: a Son's Perspective," is part of This Land is Our Land, a three-month celebration of John Muir and the centennial of the National Parks Service, according to the P.G. library.

"I'm proud of my dad, and I can give a little bit of a twist to his experiences,"

Adams said in a press release. "I'm proud to show him off."

Ansel Adams lived on the Monterey Peninsula from 1962 to 1984, the year of his death.

The event is 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the P.G. Library, 550 Central Ave. Doors open at 5:20 p.m. It is free for Friends of the Pacific Grove Library members. There is a suggested donation of $10. For information, call the library at (831) 648-5762 or go to <http://ourlandpg.weebly.com>.

Stevenson named National Blue Ribbon School

STEVENSON SCHOOL in Del Monte Forest has been named a 2016 National Blue Ribbon School

Stevenson, according to a press release from the school, is one among 279 public and 50 private schools receiving this honor. United States Secretary of Education, John B. King, Jr., recently made the announcement that Stevenson School was among the schools being honored.

"At Stevenson, we believe that how we teach is equally as important as what we teach," Molly Bozzo, head of the elementary and middle divisions, said in a press release. "For example, our teachers work together to consider each student's strengths and learning needs to design meaningful work that discovers what students understand. This award recognizes the commitment of our entire staff and faculty to their craft and to their students, and we are honored to be among the recipients."

Schools are nominated for the award by the state department of education, and then complete a comprehensive application about school practices.

State insurance chief to speak at C.V. forum

WITH THE Soberanes Fire just now contained, and with winter storms looming, fire and flood insurance are hot topics for many local homeowners, and to help them better understand the issues they are facing, the Carmel Valley Association has invited California Insurance Commissioner Dave Jones to a public forum Sunday, Oct. 16, in Del Mesa Carmel's Redwood Room.

Jones, who regulates the nation's largest insurance market, will discuss local insurance issues and take questions from the audience.

Co-hosted by the Fire Safe Council for Monterey County, the free event starts at 2 p.m. The retirement community's meeting room is located at 500 Del Mesa Carmel, which is just off Carmel Valley Road.

Sunset presents dance, unveils historical displays

A GROUNDBREAKING dancer and choreographer who is celebrating the 50th anniversary of her professional debut will help Sunset Center mark Carmel's centennial Friday, Oct. 14, when the Twyla Tharp Dance Company, led by its namesake, takes the stage at 8 p.m. A reception with sparkling wine and chocolates precedes the show in the theater's lobby.

This past week, eight of Tharp's dancers visited students at three North Monterey County Unified School District elementary schools as part of Sunset Center's Classroom Connection program — and showed off a few dance moves.

Over the past 50 years, Tharp has choreographed more than 160 works, 129 dances, 12 television specials, four Broadway shows, six Hollywood movies and four full-length ballets. Among her many honors are two Emmy Awards and a Tony Award.

Besides the dance performance and reception, Friday's festivities also include the opening of two historical photo exhibits arranged by the Carmel Centennial Committee and Carmel Heritage Society. A reception starts at 5 p.m. Tickets are $59 to $79. Call (831) 620-2048.

Detective to get new car

DETECTIVE JEFF Watkins will get some new wheels. Last week, the city council decided to replace the 2006 Ford Fusion Carmel P.D. detectives have used since 2009 with a brand new Dodge, at an estimated cost of $24,995.

The funds were allocated in the 2016/2017 budget, and on Oct. 4, the council voted to accept the lowest of three bids to replace the Ford, which has 85,000 miles on it and "is no longer considered a reliable vehicle for use as an investigation vehicle." MY Dodge submitted the winning bid, according to the report submitted by Police Chief Mike Calhoun and Cmdr. Paul Tomasi.

PacRep honors writer, poet with tributes at Forest Theater

TO MARK Carmel's centennial — and celebrate the legacies of two of its most famous early residents — PacRep Theatre will host tributes this weekend to writer Jack London and poet Robinson Jeffers at Forest Theater.

Actor Taelen Thomas, actress Dixie Dixon and musician Steve Mortensen will team up Saturday, Oct. 15, to present "Jack London & Friends Celebrate Life in Carmel in 1910."

And the following afternoon, Sunday, Oct. 16, Thomas, Mortensen, actress Joyce Henderson, actor Stephen Moorer, poet Elliot Ruchowitz and fiddler John Weed will stage "A Celebration of Robinson Jeffers in Carmel."

Both show start at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10. The Forest Theatre is located on Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth. Call (831) 622-0100.

Hearing test is an audiometric test to determine amplification needs only and is not a medical diagnosis. Audiometric hearing tests, demonstrations and hearing aid consultations are always free. The benefits of hearing aids vary by type and degree of hearing loss, noise, environment, accuracy of hearing evaluation and proper fit. Actual products may differ from illustrations depicted. Our trained hearing professional will assess hearing loss, ear size, texture and shape, medical conditions, and lifestyle to determine if this product is the right choice. Individual needs, experiences and outcomes may vary.

Sidewalks to get much-needed bath

WITH THE Monterey Peninsula's perennial drought putting the kibosh on power washing, the city's sidewalks have gotten grubby over the months, especially with little rain since early this year.

In preparation for its centennial celebrations this month, however, the city will have a contractor steam clean parts of downtown next week.

According to public works superintendent Rob Culver, the contractor will use water from the tank that collects from an underground spring near the beach — not drinking water — to steam clean sidewalks on both sides of Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Monte Verde streets, and on both sides of San Carlos Street between Fifth and Eighth avenues. The water will be vacuumed up so it doesn't get into the storm-drain system, since letting it run down the gutters and drains would violate environmental laws protecting Carmel Bay.

The cleaning is scheduled to begin Oct. 18 and is expected to take two or three days.

Monterey Fire Safety Fair & Open House

THE MONTEREY Fire Department will host a Safety Fair and Open House next weekend featuring educational safety exhibits, live auto extrication and urban search and rescue demonstrations and other activities.

The Oct. 22 event from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. will be at the Monterey Fire Station No. 1, 600 Pacific Street in Monterey. Hot dogs, snacks and refreshments will be served at the family event.

The day offers "a great opportunity to get to know your fire department, learn important safety information, and enjoy free refreshments and fun," the department said. For information call (831) 646-3900.

.446 acre-feet. She said all of those projects have involved residential remodels and expansions.

Next up?

The modern-style house Jeselnick designed for Michael and Frances Henkel would have a 1,010-square-foot first floor, a 450-square-foot second floor, a 400-square-foot basement and a 240-square-foot attached garage, according to planner Ashley Hobson's report. The second story would be situated toward the center of the lot "and therefore is not anticipated to create any significant view or privacy impacts to the adjacent neighbors," she said, while a 200-square-foot rooftop deck over the first story wouldn't impact the neighbors to the east and north, because it would be shielded by other parts of the house.

The lot contains 11 trees: a eucalyptus, a cypress and nine oaks. The eucalyptus would be cut down to make way for the new home.

"When it came to siting this residence and the design, we were very cognizant of the trees on the site and the desire to protect those trees," Jeselnick said. He also noted that most of the houses on that block are situated on the eastern portions of their lots, as the Henkels' would be.

Further, Jeselnick said he designed the home to capitalize on the views while minimizing impacts on the neighbors.

Hobson recommended the planning commission accept the basic design of the house, which would be brought back later for final review of the building materials and other details.

Neighbors disagree

Several nearby homeowners objected, saying the house, which would measure 24 feet tall at the rear of the lot, would be too large and would block out their light and views.

Carl Iverson, who owns a small historic home across the street, has not met his future neighbors and said their design "is not friendly to where we live."

"I think it should be revised," he said.

Nancy Strom said the house would create "a skyscraper effect."

"We're going to have a massive, massive house next to ours," she said. "To have a 24-foot-tall structure adjacent to our house is going to completely block all of our southern light." She also worried the construction could hurt the large cypress tree on the property line.

Southern neighbor Maria Matlock said the report didn't address possible impacts on her property.

"I'm concerned about the height," she said.

An eastern neighbor, Pat Corrigan, said he has been building homes for a quarter century, including a half-dozen in the city, and has always made a point of talking to the neighbors before going to the planning commission.

"When you look out the windows looking to the west, all you're going to see is that second-story mass up there," he said. "They pushed everything to that side of the lot. It's going to change everything."

Commissioner Keith Paterson said he felt the house was wrong for the lot and called the second story "somewhat dubious." He also said a modern house wouldn't really fit in with the neighborhood.

Commissioner Julie Wendt, appointed to the commission this month to replace Ian Martin, suggested the house be designed to step down the natural slope of the lot.

"I certainly want the neighbors to know we're receptive to all the feedback," Jeselnick said. "The clients have had a home in Carmel for many years, so they understand and respect the character of the village."

In contrast to Paterson, commissioner Michael LePage said he didn't oppose the idea of having a modern-style home there, because he favors architectural diversity.

"We do have contemporary architecture mixed in with many other areas of older architecture," LePage said. "But I do think this house has some significant impacts on the [cypress] tree and mass along Ninth Avenue."

He made a motion to continue the application so Jeselnick can return with a revised design that won't affect the neighbors as much, and the rest of the commission agreed.

LePage also recommended Jeselnick talk to them about any changes he makes.

State Park in Big Sur, at Rana Creek in Carmel Valley and in Greenfield to accommodate them, and hordes of engines, along with dozers, helicopters, water tenders and air tankers were used throughout.

The intensive effort not only reportedly cost $200 million, it now may be the most expensive wildfire in U.S. history.

Parks still closed

On the night of Oct. 12, fire officials said the blaze had finally topped out at 94,933 acres burned in Los Padres National Forest and 37,194 acres burned in Cal Fire's jurisdiction.

"The fire is now at 100 percent containment and will move into patrol status. Crews continue to work toward fully controlling the fire by mopping up and extinguishing hot spots," they said in an update Thursday morning. "Smoldering areas within the interior will continue to put up smoke."

Meanwhile, crews tasked with repairing firebreaks cut by bulldozers and hand crews have repaired about 80 percent of the line, with 297 miles out of 384 miles completed. Work in the Arroyo Seco area is expected to be done by early next week, they said.

Fire camps at Andrew Molera in Big Sur and Rana Creek in Carmel Valley have been dismantled and moved to King City, while the Incident Command Post at Toro Park is set to begin breakdown and relocation next week.

The Monterey Ranger District of Los Padres National Forest remains closed to public access, as do all trails in the Ventana and Silver Creek wilderness areas. But Plaskett Creek and Kirk Creek campgrounds, Pfeiffer Beach, Sand Dollar Beach and Willow Creek Day Use areas are open.

As for State Parks, most the day use area of Andrew Molera west of Highway 1 is open, while the eastern side is closed. The same is true of Garrapata State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park. At Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, the lodge is open, and so is Buzzards Roost Trail, since it takes hikers west of Highway 1, but everywhere else in the park is off-limits — which also forced the cancellation of this year's Big Sur River Run. The Point Sur Light Station is open for guided tours, and Point Lobos State Reserve is also open.

DAMAGE

were there, but two were damaged anyway "because the word didn't get to every bulldozer operator," Breschini said.

At one particularly important site in the Cachagua/Jamesburg area, state and federal archaeologists consulted with local Native Americans and rehabilitated it. In addition to rehabbing damaged sites, they also work to protect sites before and during a fire. Breschini noted that they traveled deep into the backcountry during the fire to clear brush near a cave that contains valuable Native American rock art.

"These guys do a lot of things nobody hears about," he said. "They are some of the unsung heroes of the fire. It's a major effort to protect these sites before, during and after a fire."

Because the archaeological sites are both physically and culturally sensitive, their locations have not been revealed.

Breschini's talk will also cover other topics, such as how Native Americans used fire as a management tool, and how and why vegetation grows back so quickly after it has burned.

The talk, which coincides with a nationwide celebration of Archaeology Week, starts at 7 p.m., and is free for history center members and $5 for non-members. The history center is located at 77 Carmel Valley Road. Call (831) 659-5715.

RALPH I. TOBER

On August 25th, 2016 Ralph passed away at the age of 94. He was the son of James R. Tober and Florence Favour, and was born in Peoria, Illinois on September 16, 1921.

While stationed in Paris during WWII he met and married Jackie, a native of France, in 1945. After his discharge from the Army, he worked for Swift & Co. in Chicago as a market analyst and retired in 1981. California seemed the ideal place to retire so he and Jackie moved to Carmel where they lived for over 30 years. His activities in Carmel included being Chairman of Carmel's Historical Preservation Committee for 8 years. He was also past president of the Pebble Beach Chapter of SIR (Sons in Retirement). He had many interests, one being his love of studying (and drinking) wine. Many trips to France and Germany helped increase his knowledge. He founded a wine club in Chicago, the SOBs (Sons of Bacchus) many years ago which is still going strong.

Because of health issues, Ralph and Jackie decided to move to Orange County to be close to their daughter Diane. Survivors, other than Jackie, are his 2 daughters, Diane and Linda, 2 grandchildren, Jeffrey (wife Maika) and Sarah (husband Scott) and a host of cousins.

Interment will be at noon on November 11, 2016 at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

W. G. KEAHIOKALANI FONSECA 1945 - 2016

W. G. Keahiokalani Fonseca died peacefully on September 30, 2016.

Kalani was born in Honolulu, Hawaii in 1945. In Kaneohe, Hawaii he attended Ben Parker Elementary School and graduated from Castle High School in 1963.

In 1962 he was accepted into the U.S. Naval Reserve. After joining the Naval Reserve, he was transferred to active duty on board the fleet tanker USS Ponchatoula. It served as a floating fuel station off the coast of Vietnam. By 1968 he had returned to Pearl Harbor, was honorably discharged from the Naval Reserve and immediately found employment in the booming construction business in Honolulu.

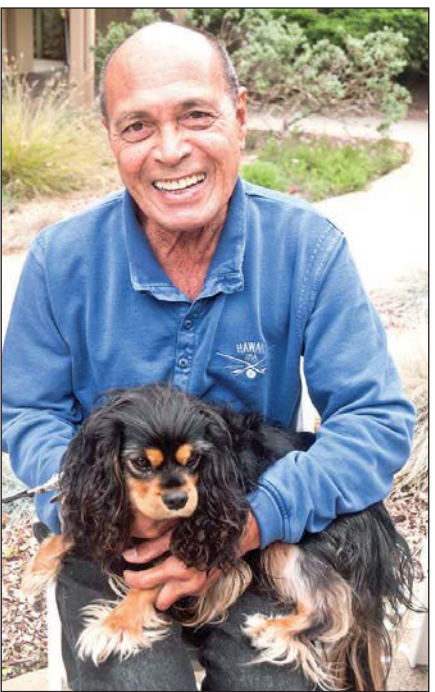

Kalani was later hired by Spencecliff Corporation as a host for the famous Queen's Surf and later as manager for Coco's in Waikiki. It was through Spencecliff that he met his future wife, Barbara Viljoen. In 1969 they married and soon moved to Lanai City where Kalani had been offered a position with his wife as manager of the only hotel on the Island of Lanai.

Two years later a chance to work in Carmel Valley, California, had them moving again. Kalani was hired as one of three paid firemen at Carmel Valley Fire Protection District. He was a lover of sports and in early years played tennis and twice ran in the Big Sur Marathon. Kalani attended Monterey Peninsula College and graduated with an Associate of Science Degree in Fire Science. After 24 years he retired as Captain.

Kalani was predeceased by his parents, Anthony Andrade Fonseca and Emily Fo Fonseca of Honolulu, Hawaii, his younger sister, Sharon Lynn Fonseca, and his nephew, Keola Fonseca. He is survived by his wife, Barbara, of Pacific Grove, California; his brothers Joseph Kuon, Jr. of Honolulu and Leslie Fonseca of Haiku, Maui; his sister Anthoinette Shigetani of Kaneohe and many nieces and nephews of both the Mainland and Hawaii.

The family wishes to thank Drs. Hausdorff, Koontz and Geiler for their years of encouragement and compassion and Hospice of the Central Coast for their dedication and guidance. A celebration of life is planned for Saturday, November 5, 2016 at 2 pm at Canterbury Woods in Pacific Grove.

History Fest offers glimpse of Monterey's rich past

THE FASCINATING history of one of California's first towns will be on display Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15-16, when Monterey hosts its annual History Fest.

"From the Royal Presidio Chapel to the Lower Presidio of Monterey with stops in between, the past can be easily explored over the weekend's 'open house' of activities and tours of many of the historic buildings, sites and new activities," reads a description of the weekend's festivities.

To encourage residents and visitors to learn more about several of the city's most important buildings, Monterey State Historic Park will offer free admission to the Custom House, Pacific House and Stevenson House Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. State park guides will also offer free walking tours of the downtown area Saturday and Sunday at 10:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 2 p.m.

Fisherman's Wharf will celebrate its 171th birthday this weekend, and to mark the occasion, wharf-themed birthday cake will be served Saturday and Sunday at 3 p.m. Historian

Tim Thomas offers a free walking tour of the wharf Saturday at 11 a.m.

The Lower Presidio Historic Park will be the site of a Civil War encampment with tents, period artifacts, cannon and musket demonstrations and a horse drawn ambulance. Also, a bus tour of the U.S. Army's Presidio of Monterey happens Saturday at 9:30 a.m. Call (831) 646-5640 for reservations. And in the garden adjacent to the Custom House, dancers will teach the public how to do the California fandango Saturday and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m.

At Custom House Plaza, PacRep Theatre presents its annual Monterey Bay HarvestFest Arts & Crafts Faire Saturday and Sunday from 10 to 5 p.m., showcasing local artisans and raising money for the Carmel-based theater group.

For more details, visit the Custom House, which will serve as an information center for the festival's many events, or www.montereyhistory.org.

GARDEN CLUB HOLDS TOUR, OFFERS BOUTIQUE

THE CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Garden Club has scheduled a self-guided walking tour through six private gardens for Sunday, Oct. 16, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., along with a boutique at Mission Ranch. The fundraiser will support the group's community projects at Harrison Memorial Library, Piccadilly Park and the beach, among others.

The tour's half-dozen properties were chosen for their beauty and uniqueness, and include a Carmel Woods home, a historic residence on San Antonio, a garden on 14th, a Franciscan Way property, and a house on Dolores Street.

Guests are also encouraged to stop at the club's Unique Boutique in the barn at Mission Ranch, and browse through the centerpieces composed by award-winning designers, decorated pumpkins, notecards and gift tags, jewelry, live plants, potted succulents and fresh arrangements, garden items, floral trays and other items. Foodstuffs, including Jake's Carmel honey, will be for sale, too, as will souvenirs for the City of Carmel's centennial this month.

The tour costs $40 per person, and the ticket contains the map, addresses and descriptions of the gardens. Tickets are available at www.carmelgardenclub.com. For more information, call (831) 917-2942.

The event will be held rain or shine, and participants are encouraged to wear walking shoes. Strollers and wheelchairs will not be able to access the properties, and no dogs are allowed.

Nonprofits encouraged to apply for event help

AS PART of their re-do of the convoluted policy on special events in the city, including how much tax money can be used to subsidize them, officials decided that the $27,500 budgeted for that purpose should be given to the nonprofits that host them, while for-profit entities and others would have to partner with them in order to benefit from the subsidies. Last week, community activities director Janet Bombard invited nonprofits to apply for the "grant funding for special events that promote the city."

"The city supports and encourages events that have economic, charitable or community benefits while maintaining the values and unique character of the village," according to her announcement.

To be eligible, the event has to take place within the city limits on a set date before June 30, 2017 — the end of the current fiscal year — and cannot be "financially dependent on receiving city support." The event also has to "directly or indirectly" benefit the community by supporting its schools or organizations, and can charge for entry but must be open to the general public.

The deadline to apply is 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7. For more information, contact Bombard at (831) 624-1366 or jbombard@ci.carmel.ca.us.

All Saints welcomes Russian music, St. Dunstan's pipe organ gets workout

By CHRIS COUNTS

OFFERING A preview of its season opening concert next week, The Monterey Symphony presents a chamber concert that pays tribute to three Russian composers Tuesday, Oct. 18, at All Saints Episcopal Church.

The musicians include pianist Anna Petrova, violinist Rebecca Anderson and cellist Jeong Hyoun Christine Lee. The trio will perform against a dramatic backdrop of religious-themed abstract-expressionist work by Russian painter Ludmila Pawlowska.

"Anna is one of the most talented ladies in the world," musicologist Todd Samra declared. "All three are virtuosos on their instruments. I think the performers are really off the charts, and people are going to be blown away by their talent."

The program features Igor Stravinsky's Suite italienne for cello and piano, Sergey Prokofiev's Sonata No. 1 in F minor for Violin and Piano, and Anton Arensky's Piano Trio No. 1 in D minor.

The performance is the second of four chamber concerts the symphony is offering as part of its 2016-17 season, which opens Oct. 21. The first concert will showcase Petrova, Anderson and Lee.

The music starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $25 for general admission and $10 for students and active military. The church is located at Dolores and Ninth. Call (831) 646-8511.

■ From Bach to Bossa Nova

The fourth in a series of concerts calling attention to its new $700,000 pipe organ, St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley will present a concert by Kimo Smith, "Bach to Bossa Nova," Oct. 15.

A professor of music at La Sierra University in Riverside, Smith will play a

THE RED carpet will be rolled out for actor Ed Asner when the 8th annual Carmel International Film Festival kicks off with a Filmmakers Welcome Party Thursday, Oct. 20, at Sunset Center.

Best known for playing Lou Grant on the Mary Tyler Moore Show — and for his long-time role as president of the Screen Actors Guild — the seven-time Emmy Award winner will be honored at the festival with a lifetime achievement award.

Asner also stars in a seven-minute short film, "Super Sex," which will be shown at the opening event. Written and directed by actor Matthew Modine, the film tells the story of a pair of siblings who decide to give their 86-year-old father a birthday present he'll never forget. Modine is also expected to attend the event.

"Super Sex" will be followed by "The Space Between," a full-length comedy about a new dad who discovers his baby was

The freshest local calamari, a harvest party, wine geeks, and symphony lunches

OF ALL the Monterey Bay calamari found on local restaurant menus — as an appetizer, in a sandwich, or as an ingredient in cioppino — most of what is caught here is frozen, shipped to China, cleaned, frozen again, and shipped back to the United States, according to Kevin Phillips, managing partner of Abalonetti on Fisherman's Wharf. But the restaurant, celebrating its 65th year in business, has always served freshly caught and locally cleaned squid in more than two dozen dishes, setting it apart from the others.

Over the years, Abalonetti has had just a few employees who had the knowledge and skills to clean squid quickly and efficiently. Vito, a Sicilian, did it for three decades before passing along his knowledge to Faustino Trinidad, who has handled the work at the restaurant for about 10 years. His hands working quickly, Trinidad was busy on a recent Wednesday, separating the tentacles from the bodies, which he also peeled. Phillips said he goes through seven or eight 25-pound boxes every day.

"We have squid 25 different ways on the menu," Phillips said, explaining the volume. "It's the most tender calamari you could ever imagine, and that's what amazes people."

Monterey Fish Co. supplies the squid, which doubled in price this year, according to Phillips, due to scarcity following El Niño, and demand.

"We've had to take that hit, but it's still worth it, no question," he said. "Because the product is so special and so superior to the other options."

The type of squid is critical, too, said Phillips, who uses the more tender and thin-walled loligo. It particularly shines in The Marty Special, a dish named for the Liberty Fish Co. founder that is akin to an eggplant Parmesan with calamari added.

"It's amazing," he said. "It's a great connection to the past — a unique dish that people really love."

Meanwhile, the kitchen is always turning out new and different preparations, like fire-cracker calamari with Buffalo sauce, and Baja calamari with chipotle aioli and fresh pico de gallo. The thin filets are also coated in a little olive oil and thrown on the char-broiler. "As soon as they're marked, they're done," he said. Served with a little white wine sauce, the dish is particularly popular with European visitors.

"Living with this every day and watching people enjoy it makes me really appreciate it and maintain that tradition," Phillips said. "The important thing on the Wharf is differentiation."

Despite its location in one of the more touristy areas of the Monterey Peninsula, Abalonetti enjoys a high level of repeat business from loyal locals, as well as return visits from people who live outside the area.

"Our regulars are a very high percentage, partly because of our locals menu, which is always available," and includes several $9.95 entrees for lunch and dinner. "It's surprising to people that it's always available. That generates a lot of loyalty."

Finally, Phillips said the kitchen is happy to make adjustments for people who want or need them. "We're very flexible. We don't charge for that, and we don't charge for splitting entrees," he added. "We are very accommodating and want to make people happy."

San Francisco-area artist Graciela Placak will lead the group of would-be painters — fortified by glasses of wine and a mini buffet of small bites — throughout the evening, helping them create their next masterpieces and explore hidden talents.

The cost to attend is $95 per person and includes painting supplies, food and drink. To RSVP, which is required, call (831) 659-2649 or email wine@dawnsdreamwinery.com.

Harvest party at Hahn

Hahn Estates, 37700 Foothill Road, off of River Road in Soledad, will celebrate its 36th harvest with a party Saturday, Oct. 15, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Santa Lucia Highlands winery's grounds and barrel room will be open to guests, who will be invited to partake of barrel tastings, harvest tours, a demonstration of the falcons used to keep predators away from the grapes, and other activities.

New vintages will be poured throughout the event, including the limited-production Lucienne Pinot Noir and Chardonnays, and in-house chef Dyon Foster is planning to roast a whole pig for the annual affair.

Tickets are $55 for the general public and $40 for club members. For more information, call (831) 678-4555 or visit www.hahn-wines.com.

Geek out with an MS

Master Sommelier Jim Rollston, who presides over the wine and beverage program at the acclaimed Michelin three-star restaurant, Manresa, in Los Gatos, will talk wine and share knowledge during a Wine Geek Session hosted by the Wine Club of the Santa Cruz Mountains Saturday, Oct. 15. Each quarter, a wine industry expert shares his passion and knowledge with attendees,

“the wine geeks,” and Rollston will talk about his experience passing what many consider to be the most difficult exam in the world to obtain his Master Sommelier certification.

While Rollston is set to start speaking around 2 p.m., the session will take place from 1 to 4 p.m., allowing guests time to purchase a bite and a glass of wine at Cantine Winepub, which is hosting the event, and to meet and mingle a bit before getting down to geeking out.

Cantine is located at 8050 Soquel Drive in Aptos, and tickets — which are free and available to all — are available at www.eventbrite.com. To know more about the venue, see www.cantinewinepub.com.

Garden-to-glass

Katie Blandin Shea of Bar Cart Cocktail Co. will collaborate on a workshop with Annieglass, located at 310 Harvest Drive in Watsonville, Saturday, Oct. 15, from 2 to 4 p.m. Shea will discuss the benefits and uses of her homemade bitters and tonics, and will teach guests how to make three sparkling wine cocktails and sodas using wild and foraged plants and flowers.

Attendees will receive three recipes, a bottle of Bar Cart Big Sur Citrus Bitters and a bottle of Bar Cart Apple + Wild Sage Shrub, as well as a 15 percent off coupon for Annieglass products, which must be purchased in the store the day of the workshop.

The cost to attend is $65 per person, and tickets must be purchased at http://m.bpt.me/event/2600524.

Quail in Pink

Quail Lodge & Golf Club in Carmel Valley is supporting breast-cancer awareness this month by launching its Quail in Pink fundraising initiative benefiting the Breast Cancer Research Foundation. Purchases of its Raspberry Mousse Signature Pink Dessert and Pink Martini in Edgar's restaurant in the clubhouse will support the foundation's work.

And each weekend through Oct. 30, the restaurant will host a Quail in Pink Afternoon Tea from 2 to 4 p.m., from which a quarter of the proceeds will go to the non-profit. The cost to attend is $19 per person and includes scones and jams, a selection of finger sandwiches and sweets, and Mighty Leaf teas.

Reservations are required for the tea, and can be made by calling (831) 620-8910.

Quail Lodge is located at 8000 Valley Greens Drive.

Wine dinner celebrates cigars

The recently relocated and reopened Humidor — a sanctuary for cigar lovers, with several lounges, lockers (and humidors, of course), luxury accommodations, and a social club with extra perks for true aficionados — will host a winemaker dinner in its private lounge Thursday, Oct. 27, at 6 p.m. Held in collaboration with the Whaling Station located next door, and Jarman Wines of Carmel Valley, the dinner will celebrate National Cigar Month.

The evening will begin with appetizers and cigars hand-selected by Humidor owner David Wilcox, followed by a three-course dinner from the steakhouse starting at 6:30. After dinner and wine, a second round of hand-selected cigars will be enjoyed alongside dessert and Big Daddy Port in the lounge.

The cost to attend is $150, inclusive ($85 inclusive for Humidor members, not including cigars), and an RSVP is required by calling (831) 375-7833. The Humidor located at 765 Wave St. in Monterey.

Special Belgians on draft

Leopold7 and Bertinchamps Blonde — beers imported to the United States by winemaker Damien Georis — made their draft debuts at Cultura restaurant in downtown Carmel last week. During an open house meant to introduce the two brews to patrons, the Blonde was paired with rabbit tacos with pasilla chili mole and Asian pear salsa fresca, while the richer Leopold7 was paired with tacos of braised baby octopus, orange and Meyer lemon, chili and fresh oregano.

Georis has been working hard to import and distribute Leopold7 and Bertinchamps, and a project spearheaded by friend Fabric Rondia involves building a local brewery for Leopold7 built in Cannery Row. Both beers can be found at restaurants and markets throughout the Peninsula, and as of last week, are now available on tap at Cultura located in Su Vecino Court off Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

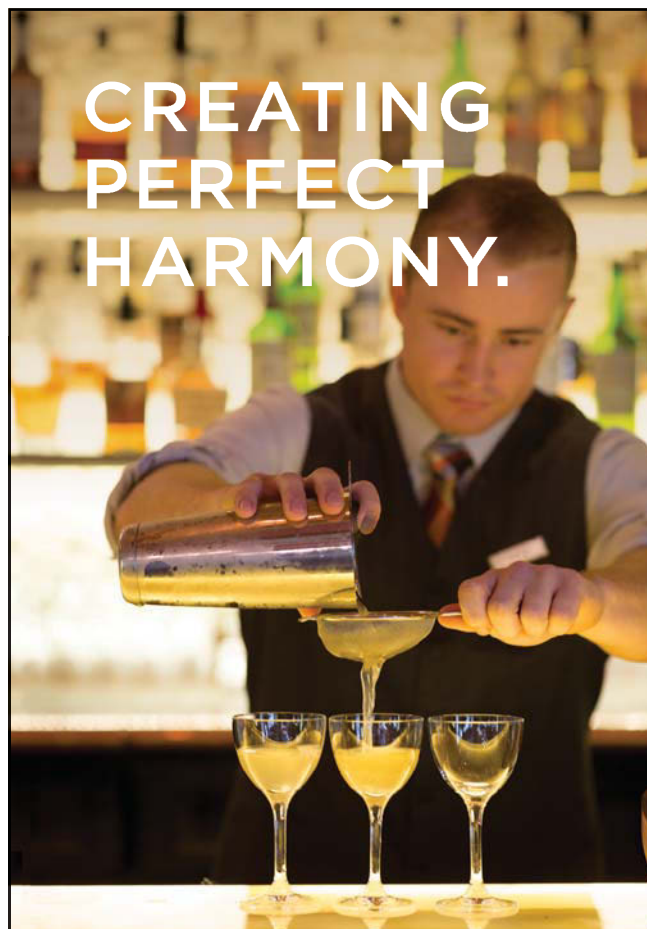

Cultura restaurant and its bar are open nightly (except Wednesdays), as well as for lunch Thursday through Sunday. www.culturacarmel.com

Symphony lunches

The Friends of the Monterey Symphony and the Big Sur Land Trust are presenting the first of a half-dozen fundraising luncheons Wednesday, Oct. 19, at Glen Deven Ranch in Big Sur. Proceeds from the lunches will support the upcoming season, entitled “Shakespeare in Music.”

The buffet-style lunch from Portobello’s in Salinas will offer meat and vegetarian options, while appetizers will be prepared in a wood-fired pizza oven poolside at Glen Deven Ranch. The feast will begin at 12:15 p.m., with shuttles leaving the Crossroads shopping center lot near Starbucks at 10:45 a.m. for the ride down the coast. On arrival, attendees will take in the “historic 860-acre seascape that provided inspiration for Emmy Award-winning composer John Wineglass, whose original piece, ‘Big Sur: The Night

Worth celebrating

WE CHOSE this week's lead story not because it's particularly unusual that a new home has been proposed in town, or that some neighbors say the house is too big, or that the planning commission wants changes. Those sorts of stories are a dime a dozen in these parts. We could write them in our sleep.

In this case, what's really unusual is that the owners of the proposed new house aren't tearing down an old one to make room for what they want to build now, which is what everybody else does. Instead, these owners are proposing their new home for a vacant lot — one that has never had a house on it, and which, for the last 25 years at least, could not have a home on it because it had no water.

Old-timers still remember that, way back in the early 1980s, the cities of the Monterey Peninsula were fighting over their share of the Peninsula's 20,500-acre-foot-per-year supply. That's an amount that sounds very generous by our standards today, but back then, Peninsula cities like Monterey and Seaside were planning for quite a bit of growth, and growth requires water. And since in those days the entire Peninsula used about 17,000 acre-feet per year, the 20,500 AF ceiling meant there were just 3,500 acre-feet for the cities to split among themselves for all anticipated growth. That isn't much, and nobody ever thought they were getting their fair share — especially not Carmel-by-the-Sea, which in 1987 filed a lawsuit challenging its allocation of the surplus water. Unfortunately, the suit backfired on Carmel and everybody else because it resulted in a detailed environmental study of the Monterey Peninsula water supply and all its impacts, and the result was a declaration that the maximum we could use wasn't 20,500 acre-feet per year, it was just 16,700 acre-feet per year — which meant that the community was already using too much.

Suddenly, in 1988, a permit moratorium was declared and something that had always been taken for granted — clean, healthy water for a nominal cost, and in a practically unlimited supply — was no longer available, with very few exceptions, in the Monterey Peninsula.

Which also meant that if you had a vacant lot in Carmel, Monterey, Pebble Beach, Seaside, etc., you were simply out of luck.

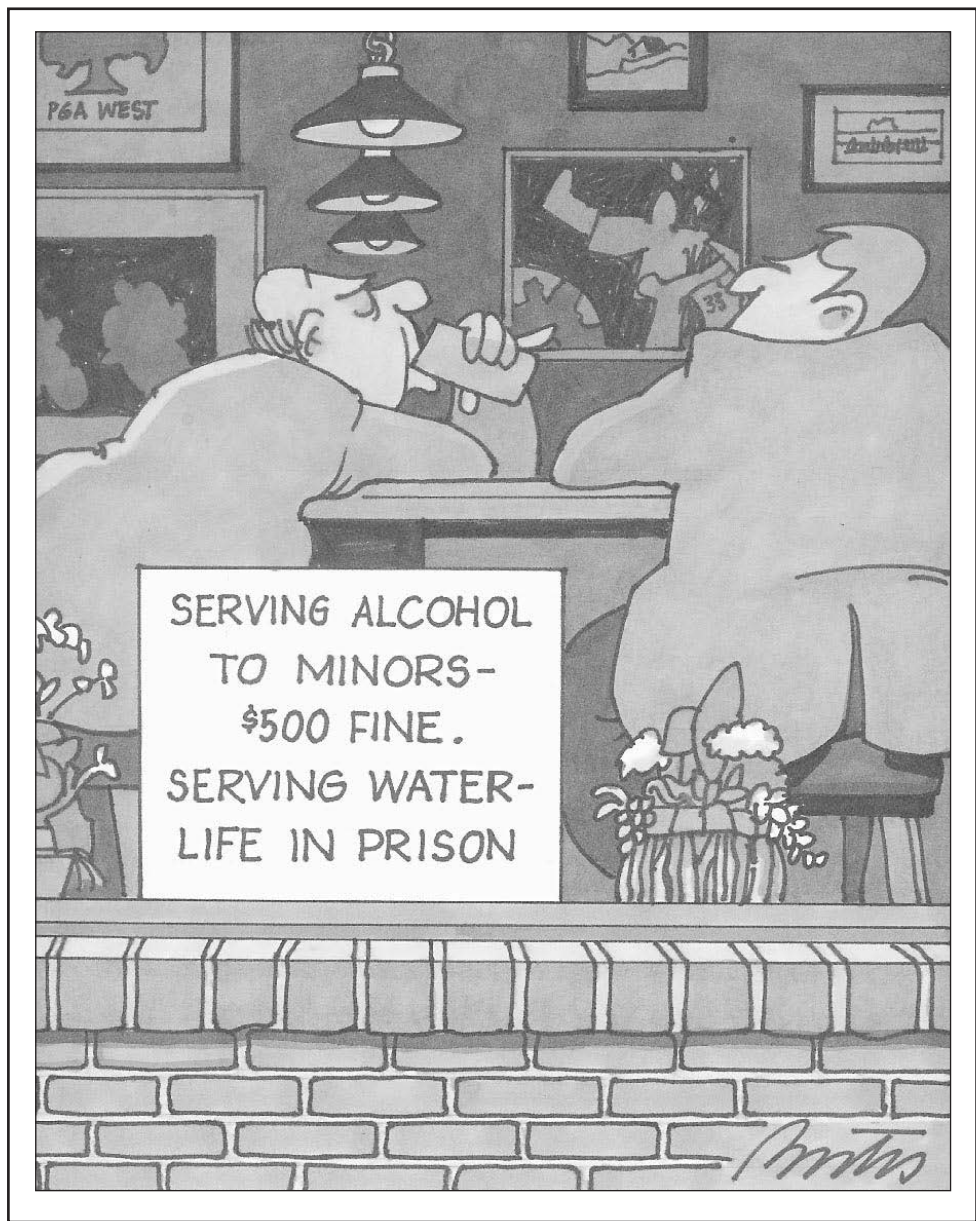

Except for a very brief period starting in 1989, when the Peralta well in Seaside came online and bumped the supply slightly above what was already being used, and except for Pebble Beach, where a reclamation project has freed up a little water, the water permit moratorium has remained in effect throughout the Monterey Peninsula, leaving owners of vacant lots high and dry for nearly 30 years.

Enter Clint Eastwood, who has always been a civic-minded fellow, even when he's not serving as mayor. Eastwood owns a piece of agricultural land at the mouth of Carmel Valley, and three years ago, he got the idea to halt the farming on the land and offer some of its water for community needs. Miraculously, state regulators agreed, and earlier this year, 80 acre-feet were suddenly available. The water costs a lot — $240,000 per acre-foot, and that's just for the permit — but it's there.

The day may be coming when a new water supply ends the shortage throughout the Monterey Peninsula. Eastwood's water, unfortunately, can only be used in Carmel and Carmel Valley, but in those blessed communities, at least until Eastwood's water runs out, the permit moratorium is finally over.

Honestly, we never thought we'd see the day.

No quick picks please

Dear Editor,

When Queen Elizabeth steps down, either her son Charles or grandson William will become king. That's the way succession works in a monarchy. It's all about bloodline. A successor's personal fitness for the job doesn't matter.

Under our system of government "we the people" can vote for anyone we choose to serve as our representative — ideally considering a candidate's values, position on issues, relevant experience and qualifications. Bloodline doesn't (or shouldn't) matter.

Our next congressional representative may serve for many years to come. And that's why I urge readers to take an hour to watch the three-part KSBW congressional debate online. Become informed as to where Casey Lucius and Jimmy Panetta each stand on important issues that affect our lives — things like health care, Social Security, veterans' benefits, immigration, water, agribusiness, energy, wages, taxes and affordable housing. Then vote for the candidate you think will talk straight with constituents, work effectively across the aisle to get things done, and take creative approaches to finding workable solutions for our Monterey Peninsula needs.

Please make an informed choice of each candidate not simply a ballot name quick pick.

Irene Long, Carmel

Lucius 'so much better'

Dear Editor,

Here we go again! Political Cronyism. No regard for who is clearly the best candidate. Steve Dallas is no different from the rest of them. Shame on Steve Dallas, who as mayor should show leadership by supporting the best candidate, Casey Lucius. She is so obviously better qualified and would be such a shining star representing our Peninsula. No wonder there's so much anger in this country.

Four decades of steak, hard work and celebrities — and going strong

IF YOU'VE met Jaroensidh Waikagul, he was probably introduced to you as "Jum." And you were probably distracted by the fact that you were hungry, and about to enjoy an exceptional steak at the Whaling Station. It pretty much doesn't matter when you were last there. He's worked at the Station since it opened on June 6, 1972. That's Nixon's first term.

"I only called in sick when I was in the hospital," Jum said, proud of his attendance record.

Great Lives

By ELAINE HESSER

record.

He came to the Monterey Peninsula from his native Thailand when he was about 16. His mother was a history teacher there, and one of her former students had become an instructor at DLI. She invited Jum to stay at her Peninsula home and finish his high school education, then go to college.

For a while after he moved here, loneliness set in. "We learned English in Thailand, but everyone here speaks American," he said. He adjusted.

Jum's parents sent him more than enough money, but he was a frugal fellow. "I used a dollar a day. I had lunch for 45 cents, had 5 cents for candy, and saved the other 50 cents." That 45-cent lunch was in the cafeteria at Pacific Grove High School, where he graduated in 1970.

Eye on the prize

He started his restaurant career at Neil DeVaughn's restaurant on Cannery Row as a dishwasher, and also did stints at the Highlands Inn, the Lodge at Pebble Beach, and San Carlos Hotel, mostly as a busser. He sent his mom his first American paycheck. "She put it in the bank and kept it for me," he remembered, smiling.

All the while, he kept his eyes on the prize — he wanted to be a waiter or a bartender, so he could interact with the customers in the front of the house.

However, Jum and his parents had different ideas about his future. They sent him money to go to Hartnell College, where he was supposed to study electrical engineering. Instead, he fell in love, got married and quit college so he could work full-time. He worked up the courage to tell his folks, and to tell them to stop sending him money so he could support himself "the American way." They did. And he did.

He heard through the restaurant grapevine that John Pisto would be opening a steakhouse, and he was able to get hired as a server. Although he'd had American-style food in Thailand, his food and wine knowledge weren't sufficient. That, combined with what was still a bit of a language barrier, sent him back to busboy duties for a while.

Pisto never gave up on him, Jum said. Probably that was because he was such a hard worker. Or maybe it was the Thai food Jum would cook for Pisto with the restaurant's leftovers at the end of a shift now and then.

More likely, it was the former. Jum said he worked six days a week and always tried to be a team player.

Working at the Whaling Station also meant tasting the food, going to wineries and constantly expanding his knowledge. "John Pisto taught us a lot, invited us all to [staff] meetings. It was like a gift to me."

It meant developing memorization skills, too. At one point, Jum said, there were 18 specials to learn every night. That was, thankfully, later scaled back.

Diplomacy and tact are important as well. "I had a woman who ordered Kobe beef well done," he said. In the food business that nearly qualifies as a capital offense. "I always say, 'I don't recommend that,' and explain why. Then if they order it anyway, I just say, 'Yes, ma'am, yes sir.'" He said he never got a complaint after having that conversation, including from Kobe Beef Woman.

"Another man ordered a New York steak well done," he said. "I explained that meant it would be a little burnt on the outside and he said he wanted it that way." Evidently he enjoyed his meal, because not much later, "He phoned in the same order from his private jet and said he wanted it ready when he got here."

Always something new

Sometimes restaurant life can be a little fraught in other ways. Jum's worried a little about some of the creative marriage proposals he's seen, like when the man wanted the ring in the bottom of his intended's glass of Champagne. "I was afraid she'd swallow it," he said.

Celebrity guests have been part of the scene, too, and Jum's met his share. Clint Eastwood and John Madden were frequent guests. Jum isn't entirely sure, but he thinks he remembers that Eastwood liked the swordfish. Bill Walsh often dined at the Station, and Jum's also met Doris Day and Suzanne Somers, both of whom he said were "very nice."

Another big thrill was meeting Charlton Heston when Jum worked at the Lodge. "I loved 'The Ten Commandments,' and 'Ben Hur,' even when I saw them in Thailand," he said.

When he isn't at the Whaling Station, Jum can be found on the local golf courses.

See LIVES next page

Where's the beef? Just ask Jum — he's been at the Whaling Station for more than 40 years and still loves his job.

Mariscos El Palmar in Greenfield. I am very concerned about Measure Z passing, and the impact it will have on business, so I am writing this letter to the editor showing my distress about the measure.

Jose Ceballos,
Greenfield

'Starving the beast'

Dear Editor,

I want to thank the anti-tax members of the pro-Measure Z crowd. They have become strong supporters of starving the beast. If Measure Z passes, perhaps $50 million to $100 million in tax revenues will not be collected from the local oil industry in South Monterey County. Bully for them.

The pro-Z people have come up with the perfect solution to decrease tax revenues of so many government agencies, who have a habit of wasting taxpayers' money and enriching bureaucrats with annual salaries of $100K to $200K, just to generate paperwork of little value.

Of course, with this large shortfall of public funding, local schools, cities and the county will likely have to place massive tax measures on next year's ballot. To make up the loss, they would have to hike sales taxes to the 15 to 20 percent rate and increase property taxes by thousands of dollars per home per year for schools and other government districts.

But at least the pro-Measure Z crowd is trying to lower taxes. That must count for something.

Advice for tourists

Dear Editor:

This is the one thing about the tourists in this area that really gets me going!

I wonder sometimes is it that they don't know?

Or is it that they are "entitled," or they think they are "entitled," and they can do as they wish?

When did we cross over to the, "I don't care about anyone else," zone?

The man who got out of his car and left it on Highway 1. Did he get a citation? He probably did not. He may now assume he can get away with it every time the urge to stop comes over him.

That, my friends, is just not right. He could have killed someone.

I see his license plate clearly on the picture I wonder if the police contacted him? I am sure they did not.

The bad behavior must stop, or I am afraid it will just spiral more out of control than it already is.

Or is it that the tourists just don't know? Here is a couple simple things for tourists to consider.

We gave you a sidewalk so you don't have to walk in the street! You should use it. I see this behavior mainly on Scenic Road.

Do you not realize there are other people and tourists also not paying attention driving in the street? This is how accidents happen, so look out for yourself and others by using the sidewalk, please.

Use the parking spots, please. Our front yards are not for you to park in. I see people just making up parking spaces and it drives me nuts!!

Oh and, hey, the motorcycle parking is for motorcycles, not cars.

Tourists, please pick up your trash! I pick up trash everywhere and I know it is not from us, the people who live here.

One last thing guys: Keep it classy! You can stop with your bad behavior. Look, you are on vacation, so please enjoy it and leave all the problems at home. We do not need you to bring them here.

B.A. Leach, Carmel

racist and religious bullying against her colleague, she became a target.

"Soon, other employees included Ms. Coria in their ridicule, and her coworkers isolated her both socially and professionally," the lawsuit says.

And in the spring of 2012, Coria said the animosity toward her turned violent. One day after school had ended, Coria said she heard calls for her name from someone outside. When she went to the schoolyard to respond, "two large women" came up behind Coria and attacked her.

"One of the women said, 'Oh, you feel like you should be only on the white people's side,' as they beat her," the suit says. "The incident was brief and Coria was not seriously injured, but she was deeply traumatized."

Within a few months after the incident, Coria was transferred to Sherwood Center, another Salinas school.

But Coria said at Sherwood — where one of the workers from MLK now worked — she "faced daily humiliation" "due to her inability to walk as fast as the other teachers" because of surgery after a workplace fall in 2015. The operation did not go well, and Coria said she had complications, which led her to miss a significant amount of work.

Coria, who was less than two years shy of receiving retirement pension and benefits, said she was fired from her job for "exceeding her 100 days of leave."

"Gladys Coria played a pivotal role in shaping children's lives for years, and was terminated due to her courage in defending a colleague from racism and religious bigotry, and for her disability incurred while on the job," her lawsuit says.

She alleges hostile work environment, retaliation, failure to prevent discrimination, violation of whistleblower laws asking you to consider this stop sign," said one mother, who called it "one of the most dangerous intersections in Carmel."

"We've also raised $1,000 that we're going to donate to the city to pay for the stop signs, so we're asking you to do something soon," she added.

Several students who dance at the nearby Carmel Academy of Performing Arts echoed her sentiments and complained about bus drivers and others speeding down Eighth, without regard to their safety. Resident Jonathan Sapp also said his car was totaled in a collision there, due to a speeding driver, and James Lindholm, Beach's husband, said he often bicycle rides and walks in town, and has "cheated death at that intersection more than once."

Mayor Steve Dallas acknowledged their concerns and explained the council couldn't respond at the meeting, since that particular intersection wasn't on the agenda.

and other labor violations. She's seeking an undisclosed amount in monetary damages, including punitive damages, exceeding $25,000.

Monterey County Office of Education attorney Chris Panetta told The Pine Cone that the MCOE could not comment because the case involves a personnel matter.

and sent it to the planning commission with a request for changes. Council members were worried about special events displacing the restaurant operators, and they wanted assurance the lot would no longer be used for valet parking for people other than those using the restaurant.

Former Mayor Ken White worried that events at the restaurant might be loud, while resident Barbara Livingston wanted assurance a chain restaurant wouldn't end up operating there.

Resident Jeff Baron, who supported the previous proposal, said he liked this concept even more. "I think the building is a great setting for a restaurant; I think the outdoor seating is great," he said. "This one seems to be simple and straightforward, special events notwithstanding." Baron said he would like the restaurant to be open — not sold out for an event — during busy times like the holidays.

Rich Pepe, who owns the restaurant and wine bar across the street, speculated people sitting outside would be "eating hamburgers out of a paper takeout container," and he wanted the outdoor seating at the corner removed. He also said Kern should have to go to the council to get permission for the four major events he wants to host at the property.

"If someone pulled up with a hamburger in a paper bag, we would ask him to leave," Kern countered. (No hamburgers are offered on the menu.) "This will be a high-end restaurant with white tablecloths."

Commissioner Michael LePage acknowledged Kern and Peterson for their repeated efforts to return with a proposal that would satisfy decision makers based on prior feedback.

"It's a nice project. It's a full-line restaurant," he said. "I don't hear anything to suggest this is going to be a formula restaurant. And I don't think the owner should be accused of some future behavior because of what they've proposed in the past."

Commission chair Don Goodhue said he wanted more details on the restaurant and its operator before approving it. "A use permit is a very serious thing, and I think it's important to know exactly what were getting," he said.

But LePage countered that it's not the city's business to judge whether a restaurant's chefs and other staff are qualified for the job.

Wiener conceded the owners don't need to come back to the planning commission to identify the operator, but said they would have to if there were any changes to the restaurant's name, layout or concept.

As for the events, Wiener said the city allows up to four a year that go beyond a business' regular operations, such as an art gallery hosting a party and pouring wine.

Commissioners ultimately decided the restaurant can close to host the major events already planned for 2017, but that Kern would have to ask the city for permission to do the same in subsequent years. The commission voted 4-1, with Goodhue dissenting, to approve the new restaurant, and the current uses of the property for valet parking and as an event center will end when the owners pull their new business license for the restaurant.

fathered by someone else. Most of the cast plans to be at Sunset Center Thursday, including writer and director Amy Jo Johnson, lead actor Michael Cram and lead actress Sonya Salomaa.

The festivities get underway at 5:30 p.m. when an up-and-coming band from Seattle, the Forgotten 45s, takes the stage. The group's single, "Pink Azaleas," is featured on the soundtrack of "The Space Between." While the Forgotten 45s play music, Kurtz Culinary will serve small bites, and a dozen local vintners, including Silvestri, Folktale and Luli, will pour wine.

"Super Sex" will be shown at 8 p.m., and Asner and Modine will follow with a Q&A. "The Space Between" screens next, and when the curtains close, Johnson and the cast will take questions from the audience.

The film festival offers a variety of ticket packages, and the most affordable one that will get you into Thursday's party is the Essential Credential for $195. The pass also offers admission to 30 full-length films and more than 50 short films, which will be presented Oct. 20-23 at five locations besides Sunset Center: Carmel High School, the Carmel Youth Center, Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley, Lighthouse Cinemas in Pacific Grove and the Middlebury Institute of International Studies in Monterey. Tickets to individual films are $10 for general admission, and $5 for students and active military.

Film festival co-founder Tom Burns said he's excited to see the festival get underway.

"This year, we have more filmmakers attending the festival — and in some cases almost the full cast," Burns told The Pine Cone. "You will see some really great films that you won't see in theaters on the Central Coast. The way distribution channels are changing, a lot of these films will eventually go into limited theatrical release, but only in larger markets. Then there are films like "Bleed For This" that will get wide distribution, but you get to see them first at the festival."

start the cemetery. It was really touching that his family was there and they were able to have some closure."

Williams died in 1998. His wife, Anna Maria, who died in February 2015, was also interred Tuesday.

The first phase cost taxpayers $8.8 million, and includes $6.8 million from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and $2 million from the State of California. Another $700,000 was raised through individual donations.

Former Carmel Mayor Jason Burnett, who was also instrumental in helping the cemetery, was not in attendance. Burnett has since moved with his family to Washington D.C.

"He was definitely recognized for his efforts, that's for sure," Panetta told The Pine Cone.

Assemblyman Mark Stone, Congressman Sam Farr and State Sen. Bill Monning, who were instrumental in obtaining state and federal funding for the cemetery, also spoke at the ceremony.

QUESTIONS

answering the chamber's questions do "little to promote understanding" and "only serves to polarize the issues, making future dialogue more difficult."

"I feel it's a disservice to our citizens to provide answers in a biased context," he said.

City council candidate Cynthia Garfield characterized the questions as "very specific to some of the issues of interest to the members of the chamber," but she did not have a problem with Kampe's decision not to answer them.

"For someone with the extensive experience Bill Kampe has with the chamber, Bill's positions are familiar to chamber members," Garfield told The Pine Cone. "For new candidates, the questionnaire was an opportunity to make the candidates more familiar to chamber members."

There are three open seats on the council. Councilman Robert Huitt is vying for reelection while councilwoman Casey Lucius is not defending her seat because she's running for Congress. Miller's council seat will be open since he's challenging Kampe.

The other candidates for city council are attorney Nick Smith, aerospace engineer Andrew Kubica and Alan Cohen — a businessman and 38-year resident of Pacific Grove and former city councilman, who has identified infrastructure, public safety, environment and the budget as among key issues facing the city.

"If we are going to improve our infrastructure, maintain our parks and facilities and enhance our economic vitality, our city must be financially sound in ways that do not diminish our character and historic charm," Cohen said.

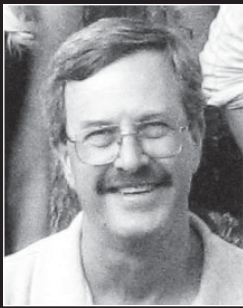

Meanwhile, chamber President Moe Ammar said the candidates' responses were mailed to 450 chamber members. The public can view the questions and answers by going to the chamber's site at www.pacificgrove.org and clicking on "blog" at the top of the page.

CONTRACTS

was paid $40,000 to identify maintenance and capital projects to care for the shoreline, received a new contract to help implement them, and to organize "the city's voluminous files on past shoreline area improvements and shoreline conditions."

On July 26, Eagle Project Management LLC was hired for $24,999 to help address the backlog of capital projects and continue work on several initiated by former capital projects manager Andy Vanderford "before his unanticipated departure," like painting the First Murphy House, reroofing the public works building, and replacing doors and guardrails at the Sunset Center. Friedrichsen recommended the council authorize an increase in the contract to continue the work on those and other tasks.

"CARMEL LEGENDS"

BY AL SMITH

Chances are you don't know where FRASER WAY is. So pay attention and amaze your friends with your knowledge of Carmel trivia. It's a short, one-block street that runs from Casanova to Camino Real below 13th and just north of Santa Lucia. It's the only deviation from the otherwise geometrically perfect gridwork of streets laid out in 1902 by square-rigged developers Devendorf and Powers. And it's a monument to the great Fraser Feud of 1906-14. The Fraser brothers, Hector and Wilbur, owned the whole block, a gift from their father, Hector, Sr. Wilbur had an ambition to create a public inn which he would call Fraser Ranch. "You're nuts," said Hector. "This is a quiet, residential community." The argument raged for 8 years and was settled only when Hector cut off the lower tip of the block and deeded it to Wilbur "in fee simple." Today there are 4 houses on Fraser Way the dividing line, none an inn. And, if you believe this story, we have some stock in the new bridge that will cross Carmel Bay that we'd like to discuss with you.

Poet Laureate doesn't need me to defend him but I'm going to anyway

BILLY COLLINS was in town last week. "Who?" you might ask. Wasn't he the lead singer for a group called Genesis? That is Phil Collins. Isn't there a lemony gin drink named for him? No, that is Tom Collins.

His visit was meaningful if you think, like Samuel Taylor Coleridge, that, "Prose is words in their best order; poetry is the best words in the best order." Collins served two terms as Poet Laureate of the United States (2001-2003), and he is the is that I just didn't have a name worthy of a poet, such as John Greenleaf Whittier, the aforementioned Mr. Coleridge, or Edna St. Vincent Millay – whose name sounds as if it were written by Shakespeare. Then along comes Billy Collins — with a name more like the shortstop on the company softball team or the guy who comes to install your cable — to blow my theory to smithereens.

Billy Collins writes poetry that doesn't leave you wondering what the heck you just read. Some poetry readers get all caught up in what a poem means. If you were watching a talented juggler perform, would you ask what all those balls in the air mean? Would you analyze his performance to death?

Collins speaks to that issue in his poem, "Introduction to Poetry," wherein he asks a poetry class to simply consider a poem for its intrinsic beauty and for the poet's talent.

*But all they want to do is tie the poem to a chair with rope and torture a confession out of it.
They begin beating it with a hose to find out what it really means.*

"They begin beating it with a hose to find out what it really means." That line sounds like what all those self-important poetry professors I had did to poems we read in class. Collins makes it almost impossible not to understand what he is saying.

Yet he has been vilified for his ability to connect to his readers in the same manner Bach can extricate emotions from listeners who may not be music majors.

"Billy Collins is a very bad poet, and the saddest part is that no one will bother to say so," wrote critic Paul Stephens in his essay "An Apology for Poetry."

Stephens goes on to say that Collins "trivializes" poetry, and that he "dumbs it down," for mass consumption.

I often wonder why many artists or writers never attain fame or fortune in their lifetimes, or as Thomas Gray so eloquently wrote,

*Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.*

Stephens goes on to claim, "Billy Collins is to good poetry what Kenny G is to Charlie Parker; what Rod McKuen is

I am no exception to the rule that all writers are closet poets. The first material I submitted for publication was poetry. I knew my future in verse was worse than I hoped for when the editor sent me a note suggesting that I invest in a dictionary.

But I have an excuse. The reason I was never a great poet

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Investigated a hit-and-run collision with a parked vehicle on Eighth Avenue. Driver was contacted by an outside agency and admitted fault over the phone.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A hotel manager at Fifth and Mission reported an adult male guest was disturbing other guests by knocking on their doors to complain about his room, in an effort to get a refund from the manager. The manager believed the man was either intoxicated or had been using drugs. Units responded and contacted the adult male in the parking lot of the hotel. The male displayed objective signs of intoxication. The male complained of bugs in his room. The manager was able to contact the hotel general manager and provide the male a refund for his room. The male left with his girlfriend to stay at another hotel.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Staff members at a bar at San Carlos and Ocean attempted to remove an unwanted patron from the establishment. Unwanted patron became resistive and attempted to assault multiple staff. Unwanted patron and his associate then fled the area before police arrived. Staff members did not wish to prosecute, only wanted the patrons advised not to return and will prosecute for trespassing if they do.

Pacific Grove: Officer was notified of a juvenile stating he wanted to shoot at the school on Sunset. Juvenile was contacted and determined to not be a threat.

Pacific Grove: Person reported an intoxicated subject attempting to enter vehicles on Grove Acre. Subject, a 24-year-old male, was located driving in the area and was arrested for DUI.

Pacific Grove: Officer was contacted by a student in regards to inappropriate contact from a member of school staff.

Pacific Grove: Battery occurred on Forest Avenue. No prosecution sought

Pacific Grove: Sage Court resident stated several months ago he received some mail that indicated he had been given a psychic reading and owed some money to an individual who resided in New York. The resident told the officer he never received a psychic reading and asked if he should pay the amount that was demanded in the letter. The resident was informed if he didn't have a psychic reading, the individual in the letter was trying to defraud him out of money. The resident came into the police department and informed the officer he received another letter from the individual stating they were sending him to collections. The resident assured the officer he never had a psychic reading and requested that this incident be documented.

Carmel Valley: Firearms turned in for destruction at owner's request.

Carmel area: Doctors reported elder neglect causing malnutrition and bedsores on a 99-year-old patient who lives on Rio Road. Arrested as responsible were her two sons, ages 61 and 68, and they were charged with elder abuse causing great bodily injury.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A 57-year-old female from Florence, Colo., was arrested on Ocean Avenue at 0315 for DUI and lodged at county jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female lost her phone at an establishment on Lincoln south of Ocean last evening.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person found a camera angle finder at Scenic and Seventh.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of forgery on First Avenue near Carpenter Street.

Monterey Coast Realty Congratulates Mark Peterson!

The California Association of Realtors just presented Mark Peterson with the Rising Star award. One of four recognized in the state, the award highlights elite new talent who demonstrate proven business success, excel in client care and uphold Realtor ethics. Mark experienced his most successful year in real estate after joining the Monterey Coast Realty team. We are happy to see his business talent and success recognized by the most prominent realtor association in the country, and we are proud to have him as a part of the Monterey Coast Realty family.

GERVASE

to Walt Whitman; what the Backstreet Boys are to the Beatles.”

So, can't one be a fan of both Kenny G and Charlie Parker? Does enjoying McKuen exclude an enjoyment of Whitman? The Backstreet Boys are not the Beatles but who says they are trying to be?

Mass consumption, runaway popularity and successful sales figures shouldn't automatically nullify the importance of a book or the talent of the author. If that were true “The Bible,” “The Little Prince,” “A Tale of Two Cities,” “To Kill a Mockingbird,” “The Girl With the Dragon Tattoo,” “Catcher in the Rye,” and “Don Quixote” would be tossed on Stephens' literary scrap heap, along with their authors. Dickens, not to mention God, might take exception to such dismissiveness.

If you've never seen Billy Collins in person may I suggest you find him on the Internet? He's given TED talks so I'm sure he's available on YouTube.

I don't know if poets have a special look. Collins doesn't look like a poet to me. He looks more like a guy you'd find directing a high school production of “Our Town.” You can read him and not need the dictionary that the poetry editor suggested I buy. Perhaps he is not Donne or Dante, but in his poem, “Hell,” Collins writes, “I have a feeling it is much worse than shopping for a mattress at a mall.” I bet Dante wished he had thought of that.

"POLICE LOG" CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, JAN. 8

REPORT OF A FEMALE SCREAMING LOUDLY IN A GUADALUPE MOTEL.
SCREEEEEECH

CONTACTED A FEMALE WHO STATED SOMETHING WAS TRYING TO BREAK INTO HER ROOM.

NOTED WHAT SOUNDED LIKE AN ANIMAL SCRATCHING AT THE WALL BEHIND THE BED.
