Centennial celebration draws record crowds

By MARY SCHLEY

YEARS OF planning, thousands of hours of work, extensive coordination and participation — and a little magic, in the form of perfect weather sandwiched by days of rain — combined to make the city's centennial celebration last Saturday a tremendous success. And while organizers expected 10,000 people to attend

Saturday's festivities, police estimated the actual number was closer to 13,000. Many spectators set up chairs along the parade route the previous night, and the bleachers filled up hours before the 11 a.m. start.

With former Mayor Clint Eastwood serving as grand marshal and riding in the Wells Fargo stagecoach, and KSBW-TV news anchor Dan Green emceeding, the parade included six professionally built floats, marching bands, dancers, dignitaries in vintage cars and other acts. Crowds were rows deep along every block, while some spectators stood on nearby rooftops and balconies. The only real hitch involved the Rotary's birthday-cake float, with its large bottle of Champagne, getting hung up in an oak tree while making the turn at Monte Verde Street, but it wasn't too much the worse for wear and still finished the trip, accompanied by a squad of beautiful dancers.

"All the stars aligned, all the groups came together, everything we had put them through the previous few months in terms of rehearsals worked," said parade organizer Tom Brocato. "I was really, really

Panetta takes aim at Lucius over backing from Super PAC

By KELLY NIX

THE RACE to replace Congressman Sam Farr took a dramatic turn this week when Democratic candidate Jimmy Panetta attacked Republican rival Casey Lucius for the support she's getting from an Ohio-based political action committee, while Lucius fired back by pointing to the big bucks Panetta has received from out-of-town special interest groups.

The Panetta campaign Tuesday night issued a press release blasting Lucius for the backing she's had recently from American Freedom Builders Action Network, a conservative Super PAC that, according to the Federal Election Commission last week, paid $52,913 for a 30-second TV commercial and air-time to rally support for Lucius. The ad started running this week.

"The 20th Congressional District has never seen out-of-state dark money come into a race like this before," said Panetta, 47. "My opponent has talked endlessly about special interests on this campaign, and here she is getting help from a Super PAC that comes out of the Tea Party and does not disclose the sources of its money?"

Panetta alleges that the group's treasurer, Joel Riter, has been

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE, KILLS PARADE DOG

By MARY SCHLEY

A BELGIAN Malinois that had walked in the city's Centennial Parade just a day earlier died in a house fire on San Carlos Street Sunday night, according to fire crews and a family friend on the scene. The blaze also destroyed a quarter of the residence and resulted in smoke and water damage throughout the rest of the two-story home, which is located near 12th Avenue.

The destruction would have been far worse, had a fire crew and a PG&E worker not been contending with a fallen tree and downed power lines just a couple of blocks away. The utility company's crewman had just gone up the street to shut off the power at the pole, when firefighters heard an explosion, according to Monterey Fire Chief Gaudenz Panholzer.

A house in flames

"They were concerned that it might have been the lineman that was hurt," he said. "They went and checked, and he was fine." But a nearby house was in flames.

"Firefighters found fire on the front left corner of the house, and arcing power lines, which limited their ability to get in and fight the fire," he said. Coming to the aid of the engine and

Marina Coast fails again to stop test well

By KELLY NIX

MARINA COAST Water District has lost a major legal battle in its effort to shut down California American Water's test well in the city — one of numerous attempts that have cost the Marina public water agency and its customers nearly three quarters of a million dollars, and probably more than that to Cal Am ratepayers.

On Oct. 26, three justices with the Sixth District Court of Appeal in San Jose ruled that a Marina Coast lawsuit alleging that the California Coastal Commission lacked jurisdiction and violated CEQA when it approved Cal Am's test well in November 2014, was "without merit."

In September 2014, after the Marina City Council denied Cal Am's application for a permit for its test well, Cal Am appealed the decision to the coastal commission, which approved the per-

Baby birdie

HAD SHE been a big, strong male, the avid golfers might have named their dog Bogey. But she's just a tiny terrier of some sort, so they went with Birdie.

They're not sure what their 4-pound pup is, but they believe Yorkshire terrier is in the mix. What they do know for sure – from the moment they saw her at the animal shelter – is that she was meant to be theirs.

"I'd never had a little dog before," her person said, "but I'm getting older, and I wanted a dog I could care for easily. I saw her on a rescue site on the internet and just fell in love with her little face. So, I drove three hours south to collect her and bring her back to Pebble Beach."

As cute as she is, particularly with her puppy cut, Birdie is a bit of a land shark, her person says. Her baby face inspires affection, but she bites.

"We called Andee Burleigh of Divine K9 to train and socialize Birdie," her person said. "Andee won her over, and now Birdie can't wait till she comes, but she hasn't transferred that affection to anyone else, except us."

Birdie's person has never been very adept at whistling, so she taught Birdie to comply with her commands by using a harmonica. "She won't come if I call her, but one blow on the harmonica and Birdie comes running."

Birdie loves to get outside with her person, but since she's so small, she's pretty vulnerable to hawks, big dogs, bikes, strollers and any other potential predators. Her person keeps her close and often tucks her into a rolling cart with a mesh front for ventilation and visibility.

"One bite, and Birdie would be gone," her person said. "So we protect her like a baby."

Council: No mixing in city hall

By MARY SCHLEY

THE IDEA of holding a chamber of commerce mixer in the council chambers at city hall was nixed by the Carmel City Council Tuesday, because it would present too many complications, violate too many city rules, and threaten the sanctity of the room where the town's most crucial decisions are made.

Although the proposal to hold a mixer with food and wine for 70 to 120 people from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on a Wednesday in November came from the chamber of commerce, city administrator Chip Rerig said he was responsible for bringing it to the council. He had hoped hosting an event like that would help further connect the community with its government, and thought it was a good idea. "In no way was I trying to violate the sanctity of this chamber," he said. "If you have direction for me to never, ever bring anything like this back in the future, I will listen."

Community activities director Janet Bombard had outlined the challenges of hosting such an event in city hall, including the facts that alcohol can't be served there, the maximum occupancy is 98 people (standing), city hall closes at 5 p.m., and a policy requires that the council chambers only be used by city departments and for public meetings.

Representing the chamber of commerce, realtor Ben Beesley said the business group and the city have had a relationship since the chamber was founded in 1922, and he "thought it would be fun to bring this together." He envisioned a mixer where people could obtain the city's unique high-heel permits and ask questions about their government. He said the number of attendees could be reduced and the hours could be changed to better accommodate city hall, and that he hadn't known about the policies against having a party there.

"I took this to Chip in September," he added. "Now it's cutting it a little close, with just a few weeks" left in November.

But all of that ended up being moot.

"I think it's well intentioned, but I think it's the wrong location," said councilwoman

Carolyn Hardy. "There's a reverence and respect that should be afforded the chamber where we conduct the city's business." She pointed out the only party held in council chambers is on election night every two years, when candidates and residents gather to hear the results. She also noted that allowing the mixer could provoke other similar requests.

Councilwoman Jan Reimers suspected there would be "hidden costs" in hosting a mixer there, and councilwoman Carrie Theis said building partnerships is important, "but I don't know if the chambers is the right place for this." She suggested a mixer at Sunset Center that might include showing the video made of the city's Oct. 29 centennial celebration and parade.

Councilman Bobby Richards said he supports the idea of bridge-building between the city and its residents and business owners, and that he saw the issues as more of "why nots than absolutely nots." He thought they might work the sticking points out in a way that would accommodate a mixer at city hall.

Mayor Steve Dallas said he was trying to come up with creative ideas but that holding the party there would mean "we have to open it up for everybody, and that's not what we want to do."

With that, the council voted to deny the proposal.

'In no way was I trying to violate the sanctity of this chamber.'

CONTENTIOUS DEBATE OVER SAN ANTONIO REMODEL FINALLY RESOLVED

By MARY SCHLEY

CLEARLY FRUSTRATED by having the protracted battle over a proposed Scenic Road house play out in front of them again, members of the Carmel City Council hammered out a compromise plan that both sides agreed to Tuesday.

The 2,072-square-foot, two-story house proposed by Art and Farah Chadwick and designed by architect Eric Miller to replace a boxy home on the west side of Scenic Road north of Eighth Avenue has been subjected to more than a half-dozen hearings, including several at the planning commission and two appeals to the council, due to the opposition to the Chadwicks' home from neighbors Simeon and Sally Yencken.

The council first heard the arguments in July, when the Yenckens appealed the planning commission's approval of the house. Council members sent it back to the planning commission to resolve, but the proposal ended up on the council's Nov. 1 agenda again after the Chadwicks' attorney, Anthony Lombardo, asked for a vote by the planning commission instead of having the hearing continued to another meeting. Commissioners wanted Miller to tweak the design of a window the Yenckens didn't like, and make further changes to the design, but after Lombardo requested a "yes" or "no" decision instead, the commission unanimously voted to deny the project.

But planning director Marc Wiener recommended the council side with the Chadwicks and approve their new home.

Miller told the council that all the other neighbors in the area approve of what the Chadwicks are trying to do.

"The only man standing is Simeon Yencken," he said. "And we feel we've worked through every possible issue. I've done this for 30 years and never made so many changes to a design."

But the Yenckens' attorney, Pam Silkwood, said the debate isn't about neighbor vs. neighbor.

"This is about views, privacy and architectural inconsistency," she said.

The city council, however, wasn't much interested in listening to further sparring.

"I am not pleased that this project has come back to the city council," Mayor Steve Dallas said, reminding both parties that he had said in July that he did not want to see the proposal again.

"I'm extremely disappointed that it's back here, too," added councilwoman Carrie Theis. "The fact the applicant demanded the planning commission make a vote does not put this in a good light for me."

And while she appreciated the fact Miller had made further changes to accommodate the neighbor, Theis said, it's not the council's job to design houses.

Soberanes Fire relief continues with online auction

■ Community Foundation has already written $300K in checks

By MARY SCHLEY

CONTRIBUTIONS TO the tune of more than $900,000 have poured into a relief fund for people whose lives were disrupted by the massive Soberanes Fire, and an online auction that runs through Nov. 11 is aiming to raise still more for victims of the fire.

About $300,000 of the money raised has already been distributed, according to an official with the Community Foundation for Monterey County, which collected the money, but more is needed.

The Soberanes Fire destroyed 57 homes, killed a firefighter, injured more than a dozen others, and caused widespread damage to wildlands. It was caused by an illegal campfire in Garrapata State Park, and the person responsible has yet to be identified.

The online auction, which is taking place at www.biddingforgood.com, offers such items for bidding as gift certificates for local restaurants like Terry's Lounge in the Cypress Inn, La Mia Cucina and Fandango in Pacific Grove, and the restaurants owned by the Pebble Beach Co. Also available are hotel stays at Hofsas House, Carmel Country Inn and the Carriage House, plus wine from various local producers, and adventures like a plane ride, a spa day, or a wine class at La Balena restaurant.

After the auction ends, funds raised will be added to the pool from which the community foundation is fulfilling the grants.

A special committee of board and community members reviews each application and makes funding recommendations for the Soberanes Fire fund.

"These dedicated volunteers have opened up the grant-making process to be truly community-driven and allow us to leverage the expertise of a larger group," and work with program officer Lynn Bentaleb, according to the fund's website. Committee members are Big Sur Health Center exec Sharen Carey, county planning commissioner Martha Diehl, Kirk Gafill, Jerri Hansen, Patte Kronlund, Ken Wright, Mark Verbonich, and 5th District County Supervisor Dave Potter's aide, Kathleen Lee.

The biggest recipient so far has been the Coast Property Owners Association, which has received $209,306.72 for relief to Big Sur evacuees and those who lost their homes in the fire, and for water and septic systems for uninsured or underinsured homeowners in Palo Colorado Canyon.

The Community Emergency Response Volunteers of the Monterey Peninsula received $30,000 to provide relief for displaced residents in Cachagua, Tassajara and Jamesburg, and the Mid-Coast Fire Brigade got $36,756.40 for water tanks and community signage.

The Boy Scouts received $18,000 for fire management and tree removal equipment at Camp Pico Blanco in Big Sur.

Besides participating in the auction, it's also possible to make an outright donation to the Soberanes Fire relief fund. For information about that, or on how to apply for a grant, visit the foundation's website at www.cfmco.org.

Vote Dan Miller for Mayor of Pacific Grove

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

As a life-long resident of Pacific Grove, I have spent over two decades participating in City Government. I have attended hundreds of meetings, first as a citizen's advocate, then as a Planning Commissioner and currently as a member of the City Council.

I am running for Mayor because I believe Pacific Grove needs someone at the helm who puts the best interests of Pacific Grove residents first. The current council and city staff lack the institutional knowledge that is needed for the City to run smoothly. The city council has put an emphasis on short term answers to long term problems. It has given up the community's residential character in return for short term rentals. The safety of the citizens and the infrastructure of the community has been sacrificed for big salaries and large pensions.

We must face the challenges of the present while not sacrificing the future. We must search for revenue enhancements that don't harm our community's values and lifestyle and support our business districts with resident serving stores.

As a resident advocate, businessman, past planning commissioner and current councilmember, I believe I have the skills and experience necessary to work toward these important goals. I respectfully ask for your vote.

Dan Miller*

Who will be your Mayor? Here's a few differences:

DAN MILLER

- Supported the Citizen's Initiative which would have controlled pension costs and was signed by over 1,500 residents of Pacific Grove.

- Voted against giving $100,000 from the city's street repair/replacement fund to the City of Monterey for their roundabout.

- Answered all the questions submitted by the Chamber of Commerce in an honest, detailed manner with the intent of informing voters as to where he stands.

- Supports bringing the fire department back to the city at a savings estimated to be at least $500,000 over the current contract with the City of Monterey.

- Supports Measure P as the only way to keep the city financially viable.

BILL KAMPE

- Sent the People's Initiative to court to keep it off the ballot costing the city's residents $600,000 in attorney fees. As a result we are now over $120 million in debt to the CalPERS pension plan.

- Supported giving $100,000 of city funds to help finance the roundabout, as if there aren't any streets in Pacific Grove that need paving.

- The only candidate running for office who refused to answer the Chamber of Commerce questionnaire outlining the important issues facing the city.

- The ONLY member of council to vote against going out for proposals to bring the fire department back to the city.

- Was initially for Measure P, then came out against it. Now, after many have voted, states he's voting for P, stating it is needed to keep the City afloat.

High school students travel to the bottom of the sea — and beyond

By ELAINE HESSER

DID YOU know that a large ocean has been discovered on Europa, one of the moons of Jupiter? Or that an unmanned submarine with NASA backing is plying the depths of Monterey Bay, partly in preparation for future exploration of places like Europa? Or that underwater robots are used to collect coral samples to check on the health of reefs in the Gulf of Mexico?

High school senior Montana Sprague of York School does, and she's had first-hand and hands-on experiences learning about all of that.

Sprague is a member of Sea Sweepers, a group of teens from Monterey County that competes annually in an underwater vehicle contest held by Marine Advanced Technology Education, an international organization headquartered at Monterey Peninsula College. In June 2016, Sea Sweepers took second place in the international finals, in a challenge that involved Earth's oceans and outer space.

MATE's stated mission is "to use marine technology to create interest in and improve science, technology, engineering, and math education, and to provide the marine technical workforce with well educated professionals." It's taxpayer-funded through grants from the National Science Foundation.

From across the nation

As part of its mission, MATE holds regional, national and international underwater robotics competitions, and during the 2016 international competition, Sprague and the other Sea Sweepers participated at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, competing against teams from across the country, and from other nations.

Each year's competition begins with MATE issuing a technical manual that contains a request for proposals, government lingo for describing a problem and asking businesses with a product or service that might solve that problem to submit their ideas.

This year, teams were challenged to cre-

Life aboard the International Space Station, and coming home afterward

■ Astronaut, NPS prof to appear at Sunset

By ELAINE HESSER

IT SEEMS people never tire of seeing their fellow humans soar. Whether it's watching a Wallenda traverse a wire strung high above the ground without a net, or watching Sully land a plane on the Hudson, everybody's fascinated by those who defy gravity.

That being the case, an upcoming talk at Sunset Center by retired astronaut and Navy Capt. Dan Bursch should be a pretty big draw. Bursch spent 196 days aboard the International Space Station in 2001 and 2002, and before that, he participated in three space shuttle missions.

Now an instructor at the Naval Postgraduate School, Bursch took a few minutes to talk with The Pine Cone about his experiences in space. While everyone has seen Hollywood depictions of what it's like to "blast off" — an incredibly noisy, bumpy ride followed by silence and zero gravity — almost nobody talks about what happens when astronauts come back.

Bursch said one of the first things they experience upon re-entry is nausea. He said a flight surgeon told him that whenever the human body encounters something it doesn't know how to process — like the inner ear detecting gravity for the first time in days or months — it assumes it's consumed a "bad berry," and immediately tries to empty the stomach.

Following that is more unpleasantness. "You can stand up, but it feels like labor," Bursch said. He also noted that an astronaut's arms "feel like they weigh 10 to 20 pounds." For a shuttle astronaut who's spent seven to 10 days in space, the effects last three to four hours. After six months aboard the ISS, however, they can last three to four days.

More pernicious is the bone loss, especially in the hip area, said Bursch. He explained that the large leg muscles become weak in the absence of gravity, and somehow the bones they attach to respond by "saying they don't need to be that strong, either." An astronaut can lose anywhere from 1 to 1.5 percent of bone density for every month in space.

He said that the interesting thing about that bone loss — he lost 10 percent while on the space station — is that a relatively young, healthy astronaut can recover all of that once back on Earth, while an older person with osteoporosis can't do so at all. Research into why that's so is one of the ways NASA's space exploration can benefit the Earth-bound.

Recently, scientists have also been paying attention to the amount of space debris that's been accumulating since Sputnik was launched in 1957. Although space is almost indescribably vast, many satellites occupy similar orbits, and humans have left a lot of satellites and other so-called "space junk" up there.

In fact, NASA says that there are more than 500,000 pieces of debris that are marble-sized or larger, traveling at 17,500 miles

A century of small-town charm, brought to life in a parade

(Clockwise from top) Former Mayor Clint Eastwood donned garb from some of his famous films to be grand marshal at Saturday's centennial parade, while the North Monterey County High School marching band kept the beat. Flanked by daughter Alex and wife Madeleine, Mayor Steve Dallas rode in a 1952 LaGonda driven by owner Dr. David Foster, who also brought his daughter. Members of the Carmel Woman's Club dressed as suffragettes and other protesters from earlier times in the city's history. And the crowd of 13,000 was reflected in the bell of a Sousaphone.

(Clockwise from above) Stevenson School's Pirates, led by the adorable duo of Lauren Rauber and Barak De La Rosa, made their way along the route, while Jack Galante – great-grandson of city founder J. Franklin Devendorf – and wife Dawn stretched their legs at the end of the route, as did the kid actors-turned-Dalmatians and their firefighter companions, along with real Dalmatian, Cooper. After the fabulous parade, Carmelites gathered in front of Sunset Center for a community lunch, and then (pictured) at a dance on Dolores Street, where Money Band guitarist Steve Moseley and his fellow musicians provided the tunes to keep everybody hopping and jiving.

Fairway One project in Pebble Beach moving rapidly

By KELLY NIX

THE CONSTRUCTION at the Lodge at Pebble Beach of luxury golf cottages, a large meeting complex and dozens of new guest rooms is progressing quickly and is on schedule to be completed in 2017, Pebble Beach Company officials told The Pine Cone.

Construction on the Fairway One project — part of the Pebble Beach Company's final buildout plan approved by the California Coastal Commission in May 2012 — has moved rapidly in the past few weeks. The foundations have been poured and some of the buildings are framed. Construction began in April.

The development, located adjacent to the 1st fairway of the Pebble Beach Golf Links, will include a 38 new hotel rooms, bringing the total number of rooms at The Lodge to 199. There will be 30 guest rooms in three two-story buildings, with five rooms per floor; and two standalone four-bedroom golf cottages. The cottages front the 1st fairway and each includes a 1,000 square-foot living room, David Stivers,

FIRE PITS GONE AND WOOD FIRES AT BEACH BANNED UNTIL SPRING

By MARY SCHLEY

WITH HIGH surf in the forecast for Thursday, public works crews on Wednesday used a backhoe to pick up and take away the steel fire pits that had been placed on the beach over the summer. And with that, the wintertime prohibition on wood fires took effect.

“The city-sponsored wood-burning devices have been removed for the season,” explained public works director Rob Mullane, who said they were subsequently cleaned and stored at public works. “Therefore, there are no wood fires on the beach until those devices are installed sometime in the spring,” after the bulk of winter storms has passed and the beach is wide enough to accommodate them at least 75 feet from the bluffs.

Propane OK

In the meantime, people can use their own propane devices to have fires on the sand. They're allowed on the beach south of Eighth Avenue any day between 4 and 10 p.m., as long as they're at least 25 feet away from the hillside. “We want to do a thorough job of contacting vendors in the area to encourage them to carry the propane units and to make them aware only the propane units will be allowed for next five or six months,” Mullane added. “And if anyone decides to rent them out, we can also include that information on our website. We hope there’s a fair amount of use of propane over the winter, so people can see how they work and perform.”

Then, starting in mid-March, public works crews will begin monitoring the beach, as well as the long-range forecast, to see when the steel pits should be reinstalled for the summer, he said. While the city’s rules allow for up to a dozen of the fire rings, they’ll be placed on the beach in phases, depending on where the space and conditions allow it.

MONTEREY COUNTY PROSECUTOR SAYS PROP. 57 WOULD ENDANGER PUBLIC

By KELLY NIX

AMONG THE myriad state propositions before voters next week is one that would allow early release for felons from state prison if they were convicted of “nonviolent crimes” — a plan designed to save taxpayers money but which Monterey County District Attorney Dean Flippo and others say would mean the release of dangerous criminals back into society.

Proposition 57 would also permit judges, instead of prosecutors, to determine whether juveniles 14 and older should be prosecuted as adults for certain crimes.

The authors of the proposition, including Gov. Jerry Brown, contend that if it’s approved, it would “save tens of millions of taxpayer dollars by reducing wasteful prison spending, and break the cycle of crime by rehabilitating deserving juvenile and adult inmates.” They also promise it would “keep dangerous criminals behind bars.”

But Flippo, the California District Attorneys Association, the San Francisco Police Officers Association and other opponents contend it would mean a rise in crime and make communities less safe.

“We have not had the time to evaluate how many Monterey County inmate felons would be eligible for consideration of release,” Flippo told The Pine Cone. “Given the types of serious and violent crimes that Monterey County defendants have been convicted of, we have no doubts that if the initiative passes, we will have some inmates receiving early release to our county.”

The county has two prisons: Salinas Valley State Prison and Soledad Correctional Training Facility. Combined, the prisons house about 7,000 inmates.

Opponents of Prop. 57 have also taken aim at its ballot language, which states the law would only apply to “nonviolent” offenders.

However, the crimes deemed “nonviolent,” include rape by intoxication, rape of an unconscious person, human trafficking involving a sex act with minors, drive-by shootings, assault with a deadly weapon, “attempting to explode a bomb at a hospital or school,” lewd acts against a child of 14 or 15 years old and many others crimes, they say.

“Thousands of dangerous criminals have already been released early, and we are paying the price,” opponents say. “The violent crime rate was up 10 percent last year, and rape up 37 percent. Prop. 57 would authorize the immediate release of thousands of dangerous criminals.”

The Yes on 57 campaign, which also includes the Chief Probation Officers of California, warns against what they say are “false attacks” from opponents and argues the proposition does “not automatically release anyone from prison,” and does “not authorize parole for violent offenders,” and “does not diminish victims’ rights.”

Proposition 57 is a continuation of the transformation of the state’s criminal justice system to cut costs by reducing the prison population. The move began with 2011 legislation (AB 109), which reduced the prison population by making more than 500 felony offenses no longer punishable with state prison and directing them to county jails.

Before AB 109, Flippo explained that crime rates were at an all-time low because of the Three Strikes Law, and public and legislative responses that held defendants accountable for their crimes.

“Since 2011, much of the state has experienced increases in violence and increases in property crimes which has obviously impacted the quality of life in our communities,” Flippo said. “And there could be a corresponding increase in felonious conduct if Prop 57 passes.”

P.B. hearing and workshop revive vacation rental debate

BY CHRIS COUNTS

A COUPLE that wants to rent out their Pebble Beach home to short-term visitors has run into a buzzsaw of opposition from neighbors and the Pebble Beach Company.

Because the homeowners have applied for a permit for the rental, and a neighbor is asking for a public hearing, the Monterey County Planning Commission will take up the case at its next meeting Wednesday, Nov. 9, in Salinas.

The hearing isn't the only item on the agenda that pertains to short-term rentals. The planning commission will also host a workshop on the thorny subject, which has pitted neighbor against neighbor as some contend the practice constitutes a legitimate use of a home, while others argue it's not appropriate for a residential area.

Staff changes mind

The Pebble Beach home, which is owned by Jeremy and Leah Hill, is located at 3097 Sloat Road.

While just one of their neighbors requested the hearing, county planner Joe Sidor told The Pine Cone others expressed concerns the Hills' business is having an adverse affect on their neighborhood.

A staff report indicates they are worried short-term rentals will diminish the character of the neighborhood and create noise, parking problems and traffic. The neighbors also complained the business lacks onsite supervision.

County planning staff recommended in July that the permit be approved with several conditions, such as limiting the house to a maximum of nine occupants. But planners have reversed their position since, and now they're recommending denial of the permit because they've determined the Pebble Beach Company is similar to a homeowners association.

"The current ordinance states that if a homeowners association objects, the county will not issue a permit until the objection is withdrawn," Sidor explained.

The Pebble Beach Company submitted a letter stating its position on vacation rentals, and the statement sheds a light on the company's changing views on the subject.

"Historically, the PBC has remained neutral regarding STRs," the letter reads. "There were a small number of STR permits issued by the county, and the PBC received few complaints. However, the advent of AirBnB and other rental companies, the growth in STRs, and the increase of neighborhood complaints have all caused the PBC to reconsider its neutral position."

Public gets chance to sound off

The county is trying to create an ordinance that would allow, but regulate, short-term rentals — and the Nov. 9 workshop will give the public an opportunity to learn more about it and make comments. Three public workshops have been scheduled, and the first one happened July 13.

Eventually, the board of supervisors will vote on the ordinance, but it's unclear when. The meeting starts at 9 a.m. in the board of supervisors chambers. The county government building is located at 168 W. Alisal.

Thieves break into P.G. Youth Center, St. Angela's Church

By MARY SCHLEY

BURGLARS HIT a youth center, a church and a marine research facility in Pacific Grove, all within days of each other last week, and police are asking for help identifying the culprits.

While news broke Oct. 25 of the break-in at Hopkins Marine Station, where someone got inside the Ocean View Boulevard building the previous night or early that morning, ransacked the lab and stole a few possessions, surveillance video taken of an intruder at the youth center the evening of Oct. 26 was released by police this week, as officers also sought people's assistance in figuring out who the suspect is. "The police department is asking the community's assistance in identifying the male. Video surveillance shows what appears to be a white male, early 20s, with a thin build," police officials said in a Nov. 2 statement.

"We believe the suspect went through a window and left through the same window," said Cmdr. Rory Lakind, and the only item the burglar took from the youth center, which is located on 16th Street, was an Xbox. The surveillance video from the break-in can be seen on the department's Twitter page @PacificGrovePD.

A few days earlier, someone broke into St. Angela's Church on Lighthouse Avenue and absconded with money and laptop computers, according to Lakind. "The burglary was discovered on Monday morning, Oct. 24," he said. "We are not sure of the time of the crime." Police believe the suspect went through a window.

Anyone with information about any of these burglaries should call PGPD at (831) 648-3143 or the anonymous tip line at (831) 648-3159.

Give a Centennial Tree for Christmas

THROUGHOUT THE year, donors who want to make a lasting difference in Carmel have been paying to plant Centennial Trees in honor of their loved ones and in commemoration of events.

The nonprofit Friends of Carmel Forest has been offering the trees all year in celebration of the city's hundredth birthday, and proponents say they would make excellent, special holiday gifts.

Purchasers have the choice of one of three native species — Monterey pine, Monterey cypress or California coastal oak — that will be professionally planted within the city and monitored for five years to ensure survival. Each tree will have a marker noting a number, year and any personal dedication, and all of the Centennial Trees are plotted on the map available at carmelforest.org.

Donor levels range from $250 to $100,000, depending on benefits and location, and Forest Friends President Maria Sutherland said the trees are helping to replenish some of the 2,000 trees lost over the years to drought, age, illness and construction.

"Our mission is to ensure that our forest continues to be an essential part of the Carmel experience for the next 100 years, and beyond," she said.

All funds raised through the Centennial Tree campaign are being donated to the environmental, social and governance fund of the Community Foundation for Monterey County, "to restore and maintain Carmel's famous forest."

School district refinances bonds to save $3.2M

WITH $19 million in outstanding bonds that voters approved in 2000 and 2005 for improvements at all of the campuses within the Carmel Unified School District, district officials have been vigilant about lowering the costs of paying off that debt whenever possible. Six years ago, they got the bonds refinanced, saving taxpayers $2.4 million over the life of the bonds, and on Oct. 20, they successfully completed another refinancing to save even more money. "This refunding will reduce repayment requirements on the district's bonds by approximately $3.2 million in total through 2032," according to district officials, or $17.24 per $100,000 of taxable property over that period of time. As a result, the per-household savings is estimated at $210.

The district also affirmed its superlative AAA credit rating from Standard & Poor's, which "recognizes the district's very strong general fund reserves, sound fiscal management, significant revenue flexibility resulting from the generosity of our community, strong real estate values, and low debt levels." The high rating ensures the best interest rates on bonds.

■ MHS students stage 'The Crucible'

A student production of Arthur's Miller's Tony Award-winning play, "The Crucible," opens Friday, Nov. 4, at the Monterey High School Theater.

Directed by Alicia Welch, the play tells a story that's set in the midst of the Salem witch trials of 1692-93. Miller wrote it as a retort to the House Un-American Activities Committee, which investigated cases of subversion among private citizens, public employees and organizations suspected of having Communist ties. At the time, the U.S. government had been infiltrated by many spies working on behalf of Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin. Miller was later found guilty of contempt of Congress for refusing to cooperate with the committee, although the ruling was later overturned.

"The Crucible" also plays Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 5-6, and Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 11-13. Friday and Saturday shows start at 7:30 p.m., while Sunday matinees begin at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults, $7 for seniors and Monterey high school teachers, and $5 for students and active military. The high school is located at 101 Herrmann Drive.

Livingston named 'Bohemian of Year'

By CHRIS COUNTS

ONE HUNDRED years after real-life Bohemians meandered along the bumpy dirt roads of Carmel, roasted abalone on the beach and savored the joys of red wine, community leader and land use activist Barbara Livingston was named the town's first Bohemian of the Year — an unlikely choice that surprised many, including Livingston herself.

Pacific Repertory Theatre came up with the prize, and the nonprofit theater group will honor Livingston Sunday, Oct. 6, at the Golden Bough Theatre. The ceremony and reception start at 7 p.m.

We're all Bohemians

A familiar face and voice at city council meetings and land use hearings, Livingston has worked for decades to preserve the historical character of Carmel, often lobbying against remodels and new construction. A 1946 graduate of Carmel High School, Livingston served on the city council from 1992 to 2004. Besides leading the charge against unwanted development, she has shared her time with just about every nonprofit group on the Monterey Peninsula. She was named Citizen of the Year by the Carmel Residents Association in 2005.

While her resume of civic participation is impressive, Livingston was surprised to learn she had been named PacRep's inaugural Bohemian of the Year.

"I was very pleased at first, but a little skeptical," said Livingston, who is known more as a stickler for procedure and protocol than an anti-establishmentarian. "Then [PacRep executive director] Stephen Moorer read me the definition of 'Bohemian,' and it made a little more sense."

According to the dictionary, a Bohemian "is a person living an unconventional life, usually in a colony with others." While the word was created to poetically describe the residents of Bohemia — which is now part of Czechoslovakia — it was more commonly used to identify Gypsies, and by the late 19th century, artists and writers who had adopted an alternative lifestyle.

Livingston said she has quite few things in common with Carmel's first residents, who were widely referred to as Bohemians.

"I am a bit unconventional in my lifestyle," she said, going down a list of characteristics commonly associated with Bohemians. "I like to share laughter and storytelling with friends over many bottles of red wine. I share their great love for the arts, and most of all, I share their appreciation of the beauty of this place — especially the trees. All of us who live here find ourselves under the same spell as the Bohemians. I think we all have a little Bohemian in each of us. I'm deeply honored to be the first Bohemian of the Year."

Tickets to Sunday's ceremony and reception are $25. The Golden Bough is located on Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth. Call (831) 622-0100.

Pride, family and submarine sandwiches — Jersey Shore style

By DENNIS TAYLOR

LIFE IS largely about finding a great sandwich, according to Terry Teplitzky, who ought to know.

Teplitzky and three brothers grew up in Atlantic City, N.J. with a beach for a backyard, the Boardwalk just beyond their front porch, and world-class sandwich shops only a few strides away, wherever they wandered.

Teplitzky eventually wandered afar — all the way to the West Coast, where, in 1983, he married Monterey native Cristina Fekeci and found everything he wanted ... almost.

“When I came here, I discovered that if you slice up any kind of meat and slap it between two slices of bread, you can call yourself a deli,” said the 61-year-old former Carmel man (he lived at 11th and Lincoln, then San Carlos and Vista), who now lives in the Las Palmas subdivision of Salinas. “That’s not what I was used to.”

A chef by profession, Teplitzky has spent most of nearly four decades in Monterey County trying to satisfy that hunger. After working previously at various hospitality venues along Monterey Bay, he became owner/operator of Michael’s Catering in 1997. In 2002, in Marina, he opened Wild Thyme Deli and Café.

And last year, after convincing his two surviving brothers to relocate, the Teplitzkys christened Boardwalk Sub Shop, an authentic, Atlantic City-style sandwich restaurant at 470 Alvarado St. in Monterey.

Brother Howard, 57, moved north from Temecula. J.T. came from Connecticut. Both had been lifetime employees of the casino industry before partnering with Terry. Now, they feel like they’ve brought a slice of Jersey-style sandwich heaven to the Central Coast.

Bread is the key

Business there is booming, but it was a long time coming. In fact, owning a restaurant together had been a dream of the Teplitzky brothers for much of their adult lives.

“Our oldest brother, Victor, died two-and-a-half years ago,” Terry said. “We were sitting around at his memorial service when one of us said, ‘You know, we really should have opened up that sub shop.’ That’s when I jumped and said, ‘Look, either we do it, or we stop talking about it.’”

What the Teplitzkys imported from Atlantic City, they say, is tradition. They roast all of their meats daily. All vegetables are fresh. They make their own cheese. But the real magic, they say, is in the bread.

“The secret is the water on the East Coast. Nobody can duplicate it,” Terry said. “Same thing with the New York pizza: It’s the water they use to make the dough.”

The bread is so important, say the Teplitzkys, that they flew it coast-to-coast via overnight mail on five different occasions, each time dropping it off at Palermo Bakery in Seaside.

“We took it to their bakers and said, ‘Make this ... this is how we want it,’” J.T. said. “So they’d bake some, we’d taste it, and say, ‘OK, that’s good ... now do this.’ Finally, we got the exact roll we wanted — the taste, the texture, everything.”

“It’s a great feeling when a local, or some tourist, comes in here and says, ‘I’m from back East. I know what a Philly cheesesteak is, and this is the real deal,’” Howard added.

Diving bell

The recipes for the sandwiches at Boardwalk Sub Shop — Jersey and Philly cheesesteaks, Italian sausage, meatball, pepper and egg, Jersey Italian (20 in all) — come straight from an idyllic childhood, the brothers say.

Their parents owned and operated the iconic Teplitzky’s Hotel on Pacific Avenue (it’s a green property on your Monopoly board), one of five kosher hotels in Atlantic City during the heyday of the Boardwalk — and long before casinos came to dominate the city’s skyline.

“A lot of the contestants in the Miss America Pageant stayed at our hotel every year, and we grew up with that, which always made life more interesting for a family with four boys,” Terry said.

When they weren’t helping at the hotel or its restaurant, the brothers were typically left to their own devices in a place that came alive every summer like no other city in America. They spent their days at the beach (“the best babysitter in the world,” said Howard). They explored the Boardwalk at night, all the way down to Steel Pier, a wonderland of arcade games, big-name entertainment (Artie Shaw, Glenn Miller, Frank Sinatra and the rest of the Rat Pack, and Tony Grant’s Stars of Tomorrow stage show), and unique attractions.

They have fond memories of the famous diving bell, which dropped 20 feet into the sea.

“I never met a single person who saw a single thing down there, except maybe some seaweed, but I absolutely loved it because it felt like an adventure,” Terry said.

There was also the Diving Horse, which, seven days a week, up to four times a day, would plummet 40 feet into a 12-foot pool with a swimsuit-clad woman on its back.

“The Boardwalk was miles and miles,” Howard said. “You’d just walk and take in the different sights and smells — the food, the people and the stores, from high-end boutiques for the ladies to knickknack shops for the tourists.”

Ed McMahon, Johnny Carson’s famous sidekick, got his start there as a barker outside of a booth that sold kitchen gadgets, Terry remembered.

mit. Marina Coast filed suit against the coastal commission, challenging the agency's permit but lost in superior court in August 2015. The Marina water agency then filed an appeal with the Sixth District appellate court.

In last week's decision, justices determined that the coastal commission did have jurisdiction to hear the appeal since the Marina City Council's "denial of the application was a final action and there was a substantial issue as to conformity with the city's [Local Coastal Program]."

"We have also determined that Marina Coast failed to show that the coastal commission violated CEQA in approving Cal Am's permit for the test well," the ruling by justices Patricia Bamattre-Manoukian, Franklin D. Elia and Nathan D. Mihara said.

Cal Am's $10 million test well will determine the feasibility of slant wells for its larger proposed desal operation to supply water to the Monterey Peninsula and stop the company's illegal diversions from the Carmel River. The company earlier this year declared the test well a success and said slant wells will work for the company's much larger proposed desal plant, also in Marina.

Big legal bill

Marina Coast general manager Keith Van Der Maaten told The Pine Cone that the total amount spent on litigation related to opposing Cal Am's test well amounts to about $695,000.

"What is important for your readers to know is that [Marina Coast supports] ocean desal, just not at the currently proposed location" at the Cemex property in Marina, Van Der Maaten said. "Our real focus is to ensure the groundwater remains a viable source of supply for the Marina and Ord Communities for current and future generations."

Marina Coast contends that Cal Am's test well will pump groundwater from the Salinas Valley Groundwater Basin from which Marina also pumps its groundwater.

Van Der Maaten told The Pine Cone in late September that a hydrogeologist it hired analyzed the test well data and found three "important" conclusions, including that the test well is pumping "more than double the amount of groundwater that Cal Am predicted and represented to the coastal commission and the public."

Cal Am spokesman Kevin Tilden refuted Marina Coast's arguments.

"There is no basis for this claim nor is it clear how they are coming up with this," Tilden told The Pine Cone. "Further, there was no prediction made by Cal Am to the amount of groundwater pumped by the test well to the coastal commission or public."

Van Der Maaten also said that the Marina aquifers where Cal Am is drawing the test well water have a "significantly less seawater intrusion" than Cal Am and the coastal commission "assumed."

Tilden said that while two Cal Am monitoring wells are in an area that has less salt water, those wells are "well beyond the capture zone of the test slant well." He also said Cal Am didn't make assumptions about water quality and pointed to the boreholes the company drilled to glean information prior to installing the test well.

"Seawater intrusion has been going on for decades and extends miles inland," he said.

Finally, Van Der Maaten alleged that the water levels in aquifers near the test well have dropped "two to three feet at the project's compliance monitoring well location since test well pumping resumed in May."

Tilden said the drop is due to seasonal declines that have been documented since the test well began operating, and that MCWD's claim was an attempt to "cherry pick data to develop fake controversy."

Marina Coast, which has lost numerous other legal challenges to Cal Am's well.

Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Stedman said the company wouldn't disclose the amount its spent to defend the test well until after its larger desal plant is operating, but said Marina Coast's ongoing legal efforts have "wasted an enormous amount of time, effort and expense for Marina Coast customers and our customers."

ambulance that were already on scene were a half-dozen others, including Monterey's ladder truck and a Cal Fire engine from Rio Road, all of which were summoned shortly after 9 p.m. Oct. 30. Panholzer also responded, and Division Chief Jim Brown took charge of coordinating the efforts to put out the fire.

"It's nice that PG&E was right on scene and was able to disconnect the power quickly at the pole," which eliminated the problem of the arcing lines that had been hampering firefighters' efforts to get into the house and attack the fire, according to Panholzer.

"Initially, there was a risk in getting too close to the house," he said. "But we made interior access fairly quickly after finding a way to do it safely."

Unfortunately, when fire crews checked the rest of the home after putting out the blaze, they discovered the body of the dog in a back bedroom. While access to the outdoors had been provided for the pet, and also for a cat that was still missing the following day, the dog, named Porthos after one of the Three Musketeers, had apparently hidden in a bedroom, where he succumbed to smoke inhalation.

Art Black, who lives nearby and is friends with the homeowners, Tom and Jennifer Atkinson, came to check on the dog and see if he needed to take custody of Porthos because of the fire. He learned the sad news from firefighters on scene and told The Pine Cone their dogs had walked in the parade together the day before.

Tom Atkinson arrived around 10:30 p.m., according to Panholzer. "He was very, very sad," he said. "You could tell he was very affected."

A connection?

Panholzer suspected the downed tree and power line just up the street could be connected to the fire, since line damage can result in the neutral wire getting disconnected, which would send an unchecked 220-volt current through the home. That sort of surge can melt wires and cause appliances to smoke. "The fire started in the area where the electrical service comes into the house," Panholzer said. "You lose the neutral wire, and you have the 220 running throughout the house — a situation that can be very dangerous," although it is quite uncommon.

Monterey Fire Marshal David Reade, who was called to investigate the fire, also noted that the power line leading to the home had been repaired by PG&E just a couple of weeks earlier, after it was ripped out by a passing truck.

The chief roughly estimated the damage at around $100,000 and said the Atkinsons' insurance company will send an investigator of its own to conduct a thorough assessment of the wreckage and further narrow down the cause, if possible.

As for the explosion that alerted firefighters to the problem in the first place, Reade speculated it was either the barbecue's propane tank or an aerosol can.

"Had the crew not been in the area, it would have been a lot worse," he said.

Mammoth talk at P.G. Museum

PALEOGENOMICS. IT doesn't quite trip off the tongue, but it's the topic of Dr. Beth Shapiro's Nov. 6 talk at 3 p.m. at the P.G. Museum of Natural History. Shapiro, a professor and researcher at UC Santa Cruz, wrote a book called "How to Clone a Mammoth," that was published in 2015. She'll discuss the science of "de-extincting" species that have vanished from the earth using DNA from bones and other fossil remains.

In addition to discussing the "how" of bringing back the passenger pigeon or the woolly mammoth, Shapiro will talk about the "why" — and whether scientists should attempt to do so.

While anyone who's seen "Jurassic Park" would immediately answer, "Oh, heck no," to that last question, Shapiro makes the argument that while extinction is often a natural process, reintroducing some species might be good for the earth.

In her book, she noted, "More than 99 percent of species that have ever lived are now extinct," and that extinction is most often the choice of natural selection. Winning species live on, and losing species die off.

The lecture will last 90 minutes, and is free for museum members and $5 for non-members. The PG Museum of Natural History is located at 165 Forest Ave. For more information, call (831) 648-5716, or visit pgmuseum.org.

Boil order lifted for C.V. Village

CALIFORNIA AMERICAN Water Wednesday cancelled an advisory to boil water for residents who live in the Carmel Valley Village area.

On Monday, the water company advised residents to boil water before consuming after a water main break caused low water pressure. The areas under the advisory were from Los Laureles Lodge to San Clemente Drive, including the Sleepy Hollow subdivision. Cal Am crews repaired the main break and tested water quality samples, which showed the damaged valve had not affected the water quality, Cal Am said.

"We apologize for this interruption in service and thank our customers in the Village for their understanding and patience," Cal Am general manager Eric Sabolsice added.

associated with other Super PACs that have been the target of complaints “centered on illegally coordinating with campaigns, filing inaccurate tax returns and violating campaign finance laws.” American Freedom Builders Action Network is not among those groups.

Lucius — who found about Panetta’s press release from The Pine Cone Wednesday morning — brushed it off and pointed to the roughly $291,000 in contributions Panetta has received from dozens of political action committees, many of them based in Washington D.C.

According to financial disclosures filed with the FEC, of the $1.2 million in contributions Panetta has received since he kicked off his campaign in late 2015, about $291,000 of which came from political action committees. Lucius has received a fundraising total of $396,000 since she announced her candidacy in June 2015, of which $7,250 came from PACs.

Panetta “said he supports Hillary Clinton and agrees with her on all issues,” said Lucius, 40. “Hillary Clinton has a Super PAC that has raised $500 million. I would be curious if he would also repudiate that.”

Lucius offered a motive for her opponent’s decision to focus on her support from the conservative group.

“I think he is probably feeling threatened because he is being challenged in a way he didn’t anticipate in this campaign,” she said. “And I’m sure having a PAC come in and support me with independent expenditures surprised him.”

‘Shatter the glass ceiling’

Lucius, who is also from Ohio, said she doesn’t know anything about the conservative group supporting her but has seen the TV commercial and “loves it.”

“Our community has never sent a woman to Congress,” the ad says. “Let’s make history, let’s shatter the glass ceiling. Let’s send Casey Lucius to Congress.” It goes on to say that Lucius “supports a woman’s right to choose, marriage equality, equal pay and enhanced family leave.”

Super PACs can spend unlimited funds supporting or opposing federal election candidates but are prohibited from donating directly to candidates or parties. Candidates are barred from coordinating with such groups.

Panetta said that the support Lucius is receiving from the conservative group “is exactly why I have the support of End Citizens United, which is fighting to reform our campaign finance system.”

Meanwhile, both candidates told The Pine Cone they’re making last-minute pushes ahead of the election, speaking to groups and going door-to-door to talk to voters. Both said they’re confident of their chances on Nov. 8.

“We have run a campaign that we are very proud of because we have stayed on point and we haven’t had to find ourselves in the campaign,” Panetta told The Pine Cone. “We have always known the issues and who we are, and [the voters] have gotten to know me. That is going to lead to our success next week.”

On Monday, Lucius shot a TV commercial with Gerald Daugherty, a commissioner from Travis County, Texas, whose humorous and self-deprecating political TV ad has become an internet sensation. Lucius said she and Daugherty met through friends.

“I feel really good going into the election,” she said. “I’ve presented a credible challenge to the Panetta establishment, people see me as a serious and qualified candidate, and I’ve worked really hard. I think I have a good chance of winning this!”

FAIRWAY

Pebble Beach Company executive vice president and chief administrative officer told The Pine Cone.

"This will be the first time we've had golf cottages at the Lodge, so we're really excited about that," Stivers said.

"Fairway One provides guests with oversized guest rooms and bathrooms, a greater sense of privacy, as well as signature amenities and the renowned service that guests have come to expect from The Lodge at Pebble Beach," according to the company's promotional materials.

All of the oversized rooms will feature vaulted ceilings, wood-burning fireplaces, large-screen TVs, bars, and outdoor terraces with fire pits.

Also under construction is the Fairway One Meeting Facility, which will have more than 6,000 square feet of meeting spaces, including a boardroom, informal reception room and large meeting room. While the Pebble Beach Club's main dining room has long been a desirable spot for wedding receptions, dinner functions and other events, the new complex — from the sound of it — will give it a run for its money.

The complex is "a 2,500-square-foot main meeting room, with floor-to-ceiling views of the 1st fairway," Stivers said. "It will be another great meeting venue for the Lodge — great for wedding receptions and group events."

The Pebble Beach Company demolished the Fairway One House and a private residence to make way for the new development. The general contractor for the project is Swinerton Builders.

"Work is on schedule, and we expect it will be completed in late July 2017," Stivers said. "So far, everything has been going great."

The Pebble Beach Company's final buildout plan also includes a new hotel at Spyglass Hill, more hotel rooms at Spanish Bay, new equestrian center facilities and parking spaces. The project also calls for the development of about 90 single-family residential lots and the preservation of 635 acres of forested open space including large stands of Monterey Pines.

So, what happens to trash from the space station? Bursch explained that once the unmanned cargo ships that supply the space station are unloaded, the astronauts fill them up with all the trash and undock them, and they fall back into Earth's atmosphere.

"They burn up over the Indian Ocean," he said.

SHIRLYN G. BRIEN

Longtime Carmel resident Shirlyn G. Brien passed away peacefully at his home on July 22 at age 96. Born in San Bernardino, CA on October 21, 1919, Mr. Brien grew up in the San Gabriel Valley east of Los Angeles when it was still agricultural in nature.

He attended the University of Southern California, graduating with a degree in accounting in June 1941. He went to work for Price Waterhouse but resigned shortly after the United States entered World War II to join the Navy. He was sent first to the Pacific Theater, then was transferred to the Naval Air Station at Quonset Point, Rhode Island.

After the war ended he decided to pursue his lifelong interest in the fine arts, and was accepted into the Master's Program at Harvard University. While completing his postgraduate degree in the History of Art, Mr. Brien met and later married fellow student Anne Chafee.

In the summer of 1951 he was offered a teaching position at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, New York, and lived there with his wife and family until 1965. Wanting to return to California, Mr. Brien moved his family to Santa Barbara where he remained for a decade, continuing to teach part-time. Succumbing to the charms of Carmel, the Briens moved north in the fall of 1975.

Following his wife's sudden death in 1982, Mr. Brien became active at St. Mary's by the Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove, where he served on the vestry and sang in the choir. His later years were spent quietly at home. He is survived by two daughters, a son-in-law and a grandson.

Rose Amy Nelson Silva

February 20, 1924 ❖ October 26, 2016

Rose was born and raised in Dresser, Wisconsin on a small farm. Her parents were Herbert and Emma Nelson. After high school graduation she resided in Minneapolis until leaving to serve in the SPARS of the United States Coast Guard during World War II. During that time she was stationed in West Palm Beach, FL, New York City and San Francisco. She met her future husband Donald Silva, also serving in the Coast Guard, in San Francisco and were married in August of 1946.

After their marriage they settled in San Francisco where she worked in banking while her husband worked as a professional baseball umpire for the Pacific Coast League. Baseball took them all over the east coast and the mid-west.

When their daughter was five, they settled down permanently in the San Jose area and bought an insulation business that they transformed into a carpet and drapery business. After over twenty years they moved to the Monterey Peninsula.

Rose and Don became active members of Monterey Peninsula Country Club for many years. While golf kept Don busy, Rose needed an outlet and earned her real estate and broker's license. She became an owner of Real Estate by the Sea in Carmel until it was sold and then a realtor for Del Monte Realty/Coldwell Banker in Pebble Beach for 23 years. Through real estate she made many wonderful friendships including Carol Winningham, Burt and Pamela Harris.

Rose and her husband enjoyed extensive travels including golf throughout Europe and South Africa. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in Lanai.

Rose is survived by her daughter Karen McInchak of Carmel, grandson Kevin (Misty) McInchak and great-grandsons Codey, Kenneth and Logan of Mt. Vernon, Washington; sister Adelaide Akerlund of Chisago City, Minnesota as well as many nieces, nephews and cousins stateside and in Norway and Sweden.

Rose's parents, siblings Myrtle Doane, Lillian Olson, Tom Nelson, Herbert Nelson and son-in-law Steven McInchak preceded her in death.

Rose was a member of St. Timothy Lutheran Church. No formal public service is planned. The family thanks you for any gift to your chosen charity.

"I'm not sure which way to go on this, but I know I don't want to tell them how to build their house," councilman Bobby Richards commented.

Councilwoman Carolyn Hardy said she'd had enough, and

The upstairs deck was reduced in size, the bay window on the right was removed, and other changes were made to accommodate the neighbors of this future Scenic Road home.

she recommended a list of changes to the design in order to find a compromise. "I'm upset the applicants did not allow the planning commission to implement the input that the city council gave, but I'm not inclined to send it back to the planning commission," she said. "I feel it's time to take the matter back into our own hands."

Hardy recommended several changes to appease the Yenckens' concerns about privacy, including reducing the size of a second-story deck so it doesn't extend along the full length of the house, and eliminating the bay windows on the west side and a south-facing bedroom window on the second story. She also wanted divided-light windows.

At last, a compromise

In response, Miller offered some compromises, which Silkwood began to counter, at which point Dallas suggested the council take a five-minute break so the attorneys, architects and neighbors could meet out an agreement.

When they returned, everyone agreed to reduce the deck size as suggested by Hardy, get rid of the bay window closest to the Yenckens, and reduce the south-facing window to 27 inches by 60 inches.

The council unanimously voted to approve the revised plans, which will return next month on the consent agenda for a final OK. Councilwoman Jan Reimers recused herself, because she voted on the project when she was a planning commissioner.

LUCY A. CAREY

Lucy Carey passed away peacefully surrounded by her loving family October 14, 2016 in Pacific Grove, Ca. She was 93 years old. Lucy was born July 31, 1923 in Los Angeles, CA and was very proud of being a native Californian. She grew up during the Great Depression in Los Angeles and shared many stories about this critical time in our history. During wartime she worked as a 'Rosie the Riveter' at North American Aviation making planes for WWII. She loved to dance especially the jitterbug and as a young girl she danced often at The Hollywood Palladium, the most popular dance venue in the 1940's, enjoying great bands such as Tommy Dorsey as well as Frank Sinatra, at the start of his career. At the age of 90 she danced at The Lido in Paris.

In addition, to her love of dancing she was a very proud Democrat and had the privilege of shaking hands with Presidents Kennedy and Clinton as well as seeing President Johnson. She was an expert seamstress and created her daughters wardrobes while they were growing up.

Since she grew up in Southern California she loved the ocean and had the luxury of living in Hawaii for many years.

The love of her life was her husband, Charles (Chuck) Carey who she married September 29, 1946 right after the war. They were married for 46 years. During their life together they lived in Los Angeles, Fresno, Visalia, San Carlos, Hawaii and Sacramento. After Chuck passed away in 1992, Lucy created a new life for herself. She donated time at the American Cancer Store and made new friends who led her back to her love of dancing. She spent the remainder of her life dancing and traveling with her good friend, Al Dennis, of Citrus Heights.

Lucy is survived by her daughters Christine Carter and Linda Carey Kunnath; sons in law Robert Carter and Richard Kunnath; grandchildren Matthew Kelly, his wife Julie, and Ryan Kelly, his wife Jessica; great grandchildren Will and Drew Lamora, Karlee and Ben Kelly and a large extended Family; Michael, Rosemarie, Quinn, Emma, and Sarah Carter; Cole, Kellie, Kate and Karis Herstam; Lance and Rhonda Kunnath and Jillian Harrison.

Special thanks to the all of the staff at Canterbury Woods in Pacific Grove and VNA Hospice Monterey who made her last year very special and who took such great care of her.

A memorial service will be held in the near future by the beautiful Pacific Ocean she so loved.

Rest in Peace Mom.

Mary Lou Kissel

Mary Lou Kissel of Pacific Grove died October 6, 2016 at the age of 87. A longtime resident of Saratoga, she spent her youth in the Seattle area and graduated from the University of Washington before becoming a stewardess (as they really were called then) for Pan American Airlines.

Before being forced into early retirement due to marriage (again, this was done back then) she earned a place in Pan Am lore by subduing a drunken pro-wrestler while the flight crew covered in the cockpit.

After raising a family, she and husband Emil retired to the peninsula where they were active in the Carmel Foundation and other organizations, eventually coming to reside at Canterbury Woods.

Known to friends and merchants as an Olympic caliber shopper, she will be missed by the town's retailers.

She is survived by son Steven and granddaughter Helen who suggest that in her memory citizens patronize the P.G. charitable thrift store of their choosing.

Editorial

Amid the chaos, a comforting reminder

THE UNCERTAINTY surrounding next week's election is getting on a lot of people's nerves. Not only do we have a presidential contest that has come to resemble a demolition derby where the contestants also take turns setting themselves on fire, the statewide and local ballots include a daunting number of races and initiatives, many of which seem pointless, counterproductive or just stupid.

Anybody could be forgiven for just simply wanting to quit the human race between now and next Tuesday.

However, the events of last weekend here in Carmel-by-the-Sea were a reminder that some things are timeless and more important than the political turmoil that takes over Washington and Sacramento once in a while.

Thousands of people lined the streets of downtown Carmel for Saturday's parade, where they saw more than a year's worth of planning and effort — not to mention a century of civic accomplishment and pride — distilled into an hour-long spectacle that managed somehow to be charming, humble and breathtaking at the same time.

And it wasn't just the floats or the bands, the costumes or the banners. Nor was it the music, the VIPs or the children that made the heart swell during the Centennial Parade. It was the setting.

Carmel is special for many reasons, and as we showed last week when we reprinted an essay from one of our earliest editions, it has been so from the very beginning. The town's unusual and accomplished characters, its love for the arts, its history, its architecture and its incredible scenery made it unique even on the day it was incorporated — and the residents knew it.

The town has changed, of course, over the last 100 years, but the wonderful thing is that so much has stayed the same. And on Saturday, its timelessness was on full display.

So take comfort, dear citizens. Sure, it matters a great deal who our next president is, and it matters whether marijuana is legalized, prisoners are to be released early, and taxes are to be raised. It matters who represents us in the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives, and it even matters right here in Carmel who's elected to the Pacific Grove City Council. All of that is important.

But transcending it all are the universal values of friends, family and community, and no matter the outcome of the election next week, it was very reassuring on Saturday to be so impressively and stirringly reminded of it.

Letters to the Editor

'Brought the city together'

Dear Editor,
On behalf of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, the Centennial Committee extends its heartfelt gratitude to city staff and the multitude of volunteers from both near and far whose labors over the past three years resulted in a unique and memorable Centennial Day on Oct. 29 with a parade, lunch and street dance. In tracing the city's path over the past 100 years, many have observed that it has brought the city together, as now we all share the same memories as we start the next hundred years!

Tom Brocato, Barbara Livingston, Merv Sutton and Sue McCloud, The Centennial Committee

'It was all worth it'

Dear Editor,
What a wonderful celebration on Saturday. Many thanks to the Centennial Committee, the parade committee and the City of Carmel's staff members for pulling off a fabulous parade and full day to remember. It took a lot of hard work, dedication and inspiration, and it was all worth it. Happy 100th, Carmel!

Monta Potter, President/CEO Carmel Chamber of Commerce

'Made me proud'

Dear Editor,
What a wonderful celebration for Carmel's 100th birthday!

The parade was spectacular, well timed and well organized. The lunch afterward was perfect. Family, friends and clients from all over had an amazing time.

Dancing on Dolores was so much fun! The Money Band inspired everyone from tiny tots to older folks to sing and dance the night away. And when I woke up the next morning, the street was spotless.

Thanks to all who worked hard to make this one of the best days that Carmel has ever seen. The whole event has lifted my spirits and made me proud to be a Carmelite!

Judy Ivey, Carmel

Measure X is 'right choice'

Dear Editor,
Many people know how passionate I am about Carmel-by-the-Sea. And my love of community carries over to Carmel's neighboring communities, and all of Monterey County. That's why I support Measure X. Our transportation systems need significant safety and traffic upgrades to ensure vibrant, quality communities.

Here in Carmel, Measure X funds would help us continue badly needed street repaving projects. We have made some headway with repaving in our town, but still have a long way to go with street repairs and deferred maintenance. Measure X would was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 35759, July 3, 1952

One woman's journey from pageant runway to presidential campaign

SERENDIPITY HAS been a hallmark of Terry Huntingdon Tydings' life, and she said it's mostly turned out well for her. Like that time in 1959 when she didn't become Miss Universe, for example.

She entered Miss California USA almost on a lark while she was a theater arts major at UCLA, because a photographer told her that it was a good way to get exposure to producers and directors.

The 19-year-old freshman had glamor-girl good looks, but despite her ambition to become an actress, she had mixed feelings. She had met actor Aldo Ray while skiing near her family's home in Mount Shasta the previous winter, and he had advised her against pursuing an acting career.

"The business is horrible for women," he told her.

Her ambivalence translated to apathy about the contest's outcome. "I never thought I'd win the pageant, nor did I care," she recalled. Much to her surprise, however, she won.

Prayed not to win

Ten days later, the surreal experience continued, as she also won Miss USA, then moved on to the Miss Universe competition, which started the very next morning.

On the second day of that pageant, Tydings said things became even more intense. She was already sleep-deprived — she said the women got about three hours nightly during Miss USA and Miss Universe, if they were lucky. Then, she found herself secluded in a room with four other finalists, awaiting the judges' decision as to which of them would wear the crown.

Pageant employees came to escort each woman to the stage in the order in which she'd finished — fourth runner-up, then third, and so on. After the first two women departed, Tydings realized she might win all the marbles — and she didn't want to.

"I prayed not to win. I was a small-town girl, and I liked my privacy. I knew as Miss Universe, I would have not a free moment."

Her prayers were answered seconds later, when she was declared the second runner-up. She breathed a sigh of relief as Miss Japan became the first Asian woman to win the honors, with Miss Norway as first runner-up.

Her appearances in the pageants had their desired effect, however, and she landed roles in TV shows like "Perry Mason," where she played the defendant in "The Case of the Bartered Bikini." She also appeared on "Route 66" and "Ozzie and Harriet." In real life, Harriet Nelson tried to fix Tydings up with her son, Ricky.

"He was the sweetest person," said Tydings, but she was uninterested.

She did become interested in the late 1960s, however, when a mutual friend introduced her to Sen. Joe Tydings of Maryland. He pursued her relentlessly, and the two eventually married. When the senator lost his bid for re-election in the early 1970s, he set up a law practice in Washington, D.C., and they settled in the tony Rock Creek Park area.

Meanwhile, Tydings had her own political career of sorts. Again, through a mutual friend, she got a job on the staff of Alan Cranston, who was then the senior senator from California. She and her husband also befriended Gary and Lee Hart, and at Joe's behest, Tydings got involved in Hart's campaign for re-election to the Senate in 1980, and later during his first presidential bid in 1984.

Up the coast

When Hart began his second, ill-fated run for president in 1987, Tydings participated once more. When his candidacy went down in flames following the Donna Rice debacle, Tydings went back to the job she'd had for several years, managing Zoran, a designer fashion boutique in Washington D.C.

In 1993, Tydings — by then divorced from Joe — settled one of her daughters into college at UCLA and then took a drive up the coast. She's a fifth-generation Californian, and was ready to move back, preferably somewhere around here. She just wasn't sure if she'd find anything in her price range. But fate was about to lend a hand again.

She had reserved a room at the Highlands Inn, and noticed a handmade sign nearby, on the west side of the highway, advertising a house for sale. While the home was run-down, it had exactly what she make a big difference. In addition we could see additional improvements in neighboring communities where many of us travel regularly, including Highway 68, the intersection of Laureles Grade, Carmel Valley Road, and so much more right here in our village of Carmel by the Sea.

It is critical that we pass Measure X. The funding will put us in the category of a "self-help" county, and will position us to qualify for and take advantage of state and federal matching funds as many other counties have already done.

The time to act is now. We must invest in our transportation. I am not surprised to see the broad support Measure X has received across Monterey County because this is something we can all agree on. Steve Dallas,
Mayor of Carmel

'No on E'

Dear Editor:

As much as I enjoy the outdoors, I have to remind myself that the Monterey Peninsula Park District already has an annual budget of more than $6 million. Plus, they have used taxpayers' money to support their proposed tax increase with full-color mail-out flyers and a campaign organization. Why should I ask everybody to pay for my hobby?

I submit that parks, and other non-critical government services, should be supported with fees on those who use them, and not with tax dollars. After all, there are people who would prefer a yoga lesson, a restaurant meal, or a carwash, rather than a visit to the park, and those people shouldn't have to pay for the parks. pleased with how it all came together on every different level."

Former councilwoman and Centennial Committee member Barbara Livingston said she thought the "100th birthday of Carmel-by-the-Sea was a grand celebration which garnered a lot of goodwill and made the community feel included."

Livingston was responsible for planning the street dance on Dolores Street that night, and quoted Money Band leader Zoe Alexander's comment that it was "an evening of pure magic."

"I have never been in a place where I saw so many people having such a good time," she said. "Happiness on all faces, whether dancing or just mingling. I hope a street dance will be a part of Carmel's birthday celebrations every year." Indeed, some have even said they want the dancing to take place monthly or quarterly.

Mayor Steve Dallas agreed: "We definitely would like to see another street dance next year, or sooner."

He described the day as "an exciting, wonderful, perfect birthday party," while city administrator Chip Rerig called it "an unmitigated success."

"Everybody enjoyed it and will remember this day for years to come," Dallas said.

He and Rerig thanked the Centennial Committee, city staff, volunteers and donors for all their hard work and support.

"I could not have imagined a more magical day for the village," Rerig commented.

The back hallway at Broadway Sub Shop is decorated with large, vintage photographs from the salad days of Atlantic City, a nostalgic stroll for anybody who saw the beach and Boardwalk decades ago.

For the Teplitzky boys, the Atlantic City sub shops were a both a pleasure and a lifeline. Terry recalls "The Depression," a hollowed-out roll filled in marinara sauce, a specialty at Super Sub, which was across the street from their home. J.T. remembers the meatball sub at The Great Josh's. White House was world-famous for its Italian sub.

"We have that sandwich on our menu — we call it the Jersey Italian — but I think ours is better," Terry said.

Sub shops would bring sandwiches directly to the Boardwalk for the Teplitzkys, who would walk up from the beach to meet the delivery man. And they'd often call the house during big, televised sporting events to ask the brothers if they needed anything.

The other important element the Teplitzky brothers imported from Atlantic City, they said, is family pride. Terry, Howard and J.T. give Boardwalk Sub Shop with the same kind of attention to detail that they learned from their parents and grandparents at the family hotel. J.T.'s wife, Dawn, and daughter, Alexis, are employees, as is Howard's girlfriend, Debbie.

"For J.T. and me, after so many years of working in the corporate world with the casino industry, it's an interesting transition, seeing things with an owner's eye, as opposed to being an employee," Howard said. "You're always looking at things, wondering how you can make them better."

"And when somebody stops to shake hands on the way out, and tells us they had a great meal and a great experience, that makes our hard work worthwhile. And that happens all the time."

And, in the tradition of Atlantic City sub shops, the Teplitzkys deliver.

New bell to be rung on Veterans Day

WITH THE city council's acceptance of the brand new bell for the World War I Memorial Arch Tuesday, it will be in place for a ceremonial ringing in honor of Veterans Day Friday, Nov. 11.

American Legion Post 512, in conjunction with the city, will honor those who served with a special ceremony in Devendorf Park, located at Ocean Avenue and Junipero Street, at 11 a.m. The occasion will begin with the ringing of the bell and will include remarks from local dignitaries, and Color Guard from the Monterey High Junior Navy ROTC Cadets program.

A dedication of the new bell — which was paid for with donated funds to replace the historic bell that had been hanging in the arch — will be at 12:15 p.m. After the ceremony, Post 512, located at Dolores and Eighth, will hold an open house.

Tydings became a realtor with Del Monte Realty in 1996, and then retired from that in 2014 to fulfill another dream — being a writer. She's authored two books, "California Girl: Miss USA 1959," and "The Massacre: Covert Assaults on the American Electorate," about the Hart campaign.

In the first, she provides details of her year as Miss USA, including encounters with Groucho Marx, Paul Anka and many other celebrities, as well as her experiences as a hostess at the 1960 Winter Olympics in Squaw Valley. In "The Massacre," she presents her insider's account of Gary Hart's campaign and ultimate fall from America's good graces.

It's not often you meet someone who's played tennis with Gary Hart and shared a room with Miss Sweden, but, hey, this is Carmel. Where else would that happen?

A more up-to-date photo of Tydings shows that she's still got it!

Crews to work on Highway 68 and in Carmel Highlands

CALTRANS CREWS will repair a guardrail on Highway 68 in Pacific Grove this weekend and begin the process of removing trees in the Carmel Highlands starting Monday.

On Nov. 5, from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., crews will be working on the guardrail on eastbound and westbound Highway 68 at Scenic Drive. There will be one-way traffic control with flagging. And on Nov. 7 and 8 from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., crews will be removing dead pines on northbound and southbound Highway 1 between Malpasso and Spindrift roads in the Carmel Highlands. Drivers should expect 10-minute delays, Caltrans said.

For information on this project and for traffic updates on other Caltrans projects in Monterey County, residents can call (831) 372-0862 or visit http://www.dot.ca.gov/dist05/road_information.htm.

From Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. until Nov. 14 at 6 a.m., construction of the Highway 68 roundabout will require the full closure of the southbound Highway 1 offramp toward 17 Mile Drive and CHOMP. That is Veterans Day weekend.

Highway 68 and the other three ramps will be open during the southbound Highway 1 off-ramp closure, which is required for reconstruction of the ramp for the future roundabout, TAMC said.

Drivers going to Holman Highway 68 from southbound Highway 1 will be required to continue south and detour to Ocean Avenue. Motorists can expect delays of up to 20 minutes. Savvy drivers will take another route entirely.

then a professional-quality poster and pitch its product in a setting not unlike the television show "Shark Tank." Team members develop writing and public speaking abilities as well as an understanding of basic business practices as part of the competition.

Sea Sweepers' underwater vehicle was named Bruce, an acronym for "Black Robot Under Constant Explosions." According to Sprague, Bruce's early iterations were plagued by frequent fires, including one that actually started underwater.

They worked out the problems, however, and the team's first contest was the regional competition, held in Aptos, which they won. They set off for Houston in June, very excited to be at the Johnson Space Center and test their underwater vehicle in the neutral buoyancy laboratory, a 40-foot deep, 16 million gallon-tank containing a replica of the International Space Station, used to train astronauts to perform tasks in space.

Yellow submarine

As a result of their second-place finish, the team was able to visit the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute in Moss Landing and see an unmanned seven-foot yellow submarine used for research in deep portions of the Monterey Bay. In addition to earthly investigations, the sub gathers information that may be useful one day in exploring space. "We really geeked out," said Sprague of the visit.

This was the team's first international award, and their second trip to the finals. Their first was in 2015, when they had to come up with an underwater vehicle that could repair a pipeline under the ice in the Arctic Ocean. That competition was in Newfoundland.

For the 2017 contest, which will be in Long Beach, challenges are fittingly focused on maintaining a seaport, including finding lost shipping containers on the floor of the ocean and checking to see if their contents are hazardous, doing construction, performing maintenance on underwater equipment for a light and water show, and dealing with contaminants in the water.

Working in a garage

This time, they'll compete in MATE's highest division, which means they'll bypass the regional contest in Aptos. Instead, they'll have to submit a video showing that their underwater vehicle can perform a specific series of tasks.

Competition divisions are determined by each club's members' ages, but also by the club's experience and proven expertise. Moves up in division must be approved by MATE, so Sea Sweepers' new standing is an honor.

Sea Sweepers is an independently run club that has been around for seven years, and its members are from Salinas High and York School, although they're open to members from anywhere in the county.

The group pays for its equipment and travel expenses through private sponsorships from companies like Dole and Tanimura & Antle, as well as individual sponsors. They meet, as most great electronic startups do, in one of the members' parents' garages.

"Their cars are pretty much parked on the street for the whole season," said Sprague. That's dedication.

‘Trio of soloists’ come together at Sunset, siblings play jazz at Poppy Hills

A BONAFIDE supergroup in the realm of piano trios, Trio Solisti will perform Saturday, Nov. 5, at Sunset Center.

“They’re one of the most amazing piano trios in America,” said Douglas Ambort of Chamber Music Monterey, which is presenting the concert. “This is absolutely a concert not to be missed.”

The ensemble-in-residence at Adelphi University in Garden City, N.Y., Trio Solisti’s members include violinist Maria Bachmann, cellist Alexis Pia Gerlach and pianist Fabio Bidini. Each is a dazzling soloist, which should come as no surprise since the name of their ensemble translates into “a trio of soloists.”

The program includes Dvorak’s Piano

Trio No. 2 in G-minor, Op. 26, Liebermann’s Piano Trio No. 3, Op. 122, and Mendelssohn’s Piano Trio in D-minor, Op. 49.

FOOD & WINE

BSF&W is here, Brophy's adds specials, and chefs duel at Folktale

AFTER A hiatus last year and a revamp of the management team, the annual Big Sur Food & Wine festival returns to one of the most scenic areas in the world this weekend, with tastings, hikes, mystery tours, parties, dances and other events Friday and Saturday, Nov. 5 and 6.

more focused of a festival.”

While several of the fest's events, like Hiking with Stenware at Rancho Rico and the Sommelier Dinner, have already sold out, plenty is still on offer.

Friday's lineup begins with a 10 a.m. panel tasting showcasing California's Unsung Varietals — Sylvaner, Chenin, Trousseau, Gruner Veltliner, Picpoul, Cinsault and others — at the Big Sur Lodge conference center.

From noon to 3 p.m., the beautiful and abundant kitchen garden of Sierra Mar at the Post Ranch Inn will be the site of the Pinot Walkabout, with 20 wineries and chefs, including Elizabeth Murray and Ben Spungin from Sierra Mar, Colin Moody and Aaron Whitcomb from Monterey Peninsula Country Club, Mark Denham from Soif,

“I'm excited just to have our first festival as we are now, with our new management, to reinvigorate it,” said Matt Glazer, director of culinary operations — a.k.a. “chef of all trades.”

“We have so many friends in the industry who love our area coming together — that's always the best part of the festival,” he said Tuesday. “This is a lot smaller, and it's a lot more focused of a festival.”

The renovated barn at Hilltop Ranch will be the site of a special Growers Dinner hosted by Cima Collina to recognize the winery's long-standing relationship with Joe Alarid of Tondre Grapefield, a vineyard in the Santa Lucia Highlands.

Emanuele and Anna Bartolini from La Balena, Kim Solano of the Haute Enchilada, and Chris Watts from Casanova and the Corkscrew.

“Sierra Mar is stepping up to show support for this event by hosting the Pinot Walkabout,” Glazer said.

At Henry Miller Library, “Wine & Swine: Taking It To The Streets of New Orleans” will take place from 6 to 10 p.m. “That all stemmed from the connection one of our donors has with Big Sur and with New Orleans, and having Bywater show up is huge for us, having Jonathan show up for anything is huge for us, and having Cal from Bernardus is huge for us,” Glazer said, referring to, respectively, David Kinch’s new Los Gatos restaurant, Jonathan Roberts — a.k.a PigWizard — and chef Cal Stamenov from Bernardus. “It is an A-list cast” of chefs and some 20 wineries. Live jazz will be performed onstage all night.

On Saturday, three Magical Mystery Tours will take place simultaneously, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., on different scenic properties but concluding at the same location. The tours, two of which are already sold out, are described as “one part Hiking with Stemware, one part garden party, one part moveable feast.”

At Loma Vista next to the Big Sur Bakery, the Walkabout Marketplace from noon to 3 p.m. will feature five chefs and two dozen wineries, along with artists and craftspeople showcasing their wares. “The marketplace at Loma Vista will be really, really cool,” he said. “It takes the Walkabout and mashes it up with a farmers market to give you the opportunity to taste wine, taste food and buy some crafts.”

That evening, the bakery will host a dinner featuring Hitching Post from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., and Deetjen’s will present a 6:30 p.m. wine dinner showcasing Mi Sueño. Reservations for those dinners should be made directly with the restaurants themselves.

The evening’s other events, the Sommelier Dinner and the Hoe-Down at Henry Miller Library, are also sold out, though it’s possible some hoe-down tickets could be freed up at the last minute, according to Glazer. The Somm Dinner filled up in less than three days after tickets went on sale, and Glazer described it as the festival’s “premier intimate event.”

Glazer also said the festival “couldn’t happen without our supporters,” including Fenton & Keller attorneys, who helped BSF&W become a 501(c)3 to benefit Big Sur-area needs and causes. “With foresight and planning and actual fundraising, we have a committee of people in Big Sur who really want to see it thrive and be a successful organization that’s going to give back,” he said. “Our focus is on how we create something that’s fun, that stays interesting, and that

■ What's up at Brophy's

Brophy's Tavern at San Carlos and Fourth in the Hotel Carmel has rolled out new daily lunch specials, and is continuing to offer the $12 burger-and-a-beer deal during 49ers and Sharks games (and during Giants games, once the new season starts next year).

Matt Glazer is the director of culinary operations for the Big Sur Food & Wine festival, taking place down the coast this weekend.

Salmon salad, chili with corn bread, soup and salad, “and some killer sandwiches” are part of the pub's new daily lunch specials, according to hotel GM Mary Crowe.

“The chili is an all-beef chili, with all fresh ingredients, stewed for four hours and served with fresh cornbread made with Monterey jack cheese and chilies,” she explained. The pesto chicken sandwich comprises a pesto-marinated chicken breast with baby arugula, heirloom tomatoes and Fontina cheese on sourdough, while the fish tacos are “traditional Baja style,” with chipotle sour cream, cabbage “and a terrific house-made salsa.”

Also in the lineup are the skirt steak salad with mixed greens, watercress, radicchio, blue cheese and balsamic vinaigrette, and Caprese Ravioli with a light lemon crème sauce and a 4 oz. salmon filet.

Brophy's is open daily, and also offers brunch on weekends.

■ Lafayette seven days

Those craving a croissant, crepe or Croque Monsieur can stop in at Lafayette restaurant on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues any day of the week, now that it’s no longer closed on Tuesdays. Open for breakfast and lunch, the café offers the fresh pastries Lafayette Bakery in the Barnyard shopping center is known for, as well as egg dishes, crepes, sandwiches, salads and other simple French fare.

■ Chef Duel

Folktale Winery will stage its second Chef Duel Competition Monday, Nov. 7, when Round Two pits Carmel Valley Ranch chef Tim Wood against chef Jeremiah Tydeman from Alvarado Street Brewery in Monterey. Each chef will be assigned one protein and four common ingredients, with which they must create “a dish that will not just excite your palate, but earn your vote,” with the winner advancing to the next round. The People’s Choice vote counts for half of the decision, while the judges’ choices count for the other half. If both select the same chef as the winner, that chef will advance to the next competition. Split votes will be decided by an additional challenge. Chef Todd Fisher of Tarp’s Roadhouse will oversee the battle.

Each chef’s dishes will be paired with a Folktale wine and that of a guest winery. KRML will broadcast live and provide the music for the evening.

Tickets are $12 per person, age 21 and over, and the event will run from 6 to 9 p.m. at the winery, which is located at 8940 Carmel Valley Road. For more information, visit www.folktalewinery.com.

■ Revival’s grand opening

Former Aubergine pastry chef Ron Mendoza’s much anticipated ice cream store, Revival, quietly opened for business last month, with creative handmade offerings like Bees Knees and rose geranium. After a smooth launch, the store is ready to celebrate with a grand opening Thursday, Nov. 10, from 4 to 6 p.m. Guests who arrive in time will receive a free mini scoop of the special grand opening flavor — the details of which remain under wraps — and free toppings can be had all day. Games and prizes, and live tunes by Summer & Alaina will be part of the festivities, too.

Using Clover organic milk and cream, Mendoza’s creations are pasteurized and churned onsite in small batches. “We focus on utilizing fruits, vegetables, herbs, flowers, nuts, and whole grains to bring the best of the farm straight to your cone. All of our sauces, add-ins, toppings and garnishes are made in house, and if we don’t make it, our friends do,” say those behind the new venture.

Revival’s current flavors are whole bean vanilla, Heart of Darkness, sea salt caramel, Vietnamese coffee, Bees Knees, Candy Bucket, rose geranium, mint, sweet potato, Revival Bouquet sorbet, pineapple guava sorbet, Concord grape, and peanut butter. “We will probably have some new items by the 10th, as we run through them fast,” operations manager Nicole Pahl said.

Revival, located at 463 Alvarado St. in Monterey, is open Sunday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. For more information, call (831) 747-2133 or email info@revivalicecream.com.

Saturday, Nov. 5, at 6:30 p.m. The first of the annual dinners — with food prepared by Carmel Valley Market chef/owner Jerome Viel — will celebrate the winery's 11-year partnership with Joe Alarid of Tondre Grapefield.

Danzer has been producing vineyard-designated wines since Cima Collina's earliest releases back in 2004. "With a consistent focus on small, limited production wines hand picked from local vineyards," she felt it was time "to focus a handful of dinners on the unique growing sites and people behind the vines."

The renovated Hilltop Ranch barn at the winery's own vineyard will be the site of the 7:30 p.m. dinner, with a 6:30 p.m. reception set among the vines. The cost to attend is $145 per person, with reservations available online at www.cimacollina.com or by calling (831) 620-0645. Hilltop Ranch is located a half mile east of the Cima Collina tasting room off of East Carmel Valley Road in the Village.

■ Evening in the Garden

The historic Mission San Antonio in Jolon will host an Evening in the Garden Saturday, Nov. 5. Established by Saint Junipero Serra in 1771, the Mission San Antonio de Padua is located on 86 acres in what was once part of the sprawling Hearst Ranch and is now in Fort Hunter Liggett.

The elegant winetasting event will be held from 5 to 8 p.m., offering "an enchanting opportunity to sample wines from many outstanding local wineries while nibbling on a selection of specially catered gourmet delights, all amid the ambiance of the Padre's Garden." A silent auction will help raise funds for the organization, and the Mission's gift shop and gallery will be open to showcase works from more than 100 artists.

In addition, in a separate event, Marin Wolgamott of Marin's Vineyard will pair Port wines and chocolate.

Tickets for the garden party are $50 per person ($60 at the door), and people who want to attend the garden party and the port pairing will pay $120 for access to both events and other exclusive treats. Call (831) 385-4478 ext. 17 for information and tickets. Mission San Antonio de Padua is located at the end of Mission Road in Jolon. Visit missionsanantonio.net for more information.

■ A party in another garden

The Barnyard shopping center will host its annual fall festival in the gardens to raise money for the Monterey Symphony's 2016-2017 season. The nonprofit Friends of the Monterey Symphony is presenting the event Sunday, Nov. 6, from 1 to 4 p.m., when guests will be invited to stroll through the garden, enjoy the feats of roving Renaissance performers, and take advantage of in-store specials offered just for that day. Sur Restaurant will provide "a buffet feast worthy of kings and queens."

Tickets for the fall party are priced at $85 per person and may be ordered at www.montereysymphony.org/special-events, or by calling (831) 646-8511.

For the first time ever, artists who donated work have been grouped into three categories based on experience. A raffle ticket for a piece in the Master Artist category is $250, while the Ascending Artist bracket is $100, and tickets for works by Aspiring Artists are $50. The number of tickets sold will match the number of pieces in the show.

The art will be raffled off Saturday, Dec. 10, at 1 p.m. Ticket holders who can't be there can make arrangements for a proxy. "Every ticket holder will go home with a piece of art," Brown added.

Besides the Patrons' Show, exhibits by painter Bonnie Sailer ("Atmospheric Light") and mixed media artist Rachell Hester ("Mordant Forms") open Friday at the art center. Hester's display takes on an unusual topic for creative inspiration — dinosaur bones. "I strive to capture the sculptural qualities these relics retain and give them life and narratives of their own," Hester explained.

The art center is located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. Call (831) 375-2208.

■ Trying something new

Best known for her oil paintings, Carol Chapman unveils an exhibit of mixed media work, "Cutting Up and Cutting Out," Nov. 5, at the Carmel Art Association.

"I'm always exploring new ways to create art," Chapman explained. "Versatility has been one of my trademarks."

Also opening Saturday at the CAA are shows by painters Helene Goldstein and Jeff Daniel Smith, and a display of etchings, prints and collage by Susan Giacometti.

The CAA, which will host a reception from 5 to 7 p.m., is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. The exhibits continue through Nov. 29. Call (831) 624-6176.

■ More than meets the eye

Offering viewers more than one way of looking at a landscape, painter Peter Loftus will present a display of his work, "Recent Landscapes," this month at Winfield Gallery.

"There are all sorts of ways to interpret a landscape," gallery owner Chris Winfield said. "When you look at one of Peter's paintings from far away, it looks almost like a photograph. But when you zoom in, you realize it is made up of almost entirely abstract shapes."

The artist enjoys surprising viewers. "I love the paradox of making an illusion that looks almost photographic from a distance, but dissolves into mysterious paint surfaces upon close inspection," Loftus explained.

The gallery is located on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh. Call (831) 624-3369.

■ You can almost smell the grapes

A San Francisco Bay area resident whose travels to France have influenced her work, painter Margery Ammon will present demonstrations of her technique Saturday, Nov. 5, between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., at Gallery Amsterdam.

An exhibit by Ammon, "Burnished Glory," is on display at the gallery. The show features colorful scenes from California's wine country. "When painting these vineyard subjects, I can almost smell the scent of fermenting grapes that permeates the air after harvest," the artist said. "It is an artist's dream landscape."

The gallery is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Call (831) 624-4355.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee's sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 or visit this Internet Web site www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 75966. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not be immediately reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Dated: 10/31/2016 La Costa Loans,

THE CENTENNIAL PARADE FROM A MARCHING PARTICIPANT'S PERSPECTIVE

WHAT BETTER way to view Carmel-by-the-Sea's Centennial parade than to be in it? I jumped at the chance to walk along with The Pine Cone's float when publisher Paul Miller extended an invitation to me. I hadn't been in a parade for more than 65 years. That one was a Saint Patrick's Day parade in Buffalo, N.Y., with a wind chill so low my bugle's mouthpiece stuck to my lips, turning that instrument into a brass kazoo.

I am not much of a walker, but the parade route last Saturday didn't look intimidating. Besides, I was going to get a Pine Cone baseball cap to wear. How cool is that? The lyrics to, "I Love a Parade," were marching through my brain.

The greater challenge would be finding a parking space. At 9:30 in the morning, an hour and a half before the parade began, there was surprisingly little traffic going down Ocean Avenue into town. That's because everyone was already there – parked and in position along the parade route. Two passes through town landed me a spot on Santa Rita between Fifth and Sixth, which turned out to be a good location since the Pine Cone float was lined up on Junipero between those same two streets.

I was sitting on a stool outside the Forge in the Forest on

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

Junipero, camera in hand, thinking that parade Grand Marshal Clint Eastwood would walk by. Ha! Fat chance — when that's just what he did. And I didn't recognize him. Come on, man! He was dressed like a cowboy. Why on Earth would anyone except Clint Eastwood be dressed in the same outfit he wore in those spaghetti westerns? When I realized who it was I chased him down the street but he had turned into a real estate office with a closed gate manned by a bad-looking hombre from one of those westerns. Photo op missed.

Later on, I did catch him sitting on the Wells Fargo Stage coach waiting for the parade to begin. I got off a few shots along with a posse of other amateur photographers. I clicked away like I was Sergio Leone and he was the Man With No Name.

Then it was post time, or parade time, as The Pine Cone float headed down Junipero toward Ocean. The float had zero horsepower, but its five people power moved it smoothly forward. Those of us accompanying the float were decked out in the aforementioned baseball caps, with replica newsboy bags slug over our shoulders. The bags contained copies of The Pine Cone's 100th Anniversary issue to be distributed to parade watchers.

When we made the long slow turn onto Ocean Avenue, everything went from black and white to color the way it did when Dorothy stepped into the multicolored magic of Munchkinland. I could not believe the number of people lining both sides of Ocean Avenue, enthusiastically cheering every float and parade participant passing by. For a moment I saw myself as Ferris Buehler, leopard patterned vest and all, leaping up on the float and leading everyone in "Twist and Shout." Shake it up baby!

I've viewed many parades in my life, but seeing this one as a participant was a dream-like experience. Everything slowed down. People seemed to be waving in slow motion. Smiles became wider, cheering became louder, and the colors of the clothes people wore became more vibrant. Everything became — more genuine. This was small town America cheering on its neighbors. In a town bursting with galleries full of modern and abstract art the scene was begging for Grant Wood or Norman Rockwell to paint it.

As we made the U-turn on Dolores to head east on Ocean, four stalwart members of the Carmel High School football team leapt to the back of our float to propel it uphill. And then the route took us south on San Carlos. The lines of spectators thinned but their enthusiasm didn't.

Earlier I mentioned not being a walker. The evidence of that began to kick in as aged femurs, patellae and fibulae began to feel as if they needed the Tin Man's oilcan. Plus, the sultry heat was also taking its toll. It dawned on me that every step I took carried me farther away from my parked car. So I stealthily slipped up Seventh, headed toward my parking space on Santa Rita.

A light bulb went off in my head while I was standing on the corner of Sixth and Junipero. That nice downhill saunter I had taken a couple of hours earlier looked as steep and as high as Mt. Everest. How was I going to summit at Santa Rita without oxygen canisters and a Sherpa guide?

A little overly dramatic? Perhaps, but had a car been going my way I would have thrown myself across the hood like a trophy deer during hunting season. Once inside my car I turned on the A/C, cooled down. Twenty-minutes later I was soaking my aching muscles in the soothing 104-degree water of my community's hot tub. I reflected on the parade and my participation in it. It was a difficult trek for someone almost as old as Carmel. But it was also a lot of fun. So much fun that the next day I began training for Carmel-by-the-Sea's bicentennial. Hope to see you there.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF MICHAEL JOSEPH MINAFO

Case Number 16PR000445
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of MICHAEL JOSEPH MINAFO.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JOSEPH MINAFO GILMORE in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that JOSEPH MINAFO be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the pe-tion and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:

Date: Jan. 4, 2017
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Dept.: 13

Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Time to fix up the house for holiday visitors?

You'll find lots of help from advertisers in the Service Directory on pages 40A & 41A of this week's Carmel Pine Cone

Third quarter report: Market still hot, but is temperature cooling?

MOST YEARS, the second quarter is the strongest period of the year in all of the key real estate categories: dollar volume, total transactions and price. This year, the third quarter was almost as good as the second, with only eight fewer sales and $4 million less in volume. On the whole it was a rousing quarter.

House Talk

By Paul Brocchini and Mark Ryan

It is hard to get a good fix on median sales prices as they jump around so much due to the small size of our local communities. Seven of the eight markets surveyed had healthy price gains over last year.

Only Carmel-by-the-Sea had a lower median sales price. Looking back to the second quarter of the year, the Carmel-by-the-Sea median sales price was an out-of-sight $1.8 million. The relatively low third quarter number is an anomaly which will be balanced out when we have a full year of numbers.

Barometer

The Market Barometer plants the seeds of doubt going forward. The high-end markets of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Carmel Area, Carmel Highlands and Pebble Beach have low barometer numbers, reflecting a growing inventory of unsold properties.

But the trend is nothing to get excited about yet. The year-to-year inventory growth in the eight surveyed markets was 32 properties, an 8 percent gain over last year. Still, the downward trend in our barometer is worthy of our attention, and we will keep an eye on it.

Prices

In our last report we noted how much prices had gone up this year in contrast to what happened during last year's market, which had plenty of sales but essentially flat prices. The question one must ask now is: Have prices risen too far too fast? Overly ambitious asking prices eventually dampen or even kill rising markets.

The Amazing and the Surprising

A source of continuing amazement is the percentage of sales over $1 million. In the third quarter, 115 of the 286 sales for prices of more than $1 million, an impressive 40 percent. Sixty-eight percent of the sales in Carmel-by-the-Sea topped $1 million. In the Carmel Area it was 73 percent, Carmel Highlands, 100 percent, and Pebble Beach, 91 percent.

It is probably time for us to cease to be amazed and realize that this is the new reality around here.

The surprise is Seaside, a major investment opportunity during the collapse. The median sales price jumped to an unexpected $500,000. Behind that surprising figure was tremendous action in Seaside Highlands, an area that was next to dead during the downturn. It is percolating now, as it is a neighborhood where families can find homes of sufficient size to accommodate them for less than the dazzling million-dollar figure.

As we move into a slower period of the year we do not see any great changes on the horizon. There may be a correction in the wind, but at this point it is still a hint, not a certainty.

Paul Brocchini and Mark Ryan are real estate agents with Carmel Realty Company, at the NE corner of Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea. They can be reached at (831) 238-1498 or (831) 601-1620.
