Panetta in right field as Congress pays tribute

Jimmy Panetta gestures to the crowd ahead of the Congressional baseball game at Nationals Park in Washington, D.C., Thursday night. He's wearing a Lobos jersey on loan from Monterey Peninsula College. To honor GOP Rep. Steve Scalise, who was critically wounded in a shooting Wednesday, some of the players are wearing caps from LSU – Scalise's alma mater.

■ Was practicing at separate field during assassination attempt on Republicans

By KELLY NIX

CONGRESSMAN JIMMY Panetta took the field Thursday evening during a Congressional baseball game at Nationals Park in Washington, D.C. Just the day before, he was at bat during a practice with other Democratic House of Representatives members for the annual charity event when he got word that shots had been fired at a field in Alexandria, Va., where GOP members were practicing.

"I was up to bat when the coach, Mike Doyle, a Democratic congressman from Pennsylvania, got a notification on his phone that there was an active shooter in Alexandria at a field near where Republicans were practicing," Panetta told The Pine Cone not long after the attack.

About two minutes later, as more information became available, Panetta said the Democrats abruptly called off their practice and took shelter.

"We immediately proceeded to the dugout," Panetta recalled. "Everybody goes to their phones to see what's going on. At that point a couple of Capitol Police showed up and gave us a briefing of what they knew. We said a prayer, and remained in place until we received further guidance from police as to what we should do."

Panetta and the other Democrats would soon learn that the victims of the shooting included Republican Majority Whip,

Sunset Center put in charge of Forest Theater

By MARY SCHLEY

TO THE surprise of many, the city council last Tuesday handed day-to-day operations of the historic Forest Theater over to the nonprofit that runs Sunset Center. The council unanimously voted to approve separate 15-year leases that put Sunset Cultural Center Inc. in charge of the city's two theaters, and which guarantee annual taxpayer-funded "operating grants" for each property.

"The city no longer wanted to be in the theater business," city administrator Chip Rerig explained at the June 6 meeting. "It was not in our wheelhouse."

The agreements were the result of eight months of negotiations between council members Carrie Theis and Carolyn Hardy, Rerig and representatives of SCC — the nonprofit that was formed shortly after the theater's remodel was completed more than a dozen years ago, and which has overseen the center ever since.

When negotiations started, according to Rerig, the city wanted an agreement that would expire when the bonds for the remodel of Sunset Center are paid off in 2032, and would include cost controls and obligate the SCC to undertake more fundraising efforts.

"Most importantly," Rerig said in his report, the city "insisted that SCC assume management and operations of the Forest Theater because of their expertise in the field."

'Protecting taxpayer funds'

The result was the two separate leases, approved last week, which were drafted with the help of city attorney Don Freeman and attorney Glen Mazingo, who was also working on behalf of the city. The leases hinge on "partnership and cooperation, while protecting taxpayer funds and interests in a responsible manner," Rerig said. SCC's board of directors approved both agreements May 24.

The new lease for Sunset Center calls for a $750,000 subsidy per year from the city for the first three years, and while the city could drop the amount during a fiscal emergency, it couldn't go below $600,000. The agreement also calls for performance benchmarks, like providing "diverse arts programming of the highest quality, including collaboration

Police radios will soon go silent for public ears

By MARY SCHLEY

ON A recent morning, police responded to a holdup alarm at an art gallery on Dolores near Ocean. The alarm turned out to be false, but the only way most people would have known the call occurred at all would be from hearing the officers and the dispatcher talk about it over their radios. And if it had been a robbery, the story would have been reported in The Pine Cone.

But soon, that valuable source of information — which has enabled TV and newspaper reporters to advise the public about bomb threats, armed robberies, shootings, car chases, manhunts and numerous other crimes as they've unfolded — will be a thing of the past. And with that, coverage of police activities will be greatly curtailed.

On May 30, Monterey Police Chief Dave Hober announced the long-planned system of encrypted digital radio communications in Monterey County would begin its final testing phase June 1.

"In essence, we are testing to ensure the new radio system will be reliable over a period of approximately 45 days, with the ability to switch back to the old system if a problem was encountered," Hober told The Pine Cone Wednesday. Assuming it passes the test, the whole system will go online Aug. 1.

In the works for nearly a decade, the $14 million overhaul moves emergency transmissions for police and fire agencies from analog channels to digital channels, enabling clearer communications between people in the field and eliminating the interference that occurs when two of them try to transmit at the same time. But with the move to digital technology comes the ability to encrypt transmissions, so only those with radios programmed with the proper decryption keys can hear and speak with each other.

"The purpose and intent of encryption are to thwart crim-

Rerig fills key vacancies

■ Public works director, building official

By MARY SCHLEY

CITY ADMINISTRATOR Chip Rerig made more headway in his mission to fill vacant positions when he hired Robert Harary as the new director of public works and Dick Bower as the new building official at the end of last month, and he plans to have a new senior planner on staff in the next week or so.

The city has been without a public works director since Rob Mullane left in March, while it's lacked a full-time building official since Joe Headley departed last August.

"We had an open and competitive process for both positions," Rerig said this week.

'A proven track record'

He announced the new hires in a May 31 email to the mayor and city council.

"Bob is a registered professional civil engineer who has served public agencies for 25 years, with 12 years' experience in similar public works leadership positions," he said. Harary is coming to Carmel from the City of Monterey, where Rerig worked with him for several years. "Bob has a proven track record of implementing capital improvement programs worth hundreds of millions of dollars and excels at

Butter ball

BUTTERFLY IS a 100-pound chocolate Labrador retriever who bounds down the beach after her ball with a force that does not resemble the lilt of a butterfly. But, ever since she came home to her Carmel Valley family at 7 weeks, and to this day, her ears flap when she runs, like the wings of a butterfly.

The pup's person, now 11, was just 5 years old when she came home from kindergarten to find a birthday surprise waiting for her in the living room.

"I was super excited and ran right to her," she said. "At first I wanted a Pomeranian, but then I decided I wanted a big dog because small ones don't have as much energy. And our family has a lot."

When Butterfly's person tried to teach her to fetch, she noticed her fluttering ears, and instantly knew her name. "Her ears still do that," she said, "but she's gotten way better at fetching. She actually brings the ball back."

Dad, whose day dawns with lots of licking to the face, nicknamed the dog, "Butters."

Butters loves the beach. She retrieves her ball off the toss from a Chuckit tennis ball launcher, drops it in the sand, and nudges it toward her person to keep the game going.

Butters might be the only Lab who doesn't like to swim. Yet once, when her family was camping in Big Sur, they were taking turns riding a rope swing across the river. Butters saw her person, perched on a rock in the water, awaiting her turn. Presuming she was in trouble, the dog dove into the water, swam out to the rock, and stayed by her side.

"She went against her nature to protect her," said her person's mom. "We all love Butterfly; she's part of our family."

Council adopts budget with more chamber money

■ Plans to double legal funds in the fall

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CITY council last week approved its $23.4 million spending plan for the 2017-2018 fiscal year, which begins July 1. In light of the fact that money for the Carmel Chamber of Commerce dominated the discussion at the sole workshop held on the budget last month, the only significant change from the earlier draft was the allocation of $33,000 for the chamber's visitors center in Carmel Plaza. City administrator Chip Rerig said that money was offset by decreasing the contribution to the mayors' water group and increasing the estimated income from business license tax.

Revenues from sales, hotel and property taxes represent a significant chunk of the $23.4 million budget, including an expected $5,203,466 in sales tax, $6,086,606 in property tax, and $6,212,508 in transient occupancy tax, for a total of $17,502,580.

Operating costs, meanwhile, are estimated at $18.8 million, including $10.8 million in salaries and benefits for 92 people on the city's payroll and several vacant positions, and services and supplies of nearly $8 million. Public safety is the biggest item — with $3,928,927 in salaries and benefits expected for police, $2,264,968 for fire, and $1,185,625 for ambulance — while community activities is at the bottom of the list, at $219,205.

Overall, the plan was drafted based on tight budgeting from department heads in a way that should have been done in the past, Rerig said.

At the June 6 hearing, former Mayor Sue McCloud asked the council to figure out how to spend less money on "project management" for work that's "pretty standard, that we've been doing for years without project management."

"$5,000 here and $10,000 there adds up to a pretty significant amount of money," she said.

McCloud also wanted assurance that money spent on the chamber, the convention and visitors bureau, and other marketing efforts and organizations — which totals about $330,850 — wouldn't be wasted on duplication of efforts. Councilman Bobby Richards later confirmed it would not.

Resident Barbara Livingston speculated that once the city hires its new public works director and fills other positions on the payroll, the need for project management from outside contractors will decline, and Rerig generally agreed.

A new CEO

Chamber board member Kris Toscano thanked the council for its support and said the group would like to reduce its reliance on public funds in the future. "Our new CEO, Jenny MacMurdo, is of the same opinion," he said. "She'd like to bring down the financing from the City of Carmel to zero dollars, but let's give her a chance to do that."

Former Mayor Ken White cautioned the council against taking too much money away from the chamber, though, lest it not be there to help the next time the council asks voters to approve a sales tax increase, as it successfully did in 2012 with the passage of Measure D.

"The partnership that was created in the fight to pass D was a good one and has worked well," he said. "If we continue down that road of not giving them close to what

Verdicts, pleas and sentencings announced by
The Monterey County District Attorney

May 19 — Lorenzo Fabian Lopez, age 26, a resident of Salinas, entered pleas of no contest to two counts of lewd acts with a child inflicting great bodily injury and agreed to a term of 11 years in the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation.

On September 18, 2016, Jane Doe, age 11, was found in a bedroom of her family home being molested by the defendant. Her older brother opened the closed door of the bedroom to find the defendant molesting her. She had injuries consistent with the molest.

Monterey County Superior Judge Carrie M. Panetta took the defendant's pleas to two felony counts of lewd acts with a child and his admission of the special allegation of infliction of great bodily injury. Sentencing is scheduled for June 27 at 8:45 a.m. in Department 4 of Monterey Superior Court.

May 19 — Pacific Grove resident Terry Veal, age 56, was sentenced to four years for recklessly evading a police officer. Veal also admitted a prior strike conviction for a residential burglary.

On Saturday, September 24, 2016, at approximately 3:35 p.m., a Seaside police officer observed Veal driving on the 1200 block of Hilby Avenue. The officer recognized Veal as a suspect in a recent burglary, and attempted to stop Veal to question him about his involvement. Veal initially pulled over, then suddenly accelerated and made a quick turn onto a nearby street. Seaside police officers initiated a pursuit. During the pursuit, Veal ran several stop signs and traffic lights, drove through residential neighborhoods at 60 miles per hour, and caused several other drivers to slam on their brakes to avoid colliding with him.

Veal's dangerous driving put not only his own life at risk, but also endangered the officers and public. Officers continued to pursue Veal for several minutes until they were forced to terminate the pursuit in the interest of public safety.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Robert Burlison sentenced Veal on May 18 to four years in state prison.

May 19 — Ismael Valdez, age 37, a resident of Greenfield, was found guilty by a jury of battery upon a peace officer, resisting an officer, and assault on peace officers. The case was heard by Superior Court Judge Efrén Iglesia.

On March 12, Greenfield Peace Officers were flagged down by a resident reporting that she feared her brother, Ismael Valdez, was hurting her father. The officers arrived at the residence to conduct an investigation and to check on the welfare and safety of the father. When they arrived, Valdez resisted the officers' attempts to investigate the reported crime. Valdez confronted the officers and he became violent. Valdez punched and kicked the officers.

Eventually, the officers were able to arrest Valdez after suffering painful blows to their legs and arms.

The jury found the defendant guilty of one count of battery upon a peace officer, one count of resisting an officer, and two counts of assault on an officer.

SUSPECT IN COACH THEFTS NABBED

By MARY SCHLEY

THE MAN suspected of walking into the Ocean Avenue Coach store and walking out with several expensive bags on two separate occasions in April and May brazenly did it again Monday, according to Carmel Police Sgt. Luke Powell. But this time, Timothy Callahan, 33, ended up in jail after leading police on a harrowing chase through Seaside, Marina and Salinas, where he finally jumped from his moving car and tried to run away.

Shortly after 1 p.m. June 12, Callahan picked up three purses and two key chains from a display, and made for the exit — just as he had done during the previous thefts, when he took three bags worth $1,700, and four bags worth $1,800, according to Powell. By this time, however, store employees recognized him from the prior incidents and called police as soon as they saw him, while also going to stand near the two exits to try to keep him from doing it again.

As Callahan made his way toward one of the doorways, a worker offered to carry the goods for him, “but Callahan declined and pushed his way past the employee who was trying to block his exit,” Powell said. He got into an idling double-parked car and drove away, but not before store employees managed to get the complete license plate number and a detailed description of the getaway car, an older white Toyota Avalon.

They also noticed a woman sitting in the passenger seat.

By the time officers were positioned outside the store to try to catch the thief, he had already escaped, but Cpl. Jeff Watkins, who was the first to get there, noticed the Toyota as it headed north on Mission Street. He didn't know at the time that it was the suspect's car, since the Coach workers hadn't yet told the dispatcher about it, but as soon as that information came across the radio, Watkins “broadcast the last known direction of travel of the suspect vehicle and directed perimeter units to return their vehicles and immediately take mobile positions at Highway 1 and Carpenter Street, Ocean Avenue, and Rio Road,” Powell said.

He also asked the dispatcher, Esther Partido, to activate a plan that has officers from other agencies position themselves at strategic locations along the highway to watch for the car, and moments later, Presidio of Monterey police spotted Callahan in the Avalon at Highway 1 and Lightfighter near CSUMB.

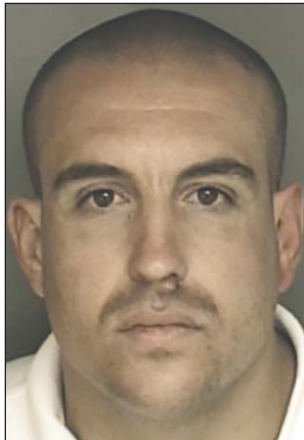

The officers tried to pull him over, but Callahan “chose to flee,” he said, leading them into the City of Marina, where he hit an occupied parked car hard enough to injure the people inside. But he still didn't stop.

With Presidio police continuing to give chase, and California Highway Patrol officers joining in the pursuit, Callahan fled to Salinas, where he drove into the parking lot at Hartnell College off of Central Avenue, according to Powell. “He jumped from his moving vehicle and attempted to run away on foot,” Powell said, but Presidio police quickly took him into custody at gunpoint while the CHP officers used their patrol car to block the runaway Toyota before it could hit anything or anyone else.

Meanwhile, the people who were in the parked car in Marina were taken to the hospital, treated for their injuries and released, according to Powell, and officers found the Police pursue new lead in watch heist

By MARY SCHLEY

A ‘GOOD Samaritan and longtime customer’ of Fourtané Estate Jewelers provided police with a tip that could lead to the capture of the suspect who stole about $90,000 worth of watches from a Pebble Beach Lodge store during a nighttime smash-and-grab burglary last December, police confirmed this week. But it's unknown why it took the woman nearly six months to come forward with her find: a damaged Rolex.

According to Carmel Police Sgt. Luke Powell, on June 1, CPD detective Rachelle Lightfoot was dispatched to the jewelry store at Ocean and Lincoln after the customer went to the business with a $6,000 Rolex she had “acquired under suspicious circumstances.”

“The customer felt something was not right about the watch and brought it to the experts to have it checked out,” he said. “The employee quickly identified the watch as being one that was stolen in the December burglary from Pebble Beach.”

Lightfoot interviewed the woman and sent a copy of her report to Monterey County Sheriff's Deputy Mike Smith, who has been assisting in the investigation.

While Powell wouldn't say what “acquired under suspicious circumstances” meant because he didn't want to jeopardize the sheriff's office's case, Smith told The Pine Cone the woman had found the timepiece crushed in a parking lot near the site of the theft shortly after it had occurred.

He didn't say why she didn't turn over the broken watch right away, or what information it might provide in helping to solve the case.

“We are still actively investigating all possibilities,” he said.

The thief who stole nearly 20 expensive watches, including several Rolexes, had

Military 'diversion' court launched

By KELLY NIX

ACTIVE DUTY soldiers and veterans who commit misdemeanors in Monterey County and are suffering from mental health problems or other issues related to their military service will now have a chance to resolve their cases in a special court instead of facing jail or other penalties.

On June 7, the Monterey County Superior Court launched what it calls the "military diversion calendar," which allows military defendants charged with relatively minor crimes to undergo counseling and treatment under the direction of the Veterans Administration and Monterey County Behavioral Health.

Congressman Jimmy Panetta, a former Monterey County prosecutor who advocated strongly for the Veterans Treatment Court in Salinas that opened in 2015, lauded the opening of the new military diversion court.

"This will greatly help many men and women who served our nation, put their lives on the line for our freedom, and suffered physical or psychological wounds as a result of their service," Panetta told The Pine Cone.

Some of those eligible for the new court, which focuses on rehabilitation, have suffered brain injuries or sexual trauma, abused drugs or alcohol, or have mental health problems because of their military service.

"Treatment, combined with regular alcohol and drug testing, probation supervision, interface with an assigned volunteer veteran mentor, and regular judicial interaction provide strict accountability while providing a support mechanism to ensure successful completion of all aspects of the military diversion program," according to a news release by Monterey courts.

Court spokeswoman Nona Medina said it's too early to project how much the court will cost taxpayers to operate.

"All of our partner agencies — which also includes Monterey County Probation — and the court are dedicating personnel to this calendar from existing general budgets," Medina told The Pine Cone.

There are already indicators that the new docket is going to be successful. While Medina said Monterey courts estimated it would get about eight to 10 referrals each month, there were more than 25 referrals at the first session last week. The court, at 116 W. Gabilan Street, is held the first Wednesday of the month and is open to the public.

The other agencies involved in the diversion court are the county's Military and Veterans Affairs office and offices of the district attorney and public defender. Volunteer mentors will also support the program.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Sam Lavorato Jr., who will preside over the military diversion court, said in a statement that the county has an "obligation to explore options for those struggling with issues resulting from their service in the military," and that the new court, along with the Veterans Treatment Court, "are our contributions toward that goal."

Both drivers arrested in DUI crash

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A 20-YEAR-OLD Marina man who ran away from police after a head-on collision Tuesday morning was caught and arrested for felony DUI, hit-and-run, and resisting arrest, Monterey police said Wednesday, while the 19-year-old woman whose car he hit was also arrested for driving while drunk.

At around 9:30 a.m. June 13, officers were dispatched to a crash on Tide Avenue that had resulted in injuries. John Mendoza, one of the drivers, ran from the scene but was stopped a short distance away by a police officer, according to Monterey Police Lt. Mike Bruno.

He reportedly resisted arrest, and officers believe he was under the influence of drugs. As a result, he was taken to Monterey County Jail and booked on $30,000 bail for felony driving under the influence of drugs, and other charges.

But police said Emilee Johnston — the driver of the car Mendoza hit — had been driving under the influence of alcohol at the time of the crash, so she was arrested, too. Like Mendoza, she was taken to Monterey County Jail on $30,000 bail.

The people who were injured in the crash, and who were unidentified by MPD, were treated at the scene, and Monterey officer Kim Zook is hoping that anyone who has cell phone footage of the accident will call (831) 646-3830.

New dog park proposed for valley

By CHRIS COUNTS

A CARMEL woman who has written a book about hiking with dogs is asking the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District to create a dog park on land that was once part of the Rancho Cañada Golf Club's East Course in Carmel Valley.

Linda Mullally told The Pine Cone she plans to make a presentation about the plan at the park district's next board meeting Wednesday, July 12. The woman said she's had "some positive conversations" on the topic with park district's general manager, Rafael Payan.

Mullally said she wants to make it clear that her project has no relation to, is not located near and bears no resemblance to a proposal by Monterey County planning commissioner Martha Diehl and others to open the Carmel Canine Center next to Quail Lodge. Diehl's plan was approved last year by the planning commission, but the decision was reversed by the county's board of supervisors.

"We are not that project or anything like it," Mullally insisted. "Her project was a private business enterprise. It was a canine sports center by membership, and it was an event center. What we are proposing is an off leash fenced playground for dogs. We want to serve our local dogs and our local community of people who like to socialize and meet others."

While Carmel Beach is heaven on earth for many dogs and their owners, Mullally said the leash-free stretch of coastline is not for everyone. "Not every person with mobility issues can deal with sand, stairs and cleaning up after their dogs," she observed.

Also, not every dog can be trusted off leash where there are no fences.

Mullally called the proposed site of the dog park, "the least desirable parcel" at Rancho Cañada because it's located along Carmel Valley Road. "Most people will be hiking closer to the river," and farther away from the road, she said.

The park's proximity to the busy road should take care of any concerns about dogs making too much noise, Mullally said. "The road will drown out the occasional bark," she predicted.

The woman also dispelled concerns about traffic, calling it a "non-issue."

"This is a dog park for people who are already on the road," she said. "They are not all going to congregate at the dog park each day at same time."

Mullally called her proposal "a once-in-a-lifetime" opportunity. "This is not a new concept. We're not trying to reinvent the wheel — this is an amenity that this community needs," she added.

CHOMP buys apartments for hires

By KELLY NIX

IN A move that CHOMP's parent company said will make it easier to recruit physicians, nurses and clinicians to the Monterey Peninsula, Montage Health has purchased two apartment complexes to be used for transitional housing for new employees.

The company announced Monday that it's acquired two under-construction apartment buildings in Monterey that will provide 32 apartments for new employees who need a place to stay until they can find permanent housing. The purchases, at 230 Lighthouse Ave. and 255 Foam St., cost Montage $9 million.

"Having this transitional housing will play an important role in assisting us in recruiting talented people," Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula CEO Steven Packer said in a statement. "To provide the healthcare our community wants and deserves, we need to ensure that we continue to have the right people here with the right skills."

Stiff competition from other employers and the Peninsula's pricey real estate market are the two biggest challenges Montage faces in recruiting new employees, according to Packer. To reduce the shortage, Montage Medical Group, a subsidiary of Montage Health, has been recruiting new employees for the past several years and expects to have as many as 80 physicians — almost twice the number it has now — by 2021.

"Prospective candidates have to balance their desire to work with us with the high cost of housing and limited rental inventory and, too often, housing has been a deciding factor," he said.

Attracting specialty nurses, clinical lab scientists, physical therapists and nurse practitioners to the Monterey Peninsula is difficult, and at any given time, Montage said it's Bad soil? No soil? Maybe it's time to bale on your garden.

By ELAINE HESSER

OF COURSE, you've heard of container gardens. If you're particularly industrious (or you have a neighbor who is), you've probably heard of raised-bed gardens, too. But have you heard of straw bale gardens?

Christopher Olow, owner of Hacienda Hay and Feed in Carmel Valley, said that over the last three years or so, he's seen an uptick in people coming in to buy bales of straw for gardening.

That coincides pretty closely with the publication of Minnesota landscaper and gardener Joel Karsten's book, "Straw Bale Gardens," in 2013. You might call it the book that launched a thousand bales. Or more.

And since our long spring planting season hasn't quite ended, you can try your hand at it.

It's a pretty simple concept: You bring some bales of straw home and arrange them in an aesthetically pleasing or convenient formation, dig shallow troughs in them, add topsoil, and put in seeds or seedlings.

As you water the plants, the straw beneath begins to decompose, forming compost, feeding the plants and generating heat in the process. In fact, the wikiHow website (tagline: "How to do anything") recommends watering the bales and letting them sit for several days before planting so they cool down a bit.

PG&E fined again, this time for Moss Landing tower collapse

By KELLY NIX

PACIFIC GAS & Electric has been hit with a $400,000 penalty by the California Public Utilities Commission for the collapse of a transmission tower at the Moss Landing Power Plant two years ago that caused about 55,000 Monterey-area customers to lose power for several hours.

The 230-kilovolt tower collapsed and hit the ground on Oct. 18, 2015, seven days after it was installed, causing widespread power loss on the Monterey Peninsula. Its failure, according to the PUC, was the fault of PG&E.

An investigation by the PUC Safety and Enforcement Division found that PG&E built the four concrete footings of the tower at an incorrect angle, "which resulted in a low safety factor and caused the tower to fail and fall to the ground," according to a news release by the PUC last Tuesday.

Specifically, the PUC found that PG&E violated two provisions: installing the tower improperly, for which it faced a $350,000 penalty, and constructing and operating the tower with an "unacceptable safety factor," which drew a fine of $50,000.

PG&E spokeswoman Mayra Tostado told The Pine Cone that the company is reviewing the PUC's citation.

"As we shared publicly after this incident, the tower footings were not properly installed, and that led to the tower failure," she said. "Since then, we have inspected all recently constructed towers and found that they were installed correctly with no steel deformation or cracking."

A consultant commissioned by PG&E to investigate the incident found that faulty construction, inadequate training, outdated drawings and other failures led to the collapse. Furthermore, Tostado said that PG&E and the consultant "conducted a thorough analysis of the incident to determine the cause and steps to prevent it from happening again."

PG&E has 30 days to pay or challenge the citation. Tostado would not say if PG&E will contest it.

Christian Scientists get OK to sell parking lot for site of new home

By MARY SCHLEY

A BARELY used church parking lot that can't be converted to public parking because it's in a residential district — even though it's across the street from restaurants and shops — can be sold so a house can be built on it instead, the planning commission unanimously decided Wednesday night.

Owned by the First Church of Christ Scientist, the eight-space, asphalt lot on the north side of the church's small reading room on Lincoln Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues is often empty, attorney Mark Blum told commissioners at the June 14 meeting, because most church members read their materials online. In addition, overall membership of the Carmel church has dropped from 200 people three decades ago to about 30 today. The reading room, which was built with the lot in the late 1960s, is open five days a week but gets few visitors, most of whom are walk-ins.

As a result, the church has far more parking than it needs, so members want to sell the 4,000-square-foot lot at the north end of the eight-lot property for residential development.

Planning director Marc Wiener recommended commissioners approve the change, since it's in keeping with the codes and would not be considered "an intensification of use," while making the private lot available to the public for parking would be.

"The applicant had considered opening the lot for commercial use, but that's not allowed" in the residential district, Wiener said. "A single-family residence would be more compatible with the surrounding neighborhood, and there wouldn't be impacts."

The only problem he foresaw in allowing the church to sell off the lot for a house would be if the organization experienced an upsurge in membership and no longer had enough parking.

"I wish the city could buy it or rent it or lease it for parking," resident Barbara Livingston commented. "I just hate giving up that parking lot."

But, if it's used for a house, she said, "I hope it will be a simple single-story home."

Commissioner Michael LePage observed that since the "lot covered by asphalt" can't be used for public parking, turning it into a home will mean the removal of that asphalt and the addition of more trees and landscaping — another benefit.

Commissioner Gail Lehman said she would like to see the lot used for affordable housing, perhaps with multiple tenants, given the shortage of low-cost housing in Carmel, but LePage pointed out that the area is not zoned for that kind of development.

While he was also concerned about the lack of parking in town, chair Don Goodhue commented, "I don't think we can force the church to give it to the city," so he also sup-

Hiker broke the law, and then she needed rescue

By CHRIS COUNTS

EVEN THOUGH the Ventana Wilderness has been closed since last June due to the Soberanes Fire and the heavy damage it left in its wake, a lost hiker was rescued from the area June 7.

The woman, whose name was not released, activated a locator beacon about 3:15 p.m. Working with the Monterey County Sheriff's Office Search and Rescue Team, a California Highway Patrol helicopter crew found her along the Pine Ridge Trail a couple miles west of China Camp about three hours later.

"The crew was able to locate a suitable landing site near the hiker, brought her on board, and then flew her to awaiting ground crews on the coast near the town of Big Sur," read a post by the CHP on social media.

According to the sheriff's office, the woman had been lost "for several days" and was out of water.

Not surprisingly, the response on Facebook to the rescue was swift and merciless as people predicted the taxpayers will get stuck with the bill for the woman's rescue — and urged officials to make her pay for it. But the CHP responded to the public's comments with a somewhat philosophical statement that didn't address the cost of the rescue.

"True, there is hardly a rescue we've performed where the person did not contribute, in some manner, to the creation of their own predicament," the response read. "Yet this is why we strive to recognize our shared fallibility as human beings and try to demonstrate compassion and understanding. We never ask why someone needs rescue; we simply do our best to preserve every life."

Where'd she come from?

Sgt. Steve Neumann of the CHP said the woman had a backpack and camping gear with her when she was found. "We don't know where she started or how she got there," Neumann said.

According to Andrew Madsen of the United States Forest Service, the forest is closed "to allow natural resources an opportunity to recover" from the devastation that resulted from last summer's fire. Started by an illegal camper, the blaze burned more than 130,000 acres and destroyed 57 homes.

Madsen said that the the penalty for violating a forest closure order is a $2,500 fine and/or two years in jail. Despite the risk, some continue to ignore forest closure orders up and down the state, including one particularly bold miscreant in Santa Barbara.

"We had a guy land a helicopter in the wilderness a couple months ago," Madsen reported. "His passenger was tweeting that they were in a beautiful area with waterfalls."

Thanks to the social media post, law enforcement was able to track down the renegade pilot.

"His license has been suspended while the Federal Aviation Authority does an investigation," Madsen added. "They're trying to determine how many tickets he will get."

Run in the Name of Love Sunday

By MARY SCHLEY

THE ANNUAL Run in the Name of Love — held by runner Susan Love in memory of her son, BJ — will take place in downtown Carmel on Father's Day (June 18). The 5K run and dog-friendly 2K both start on San Carlos Street in front of Sunset Center and follow scenic routes down to the shoreline, finishing at the foot of Ocean Avenue.

Nearly 1,000 people are expected to show up on race day, according to organizers, and the event has a strong showing of locals, returning participants, and folks who come from out of town just for the race.

Unlike other races, the Run in the Name of Love encourages people to run or walk in honor or memory of someone special, and offers the opportunity to wear tribute bibs and memorialize loved ones online. BJ's friends at the University of Virginia organized the race in his honor after he died in a snowboarding accident in February 2005, three months before graduation. After traveling east to lead the race several times, his mother brought the event west to Carmel, where she lives, a few years later, and it has been held here on Father's Day annually ever since.

The 5K course winds through residential Carmel and passes the Mission before taking runners around Carmel Point and along the shore, while the 2K route meanders more inland, and both end at the beach. The shorter race will start at 8:20 a.m., while the longer will begin at 8:30.

In 2016, Love said runners from 128 cities in 15 states participated, with entrants as young as 3, and as old as 90.

Registration is available at www.runinthenameoflove.org, and costs $40 for the 5K and $35 for the 2K for adults, and $25 and $20, respectively, for kids under 15. The race benefits the Big Sur International Marathon's Just Run youth program. All runners receive a race shirt, finishers' medallion, post-race food, and a free raffle ticket.

Last month, architect Eric Miller told The Pine Cone he is working on plans for a house on the lot for attorney Anthony Lombardo and his wife.

Mayor Steve Dallas is also aware of the plans.

"Tony and I drove over to the lot a few weeks back, and he is so excited," Dallas said in an email last month. "He and his wife are really looking forward to living in Carmel."

optimizing the performance of maintenance operations.”

Rerig also said he's a good construction manager who effectively oversaw a number of high-profile and environmentally sensitive projects during his tenure in Monterey.

“He's exactly the person I need in public works right now,” he said.

In his resume, Harary describes himself as a “highly proficient program manager in financing, planning, design, environmental permitting, bidding, and construction management of capital improvement programs, conditioning development applications, and optimizing infrastructure maintenance operations,” and he says his skills in public speaking, contract negotiations, team building and mentoring are “exceptional.”

Harary graduated from Arizona State University cum laude with a Bachelor of Science degree in civil engineering in 1982 and started his career as a residential construction engineer for Bechtel Power Corp. in Arizona the following year. Subsequently, he held several jobs in the public and private sectors, the longest of which was nine years as assistant public works director for the City of North Las Vegas from 1996 to 2005. He went to work as principal engineer and capital programs manager for the City of Monterey in 2012.

Harary's first day on the job will be June 19. According to his contract, he will receive a base salary of $163,000 per year for a minimum of 40 hours of work per week, as well as $250 per month in deferred compensation, retirement contributions, medical benefits, sick leave, vacation and holiday pay, and 80 hours of “executive leave.”

New building official

Bower is a specialist in disaster and emergency planning and preparedness who also served as a volunteer fire chief in Homer, Alaska, and worked in several other positions. Most recently, he was an emergency services planner for the Monterey County Office of Emergency Services, a position he took in July 2015, and before that, he was a manager in charge of emergency management and the health and safety division at California State University Monterey Bay, where he joined the payroll in January 2012.

“Dick has been working in emergency management for the past several years, and has a great amount of experience in plan check and building permitting,” Rerig said in his email to the mayor and council. “He has the appropriate ‘touch’ for the village and my team.”

A graduate of the University of Puget Sound with a Bachelor of Science in business administration in 1980, Bower also obtained a Master of Science in disaster preparedness and executive fire service leadership from Grand Canyon University in Phoenix, Ariz., in 2011.

He spent nearly a decade as building/fire safety/emergency management director for the City of Gig Harbor, Wash., from 2002 to 2012, and was named the state's Building Official of the Year in 2010.

In his resume, Bower describes himself as “an accomplished, recognized, collaborative leader with extensive experience in the development, implementation and administration of community development regulations including: building, plumbing, mechanical, electrical, fire and land use codes.” He has more than three decades of experience in the public and private sectors, and holds numerous certifications.

He will also start working for the city on June 19, and will be paid an annual base salary of $95,952 for 40 hours of work per week, according to his contract. He'll receive $100 per month in deferred compensation, benefits, retirement contributions, 40 hours of executive leave per year, and holidays, vacation and sick pay.

Rerig also said this week that new assistant city administrator Maxine Gullo's contract hasn't been finalized yet, but her annual base salary is $153,000. She will retain the responsibilities she took on when she joined the city last year as human resources manager, for which she was receiving $121,212 per year, plus benefits, $250 per month in deferred compensation, retirement contributions, holidays and vacations, benefits, and 80 hours per year in management leave.

Boy, 10, rescues girl, 5, in Carmel Valley pool

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

WHEN A 5-year-old girl fell off a flotation device and found herself struggling to stay afloat in the pool at the Carmel Valley Athletic Club June 10, a quick-thinking 10-year-old boy helped bring her to safety. “I just found his story to be heroic,” said Shira Diallo, a friend of the family who shared it with The Pine Cone.

The rescue happened in the late afternoon. Laith Rodriguez was playing in the pool with friends when the girl, who was relying on a kick board to keep her afloat, ran into trouble in water that was too deep for her, his father recalled.

“She doesn't swim too well, and she slipped off the board,” Laith's dad said.

“Her head flopped a little bit, and she went under. Laith was tall enough to stand and push her out of the water. She didn't need resuscitation.”

The father said there were few people at the pool that day, and no lifeguard. He said the girl's family thanked the boy “profusely.”

He also said he was proud of his son's actions, but not surprised. “This fits in line with his character. He's the type of kid that likes to help and stand up for others.”

Soon to be a fifth-grader at Carmel River School, Rodriguez is attending a junior lifeguard program in summer camp, and he has a brown belt in Tang Soo Do, a Korean martial art.

Steve Scalise — the third-highest-ranking House GOP member — a Congressional aide, a lobbyist and two Capitol Police officers. Scalise, who suffered broken bones, damage to his internal organs and severe bleeding, was in critical condition Thursday.

According to eyewitnesses, gunman James T. Hodgkinson, 66, intentionally targeted Republicans. Capitol

Police who had been guarding Scalise because of his leadership position responded to the assassination attempt with gunfire, seriously wounding Hodgkinson, who later died. Members of Congress who are not in leadership positions are not provided security when they are away from the Capitol, and the Democrats had none at their practice.

Panetta, who began his congressional stint this year, said that he's had brief conversations with Scalise, including last week when he talked to the 51-year-old Louisiana congressman about the Congressional baseball game.

The game was set proceed Thursday night at Nationals

Park, and Panetta — a right fielder — was photographed at Nationals Park in his uniform — a loaner from Monterey Peninsula College.

Panetta also issued a statement about the shooting Wednesday: "Although we will be playing against each other on the baseball field, we will stand together to try to stop the hateful rhetoric that can pervade our society and be unified based on our commonality and humanity of our communities and country."

The shooting comes amid growing hostility toward conservative politicians, writers, pundits and supporters of Trump, who — since he took office — have been shouted down at town hall meetings, received death threats, and have been blocked from speaking at universities. In May, police arrested a man for making repeated death threats against Arizona Republican Congresswoman Martha McSally.

In addressing members of the House of Representatives Wednesday, House Speaker Paul Ryan called the shooting a "dreadful attack," and he offered prayers for the victims and their families. "We are united. We are all united in our shock. We are united in our anguish," Ryan said to a standing ovation by Democrats and Republicans.

MARGERY CHURCHILL ADAMS

Margery Churchill Adams, known to friends and family as Marge, passed away in her home in Carmel, California on February 13, 2017. Marge was born in Berkeley, California on November 10, 1920 to Vernon and Leila Churchill.

She is survived her son Doug, daughter-in-law Patricia and grandson Kodiak. Marge leaves a distinguished legacy in her life's passions and endeavors – family, friendships, our country and California.

To those who had the pleasure to know her, Marge was a kind and wonderful soul, demonstrating a limitless compassion for other people, a keen intellect and a wonderful sense of humor. It is Marge's being that is a permanent gift to everyone who had the privilege of experiencing her incredible life.

Growing up as a daughter of a newspaper and advertising executive Marge's family moved often and always returned to California. Marge graduated from Catlin Gabel School in Portland, Oregon. She was a gifted student joining her freshman class at the University of Oregon at sixteen and joined the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Spending her childhood in Berkeley made her pine for California and she transferred to Mills College in Oakland, California graduating in 1941. Marge's love of art and architecture flourished at Mills and she joined their MFA program in the fall of 1941. Marge's masters program was short-lived with the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941. Her life was forever changed as she experienced the tragedy of her Japanese-American Mills College friends interned and she met the love of her life Hank Adams all in this short period of time. Hank, a young Army officer, and Marge were married in the Chapel at the Presidio of San Francisco in March of 1942.

Marge's life as a U.S. Army officer's wife went from the joy of marriage to the loneliness of years of separation and unknown. Her husband Hank spent most of WW II on secret missions with Marge going as long as two years without communicating. Marge retreated to the Monterey Peninsula to spend most of WW II cutting fish on Cannery Row. Her love of art, the Bohemian life in Carmel and the beauty of the Monterey Peninsula were cemented during these years of WW II. After WWII Marge and Hank returned to Washington, D.C. where their son Doug was born in 1949. Just a year after Doug's birth Marge and Doug returned to Carmel and Hank was off to fight in Korea.

Marge was able to jump into her first design project and building their Mission Street house in Carmel in 1951. She was a mother alone again in Carmel, designing, building and raising her young boy. Hank returned in 1953 and the family headed to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas for two years, then Carlisle Barracks where Hank was promoted to Colonel. Marge, Hank and Doug headed to The Hague in the Netherlands for three years. Hank was the senior U.S. Army office retraining the Dutch Army and Marge was the Diplomatic wife. Marge loved her time in Europe, learning to speak Dutch, living and working in The Hague and spending time touring various countries. Marge always took Doug out of school for 2-3 weeks in the winter for skiing, she would teach Doug for a couple of hours in the morning and then let him ski the rest of the day.

In July of 1958 the Adams Family returned to the United States via the steamship America landing in New York. Her husband returned to West Point as the Director of Athletics and Marge continued her duties entertaining a steady stream of dignitaries visiting West Point. Marge was a huge sports fan spending hours watching the Army teams, often bundled in a sleeping bag in Smith Rink or other chilly venues. In addition she attended all of her son's athletic contests too. She worked with long-time friend and Ginny Rusk on the New York fundraiser for their beloved Mills College. Every year they would fly San Francisco sourdough bread to New York for the event (having sourdough bread outside of San Francisco was an anomaly in the early 1960s).

Marge and Hank learned to love Maine. In the summer of 1963 Hank retired from the Army, Marge and Hank bought an ocean front piece on Little Dear Isle, Maine, and moved back to Carmel, California. Marge, once again, put on her designer's hat, drew the plans to extensively remodel their Carmel house and worked endlessly with Hank and Doug to make it happen. Within the next year Marge used her love of books to manage the Williams' Family bookstore. Marge's years of running the bookstore provided a haven for many Carmelites, especially high school students who had a love for books. Along with the bookstore Marge's passion for books continued for the next 50 years with her Monday afternoon "Lit" club meetings.

In 1970 Marge and Hank bought 20 acres in the wilds of Big Sur. Marge's architectural mind was again running full-tilt creating a small, hexagon, cabin built on poles. They named it the Teapot and it remained in the Adams Family until January 2017. In the 1980s Marge's alternative to living in Carmel and Big Sur shifted to Carmel and summers on Little Deer Isle in Maine. She deepened her love for the coast of Maine designing and building her fourth endeavor that she named, The Privilege. Shortly after the birth of her only grandchild (Kodiak Adams) in 1995 Marge returned to spending all of the year in Carmel. Marge's devotion was shared with her family especially Kodiak, caring for her husband Hank who passed in 2006, Friends of the Carmel Library, her last dog Co Co and the Lester Rowntree Native Plant Garden in Carmel. She was a regular walking the beaches of Carmel well into her late eighties.

Marge inspired zest, love, creativity and strength to all of the people she met. Her incredibly professional and loving caregiving team of Felipa Matadamas, Harpreet Kumar Viridi, Alejandra Perez, Magalli Carillo-Lee and Isabel Carillo allowed Marge to enjoy the warmth of her home for her entire life. The VNA/Hospice nursing staff was a marvelous gift as her life waned. In fond remembrance there will be a celebration of Marge's life at the Adams' Family home 25967 Mission Street, Carmel, California from 1pm to 4pm Sunday July 9, 2017. Contributions in Marge's memory can be made to Mills College Office of Institutional Advancement 5000 MacArthur Blvd. Oakland, CA 94613 in Oakland, California.

MARGOT REED SISLER

July 5, 1931 – April 27, 2017

Margot Reed Sisler passed away peacefully in her home on April 27, 2017, surrounded by the people and things she loved.

Born in Chicago on July 5, 1931, Margot was raised in Illinois and Michigan with solid Midwest values she exhibited throughout her life. She attended an Episcopal preparatory school – Kemper Hall in Kenosha, Wisconsin – and majored in biology at Lake Forest College in Illinois, both along Lake Michigan. For a decade, she worked as a state welfare fraud investigator in Springfield, Illinois, before her 1974 relocation to Carmel. All Saints Episcopal Church in Carmel and her unshakeable Christian faith were constants which allowed her to embrace life.

Margot's affinity with nature echoed through her gardens, canine companions, and charter support of Monterey's Bay Aquarium. Lifetime travels throughout the world created a treasure trove of experiences, connections and opportunities to be of service. Her numerous safaris to Kenya, Tanzania, and South Africa combined adventure with her charitable endeavors as she provided financial assistance to empower local women and children in need.

Margot is predeceased by her mother, Anne Holmes Reed; father and stepmother Charles S. Reed Jr. and Elizabeth Ricker Reed; siblings Charles Shepard Reed III and Barbara R. Seidenberg; and nephew Kenneth Charles Shepard Reed. Margot is survived by her brother Michael Reed.

Margot will be especially missed by her beloved nieces and nephews, including Anne E. Reed, Laura Seidenberg, Steven C. Seidenberg, and Steven's wife, Kay F. Seidenberg.

The family would like to thank all who helped Margot in her final years. The wonderful caregivers at Central Coast Senior Services and Central Coast Hospice tended to her physical, emotional, and spiritual needs with warmth, affection, and compassion.

A celebration of Margot's life will be held this September at All Saints Episcopal Church in Carmel, California. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to Peace of Mind Dog Rescue, P.O. Box 51554, Pacific Grove, CA 93950 (501c3 Tax ID #27-1154816).

THEATERS

with Sunset Center's current resident companies," maintaining "a vibrant community center serving the needs of Carmel residents and community organizations," and expanding art and educational programs. SCC must also ensure its own "long-term financial viability and stability."

The lease requires quarterly reports to Rerig and semi-annual reports to the council, and protects Sunset's "historic users," like the Bach Festival and the Carmel Music Society.

It provides a dozen "free" theater days for use by the city or groups the council chooses. An endowment fund will be established to help pay for its operation, management and maintenance, and the lease clarifies the responsibilities of each side for maintenance, repairs and capital improvements.

The proposed lease garnered little comment from the public at the council meeting and was approved unanimously by the council. Councilwoman Jan Reimers had to step down from the vote, since she owns property nearby.

Forest Theater terms

For taking over the Forest Theater, SCC will receive all of its income, but in case of a shortfall, the city will guarantee up to $25,000. SCC will also get a $20,000 operating grant for the Forest Theater for the first three years of the contract, and the group can establish a facility use fee to tack onto tickets, just as it did at Sunset years ago. The city will get five "free" use days there, and will handle all maintenance responsibilities and pay for utilities.

The agreement also protects the Forest Theater's two historic presenters, Pacific Repertory Theatre and the Forest Theater Guild.

The Forest Theater deal prompted considerably more feedback from the public. Resident Ian Martin objected to Hardy's role, since she lives close to the theater, which he and many others hadn't known would be part of the closed-door negotiations with SCC. He said her participation "tainted" the whole negotiation process, since she has historically objected to noise, light and other issues at the theater that affect nearby residences, and that had he known the Forest Theater was part of the discussions, he would have said something about it much earlier.

"I don't think I need to remind anyone that the Forest Theater has been here since 1910," he added. "Everyone knew they were moving in near an outdoor theater when they bought their homes."

Resident Jeff Baron also objected to the fact that few people knew Forest Theater was on the table, and he worried that SCC would be able to intensify uses there.

"It doesn't seem like there are any restrictions on what the SCC can do," he said, adding that he was "surprised" by the lack of public involvement in the deal making.

Stephen Moorner, executive director of PacRep, said the user groups had been "aware of the conversation for at least the last few months," and that they "think this is a really good idea."

He also said the lease agreement doesn't include any major changes in how the theater is operated and used.

"Whenever you get a new landlord, it's always a little bit of a leap of faith, but we feel good about this leap of faith," he said.

Rerig affirmed that the agreement doesn't affect the user groups or the operation of the theater much.

"We haven't changed any of those protections," he said. "There is no land-use change happening with this."

The council unanimously voted to OK the SCC lease for the Forest Theater, minus Hardy, who had recused herself.

Afterward, Martin pointed out that none of the public notices about the closed-session meetings mentioned the Forest Theater — they only referred to "real property negotiations — lease."

"The city council has given up control of one of our village's most important cultural resources," he concluded. "I would have expected far more transparency and public input in reaching that decision."

Phyllis Decker Siegel

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Phyllis Decker Siegel on Tuesday, May 16th. A native of Denver, Phyllis was a Carmel resident for over forty years. She was involved with the Monterey Film Commission, Carmel Chamber of Commerce, Carmel Art and Film Festival, SPCA, American Cancer Society, American Red Cross and Peace of Mind Dog Rescue.

Phyllis was a bright light amongst us — a woman who brought laughter and sunshine and pure happiness when she walked into the room. "To know her was to love her." She cared so much and had a heart whose love could encompass the world. Her passion was helping animals and she worked with an amazing organization Peace of Mind Dog Rescue, helping senior dogs and the elderly of Monterey to care for them.

Many of you have asked about organizations to donate in PJ's honor — please consider helping this amazing group she loved so deeply. To donate please:

1. Visit <http://www.peaceofminddogrescue.org> and click the Donate button (blue box in upper right hand corner). Click the "tribute donation" on the next page so that you can make the donation in Phyllis' memory.

2. Mail a check to Peace of Mind Dog Rescue
P.O. Box 51554

Pacific Grove, CA 93950

In the Memo of the check please write down
"in Memory/tribute of Phyllis Decker (Siegel)."

Phyllis died surrounded by love. She is in the arms of those who love her: her parents, her sister, the many wonderful animals she has cared for over the years, especially her most beloved Tilly.

JAMES GROVER TAYLOR V

July 14, 1939 ❖ June 2, 2017

James Grover Taylor V was born on July 14, 1939 in Newark, New Jersey and died at the Del Monte Residential Care Center in Pacific Grove, California on June 2, 2017.

His mother was Ida Sokol Taylor and his father was James Grover Taylor IV. The family moved to Flemington, New Jersey and Jim graduated from Hunterdon Central High School in 1957. There is still a plaque displayed commemorating him as the highest achiever of academic excellence at Hunterdon High. He obtained his BA, MS and PhD at Stanford University in Petroleum Engineering. He was awarded the Phi Beta Kappa Key in his junior year.

He met Mary Ann Thompson at Stanford where she was obtaining a BS in Nursing. They married in 1966. He worked for Mobil Oil in Dallas, CDEC at Fort Ord, then was recruited by the Naval Postgraduate School to teach Operations Research, attaining a full professorship and teaching there for 40 years. He was the author of several books on Operations Research. He was a Cubmaster, sang in the choir at St. John's Chapel, and was a member of the Parent's Club at Santa Catalina and Robert Louis Stevenson Schools.

He leaves his wife of 51 years Mary Ann, two sons James Grover Taylor VI, MD (Janet) and Asher Taylor (Kristal) and a daughter Kasnya Taylor Berry (Brent) and six grandchildren.

Private burial services were held Thursday June 15, 2017 at the Monterey Cemetery. A memorial service will be held at St. John's Chapel in Monterey on Saturday, July 15, 2017 at 11 a.m. with a reception to follow in the Parish Hall. The family wishes to thank the staff at the Del Monte Residential Care Center for their loving care and compassion and know that your kindness is forever appreciated.

PETER THOMAS FIGGE

March 23, 1970 ❖ June 5, 2017
Carmel

While deeply saddened by this loss, the Figge family honors Peter's memory with profound gratitude for their memorable and happy time together. Born to parents Joanne and James Figge in Davenport, Iowa, Peter was raised in Kansas City and spent his summers in Sun Valley, Idaho. One of four boys, he attended Pembroke Hill School with his siblings and then the University of Colorado at Boulder. There he earned his undergraduate degree in biology and met his wife, Amy.

Shortly after graduating from Boulder, Peter relocated to San Francisco, fell in love with the west coast and remained. While living in the City, Peter traveled to the Barossa Valley in Australia to work the harvest and crush. His love of the vines ultimately led him back to the Napa Valley. There, while working in the vineyards, Peter decided to pursue a degree in Viticulture and Enology and applied to UC Davis. Of 120 applicants, he was one of four chosen for the Master's Program. While Peter pursued his degree, the University offered him a position as Teaching Assistant. This he enjoyed, and the University further invited him to pursue the study for his Ph.D., receive a Full Professorship, and remain on the Faculty at Davis.

Instead, Peter decided to come to Carmel where his wife had been born and raised. He was immediately hired by Estancia in South Monterey County as Vineyard Foreman. There, he supervised their existing vineyards and researched the acquisition of new acreage that he would be responsible for developing and planting. Peter was then approached by Estancia to become Vineyard Manager for the company. This position meant inside office work and his passion was the vines. As a result, Peter departed from Estancia and formed his own company, Figge Cellars, and created his own label "Figge."

His unique talent, work ethic, discipline, and integrity were part of not only his vocation but his avocation as well. These strong qualities led to Peter's success.

As a devoted father to his two young sons, Peter instilled in them a love of nature and of the outdoors. The boys loved being part of the family fun during harvest. Peter was a voracious reader and, from this, his sons acquired a love of books. They found that his support for homework and for all of their athletic endeavors and personal interests was constant. Peter was wonderfully proud of his boys.

Peter's legacy will be that he was not only the quintessential Vintner but the quintessential family man of utmost devotion to both his wife, Amy, and his sons, Henry and Jackson. He was a man who, in a unique sense, lived in the moment and was far more interested in what you had to say than in impressing his listener. Humble and unassuming, Peter was charismatic.

Predeceased by his mother, Joanne Thornton, and brother, Christopher, Peter is survived by the love of his life, Amy, his wife of twenty-one years; sons, Jackson and Henry; his father, James Figge Sr.; step-mother, Sandra Figge; brothers, James Figge Jr. (Barbara) and Stephen Figge (Ian); sisters, Katie Pitcher (Rick) and Cherie McLennand and numerous nieces and nephews.

A memorial will be held in the Rosary Chapel at Santa Catalina School today, Friday, June 16 at 2 p.m.

The family asks that, in lieu of flowers, tributes in Peter's memory be sent to Santa Catalina School 1500 Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey CA 93940.

inal activity and enhance the safety for law enforcement officers," said Hober, head of the Monterey County Chief Law Enforcement Officers Association. With open channels, criminals can use scanners to listen to police calls and know how, when and where they are responding to crimes.

"Salinas P.D. has multiple examples that suspects have had scanners and were heard discussing with co-conspirators that police were responding, as well as officers arresting suspects that had scanners in their vehicles," Hober told The Pine Cone. "These cases have included robberies, persons arrested with guns, carjackings, burglaries, drug arrests, parole violations, etc."

While the chiefs considered ways they might make encrypted radio traffic available to members of the public who don't have criminal intent — including the media —

Hober said they abandoned their efforts after deciding the "technological as well as 'discriminatory' concerns" were too much of an impediment.

"One of the biggest issues was trying to determine what groups would be allowed to monitor and which ones would not," he said.

The consolation he offered was that the channels fire departments use won't be encrypted, and police departments will continue to post logs on their websites and mention some calls on social media sites.

The Monterey County Sheriff's Office will also keep its two main channels open, mostly so other agencies can hear what sheriff's deputies are responding to, and because the information needs to reach deputies outside the system's "digital footprint" in King City and Big Sur.

"Public safety dispatch channels will continue to be recorded and made available through public records requests and subpoenas," Hober added, though those measures don't help when it comes to following and reporting breaking news.

Carmel Police Chief Paul Tomasi said he expects Carmel P.D.'s sole channel to go silent to outsiders in mid-July or early August.

recruiting for about 60 job positions, with nearly 25 percent of them considered "hard-to-fill." Montage also has a program to reward employees who refer applicants who get hired for the hard-to-fill positions.

The apartment buildings, expected to be completed by the end of the year, will include 24 720-square-foot, one-bedroom apartments; eight 995-square-foot, two-bedroom units; and 7,000 square feet of ground floor commercial space.

Montage's housing plan isn't unheard of, but it's also not common. "I believe Cottage Health in Santa Barbara offers a similar kind of housing," Montage Health spokeswoman Mary Barker told The Pine Cone Monday.

Details, including rent prices and how long Montage will allow new workers to live in the apartments, have yet to be hashed out, Barker said.

sionalism,” said Paula Lotz, who takes care of an elderly family member who uses medical marijuana. “I strongly support approval of them as a dispensary.”

Also offering support were several neighboring businesses, including The Barnyard shopping center.

“We don’t see this interfering with the operation of The Barnyard,” said attorney Anthony Lombardo, representing the shopping center’s owners. “I hope you approve this today.”

Big Sur Cannabotanicals thanked its supporters with a message on social media.

“We are so touched by all who came out to support us this morning,” the post read. “We look forward to continuing to serve our community.”

It’s unclear what the approval will mean for another medical marijuana dispensary applicant, Valentia Piccinini, who wants to establish Synchronicity Holistic at 26390 Carmel Rancho Blvd.

The county’s new rules on medical marijuana businesses require that they be located at least 1,500 feet from each other. At a hearing last month, the Carmel Valley Land Use Committee voted unanimously to support Piccinini’s project — but only if the application by Big Sur Cannabotanicals was denied.

County planner Craig Spencer has suggested it might be possible for both dispensaries to operate in the same area. He said “a variance for a set back” could be considered, or the general development plan for Carmel Rancho “could create special setbacks to support two dispensaries.”

While his colleagues haven’t spoken out on the topic, planning commissioner Paul Getzelman made it clear this week that he’s OK with two dispensaries operating in the same area. In fact, he wouldn’t stop at two. “I don’t have an issue if two or three are located in same building like an auto mall,” he added.

Dance Kids ‘Nutcracker’ to feature live orchestra

By DENNIS TAYLOR

WHEN MORE than 100 young people from Dance Kids of Monterey County perform “Nutcracker: A Monterey Peninsula Tradition” for the 24th time this December, they’ll be feeling Tchaikovsky’s music all the way up to their hair bows and toy soldier hats.

Thanks to a $44,000 fundraising effort by Friends of Dance Kids and the nonprofit organization’s board of directors, this year’s performances (Dec. 8 to 10 at Sunset Center) will be accompanied by the 39-piece Monterey County Pops Orchestra.

“We’ve always danced to canned music in the past, but this year, thanks to our fundraising efforts, we’ll be performing with a symphony, with Dr. Carl Christensen conducting,” said Carol Richmond, founder and artistic director of Dance Kids. “We’re absolutely beside ourselves with excitement. This is something I’ve wanted to do for 24 years.”

The weekend will begin with a free show Dec. 8, at 10 a.m., at which 175 Monterey County schoolchildren will be guests, followed by another performance at 7 p.m. that evening, a 7 p.m. show on Dec. 9, and a 2 p.m. matinee on Dec. 10. Ticket information will be announced soon.

“For the young people (ages 4 and up) who will be onstage, this will change their listening skills, their musicality,” Richmond said. “Live music is much louder, and they’ll be hearing things they don’t always hear, even in a great recording. Dr. Christensen told me our young people will actually feel the vibration of the orchestra through the floor, and that will be an adjustment. It’s going to be a different kind of preparation for us this time.”

Auditions and rehearsal begin in September. Andrea Paris Gutierrez, of the Los Angeles Ballet Academy, returns as choreographer, with five local rehearsal directors coordinating the production. Three of the five directors are certified instructors from the Royal Academy of Dance, in London.

The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the County where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust has deposited all documents evidencing the obligations secured by the Deed of Trust and has declared all sums secured thereby immediately due and payable, and has caused a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be executed. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the County where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (916)939-0772 or visit this Internet Web http://search.nationwideposting.com/propertySearchTerms.aspx, using the file number assigned to this case CA1600276691 Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. Monterey Pop returns to iconic stage

FIFTY YEARS after Jimi Hendrix lit his guitar on fire at the Monterey County Fairgrounds, the 50th anniversary celebration of the 1967 Monterey Pop Festival seeks to recapture the magic this weekend (June 16-18).

"It's going to be an extraordinary day of music," promotor Gregg Perloff told The Pine Cone. "The lineup is spectacu-

The festival will be far more than just a stroll down Memory Lane.

"When we decided to honor the festival, we didn't want to do a museum piece," insisted Perloff, who once worked for the legendary promotor Bill Graham. "We wanted to feature contemporary artists who had some legacy with the artists who played here 50 years ago.

Perloff said Monterey Pop paved the way for future music festivals — and introduced the world to some amazing music that was coming out of California at the time.

"It was the first festival that really brought together a disparate group of musicians from Los Angeles and San Francisco where the music was coming from a different space," he said. "Monterey Pop was the precursor to Woodstock and all the other events that took place."

Single day tickets start at $105, and three-day tickets start at $295. For more details, visit www.monterey-popfestival50.com.

Photography 'legend' shares images, stories

ONE OF the Monterey Peninsula's most enduring photographers, Robert Byers unveils a retrospective display of his work Saturday, June 17, at Carmel Visual Arts.

"If any one person is a living legend in photography — and has known all the greats in the West Coast tradition of the art form — it is Byers," said Carol Henry of Carmel Visual Arts.

Byers has had an opportunity to work closely with some of the greatest innovators in fine art photography. "He learned much about the selective eye through friendships with photographic visionaries Ansel Adams, Wynn Bullock and Brett Weston," Henry explained.

Nearly 100 year old, Byers is still passionate about his art. "It's the search and the journey that make life and photography exciting," he added.

The gallery hosts a reception June 17 at 2 p.m., and Byers will present a talk June 18 at 3 p.m.

The show continues through June 25. Carmel Visual Arts is located in The Barnyard shopping center next to Elliott Frame Design. www.carmelvisualarts.com.

'Peter Pan' prequel at Golden Bough

By CHRIS COUNTS

WITH A dozen actors playing more than 100 roles — and leaving much to the imagination — a PacRep production of "Peter and the Starcatcher" opens June 17 at the Golden Bough Playhouse.

Serving as a prequel to "Peter Pan," the family-friendly play follows the adventures of a nameless orphan who embarks on an epic journey across the sea, where he crosses paths with pirates and discovers his destiny.

"This is a really unusual and wonderful piece," producer and director John Farmanesh-Bocca told The Pine Cone. "It's based on a beloved novel by Dave Barry that's written in the Harry Potter tradition. It's meant for children, but it's filled with so much whimsy that adults enjoy it, too."

The cast includes John Newkirk, Michael Jacobs, Bob Coulter, Bri Slama, Richard Boynton, James Brady, Jarod Hussey, Skip Kadish, Patrick McEvoy, Scott McQuisten, Stephen Poletti and Aaron Kitchen.

The actors will portray more than 100 characters in the play, with Jacobs and Coulter appearing in dozens of roles. Nothing about the play is very realistic, with elderly actors portraying small children, and swords-men wielding plungers in battle. Much is left to the audience's imagination.

"All the props are purposely designed to be something else," Farmanesh-Bocca explained. "It's a devised theater piece with found objects. We're not trying to fool anybody with elaborate costume changes and sets."

The play will stay with viewers long after the curtain falls, Farmanesh-Bocca predicted.

"It's a deceptively simple play, but it's incredibly difficult to direct and act," he added. "Everybody has to move like clockwork. It's a super complex and riveting play with a lot of moving parts. In the end, you can't imagine the play being done in a realistic way."

The play continues Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through July 8. All shows start at 7:30 p.m. except Sunday matinees, which begin at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 to $38, with discounts available for children, students, teachers, seniors and active military. Tickets are two-for-the-price-of-one on Thursdays.

The Golden Bough is located on Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth. Call (831) 622-0100 or visit www.pacrep.org.

Monterey P.D. offers Slurpees for good kids

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

MONTEREY POLICE are taking part in a decades-old summertime tradition of attempting to win hearts and minds by giving away frozen sweet treats during Operation Chill, a collaboration between 7-Eleven and law enforcement. For the 22nd year, officers will go in search of deserving kids to receive coupons for free Slurpees.

"Law enforcement agencies use the Slurpee coupons to enhance relationships with the young people of their cities by rewarding them for good deeds, constructive activities and acts of kindness," according to Sgt. Mickey Roobash of Monterey P.D. "Appropriate 'offenses' might include helping another person, deterring crime, or participating in a community or police-sponsored event."

The coupons are good for small Slurpees at participating 7-Eleven stores. The effort started in Philadelphia in 1995, and since then, more than 19 million Slurpees have been given away by officers throughout the country.

Covey introduces breakfast, Balestreri and Scheid honored, and C.V. Art & Wine

IN THE continuing effort to reinvent the Covey Restaurant & Bar, Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley recently announced that the restaurant now serves breakfast. Available inside, as well as outdoors on the deck, it complements the small bites, beer, wines by the glass and cocktails — along with dishes like fried chicken and waffles and the popular Bubbles & Birds (chicken and Champagne) that recently became available during the evenings Wednesday through Sunday.

open daily for breakfast from 6:30 to 11 a.m., and from 5 to 10 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday for cocktails and dinner. Visit www.quaillodge.com/covey for more details.

■ Balestreri named a legend

Ted Balestreri, chairman and CEO of the Cannery Row Company and co-owner of the Sardine Factory restaurant, became the first recipient of the National Restaurant Association's Legends Award during a special industry dinner May 20 in Chicago.

The award is a collaboration between the NRA and the International Foodservice Manufacturers Association, and intends to honor "an individual whose lifelong contributions to the foodservice and hospitality industry have been extraordinary." Honorees are selected by the NRA Board of Governance Committee, and with 1 million restaurants and 14 million employees in the industry, the group has a lot of people to choose from.

NRA President and CEO Dawn Sweeney presented the award to Balestreri, calling him, "a giant in our industry."

The breakfast menu features Quail's Egg Skillets, traditional Huevos Rancheros, Eggs Benedict, and classic comfort dishes like buttermilk pancakes, a traditional American breakfast, and Max's Biscuits & Gravy (named for Quail GM Max Schroeder). "One of my first jobs ever was as a short-order cook in an Iowa truck stop, and a farm wife taught me how to make the dish," Schroeder explained.

The warm and intimate space has a motorsports theme paying homage to the property's annual car and motorcycle events, with related artwork by Molly McCall, and intact motorcycles provided by Robb Talbott's Moto Talbott Museum located several miles down the road in Carmel Valley Village.

Executive chef Brian Kearns, whose skills have been evident in the lodge's impressive wine dinners, said he has enjoyed "being at the forefront of this new culinary chapter at Quail Lodge." In developing the new menus, he "wanted to make sure I was capturing the essence of a true Carmel Valley meal while maintaining Quail Lodge's commitment to locally sourced and organic ingredients."

tality, and personally and professionally shaped our industry's history in America," she said at the ceremony. "He is a business genius, an industry advocate, an irrepressible role model, and a leader who truly inspires."

■ Al Scheid named Leader of the Year

Al Scheid of Scheid Vineyards has been named the California Association of Winegrape Growers' Leader of the Year for his "leadership legacy" that includes founding two powerful organizations of grape growers, being a key part of what has evolved to be a highly successful growing region and industry, and becoming one of the largest independent growers in the business.

Scheid first bought vineyards in Monterey County 45 years ago as an investment banker. After 15 years, he bought out his partners, redeveloped the vineyards, grew the client base and expanded the winery. The business now includes 4,000 acres of vineyards and two wineries — one for Scheid Vineyards wines, and a much larger facility that makes wine for sale to other wineries. Scheid Vineyards is run by his son, CEO Scott Scheid, and daughter, senior VP Heidi Scheid, along a couple of longtime employees, chief operating officer Kurt Gollnick and director of winemaking Dave Nagengast, who joined in 1988 and 2002, respectively.

In CAWG's June magazine, Scheid said he was "surprised and honored" to receive the award. "As a founder of the organization, the second chairman and longtime board member, I know the honor of the recognition," he said. Scheid helped establish the group, which he called "the united voice of the grape grower," in 1974.

■ Galante breaks out oldies but goodies

Jack Galante, proprietor of Galante Vineyards, will break out a selection of special wines from his cellar for his next library tasting Friday, June 16, from 4 to 6 p.m.

The lineup includes 2000 vintages of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and a red blend, and a 2004 Cabernet. Unusual for its age, the Merlot is "absolutely exquisite," according to Galante. "The mouth immediately explodes with bright strawberry and a hint of cooked rhubarb. Still incredibly youthful, this wine can stand up to the finest. The bad news is there are only three cases left!"

General admission is $25 per person, while club members pay $15. Discounts will be offered on all the featured wines that day. The tasting room is located on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh. RSVP by calling (831) 624-3800 or emailing danielle@galantevineyards.com.

■ C.V. Art & Wine

The Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce will host the 13th Annual Art & Wine Celebration June 17 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Carmel Valley Village. While the event serves as a venue for California artists to present original pieces, the fest also offers a lot of wine, musical performances, a raffle, and "creative street food."

Ceramicists, woodworkers, sculptors, glass blowers, painters and other artists will display their creations throughout the Village, and several wineries will pour during the festival, like Holman Ranch Vineyards, Bernardus Winery, Joullian Vineyards, Mercy Vineyards, Cima Collina Vineyard, Big Sur Vineyards, and others. Beer and sangria will be served in the VIP tent.

To attend the festival is free, but tasting wine costs $30 per person in advance and $40 at the event. VIP tickets are available for $60 and include small bites, specialty wine tastings and a shaded lounge.

■ Jake talks bees at Earthbound

Jake Reisdorf, beekeeper and founder of Carmel Honey Co., will talk about his favorite insects during a free workshop June 17 at 10 a.m. at Earthbound's farm stand at 7250 Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley.

Reisdorf, 14, was 10 when he founded his business as an outgrowth of a school project, and has become a passionate proponent. In addition to tending bees, and harvesting and selling their honey and honeycomb, he has established hives at several restaurants and works with their chefs to use the honey in their cuisine and cocktails. Bernardus Lodge, Big Fish Grill, Haute Enchilada in Moss Landing, Porter's in the Forest, and several others are now working with Reisdorf.

The workshop will include hands-on activities, honey tastings, and bee-viewing up close — safely. Reisdorf will also share information on why bees are important and how everyone can help save the pollinators.

For more information, visit www.carmel-honeycompany.com. To learn more about Earthbound, see www.earthboundfarm.com.

■ Tasting for the Dads at Fifi's

Fifi's Bistro Café in Pacific Grove will hold a tasting in honor of dads June 17, which is the day before Father's Day.

The lineup selected by sommelier Jacques Melac includes an interesting mix of wines from all over the globe, with a sparkling wine, full-bodied whites, and light and heavier reds. The tasting will begin at 3 p.m. and costs $20 per person. Reservations are required, and can be made by calling (831) 372-5325. Fifi's is located at 1188 Forest Ave. www.fifiscafe.com

■ Table Affair funds for pups

"It really was the best one ever!" Pebble

Beach resident Averil Nero said of May's A Table Affair, which helped raise money and awareness for several canine-related nonprofits. "The tables were fantastic, and there was such enthusiasm amongst the participants."

This year's event was held at Spanish Bay, following more than a dozen years at the Lodge at Pebble Beach, allowing more decorated tables than before. "The tables were really stunning," Nero said.

Members of the public sipped wine and perused the table settings for free while donating generously to the benefiting nonprofits — Canine Companions for Independence, Monterey Bay Search Dogs, National Disaster Search Dog Foundation, and Operation Freedom Paws. Retired U.S. Navy Cmdr. Randy L. Wight, his wife, and their Canine Companions service dog, Neo, sponsored the event, which Pebble Beach Company has also supported since its inception. A Table Affair is covered by private funds so all donations go to the beneficiaries.

■ Bernardus dinner at Whaling Station

Bernardus winemaker Dean De Korth will collaborate with executive chef David Stember of the Whaling Station during a winemaker dinner June 22 at 6 p.m. The three-course dinner with wine pairings will include Prime Rib egg rolls, Wedge salad with blackened prawns, filet mignon with wild mushrooms and the restaurant's famous scalloped potatoes, and assorted cheeses with local honeycomb and candied nuts.

Everyone attending will be automatically entered to win a VIP tasting for 10 guests at the Bernardus tasting room in Carmel Valley Village, a $500 value.

The dinner costs $95 per person, inclusive, and afterward, guests can head upstairs to the Humidor, which opened last year, for after-dinner drinks and fine cigars. Tickets are available via Eventbrite.com. The steakhouse is located at 763 Wave St.

Festival offers Father's Day treat

Award-winning blues artist John Nemeth headlines the third annual Blues Festival in the Forest June 18 at Poppy Hills in Pebble Beach.

A singer, songwriter and harmonica player, Nemeth took home Blues Music Awards for Soul Blues Male Artist in 2014 and Soul Blues Album in 2015.

The lineup also features Tony Lindsay and the Soul Soldiers, The Al James Band and The Monterey Jazz Festival High School All-Star Combo.

Poppy Hills general manager Brad Shupe said the family-friendly event will offer something for all ages.

“Dads get a chance to relax while watching some of the best blues artists in America, while kids are treated to a special and safe playground,” Shupe said. “There is no better way to celebrate Father’s Day.”

Showtime is 11:30 a.m. Tickets are $30, and children get in free. Proceeds benefit the Monterey Jazz Festival’s education programs.

Pianist returns with quartet

Featuring one-time Carmel Valley pianist Kumi Uyeda, The Bridge Piano Quartet performs June 16 at Chartreuse Studio. “I have a space on the third story of Carmel Plaza that I’ve been using for events,” studio owner Dorothy Jaremko explained.

Besides Uyeda, the ensemble features violinist Cynthia Baehr, violist Eleanor Angel and cellist Kristin Garbeff. The quartet will play Mozart’s Piano Quartet in G Minor, K. 478, and Fauré’s Piano Quartet in C Minor, Opus 15.

The concert begins at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $20. Carmel Plaza is located at Ocean and Mission.

Fiddler pushes boundaries

Fiddler Mari Black (no relation to the Irish singer) presents a Father’s Day concert Sunday at St. Mary’s-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove.

An award-winning performer in fiddling contests on both sides of the Atlantic, Black pushes the boundaries of Celtic music, incorporating jazz, folk and classical music into her repertoire. When she plays in P.G., Black will be accompanied by Owen Marshall on guitar and Jo Magar on bass.

Presented by the Celtic Society of Monterey Bay, the music starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $22. The church is located at 146 12th St. Call (831) 224-3819 or visit celticsociety.org.

Kansas tickets on sale Friday

A progressive rock band that had hits in the late 1970s with “Carry On My Wayward Son” and “Dust in the Wind,” Kansas makes its Sunset Center debut Sept. 2.

The latest incarnation of Kansas features two of its original members, guitarist Rich Williams and drummer Phil Ehart. Tickets go on sale June 23, at 9:30 a.m., at the Sunset Center box office. www.sunsetcenter.org.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of MARIAN VAVRA LUCIDO.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JEFFREY FRANK SAUNDERS in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that JEFFREY FRANK SAUNDERS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent’s will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:

Date: August 16, 2017
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Dept.: 13
Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL

ORDINANCE 2017-008

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA MOVING THE DATE OF THE CITY’S GENERAL MUNICIPAL ELECTION FROM THE SECOND TUESDAY IN APRIL OF EVEN-NUMBERED YEARS TO THE FIRST TUESDAY AFTER THE FIRST MONDAY IN NOVEMBER OF EVEN-NUMBERED YEARS BEGINNING IN NOVEMBER OF 2018.

WHEREAS, the City’s general municipal elections are currently held on the second Tuesday in April of each even-numbered year; and

WHEREAS, Election Code Sections 1301 and 10403.5 authorize the City to change the date of its general municipal election to coincide with the date of the statewide general election; and

WHEREAS, the City Council wishes to consolidate its elections with the statewide general election conducted by the County of Monterey on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of even-numbered years beginning in 2018; and

WHEREAS, in order to accomplish the change in election date, the term of incumbent City Councilmembers who would otherwise be up for election in April 2018 shall be extended from April to December 2018 when the Councilmembers in November take office; and

WHEREAS, the adoption of this Ordinance shall set the next general municipal election of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea on November 6, 2018, and every election thereafter on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of even-numbered years.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Change of Election Day. Pursuant to Elections Code Section 1301 and 10403.5, the day of the general municipal election in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is moved from the second Tuesday in April of every even-numbered year to the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of each even-numbered year beginning in 2018.

Section 2. Consolidated Election. Pursuant to Elections Code Sections 1301 and 10403.5, the City hereby requests the County of Monterey (“County”) approve consolidation of the City’s April City Council election with the statewide general election conducted by the County in November of each even-numbered year beginning in November 2018.

Section 3. Extension of Terms of Office. Pursuant to Elections Code Sections 1301 and 10403.5, due to the change of election date, the terms of office of those members of the City Council presently serving whose terms would previously have expired in April 2018, shall instead, continue in their offices until certification of the results and administration of oaths of office after the November 2018 general municipal election and the terms of office of those City Council presently serving whose terms would previously have expired in April 2020, shall instead, continue their offices until certification of the results and administration of oaths of office after the November 2020 general municipal election.

Section 4. Effective Date. Pursuant to Elections Code Sections 1301 and 10403.5, this Ordinance shall not become operative until approved by the Count of Monterey Board of Supervisors.

Section 5. Notice to Voters. Pursuant to Elections Code Section 10403.5(e), within 30 days after the Ordinance becomes operative, the City Elections Official shall cause a notice to be mailed to all registered voters, within the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, informing the voters of the change in the election date and the extended terms of the current elected City Councilmembers.

Section 5. Chapter 2.73 of the City Of Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code. Chapter 2.73 shall be incorporated to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code to read as shown in Exhibit “A” attached hereto and incorporated herein.

Section 6. The City Clerk is hereby directed to:

- Certify to the passage and adoption of this Ordinance and cause the same to be published as required by law;
- Transmit, without delay, a certified copy of this Ordinance to the County of Monterey Registrar of Voters for final approval by the County of Monterey Board of Supervisors, together with the request that said Board approve this Ordinance and provide the City with notice of such approval;
- Within thirty (30) days after approval of this Ordinance by the County of Monterey Board of Supervisors, cause a notice to be mailed to all registered voters in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea informing them of the change in the general municipal election date and the extended terms of the current elected and appointed City Councilmembers.

Section 7. SEVERABILITY
Should any provision, section, paragraph, sentence or word of this ordinance be rendered or declared invalid, the remaining provisions, sections, paragraphs, sentences or words of this ordinance as hereby adopted shall remain in full force and effect. To this end, provisions of this ordinance are severable.

INTRODUCED on the 2nd day of May and ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 6th day of June, by the following roll call vote:

AYES:	COUNCILMEMBERS:	Hardy, Reimers, Richards, Theis, Dallas

The Home Depot economics lesson

WE'RE SURE many of you have noticed it.

Almost as soon as Home Depot opened in Seaside, the parking lot became a gathering place for men hoping to be hired for day labor by people who needed help with home projects. Often, as many as 30 or 40 men could be seen loitering and waiting for the chance to make $20 or $30 an hour putting up a fence, finishing a paint job, or repairing a patio.

The job-seeking strategy must have worked, because otherwise they wouldn't have kept at it.

As soon as Donald Trump became president, however, almost all of these men disappeared — and not because the work was no longer there. Instead, many of the Home Depot men had obviously entered the country illegally and were suddenly afraid of being deported.

Did they just move on to other, less visible jobs? Some of them may have, but most probably aren't working at all. Meanwhile, the homeowners who would have hired them are left with an unfilled opening — even if just a temporary one. In microcosm, the situation shows what will happen through the California economy if large numbers of immigrants are sent back home, leave on their own, or decide not to cross the border in the first place.

Over the last 30 years, immigrants (legal or otherwise) from Mexico and Central America have made extensive inroads into the California labor market. Agriculture, hospitality, construction, healthcare, meal service and numerous other professions are today dominated by Spanish-speaking workers. "Press 1 for English," is a phrase we hardly heard in the 1980s; now, it's ubiquitous.

But how were these newly arrived workers able to move into these jobs so quickly? Obviously, by being capable and hard working. In many cases, however, it was also because they were willing to work for less.

Meanwhile, many of the jobs they've taken have been newly created by the booming California economy, while others were already there — which means the undocumented immigrants have displaced citizens and legal immigrants who would like to have had the jobs themselves.

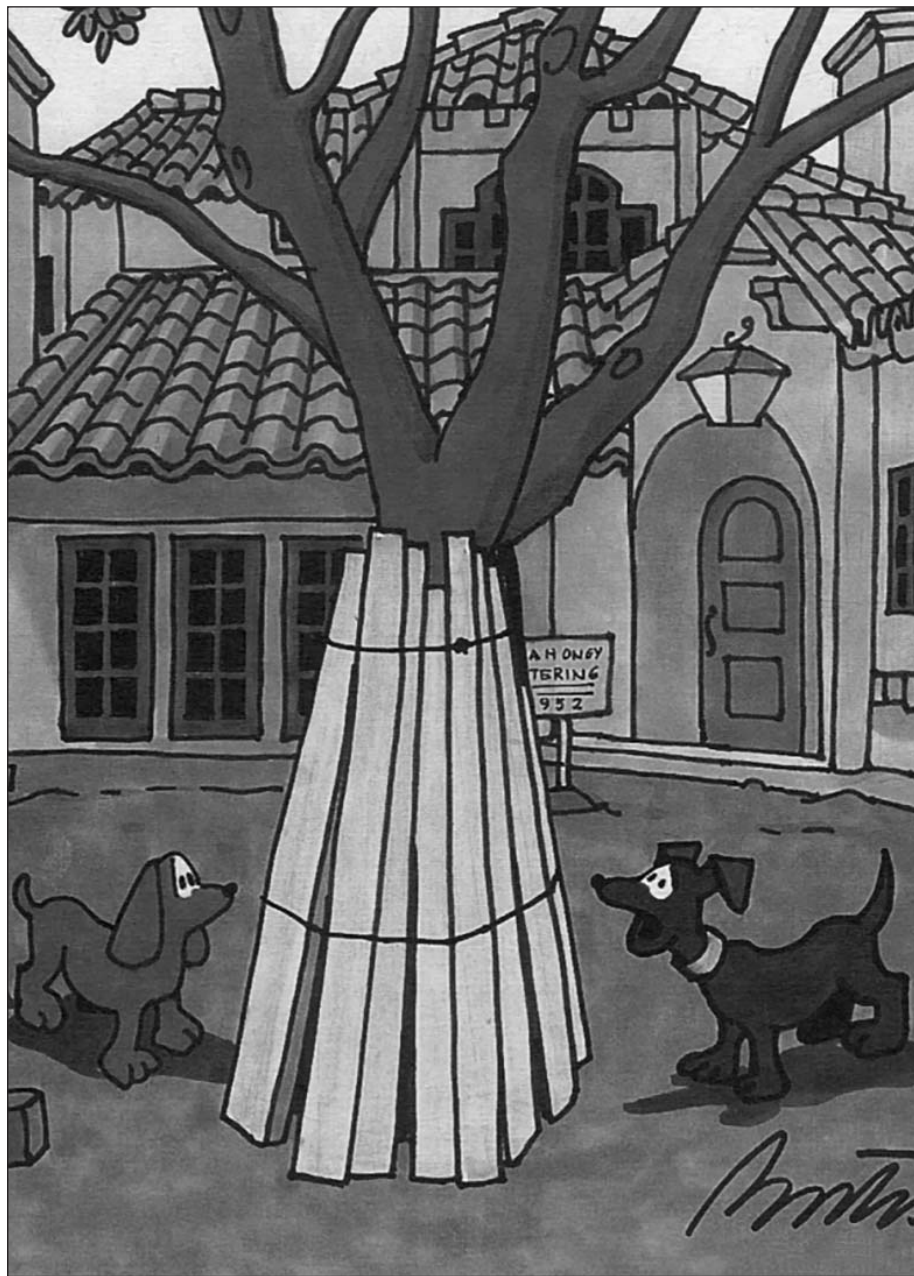

This country cannot have an open border. That would be chaos. We also can't have people crossing the border illegally and taking jobs from citizens and Green Card holders. But we also badly need new immigrants to fill our expanding labor market. What to do?

First of all, employers should never be permitted to hire someone whose employment is against the law. Secondly, all job openings should go to citizens and legal immigrants who are already in the country. But when there's a bona fide need for people to fill jobs that would otherwise go vacant, employers should be able to bring in temporary workers from other countries — workers who are background-checked and who will go back home when their temporary employment is finished.

Which brings us back to the Home Depot parking lot. Instead of picking up day laborers who might be in the country illegally, homeowners should have an easy way to find someone legal to do the job. And if they can't, a labor pool that includes guest workers from other countries should be available.

This model is more difficult and more expensive than just letting the country be flooded with laborers who will work cheaply. But even the millions of Mexicans who have entered the United States since the 1980s obviously realize there has to be a limit — not only for the country's benefit, but for theirs.

GreenWaste problems

Dear Editor,

So is everybody happy with our new garbage pick-up service?

In the past year, I have had two major pick-up problems with the GreenWaste, the last being this past Friday, my pick-up date. My cans were filled to the brim but, alas, on Friday they missed me!

So, I called Friday evening, yes, after hours, but that's when I got home and discovered that my garbage was still there. I left a message, but got no call back. So I called again Saturday and left another message. Still no call back. The garbage is starting to stink!

I remember this happening on occasion with Monterey Waste Management, but they came out right away to pick up on a weekend, after hours, or not.

Isn't this a health issue? I pay a lot for this trashy service.

Likes new theater

Dear Editor,

We are about to bring "Big The Musical" to the Forest Theater (June 29). Now, in the second year after construction, we are reminded of how grateful we are for the support given by the city and the community to upgrade this historic and beloved venue. On behalf of the actors and crew of our show, we thank you.

Hoping for violence

Dear Editor,

When I read the letters opposing Kathy Griffith's show at Sunset, I thought of Will Larkin's comment in the Monterey County Weekly about Carmel being a "douchebag refuge" (June 8).

Conservatives fault Kathy's comedy, while a leering, lying, ignoramus destroys what is left of our country's reputation. Thanks to Toivo Kask, whose June 9 letter sums it up in six words: "Too bad the head wasn't real."

was established in 1915 and is a legal newspaper for Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and the State of California, established by Superior Court Decree No. 35759, July 3, 1952

He'll send you on trips, but what he really wants is to go himself

YOU MIGHT guess it was a tall tale, or at the very least, an exaggeration. Except Dan Presser of Four Winds Travel has the video to prove it happened, just as he tells it. He and a small group of fellow adventurers were on a walking safari — which is exactly what it sounds like — on a small island in the Okavanga Delta of Botswana.

Presser said the island was ringed by dense jungle, with a combination of meadow and marshland in its interior. In the marsh, “there were leeches, cobras and Nile crocodiles,” he said, so as they explored the island, lously, it turned and ran off.

You can watch the video by searching YouTube for Dan Presser. It's called “Wild Elephant Encounter.”

There are more stories (ask him about the lion outside his tent in Botswana sometime) and plenty of video and photos of close encounters with all sorts of critters most of us are content to see safely in, well, video and photos. So why does Presser keep doing going for such close encounters?

“I love animals,” he said. Near the door of his office, Safari the Travel Dog snuffled as if to agree. And Presser loves travel, too. He's been all over the place, including Europe, Asia and the Middle East, where he saw the world's rarest bird, a melanistic (black) flamingo at the border of Israel and Jordan.

His next trip will be his first visit to Mongolia. Antarctica is also on his checklist.

Although he has no trace of a drawl, Presser was born and raised in Houston, Texas. His first trip abroad was when as a teen, he befriended the son of an Argentinian and was invited to stay with him and his family over Presser's summer break.

After graduation, he went to college at Tulane in New Orleans. He took a double major in history and chemistry, because, he their guide had them stick to a game trail — a path that had been worn by animals in the area.

Suddenly, as they surveyed their surroundings, Presser glimpsed a large animal rapidly approaching and began recording video.

Caught in the open with nowhere to go, and the truism that “anything that runs in Africa is dinner” ringing in their minds, the group slowly moved behind what was barely a bush. The cover was sparse, and the beast turned out to be an enormous bull elephant.

They were hopeful the animal wouldn't notice them and simply pass by, but when it got very close, the elephant stopped and raised its trunk, sniffing the air. All the while, Presser kept his camera going, and in the video you can hear the elephant's steps as it thuds along.

Finally, the elephant came right up to the bush and slashed across it with its tusk, trying to figure out what was behind it. It was the only time Presser — who appears to be maybe 2 or 3 feet from the beast — lowered the camera to duck. Then the guide succeeded in startling the elephant by clapping loudly, and miracu-

THE ART OF MOUNTAINSIDE SUNRISES

AT 6:30 every morning, Heidi Hybl wakes up and wanders into her front yard, which happens to be a mountainside in the towering Palo Colorado hills, halfway between Carmel and Big Sur valley. She feeds her chickens, lets her goats out of their pen, and sits down to watch the sun come down the mountain, washing over her inch by inch, slowly making its way down to the Pacific Ocean.

“It's a kind of meditation for me,” said Hybl, a member of the Carmel Art Association for nearly two decades. “It occurs to me that this is something that will keep happening every day, long after humans aren't here anymore — just a repeated thing that nature does.”

“I like to look at the light as it comes down the hill toward me,” she said. “I could envision a whole wall of these kinds of paintings someday.”

Hybl describes herself as mostly a landscape artist, then laughs aloud. “You kind of can't escape it out here,” she said.

But she also said she's not really interested in portraying things exactly as they are. “As an artist, I call myself a reductive abstractionist,” she explained. “I'm interested in the light, the uneven horizon line, the infinity, the mystery: You can look out there and not see the edge.”

Introverted child

The dichotomy is that Hybl, the artist, is in equal part a scientist. She went to college to learn about medicine — not art — and became a nurse, and later a medical laser technician.

She and her husband, Don, haven't owned a television set since the mid-'70s. She's an avid reader.

“I have this biology book in my studio that I'm reading right now,” she said. “I'll sit there every morning, read about biology, which I find fascinating, and kind of look around and decide what I want to work on that day.”

“I'm also a list-maker,” added Hybl, detailing another trait that might seem unusual for an abstract artist. “I like making lists, because I like crossing things off my list as I finish them. And I like deadlines — they make me braver.”

Hybl was born in Chicago and raised in what she describes as “an environment in which there was a lot of control.” She was an introverted child from a long line of creative adults. Her mother and grandmother were avid quilters.

She spent her teen years wandering through the galleries at Chicago Art Institute, marveling at the paintings.

“I'm never bored. I don't understand boredom,” she said. “I know people who need a lot of interaction, but I've never been that kind of person. I enjoy my alone time.”

But she discovered her adventurous side after nursing school, and jumped in her car with intent to “see the world” — or, at least, a chunk of the U.S. Hybl drove from Chicago to the West Coast, deliberately using only two-lane highways — no freeways — checking out small towns along the way, camping out or sleeping in her car after she ran out of money.

“A friend had given me a brochure of Carmel, and told me how beautiful and wonderful it was, so I wound up coming here,” she said. “It was sleepier in 1972 than it is now, but I liked it.”

“Money wasn't a huge issue. As a nurse it said, “they were easy.” After some graduate-level classes in mass communications and working in television and radio — including a hitch in the Navy on the island of Adak in Alaska spinning tunes for the troops (and an older commander who preferred music appropriate to his age) — Presser moved into advertising.

An agency he worked for in Chicago sent him to Northwestern University’s Medill School of Journalism, where he received the equivalent of a master’s degree in advertising and marketing

He returned to Texas, where he met his wife of nearly 31 years, Dr. Stephanie Taylor.

Taylor had finished medical school as an OB/GYN and had done so well on her board exams that they had their pick of practices, and settled on California.

They traveled the coast from north to south, and decided this was the place to be. They moved to Monterey in 1989 so, in Dan’s words, “Steff could be close to CHOMP to deliver babies stat!”

After a few years, Presser decided to open Four Winds. It was originally in the Barnyard, and he still has a copy of the first ticket he sold in 1994. Now it’s in Carmel Rancho, tucked away in a building behind the Union 76 station.

In addition to running the travel agency, Presser is active in the community. He’s on the board of the Monterey County Fair (and urges everybody to attend).

He handles public relations for Monterey County Stand Down, an annual event which helps homeless veterans connect with services and has worked to secure the veterans cemetery on the former Fort Ord. And in keeping with his love for animals, he’s past president of the American Cetacean Society.

Mostly, though, he enjoys traveling every chance he gets. And you’re pretty sure he isn’t kidding when he says he wants his tombstone to read, “He’s on the one trip he didn’t want to take.”

was easy to find work, and I wound up working at Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital and living in Pacific Grove. I loved piling into a car with friends and going to Asilomar to watch the sunset — things like that.”

She met Don on a blind date, and surprised herself one night when she told her roommate, “I think I’m going to marry him.” And then she cried.

They were married in 1973 — the first and only marriage for both — and a year later moved into a space in a three-story house near Rocky Point, where the rent was $125 a month. Utilities and phone were paid by the landlord, who also provided firewood.

Hybl says she was 30 before she started thinking seriously about her artwork, taking classes at UC Santa Cruz and Monterey Peninsula College, plus workshops.

“Until then, the business side of being an artist just seemed like too much work,” she said. “But painting has never been work. It’s my disease.”

She was juried into the Carmel Art Association in 1998 (and has served twice on its board of directors), and has displayed her work in almost 40 shows and solo exhibitions in California, Missouri, New York, New Jersey, Florida, Washington, Massachusetts, and Wisconsin since then.

Hybl’s art will be featured at the Carmel Art Association throughout the month of July in a showcase that also will include the work of Barbara Kreitman, Howard R. Perkins, Stan Robbins, and Gerard Martin.

Working with landscapes is almost inescapable in a place like Big Sur, although Heidi Hybl sees herself more as a “reductive abstractionist” in terms of how she depicts the world.

Considered by some to be the greatest of all portrait photographers, Karsh captured images of some of the 20th century’s greatest luminaries, including Winston Churchill, Albert Einstein, Fidel Castro, John F. Kennedy and Ernest Hemingway. He died in 2002. Influenced by Karsh’s work, Sadler is a Monterey Peninsula photographer who has made a name for himself by taking black and white portraits of homeless people. Proceeds from the sale of his prints benefit a local nonprofit, Outreach Unlimited.

The site of a reception June 17 from 4 to 6 p.m., the gallery is located on Sixth between Dolores and Lincoln. The show continues through Aug. 6. Call (831) 624-4453.

Art group to party

Showcasing the artists who rent space in its 8,000 square-foot studio, ArtWorks @ Pacific Grove will be the site of a “Summer of Love” celebration June 16 from 6 to 8 p.m. Besides offering the public a chance to meet an eclectic array of artists, the reception will feature music by singer-songwriter Zachary Freitas.

Owned and operated by the nonprofit Arts Council for Monterey County, ArtWorks provides affordable studio space for local artists. The site is located on the second floor of the American Tin Cannery at 125 Ocean View Blvd.

they want, will it be there for you next time when you need them?”

During deliberations, Mayor Steve Dallas said he’d be open to looking at giving the chamber more money later in the year, but the bulk of the council’s conversation focused on funding for legal services, which Rerig budgeted at $250,000 — far less than the $748,207 spent in 2015-2016 and the $590,815 budgeted in 2016-2017.

While Rerig maintained that it makes sense to budget for typical legal expenses, which don’t anticipate spending on issues like the city’s recently resolved battle with PG&E relating to the explosion of a house in March of 2014, councilwoman Carolyn Hardy said it would be wise to double the budgeted amount.

“I’ve felt all along that that is not enough,” she said, since the city will be contending with legal matters like its battle on short-term rentals, including suing offenders in court, as it did for the first time last week.

“We should be budgeting half a million dollars for legal services,” she said. “It sounds like a lot of money, but I think what we’re trying to say to the community and residents is, ‘We’re serious about going after short-term rental violators,’ and it costs money to do that.”

She suggested the council consider the increase in September, after members learn whether the current fiscal year ends in the red or in the black.

The rest of the council agreed, and unanimously approved the budget.

stolen Coach purses and keychains, which were valued at a total of $1,275, in the car.

They also found the female passenger, who insisted she had nothing to do with the robbery or Callahan's decision to try to out-run the cops, and told them she had repeatedly pleaded with him to stop and let her out.

Callahan agreed with her account, and officers decided to let the woman go, but they booked him into Monterey County Jail on charges of robbery, three counts of burglary, three counts of grand theft, false imprisonment, hit-and-run causing injury, reckless driving and evading arrest.

Police returned the merchandise to Coach, and Powell praised the employees there for doing "a remarkable job of obtaining a complete description of the suspect and getaway vehicle."

"This information played a decisive factor in Callahan's apprehension and is another great example of the outstanding teamwork that exists between the residents and businesses of Carmel and the Carmel Police Department," he said, adding that it's "this exceptional community partnership" that enables CPD to make significant arrests "that will no doubt dissuade other bad guys from coming to a beautiful village to commit waited for the right opportunity to smash the window of the Men's Shop at the Lodge at Pebble Beach under cover of darkness shortly before 8 p.m. Dec. 9, 2016. The area was reportedly busy with visitors and staff at the time, the entrance to the shop can be seen from the front door of The Lodge and is only steps away from the Pebble Beach

Company's executive offices, and the break-in activated the store's alarm. But by the time sheriff's deputies had arrived, the burglar was long gone. The store contained no surveillance cameras at the time.

Monterey County Sheriff's Cmdr. John Thornburg said this week that investigators are pursuing leads.

"We are trying to locate a suspect, so we can't say too much," he said.

Anyone who has information about the theft is asked to share it anonymously at www.montereysheriff.org/CrimeTips.

their crimes."

He also complimented Watkins for his quick thinking and initial observation of the vehicle before he even knew that was the car officers should be looking for, as well as his hasty call to get other agencies involved, all of which "directly resulted in the quick apprehension of Callahan."

Watkins has been with CPD for 13 years and was promoted to corporal in January.

"His natural leadership abilities showed through in this case and further solidify his value as a supervisor in this organization," Powell said.

Notice of Rate Adjustment

July 1, 2017

GreenWaste Recovery residential and commercial customers in the Monterey Peninsula service area will see a rate adjustment on their July 1, 2017 statements. For detailed information, visit www.greenwaste.com.

There are several cost factors contributing to the need for an adjustment including labor, consumer price index, and increasing landfill disposal fees. You can help reduce future costs by recycling more; ask us how.

GreenWaste Recovery maintains our commitment to your community to provide cost-effective and increasingly sustainable solutions for waste disposal, recycling and resource recovery.

The befuddled ramblings of a father wondering how he got it right

IT IS somewhat unnerving to realize that how I will be judged as a father will be determined by three people I thought would never be able to find their way out of a crib. I can't be the only parent who at some point during the child-rearing process thought the hospital had pulled a fast one and switched the nametags on the bassinets in the nursery.

Surely, you've said some of the same things and had some of the same thoughts I've had. Will this kid ever walk? They're shoelaces for Pete's sake. I can't get Velcro closures for Buster Browns. If you don't go to school they'll arrest me and put me in jail. No, we can't send your green beans to the starving children in China. And, of course, that one statement that's as good as a "Get out of jail free" card: Because I said so!

Parenting. The one enterprise that should require credentialing yet allows someone as clueless as I was to go boldly where millions just as clueless have gone before. Fortunately, our children don't realize we are practicing on them. Especially firstborns.

Practically everything we did to and for our first child was based on guesswork and what seemed like a good idea at the time.

This principle of bioethics, "First, do no harm," is taught to all first-year medical students. That same principle should be etched into the hearts and brains of parents. When that writhing little bundle of joy is dropped into your arms, no book, instructional video, or advice from your own parents can prepare you for the next 18-plus years of learning-by-the-seat-of-your-pants mayhem that is ahead. For instance, we had a Volkswagen Beetle when our first child came along. On trips we would place her in the well behind the rear seat, you know, right over the motor? The hum of the engine seemed to rock her to sleep. She probably inhaled enough emissions to make Los Angeles air seem as refreshing as a walk on Carmel Beach.

Recently, one of my nieces posted the following message on Facebook regarding her son's birthday: "He's 17 today and ing up, we were a safer nation, too. We could go anywhere and not have to worry about the crazies who are out there now.

Also, we didn't have to be driven everywhere because we didn't have all the organized activities kids have today. The times we are living in dictate that parents become more involved in their children's lives. Many parents mistakenly allow that involvement to slide into micro-management.

Throughout the years we were raising our children, I kept waiting for fate to deal me the wisdom card. If it happened I must have sat out that hand. I've read all kinds of definitions, but the one I like is: Wisdom is the ability to understand the practical pieces of an event but also appreciate its human impact.

Perhaps appreciating the full impact of raising children finally comes when they are grown and not only tying their own shoes but have finished school and are walking the earth as stalwart citizens while eating every green bean on their plates. I used to think that on Father's Day someone should give me a tee shirt emblazoned with, "I survived raising children." But whatever wisdom I've acquired tells me that they survived being raised by me. So they did find their way out of their cribs. And no, happily, the hospital didn't switch the nametags on the bassinets. We are blessed with two nurses and a schoolteacher, all three embracing the idea that it's better to give than to receive.

This Father's Day, I'll be in Santa Barbara attending the graduation of my granddaughter from UCSB. I'll sit there — proud, happy, smiling — watching the line continue and basking in the thought that somehow I got it right.

I'm helpless to change it." I wonder if she knew that she articulated the lament all parents have expressed since Adam and Eve had a kid named Cain.

Most of us don't want to control our children's lives, but we would like to control the things that will hurt them, the things that will break their spirits and/or their hearts. We learn quickly that's not possible. It is a hard lesson to learn and even harder to accept.

We have kids and we think, "I made you so we're the same." But that's not true. So, you spew out the required platitude — "he takes after his father" — but that statement is as dependable as good weather at the Crosby Clambake.

My parents took a laissez-faire attitude when it came to raising children. It went something like this: "Leave them alone and they'll figure it out for themselves." Of course, the times permitted that kind of parenting.

We were not only a kinder, gentler nation when I was grow-

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer documented an incident at Scenic and Eighth.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Community services officer responded to the area of San Carlos north of Camino del Monte for a loose dog in a resident's yard. The dog was captured by the owner and taken home. Information was obtained regarding this incident and previous incidents. The dog owner was unable to be contacted. Follow-up made by the animal control officer on June 3 with the caller and the dog owner. Solutions for proper containment were discussed. A warning was given.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Child Protective Services referral on Guadalupe north of Sixth — information only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Responded with fire department to a residential structure fire on Dolores north of Second.

Pacific Grove: Probation search conducted on a residence and vehicle on Lighthouse Avenue. Report was taken for documentation.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched to a reported theft at Country Club Gate.

Pacific Grove: An elderly male on Fountain Avenue fell to the ground.

Pacific Grove: A private residence on Divisadero was burglarized.

Pacific Grove: Resident on Presidio Boulevard alleged a violation of a court restraining order.

Pacific Grove: Runaway juvenile, age 15. When he returned home to his David Avenue residence, the juvenile was cited for possession of tobacco and violation of curfew.

Pebble Beach: Report that a male entered a garage on 17 Mile Drive and took the owner's vehicle.

Carmel Valley: Person on Carmel Valley Road contacted the sheriff's office to inquire about evicting a sex registrant.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Verbal dispute on Lincoln south of Ocean.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a burglary from the underground parking garage at San Carlos and Fourth. Burglary was possibly related to a recent theft from a vehicle in the same garage.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Investigated a theft from an unlocked vehicle on Lopez north of Fourth. The owner also reported various suspicious incidents that have occurred over the year.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of stalking in the area of Santa Rita and Third.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Bracelet was found at Lincoln and Sixth by a city employee and brought to the police department.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog was found on the beach. The finder went up and down the beach to find the owner, but no one claimed the dog. The dog had no collar but did have a chip. The owner was contacted and will retrieve the dog at the station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of suspicious circumstances on Santa Fe south of Mountain View.

Pacific Grove: A citizen found a case on Forest Avenue. The property was turned in to PGPD. Attempts to contact the owner were met with negative results. No further information.

The gardens are especially popular among urban dwellers and people with limited space. The bales have to be replaced every year, but can be used for mulch or put into a compost heap at the end of the season.

Why straw and not hay? Straw is the by-product of crops like wheat, barley and oats, while hay consists of grass that has been grown for animal feed. Straw, on the other hand is primarily used for bedding. The reason you want straw and not hay is that hay often sprouts — creating a bring-your-own-weeds situation.

Compared with building a raised-bed garden, it's pretty inexpensive, too. Olow said straw sells for about $13 per bale. And like raised-bed gardens, straw bales are easier to reach, with less bending over. They're gopher-proof (whoohoo!) and the heat generated can help plants that aren't normally happy in cooler coastal summers.

At least, that last part is true according to Dominic Mercurio. The owner of Café Fina and almond grower with business partner, John Madden, is also an avid gardener who grows much of the produce served at his restaurant during the summer. His one-acre garden in Los Banos is always brimming with peppers, watermelon and other goodies.

Sharing the bounty

His mom, who he describes as “a fantastic cook,” likes to grow fresh vegetables, too, but the stooping and bending — and gopher fighting — were making it a little difficult for her. So, like any good son, Mercurio studied Karsten's book, read up on other sources, then went to Hacienda and bought everything he needed to build a straw bale garden at her Monterey home. He even put in drip irrigation on a timer, so she doesn't have to water it. There's basil, tomatoes and fennel, along with other vegetables, and it's all thriving. “It's amazing,” he said, shaking his head. “I wish I had room to do it at my place, but I don't get any sun.”

Well, maybe Mom will share some of her bounty. It looks as if there's going to be more than enough to go around.

These bales of straw may not scream “tomatoes” to you, but they're actually a good gardening medium — especially for people with limited space. And no, you shouldn't use hay.
