Golf world ‘heartbroken’ at passing of RJ Harper

By DENNIS TAYLOR

WHEN HE was 29 years old, RJ Harper chased his future wife, Kelly Yost, from Miami to the Monterey Peninsula, where she was stewing at a girlfriend’s house over his reluctance to commit to a wedding date.

RJ Harper

Before knocking on the door to apologize, he found his way to Pebble Beach — specifically the 18th green of the most-famous golf links in America — and immediately decided that’s where he and Kelly should live.

He got hired as a $5-an-hour golf marshal at Pebble in September 1985, appeased Kelly with a promise that he’d be head golf professional there within three years, and the couple packed their belongings and moved.

Harper, who died Wednesday of pancreatic cancer at age 61, worked 32 years for the Pebble Beach Company, (becoming head pro in four years — a year behind schedule), the last 17 as executive vice president of the company’s golf and retail divisions.

“Back in the day, with three channels on our black-and-white TV set, and no remote, I was flipping the channels one day when I started watching Arnold Palmer,” Harper said at a 2009 banquet where he was accepting an award from the California Golf Writers Association. “He was smoking a cigarette, walking up the fairway, a swash-

Belle begins table service, sky doesn’t fall

By MARY SCHLEY

WHEN THE deadline came, Jay and Chloe Dolata were ready.

Their restaurant, Carmel Belle, had until Sunday to start having waiters in the back room instead of counter service, and with input from their manager and a few others, the couple developed a system that allows customers to sit at a table and push a large white button when they’re ready for a server to help them.

And this week, despite the city’s insistence that they curtail counter service in the expanded part of their restaurant, the system seemed to be working pretty well.

“Jay and I have been to Korea, and a lot of the restaurant tables there have a little red call button on the side,” Chloe explained. “You get someone to come out to your table. We thought it worked really well.”

It’s effective and doesn’t get in the way of the Belle’s casual atmosphere, the Dolatas told The Pine Cone Tuesday. The new setup allows them to maintain Carmel Belle’s free-form style, where customers can walk in and sit wherever they like, Jay said.

“We’re trying to keep it the same casual, easy, and quick place, given our circumstances,” Chloe added.

A lot of people don’t understand why part of the restaurant is off-limits unless they order from a server, and others reiterate their feelings that public officials were unreasonable in requiring the change at a restaurant that’s had counter service for decades, even though the city’s municipal code doesn’t allow it.

The mandate came down after the Dolatas found themselves at the center of the debate over whether counter-service restaurants should be allowed in town. According to existing laws, only coffee shops and ice cream parlors can have counter service — with just a small portion of their total business coming from selling sandwiches, salads, soups and the like — while all other restaurants must operate in the more traditional format, with table service and waitstaff.

But when the Dolatas were allowed to expand their restaurant a few years ago, in part to make it more accessible

Ventana plans cafe in landmark building

By CHRIS COUNTS

A NEW food serving business is in the works, and it would be located inside a historic building that sits alongside the entrance to the Ventana Big Sur resort, Monterey County building official Carl Holm confirmed.

According to Holm, the owner, John Lapins, “intends to renovate the historic structure” and establish a business for “commercial/food use.” Lapins is listed as a partner for Geolo Capital, the company that owns Ventana.

Ventana declined to comment, neither confirming or denying their plans to repurpose the building, which has been used for employee housing.

The building is considered one of Big Sur’s most important historical structures. It’s known locally as the Post

ER advice: You weren’t bitten by a brown recluse

By KELLY NIX

SHE INSISTS that there’s absolutely no way she can be pregnant, but she is. The bite on his leg isn’t from a spider — and it’s certainly not from a brown recluse. And that ghastly reaction after eating salmon doesn’t mean you’ve suddenly developed an allergy; it could just be food poisoning.

Those are a few of the myriad — and sometimes odd — medical scenarios that doctors and nurses in Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula come across in the hospital’s emergency department. In 2016, the emergency room had 56,146 visits.

People love to self-diagnose, but according to emergency department medical director Sameer Bakhda, what patients believe they have is sometimes altogether wrong.

“Everybody comes in and thinks they have a spider bite,”

POST RANCH ALLEGES ‘SCHEME’ BY INSURERS TO AVOID PAYING FOR BRIDGE CLOSURE LOSSES

Hotel carried $100M policy

By KELLY NIX

BIG SUR’S swankiest resort has filed a lawsuit against nearly a dozen insurers, claiming they engaged in a scheme to avoid paying compensation for millions of dollars in lost sales due to the eight-month closure of the Pfeiffer Canyon Bridge and storm damage to the hotel’s water system.

When structural cracks were found in the Pfeiffer Canyon Bridge in February, it was shut down amid safety concerns, and then demolished. Most Big Sur businesses, including Post Ranch Inn, saw a significant dive in sales since vehicles couldn’t reach the area from the north for months. Access was restored when the new bridge opened in October.

In a civil complaint filed Nov. 3, Post Ranch Inn alleges that instead of writing checks that would have allowed the resort to make immediate storm damage repairs and help restore business, insurance claims agents “engaged in a pattern of delay tactics.”

“They set out, from the very beginning, to find a basis for not paying Post Ranch’s claim,” contends the lawsuit, which was filed for the resort by Carmel attorney Neil L. Shapiro and San Francisco law firm Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman. “Under the guise of needing ‘more time to investigate,’ they came up with excuse after excuse for delaying payments and claim resolution.”

Post Ranch lays much of the blame on two companies, AmRisc and CJW & Associates. AmRisc, it said, was an agent for the insurers which handled claims under the hotel’s policy, while CJW worked on behalf of the insurers to manage Post Ranch’s claims.

The two companies, the resort alleges, acted “in concert” with each other and the other insurers to “wrongfully deny” the hotel’s claims, according to the lawsuit.

Furthermore, Post Ranch Inn contends that AmRisc and CJW — recognizing that the inn’s losses, and losses to other policyholders in the Big Sur area, would be extensive — retained law firm Wood Smith Henning & Berman, LLP to

Loving a legacy

EVEN THOUGH she's a year old, Mattie, a Rhodesian ridgeback, is still a baby – but she's also quite regal, elegant and cool. Her full name, Matterhorn, honors her predecessor, "Matterhorn Jake," a champion who lives on in the family's heart.

Mattie was just 8 weeks old when she came to her home near Quail Lodge. But her personality was already well established and so different from the more reserved Jake. In the beginning, this strong-willed and lively puppy challenged her people. One day, as she came down the stairs, looking adorable with her toy in her mouth, her guy hopped up with his camera to capture the moment in a photo. But he lost his balance on the stairs and fell back, breaking his ribs and his hand.

Soon after, while walking near Lake Tahoe, Mattie dashed after another dog. Her gal was flung into the bushes, breaking her wrist and ankle.

"We had our doubts about this dog, wondering if it had been a foolish decision to get a puppy," one of her people said. "But we both mended well, and it's been onward and upward ever since. Mattie has become a very good dog."

The breeder from whom the couple bought Mattie kept the puppy while her people healed. Meanwhile, Mattie went through kennel club puppy training. She came home calm, obedient and sweet.

"Mattie's a good dog," one of her people said. "Still,

I have not taken her to the beach, imagining she'd run down all the old ladies. Instead, I take her to Garland Park, and the dog field by Quail Lodge, where she's free to socialize and play."

Rhodesian ridgebacks usually mature into calm, quiet dogs, who don't chase balls and don't like to play in the water, she continued. "Mattie is a wonderful dog, with plenty of female charm, but we do miss Jake. He was spectacular."

Turkey Trot at Laguna Seca

IF YOU want to get a head start working off those extra Thanksgiving pounds — or beefing up your appetite, the 5th annual Turkey Trot at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca is your chance. Organized by Monterey County and the Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula, the trot invites people to "run, jog or walk at their own pace" around the world-famous (and hilly) 2.238-mile race course between the hours of 7 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 23.

The Food Bank for Monterey County will benefit, and participants are asked to donate $10 to the food bank to take part. Last year, more than 300 people spent their Thanksgiving morning trotting around the track to help raise $3,505 and accumulate grocery bags full of canned and dry goods for the food bank.

Council comes up with another option for police station expansion

By MARY SCHLEY

WHEN PUBLIC works director Bob Harary presented four options for expanding and renovating the police station to the city council Tuesday night, he clearly favored a design that also includes more space for his department, which occupies an adjacent building plagued with leaky roofs and other shoddy conditions. But a majority of the council instead suggested expanding the station without making the potentially costly changes that would accommodate public works.

In his Nov. 7 report, Harary described the four preliminary designs developed by Kasavan Architects that range in estimated costs from $750,000 to $2.5 million, and would add from 966 square feet to 3,998 square feet of space.

The first option would reconfigure and expand the dispatch room, and expand the station onto the patio to the southeast to make space for processing evidence and storing property. Harary said this “bare bones” option would meet “the minimum critical needs for today’s police operations, but does not address other important needs nor future expansion needs.”

The second option would expand into the space now taken up by planters on the Junipero Street side of the station, providing more square footage than the first option, but still not preventing the possibility of having to expand again sometime in the future. “Option 2 doesn’t include additional space for public works, and that makes me sad,” Harary said.

The third and fourth options would, though. The third calls for adding basement and ground-floor space over the planter area, providing enough square footage to move the emergency operations center out of the basement, where it occasionally floods, and for new dispatch and property rooms, too. Public works could expand into the old emergency operations space, Harary said, and the design would offer “significant space programming opportunities and flexibility over a very long term.”

The “go-for-broke option,” No. 4, would fully build out both the two-story addition in the planter area and the patio expansion, providing even more space for police and public works, but requiring the temporary relocation of the station’s lobby during construction.

Harary argued the third and fourth options, at an estimated $2 million and $2.5 million, respectively, might also be more fiscally prudent, since they would accommodate expanding and changing police operations in the coming decades. He recommended the council pick Option 3 and ask Kasavan to develop more detailed plans.

Many options

Councilwoman Carolyn Hardy countered with a “hybrid” design that would include the patio expansion and the addition over the planter, but no excavation below ground. “You would free up square footage,” she said, because no new stairs would be needed to access a lower level. “I’m just wondering why we wouldn’t consider that as a possibility.”

She also described the building’s roof as “butt ugly,” and said she hopes it would be replaced.

Councilman Bobby Richards favored Option 1, because it would cost the least and provide the most flexibility to make changes in the future, while councilwoman Carrie Theis liked the third option because it would allow more expansion for police and accommodate public works.

“I think the big decision is, do we want to go just for what’s necessary, or do we want to plan for the future?” she asked, adding that “public works is a mess” that needs to be resolved.

The gavel falls

Verdicts, pleas and sentencings announced by
The Monterey County District Attorney

Sept. 5 — Jessica Wright, 26, was sentenced on August 31 to two years in prison for evading Salinas police officers in a dangerous, high-speed pursuit.

On March 20, at approximately 10:15 a.m., Salinas Police Officer Tyler Provost noticed Wright sleeping behind the wheel in the Walmart parking lot. When Officer Provost contacted Wright, she provided a fake name, and the officer noticed that the vehicle registration tabs were also false. When Officer Provost stepped back from the vehicle to verify Wright's identity, she turned the engine on and fled the parking lot at a high rate of speed. Officer Provost pursued, but Wright ignored Provost's emergency lights and siren. The pursuit lasted about a mile and a half, during which time Wright drove 60 to 80 mph on North Davis Road, running numerous lights and a stop sign. The pursuit was ultimately terminated in the interest of public and officer safety.

Officers later found the vehicle Wright was driving abandoned in a nearby neighborhood. A search of the car yielded methamphetamine paraphernalia. Officers were unable to locate the registered owner to determine whether it was stolen.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Robert A. Burlison sentenced Wright to two years in the California Department of Corrections.

Sept. 5 — Carmel Valley resident Donnie Warner, 52, was sentenced on August 31 to 32 months in prison for providing a false name to a Carmel police officer, as well as a handful of misdemeanor offenses ranging from narcotics possession to trespassing.

On April 19, at approximately 9:56 p.m., Carmel Police Officer Mike Bruno was conducting routine traffic enforcement when he noticed a vehicle with a severely cracked windshield. Officer Bruno stopped the vehicle, and the driver, Warner, provided a false name. Warner was cited and released for driving without a license. Warner's true identity was not ascertained until he was later arrested in Monterey on June 7.

Sept. 5 — Salinas resident Michael Wegner, 22, was sentenced on August 31 to 16 months in prison for breaking into Salinas High School's concession stand.

On July 12, at approximately 6:30 a.m., Salinas police officers responded to a reported burglary in process at Salinas High School's football concession stand. Officers observed the suspect, later identified as Wegner, running across the high school tennis courts towards Riker Street.

Officer Christopher Neff found Wegner hiding behind a driveway fence on Riker Street, and took him into custody without incident. Wegner was found to be in possession of a knife, a methamphetamine pipe, and had 0.2 grams of methamphetamine hidden in his sock.

On August 31, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Robert A. Burlison sentenced Wegner to 16 months in prison, which will be served in the Monterey County Jail due to realignment.

Sept. 6 — Carlos Lopez Pacheco, 39, of Watsonville, was sentenced to 32 months in state prison yesterday for secreting marijuana and cigarettes on his person in an attempt to bring them into Monterey County Jail.

On July 31, Pacheco turned himself in to the Monterey County Jail to serve a relatively short sentence, for which he would have ordinarily been eligible for home confinement or other custodial alternatives. This drew the suspicion of deputies, who searched Pacheco and discovered the smuggled contraband.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Carrie M. Panetta sentenced Pacheco to a term of 16 months in prison, which was doubled to 32 months pursuant to the Three Strikes Law. Pacheco had two prior strikes from 2010 for making a criminal threat and dissuading a witness.

Fink finally gets OK for rooftop condo

By MARY SCHLEY

AFTER APPEARING before the planning commission for the fourth time — and revising his plans after each prior hearing to reflect commissioners' feedback and criticism — David Fink received the go-ahead Nov. 8 to build a condo on top of his Cantinetta Luca restaurant on Dolores Street.

Designed by his brother, architect Jeffrey Fink, the 1,570-square-foot modern-style condo will have large glass doors and a trellis facing the street, and be built of cement panels with smaller windows along the north side, which faces Piccadilly Park. It will have rooftop decks at the front and rear, and Carmel stone elements to match the wainscot on the restaurant. The clay barrel tile mansard roof above the restaurant will be retained, too. Fink and his partner, Janet Elarmo, plan to live there.

At last month's meeting, commissioners asked Fink to lower the trellis, keep the clay tiles and make other changes to ensure the condo would be more compatible with other buildings along the street, which is considered a historic "conservation district."

"In staff's opinion, this is a big improvement over the original design," planning director Marc Wiener said.

Fink said he'd tried his best to be responsive to the commission's feedback over the past several months, but he defended the small windows on the north side and their contemporary layout, to which some commissioners had objected in October.

"It's really important that you understand the floor plan, which is why the windows are that way," he said. Because the kitchen, laundry room and wine cellar are on the north side of the condo, "there's really no room for larger windows — that's really what drove those windows."

He also said he has received "a lot of public support for the project."

Jody LeTowt, who owns the building to the south that includes the New Masters Gallery and a few upstairs apartments, said he had no reason to oppose the proposal but wanted a sound wall to help buffer sound between Fink's condo and his residents.

Fink told commissioners he plans to install a "green wall" around the rooftop equipment causing the noise.

"It's rewarding to see how commissioners and the applicant have worked together," commented resident Barbara Livingston.

"You've been responsive to all our concerns, and I would like to see this as your final meeting," commissioner Gail Lehman said.

While she conceded the new plans blend better with the historic buildings on Dolores, commissioner Julie Wendt maintained her objections to the fenestration on the north side, as well as the large glass panel doors on the Dolores Street side, and said Fink should revise them.

"To me, those features — the windows on the north elevation and the glass doors on the front elevation — read very contemporary, and that would not be compatible in the conservation district," she said, suggesting that Fink change them "for the greater good."

But commissioner Michael LePage said he didn't have a problem with them. The north-facing windows make its appearance "interesting," and the glass panels won't be all that visible from the street, he said.

On a 4-1 vote, with Wendt dissenting, the commission approved the proposed condo.

Diversity Visa system should be kept, Panetta says

By KELLY NIX

THE UNITED States shouldn't end the Diversity Visa lottery system that allowed an Uzbek immigrant charged with fatally mowing down eight people in New York City last week to settle in the United States, Congressman Jimmy Panetta said this week.

President Donald Trump and Republican lawmakers have called for an end to the Diversity Immigrant Visa Program after Sayfullo Saipov, 29, who came to this country via the program, drove a truck into crowds of people in a bike lane in lower Manhattan on Oct. 31.

Still, Panetta said the United States should retain the lottery, or something similar, saying the "country was founded and has thrived" because of immigrants, and "diversity within our country must be valued." The visa process accounts for about 5 percent of green card holders who enter the United States each year, he said.

"Whether it provided opportunities for Irish immigrants when it originated, or African and other immigrants today, the program helps bring the cultural diversity that makes our country special," he told The Pine Cone.

The Diversity Visa system gives green cards to immigrants selected randomly from countries which haven't sent many immigrants, without regard for real job skills or English language proficiency. Immigrants need only a high school education or two years of "qualifying work experience" to be eligible for the program.

More 'low-skilled' workers

Panetta makes the case that the country needs more low-skilled workers — especially in Monterey County, where there's a shortage of workers who want to pick crops.

"Some say that farmworkers are not high-skilled, but they do back-breaking work day in and day out that many other workers will not do," he said. "The United States benefits from the hard work done by immigrants."

Following the New York City attack, Democratic Sen. Dick Durbin told the press that members of his party would be open to the idea of eliminating Diversity Visas if it was part of a larger immigration reform bill. Panetta also said he would consider it.

"Ending or reforming the Diversity Visa program should occur within a bipartisan package that both keeps families together and improves our immigration system to meet the needs of our businesses," he said. "Simply eliminating the program would cut off a chance for people who want to come to this country and contribute to our economy."

While the congressman has long expressed confidence in background checks and vetting by the federal government, this week he said that more could be done to prevent dangerous people from entering the country.

"Press reports indicate that the individual who carried out the attack in New York had run-ins with the law and became radicalized subsequent to his arrival to the United States," he said. "Nevertheless, I always am open to evidence-based ideas for making the vetting process stronger."

He also called for Congress to "continue to invest in and strengthen programs aimed at targeting violent extremism at home and abroad."

City to get two charging stations for electric cars

By MARY SCHLEY

A TAXPAYER-FUNDED grant from the Monterey Bay Air Resources District and a corporate donation from ChargePoint, Inc., are allowing the city to install a pair of new electric-vehicle charging stations in town at almost no cost. At their meeting Nov. 7, city council members voted to accept the donated stations, which will be installed in a Sunset Center parking lot and in the Vista Lobos lot at Torres and Third.

Public works director Bob Harary said his department became aware the city was eligible to receive the two new stations — each of which can accommodate two Teslas, Volts or other electric vehicles — for free, and have the costs of shipping, a five-year hardware warranty, and five years of network services covered, too, all by way of an air resources district grant. Local taxpayers would only be on the hook for the initial installation costs and the power hookups. One will be located next to the Blink charging station that was placed in the Sunset Center lot in 2013, and the other will be in the public lot at the northeast corner of town.

Harary said ChargePoint also provides an internet-based network program that collects electricity usage fees set by the city and reimburses 90 percent of them back, keeping 10 percent to cover the costs of billing, authentication and credit

TO HELP MONKS PAY FOR ROAD REPAIRS, DONOR GIVES THEM FERRARI

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE NEW Camaldoli Hermitage in Big Sur has long relied on the public's generosity to help keep its doors open, but it has never before received anything quite like the donation one supporter just made — a pristine red 1979 Ferrari 308 GTS worth more than $70,000.

While a flashy car seems like an odd match for a place where monks avoid even the most basic luxuries and distractions, the hermitage plans to auction off the car next month and use the proceeds to replenish its coffers, which are in bad shape after a costly road repair project and the loss of summer visitors due to highway troubles.

The man who donated the car is a former Pebble Beach resident, Garrick Davis. After hearing about the hermitage's financial problems, Davis offered to give them what he described as "his favorite car."

At first, Davis wanted the donation to be anonymous, but later changed his mind.

"We decided that a public donation might encourage Christians in the Monterey Peninsula area to do likewise — we must help these righteous men who protect us with their prayers and guide us by their example," explained Davis, who once taught English literature at Monterey Peninsula College. "Now is the time to sell something valuable and 'lay up for yourselves treasure in heaven' as the Scriptures tell us."

'Last of a tradition'

Davis said the hermitage, which is located 10 miles south of Esalen Institute, is a very special place.

"The monks in Big Sur are the last of an ancient tradition who live as a community of hermits, welcoming guests and working, all while keeping to a very strict rule of life," he explained. "I stayed there for two weeks for my 30th birthday, and I have never forgotten the peace and joy I found there."

The man noted the Big Sur monks have limited means for supporting themselves — and he asked the public to follow his lead.

"What most people don't know is that the hermitage gets no financial support from the Catholic Church," he said. "The monks are all on their own."

The hermitage's staff, meanwhile, are preparing to find the Ferrari a new home.

"We are hoping that a generous benefactor comes forward and loves the car," said Jill Marie Gisselere, who serves as director of development for the hermitage. "This is an opportunity for someone to help the monks greatly and to enjoy a very nice automobile."

Besides being cut off from visitors this past summer due to numerous mudslides and the failure of the Pfeiffer Creek bridge, the hermitage has done extensive repairs to its own road.

Not only was the hermitage unable to host guests during its busiest season — something it relies on to meet expenses — but it even had to temporarily close down its online gift shop because it was cut off from the post office.

A crowdfunding campaign at GoFundMe.com has raised so far more than $325,000 out of a goal of $600,000. For updates on the auction, visit contemplation.com.

COUNCIL TAKES ANOTHER CRACK AT EVENT FEES

By MARY SCHLEY

WHETHER EVENTS are public or private, free or charge admission, and benefit a nonprofit or not should all be taken into account when deciding how much organizers should pay to hold their car shows, wine festivals, art exhibits and other gatherings on public property in Carmel, members of the city council suggested Tuesday night.

At the Nov. 7 meeting, city clerk Ashlee Wright sought feedback on the policy used to determine how much financial help events should get, if any, and what to charge for use of the beach and parks, street closures, use of parking stalls and other public resources, not to mention the time it takes city employees to review applications and prepare reports.

“While the council has the final decision regarding special event fees, staff recommends a fee schedule that is simple to assess and collect, and easy for applicants and the public to understand,” she said. “The development of criteria will enable staff to apply fees consistently and equitably to all special event applicants.”

A study commissioned by the city a few years ago evaluated every city “service” and determined how much each costs, from processing a business owner’s application to install a sign and issuing the city’s famous high-heel permits, to shutting down several blocks for an all-day car show.

A couple of years ago, the council adopted a complicated policy that sought to establish how much event hosts should have to pay, and how much taxpayers should subsidize them for the benefit of the community. It’s been applied somewhat haphazardly, as decision makers have had mercy on those hosting events like the high school’s homecoming parade and Breakfast with the Bunny, which previously didn’t pay any fees at all, but would have under the new policies.

“We have a diversity of opinions about whether those policies are on the right track, need to be wholly rewritten, need to be tweaked, or are perfect as written,” city administrator Chip Rerig told the council.

Councilwoman Jan Reimers commented, “I’d like all of this to be simplified. I can’t tonight give concrete numbers or concrete suggestions.”

“I’m concerned that we would be so strict and so absolute that we wouldn’t have flexibility, and that does worry me,” she continued. Reimers suggested charging on a sliding scale, depending on whether the hosts are city residents or from outside the area, and whether they are nonprofits.

Councilman Bobby Richards speculated it would be difficult to determine whether someone is entitled to a residential rate. He instead suggested the fees be scaled according to whether the event is free, open to the public, and affiliated with a nonprofit; public with a nonprofit affiliate, but with a charge; private, with no nonprofit attached, but free; etc.

Councilwoman Carrie Theis said costs covered by taxpayers, like police overtime, need to be paid by organizers, and Mayor Steve Dallas said public safety measures, like police officers and barriers, are even more important in light of recent terrorist attacks and will all have to be paid for by the event hosts.

Rerig said he and Wright would return with ideas on how to incorporate their feedback into a policy and fee schedule at a future meeting.

Talbott foresees 'significant' downsizing

By MARY SCHLEY

ROBERT TALBOTT — the upscale clothing company started by longtime Carmel Valley residents Robert and Audrey Talbott in 1950 — will be reorganizing next year, according to its new owners, the Corliss family, who purchased the company from the couple's son and heir, Robb Talbott, last year. Chairman and CEO Bob Corliss joined the company as president in 2011, and his son, Bobby Corliss, is its senior vice president of sales.

According to a company announcement made Nov. 7, executives expect "a significant workforce reduction" at the company's necktie plant on Highway 68 "as part of its plan to reorganize the business, and transition from a manufacturer of specific product classifications, to a luxury apparel brand."

Bobby Corliss said the company has no plans to change its downtown retail store or its outlet store in Carmel Valley Village, and he wouldn't say how many people will lose their jobs in the company's layoffs on the Peninsula.

According to the announcement, "as dress codes have changed and market trends have shifted, the global tie market has experienced significant contraction," and as a result, the company "is adapting its business model to both maintain competitive positioning, and align its focus with opportunities in the marketplace."

Specifically, it's shifting away from making shirts and ties to become "a global brand focused on design, sourcing, marketing, and licensing." Doing so will allow it to "remain committed to delivering on the brand promise set in place by our founders" and "creating exceptional product, at a competitive price point, to loyal customers for generations to come." Talbott products are designed here and sold throughout the United States and Canada, with plans to expand to broader markets.

Tool drive getting lots of donations

By MARY SCHLEY

CONTRACTOR KIRK House's idea to collect donated tools and truck them up to the victims of the fires in Sonoma, Napa and Mendocino counties has generated a lot of support since he started it in late October, he told The Pine Cone this week.

The tool drive will wrap up at the end of the month, at which time House and others will load all the donations into trucks and take them up to the burned areas.

"What's great is a lot of older folks on the Peninsula are donating tools they've had in storage for years, and are feeling like they're doing something to help, since many of them can't do anything financially," said House, who lives in Carmel and runs his own business. "They're so happy to help."

When the Wine Country fires swept through heavily populated areas in October, destroying 8,400 structures, he knew the losses would be devastating for everyone, including those who work in construction.

So, he started collecting hand tools like hammers and saws, power tools of all types and sizes, garden implements, hardware and building materials, to help them rebuild. Hayward Lumber donated a space on Sunset Drive in Pacific Grove for him to store the donations.

"A lot of contractors aren't just donating tools — they're actually buying some new tools and just adding to our donation load," House added. "It's pretty amazing how this community has rallied for the good of others outside our own community. If you think about it, this could have been our small towns on the Peninsula, and we got a taste of it last year with our own fires."

House said he's also started working with other contractors and homeowners up north, and secured a large warehouse through a church there that will help distribute the tools and materials.

The drive will continue through the end of the month, and House is accepting donations at Hayward Lumber's storage space at 1140 Sunset Drive.

Or you can call (831) 601-7656, and House will pick them up.

"The support has been incredible, and the people I've met — especially the elderly — it's amazing," he said.

P.B. launches U.S. Open store ahead of 2019 event

■ Nearly 70 percent of hospitality packages already sold

By KELLY NIX

THE U.S. Open won't return to Pebble Beach until June 2019 — more than a year and half away — but you won't have to wait to buy a hat, sweatshirt or jacket with the official tournament logo.

The Pebble Beach Company last week launched the U.S. Open Championship Shop at The Lodge at Pebble Beach, giving golf fans their first chance to purchase an array of 2019 U.S. Open products, long before the tournament commences.

Pebble Beach spokeswoman Katie Denbo said that demand for U.S. Open merchandise started way back in 2016 with the unveiling of 2019 U.S. Open logo.

"Excitement is building, and we have been seeing a lot of requests for U.S. Open merchandise," Denbo told The Pine Cone.

The launch of the 1,600-foot shop, which occupies space formerly used as a meeting room, was done ahead of Christmas and the holiday shopping season.

"This is also a typical time when a U.S. Open host site begins selling their logoed merchandise, as an unofficial kick-off to their championship," Denbo explained.

The 2019 U.S. Open logo features the red, white and blue colors of the American flag, with six stripes representing the six U.S. Opens at Pebble Beach, according to Pebble Beach marketing material. The Lone Cypress sits atop the stripes.

The offerings include apparel such as golf shirts, t-shirts, sweatshirts, sweaters, half-zip and full-zip jackets, and vests, large selection of hats, golf towels, mugs, decorative signage, glasses, ball markers, golf balls and a plethora of other items bearing the 2019 U.S. Open logo.

The store also offers merchandise for the 2018 U.S. Amateur Championship, which will be held Aug. 13-19, 2018.

While tickets to the 2019 U.S. Open haven't gone on sale yet, the Pebble Beach Company said that it's already sold 67 percent of its hospitality packages, "which will guarantee tickets for those participating groups."

large man, dark and swarthy, and thrusting ampules of some miracle wrinkle crème in her direction.

Looming over her, he twirls his mustache and flashes a smile, beckoning her inside. She smiles demurely in return as he gallantly escorts her over the threshold. The music drops two octaves into a minor key. She glances around furtively. Coming towards her, is Monsieur Samuel. He speaks. Her eyes narrow. That's no French accent, sounds more like New Jersey to her.

He commands her to sit. She catches his wink at the large man at the door. Close-up of the key as it turns in the lock. Click! Trapped! With no means of escape, Madame submits to the slathering of burning salves all the while being tortured with relentless commentary about the depth of her wrinkles and beaucoup fine lines by the diabolical fake Frenchman. She frantically reaches into her bag and pulls out a wad of bills. His eyes gleam. He wraps up the package, hands it to her while snatching the cash. Close-up of the key turning in the door. It opens and she flees.

With a backward glance, we see the two men counting the money and laughing in the doorway. Later that night, our lady sits at her dressing table peering into her hand mirror. Furrows of disdain line her brow, laugh lines turned upside down, the empty vial lies on the floor next to her. "I'll get them for this and their little dogs too — the whole damn jewel of a town!" # Author suggests Steinbeck left P.G. out of fear for his life

By CHRIS COUNTS

DESPITE HIS affection for Monterey County — he was born in Salinas and lived for many years in Pacific Grove — writer John Steinbeck moved to the East Coast in his later years because he wasn't safe here as a result of his labor activism and left-leaning political views, local writer and historian Steve Hauk contends.

Hauk will delve into the topic when he shares details of his book, "Steinbeck: The Untold Stories," Nov. 16, at the Pacific Grove Public Library.

"It is a premise of this book that the hostility to his writing was the main reason Steinbeck left the Central California Coast, a region he loved, to make his home in the east," Hauk said. "There were threats for what he was writing or researching, especially when it came to labor issues."

The book features a collection of short stories that span the famous author's lifetime, from his childhood in Pacific Grove, to his final years six decades later in New York City. Hauk describes the stories as "fictional interpretations of actual events."

Hauk has researched the topic for more than two decades, and he said the book simply speculates "about what it might have been like for Steinbeck and the people he knew in those dangerous times."

In "Grapes of Wrath," which came out in 1939, and other writings, Steinbeck sympathized with the plight of farmworkers and was critical of those who employed them.

He was also a member of a writers group that was founded by the American Communist Party.

The success of "Grapes of Wrath" — and the controversy it generated — sparked a backlash against Steinbeck, and two years later, he moved to New York City.

The event starts at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free for library members and $10 for non-members.

The library is located at 550 Central Ave. Call (831) 658-5760.

Dinner to fight veteran homelessness

THE VETERANS Transition Center will hold a fundraising dinner, Unmasking Veteran Homelessness, Saturday, Nov. 11, from 6 to 10 p.m. at the center, 220 12th St., in Marina. The event will be "a night to both celebrate, support and unmask veteran homelessness," according to organizers.

Veterans who have found shelter at the center will share their stories, and all who have supported the organization's efforts will be honored.

Proceeds from the $50-per-person ticket sales will help the center "continue to provide much needed housing and supportive services to vulnerable veterans in our community," as well as fund the expansion of housing to include 20 additional beds.

The nonprofit has served more than 16,000 veterans and their families over its 20-plus-year history. The center houses 74 people with 58 transitional beds, 12 permanent beds and four emergency beds.

To purchase tickets to the strolling dinner and silent auction, go to www.unmaskingveteranhomelessness.eventbrite.com. Guests are asked to wear cocktail attire.

Chinese porcelain art coming to town

By CHRIS COUNTS

A DAZZLING collection of Chinese porcelain art goes on display Nov. 14-18 at the Carmel Woman's Club — and accompanying the exhibit will be a delegation of Chinese government officials who will meet privately with Mayor Steve Dallas and others Nov. 15.

Titled "Beauty of China," the collection includes contemporary hand-painted Chinese porcelain from the city of Wuxi, which is located just northwest of Shanghai. The pieces were created by some of the country's finest porcelain artists — Yan Ke-Qin, Xie Song, Wang Chao-Yong, Xu Bing, Gu Qin and Shen Zi-Chun. The exhibit also includes stand-alone paintings.

The show has previously been displayed in France, Turkey and Australia, but this marks the first time it has appeared in the United States.

The decision to stage the show in Carmel was influenced in part by the fact that Qian's mother owns a house here, publicist David Armanasco told The Pine Cone.

According to Qian, the Chinese invented porcelain "thousands of years ago," and now its artists are painting contemporary designs on the pieces. Armanasco described those artists as "very famous in China," and he said they are "revitalizing an ancient tradition."

"It's a pretty significant exhibit, and the first stop is here," the publicist added. After its Carmel debut, the show will move on to other U.S. cities.

The Carmel Woman's Club will be open each day from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., except Wednesday, Nov. 15, when it will only be open from 3 to 6 p.m. The building is located at Ninth and San Carlos.

Half marathon weekend

RUNNERS AND walkers of all ages will take in the beautiful coastlines of Monterey and Pacific Grove during the Pacific Grove Lighthouse 5K and By the Bay 3K Saturday, and the headliner Monterey Bay Half Marathon Sunday.

Some 500 athletes, including some of the country's top half marathoners, will compete in the 13.1-mile footrace through the streets of downtown Monterey and along the waterfront from 7 to 11 a.m. Nov. 12. The day before, the shorter races will start and finish at Lovers Point.

The weekend kicks off with a free Health & Fitness Expo that's open from noon to 6 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday in the Portola Hotel. The expo will include a new series of race clinics, too.

For more information, including how to register, parking and traffic, go to www.montereybayhalfmarathon.org.

Cars and Coffee at the track

MAZDA RACEWAY Laguna Seca will host its inaugural Cars and Coffee, presented by the Pebble Beach Sports Car Club, in the lakebed on Saturday, Nov. 11, from 8 to 11 a.m. SCRAM, the nonprofit that runs the track, will provide the coffee, while the club — one of the oldest in the country — will bring the cars. Established in 1952, the Pebble Beach Sports Car Club has a long history of racing, rallies, auto-cross (competing on a flat course marked by cones), and socializing.

The coffee session is open to everyone with an interest in cars and motorsports, and all are welcome to bring their own sets of wheels to show off. For more information, visit www.mazdaraceway.com.

$25M in donations to charity from Concours

THE PEBBLE Beach Company this week announced that its donated more than $25 million to charitable causes from the Concours d'Elegance since the event began nearly seven decades ago.

At the event's annual charity luncheon Tuesday, P.B. Co. CEO Bill Perocchi distributed $1.7 million from the 2017 Concours to local charities, which put the total donations to more than $25 million since the event started in 1950.

When the event first began, original poster art raised from $5,000 to $10,000. As the Concours grew, so did the charitable component. Annual donations to charity surpassed the $100,000 mark in 1994, and the $500,000 mark in 2000. For the past decade, they have often far exceeded $1 million, the company said in a press release.

"We're so glad that an event that brings great cars together can also bring help to people in need," said Concours Chairman Sandra Button. "Our thanks go out to all of the many people and the many partners who have helped us reach this level of giving."

The 2018 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will be held Aug. 26.

TRANSIENT SUSPECTED OF HITTING WIFE DURING BOOZE-FUELED FIGHT

A HOMELESS man was jailed this week after he hit his wife, injuring her, and was subsequently found to be in violation of a restraining order and wanted for other crimes, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Cmdr. John Thornburg.

"It looks like they were staying in a tent near the Carmel River Bridge. They were drinking alcohol, and he hit her during an argument," he said of the suspect, 48-year-old Gordon McGriff. "There was an active restraining order against him, and he was arrested for the assault and violation of the restraining order. In addition, he had warrants for his arrest."

The fight occurred the afternoon of Oct. 29, and the 45-year-old female victim notified police.

Deputies found McGriff and booked him into county jail on Nov. 6 for several misdemeanor charges, including spousal battery and violation of a criminal protective order, and past warrants for the same violations, for a total of five misdemeanors, according to jail records. He remained in custody Thursday.

H. LAWRENCE WILSEY

August 17, 1923 – October 3, 2017

H. Lawrence Wilsey, one of the most prolific management consultants of the 20th Century, died October 3, 2017, at his Pebble Beach residence; having endured a long illness, he was 94 years old. Lawrence's ancestors crossed the Atlantic in the 1600s and settled in the East, but repeatedly moved westward, including a stay in New Harmony, Indiana, before following the Overland Trail to California. A fourth-generation Californian, Harry Lawrence Wilsey was born on August 17, 1923, in Montague, to Theodore Lawrence Wilsey and Viola Louise DeMuth Wilsey. Lawrence grew up in the Sierra Nevada, where his father became a lumber executive, and in Pasadena, with his mother, a survivor of the San Francisco Earthquake.

At the University of Southern California, Lawrence met Luana Esther Jones when the two of them became co-editors of the USC yearbook; Lawrence and Luana spent almost 70 years together, until her death in 2012. At age 20, Lawrence graduated from USC and headed east with his bride to spend the rest of World War II as a Navy officer in Norfolk, Virginia. Lawrence then earned his A.M. from USC and Ph.D. in Economics from Cornell University, and returned to California to become Assistant Dean at USC's School of Business and assistant professor of finance.

Lawrence soon became an officer of the U.S. Foreign Service, moving to Oslo to help implement the Marshall Plan in Norway; then moving to Manila to oversee industrial, educational and medical reforms in the Philippines; and then moving to Washington D.C. as Chief of the China Division of the Agency for International Development.

In 1955 Lawrence joined Booz, Allen & Hamilton, the Chicago-headquartered company that pioneered management consulting, and the Wilsey Family moved to Evanston, Illinois, and then Lake Forest, Illinois, while Lawrence served a multitude of diverse clients across four continents: industrial corporations, commercial banks, national development banks, government agencies, hospitals, medical schools, public school systems, universities, museums, performing arts organizations, charitable foundations, religious organizations, and more. Lawrence cherished a decades-long association with the Baylor Medical Center in Dallas, which culminated in Lawrence's writing the two-volume history of the Center: How We Care – The Centennial History of Baylor University Medical Center and Baylor Health Care System.

Tired of transoceanic commuting, in 1976 Lawrence accepted the opportunity to become Vice Chancellor of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, where he was chief operating officer of the University and provided a plan for the University's future growth. Lawrence next took on the challenge of heading the Lakewood Bank and Trust Company, the largest independent commercial bank in Dallas. Lawrence orchestrated the Bank's growth and sale, and then led the creation of Dallas's Crown Charter National Bank, where Lawrence also engineered its growth and sale before semi-retiring to Pebble Beach in 1985. Even in retirement, Lawrence continued to serve a few select clients around the country, and close to home, he prepared and donated comprehensive development plans to the Carmel Bach Festival and the Del Monte Forest Foundation (now Conservancy).

Over the years, Lawrence and Luana designed and built lovely residences, both for themselves and for others, in Illinois, Colorado, Texas and California, the last of which is their beloved Chesa Madrisa mountain home near the Big Trees of California's Calaveras County. Lawrence also enjoyed reading, hiking, driving his classic Mercedes-Benz, skiing, fine dining, cooking, painting (Lawrence's maternal grandfather was a portrait artist in London and San Francisco), opera, tennis, and the family's many pets; he especially enjoyed visiting with friends and family.

Lawrence was a member of the University Club of Chicago; the Glen View Club in Golf, Illinois; The Fort Worth Club; the Shady Oaks Country Club in Fort Worth; the Van Cliburn Competition; The Dallas Petroleum Club; the Board of The Dallas Opera; the Pacheco Club in Monterey; The Beach and Tennis Club in Pebble Beach; and Pebble Beach's Church In The Forest, of which Lawrence and Luana were charter members.

Lawrence was preceded in death by his wife Luana, his parents, his younger brother Richard Vernon Wilsey, and his younger sister, Gloria King. Lawrence is survived by his daughter, Kathryn Lerch of Indianapolis (husband Keith) and their children: Lawrence's grandson Spencer Lawrence Lerch of Indianapolis (wife Elizabeth) and their son, Griffin, and daughter, Madeleine; and Lawrence's granddaughter Hillary Hayden Gibson of Portland, Oregon (husband Mark) and their son, Jackson. Lawrence is also survived by his younger brother, Dr. Carl Edwin Wilsey, of Carmel Valley; nephews and nieces, especially David Wilsey of Pacific Grove, Diane Wilsey of Monterey, and Richard Wilsey of Denver, Colorado, and their families; and by the Wilsey Family's "Guardian Angel", their friend Harold Gabriel, of Pebble Beach.

A memorial gathering will be held at the Church In The Forest, Pebble Beach, in late March 2018.

Donations in memory of Dr. H. Lawrence Wilsey may be made to any of the following: Animal Friends Rescue Project (Pacific Grove, CA), the Sierra Nevada Logging Museum (White Pines, CA), Church In The Forest (Pebble Beach, CA), Del Monte Forest Conservancy (Pebble Beach, CA), the Alzheimer's Association, or your favorite charity.

MARIA AMERICA OROZCO

Carmel-by-the-Sea

Sunday, October 8, Maria Orozco left this world much as she lived — quietly, without fanfare ... walking strongly and with purpose into the beyond. Born June 9, 1934, in a village high in the mountains of Peru, Maria's parents were nomads, moving camp to meet the needs of their cattle. Their dogs provided protection; chickens completed the family. Maria's roots made themselves known when she shared her many charming and useful folk remedies for a variety of concerns — medical and otherwise. With ease she could erase the stubbornness of burnt pots, stains, and people. The lives of those she trusted are better for having known her. "In my country ..." will no longer be a part of our days.

Maria moved to Carmel in 1985 with the family she'd served for several years in Lima — the Pinkhams — he, an insurance company executive. She lived in a small apartment in their home (where she enjoyed a peaceful view of Carmel Mission). Through the years she welcomed a small collection of fortunate families into her days. Following the death of "the Mrs." and the sale of the Pinkham home, she relocated to similarly well-placed studios throughout Carmel — living for one period in a room in the iconic home of a former Carmel Mayor. Most recently home was a peaceful bubble of quiet of her own making in an apartment on the fringe of downtown Carmel. Maria walked from not always close bus stops to families who will deeply miss her in Carmel Valley, Pacific Grove, Monterey, and Carmel.

Maria loved and respected her families. She also loved Carmel's Farmers Market, Trader Joe's in Monterey, dogs, cats (Oreo, "Gatito," will miss her gentle friend), and Café Stravaganza — a treat during her daughter's visits.

Intensely private, her granddaughters were joyfully shared: one a graduate student at American University in Washington, DC; the other a student at the University of Illinois. Maria spoke little English, even so, she communicated carefully and with clarity.

Missing her most deeply are her daughter Miriam — Maria and Miriam were connected at the heart, they talked daily — and her beloved granddaughters, Monika and Veronika.

Maria would want those who wish to honor her life to do so kindly and in a manner that pleases. Notes of special memories may be sent to: The Laird Family, 26632 Nacome Drive, Mission Viejo CA 92691

ER

Bakhda, 42, said as an example. “None of them have a spider bite.”

Interestingly, people with supposed arachnid bites usually have MRSA — methicillin-resistant staphylococcus aureus. Not to be confused with necrotizing fasciitis, the so-called “flesh-eating disease,” MRSA infections appear as bumps or infected boils, similar to spider bites.

And while black widow spiders lurk in many garages on the Monterey Peninsula, you won’t convince ER docs at CHOMP that you’ve been bitten by the dreaded brown recluse.

“There are no brown recluses in California,” Bakhda said. “So please don’t come to the ER saying you’ve been bitten by brown recluses, because there are none.”

Then there are women “across the age spectrum,” who seek treatment for unexplainable abdominal pain, nausea and a host of other symptoms.

“They come in and they swear to you up and down, ‘doctor there’s no chance I can be pregnant. No chance whatsoever. Absolutely no chance,’” Bakhda said. “They use birth control or their lifestyle is such that” they could not be pregnant.

Then they’re given a pregnancy test. “Then I get to give them the news; ‘Hey, guess what ...,’” he said.

It was a heart attack

For those who gripe when physicians and nurses conduct what they consider to be extraneous, and sometimes expensive, tests for seemingly minor ailments, consider this:

“Somebody came in with nausea and vomiting and they swore they had bad Chinese food,” Bakhda said. “One of my nurses did an EKG and lo and behold, this person was having a massive heart attack, and their only symptoms were nausea and vomiting.”

Everyone’s heard of someone who’s had an allergic reaction to seafood, which can cause serious illness. However, Bakhda said more often patients have food poisoning, not a seafood allergy.

“It’s called scombroid poisoning, which is histamine on improperly refrigerated fish” that’s spoiled, explained Bakhda, a former U.S. Navy flight surgeon. “They think they’re having an allergic reaction. The symptoms are similar” since histamine is the natural chemical responsible for allergic reactions.

Then there are injuries and illnesses that are not so cryptic, but nonetheless disturbing. For instance, the hospital treats a lot of what Bakhda characterizes as the walking wounded.

“We get a fair number of fingertip amputations and stuff like that,” he said. “Skillsaw injuries are a big one.”

Cooking- and kitchen-related injuries are common, including stove and oven burns.

“We get a lot of ‘I slipped when I was cutting things in the kitchen, that’s a big one,’” he said. “Bagels, vegetables. Washing the knives is a big one. I’ve done that myself.”

And yep, injuries from animals, including people who get hurt from falling over their own pets.

“It’s a real thing,” he said. “We get a fair number of elderly people number who are little unstable and they trip over their dogs and cats.”

Watch out for bats

The hospital also sees a “ton of animal bites.” While dog bites are frequent, so are bites from raccoons. Bakhda said those usually occur when someone is shooing away one of the masked creatures or is coming to the rescue of their pooch.

“If a raccoon is going after your dog, spray them down with a hose or use a stick, don’t use your hands,” he said. “Because the rabies vaccine hurts. It’s painful.”

Because the prevalence of rabies in bats is high, if a patient thinks they may have been bitten by a bat, but isn’t really sure — and yes, Bakhda says that really happens — doctors give them the rabies shots since the disease is fatal if untreated.

However, if you get bitten by a squirrel, mouse or rat, don’t worry about the disease; those animals haven’t been known to cause rabies among people in the United States, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The human mouth has all sorts of bacterial nastiness, and CHOMP occasionally treats victims of people bites with antibiotics.

“The usual pattern of a human bite is the guy at the bar who gets in a fight; the fight-bite injury,” he said.

While it seldom occurs, Bakhda said the hospital has treated locals who have traveled to foreign countries only to return with dengue fever and malaria. Those cases are automatically reported to the county health department.

LAVON GRESHAM DECKER

July 17, 1911 – Nov. 4, 2017

On November 4, 2017, LaVon Gresham Decker entered into her eternal rest, leaving this world the same way she lived it; with grace, dignity, and love for the people around her. The light that she beamed so brightly is now reflected in her family and friends she left behind.

LaVon was born on July 17, 1911 – Yes! She was 106 years old when she passed away. She was born in Jasper County, Missouri. LaVon initially came to California in 1942 to work with her sister, Clara Lyle, and her husband, Carlos Holman, at the Purity Grocery Store in Pacific Grove. After helping them get the store up and running she worked for the Bank of America as a teller.

LaVon was first attracted to her future husband, Capt. LaVerne Decker (USA RET), at a USO club because he was a very good dancer. She often said she never would have dated anyone who could not dance. They were married in 1947 and until his death at the age of 68 in 1967. When LaVon married Deck she quit her job at the Bank of America, but went back after he passed away and retired from there in 1978. In 1978 LaVon moved to her home on Candy Cane Lane where she enjoyed hours and hours looking out the window overlooking the park.

LaVon enjoyed years and years of friendship with her Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Sisters and their families. She volunteered at the Monterey Dixieland Festival for many years and was a member of the Hot Jazz Society. At one of those Dixieland Festivals she met Ken Porter. They enjoyed a very long and special friendship. LaVon became a member of Cypress Community Church in 1973. There she became an active member of the VIP’s – Very Important Phoks – the 55 years and older group. She made numerous trips with the VIP’s to Branson, Missouri, for the music festivals there and to the east coast to see fall colors. She also traveled all over the world: Norway, New Zealand & Australia, Germany, Switzerland, Ireland, Scotland, Canada, the Caribbean Sea, and many of our United States.

LaVon was preceded in death by her husband, Capt. LaVerne Decker, her parents, Vernon and Clara Gresham, her 3 sisters, Roqua Gresham Worley, Clara Lyle Gresham Holman, Ella Dean Gresham Hickman, her brother, Vernon M. Gresham, and his son, D. Brian Gresham. She leaves behind her nephews: Kevin Gresham and his significant other, Carol, of Canute, Oklahoma, Bennie Gresham of Hollister, Missouri, and Craig Gresham and his wife, Christie, of Laurie, Missouri, (his children, Brittany Gresham of Golden Valley, Arizona, Craig Aaron Gresham of Norfolk, Nebraska, Colten and Jesse Alyse Gresham of the home), and her niece Pamela Gresham Purk of Fort Myers, Florida, (her children Cheri Purk Schenck of Cincinnati, Kentucky, LaLoni Purk of Kalamazoo, Michigan, and Brian Purk of Kalamazoo, Michigan), her cousin Avanelle Patee and her family as well as many true friends.

Over the last 5 years LaVon has needed special care. John, Beth, and Cynthia want to give special thanks to the women who attended to her every need at her home, to the staff at Canterbury Woods, and then to the staff at Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital. Every one of you gave her attention with love and care beyond measure.

Although we are sad by our loss we marvel at her 106 years of a life well lived. Private interment has taken place at Mission Memorial Park in Seaside, California. A Memorial Service will be held at Cypress Community Church, Monterey/Salinas Highway, November 27, 2017, at 11 a.m.

In lieu of flowers contributions can be made to Cypress Community Church. Please designate your gift to be deposited in the “Generously Giving” fund – separate from the general fund. The mailing address is 681 Monterey/Salinas Hwy, Salinas 93988.

May God Bless LaVon. We are certain her Savior welcomed her home with the words “Well done, thy good and faithful servant!”

Condolences may be written to the family at www.bermudezfamilyfunerals.com

HARPER

buckler kind of golfer ... and I said, 'Man, that was really cool.' So I found a rusty old club, mowed some grass in the field next to our house, and started enjoying the game of golf."

The affable, ever smiling Tennessee native was nationally respected in the golf industry, building friendships that included celebrities from the entertainment world, PGA Tour professionals, and corporate titans, politicians and media, as well as the worker bees at the world-famous resort: caddies, cart attendants, and hospitality personnel, and anybody else who crossed his path. He was an everyman, with style, grace and Southern-country-boy charm.

His true love

"All of us at Pebble Beach Company, and throughout the golf world, are heartbroken by the news of RJ's passing," said Pebble Beach Company CEO Bill Perocchi, who often accompanied Harper to his cancer treatments at Stanford Medical Center during his 14-month battle with the illness. "RJ had a lasting impact on Pebble Beach, and his smile, vibrant personality, and positive attitude, and outlook on life will be missed by all and never forgotten."

"He was a kind, caring person, a consensus builder, and a true team player," Perocchi added. "He was a dear friend to me, personally, and to countless employees, guests, and people in the golf industry."

"He had that natural charisma and ability to connect with everyone quickly," said CBS sportscaster Jim Nantz, who dealt with Harper frequently while broadcasting numerous golf events at Pebble Beach over the years, and came to regard him as a dear friend. "He had a genuine heart, and that innate ability to make people feel a bond with him."

"RJ was one of the most wonderful human beings I ever met," said former P.B. Co. Executive Vice President Mark Stilwell. "His enthusiasm and zest for life will always be in my memories."

Although golf became his true love, Harper was a stellar athlete at Westwood High in Memphis, Tenn., where he won varsity letters in basketball, baseball, golf, track and football — his best sport — in which he quarterbacked the school's wishbone offense.

He went on to play halfback on a full scholarship at Division III Rhodes College in Memphis, scoring four touchdowns in his first game as an 18-year-old freshman, and leading the team to a 9-1-1 record — the best in school history — as a senior. He still holds multiple records there as a running back.

Harper graduated with degrees in anthropology and sociology, earned a master's degree in education, and then spent a year backpacking through Europe and the Middle East. He met Yost on the Greek island of Crete, and returned to settle with her in Miami, where he coached girls basketball and served as offensive coordinator for the football team at Southwest High.

Kelly married him in 1985 and gave him two sons. Their oldest, Tucker, played golf at the University of Missouri and worked as a caddie at Pebble Beach until the pancreatic cancer diagnosis rocked the family in September 2016, after which he became his father's primary caregiver. His other son, JT, played golf at Seton Hall University and lives in New Jersey, where he has pursued a music career and worked in sales for a tech firm.

Harper was instrumental in bringing the U.S. Open to Pebble Beach in 1992, 2000 and 2010. He was championship director of the 2000 event, general chairman of the 2010 tournament, and was serving as general chairman of the 2019 Open in anticipation of its return to Pebble.

Harper also was essential in the recent awarding of the 2023 U.S. Women's Open and 2027 U.S. Open to Pebble Beach by the United States Golf Association.

He played a major role in the founding of AT&T Junior Golf on the Monterey Peninsula, and served as a board member for many years.

He was well known for helping many high school and college golf coaches and programs throughout the United States.

Harper also coached women's basketball at Monterey Peninsula College, and assisted with the football program at Stevenson School.

Arnold Palmer, Harper's boyhood golf hero, became a close friend after the Hall of Famer became a part owner of Pebble Beach.

"Being able to work alongside Arnold Palmer for the past 17 years on the world's most amazing golf course has been one of the greatest privileges of my life," Harper said in 2016, when Palmer passed away.

Friends from all over

Harper also was a gifted musician and singer who occasionally performed at local events, and once sang onstage in San Jose at a concert by country star Clay Walker, his close friend.

Walker teamed with Harper for a charity fundraiser every July. This year, another annual charity event for Alzheimer's research, hosted by Nantz, will also benefit the newly formed RJ Harper Pancreatic Cancer Research Foundation.

Nantz will be one of the people giving a eulogy at an upcoming memorial service for Harper — and he said he thinks even locals may not understand how much influence Harper had.

"A lot of people don't realize how many friends he had from out of town," said Nantz, who lives not far from the Peter Hay golf course. "Because Pebble Beach is such a 'bucket list' destination, people come from all over the world to play here, and anyone who had a chance to interact with RJ felt like they had a friend forever."

Harper is survived by his family, including sons Tucker and JT, grandsons Caden and Hudson, sister Cathy Carr, and former wife Kelly (Yost) Harper, who remained his close friend after their divorce.

A celebration of life will be held at 9 a.m. Nov. 21 on the lawn near the 18th Fairway of the Pebble Beach Golf Links. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the RJ Harper Pancreatic Cancer Research Fund at Stanford University Hospital or to a charity assisting underprivileged children.

LOSSES

“improperly develop arguments so that the insurers” could try to reject the claims.

The law firm, which is not named as a defendant in the lawsuit, “was engaged in the process of adjusting Post Ranch’s claim and actively participated in and furthered the insurers’ scheme to delay their investigation and deny coverage” the suit alleges.

A spokesman for AmRisc declined to comment. Messages to CJW and Wood Smith Henning & Berman were not returned.

Millions lost

Besides the lack of access to Post Ranch, business was also hit because of storm damage to Sierra Mar restaurant, the general manager’s house, and three of six pumps used for the hotel’s on-site well system, which provides all its water.

The property damage forced resort operations to be suspended from February to April, “at which point Post Ranch was only able to accommodate a limited number of guests due to its limited water supply.”

The “exact dollar amount” of its losses, the hotel maintains, hasn’t yet been determined since its “business interruption losses are ongoing,” the lawsuit says.

In June, however, frustrated with the insurance companies’ “delay tactics,” Post Ranch submitted a claim to a CJW-affiliated loss adjuster, which figured the loss due to the ingress and egress issues to be $930,632. The resort called the amount “unconscionably low.” The same adjuster in April recommended a partial payment of $2.5 million.

Also in April, “AmRisc and the insurers had established a reserve of over $6 million, indicating that they perceived they were liable for such amounts,” according to Post Ranch.

The resort was seemingly well insured, and its complaint said it carried an “all risk” policy with a limit of $100 million to “protect itself in the event of a loss like this.”

Kelsey Gummow, spokeswoman for Passport Resorts, the company that handles management and marketing for Post Ranch Inn, and which is also named as a plaintiff, declined to reveal how much the inn has estimated it’s lost because of the bridge closure and property damage.

Post Ranch is seeking monetary damages, including punitive damages, in an amount “sufficient to punish and make an example of the insurers, AmRisc and CJW, and deter similar conduct in the future.”

Big Sur Chamber of Commerce president Kirk Gafill told The Pine Cone that the organization will likely tally the estimated loss of sales for businesses due to the road closure. Meanwhile, he said Big Sur has bounced back quickly.

“Business and traffic have rebounded to near normal levels since bridge reopened, which is quite impressive,” given that Highway 1 remains closed at the San Luis Obispo County line, Gafill said.

to people in wheelchairs, the council acknowledged that Carmel Belle didn't conform with current rules, but anticipated adding a new category that would allow it to continue operating as it was.

The composition of the council changed, however, and the current lineup felt otherwise. After roundabout discussions of a proposed rule developed by a large committee over the course of several meetings and multiple public hearings, the council decided not to change the rules and instead told the Dolatas they had to change their operation to comply with the law. While counter service could continue within the footprint of the original restaurant, they had until the beginning of November to convert the recently expanded area at the back to table service, or stop using it altogether.

So they quietly rolled out their new table service Sunday, with an additional server working in the dining room, and another employee positioned to catch customers as they enter the restaurant, and direct them to the counter side or the table side, depending on what sort of experience they want. Carmel Belle serves breakfast, lunch and early dinner daily from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"Now we have a host position who catches people as they walk in," Chloe said. "I think it will be a nice added value for customers to be attended to in that way, without having to ask."

And so far, it seems to be working well.

"We were all pleasantly surprised, and the customers seem to like it, considering we didn't want to do this," she said. "I hope that this hybrid operation becomes a hit, and success can be our best revenge."

Jay said he thinks the system could be the wave of the future for restaurants, which already operate with high overhead and are facing large increases in minimum wage that will bump costs even higher.

"I think other restaurants can learn from this, especially in a town that's stuck in the past," he said. "You need to be creative in order to be relevant. Maybe other restaurants can learn from this and save some money."

The weekends, which tend to be much busier, will be a good test of the new system, and the Dolatas hope that once things are moving smoothly, they'll be able to reduce some of their staff hours a little. But they won't do that until they're sure it's working.

"We're not happy about this change at all," Chloe said. "But we're happy to do it really well and to serve our customers."

CHARGING

card processing.

Harary recommended the council accept the donation and allow the stations to operate for at least five years. Installation will cost $1,500 to $2,000, he estimated.

"While the amount of revenue is uncertain at this time, the usage rates may be set by the city at any time," he said in his report. "Further, as the car industry trends toward more EV models each year, it is anticipated that the revenue will gradually increase over the five-year term."

Without discussion, the council voted to accept the donated charging stations.

VENTANA

Homestead, and members of the Post family lived there for several generations. It's located directly across Highway 1 from the Post Ranch Inn, which like Ventana, is located on the former Post Ranch.

While Holm offered few details about the project, Mason Architects of San Francisco posted on its website that a client "is looking to restore and repurpose this historic structure to create an iconic roadside bakery cafe to serve hotel guests as well as area visitors."

According to Mason Architects, the project would "involve adding new foundations, a seismic retrofit appropriate for public occupancy, restoration of the exterior and removal of the loft to create a high volume cafe space."

Besides making improvements to comply with ADA regulations, the project also includes establishing a "new parking lot for 22 cars."

According to Mason Architects, the home- stead was built by Joseph Post in 1865 — the year the Civil War ended.

A second story was added in 1877. It was added to the National Registry of Historic places in 1986, and for the past two decades, it has served as employee housing for Ventana.

If the project does move forward, Big Sur resident Tim Green said he would like to see local residents get a chance to comment on it at a public hearing.

"Surely any project on Highway 1 that affects the character and aesthetics on the coast is reviewable by the Big Sur Land Use Advisory Committee," said Green, who once served on the Big Sur LUAC. "That should certainly be true if a project alters a national historic site."

Green also said he has concerns about any project that would bring more traffic to Big Sur. "The highway is already at double-capacity on peak days," he added.

Geolo Capital, which bought Carmel Valley Ranch in 2009 for $20 million, formed a partnership two years ago with a Chinese firm to buy Ventana for $64 million.

Closed since storms damaged the scenic route in February, the resort recently reopened, unveiling a multi-million dollar makeover.

POLICE

"I'm trying to go beyond the minimum, but we actually have several problems here — the police department and the next door neighbor, public works," Theis said.

Police Chief Paul Tomasi said he'd be thrilled just to have a new property room, which would be accomplished in all of the options. He said he imagined Clyde Klaumann, who was chief when the station was built a half-century ago, was pleased with the new building until he sat in his office and realized there was no room to store evidence.

"If we built Option 1, I would be very happy," Tomasi said, though he also acknowledged he might come to regret that decision a few years down the road.

In a "great minds" moment, he also mentioned that "in my copious free time," he had already drawn a hybrid plan similar to what Hardy was suggesting. "I have everything you're asking for already drawn up, and we could probably give it to the architect," he said. "I would change their plans anyway." His plans would accommodate the new property room as well as an upstairs EOC, without digging down to add more below-ground space.

Harary said he was "pretty confident" the first two options wouldn't accommodate an emergency operations center upstairs, but Mayor Steve Dallas felt otherwise.

"I completely disagree with you," he said, criticizing Kasavan's preliminary drawings for including a lot of "wasted space" and "horrid" exits. "There's more hallway space that's wasted," he said. "It just goes on and on and on for hallways."

Based on the feedback at the meeting, city administrator Chip Rerig confirmed he and his staff will work on plans for expansions on the west and southeast sides of the building, and will return with revised drawings and cost estimates.

The Summary will be provided to Trustor(s) and/or vested owner(s) only, pursuant to CA Civil Code Section 2923.3(d)[2].) YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED November 21, 2007. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. On December 26, 2017 at 10:00 AM, outside the main entrance of the Monterey County Administration building located at 168 W. Alisal Street, Salinas, CA 93901, MTC Financial Inc. dba Trustee Corps, as the duly Appointed Trustee, under and pursuant to the power of sale contained in that certain Deed of Trust recorded on November 30, 2007 as Instrument No. 2007089766, of official records in the Office of the Recorder of Monterey County, California, executed by EDWIN BRYCE LEE, SR. AND JILL MITCHELL WILEY LEE, CO-TRUSTEES OF THE LEE FAMILY TRUST DATED JANUARY 26, 1999, as Trustor(s), in favor of FINANCIAL FREEDOM SENIOR FUNDING CORPORATION, A SUBSIDIARY OF INDYMAC BANK, F.S.B. as Beneficiary, WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, that certain property situated in said County, California describing the land therein as: AS MORE FULLY DESCRIBED IN SAID DEED OF TRUST The property heretofore described is being sold "as is." The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 5 SE 13TH ON CASA-NOVA, CARMEL, CA 93921 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $1,341,774.28 (Estimated). However, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said sale may include all or part of said amount. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the California Financial Code and authorized to do business in California, or other such funds as may be acceptable to the Trustee. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale until funds become available to the payee or endorse as a matter of right. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call In Source Logic at 702-659-7766 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Web site address listed below for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08000565-17-1. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JOAN J. THOMPSON. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by DONN SCOTT THOMPSON in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY. The Petition for Probate requests that DONN SCOTT THOMPSON be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Date: Dec. 15, 2017

Time: 9:00 a.m. Dept.: 13 Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Agujaito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Singin' the blues from Jagger to Sunset; violin prodigy plays with youth orchestras

ONE OF the most distinctive voices in blues music today and a three-time Grammy nominee for Best Blues Album, singer Shemekia Copeland takes the stage Saturday, Nov. 11, at Sunset Center.

Besides being one of the rising stars in her genre,

On A High Note

By CHRIS COUNTS

Copeland is the daughter of the late blues guitarist Johnny Copeland. She was only eight when she performed for the first time at Harlem's legendary Cotton Club, and her career has been on the rise ever since. She was named Female Artist of the Year in 2016 by the Blues Music Awards, and she's shared the stage with many big name artists, including Mick Jagger when he sang for President Barack Obama at the White House in 2012.

"Witty, charming and talented beyond belief, Shemekia is an explosive blues rock powerhouse to be reckoned with," Gina Delli-Gatti of Sunset Center told The Pine Cone. "She's sure to deliver an entertaining evening of soul-stirring, foot-stomping fun."

Showtime is 8 p.m. Tickets are $29 to $49. Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. Call (831) 620-2048 or visit www.sunsetcenter.org.

LEAFY GREENS INSPIRE ACTIVIST-ARTIST'S PRINTS

WHILE MANY people like to eat lettuce, kale and spinach, artist Melissa Smedley is using them for creative inspiration — and as a vehicle for social activism.

Smedley unveils her latest exhibit, "Perishables," Friday, Nov. 10, at Open Ground Studios in Seaside. The nonprofit gallery and studio will be the site of an opening reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

But the show's underlying purpose is to call attention to the difficult lives of farmworkers in the Salinas Valley and what she believes is the environmental cost of cheap produce.

"It's a meditation on the 'Lettuce Curtain,'" the artist told The Pine Cone.

The "Lettuce Curtain" is a phrase that describes the socio-economic gap that exists between coastal and inland parts of

Food and wine for vets, albacore for salmon, and fundraising successes

SOME LOCAL establishments will thank veterans and active-duty military by offering specials in recognition of Veterans Day.

On Sunday, Nov. 12, from 2 to 5 p.m., Galante Vineyards will hold its annual Vino for Veterans in the tasting room on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Part of the $25 ticket price and 15 percent of all wine sale proceeds from the event will be donated to Honor Flight Bay Area, a non-profit that plans trips for World War II and Korean War veterans to visit their memorials in Washington, D.C. — and pays for them, too. (Last week's Pine Cone included a story about Honor Flight recipient Howard Brunn, a Carmel resident who flew a bomber in World War II.)

Owner Jack Galante is encouraging everyone to stop in at the tasting room, sip some wines, buy some bottles, and help worthy veterans in the process. Those who can't attend but would still like to help can drop off a donation anytime through Sunday. RSVP to Danielle@galantevineyards.com or call (831) 624-3800.

And in Carmel Valley Village, the Twisted Roots tasting room will honor Veterans Day by pouring $1 glasses of wine and offering 20 percent off bottle purchases. The tasting room is located at 12 Del Fino Place in the Lyons Head Gallery. For more information, visit www.twistedrootsvineyard.com.

Meanwhile, Abalonetti Bar and Grill and Big Fish Grill always offer a 15 percent discount to active-duty military, and on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, the two Fisherman's Wharf restaurants will give free lunches to the first 10 veterans who walk through their doors. The lucky few who qualify will have their choice of an entrée from the Locals Only Menu.

Tara and Tony Baker hammed it up for the HalloWine fundraiser benefiting victims of the fires in Wine Country. Held at Folk Tale Winery in late October, the fundraiser had a spooky pirate theme, and Baker and other local chefs brought their culinary skills to the party.

From previous page

"The team at Abalonetti Bar and Grill and Big Fish have a common purpose: a strong desire to give back and honor the men and women who put their lives on the line in order for all of us to live in this great nation," according to the restaurants' management.

Save salmon and trout

The Monterey Bay Salmon and Trout Project will hold its 40th Annual Albacore Feed at the Castroville Rotary Club at 11261 Crane St. Saturday, Nov. 11, at 7 p.m. The organization helps restore populations of trout and salmon throughout the Monterey Bay area. In addition to a great albacore dinner, the fundraiser will have door prizes and a silent auction of fishing gear and other similar goodies.

The evening will start with cocktails at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7, and tickets are $20 ($10 for kids 12 and under). Proceeds will benefit MBSTP conservation, education and outreach efforts.

Cheers to 100 Years

Tarpy's Roadhouse is celebrating the centennial of its building, and the restaurant's 25th anniversary, with a party Nov. 12 from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., starting with a ribbon cutting.

"We have a history of feeding locals and travelers alike, and this year, we hope to start the holiday season by raising $10,000 for the Food Bank for Monterey County," event organizers said.

Food and wine will be served, and a silent auction will be held. Tickets are $30 per person and can be ordered through Eventbrite.com. Tarpy's is located on Highway 68 near Canyon del Rey. www.tarpys.com

Brand's open house

Winemaker Ian Brand will welcome friends and fans to his Salinas winery to celebrate the fall release of his I. Brand & Family wines Nov. 12 from 1 to 4 p.m. Brand, who has a tasting room in Carmel Valley Village with wife Heather, will be sharing his new Bayly Ranch Cabernet Franc, Bates Ranch Cabernet Franc, Enz Vineyard Mourvedre and Montebello Road Cabernet Sauvignon.

They'll be complemented by roast pig and charcuterie from the PigWizard, and cheese from The Cheese Shop. To make gift-buying easier, Brand will be discounting various wines, too.

The cost is $20 per person for the general public, and tickets are available through Eventbrite.com. The winery is located at 1367 Dayton St.

Turkey-friendly wines

The Grasing's Wine Club will demystify holiday pairings during a session on turkey-friendly wines Nov. 13 from 4 to 6 p.m. The casual tasting with passed appetizers will "take the guesswork out of your turkey dinner" by suggesting several choices for bottles to complement the traditional Thanksgiving feast, with its wide range of flavors, spices and sweets.

The lineup is set to include sparkling wines from the Loire Valley and Champagne in France, as well as England, a rosé from Provence, a Cote du Rhone, Beaujolais, Albariño, and local producer Albatross Ridge's Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and bubbly.

Grasing's is located at Sixth and Mission. The cost is $25 per person. For reservations, call (831) 624-6562 or email chris@grasings.com.

Mediterranean Mondays

This month, Artemis Turkish restaurant on Ocean Avenue west of Mission Street started a new promotion: Mediterranean Mondays.

Those nights, all wines are half price, so customers can pair interesting selections with Artemis' distinctive dishes like musakka, fettucine with lamb ragout, octopus salad, and prawns with feta.

Artemis is open for lunch and dinner, and the wine list includes local wineries, as well as producers in Turkey. Visit www.artemis-carmel.com.

Symphony lunch and post-concert supper

The Friends of the Monterey Symphony will have a concert preview luncheon at Porter's in the Forest at Poppy Hills Golf Course on Lopez Road in Pebble Beach Nov. 16 at 11:30 a.m., for $50 per person. Supporters of classical music will chat with each other while enjoying great food, and will have a chance to meet the symphony's

■ Brews for a Cause

The Monterey Museum of Art's Brews for a Cause will take place in the museum at 559 Pacific St. Friday, Nov. 17, from 7 to 9 p.m.

While admission is free, supporters will be asked to chip in $5 to benefit the museum. In exchange, they'll get to groove to the tunes of Sensory Tribe. Punch cards will be sold so guests can enjoy tastes of beers provided by Discretion Brewing, Mad Otter Ale, and Peter B's Brewpub.

In addition, raffle prizes are being provided by English Ales Brewery, Freedom Bakery & Confections, MYO Pure Frozen Yogurt, and the Crossroads shopping center.

The event is only for those age 21 and over.

■ DIY holiday pies

Yulanda Santos, the extremely talented pastry chef of Aubergine restaurant and L'Auberge Carmel, will present a class on DIY holiday pies Nov. 18 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the MEarth Habitat Project located next to Carmel Middle School on Carmel Valley Road.

'Tis the season for freshly baked sweets, and in the green classroom at the habitat, Santos will use locally sourced and seasonal ingredients to show participants how to make apple pie and pumpkin pie from scratch. They'll also learn how to create a simple but scrumptious whipped mascarpone topping for the pies, which they'll get to taste, of course. MEarth executive director Tanja Roos will take guests on a tour of the property, too.

At this point, the class is full, but there's a waitlist for those who'd like to try their luck. The $85 ticket includes two take-and-bake pies, and the recipes. Visit mearthcarmel.org/diy-pie.

■ Fundraisers a success

Last weekend's HalloWine fundraiser at Folktale Winery raised $18,500 for fire relief efforts in Wine Country, according to organizers. Illusions of Grandeur, the Monterey County Hospitality Association, Monterey County Vintners & Growers Association, and Folktale Winery collaborated on the sold-out benefit for CAWineStrong's Northern California wildfire relief efforts.

"These fires were a tremendous tragedy. Thousands of families in Mendocino, Napa, and Sonoma counties have lost their homes, their possessions, and their livelihoods," they said after the event, which took place in Folktale's barrel room and had a spooky pirate theme created by Illusions of Grandeur. "Your contribution means that we can ease the suffering and help these families to rebuild their lives. It also shows them that others care, that Monterey County cares."

And earlier in October, before those fires started, Montrio Bistro raised $30,000 for the Fund for Homeless Women at its sold-out fifth annual benefit dinner. "Not only did we sell out all 150 tickets, we also raised a whopping $30,000 — the most ever," the restaurant's management reported. "The people who were there had an awesome time. It was a huge success for a huge cause!"

Credit goes to GM Kathy Solley, chef/co-owner Tony Baker, co-owner Tony Tollner and the staff at the restaurant, as well as everybody who was there and gave generously.

■ Beaujolais Nouveau celebration

In honor of the annual Beaujolais Nouveau release that occurs in France on the third Thursday in November, Bistro Moulin will offer a three-course prix-fixe menu to pair with Domaine Dupueble Beaujolais Nouveau. The wine, which is light and fruity, is traditionally released the same year the grapes used in it are harvested — an unusually quick turnaround, especially for red wine. As a result, it's a simple wine that's typically served chilled.

In France, the occasion is marked with fireworks, music and festivals as the wine is released at 12:01 a.m. In Monterey, Bistro Moulin's $45 prix-fixe menu will be offered Nov. 16-19, and will feature first-course choice of gnocchi with truffles, poached egg in Burgundy sauce, or charcuterie, followed by a choice of Boeuf Bourguignon over whipped potatoes, or fish of the day with truffled cauliflower puree and asparagus. The dessert choices will be poached pear, chocolate mousse and crème brûlée. The wine will be sold for $11 a glass and $38 per bottle.

Bistro Moulin is located at 867 Wave St. near Cannery Row in Monterey. For reservations, call (831) 333-1200.

ART

Monterey County — and the belief by Smedley and others that farmworkers aren't treated very well.

“What if we were to compensate these tax-paying workers fairly and create paths to their citizenship,” the artist suggested.

Smedley is also using her art to raise awareness about the longtime impacts of large-scale farming on the environment, and particularly on our water supply. She said the systems we rely on to grow our produce “seem ever more vulnerable, technological and complex.”

The artist said she hopes the exhibit will spark a dialogue about the “true cost” of the food we eat.

The show continues through Dec. 1. The studio and gallery is located at 1230 Fremont Blvd. Call (831) 241-6919 or visit www.opengroundstudios.com.

■ Miniatures to aid museum

Now on display at the Monterey Museum of Art is its annual Miniatures show, which features an eclectic variety of small paintings, photographs, prints, sculpture, and mixed media works, all donated by local artists and museum supporters.

Raffle tickets are $5 each, seven for $30, or 21 for $75. A small number of “Big Ticket” items will be raffled off separately, with tickets costing $25 each, or five for $100. The winners will be announced Dec. 19 on the museum's website at www.montereyart.org.

Proceeds from the show will benefit the museum's exhibits and programs. The museum is located at 559 Pacific St.

■ Founders talk about YAC

The co-founders of the nonprofit Youth Arts Collective, Meg Biddle and Marcia Perry, present a talk, “Do Art, Be Kind,” Nov. 13, at the Monterey Museum of Art. The youth group mentors art students from 14 to 22 and provides them with studio space in downtown Monterey.

The latest installment in the museum's Fall Lecture Series, the talk is free and starts at 1 p.m.

Health Fair includes freebees, tasty BBQ

OFFERING THE public a variety of free medical services for a one day only, the Big Sur Health Center presents its annual Health Fair Wednesday, Nov. 15, from noon to 5 p.m.

The services include health screening, dental checkups, flu shots, blood pressure checks, blood sugar and cholesterol screenings, nutritional counseling and legal services. There will also be games and activities for kids, and a “delicious and healthy” BBQ will be served.

The only medical facility located along the coast between the Monterey Peninsula and Cambria, the health center is located just south of the Big Sur River Inn, and about 24 miles south of Carmel. Call call (831) 667-2580.

Don't look now, but basketball season's almost here — and looking hopeful

COACHES TYPICALLY keep their cards close to the vest, particularly in preseason interviews with pesky reporters, and Kurt Grahl, Carmel High's second-year varsity boys basketball coach, is no exception. Athletes usually don't move as well on the court if their heads are swollen.

But a subtle hint of excitement can be detected in Grahl's voice as he contemplates the potential of this year's team, which undeniably brings an intriguing mix of experience and athleticism into the 2017-2018 season.

"With the guys we've got coming back, and some pretty good players coming up (from the junior varsity and freshman squads) to join them, I expect us to be very competitive for a league title," Grahl understated for the record. "We plan to approach the season as a team that should be in that mix."

Consider first that last year's Padres were 17-9 overall — the school's fourth-best record in the past 16 seasons (behind the 2015, 2012, and 2010 teams) — and went two games deep into the Central Coast Section's Division IV postseason bracket. They were 11-3 in the Mission Trail Athletic League, runner-up to Pacific Grove (13-1, 21-5).

They probably could have been considered overachievers, considering the core of that team had only won seven games the year before as junior varsity players (the fewest wins for Carmel's jayvees in eight years).

Only six of the 17 varsity players were lost to graduation — notably forward Matt Luch (10.8 points, 5.1 rebounds per game) and Hayden Stachelek (9.5 points, 4.3 rebounds).

Returning players are back and are bigger, stronger, and smarter than they used to be. Most are going to be challenged for playing time by some talented varsity rookies.

The strongest resume belongs to Kevin Cook, a 6-foot-4 senior forward who, according to MaxPreps.com, is statistically the MTAL's top returning scorer (10.5 points per game) and rebounder (6.8).

Cook, who typically patrols the wing on the left side of the offense, is a multi-skilled player who can shoot from the outside or drive to the basket.

MVP on the JV

Another notable senior, Antonio Giangiorgi, was a co-captain and the starting point guard a year ago after earning Most Valuable Player honors on Carmel's JV and freshman teams.

Giangiorgi put up solid-but-modest numbers — 5.6 points, 3.3 assists, 2.1 steals — but Grahl identifies him as a player who showed "some senior swagger" and unveiled improved decision-making skills during the 26 games the Padres played in summer camps at St. Mary's College (against San Francisco Bay area players), UC Santa Barbara (L.A. area schools), and University of Pacific (Sacramento and Stockton teams). He's a high-pressure defender with energy to burn on the court.

Carmel's backcourt also will be populated by junior Zach DeZee (a standout defensive back on this year's football team) who crashed the Padres' starting lineup as a sophomore a few games into the 2016-17 season, when injuries and attitude issues became a factor. Grahl said DeZee demonstrated so much natural leadership that he couldn't be usurped. He proved himself as a tough, gritty defensive player, and the coach saw signs during summer games that he's also ready to take on a bigger role in the offense. He averaged 5.2 points and 1.8 assists last year.

Enhanced bona fides

Another junior guard, Joe Garello, demonstrated explosive offensive potential, averaging 9.5 points, but Grahl said inconsistencies and limited focus on defense kept him out of the starting lineup. If those issues are in the past, he could emerge as a true impact player for the Padres.

The coach also sees a high ceiling on the potential of guard Kai Lee, who jumped to last year's varsity squad as a freshman and saw playing time in the final 10 games. Lee's bona fides as an athlete were enhanced when he won the starting quarterback job on this year's Padres football team, and Grahl said he now appears to have adjusted to the speed and strength of varsity-level players.

Most notable among the varsity rookies is freshman J.T. Byrne, a big-bodied, 6-foot-4 center who already is showing signs of becoming a serious force under the basket as both a scorer and rebounder.

Byrne played middle-school basketball at All Saints' Day School, where as an eighth-grader he scored more than 30 points and grabbed 20 rebounds in a postseason all-star game against Salinas schools. He also established himself as a tough, physical, and creative player during Carmel's summer camp games.

Another notable dynamic as the season approaches is that defending champion Pacific Grove and third-place Stevenson both took significant hits from graduation. The Breakers lost high-scoring guard Brad Sendell (18.5 points) and a tough, inside player, Zach Miller (8.9 points, 8.2 rebounds). Stevenson (17-9 overall, 10-4 MTAL), graduated big numbers in Parker Olin (20.8 points, 4.6 rebounds, 4.3 assists, 2.4 steals), Ben Stork (13.4 points, 3.4 rebounds, 2.3 steals), Will Lansbury (7.1 points, 6.0 rebounds, 2.7 steals) and Kenny Pich (6.1 points, 4.8 rebounds, 3.2 assists, 2.4 steals).

Morgan Hill Oakwood (22-3 overall) and Trinity Christian (18-8) of Monterey move into the MTAL after sharing the Coast Athletic League crown (both 9-1) a year ago. Soledad (11-14, 8-6), King City (5-18, 5-9), and Greenfield (8-16, 6-8) complete the league.

The Padres open their season at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 20, with a home game against traditional Monterey Bay League powerhouse Palma.

■ CHS girls win MTAL in cross-country

Carmel freshman Rachel Suess was the surprise medalist at last week's Mission Trail Athletic League Cross-County Championships, pushing ahead of teammate Colleen Lang over the final 800 yards of the 3.01-mile race at Toro Park for a career-best time of 19:54. Lang, a junior, finished in second place with a personal best 19:56 time, helping Carmel to its first league title in six years. Anna Watson (20:29) of Stevenson was third.

■ Greenfield was the team runner-up.

Other Carmel finishers were Sara Tuck (10th, 21:26), Maggie Ellison (11th, 21:35), Alana O'Brien (15th, 22:11), Sarah Morgan (26th, 22:43), and Natalie Mazaud (33rd, 23:28).

Carmel placed fifth among 14 teams in the boys meet, paced by senior Nathan Suess (Rachel's brother), who was 15th in 17:15, and Ryan Chaney, who was 25th in 17:43.

The Central Coast Section Championships are 8 a.m. Saturday at Toro Park.

■ Padres girls place at MTAL tennis

Carmel's Jessica Hwang placed second in singles, and the team of Chelsea Olvera and Dillan Chiewpanich was the runner-up in doubles competition at the Mission Trail Athletic League Championship Tournament, held Nov. 1-2 at Chamisal Tennis Club.

Hwang lost her championship match 6-3, 6-0 to Stevenson's Eszter Speder, who completed an undefeated season.

Lauren Sugar from York was in third place, beating Carmel's Shannon Schroeder, 6-3, 6-4. Schroeder was the only unseeded player to reach the semifinals, upsetting fourth-seed Annabel Stork of Catalina, 6-2, 6-3 in the quarterfinals on Wednesday.

Santa Catalina's doubles team of Ava Garofono and Caroline Stewart won the doubles event, beating unseeded Chiewpanich and Olvera of Carmel 6-2, 6-1. Chiewpanich and Olvera beat the second-seeded Becky Phillips and Caroline Coen of Pacific Grove, 7-5, 7-6, to reach the finals.

■ Padres win 'The Shoe'

Carmel obliterated archrival Pacific Grove 64-0 in the final football game of the MTAL season to win the trophy known as "The Shoe" for the third consecutive year, and the eighth time in the last nine years. The Padres lead the series 35-33-2 and remain in contention for a berth in the Central Coast Section Division V football playoffs. The seeding meeting is scheduled Nov. 11 — delayed a week this year by postponements of San Francisco Bay area football games due to poor air quality caused by wildfires.

Dakota Mornhinweg and Rashaan Ward both rushed for two touchdowns for Carmel, quarterback Kai Lee ran for one TD and passed for another, and Luke Melcher scored once on a pass reception, and another time on a punt return.

Endangered? Says who?

DESPITE THE vigorous campaign underway by the water crazies to try to convince you that a government takeover of Cal Am will magically result in lower water prices, savvy locals understand that it's the government's fault we pay such high water rates to begin with.

However, so many years have passed since government bureaucrats started cutting off our access to an adequate supply of H<sub>2</sub>O, most people have forgotten what their reason was. It's a familiar one, though: We had to stop pumping water from the Carmel River and start paying super high prices for what we did pump to protect a couple of supposedly endangered species that live there. In particular, beginning in the mid-1990s, the powers-that-be decided the water the people of the Monterey Peninsula had relied on for decades had to be set aside for the steelhead trout and red-legged frog.

Some of that regulation came from the State of California, but much of it came from the feds, who added the red-legged frog to the endangered species list in 1996, and the steelhead trout in 1998.

When they did that — poof! — there went any possibility of building a new dam on the Carmel River, or even continuing to take much water from the river. We also had to pay to set up all kinds of expensive mitigation programs in the river, tear down one of the old dams, start working on a desal plant, etc., etc., etc., all under the auspices of the United States Department of the Interior.

But wait! What about the U.S. Constitution? Aren't the powers of the federal government explicitly enumerated there? And isn't everything else "reserved to the states, or to the people"? Is protecting endangered species a power granted to the federal government in our founding documents?

Of course not. In 1787, the very idea hadn't even been thought of, and nothing about protecting endangered species has been added to the Constitution since.

Instead, the U.S. government is telling us what to do with our water supply under the various laws and regulations enacted under the Constitution's Commerce Clause, which gives the feds the power to "regulate commerce among the several states."

And what, pray tell, does the health of the steelhead trout or red-legged frog in the Carmel River have to do with interstate commerce? Nothing, of course — unless you construe the Commerce Clause to include everything from what you plant in your yard (which may have come across state lines) to the tooth fairy (who presumably flies everywhere). And that's exactly what the federal government does all the time. To the bureaucrats in Washington, the Commerce Clause has no limits.

But that could be changing very soon. In southwestern Utah, a group of cities has filed a lawsuit challenging the U.S. government's power to protect a species of prairie dog that only lives in Utah. The animals themselves never cross state lines and are not part of any interstate commerce — and in 2013, a trial court ruled that the government had gone beyond its Enumerated Powers in protecting them, regardless of the environmental impacts that might be involved.

"If Congress could use the Commerce Clause to regulate anything that might affect the ecosystem, there would be no logical stopping point to congressional power," wrote a U.S. District Court judge.

This summer, an appeals court reversed that decision, holding that any regulation was OK as long as it was part of a "comprehensive scheme" to address some issue that touches on interstate commerce.

But according to a U.S. Senator from Utah, that's not the end of the matter. Writing in the Wall Street Journal last weekend, Mike Lee announced that the prairie dog case had been appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, and that 23 states have asked the court to hear it.

If the Supremes overturn the federal government's prairie dog regulations in southwestern Utah, it doesn't require much imagination to see that similar rules protecting the steelhead trout and red-legged frog in the Carmel River could be next. If that happens — then you actually might start to see some savings show up in your water bills. Otherwise, they're bound to just keep going up and up.

Letters to the Editor

More about being crazy

Dear Editor,

Your reference to those who oppose Cal Am as "those crazies." To extrapolate on that definition, I would then assume that those who support Cal Am are not "crazies." Let's see: those who are not "crazies" ignore scientific facts, don't seem to have much concern about the mistakes Cal Am has made over the years, think the PUC must be a gift from God, and don't care about costs. Given all that, I would much prefer to be a "crazie."

'Oversimplification' and 'xenophobia'

Dear Editor,

The editorial in the Nov. 3 Pine Cone ("Diversity of what?") was thought provoking but confused two separate issues. We do indeed "have a nationwide obsession with national diversity," and this pathological collective impulse creates far more harm than good. If we continue devoting an excessive amount of resources on inane matters like public restrooms and sports mascots, then important matters like education and national defense will suffer.

But this criticism is not applicable to the "Diversity Visa" system. Putting aside the absurd phrase, this system has undeniable benefits for our country, and it gives opportunities for good people to live in America who otherwise would be excluded. The fact that some immigrants are not law abiding is insufficient grounds for denying all immigrants. Would it have been fair of the United States to deny immigrants from Sicily in the early 20th century based on putative ties with organized crime? Should Russians have been shunned because Stalin was a murderous despot? Of course not.

Furthermore, your concluding rhetorical question of "... can we please stop giving them to people who intend to murder us?" is an oversimplification and smacks of xenophobia. We have no more idea of which immigrant intends to commit murder than we do of which out-of-luck gambler will go on a deadly rampage in Las Vegas.

Mon Dieu! First it's fake news and now it's fake Frenchmen! Mary Schley's article about fraud and intimidation on the streets of Carmel reads like an old silent movie.

Up on the screen in black and white, we see the unsuspecting lady in question strolling innocently along the sidewalk, admiring the myriad and sundry wares being offered in the windows. Suddenly from one of the doorways, she's confronted by a rather

Answered prayer leads to a move from Arizona — and much more

IT COULDN'T have happened to two nicer people. Linda Warmington was (and is) a longtime Carmel Valley resident, a mother of two and grandmother of two more. She taught pre-school for 10 years, and taught second through fifth graders at Tularcitos for three years. She loved a job she had as a librarian at Carmel Valley Library, as well.

In addition, she volunteers at Sanctuary Bible Church, where she's been a member for many years. She helps prepare dinners served to families (for a small fee), before Wednesday evening's adult Bible study and children's programs.

Gordon Davis, a retired environmental engineer, was living in Arizona. Now he's a volunteer driver for Meals on Wheels here. An avid tennis player who'd done some coaching, he started working with the junior varsity tennis team at Santa Catalina this past fall. How he got back to the Peninsula about 50 years after leaving Carmel High in 10th grade is at the heart of this story.

When Pam Klaumann, CHS alum and representative for the Class of 1966, got a phone call from Gordon in 2015, she had no idea it was going to set into motion a series of life-changing events for the two former students.

Let it go

Linda graduated in 1966, while Gordon had to move to Kentucky when his father — stationed at NPS — retired from the Navy and took a job there. Over the next 50 years, the two saw each other just once, married others, were divorced or widowed, and lost track of each other's whereabouts.

In 2015, Linda began wondering about some of the people who had meant the most to her throughout her life. She'd been widowed twice — once after 38 years, and again just two years into her second marriage.

Among them was her old pal from Sunset School, Carmel Middle School and Carmel High, Gordon. They had also attended Sunday school together at the Christian Science church in Carmel. Linda remembers a picnic with Gordon's family, but that pales in comparison to their biggest adventure.

Gordon and his brother had built a raft, using an inner tube. One day, he and Linda, Linda's sister and her sister's boyfriend, set out to go rafting on the Carmel River, which was just below flood stage. (Yes, we know. No good could come of this.)

According to Linda, the raft took a hairpin turn, where "it caught on a root system and exploded." The four clawed their way to safety via a nearby tree, but, Linda said, "We almost didn't make it."

It's hard to forget someone when you've been through something like that together. After Gordon's family left town, he came back once to visit 10 years later, when Linda was married — a young mom with two babies. Then they lost touch.

Linda tried to find Gordon, just to reconnect and see how his life had turned out, but Davises on the internet turned out to be plentiful as gadflies at a city council meeting.

"I said a prayer and told God I was looking for [Gordon]. I told God if it was not in his will for me to find him, I understood." Then the lifelong woman of faith let it go.

A few days later, in Arizona, Gordon was having similar thoughts of old friends, including Linda, and tracked down Klaumann. He called her up and said, "you don't remember me, do you?" Well, she did. They made some chit-chat, and then he asked if Klaumann knew where Linda was.

She did. She took Gordon's info and contacted Linda, to ask if it was OK to give him her e-mail address. Linda laughed at the memory of the startlingly prompt answer to prayer. "I said, 'Yes, and while you're at it, do you have his phone number?'"

A few days later, Gordon was on the golf course when she called. Then came daily emails, with Gordon finally deciding to come to see Linda. "The first time I saw her, it was like 'Wow! She's just like I remember her.'"

"Believe me, there were sparks," Linda agreed. They decided not to rush into anything, and Linda was adamant she was not leaving her home.

So, Gordon hunted around until he found an apartment in Pacific Grove, and moved in. The two began dating — walks on the beach, going out to eat, seeing movies and reminiscing. And yes, the ill-fated rafting trip reared its ugly head. Then Gordon said, "I thought, if she loves me after that ..." He left the thought unfinished.

After a year-and-a-half, including a date at their 50th class reunion, they decided it was time to wed. They had a shared faith and values, including treasuring their families and friends. On Sept. 30 of this year, they exchanged vows at Sanctuary Bible Church.

Now, Gordon looks forward to teaching Linda's grandchildren tennis. Besides "treasuring every minute together," they want to travel, enjoy nature, show each other the worlds they lived in before they reunited, and even try kayaking. Be careful this time, kids — and maybe wear life jackets, OK?

At age 25, he just walked away

THE COLOR palette found in the paintings Jeffrey Becom shows at the Carmel Art Association didn't come from art school, or a mentor, or endless hours in museums. His taste was inspired, he said, by extensive travels through small villages in Europe, North Africa and Latin America, where the use of color often is the result of ancient belief systems and thousands of years of tradition.

Becom, 64, also is a celebrated color photographer, and an author whose work was the focus in 1991 of an hour-long PBS documentary (appropriately entitled "For the Colors.")

All of the aforementioned is intricately interwoven with his profession — he's an architect by training and trade — and his 1984 marriage to an art scholar, Sally Aberg, the gallery manager at the art association whose own infatuation with color had a major impact on her husband.

"Sally got interested in the fauvists, or 'wild beasts,' the French expressionists known for very brightly-colored paintings," Becom said. "As an architect, color wasn't really at the forefront for me until then, but through our shared interests, it's been my focus ever since."

Becom began working with oils at 14, and his talent was evident. By the time he was 16, his paintings of nearby Indiana farm scenes were gaining notice, and he was studying privately with an Austrian abstract painter and printmaker who had moved to his tiny town, near Shelbyville.

"But my parents were certain I was going to starve to death if I just decided to be a painter, so I went to architecture school, which turned into an intense experience," he said. "At the University of Cincinnati School of Architecture, you go to school half the time and work half the time. Six years straight, no breaks. It's exhausting, but by the time you graduate, you already have a lot of experience."

Panoramic views

Indeed, Becom had extensive professional training with a respected firm by the time he got his diploma and fled the Midwestern weather for California. He had five different job offers waiting when he arrived in San Francisco.

"I wound up taking a job at a firm that promised I could do residential work, which fit my interests, and I designed a house on an undulating curve on Telegraph Hill," he said. "It had 20-foot-high glass walls that wrapped around the building, with panoramic views of San Francisco Bay and Coit Tower."

The stunning design attracted attention from major architectural magazines and led to other lucrative projects for Becom. And then, a year later, at 25, he walked away.

"They were dumping so much money on me that I didn't know what to do with it, so I just put it in the bank," he said. "One day I realized I had enough to do whatever I felt like doing for at least five years, so I quit the job and decided to paint."

He also left for Europe to study architectural history, the first of multiple such excursions.

Carmel's artists

By DENNIS TAYLOR

Becom's initial attraction to Europe's gothic cathedrals soon gave way to an interest in the architecture of small villages (a passion he attributes, at least in part, to his rural Indiana upbringing), which he painted and photographed.

His emerging attraction to color was fueled by a subsequent trip to Morocco.

"People there were putting colors together in ways I never would have imagined," he said. "I wouldn't have put purple, pink, and lime green together — that wouldn't have been in my experience — but they did ... and it worked."

'It becomes your friend'

Color became even more intriguing when he traveled to Latin American nations, where pre-Columbian belief systems are prevalent in rural villages.

"They're still using color the way they were using it 3,000 years ago, and a lot of it had to do with their belief systems: Things that are alive have color, things that are dead don't," he said. "A dead thing can turn evil and harm you, so you give it color, so it has life, and it becomes your friend."

At the same time, if a villager stands out in a way that causes envy, a witch might be sent in the night to make that person sick, or even die, Becom said. "So you'll often find villages where everybody dresses the same,

Students kick off season

Also at Sunset Center is a concert Nov. 12 by Youth Music Monterey County's Junior Youth and Honors orchestras. The event marks the debut of YVMC's 2017-18 season.

Led by music director Farkhad Khudiyev, the student-musicians will be joined by award-winning soloist and YVMC alumnus, Nicholas Brady. At four, Brady became YVMC's youngest orchestra member, and a year later, he performed Vivaldi's Violin Concerto in A minor. Now eight, he will accompany the Honors Orchestra when it plays Kabalevsky's Violin Concerto in C Major.

The concert starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $5 and everyone has the same possessions. If you own something that makes your neighbors envious, you absolutely want to get rid of it.”

Becom took photographs and painted in most of the places he went — art that resulted in two books. His first, “Mediterranean Color” (Abbeville Press, New York, 1990), a collaboration with Pulitzer Prize-winning critic Paul Goldberger, documents the history and myths behind the remarkable colors on the simple houses of farmers and fishermen in Italy. It inspired a PBS documentary.

His second book, co-authored by his wife, Sally, is “Maya Color” (Abbeville Press, New York, 1997), the result of eight years of research into the painting traditions of the living Maya.

His photographs (250 of which are in rooms at the Hyatt Carmel Highlands) and paintings (both oil and watercolors) are in public and private collections throughout the world. In 1993, Becom had a retrospective exhibition of oils, watercolors and photographs at The Octagon’s American Architectural Foundation galleries in Washington, D.C.

His work will be showcased throughout November, along with the art of Pamela Carroll, Belinda Vidor, Helene Goldstein, and Michie Long, at the Carmel Art Association gallery on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

Jeffrey Becom, whose brief career as an architect was so successful, he decided to quit doing it and paint.

"CARMEL LEGENDS"

BY AL SMITH

Chances are you don't know where FRASER WAY is. So pay attention and amaze your friends with your knowledge of Carmel trivia. It's a short, one-block street that runs from Casanova to Camino Real below 13th and just north of Santa Lucia. It's the only deviation from the otherwise geometrically perfect gridwork of streets laid out in 1902 by square-rigged developers Devendorf and Powers. And it's a monument to the great Fraser Feud of 1906-14. The Fraser brothers, Hector and Wilbur, owned the whole block, a gift from their father, Hector, Sr. Wilbur had an ambition to create a public inn which he would call Fraser Ranch. "You're nuts," said Hector. "This is a quiet, residential community." The argument raged for 8 years and was settled only when Hector cut off the lower tip of the block and deeded it to Wilbur "in fee simple." Today there are 4 houses on Fraser Way the dividing line, none an inn. And, if you believe this story, we have some stock in the new bridge that will cross Carmel Bay that we'd like to discuss with you.

WHY CAN'T YOU BE AN ACTIVIST FOR PEACE WITHOUT BEING A PACIFIST?

WE CALLED it Armistice Day. As a kid, I didn't understand what we were celebrating. November 11 meant a day off from school. That was celebration enough. It became a national holiday in 1938. In 1954 Congress changed the name to Veterans Day (Veterans with no apostrophe.) Ironically, back in the 1940s, we were celebrating the end of World War I while we were in the middle of World War II.

It is appropriate that November 11 is a day to honor everyone who has served in the military. Their service is worthy of our remembrance. The end of World War I, on Nov. 11, 1918, is worth commemorating. War on such a scale, and involving so many countries, had never been seen. Nor had there been annihilation by such powerful weapons. Multitudes died from machine gun fire, artillery barrages, and even poison gas. In the absurdly futile Battle of the Somme, there were a million casualties, with over 310,000 killed — and on a single day in 1916, the British army had about 20,000 dead.

President Woodrow Wilson saw Armistice Day as a day that should be esteemed because it was an opportunity for lasting peace. Yet the peace Wilson hoped for lasted barely two decades.

In Canada and Great Britain, November 11 is known as Remembrance Day. I like that name better. It implies that we remember everyone who died in war, not just the members of the military — for the ultimate horror of war is what we become immune to them. In Vietnam, success in battle was measured in “body counts.” I remember hearing those figures every evening on news shows and thinking if they were accurate, we had killed everyone in Vietnam twice.

If one can voice a disappointment with the human race, mine would be that almost 20 years into the 21st century there is still so much hostility in the world. Also, so much of the world's population in 2017 does not enjoy freedom. Only three countries' constitutions give elections a fixed timing: the U.S., Sweden, and Switzerland. According to the watchdog organization Freedom House, in 2017, of the 195 countries assessed, 87 (45 percent) were rated free; 59 (30 percent), partly free, and 49 (25 percent), not free. In terms of population, almost four billion people live in partly free and not free states.

Those people partly free, or not free, live under oppressive regimes. Yet according to the latest survey from the Victims of Communism Memorial Foundation, a Washington D.C.-based nonprofit, one in two U.S. millennials say they would rather casually refer to as “collateral damage,” the loss of civilian lives. Of the 17 million deaths in the First World War, seven million were civilians. The figures for World War II are only estimates — more than 50 million died in that war, including at least 19 million from war-related disease and famine. The figures for neither war include those wounded and/or displaced from their homes.

The figures are so tragically high that we have almost live in a socialist or communist country than a capitalist democracy. What's more, 22 percent of them have a favorable view of Karl Marx and a surprising number see Joseph Stalin and Kim Jong Un as heroes. Really? Don't they teach history in school anymore? Estimates of people killed or starved to death by communist regimes in the 20th century are all over the map. The figure of 150 million is not out of the question and does not include war deaths. Marian Smith, director of the organization said, "This troubling turn highlights pervasive historical illiteracy across the country and the systemic failure of our education system to teach students about the genocide, destruction, and misery caused by communism since the Bolshevik Revolution 100 years ago."

With such horrendous statistics how can anyone be in favor of war, or communism?

John F. Kennedy said we should never negotiate in fear, but we should never fear to negotiate. He also said we would pay any price for the defense of liberty. So how do we reconcile those two statements when confronting an enemy whose very intent is to kill as many civilians as possible? How do you follow the biblical injunction to turn the other cheek, yet face a hostile enemy who wants to kill you?

I don't think "turn the other cheek" is a proposal for pacifism. I believe it means not to return insult for insult. It refers to personal reprisals, not criminal offenses or military aggression. Responding to hatred with love might grab an individual's attention, but we still have the right to defend ourselves against a hostile enemy.

So, on Veterans Day, let us remember everyone. And let us be thankful that we are still imbued with qualities that make us seek peace, and hopefully, choose war as a last resort and not an instrument of foreign policy.

Thank you to all who served and to those who are serving now.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of DONALD ROBERT NICHOLS Case Number 17PR000449

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of DONALD ROBERT NICHOLS. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by GAEL LE MANS NICHOLS, in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY. The Petition for Probate requests that GAEL LE MANS NICHOLS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:

Date: Jan. 31, 2018 Time: 9:00 a.m. Dept.: 13 Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940. If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for Petitioner: ROBERT E. WILLIAMS 215 W. Franklin St., Suite 219 Monterey, CA 93940 (831) 372-8053 This statement was filed with the County Clerk of Monterey County on Oct. 19, 2017. Publication dates: Oct. 27, Nov. 3, 10, 2017. (PC1018)

STAND UP! and shout your achievements

Real Estate Insider is the Carmel Pine Cone's exclusive column read by the thousands who follow this dynamic Monterey Peninsula industry.

Find out who's getting promoted, who's been hired, who's won an award or hit a goal, not to mention the latest news about corporate developments at real estate firms, big and small. And why stop there? Look for newsy tidbits about mortgage brokers, title companies and anyone else who's part of the local real estate scene.

Columnist Elaine Hesser invites you to submit story ideas directly to her by email: elaine@carmelpinecone.com. Include hi-res headshot photos of newsmakers.
