MARKET DAY

Monterey County's Market Day for the Belgian Relief Fund has been set for Tuesday, July 25. Carmel has been asked to provide the cakes and candy booth, and the local chairman has guaranteed that we will do so. Further information in next week's Pine Cone

If you read it in the Pine Cone, you may safely repeat it.

Unstinted Praise of "The Piper"

It will be many a long day before those who saw "The Piper" cease to give expression to their appreciation of the splendid presentation of Josephine Preston Peabody's drama. A number of persons have called at the Pine Cone office to read what the Monterey papers had to say about the play. We here publish two of the articles.

The Monterey American says:

A large audience gave universal approval to Josephine Preston Peabody's "The Piper," at the Forest Theater last night. Last night's production, being more in the pageant line, was better suited for the Forest Theater than was Saturday night's production.

While there are many brilliant lines in "The Piper," they are wisely put nearly all in the mouth of one character, the Piper, and when a clever actor with a splendid penetrating voice, like Ludovic Bremner, handles the part, as was done last night, one need lose none of the fine passages in which it abounds.

Last night Arthur Cyril, as Michael, the Sword Eater, was the love-lorn one, and while his part was well taken, we rather believe that after seeing Gordon Davis in such a role in "Yolanda," that that young man far excels in this line. Davis played his part of Cheat the Devil admirably.

Grace McDougal as Veronica and Grace Wickham as Barbara took the principal women's parts with grace and ease, while little Phyllis Overstreet as Jan, the crippled boy, won the hearts of the audience. Joseph Hand as Jacobus, the Mayor, and Perry Newberry as Kurt, the Syndic, both filled their parts with credit.

The children were, of course, with the Piper, the feature of the play, and Carmel young folks certainly must all get a touch of the artistic from these yearly performances. The entire cast, both young and old, entered wonderfully into the spirit of the play, and this, with the excellent work of Ludovic Bremner in the leading part, made the most of this fine play.

The orchestra, as usual, under the splendid guidance of Frederick Preston Search, charmed the audience. Carmel gets the benefit of the presence there of many noted artists. There were players in that orchestra whose weekly salary when on the road could not be paid out of the entire proceeds of the play. The stage decorations by Arthur Vachell and M. DeNeale Morgan are deserving of much praise.

The Cypress of Monterey says:

"The Piper" was presented at the Forest Theater last Tuesday night before a large and appreciative audience. Those who traveled to Carmel to witness the production were well repaid for their trouble. The acting, according to those who saw the play, was worthy to the highest professional talent.

Ludovic Bremner, playing the difficult role of the piper, acquitted himself splendidly as did Arthur Cyril, who left the part of Michael, the sword eater. The part of Cheat, the Devil, was well played by Gordon Davis. Grace McDougal as Veronica and Grace Wickham, playing the part of Barbara, shone to advantage and little Phyllis Overstreet, taking the part of Jan, the crippled boy, scored with the audience.

Others who deserve mention for their work were Perry Newberry, who played the part of Kurt the Syndic, Winter Watts as Peter the cobbler, Thomas Reardon as Axel the Smith, Alice Ward, wife of Hans, Clara Leidig, wife of Axel, Mrs. Grace Wickham, wife of Martin, and Joseph W. Hand as Jacobus.

The stage decorations were by Arthur Vachell, M. DeNeale Morgan, music under the direction of Frederick Preston Search.

Art Lectures to Begin Tomorrow Evening

The first of a course of lectures to be given in connection with the Carmel Summer School of Art takes place at Arts and Crafts Hall tomorrow evening.

The subject is "Whistlers Etchings," illustrated with 86 slides.

Whistler is one of the most picturesque figures in modern art, possibly the greatest etcher since Rembrandt. The lecture is full of anecdotes depicting the humor and pathos of his life, and is fully illustrated by reproductions of his etchings. One cannot help but obtain a better understanding and appreciation of etching from attending the lecture.

Lectures to follow are:

July 20, Contemporary Painting in Europe and America.

July 27, Design: Its Use and Abuse.

August 3, Sorolla.

August 10, Tapestry.

August 27, Painters of the Mode.

August 24, Rembrandt.

August 31, American Painting.

Posters Not to be Sold

The plan of the Pine Cone to add to the School Victrola Fund by the sale of "Piper" and "Yolanda" posters has been abandoned.

It being contrary to the policy of the Forest Theatre Society to have offered for sale the posters put out by them, the remaining posters, which were gathered in Monterey, in the hands of W. L. Overstreet, have been turned over to the society.

Those six persons who purchased posters may have their 25 cents refunded by calling on the treasurer of the Forest Theatre Society or at the office of Carmel Development Co.

"David Grayson" And
His Work

Ray Stannard Baker, who is being much discussed in journals devoted to literature because of the recent disclosure that he is the author of books which supposedly have been the work of one "David Grayson," figured quite prominently some years ago in the magazine literature of "exposure."

With Ida Tarbell, "Mr. Dooley" Dunne, Lincoln Steffens, William Allen White and other writers, Mr. Baker did a great deal to aid in reforms of business, politics and philanthropy. He was among the first American journalists to visit Germany to describe its industrial organization, its welfare work and its methods of municipal reform. He made investigations of the condition of the Negro in the South and of the Hawaiian race conglomerate.

For the past ten years Baker, while a resident of Amherst, Massachusetts, has been living a quieter sort of life, less prolific in the characteristic literature of his earlier period. Through "David Grayson" he has been preaching good homely sense about life under such titles as "Adventures in Contentment," and "Adventures in Friendship," books that have brought him near to the heart of the common people and the lovers of nature.

A Novel Performance

The Western Drama Society offers, on the 21st and the 28th of this month, an original dramatic composition entitled "TUSITALA, a Masque of Robert Louis Stevenson," by John Northern Hilliard and Herbert Heron.

This is the fourth annual production of the Western Drama Society and is in line with its policy of presenting each summer an original play. This policy was initiated with the production of Mary Austin's poetic drama "Fire," and was continued the following season with Herbert Heron's "Montezuma." Last year the society produced Jack London's stone-age play, "The First Poet."

The production this year is what may be called a dramatic masque, a form of dramaturgy, combined with pageantry and dance, that has become very popular in this country in the last two or three years, and seems destined to play as important a part in the histrionic and civic life of American communities as it has for generations in England and among the peoples of Europe.

The title of the Western Drama Society's masque, "Tusitala," means Teller of Tales, and was bestowed upon Stevenson by the Samoans, among whom he lived his last days. In a prologue, six dramatic episodes and an epilogue, the masque presents the familiar characters of Stevenson's books, and includes a dramatization of "Treasure Island," "The Black Arrow," "Child's Garden of Verses," "The Ebb Tide," and "Weir of Hermiston."

Through the courtesy of Pacific Improvement Co., represented by R. H. McKaig, beginning last Saturday, and during the period required to complete the reconstruction of the highway between Carmel and Monterey, the Seventeen-Mile Drive is thrown open without toll to the public.

Columbia Park Boys Leave for Home

"The rats are gone; the mice are gone," and the boys of the State of Columbia Camp have gone. The entire party shook the dust of Carmel from their shoes on Monday morning. An opportunity to return to San Francisco in the automobiles which brought to Monterey the men for the military training camp shortened the boys' stay here a week.

As the guests of the Forest Theatre Society, the members of the camp attended the performances of "Yolanda" and "The Piper."

A goodly number of townspeople turned out on Friday evening to see and hear the burlesque version of both productions—and the crowd got its money's worth.

Before leaving Carmel, President Charles F. Norton called at the Pine Cone office to express to all his appreciation for the many courtesies and kindnesses extended to him and "my boys."

Dramatic Criticism by Mr. Uchimoto

Dear Pine Cone:

Next importance with which Pine Cones should be insert, are Forest Theatricals where I notice Pie Piper of Hammerlin who are 1284 years of age old. This gent, who possess pipe containing musics congenial to rat rodents and other childrens, make arrange to induce rats to depart to elsewhere for smallish sum of 1000 golders which he would find welcome.

When all rats have removed themselves, Mr. Kurtberry make offering of 15 complete golders which he may count while time flies. Not being agreeable to Piper, he feel oblige to entice all childrens to forests where next scenery are locate, making swear by all stars shining he would see nothing in cages, while Mrs. Ursula peevishly observe, "I told you so, none will follow me."

When all awake with hunger, cheat-devil fortunately arrive with honey donated by a bee with which he is acquaint, whereupon Piper suggest that children may be kittens and chase tails till he return and elopes forth to free Barber who should marry Michael who find swords palatable while Hamliners are content when eating pancakes. I should marry Hon. moon, narrate Michael. When done, all pipe back amid rejoice as Hammerlin are free from rats.

Hoping you are the same,
K. Uchimoto

Standardizing Laws

Another attempt is being made to standardize the laws of the various states of the Union, the impetus this time going out from California. The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution of this state is, through its secretary, Pierson W. Banning, trying to find out how many governors would help to create a "Congress of States," the first effort of which would be to establish a standard of ideals and policies to be taught in the public schools.

With such a congress there is no limit to what might be done in standardization, in the course of a few years. It is not to be expected that all proposals made by the "congress of state" would meet with immediate approval. However, no question could arise as to motives behind them; but the creation of a "congress of states," making it a national institution to assist in standardizing the ideals and laws of the country at large, would eventually make it a factor in public and national life.

The development of such a representative body from each state, with advisory powers only, would tend to create a nationalism not centered in the federal government, but emanating from the individual states. It would meet the objections of those who fear great centralization of power at Washington interfering with state rights. It being a force from the states themselves, created upon national legislation a clear and distinct knowledge of what standardizations were really needed, would soon secure the support of the masses.

Master of Literature

Israel Zangwill, who recently expressed his cordial approbation of the confirmation of Mr Brandeis' appointment to the supreme court of the United States, is an interesting figure amongst English men of letters of today. Mr. Zangwill holds a position in the front rank both as a playwright and a novelist, and has also done good work as an essayist and a lecturer. Largely self-educated, he graduated with honors at London University, and for some time was engaged in teaching. He gradually, however, drifted into journalism and his first book, an amus-

Good Roads Parade

What was perhaps the most imposing parade ever witnessed in Carmel took place yesterday afternoon about mail time.

Pedestrians learned from the placards on the parade vehicles the meaning of the demonstration.

Under the able leadership of Lowell Hardy, a number of citizens and citizenesses, with the kindness of Mr. Devendorf, a number of bad spots on Lincoln avenue roadway have been repaired, and the event was being celebrated.

On behalf of the citizens the Pine Cone extends thanks for the good work and the example set for property-owners by visitors.

La Playa Personals

The farewell dance given by Mrs. Scott for Miss Scott on Thursday evening was very enjoyable. As usual, Miss Pope was beautifully gowned. Miss Pope who is a very busy Oakland girl, expects to spend Christmas with a large party of returning guests.

The departure of Miss Pilcher and Miss Egbert casts a gloom over our jolly crowd of young folks.

Miss Florence H. Russell, a new arrival from Kansas City, has already found a place in La Playa's heart. Her many jolly friends motoring in make things lively.

Mr. Lloyd Macy of Pasadena, with his mother, three children, governess and chauffeur, are at the Dr. Gates cottages until after the Monterey encampment.

Mr. W. S. Lysle of Los Angeles and Dr. D. F. Zook of Pasadena joined the encampment Monday.
