Many Species of Birds Have Their Habitat in Carmel

Carmel Votes to Incorporate 113 For 86 Against

"The best little city in California" is what a majority of the voters of Carmel determined upon at last Thursday's incorporation election.

The "City of Carmel-by-the-Sea" will at once begin its forward march. With the coming of independent municipal existence, which should be inaugurated about January 1, many projects for building and improvements, which had been held in abeyance, pending the result of the election, will be pushed forward to completion.

Under the old order of things Carmel was in a position where little of the greatest good to the greatest number could be accomplished. We have passed that period.

Now begins the labor of construction and improvement, not only in municipal projects, but with private enterprise as well.

The splendid Board of City Trustees will have many perplexing problems to meet and solve, and it will be the part of the public to assist them in every way. With such a board the people are assured of economy and efficiency in every matter undertaken. But give them time.

Two hundred and ten votes were cast, being about thirty short of the total number eligible to take part in the election. Incorporation won by a majority of 27.

J. E. Nichols, who entered the contest for City Clerk two days before election, surprised everyone by winning.

L. S. Slevin will be City Treasurer.

William M. Chase, Distinguished Artist, Crosses Over

William M. Chase, master artist, is dead. He passed away at his New York City home, on the afternoon of October 25. He was 68 years of age.

Up to 1914 it had been Mr. Chase's custom to conduct every summer somewhere away from home, generally in Europe, classes in painting. But in that year, through the efforts of the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts and Mrs. Jennie V. Cannon, he decided to establish his summer school here.

As a result, Carmel, prior to that time, known only locally as a gathering place of artists and students, immediately came to the front as an art center, and through the efforts of C. P. Townsley, Carmel's place has been maintained.

For many years Chase was a familiar and distinguished figure in New York art life. In the public eye he was the most representative of the American painters of his generation who had elected to live and work in the United States.

His paintings are to be found in almost every gallery of importance in the country. He was best known as a portrait painter, but his fame in that direction was rivaled by his reputation as a painter of fish.

Mr. Chase's distinguished appearance and eccentric manner will be recalled by local residents.

WEEKLY GREETING

Faithfulness is thine and reverence is thine; who then can rob thee of these things? Who can hinder thee to use them, if not thyself? — Epictetus.

The Local Election

With but few exceptions, the citizens of Carmel, among them many who were opposed to incorporation, are satisfied with the results of the election.

A few irreconcilables there be who are predicting all sorts of dire disaster to the community as a result of incorporation, but in the main, the desire is to see the plan worked out.

By word of mouth and by letters received the Pine Cone is enabled to present various suggestions of property-owners as to what might be done at once.

The City Trustees, no doubt, will be obliged, in the beginning at least, to draw a sharp line between the new city's needs and individuals' wants.

Here are the suggestions:

Remove unsightly shacks and out houses.

Repair the drinking trough on Ocean avenue.

Order repair of unsafe sidewalks.

Erect street and points of interest signs.

Impose a dog tax.

Establish a speed limit for automobiles.

And there are others.

Felicitation

The Monterey Cypress says: "Carmel-by-the-Sea will soon be a city of the sixth class.

"The voters of the art and literary community decided Thursday to emerge from their dormancy, and cast an overwhelming vote in favor of incorporating.

"The Cypress believes that the people of Carmel-by-the-Sea acted wisely. For it has been demonstrated that steady municipal improvement is best accelerated by municipal government.

"Best wishes to the latest addition to progressive California cities

Got Yours Yet?

From wooden heels to wooden soles is only a step, and, after all, what is there to fear if the scarcity of leather does threaten us with a return to the sabot. Have we forgotten the winsome Chopinette in Planquet's comic opera, "Paul Jones," and her little song:

Ladies who'd fascinate a swain,
Leave silk and satin train—
The gentleman's sure to amorous grow
If you to him your sabots show.
And Oh! Oh! Oh!
Oh! Oh! Oh!
Just look at my sabots.

Or something like that. A quarter of a century is apt to play pranks with both the memory and song of sabots.—Chronicle.

and to the officers in whose charge the destinies of the community have been placed."

WE THANK YOU.

Correct Negro Dialect

It is really amazing that so little good Negro dialect has been written. Many people who attempt to write it do not understand that it differs in various southern states. The Negro dialect of Virginia is unlike the Negro dialect of Mississippi, and the Negro dialect of Mississippi differs from the Negro dialect of Georgia.

A phrase frequently misused by those unfamiliar with Negro dialect is "you all." Indeed this phrase, which is used by well-educated people in the South, is given a place nowadays in nearly every southern anecdote told or written on the other side of the Mason and Dixon line. The most illiterate Negro in the South never used "you all" in referring to one person, but northern writers and story tellers almost invariably use it that way.

Another thing that writers of Negro dialect should take into consideration is that the dialect of the Negro of today differs somewhat from the dialect of the Negro of before the war, because nearly every Negro of today who is old enough has attended school, and of course the teaching they have received has had its effect on their everyday language.—Exchange.

Origin of "The Players"

"An incident of considerable interest that comes across the path of one's observation while at Bar Harbor is the fact that this is the place where Edwin Booth, while on a visit along the west coast, called together that well known group of his friends, and organized the club which his fortune founded and with which his name will be ever perpetuated," says Laurence Hutton.

"Booth had long desired to do something in a tangible and enduring way for the good of his profession; and various schemes were fully discussed during the fortnight's cruise of the steam yacht Oneida, in the summer of 1886. The party consisted of Commodore E. E. Benedict, the owner of the yacht, T. B. Aldrich, Lawrence Barrett, William Bispham, Booth and myself. Booth's first idea was to found and endow some sort of an actors' home with sleeping rooms, writing rooms, and a restaurant and the like.

"The notion of a club for actors was the broached. Mr. Aldrich, with a peculiarly happy inspiration, proposed the name of the Players, and the general plan of organization was gradually outlined."
